

Asbury Theological Seminary

ePLACE: preserving, learning, and creative exchange

Printed Material

Hannah Whitall Smith

1983

Box 11_12 (Printed Materials-Pamphlets-Durham, William H. and misc. n.d.)

ATS Special Collections and Archives

Follow this and additional works at: <https://place.asburyseminary.edu/hwsprintedmaterial>

Part of the Christianity Commons

GOD CALLS

Spoken under the Power of the Spirit by one who has the Gift of Prophecy.

Behold the gate is open wide. The arms of the Lord are still outstretched. But soon the gates will close. His arms shall be withdrawn. All day He stands pleading, wooing, calling, warning, interceding, but they will not enter in. Their necks have they stiffened. Their ears they have closed.

When He cried out, "Come unto Me, My fair one; come quickly; the time is short," instead of running to meet Him, they sat them down to eat of the pleasures of this world, and to drink wine. They have become drunken, and now, behold, they slumber. They hear My voice no more. Clouds have hidden My face from them. If they could but see that while they tarry, the door is beginning to swing shut and close! Too late! Too late!! They will awaken. They will listen for the voice of the Bridegroom, but it is no more. They will seek the face of the Lord, but shall not find. The feet that have been quick to shed blood shall hasten to and fro, in search of Him they persecute; but He has departed from their midst.

Tarry not! Waste not a moment, nor a word, nor a thought, for the time is short. Behold, I come quickly.