Kennard, Pa., June 14-26.
Dallas, Tex., July 15-24.
Little Rock, Ark., July 29-Aug. 7.
National Park, N. J., August 12-21.
Ingersoll, Okla., Aug. 26-Sept. 4.

FLEXON, R. S.

Woodbury, N. J., June 5-19.
Warm Springs, Va., June 26-July 11.
Lotham, Md., July 15-31.
Clinton, Pa., August 5-14.
Glassboro, N. J., August 15-21.
Delanco, N. J., Aug. 17-Sept. 5.
Home address, Shackelfords, Va.

FRYE, H. A.

Franklin, Pa., May 22-June 12.
Worthville, Pa., June 15-July 10.
Home address, 1326 Hurd Ave., Findlay, Ohio.

FUGETT, C. B.

Princeton, Ind., June 21-July 3.
St. Bernice, Ind., July 4-17.
Halltown, Mo., July 24-Aug. 7.
Normal, Ill., August 19-28.
Cape May, N. J., Sept. 9-17.
Home address, 2813 Holt St., Ashland, Ky.

GADDIS, TILDEN H.

Phillipsburg, Ohio, June 1-12.
St. Louis, Mo., June 13-26.
Monroe, Ind., June 27-July 10.
Aspen Grove, Ky., July 11-24.
Oregon, Wis., July 31-Aug. 14.
Charleston, Ill., August 19-28.
Upland, Ind., Sept. 2-17.
Home address, 4805 Ravenna St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

GARRETT, C. J.

Royalton, Ill., June 10-26.

GEIL, PAUL AND DORA.

(Singers and Xylophone Players)
Argo, Ill., June 5-20.
North Manchester, Ind., July 1-30.
Kokomo, Ind., Aug. 1-28.
Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 16-Nov. 6.
Brazil, Ind., Nov. 13-27.
Anamosa, Iowa, Dec. 1-30.
Home address, Frankfort, Ind.

GLEASON, RUFUS H.

New Castle, Ind., June 2-19.
General Conference, June 22-26.
Marion, Ind., July 3-24.
Cadillac, Mich., July 28-Aug. 7.
Charles City, Ia., Aug. 16-28.
Home address, Central, S. C.

GLENN, REV AND MRS. J. M.

Millport, Ala., July 3-13.
Chatam, Ala., July 24-Aug. 7.
Indian Springs, Ga., Aug. 11-21.
Eastman, Ga., Sept. 4-18.

GREEN, JIM H.

W. Marion, N. C., July 3-17.
Connelly Springs, N. C., Aug. 7-15.
Home address, Box 200, Connelly Springs, N. C.

GRANT BROTHERS.

Montier, Mo., July 1-16.
Birch Tree, Mo., August 1-16.
Thomasville, Mo., August 16-31.

GROGG, W. A.

Edray, W. Va., June 10-26.
Smithers, W. Va., July 2-22.
Mt. Lake Park, Md., July 26-Aug. 4.
Pinch, W. Va., August 20-Sept. 3.
Home address, Roncerverte, W. Va.

HALLMAN, W. A. AND WIFE.

Absaraka, N. D., June 23-July 3.
Alsask, Sask., July 7-17.
Didsbury, Alta., July 21-31.
Elkhart, Ind., August 4-14.
Lincoln, Nebr., August 19-29.

HARRIS, B. F.

Gainsville, Texas, June 4-19.
Graceton, Tex., July 1-10.
Klondike, Tex., July 15-31.
Dillard, Okla., Aug. 7-21.

HEWSON, JOHN E.

Open date, July 1st to 10.
Bery, Ky., July 17-31.
Sherman, Ill., August 14.
Portage, Ohio, Aug. 18-28.
Home address, 127 N. Chester Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.

HODGE, H. W.

Rochester, N. Y., June 30-July 10.

HOLLENBACK, URAL T.

Auburn, Pa., June 16-26.
Norristown, Pa., Oct. 2-16.

HOLLENBACK, ROY L.

Chadron, Neb., May 27-June 12.
Marion, Ohio, June 16-28.
Indianapolis, Ind., July 1-10.

HORN, LUTHER A—MARSHALL, R. P.

Healing Springs Camp Meeting, June 30-July 10.
Salem, Ala., July 12-28.

Clear Springs, Ala., Aug. 14-28.
Louisville, Ala., Sept. 1-14.
Home address, Box 1322, Mobile, Ala.

HOTCHKISS, ROY L.

Thompson, Iowa, June 5-26.
Campbell, Minn., June 29-July 17.
Montevideo, Minn., July 19-Aug. 7.
Winthrop, Minn., Aug. 9-28.
Hull, Iowa, August 30-Sept. 11.

HOWARD, FIELDING T.

Sunrise, Ky., July 4-17.
Depoy, Ky., July 20-31.
Milton, Ky., August 5-14.
Tolu, Ky., August 18-28.
Home address, Wilmore, Ky.

HULSE, AARON.

Oklahoma City, Okla., July 10-31.

HUNT, JOHN J.

Lake Odessa, Mich., May 29-June 12.
Hurlock, Md., June 16-26.
Rosslyn, Va., July 29-August 8.
Wilkesburg, Pa., Sept. 16-25.
Home address, Media, Pa., Rt. 3.

HYSSELL, HARVEY B.

Pax, W. Va., June 5-19.
Lennon, Mich., June 26-July 13.
Baileysville, W. Va., July 17-31.
Bowersville, Ohio, August 4-14.
Mt. Nebo, W. Va., Aug. 17-31.
Home address, Box 1235, Charleston, W. Va.

IRICK, ALLIE AND EMMA.

North Little Rock, Ark., June 5-19.
Jasper, Ala., June 23-July 3.
Olive Hill, Ky., July 8-18.
Goddard, Ky., July 21-31.
Cambria, Ill., August 4-14.
Bonnie, Ill., August 19-29.
Millport, Ala., Aug. 31-Sept. 12.
Thomas, Okla., Sept. 15-25.
Home address, Bethany, Okla.

JOHNSON, RAY N.

Somerset, Ky., May 29-June 12.
Corinth, Ky., June 13-26.
Mohala, Ohio, July 10-24.
McLuney, Ohio, July 25-Aug. 7.

JOHNSON, ANDREW

Bryantville, Ky., June 1-15.

KEYS EVANGELISTIC PARTY.

Rev. Clifford E. Keys, Evangelist. Mrs. Clifford E. Keys, Pianist. Rev. Roscoe Bancroft, Trombonist.
Open date, June 16-July 3.
West Colorado, Ohio, July 7-21.
Reading, Pa., July 22-31.
Lewistown, Pa., August 2-14.
Eccles, W. Va., Aug. 18-Sept. 4.
Chillicothe, Ohio, Sept. 11-Oct. 2.
Home address, Mohnton, Pa.

KINSEY, W. C. AND WIFE.

(Song Leader, Singers, Pianist)
Arcanum, Ohio, June 12-26.
Portage, Ohio, August 18-28.
Home address, 452 So. West 2nd St., Richmond, Ind.

LILLENAS, HALDOR AND BERTHA.

Springfield, Ohio, June 9-12.
Bloomington, Ind., June 15-19.
Mohawk, Ind., June 23-26.
Peoria, Ill., July 3-17.
Carmichaels, Pa., July 21-31.
Sherman, Ill., August 4-14.
Connersville, Ind., Oct. 2-16.

LITTELL, V. W. AND MARGUERITE.

West Sunbury, Pa., June 9-20.
Butler, Pa., June 28-July 19.
Youngstown, O., July 22-Aug. 7.
Charlton, Ia., Aug. 14-28.
Home address, 1214 Scott St., Beatrice, Nebraska.

LOVELESS, W. W.

Bowling Green, Ky., June 2-26.
Home address, London, Ohio.

LUDWIG, THEODORE AND MINNIE.

Montevideo, Minn., June 3-13.
Corsica, S. D., June 14-26.
Litchfield, Minn., June 26-July 10.
Racine, Wis., July 13-24.
Hector, Minn., July 26-Aug. 7.
Nokomis, Ill., Aug. 9-21.
Home address, 772 N. Euclid Ave., St. Louis, Mo.

NELSON, S. S.

Christo, Va., July 1-10.
Home address, 832 Worth Ave., Greensboro, N. C.

MCBRIDE, J. B.

Batesville, Ark., May 29-June 12.
Denver, Colo., June 13-19.
Bartersville, Ky., June 29-July 11.
Mount Olivet, Ky., July 15-25.
Hollis, Okla., July 27-Aug. 7.
Noonday, Tex., August 11-21.
Oakland City, Ind., Aug. 25-Sept. 4.
Home address, 112 Arlington Drive, Pasadena, Calif.

MCCORD, W. W.

Toledo, Ohio, May 23-June 15.
Sale City, Ga., August 11-21.
Home address, Sale City, Ga.

MCGHIE, ANNA E.

Coshocton, Ohio, June 9-19.
Sharon Center, Ohio, July 28-Aug. 4.
Mt. Vernon, O., Aug. 4-14.

MCKIE, MARK S.

Morefield, Ont., May 16-June 12.
Open dates after June 15.

MCNEES, HERBERT J.

Open dates, May, June, July, August, September.
Home address, 13th Ave., New Brighton, Pa.

MILLER, JULIUS.

Mattoon, Wis., June 6-14.
Poplar, Mont., June 16-July 7.
Franklin, Minn., July 13-24.
Ortonville, Minn., July 26-Aug. 7.

Jamestown, N. Dak., Aug. 10-14.
Home address, Mattoon, Wis.

MILBY, L. G. AND BERTHA.

Taylorville, Ill., June 5-26.
Home address, Box 327, Danville, Ill.

MILLER, REV. AND MRS. F. E.

Westport, Ont. Can., June 5-19.
Wilmington, N. Y., June 23-July 4.
Moers, N. Y., July 30-Aug. 14.
Richland, N. Y., August 21-Sept. 5.
Home address, Lowville, N. Y.

MILLER, JAMES.

Chicago, Ill., May 29-July 3.
Lynn, Ind., July 10-24.
Ilope, Mich., July 31-Aug. 14.
Home address, 1249 N. Holme Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.

MINGLEDORFF, O. G.

Grand Bayou, La., July 17-31.
Orlando, Fla., Aug. 25-Sept. 5.
Home address, Blackshear, Ga.

MONK, ALONZO, JR.

Fulton, Ky., June 12-July 3.
Tuscumbia, Ala., July 5-24.
Winslow, Ark., July 26-Sept. 1.
Paris, Tenn., Sept. 3-24.
October, November, December open.

MORRIS, (JUDGE) FRANK

China Springs, Tex., July 24.
Aspen, Tex., August 7.
Hagerman, N. Mex., Aug. 28.
Alamoyardo, N. Mex., Sept. 11.
Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 2.
Home address, P. O. Box 1523 Dallas, Texas.

NELSON, S. S.

Rockland, W. Va., June 1-12.
Copper Hill, Va., July 1-10.
Organ Cave, W. Va., Oct. 1-10.
Ranceverte, W. Va., Oct. 12-25.
Address, 832 Worth Ave., Greensboro, N. C.

OWEN, G. F. AND BYRDIE.

Pierson, Iowa, June 12-26.
Ft. Dodge, Iowa, July 12-24.
Climbing Hill, Iowa, July 29-August 1.
Open date, August 12-21.
Bath, Maine, Aug. 28-Sept. 12.
South Portland, Maine, Sept. 18-Oct. 2.
Home address, 1415 West Pikes Peak Ave., Colorado Springs, Colo.

PARKER, J. R.

Willisburg, Ky., June 4-26.
Woodlawn, Ky., July 10-24.
Sergeant, Ky., July 25-August 14.
Berry, Ky., August 15-28.
Address, Wilmore, Ky.

POLLOCK, G. S. AND WIFE.

Wallingford, Ky., June 15-26.
Eldorado, Ill., August 4-14.
Home address, Wilmore, Ky.

POLITT, S. H.

Oddville, Ky., June 5-19.
Open date, June 20-July 31.
Orangeburg, Ky., August 1-14.
Wagoner's Chapel, Ky., August 15-25.

POWELL, JAMES L.

Open date, June 12-21.
Pence, Ind., June 26-July 12.
Open date, July 13-24.
Corydon, Ky., July 31-Aug. 14.
Open date, Aug. 18-28.

REDMON, J. E. AND ADA

Midland, Mich., May 29-June 12.
Indianapolis, Ind., June 19-July 3.
South Bend, Ind., July 8-24.
California, Ky., August 19-28.
Home address, 1231 North Holmes Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.

REED, LAWRENCE.

Coshocton, Ohio, June 9-19.
Sebring, Ohio, July 15-24.
Albany, N. Y., July 31-Aug. 14.
Richland, N. Y., August 21-Sept. 5.
Cumberland, Md., Sept. 10-20.
Home address, Damascus, Ohio.

REES, PAUL S.

Kokomo, Ind., June 10-19.
Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, July 8-17.
Ferndale, Wash., July 22-31.
New Albany, Ind., August 4-14.
Cherry Grove, Ind., August 15-19.
Home address, Pasadena, Calif.

REID, JAMES V.

Lake Charles, La., June 19-July 3.
Lake Arthur, La., July 7-17.
Jackson, Tenn., July 19-Aug. 3.
Home address, 2912 Meadowbrook Drive, Fort Worth, Tex.

RICE, LEWIS J. AND EDDYTHE

Mattoon, Wis., June 12-26.
Madill, Okla., July 17-31.
Kingston, Okla., August 4-21.
Home address, 2923 Troost Ave., Kansas City, Mo.

RINEBARGER, C. C.

University Park, Ind., June 3-13.
North Reading, Mass., June 24-July 4.
Douglas, Mass., July 15-24.
North Little Rock, Ark., July 28-Aug. 7.
Ramsey, Ind., August 12-22.
Oakland City, Ind., Aug. 26-Sept. 4.
Home address, Olivet, Ill.

ROOD, PERRY R.

Rio Grande, Ohio, June 9-26.
West Liberty, Ohio, Dec. 2-Jan. 7.
Home address, 2838 Overlook Drive, Huntington, W. Va.

SANFORD, E. L. AND WIFE.

Elkhorn City, Ky., June 9-19.
Bethel Ridge, Ky., July 31-Aug. 21.
Home address, 202 Engman Ave., Lexington,

Splendid Premiums

We are anxious to place The Pentecostal Herald in every home possible. It is a silent messenger of Full Salvation. You will find listed below some of the best books we handle. We shall be glad to send you any one free for the number of one-year subscriptions so stated. They are splendid values—financially—and spiritually. "No man can be called friendless who has the companionship of God and good books." Send in the subscriptions at $1.50 each and get some fine books.

Christ Exalted, by Rev. C. H. Babcock.

A great book of sermons centering around Christ. Everyone who has heard Brother Babcock preach, will want this book.

Sent free for two one-year subscriptions.

The Christ of the Gospels, by Dr. H. C. Morrison.

Ten sermonic masterpieces by that peerless preacher of the Holiness Movement. The cream of his sermons preached throughout the years. You ought to read it.

Sent free for two one-year subscriptions.

The Tongue of Fire, by William Arthur.

A classic on Holiness. It's utterances are like the staccato notes of the priestly trumpet, summoning the hosts of Israel to battle. Read it by all means.

Sent free for two one-year subscriptions.

Jerry McAuley, by R. M. Offord.

A marvelous record of the depths of human depravity, and the possibilities of God's Grace. It will deepen your faith and increase your zeal.

Sent free for three one-year subscriptions.

Amazing Grace, by Dr. G. W. Ridout.

Discussions that center around the deep things of God. A book packed full of fine illustrations, with rich meat in every chapter. You will like it.

Sent free for two one-year subscriptions.

The Way of the Cross, by Dr. J. Gregory Mantle.

A thorough and constructive treatment on the subject of the Cross in the Christian's life. Everything is seen to center around the Cross.

Sent free for two one-year subscriptions.

PENTECOSTAL PUBLISHING COMPANY, LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY.

ST. CLAIR, FRED
Cheney, Wash., June 5-July 10.
Portland, Oregon, July 31-August 28.
Permanent address, 2444 Bowditch St., Berkeley, Calif.

SHARROW, C. E. AND NEVA B.
(Singers and Children's Workers)
Robinson, Ill., June.
Manville, Ill., June 26-July 10.
Home address, Wren, Ohio.

SHELHAMER, E. E.
Dayton, Ohio, June 13-26.
Harrowsmith, Ont., June 30-July 10.
Inkerman, Ont., July 14-24.
Owasso, Mich., Aug. 4-14.
Wichita, Kan., Aug. 18-28.
Binghampton, N. Y., Sept. 25-Oct. 9.
Allentown, Pa., Oct. 16-30.
Home address, 5419 Bushnell Way, Los Angeles, Calif.

TEETS, ODA B.
Webster Springs, W. Va., June 12-26.
Jollytown, Pa., July 10-24.
Odessa, W. Va., July 31-Aug. 14.
Mt. Nebo, W. Va., Aug. 17-31.
Home address, Aurora, W. Va.

THOMAS, JOHN.
Upland, Ind., June 7-14.
Red Rock, Minn., July 1-10.
Kittanning, Pa., July 14-24.
Moers, N. Y., Aug. 1-14.
Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 16-28.
Clarksburg, Ont. Can., Sept. 9-18.
Permanent address, Wilmore, Ky.

VANDALL, N. B.
Princeton, Ind., June 22-July 3.
Bentleyville, Pa., July 7-17.
Pittman, N. J., July 20-Aug. 2.
Findlay, Ohio, Aug. 11-21.
Mt. Lookout, Ohio, Aug. 25-Sept. 4.

VAYHINGER, M.
Letts, Ind., July 29-August 7.
Bryantown, Ind., Aug. 19-28.
Nashville, Ind., July 6-17.

WHITEHURST, R. F.
New York District Nazarene Church,
June and July.
Magnolia, Ark., August 4-14.
Home address, Wilmore, Ky.

WILLIAMS, L. E.
Open dates, June, July, August.
Home address, Wilmore, Ky.

YOUNG, R. A.
Bentley, N. D., June 24-July 4.
Open dates, July 7-31.
Bowersville, O., Aug. 4-14.
Waynesboro, Miss., Aug. 19-28.

CAMP MEETING CALENDAR.

ALABAMA.
Dothan, Ala., Camp, July 15-24. Workers: Rev. K. H. Bird, evangelist; J. P. Peacock, singer. Address Rev. W. H. Newton, Sec., Dothan, Ala., Rt. 5.

Healing Springs, Ala., Camp, June 30 to July 10. Workers: Rev. Luther A. Horn, Rev. R. P. Marshall, pianist, soloist and chalk talker. Address Luther A. Horn, manager, Box 1322, Mobile, Ala.

CALIFORNIA.
Pacific Palisades, Calif., camp, June 24-July 4. Workers: Rev. Will H. Huff, Rev. R. T. Williams, Rev. Fred H. Ross.

COLORADO.
Colorado Springs, Colo., Camp, June 16-26. Workers: Revs. Charles Stalker, W. R. Cox, Paul W. Thomas, S. K. Wheatlake, R. G. Finch, R. R. Sharp. Address Herbert Haines, Sec., Center, Colo.

ILLINOIS.
Cambria, Ill., camp, August 4-14. Workers: Rev. Allie Erick and wife, Mrs. Emma Erick, Rev. Elmer McKay, Rev. J. K. Moore in charge of the singing. "The Girls' Quartette, of Taylor University will also be in attendance. Dr. John Paul will be with us for at least one service. A. C. Wolfe, Sec., Carterville, Ill., Route 1.

Chester, Ill., camp, June 28-July 10. Workers: Rev. and Mrs. Jack Linn, Miss Imogene Quinn, Prof. Edson Crosby, and Miss Karine Kjolseth. Address J. W. Louthan, Arcola, Ill., August 18-28. Workers: Revs. Allie and Emma Erick, Rev. Elmer McKay, Prof. John E. Moore. W. T. Lawson, Cor. Sec., Benton, Ill.

INDIANA.
Letts, Ind., camp, July 29-August 7. Workers: M. Vayhinger, Dwight M. Peltier, song evangelist. Mrs. Lena Holcomb, pianist. Address Rev. Arthur McQueen, Pres., Westport, Ind.

New Albany, Ind., Silver Heights, Aug. 4-14. Workers: Revs. Virgil L. Moore and Raymond Browning, Paul S. Rees. Mrs. T. B. Talbott, children's worker. Male Quartet of Asbury College in charge of music. Address E. D. McPheeters, Sec., 212 Cherry St., New Albany, Ind.

Monroe, Ind., camp, June 27-July 10. Workers: Tilden H. Gaddis, the Moser Sisters in charge of music. Address James C. Adams, Willshire, Ohio, President, or Mrs. Frank Martz, Monroe, Ind., Sec.

IOWA.
University Park, Iowa, camp, June 3-13. Workers: The President of the National Association in charge; Dr. J. L. Brasher and A. L. Whitcomb; W. B. Yates, song leader; Mrs. O. W. Rose, children's worker. Address Rev. Anna L. Spann, Pres., University Park, Iowa, or Mrs. Hattie Middle, Sec., Lacona, Iowa.

KANSAS.
Hutchinson, Kansas Camp, May 26-June 5. Workers: Rev. Bud Robinson, Rev. C. B. Fugett, The Edwards Ladies' Evangelistic Party, Rev. N. B. Herrell, Rev. H. M. Chambers, Rev. A. F. Balsmeier. Write Rev. H. O. Davis, Sylvia, Kan., or Rev. A. L. Hipple, 503 East 5th St., Hutchinson, Kansas.

KENTUCKY.
Wilmore, Ky., camp, July 28-Aug. 7. Workers: Rev. C. W. Wimberly, Rev. J. L. Brasher and H. S. Blackburn. Rev. H. C. Morrison, Pres., will preach also. Address C. A. Lovejoy, Sec., Wilmore, Ky.

LOUISIANA.
Lake Arthur, La., Camp, July 7-17.

Workers: Rev. Will H. Huff, assisted by Mr. W. R. Wilder, leader of song, and Mr. James V. Reid, young people's worker and pianist. Address J. W. Foutenot, Pres., Box 1621, Shreveport, La.

MARYLAND.
Mountain Lake Park, Md., June 26-July 10. Workers: Dr. Daniel Westfall, Dr. C. H. Babcock, Dr. Henry Clay Morrison, Dr. C. M. Dunaway, Dr. John F. Owen, Prof. Kenneth Wells and wife, Song leaders. C. M. Hood, President, Mountsville, W. Va.

MASSACHUSETTS.
North Reading, Mass., camp, June 24-July 4. Workers: Rev. George E. Kulp, Rev. J. B. Chapman, Rev. C. C. Rinebarger, musical director. Rev. H. V. Miller in charge. For information address E. T. French, 466 Main St., South Manchester, Conn.

MICHIGAN.
Eaton Rapids, Mich., Camp, July 29-August 7. Workers: Dr. John Paul, Rev. Will Huff, Dr. S. H. Turberville. Rev. L. H. Nixon in charge of music, with H. Morse Skinner at the piano. Mrs. Blanche Francis in charge of young people's work. For information write Miss Fern C. Wheeler, Sec., Charlotte, Mich.

MINNESOTA.
Red Rock, Minn., camp, June 30-July 10. Workers: Rev. F. M. Anderson, Rev. John Thomas and wife, Rev. Lloyd Nixon, Rev. Geo. G. Vallentyne, H. Morse Skinner, pianist. For information write Rev. Jacob Berger, Fairbault, Minn.

Montevideo, Minn., camp, June 3-13. Workers: Rev. Theodore and Minnie E. Ludwig. Karl Deisinger, Sec., Montevideo, Minn.

NEBRASKA.
Lincoln, Neb., camp, June 23-July 3. Workers: Rev. Joseph H. Smith, Rev. John L. Brasher. For information, write Rev. A. Jacobs, Sec., 2100 E St., Lincoln, Neb.

Gordon, Neb., camp, June 17-26. Workers: Rev. Jos. Smith and Rev. C. W. Ruth, with Mr. and Mrs. Sutor, as song leaders. Address Mrs. Otto Pfeiffer, Sec., Gordon, Neb.

NEW JERSEY.
Delanco, N. J., camp, June 24-July 4. Workers: Rev. Preston E. Kennedy, Rev. Will Hill.

Aura, N. J., camp, July 8-17. Worker: Rev. Preston E. Kennedy.

NEW YORK.
Freeport, L. I., N. Y., Camp Roosevelt, Prince Ave., West of North Main St., July 14-24. Workers: Rev. John F. Owen, Rev. Howard Sweeten; song leader, Miss Florence Fairbanks. Address H. J. Cornell, 464 Burling St., Flushing, N. Y.

Victory Grove, N. Y., camp, June 30-July 10. Stop 14 Schenectady-Albany trolley line. Workers: Rev. G. Arnold Hodgkin, Rev. Chas. Stalker, Capt. Chas. T. Potter, Alvin Young, song leader. Address Alvin Young, Sec., Northville, N. Y.

NORTH DAKOTA.
Washburn, N. D., camp, July 7-17. Workers: Dr. J. L. Brasher, Rev. Raymond Browning. Rev. Leo Slagg and wife in charge of music.

Jamestown, N. D., camp, June 17-26. Workers: C. H. Babcock, John Paul, S. A. Danford, Mrs. S. A. Danford, Children's leader, Fred Canaday, song leader. For information write Rev. F. W. Gress, Sec., Steele, N. Dak.

OHIO.
Mt. Vernon, Ohio, (Camp Sychar), camp, August 4-14. Workers: Rev. C. M. Dunaway, Rev. John Owen, Rev. E. Hilton Post. Song leader, Prof. W. B. Yates; Young people's worker, Miss Anna McGhie. Children's workers, Miss May Gorsuch and Miss Olie Tanner. Young people's song leader, Rev. W. L. Mullett. Address Rev. E. E. Shiltz, Sec., Shadyside, Ohio.

Toronto, (Hollow Rock) Ohio, July 28-August 7. Workers: C. W. Ruth, C. H. Babcock, Howard Sweeten. Song leader, Prof. Kenneth Wells and wife. Young People's and Children's meeting leader, Mrs. Sadie Mishey. Address Roy L. Householder, Sec., Toronto, Ohio.

Coshocton, Ohio, camp, June 9-19. Workers: Rev. T. M. Anderson, Rev. Lawrence Reed, A. H. Johnston and wife in charge of singing. Anna E. McGhie in charge of the Young People's and Children's work. Write R. K. Ganefelder, 335 North 8th St., Coshocton, Ohio. Sec'y.

Marion, Ohio, camp, June 16-26. Workers: Rev. Roy Hollenback, Rev. Joe Callender. Rev. Mrs. E. E. Shelhamer. Write V. O. Shaw, 815 Merkle Ave., Marion, Ohio.

OREGON.
Portland, Ore., Camp, June 30-July 10. Workers: Miss D. Willia Caffray, Rev. C. C. Poling, D.D. Song leader, Mrs. Bess Owens Runyan. Children's worker, Miss Clara Christensen. Address Mrs. Lydia Erskine, Sec., 1186 Borthwick St., Portland, Ore., Secretary.

PENNSYLVANIA.
Hughesville, Pa., camp, July 21-July 31. Workers: Rev. Raymond E. Doble, Rev. Claude A. Roane. Song leaders, Mrs. Esther Williamson, assisted by Miss Alma Budman. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Best in charge of the music. Address Rev. S. P. Elroyd, Centre Hall, Pa.

Canonsburg, Pa., camp, June 17-30. Workers: Rev. Raymond Bush, Rev. J. M. Carothers, song leader.

Kittanning, Pa., camp, July 14-24. Workers: Rev. and Mrs. John Thomas, Mrs. Etta Polles, song leader. For information write Miss Nancy Byron, 1214 Fifth Ave., Ford City, Pa.

SOUTH DAKOTA.
Mitchell, S. D., camp, June 24-July 4. Workers: Rev. Frank P. Arthur, Rev. A. W. Gould. Wm. Durkee, Sec.

VIRGINIA.
Mt. Vernon, Va., camp, July 29-Aug. 7. Workers: Rev. Wilson Thomas, Rev. C. W. Dyer, Rev. H. H. Hoyt and Fred Canaday. Address Annie Hoesley Shrader, Sec., Acotink, Va.

WISCONSIN.
Oregon, Wis., Camp, July 29-August 14. Workers: Rev. Tilden H. Gaddis, Moser Sisters, Miss Imogene Quinn, Prof. Edson Crosby, Miss Karine Kjolseth, and Rev. and Mrs. Jack Linn. Address Jack Linn, Oregon, Wis.

WYOMING.
Basin, Wyo., camp, July 18-31. Workers: Rev. James L. Hiker and Alston Fields. Rev. S. Hutcherson, song leader. Address Miss Grace White, Sec. Basin, Wyo.

SOME RARE BOOKS

We make the following most liberal offer to the readers of THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD. Read about the books listed below. We offer to give you absolutely free, postage paid, any one of these books for ONE SUBSCRIPTION to THE HERALD for a year at the regular price of $1.50. If you send TWO subscriptions you will get TWO books; THREE subscriptions will get THREE books, etc. Send us TEN subscriptions and get the whole set. Your renewal may count as one of the list.

Wesley's Sermons. VOL. III AND IV.

This edition of sermons is now out of print. We have a number of rare copies. Vol. III has 37 sermons. Among these is the one preached on the death of George Whitefield. A hundred of these are bound in sheepskin. The first to send for them will be favored with this special binding. Vol. IV has 37 sermons. One of them is on the death of John Fletcher. Some of Wesley's best preaching is in these two volumes. You will find here exactly what the founder of Methodism believed and preached.

The Making of Methodism by Jno. J. Tigert.

This is an old book, printed in 1898. It tells of the rise of the episcopacy, of the presiding eldership, of the itineracy and of the annual and general conferences in Methodism. A splendid, authentic source of information on these subjects. It has 157 pages and is bound in a beautiful blue cover with gold titles.

Sermons, by Bishop E. M. Marvin.

If you want something worth while, read some writings several years old. Some sermons are so old that they are new. This is a new book, but the sermons were first written in 1876. The language is simple, forceful, and eloquent. Read them.

Life of Francis Asbury by Bishop DuBose

This is a biographical study of the first bishop of Methodism in America. Bishop DuBose is a forceful, scholarly writer, and with such a subject as this he has done his best. A wonderfully interesting and enlightening book of 240 pages. It is beautifully bound and will grace any library shelf.

Life of Robert Paine by R. H. Rivers

The rise of an obscure young preacher to college president and on to the bishopric is the highly interesting story told in this volume by Dr. Rivers. Bishop Paine rose to the heights through dangers, seen and unseen, and through sorrows and suffering in many instances. The sketch is well worth your reading.

William McKendree by Bishop E. E. Hoss

Fifteen chapters on the life of McKendree. "The earlier history of American Methodism is easily divisible into three periods, each represented by a name that will long survive,—Asbury, McKendree, and Soule. This book tells the part Bishop McKendree took in this formative period of Methodist history.

There are 206 pages, every one of which teems with interest.

The Christianity of Christ and His Apostles by Jno. J. Tigert.

This is a discussion of historical studies of fundamental New Testament problems. The author deals with "The Nature of the Christian Religion;" "The Vocation of Jesus the Proof of His Godhead;" the Foundation of Criticism and the Christian Faith." The purpose of the book is to show Christ as the all-sufficient one in the face of all destructive criticism.

A 202 page book; well written, and worth reading.

Life of Joshua Soule by Bishop DuBose

Bishop Soule, a master in Israel, Cavalier and Puritan. One of the most interesting books of a decade is this one. It tells of some of the incidents of the storm around Bishop Andrew and the split of the two Methodisms over slavery. Read it.

Studies in the Life of John Wesley by E. B. Chappell

A series of studies in the life of Wesley, so arranged that they give an outline of his life and labors. It was written especially to appeal to the young people. This makes it doubly interesting, of course, to older readers. 239 pages, cloth bound.

Note that there is not a "shallow" book in this set. If you want real, live, instructive and interesting reading, get every one.

PENTECOSTAL PUBLISHING COMPANY - - LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY.

PENTECOSTAL HERALD

Dr. H. C. Morrison, Editor
Mrs. H. C. Morrison, Associate Editor

Louisville, Ky., Wednesday, June 15, 1927.
Entered at Louisville, Ky., Postoffice as Second Class Matter.

$1.50 Per Year.
Vol. 39, No. 24.

The Coming of The Lord Draweth Nigh.

By The Editor.

THE doctrines of Christian Holiness and the Second Coming of our Lord are very closely connected with each other. The white robe of entire sanctification is the wedding garment; the coming of the Lord is the marriage occasion. Happy will be those who have on the wedding garment when he comes.

* * *

It is interesting to note that in his letter to the Thessalonians, the Apostle Paul closely connects sanctification, or holiness, with the second coming of Christ. Note, "For they themselves show of us what manner of entering in we had unto you, and how ye turned to God from idols to serve the living and true God; and to wait for his Son from heaven, whom he raised from the dead, even Jesus, which delivered us from the wrath to come." 1 Thess. 1:9, 10.

* * *

This thought of full salvation and the coming of our Lord is more clearly brought out in the third chapter of this epistle, twelfth and thirteenth verses: "And the Lord make you to increase and abound in love one toward another, and toward all men, even as we do toward you: to the end he may stablish your hearts unblameable in holiness before God, even our Father, at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ with all his saints."

* * *

We are by no means ready to take up every fad and fancy with reference to the second coming of Christ. However, the Scriptures do undoubtedly teach that the Lord will come, that he will come suddenly, that he will come when many are not prepared to receive him, that those who have rejected and resisted him here will cry for the rocks and hills to cover them and hide them out of his sight when he appears in his glory. It is not worth while to try to hide or explain away these plainly written teachings in the Word of God. Jesus is coming. He is represented as a bridegroom and the church as his bride. She is to be clothed in linen, pure and white, which is the righteousness of the saints. Undoubtedly, the one thing of greatest importance is that she shall be pure in heart, separate from the world, sanctified and established in righteousness.

* * *

Let it be remembered that Jesus came the first time to die upon the cross for the redemption of his people from sin, that they may be purged and made holy, pure and undefiled, spotless and clean. Why should any one object to a clean heart and a holy life; a life from sin set free? As it is written that he shall come again, and God in his wisdom has chosen that his Son shall come twice into the world, why should any one object to God's plan? Why not let God have his own way in the carrying out of his great program of redemption? And why not seek after a clean heart and be robed in righteousness when our blessed Lord appears? It is for this the Apostle Paul prays in 1 Thess.

5:22-24: "Abstain from all appearance of evil. And the very God of peace sanctify you wholly; and I pray God your whole spirit and soul and body be preserved blameless unto the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ. Faithful is he that calleth you, who also will do it."

Monthly Sermon.

CONTENDING FOR THE FAITH.

Text: "Beloved, when I gave all diligence to write unto you of the common salvation, it was needful for me to write unto you, and exhort you that ye should earnestly contend for the faith which was once delivered unto the saints. For there are certain men crept in unawares, who were before of old ordained to this condemnation, ungodly men, turning the grace of our God into lasciviousness, and denying the only Lord God, and our Lord Jesus Christ." Jude 3, 4.

The Holy Spirit inspired holy men to write the Scriptures so that they would be in their teachings perfectly adaptable to all men of all classes, of all nations, through all time. The word of God is so wide, so deep, so comprehensive, that we do not need a different Bible for different nationalities, but translations of the same Bible into the many languages of the many peoples, all having the same sins, and need of the same all-sufficient Saviour offered in the Bible.

Times and customs change. The great ocean of humanity has its ebbs and flows. The tides of human progress rise and recede. God is the same yesterday, today, and forever. Human nature is the same throughout the ages. The sins of today are identical with the sins of men at the dawn of human history. Deception, envy, theft, adultery, murder, and all the crimes known to humanity in the beginning of time, are known to men of our day. All sins are old; they have been in use from the early history of the race. Men may think of some new ways of committing sin, but there are no new sins.

No study can be more interesting and profitable to the devout Christian than a thoughtful study of the unfolding and ever enlarging scheme of human redemption; but always, and everywhere, there is one central thought—in law, in history, in Psalms, in prophecy, in gospel, in epistle, in all the Bible—man is a lost and ruined sinner, and the Lord Jesus Christ, his only and all-sufficient Saviour.

We hear much talk today of the need of a new Bible. You may be sure that all of this talk comes from men who do not know the Bible we have. They do not keep its commandments, they have not repented of their sins it condemns, nor sought and found the Christ it offers. If they lived in harmony with the Ten Commandments, practiced the teachings of the Sermon on the Mount, breathed the spirit of the twelfth of Romans and the thirteenth chapter of First Corinthians, they would have no desire for a new one. The new life which the old Bible gives is the greatest need of the times in which we are living, in fact, of all times.

If Jude had have written his epistle to the church last week, it could not have been more appropriate, adaptable and opportune than it is at this time. Notice the first of his appeal: "It was needful for me to write unto you, and exhort you that ye should earnestly contend for the faith which was once delivered unto the saints."

"The faith" Jude here speaks of is the Bible faith; the faith delivered by the prophets, Christ and the apostles; the only faith that leads to Christ and saves. They are to contend for, defend, and propagate this faith. The prophets, Christ and the apostles are as one; they are in perfect agreement. Jesus Christ is the central Sun of the whole system of redemption, with the planets of truth circling around him in perfect order and beautiful harmony.

We must keep this truth as the most sacred trust. The salvation of the human race depends upon it. Lose this great faith, and all is lost; chaos reigns in the moral world, the church becomes a mere human club, a house left desolate. The family is broken up, laws are violated, officials become corrupt, criminals go unpunished, property has no protection, life is cheap, wars break out, famine follows, and deadly plagues send countless multitudes into untimely graves.

If we would have God in the midst, Christ as a Saviour, the Holy Ghost as a guide and comforter, we must keep "the faith." Not a notion, not an idea, not a theory or philosophy of men, but the faith delivered by God to men through his inspired saints. Why is Jude stirred up to give this exhortation?

He tells us that "certain men have crept in unawares." The false teacher has a way of creeping in. He is most plausible and subtle. He is a stealthy fellow; he will get your confidence, flatter you, insist on broadmindedness, tolerance and keeping up with the times, and thereby steal away your faith. Your destructive modernist will compliment your Lord, will say such beautiful things about Jesus, his life, his teachings and the value of his example, that would almost lead you to suppose that he trusted in him for salvation, and worshipped him as his Lord; but far from it!

Let it be remembered that Judas kissed our Lord in order to betray him into the hands of his enemies. These modern "creepers in" will compliment your Saviour in order to put you off your guard, and that, with safety to themselves, they may "deny the

(Continued on page 8)

Notes on The National Convention at Chicago.

Rev. G. W. Ridout, D.D., Corresponding Editor.

IT'S a long stretch from John S. Inskip, the first man to preside at the National Association for the Promotion of Holiness in 1867, to Joseph H. Smith, who has just been elected for a third term as the National President.

The Convention for 1927 was held at the Chicago Evangelistic Institute, Chicago, May 9-15. The Convention proper, was preceded by important meetings of the Missionary Board of Directors of which Rev. C. W. Ruth is President. Rev. C. P. Hogle is Secretary and Field Agent, and Mrs. Vennard, Treasurer. We had the pleasure of attending one of the sessions of the Board in the interest of opening up Missionary work in Africa. The Board has finally decided to open up the African field for holiness missionaries just as soon as the providential leader shall appear, and there are unmistakable tokens that the Lord wants the National to enter that field. Already some missionary candidates are knocking at the doors to enter upon the African work through the "National."

It will be of interest to our readers to learn that the Missionary Society of the N. H. A., during this past year received over $50,000 for the work in China. Quite recently there has been given the brethren in China a farm of 100 acres, with a boys and girls' school building on it, together with missionaries' dwellings, and it is estimated that its value is upwards of one hundred thousand dollars. I believe this gift came largely through Bro. Troxel's and Bro. Taylor's previous connection with the Chinese work in this place before they entered the "National."

The missionary work of the N. H. A. in China has the following items of interest:

It began in 1910. Its work is located in Shantung, North China. This province has about 36 million inhabitants, though it is smaller than Illinois in area. The field directly occupied by the National is about the size of Delaware, and two million souls constitute our crowd. We have 26 missionaries and lay workers. The people of this area are very religious, there being approximately 25,000 temples in this field alone besides innumerable shrines. They worship on the first and fifteenth of each month and have many other sacred feast days. They worship their ancestors, fairies, spirits, and about 3,000 different gods. The gods that receive the most worship are the god of the kitchen, god of wealth, god of the Yellow River, god of birth and god of mercy. Tung-changfu alone has 227 temples with no less than 1,500 idols.

The Missionaries of the N. H. A. are holiness people and carry on their work for the salvation of souls. They say of their work the following:

"Our Mission is evangelistic in every department. Our aim is to lead people to the Cross of Jesus for the new birth and sanctification through the baptism with the Holy Ghost. We have pastoral work at our residence stations with a missionary in charge, and, at the several outposts, with the native evangelist in charge at each station under the general supervision of a missionary, women missionaries superintending the women's work in each place. We have good schools for our boys and girls, and there are telling instances of these being soul-winners in their homes and villages. Our Bible Schools are training men and women for all of the field work. Cottage (mud huts and brick houses) prayer meetings, and house to house visitation are avenues for our Bible women's evangelistic work. Their work is wonderfully fruitful. Our native evangelists preach in street-chapel, markets and

SOME ITEMS OF INTEREST FROM THE HISTORY OF THE "NATIONAL."

The First Council.

Hallowed memories cluster around the council-chamber at 1018 Arch Street, Philadelphia. The morning of Thursday, June 13, 1867, will never be forgotten. It was an auspicious morning. A holy atmosphere seemed to pervade the room. The rustle of angels' wings was almost perceptible to mortal ear. The presence of the triune God—Father, Son, and Holy Ghost—was distinctly apprehended. Every face was bright; every spirit was joyous. Never did good men grasp each other more warmly by the hand.

Who composed that assembly? The name of each brother present was recorded; but somehow the paper has been mislaid. We regret this. Brother Osborn was there ready to stand in his lot, and never more satisfied that this was of God. The time-honored Dr. Roberts of Baltimore occupied his place, his countenance glowing with delight, and his soul magnifying the Lord Jesus exceedingly.

Rev. John S. Inskip shouted aloud the praises of God as he grasped each fraternal hand; he was full-nerved for the battle. The presiding elder, Rev. A. E. Ballard, genial, kind-spirited, determined, was in the company. The beloved disciple,—our now ascended brother, Rev. Alfred Cookman,—with his saintly face and dignified mien, was ready to be consecrated on this altar. Close to him was Rev. Andrew Longacre, who was his bosom-companion, glorying only in the cross, and saying none other thing than that the blood of Jesus cleanseth from all sin. Rev. Benjamin M. Adams came with all possible speed from New York to participate in this opening council. Rev. John Thompson, of Philadelphia, never looked more happy than he did that precious Thursday morning, rejoicing to be in the service of the Master. Rev. John A. Wood of the Wyoming Conference was an active participant, ready to help forward the work with all possible earnestness.

The meeting being called to order, Rev. Dr. George C. M. Roberts of Baltimore was elected chairman, and Rev. John Thompson secretary. The president then led in prayer. Rev. J. S. Inskip followed in prayer. His voice was tremulous with emotion. His soul was feeling the mighty responsibilities of the occasion. His vision was expanded to compass the thrilling interests involved in the action of that day. He was earnest in supplication for divine guidance. He besought the Lord not to carry his servants up hence, unless his presence should go with them. The prayer was divinely indited. The adorable Intercessor, pleading on this behalf, even with "groanings that could not be uttered," was in his servant's prayer. That hour of communion with Heaven will never be obliterated from the memory of those privileged to be present. The "Master of assemblies" was there. The "cloud big with blessings" was just overhead.

Those men of God rose from their knees "strong in the Lord of hosts." They were emphatically "of one accord in one place." The Holy Ghost sat upon each. Discordancy was out of the question; hesitancy impossible. The president, in a few well-chosen words, stated the object of their assembling. He expressed his joy at the prospect unfolded. He declared his confidence in the divine guidance. He counselled every one to be unreservedly in the Lord's hand.

Here the first National Camp Meeting was launched at Vineland, N. J.

fairs—open air meetings and the tent meetings (from 8 A. M. to near midnight). We now have two Gospel tents to bless our field. We have station-classes. The people of the various congregations are called in by groups, at certain periods, for instruction by expository preaching, memory drill in the word of God, etc., etc. All of this means real revival work. Praise the Lord."

$500 will support a missionary under the N. H. A. for one year. What a splendid investment! Those interested please write Rev. C. P. Hogle, 1804 Washington Boulevard, Chicago, Ill.

The Convention of the National proper, opened up Tuesday night, May 10th, with a message from Rev. J. H. Smith on Acts 13. Thursday was devoted largely to business matters and the election of officers which brought about no material changes in the officiating of the National which stands at present as follows:

President—Rev. Joseph H. Smith.
First Vice-Pres.—Rev. C. W. Ruth.
Secretary—Miss M. Lawhead.
Treasurer—Mr. L. Anderson.

A number of new members were added to the membership roll. A few names were held over because it was deemed wise to have a clear doctrinal statement from all desiring membership so that the National might keep itself free from entanglements.

The following Resolution was passed upon Doctrinal matters:

RESOLUTION.

Whereas, the National Holiness Association for the Promotion of Holiness has always stood for the Theology of Holiness as propounded in the Wesleyan standards, and during the sixty years of its history has steadfastly adhered to the original proposition that, Scriptural Holiness is that Second gracious work of the Holy Spirit in the soul whereby the heart is made clean and perfected in love,

Resolved, That we deeply regret and deplore movements which have developed within the last two or three decades in which the sacred cause of Holiness has been mixed up with the teachings of the "Third Blessing" and speaking in tongues, and that we have witnessed as a result of these teachings a great divergence from sound doctrine and the growth of the most damaging fanaticism and radicalism.

Resolved, That we steadfastly hold to the original theological standards of our Movement, that we refuse to compromise and fellowship with divergent movements, teaching doctrines under the guise of Holiness contrary to our established body of doctrine.

Resolved, That we call upon the holiness people everywhere, to a new dedication of themselves to our historic holiness doctrines, and that they withhold themselves from all movements which make not for unity, but division, and which bring reproach instead of blessing and power and glory upon the sacred cause of Scriptural Holiness.

WHO'S WHO AT THE CONVENTION.

The following Holiness Schools were represented: Taylor University, Rev. John Paul; Asbury College, Rev. G. W. Ridout, (of the Seminary); John Fletcher College, Rev. Joseph Owen; Marion College, Professor Huffman; God's Bible School, Rev. J. F. Knapp; Cleveland Bible School, Rev. C. W. Butler; Chicago Evangelistic Institute, Mrs. Vennard; Mount Carmel School, Miss McConnell.

The following State Camps and Associations were represented: Iowa, Illinois, Michigan, New York, Washington, Oregon, California, Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana, New Jersey, Canada.

PERSONALS.

Thursday, the election day, brought many men from various points, Dr. Paul of Taylor, Dr. Owen, Iowa, Dr. John Owen, Taylor, and many others.

Rev. J. T. Keating, of Tacoma, Washington, represented his section very ably.

Rev. Woodford and Mrs. Taylor, recently from China, greatly impressed the Convention by the maturely spiritual messages and advices they brought to the meetings. The real missionary is so different from globe trotters and star gazers.

Mrs. Vennard, of the C. E. I., left nothing undone or unsaid in the matter of hospitality. The entertainment of the delegates was easily possible within the confines of the school; prices were moderate for room and board, and the meals excellent.

SUBJECTS FOR THOUGHT AND CONSIDERATION.

1. The National certainly has a distinct place in the Holiness Movement.

2. It should be made more and more a great central clearing house in all matters pertaining to holiness and the holiness evangelists.

3. It should project a nation-wide program of Extension by means of State Conventions, Regional Conventions, and Coast-to-Coast rallies in which the strongest and mightiest of our evangelists should be engaged.

4. It would be a good thing, we believe, if its Annual Convention should have a vigorous program built somewhat on the lines of the great Chicago meeting of 1913, and the Cincinnati meeting of 1914. People from all over the U. S. A. and Canada attended those two great gatherings.

CATHEDRALS.

Rev. C. F. Wimberly, D.D.

HE period known by historians as the "Medieval Times" was perhaps the darkest religious hour since the crucifixion of our Lord. We mean the times just before, and during, the opening years of the Renaissance. It is very significant that, at this particular period, there was a nation-wide revival in the erection of stately cathedrals. The marvels of modern architects are those gigantic structures scattered throughout Europe. Architecture reached highwater mark in those days, and the glories of those magnificent triumphs have never been excelled in any age.

The desecration of those fine old cathedrals was one of the tragedies of the World War. Some of them were demolished beyond reconstruction; they were marvels of beauty, and for beauty's sake, their destruction was a calamity. The aesthetic world has been made poorer, and loss is irreparable. But our object in this sketch is far removed from commenting on the glories of cathedral grandeur. It is a fact, which history clearly confirms, that interest and zeal in church architecture is no evidence of spirituality; but rather the reverse. Romanism was a cruel, dead ecclesiasticism at the time she was building her greatest cathedrals. Some of them represent the toil and sacrifice of many decades. The cathedral of Amiens had just spent one million dollars on retouching and beautifying, when the German guns did their deadly work. Some of them were nearly one hundred years in construction. There they stand—the ones left—monuments to a distorted zeal, a makeshift for the deeper spiritual vision. While Rome erected her cathedrals from the substance of poverty and ignorance, she burned and butchered Protestants by the thousands.

We wish to draw an unwholesome parallel with the above comments. We are at this time in America imitating Europe of three hundred years or more ago, in church building programs. All denominations are in a mad race, it seems, trying to out-do each other in the erection of expensive churches. It is not an uncommon thing for congregations of six or seven hundred members to build a church costing from one to two hundred thousand dollars. Methodism is building in some places churches that represent an investment of a half million to a million dollars. In a city of not more than fifty thousand people, there is now being built a church that will cost seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars. Other denominations are doing likewise. The home base is sapping the very lifeblood of the church; many congregations are staggering under church debts that will hinder any other forward movement for years to come. Perhaps this is being done to draw the people, hoping that attractive places of worship, with professional music, will take the place of the Great Magnet's power who said if he be lifted up would draw the people.

We are not only building churches stately and expensive, but we are getting the cathedral craze. Every large city has a cathedral; especially is this true of two denominations; there are now being built in America two cathedrals which have been under construction several years, and will not be finished for another decade or two, according to estimates. One is in New York and the other in Washington, D. C. It is thought, judging from what has already been spent, and they are only begun—that the two will cost $50,000,000. Here will be spent enough money to build fifty thousand commodious chapels in heathen lands and in remote neglected places of our own country. We get mail continually from people in the mountains and mission fields asking for donations of even one dollar to help a struggling congregation erect a place of worship.

If we believe half we read of distress accounts gleaned from various sources in public print, we are facing a religious apostasy which is both alarming and appalling; at the same time, we are investing multiplied millions in church architecture, making a great display, as it were, of consecrated money, when many causes of our churches are languishing. Our missions are fighting to keep their heads above water; our small colleges are almost on the bread line, and there are, perhaps, fifty institutions in the land with more money than they can use, and more is being poured upon them. If the things we hear about many of our largest universities be true, they are not helping to maintain "the faith once delivered unto the saints;" but are breeding skepticism and doubt touching all things biblically sacred.

Fine architecture is not an exponent of spiritual devotion to God, of soul-hunger, of seeking God in forgiveness of sins, and longing for heart purity. When it is reduced to its last analysis, is a satisfying of an emotional pride with an effort to make this stand for piety and consecration. But we know how woefully it failed in the age of cathedral building in Europe, and it is failing in America. We are trying to palliate God by building stately piles of brick and mortar to his honor; but "the sacrifices of God are a broken spirit; a broken and a contrite heart, O God, thou wilt not despise." Paul said, "If we give our bodies to be burned, and all our goods to feed the poor (a better gift than masonry) and have not love shed abroad in the heart by the Holy Ghost, it profiteth us nothing." We have no desire to discount beautiful and commodious houses for the worship of God; but we are in danger of making costly churches the end, rather than the means, to an end.

"For These Things I Weep."

REV. A. W. ORWIG.

That was the plaintive cry of the prophet Jeremiah when he beheld the spiritual and physical desolations of the Hebrews and their land. Again his sad wail is, "Oh that my head were waters, and mine eyes a fountain of tears, that I might weep day and night for the slain of the daughter of my people!" Surely he had great cause for weeping and lamentation.

And because of certain evils among the Jews we read of Ezra "weeping and casting himself down before the house of God." How his heart bled over their sad condition! And the Psalmist tearfully cried out, "Rivers of water run down mine eyes because they keep not thy law." Very deeply indeed was he touched at the disobedience and general wickedness that prevailed. Even Jesus wept over Jerusalem because of her sins and obstinate rejection of himself as their true Messiah.

But is there not great cause for sorrow, weeping and earnest prayer on account of the spiritual desolations in many places of the Church today? Certainly all true observers of real conditions will admit the fact of the spiritually depleted state of the Church at large. How fearfully the world has been permitted to invade and corrupt not a few churches, some of the members extending a glad hand to the graceless and bold intruders. Sometimes, under the guise of interesting the young people, or raising funds for the church, various kinds of pernicious diversions have been tolerated and encouraged. But oh how these Satanic innovations, like so many masked bandits, have defied resistance and robbed their victims to the last degree! How many of us can say with the prophet, "For these things I weep"? No doubt there are some who are moved to tears at the ravages of sin in and out of the Church.

Again, please notice Jeremiah's query concerning the melancholy condition of the Israelites,—“Is it nothing to you?” How much is it to us that “the love of many” has waxed “cold”? Is it nothing to us that multitudes have only the “form of godliness,” but are destitute of the real “power thereof”? Is it nothing to us that there is such a grievous “falling away” among professors of Christianity? Is it nothing to us that in the professed fold of Christ there are so many who are “wretched, and miserable, and poor, and blind, and naked”? Can we say, “For these things I weep”? And for a largely backslidden Church can we say,

“For her my tears shall fall,
For her my prayers ascend”?

Ah, yes, let us “pray for the peace of Jerusalem”—spiritual Jerusalem.

But possibly some may accuse me of presenting too gloomy a picture of the Church. “Eyes have they, but they see not.” Christ was denounced because he said some very unpalatable things about the Church in his day. So were Paul and the prophets. No, beloved, I have simply quoted the Word of God, as given above, but only meagerly. And what further declares the same inspired Word? “He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches.” Cry “Pessimism,” if you choose; but the Holy Spirit is no pessimist. He faithfully reproves and warns, and bids his servants, “Show my people their sins.” Amid the spiritual devastations in the Church, I truly thank God that many “have not bowed the knee to Baal,” and that the spiritual “light” and “salt” in the Church have preserved it from total putrefaction.

“Did Christ o’er sinners weep,
And shall our cheeks be dry?”

Will We Sell Peanuts In Africa?

Think of this striking suggestion! But if you will read the chapter bearing this title in that remarkable book, by Dr. C. F. Wimberly, “Messages for the Times,” you will realize, that it is not an idle play on words. Get this book. This chapter is but one of twenty-three, each one an eye-opener. Get the book. Price $1.50, or given free for two subscribers to the PENTECOSTAL HERALD.

A Tiny Testament.

This Testament is bound in leather, stamped in red ink, has a wonderfully clear, large type for a small book. The type is nonpareil. The size is 2½x4x¼ in. thick, and the weight is 2 ozs. The regular price of this Testament is 75c. We are closing out 50 of them at 50c each, postpaid. Pentecostal Publishing Company, Louisville, Ky.

My Eighty-sixth Birthday.

Rev. E. W. Frazee.

AN OLD MAN'S MEMORIES OF CHRIST.

WHEN Polycarp, the disciple of St. John, was bound to the stake to be burned, it was proposed to him that "if he would renounce Jesus Christ he would be set free." He answered, "Eighty and six years have I served him and received from him nothing but good, and I cannot renounce him now."

I am 86 today. I have not served him all the 86 years, but "I have received from him nothing but good, and I cannot renounce him now."

"He hath loved me, I cried,
He hath suffered and died,
And the angels can do nothing more
Than to fall at his feet,
And the story repeat,
And the lover of sinners adore."

A half-witted Scotch idiot wanted to join the church, and when examined as to his theology he answered,

"I'm a poor sinner and nothing at all,
And Jesus Christ is my all and in all."
No matter what the question he gave the same answer.

When Richard Watson, the "Sir Isaac Newton" of Methodist Theology, was old and near the end, he said, "I am like a worm crawling into the sunlight of Deity." They mean the same thing. The greatest philosopher is "a poor sinner and nothing at all," the same as the half-witted idiot.

A few years ago a Boston orator startled his audience by suggesting that the story of "Plymouth Rock" might be a fable. And even "Plymouth Rock" might be a fable; but the "Rock of Ages cleft for me," is firmer than the pillars of Heaven. Harry Emerson Fosdick has been to the Holy Land and has just discovered that Moses did not smite the rock in the wilderness, for there was no rock to smite, and the children of Israel scooped the water up out of the sand. It was a most amazing discovery to be made more than 3,000 years after those who were in a condition to know anything about it were all dead, and now when Harry Emerson Fosdick has his great congregation sing "Rock of Ages, cleft for me," he will have to have them say, "Sand of ages scooped for me."

"Recent discoveries have found out," is the preamble to the 20th century "bunk" in the modern pulpit, which has taken the place of a pure gospel. The gospel events were not written at the time they occurred, but were treasured up in a sanctified memory and secured by the "Inspiration of the Holy Ghost." It was the work of the Holy Ghost "to bring all things to their remembrance, and teach them in that hour what they should say and what they should write." They were written from memory when "the disciple whom Jesus loved" and who loved his Master was ninety years old. He was the only one of the twelve disciples who died a natural death.

James closes his epistle with the words, "If any of you do err from the truth and one convert him, let him know that he that converteth a sinner from the error of his way, shall save a soul from death and shall hide a multitude of sins." We wonder that he should close without a benediction, but he was hurried away to martyrdom before he had time to finish his letter.

They used to help St. John up to the pulpit, and he would say "My little children, love one another," and give the benediction. He was a natural cousin of our Divine Lord, and had seen him often in the carpenter shop, and played with him on the hillside at Nazareth. He would have much to remember and much to write. He would remember how the time came when the young carpenter who had helped his father Joseph build houses at Nazareth, locked the door of the shop for the last time, and giving up the key started for Calvary, to build for us "the house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens." How, on the way to Calvary, his old playmate and companion, now his Master, and the Son of God, came to the Sea of Galilee and called the fisher boy to follow him, and how he had left the unmended nets and followed him all those three strange years.

And then he could remember the "transfiguration," where he whom they now knew only as Master, took Peter and James and himself, and in the presence of the Messengers from Heaven, they got their marvelous vision of how their Master would look when he was permanently glorified. Then the house of Jairus, where he took them in the room with him when he raised the dead, the last supper where "he leaned upon the breast of his Master," and then Gethsemane, and Calvary, where he stood near the Cross where his Master was dying, and took the mother of our Divine Lord to his own home, and loved and cared for her till she died.

And then he would remember Joseph's garden, and the empty sepulcher, and the angel sitting on the stone, and the Risen Christ; the going up into heaven from the Mount of Olives; the Isle of Patmos, where he fell overwhelmed and glory-stricken at the feet of his Master, who had returned to earth to give the beloved disciple "one more interview" before the time should come when he should be "forever with his Lord." And then how he had seen "Heaven opened, and the Lamb as it had been slain, standing in the midst of the throne." These are glorious things to remember, and write, and tell, that people might be kept from sinning. You would not sin after hearing these, and they were hidden in your heart.

And then Peter said, "We have not followed cunningly devised fables when we made known unto you the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but were eyewitnesses of his Majesty." He could not write all these for he said in pardonable hyperbole, that, "if all were written, he supposed that even the world itself would not be able to contain the books that would be written."

"Could we with ink the ocean fill,
And were the skies of parchment made,
Was every stalk on earth a quill,
And every man a scribe by trade,
To write the Love of God above,
Would drain the ocean dry,
Nor could the scroll contain the whole,
If stretched from sky to sky."

They could not all be written. "But these are written, that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ the Son of the living God, and that believing ye might have life through his name."

And it is said that when "St. John the Aged" had grown infirm so he could not write, and could hardly see or know, his mind would go back and he would look around him with dazed eyes and say, "Is this Jerusalem? Is this Peter? Is this James? Is this that last supper? O Master, let me lean upon thy bosom as I did those long years ago when I was young?" It was not the old scene of seventy years, but it is more real than things around him now, and when he was dying he wanted them to let him "lean upon his Master's bosom."

It is said of one of the early Florentine painters that he had given his whole life almost exclusively to painting the face of Jesus Christ, and was known as the one who could better paint the face of Christ than any other person. When he was very old, they brought a newly invented paint, and gave him a brush and canvas for him to try it. He drew the brush on the canvas, without designing anything, but to show the paint, and when they looked, he had without knowing it, automatically painted the face of Christ. He had done it so many times his hand could not go any other way.

A Christian business man had been very successful and retired from business and given his whole time and strength to the service of God. When he had grown old and weak, and had come to die, it was necessary to have his name on a business paper, and when he was lying almost unconscious on his bed, they brought the paper and raised him up and put the pen in his hand and showed him where to write. As he finished, he fell back and died. When they turned to see what he had written, instead of his own name he had written the name of Jesus Christ. "Absorption into Brahm" in another world, is the highest reward for Hindoo piety. This is a glorious "absorption into Christ" in this world. Are you so absorbed in Christ that your unconscious influence is ever painting upon the canvas of an evil world, the beautiful face of your Divine Saviour? And are you writing his name instead of your own, unconsciously thinking it is your own, because he is your Saviour?

John, in writing his letter to the early Christians, said he did so "that ye sin not." This at once starts the question, "Is it possible to live without sin?" We must be careful how we speak for only God knows how to apply a "perfect law" to an imperfect condition. Mr. Wesley warned us against the use of the term "sinless perfection," and that we should make all our professions "in a self-abasing, Christ-exalting spirit."

"My highest place is lying low
At my Redeemer's feet."

One of the best witnesses for holiness ever knew said it in the words,

"Sin had left a stain;
He washed it white as snow."

It is not so much the "whiteness" that is emphasized as it is the "washing." Making a profession of holiness is telling how the crimson became white. You do not wish to emphasize the great fact that you "are sanctified wholly," but that God did it for you. St. Paul said "They glorified God in me."

John Fletcher said, "Christian Perfection" is a constellation of virtues, made up of these several stars: perfect repentance, perfect faith, perfect humility, perfect patience, perfect hope, perfect charity for our visible enemies, and perfect love for our invisible God. When you say "the Lord sanctified my soul," you are calling attention to the Lord and giving him all the glory. There is a difference between being "perfectly loyal" to your country, and being able to render "perfect military service." It is perfect "heart-loyalty" to God that constitutes "Christian Perfection" which, instead of being impossible, is the only kind of perfection that is possible in this evil and imperfect world.

"What to do when I have sinned," has been the one question in all the ages. There is an old couplet which says, "'Tis done, and since 'tis done 'tis past recall. And since 'tis past recall, must be forgotten." "If any man sin we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous, who is the propitiation for our sins, and not for ours only, but also for the sins of the whole world." An "advocate" is one who pleads the cause of another; and the facts and processes in human government are made to represent those in the government of God. An "advocate" or "counsel" in a Court of Justice, begins by denying the charges and pleading "not guilty." If he cannot do that, he tries to "palliate the offense" by pleading extenuating circumstances, such as "It is the first offense." "He did not mean to do it." "He didn't know." "He had such strong, almost irresistible, temptation," or "He was taken by surprise", all which, if they existed would make the offense much less. Even murder might be only in the second or even third degree; and when this fails, and the prisoner is found guilty, the counsel asks and pleads for a "mitigation of the penalty" or "asks a new trial." But "our Advocate" does none of these. The proofs are too strong to deny the guilt. There are no "extenuating circumstances." It is not our first offense. We did mean to do just what we did. We did know. "Ye knew your duty but ye did it not." Our temptations have been strong but not more than others and not irresistible, and if we had been "watching" we would not have been taken by surprise. Our sin has not been a sudden impulse but a deliberate action. There are no extenuating circumstances. The more we attempt to palliate our offenses the more aggravated they become. And there can be no "Mitigation of the Penalty."

"Our Advocate" does not deny the charges against us, does not palliate the offense, does not ask any mitigation of the punishment, but takes it all on himself and makes, by the "oblation of himself once offered a full, perfect, and sufficient sacrifice, oblation and satisfaction, for the sins of the whole world, and did institute and in his holy gospel command us to continue the perpetual memory of his precious death until his coming again"; that we are to go on preaching it until the last sinner is saved. Sin is felony under the government of God, and the propitiation gains the legal favor; the righteous Father is infinitely merciful, and all the reasons that require the condemnation of a sinner, cease at once the moment he believes in Jesus.

There are two great questions, "What think ye of Christ?" and "What will you do with him?" What "He thinks of you," and what "He will do with you" is the story I am telling today. The offers of mercy are not past now. You can come to him today. The bleeding hands of Calvary are reaching out to receive you. If one reached out his hands to you and you saw they were covered with blood, you would shrink back. Do not shrink back from the bleeding hands of Christ. They are your only hope. The only thing between you and eternal damnation is the blood of Christ.

These are some of an "Old Man's Memories of Christ" and having reached the end of eighty-six years, "What now?"

The great things that God did for a boy more than seventy-two years ago, are not sufficient for an old man standing with one foot in the grave. But it is not a wornout spell. It is not a charm that has lost its power.

"I love thee because thou hast first loved me, And purchased my pardon on Calvary's tree;

I love thee for wearing the thorns on thy brow;

If ever I loved thee, my Jesus 'tis now."

Mr. Wesley expresses it in words so much better than mine, I cannot refrain from giving them.

"What now is my object and aim,
What now is my hope and desire,

To follow the Heavenly Lamb,
And after his image aspire.
I thirst for a life-giving God,
A God that on Calvary died,
A fountain of water and blood,
That gushed from Immanuel's side."

We have seen Calvary, and our spirits are now hastening on to the "more excellent glory" where we shall see him as he is. Not as he was for a few brief hours in agony and shame, nailed to a cross and bearing the sin of the world, but as he is forever. This is a good way to live whether you are old or young. "There is no enchantment against Jacob, neither is there any divination against Israel" and we are all saying, "Let me die the death of the righteous, and let my last end be like his."

We have now followed the charmed and protected life that God cares for, until we come to the "narrow sea", the river which has heaven on the other side. The dark waters are rolling along the unseen shore, and a large number of us who have passed our four-score years, are lined up for "the last crossing," and waiting for the call that comes from the other side.

This opens up the wide and oft-repeated question, "Shall we know each other in Heaven?" And why not? If we are happy enough to get to heaven, shall we be so "unhappy" as not to know our friends? When we "sit down with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob in the kingdom of God," shall we not know which is Abraham, which is Isaac, which is Jacob? The disciples at the Transfiguration knew which was Moses and which was Elias.

"When all the ship's company meet,
Who sailed with the Saviour beneath," shall we not know our "fellow passengers?"

I received a hurried letter from a friend in deep sorrow. I stepped in the office and sent a telegram: John 14:1, and when she got it she read, "Let not your heart be troubled." God has telegraphed them to you in this Book and sent them broadcast from all the "Radios of Heaven" upon this world of bereavement, suffering and tears. "Earth has no sorrow, that heaven cannot cure." "Godliness is profitable unto all things, having promise of the life that now is and of that which is to come." And all the promises are true. His word to you is, "I go to prepare a place for you." He can build it all right, and when he gets your mansion ready he'll come and take you to heaven."

My last message to you and perhaps the last I shall ever give, is "Therefore, O thou Son of Man, speak unto the house of Israel and say unto them, As I live, saith the Lord God, I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked, but that the wicked turn from his way and live; turn ye, turn ye from your evil ways, for why will ye die? O house of Israel."

"A great rock stands in a weary land,
And its shadows fall on the parched sand,
And it calls to the traveler passing by,
I will shelter thee here continually,
Then, why will ye die?
O why will ye die?
When the sheltering Rock is standing by.

"A great well lies in a weary land,
And its waters call over life's rough strand,
That the great well is deep, and with waters rife,
Springing up into everlasting life,
Then why will ye die?
O why will ye die?
When the great deep well is standing by.

"A wide fold stands in a weary land,
And the sheep are called on every hand,
And the shepherd no wanderer turns away,
And he changes the darkness into day,
Then, why will ye die?
O why will ye die?
When the great wide fold is standing by?

"A rough cross stands near a city wall,
Where the Savior dies out of love for all,
And the Angel still tells the message blest,

And the way now is plain to endless rest.
Then, why will ye die?
O why will ye die?
When the blood-stained cross is standing by?"

Paragraphs.

GEORGE H. MEANS, D.D.

FORGIVENESS.

Yes, it is right to forgive an enemy, providing we do not first put him down under the blow-pipe of our indignation, and burn his fault into him; in a word do him all the harm we can, and then forgive him. Make the sore as painful as possible, and then profess to heal it.

DOUBT.

Doubt is always deplorable, but disbelief is always fatal. Doubt is timid, disbelief is always bold. Doubt questions, disbelief denies. Doubt is humble, disbelief is defiant. Doubt says I cannot, disbelief says I will not. God pities doubt, but condemns disbelief. They are fruit of the same tree—of the same kind but differing in degree.

GODLESSNESS.

The saddest thing in this world is a man without God. We may be without health, wealth, friends, power, or prestige, and still sustained by hope. But to be without God is to be an orphan without a home; a wanderer without destination; an eternal outcast in a wilderness of doubts and fears, forever haunted by the ghosts of uncertainty.

LEADERSHIP.

The Reformation had two powerful factors in leadership—Luther and Melancthon. They were antipodes and stood back to back fighting the foe. Melancthon was timid, calm and philosophical. Luther was bold, aggressive and rash. One was like lightning flashing from a summer sky; the other was a storm-cloud of unspent thunder. If it had not been for Luther, Melancthon would have shriveled up. If it had not been for Melancthon, Luther would have exploded. God had use for both. One rejected God's tender mercy; the other his righteous wrath. As it was then, so is now and will ever be. God has different tools for different purposes.

THE BROAD ROAD.

If any man chooses to have his own way, his life will soon peel the knell of his last hope; and he can easily write his epitaph with his own finger. Just let him ignore the guideposts on life's highway; close his eyes and ears to every signal of danger; crush out of his heart every feeling of sympathy; turn from every call of charity, and walk in every primrose path of pleasure. That is all. The road is broad and plain; it is easy to find and easy to travel. He will meet with little hindrance on the way; and in the end he need not be surprised that this wrong road has led to the wrong place.

THE GOSPEL.

The Gospel is not confined to the words of Jesus. His teaching only forms the nucleus around which sweeps and swells all the facts that pertain to man's duty, danger and destiny. Every good book or deed; every ennobling thought and holy aspiration; every useful life and triumphant death, is but an echo of Christ's rules of living and loving. No static can prevent it from reaching the wild heart of youth, nor the sober reflections of age. Every prayer is a voice sent to heaven on the wireless winds of God's radio.

Is There Balm In Gilead?

This is the chapter title that rings with the spirit of Hebrew poetry. But it will be a great comforting message for you. It is to be found in the book by Dr. Wimberly—"Messages for the Times." Then, think of this chapter: "Watchman, What of the Night?" One of the most startling chapters found in the same book. Get the book and be convinced. Price $1.50, Given free for two new subscribers for THE HERALD.

Short Skirts and "Bobbed Hair."

RICHARD W. LEWIS, D.D.

EVEN the secular press is full of jokes and jibes, quibs, and quips, in commenting on the present mania on the part of women to "bob" their hair and abbreviate their skirts. But so far the writer has not found any commentator squaring his opinions by the Word of God. Many, if not most people, would readily affirm that it is not a matter of any concern whatever to God. But such folk display their lack of Bible knowledge. No student of the Bible can fail to know God descends to the minutest details wherever he expresses his interest at all in human life problems. For instance, when he gave the specifications for constructing the tabernacle, and again when he gave the plans for the building of the Temple, not a detail escaped his attention. When he appeared to Paul and promised to save all on board the ship, he added, that not one man should leave the ship else all on board should be lost. When he gave the confines of the future Palestine, to be inhabited by the returning Israelites, gathered out from among all nations, he gave such detailed field notes that, it is claimed, any good surveyor could easily run the lines with his compass. And when he comes to the individual life he says, "not a sparrow shall fall to the ground without your Father" (Matt. 10:29). And has he not said, "the steps of a good man are ordered by the Lord" (Psa. 37:23). But still the minutia of his details has not been reached, for he says, "The very hairs of your head are all numbered" (Matt. 10:30).

If the reader is not yet convinced that God cares for such small matters, as how women shall wear their skirts, and how long the hair of their heads shall be, then let him turn to Exodus 20:26, and read God's specifications as to the altar approach. Steps leading up to the altar were forbidden because the priest's person would be unduly exposed when he walked up thereon to the altar. The approach had to be an incline.

In Genesis 2:25, there is a strange comment: "They were both naked, the man and his wife, and were not ashamed." But we must remember this was before sin entered into the world. After sin came shame did attach to nakedness, undoubtedly, as we note in Gen. 3:7, 10, 11. In Exodus 32:25, the shame of nakedness is stressed. Gen. 9:20-25 gives the record of a most horrible curse which has ever since rested upon one of the sons of Noah who failed to cover his father's nakedness!

But if God looks thus, and deals so with men, what shall be said of women? It goes without saying that woman is the more delicate, the finer grained, the more refined. She is built of finer texture, physically and otherwise. That she should lead in modesty has long been conceded and settled. Now that she comes forth from her hiding and boldly, if not brazenly, flaunts her bare limbs from above the knees down in the face of men born in lust and brought up in licentiousness, her conduct is as shocking as it is shameful, to all people who still feel the influence of the Bible upon their conceptions and convictions.

Perhaps the strangest thing about it is that women could so soon get their consent to violate the conventions of generations by so shamefully displaying their persons. The evil influence of this display upon men is bad enough, but worse still is the loss of that innate modesty long woman's chief charm, and the safeguard of her virtue.

The distinction between the sexes is being blotted out at a rapid rate which calls for serious concern. None but a shallow-minded, superficial thinker can fail to see the deplorable result of the present trend. It must mean, first, an unwarranted familiarity among the sexes that is already here, observable any day, not to say night. Next, there will come—there is already coming—shocking sexual immorality as a natural consequence.

The press of today discriminatingly lays the blame at the right door—the mother's! Had mothers only cared to try in earnest, beginning early enough, they could have prevented the shameful custom of knee skirts. The tragedy of the situation is the fact that mothers are little less culpable than their daughters! Of course this is speaking generally, with all due allowance and credit for the splendid exceptions to be found in every community.

As to the "bobbed" hair, be it said, God has expressed his mind as to the length of woman's hair by declaring it to be her "glory." "If a woman have long hair," he says, "it is a glory to her; for hair is given her for a covering" (1 Cor. 11:15). If one would see furthermore God's concern about how women shall dress the hair, let one read 1 Tim. 2:9; 1 Peter 3:4. This is for God's women. For worldly women the Bible has no such restrictions. Once short hair and painted cheeks were a sign of the underworld, but today you cannot tell one from the other! How deplorable!

All through the Bible God is saying to his own people, "Come out from among them;" "be ye separate;" "put a difference;" be "peculiar people", etc. But all the while it is the tendency of the saved to associate with the unsaved, and to join with them in their ungodly ways. Going with the ungodly gang, it is but natural that God's people should soon want to do as they do. Thus the distinction between the Christian and the unsaved is being more and more obliterated. God's people desire to "be at ease in Zion"; they want to give up sacrifices, live comfortably, cut out the cross, and wed the Church to the world! All this can be done, but the truly regenerated should not want to do so. If one wants to "go the gait," it will be well for that one to ask, "Am I really regenerated; have I ever been 'born again'?"

Now, it is difficult to distinguish "sheep" from "goats," judging by all outside appearance, and perhaps for this very reason Jesus said, "Judge not according to the appearance" (John 7:24); and again, "Judge not" (Matt. 7:1). But the day will come when the lives we now live, whether saints or sinners, will be laid bare; the uncertainty will pass; the "sheep" will be lined up on one side, the "goats" on the other. In the meantime it behooves every true child of God to let his "light so shine before men that they may know here is a 'sheep'—not a 'goat.'"

All this defense talk about "bobbed" hair being "so much easier to handle"; and short skirts being "so much cooler," etc., etc., is but buncomb. The people who push these arguments are hunting for a hiding place—that is all. The best public opinion is now well known; the long-time custom has not failed to cause an emphatic question mark in the mind of the older women; the testimony, though silent, of the godly, substantial, influential women who have refrained from this advance step, has been thought-producing; and all the time there has been ringing a tiny little silver bell, so to speak, away down in the innermost recesses of the soul, and this witness against the modern innovation has certainly made more women hesitate than ever have admitted it!

As a matter of cold fact, religiously speaking, the whole proposition harks back to the very spirit Israel exhibited when she called for a king: "Make us a king . . . like all the nations" (1 Sam. 8:5). So many otherwise good people are too weak to stand out alone, facing public criticism. "All the other women are doing it, why not I." But if other women do what displeases God, is that any reason why YOU should also? (1 Sam. 8:6.) Israel was wanting to follow the custom of the heathen people around about, and that is practically what it amounts to in our day when women wear disgracefully short skirts, and "bob" the hair.

One of the greatest opportunities that ever came to our Christian women since the birth of Christianity was offered them in connection with the two customs we are discussing. Instead of following the vogue of the half-world style-setter, had our Christian women only stood out for decency; had they but given God the benefit of the doubt; had they but "played safe" in the premise, it would have made a most telling effect upon the unsaved. The fact of their strength to so follow religious conviction would have, in the first place, won many to the Lord. But in the second place, God himself would have been so greatly pleased as that his blessing would have been added, and there is no estimating the salutary results, not only, but there is no computing the numbers of souls that would have been led to our Savior. From a thousand "straws" seen from day to day, in common life, it is easy to believe that the world is not antagonistic to Christ, or to genuine Christianity; but only to the spurious, the superficial, the hypocritical sort of Christians. The world knows that Jesus sacrificed his life on the cross for the salvation of the world, and when people claim to have been redeemed from sin at so great a cost, the world says, "Then why do you live as easy a life as we live"? Silently they ask, "Why your Savior sacrifice, live a separated life, and you live so like the world that we cannot tell that there is any difference between you and us." O, how humiliating are these all too true charges and denunciations.

The opportunity was lost! Christian women lost it. The opportunity to show Christian courage. The opportunity to demonstrate backbone strength. The opportunity to prove loyalty to God and his Word. The opportunity to rebuke unsaved mothers and daughters.

If we will check up on the advocates of this dual abbreviation, we will find that invariably they are unspiritual people. BEAR THIS WELL IN MIND. Watch the papers and magazines. Here and there you will find an attempted defense. But go further: Learn the spiritual status of the writer. This will convince you. This writer has checked, "Go thou and do likewise." Then you will know there is a religious side to the question under discussion.

From The Balcony.

Here is a most heart rending message in the chapter bearing this title, to be found in Dr. C. F. Wimberly's great book: "Messages for the Times." It will stir and thrill you. It will be worth what the book costs. Order from the PENTECOSTAL PUBLISHING CO. Price $1.00. Send one new yearly subscription for THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD, and add 50 cents, and get this book.

Gift for Girls.

A beautiful smooth leather, dark maroon color, stamped in pure gold, neat in size, 4x5½, only 2 inches thick, overlapping edges with silk headbands and marker, frontispiece for presentation purpose, a large number of beautiful sepia illustrations, maps in colors, light in weight, with a good clear, readable ruby type, beautiful quality of thin Bible paper—a Bible that would delight any young person. The regular net price of it is $2.50. We are closing out about 50 copies at $2.00 each, postpaid. Can you give anything more appropriate? Order from Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky.

REPORTS FROM SOUL WINNERS

SYCHAR AND MISSIONS.

William R. Chase.

Holiness and Missions walk up the highway hand in hand. Have you never been interested in Missions? Get a good case of entire sanctification and you will be. Have you been, all your Christian life, interested in mission work? When you seek and find full salvation your interest in this cause will be enhanced. All holiness camps, conventions, county organizations, and weekly meetings held for the promotion of holiness are recruiting stations for carrying the gospel unto all peoples. Holiness schools and colleges furnish missionaries in numbers far in excess of their size and the number of such schools.

Sychar has one day each year set apart as Missionary Day. This year it was on Wednesday, August eleven. Twelve missionaries sat on the platform representing all parts of the globe. There were Brother Isaac O. Lehman and E. Lehman from South Africa, Robert Chung from Korea, Raymond L. Bush from Inhambane, E. Africa, Bessie Franc Brown from Canton, China, Gail Patterson from South India, Hugh and Mrs. H. Linn from India, Mabel Park from Peru, S. A., Mrs. L. Chester Lewis from North India, and two veterans of other days, Mrs. Sarah W. Eddy of India and O. Barshintz of Chile, S. A. The day was exceedingly hot, and the hour was 2 P. M. Nevertheless the congregation was large. Bro. Hogle of Chicago, was the principal speaker and the one to take up an offering for our Brother W. Taylor, of Shantung, China, whose keeping Sychar has assumed. Five hundred dollars were asked and over thirteen hundred given. But better than the money offering was the sight of six promising young people who by standing up designated that they had offered themselves and were now preparing for the fields beyond the seas. After the song led by Bro. Yates and his magnificent choir, Sister Eddy prayed. The congregation sang, "All I need," and then Bros. Vandal and Watkins sang a special. The Smith-Mackey Quartette sang another special and then before the address by Bro. Hogle and the offering, three of the great fields of the globe were briefly represented. Bro. Linn spoke as to Southern India. Among other things he said that just eighty miles north of where he lived the folks do not know what a white man is, have never seen one. Give them a picture card such as you send us over there and they take them and turn them one way and another seemingly not knowing how to look at them. They never have seen a picture before. Fifteen years ago we had eight hundred believers there, and now twelve thousand. In our schools we have twelve hundred girls and seven hundred and fifty boys. As many people are in India as in all England, France, Spain, Canada, United States, Mexico and South America, and these all should have the gospel.

Brother Bush spoke for Africa. "Africa," said he, "is waiting not for a religion, but for the gospel of Jesus Christ. One who never had heard of Jesus asked me if he could find Jesus. I said to him, yes, if you will call on him. He went out behind the bushes and began to cry for the white man's God, and it was but a few moments until he came back waving both hands and crying out, 'I've found him! I've found him!' Africa is going to accept some kind of a religion and it will be the first one offered to them, whether it be Mohammedan or Christian. There is an awful responsibility on the shoulders of the Christian Church as to Africa." Bro. Lehman also spoke for Africa but not until there had been sung in Zulu language by the two Lehmans, "I am praying for you." "Twenty-eight years ago," said Bro. Lehman, "I got a good case of sanctification out in the state of Illinois. A good case of salvation makes you feel that you are not your own. That is how I felt. I've been over in Africa now for twenty-five years, but there is so much to be done there that it makes it seem as if but very little had been done. Two hundred thousand employed in the mines and dense darkness. How they need our help. We carry on, on faith lines." Of South India Sister Patterson said, "For the crowds of India God is holding us responsible; crowds of whom have no one even to read to them from the Bible. Through the faithfulness of some of our preachers and poor people we were able to keep some that otherwise would have had to have been dropped. The effects of the cut that has come to us from the Board of our Church by reason of the drop in collections cannot be told. And those people know nothing of our God who is a God of love. Their conception of God is that he is a God of vengeance ready to destroy if they make the slightest mistake."

Bessie Franc Brown speaking for China said, "China almost four times the size of the United States, and yet counting medical doctors and all, there are but some seven thousand missionaries for all her teeming millions of souls. When you go to a mission field it is not an easy place you are called to fill. I have been mobbed once, attacked once, have been stoned, but never yet have I been hurt. These four hundred and fifty millions of people need holiness. I've seen sanctified friends over there. Nor does the Word need to be adapted to China or to India. There is something in this old Book that fills the needs of every man in all this world, whatever his color and place on the globe. All these people need holiness, not education, nor culture, but salvation, holiness. And to carry the good news to them is not a sacrifice when you look at the cross."

Rev. Hogle, General Secretary of the Missionary

Society of the N. H. A., then spoke and at the close took the offering for Bro. Taylor, whom Sychar is supporting, and the people gave willingly over thirteen hundred dollars. This word which came from Bro. Seamands, one of Sychar's boys in India at Belguam, will be read with interest I am sure. "In 1925, while on furlough," says he, "we were at Sychar's missionary meeting and gave witness as to how God had been pouring out the Holy Ghost in South India since November, 1923. That revival still abides, praise the Lord. It is a distinct holiness movement in our Indian work. Holiness is being lived, preached, insisted upon by the bulk of missionaries and Indian workers. Holy Ghost revivals are the order of the day. God answers by fire. We need the fervent prayer of faith on the part of Sychar saints. Hence this little love letter of greetings from the firing line. Please do pray for us, and drop us a few lines of encouragement as you find time. We are in the one business of 'spreading scriptural holiness' thickly over this dear land. There is high hope on the holiness horizon in our Southern India Methodism. This work has the sanction and prayers of our Bishop, too, thank God. Another of our Bishops from Bombay took special pains to see us the other day and said, 'God bless you, brother. Carry on as you are. We believe in the type of work you are doing. I wish we had a thousand like you.' Since we cannot be present in body this year at Sychar we have prepared a bit of photo display depicting the work we are pushing here. God gave us our start on the highway of holiness at Sychar, and now we are endeavoring with God's help to hold miniature Sychars here in India. God blesses and these dear Indian folk receive the same scriptural experiences of full salvation that American folks do at our beloved Sychar. We trust that these photo displays will interest you and constrain you to 'pray without ceasing' for us and this type of blessed love labor. And if you are very particularly interested in this phase of the Lord's work, then just please write us and we will be pleased to send you accounts of the battle from time to time."

This is a refreshing note and certainly an encouragement to all holiness camps. The Lord, even Jesus, keep his blessings on the heads and in the hearts of all our missionaries. Amen and Amen.

ARKANSAS DISTRICT.

We are glad to report that not all of the "Wonder State" is washed away, but a lot of it is. Hundreds of people are homeless and in dire need, and it would now look like it will be a poor crop, if any at all, for this year. The basement of our North Little Rock Church had about two feet of water in it, and Bresee Memorial Church in the eastern part of Little Rock was in five or six feet of water. No services have been held in it since the flood, but they hope to be able to have the services there in a few more days.

On our way to Bentonville, Mrs. Oliver, our son, Willard, Mrs. Mattie Freeland and myself, were marooned nearly a week at Ozark. We finally found a way out by going nineteen miles back up in the hills and above the back water. The meeting at Bentonville was a good one. Dr. Babcock did not get to us for a week on account of the floods, but we did the best we could and preached for them. Dr. Babcock reached us the second Sunday of the meeting, but he came in the fullness of the Spirit. He is, to my mind, the greatest preacher in our movement. The last week of this meeting we had our ministerial meeting. Not many of our preachers could come on account of the high water, but those who did will never get over it. Especially was our day devoted to the young people's work blessed of God.

Rev. J. K. Davidson, Fort Smith, is now living in a new parsonage. Davidson is serving some fine people.

We recently held a meeting for the good pastor at Searcy. It was a good meeting so far as the church was concerned. Oh, if our own people will only stay spiritual! Rev. A. H. Lambert is a fine man and well loved by his people.

Rev. Mrs. Rhoda Grigsby is now pastor at El Dorado, and writes the work is moving along fine. They never could pay their pastor before, but now pay her and have money left in the treasury. They are also bringing up the other budgets. There is a great opportunity in this oil town.

Rev. T. C. Grigsby is pastoring the work at Fordyce, and reports things coming along well. Bro. Grigsby has renewed the note on the property, got things to going, and reports that the people are sticking to him.

Dr. M. Edward Borders is coming along with his enterprise. The Church of the Nazarene is getting quite a foothold in the leading city of the State. Dr. Borders is the pastor of First Church, and Pulaski Heights; Rev. W. H. Buckner is pastor of Bresee Memorial, and Rev. L. Lee Gaines is the pastor of North Little Rock. This gives us four churches in the Capital City, and they are all pulling the hill.

The floods have been so bad, and my mail has been so uncertain that we have but little fresh news from over the District, but at last reports, everything was moving along fine in spite of the recent rains. We have made the purchase of the State Camp Ground. It is one of the finest in all the country. Great interest is being manifested, and hundreds are looking forward to July 28 to August 7. Revs. John and Bona Fleming, and Prof. C. C. Rinebrager, are the special workers. Let all of our people on the District, and those who believe in a Full Gospel for all the people, send us an offering so we can have our wells put down, tabernacle built, and other necessary improvements made. It looks like all those splendid preachers this old state has produced would want a hand in this.

Notice is also given that our District Assembly will be held October 5-9, Dr. Reynolds presiding. Let us all bring up as good reports as we can. We also wish it would be possible for us to get in touch with all holiness people over the state who would like to have a revival meeting of religion as we believe and teach. It might be we could help you. We must have revivals. It is the only cure for worldliness. We must keep our people spiritual. The fire must be kept burning. Our altars must ever be kept alive. Not only must we "revive" our own, but we must get into new territory. Hundreds of people would like to have our Gospel. We must get it to them. The two outstanding issues on this District this year is the great District Camp Meeting, and the tent campaign.

John W. Oliver,
Dist. Supt.

NATIONAL HOLINESS ASSEMBLY.

The National Holiness Assembly at Chicago which was held in connection with the Annual Meeting of the National Holiness Association at the Evangelistic Institute, (of which Mrs. L. D. Vennard is the honored founder and successful President), has been a scene and season of just such manifestations, illuminations, and ministrations of the Spirit as is everywhere felt to be the need and the desire of the holiness ministry and Movement of our day. The occasions witnessed and experienced took some of us back to the earlier National camp meetings, and to those days of wondrous blessing which marked the (still great and gracious) Mountain Lake Park Feast of Tabernacles. Like both of these the present Assembly struck the keynote and rang clear on the Wesleyan doctrine of Entire Sanctification by faith as a second distinct work of grace; and maybe more particularly like the last named, it maintained throughout the George Fox deference to the Holy Spirit for guidance, and for enablement, enlightenment, and effectiveness in the ministry of the Word. Doubtless it was due to this honoring of the Holy Spirit that the Spirit's presence and power were so graciously vouchsafed. With no approach to fanaticism, indeed with much less demonstration than we have in many other holiness meetings, the Lord's workings and blessings were steadily in evidence.

The service of the Holy Ghost became so recognized as the intent and character of the meetings that after the first day or so people did not even inquire 'who is going to preach': they seemed content to hear what God himself had to say through whatever servant he may have chosen. There was no diversion, no dissipation, no side issues of any kind, nor was there any monotony or stereotyped uniformity. Each preacher, whether pastor, evangelist, school president, or professor; man or woman, older or younger, (and we had all of these) was at perfect liberty in the Spirit to conduct the service from start to finish in the way he or she felt most at ease or might be led at the time. The singing, too, was manifestly in the Spirit. Some few solos, a few quartette renderings, good choral numbers, fine congregational singing, all resounded the praises of the Lamb magnifying the Blood, honoring the Spirit, heralding holiness and promoting devotion.

All moved up to higher ground. Some were sanctified wholly for the first time in their lives, some recovered their lost pearl, many were established in holiness, and ministers, missionaries, and students were brought into closer alignment with the Holy Spirit for their life's work. Some, too, had their call and their calling sealed and settled.

Altogether it was a unique Assembly, served by near a dozen ministers from different areas, of different denominations, different offices, and positions and gifts, but with a unity and a progressive movement throughout the entire service that promised great achievement in the camp meetings soon to follow; and we think great spiritual advance along the whole line of the Holiness Movement. We feel encouraged to plan for more such Assemblies even apart from any business sessions of the "National" or other Associations, and friends near or far may begin to write us about such, with suggestions, or inquiries, or invitations.

Joseph H. Smith,
President National Association for the Promotion of Holiness.

One of the most powerful arguments against the use of tobacco is found in "The Deadly Cigarette," by Rev. S. L. C. Coward. The evil effects of this little "White Devil" are shown in a striking manner. The question is dealt with from every angle; physical, mental and spiritual.

If you want some startling, authentic information on this rapidly-spreading evil of tobacco using, you will find it in this little book. It is paper bound; has forty-eight pages, and sells for 25c. Order of the Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Kentucky.

THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD

Published Weekly by
Pentecostal Publishing Company
523 So. First St., Louisville, Kentucky.

Six Months in Advance$.75
One Year in Advance 1.50
Foreign Countries 2.00

OUR CONTRIBUTORS

Rev. G. Whitefield Simonson	Rev. Len G. Broughton	Rev. Bud Robinson
Rev. O. G. Minglehoff, D.D.	Rev. L. R. Akers, D.D.	Rev. Henry Ostrom
Rev. Richard W. Lewis, D.D.	Rev. G. W. Ridout, D.D.	Rev. C. M. Griffith
Rev. Andrew Johnson, D.D.	Rev. P. F. Asher, B.D.	Rev. J. H. Smith
Rev. C. F. Wimberly, D.D.	Rev. E. E. Shelhamer	Rev. C. W. Ruth
	Rev. J. B. Culpepper

CONCERNING SUBSCRIPTIONS

Subscription Discontinued When Time Is Out.
In ordering address changed give both OLD and NEW address. Write all names plainly with pen and ink or typewriter.
Notify us promptly of any irregularities in receiving your paper.
For distribution, to secure new subscribers, sample copies will be sent free on application.
Remit by Registered Letter, New York Exchange, Express, or Post Office Money Order.

(Continued from page 1)

Lord God, and our Lord Jesus Christ." All of these men who are denying the virgin birth of Jesus Christ, who insist that the recorded miracles in the gospels are either forgeries, or were written by ignorant men in an unscientific age, who were deceived into believing that things occurred which, in fact, did not take place.

These deceivers of the people concealed their unbelief on coming into the ministry. They "crept in." They sought positions of influence, worked themselves into favor with the lukewarm, wealthy and worldly; they found favor with the cultured doubters of all Bible truth; they fortified themselves in the favor of those who have a form without the power of godliness, and then they became bold assailants of everything that is supernatural in religion. They have much to say of a "new age", of scientific discovery and progress. They are busy with programs of social uplift, but are silent on the subject of the sinfulness of the race. You hear nothing from them of the need of a blood atonement, of the new birth, a pure heart and holy life. They are enemies of revivals of religion, and know nothing of the power of the Holy Ghost to save and cleanse the hearts of men. They know full well that a powerful manifestation of the power of Christ among men would mean their exposure and undoing. Church "creepers" are among us and must be contended against. We must keep the faith that God has delivered to us, contending against false teachers and their false doctrines. We must save the people with the word of God and the atoning merit of Jesus' blood. Boldly, constantly, in the face of all opposition, persecution and objection, we must contend for the faith that lays hold upon Christ for salvation.

"Faith of our fathers; we will love
Both friend and foe in all our strife!
And preach thee, too, as love knows how,
By kindly words and virtuous life;
Faith of our fathers! holy faith!
We will be true to thee till death."

Holiness Convention at Arlington

I had something to say of the Holiness Convention at Arlington in a previous report of my trip west; I wish to say something more of this great gathering of holiness people.

The meetings were held in the large tabernacle at Berachah Home in the beautiful city of Arlington, Texas. People came from many states. I judge from first to last, more than a hundred ministers of the gospel of various churches were present. Throngs gathered in the tabernacle.

The singing was led by John J. Douglas, Miss Ruth Upchurch and Miss Eva Spell presiding at the pianos. We do not recall when we have ever heard finer singing. It was great in volume, in melody, in unison. There was a spiritual power in the singing. Brother Douglas is much beloved and though somewhat crippled in his feet, he has a great head, a warm heart and a wonderful voice.

My home where I was entertained was with Rev. G. H. Dael and wife. Brother Dael is pastor of the interdenominational work at Berachah Home. He and his wife are full of faith and holy zeal for the cause of the Lord and the salvation of souls. Bro. Upchurch could hardly hope to secure better workers, and I could not have had a better home.

Our readers understand that Berachah Home is a rescue home for girls who have been betrayed, and their little ones. Brother and Sister Upchurch, with their workers, have had a wisdom and guidance in this work which is very remarkable. The dear young girls rescued, converted, sanctified and set on the way of salvation, and a happy, useful life in this home, number into the hundreds. If a story of the tragedy, the sorrow, the wreck and ruin, the rescue and redemption, could be written out it would fill a five-foot shelf of books that would tell of the deep depravity of the human heart, and the mighty power of Christ to regenerate, to sanctify, to heal, to pour the sunlight of heaven into lives full of midnight darkness.

When you go to Berachah you find such modesty in dress and manner, such courtesy, cheerfulness and song, that you feel that you are in a female college among bright, happy, consecrated young women preparing for useful lives. There came over me again and again a startling sense of horror as I thought of the degenerated men, the selfishness and cruelty that had dragged these poor girls from the path of virtue, and of the amazing grace of our Father in heaven that had lifted them up into the blessedness of peace and fellowship with himself.

What a wonderful Christ! How great is his salvation! Here at Berachah we see demonstration that makes you want to fall at the feet of Jesus and worship him with all the devotion of your heart. May God bless Brother Jimmie Upchurch, his wife, and the faithful group of workers associated with them, and may his blessing extend to those whose generosity has supported and enlarged the work. They have a considerable tract of ground, with some beautiful orchards, fine garden, and quite a variety of fruits and berries. They can vegetables and fruits, which is a great help in supplying the tables.

They now have near a hundred inmates in the Home. They are coming and going as the years go by. Brother Upchurch's policy is to get the girls saved, bring them into good health, establish them in the faith, build up character and then send them out to a useful life.

One of their means of support is called the "Daily Bread Plan." Many friends give $50.00 for the food supplies for one day, which works well. It gives any child of God a splendid opportunity to give help to "one of these little ones." "one of the least of these."

I suggest to the readers of THE HERALD to remember these dear people who, for the time, are entirely dependent upon the generosity of God's children. It is an excellent place and opportunity to use some of your tithe money. It is a place to be remembered in prayer.

H. C. MORRISON.

ASBURY COLLEGE COMMENCEMENT.

PRESIDENT L. R. AKERS, D.D., LL.D.

ASBURY Collège has just closed its thirty-seventh year with the finest Commencement Exercises we have ever had. The graduates of this year's Class far exceeded any previous year, numbering 120. There were 109 receiving the A.B. degree, six B.O.'s and five B.D.'s. The academic procession was quite imposing in its length and the Commencement service was one long to be remembered.

Asbury Commencement is always preceded by a Holiness Convention which began on Thursday evening, May 26th, with a masterful sermon by Dr. C. F. Wimberly. On Friday morning, the Rev. Raymond Browning, evangelist, brought a searching and earnest message. In the afternoon, Dr. Wimberly again preached while on Friday evening the Commencement Exercises of Bethel Academy were held, the address being delivered by Dr. Henry Clay Morrison, who, in eloquent language and with wise counsel gave the Class an inspirational address which will linger long in the minds of those hearing him. Saturday morning, Dr. Wimberly again gave one of his excellent discourses. A band concert in the afternoon was held in the semi-circle while the fine arts exhibit in the new studio delighted the visiting guests. At the same time, in the Home Economics Department, the culinary prowess and fine needlework of its students were displayed. Saturday evening was marked by a Conservatory grand concert, always an annual event of great importance.

Following the love feast on Sunday morning, was the baccalaureate sermon delivered by Bishop James E. Dickey, of Louisville, Ky. Bishop Dickey won all hearts by his fervent and eloquent discourse calling the Class of '27 to a full and complete surrender to the Master of Life and Character. In the afternoon, Dr. Morrison delighted the audience with one of his typically stirring sermons, and in the evening Dr. Robert P. Shuler, pastor of Trinity Church, Los Angeles, thrilled his great audience with an inspiring address. On Monday, the annual meeting of the Board of Trustees was held, with reports from the President, Business Manager and various departments. This meeting was largely attended and was notable for its harmony and optimism for the future of Asbury College. An audit was presented for inspection having been prepared by certified accountants and showed the business of Asbury College to be transacted in a most careful and methodical manner, showing also a very substantial increase in the net assets of the institution and a decrease of $23,000 on the college debt. The Board unanimously voted its approval and commendation upon the administration and plans were made looking toward larger things in the year to come.

Monday afternoon the dedicatory service of the Morrison Memorial Library was held. Short addresses were given by Mr. Claude Young, President of the Senior Class, Rev. O. H. Callis, President of the Alumni Association, Dr. Clarence True Wilson, representing the Board of Trustees, the Rev. E. L. Eaton, Life Service Secretary, Dr. J. W. Hughes, founder of Asbury College, President L. R. Akers, who formally presented the building for dedication. Response was made by Dr. Henry Clay Morrison and this magnificent structure which is the architectural gem of the campus, beautifully commodious, practically fireproof, and a delight to the eye, was turned over for the use of the student body and citizens of Wilmore. It has a present capacity for 32,000 volumes. The class of '27 presented the institution with the finest and most up-to-date equipment at a cost of $3,300. All students and friends of Asbury rejoice at this most valuable acquisition to the campus.

Monday evening the Glee Club and Expression recital was held and the presentation of special diplomas and certificates made. On Tuesday morning at eight o'clock the Alumni Praise Service was held in the College Chapel, followed at nine o'clock by the Alumni Gold Prize Oratorical Contest which was won by Mr. Benjamin Duval. At 10:30, the Alumni Address was delivered by Dr. Robert P. Shuler, and the consensus of opinion is that this was one of the most masterful and inspiring addresses heard from our college platform for many a day. At 2:30 in the afternoon, in the church, Dr. Clarence True Wilson, of Washington, gave his famous address on "John Wilkes Booth" which was heard with intense interest by an immense audience. The 7:30 hour was given to the Theological Seminary, Dr. J. M. Rowland, of The Richmond Christian Advocate delivering a most unique and much appreciated message. An inspiring Alumni meeting was held previous to this service.

Wednesday morning brought the climax to this great Commencement occasion. The mantle oration was delivered by Mr. Claude Young, President of the Senior Class with a response by Mr. Ben Duval, President of the Class of '28. Announcement was made that the Class of '28 would install this summer a set of Deagan ten tone chimes, which would be placed upon the summit of the Administration Building and whose melodious notes can be heard for many miles around. This is the most pretentious gift yet presented by any class to Asbury College, costing $8,000, $6,000 of which is the gift of the Class. These beautiful chimes will be electrically operated, ringing four times during the hour and from a keyboard attached to the Chapel piano, hymns may be played which will delight the listening ears of all the inhabitants of Wilmore and vicinity.

President Akers delivered a brief class address, after which the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity was conferred upon Joseph Medley Rowland, Editor of The Richmond Christian Advocate, Robert Pierce Shuler, Pastor Trinity M. E. Church, South, Los Angeles, Calif., Henry Harrison Barr, Pastor First M. E. Church, Grove City, Pa., John Francis Knapp, of God's Bible School, Cincinnati, and, in absentia, upon Arthur T. O'Rear, of Berkeley, Calif. With a few inspiring remarks by President Emeritus, Henry Clay Morrison, followed by the benediction, the year of 1926-27, passed into history. In profound gratitude to God, we give thanks for a wonderful year that has closed and rejoice at the splendid prospects for the new year which begins September 16, 1927.

Great Tent Meeting at Wellington, Kansas.

June 16-26.

This meeting will be held under the auspices of The Evangelical Methodist League conducted by Rev. H. C. Morrison, D.D. It will be located at Wellington, Kan. Rev. J. W. Dibbens will lead the singing. Rev. Joshua Chance is the manager of property, and Rev. C. D. Hestwood and T. F. Maitland are the committee on arrangements. Ten days full of full salvation preaching and singing. Don't fail to attend this great Tent Meeting.

Concerning Young People.

REV. A. S. HUNTER.

A vast deal is being said on this topic, both in the press, religious and secular; and in sermons, lectures, addresses, etc., by ministers and laymen. It is affirmed that the present generation of young people are degenerate, as compared with those of two or three generations ago. The "flapper" and the "shiek" are cited in proof. On the other hand, the young people of today are vigorously defended as being all right, as good as their forebears, the best ever, etc.

Each side is about equally distant from the real truth of the matter, and it is because both overlook some essential facts which are factors in the problem. The truth is that the children and young people of the twentieth century are just like those of the nineteenth or eighteenth centuries were, and like those of the next and the following centuries will be; neither better nor worse.

We are all born in sin! Our moral being is corrupt, and we are all naturally inclined toward evil. We each and all have "the bent to sinning" of which Charles Wesley sang. Just how that principle of evil in us will express itself, is incidental; the fundamental thing is that it is there! Jesus recognized its presence when he said, "Whosoever committeth sin is the slave of sin." "The sin that dwelleth in me," in the moral being, expresses itself in sin, the deed. Sin is sin, no matter what its guise!

There is this difference between the young people of today and those of forty or fifty years ago, or of thirty or twenty years ago. The youth of today are at a disadvantage, as compared with those of past generations; and that many of them go to greater excesses, calls for sympathy rather than censure. This disadvantage is two-fold; they have more and stronger incentives toward evil, and fewer and weaker restraints against evil.

As a sample, take the modern dance, which has become well nigh universal, and is being strenuously promoted by many leaders of youth. No normal youth of either sex can maintain the close physical contact with the opposite sex, which goes with the modern dance, and remain innocent in thought and emotion! We who are two, three or four times their years, cannot do it. Too often they do not remain innocent in act! In the old time "square" dancing, the contact of the sexes was limited to clasping hands. Teachers, school boards, etc., who encourage the modern dance, are flinging the boys and girls into a moral gehenna!

And the dance is but one of numerous things which solicit the twentieth century youth to wrong, which we older people did not have to meet in our youth. The movies, with their sex-suggestive films; "triangles", marital infidelity, etc. Many of the prominent and popular "stars" of the screen and the stage are known to be immoral in their lives; some of them have been married (?) and divorced several times, and mixed up in outrageous escapades. And yet they are the heroes and heroines of the movie fans! The vulgar and obscene dress (or, undress) and posture which is common in the films and on the stage. The rage for "bathing beauties," always in the scantiest of bathing suits. The vulgar exposure of the person in many of the pictures in the newspapers. The coarse and suggestive stories in newspapers, magazines and books. The unblushingly nude "art", which is spread in many magazines and exposed on the news stands. The lascivious extreme of abbreviated dress of women.

Such things have made sex, which is a sacred thing, the common plaything of children and youth; and have stripped it of all that is sacred or modest. We who are fifty or beyond, did not have to meet that sort of thing in our youth. We grew up with a respectful regard for the rights and modesty of the opposite sex, and marriage was to us a high and noble thing. Had we been exposed to such things as the youth of today must meet, what would we have done?

On the other hand, there is now less restraint to "the sin that dwelleth in me", including the normal sex-impulse, than in our youth. Then, practically every one believed the Bible as the inspired, revealed Word of God; having moral authority over our hearts and lives. When we disobeyed it, we knew we were sinners and would be eternally lost, unless we repented and obtained Divine pardon. Every child and adult had a definite moral standard by which to measure himself.

Today, practically all that is changed. Children and young people regard the Bible as merely a human book, with no authority in their lives or conduct. To most of them, "sin" is "as you like it"; if you believe a thing is right, it is right—for you. Every one is a law unto himself. "Behaviorism", "self-expression", not the Bible, rules them! They are not to blame for this, since it has been instilled into them, and they know no differently. It found congenial soil in their sinful moral being, and they are void of any moral standard of life. This sort of thing is the seed from which "flappers" and "shieks" grow, and the soil in which they flourish.

Furthermore, the youth of today are taught that they are simply more highly developed animals than the beasts about them; that they are not a special creation of God in the beginning, and now fallen moral beings. Animalism is the only logical outcome from that idea, and youth are logical in their reasoning. They reason: Since we have come up from beasts and will die as beasts die, why not live as beasts live? That is, indulge our animal passions without restraint? Sin has so inflamed these passions, that natural instinct puts no limit on them, as with the animals.

In our youth, the Sunday School and the pulpit, even apart from the home, held the Bible before us as the standard of morals; and showed us our individual responsibility to God. Our consciences were trained. We were made sin-sensitive, and were kept open to the Holy Spirit's operations. When we transgressed God's law, we were self-condemned. The church and the ministry warned us "to flee from the wrath to come", and find safety in Christ, by "repentance unto remission of sins," "repentance toward God and faith in our Lord Jesus Christ." Not all obeyed, but those who persisted in sin, realized that they were sinners.

To a very large degree, these restraints are now lacking.

This is not an excuse for the sins and excesses of the youth of today. Sin is sin! Playing with the fires of passion, as many of them are, they are being seared in body and soul! But it is not because they are naturally worse than we were; but because, in their helplessness, they are flung into this raging torrent of iniquity, and the Life-Line is not thrown to them.

"Throw out the Life-Line to danger-fraught men,

Sinking in anguish where you've never been;

Winds of temptation and billows of woe

Will soon hurl them out where the dark waters flow."

"Throw out the Life-Line, through out the Life-Line—

Someone is drifting away,

Throw out the Life-Line, throw out the Life-Line,

Someone is sinking today."

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS

Dear Aunt Bettie: Greeting to you and The Herald cousins. The Easter brings sorry thoughts to my mind that I wish to express to the readers of the dear Herald. I just picked up a secular paper and the first thing I saw was an advertisement of an Easter dance. Now dancing does not appeal to me at all and I do not believe the kind of dance to be given is an expression of joy of the Resurrection of Jesus from his death on the cross. I am rejoicing that he arose giving us the promise that we, too, may arise "To meet him in th air" when he comes to receive those who "are asleep in Jesus" to our inheritance of Eternal Life. I long to see you all when that time comes. The disciples asked him, "Will you at this time restore the kingdom to Israel?" But he told them it was not given for them to know the time nor the season which the Father has put in his own power. But after the Pentecostal power came on them they had their thoughts on the extending of the spiritual instead of the earthly kingdom they had been expecting. They had to be led a little at a time to understand the work before them. We too, have to be led a step at a time to do the work designed for us. If all our life work was mapped out to us when we start in our Christian life we would not be prepared for it. But if the Lord leads us to each service as he sees we are able for we may do much more than we with our finite minds can accomplish. We have to do each little or great duty just as our Father needs for the accomplishment of his designs. That is why we must become as a little child when we enter into the Christian life. A little child left to its own will could not plan for a day its own way. The parents must sometimes conceal the plans of the day to get the child to do the necessary duties for its accomplishment. May we, dear cousins, be led each day and hour to obey the commands of our "Father in heaven" and read the Guide Book he has given us. I hope the cousins believe in the whole Bible and make its counsels the guide of their lives. With love to you all, I am,
Mary Hudson,
Canton, Ill.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I am a little girl fifteen years of age, with brown eyes and chestnut brown hair. I go to school every day at Carrol High School. I am just a Freshman. This being my first attempt to write to The Pentecostal Herald I hope it will be successful. I have heard Dr. H. C. Morrison speak once. Last May when some of my dear friends and I were down to Asbury College at the Academy Commencement, we heard him give a very interesting talk and we saw him present the diplomas to the students. I have learned to know, trust and love some of the Asbury students during the past year. We saw the great blue grass regions of Kentucky and many other things, but we were very glad to get back to dear old Ohio. I have just had a birthday last November a year ago, as a child of the kingdom of God. I have had a most happy and enjoyable year. I go to Wesley Chapel Methodist Church every Sunday possible. I am pianist of the church, Sunday school, and prayer meeting. I am also secretary of our Epworth League. I have several times brought the message of God, of Jesus Christ, at our church. My pastor, Rev. G. C. Gilfillen, has led me much farther in the Christian work than I would have gone if I hadn't someone to encourage me. Boys and girls, we need much help to turn this dark world into the light of God. There are many sheep gone astray, and only one true good Shepherd to follow by. We cannot all have great talents and great positions in life, but thank God we can all be followers of Jesus, and children of God. We then can be happy on the way, and a smile on your face from one side to the other. Friends, I want to say if ever you want to be and see heaven on earth, go to Camp Sychar, Mt. Vernon, Ohio. We were there last summer for ten days and never missed a service; heard the real gospels, shouts, glories, and all the Hallujahs. I always want to be and stay on the straight path for Jesus. I do hope and pray this is printed for I want people to know and to hear my testimony for Jesus.

Yours forever in Jesus,
(Miss) Rosannah Heister,
Canal Winchester, Ohio.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I would like to join in your happy band of boys and girls. I am nine years old and in the third grade. My birthday is July 9. We have been taking The Herald. I enjoy reading page ten. This is my first letter. I would like for the boys and girls to write to me and I will answer your letters as nicely as I can.
Emma Reams,
Randles, Mo.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you admit a New Mexico girl to join your band of boys and girls? I am eleven years old. I have blue eyes and light brown hair. I go to Sunday school every Sunday. I am in the sixth grade. I have one brother at home, he goes to Sunday school too. I have six brothers and sisters, but they are all married. I am the youngest one of my family. I am four feet tall, weigh seventy-two pounds. I enjoy reading page ten very much. Wake up, New Mexico boys and girls, and let's don't let the rest of the States get ahead of us. Who can guess my name, it begins with A and ends with E and has five letters in it. Who is my twin? My birthday is Nov. 30. I hope Mr. W. B. is out fishing and fell in the water when my letter arrives. I would like to hear from some of the cousins. And I will answer all the letters I receive.
Mae Hall,
Lalande, New Mexico.

Dear Aunt Bettie: As I did not see my letter in print I will try to write again. How are all the cousins? I am twelve years old, four feet and five inches high, have light hair and dark eyes. Who has my birthday, May 30? I hope Mr. W. B. is looking after the chicks for he got my first letter.
Ruth Wilson,
Bethel Ridge, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I saw my other letter in print about a year ago, so I decided I would write again. I have light hair, blue eyes, fair complexion. I go to school every day and am in the seventh grade. I like to go fine. My grandmother takes The Herald and I like to read it, especially page ten. Well I will not stay very long this time. I would be delighted to get some letters from any of the cousins and will also answer all I receive. Gladys F. Puffenbarger, I guess your middle name to be Fannie. Am I right? If I am right be sure and write me a letter.

Clio Thompson,
Box 3, Glennville, Ga.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I have been wanting to get The Herald for this week, and while it has not come, I am going to write to you. Will you let a little girl join your happy band of girls and boys? I live in North Carolina. I have light brown hair and about 55 inches tall, have blue eyes and light complexion. I have a Bible story book and like the chapter about Moses very much. I think I can answer a few of your Bible questions. Moses could not go to the kingdom land because he praised himself more than he did God when he smote the rock. I have two sisters and one brother. My mother and father and grandmother are all living, which I am very proud of. I try to help others to be saved. I belong to the Baptist Church, and my Sunday school teacher's name is Miss Betty Jenkins. My pastor is Mr. Belch. I like him very much. My little sister seven years old wishes to write to you, but she cannot write a plain hand, but hope she will soon be able to write to you. She has a Bible story book too, and she likes the first chapter in the book about (before the flood). She goes to school and is in the third grade and is very smart. My brother does not go to school but he can count to one hundred, so he will be able to help some one who is in sin and sorrow after awhile. My baby sister is about seventeen months old and is very cute. She goes to the church every Sunday too, and likes it very much. Christ is so just to all the people and is very forgiving to each one. My aunt is here; she gave the money for The Pentecostal Herald. I have been reading page ten and like it very much. Sarah Louise Page, Wallace, N. C.

Dear Aunt Bettie: May I join your circle of boys and girls? I have been reading your interesting letters for quite awhile and I would like to hear from you, just as many as possible. I am a teacher of the Third grade in Toledo schools. I enjoy my work very much because I love children. But our Jesus has planned my life differently. He has called me to be a missionary in the foreign fields. So I am going to give up teaching and go to Asbury College this fall to prepare for my life work. Will you pray for me that my life will tell for Jesus, moment by moment? I used to think that there was nothing better than to go to a dance, play cards, or go to a theater, but how empty that kind of a life is, in comparison with the sweet presence of Jesus walking by your side daily. I suppose you are wondering what I look like. I have dark brown hair, gray eyes, am five feet, one inch and weigh 112 pounds. Can you guess my age? It is between twenty and twenty-four. Do any of you play instruments? I play a violin in our orchestra at our church (Missionary Alliance). I hope this letter will be put in print for I want to hear from some of you right away.
Hazel Scott,
Rt. 6, Toledo, Ohio.

Dear Aunt Bettie: When one asked, "How old are you?" I answered, "I am not old, I am young," keeping away the thought of age, waiting on him who renews my youth like the eagle's, besides, by his measurement I have done so very little! Age is not measured really by hands on a dial, but by good work done for God. No matter how tall I am, just so when on my knees I reach heaven. No matter how much I weigh, just so when weighed in his balances I am not found wanting. I may really weigh more than the man I once saw who weighed over seven hundred pounds avoirdupois, and that was all—he only looked and talked foolishly while exhibiting himself. No matter about the complexion or contour of my face—it can be and must be beautified by pure thoughts and not by impure chemicals. No matter how long my nose is, just so I do not go poking it into other people's business! I am only a sinner, saved by grace, the Lord has been and is very good to me, and I must present this body a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto him who bought me with a price, for life is short and eternity long. Ever your friend,
Willie Curran,
Rt. 9, Box 239, Atlanta, Ga.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you please let a happy country girl into your charming circle? I live in dear old North Carolina. Let me tell you a bit about North Carolina. It has an area of 52,426 square miles. North Carolina has one of the greatest summer resorts in the world, Asheville. Pinehurst is noted as a winter resort. North Carolina has one of the largest hosiery mills in the world, largest towel factory in the world, largest aluminum plant in the world, the largest peach orchard, comprising 40 square miles. North Carolina leads the world in manufacture of tobacco. (Pardon me for telling about the nasty tobacco). North Carolina has second largest hydroelectric power development in the world. North Carolina leads the union in number of debt-free homes. North Carolina has the largest mill under one roof. North Carolina has more cotton mills than any other state in the union. North Carolina ranks first in value and quality of mica produced in the union, minimum 75 percent of mica used in the United States. North Carolina is especially noted for her good roads. From the earliest history there never has been a time when a North Carolinian could not hold up his head and proudly proclaim the greatest of his State. Now, if any of you cousins want a sweet verse about North Carolina, just write to me. Oh, I must stop for my letter is growing long.

Gospel Tents

Smith Manufacturing Company.
DALTON, GA.
22 Years in Business

J. H. DICKEY
of

BARRETT, ROBINSON & DICKEY

General Insurance—Bonds, etc., solicits your patronage.

7th Floor, Columbia Bldg.
Louisville, Ky.

200 Sheets 100 Envelopes

PERSONAL STATIONERY

High Grade White Bond Paper, size 5½ x 7 inches, with envelopes to match. Every sheet and envelope printed in black type up to 4 lines, with your name, business, and address

$1⁰⁰

This Stationery also makes an IDEAL GIFT. Shipment within 10 days after receipt of order. ORDER NOW!

Pentecostal Pub. Co.,
Louisville, Ky.

Gentlemen: Enclose please find $1.00 for which send me postpaid, a box of your Personal Stationery consisting of 200 sheets of Paper and 100 Envelopes printed as follows:

To avoid errors write or print clearly

If any one cares to correspond with me, just write. I have lots of songs for exchange, or send to any one. Many thanks for letting me come in. Will tell you this and close. Some one please send me my letter if it is printed.

Auntie, I am so pleased you let me come down,
When sunny faces are banished from frown.

It seems so pleasant with this sunny band,

I want to shake each of your dear little hands.

You see, my dear folks, I am single, and free,

My eyes are deep blue, but oh, dear me—

I probably am missing it only a mite To say I favor Santa on yuletide night.

Now, while on my journey back to the tree,

You, dear, kind cousins, be writing to me,

And the castles I'll be building on my way back,

Will make Woolworth Building look like a shack.

(Miss) Lucille Richardson,
Rt. 1, Box 121, Silver City, N. C.

One of the most popular preachers of Southern Methodism has written a book called Sermons on Old Testament Characters. Thousands of Dr. Clovis Chappell's books have been eagerly read. This one sells for $1.60. Pentecostal Publishing Company, Louisville, Ky.

A NEW BOOK.

Brother Pickett's latest book, "Why I am a Pre-millennialist," was written with a purpose. He felt that a small, pointed, unanswerable demonstration that the Bible absolutely teaches pre-millennialism, was needed. So he prepared this book, and he challenges the whole post-millennial confraternity to answer his arguments. He says, "They won't, for the very simple reason, they can't." Read it and see if he is right. 35c, three for $1.00. Give it to your pastor and to other friends.

PENTECOSTAL PUBLISHING CO.

FALLEN ASLEEP

STEVENS.

At the ripe age of eighty years, W. P. Stevens, of Livermore, Ky., on the 15th of May, 1927, fell asleep in death. He was born and reared in McLean County, Ky., and resided in the home of his birth during his entire life, except short intervals when business called him away, and a few months preceding his demise. He was a public spirited man from his youth to the end of his life, was active in the cause of education, and the progress of both Church and State, having taught in the schools for more than a quarter of a century. A leader in all moral and spiritual activities, especially interested in the young people and their success in life. He was the nominee of his political party for Representative in Congress from his District, and on many campaigns fought in the front ranks in the interest of temperance and moral welfare. But his chief concern and most sincere and successful activities was for the advancement of Christianity and righteous living among the people. He was a faithful and useful member of the M. E. Church, South, reared in a Christian home from infancy, being a son of the Rev. Thomas Stevens and Elizabeth Stevens, who preceded him in death. He is survived by a brother, W. H. Stevens, of Livermore, Ky., and a number of relatives and friends. He always held his membership in the same church of his boyhood days, and was a member of that church at time of his death, i. e., Pleasant Hill, in McLean county, Ky.

In early life he began public service in the Sunday school and prayer meetings, and in general church work. He was a familiar character in the Church Conferences, always ready to lend his aid in personal service and of his means in the advancement of all worthy causes. While he was a devout Methodist, true and faithful to the church of his choice, yet he was not narrow or selfish in his dealing with fellowmen, always ready to encourage righteous living regardless of name or mode. His continuous Christian life, steadfastness in the faith in God and Jesus Christ as his Son, regardless of criticism and opposition of every kind, marked him as a good and faithful servant of his Lord. The closing of his earthly life, his abiding faith, his influence as a reliable Christian citizen in his community was evidence of the truth of the importance of early Christian training, and that he had studied to show himself approved of God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed. His exemplary life and character and Christian influence will live in the memories of his friends and associates, long after the passing of him to his final reward, and will continue to bring forth fruits to the honor and glory of the God he loved and served. May his be the reward of the finally faithful, even life eternal and rest from his labors. A Friend.

BEADLE.

William Beadle was born Aug. 2, 1849, in St. Mary Parish. He moved to Lafayette, La., over fifty years ago and was married April 28, 1873, to Miss Mary Aucoin. He was an active member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, for the past forty years. He received the purifying, empowering baptism of the Holy Ghost, a second definite work of grace, subsequent to regeneration and testified this with his life as well as with his lips. He lived his religion as few men do. He was a devoted husband, a loving father, a good neighbor, kind and accommodating to all, doing all his strength would permit. He had been in poor health for quite awhile and on May 20, 1927, at 7:30 P. M., departed this life very peacefully to live with Jesus at the age of 78 years, 9 months at the home of his niece, Mrs. Alice Guidry.

The genuineness of his Christian experience was attested by his love for the things of God. How he did love God's word! It could truthfully be said of him, "His delight is in the law of the Lord and in his law doth he meditate day and night." He loved God's house. His greatest joy was when he heard the cry of the penitent seeking for mercy and the shout of victory when a seeking soul touched the mercy seat and a soul was born into the household of God. He loved the doctrines of The Pentecostal Herald and was a subscriber and constant reader for many years. In his suffering he was patient and Christ-like, and on one day while he was suffering in agony, he asked his family and some relatives who were at his bedside to sing with him his favorite song, "The Pearly White City." As long as he was able to read while on his sick bed he read the Bible and other religious literature.

We miss him, but rejoice to know his warfare is over and to have the assurance of his promotion from the lowlands of earth for the highlands of heaven where all is peace and rest. We mourn, not as those who have no hope. Beside his widow he is survived by five daughters and one son. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Leon I. McCain, a man whom the deceased loved with all his heart. He was assisted by Rev. Louis Hoffpauir, our local Methodist pastor. Both preachers paid high and deserving tribute to the deceased.

The choir gave comforting messages in song, singing his favorite song, "The Pearly White City," and "Asleep in Jesus." The Lord was graciously present with his comforting power. His body sleeps beneath the sod and flowers but his influence still lives in the heart of his family and friends while the modest, refined and happy spirit has passed from the shadows of mortality into the eternal light of immortality, where his possession lies.

"Asleep in Jesus, blessed sleep, From which none ever wakes to weep! A calm and undisturbed repose, Unbroken by the last of foes."

His loving niece,

Annie Lee Beadle.

BROTHER McCORD'S LETTER.

The writer was at Toledo, Ohio, last fall when he received several telegrams to come home at once as father had been given up to die. The pastor, Rev. J. C. Walker, and I went to prayer and God answered without delay, giving us the assurance that father would live. We continued the meeting eleven days longer and closed what was said to be one of the greatest meetings of this church in years. When I got home I was led to anoint father and pray for him, although the doctors gave no hope of his recovery. Today, father is well and God has let me leave him and go back into my evangelistic work.

Since beginning here, I have not had a barren service. People are praying through to salvation in the old-time way. A number whom we anointed when we were here last year have been enjoying good health ever since. A wicked young railroad man who had planned to commit suicide was saved last fall and has been working for the Lord ever since. Please to pray for him and

W. W. McCord.

FIRST CHURCH, ALTON, ILLINOIS.

We have a good year in soul winning. God has indeed, been very good to us. Our hands have been full all fall and winter in revival work, and many have been reclaimed, converted and filled with the Holy Ghost. To do this work, one must be filled with the Spirit and have the freedom this gracious work of grace gives. When one receives the cleansing of their hearts there comes with it the passion for souls. I have never seen deeper conviction nor brighter salvation work.

We recently closed a meeting with Rev. M. A. Soares, pastor of First Church, Alton, Ill. He is a great preacher, a hard student and a devout man. He is doing a great work at First Church. He is an old Asbury boy, and preaches the full gospel. He married one of Wilmore's charming young ladies, Miss Wetzel, who is

WHAT'S IN A BOOK?

CONDUCTED BY

REV. Z. T. JOHNSON, A. B., B. O., M. A.

My Sermon Notes, by Chas. H. Spurgeon.

This week we shall give all our space to these splendid books prepared by that eminent Baptist preacher of England, C. H. Spurgeon. By many he is considered the greatest preacher of his age.

In the preface to these volumes he has the following to say: "It is not always easy to select themes for sermons. . . . On several occasions the question has been put to me, 'Could you not help us with some outlines of discourses?' . . . I have prepared these frameworks . . . to help bewildered industry; and I hope I have not written so much as to enable any man to preach without thought, not so little as to leave a weary mind without help."

There are four volumes to this set. Volume I contains 64 sermon outlines on texts taken from Genesis to Proverbs. It contains many interesting subjects. Note a few: "Power With God—Gen. 32:28"; "I Have Enough—Gen. 33:9-11"; "Unseasonable Prayer—Ex. 14:15"; "Moral Inability—Josh. 24:19"; "Half-Breeds—II Kings 17:25, 33, 34"; "Ruins—II Chron. 28:23"; "Satan Among the Saints—Job 1:6"; "The Sinner's Surrender—Job 7:20"; "Pondering Hearts—Prov. 21:2"; "The Best Friend—Prov. 27:10."

The following outlines will give you some idea of the style of the writer. We give the points only, with each point there is generally an explanation or development. On Gen. 32:28 he has the following:

Introduction.

Power with God is a sublime attainment.

Main discourse.

1. What this power cannot be.
 - a. Cannot be physical force.
 - b. Cannot be mental energy.
 - c. Cannot be magical.
 - d. Cannot be meritorious.
 - e. Cannot be independent.
2. Whence this power proceeds.
 - a. It arises from the Lord's nature.
 - b. It comes out of God's promise.
 - c. It springs out of the relationships of grace.
 - d. It grows out of the Lord's previous acts.
3. How it can be exercised.
 - a. There must be a sense of weakness.
 - b. There must be simple faith.
 - c. There must be earnest obedience.
 - d. There must be fixed resolve.
 - e. There must be importunity.
4. To what use this power may be turned.
 - a. For ourselves.
 - b. For others.

Following this are several illustrations that may be used in connection with the various thoughts.

On Job 19:25 he gives the following splendid outline: After an introduction dealing with the translation of the word Redeemer he enters into the main discussion.

I. Job had a true Friend amid cruel friends. He calls him Redeemer. This will bear three renderings.

1. His kinsman.
 - a. Nearest akin of all. No kinsman is so near as Jesus.

- b. Voluntarily so. Not forced to be a brother.
- c. Not ashamed to own it.
2. His Vindicator.
 - a. From every false charge.
 - b. From every jibe and jest.
 - c. From true charges also: by bearing our sin himself.
 - d. From accusations of Satan.
3. His Redeemer.
 - a. Of his person from bondage.
 - b. Of his lost estates . . . from the hand of the enemy.

II. Job had real property and absolute poverty. He speaks as to say, "Everything else is gone, but my Redeemer is still my own, and lives for me." He means:

1. I accept him as such.
2. I have felt somewhat of his power already.
3. I will cling to him forever.
- III. Job had a living Kinsman amid a dying family.
 1. He owned the Lord as ever-living.
 - a. As Father, to sustain and solace him.
 - b. As Head—to represent him.
 - c. As Intercessor—to plead for him.
 - d. As Defender—to preserve him.
 - e. As his Righteousness.
 - IV. Job had absolute certainty amid uncertain affairs.
 1. I know.
 - a. His faith made him certain.
 - b. His trials could not make him doubt.
 - c. His cavilling friends could not move him.

As in all instances, several illustrations are listed at the close of the sermon.

Volume II has 65 outlines written in the same style as related above. These are taken from the rest of the Old Testament.

Some of the most interesting subjects treated in this volume are: "The Word of a King—Eccles. 8:4"; "Constraining the Beloved—Sol. Song 6:5"; "Rivers in the Desert—Isa. 32:2"; "What Will the Harvest Be?—Hos. 9:7"; "The Plumbline—Amos 7:7"; "Self or God—Zech. 7:5-6".

Volume III has 66 sermons taken from Matthew to Acts. Such titles as these show their value: "Sonship Questioned—Matt. 4:3"; "A Portrait of Jesus—Matt. 9:36"; "All Hail!—Matt. 28:9-10"; "Love's Foremost—Luke 7:42"; "Where Is He?—John 7:11"; "The Golden Muzzle—Acts 4:14"; "Kindling a Fire—Acts 28:2".

Volume IV completes the New Testament with 68 sermons. Many of these messages have a widespread appeal: "Jesus Our Lord—Romans 4:24"; "Dead But Alive—Romans 6:11-12"; "Bought With a Price—1 Cor. 6:19-20"; "Three Crucifixions—Gal. 6:14"; "Gospel Jewelry—Titus 2:10"; "Lame Sheep—Heb. 12:13"; "Jude's Doxology—Jude 24:25"; "The Marriage Supper of the Lamb—Rev. 19:19".

This is most valuable to the preacher. It has proven to be one of the best selling sets of sermon notes ever published. The set sells for $4.00. If bought separately they cost $1.50 each. You will get value for your money here.

All of the books reviewed in these columns may be bought from The Pentecostal Publishing Company, Louisville, Kentucky.

equally beloved by the people of their church. Brother Soares knows how to organize and put a red-blooded program across. His Sunday school has doubled, and prayer meetings have increased under his wise leadership. I enjoyed working with him in the meeting recently closed. The altar was crowded most of the three weeks I was with him.

We are now at Pennington Gap, Va., in a blessed meeting, there being one hundred saved the first two weeks. God is manifesting himself in mighty saving power.

Will J. Harney.

Must We Sin? by Howard W. Sweeten, treats this all-important subject in a clear, concise style. Every vital detail of this question is gone into thoroughly in this book. It sells for $1.25. It is an interesting book. Order of The Pentecostal Publishing Company, Louisville, Kentucky.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

REV. O. G. MINGLEDORFF, D.D.

Lesson XIII.—June 26, 1927.

Subject.—Review. Reading Lesson.
—1 Peter 5:1-11.

Golden Text.—Follow me, and I will make you fishers of men. Matt. 4:19.

Simon Peter was good timber. Although gnarled, crossgrained and somewhat twisted, he was hard wood. Little can be done with trashy lumber; but the Master Workman could fashion Peter into a good piece of furniture. He even took on high polish, and needed no varnish.

Peter was called from his fishing tackle to preach the Gospel. Most of us would have passed him by; but Jesus knew better. We would hardly license him to preach. He could not enter a Methodist Annual Conference in this year 1927—too rough, too rugged, too ignorant, too uncouth, too fishy; but the Master fashioned him into one of the greatest of his apostles. Maybe we are right; and maybe we are wrong. Some of our notions are worth very little in the sight of Heaven. An ignorant, but Spirit-baptized, man is a better preacher than the most learned D.D. who is without that baptism. The latter may do some fine head-work—learned lecturing; but he cannot preach: the former may fail to entertain the head; but he will reach the heart and turn it Godward, which is far better. But if the illiterate brother walk with God and study to show himself approved unto God and men, like Simon Peter, he will soon be a giant, and will be dealing in the mighty fundamentals of the Gospel. Mr. Wesley's lay preachers had little scholastic learning; but they were great theologians. There is no school half so good for the preacher as the pulpit, if so be that he deliver his messages with "the Holy Ghost sent down from heaven." Colleges and seminaries are both good, if dominated by the Divine Spirit; but if they be otherwise, they will cripple the young preacher, and clip his wings so that he can never fly.

Simon Peter enjoyed some advantages that seem to us superior to any that we have. He spent some three years in the peripatetic school of the Master. No doubt it was wonderful to sit at his feet in the quiet hours of the evening and drink in the blessed words that fell from his lips, and to listen to his gracious messages as he went about doing good and teaching the people. That was all good; but we have the advantage of Peter. What did Jesus mean when he told the disciples that it was expedient for him to go away in order that he might send the Comforter to them? He said: "The works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto my Father." He is referring to those who believe in his name; but what does he mean? Simply this: It is better for us to have the Comforter, the Holy Ghost, in our own hearts sanctifying, teaching, comforting, than to have the physical presence of Jesus himself. That may sound strange to some of us, nevertheless it is true. The Comforter: con, with us; fortis, strong—strong together. That is it. He does not throw away my little manhood, but adds his mightiness to it; and we are strong together. Peter by himself was not much; but with the Holy Ghost helping him, he was mighty through God to the pulling down of the strongholds of Satan, and for the upbuilding of the Church of God.

Did you ever study Peter on the Mount of the Transfiguration? To understand men we must see them at their highest and their lowest, at their best and their worst. Take Peter on the mountain top amid the glories of the coming world, and in the hall of the high priest when he is cursing and swearing that he does not even know Jesus Christ, and we seem to be dealing with two different men; but study him all the way between those two points, and we find connecting links that tell us that we are dealing with no one but rugged, impetuous Simon Peter, the Galilean fisherman. One feels that the Master is but chiselling the rough block of granite into a saint. It takes little pressure to mold wax figures, but they are lifeless at best. It requires vigorous, strenuous drilling to make soldiers of the cross; and they must be carved from solid rock, and endured with the life and dynamics of the Holy Ghost; for theirs is a life-and-death battle.

Let us not judge Peter too severely because of his fall, lest we condemn ourselves; for we are all weak as long as the carnal nature dwells within us. Peter was perfectly honest when he declared that he would never deny his Lord; he did not intend to lie; but the temptation was both sudden and severe. If you have sufficient imagination, picture to yourself the entire scene, stand in Peter's sandals, and see if you have the temerity to swear that you will die before you will run away; but maybe you would best be a bit cautious, for it may be that your living is so loud that people will not be able to hear you speak. In other words, although you may declare your boldness from the housetop, your past and present conduct may be of such a nature, that your best friends may decide, as the little girl said, that you are "telling a mistake." Peter's fall was bad; but it taught him a lesson that did him good the balance of his days.

It was good for Peter that he walked on the sea; but it was better that he sank in the waves. It was needful for him to learn his own weakness and the Master's strength. He, left alone, could not walk the sea; but the Master could have led him across the Indian Ocean during a monsoon. There is little power in a horse-shoe magnet, but attach it to a tremendous dynamo, and it can pick up tons of iron. We can be strong only when our weakness is tied on to the Master's strength. Had not Peter learned that lesson, he would have been a failure forever.

The dark hours between the crucifixion and the resurrection of our Lord were good for Peter. Tunnels are dark places, sometimes filled with dust and smoke; but they lead to the light on the other side of the mountain, and save climbing over the top. Did you ever feel the thrill and joy of shooting out into the light after passing through one of those long, dark holes? If so, maybe it will help you to realize, in a scant measure, Peter's feelings on the morning of the resurrection. Both the darkness of the night and the breaking of the day were good for Peter. When Jesus died

ASBURY COLLEGE

WILMORE, KENTUCKY

A Cosmopolitan School

Born in a passion for the evangelization of the world.

standing for Wesleyan
Essentials. Fall session
opens September 14th.

Adequate training consistent with a sound gospel faith.

Write for Bulletin

MEMBER OF THE ASSOCIATION OF KENTUCKY COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES;
MEMBER OF THE ASSOCIATION OF AMERICAN COLLEGES.

L. R. AKERS, M.A., D.D., PRESIDENT.

W. BRANDT HUGHES, M.A., DEAN.

The School With a World Vision

Mt. Lake Park
Camp Meeting
MT. LAKE PARK, MD.
June 26 to July 10, Inclusive

America's Ideal Camp Meeting Grounds. Our Greatest Preachers Coming; Dr. C. M. Dunaway, Dr. Charles H. Babcock, Dr. H. C. Morrison, Dr. John F. Owen, Song Leaders, Prof. and Mrs. Kenneth Wells, Children's Work, Miss Minnie Shay, Young People's Work, Mrs. Tillie Albright, Ring Meeting Director, Rev. A. J. Dolbow, C. M. Hood, Pres., Moundsville, W. Va. Dr. Daniel Westfall, Sec'y.-Mgr., 524 Penn Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa.

on the cross, Peter's faith died in his heart; but the empty tomb and the risen Lord brought it back to life again; and it was better and stronger than if it had never died, for there was about it a resurrection glory, a glory that made him one with his Master.

The resurrection of our Lord and those forty post-resurrection days were great school days for Peter. Three years before that time they would have been lost, because he would not have been prepared for the lesson. Peter was then only a grade pupil, and this was university work. The happenings of those forty days were prepared lessons for prepared students. We speak of "the nick of time" and the "psychological moment", and we speak well, for there are such times and such moments. At some such epochs we learn more in a few minutes than we can learn in hours that are less favorable. Peter learned more during those forty wonderful days than he had ever known in all his former life. It was to him the unveiling of the unseen world, that made earth-things look small. He was swapping chips for gold, pebbles for diamonds.

No doubt Peter was on Olivet's top when the Master went back home for his eternal crowning. What feelings must have surged through his soul as he stood gazing up into heaven while his Lord was being taken up amid the glory clouds. One can almost hear him saying: "He is gone forever." But amid his grief a heavenly hand touches his elbow, and a being clothed in white speaks into his astonished ears, "Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? this same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven." Peter is growing immensely; he will soon be ready for promotion to the senior class.

Pentecost was the greatest day that Peter had ever seen or heard of. It was a glorious day when he passed from the Mosaic dispensation into that of the Son of God, but it was a more glorious day when he stepped out into the dispensation of the Holy Ghost. Wonder of wonders! We are living in the times of the dispensation of the power and glory of the Triune God. It brought power to Peter and the rest of the disciples who tarried in the upper room; but it is intended for us, and for our children, and for them that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call. It was this that took away Peter's world-love and cowardice, and turned him into more than a conqueror through the indwelling Spirit of God. Would God that the Church might move on to her Pentecost. She must have it, or the world will perish.

In the Pentecostal baptism with the Holy Ghost and fire we find the source of Peter's courage and power. We must look to that hour, in order to understand his miracles and his luminous preaching and writing. Before Pentecost he reminds one of an electric globe minus the current; but Pentecost turned on the current, and Peter became a bright and shining light. He no longer wished for earthly emoluments, but counted it a joy to preach the Gospel of his Lord, and even to suffer shame for his name's sake.

EVANGELISTIC AND PERSONAL.

Rev. W. C. Moorman passed away at the Blessing Hospital, May 12, after an illness of three years. He was buried in Greenmont Cemetery, Quincy, Ill. Our readers will regret to learn of the death of this good man. "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints."

Rev. L. E. Williams, Wilmore, Ky., has an open date in July and August. Let those interested in securing his services communicate with him at the above address.

Rev. R. A. Young has had a meeting of two years' standing cancelled, which leaves him available for either a tent or camp meeting August 4-14. Wire or write him 1045 Worcester Ave., Pasadena, Calif.

Rev. W. A. Grogg, Ronceverte, W. Va., having had a date cancelled can give July 2-22 to anyone desiring a tent or church meeting. Brother Grogg is conference evangelist of the West Virginia Conference.

Rev. O. F. Ring is ready for evangelistic work after having served a pastorate in the Nazarene Church the past two years. Anyone desiring his services may address him 724 9th Ave., New Brighton, Pa.

A good meeting recently closed near Rago, Kan., held under the auspices of the Harper County Holiness Association, a branch of the Kansas State Holiness Association at Wichita.

Rev. F. P. McCall recently closed a good meeting at Mulberry, Fla., resulting in sixteen additions to the church and eighteen professions. Rev. L. B. Simpson is the pastor and goes to conference with good reports.

E. O. Chalfant: "Rev. H. W. Welch of Olivet, Ill., who has recently left the Ohio District, Church of the Nazarene, is educating his children in Olivet College and is entering the evangelistic field. There is no better man in the movement than Brother Welch. He is as true as steel, a sacrificing brother, and is an efficient evangelist. We are going to use him much on the Chicago Central District. Any District or any church calling Brother Welch will receive good service. Brother Welch will go for free-will offerings. Address him, H. W. Welch, Olivet, Ill."

Evangelist Wade House and Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Wall, musicians, of Tennessee, led a six-weeks' county-wide revival for Tabernacle Baptist Church, Waco, Texas, under the biggest revival tent with largest crowds ever seen here with hundreds of conversions and reclamations and many additions to church. Multitudes say the House-Wall party is best they ever heard. They're invited for an eight-weeks' return engagement. Hundreds fared-welled them at the station with a gospel sing-song led by the Walls, which attracted thousands. A gospel tract

Twenty-third Camp Meeting

Of The

North Dakota Interdenominational Holiness Campmeeting

At Jamestown, North Dakota

JUNE 17-26 Inclusive

Some of the very best working evangelists will be at this Camp this year. Dr. John Paul, president of Taylor University, Upland, Ind., will be one of the workers. Rev. Charles H. Babcock of Los Angeles, Calif., will be another. Dr. S. A. Danford, President Emeritus, will be one of the workers; Rev. Fred Canaday, sweet singer in the holiness work, will lead the hosts attending in song. Mrs. S. A. Danford, the Children's Leader, and others are promised to be present. Write Rev. Nathan L. Rockwell, Supt. of Grounds, for tents and information, at Jamestown, N. Dak. Cafeteria meals will be served to all who wish to use that plan.

Rev. F. W. Gress, Secretary of the Association, Steele, North Dakota.

MAKE PLANS TO ATTEND THIS FEAST OF GOOD THINGS

Respectfully yours,
H. W. GRESS, Sec'y.

was placed in every city home preceding the revival. Tabernacle S. S. had 1050 present last Sunday of meeting. The church and city can never be the same since this great revival.

Rev. Harry S. Allen has some time during the summer months that he can give to brethren in tent or church meetings. Brother Allen has charge of one of The Evangelical Methodist League tents and has been having most successful revivals. Address him, Macon, Ga., Box 234-A, Rivoli.

If you had a book of illustrations, alphabetically arranged, so you could easily find an apt illustration for that point in your sermon for next Sunday, what would you give for it. We have just such a book by J. C. F. Pittman, called Bible Truths Illustrated, that we sell for $1.75. Pentecostal Publishing Company, Louisville, Ky.

OUR JULY CAMP MEETINGS.

Armstrong County Camp.
The Armstrong County Interdenominational Holiness Association will hold its third Annual Camp Meeting in the Armstrong Grove, three miles from Kittanning, Pa., July 14-24. Rev. John Thomas and wife will be the evangelists, with Mrs. Etta Foiles as songleader. Information may be derived by addressing Miss Nancy Byron, 1214 Fifth Ave., Ford City, Pa.

Southeastern Camp—Dothan, Ala.
The Southeastern Camp Meeting will be held at Dothan, Ala., July 15-24 with Revs. K. H. Bird and W. A. Murphree as preachers and J. P. Peacock as singer. Mrs. G. M. Denis will preside at the piano. Facilities will be furnished for campers, and meals served at a reasonable price. W. H. Newton, Dothan, Ala., will give desired information relative to the camp.

Adams County Holiness Camp.
The annual tent meeting of the Adams County Holiness Association will be held at Monroe, Ind., from June 27 to July 10. Rev. Tilden H. Gaddis will be the preacher in charge, assisted by the Moser Sisters, musicians. Let parties interested address Mrs. Frank Martz, Monroe, Ind.

Red Rock Camp Meeting.
The 59 Annual Camp Meeting will begin at 7:30 P. M., June 30 in the main tabernacle at Red Rock Park, near Newport, Minn. A strong group of workers is provided for this year:

Rev. T. M. Anderson, a strong, convincing preacher of full salvation; Rev. T. C. Henderson, a much used evangelist; Rev. John Thomas and wife, Young People's Workers, and there are no better; Rev. Lloyd Nixon, song leader, who has previously charmed the Red Rock people with his singing, assisted by H. Morse Skinner, pianist, an artist of unusual merit. Bible Talks will be given by Rev. G. G. Vallentyne, a man mighty in the Scriptures. Let the people rally to this grand old camp and make it the best in its history. Address A. P. Andrews, Newport, Minn., for information regarding tents, cottages, or hotel accommodations.

Asbury Camp, Washburn, N. D.
The Asbury Camp Meeting, Washburn, N. D., will be held July 7-17. Dr. J. L. Brasher and Rev. Raymond Browning will be the evangelists. Rev. Leo Slagg and wife will have charge of the music. This camp is only three years old but has a great future, located on a Federal Highway which makes it accessible to people from many sections of the country. With the above corps of workers we predict a great camp this coming season. Address John Bibelheimer, Washington, N. D., for information.

Lake Arthur, La., Camp.
The above camp will be held July 7-17. Rev. W. H. Huff, assisted by W. R. Wilder, leader in song, and James V. Reid, pianist, and Young People's Worker, will be the evangelists in charge. Every one who can possibly attend, is invited to rally to this old camp and make it one of power and victory. Address J. W. Fontenot, Box 1621, Shreveport, La., for information.

Freeport, Long Island, N. Y., Camp.
This camp will be held at Camp Roosevelt, Prince Ave., West of North Main St., July 14-24. Rev. John F. Owen and Rev. H. W. Sweeten are the preachers, Miss Florence Fairbanks leader in song. Address H. J. Cornell, 46 Burling St., Flushing, N. Y.

Hughesville, Pa., Camp.
This camp will be held July 21-31, with Rev. Raymond E. Doble and Rev. C. A. Roane preachers, and Mrs. Esther Williamson song leader, assisted by Miss Alma Budman. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Best will be in charge of the music. Address Rev. S. P. Elroyd, Center Hall, Pa., for information.

GOSPEL TENTS

Write for Prices on NEW AND USED TENTS.

R. H. ARMBRUSTER CO.,
SPRINGFIELD, ILL.

Established 1875

We Aim To Please—Our Aim Is Good

TAYLOR

Where Bible Christianity mixes with high class modern education. Where trained teachers live close to the students. Where low ideals are barred. Enlarged equipment for 1927-1928 session. Books now open for room reservations.

Address JOHN PAUL, President
Taylor University Upland, Indiana.

WANTED: Experienced printer to take charge of our complete printing department, including bindery. Must be Christian man. Reply giving experience, Christian experience, salary desired and references to Walter P. Carr, Treasurer, John Fletcher College, University Park, Iowa.

BLOWING BUBBLES

By James V. Reid

A convincing address to young people, depicting God's plan for happiness; showing by the order of creation why the human soul can never be content without God. Price 15c; $1.50 a dozen.

PENTECOSTAL PUBLISHING CO.,
Louisville, Kentucky.

A TINY TESTAMENT.

This Testament is bound in leather, stamped in red ink, has a wonderfully clear, large type for a small book. The type is nonpareil. The size is 2½x4¼ in. thick, and the weight is 2 ozs. The regular price of this Testament is 75c. We are closing out 50 of them at 50c each, postpaid. Pentecostal Publishing Company, Louisville, Ky.

NOT TO BE USED WITHOUT COPYRIGHT PERMISSION

OF ASBURY THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

EVANGELISTS' SLATES

ALBRIGHT, TILLIE.

Mt. Lake Park, Md., June 26-July 10.
Moore, New York, July 24-Aug. 14.
Richland, N. Y., Aug. 21-Sept. 5.

ASBURY GOSPEL TEAM.

Kirkpatrick, Jarrett, Moore, DuVal.
Wyalusing, Pa., June 19-July 3.
Overton, Pa., July 6-17.
Elmira, N. Y., July 20-31.
Lockport, N. Y., August 5-14.

BABCOCK, C. H.

Jamestown, N. D., June 16-26.
Mt. Lake Park, Md., July 1-11.
Douglas, Mass., July 14-24.
Hollow Rock, Toronto, O., July 28-Aug. 7.
Wakefield, Va., August 5-15.
Wichita, Kan., August 18-28.
Blackwell, Okla., Aug. 29-Sept. 4.
Thomas, Okla., Sept. 15-25.

BANNING, EDNA M.

Cardington, Ohio, June 5-19.
Cadiz, Ohio, June 26-July 10.

BECK, A. S. AND R. S.

Cub Run, Ky., June 16-July 1.
Hiseville, Ky., July 2-15.
Columbia, Ky., July 18-Aug. 5.
Open dates, August 5 to last of October.

BEELER, T. W.

Salvia, Ky., June 5-19.
Harrodsburg, Ky., June 25-July 10.
Danville, Ky., July 16-31.
Home address, Wilmore, Ky.

BELEW, P. P.

Ladoga, Ind., June 14-July 3.
Home address, 1529 W. Nelson St., Marion, Indiana.

BRENNAN, A. P. AND MRS.

Albion, Ind., June 9-19.

BROWNING, RAYMOND.

Charleston, W. Va., June 19-July 3.
Washburn, N. D., July 7-17.
Columbus, Ohio, July 28-Aug. 7.
New Albany, Ind., August 8-14.

BUDMAN, ALMA L.

(Song Evangelist)
Centre Hall, Pa., June 4-July 16.
Hughesville, Pa., July 21-31.
Linden Hall, Pa., August 6-20.
Address 101 Carpenter St., Muncy, Pa.

BURNETT, W. EVANS.

Open dates for July and August.
Alexandria, La., June 17-25.
Home address, Lake Charles, La.

BUSSEY, M. M. AND WIFE.

Tacoma, Wash., June 23-July 3.
Home address, 1468 Bresee Ave., Pasadena, Calif.

CANADAY, FRED.

Jamestown, N. D., June 17-26.
Open date, August-Sept.-October.
Home address, 1518 Killingsworth Ave., Portland, Ore.

CAIN, W. R.

Linton, Ohio, June 12-26.
Home address, 515 So. Vine St., Wichita, Kansas.

CAROTHERS, J. L. AND SADIE.

Ferndale, Wash., July 21-31.
Tacoma, Wash., August 1-14.

CHATFIELD, C. C. AND FLORA.

Shelbyville, Ind., June 5-26.
Anderson, Ind., July 1-17.
Warsaw, Ohio, July 28-August 7.
Radcliff, Ohio, August 14-28.
Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 29-Sept. 11.
Durand, Mich., Sept. 11-Oct. 2.
Ellet, Ohio, Oct. 3-16.
Home address, 410 E. Carl St., Winchester, Ind.

CLARKE, C. S.

Three Sands, Okla., June 16-July 3.
Home address, 808 N. Ash, Guthrie, Okla.

COLEMAN, PAUL.

Wooster, Ohio, June 10-26.
North Vernon, Ind., June 27-July 10.
Frankfort, Ind., August 8-11.
Springfield, Ohio, August 12-24.
Home address, 1620 Fairfax Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio.

COLLIER, J. A.

Clay, Ky., June 12-July 3.
Providence, Ky., July 10-Aug. 7.
Home address, 1917 Cephas Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

CROSS, WALTER-LOPER, NORRIS.

Adelle, Miss., June 20-July 3.
Silver Creek, Miss., July 11-29.

DAVIDSON PARTY.

Centerville, Pa., June 19-July 3.

DICKERSON, H. N.

Mitchell, Ind., June 5-19.
Manville, Ill., June 26-July 10.
Bloomington, Ind., July 17-31.
Kirk, Colo., August 18-28.
Home address, 2608 Newman St., Ashland, Ky.

DUNAWAY, C. M.

Austell, Ga., June 1-20.
Mt. Lake Park, Md., June 26-July 10.
Bentleyville, Pa., July 14-22.
Dalton, Ga., July 23-31.
Mt. Vernon, Ohio, August 4-14.
Home address, 216 N. Candler St., Decatur, Ga.

DYE, CHARLES.

Mdormott, Ohio, June 12-26.
Columbus, Ohio, July 3-17.

Fisher, Ky., July 24-Aug. 7.
Address, 430 Williams St., Troy, Ohio.

EDWARDS, C. E.

Marshall, Texas, June 6-19.

ELSNER, THEO. AND WIFE.

Dover, N. J., June 10-19.
Brooklyn, N. Y., June 24-July 4.
Old Orchard, Maine, July 8-17.
Reading, Pa., July 22-31.
Home address, 1451 Pacific St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

FLEMING, JOHN.

Barberton, Ohio, June 8-19.
Salem, Ohio, June 21-July 3.
N. Little Rock, Ark., July 29-Aug. 8.
National Park Camp, New Jersey, Aug. 12-21.

FLEMING, BONA.

Kennard, Pa., June 14-26.
Dallas, Tex., July 15-24.
Little Rock, Ark., July 29-Aug. 7.
National Park, N. J., August 12-21.
Ingersoll, Okla., Aug. 26-Sept. 4.

FLEXON, R. S.

Woodbury, N. J., June 5-19.
Warm Springs, Va., June 26-July 11.
Lotham, Md., July 15-31.
Clinton, Pa., August 5-14.
Glassboro, N. J., August 15-21.
Delanco, N. J., Aug. 17-Sept. 5.
Home address, Shackelfords, Va.

FRYE, H. A.

Worthville, Pa., June 15-July 10.
Home address, 1326 Hurd Ave., Findlay, Ohio.

FUGETT, C. B.

Princeton, Ind., June 21-July 3.
St. Bernice, Ind., July 4-17.
Haltown, Mo., July 24-Aug. 7.
Normal, Ill., August 19-28.
Cape May, N. J., Sept. 9-17.
Home address, 2813 Holt St., Ashland, Ky.

GADDIS, TILDEN H.

St. Louis, Mo., June 13-26.
Monroe, Ind., June 27-July 10.
Aspen Grove, Ky., July 11-24.
Oregon, Wis., July 31-Aug. 14.
Charleston, Ill., August 19-28.
Upland, Ind., Sept. 2-17.
Home address, 4805 Ravenna St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

GARRETT, C. J.

Royalton, Ill., June 10-26.

GEIL, PAUL AND DORA.

(Singers and Xylophone Players)
Argo, Ill., June 5-26.
North Manchester, Ind., July 1-30.
Kokomo, Ind., Aug. 1-28.
Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 16-Nov. 6.
Brazil, Ind., Nov. 13-27.
Anamosa, Iowa, Dec. 1-30.
Home address, Frankfort, Ind.

GLEASON, RUFUS H.

New Castle, Ind., June 2-19.
General Conference, June 22-26.
Marion, Ind., July 3-24.
Cadillac, Mich., July 28-Aug. 7.
Charles City, Ia., Aug. 16-28.
Home address, Central, S. C.

GLENN, REV AND MRS. J. M.

Millport, Ala., July 3-17.
Chatham, Ala., July 24-Aug. 7.
Indian Springs, Ga., Aug. 11-21.
Eastman, Ga., Sept. 4-18.

GREEN, JIM H.

W. Marion, N. C., July 3-17.
Bostic, N. C., July 17-29.
Connelly Springs, N. C., Aug. 7-15.
Home address, Box 200, Connelly Springs, N. C.

GRANT BROTHERS.

Montic, Mo., July 1-16.
Birch Tree, Mo., August 1-16.
Thomasville, Mo., August 16-31.

GROGG, W. A.

Edray, W. Va., June 10-26.
Smithers, W. Va., July 2-22.
Mt. Lake Park, Md., July 26-Aug. 4.
Pinch, W. Va., August 20-Sept. 3.
Home address, Ronceverte, W. Va.

HALLMAN, W. A. AND WIFE.

Absaraka, N. Dak., June 23-July 3.
Alsask, Sask., July 7-17.
Didsbury, Alta., July 21-31.
Elkhart, Ind., August 4-14.
Lincoln, Nebr., August 19-29.

HARRIS, B. F.

Gainsville, Texas, June 4-19.
Gracetown, Tex., July 1-10.
Klondike, Tex., July 15-31.
Dillard, Okla., Aug. 7-21.

HEWSON, JOHN E.

Open date, July 1st to 10.
Gordon, Neb., July 17-27.
Sherman, Ill., August 4-14.
Portage, Ohio, Aug. 18-28.
Home address, 127 N. Chester Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.

HODGE, H. W.

East Branch, N. Y., June 30-July 10.

HOLLENBACK, URAL T.

Auburn, Pa., July 18-26.
Norristown, Pa., Oct. 2-18.

HOLLENBACK, ROY L.

Marion, Ohio, June 16-26.
Indianapolis, Ind., July 1-10.

HORN, LUTHER A.-MARSHALL, R. P.

Healing Springs Camp Meeting, June 30-July 10.
Salem, Ala., July 12-28.
Clear Springs, Ala., Aug. 14-28.
Louisville, Ala., Sept. 1-14.
Home address, Box 1322, Mobile, Ala.

HOTCHKISS, ROY L.

Thompson, Iowa, June 5-26.
Campbell, Minn., June 29-July 17.
Montevideo, Minn., July 19-Aug. 7.
Winthrop, Minn., Aug. 9-28.
Hull, Iowa, August 30-Sept. 11.

HOWARD, FIELDING T.

Sunrise, Ky., July 4-17.
Depoy, Ky., July 20-31.
Milton, Ky., August 5-14.
Tolt, Ky., August 18-28.
Home address, Wilmore, Ky.

HULSE, AARON.

Oklahoma City, Okla., July 10-31.

HUNT, JOHN J.

Hurlock, Md., June 16-26.
Rosslyn, Va., July 29-August 8.
Wilkinsburg, Pa., Sept. 16-25.
Home address, Media, Pa., Rt. 3.

HUTCHERSON, FIELDS AND HILKER.

(Tent Workers)
Vernon, Colo., June 5-26.
Slater, Wyo., July 12-July 16.
Basin, Wyo., July 18-31.
Meeteetse, Wyo., August 1-21.
Grass Creek, Wyo., August 22-25.

HYSSELL, HARVEY B.

Pax, W. Va., June 5-19.
Lenon, Mich., June 26-July 13.
Baileysville, W. Va., July 17-31.
Bowersville, Ohio, August 4-14.
Mt. Nebo, W. Va., Aug. 17-31.
Home address, Box 1235, Charleston, W. Va.

IRICK, ALLIE AND EMMA.

North Little Rock, Ark., June 5-19.
Jasper, Ala., June 23-July 3.
Olive Hill, Ky., July 8-18.
Goddard, Ky., July 21-31.
Cambria, Ill., August 4-14.
Bonnie, Ill., August 19-29.
Millport, Ala., Aug. 31-Sept. 12.
Thomas, Okla., Sept. 15-25.
Home address, Bethany, Okla.

JOHNSON, RAY N.

Corinth, Ky., June 13-28.
Mohabala, Ohio, July 10-24.
McLuney, Ohio, July 25-Aug. 7.

JOHNSON, ANDREW

Peek, Mich., June 16-29.
Norfolk, Va., July 1-17.
Ruggles camp, Ky., July 21-31.

KEYS EVANGELISTIC PARTY.

Rev. Clifford E. Keys, Evangelist. Mrs. Clifford E. Keys, Pianist. Rev. Roscoe Bancroft, Trombonist.
Trenton, N. J., June 16-July 3.
Cressona, Pa., July 6-17.
Reading, Pa., July 22-31.
Lewistown, Pa., August 2-14.
Eccles, W. Va., Aug. 18-Sept. 4.
Chillicothe, Ohio, Sept. 11-Oct. 2.
Home address, Mohnton, Pa.

KINSEY, W. C. AND WIFE.

(Song Leader, Singers, Pianist)
Arcanum, Ohio, June 12-26.
Portage, Ohio, August 18-28.
Home address, 452 So. West 2nd St., Richmond, Ind.

KINSEY FRANK E.

Brown's Corners, Ind., June 10-July 3.
Pt. Branch, Ind., July 7-24.
Birds, Ill., July 31-Aug. 21.
Urbana, Ill., Aug. 24-29.
Home address, 1220 Tecumseh St., Indianapolis, Ind.

LILLENAS, HALDOR AND BERTHA.

Bloomington, Ind., June 15-19.
Mohawk, Ind., June 23-26.
Peoria, Ill., July 3-17.
Carmichael, Pa., July 21-31.
Sherman, Ill., August 4-14.
Connorsville, Ind., Oct. 2-16.

LITTELL, V. W. AND MARGUERITE.

West Sunbury, Pa., June 9-26.
Butler, Pa., June 28-July 19.
Urichsville, Ohio, July 22-Aug. 7.
Chariton, Ia., Aug. 14-28.
Home address, 1214 Scott St., Beatrice, Nebraska.

LOVELESS, W. W.

Bowling Green, Ky., June 2-26.
Home address, London, Ohio.

LUDWIG, THEODORE AND MINNIE.

Corsica, S. D., June 14-26.
Litchfield, Minn., June 26-July 10.
Racine, Wis., July 13-24.
Hector, Minn., July 26-Aug. 7.
Nokomis, Ill., Aug. 9-21.
Home address, 772 N. Euclid Ave., St. Louis, Mo.

NELSON, S. S.

Christo, Va., July 1-10.
Home address, 832 Worth Ave., Greensboro, N. C.

McBRIDE, J. B.

Denver, Colo., June 13-19.
Bartlesville, Ky., June 29-July 11.
Mount Olivet, Ky., July 13-25.
Hollis, Okla., July 27-Aug. 7.
Noonday, Tex., August 11-21.
Oakland City, Ind., Aug. 25-Sept. 4.
Home address, 112 Arlington Drive, Pasadena, Calif.

McCORD, W. W.

Sale City, Ga., August 11-21.
Home address, Sale City, Ga.

McGHIE, ANNA E.

Coshocton, Ohio, June 9-19.
Sharon Center, Ohio, July 28-Aug. 4.
Mt. Vernon, O., Aug. 4-14.

McNEES, HERBERT J.

Open dates, May, June, July, August, September.
Home address, 13th Ave., New Brighton, Pa.

McKIE, MARK S.

Open dates after June 15.

MILLER, JULIUS.

Poplar, Mont., June 16-July 7.
Franklin, Minn., July 13-24.
Ortonville, Minn., July 26-Aug. 7.
Jamestown, N. Dak., Aug. 10-14.
Home address, Mattoon, Wis.

MILBY, L. G. AND BERTHA.

Taylorsville, Ill., June 5-26.
Home address, Box 327, Danville, Ill.

MILLER, REV. AND MRS. F. E.

Westport, Ont. Can., June 5-19.
Wilmington, N. Y., June 23-July 4.
Moore, N. Y., July 30-Aug. 14.
Richland, N. Y., August 21-Sept. 5.
Home address, Lowville, N. Y.

MILLER, JAMES.

Chicago, Ill., May 29-July 3.
Lynn, Ind., July 10-24.
Hope, Mich., July 31-Aug. 14.
Home address, 1249 N. Holme Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.

MINGENDORFF, O. G.

Grand Bayou, La., July 17-31.
Orlando, Fla., Aug. 25-Sept. 5.
Home address, Blackshear, Ga.

MONK, ALONZO, JR.

Fulton, Ky., June 12-July 3.
Tuscumbia, Ala., July 5-24.
Winslow, Ark., July 26-Sept. 1.
Paris, Tenn., Sept. 3-24.
October, November, December open.

MORRIS (JUDGE) FRANK

China Springs, Tex., July 24.
Aspermont, Tex., August 7.
Hagerman, N. Mex., Aug. 28.
Alamogordo, N. Mex., Sept. 11.
Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 2.
Home address, P. O. Box 1523 Dallas, Texas.

NELSON, S. S.

Copper Hill, Va., July 1-10.
Organ Cave, W. Va., Oct. 1-10.
Ranceverte, W. Va., Oct. 12-25.
Address, 832 Worth Ave., Greensboro, N. C.

OWEN, G. F. AND BYRDIE.

Pierson, Iowa, June 12-26.
Ft. Dodge, Iowa, July 12-24.
Climbing Hill, Iowa, July 29-August 1.
Open date, August 12-21.
Bath, Maine, Aug. 28-Sept. 12.
South Portland, Maine, Sept. 18-Oct. 2.
Home address, 1415 West Pikes Peak Ave., Colorado Springs, Colo.

PARKER, J. R.

Willisburg, Ky., June 4-26.
Woodawn, Ky., July 10-24.
Sergeant, Ky., July 25-August 14.
Berry, Ky., August 15-28.
Address, Wilmore, Ky.

POLLOCK, G. S. AND WIFE.

Wallingford, Ky., June 12-26.
Eldorado, Ill., August 4-14.
Home address, Wilmore, Ky.

POLLITT, S. H.

Oddville, Ky., June 5-19.
Open date, June 20-July 31.
Orangeburg, Ky., August 1-14.
Wagoner's Chapel, Ky., August 15-25.

POWELL, JAMES L.

Open date, June 12-21.
Pence, Ind., June 26-July 12.
Open date, July 17-27.
Corydon, Ky., July 28-Aug. 14.
Open date, Aug. 18-28.

REDMON, J. E. AND ADA

Indianapolis, Ind., June 19-July 3.
South Bend, Ind., July 8-24.
California, Ky., August 19-28.
Home address, 1231 North Holmes Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.

REED, LAWRENCE.

Coshocton, Ohio, June 9-19.
Sebring, Ohio, July 15-24.
Albany, N. Y., July 31-Aug. 14.
Richland, N. Y., August 21-Sept. 5.
Cumberland, Md., Sept. 10-20.
Home address, Damascus, Ohio.

REES, PAUL S.

Kokomo, Ind., June 10-19.
Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, July 8-17.
Ferndale, Wash., July 2-31.
New Albany, Ind., August 4-14.
Cherry Grove, Ind., August 15-19.
Home address, Pasadena, Calif.

REID, JAMES V.

Lake Charles, La., June 19-July 3.
Lake Arthur, La., July 7-17.
Jackson, Tenn., July 19-Aug. 3.
Home address, 2912 Meadowbrook Drive, Fort Worth, Tex.

RICE, LEWIS J. AND EDYTHE

Mattoon, Wis., June 12-26.
Madill, Okla., July 17-31.
Kingston, Okla., August 4-21.
Home address, 2923 Troost Ave., Kansas City, Mo.

RINEBARGER, C. C.

North Reading, Mass., June 24-July 4.
Douglas, Mass., July 15-24.
North Little Rock, Ark., July 28-Aug. 7.
Ramsey, Ind., August 12-22.
Oakland City, Ind., Aug. 26-Sept. 4.
Home address, Olivet, Ill.

ROBERTS, T. P.

Hannibal, Ohio, June 23-July 3.
Walton, Ky., July 9-31.

ROOD, PERRY R.

SANFORD, E. L. AND WIFE.
Elkhorn City, Ky., June 9-19.
Bethel Ridge, Ky., July 31-Aug. 21.
Home address, 202 Engman Ave., Lexington, Ky.

SHANK, MR. AND MRS. R. A.
Kokomo, Ind., June 10-19.
Mt. Olivet, Ky., July 15-25.

ST. CLAIR, FRED
Cheney, Wash., June 5-10.
Portland, Oregon, July 31-August 28.
Permanent address, 2444 Bowditch St., Berkeley, Calif.

SHARROW, C. E. AND NEVA B.
(Singers and Children's Workers)
Robinson, Ill., June
Manville, Ill., June 26-July 10.
Home address, Wren, Ohio.

SHELHAMER, E. E.
Dayton, Ohio, June 13-26.
Harrowsmith, Ont., June 30-July 10.
Inkerman, Ont., July 14-24.
Owasso, Mich., Aug. 4-14.
Wichita, Kan., Aug. 18-28.
Binghamton, N. Y., Sept. 25-Oct. 9.
Allentown, Pa., Oct. 16-30.
Home address, 5419 Bushnell Way, Los Angeles, Calif.

TEETS, ODA B.
Webster Springs, W. Va., June 12-28.
Jollytown, Pa., July 10-24.
Odessa, W. Va., July 31-Aug. 14.
Mt. Nebo, W. Va., Aug. 17-31.
Home address, Aurora, W. Va.

THOMAS, JOHN
Red Rock, Minn., July 1-10.
Kittanning, Pa., July 14-24.
Moers, N. Y., August 1-14.
Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 16-28.
Clarksburg, Ont., Sept. 9-18.
Permanent address, Wilmore, Ky.

VANDALL, N. B.
Princeton, Ind., June 22-July 3.
Bentleyville, Pa., July 7-17.
Pittman, N. J., July 20-Aug. 2.
Findlay, Ohio, Aug. 11-21.
Mt. Lookout, Ohio, Aug. 25-Sept. 4.

VAYHINGER, M.
Latts Ind., July 29-August 7.
Bryantburg, Ind., Aug. 19-28.
Nashville, Ind., July 6-17.

WHITEHURST, R. F.
New York District Nazarene Church,
June and July.
Magnolia, Ark., August 4-14.
Home address, Wilmore, Ky.

WILLIAMS, L. E.
Bible Grove, Ill., June 6-19.
Open date, June 20-July 16.
Home address, Wilmore, Ky.

WINBERLY, C. F.
Marshallfield, Md., June 5-25.
St. John, N. B., July 1-10.
Greenville, Ky., July 20-30.
Wilmore, Ky., July 31-Aug. 5.
Eldorado, Ill., Aug. 5-15.
Ringgold, La., August 16-28.

WINLAND, C. B.
Jelloway, Ohio, June 8-22.
Zanesville, Ohio, June 26-July 10.
Wauseon, Ohio, July 13-27.

WIREMAN, C. L.
Petersburg, Ky., June 8-26.
Open dates, July 1-10.
Wilson Run, Ohio, July 29-Aug. 14.
Burlington, Ky., Sept. 20-Oct. 2.
Home address, 726 Scott St., Covington, Ky.

YOUNG, R. A.
Bentley, N. D., June 24-July 4.
Open dates, July 7-31.
Bowersville, O., Aug. 4-14.
Waynesboro, Miss., Aug. 19-28.

CAMP MEETING CALENDAR.

ALABAMA.
Dothan, Ala., Camp, July 15-24. Workers: Rev. K. H. Bird, evangelist; J. P. Peacock, singer. Address Rev. W. H. Newton, Sec., Dothan, Ala., Rt. 5.
Healing Springs, Ala., Camp, June 30 to July 10. Workers: Rev. Luther A. Horn, Rev. R. Marshall, pianist, soloist and chalk talker. Address Luther A. Horn, manager, Box 1322, Mobile, Ala.

CALIFORNIA.
Pacific Palisades, Calif., camp, June 24-31. Workers: Rev. Will H. Huff, Rev. R. T. Williams, Rev. Fred H. Ross.
Colorado Springs, Colo., Camp, June 16-28. Workers: Revs. Charles Stalker, W. R. Cox, Paul W. Thomas, S. K. Wheatlake, R. G. Finch, R. R. Sharp, Address Herbert Haines, Sec., Center, Colo.

GEORGIA.
Indian Springs, Ga., camp, Aug. 11-21. Workers: Rev. H. C. Morrison, Rev. J. L. Brasher, Rev. C. W. Butler. Young People's worker, Mrs. Jere M. Glenn. Director of music, Mr. Hamp Sewell. Address R. V. Burdew, Macon, Ga.
Salem City, Ga., camp, August 11-21. Workers: Rev. Chas. A. Gibson, Rev. C. J. Nease. Song leader, Rev. Frank Watkins. Musician, Mrs. Frank Watkins. Special singers, The Vaughn Radio Quartette. W. W. McCord, President.

ILLINOIS.
Cambria, Ill., camp, August 4-14. Workers: Rev. Allie Irick and wife, Mrs. Emma Irick, Rev. Elmer McKay, Rev. J. R. Moore in charge of the singing. The Girls' Quartette, of Taylor University will also be in attendance. Mr. John Paul will be with us for at least one service. A. C. Wolfe, Sec., Carterville, Ill., Route 1.
Chesterville, Ill., camp, June 28-July 10. Workers: Rev. and Mrs. Jack Linn, Miss Imogene Quinn, Prof. Edson Crosby, and Miss Karine Kjolseth. Address J. W. Louthan, Arcola, Ill.

Bonnie, Ill., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Revs. Allie Irick and wife, Mrs. Emma Irick, Rev. Elmer McKay, Rev. John E. Moore, W. T. Lawson, Cor. Sec., Benton, Ill.
Greenville, Ill., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Bishop Joseph F. Berry, Rev. Guy Wilson, The Prestons, song leaders. A. B. Plog, Cor. Sec'y.
Manville, Ill., camp, June 26-July 10. Workers: H. N. Dickinson, Henry B. Jensen, H. W. Morrow. Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Sharrow, singers. Write Wilder Hoobler, Manville, Ill.
Normal, Ill., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Rev. Harry W. Morrow, Rev. C. B. Fugett, Rev. Harold Johnson, song leader. Rev. Della B. Stretch, children's worker. Address Mrs. Bertha C. Ashbrook, Sec., 45 West Allen St., Springfield, Ill.
Sherman, Ill., camp, August 4-14. Workers: Rev. A. L. Whitcomb, Rev. J. E. Hewson. Haldor Lillenas and wife, song leaders: Mrs. Della B. Stretch, children's worker. For information write Mrs. Julia Short Hayes, 2217 East Capitol Ave., Springfield, Ill.
Eldorado, Ill., camp, August 4-14. Workers: Dr. C. F. Winberly, Dr. Andrew Johnson, Rev. G. S. Pollock and wife in charge of the music. J. M. Keasler, Sec., Omaha, Ill.

INDIANA.
Latts Ind., Camp, July 29-August 7. Workers: M. Vayhinger, Dwight M. Pfeiffer, song evangelist, Mrs. Lena Holcomb, pianist. Address Rev. Arthur McQueen, Pres., Westport, Ind.
New Albany, Ind., Silver Heights, Aug. 4-14. Workers: Revs. Virgil L. Moore and Raymond Browning, Paul S. Rees. Mrs. T. B. Falbot, children's worker. Male Quartet of Asbury College in charge of music. Address E. B. McPheeters, Sec., 212 Cherry St., New Albany, Ind.
Monroe, Ind., camp, June 27-July 10. Workers: Tilden H. Gaddis, the Moser Sisters in charge of music. Address James C. Adams, Wilshire, Ohio, President, or Mrs. Frank Martz, Monroe, Ind., Sec.
Cleveland, Ind., camp, August 26-Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. John T. Hatfield, Rev. G. Arnold Hodgins, Wright Brothers, Song leaders, Miss Florence Wyse, pianist. For information write Rev. C. E. Ellsworth, Sec., Greenfield, Ind., Rt. 3.
Kokomo, Ind., camp, June 10-19. Workers: Paul S. Rees and E. W. Black. Prof. R. A. Shank and wife, song leaders. For information address, W. C. Davidson, Sec., 1128 N. Kennedy St., Kokomo, Ind.
Frankfort, Ind., camp, August 5-14. Workers: Rev. T. M. Anderson, Rev. G. Arnold Hodgins, Rev. J. C. Brillhart, song evangelist, Rev. C. C. Mourer, special musician. For full particulars write Rev. D. E. Snow, Sec., 123 W. 24th St., Anderson, Ind.
IOWA.
University Park, Iowa, camp, June 8-13. Workers: The President of the National Association in charge; Dr. J. L. Brasher and A. L. Whitcomb, W. B. Yates, song leader; Mrs. O. W. Rose, children's worker. Address Rev. Anna L. Spann, Pres., University Park, Iowa, or Mrs. Hattie Riddle, Sec., Lacona, Iowa.

KANSAS.
Wichita, Kan., camp, Aug. 18-28. Workers: Rev. Chas. H. Babcock, Rev. E. E. Shelhamer, Rev. T. M. Anderson, Mrs. S. P. Nash, Harold Chapman, and Prof. B. D. Sutton and wife. Address W. R. Cain, Sec., 515 So. Vine St., Wichita, Kan.
Hutchinson, Kan., camp, June 28-June 5. Workers: Rev. Bud Robinson, Rev. C. B. Pugett, The Edwards Ladies' Evangelistic Party, Rev. N. B. Herrell, Rev. H. M. Chambers, Rev. A. F. Balsmeier. Write Rev. H. O. Davis, Sylvia, Kan., or Rev. A. L. Hipple, 508 East 5th St., Hutchinson, Kansas.

KENTUCKY.
Wilmore, Ky., camp, July 28-Aug. 7. Workers: Rev. C. F. Winberly, Rev. J. L. Brasher and H. S. Blackburn, Rev. H. C. Morrison, Pres., will preach also. Address C. A. Lovejoy, Sec., Wilmore, Ky.
Callis Grove, Ky., camp, August 5-14. Workers: Rev. Fielding T. Howard, J. Dorothy Guyett, song leader, Miss Ethel Sageser, pianist. I. H. Driskill, Sec., Milton, Ky., Route 3.

LOUISIANA.
Lake Arthur, La., Camp, July 7-17. Workers: Rev. Will H. Huff, assisted by Mr. W. F. Wilder, leader of song, and Mr. James V. Reid, young people's worker and pianist. Address W. Fontenot, Pres., Box 1621, Shreveport, La.
MARYLAND.
Mountain Lake Park, Md., June 26-July 10. Workers: Dr. Daniel Westfall, Dr. C. H. Babcock, Dr. Henry Clay Morrison, Dr. C. M. Dunn, Dr. John E. P. Over, Prof. Kenneth Wells and wife, Song leaders. C. M. Hood, President, Mountsville, W. Va.

MASSACHUSETTS.
North Dartmouth, Mass., camp, July 8-18. Workers: Rev. William Heslop and wife, Rev. Martha Curry and Rev. Mabel R. Manning. Write Miss Annie M. Cunningham, Sec., 194 Tremont St., New Bedford, Mass.
North Reading, Mass., camp, June 24-July 4. Workers: Rev. George B. Kulp, Rev. J. B. Chapman, Rev. C. C. Rinebarger, musical director. Rev. H. V. Miller in charge. For information address E. T. French, 466 Main St., South Manchester, Conn.

MICHIGAN.
Eaton Rapids, Mich., Camp, July 29-August 7. Workers: Dr. John Paul Rev. Will Huff, Dr. S. H. Turberville, Rev. L. H. Nixon in charge of music. With E. Francis in charge of young people's work. For information write Miss Fern C. Wheeler, Sec., Charlotte, Mich.
Gladwin, Mich., camp, August 4-14. Workers: Rev. Frank A. Church, Miss Jean Reed, song leader. For information write E. F. Bailey, Sec., Gladwin, Mich.
Romeo, Mich., camp, August 5-14. Workers: George Bennard, Rev. C. W. Butler, Rev. Will Huff, and Rev. S. H. Turberville. Young People's worker, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Shank, song leaders. E. L. Jaquish, Sec., R. F. D. 5, Pontiac, Mich.

MINNESOTA.
Red Rock, Minn., camp, June 30-July 10. Workers: Rev. T. M. Anderson, Rev. John Thomas and wife, Rev. Lloyd Nixon, Rev. Geo. G. Valentyn, H. Morse Skinner, pianist. For information write Rev. Jacob Berger, Fairbault, Minn.

Montevideo, Minn., camp, June 3-13. Workers: Rev. Theodore and Minnie E. Ludwig. Karl Deisinger, Sec., Montevideo, Minn.
MISSISSIPPI.
Frost Bridge, Miss., camp, August 19-28. Workers: Rev. B. A. Young and other helpers. Address Mrs. J. E. Moody, Sec., Waynesboro, Miss.

NEBRASKA.
Omaha, Neb., camp, July 15-25. Workers: Chas. H. Stalker, W. R. Cain and C. G. Stuberger. Address Mrs. C. G. Stuberger, Sec. P. O. Box 384, Omaha, Neb.
Kearney, Neb., Camp, August 18-28. Workers: Rev. E. O. Hobbs, Rev. Jarrette and Dell Aycock, Mrs. C. P. Turner. Address all communications to Mr. B. J. Patterson, Sec., Kearney, Neb.
Lincoln, Neb., camp, June 23-July 3. Workers: Rev. Joseph H. Smith, Rev. John L. Brasher. For information, write Rev. A. Jacobs, Sec., 2100 E. St., Lincoln, Neb.
Gordon, Neb., camp, June 17-26. Workers: Rev. Jos. Smith and Rev. C. W. Ruth, with Mr. and Mrs. Smith as song leaders. Address Mrs. Otto Pfeiffer, Sec., Gordon, Neb.

NEW JERSEY.
Delanco, N. J., camp, June 24-July 4. Workers: Rev. Preston E. Kennedy, Rev. Will Hill.
Aurora, N. J., camp, July 8-17. Worker: Rev. Preston E. Kennedy.
National Park, N. J., camp, August 12-21. Workers: Rev. Bona Fleming, Rev. John Fleming, Mr. R. P. Sparks, singer. Fletcher Grove, Delanco, N. J., camp, August 27-Sept. 5. Workers: Rev. Theo. Elsner, Mrs. Theo. Elsner, Rev. Richard G. Flexon, Jr.

NEW YORK.
Freeport, L. I., N. Y., Camp Roosevelt, Prince Ar., West of North Main St., July 14-24. Workers: Rev. John F. Knapp, Rev. Howard Sweeten; song leader, Miss Florence Fairbanks. Address H. J. Cornell, 464 Burling St., Flushing, N. Y.
Victory Grove, N. Y., camp, June 30-July 10. Stop 14 Shenectady-Albany railway line. Workers: Rev. G. Arnold Hodgins, Rev. Chas. Stalker, Capt. Chas. T. Potter. Alvin Young, song leader. Address Alvin Young, Sec., Northville, N. Y.
Moers, N. Y., camp, July 30-Aug. 14. Workers: Joseph H. Smith, J. F. Knapp, John and Emily Thomas, Zahniser, John Scobie, Tillie Albright, Arthur Goul, song leader. Address Kenneth F. Fee, Sec., Moers, N. Y.
Syracuse, N. Y., camp, June 20-July 10. Workers: Rev. J. M. Hames, Rev. J. C. Long, and other workers. Mr. Wm. Shipman, Sec., 252 Holland St., Syracuse, N. Y.

NORTH CAROLINA.
Connelly Springs, N. C., camp, August 7-14. Workers: Rev. Joseph H. Smith, The Greensboro Bible School Band and Quartette and others. For information address Box 200, Connelly Springs, N. C.

NORTH DAKOTA.
Washburn, N. D., camp, July 7-17. Workers: Dr. J. L. Brasher, Rev. Raymond Browning, Rev. Leo Slagg and wife in charge of music.
Jamestown, N. D., camp, June 17-26. Workers: C. H. Babcock, John Paul, S. A. Danford, Mrs. S. A. Danford, Children's leader, Fred Canaday, song leader. For information write Rev. F. W. Gress, Sec., Steele, N. Dak.

OHIO.
Mt. Vernon, Ohio, Camp Sychar, camp, August 4-14. Workers: Rev. C. M. Dunaway, Rev. John Owen, Rev. E. Hilton Post. Song leader, Prof. W. B. Yates; Young people's worker, Miss Anna McGhie. Children's workers, Miss Ma. Gorsuch and Miss Ollie Reed. Young people's song leader, Rev. W. L. Mullett. Address Rev. E. E. Shiltz, Sec., Shadyside, Ohio.
Toronto, (Hollow Rock) Ohio, July 28-August 7. Workers: C. W. Ruth, C. H. Babcock, Howard Sweeten, Song leader, Prof. Kenneth Wells and wife. Young People's and Children's meeting leader, Mrs. Sadie Mishey. Address Roy L. Householder, Sec., Toronto, Ohio.
Coshocton, Ohio, camp, June 9-19. Workers: Rev. T. M. Anderson, Rev. Lawrence Reed, A. H. Johnston and wife in charge of singing. Anna E. McGhie in charge of the Young People's and Children's work. Write R. K. Gamersfelder, 338 North 8th St., Coshocton, Ohio, Sec'y.

Marion, Ohio, camp, June 16-26. Workers: Rev. Roy Hollenback, Rev. Joe Callender, Rev. Mrs. E. E. Shelhamer. Write V. O. Shaw, 518 Merkle Ave., Marion, Ohio.
Sebring, Ohio, camp, July 14-28. Workers: Rev. Joseph H. Smith, Rev. H. C. Morrison, Rev. C. W. Ruth, Rev. T. M. Anderson, Rev. Lawrence Reed, Kenneth Wells and wife in charge of singing. Mrs. Jos. Smith and Miss Janie Bradford in charge of children's meetings. Miss Ruth in charge of children's meetings. Address W. L. Murphy, Sebring, Ohio.
Circleville, Ohio, camp, August 26-Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. T. P. Roberts, Rev. Howard Sweeten, Rev. Charles L. Slater, Rev. E. A. Keaton, Cor. Sec., 481 N. High St., Chillicothe, Ohio.
Columbus, Ohio, camp, July 28-Aug. 7. Workers: Rev. Floyd N. Neese, Rev. Raymond Browning, Rev. F. M. Messenger, Rev. J. G. Morrison, Rev. and Mrs. E. D. Sutton, gospel singers, Rev. Chas. A. Gibson, Vaughn Radio Quartette. Write Rev. Orval J. Nease, 146 King Ave., Columbus, Ohio.

OKLAHOMA.
May, Okla., camp, July 21-31. No special help, but all true called, but God's true ones are invited from everywhere. For information write L. B. Pile, Sec., May, Okla.

OREGON.
Portland, Ore., Camp, June 30-July 10. Workers: Miss D. Willia Caffray, Rev. C. C. Poling, D.D., Song leader, Mrs. Bess Owens Runyan. Children's worker, Miss Clara Christensen. Address Mrs. Lydia Erskine, Sec., 1158 Borthwick St., Portland, Ore., Secretary.

PENNSYLVANIA.
Kricktown, Pa., camp, July 22-31. Workers: Rev. Theodore Elsner and wife, Rev.

Clifford E. Keys and wife, Rev. C. D. Dreher, John Aten, Sec., 1102 Douglass St., Reading, Pa.
Hughesville, Pa., Camp, July 21-July 31. Workers: Rev. Raymond E. Doble, Rev. Claude A. Roane. Song leaders, Mrs. Esther Williamson, assisted by Miss Alma Budman. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Best in charge of the music. Address Rev. S. P. Elford, Centre Hall, Pa.
Canonsburg, Pa., camp, June 17-30. Workers: Rev. Raymond Bush, Rev. J. M. Carothers, song leader.
Kittanning, Pa., camp, July 14-24. Workers: Rev. and Mrs. John Thomas, Mrs. Etta Foiles, song leader. For information write Miss Nancy Byron, 1214 Fifth Ave., Ford City, Pa.

SOUTH CAROLINA.
Epworth, S. C., camp, August 19-28. Workers: Dr. E. P. Taylor, Dr. John Paul and others. Address Rev. W. P. B. Kinard, Epworth, S. C.

SOUTH DAKOTA.
Mitchell, S. D., camp, June 24-July 4. Workers: Rev. Frank E. Arthur, Rev. A. W. Gould, Wm. Durkee, Sec.
Wilmot, S. D., camp, July 5-17. Workers: Rev. Frank E. Arthur, Rev. and Mrs. H. T. Nyhus, singers. James Cameron, clerk, Wilmot, S. D.

TENNESSEE.
Greeneville, Tenn., camp, Sept. 1-11. Workers: Rev. C. M. Dunaway, Miss Ruth Harris in charge of music. Address Mrs. Flora Willis, care Mrs. C. A. Vann, Greeneville, Tenn.
Dyer, Tenn., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Dr. A. C. H. Babcock, Rev. Harry Strickland, Miss Ruth Harris, song leader. Joe T. Hall, Sec., Dyer, Tenn.

TEXAS.
Atlanta, Tex., camp, August 12-21. Workers: Dr. R. T. Williams, The Latham Sisters, pianist and leaders of song. Mary E. Perdue, Sec.
Waco, Texas, camp, July 29-August 7. Workers: Rev. Harry S. Allen. For information address Jno. W. Beresford, Sec., Waco, Texas.

VIRGINIA.
Mt. Vernon, Va., camp, July 29-Aug. 7. Workers: Rev. Wilson Thomas, Rev. C. W. Dyer, Rev. H. H. Hoyt and Fred Canaday. Address Annie Hoesley Shrader, Sec., Acotink, Va.
Wakesfield, Va., camp, August 5-14. Workers: Dr. C. H. Babcock, Rev. Harry Hayes, Otho M. Cockes, Pres., Elberton, Va.
Drainesville, Va., camp, August 19-28. Workers: Rev. John Norberry, Song leader, Mrs. Marion Birrell. For information address Anna Hyatt, Sec., 163 Adams St., N. W., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON.
Tacoma, Wash., camp, June 23-July 4. Worker: Rev. M. M. Bussey. Mrs. Naoma Youngberg, Sec., 944 Grant Ave., Tacoma, Wash.

WISCONSIN.
Oregon, Wis., Camp, July 29-August 14. Workers: Rev. Tilden H. Gaddis, Moser Sisters, Miss Imogene Quinn, Prof. Edson Crosby, Miss Karine Kjolseth, and Rev. and Mrs. Jack Linn. Address Jack Linn, Oregon, Wis.

WYOMING.
Basin, Wyo., camp, July 18-31. Workers: Rev. James L. Hilker and Alston Fields. Rev. S. Hutchinson, song leader. Address Miss Grace White, Sec. Basin, Wyo.

THAT UNPUBLISHED BOOK OF YOURS

We make a specialty of publishing books, pamphlets, and sermons. We guarantee good work at reasonable prices. Will advise how to put your book on the market profitably. Write us about it.

PENTECOSTAL PUBLISHING CO.
Louisville, Kentucky.

Dr. Morrison's Books

The Christ of the Gospels	$1.00
Remarkable Conversions	1.00
The Two Lawyers	Cloth 1.50
The Second Coming	Cloth 1.00
Prophecies Fulfilled and Fulfilling	Cloth 1.00
Romanism and Ruin	1.50
Baptism with The Holy Ghost15
Confessions of a Backslider25
Complete set, postpaid, $7.00.
PENTECOSTAL PUBLISHING COMPANY Louisville, Kentucky
Crossing the Deadline25
Pearl of Greatest Price10
Will a Man Rob God?10
Special	$7.85

A FRESH CONTRIBUTION YOU

For Sale or Trade: Desirable eight-room modern home in Wilmore, Ky. Address D. W. COX, R. D. 1, Mansfield, Ohio.

TRACTS AND BOOKLETS.

If you feel dry and want your soul refreshed and stirred, get these tracts and booklets, read and give away.
Buy Your Own Cherries—a touching temperance story, 5c.
"Charlie Coulson, the Drummer Boy," 5c.
"Mother's Last Words," 10c.
"Samuel Morris," 10c.
An entire community turned to God by the reading of this booklet. All four 25c and a package of free gospel tracts.

RESTORER TRACT SERVICE.
General Delivery
RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

These are soul-searching times. Such books as Sermons That Search the Soul, by E. E. Shelhamer, are needed in this day of careless spiritual living. $1.00 will bring it to you. Order of the Pentecostal Publishing Company, Louisville, Ky.

SOME RARE BOOKS

We make the following most liberal offer to the readers of THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD. Read about the books listed below. We offer to give you absolutely free, postage paid, any one of these books for ONE SUBSCRIPTION to THE HERALD for a year at the regular price of $1.50. If you send TWO subscriptions you will get TWO books; THREE subscriptions will get THREE books, etc. Send us TEN subscriptions and get the whole set. Your renewal may count as one of the list.

Wesley's Sermons. VOL. III AND IV.

This edition of sermons is now out of print. We have a number of rare copies. Vol. III has 37 sermons. Among these is the one preached on the death of George Whitefield. A hundred of these are bound in sheepskin. The first to send for them will be favored with this special binding. Vol. IV has 37 sermons. One of them is on the death of John Fletcher. Some of Wesley's best preaching is in these two volumes. You will find here exactly what the founder of Methodism believed and preached.

The Making of Methodism by Jno. J. Tigert.

This is an old book, printed in 1898. It tells of the rise of the episcopacy, of the presiding eldership, of the itineracy and of the annual and general conferences in Methodism. A splendid, authentic source of information on these subjects. It has 157 pages and is bound in a beautiful blue cover with gold titles.

Sermons, by Bishop E. M. Marvin.

If you want something worth while, read some writings several years old. Some sermons are so old that they are new. This is a new book, but the sermons were first written in 1876. The language is simple, forceful, and eloquent. Read them.

Life of Francis Asbury by Bishop DuBose

This is a biographical study of the first bishop of Methodism in America. Bishop DuBose is a forceful, scholarly writer, and with such a subject as this he has done his best. A wonderfully interesting and enlightening book of 240 pages. It is beautifully bound and will grace any library shelf.

Life of Robert Paine by R. H. Rivers

The rise of an obscure young preacher to college president and on to the bishopric is the highly interesting story told in this volume by Dr. Rivers. Bishop Paine rose to the heights through dangers, seen and unseen, and through sorrows and suffering in many instances. The sketch is well worth your reading.

William McKendree by Bishop E. E. Hoss

Fifteen chapters on the life of McKendree. "The earlier history of American Methodism is easily divisible into three periods, each represented by a name that will long survive,—Asbury, McKendree, and Soule. This book tells the part Bishop McKendree took in this formative period of Methodist history.

There are 206 pages, every one of which teems with interest.

The Christianity of Christ and His Apostles by Jno. J. Tigert.

This is a discussion of historical studies of fundamental New Testament problems. The author deals with "The Nature of the Christian Religion;" "The Vocation of Jesus the Proof of His Godhead;" the Foundation of Criticism and the Christian Faith." The purpose of the book is to show Christ as the all-sufficient one in the face of all destructive criticism.

A 202 page book; well written, and worth reading.

Life of Joshua Soule by Bishop DuBose

Bishop Soule, a master in Israel, Cavalier and Puritan. One of the most interesting books of a decade is this one. It tells of some of the incidents of the storm around Bishop Andrew and the split of the two Methodisms over slavery. Read it.

Studies in the Life of John Wesley by E. B. Chappell

A series of studies in the life of Wesley, so arranged that they give an outline of his life and labors. It was written especially to appeal to the young people. This makes it doubly interesting, of course, to older readers. 239 pages, cloth bound.

Note that there is not a "shallow" book in this set. If you want real, live, instructive and interesting reading, get every one.

PENTECOSTAL PUBLISHING COMPANY - - LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY.

PENTECOSTAL HERALD

Dr. H. C. Morrison, Editor
Mrs. H. C. Morrison, Associate Editor

Louisville, Ky., Wednesday, June 22, 1927.
Entered at Louisville, Ky., Postoffice as Second Class Matter.

$1.50 Per Year.
Vol. 39, No. 25.

ASBURY THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY.

By The Editor.

In this issue of THE HERALD we are giving our readers some special account of Asbury College and the work in which it is engaged. We are very happy that with each succeeding year the school grows, both in the accumulation of substantial property, the number of students, excellence of mental training, and depth of spiritual life.

There can be no question but that the need of such a Christian college is great. Here we guard with equal care against any phase of religious fanaticism and every form of skeptical teaching. The Lord has blessed the school with a faculty splendidly trained in the great universities of the country, and soundness of doctrine and fullness of faith with genuine piety.

A large percent of the young people who come to Asbury College are preparing themselves for Christian work—pastors, missionaries, evangelists, teachers and Christian workers in the various fields of service. I do not believe that a more devout and consecrated group of young people can be found anywhere than is found in the student body of Asbury College.

We are devoutly thankful for the gracious revivals the Lord has given us during the past year, and the splendid class of students sent forth into the field of service. There is a great demand for the young ministers and teachers who get their equipment at Asbury.

At the same time, it offers most excellent instruction and help to young men and women preparing themselves for various fields of service. We have turned out fine young men who have entered the law, practice of medicine, dentistry, and especially that of teaching. We take great pleasure in the large number of school teachers who have gone forth from Asbury College. The outlook for the coming year is very hopeful. A large number of rooms have already been reserved by students who will be with us the coming year.

I wish to call special attention to a large number of articles in this issue from Professors of the Theological Seminary. The Lord is doing a great work with us in this department, and the outlook of enlargement of this work is most auspicious. We are sure this issue of THE

(Continued on page 8)

EDUCATION OF THE HEAD AND HEART.

W. Brandt Hughes, Dean of Asbury College.

Train the physical alone and the product is the pugilist whose chief glory consists in smashing his opponent's nose; educate the intellect alone and the individual may use the advantage thus gained to advance self and tread under foot those less fortunate; educate the heart alone and the result may be the fanatic.

One has said that "Education is the harmonious development of all the human powers." Since man's nature is three-fold—physical, mental, and spiritual, any scheme of education that omits to provide for training of any one of these faculties is incomplete and unsatisfactory.

For training of the intellect great universities have been founded, high salaried and efficient teachers have been employed, and well equipped laboratories provided. No amount of money has seemed too much to spend when providing for the intellectual training of our youth. Witness also the great public school system of the civilized nations.

For physical training costly and well equipped gymnasias are provided, stadia built at a cost that is staggering, coaches provided at salaries larger than that of the president of the institution concerned. Nothing is left undone to provide facilities for the physical development of the student.

If we are willing to spend such vast sums for intellectual and physical training, should we not be as ready to provide adequately for the development of the moral and religious nature, the faculty that gives to education its finishing touch, softens the hardness of pure intellectualism and tames brute strength, the characteristic that substitutes love for hate and service for selfish ambition? Obviously, following the recognized principle upon which our nation is founded, namely, the complete separation of Church and State, the State schools cannot teach religion but they may, and woe be to our nation if they do not, teach the great moral truths.

It is left then to the private school and the church to provide for the religious training of our youth. The Sunday School, the Vacation Bible School, and Week Day Schools of Religious Education are making great studies with the children of the grade school and high school ages while it remains for the Christian College to provide for those above the high school.

Asbury College has ever kept the three-fold nature of education in mind. Her courses are standard, her teachers are grad-secure their education in an atmosphere that is morally clean, where tobacco is not tolerated, where the health of the student is safeguarded and where the teaching is safe and sound. While the intellectual and physical training are not neglected, the religious nature is well provided for.

BISHOP ASBURY

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION IN ASBURY.

PROFESSOR SCOTT MAXWELL,
S.T.B., M.A.

The Christian Church in a vital and fundamental sense is interested in persons. It should seek to rescue, redeem, and enrich life. For this reason "in a general and vital sense the whole life of the Christian Church is an educational enterprise, and its entire work is that of teaching." True religious education never looks upon knowledge as its goal. It does not aim to impart a certain quantum of information and then rest in peace. It seeks to lead men to know, experience, believe, serve, and obey Jesus Christ as their personal Redeemer.

Religious Education strives to make the needs of the pupil the law of teaching. It is thoroughly pupil-centered in administration and method and believes firmly that the facts of the religious life should be presented to the mind of the child with as much skill and genuine pedagogy as are the facts of science or history. Religious Education is graded education. It is moral education plus the full recognition of Jesus Christ as ever-present Saviour. Life is graded and the curriculum of the public school is graded so the church must recognize the fundamental laws of child psychology and grade the materials and in so doing give vital and powerful instruction in religious truth.

Much skepticism is evident concerning the real value of religious education. This is due to an error in connecting religious education with certain peculiar theological incongruities and heretical biases. Religious Education is a method and not a doctrine.

It is a method which endeavors to build religious instruction and to give religious guidance in harmony with the basic and fundamental laws of successful learning and true guidance. Surely people who stand for the important doctrines in their purity should be the most enthusiastic workers in religious education in order to bring all classes and conditions of men to an effective knowledge of these great truths. John Wesley was the greatest religious educator of his day and uates of the best universities of our land, her equipment is rapidly reaching a point of high efficiency, and she has provided an adequate physical training program that reaches every student. Besides this, through her courses in Bible and Religious Education and, in connection with the Asbury Theological Seminary, courses meeting every religious need of the student are available.

VIEW OF BUILDINGS FROM GLIDE-CRAWFORD HALL

Asbury thus makes an especial appeal to parents who desire that their children may constantly urged pastoral instructor for the children.

NOT TO BE USED WITHOUT COPYRIGHT PERMISSION

OF ASBURY THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

The Department of Religious Education is the youngest department in Asbury College but is indeed very strong in its devotion to the sacred doctrines of orthodox Christianity. Its head rejoices in a deep and increasing faith in the full Wesleyan interpretation of these truths. To him Depravity, Regeneration, and Entire Sanctification as a second definite work of grace wrought by the Holy Ghost subsequent to regeneration, are bed-rock doctrines to be taught in a most logical and emphatic manner without any mental reservation whatsoever. In true religious education orthodox Christianity has its most vital weapon of defense and propagation. If orthodox Christianity is to remain orthodox and vital it must propagate itself through genuine religious education. We must teach men that they are lost and subject to eternal damnation except they repent and forsake their sins, we must teach men that they must be born again, we must teach men concerning the gracious experience of Entire Sanctification or we shall betray the high trust given to us by our Savior. Can we do less than to teach these great truths in the most effective way. This is exactly what true orthodox religious education strives to do.

An ever increasing number of students are being trained in this department both from the Seminary and the College. It is our constant aim to make education and evangelism convergent, dynamic, convincing, and to send forth a teaching ministry for the church and its agencies with a thoroughly trained mind in religious pedagogy and a positive message from a truly sanctified heart.

DR. H. C. MORRISON,
President Emeritus, President Board of Trustees, President Theological Seminary.

GREATEST AMONG ASBURY'S GREAT.

Dr. Henry Clay Morrison, world-renowned evangelist, editor, and President of Asbury College for fifteen years, has exerted an influence in behalf of this school which only a man of his broad capacities could do. In 1925, the Board of Trustees very regretfully accepted his resignation because his physicians declared that unless he be released from some of his duties he could not hope to live more than a few years. However, he still retains an intimate relationship with the college as President of the Board of Trustees and President of the Theological Seminary. Dr. Morrison is not ours. He is God's. He is the world's. But the strength he has wielded in behalf of Asbury College has been the strength of ten. He was called to the school in the struggling days of her youth. His wise counsel nurtured her; his championship became a strong arm upon which she might lean. Gently, tenderly, he pointed her to new challenges and to new responsibilities; and now Asbury's head is reared in strength and growth. She is able to stand in her place as a college destined for the future, called of God to a great and wonderful task. Already our hearts are saddened to think that, as time goes on apace, some day Heaven will claim our beloved leader and champion. Our hearts are broken already in anticipation of that sad time when we shall see him no more in these hallowed halls which his strength of faith, his depths of consecration, and his vision have helped to lift. It is our wish that, before that day of passing, he should know the gratitude that is in our hearts because the world has lent us so much of his time and talent. May he know the influence of our love and the perfume of our reverence which arise, not for a day, but for all time to come.

THE CO-ORDINATE DEVELOPMENT OF THE SPIRITUAL AND MENTAL TRAINING OF ASBURY THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY.

PROF. W. O. ALLEN, A.M., B.D., Historical Theology.

A classmate of the writer's in theological seminary, who was recognized as one of the foremost students for intellectual vigor, gave this testimony at the close of his course: "When I first came to the seminary, I came into the chapel, and kneeling down I prayed that with every increment of knowledge there might be a corresponding increase of spiritual power." A worthier ideal could hardly be named. To promote such a correlation of intellectuality and spirituality is the aim of Asbury Theological Seminary.

The church needs a ministry of the keenest intellect, of trained power to discriminate between sound learning and plausible guesses, to systematize knowledge, to properly estimate values, to be the moral leaders of the community and national life. It will be an evil day for our land when the people cease to look to the ministry for help in forming and maintaining our ideals. Such a danger threatens at the present time. But, however able for leadership in mental equipment, without a profound experience of spiritual realities the ministry will be nothing but blind leaders: the whole people will fall into the ditch. "Where there is no vision, the people perish." If the products of theological schools do not evince both mental grasp and spiritual insight, the claim of these schools to the church's support may well be questioned.

The aspirant to moral leadership will never cure the world's sore if he does not know that attempts at social uplift are ineffectual which ignore the need of spiritual regeneration. Close personal acquaintance with the Great Physician is the paramount need of one who would bind up the broken hearted and preach the gospel of hope to those smitten with moral gangrene. A change of environmental conditions can bring no relief. They can be reached only by a positive conviction that there is a better world, for which they can be fitted by divine grace. Such a conviction, witnessed to out of a personal experience, does work wonderful transformations. Asbury College aims at this kind of equipment.

We are convinced that soul growth takes place only by feeding on the Word of God, by habits of meditation and prayer, by faithful performance of Christian duties. Reverence for the Bible as a revelation from God, coming to us with authority and ministering to the deepest needs of humanity, makes it a book unlike any other. Yet we do not despise other literature. Those who have eyes to see more than we, may help us to see. They may interpret to us the music that has ravished their own souls. What they have felt, they may impart to us. If they have learned to do something well, they may train us to a like skill. "For all things are yours; wheth-

LEWIS ROBESON AKERS,
Sc.B., M.A., B.D., D.D., LL.D., President.
"To you from failing hands we throw
The torch; be yours to hold it high."

And not only have his hands caught the torch, but they are holding it aloft with all the vigor and steadfastness of purpose which come with abounding life, pulsing zeal, and a heart aflame with the love of God. That torch is shedding its light on Asbury's yesterdays showing they have been good. That torch is sending its rays adown the future and lifting visions of the high tasks Asbury must perform in years to come!

Lewis Robeson Akers is an honored alumnus of Asbury College, the fourth minister of his family in direct descent. Shortly after the completion of his college work, he entered the Northeast Ohio Conference and for several years steadily advanced, until in 1924, when he was called to Asbury College, he was serving one of the largest churches in that greatest of Methodist conferences.

He is easily a scholar, and besides the five academic degrees he has earned, he was honored in 1916 with the degree of D.D., from his Alma Mater, and in 1927 with the LL.D., from Ohio Northern University. He is widely traveled; he is an eminent lecturer; he is an engaging author; he is a forceful preacher. But above all, he is God's nobleman.

What is the secret of Doctor Akers' far-reaching vision and tireless zeal in the great task to which he has been called? We think it is because in his youth he made a complete surrender of himself,—all that he was and hoped to be—to the Divine Will. He has learned the secret the Master gave, "He that loseth his life shall find it."

His duties are multitudinous and exacting. His burdens are heavy. But God is his refuge. His own testimony is: "The responsibilities of this office are too heavy for human shoulders and were it not for the consciousness of the Everlasting Arms beneath us we would surely go down under the strain."

(Continued on page 6, col. 1)

NOT TO BE USED WITHOUT COPYRIGHT PERMISSION

OF ASBURY THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

WOMAN'S DEPARTMENT.

Mrs. J. M. Wyatt, A. B., Dean of Women.

Asbury's magnificent new Woman's Dormitory, Glide-Crawford Hall, provides for her resident daughters the most attractive and comfortable College home in the State of Kentucky. Indeed, it is to be questioned if there is anywhere in the South a handsomer or a more delightful girls' dormitory.

Such an ideal physical environment challenges our most consecrated efforts to create and maintain a social and religious atmosphere which will refine, dignify and spiritualize the entire student life of the campus. As the residence of Asbury's young womanhood it is the social center of our student-community life, and is the cynosure of all eyes. To the initiate it is a self-evident fact that all campus paths lead to its spacious parlors, as all roads once led to imperial Rome.

Streams of beneficent influence must inevitably flow into and out of beautiful Glide-Crawford Hall. Sweet friendships, sacred associations are formed here which will hallow and bless the lives of Asburians through all the years to come. That these streams of influence may be pure, uplifting and ennobling, is the constant aim of those responsible for the home-life of the Woman's Dormitory, to make it the highest expression of all the beautiful virtues and lofty spiritual purposes for which Asbury as the exponent of Scriptural Holiness stands. Christian womanhood, "Nobly planned to warn, to comfort and command," is the character ideal toward which we strive in the training and development of the fine young women entrusted to our care.

Socially and spiritually Glide-Crawford

GLIDE-CRAWFORD HALL.

Hall should be a "city set upon a hill, whose light cannot be hid." To this end we devoutly pray that the Golden Rule of love and unselfish service may become more and more the law of our living, as Jesus, the Savior and Sanctifier is enthroned in the lives of its inmates. Refined, cultivated Christian womanhood is the seal which Asbury labors to stamp indelibly upon the lives of her daughters, that they may go out to bless and enrich the world.

For the realization of this high and holy ideal, we invoke the blessings of Heaven and the guidance of the Holy Spirit.

Asbury stands for the old historic faith promulgated by John Wesley when he arose out of the sordid social degradation of England and proclaimed a full and free gospel able to take sin out of a man and make him a new creature in Christ, and originated an institution known as the Methodist Church whose fundamental tenets of faith were the regeneration of the soul and the sanctification of the heart from inbred sin. We believe that this is the only basis for the development of human lives and upon this we take our stand, build our faith and project an institution of instruction for the training of young people in preaching the gospel.

It is with deepest gratitude to God we record his over-shadowing presence and his continuous assistance. Our hearts take courage in the thought that amid all the demands made upon brain and heart, beneath are the Everlasting Arms of God and that he giveth unto those who trust in him "The Rest of Faith."

One of the most popular preachers of Southern Methodism has written a book called Sermons on Old Testament Characters. Thousands of Dr. Clovis Chappell's books have been eagerly read. This one sells for $1.60. Pentecostal Publishing Company, Louisville, Ky.

Must We Sin? by Howard W. Sweeten, treats this all-important subject in a clear, concise style. Every vital detail of this question is gone into thoroughly in this book. It sells for $1.25. It is an interesting book. Order of the Pentecostal Publishing Company, Louisville, Kentucky.

PUTNAM PARLOR OF GLIDE-CRAWFORD HALL.

The Appeal of Asbury Theological Seminary to Men of Money.

F. H. Larabee, D.D., Dean. Professor of New Testament Language.

Money is a medium of exchange; it has no value per se, but stands for values. Our country is rich in this exchange value. America was never richer, but her wealth is too much congested. Excess beyond actual need abounds among men of wealth and economic vision. Accumulation and hoarding become common, too much so, for the common weal. To regulate this condition principles for the distribution of this excess should become operative. God has planned laws for this regulation. They are the laws of tithe and offering. Were these laws fully recognized and appreciated the world's needs and problems would find their true solvent. Since they are not, it remains for a few men to whom God has entrusted large means, and who have caught the vision of Christ as embodied in those wonderful words "it is more blessed to give than to receive" and who have a true altruistic outlook on life, the world and its problems, to give of their means for the relief of stressed circumstances. Asbury Theological Seminary has just now reached the place where a man with some consecrated money or men with a willingness to give of their little money entrusted to them, may reap a rich harvest in their investments in young life consecrated to God and the Christian ministry. This Seminary stands for a full gospel and her young ministers go out to preach with unction and power. The burden of this little article is that some one may be directed of the Lord to make an investment in this great work.

ASBURY AND THE BIBLE.

W. E. HARRISON, M.D., Prof. Biblical Literature.

Morrison Hall is the building in which is housed the Theological Seminary of Asbury College. Built into the Southeast corner of the building, about fifteen feet above the ground is a block of white marble. Carved into this block of marble are the words, "The Whole Bible for the Whole World." This is not a new motto coined to put there when the building was erected. It was the purpose of the school from the first. Dr. J. W. Hughes, the founder of the college, put the Bible into the curriculum when he opened the school in 1890.

In order to graduate from Asbury College, a student must take eight semester hours of Bible. That means two hours a week for two college years. He is privileged to take more if he desires.

But having the Bible in the curriculum is not enough. It must be properly taught. That is why we say "The Whole Bible." A Bible that is made an ordinary book is worse than no Bible at all. If the student is taught that Daniel is a piece of fictitious propaganda written to give a good background for Jewish history, or that most of the Pentateuch is post-exilic, that Moses did not write much of it besides the Ten Commandments, that there are two Isaiahs, or six, that Jesus was a great Jewish hero, and that the student can take what appeals to his inner consciousness of the fitness of things and let the rest go, he would be better off without a teacher.

Here at Asbury, the Bible is presented to the student as the very Word of God. He is taught that it is indefectable. Then neglected doctrines of the Bible like Sanctification and the Second Advent are emphasized. There are classes on particular books like Isaiah and Romans, the Gospels, Daniel and Revelation.

We believe that Dr. White is right when he says that the Christian worker must know his Bible better than any other book. We believe that every Christian should be a worker and that every worker should have a thorough knowledge of the Bible.

MORRISON HALL.

ASBURY'S STEADFAST ADHERENCE TO DOCTRINE.

PROF. F. P. MORRIS, D.D., Systematic Theology.

Asbury Theological Seminary is now in the last term of the fourth year. It was the intention of her founders that a fellowship of Christian faith and experience should be established and maintained among the students during the days of student life. Also that the great fundamental doctrines of our holy Christianity should be clearly taught and steadfastly promoted.

What have we done and how have we succeeded?

We have steadfastly taught the great truths of a great God of holiness and power, man great in his creation, great in his fall into sin and great in his redemption through Jesus Christ, and great in the possibilities of triumphant grace for the individual human heart, both for time and eternity. We have taught a Gospel big enough and great enough to save all men from all sin. We have shown that this is reasonable, desirable, and obligatory and alone sufficient to meet the spiritual needs of men.

We have held the emphasis steadily here, but have taught also that the Gospel and its life and obligations relate us to all life, so that in every relation in life we are to do all to the glory of God. We have steadily held forth the Gospel of the Son of God as the biggest business in the world, for it touches all life. We believe so great a task should command all our powers, and be done our very best. And, to this end lessons are assigned to be mastered.

We hold that there is a great body of Christian truth that must be mastered if we would understand ourselves or the day and age in which we live, or the days which have gone before. We have gone about this in dead earnest and our students have grown enthusiastic in their tasks. Enlargement of vision has come to them and a deepened and quickened faith, and a new inspiration and determination to preach the Gospel, to spend and be spent for our Lord in the salvation of men.

We have not shunned Old Testament problems, but have faithfully looked into them. And now, after nearly four years, we have demonstrated that all these may be so studied that our faith in the Bible as God's revelation to man is not lost but mightily confirmed and enlarged. So far as we know, this has been true with every student that has gone through our classes. This, too, has been without any spirit of compulsion. Every student has been encouraged to think for himself.

We have demonstrated that the faith of the Gospel is a full and satisfying faith for young manhood and young womanhood, and this age has in no sense outgrown the Gospel of the triumphant grace of God. Also that the body of Christian truth means not fetters but freedom for lofty thinking and high living.

(Continued from page 3)

er Paul, or Apollos, or Cephas, or the world, or life, or death, or things present, or things to come; all are yours; and ye are Christ's; and Christ is God's." In Asbury Christian doctrine is not so much a system to be intellectually comprehended, as truth that fires the soul and saves a world of sinners. History manifests God at work with human wills bringing nearer the kingdom of heaven on earth. But the study of these is the fellowship of human minds, albeit the wisest and saintliest of earth. In the Word we commune with the mind of God.

The thinking of many a student where the Scriptures are brought down to the level of other literature undergoes an evolution much as follows: no conflict between science and religion, scientific evolution, philosophic evolution, religious evolution, rationalizing the Bible miracles, "spiritualizing" the resurrection of Jesus, agnosticism regarding the virgin birth, psychological explanation of the new birth, prayer for self-culture, atonement a pagan superstition, no personal return of the Lord or final judgment, spiritualistic immortality. Let us substitute a development of the following order: personal salvation, study of the Word, going on to perfection, working out your own salvation, growth in grace, entire sanctification, practice of the presence of God, training in Christian service, knowledge of the mystery of Christ, perfect work of patience, experience in God's ways, rejoicing in hope, bearing the image of Christ. "But grow in the grace and knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ."—2 Peter 3:18.

DEPARTMENT OF HISTORY.

Recent years have witnessed an increasing emphasis upon the study and teaching of history. This is most gratifying to those who appreciate its value as a means of creating an intelligent citizenship. Educators are beginning to get away from the old idea that just anybody can teach history. Special preparation is being recognized as very necessary for the teacher of history.

MORRISON MEMORIAL LIBRARY

When one boasts that he is not bound by any trammels of the past, he proclaims his own folly, and would if he could reduce himself to the intellectual level of the lower animals. The wise man will search the past for his lessons and will profit by the experience of others. The great spirits of the past commend us to the tasks of the future. We should understand the supreme need in this modern world for a world-wide common knowledge of the main facts in the history of mankind. A saner teaching of history means a better understanding of international problems, a saner national policy and a happier world.

The character of work being done in Asbury College is bringing about well merited recognition from the educational world. The institution stands for thorough intellectual training.

Asbury College is making a definite contribution to world progress in the recognition of the supreme importance of spiritual and moral values. While the world seems to totter this institution holds fast to the central effect of the Christian religion that there is cure for souls with Christ.

B. S. ROBBINS.
Head of Department of History.

OLD TESTAMENT LANGUAGE

PROF. W. D. AKERS, D.D.

Does Asbury Theological Seminary offer a course of study that will meet present day needs? This question can be safely answered in the affirmative.

There is a rapidly increasing number of people in the Church, and outside of it, that are convinced that the only thing that will save our civilization is a revival of religion. Asbury lays a supreme emphasis on Evangelism. The number and character of the men and women she is sending into the fields of Christian service proves that this emphasis is not misplaced. Our graduates are on fire for the salvation of the lost. And then, there is a growing conviction that a great need of our time is "a whole Bible for the whole world." Asbury believes that the Bible is the Word of God, —that it is "God-breathed, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness, that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works." She feels that the will of God must be understood before it can be effectively declared. Hence great emphasis is laid on a thorough study of the Bible. Our great President, Dr. H. C. Morrison, strongly urges that our students who are preparing for Christian service shall major in Hebrew and Greek that they may be Bible scholars, as well as workers. The Department of Old Testament Language and Literature is growing, and doing excellent work in Hebrew, and in the study of the Bible in English. The same can be said of the other departments of our Seminary work.

CAMPUS VIEW

NOT TO BE USED WITHOUT COPYRIGHT PERMISSION
OF ASBURY THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

FACTS ABOUT ASBURY COLLEGE.

Asbury College is unique in its work and mission.

It was born of a profound conviction, founded in faith, established in prayer, and has been maintained in sacrificial devotion and loyalty.

It is one of the most cosmopolitan institutions in the world. Students have come to its halls from forty states and a number of foreign countries.

Though interdenominational in scope, it is noted for its fidelity to Methodist standards and its spiritual atmosphere is unsurpassed by any institution in the world.

* * * * *

Asbury College is located in the heart of the far-famed Blue Grass region of Kentucky, two and a half miles from the site of Bethel Academy established by Bishop Francis Asbury in 1790, and seeks to carry on the ideals and perpetuate the work begun by this "St. Paul of American Methodism."

It is in the village of Wilmore, which has a population of 1500, on the main line of Southern Railroad, ninety-eight miles south of Cincinnati, eighty miles from Louisville, and seventeen miles below Lexington.

The scenery adjacent is most beautiful.

The Kentucky River gorge, 300 feet deep, is only two miles away.

The noted High Bridge, 316 feet above the river, is less than five miles away.

Dix Dam, the highest rock-filled dam in the world, 247 feet high and forming Herington Lake thirty-seven miles in length, is 7½ miles distant.

Shakertown, Camp Nelson, Chimney Rock, Boone's Cave, and Brooklyn Bridge are other near points of interest.

All the roads around Wilmore are macadamized, hence motoring is pleasant at any season of the year.

Almost hourly bus service may be had either north or south.

* * * * *

The college equipment is conservatively appraised at $1,000,000 in value.

It has a campus of 56 acres.

Ten brick buildings are upon the campus. Seven frame buildings adjoin the campus.

The Glide-Crawford Hall for young women, valued at $250,000, is one of the finest in the South.

STUDENT VOLUNTEERS.

Morrison Hall for young men is a $100,000 building, commodious and complete in equipment.

The new Morrison Memorial Library has just been completed at a cost of $55,000 and is thoroughly modern in every respect.

Fletcher and Wesley Halls are comfortable brick dormitories for men.

Two gymnasiums for adequate physical training for both young men and women.

Eight tennis courts and a baseball field supplement the work of the two gymnasiums.

A central heating plant provides steam heat for all buildings and eliminates fire danger.

An excellent volunteer fire department with modern equipment is maintained.

Unlimited and continuous electric service is had through a special line to the great Dix Dam 7½ miles away.

A new water system furnishes an unlimited supply of the purest water.

The Dining Room will seat approximately 600.

The new electric kitchen is one of the best equipped in the entire South and is noted for its cleanliness and efficiency. A former California hotel chef supervises the culinary department. The meals served are much above the average in both quality and quantity.

* * * * *

Asbury College maintains a Theological Seminary offering Certificate, Diploma, and the graduate B.D. courses.

* * * * *

Asbury College is thirty-five years old.

Its College of Liberal Arts is now the third largest in Kentucky. It has grown from a small beginning of eleven students and two teachers to more than 600 in the College of Liberal Arts with a total enrollment of 800 in all departments, and with a faculty of fifty teachers.

* * * * *

Its educational standards are unquestioned. It is recognized as a standard college of "A" grade by the University of Kentucky and the State Department of Education.

It is a member of the Association of Kentucky Colleges and Universities and of the Association of American Colleges.

It is on the list of non-member colleges, whose graduates are approved by the Association of Southern Colleges and Secondary Schools.

The new President, Dr. L. R. Akers, is a preacher of marked ability, having served prominent pulpits of Methodism before assuming this work. He is a college man with degrees from three institutions of learning, is in constant touch with educational affairs, and is now President of the Association of Kentucky Colleges and Universities.

(Continued on page 8)

MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION.

NOT TO BE USED WITHOUT COPYRIGHT PERMISSION

OF ASBURY THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

(Continued from page 1)

HERALD will be read with great interest, and we ask for the co-operation, sympathy and help of all our friends who are interested in the character of work being done in this school which has been so blessed of our Lord.

FACTS ABOUT ASBURY.

(Continued from page 7)

It has a College of Music with a faculty of exceptionally well trained teachers from the great conservatories of our country.

The twenty-four practice rooms have been equipped with new pianos this year. In Piano, Voice, and Violin, students may receive splendid training.

The School of Expression offers Certificate and Diploma courses, and also the graduate degree of Bachelor of Oratory. The teachers in this Department are graduates of America's greatest schools of Expression.

The School of Fine Arts has as its Director, Miss Vivian May Norris, a member of the Art Students' League, A. M. I., illustrator of leading magazines, and an artist of unusual ability.

The School of Home Economics is thoroughly complete and finely equipped with electrical appliances, electric sewing machines, etc. The Director has diplomas from the universities of Chicago and Tennessee.

The College of Liberal Arts offers 13 majors as follows: Education, English, Chemistry, Physics, Biology, Political and Social Science, History, French and German, Greek and Latin, Spanish, Philosophy, Religious Education, and Mathematics.

The only degree offered in the College of Liberal Arts is the standard A.B. degree.

New equipment has been provided for the

OHIO STATE CLUB.

Physics, Chemistry and Biology Laboratories.

The Library is directed by a well trained staff, the Dewey Decimal System being used. It is open continuously from 9 A. M. to 9:30 P. M.

The Library has been moved into the splendid new building erected for this purpose, which is one of the most commodious in the State.

* * * * *

Asbury College has an Orchestra of 26 pieces and a 20-piece Brass Band.

The Asbury College Men's Quartette last summer toured 17 states and broadcasted from a number of the largest radio stations in America. They are in great demand.

The Men's Glee Club of 20 voices and the Girls' Glee Club of 24 voices have given concert programs which have been broadcasted from some of the leading radio stations.

* * * * *

NORTH CAROLINA—GEORGIA STATE CLUBS.

PENNSYLVANIA—NEW YORK STATE CLUBS.

NOT TO BE USED WITHOUT COPYRIGHT PERMISSION

OF ASBURY THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

ILLINOIS STATE CLUB.

CALIFORNIA STATE CLUB.

Asbury College does not have intercollegiate athletics, but fosters intramural activities.

Basketball and Baseball games are played between various organizations and classes.

The Tennis tournaments of the spring and fall are interesting features of Asbury College athletics.

Hiking to various points of interest is another pleasure enjoyed by Asbury College youth.

* * * * *

Asbury College more than holds its own in intercollegiate debates. The Department of Public Speaking is an important factor in this school.

The social life is adequately provided for by various organizations such as the literary societies, debating clubs, the Ministerial Association, state clubs, etc.

About 40% of the student body has dedicated itself to religious work.

* * * * *

Asbury College's growth is its embarrassment. It must have financial assistance from Christian sources.

No college is self-sustaining. The average American student pays only 26% of his cost to the college. 74% must come from outside sources.

* * * * *

Asbury College is not a Conference school. It is a World School. It must ask for help from Christian people throughout the nation.

Some imperative needs are these: A new Chapel; a new Science Hall, another dormitory for boys. It must have a minimum requirement of $500,000 in Endowment. This is an immediate and urgent necessity.

At the close of last year less than a score of the 825 students enrolled remained unsundered to Jesus Christ. Can this record be duplicated anywhere in America?

Do you believe in a college that sent 75% of its graduating class into special Christian service?

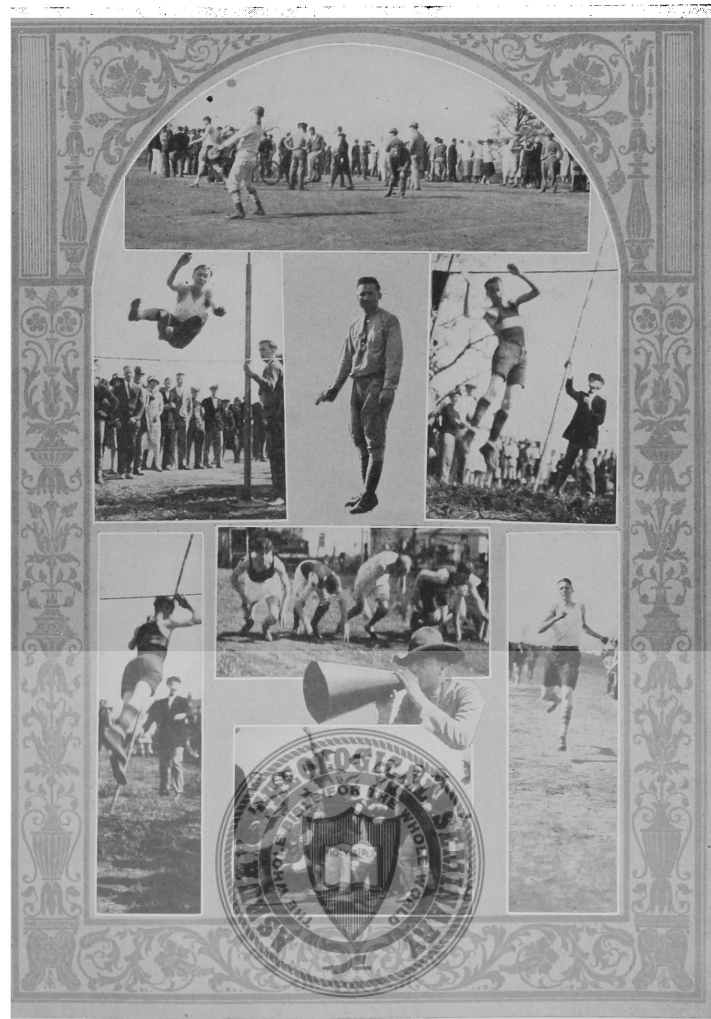

Do you believe in a college which bars all questionable amusements and seeks to put first things first?

Do you believe in a college whose friends declare it to be morally and educationally the safest institution to be found?

Do you believe in a college that already in its brief history

TEXAS STATE CLUB.

NOT TO BE USED WITHOUT COPYRIGHT PERMISSION
OF ASBURY THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

has furnished the church with four college presidents, a bishop, a Missionary Secretary, many prominent preachers and evangelists, and outstanding missionaries around the whole world?

We believe you do. And so,
ASBURY COLLEGE
ASKS YOUR INTEREST.
DESIRES YOUR FRIENDSHIP.

NEEDS YOUR MONEY.

This is Your Opportunity.

What are you going to do?

A selfish answer may defeat this college.

A careless answer may blight the hopes of many young people.

An indifferent answer may cripple a mighty work.

A generous answer is, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?"

One feature of outstanding interest this year has been the inter-collegiate public debates. Eleven of these contests were held with only one defeat recorded. We believe this to be an exceptional record, and in the realm of forensics Asbury College is holding its own with the greatest institutions of our country.

The Senior Class this year has surpassed all previous years in numbers, and, for the first time, passes one hundred, numbering, at present writing, 109. No Senior Class in any college of the two universities, will approach this in number. It is a remarkably cosmopolitan body, made up of representatives from 25 states. We confidently expect to hear great things in the future from the stalwart representatives of this, Asbury's mightiest Senior Class.

We would record our conviction that the greatest achievement of this year are those in the realm of the spiritual, in the fine religious fervor that characterizes the student body, and the almost entire unity of its personnel in its allegiance to the White Captain of Our Souls.

Those who have been conversant with the life of the institution almost from its inception declare they have never known its spiritual standards to be higher or a finer type of devotion and loyalty than is found at the present time.

WOMEN'S GLEE CLUB.

CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC.

Realizing fully the important place music is to take in all liberal education, it is the aim of Asbury Conservatory to have the highest ideals and standards in every department. We want students to know that they may come to Asbury College and do serious work in music. The curriculum of the Piano and Voice Departments will be raised to compare favorably with that of the best Northern and Eastern Conservatories. We wish to send out graduates who are thoroughly trained musicians in every sense of the word, graduates who would be a credit to any institution. Credit will be given for the study of Piano, Voice, Theory, Counterpoint and Harmony toward literary degrees.

The director of the Conservatory, Nina Jeanne Ridgell, has studied with some of the world's greatest artists and teachers, including Percy Grainger, the great Austrian pianist, and Albert Ross Parsons of New York, dean of American piano-forte teachers.

Miss Ridgell was connected with the Meridian College Conservatory for over twenty years, and for twelve years was director of that great Conservatory.

The Meridian Star says of her: "Dr. Ridgell has made more musicians perhaps, than any other individual in Mississippi."

She has associated with her Mrs. Christine Conrad, a musician and teacher of wide experience, efficient in every sense of the word. She holds the degree of B.Mus. Mrs. Conrad has studied and traveled extensively both at home and abroad and has heard almost every artist of note in America, and is a splendid critic.

Mrs. Suzanne Schulze is a graduate in Voice of Central College, Lexington, Mo., a well known Methodist School. Since graduating from the above named college, she has continued her studies with several of the artist teachers in Chicago and other cities. Mrs. Schulze has had years of experience as a voice teacher, and has held the position as director of voice department in some of the leading colleges in America. She is untiring in her work with her students, patient, painstaking and conscientious in teaching the smallest details of technical development and artistic interpretation. She is an experienced Choir Director, a gifted musician and teacher. She is a most valuable addition to the music faculty of Asbury College.

Miss Decima Lowry has charge of stringed instruments and is thoroughly capable for this work. She is a graduate of Asbury College of Music and has studied in Cincinnati Conservatory of Music. We are frank to say that, for musical advantages, one will not find a better corps of instructors than at Asbury College.

PUBLIC SPEAKING OR EXPRESSION IN ASBURY'S THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY.

Daisy Dean Gray.

Professor of Ministerial Expression.

Asbury's Theological Seminary and School of Expression are closely affiliated. The one lays the doctrinal foundation, erects its walls or organized subject matter, then steps aside for the other to enter its portals with the thrill of life.

Expression begins where English composition ends. The written word is a soulless, crystallized power. The public speaking is the stimulation of the mind to think definite ideas, and to arouse the imagination to conceive definite pictures. The skilled critic notes with regret that often the spiritual man, untutored in the ways of scholarship, speaks with passive, sluggish mind and dormant imagination. Knowing not that there is a technique for voice and body, he drones or shouts a heavenly message into refined ears with superlative crudeness. A valuable message frequently fails to impress because of its manner. If there is any class of public speakers who should be established in the principles of this art, it is the prophet of God.

The follower of any other profession, lawyer, doctor, banker, merchant, etc., would not presume to venture upon his career without specific technical training. He alone, who has God's highest calling, dares life's work without specific preparation. The Spirit gives the call and divine message, but man is expected to provide suitable conveyance for the message. Has he a responsibility for neglecting his talent? Sacred things are too precious to be handled carelessly.

Isaiah poetically says: "How beautiful . . . are the feet of him that bringeth good tidings. . . ." A charitable audience always accepts the truth the preacher brings, but frequently laments that Isaiah's quotation is not literally exemplified. The strident, familiar attitude of the minister's feet (or of some other impressive agent of his body—arms, hands, hips, shoulders, head, mouth and eyes) makes his delivery repulsive. When the sensibilities are offended it is hard for the message to gain entrance into mind and heart. Only a miracle could save such a speech from rejection. Any amount of earnestness and sincerity could scarcely retrieve the blunder.

The love of beauty is an instinct.

MEN'S GLEE CLUB.

Rev. G. W. Ridout was elected Third Vice President of The World's Fundamental Association, at the recent convention at Atlanta, Ga. Dr. Ridout represents the Methodists on the Board.

spoken word is a living force, and is supreme. Conceived of the Spirit, winged with imaginative thought, and flowing through a freed voice and body, its sway is absolute.

The fundamental technical aim in

It cannot be disregarded. Truth presented in conformity to its laws will not go unheeded. A tactful preacher will thus endeavor to bring about a happy relationship with his audience. To gain their sympathy he must have their respect. He is wise who does not ignore good taste; who studies to eliminate all antagonistic mannerisms. The messenger must be hid if the message would be heard.

So evident is the practical culture derived from Asbury's School of Expression, that students with public calling, especially that of minister and Christian worker, feel an imperative urge to enlist in its classes. Thirsty, consecrated boys and girls, seeing their need of this training, stand around the fountain of this attractive knowledge and sigh for just one scholastic draught of its refreshing waters.

The motto of the School is Proverbs 8:6: "Hear, for I will speak of excellent things; the opening of my mouth shall be right things." The dominant aim of the School is to prepare the way of the Lord. This is done by bringing freedom and ease to the body; by training the voice to express adequately thought and feeling without injury to the speaker's voice and the hearer's ears. All artificiality is decried. Instruction accords with the simplicity of nature. Voice and body are trained to be pliable channels for the Holy Ghost.

THE WORLD NEED OF A THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY LIKE ASBURY.

Prof. C. L. Hawkins, A.B., A.M.
Bible and Theology.

One of the greatest scourges that has ever afflicted, not only a nation, but the nations of the world, was the great epidemic known as the influenza, which occurred during the World War. This dread malady left thousands in its wake. Great were the devastations of this historical war. But far greater have been and will continue to be the devastations of the war of the ages—the war of the "Endless Conflict"—the first gun of which was fired in the Garden of Eden. The spread of the influenza has not been comparable to the dread malady which has affected the soul of every man in every nation in every century since the firing of the first gun at the beginning of the "War of the Ages." Theory was not sufficient to combat with the death dealing ravages of the World War; actual treatment and a cure were essential, and were demanded by mothers, fathers, and intimate friends. Theory concerning the sin question, whether actual or inherited, is not sufficient. A treatment and a cure are essentials. Asbury Theological Seminary offers not only a theory which is safe, but a cure which is absolute. Students of this institution are not only indoctrinated but they are living witnesses of the power to cure. The world need of a theological seminary like Asbury is a world cry for a sane remedy for a world malady.

Asbury Theological Seminary offers the solution for the world's problems. Before the incarnation of the Christ the world had the various theories which had arisen from the different philosophies of master minds; but the philosophies had failed; the world was in a decadent condition. He came to cure the ills of the nations. He had his philosophy. He has his philosophy today. It has stood the test for twenty centuries. He would enter not the legislative halls to formulate laws for the adjustments of the interests of the nations, but he would establish his principles in the hearts of men. This as in the ages past is the solution of the world's problems. This advocacy founded on the theory, the philosophy of the world Christ for the adjustments of the nations' problems, is the basis on which Asbury Theological Seminary rests her claims for a world recognition.

Again, Asbury Theological Seminary places a world value on her student body. Inestimable value is believed to be in each student. The germ life of eternity is wrapped up in these creatures made in the image of God. They are valuable per se. But a great value lies in their mission of service as they go to the border lines of the earth. Only the Infinite can estimate the potentiality of this great host of young men and young women as they go out to disseminate the truths which they have gathered from their years of study in Asbury Theological Seminary. The school depends on them across the border lines of the states; yea, across the rolling seas.

In brief Asbury Theological Semi-in America and Europe, and who specializes on ulcers and cancers of the stomach, and who is conceded to be the greatest surgeon of the Southland, we left March 16th. for his hospital at Chick Springs, near Greenville, S. C. Dr. Steedley, after brief examination, pronounced me to have a duodenal ulcer. Because of my weakness, for I had been bleeding internally for about five days, he thought best not to have an X-ray that day. He advised rest in bed for a week or ten days then an X-ray and operation. Returning home I knelt in prayer, committed myself unto God and went to bed to await the revelation of God's will. Earnest and special prayer was made by the dear saints at Central and Catechee for my recovery. As I meditated and considered it from different points of view I felt it was not God's will for me to go to the hospital and be operated upon. It seemed rather that the Lord had some invaluable lessons for me to learn on the bed of affliction which that he hear us, whatsoever we ask, we know that we have the petitions that we desired of him." As we knelt in prayer the Lord's sweet presence was manifest. Three of the saints led in prayer, after which I was anointed with oil in the name of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost. With the saints' hands placed upon me I accepted Christ as my personal Healer. Instantly the Lord touched me and a numbness went through my entire body. I shouted and praised God. Shaking hands with the saints, I said, "The Lord has healed me." Then I said, "Let us go to prayer again and thank the Lord." When I had finished praying I laid back on the bed praising the Lord for some time. After the saints had gone I got up and dressed and sat in the rocking chair in the front room and about an hour later stood at the screen door praising God and talking with some of the people as they were on their way to the evening service. Monday morning Dr. Clayton, a sanc-nary is cognizant of the world's task; she is more or less familiar with the history of the world's problems of the ages; she is constantly studying world movements in relation to cause and cure. She stands for the world Book without mutilation; she acclaims the lordship of the King of kings, the Christ of redemption. She loves her sons and her daughters, and sends them out with confidence, not to search for the "missing link", not to search in the earth for bones of dead men, but to face the future, to grapple with the problems of living men and living issues. Greet her, dear reader, in her world problem.

ASBURY COLLEGE ORCHESTRA.

A TESTIMONY OF GRATITUDE AND PRAISE.

Evangelist Rufus H. Gleason.

During the past few years I have been a sufferer from stomach trouble. Recently being alarmed by loss of blood, weakness and paleness we decided along with the advice of our local Doctor to have an examination and X ray. Hearing of Doctor Steedley, who has had post-graduate work could not or would not be learned in any other place, and then he would heal me for his glory. After the five days bleeding, and five days in bed, with a very limited diet of eggs and rich milk, I was exceedingly weak but was much comforted by the presence of the Lord and the oft visits of the dear church folk.

Through prayer and meditation I felt led to call for a healing service Sunday afternoon; for real miracles come by fasting and prayer, Mark 9:29. About ten real believing saints came. I talked with them for awhile and when silence came, my precious wife started that grand old hymn, "Jesus Lover of My Soul." While the saints sang those beautiful stanzas and as I meditated over it all and prayed, the fountain of my heart was touched and I broke into tears. Some of the saints quoted passages from the sacred Word. The promise upon which my faith especially took hold was 1 John 5:14, 15: "And this is the confidence that we have in him, that, if we ask anything according to his will, he heareth us: and if we know tified physician, came to call on me again and to his surprise and astonishment I met him at the door and praised God. He came in, gave us good spiritual encouragement from his matured religious experience, had prayer and left rejoicing. I now sit at my desk writing this testimony for the glory of God. The Father, Son and Holy Ghost sweetly saves, sanctifies and heals. Praise his holy name forever and ever!

A NEW BOOK.

Brother Pickett's latest book, "Why I am a Pre-millennialist," was written with a purpose. He felt that a small, pointed, unanswerable demonstration that the Bible absolutely teaches pre-millennialism, was needed. So he prepared this book, and he challenges the whole post-millennial confraternity to answer his arguments. He says, "They won't, for the very simple reason, they can't." Read it and see if he is right. 35c, three for $1.00. Give it to your pastor and to other friends.

NOT TO BE USED WITHOUT COPYRIGHT PERMISSION

OF ASBURY THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

SCHOOL OF EXPRESSION.

Daisy Dean Gray.

In different institutions this department is variously called Elocution, Oratory, Spoken Word, and etc., but we give our school the name of Expression in honor of its parent institution, School of Expression, Boston, Mass. The teachers directing this work at Asbury College, besides being graduate students of many other leading schools of Public Speaking—Emerson's, Clark's, King's—are graduates of this famous Curry School. All who are acquainted with its principles know that it is free from exhibition, affectation, and posing, and that it is a most natural and practical art. Whether in the family circle, among friends, in society, in business, or in pulpit, Expression is needed to set thought and feeling free. No matter how many degrees a person may have, what will all his knowledge, wisdom, deep and lofty sentiment profit if he cannot find a way of communicating it to others. Often great souls are locked up in restrictions of voice and body. The prisoner can be liberated by the study and application of the right use of these God-given instruments. Bodily freedom is fundamentally essential to the freedom of thought and voice. It is said that whatever is unexpressed dies; and it might, with impunity, be added that whatever is inadequately expressed is misunderstood.

Normal man is communicative and he is ever striving to express himself in a clear, intelligent, and effective manner by motions of the body, by sound, and by means of language, both oral and written. In the educational world, stress has long been laid upon the latter, but training for its use, in the order of nature, should be preceded by attention to the right formation and vocalization of the spoken word. Writing is a limited means of communication; one speaks twenty times to where he writes once. Articulate voice is learned by imitation of the nearest models: parent, nurse, playfellow, school-mate, teacher, public speaker. Good models of speech are rare. In America, because of the many personalities that compose its population, speech is perverted by brogues, ignorance, dialects, provincialism, and there is almost a universal deafness and indifference to excellence in speech. There is a crying necessity to unlearn the false pronunciations, establish correct diction, and be true to the standards of pure English. Speech is man's highest achievement. As a man speaketh, so is he in mind, body, spirit, and feeling. No power with which the Creator has endowed man can influence the will or excite the emotions of his fellow creatures like the power of oratory. Every one is willing to lend a listening ear to him who has something to say and knows how to say it. One's only choice is to speak well or ill. It takes long to learn by experiment; a scientific teacher can help one arrive quickly.

ART DEPARTMENT.

Throughout all ages man has sought some medium whereby the beauties of nature can be preserved and expressed. Who is it that has noticed the charm of beauty in the rising mist of the lowland meadows, or in the gnarled trunk of a giant oak, or in the rustling leaves of an autumn day; who is it that has stood thrall at the glory of an evening sunset and has not wished that there was some medium that could be used to entrap these magnificent portrayals of nature's color, lights and shades. This has been the ambition of poets who have written verse after verse to describe this beauty. Orators have waxed eloquent in giving their interpretation of these glories. Yet no one has expressed it so elegantly as the skilful hand that wields the palate and brush.

DEBATING TEAMS.

Van Dyke has said, "Beauty is about us on all sides; not more in nature's mantle of joyous color than in her gray garments of sorrow, not more in the majestic harmony of sea or mountain than in the warm monotone of low flying sand-dunes, or the sad humility of outstretched marshes. But alas, for our untrained eye and minds we do not perceive this beauty, we do not feel it, we do not know it. And the very fact that we are incapable of seeing it gives one very good reason for the artist's existence."

The whole world is but a unity of one great canvas painted in exquisite skill from a palate of many colors, where the emerald meadow blends into the purple hills or bordered by blood-colored hues of a November forest stretching away into the saphires of the sinking sun as he dips his blazing armor into the azure of the mighty ocean. To cause others to appreciate these beauties is the purpose of the Art Department of Asbury College and we are confident that she is better able to fill this mission now than ever before.

The long struggles through which the department has come for the last few years can be likened to the struggling efforts of the tiny plant against the stones and clods ultimately to blossom forth into beauty and fragrance and cheer the weary wayfarer. Through the untiring efforts of our instructor the department has steadily grown and since we have our new studio completed and equipped with the best of conveniences, we feel that we are just on the threshold of our usefulness to the world. The students of the department have organized themselves into a club for the advancement of all that is high and noble in art. Our greatest ambition is to honor him who is Master Artist of the universe, by serving and blessing humanity as we pass along the way.

GOSPEL TENTS

Write for Prices on NEW AND USED TENTS.

R. H. ARMBRUSTER CO.,
SPRINGFIELD, ILL.

Established 1875

We Aim To Please—Our Aim Is Good

ART GROUP.

NOT TO BE USED WITHOUT COPYRIGHT PERMISSION

OF ASBURY THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

HOME ECONOMICS.

Mrs. Mary A. Oliver.

Every young woman needs a good education developed to the degree of possible self-support. She needs this to be able to meet her share of the world's work.

The obligation, responsibilities, and duties which she must meet requires a comprehending sympathy, a courageous willingness and a thorough understanding of the conditions in life which must be met.

The young woman's education is never complete without a knowledge of the practical things of life. If we are to be our best and of service in the world we must have strong, healthy bodies, and nothing helps the brain more than a strong body. Health and happiness go together. In view of these facts we believe that every young woman should have a thorough course in Home Economics. The Department of Home Economics of Asbury College is offering a course which we believe will be of inestimable value to those who want a well rounded education. We seek in this course to give the fundamental principles underlying the practical things pertaining to the home and its management to give young women a thorough knowledge of how to teach this subject in public and private schools, and to be able to go out as demonstrators, dietitians or tea-room managers and other types of work.

Special courses in cookery are emphasized; the planning and making of menus and serving of balanced meals. Special emphasis is placed on dress making and all the things pertaining to the necessity of the wardrobe and of the home. Home Economics is a complex made up of many studies. A study of foods, shelter and clothing, the care of children. Special and civic questions come in this study also. There is a great demand for Home Economics teachers today and truly there is no field of service for women where one may give service that will bring greater returns.

CAMPUS ACTIVITIES.

J. B. Kenyon, Dean of Men.

It might be of interest to a large number of our friends, who, thus far, have not been able to visit Asbury College, to learn something of the daily routine or campus life at Asbury. Mention will be made of the religious activities, athletics, and the social life.

It is the endeavor of Asbury College to give the training of the heart its rightful place in her educational work. First things first is her motto. Religion first in education is the need of the youth of today. It is only fitting that the religious activities are mentioned first in this article.

It would be difficult to state which one of the various religious activities should be mentioned first, but the chapel services are perhaps the most important. Every morning at eight-fifteen the faculty and student body assemble in the auditorium for worship. Forty minutes are given to this service in which the President of the college, or some member of the faculty or visiting speaker brings a message on some vital phase of the Christian life. These chapel services are of great inspiration and often the Holy Spirit comes and blesses the entire audience. Occasionally, the service is given over to testimony and praise and some wonderful times are enjoyed as battles and victories are related.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE.

One of the strongest organizations on the campus is the Ministerial Association. This organization is open to ministers and Christian workers. They meet three times a week from six to seven in the evening. Their services are made evangelistic and many of the young men have been saved at her altars. Some of the greatest revivals in the history of Asbury College have been prayed down by this association. The young ladies have the Homiletical Association which is a like organization. These two organizations play a vital part in the religious life of the college. The young men of the college who are not preparing for some definite form of Christian service have an organization known as Synedria. This assembly is made up of laymen, who are going out as physicians, lawyers, teachers and in other professions.

Asbury College has one of the largest, if not the largest, body of Student Volunteers in any of our schools. A hundred or more students have felt the call to some definite work in the mission field and are preparing themselves for this work. Every Sunday afternoon at three forty-five o'clock the Volunteers meet for their devotional service. It is an inspiration for any one to visit these services and see these splendid young people who have dedicated their lives to this work. These earnest young people meet from 12:30 to 1 o'clock daily to pray for the work in the mission fields.

One general prayer meeting is held on Friday evening from 6 to 7. A good part of the student body attends this service. A fast and prayer service is held every Thursday noon.

One of the most interesting and profitable services is one conducted by the Chef in the dining room on Sunday morning at 9:30. There are a number of industrial students who are unable to attend the regular services at the church due to work that must be done in the dining room and kitchen. The Chef has services for this group and many gracious times have been enjoyed. It is not uncommon for some one to be saved following these services.

Physical education and athletics also have their proper place in the work at Asbury. There are no intercollegiate athletics but intra-mural games instead. This year there were five basket ball teams among the boys and three among the girls. A tournament is held each year and the members of the winning team are given letters. These games draw immense crowds and intense enthusiasm is much in evidence. More pep is shown at these intra-mural games than where intercollegiate games are enjoyed.

Tournaments are played in tennis and baseball. The seven tennis courts are filled on every suitable day and some real tennis playing is displayed. Each class has a baseball team and contends for first place. It is needless to state that some poor baseball playing occurs. Field day is held the first week in May, when the Senior-Sophomore classes contend with the Junior-Freshman. This year the former combination made 104 points while the latter made 96. Football is not played at Asbury College.

The social life is not neglected at Asbury. Wholesome provision is made to take care of the social life of the students. Many groups and organizations with chaperons take hikes to the surrounding hills and cook their breakfast or take long walks to the Kentucky River. The young men and young ladies enjoy each other at meal time in the large dining room. Classes have their social gatherings and literary societies their receptions. Get-together meetings are held in which students may get acquainted. All of the social life of Asbury College is planned for the best interests of the student body.

We trust that this description of the campus life will interest you. Here at Asbury is gathered the finest group of young men and women to be found anywhere. It will be an inspiration for you to visit them.

LIFE SERVICE DEPARTMENT.

Rev. E. L. Eaton, Secretary.

Under Appointment.

The Life Service Department of Asbury College was organized by Rev. E. L. Eaton in 1923. It is the purpose of this Department to find such young people, at home and abroad, as are called by the Holy Spirit into the Christian ministry, and to encourage as well as to assist them in securing their education at Asbury College. It is a well-known fact that a great number of young people face a financial problem in connection with their preparation for Christian service. A scholarship in the form of a loan without interest meets this need, and helps every young person benefited to avoid the unpleasantness of receiving financial help with no obligation to return it.

Scholarships are secured from devout Christian people over the nation, who in turn become honorary members of the Life Service Department. There are two forms of scholarships solicited to carry out the work of this department: First, the Self Perpetuating Scholarship, by which a pledge is made to pay a certain sum each year, for four years. The student benefiting by this scholarship returns it, upon leaving school, at a stipulated rate per year. It then goes to work again helping some other worthy young person. The second is the Foundation Scholarship, by which there is invested a certain sum held in trust by the Life Service Department, the interest from which will be used every year to benefit some worthy student. Either of these scholarships may be termed Memorial Scholarships as they are named for or by the persons contributing them.

WANTED: Experienced printer to take charge of our complete printing department, including bindery. Must be Christian man. Reply giving experience, Christian experience, salary desired and references to Walter P. Carr, Treasurer, John Fletcher College, University Park, Iowa.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

REV. O. G. MINGLEDORFF, D.D.

Lesson I.—July 3, 1927.

Subject.—Saul Chosen King. 1 Samuel 10:17-25; 11:12-15.

Golden Text.—What doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God? Micah 6:8.

Time.—B. C. 1095.

Places.—Several are mentioned: Mispheh, Ramah, Gilgal, Gibeah.

Introduction.—From the days of Moses to the latter end of the life of Samuel, a period of some four hundred years, the Israelites lived under a theocratic form of government, which was Jehovah's choice for them; but when Samuel was growing old, and the people saw that he must soon leave them, they grew dissatisfied with their form of government, and clamored for a king. They had been abundantly satisfied with the rule of Samuel, but there was a prospect that his sons would come into authority, and this they did not desire, for the young men were profligate and unfit to be trusted with the affairs of the nation. Another cause of dissatisfaction was the vain desire of the people to have a king, in order that they might be like the surrounding nations. Nations are somewhat like individuals in that they love to imitate other people. Israel's attitude in this regard provoked Jehovah; but he yielded to their request, and selected Saul to be their first king. He loved his chosen people, and although they were rejecting him and his government for an earthly king and a human government, he did not forsake them, but continued to bless and care for them, even in their disobedience.

This young man Saul first comes to notice in the ninth chapter of 1 Samuel. He was the son of Kish, a Benjamite. The indications are that he came of a good family. Young Saul was a physical giant. The record is, that "from his shoulders and upward he was higher than any of the people." No doubt he measured well also in intellect and morals; for he was Jehovah's choice for the rulership of the people. He came to the kingdom at an opportune time for both himself and the people; for just at that juncture Israel's enemies were ready to pounce upon her, and the army needed a leader, which circumstance gave the new king a fine opportunity to show his metal.

Samuel was Jehovah's appointed agent to anoint Saul king, and to introduce him to the people, for prior to that time he was practically unknown, not having been in any sense a public man. God called him from the flocks and herds of his father. Some one has said that Saul is the only man in the world's history, who went out hunting asses and found a king; for it was while he was out looking for some of his father's donkeys that had strayed away from home, that Samuel found him and anointed him to be king over Israel.

Some one has asked the question: "Why did Jehovah choose Saul to be king over Israel, when his foreknowledge told him what Saul's end would be?" The answer is, that God chooses men for his work upon the basis of their standing at the time of selection. Saul was all right when he was made king; but he backslid, and went to his ruin. Jesus Christ did not select a devil when he chose Judas to be an apostle; but at that time Judas was a good man, having in him all the elements necessary for the making of a great leader in the Church; but he "fell through transgression." Of course, this cannot be reconciled with the doctrine of predestination, but the writer feels under no manner of obligation to maintain that doctrine; although he is anxious to find the truth, and feels under some obligation to defend the character of God against reproach.

It may be of interest to note the manner of Saul's introduction to the office of king. There was no gathering of the multitude, nor was there any oath of office or inaugural address; and strange as it may seem to society folk, they managed to get along without an inaugural ball. If there was a crowning of the new king, the crown does not come to view in the Bible story. Samuel poured some olive oil on Saul's head, and kissed him, and the ceremony was ended. The oil, as usual in the Scriptures, symbolized the Holy Spirit, and we note that shortly after the anointing the Spirit did come upon Saul, and that he was turned into a prophet of the Lord.

Comments on the Lesson.

17. And Samuel called the people together unto the Lord to Mispheh.—The king had been already chosen and anointed at the command of Jehovah; but this gathering together of the people was necessary, in order that he might be introduced to them as their royal leader.

18. Thus saith the Lord God of Israel.—Samuel is speaking as Jehovah's mouthpiece. His speech is short, but pointed: "I brought up Israel out of Egypt, and delivered you out of the hand of the Egyptians, and out of the hand of all kingdoms, and of them that oppressed you." If ever a people was under obligation to show gratitude to Jehovah, that people was Israel. He had suffered their backsliding and their idolatry for centuries; and now when they are dissatisfied with his government, and are calling for a king, in order that they may be like the surrounding heathen nations in their government, he is still lenient and merciful toward them.

19. Ye have this day rejected your God.—There are no sadder words in all Israel's history than this pronouncement of Jehovah. One can almost feel in the words a touch of divine grief. Again he reminds them of his goodness to them, for which they had shown little gratitude, but had called for a king to take the place of rulership over them in God's stead.

Present yourselves before the Lord by your tribes, and by your thousands.—Saul has been secretly anointed king; but he must be so brought before the people as to prevent all mistake as to who shall be their ruler.

20. The tribe of Benjamin was taken.—This seems to have been the smallest of the tribes; but Jehovah was hunting a man instead of a tribe. God pays little respect to our notions of prestige. Maybe he takes the word in its true sense of delusion, or illusion. The janitor may have better standing in heaven than the king himself. Men look on the exterior, God into the heart. "He is no respecter of persons."

21. The family of Matri was taken, and Saul the son of Kish was taken.—This choosing was made by casting the lot; but it was done under divine guidance, so that there might be no mistake. Saul was taken, but could not be found. There was some modesty about the young man.

22. Behold, he hath hid himself among the stuff.—The inquiry was perhaps made by Samuel; and our quotation is Jehovah's answer. Saul had hidden himself among the baggage of the multitude. That was better than a rash boldness. Too much brass precludes the possibility of much fine gold.

23. They ran and fetched him thence.—That was fine: the office was seeking the man. Such a thing in America would be classed almost as a miracle. He was higher than any of the people from his shoulders and upward.—That charmed and awed the people; but Jehovah was looking deeper than flesh and long bones. Saul was big on the inside. If size counted for much, the elephant would lead the procession.

24. Samuel's speech of introduction beats the world: "See ye him whom the Lord hath chosen, that there is none like him among all the people." Poor Samuel! Why did he not spread himself a bit, and make a reputation for eloquence, just as we moderns do? We are not inclined to hurt any one's feelings, as the old rooster said when he showed the hens on his side of the fence the ostrich egg, in order that they might know what was being done on the other side of the fence; but we believe that Samuel's introductory speech was short because he had too much good sense to make a long one. Verbum sat. God save the king.—It was well to pray for him; but it would have been better not to have called for him at all.

25. This verse contains something important. Israel would have a king at any cost; therefore she must know "the manner of the kingdom." God did not leave them in darkness, but had Samuel write these things in a book for future reference, and instruction of the people.

11:12-15. These last verses bring out a fine trait in the young king. When the people were wishing to kill certain men who had made opposition to the rulership of Saul, he interfered, and would not permit them to kill any one. In his opinion it was the day of Jehovah's salvation for Israel, and no one must suffer. The time had arrived for the people to acknowledge the sovereignty of their God-chosen king; wherefore Samuel led them to Gilgal where they made definite proclamation of his leadership. Sacrifices were offered before the Lord, and there was great rejoicing among the people.

THE DEADLY CIGARETTE.

I have read Rev. S. L. C. Coward's book on the "Deadly Cigarette, or White Devil" and can recommend it most heartily. The cigarette is a brain poison; 80 percent of the criminals have been addicted to this habit. All of our colleges should follow the example of Berea and Asbury College and not allow their students to use the cigarette. Rev. Coward has a number of tracts that will be helpful to parents in teaching their children the evil effects of this poison. It may be had of The Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky. Price 25c.

Rev. G. W. Dunlap, Ph.D.
of the Lutheran Church.

Gospel Tents

Smith Manufacturing Company.
DALTON, GA.
22 Years in Business

J. H. DICKEY
of

BARRETT, ROBINSON & DICKEY

General Insurance—Bonds, etc., solicits your patronage.

7th Floor, Columbia Bldg.
Louisville, Ky.

200 Sheets 100 Envelopes

PERSONAL STATIONERY

High Grade White Bond Paper, size 5½ x 7 inches, with envelopes to match. Every sheet and envelope printed in black type up to 4 lines, with your name, business, and address

$1⁰⁰

This Stationery also makes an IDEAL GIFT. Shipment within 10 days after receipt of order. ORDER NOW!

Pentecostal Pub. Co.,
Louisville, Ky.
Gentlemen:
Enclose please find $1.00 for which send me postpaid, a box of your Personal Stationery consisting of 200 sheets of Paper and 100 Envelopes printed as follows:

To avoid errors write or print clearly

Do You Know?

What the Abomination of Desolation is?

Smith's Bible Dictionary will tell you.

What the Bible says about Agriculture?

Smith's Bible Dictionary will tell you.

What the term "Antichrist" means?

Smith's Bible Dictionary will tell you.

The facts about Augustus Caesar?

Smith's Bible Dictionary will tell you.

What the Dispersion was, and what caused it?

Smith's Bible Dictionary will tell you.

How the Egyptians embalmed their dead?

Smith's Bible Dictionary will tell you.

What country was known as the "land of Ham"?

Smith's Bible Dictionary will tell you.

Why such a man as Judas Iscariot was chosen as one of the twelve Disciples?

Smith's Bible Dictionary will tell you.

How the New Testament came to us?

Smith's Bible Dictionary will tell you.

Why Samson's "strength was in his hair"?

Smith's Bible Dictionary will tell you.

How much this splendid book that answers hundreds of questions such as these will cost you?

Just $2.00.

That if you will send us the regular subscription price of The Pentecostal Herald and fifty cents extra for the book that you can get both for the price of the book alone?

Did you know that will be just $2.00; and that besides getting this book filled with valuable knowledge, you will also get The Herald for a year?

Or send us three new yearly subscriptions and we shall send you the book free.

Did you ever hear of such a splendid opportunity before? Send us your order early.

PENTECOSTAL PUBLISHING CO.,
Louisville, Ky.

EVANGELISTIC AND PERSONAL.

Rev. Herbert McNeese wishes to announce that there will be a series of gospel street meetings held in Fallston, Pa., each Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. All holiness people are invited to come and help in the good work. After Brother McNeese leaves town Rev. H. K. Hartstuff will have full charge of the street meetings.

Rev. Elmer McVay: "I recently closed a gracious revival at Eldorado, Ill., in the Free Methodist Church, which has a large seating capacity. The Lord manifested his presence in a remarkable manner and many sought pardon and purity. Rev. Dulaney rendered excellent service as a personal worker. Seventeen united with the church."

May 29, the Olivet M. E. Church at Centerton, N. J., celebrated its 153rd anniversary. It was a remarkable gathering, people coming from far and near and filling the church. Evangelist Bessie Larkin preached the morning sermon, Rev. Boyd preached in the afternoon, and Rev. John Haines in the evening. We understand this is the oldest Methodist Church in New Jersey.

Rev. Bessie B. Larkin, of Collingswood, N. J., recently preached twice in the M. E. Church, Easton, Pa. There were five seekers at the altar and much rejoicing among the saints. Mrs. Larkin will preach June 26 in the morning, afternoon and evening in the Calvary M. E. Church, Easton, Pa. She was made an ordained elder at the recent annual conference.

Mrs. Bertha Fillmore spent a week with the First Baptist Church of Cadillac, Mich., assisting in prayer and personal work in the homes of the people. She is an earnest Christian worker, filled with the Spirit and one who prevails in prayer. She offers her services to anyone needing help either as an assistant or in special meetings. Her address is Bear Lake, Mich.

Touching Incidents is a compilation of touching incidents of devotion to God, and remarkable answers to prayer. It will help your faith to read many of these victories of faith. Price $1.00. Pentecostal Publishing Company, Louisville, Ky.

INTERESTING INDIAN CONFERENCE.

I desire to submit a report of a three-day Indian Methodist Conference which recently closed in Oklahoma. It was held in Seely, four miles from any town and fifteen miles from the railroad. The place has for many years—perhaps fifty—been used as an Indian rural school and church ground.

The conference was conducted by about forty full-blooded Indian preachers; among whom was one foreign missionary by the name of Boaz. Among the Indian preachers were Tonkawa, Kiowa, Creek, Seminole, Choctaw and Chickasaw. They preached in their own language and the English language, and they were real downright full-blooded Indians. It is difficult for the ordinary citizen to realize that such beautiful and instructive sermons could come from these people.

As a part of the service, and during recess between services, there was a male quartette of full-blooded Indians who rendered the old-time Methodist songs in a manner complimentary to any choir in New York, or elsewhere. The members of each tribe also sang some in their own language, and while not understandable to the Americans, nor members of other tribes, yet the rhythm and harmony were beautiful.

On the last day of the conference, Sunday, Sept. 19, there were, I think, not less than a thousand people on the ground. There was on the ground a very large open shed which seated six or seven hundred people. There were erected on two sides of the five-acre space six cook sheds, and to one side of each, under roof, quite long tables and chairs to accommodate about twenty-four persons. Just before each meal everybody was invited to come under the shed or place of service. The cook sheds were numbered from one to six, with a big sign up in front. When the manager had gotten the attention of every one, he announced in English and the Indian languages about this: "We are now ready to serve dinner (or supper or breakfast, as the case might be) and we can accommodate twenty-four persons at table No. 1; twenty-six at table No. 2, on through the number until all the tables were filled. He further said: "I wish to say that we have quite a few ministers here and we wish to serve them first, as a mark of respect, so the visitors will please proceed to the tables first." Thereupon, the feasting and eating began, all free, except that one was given the opportunity to make any small donation towards the expense that he might feel able.

The marshal of the occasion kept perfect order. No cars were permitted to come near enough to disturb the service. Men butchered beeves and hogs and laid them down at the barbecue pits. Men who knew how to do it in good shape attended to the cooking. Women who knew how attended to frying the steaks, cooking the biscuits, tafuller, peshofa, cakes and pies and good black coffee. Under the watchful eye of the manager, as each person got through eating, he called out in both English and the Indian language, "two more at No. 1," or "three more at No. 4," as the case might be. There were those constantly washing dishes and serving fresh supplies till every person on the ground was fed. Then the manager, the cooks, and dishwashers had their turn at the tables. And all this going on for three whole days! No disturbance of any kind on the ground, but everybody quiet and orderly. No rush, no hurry about anything except preparing the food.

They observed the old custom of all men on one side of the service shed, and the women on the other. No sparking, no giggling, nor boisterous talking nor laughing. You felt in the atmosphere, it seemed, that you were at a place of worship, and strict attention to all services prevailed. To attend one of these conferences and see how simple and quiet they can be successfully carried on is a wonderful lesson to most of us. If you ever have the opportunity don't hesitate to take advantage of it.

Reported by M. T. Word, a Chickasaw Indian, Tishomingo, Okla.

Modernism has been struck an awful blow by Dr. Harold Paul Sloan in his book Historic Christianity and the New Theology. We have a special price on them now. The $1.50 cloth binding is offered at 75c while they last. The 75c paper book is specially priced at 50c.

THE necessity for the broadcasting of the information these books contain, has never been as urgent as in this year 1927.

The same pitfalls for the young exist as never before.

The same hesitation on the part of the parents to impart sex knowledge to their children.

The after effect of the World's War has left its imprint on the young men and young women of today in new habits, manner of dress and deportment, and familiar and intimate freedom with each other.

Ask Dad—He Knows.

For thirty years these books "The Self and Sex Series" have been the recognized standard for imparting sex knowledge to both young and old.

Translated into 23 foreign languages of Europe and Asia.

They belt the Globe.

Information properly and cleanly told.

Free from medical terms.

For Fathers, Mothers, Sons and Daughters.

Three million copies of these books are owned in homes and libraries all over the English-speaking world alone—have you got yours?

Now One Dollar per copy.

BUY—You will make no mistake.

"ASK ME" YOUR INTIMATE QUESTIONS THE ANSWERS ARE HERE

ONE MILLION DRIVE THIS ANNIVERSARY YEAR

FOUR BOOKS TO MEN

By SYLVANUS STALL, D. D.

Condensed Tables of Contents follow

What a Young Boy Ought to Know

Part I.—How God reproduces the flowers, insects, fishes and animals.—The two natures in the oyster.—The bird's egg and the baby bird. Part II.—The manner in which the reproductive system is injured in boys by abuse. Part III.—The consequences in boys of abuse. Part IV.—How boys may preserve their purity and strength. Part V.—Our duty to and others. Part VI.—How purity and strength may best be retained. Part VII.—The age of adolescence.

What a Young Man Ought to Know

Part I.—Strength.—The manly mystery of self. Part II.—Weakness: How to overcome. Part III.—Evils to be shunned and consequences to be dreaded. Part IV.—Reproduction.—All life from the seed or egg. Part V.—Who should not marry.—Selection of a wife.—Early and late marriages, etc., etc.

What a Young Husband Ought to Know

Part I.—What he ought to know concerning himself.—What is excess—Purity and fidelity. Part II.—What he ought to know concerning his wife.—Wedding joys.—The mother nature.—The wrongs of childhood. Part III.—What he ought to know concerning his children.—Hereditary.—Parental influences, etc.

What a Man of 45 Ought to Know

Part I.—What he ought to know concerning himself.—Physical changes in men at middle life. Part II.—What he ought to know concerning his wife.—The menopause, and the physical changes which follow.

FOUR BOOKS TO WOMEN

Condensed Tables of Contents follow

What a Young Girl Ought to Know

By Mrs. MARY WOOD-ALLEN, M. D.

Part I.—The origin of life.—Plant life, bees and insects. Part II.—Fishes and their young.—Lessons from the birds. Part III.—Animals and their young.—Human infants the most helpless. Part IV.—Care of the body.—Mothers dealing honestly with their children.

What a Young Woman Ought to Know

By Mrs. MARY WOOD-ALLEN, M. D.

Part I.—Growth and development.—How to obtain health and development. Part II.—Womanhood.—The crisis in the girl's life.—Causes and cures for wrong physical conditions.—The consequences of mistakes. Part III.—Love.—What are the requisites in a husband.—Engagements.—Weddings.

What a Young Wife Ought to Know

By Mrs. EMMA F. A. DRAKE, M. D.

Choice of a husband. The marital relations. Parenthood. Maternity and health. The stages of parental culture. Expectant maternity. Baby's wardrobe. Physician and nurse. The birth-chamber. Care of baby. Guarding against vice. Helps for mothers.

What a Woman of 45 Ought to Know

By Mrs. EMMA F. A. DRAKE, M. D.

Physical changes in middle life. Causes, symptoms, etc., etc. Importance of right mental attitude. Valuable suggestions.

The Self and Sex Series

Books for the Masses

Now in THEIR THIRD MILLION EDITION

Free from Medical Terms

People are bound to know of the functions of their own bodies, and these books give this information properly and cleanly. They are recommended by plain people, as well as by the eminent, such as:

Edward W. Bok
Rev. F. B. Meyer, D. D.
Judge Ben B. Lindsey
Uthoff Vincent
Joseph Strong, D. D.
W. H. Griffith Thomas
Francis E. Clark, D. D.
Rev. John Clifford, M. A.
Charles M. Sheldon, D. D.

ORDER BLANK

PENTECOSTAL PUBLISHING COMPANY

Printers—Publishers—Book Sellers

523 South First Street Louisville, Kentucky

Please forward, postage paid, the following

Books checked X, for which find enclosed

$1.00 for each book.

☐ BOY ☐ GIRL
☐ YOUNG MAN ☐ YOUNG WOMAN
☐ HUSBAND ☐ WIFE
☐ MAN OF 45 ☐ WOMAN OF 45

Name _____

Address _____

Town _____

State _____

NAME AND ADDRESS IN FULLY

SOME RARE BOOKS

We make the following most liberal offer to the readers of THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD. Read about the books listed below. We offer to give you absolutely free, postage paid, any one of these books for ONE SUBSCRIPTION to THE HERALD for a year at the regular price of $1.50. If you send TWO subscriptions you will get TWO books; THREE subscriptions will get THREE books, etc. Send us TEN subscriptions and get the whole set. Your renewal may count as one of the list.

Wesley's Sermons. VOL. III AND IV.

This edition of sermons is now out of print. We have a number of rare copies. Vol. III has 37 sermons. Among these is the one preached on the death of George Whitefield. A hundred of these are bound in sheepskin. The first to send for them will be favored with this special binding. Vol. IV has 37 sermons. One of them is on the death of John Fletcher. Some of Wesley's best preaching is in these two volumes. You will find here exactly what the founder of Methodism believed and preached.

The Making of Methodism by Jno. J. Tigert.

This is an old book, printed in 1898. It tells of the rise of the episcopacy, of the presiding eldership, of the itineracy and of the annual and general conferences in Methodism. A splendid, authentic source of information on these subjects. It has 157 pages and is bound in a beautiful blue cover with gold titles.

Sermons, by Bishop E. M. Marvin.

If you want something worth while, read some writings several years old. Some sermons are so old that they are new. This is a new book, but the sermons were first written in 1876. The language is simple, forceful, and eloquent. Read them.

Life of Francis Asbury by Bishop DuBose

This is a biographical study of the first bishop of Methodism in America. Bishop DuBose is a forceful, scholarly writer, and with such a subject as this he has done his best. A wonderfully interesting and enlightening book of 240 pages. It is beautifully bound and will grace any library shelf.

Life of Robert Paine by R. H. Rivers

The rise of an obscure young preacher to college president and on to the bishopric is the highly interesting story told in this volume by Dr. Rivers. Bishop Paine rose to the heights through dangers, seen and unseen, and through sorrows and suffering in many instances. The sketch is well worth your reading.

William McKendree by Bishop E. E. Hoss

Fifteen chapters on the life of McKendree. "The earlier history of American Methodism is easily divisible into three periods, each represented by a name that will long survive,—Asbury, McKendree, and Soule. This book tells the part Bishop McKendree took in this formative period of Methodist history.

There are 206 pages, every one of which teems with interest.

The Christianity of Christ and His Apostles by Jno. J. Tigert.

This is a discussion of historical studies of fundamental New Testament problems. The author deals with "The Nature of the Christian Religion;" "The Vocation of Jesus the Proof of His Godhead;" the Foundation of Criticism and the Christian Faith." The purpose of the book is to show Christ as the all-sufficient one in the face of all destructive criticism.

A 202 page book; well written, and worth reading.

Life of Joshua Soule by Bishop DuBose

Bishop Soule, a master in Israel, Cavalier and Puritan. One of the most interesting books of a decade is this one. It tells of some of the incidents of the storm around Bishop Andrew and the split of the two Methodisms over slavery. Read it.

Studies in the Life of John Wesley by E. B. Chappell

A series of studies in the life of Wesley, so arranged that they give an outline of his life and labors. It was written especially to appeal to the young people. This makes it doubly interesting, of course, to older readers. 239 pages, cloth bound.

Note that there is not a "shallow" book in this set. If you want real, live, instructive and interesting reading, get every one.

PENTECOSTAL PUBLISHING COMPANY - - LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY.

PENTECOSTAL HERALD

Dr. H. C. Morrison, Editor
Mrs. H. C. Morrison, Associate Editor

Louisville, Ky., Wednesday, June 29, 1927.
Entered at Louisville, Ky., Postoffice as Second Class Matter

$1.50 Per Year.
Vol. 39, No. 26.

OUR FIFTY CENT OFFER.

By The Editor.

ELSEWHERE in this issue of THE HERALD there will be found a proposition to send the paper to all new subscribers for fifty cents until January 1st, 1928.

This is a very liberal offer and cannot bring us directly any financial gain. Our object is to place the paper for a number of months into the hands of people who are not acquainted with it, with the hope that we may be able to bring them into more vital relationships with our Lord Jesus. We believe that THE HERALD carries a scriptural, vital message that will have a very gracious effect upon those who read it from week to week.

* * *

We receive letters from every quarter of the country and frequently from overseas from people who rejoice and thank God for the blessing that comes to them through the reading of THE HERALD. This greatly encourages us. We are longing, under the guidance and help of the Holy Spirit, to be able to pass out the true Bread of Life to all people who read the pages of this paper, to interest them more deeply in the teachings of the Holy Scriptures, to bring them to see the fullness of the atonement made by our Lord. We are longing to help the people into the great, glorious experience and life of full salvation.

* * *

We earnestly appeal to all of our subscribers to help us at this time; interest your friends, get their subscriptions. As you know, the price from now to January 1, 1928 is only fifty cents. Inform them that each week the paper will contain a sermon from some able minister of the Gospel, that we are discussing in these columns the most vital questions of Bible doctrine, religious experience and Christian activity, that we are preaching Jesus, the Son of God, the Saviour of men, who died and is alive forevermore, whose mighty power and inexhaustible resources of life make possible the salvation of all men from all sin who may here and now repent and believe for pardon, or consecrate and believe for the cleansing which is provided in his precious, all-atoning blood. Come and help us in this good work. Help your fellow-beings. Help your Lord to bring the news of his redemption to a lost world. Help us to sustain and carry forward the great good work in which we are engaged. Get a blessing for yourself by making yourself a blessing to your fellow-beings. This is your interest as well as ours, and it is with your co-operation that this great idea can be carried to success. The loyalty of our friends has never been questioned; our sincerity in our work has never been doubted, we are sure. Let us co-operate in this campaign to scatter full salvation literature over the land, and thus you will enjoy the blessings which shall attend our efforts.

* * *

Our evangelists, like the pioneers of old, are entering the "unexplored" regions, proclaiming the blessed truth of full salvation for all men from all sin, and meeting with good results. But ask any of them what would have been accomplished had their evangelistic tours been preceded by holiness literature and the people presented the truth and the community prepared to receive the preaching of it? They would answer, in one accord, that they would have labored under more pleasant and encouraging environments, and that their efforts would have been far more largely rewarded. Thus we can appreciate the importance of sending holiness literature to eradicate prejudice and prepare hearts for the preaching of full salvation. You know THE HERALD, that it stands in the open, fearless in its purpose, radical in its principles, and reasonable in its declarations. Thousands owe their present state of grace directly or indirectly to THE HERALD. But we need you to help us get THE HERALD to the people. It can be done! It will be done! Let each of us prove our worth, and have our name recorded as one who helped in this great and noble work.

An Open Letter to my Dear Bishop

My Dear Bishop:—

ID you chance to read Bruce Barton's article in Collier's Weekly of May 21? It is written under the title, "Is There Anything a Man Can Believe?"

Bruce is taking himself quite seriously, and is seizing his opportunity to reveal the shallowness of his religious philosophy. He is entirely incompetent to describe conditions existing in the community in which I grew up; it was orthodox to the core.

We believed the Bible to be inspired from cover to cover. We believed all the prophets, the gospels and the epistles had to say about Jesus. He, to us, was Saviour and Lord. We believed all he taught about repentance, the new birth, heaven and hell.

We had great old-time mourners-bench revivals; a large percent of the people in our neighborhood were converted in their early teens. Sin against God was thought to be a very wicked and dangerous thing in our community. We were great on Sabbath keeping. A sinner would have been ashamed for his neighbors to have heard the sound of his axe cutting wood on Sunday. Saturday afternoon was a time of preparation for the Sabbath. Things were put in order, not with any superstitious fear, but a glad and joyful reverence. Lambs, shoats and chickens were killed and dressed; pies and cakes were baked, and all done in the spirit of good fellowship. Sunday was a great day! A clean bath, the best clothing, a smiling face and off for Sunday school and church, then home, with a crowd of company and kinsfolk. What dinners! What hospitality! What insistence to "eat something more!"

Then we would sit by a roaring fire, or out in the shade, according to the season, talk over the morning sermon, about revivals, the conversion of noted sinners, the greatness and goodness of God, the blessedness of righteousness, and the importance of repentance and saving faith in Christ. The virtue, happiness and sympathetic helpfulness of that community was wonderful. A people can believe all the Bible says about God and be a very happy people.

Bruce goes rambling on and takes a fling at ultra Calvinism. This doctrine of the foreordination and eternal damnation of innocent babes is responsible for much of the infidelity and general unbelief that are in the world today. Such notions of God are horrible, but the great majority of devout, religious teachers repudiated them so long ago that no writer, skeptical or otherwise, has any right to dig them up and parade them as if they were current teaching at the present time.

He makes this interesting statement under the argument of "What sort of people are we at our best?" "We would not sentence a mad-dog or a rattlesnake to eternal torment." To many readers this will sound like a wise and pertinent argument against future punishment; in other words, if God should inflict such punishment he is not as good as we are at our best.

Let us examine this mad-dog and rattlesnake insinuation a little. They are both utterly bad, mad-dogs and rattlesnakes; they serve no good purpose; to come in contact with them means death. They make no discrimination; they are merciless. Any lover of humanity will destroy the mad-dog or the rattlesnake at the first opportunity, and instantly. He may be able to escape either of them, but he is thinking of a child or neighbor who may come upon them unawares and unprotected.

But suppose the mad-dog and rattlesnake are indestructible. Suppose they are immortal; you cannot kill them. You try every method for their improvement and you not only fail, but you find that under treatment for improvement they grow worse; become more vicious, more poisonous; in the midst of your efforts they are biting, striking, and spreading death on every hand. You find they resist all attempts at improvement, they cannot be killed. Will you turn them out upon the public to slaughter children in the streets, slip into homes and bite to death babes in their cradles, or will you confine them? If you turn them loose upon society knowing that they will destroy every one they can touch you are merciless and wicked; not only so, but you are in a degree responsible for every human being damaged.

I am wondering if Mr. Noisy Bruce Barton has sober reasoning capacity to grasp the meaning of this argument? God hath no pleasure in the death of him that dieth. He has gone to the limit to make saints out of sinners. There comes a time when he finds

(Continued on page 8)

NOT TO BE USED WITHOUT COPYRIGHT PERMISSION

OF ASBURY THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

NOTES ON REVIVAL MATTERS.

Rev. G. W. Ridout, D.D., Corresponding Editor.

EVANGELISM is a live issue. If it were not for the work done in this important branch of Christian service, and if it were not for the activities of evangelists the church truly would die of formality, worldliness and unbelief. Yet how little is the office of the evangelist recognized by the "powers that be." Too often the Evangelist and his work are totally ignored by officialism. Dr. John Brasher, writing to the Methodists several years ago on this subject, said:

"It seems strange that a Methodist evangelist, called of God to the work of evangelism, is regarded with suspicion, or small esteem, almost throughout our Methodist connection, by our ecclesiastical leaders, and it is in the rarest instances he can be appointed to that work by the cabinet, and if he is it is done with a sort of spirit, or air, that the person thus appointed occupies a doubtful, if not reprehensible attitude to the church and to the work of God, and if such evangelist reports his work at Conference, the result of the hardest, most self-denying labor of which a man is capable, telling of souls saved and sanctified by the thousands, and of other good work done for the kingdom, his report is received with scant courtesy and not one word of commendation does he receive, while someone who added a few dollars to the benevolences and put a few yards of carpet on the aisles of the church is strongly commend- ed."

"I know of one evangelist who in the last ten years has reported to his conference the salvation of over six thousand souls, besides other good work done, and has not had but one appreciative word spoken by either the presiding officer or cabinet. What offense have Methodist evangelists committed, that of all the different classes of ministers they are treated with most scant courtesy and no one in power ever thinks of consulting with them about any of the spiritual interests of the church? Some of them have fought ten thousand battles for the church, and undergone real sacrifice for it, but have not knowingly done anything against it. Have we discovered that Presbyterians may be honored and trusted as evangelists but Methodists must not? Are we so wise that we have discovered that the plan of the Holy Ghost in Eph. 4:11-15, has been discarded by him and that the church needs only pastors and theological teachers and a few dignitaries to set off, as an adornment, the rest? Is it not time that Methodism should use all its God-ordained agencies and ministries, giving honor to whom honor is due, and regarding each office of the ministry which the Holy Ghost institutes, as honorable, and its occupation as a brother trusted and beloved?"

REVIVALS—THEIR LAWS AND LEADERS.

An eminent writer on "Revivals—Their Laws and Leaders," says: "Every revival when it appears discovers to the church its spiritual decay, its worldliness and the insincerity of its witness," and sets forth the following works and blessedness of religious revivals as follows:

1. Vast energies hitherto slumbering are awakened and new forces burst into being.
2. Its tide rolls in from an unseen continent and moves with a gathering momentum which nothing can resist.
3. The true revival is characterized by an extraordinary swiftness with which it spreads.
4. Every revival movement sees an awakening in the individual and in the church or a deep sense of sin.
5. There is a wonderful outburst of joy showing itself in new songs and jubilant hearts.
6. Revivals profoundly affect large masses of the community.

The law of the Revival, we believe, is best found in 2 Chron. 7:14: "If my people which are called by my name shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face and turn from their wicked ways then will I hear from heaven and will forgive their sin and will heal their land."

Some one has said, "When the Church is dying, God sends men like Wesley and Whitefield to blow it into flame." This has been the peculiar calling of the prophet and the revivalist. Touched by a hand divine, inspired by the Spirit of God, moved by the Holy Ghost, they have shaken three worlds!

Our times are crying out for the prophet and the revivalist. Our warriors have won a war, but they have not brought peace among the nations. Our statesmen have sat long at the world conference table, but they have been unable to change the heart of the nations; though they have wrought great changes in national boundaries, governments, etc., they have been powerless to work any regeneration. One of our greatest statesmen in a recent address, looking at the hopelessness of human contrivances to settle the world's peace or to bring back to it happiness, calls out for a work of "spiritual regeneration." Our cry must be to God. What shall we cry? What better one can we possibly make than that of the ancient prophet: "O Lord, revive thy work?"

That great revivalist C. G. Finney has defined a revival of religion as follows: "It is the renewal of the first love of Christians, resulting in the awakening and conversion of sinners to God. In the popular sense a revival of religion in a community is the arousing, quickening and reclaiming of a more or less backslidden church and the more or less general awakening of all classes and insuring attention to the claims of God."

"Revivals," says a writer of long ago, "are seasons when Christians are waked to a more spiritual frame, to more fervent prayer and to more earnest endeavors to promote the cause of Christ and redemption—seasons when the impenitent are aroused to the concerns of the soul and the work of personal religion."

In the great revival of 1858, it was said of New York City, "that there is a most astonishing interest in all churches, seeming as if that great and populous and depraved city was enveloped in one conflagration of divine influence and the large cities and towns generally, from Maine to California, are sharing in this great and glorious work. There is hardly a village or town to be found where a special divine power does not appear to be displayed."

The following brief history of a noted revival in an Eastern city is taken from the records of a successful revivalist:

Commencement. Christians began to mourn over their coldness and the lost condition of others. They wept together, confessed their sins to one another and resolved to work for God.

Means Used. Those who loved Christ prayed all the time, and all the time felt that unless the Spirit were poured out upon saint and sinner not one soul would be converted. They offered constant, special, earnest, agonizing, united prayer. While they prayed they labored, conversed with their friends, persuaded them to come to the house of God and in several instances prayed with them hour after hour, until they gave themselves to the Saviour. Frequently they prayed till midnight, and after all they sang and prayed and felt, "Lord, revive us!—all our help must come from thee."

Preaching. In doctrine, plain; in illustration, powerful.

Arguments. The shortness of time; the certainty of death; the danger of delay, and above all, the goodness of God and the love of the Savior.

Results. "God has been glorified, the Church enlarged and sinners persuaded to set out for heaven."

In order to have great Revivals and great Awakenings we must have the Power of God.

One of the great lessons Jesus taught his Apostles and disciples before he ascended was that they must be endued with power from on high in order to carry on the great work of preaching the gospel and bringing a lost world to God. We note in Acts 1:6 the disciples were concerned about knowledge. They wanted to "know." They asked "Lord, when wilt thou restore the Kingdom of Israel?" The answer Jesus made is significant. "It is not for you to know," "But ye shall receive power"! We are in days when the quest of knowledge is reaching the point of frenzy. It is Knowledge, Education, Philosophy, etc. In pursuing these things the Church has lost its power. We need to get in quest of the Power from on high if we are going to do God's work in God's way to God's glory. Education, Knowledge, Culture has its legitimate place of course, but for the power of God in Christian work there can be no substitute.

1. We must have the power of God in our revivals and camp meetings. Jones, of Wales, who was so conspicuous in the great Welsh revival, speaking of revivals said: "To work up a revival is to try to save men by mechanics. The heaven-sent man draws down a revival, which saves men by dynamics, 'power from on high,' without machinery and guarantees, goes straight to the heart and accomplishes that for which it is sent."

2. To have effective preaching we must have the power of God in the pulpit.

This was the power which Finney had. He tells us how it worked in one of his meetings: "Upon going to an adjacent village to preach, without knowing that the place was called 'Sodom,' he chose the text, 'Up, get you out of this place, for the Lord will destroy this city,' and preached upon the destruction of Sodom. The people began to get more and more angry. 'I could not understand what offended them. I had not often spoken in this strain more than a quarter of an hour, when the congregation began to fall from their seats in every direction, and cry for mercy. Nearly the whole congregation were either on their knees or prostrate, in less than two minutes from this first shock that fell upon them. Every one prayed who was able. Owing to another meeting I had to leave, but there were too many wounded souls to dismiss the meeting; and so it was continued all night. In the afternoon they sent for me to come, as they could not break up. Although the revival came suddenly, the converts were sound and the work genuine."

3. This power of God in revival meetings does not come without earnest and intense prayer and endeavor.

A. B. Earle, the noted Baptist Revivalist, says: "It is sixty years ago this winter since I held my first four-days' meeting, yet I don't know a thing about an easy revival. If you know anything about an easy revival, I don't know anything about it; and an easy conversion, I don't know any such thing. I don't believe there is an angel that shines before the throne that knows any such thing as an easy conversion. If you don't know what soul travail is, somebody else knows; if you don't know what it is to go into Gethsemane, somebody else knows. You are not going to have an easy revival. Zion is going on her face; she is going to turn over on her pillow at midnight to find a dry place for her face; she is going to look pale for a little while in her agony, before the Lord will display his power."

MODERN APOSTLES OF FAITH.

Rev. C. F. Wimberly, D.D.

CHAPTER XVIII.

HOLLAND N. MCTYEIRE.

WHEN the Egyptian kings died, it was thought that just to be ruler of so great a nation was honor enough to have their memory enshrined in a gigantic pile of stone. It was a monument to the dead. Now when we contemplate those immense pyramids containing the skeletons of cruel, arrogant monarchs, literally buried in gold and precious stones, we behold the miracle of delusion and false emphasis. The tomb of kings tells but one big story, and that the undying hope of immortality. If their estimate of time and eternity may be judged by the grave equipment, the next world was to be more important than the present. They stand as a stupendous wonder to coming centuries, but that is all: the pyramidal sepulchres—the immortality of Egyptian kings. But the story gleaned from the long ago hieroglyphics is one of cruelty and oppression. The mute testimony written on every stone is the crack of the slave driver's whip, and the bludgeon of the taskmaster—human agony!

But pyramids are not all Egyptian. There are others that far outshine the lustrous glory of Cheops, or the tomb of King Tut. Once a traveler was viewing the grandeur of St. Paul's Cathedral in London, and asked where he might see the monument to Sir Christopher Wren—the immortal architect. His attention was called to a simple tablet, upon which was inscribed: "If you want to see my monument, look about." Sir Christopher Wren did not need an Egyptian pyramid to tell the coming generations that he had lived. St. Paul's Cathedral of beauty, symmetry and architectural glory was the perfected dream of a great soul, standing through the centuries, a symbol of heavenly benediction.

Holland Nimmons McTyeire. No towering shaft marks his resting place; he sleeps beneath an unpretentious marble amid the classic shades of a great university, near the center of her beautiful campus, a spot sacred to the memory of hundreds of gospel ministers throughout the southland. If you want to see the "McTyeire Monument" look about the campus of Vanderbilt University. Everything that art, nature, and bounteous resources can do to delight the eye and inspire the imagination may be seen at this, one of the greatest institutions of learning south of the Mason and Dixon Line. We might dwell at some length on this cluster of stately buildings, majestic in their simplicity, but we wish to change the scene to one of extreme contrast, and seek to harmonize the extremes, which are an antithesis, one to the other.

The next scene is a humble, unsophisticated country home far back in the poorest section of South Carolina, nearly ninety years ago. It is a typical country home where the Methodist circuit rider always found welcome shelter. The circuit rider's name was Kirkland, a name that has for many years held an honored and conspicuous place in the affairs of the church. We have been told that this circuit rider was a near ancestor of the present Chancellor of Vanderbilt University. In this South Carolina home was a lad, perhaps in his early teens, who bespoke unusual natural endowments, such as attracted the attention of the circuit rider.

The family had retired, and perhaps the lad; but the burden of that long evening conversation was concerning that big overgrown boy. Far into the night the argument continued: the pleading of poverty on the one side, and the supreme welfare of the boy's future on the other. At last the circuit rider won out in the controversy—but what was it all about? The object sought and attained was that the father should send the son to school and college. Rev. Kirkland, the circuit rider among the swamps and "low country" of South Carolina, was making history that night. That night discovered for the church and religious educational history of the South, Holland Nimmons McTyeire. Judge E. H. East, one of the greatest laymen of Southern Methodism, once told this writer that Bishop McTyeire was the greatest parliamentarian, and the greatest religious statesman ever produced by American Methodism.

Holland N. McTyeire was born in Barnwell county, S. C., July 28, 1824. There were no public school advantages in that part of the country, and just what preliminary advantages he had we do not know. However, he was graduated from Randolph-Macon College, Ashland, Va., in 1845, at the age of twenty-one. No doubt he had spent some time in a preparatory school. Randolph-Macon was the nearest Methodist institution available at that time. The date of his conversion and call to preach we have been unable to secure. No doubt his call to preach was already known in his home, when the argument was made for his education by the circuit pastor.

Holland N. McTyeire joined the Virginia Conference of the M. E. Church, South, at once after his graduation, one year after the separation of Methodism. In a short time he was transferred to the Alabama Conference and stationed at St. Francis Church, Mobile, Ala. After finishing this pastorate he was again transferred to the Mississippi Conference, and later to Louisiana. In 1851 he was elected to the editorship of the New Orleans Christian Advocate, serving in that capacity until 1858, when he was elected by the General Conference to the editorship of the Nashville Christian Advocate, the General Organ of the church. He was a delegate to the two previous General Conferences, 1854 and 1858.

Early in the war between the states, Nashville was occupied by the Union Army and all publications were suspended, as the Publishing House was used as an arsenal and hospital during the war. H. N. McTyeire gave up his editorial labors and was stationed at Montgomery, Ala., until the close of the war. At the General Conference of 1866, McTyeire was elected to the episcopacy. Perhaps no greater body of stalwart preachers were ever assembled in the Southland. Throughout the South may be seen in church parlors and in pastors' studies, a steel engraving of this famous assembly. Enoch M. Marvin was also elected bishop at this conference.

Bishop McTyeire was in the prime of his ministry when elected to the episcopacy, being only forty-two years of age, large in body, and larger in brain power. He seemed to have come to the place of power at an opportune time, as the church never needed superior leadership so much as she did then. The South was impoverished, prostrated, crushed. Nothing remained after the scourge of war and its aftermath, but an unconquerable spirit. The country was further embarrassed and humiliated by the reprehensible regime of the "Carpet Bagger" and black domination. Bishop McTyeire was one of the noble Romans which led the scattered hosts of the Church of God to victory.

God moves in a mysterious way, his wonders to perform. Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt, the New York multi-millionaire, was a widower, and by some shift of fortune, he met and married a cultured lady of Mobile, Ala. This lady was a cousin of Bishop McTyeire's wife, as fate would have it. Through this family relationship Bishop McTyeire became acquainted with the great financier.

The Commodore at once recognized in the bishop a man, and soon grew to an intimate friendship. The long story told briefly is this: Bishop and Mrs. McTyeire was once invited guests of the millionaire in their New York home. When they were leaving, Mr. Vanderbilt placed in the bishop's hand a check for $500,000, as a beginning for a Southern Methodist College, which finally became a university named for the founder—Commodore Vanderbilt.

The only stipulation was, that Bishop McTyeire was to be the regent, the president, or whatever the office of headship might be called. A large site was selected, and Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn., stood for many years as the undisputed property of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and Bishop McTyeire was the absolute custodian and head until the day of his death.

However, in all his wise and careful administration, it was said, that Bishop McTyeire was doing the thinking for the whole church until his end came; but we repeat that he made one grievous mistake in the legal incorporation of the university. But he was so absolutely sure of ownership, that he could not be made to see any breakers ahead, and he believed that the incorporation was water tight, but time has proven that it was not.

Judge E. H. East, who was the legal adviser of the bishop, took issue with him at one point; he saw the vulnerable spot, and called the Bishop's attention to it; but he could not see the loop-hole. The dear Bishop could not understand how any member of his beloved church could be other than one hundred percent loyal. "It will mean trouble, Bishop," said the wise old judge, "perhaps not in your day or mine, but it will come." And it did. The dream so wonderfully realized by a great soul has vanished. Vanderbilt University is gone, though loved devotedly by her alumni of other days. We sing of our alma mater in a subdued tone.

Bishop McTyeire made some lasting contributions to the literature of the church, as follows: "Catechism of Bible History," "Catechism of Church Government," "The Manual of Discipline," "The History of Methodism," "Rules of Order for Assemblies," "Passing Through the Gates, and Other Sermons." He was the senior bishop of the M. E. Church, South, at the time of his death, which occurred Feb. 18, 1889. He sleeps in sacred, but now alien grounds; beside him are three other stalwart leaders of the church: Bishop McKendree, Bishop Soule, and Chancellor Garland, on the campus of Vanderbilt University.

A Tiny Testament.

This Testament is bound in leather, stamped in red ink, has a wonderfully clear, large type for a small book. The type is nonpareil. The size is 2½x4x¼ in. thick, and the weight is 2 ozs. The regular price of this Testament is 75c. We are closing out 50 of them at 50c each, postpaid. Pentecostal Publishing Company, Louisville, Ky.

Gift for Girls.

A beautiful smooth leather, dark maroon color, stamped in pure gold, neat in size, 4x5½, only 2 inches thick, overlapping edges with silk headbands and marker, frontispiece for presentation purpose, a large number of beautiful sepia illustrations, maps in colors, light in weight, with a good clear, readable ruby type, beautiful quality of thin Bible paper—a Bible that would delight any young person. The regular net price of it is $2.50. We are closing out about 50 copies at $2.00 each, postpaid. Can you give anything more appropriate? Order from Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky.

NOT TO BE USED WITHOUT COPYRIGHT PERMISSION

OF ASBURY THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

Five Kinds of Prayer God Will Not Answer.

Rev. E. E. Shelhamer.

"Ye ask and receive not because ye ask amiss, that ye may consume it upon your lusts."—Jas. 4:3.

PERHAPS a better rendering of this text would be, Ye ask and receive not because ye ask amiss that ye may consume it upon your pleasures. The word lust does not always mean amateness. For instance; "Walk in the Spirit and ye shall not fulfill the lusts, (or pleasures) of the flesh."

There is a vast difference between praying and expressing pious wishes. Many people mouth over words, but not very many actually pray. We pretend to pray for wars to cease and they increase; we pray for temperance and intemperance prevails; we pray for the salvation of our children, and they become more obstinate; we pray to get out of debt and continue to drudge; we pray to get healed and continue to grunt. This leads me to say that something is radically wrong somewhere. God has either ceased to answer prayer as formerly, or there is something wrong with the way we pray.

I take it that God is the same "yesterday, today, and forever," and the fault is with us. If not, why should he say: "Bring no more vain oblations; incense is an abomination unto me; the new moons and sabbaths, the calling of assemblies, I cannot away with; it is iniquity, even the solemn meeting. Your new moons and your appointed feasts my soul hateth: they are a trouble unto me; I am weary to bear them. And when ye spread forth your hands, I will hide mine eyes from you; I will not hear; your hands are full of blood."

Now let us notice more particularly why some prayers are not answered.

1. The man who holds a grudge. "If I regard iniquity in my heart, the Lord will not hear me." Ps. 66:18. That is if I pray, then get up and go forth to follow the same old course of harboring a distant feeling toward that one who has injured me, or toward the one who is my rival, or toward those who are naturally a trial to me; yea, if I allow myself to pull off in spirit from anyone, regardless of what he had done, "the Lord will not hear me."

It is easy to do this and thousands are deceiving themselves. They say, "I do not hate him, but I dislike his ways." Are you quite sure? Why then, do you more readily speak of his faults than his virtues? Why then do you shut him out of your company and put forth no special effort to befriend him or his household? Brother, stop your hypocrisy, get rid of your inward disunion, then your prayers will unlock the heavens and bring a blessing upon you and yours.

This regarding iniquity may also mean, refusing to be open for conviction relative to a business transaction. If the other party is grieved, and feels disappointed in you, do not toss your head, but inquire what you can do to make things satisfactory. "Why not suffer wrong", financially, in order to win a brother and give wings to your prayers?

One can "regard iniquity" in his heart by failing to declare war on his carnality. This is why many are powerless in prayer; they have drifted along for months without insisting on a clear witness to holiness of heart; or they may profess to be all right but no one is stirred up as a result. The carnal mind creates weaklings in prayer.

2. The stingy man's prayer. "Whoso stoppeth his ears at the cry of the poor, he also shall cry himself, but shall not be heard." Prov. 21:13.

Whoso lives for himself and family, and makes himself believe that no one needs his assistance, that every one is getting along fairly well, and if not it is their own fault,—he who does not inquire about the needs of the poor, or the missionary cause lest he be made to feel his obligation—for such a man there is little or no hope. He may pray or preach with a great deal of apparent earnestness but God's ear is deaf to it all.

There is something about a stingy spirit that shuts up the heavens. For more than forty years in evangelistic work we have observed that it is much easier to see drunkards, harlots, and blasphemers, saved than one who is given to covetousness. There is something about liberality that brings the blessing of God. "The liberal soul shall be made fat; and he that watereth shall be watered also himself." Prov. 11:25.

In many instances where children grow up unsaved, it is due to the fact that the parents "withheld more than was meet", and let others bear the heavy burdens of supporting the work of God. Listen! The moment you become aware of the fact that any righteous cause is in need of help, you become responsible to do your full share in such support. And not to do so, is to invite the heavens to withhold the early and latter rains from your soul.

3. The Dishonest man's prayer. "He that turneth away his ear from hearing the law, even his prayer shall be an abomination." Prov. 28:9.

God has only one price on his goods. To get his favor one must renounce every open or bosom sin and walk in all past and present light. Now when any one backs down and becomes dishonest and vainly thinks he can get through without becoming so peculiar, he is turning away from hearing the law. He prefers to join a church or associate with those who are more popular. God declares that even his prayers and profession are abominable. See here! You can join one church, preach a smoother gospel one place than another, but you cannot get the smile of God cheaper in one place than another. It will require a full unconditional surrender wherever you go.

Law and grace go hand in hand. Adam Clarke declared that it required the "goodings of the law behind us and the wooings of the Gospel before us to get us from earth to heaven." Friend, be careful then how you despise and depreciate the preaching of the law. Be careful how you flatter the "dear, sweet, man," who preaches only grace and never thunders from Mount Sinai. Law produces compunction of conscience, and this must always precede the comforts of grace. In every town and city we may find a bunch of half-breeds, who have rejected some light and chose to take an easier and more popular route.

4. The Inconsiderate man's prayer. "Likewise ye husbands, dwell with them according to knowledge, giving honour unto the wife, as unto the weaker vessel, and as being heirs together of the grace of life; that your prayers be not hindered."

One of the greatest needs of the day is not a big profession on Sunday, away from home, but practical every day religion while at home. I am satisfied many prayers are hindered because husbands are inconsiderate around home. There is not that courtesy and tenderness shown that was so manifest during courtship days. This is due to several things:

1. Beastliness. Most men fail to distinguish that there is a vast difference between love and lust. They crush out real love and respect by throwing down the bars and turning their animal nature loose. Self-mastery is a thing unknown to them. Gratification is always an enemy to glorification. "As we have borne the image of the earthy, we shall also bear the image of the heavenly." When? After the resurrection? Yes, and long before. Many will never know to what heights of glory and usefulness they might have attained had they wisely practiced self-denial and moved from the basement to the upper realms of life.

2. Lack of appreciation. Men's prayers are hindered because they depreciate the true value of the "weaker vessel." It does not cost much to praise her occasionally for her good cooking or tidy housekeeping. Most men seem to think that she will cook better if they criticise a little. Or, to say the least, eat like a beast without much gratitude. They show very little "honor" to God or the wife of their bosom. A man would not commit the unpardonable sin if he occasionally volunteered to dry dishes or sweep the steps. These little acts of helpfulness give wings to family prayers and confidence way down in her heart as she listens.

3. Unkind words. No wonder children grow up to be unthankful and unholy. They hear unkind thrusts and insinuations, morning, noon, and night. Not only this, but some men are cruel enough to allow the children to treat with disrespect the one who almost lost her life to give them an existence. If there are any differences of opinion they should be calmly ironed out in private and not "bawled out" before little ones.

4. Selfishness. It might help to get quicker and greater answers to prayer, if the husband brought home something nice to the overworked wife every time he had a nice dinner down town; or if he had everything as convenient around the kitchen as he wants them around the barn. In short, if she had as many privileges, including a check book as he has. My! what answers they would both get from the skies.

True, it is a poor rule that does not work both ways. Some women are needlessly extravagant and hard to please. Some are so irritable and jealous that the meekest man on earth could scarcely keep peace with them. But again we assert that as a rule, where husbands "dwell with them according to knowledge", their prayers will be effectual in the salvation of the entire household.

5. The wavering man's prayer. "But let him ask in faith nothing wavering. For he that wavereth is like a wave of the sea driven with the wind and tossed. For let not that man think that he shall receive anything of the Lord."

The early Methodists talked a great deal about getting on "believing ground." Brother, do not say "If I only had more faith I might be healed or sanctified." Better say, "If I obeyed more implicitly, I might get an answer." There is a cause for this wavering business and nine times out of ten there are bosom sins need to be renounced; restitution needs to be made; tithes need to be paid; apologies at home; a day or so in prayer and fasting and God will appear on the scene, hell will be routed and victory will be yours. Then you will be able to sing from the heart,

"My God is reconciled,
His pardoning voice I hear,
He owns me for his child,
I can no longer fear.

With confidence I now draw nigh,
And Father, abba Father, cry."

The Wail of the Modernist is in The Land

REV. G. H. MONTGOMERY.

THE echo of victorious shouts, welling from the throats of the lovers of Truth throughout the country, has died away, there arises from the field of combat a woeful wail among the ranks of defeated Modernists. The blatant boasts of the enemies of Fundamentalism end with a cry of defeat. According to this cry, their liberty has been taken away from them, their rights have been abused, and their wisdom rejected. Ignorance has prevailed and bigotry has triumphed. Medievalism is on top while Progress pines under the debris. "Oh, Religious Freedom, thou art a martyr."

The March issue of the Review of Reviews quotes to some extent from a series of articles by Albert C. Dieffenbach in the Independent (Boston) for January 8, 15 and 22. Mr. Dieffenbach who is editor of the Christian Register, comes forward in his articles to deplore the ignorance that has wrested liberty from the hands of the Liberals. As quoted by the Review of Reviews, he attributes such ignorance and bigotry to one hundred and fifty years of "steady degeneracy of religious independence" which has climaxed in "the intolerant demands made for the first time in American history by Fundamentalist fanatics upon one Legislature after another, not in one section only, but in every part of the land."

"Victory rests with the Fundamentalists," Mr. Dieffenbach declares. "When the medieval dogmatists of our time came to do battle against the new spiritual life that was emerging in 1922, there was a great awakening among the liberal leaders, and they entered valiantly into the conflict. . . . In one church after another the holy warfare has ceased. The Fundamentalists, who are ninety percent of the Protestant congregations, have overwhelmed their freedom-seeking brethren."

It is to be hoped that the distinguished editor will live long enough to learn that such legislative steps on the part of Protestant leaders are strongly indicative of the good commonsense that prevails in religious circles even in the twentieth century. Anyone with a respectable degree of spiritual perception would recognize instantly that that which Mr. Dieffenbach designates as "the new spiritual life" is nothing more than a renewal of an ancient effort to reduce Christianity to a state of spiritual death. The old rationalistic garb of post-Reformation days has been discarded for the new garment called Liberalism. The new cloak might have been highly deceptive, but the face of the creature who donned it was recognized, and that was enough. We did, and are still doing, our best to keep subdued the arch foe of Christianity.

For despite the misleading statement that "the holy warfare has ceased," we find the fight still in progress. Ever and anon the creature of many cloaks arises and shows his teeth, and equally as often the lovers of truth arise to subdue him. One of the things that Mr. Dieffenbach deplores in the aforementioned articles is that "Seven states are already legally dominated by a religious party." This, of course, cannot be true unless that religious party constitutes the majority of the population of the seven states referred to. In such a case the religious party would have a constitutional right to dominate its own state. No man or set of men may keep the majority from ruling because of religious convictions. That would be religious intolerance, indeed.

OUR FIFTY CENT OFFER.

The Pentecostal Herald will publish this fall some of the ablest articles on evolution that have ever appeared in its columns. Evolution is taught in the schools, newspapers, magazines, novels, and text-books. This teaching breeds skepticism, irreverence, immodesty, cruelty, lawlessness and disregard for all that is sacred and holy. Give the folk a chance to see the other side by broadcasting it among the people.

The Editor will publish a series of articles on the Baptism with the Holy Ghost, showing that this gracious work of grace is not regeneration, not for sinners, but always for God's regenerated children; in fact, a second, distinct work of grace, not at, but after, regeneration. These articles will bring out the foundation facts on which the doctrine and experience of sanctification rests. We earnestly request 5,000 readers of The Pentecostal Herald who rejoice in the blessing of full salvation to put these articles in the hands of 5,000 who may be brought into the experience.

The Herald will contain a series of articles on The Evangelical Methodist League, the necessity for such an organization, and its main objective and program.

Dr. Morrison will have a series of articles on "Will the Opposition to the old Methodist Doctrine of Sanctification and the Propaganda of Modern Liberalism in Methodism make the organization of another Methodist Church a Necessity?" These articles will be reasonable, comprehensive and thought-provoking. They will be written in the spirit of candor and kindness to all concerned. We want a hundred thousand thoughtful people to read them. Send in a list of 50-cent subscribers at once. The pages of The Herald will be full of interesting matter each week.

If, as the noted editor declares, the Fundamentalists are ninety percent of the Protestant congregations, how can he say that "They have set up a monarchy in the heart of a democracy?" Such inconsistency might be overlooked in a declared ignoramus, but a man of Mr. Dieffenbach's caliber ought to be careful how and what he writes. Monarchies are not set up by the people, but by individuals. What the people do is bound to be democratic, for the simple reason it is done by the people. Ninety percent is certainly a ruling majority among the Protestants, and it is a known fact that the majority—a tremendous majority—of non-church members are in their hearts Fundamentalist Protestants; so if this majority desires to legislate against any doctrine or creed, who can consistently say that their legislation has a monarchic principle? It seems to me that it is a case of a few individuals demanding the masses to bow their knees to them. The masses answer, "No," and that hurts the individuals so much that they hurl "Monarchy" at the masses. It is very surprising how foolish and weak the "brains" and "strength" of the world can get sometimes.

Now, to get down to cold facts, just what liberty has been taken away from any one? Of what right have the Modernists been deprived? The right to profane the name of God with blasphemous teachings concerning his Son? They certainly have too much liberty there yet, for while they are prohibited in a few states from entering the state supported schools with their poison, they are still allowed to hurl it from the pulpits. Are they afraid that they cannot exert enough corrupting influences from that source? Are they grieving because we do not want them to profane the holy day that has been set apart for rest and worship? Do they feel that we are monarchic because we demand a reverence for that day instead of turning it into a day of folly, sin and multiplied vices? Are we medieval dogmatists because we want right instead of wrong, light instead of darkness, truth instead of falsehoods, facts instead of guesses, purity instead of filth, a clean press instead of a corrupt one, a home graced with love, purity and harmony instead of shattered hopes and disgraceful divorce evils? Are we so very overbearing because we desire to protect and uphold the sanctity of American youth? So far as I can see, these are the only charges to be brought against the Fundamentalist masses and, so far as I am personally concerned, I would not be afraid to face any or all of them in the Judgment. We are reminded of the words of Jesus, "Many good works have I done; for which of them do ye stone me?"

It is all very well for the Modernist to clamor for a separation of the Church and state. I agree that it is a Protestant principle, and a good one. But from certain observations I have concluded that it is not so much the separation of the Church and state that is wanted as it is a separation of Church and Christ. And it is worthy of attention that even a separation of Church and state doesn't mean separation of state and God. It is certainly commendable for any state Legislature to show a desire to keep a connection between the state and God, for "Happy is that people whose God is the Lord."

Mr. Dieffenbach further encourages us by gloomily bewailing the fact that "The Fundamentalist is not, as some believe, a Southern religious phenomenon. He is typical, innumerable, as large a part of Massachusetts as he is of Tennessee. A cross section of any state would show that America has a Fundamentalist mind."

Good for Massachusetts as a state and for America as a nation. May God preserve this faith forever, is my sincere prayer. We need it. America would dissolve more rapidly than ancient Rome if all America were modernistic, for it is written, "Righteousness exalteth a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people."

Amazing Grace.

"Amazing Grace" is one of Dr. Ridout's latest and best books. It contains the cream of his writings and study of twenty-five years. For the Holiness people it is a book to instruct, inspire and set the soul on fire. Price $1.00. Pentecostal Publishing Company, Louisville, Kentucky.

Interesting and Thrilling

Are the life stories of John G. Paton, hero of the South Seas; Martin Luther, the lion-hearted reformer; James Hudson Taylor, pioneer missionary of Inland China; David Livingstone, missionary explorer of Africa, and Chas. H. Spurgeon, prince of preachers. These books are beautifully bound in cloth and are especially attractive for young people from 10 to 20 years of age. We send them postpaid at 75c each, or the five volumes postpaid for $3.00. Pentecostal Publishing Company, Louisville, Ky.

GEHAZI THE MODERNIST.

REV. E. H. CROWSON, A.B., A.M.

(2 Kings 5:20-27).

MODERNISM is a new name for an old condition, older indeed than the time of Gehazi, the subject of the present sketch. In his conduct, however, may be traced an apt type of the false leadership of those who would draw away our church from the fundamental verities of primitive Methodism into the shifting quicksands of Unitarian subjectivism and moral irresponsibility. By studying the character of this false man we may behold more clearly the purpose and end of those who at present seduce the faith of many and profit temporarily while doing it.

1. The name Gehazi is said to mean "the valley of vision." From this it appears likely that at one time Gehazi had been a man of strong piety and fidelity to God. He had lived under the true light and had come to be the head servant to the prophet Elisha in the school of the prophets near the river Jordan. It is a noteworthy fact that the modernists of culture and reputed piety today were reared in Christian homes, around the family altar, trusting the infallible Bible, believing in the eternal Christ as Redeemer and King. They joined the ministry under this persuasion and took solemn vows to be faithful to the Church, to enforce her discipline, protect her doctrines and drive away heresies. Thus, like Gehazi, they had the background of true religion and sound doctrine and, like him, came to positions of honor, trust and service.

2. But, like Gehazi, in an evil moment they yielded to temptation. It may be that scholarly vanity, temporal honor, wealth, worldly glory and influence tempted them. In Gehazi's case it was secular prosperity that lured his soul to sin and to betrayal of trust. But we find that the mammon of unrighteousness in the person of accommodating, pagan Naaman met the tempted and unfaithful servant with a ready welcome. Of all the tools the devil loves best and welcomes most heartily, a fallen but cultured and influential preacher is chief. Contrast the unrewarded Elisha with the grasping Gehazi. Contrast the poor and persecuted circuit-rider who founded Methodism with the sleek and popular modernist who undermines it. Naaman was accustomed to buying the favor of his nation's priesthood. With some people money talks, and to them large endowments bulk more than spiritual endowments. He thought he would compensate Elisha for service and purchase future favor. But Elisha, knowing his power to be of God, would take nothing. It was left to the faithless follower to covet the refused present, and in so doing to dishonor his master. Which is better for Methodism? Palatial schools and churches that are the centers of false doctrine and immoral living; or the humble chapels and faithful ministry of the "Forgotten Man"? I for one feel that our modern Gehazis are rushing our Church to the brink of a perilous precipice. Can we not call a halt?

3. But experienced Naaman, who knew hearts and faces, was not deceived. Gehazi begged for one talent. Naaman pressed two upon him. He read the covetousness of Gehazi's heart, which was no secret to Elisha either. Men think to deceive others; but neither God nor Satan is deceived. A falsehood cemented this bargain between Naaman and Gehazi. Gehazi bowed to the foe of his people and fawned upon him for a favor. He compromised the prophet's standard of purity. What shall we say of the man who among us (but not of us!) advocates a Unitarianism whose Christ is not God? What of those who apologize, however lamely, for evolution? Like Gehazi they stand self-condemned.

False to their vows, false to their Church which supports them, compromising its standards, they cement with Mammon a bargain which brings them temporal pelf but corrupts and betrays the communion they profess, but falsely, to serve. Modern Gehazis!

4. Gehazi continues to hold his position of trust, service and honor. He brings back his booty, stores it in the tower and returns to his place to serve his master as usual. So our modernists after betraying their Church, failing to execute their vows and compromising our Methodism, return to their pulpits, to editorships, to professors' chairs, to chairmanships and presidencies. Then they pretend to serve out as usual the prescribed formulae of faith. It is a hollow mockery; a sham; a hypocrisy of the blackest hue. It is the genius of Gehazi. Here and there his tribe may be seen; it increases. Through the channels of schools, colleges, seminaries, universities they come. Their poison enters the pastors' schools; the courses in colleges; the conference courses of study; the teaching in Sunday school and Epworth League; the conventions: Gehazi is busy serving as usual, though his soul is blackened with the betrayal of a sacred trust. How can this be reconciled with their lofty professions of intellectual honesty? Why do not these treacherous Gehazis leave us to serve Naaman wholly? Answer: they are too small a caliber to please Satan or profit themselves by direct service; so they shelter themselves beneath Elisha (the Church in its profession of saving power), and there protract their detestable and iniquitous work.

5. Behold now the root of this matter. "The love of worldly gains is the root to all evil." So in this case. When Gehazi was upbraided by Elisha, the prophet went on beyond the money and garments that Gehazi had received, naming "oliveyards, and vineyards, and sheep, and oxen, and menservants, and maidservants." With his courtly garments Gehazi would make a presentable appearance. With his money he would achieve prosperity and finally gain this mighty establishment. So with modernists today. Supposed scholarship gives them universal entrance. Position is the lever whereby they hope to transform evangelical Methodism into an empire for their own enrichment and glory. The root of Gehazi's betrayal was the vision of great, personal riches. He had lost his vision of service and soul-saving, exchanging it for the covetousness that foresees wealth nearby. It may be asked: Do our modern Gehazis see souls born into the Kingdom? Not enrolled into the church register by Decision Day, card-signing, social service ten-to-win-one, or something of that sort: but born of God. How much do our Gehazis love and promote real revivals? Is not the vision of the primitive circuit-rider being exchanged for the gloating of the religious commercialist? God help us! If this is the spirit that is to rule Methodism, damnation is our portion.

6. What is the end? Ruin comes to Gehazi and to others. He is smitten with leprosy and his posterity are similarly cursed. This is the result of treachery to God and his representative. He gets his silver and garments, alright. But the raiment covers a leprous body whose filthy disease no amount of money can heal. And his seed are cursed after him. One of the most dreadful things to contemplate is the burden of curses that betrayed souls will heap upon modernistic preachers and leaders, who for a loaf of bread plunged themselves and their satellites into endless hell. Doubtless some moiety of scholarship, some glamor of position is now the portion of the modernist. But what of the hereafter? What of the leprosy that is eating out life and health and will finally isolate them and their followers to the dung-hill of eternal corruption? Beloved, this is the ruin that succeeds the betrayal of modernism.

Southern Methodism has reached the parting of the ways. Twelve years ago Northern Methodism stood where we stand now. Gehazi then was permitted to lead them. Now their Course of Study is rank with modernism, contrary to the express wish of their General Conference. And recently one of their bishops has dared to defy the orthodox stand of one of their Annual Conferences. The same tendencies are rapidly infesting us and ripening into a similar ruin. The great business that faces Southern Methodism is not the erection of churches, the projection of missions, the endowment of "forgotten men," the building of hospitals, the raising of conference collections or the securing of members. These are all important in their place. But the burning question facing us today is whether or not we will permit unevangelical, unmethodistic, anti-Christian, unscientific, ungodly living and teaching to dominate us; or whether or not we will turn to God in penitence, seek his favor, purge out heresy, expel heretics, discipline the worldly and promote a general revival that will first sanctify ourselves and then convert the world around us. This is the order of the day and the hour has struck for its consummation. To neglect it further is to plunge ourselves into irretrievable calamity.

There was a time when our Church could say: "Silver and gold have I none; but such as I have give I thee; in the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, rise up and walk." And the lame walked, the blind saw and the dead arose. Now we have silver and gold in abundance. But we are growing cold, and devoid of divine life. We are rotting while we seem to live. The leprosy of apostasy has with its fictitious whiteness driven the flush of life and health from our cheek. Is it not time to seek cleansing in the fountain that was opened in the house of David? Only the Christ can cure this dread disease. Whom shall we follow? For this is the day of choice. Whom shall we follow? Will it be Gehazi or Elisha?

The Seamless Robe.

The seamless robe
Which patient sufferers longed to touch . . .
The robe he wore when in the little boat.
He taught great truths so plainly that
The little children heard and understood . . .

Now
He hangs upon the cross,
The sport of jeering multitude,
While on the ground
Rude, cursing, jostling soldiers,
Laughing all the while,
Shake dice
To see who wears the seamless robe.

The seamless robe
Goes down the street upon the burly form
Of Roman soldier flushed with wine,
The robe,
Which once had clothed the Saviour of us all,
Now falls dejected round about
The glittering armor of great Cæsar's slave.

'Tis gone they say, long years ago. Worn out
In revelry, or sold, perchance, in far-off province
But I know

That yesterday, among the poor and sick
I caught a glimpse of white and I am sure
That in the crowd I saw the seamless robe.

R. P. MARSHAL.

The Moving Picture.

Do you know, that 20,000,000 people see the "movies" every day? Do you know, that most of them are children. Do you know that Protestant ministers are held up in ridicule on the screen, and that Catholic priests are always heroes, and that America is being taught by the movies, that there is no true religion but Catholicism. Get Dr. Wimberly's great book: "Messages for the Times." Price $1.50. Or send one new subscriber for the PENTECOSTAL HERALD, and add 50 cents—and get the book.

REPORTS FROM SOUL WINNERS

TRAVELS, TRIALS AND TRIUMPHS.

Closed a busy old year in the East. Opened the New Year at the Detroit Holiness Association Tabernacle. Was Superintendent for January and February. Was invited by the Tabernacle Council to lecture weekly (Tuesday) on "The Fundamentals" in addition to the regular services. Gave "The Infallible Book," "Virgin Birth," "Deity of Christ," "The Devil," "Scientific Facts Foretold in the Scriptures," and four lectures on the Apocalypse. These discourses drew good audiences and were much appreciated. The writer never sensed a more intelligent response. Had seekers at nearly all services. Found some of the finest laymen at the Tabernacle I ever met. These men and women have character, holiness without extravagance and fanaticism, sane leadership, generosity, initiative and brains. I never was happier than when serving this crowd. In my judgment they have the best work of its kind in America. Much of the credit for its origin and perpetuation is due to Rev. C. W. Butler, George W. Ridout, John F. Owen and T. M. Anderson beside the consecrated money and intelligence of one of the finest bodies of Christians we know. This Tabernacle meets a need in Detroit met by no other organization I know of. I know some say the need of independent movements like this is past. I don't agree with these good men but wish a work like this could be started in every great city in the United States. I believe it has a golden future. Ministers and laymen who don't belong feel perfectly at home here regardless of denominational stamp or brand. The writer has been invited to take the Superintendency for nine months but has accepted it from September to December 31, 1927.

From Detroit I went to Ann Arbor and gave three services to Mrs. Schleicher's band of saints there and thence to Ionia, for a two weeks' battle. Seekers knelt at the altar in seventeen consecutive services. Prayer is the life of this place. Here occurred one of the most remarkable conversions that ever was known in the town according to the statement of the workers. It seemed easy to get folk to God.

Lectured next to the students and faculty of the Chicago Evangelistic Institute for seven days on "Predictive Prophecy" at the request of their scholarly, high-souled and gifted President, Mrs. Iva Durham Vennard, D.D. The response to God's word among students and teachers was instant, alert, vivacious and inspirational. Had a royal time among them and re-lived my own college days at Carlisle, Pa. Preached at the Chapel services, taught the Senior Class in Prophecy and came away much appreciating the school, its faculty, its discipline, its ideals and its mental and spiritual output. I saw here the spirit of the evangelist and missionary. One of its unusual features to me was the fact that its President is not only sound on Wesleyan Holiness but very able on the intricate theme of "Prophecy." May money and students flow into this cultured School of Prophets.

Since then have seen folk seek God at Pitman, N. J., Wallingford, Pa., Dover, N. J., and Portland, Mich. Am now at Lake Odessa, Mich. Am working, watching for the ever-nearing approach of our Returning Lord. Matt. 17:5.

Evangelist John J. Hunt.

MICHIGAN REVIVALS.

We have never sent in a report of our work or whereabouts, although we have been members of The Herald family for several years. Having been invited to tell of our evangelistic efforts, we send a brief resume of some of the meetings since last October. After closing at Centreville, Mich., the county seat of beautiful St. Joseph County, we entered a three-weeks' campaign at the Lake Chapel M. E. Church, Arcola, Ind. Rev. L. C. Wisener, a Taylor University man, is the pastor there, and wanted the full gospel preached and sung. We do not know how to preach or sing any other kind, so went ahead, and the Lord gave a gracious harvest of souls. Lake Chapel is a fine country church with a good spiritual membership, eager for the truth.

The next series of meetings was at Jones, Mich., one of the points on the home charge of Miss Bonine. This meeting had not been planned in advance, no preliminary work had been done, and not a word of advertising, but there were four or five faithful holiness laymen who had remained intercessors, and because of their prayers and God's faithfulness the altars were fruitful, the church strengthened, and the community enriched. Praise God for the faithful few in every church! The pastor at Jones, Rev. Leon Manning, is just starting in the ministry. He put no strings on the evangelists but allowed and wanted the gospel in its entirety. May the Lord bless and prosper this young man!

On April 3, we began at Middleton, Mich., under the pastoral charge of Rev. Floyd N. Drake. Plans had been made and there was no time wasted; folks began seeking the Lord almost immediately. These were two weeks of blessing and looking up, both for the preachers and "preached to." Closed Easter Sunday night with notes of victory all over the house and at the altars. We found Brother and Sister Drake the same sweet-spirited pair as of yore, having labored with them twice before.

After a few days of delightful rest at Grand Haven, on our own Lake Michigan, we went on to Ravenna, Mich., where the Lord preceded us and waited to spread the richest feast of the season. There were problems here, for many had gone off after false teachers and had left a real break in the ranks. But again we found a faithful few carrying a real burden—first of whom was the pastor himself—Bro Louis E. Whittemore, who is a devoted man of God and a stickler for the old-time gospel. He and his good wife did much personal work, not stopping when the evangelists came on the scene. The first special day of prayer opened the skies and witnessed the sanctification of six of the faithful ones. From then on the altars were almost never barren. By the closing Sunday, there were between fifty and sixty souls saved, reclaimed and sanctified.

Besides the preaching, we handled all the musical end of the work, including congregational singing, special numbers, piano and other instruments; also the work with children and young people. We are now making our slate for fall and winter and have some open dates. Anyone wishing our assistance can reach us by mail at Vandalia, Mich.

Grace O. Bonine, Helen G. Riggs, Evangelists.

A HOLINESS REUNION.

When any group of people awaken to a real need, they set about to find a supply for that need. Of late, there has been a growing sentiment in the Southwest that the holiness people really needed a get-together meeting, and in response to attend the holiness reunion during the Berachah Home Anniversary at Arlington, some five or six hundred came from about ten different states and we had one of the greatest Conventions of holiness people held in the southwest for many years. There were some twenty denominations represented. Dr. H. C. Morrison, Rev. Bud Robinson did the preaching, with Mr. J. J. Douglas director of singing. The spirit of unity that prevailed throughout the five days' Convention was simply wonderful. There was scarcely a service without seekers praying through to victory. There were several saved and sanctified between services.

The missionary talks and program put on Thursday will long live in the minds of those present. Rev. Joseph E. Bates, J. D. Scott, Miss Rudolph, Rev. and Mrs. Harry Wiese, Mrs. Ritz, Rev. Abels and Mrs. Hatfield were present as missionaries who had been in service on the foreign field. The Berachah Family put on a program which resulted in five persons being saved at the altar and the missionary spirit mightily stirred the hearts of those present. So delighted were the people with this Convention, a committee was appointed to formulate plans for other Conventions. The following report of the Committee was unanimously adopted:

Report of Committee.

We recommend that there be held annually a meeting of all holiness people of the Southwest, regardless of their denominational affiliation.

We recommend that the meeting for next year, 1928, be held at Arlington, Texas, in connection with the Anniversary of the Berachah Home.

We recommend further that the following Executive Committee be elected: J. T. Upchurch, A. P. Hunt, W. H. Vance, P. L. Pierce, J. A. Williams, R. E. Fletcher, J. M. Thompson, and that this committee may add to itself as many as they desire as Advisories. This committee shall set the date for the next annual gathering, arrange for workers and expenses, and bring in recommendations for a permanent organization next year.

Signed—W. H. Vance, Chairman,
I. L. Flynn, Secretary,
J. E. Bates,
B. F. Neely,
H. C. Cagle,
P. L. Pierce,
A. P. Hunt,

Committee.

OLIVET COLLEGE CAMP MEETING AND COMMENCEMENT.

We are glad to bring to the readers of your good paper the most encouraging report in the history of Olivet College. May 18th to 29th was given over to the Commencement and Camp Meeting. The first week of this annual occasion was given over to one College program each day with evangelistic services each night.

On Sunday morning, May 22, Dr. Chapman preached the Baccalaureate sermon in the Camp Meeting Tabernacle to a great congregation. The message was fitted to the conditions and the times in which we live, and was considered by those present to be one of the greatest addresses ever delivered on this annual occasion. The Commencement address was delivered by Paul Rader of Chicago. Mr. Rader held the great congregation spellbound for more than two hours.

On Thursday, May 26, the regular session of the Board of Trustees was held. President Willingham brought us the encouraging news that he was closing the school year with every current obligation paid in full and $1,000 in the bank for this Department.

The Camp Meeting this year was unusually good. The best spirit was manifested, the greatest number of people were in attendance, and the greatest good was done of any time in the history of Olivet College. Dr. J. B. Chapman and Bona Fleming alternated in the evening preaching services. We had great altar services with many seekers and happy finders.

The music and singing were in charge of Rev. Haldor and Bertha Lillenas, of Indianapolis, Ind. We also had with us the famous Von Radio Quartet of Lawrenceburg, Tenn., and Mr. Edison Crosby, the silver bells musician. There was nothing lacking on the musical program. Uncle Bud Robinson was with us for the entire ten days. He preached every afternoon, and informed us that he was going to attend every Camp at Olivet as long as he lives and can get here.

We are glad to report that the finances of the Camp Meeting were paid and that we provided $2,700.00 for the expenses of next year's Camp. The hospitality of Olivet community cannot be excelled. President Willingham, Pastor J. E. Williams, and the good people royally entertained between nine hundred and one thousand outside visitors. Don't forget to pray for this institution.

E. O. Chalfant.

BARGERSVILLE, INDIANA.

From May 1 to 15 we held a meeting in Bargersville, Ind. This was a very unpromising field for evangelistic work. There was division among some of the people in the church which was alarming, and which impressed the people outside of the church most unfavorably regarding religion. However, there were some of the most devoted and exemplary people there that we have ever met. They recognized the unfavorable conditions, and carried a burden for the work almost intolerable, and prayed and wept by day and by night. We joined our prayers with theirs, and poured in the plain gospel truth as God helped us to do. These efforts produced deep conviction upon the unsaved and the unsanctified, and there was some visible fruit, and it was thought that the more abundant fruit would be seen later. It was feared that God's judgment would be visited upon some who had the light and refused to walk in it. Indeed, there were some indications that judgment had already been visited on some of the people there.

After closing the meeting in Bargersville, we spent some time at Olivet College, Illinois, where the annual Commencement and Convention was held. The Lord poured out his Spirit in copious showers, and many were converted and sanctified, and the saints were greatly blessed. No doubt others will give a more extended account of the work there in the holiness papers.

From Olivet we hastened on to Wilmore, Ky., the seat of Asbury College, where another Commencement and Convention was held. The people gathered from far and near, and the blessing of the Lord was upon the various services, and souls sought and found pardon and purity.

From Wilmore we went to Cincinnati, Ohio, where the camp meeting, under the auspices of God's Bible School, was in full swing. God's Revivalist will give full account of the work there.

In the last two days we have received four invitations for special revival meetings, and in a few days we will be afield again. We have a few dates for the summer not yet taken, and for fall meetings. Persons desiring to correspond with us relative to dates should address us, 1350 Grace Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio.

J. L. Glascock.

IN THE NORTHWEST.

These are good days with us preaching this wonderful salvation in the great Northwest country. Since our last report we have preached in Washington, Canada and Oregon. We have been much impressed with seeing seekers at the altar from several nations. A large Oklahoma Indian, who had walked nearly two thousand miles, came into the meeting and was beautifully saved. An Irish woman after seeking two nights was mightily filled with the Holy Ghost. A French girl was a persistent seeker and was richly blessed of the Lord. A Swede, a young man, was powerfully reclaimed and filled with the Holy Spirit. He had backslidden over failing to tithe. He said when he began tithing his wages were raised four times, then he quit tithing and used the Lord's money to buy an automobile, then his wages were cut four times and placed back where they were when he began to tithe, then he could not meet the payments on the car and he lost it. He said, "I lost my religion, and my karr, and my hives, and evything, and it does not pay to go back on te Lord." Many people know the Swede is right in his conclusion.

Among others, several Canadians prayed through in the old-fashioned way. We were preaching in Canada in a little church near a government whiskey house; when the altar call was made the Holy Spirit fell on the people, the altar quickly filled, and several prayed through and arose shouting. The excitement caused a goodly number of men to rush out of the places of sin and they came into the church and looked on with great seriousness. A German, working at a large saw mill, was richly blessed of God. A Syrian woman was brightly saved, and a Norwegian woman was blessedly saved the first service she attended. This wonderful salvation works among all nations. I would be glad if I could preach around the world before I go to heaven. Kindly remember us in prayer. At present we are in the battle at Portland, Oregon, and go next to Vancouver, Wash. With prayer and love for all the family of the Lord,

M. M. Bussey and Wife.

If practically and experimentally we lean on the arm of Christ, it shall be yet seen in these last days how happy the disciples of the Lord Jesus may be, though everything may be dark and gloomy.—George Muller.

THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD

Published Weekly by
Pentecostal Publishing Company
523 So. First St., Louisville, Kentucky.

OUR CONTRIBUTORS

Rev. G. Whitefield Simonson	Rev. Len G. Broughton	Rev. Bud Robinson
Rev. O. G. Minglehoff, D.D.	Rev. L. R. Akers, D.D.	Rev. Henry Ostrom
Rev. Richard W. Lewis, D.D.	Rev. G. W. Ridout, D.D.	Rev. C. M. Griffith
Rev. Andrew Johnson, D.D.	Rev. P. F. Asher, B.D.	Rev. J. H. Smith
Rev. C. F. Wimberly, D.D.	Rev. E. E. Shelhamer	Rev. C. W. Ruth
	Rev. J. B. Culpepper

Six Months in Advance$.75
One Year in Advance 1.50
Foreign Countries 2.00

CONCERNING SUBSCRIPTIONS

Subscription Discontinued When Time Is Out.
In ordering address changed give both OLD and NEW address. Write all names plainly with pen and ink or typewriter.
Notify us promptly of any irregularities in receiving your paper.
For distribution, to secure new subscribers, sample copies will be sent free on application.
Remit by Registered Letter, New York Exchange, Express, or Post Office Money Order.

(Continued from page 1)

that improvement is impossible, and for the protection of others he must confine them. They being immortal, their confinement is eternal.

If God had created a decent, comfortable hell the crowd that is bent on going there would soon turn it into a pit of horrible torment. They would not have a Bible, a Christian, a church, a holiness preacher, a prayer meeting. They hated good on earth and they would not allow it to exist in hell if it should happen to get in there. Look what unbelieving sinners made out of Belgium, Verdun, Russia, and Chicago. Wicked men and women make demons out of themselves and would turn this earth into hell, without a Bible, a church, an altar of prayer, a sober man or a virtuous woman, if they could.

Bishop, did you read in the May issue of World's Work the article on "Atheism beckons to our Youth?" Startling stuff. Meanwhile our college presidents at Memphis pass resolutions that seem favorable to the teaching of the vagaries of evolution, and give comfort and encouragement to skeptical and conceited youth. At the same time, Rice and Rall teach our young preachers in summer schools—treason!

There is much I want to write to you about, but this letter is too long now.

Your brother,

H. C. MORRISON.

A Chapter from My Autobiography

CHAPTER XXIII.

MY PENTECOST.

WHEN I joined the Kentucky Conference of the M. E. Church, South, there was only one man in that body whom I knew, who professed the experience of entire sanctification, Rev. W. B. Godbey. About the time of my admission into the conference there was some agitation on the subject of the "Higher Life", and here and there a few people were claiming a wonderful baptism with the Holy Ghost, which brought them abiding purity and perfect peace.

The noted evangelist, Rev. George O. Barnes, had much to say on this subject, but he so mixed it up with predestination, final perseverance, Universalism and the most extreme notions about divine healing, that I was prejudiced against the doctrine, rather than drawn to it. I heard Brother Barnes preach a few times, and he was evidently full of the love of Christ in those days. His eloquence, pathos, and magnetism were wonderful indeed. There is no doubt but, under his preaching, a number of persons were led to an entire consecration, a perfect trust, and full salvation. While such persons may have been unsound in their theology, yet their sweet experiences counted for much and aroused considerable interest on the subject of sanctification.

Brother Barnes was turned out of the Presbyterian Church because of some charges of heresy, and not especially for his views on the "Higher Life." For a time he was anti-church, then joined the Episcopal Church, became a sort of Universalist in his views and, last of all, joined Dowie. I think the extravagant admiration, laudation and praise of the people were the cause of his drifting about. Ministers of the gospel can stand sanctification, persecution, misrepresentation, almost anything, but they cannot stand glorification. That belongs to the next world.

The sanctification of Rev. John Keen, of the Louisville Conference, marked an epoch in the history of the Holiness Movement in Kentucky. Foster Hayes, one of the truest of men, and Rev. D. S. Campbell came into the experience. Horace Cockrill was deeply interested in the subject, much in prayer and talked with me about this great experience. I held on to the growth theory, but believed that the brethren who professed the definite experience of a second work of grace, were getting something of spiritual value to them. Meanwhile, Cockrill became an earnest seeker, and was powerfully sanctified. The blessing fell upon him one Saturday while riding his circuit on horseback. This profoundly interested me and put me to thinking seriously, and praying more earnestly. Letters passed between us constantly, he urging me to enter in.

Dr. J. H. Young was assisting me in a meeting in the Highlands, and we went to Brother James Southgate's to dinner one day. Brother Southgate coming out from Newport, brought me a letter from Brother Cockrill. I excused myself, and went out into the hall to read the letter, and as I read it, the truth broke in upon me like an inspiration; I saw the doctrine and experience of full salvation as clearly as the sun in a cloudless noonday sky. My whole heart said, "It is the truth," and I laughed and wept for joy. It seemed as if the following conversation went on within my breast: "I am the Lord's child. Yes, but not his holy child. He wants me to be holy, but I cannot make myself holy. That is so, but he can make me holy." "Yes, he can," was the response of my whole heart. I saw clearly the reasonableness of it all, and the will and power of God in the matter. I felt assured that I should return to my boarding house after dinner, go to my room, and receive the blessing as a free gift of God.

Dinner was announced a few minutes later; after dinner I was anxious to be off for home, but sat awhile with the friends. The Spirit urged me to go home, so I excused myself and started down the avenue for home. I suppose the distance from Brother Southgate's to Brother Taliaferro's was about three quarters of a mile. I stopped at four different homes on the way and had prayer with the families. My experience was gracious, and my heart was aglow with the assurance of my acceptance with God, and of what I was about to receive.

While I was in prayer in one of the homes Dr. Young passed down the Avenue and went up to my room. When I made my last pastoral call I hurried home, ran up the front steps, fully expecting to meet the Lord in prayer in my study, and receive the sanctifying grace. The Spirit taught me to expect a gift.

When I rushed into my room I was quite disappointed to find Dr. Young awaiting me, for I longed to be alone with Christ. "Well, Morrison," said he, "I think we had as well close this meeting; I don't think we shall have a revival." "No, indeed," said I, "we must not close; we are having a revival now. I have prayed with four families since I left you, and they were all melted to tears. The meeting is just taking hold." He replied, "Yes, but I think I had as well go home, for we are not going to have an awakening at this time." "Why, Doctor," said I, "the power of God is all over this hill." Throwing up my hands, I said, "the power of God is in this room; I feel it now." Instantly, the Spirit fell on me and I fell backward on a divan, as helpless as a dead man. I was conscious of the mighty hand of God dealing with me. Dr. Young leaped up, caught me in his arms, and called me again and again, but I was powerless to answer.

Just as I came to myself and recovered the use of my limbs, a round ball of liquid fire seemed to strike me in the face, dissolve, and enter into me. I leaped up and shouted aloud, "Glory to God!" Dr. Young, who still had me in his arms, threw me back on the divan and said, "Morrison, what do you mean? You frighten me. I thought you were dying. Why did you act that way?" "I did not do anything, Doctor," said I, "the Lord did it." I arose and walked the floor, feeling as light as a feather.

I had not read any books, nor heard preaching on the subject of sanctification, with the exception of one sermon, and had failed to grasp the truth in that one. Would God, I had been taught the duty and privilege of testimony. My first impression was to tell my friends, but a strong impression came to me not to tell, for fear of seeming boastfulness and giving offense. For some days I had a wonderfully sweet experience, prayed and preached with unusual unction. Oh, if I could have met with some experienced person to guide me! Gradually, the warm glow left my heart, and I was sadly conscious that my wonderful blessing was gone.

That event marked an epoch in my life and ministry, and the powerful effect, in a gracious sense, has never left me. I would not go back of it for the whole world. Other struggles and victories followed, of which I shall write in later chapters.

(Continued)

Commencement at Taylor University.

It was my good fortune to be chosen by Dr. John Paul and the graduating class at Taylor University to deliver the Commencement Address at the close of school, June 15.

I was detained at our tent meeting in Kansas and got to Taylor too late to see Brother Will Huff and Tony Anderson who had been preaching for some days during the closing exercises of the school. Brother and Sister Thomas had been conducting devotional services and missionary meetings with their usual good cheer and unctuous talks. It is interesting to note the way in which these excellent people have found so wide a sphere of usefulness in this country, and how large a place they have found in the confidence and love of the people.

I arrived at Taylor Tuesday night in time to be present at some of the exercises which were interesting and instructive, and revealed native talent and careful training. This was my first visit to Taylor for many years, and I note with pleasure the large improvements that have been made since my last visit. The last addition to the plant, just completed, is a splendid dormitory for girls, very attractive and commodious, well adapted to the uses for which it is intended. Mr. M. H. Gaar, a landscape artist and nurseryman, has laid off and beautified the campus with trees, shrubbery and flowers, giving the place a beautiful setting.

The Legal Hundred was represented by a large body present, and a number of the alumni were on hand. There was a fine feeling and a hopeful outlook for the future of the institution.

I spoke to a great throng in the Auditorium Wednesday morning, while an electrical apparatus enabled a large number to hear out on the campus. After taking dinner with Dr. Paul and his interesting family, I hurried away to catch my train for our tent meeting in Wellington, Kan.

Yours for the upbuilding of our fall salvation schools,

H. C. MORRISON.

SELF-CENTERED.

MRS. H. C. MORRISON.

HERE is no character in either sacred or profane history, to which the above title can be more appropriately applied, than Saul. He furnishes a wide and diversified study of human nature. The characteristics of Saul's life are more fully displayed in his attitude toward David, than in any other way. We recall the incident which first aroused his suspicion as to David's popularity.

It was the custom of the Israelitish women to go out to meet the warriors after a successful battle, and on a certain occasion, they had come out to meet Saul, but instead of being pleasing to him, it provoked the deepest jealousy for when one chorus would sing, "Saul hath slain his thousands," another one would sing more vehemently, "and David his ten thousands." This threw Saul into a fit of violent frenzy and a bitter hatred sprang up in his heart for David. When David was called in to play on his harp that he might appease the evil spirit that possessed Saul, it only seemed to intensify his hatred and he cast his javelin at David, but he escaped from Saul's presence.

There is a peculiar thing about Saul's attitude toward David. It is said that Saul was more afraid of David "because Jehovah was with him and was departed from Saul." Thus we see David's upright walk had to be acknowledged, even by his most bitter enemy.

What was the secret then of his animosity? It was that great big ego which so often raises a disturbance in the camp when some one seems to be preferred above them. Saul had no fault to find with David, but he could not bear to hear another praised above himself. The prophet had told Saul that his kingdom should be given to a better than he, so he eyed suspiciously any one whose popularity pointed in that direction.

Saul was too small, morally speaking, to live beyond himself; he was the center of his life and consequently his horizon was narrowed in proportion to its center. Some one has said, "The radius of a man's life will depend on its center," and those who have studied Saul's history know how well this applies to his case.

Whittier had something akin to this in mind when he said,

"Change the dream of me and mine

To the truth of Thee and Thine."

Some one has suggested that we get rid of envy by starving it to death. When we find an envious, jealous thought about to enter our minds, let's counteract it by introducing a pure, kind thought which will serve as poison to the evil one. The most successful way is to pray for those who would wish us harm and thereby strangle the intruder in the atmosphere of prayer. Envy is a terrible enemy of the soul, yet because of its commonness, we are likely to think too lightly of its subtle power. Envy crucified the Lord Christ and sold Joseph into Egypt. Solomon says, "Jealousy is cruel as Shélol; the flashes thereof are flashes of fire." There is a fable that at twilight a great bell in heaven peals forth wondrous music and any one on earth may hear it if he has put away from his soul all strife and envy and hatred. In the language of another we would say,

"So, then, let us ponder a little—
Let us look to our hearts and see
If the twilight bell of the angels
Could ring for you and me."

TO THE HERALD READERS:

There has recently been a change in the personnel of the Circulation Department. No new policies have been adopted but we pledge faith with the old and shall exert every effort to carry on the work of this department with the greatest efficiency under the guidance and strengthening of the Holy Spirit.

It is our duty to see that each subscriber gets a copy of The Pentecostal Herald every week. We are human and liable to make mistakes, so are the employees of the Post Office. But should there be any irregularity in the weekly arrival of your Herald it will be a personal favor to us to be notified of it at once. We are at your service so please feel free to call upon us at any time for information regarding your subscription, etc.

There are many of you who hand your copy of The Herald to others. It is evidence of your interest in their soul's salvation. If at any time you think of a friend to whom you wish a sample copy of The Herald to be sent, we shall be pleased to have the name and address, and assure you that your wish shall be granted. Speak to your neighbors about The Herald. Tell them of the strength and inspiration which it brings into your home; in this way you can be of no small influence in circulating the Gospel of a full salvation.

Truly the field is white unto the harvest. Believe us, as servants of the Master, always to be putting forth our best efforts in the furtherance of his Kingdom.

F. D. MORRISON,
Circulation Manager.

The Grace of Humility.

A. W. ORWIG.

Of all the graces or fruits of the Holy Spirit there is none more lovely than humility. It is a jewel worthy the pursuit of all, and needed by all. Where true humility exists, all the rest of the Christian graces will more freely abound. The poet Moore expresses the thought thus:

"Humility, that low, sweet root,
From which all heavenly virtues shoot."

All men admire humility, even the bad, but detest pride. God also abhors pride, but commends, commands, and loves humility. In order to show how he honors humility, he says: "I dwell with him that is of a contrite and humble spirit." In a proud heart he can never dwell. The first of seven special sins, mentioned in Proverbs, which God hates, is pride. The apostle James says, "God resisteth the proud, but giveth grace to the humble." Peter says the same thing.

We may judge of the great importance of humility from the divine command to be clothed or girded with it. "Be clothed with humility," are the express words. Again, we are commanded to "put on humbleness of mind." What more appropriate and glorious dress can we put on? How infinitely superior to the gay apparel of the world! Paul speaks about "serving the Lord with all humility of mind." He felt the need of keeping at the foot of the cross. He exhorts that no one "think of himself more highly than he ought to think." And Peter admonishes thus: "Humble yourselves under the mighty hand of God." When St. Augustine was asked, "What is the first article in the Christian religion?" he answered, "Humility." And when asked what the second was, he again replied, "Humility." And on being asked the third time, he still insisted that it was "Humility." Its importance and blessedness cannot be overestimated.

But let us not suppose that we can acquire the higher altitudes of humility by our own efforts. We can, indeed, and ought constantly to cultivate humility. We can do this by prayer, the study of God's word, and reading the lives of eminently holy and humble people—also by such other exercises of mind and soul as shall help to crucify self and destroy all pride. But only when done with the aid of the Holy Spirit can we rise to any degree of eminence in any of the graces of the Spirit. Depraved human nature knows little or nothing of real humility.

I have intimated that greatness and humility are often beautifully blended in certain characters. It was so with the immortal Lincoln. A favorite poem of his was the one entitled, "Why should the spirit of mortal be proud?" While he was President of the United States he often gave evidence of being possessed of a truly meek and lowly spirit. It was that same spirit which doubtless helped to exalt him to so lofty a position.

When the Emperor Frederic, of Germany, was sick, he ordered the prayer for the Emperor to be changed. The old form had been that prayer be made for "His Imperial Majesty, the Emperor Frederic." But he gave orders that the people pray for "Thy servant Frederic, the emperor."

The great Dr. Adam Clarke, the Commentator, and who was called "an ocean of learning," was a conspicuous example of humility. Often did his friends endeavor in vain to get him to write his autobiography. Just a little while before his demise could he be prevailed upon to write a sketch of his very early life, because, as he said, no one else could know his feelings or God's dealings with him in his childhood. He left it to others to write the balance.

Of the godly McChesney it is said that he used to pray: "Oh, for a closer communion with God till soul and body, head and heart, shine with a divine brilliancy; but oh, for a holy ignorance of their shining!" In other words, he desired a humility without one vain thought concerning it—a perfect humility.

No Paper Next Week.

We promise our readers fifty issues of THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD during the year, it being our custom to skip the issue of Christmas week and Fourth of July week. Please to let our readers make note of this fact and not be disappointed when their paper does not come.

The Tents are in the Field.

A number of the tent workers of The Evangelical Methodist League are out in revival work. Let every member of The League pray daily for the presence of the Holy Ghost with every group of workers. Salvation is our slogan. Let a great cry go up to God for the gracious manifestation of his presence in the salvation of the people. With his help, we shall bring the good news of full redemption to many thousands of souls this summer. On with the revival!

H. C. MORRISON.

Will We Sell Peanuts In Africa?

Think of this striking suggestion! But if you will read the chapter bearing this title in that remarkable book, by Dr. C. F. Wimberly, "Messages for the Times," you will realize, that it is not an idle play on words. Get this book. This chapter is but one of twenty-three, each one an eye-opener. Get the book. Price $1.50, or given free for two subscribers to the PENTECOSTAL HERALD.

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS

Dear Aunt Bettie: You may be surprised at a young minister wanting to be one of your band, but I am very youthful in appearance and people almost invariably guess my age wrong. I feel as young as any of your band and can run and play with even small boys and girls and they seem to enjoy it. I was at Mt. Lake Park, Md., two years ago attending a holiness camp meeting, when I received the blessing of sanctification. I had been hungering and thirsting after righteousness, had prayed the fifty-first Psalm and read some of The Pentecostal Herald. I can well remember what a blessing this paper was. As I read it the tears would flow down my cheeks and I realized there was something better in the Christian life. I was urged by my pastor to go to this camp meeting, and went, and although I was hungering after holiness I was somewhat doubtful as to what these sanctification folks were like. When I arrived at Mt. Lake Park I saw and heard and judged for myself. I already had an A1 dose of conversion and I knew religion when I saw it. So, the very first night of the meeting, after Dr. John Paul preached on "The Spirit and the bride say come," I went to the altar, the only candidate that evening, and made a full surrender. Dr. Andrew Johnson was called on to pray and I think it was while he prayed that the fire fell. It seemed as if all the religion I had was trying to get out my mouth and at the same time God was pouring in more. I praise God for lifting me out of sin and shame and saving and sanctifying my soul. I like to preach. One hundred and twenty-two have been saved in my five meetings on my circuit since January. One hundred and ten were saved in three of the meetings. Modernistic, Fosdick, ministers have laughed at me because I do not believe the unfounded hypothesis of evolution or, more properly speaking—devilution, but I notice that none of them have been blessed in winning souls. I believe profanity, booze, tobacco, the modern dance, cards, and the theater, to be the devil's big six. I like long hair and modest dressing in girls. But I'm taking too much space.

Gaston R. Coyner.

214 N. Walnut St., Philippi, W. Va.

Dear Aunt Bettie: As I have never written a letter to The Pentecostal Herald I was wondering if I would put on my specks and try if you dear ones would just move along a little bit, squeeze together a little closer and make room for another little girl. I am not very big but I would like a little space just to tell you dear cousins how I do enjoy reading your letters. I am real glad there are some of you like Ivan Allen Insko, of Fisherville, Ky., Mary C. McDonald, of Laurelville, Ohio, and Arthur Grinden, of Beaver Falls, Pa., who are getting old enough to begin to see the more serious side of this life and are thinking of spending their time, talent and space to a better use than to tell so much about how they look, how they wear their hair and the color of their eyes. God made us all after his own image and if we get our hearts right and seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness all these things will be added unto us and the light of his great love will shine out from all our faces. When I read your good letters I like to know how old you are, how young you are, as it gives me an insight on how far along on the King's highway you are for your age. S. H. Doughty, your letter was so good and the verse of memories of your mother was beautiful. Would to God we had more mothers in these days whom their children could rise up and call blessed. Aunt Bettie is so good to her large family of boys and girls; it surely is a blessing that there is someone with heart room enough to take us all in and mother us, even though she does feel like the "old woman who lived in a shoe." I feel as though I am one of her children, as only nine years of my life I knew a real mother. I was 5 years old April 12, with an 0 behind the 5, but you know that is zero and means nothing, but in years it means 45 with 5 more added, so all who can guess my age write to me.

Mrs. Mary M. Roberts.
Rt. 2, Tisben, N. Dak.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a Kentucky girl join your happy boys and girls? I am twelve years old. I would like to know if any of the cousins have my birthday? If so, I would like to hear from them. My hair is brown, eyes blue. My mother takes The Herald. I enjoy reading the tenth page. I go to Sunday school and church as much as I can. I belong to the M. E. Church. I go to the Burkesville school. I am in the sixth grade. I will answer all letters received.

Nellie Smith.
Burkesville, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a Florida boy join your happy band of boys and girls? There! I knew you would. I am four feet, six inches tall, have dark brown hair and blue eyes and light complexion. I am ten years of age and my birthday is May 15. Have I a twin? I agree with Ivan Allen Insko about the cousins writing more worthwhile news, still the letters are very interesting at that. I have no pets except a baby sister. Florida is about the most beautiful state Uncle Sam has, I believe. It has no high mountains, but it has gentle, rolling slopes in place of them. It is true that the summers are rather hot, still we are hardly ever without a gentle breeze. I love nature, and now as I sit by the window writing this letter I can hear the crickets singing, the frogs croaking and a whippoorwill saying "Jack-married-the-widow," in my ear. I live on a farm, so if you cousins will all write to me I will tell you about a farm, and I promise to answer all letters I receive. I hope Mr. W. B. is out for an airing when this arrives.

Your lonesome cousin,

Madison Bryant.
Kathleen, Fla.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I have been a silent reader of your very interesting letters for almost a year and I certainly enjoy them all very much. I owe my acquaintance to The Pentecostal Herald to Rev. A. S. Beck, evangelist. This village was blessed with his presence during three wonderful revivals in the last three years, and he will be back in June. During the last revival he handed me a sample copy of The Herald. I at once forwarded my subscription and have been enjoying its weekly visits ever since. I certainly enjoy reading it from cover to cover and every word is sweet to the soul. Jesus is a wonderful Savior. He is always near us to guide and comfort in time of trouble and sorrow. I am so glad I chose Jesus as my Savior, because life has been so happy. I have dark, long hair and eyes, and am five feet and six inches tall. I have a Christian father and mother, also four brothers. Cub Run is a small village with only one church in which we have preaching every first Sunday afternoon and evening and prayer service once a week.

Bertha Cave.
Cub Run, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I enjoy reading the letters on page ten. My mother has taken The Herald for some time. I am a red-headed boy, fifteen years old and in the eleventh grade. I have taken cartooning lessons for nearly a year. I also can play the trumpet. Last year I played in two different bands all summer. I was saved when I was quite small and I thank the Lord for it. It pleases me to read of all the Christian cousins in The Herald. I heard Brother Morrison preach at University Park, Ia., and I think he certainly is a wonderful man. God bless you, Aunt Bettie, and all of the cousins.

John D. Cheers.
Box 2, Ariske, Ia.

Dear Aunt Bettie: School is over for this term. We have a nice little two-teacher school. The old building was burned last fall and while the carpenters were erecting the new building we had school in an old church house. We now have a new church house, which has just been dedicated, and a new school building also. We organized a Sunday school a few weeks ago. This community is getting out of the rut in which it has been so long. This county had county-wide graduating exercises and the members of the highest grade in all the county and many small town schools took part. About 160 boys and girls received diplomas. I graduated from the ninth grade of Sandale school. Dr. Winfield, of the Lon Morris College, made a good talk in the afternoon.

Tinna Belle Ellison.
Hawkins, Tex.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I have been a silent reader of The Herald for many years, as my parents took it when I was a child. I am married and have a home of my own and enjoy its weekly visits. My husband and I are trying to live Christian lives. We have two precious little boys and we take them to Sunday school most every Sunday. I was converted at a good, old-fashioned camp meeting when I was twelve years old and have always tried to live a life that would let those around me know that I was a Christian. I was raised by a Christian father and mother, for which I am very thankful. I feel the need of right living today more than ever before. As this is my first attempt to write to your page, I would like to see it in print.

Mrs. Ethel Moore.
Rt. 6, Box 58, Cullman, Ala

Dear Aunt Bettie: This is my first letter to your valuable paper. I certainly enjoy reading page ten, although I do not see many letters from our boys and girls in Canada. We have an Interdenominational camp meeting in our town every year. The date set for it this year was the 5th to the 19th of June. I live near Wolfe Lake which is a branch of the Rideau Lakes. There are thirteen cottages on the lake, some of which belong to people from the States who come every summer. I am about five feet, ten inches tall, have brown eyes and brown hair and weigh about one hundred and fifty. I am eighteen years old. Who has my birthday, July 27?

John H. Bresee.
Westport, Ontario.

Dear Aunt Bettie: How are you and all the cousins? I am a good bit better than I was. I took sick Jan. 5, 1927, and am still sick. I went to the hospital Jan. 7, and haven't gone to Sunday school or school until last Sunday. I went to Sunday school. I am not going to school yet. The doctor does not allow me to climb hills. I am glad to see so many of the cousins Christians and trying to serve the Master. I am saved and sanctified, and trying to live for him. I have a pet dog named Prince, and some chickens and rabbits. Cousins, I think it would be a good idea to tell what we want to make out of ourselves. I want to be a missionary in Africa. I want all the cousins that will to write to me, no matter which boys or girls. I like to receive letters and I like to answer them.

Juanita Ames.
P. O. Box 238, Bethesda, O.

Dear Aunt Bettie: May I join your band of happy girls and boys? I think you will let me. This is my first letter to The Herald and I hope to see it on page ten. Now I will describe myself. I have brown hair, blue eyes, and am four and one-half feet tall. My birthday is August 29. I will be twelve then. I am in the sixth grade and I have passed every year. I think we will have to shake the Maryland boys and girls up from their sleep because the other states are beating us all to pieces. E. Pauline Edwards, Wakefield, Ky., I guess your first name to be Emma. If any one will write to me I will be very glad to answer all letters received.

Eleanor Christine Bounds.
Laurel, Md.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I have become so interested in page ten in the dear old Herald I thought I must write a few lines to you and the cousins. Some ten or twelve years ago Dr. Morrison came to Seattle and held meetings in the Methodist Protestant Church. He stayed with us from Saturday until the next Wednesday, and

Gospel Tents

Smith Manufacturing Company.
DALTON, GA.
22 Years in Business

J. H. DICKEY
of

BARRETT, ROBINSON & DICKEY

General Insurance—Bonds, etc., solicits your patronage.

7th Floor, Columbia Bldg.
Louisville, Ky.

200 Sheets 100 Envelopes

PERSONAL STATIONERY

High Grade White Bond Paper, size 5 1/2 x 7 inches, with envelopes to match. Every sheet and envelope printed in black type up to 4 lines, with your name, business, and address

$1⁰⁰

This Stationery also makes an IDEAL GIFT. Shipment within 10 days after receipt of order. ORDER NOW!

Pentecostal Pub. Co.,
Louisville, Ky.

Gentlemen: Enclose please find $1.00 for which send me postpaid, a box of your Personal Stationery consisting of 200 sheets of Paper and 100 Envelopes printed as follows:

To avoid errors write or print clearly then got a place closer to church. He was a busy man, going about doing good; was on his way to Ferndale camp meeting. I heard some excellent sermons. Today I rejoice to know that we have a Savior, one who saves to the uttermost. I go to the M. E. Church. Our pastor is Rev. H. W. Middleton and we like him very much. He held revival meetings on this charge with Miss Anna McGhie as evangelist, and many precious souls found Jesus. I have taken The Herald for some time and think I must not miss one paper as it has done me much good. My birthday is Oct. 22; I am sixty-one years young.

Mrs. E. C. Johnson.
Rt. 2, Mansfield, Ohio.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.

A mother desires The Herald family to pray for her son.

E. B. B.: "Please to ask The Herald family to pray that I may be healed, and that my faith may be strengthened."

ALLURING ARIZONA.

William Hamilton Nelson

A Handsomely Printed Book With Ten Beautiful Illustrations on Copper.

Unfolding in picture and story Arizona's scenic and historical greatness from the days of the Cliff Dwellers up to the present hour.

Written from direct observation and research.

Contents: The Casa Grande, the Cliff Dwellers, Montezuma's Castle and Well, the Spanish Explorations, Painted Desert, Petrified Forest, Indian Picture Writings, Hopi Indian Architecture, Hopi Snake Dance, the Apache Trail, and Arizona Today. Price, $1.50, postpaid.

Pentecostal Publishing Company
Louisville, Ky.

FALLEN ASLEEP

DUNHAM.

Edmund Sheon Dunham came of New England Puritan and Scotch Presbyterian ancestry, and the uncompromising standards of Christian living which were ever before him reflected his lineage. He himself was born at Louisville, Ky., on February 1, 1844, the son of William Henry and Eliza McLean Dunham. When he was two years old his parents moved to Urbana, O., and a year later to Bellefontaine, where his boyhood was passed in a village in which the influence of pioneer traditions was still strong and where boys were expected, as a matter of course, to learn the use of the rifle and shot gun. "Ned" Dunham, as he was known to his school-fellows, became an expert marksman.

Dr. Dunham's maternal grandfather, Colonel William McLean, was a brother of Chief Justice McLean and was converted under the preaching of Rev. John Colliers. Dr. Dunham's father was an Episcopalian, but finding no society of that denomination in Bellefontaine when he moved there in 1847, he attended and supported the Methodist Church. Dr. Dunham himself was converted under the preaching of his uncle, the Rev. Edmund W. Sheon, a distinguished minister of the Methodist Church, South. He soon felt a call to preach, but fearful of his own talents he went into business and became a traveling salesman for A. P. C. Bonte & Co., of Cincinnati. In the meantime he had married Helen Thrift, of Bellefontaine. Of this marriage two children were born, one of whom, Mrs. George W. Blake, survives and is living in Delaware. As a salesman Dr. Dunham was unqualifiedly successful, but the call he had first as a boy was ever in his mind and heart, and eventually he yielded. He received a local preacher's license, and then began a course of self education, which he pursued with the intense application that has always been so characteristic of him. In 1873 he entered the Old Central Ohio Conference on trial, and was assigned first to the Millbury circuit. A few months later he married Anna H. Sigler, who was then principal of the High School at Bucyrus, Ohio. Of this marriage five children were born, of whom four survive, among them the Rev. Samuel E. Dunham, who entered his father's conference in 1906. The others living are Sturgis S. Dunham, of New York, Florence R. Dunham, of Bloomington, Ind., and Edmund S. Dunham, of Memphis, Tenn.

While pastor at Carey, Ohio, he became interested in the old Wyandott Indian Mission Church near Upper Sandusky. He joined the late Rev. N. D. C. Love in urging the Methodist Church to restore the building and preserve it as one of the historic shrines of Methodism, and was instrumental in finding the deed of the property which had been lost. After Millbury he served in successive appointments at East Toledo, Montpelier, Liberty Center, Monroe, St. Toledo, Wauseon, Carey, Bluffton and Richwood.

The study of John Wesley's writings aroused in Dr. Dunham a deep interest in scriptural holiness. Soon convinced of its truth he adopted it unreservedly. This led naturally to the conviction that his work should be essentially evangelistic, with the result that as early as 1890 he began to plan his entry into that field. In 1893 he felt that the time had come, and at the conference held that fall he declined pastoral appointment, in order that he might devote the rest of his active years to evangelism. In this step he was encouraged by such men as Bishop Mallalieu, Bishop Ninde, Bishop Joyce, the Rev. Sheridan Baker and his son, the Rev. L. H. Baker, of the East Ohio Conference, all of whom preached the doctrine which he had so ardently embraced.

Dr. Dunham's success in his new field was immediate. He was called to conduct evangelistic meetings in nearly every state in the Union, and under Bishops Mallalieu, Ninde, Joyce, and Wilson, he conducted pentecostal services at the Conferences over which they presided. He was especially successful in camp meeting work, such as was conducted at Mountain Lake Park, Md., and Red Rock Park, Minn.

Dr. Dunham was for several years editor of the Christian Standard, one of the oldest periodicals devoted to the cause to which his life was given, and after the Christian Standard was consolidated with the Christian Witness he became one of the editors of the latter, in charge of a special department. This work he continued almost to the week of his death.

After twenty years of labor in his chosen field, during most of which period he was Conference Evangelist, he found that his physical powers had failed to such an extent that he could no longer endure the strain that the work entailed. He entered the superannuated relation in 1913, and retired to his home in Delaware. In 1918 he married Mrs. Sarah Leaming Shepherd, a former missionary to India, and an active supporter of Red Rock Camp Meeting. Their life together was indeed beautiful. Their tastes were alike, their friends were the same; and her tender care and unflinching watchfulness and sympathy filled his last years with happiness. Mother Dunham survives him.

Dr. Dunham had a deep and lasting love for Ohio Wesleyan University; and the young men and women that he inspired to come to Ohio Wesleyan and helped through that institution can be numbered, literally, by scores. One of the earliest endowed professorships in the University came entirely through his efforts, and for one of the most important buildings on the campus he succeeded in persuading a friend to restore to his will a large bequest that had been stricken out in resentment because of some action the university had taken in another matter.

A few weeks ago his strength began to decline more rapidly. The shock of a fall last Saturday precipitated the end, and after lingering a few days he passed peacefully away, ten minutes after midnight on Thursday morning, May 12.

No human mind can estimate the good he has done, only the great eternity of God can show that. When increasing infirmity compelled him to lay aside the active work of forty years he retained the same sweet spirit and learned new lessons of patience and faith. With serene spirit, made confident by his strong faith, he passed into the other life with the full assurance that "the blood of Jesus Christ cleanses us from all sin."

"Servant of God, well done!
Thy glorious warfare's past;
The battle's fought, the race is won,
And thou art crowned at last."

BORDERS.

Gordon Ewart and Charles Harold Borders, only sons of Mrs. C. H. Borders, of Charleston, W. Va., formerly of Pinch, W. Va., were born, August 13, 1918, and Oct. 29, 1921, age 8 years, 9 months, 27 days, and 6 years, 7 months and 29 days. They departed this life May 30, 1927, at Deep Water, W. Va., where they were both drowned in the river. They only a few moments before started fishing. God in heaven only knows why this happened as it did but we say "His will be done." They leave to mourn their loss a mother alone, besides a host of friends. Their father, Rev. C. H. Borders, departed this life, August 3, 1926.

We cannot solve the mystery
Of God's great divine plan;
But some day we'll go and meet them
And then we'll understand.

They have gone, yes gone and left us,
Gone to that eternal home,
Where no sorrow, pain, or sickness
Death and heartaches cannot come.

We thought we loved our darlings,
But Jesus loved them more,
Now with angels they are singing
Safe on the Heavenly shore.

Good bye dears, we'll sadly miss you,
For the short time we remain,
But there are others that will greet you,
And our loss is heaven's gain.

Hilda Thumm.

BRASELTON.

Mrs. J. R. Braselton departed this life Dec. 29, 1926. She was born Feb. 17, 1853, being one of a family of eight children. She gave her heart to God at the age of fourteen, uniting

WHAT'S IN A BOOK?

CONDUCTED BY

REV. Z. T. JOHNSON, A. B., B. O., M. A.

Five Laws That Govern Prayer, by S. D. Gordon. $1.00.

This is one of the latest books by "Quiet Talk Gordon." Most everyone knows something of this man and his series of Quiet Talk books. The style of writing found in this book is simple and conversational. Gordon seems to know how to use the fewest and simplest words possible. This makes it easy to follow his line of thought. His illustrations also are simple and direct.

He gives five laws of prayer. 1. The Law of Need is the Basal Law. 2. The Law of Abiding is the law of relationship. 3. The Law of the Use of Jesus' Name is the foundation of all. 4. The Law of Practice or Skill. 5. The Twin Law of Confidence—Persistence.

In discussing the laws that govern prayer he uses the following five chapters: 1. The Fact of Prayer. 2. Hindrances: Illustrating the Law of Abiding. 3. Four Old Pictures: Illustrating the Law of Practiced Skill. 4. The Conversion of Loved Ones. 5. The School of Prayer.

This book will help one to center his faith in a practical, definite way. There is not a dry paragraph in the book.

The Pentecostal Pulpit. $1.00.

Every year there are about fifty sermons published in the columns of The Pentecostal Herald. Many of these are valuable bits of theology, literature and oratory. This book is composed of twelve of these sermons from twelve leading evangelists in the Holiness Movement. It will be impossible to give a review of this book, so you will have to judge of its value by the men who have written the sermons. They are as follows:

Wrestling Jacob—John Paul.
A Christian Home—Clement C. Cary.
Resisting the Holy Ghost—A. M. Hills.

I Have Played the Fool—J. L. Morrill.

Soul Rest—Will H. Huff.

God's Temple Cleansed and Filled.—E. A. Ferguson.

Samson.—H. W. Bromley.

Christian Perfection—C. W. Winches-ter.

Perfect Love—Bud Robinson.

The One Baptism—Andrew Johnson.

Sin and Its Effects—L. L. Gladney.

The Incarnation—H. C. Morrison.

The book has 176 pages and is bound in a beautiful light green cloth cover. You will enjoy it.

Acute and Chronic Unbelief, by A. C. Wyckoff. $1.50.

It is the purpose of the author of this book to show the cause, the consequence and the cure for acute and chronic unbelief. He discusses the problem from the psychological viewpoint. He says, "For the purpose of experiment three major religious beliefs have been selected—The belief in a Personal God, The Belief in Prayer, The Belief that Jesus is the Christ. These beliefs have been chosen because of the curious psychological fact that all unbelief, misbelief, and normal religious belief consciously or unconsciously revolve around these three concepts."

The book is written in three divisions. Part I on Unbelief or Sub-Belief has a chapter on "Acute Unbelief" and one on "Chronic Unbelief." Part II, dealing with Super-Belief or Misbelief, has a chapter on "Occultism" and one on "The Super-Beliefs of Spiritual Healing." Part III deals with "Normal Religious Belief" on the three fundamental phases of Christianity, viz., "Belief in a Personal God," "Belief in Prayer," and "The Belief that Jesus is the Christ."

Wyckoff uses many illustrations taken from actual investigations among college students to prove his points. These are valuable, not only for data, but also for illustrative material in preaching. The book is well written, with a scholarly tone. It will be appreciated most by those who have studied Psychology and theology.

Great Southern Preaching, Edited by Charles M. Crowe. $1.75.

This is "an attempt to interpret the spirit and power of the contemporary Southern pulpit. It contains twenty-one sermons contributed by some of the leading living preachers of the Southern churches. . . . It is simply representative. . . . Five of them are Baptists, five Methodists, four Presbyterians, three Disciples of Christ, three Congregational and two Episcopal." With each sermon is given a short sketch of the author, his various appointments and a list of his writings. This adds greatly to the interest of the book.

I would like to give you some suggestions as to the contents of these messages, but it will be possible to give only a few. I shall take these from some of the best of these sermons—and I have read every one of them.

In his message on "Kept" Dr. Clovis Chappell tells how God's people are kept, who keeps them, what they are kept from, and the end of that keeping.

Dealing with "Faith's Exploits," Dr. Dr. M. E. Dodd gives a splendid resume of the fact of faith in Moses' life and then shows the results of "Faith's Choice," "Faith's Vision" and "Faith's Reward."

In "The Value of a Vision" Dr. M. Ashby Jones holds to the central idea that "he who would conquer a world must first dream that he has conquered it."

Dr. E. L. Powell holds in his sermon "The Devil in the Pulpit," that the Devil gets into the pulpit through the agencies of the press, business and politics. He shows the evils of listening to such voices for spiritual guidance.

Dr. E. Y. Mullins' article on "The Right to Believe" is a masterful discussion of the right of a man to believe in the instincts of thought, of conscience, of prayer, of suffering, of courage and of hope.

"Bear Ye One Another's Burdens," by Bishop Collins Denny takes up the "Law of Christ," which is love; "Another," which means everybody; and the fact that the motive of Christianity is service.

All of the books reviewed in these columns may be bought from The Pentecostal Publishing Company, Louisville, Kentucky.

and Brother Bernbrook assisted in the funeral services.

Her daughter,
Mrs. Gertie Higdon.

If we could imagine the actual conditions as people lived when Jesus was on earth we could more widely appreciate his remarkable teachings. In the Days of Christ, by Edersheim, will help us to see Jewish life as it was at that time. It treats exhaustively of the different phases of Jewish life during the time of the Master. Price $1.25. Pentecostal Publishing Company, Louisville, Ky.

NOT TO BE USED WITHOUT COPYRIGHT PERMISSION

OF ASBURY THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

REV. O. G. MINGLEDORFF, D.D.

As there will be no issue of The Herald July 4th week, we are giving two Sunday School Lessons this week. (Editor).

Lesson II.—July 10, 1927.

Subject.—Samuel's Farewell. 1 Samuel 12:1-5; 19-25.

Golden Text.—Thy lovingkindness is before mine eyes; and I have walked in thy truth. Psalm 26:3.

Time.—About B. C. 1095.

Place.—Gilgal.

Introduction.—Our last lesson ended at the last verse of the chapter preceding today's study. Saul had won a great victory against Nahash the Ammonite at Jabesh-gilead, that had greatly endeared him to his people. Some wished to kill all who had opposed his reign, but he would not permit it to be done. Immediately after this victory Samuel called Israel to Gilgal, in order that they might definitely establish the kingdom by a public declaration of the rulership of Saul. That declaration, with the sacrifice of peace offerings, caused great joy among the people.

This was an epochal day in Israel. For more than four centuries they had been under the rule of the Judges, but there had come a big change in the government; Samuel, the last of the Judges, after anointing Saul king and seeing that he was established in the kingdom, was laying down his own authority, soon to go to his last resting place. His service in the things of God dated from the day when his parents brought him to old Eli in the temple in the long ago. He had grown old in the service; but his care of Israel had been so impartial and so upright that no man could bring an accusation against either his personal character or his rulership of the people. Now the grand old man must go the way of all the earth, but he was leaving behind him a heritage that would bless the world to the end of time and make eternity richer for all the saints of God.

If we are to get the full benefit of today's lesson, we must, in some sense, form in our minds a pretty clear picture of the scene at Gilgal. Saul and his army were there, flushed with recent victory over the Ammonites. Multitudes of men were there who took no part in the battle. The women and children were possibly not there; for women took little part in such gatherings in those bygone days. The two central figures in the assembly were Samuel and King Saul; the latter in the vigor of young manhood, the former white with the snows of many winters and tottering on his staff. Samuel had played his role in the drama of life, and was leaving the stage forever: Saul was just coming before the public to begin his role. Samuel had played well his part; what will Saul do? The future must tell.

Comments on the Lesson.

1. Samuel begins the speech-making of the day, while Israel listens with eager ears: "Behold, I have hearkened unto your voice in all that ye said unto me, and have made a king over you."—One can almost see the long white beard and the snowy locks of God's grand old prophet as he sits in the midst of the congregation and begins this his farewell address. There is about him a calm dignity that comes from conscious right, from pure character coupled with high living—noble living. Without any complimentary words or fulsome flattery for any one, he rushes at once into the subject for which they had come together. One is prepared for such a speech after listening to a good deal of modern gush on public occasions. They had gathered to declare Saul king over Israel; and other things did not matter.

2. Behold, the king walketh before you.—Saul is now your leader and ruler. Follow him, and obey him. I am old and grayheaded.—He was then about 80 years old; but the heavy cares of a strenuous life had no doubt aged him rapidly as he began to come towards the close of his pilgrimage. Behold, my sons are with you.—But they had not walked in their father's footsteps; and Israel could expect nothing good from them. There are few sadder sights than a worn out preacher surrounded by a gang of wicked sons who will curse the world after he has gone to his reward. I have walked before you from my childhood unto this day.—Samuel was not boasting; for he had done that very thing. For any people such a heritage is better than gold. Abraham Lincoln's life-record is worth more to America than all her money. Our finest assets are men, not wealth.

3. Behold, here I am.—The old man thrills me from head to feet. I think he rose to his feet at that juncture. Witness against me before the Lord, and before his anointed (king Saul).—It was judgment hour for Jehovah's prophet; but he was ready for the testing. It is a fine thing sometimes to find out what people think of our living. What questions he puts to his people: "Whose ox have I taken? or whose ass have I taken? or whom have I defrauded? whom have I oppressed? or of whose hand have I received any bribe to blind mine eyes therewith?" Those may have been dark ages compared with ours, but as sure as sunshine we have some men in authority in this fair land who dare not try to measure up to Samuel's standard of integrity in their public duties. If our public men had been Samuels, the Teapot Dome scandal would never have disgraced the annals of our nation. I will restore it.—Once in a long while we send political thieves to the pen for a short spell; but who ever heard of their restoring stolen goods to the national treasury?

4. Thou hast not defrauded us, nor oppressed us, neither hast thou taken ought of any man's hand.—Such a commendation was worth the labor of his long years, but he deserved every bit of it. One feels like cheering him, even at this late day. We wonder if he labored for his own support what time he ruled his people. Maybe he did.

5. The Lord is witness against you, and his anointed is witness this day, that ye have not found aught in my hand. And they answered, he is witness.—Samuel could die easy after that; for there was no charge against him in heaven above, or on the earth beneath. Good living pays gloriously.

We skip now to the 19th verse of the chapter; but the reader must make careful note of the intervening verses, if he is to catch the full meaning of the remainder of the lesson. These verses contain Samuel's speech to Israel concerning their conduct toward Jehovah during the years that were gone, and close with an answer to his prayer that brought on a thunderstorm and much rain in time of wheat harvest—something unusual in Palestine.

19. The nation is slowly coming to its senses. They are begging Samuel to pray for them, lest they die for their meanness. Listen to their penitence: "We have added unto all our sins this evil, to ask us a king." It was an awful insult to ask for a king to rule in Jehovah's stead; and it is a marvelous exhibition of divine goodness and mercy that he did not utterly and forever forsake them.

20. Samuel said unto the people, Fear not.—Strange words to a rebellious and gainsaying people; but they were dealing with a merciful God. Ye have done all this wickedness.—God's servants dare not mince matters in dealing with sinners, but must "speak the truth in love." The prophet's exhortation is good: "Yet turn not aside from following the Lord, but serve the Lord with all your heart." Because we have sinned is no reason for continuing in sin. Repent and turn back to God at once, is the sensible thing to do. He is always ready to forgive a penitent soul; but he wishes a full heart service at all times.

21. Turn ye not aside.—This verse contains a solemn warning. If men turn aside from following the Lord, they will certainly soon be following in the footsteps of some vain idol; and such following will result in vanity and final damnation. The first step in sin is the dangerous one.

22. For the Lord will not forsake his people.—Note the reason why: "For his great name's sake; because it hath pleased the Lord to make you his people." Brother, when God saved your soul, he put his reputation at stake. You may forsake him, and run into hell; but he will never forsake you as long as there is a chance to bring you to eternal glory.

23. God forbid that I should sin against the Lord in ceasing to pray for you.—Only recently have I come to realize what a terrible sin it is not to pray for people as much as we can. Souls are hanging on our prayers; and if we cease praying, they will drop into hell. The most important job that anyone has on this earth is praying; and I am not sure but it will be our biggest work in heaven. It has occupied Jesus, our High Priest, for more than 1800 years. Surely the sainted ones are helping him. Is it boasting for me to get down in the dust before God, and declare to the world that some of my dearest friends have dedicated me to a life of prayer, and that I am ready to go to the mercy seat for any needy soul that will communicate with me. Pray, brethren, pray with all your might. Pray! For Christ's sake PRAY with all your souls.

24. Fear the Lord, and serve him in truth with all your heart.—God despises half-heartedness. "I know thy works, that thou art neither cold nor hot: I would that thou wert cold or hot. So then because thou art lukewarm, and neither cold nor hot, I will spue thee out of my mouth." Samuel calls upon his people to consider the great things that Jehovah had done for them; but he warns them in the last verse of the lesson that if they turn aside and do wickedly, he will consume them, "both them and their king."

Private means of grace are just as needful every day for our souls as food and clothing are for our bodies. —Bishop Ryle.

Lesson III.—July 17, 1927.

Subject.—Samuel Anoints David. 1 Samuel 16:1-13.

Golden Text.—Let no man despise thy youth; but be thou an example of the believers, in word, in conversation, in charity, in spirit, in faith, in purity. 1 Tim. 4:12.

Time.—About B. C. 1080.

Places.—Ramah and Bethlehem.

Introduction.—The fall and final ruin of King Saul is pitiable. He began his reign with glowing prospects, but went wrong almost from the start—so fearfully wrong that his conduct brought upon him the curse of Jehovah. The trouble began when Jonathan with the thousand soldiers under his leadership routed a garrison of the Philistines; and Saul either claimed the victory as his, or else permitted the people to give him the credit for it. There was a bad streak of jealousy in his nature. This victory over the Philistine garrison aroused all the animosity of the enemy, causing them to gather for the destruction of Israel. They were gathering such an army that the Israelites were desperately frightened, and began to hide themselves in caves, and to cross the Jordan to find places of safety. It seems that Samuel had an appointment with Saul to come to him for the purpose of offering a sacrifice before the battle began; but he was late coming; wherefore Saul, seeing that the people were being scattered from him on account of their fear of the gathering Philistines, offered the sacrifice himself; but as soon as he had finished, Samuel walked up, and asked what he had been doing. Saul made a ridiculous excuse, declaring that he had forced himself to make the burnt offering, in order to save the day. Samuel rebuked him rather severely, giving him to understand that God preferred obedience to sacrifice.

King Saul again showed a bad spirit when he commanded the people not to eat a mouthful of anything during the battle that followed this gathering of the Philistine hosts. The reader will remember that Jonathan ate a bit of wild honey, not knowing that his father had forbidden the people to eat. Saul in his rashness sentenced him to death; but the people rescued him, and saved his life. This foolishness on the part of the king, along with several other happenings, indicate that he was either possessed of a demon, or else he suffered with periodical insanity. He could both love and hate with furious intensity. No doubt he was passionately fond of David, but his uncontrollable jealousy caused him to make every effort within his power to murder him. Is there a meaner passion in the human heart than jealousy? No one is ever safe before it. It will ruthlessly stain the purest reputation. Where it cannot prove wrong, it takes delight in vile insinuations. When occasion offers, it will murder in order to gain its ends. Possibly there is no more miserable soul on earth than that one who is insanely jealous. Herein do we find the solution to many of the problems in the life and conduct of King Saul.

Saul showed his stubbornness and his disobedient spirit when Jehovah commanded him to utterly destroy Amalek. He spared king Agag, and the best of the sheep and cattle; and then he had the audacity to declare to Samuel that he had obeyed the word of the Lord; but the old prophet wished to know the meaning of the loving of the cattle and the bleating of the sheep; whereupon the king whimpered that he had saved them for an offering unto the Lord. It is a bit refreshing at this juncture to see Samuel deal with Agag: "Agag said, Surely the bitterness of death is past. And Samuel said, As thy sword hath made women childless, so shall thy mother be childless among women. And Samuel hewed Agag in pieces before the Lord in Gilgal." No sympathy? Not a bit. Agag deserved none. There is no sense in the sentimentalism in America, that weeps over a red-handed murderer when he is sentenced to die for his crime, but has no sympathy for the loved ones of his victim. The State has a God-given right to destroy murderers, and must do it for the protection of good citizens, or sit down in spineless worthlessness and permit the murder mills to go on with their hellish work. Which shall it be? The State is under no obligation to murderers; but she is under all possible obligation to protect the lives and property of law-abiding citizens. May the good Lord grant us a large supply of backbone in this nation.

Samuel drew a perfect picture of Saul and his troubles when he told him that he had rejected Jehovah, and that Jehovah had rejected him. This is a fearful plight; but it may come to any man on earth, who turns away from God. The things written in this introduction were fast leading up to the doom of Saul and the anointing of David to be king in his stead.

Comments on the Lesson.

Jehovah told Samuel to quit mourning about Saul, and to fill a horn with oil, and go down to Bethlehem where he had found him a king among the sons of Jesse. Samuel obeyed orders, taking with him a heifer for a sacrifice, and depending upon Jehovah to point out for him the young man whom he had chosen to be king over Israel.

4. The elders of the town trembled at his coming.—There was nothing unusual in his going from place to place to offer sacrifices to God; but just then there was something about the manner of his coming that caused some alarm; maybe Saul's defection had gone abroad. Comest thou peaceably?—They were afraid of the prophet, because God's power was upon him, as it should be upon every minister of the Word.

5. I am come to sacrifice unto the Lord.—Nothing unusual in that. Sanctify yourselves.—Put away all filthiness from you, and set apart yourselves for divine service. Come with me to the sacrifice.—There was to be no secret about the service to be rendered. He sanctified Jesse and his sons.—Possibly sprinkled water upon them, thereby rendering them ceremonially clean. And they too must come to the sacrifice.

The remaining verses of the lesson are so simple that they do not need separate criticism. Samuel and Jesse are busy trying to find the chosen one among that group of fine young men; but they are blundering. One sentence from Jehovah clears the atmosphere: "The Lord seeth not as man seeth: for man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh on the heart." What blunders we do make, because we cannot see into the very hearts of men. The hypocritical Pharisees could fool the people as to their worth; but Jesus saw through the veneer. To him they were like whited sepulchres—clean and beautiful on the exterior, but full of dead men's bones and all manner of uncleanness on the inside. So to speak, God turns a man inside out—He brings the bottom of his life to the top, and makes his choice according to what he is, and not according to what he seems to be. Some of the ladies paint and powder their faces to hide physical defects: multitudes of both sexes paint and powder their souls to hide spiritual defects. But at the Judgment we shall all appear as we really are.

When they have seen all the sons of Jesse except the red-faced shepherd boy, it is fine to hear Samuel calling for him to be brought in. Yes, fetch him in. Caring for Jesse's flock was good preparation for the care of God's flock. Some day he would be able to write the matchless twenty-third psalm that has comforted so many troubled souls ever since it came out of the poet's heart. "And the Lord said, Arise, anoint him: for this is he." It was a wonderful choice that God made that day. Yes, David fell into an awful sin; but did you ever think what a big repent he was? Just read the fifty-first psalm, and hear his cry out of a broken heart. From our view-point, he deserved to be damned for ever (and he did deserve all of it); but O the gracious mercy of God. He forgives sinners—big sinners and little sinners, old sinners and young sinners, drunkards, harlots, murderers—all who come unto him with broken and contrite hearts. Thank God!

David is anointed in the midst of his brethren and his neighbors; but it will be sometime before he takes the throne; for Jehovah is still merciful toward king Saul.

FERN GROVE CAMP, DEPOY, KY.

There will be held a ten-days' camp meeting at the Fern Grove Camp Ground, Depoy, Ky., beginning Wednesday night, July 20th and continuing to 31st. Workers in the above, C. F. Wimberly, Charleston, S. C., and F. T. Howard, Wilmore, Ky. This is a new camp just four miles west of Greenville, Ky., on the federal highway between Greenville and Madisonville, Ky. The grounds consist of four acres of beautiful woodland well shaded. Information concerning camping privileges may be had by writing Rufus Graham, Camp Secretary, Graham, Ky.

EVANGELISTIC AND PERSONAL.

The fall meeting at Orlando, Fla., has been called off, which leaves Dr. G. G. Mingledorff available for Aug. 25-Sept. 5. Address him, Blackshear, Ga.

The Woodward County Holiness Association will hold its fourth tent meeting 14 miles from Woodward, Okla., July 15-25. Home-talented ministers of different denominations will have charge, assisted by Brother Earle Seacord and wife as singers and pianists. Daily services will be held at 10 A. M., 2:30 and 8:00 P. M. Every one is invited to come and help and get helped. For information, address Mrs. C. A. Kurtz, Woodward, Okla., Route 2.

R. L. Smith: "For reasons personal, I have been released from my work at Birch Tree and will be available for church, camps, union, and revival meetings during the summer and fall. Address me at 3031 N. Sarah St., St. Louis, Mo."

We as the Board of Control of the Ohio State Camp Meeting Association (Camp Sychar) are deeply grieved to hear of the serious illness of Prof. W.

ASBURY COLLEGE

WILMORE, KENTUCKY

A Cosmopolitan School
Born in a passion standing for Wesleyan Adequate training for the evangeliza- Essentials. Fall session consistent with a tion of the world. opens September 14th. sound gospel faith.

Write for Bulletin

MEMBER OF THE ASSOCIATION OF KENTUCKY COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES;
MEMBER OF THE ASSOCIATION OF AMERICAN COLLEGES.

L. R. AKERS, M.A., D.D., PRESIDENT.

W. BRANDT HUGHES, M.A., DEAN.

The School With a World Vision

B. Yates, of Marion, Ky., who has been the efficient song leader of the children of God at Sychar for the last thirteen years, and we desire to speak in this way of our appreciation of his services, and pray that God will raise him up from his bed of affliction, if it is his will, that he might again sing the songs of God to the blessing of the multitudes as in other years.

E. E. Shiltz, Sec'y.
Shadyside, Ohio.

Rev. Alonzo Monk, Jr., General Evangelist, of Dallas, Tex., is with his party conducting a revival at Carr Park Auditorium, Fulton, Ky. He needs no introduction to the readers of The Herald. He is a man of sound faith and zeal for souls. Those desiring his services may address him 411 Southwestern Life Bldg., Dallas, Texas.

Milwaukee, Wis., is to have a tent meeting July 10 to Sept. 1. Evangelist R. L. Morgan will be in charge. Any one having friends you wish to interest write Rev. E. O. Chalfant, Danville, Ill., or Evangelist Morgan, Milwaukee, Wis., general delivery.

Rev. Will Holly, Taylor University B.D. Graduate, Simpson College M.A., is open for evangelistic engagements. He has had more than twenty years' experience in pulpit, platform and evangelistic work. He will also consider supply work looking toward entrance into some conference wishing degree men. He may be addressed 603 North Queen St., Palestine, Tex.

E. T. Cox: "The last of May we closed a meeting in Columbus, Ga., with the Nazarene Church and souls prayed through to victory. We had a good meeting at Fairfax, Ala. At this writing, we are in a meeting in the Nazarene Church in Monterey, Tenn., and God is giving victory. We have an open date, Aug. 28-Sept. 11. Address me, 1412 E. Douglas Ave., Nashville, Tenn."

GOSPEL TENTS

Write for Prices on NEW AND USED TENTS.

R. H. ARMBRUSTER CO.,
SPRINGFIELD, ILL.

Established 1875

We Aim To Please—Our Aim Is Good

WANTED: Experienced printer to take charge of our complete printing department, including bindery. Must be Christian man. Reply giving experience, Christian experience, salary desired and references to Walter P. Carr, Treasurer, John Fletcher College, University Park, Iowa.

The Colburn Farm Inn—Bemus Point, N. Y. Beautifully located on Lake Chautauqua. Every modern appointment. Careful attention given prescribed diets. Special rates to Christian workers.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Wright: "We closed a meeting at Willow Brook, the last week being assisted by Rev. Kirkpatrick of Asbury College. He is a powerful preacher of a full salvation. The last Sunday morning he preached on sanctification and they fell at the altar and many were sanctified. We have taken some evangelistic work, holding a meeting at Big Run Nazarene Church in November; another at Roseville, O., in April."

NOT TO BE USED WITHOUT COPYRIGHT PERMISSION

OF ASBURY THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

EVANGELISTS' SLATES

ALBRIGHT, TILLIE.

Mt. Lake Park, Md., June 26-July 10.
Moers, New York, July 24-Aug. 14.
Richland, N. Y., Aug. 21-Sept. 5.

ANDERSON, T. M.

Red Rock, Minn., July 1-10.
Sebring, Ohio, July 15-24.
Sharon Center, Ohio, July 29-Aug. 7.

ARTHUR, FRANK E.

Mitchell, S. Dak., June 24-July 4.
Wilmot, S. Dak., July 5-17.
Gladwin, Mich., July 21-31.

ASBURY GOSPEL TEAM.

Kirkpatrick, Jarrett, Moore, DuVal.
Wyalusing, Pa., June 19-July 3.
Overton, Pa., July 6-17.
Elmira, N. Y., July 20-31.
Lockport, N. Y., August 5-14.

AYCOCK, JARRETTE AND DELL.

Crowley, La., July 1-10.
Poteau, Okla., July 13-24.
Mail address, 2923 Troost Ave., Kansas City, Mo.

BABCOCK, C. H.

Mt. Lake Park, Md., July 1-11.
Douglas, Mass., July 14-24.
Hollow Rock, Toronto, O. July 28-Aug. 7.
Wakefield, Va., August 5-15.
Wichita, Kan., August 18-28.
Blackwell, Okla., Aug. 29-Sept. 4.
Thomas, Okla., Sept. 15-25.

BANNING, EDNA M.

Cadiz, Ohio, June 26-July 10.

BECK, A. S. AND R. S.

Hiseville, Ky., July 2-15.
Columbia, Ky., July 18-Aug. 5.
Open dates, August 5 to last of October.

BEELER, T. W.

Harrodsburg, Ky., June 25-July 10.
Danville, Ky., July 14-31.
Home address, Wilmore, Ky.

BELEW, P. P.

Ladoga, Ind., June 14-July 3.
Home address, 1529 W. Nelson St., Marion, Indiana.

BENNETT, GEO.

LeRoy, Mich., July 3-17.
Meaford, Ontario, Can., July 20-31.

BROWNING, RAYMOND.

Charleston, W. Va., June 19-July 3.
Washburn, N. D., July 7-17.
West Asheville, N. C., July 20-28.
Columbus, Ohio, July 28-Aug. 7.
New Albany, Ind., August 8-14.

BUDMAN, ALMA L.

(Song Evangelist)
Centre Hall, Pa., June 4-July 16.
Hughesville, Pa., July 21-31.
Linden Hall, Pa., August 6-20.
Address 101 Carpenter St., Muncy, Pa.

BURNETT, W. EVANS.

Open dates for July and August.
Alexandria, La., June 17-25.
Home address, Lake Charles, La.

BUSSEY, M. M. AND WIFE.

Tacoma, Wash., June 23-July 3.
Home address, 1468 Bresee Ave., Pasadena, Calif.

CALLIS, O. H.

Wilmore, Ky., July 3-17.
Nashville, Tenn., July 17-31.

CANADAY, FRED.

Open date, August-Sept.-October.
Home address, 1518 Killingsworth Ave., Portland, Ore.

CAIN, W. R.

Mt. Vernon, O., June 28-July 10.
Omaha, Neb., July 14-24.
St. Croix Falls, Wis., July 28-Aug. 7.
Wichita, Kan., August 18-28.
Home address, 515 So. Vine St., Wichita, Kansas.

CAROTHERS, J. L. AND SADIE.

Ferndale, Wash., July 21-31.
Tacoma, Wash., August 1-14.
Nezperce, Idaho, August 17-31.

CHATFIELD, C. C. AND FLORA.

Anderson, Ind., July 1-17.
Warsaw, Ohio, July 28-August 7.
Radcliff, Ohio, August 14-28.
Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 29-Sept. 11.
Durand, Mich., Sept. 11-Oct. 2.
Ellet, Ohio, Oct. 3-16.
Home address, 410 E. Carl St., Winchester, Ind.

CLARKE, C. S.

Three Stars, Okla., June 16-July 3.
Home address, 808 N. Ash, Guthrie, Okla.

COLE, DOLL.

Marquand, Mo., July 4-17.

COLEMAN, PAUL.

North Vernon, Ind., June 27-July 10.
Frankfort, Ind., August 8-11.
Springfield, Ohio, August 12-24.
Home address, 1620 Fairfax Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio.

COLLIER, J. A.

Clay, Ky., June 12-July 3.
Providence, Ky., July 10-Aug. 7.
Home address, 1917 Cephas Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

COPELAND, H. E.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 4-17.
Thomas, S. Dak., July 21-Aug. 14.
Home address, Oskaloosa, Iowa.

COX, F. W. AND WIFE.

Crawfordsville, Ore., June 15-July 3.
Crawfordsville, Ore., (camp) July 7-17.
Crawfordsville, Ore., (Wesleyan Church) July 20-Aug. 7.

CROSS, WALTER—LOPER, NORRIS.

Adelle, Miss., June 20-July 3.
Silver Creek, Miss., July 11-29.

DAVIDSON PARTY.

Centerville, Pa., June 19-July 3.

DECKER, WALTER REED.

(Song Evangelist)
Open dates for Fall and Winter.
Home address, 124 Gould St., Corry, Pa.

DICKERSON, H. N.

Mitchell, Ind., June 5-19.
Manville, Ill., June 26-July 10.
Bloomington, Ind., July 17-31.
Kirk, Colo., August 18-28.
Home address, 2808 Newman St., Ashland, Ky.

DUNAWAY, C. M.

Mt. Lake Park, Md., June 26-July 10.
Bentleyville, Pa., July 14-22.
Dalton, Ga., July 23-31.
Mt. Vernon, Ohio, August 4-14.
Home address, 216 N. Candler St., Decatur, Ga.

DYE, CHARLES.

Columbus, Ohio, July 3-17.
Fisher, Ky., July 24-Aug. 7.
Address, 430 Williams St., Troy, Ohio.

ELLIS, G. EDWIN

West Union, Ia., June 28-July 17.
Home address, University Park, Ia.

ELSNER, THEO. AND WIFE.

Brooklyn, N. Y., June 24-July 4.
Old Orchard, Maine, July 8-17.
Reading, Pa., July 22-31.
Home address, 1451 Pacific St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

FLEMING, JOHN.

Salem, Ohio, June 21-July 3.
N. Little Rock, Ark., July 29-Aug. 8.
National Park Camp, New Jersey, Aug. 12-21.

FLEMING, BONA.

Dallas, Tex., July 15-24.
Little Rock, Ark., July 29-Aug. 7.
National Park, N. J., August 12-21.
Ingersoll, Okla., Aug. 26-Sept. 4.

FLEXON, R. S.

Warm Springs, Va., June 26-July 11.
Luthan, Md., July 15-31.
Clinton, Pa., August 5-14.
Glassboro, N. J., August 15-21.
Delanco, N. J., Aug. 17-Sept. 5.
Home address, Shackelfords, Va.

FRYE, H. A.

Worthville, Pa., June 15-July 10.
Home address, 1326 Hurd Ave., Findlay, Ohio.

FUGETT, C. B.

Princeton, Ind., June 21-July 3.
St. Bernice, Ind., July 4-17.
Haltown, Mo., July 24-Aug. 7.
Normal, Ill., August 19-28.
Cape May, N. J., Sept. 9-17.
Home address, 2813 Holt St., Ashland, Ky.

GADDIS, TILDEN H.

Monroe, Ind., June 27-July 10.
Aspen Grove, Ky., July 11-24.
Oregon, Wis., July 31-Aug. 14.
Charleston, Ill., August 19-28.
Upland, Ind., Sept. 2-17.
Home address, 4805 Ravenna St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

GRIEL, PAUL AND DORA.

(Singers and Xylophone Players)
North Manchester, Ind., July 1-30.
Kokomo, Ind., Aug. 1-28.
Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 16-Nov. 6.
Brazil, Ind., Nov. 13-27.
Anamosa, Iowa, Dec. 1-30.
Home address, Frankfort, Ind.

GLASCOCK, J. L.

Du Quoin, Ill., June 19-July 4.
Home address, 1350 Grace Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio.

GLEASON, RUFUS H.

General Conference, June 22-26.
Marion, Ind., July 3-24.
Cadillac, Mich., July 28-Aug. 7.
Charles City, Ia., Aug. 16-28.
Home address, Central, S. C.

GLENN, REV AND MRS. J. M.

Millport, Ala., July 3-17.
Chatam, Ala., July 24-Aug. 7.
Indian Springs, Ga., Aug. 11-21.
Eastman, Ga., Sept. 4-18.

GREEN, JIM H.

W. Marion, N. C., July 3-17.
Bostic, N. C., July 17-29.
Connelly Springs, N. C., Aug. 7-15.
Home address, Box 200, Connelly Springs, N. C.

GRANT BROTHERS.

Monter, Mo., July 1-16.
Birch Tree, Mo., August 1-16.
Thomasville, Mo., August 16-31.

GROGG, W. A.

Smithers, W. Va., July 2-22.
Mt. Lake Park, Md., July 26-Aug. 4.
Pinch, W. Va., August 20-Sept. 3.
Home address, Ronceverte, W. Va.

GROSE, JOHN A.

Front Royal, Va., Aug. 28-Sept. 11.
Home address, Shepherdstown, W. Va.

HALLMAN, W. A. AND WIFE.

Absaraka, N. Dak., June 23-July 3.
Alsask, Sask., July 7-17.

Didsbury, Alta., July 21-31.
Elkhart, Ind., August 4-14.
Lincoln, Nebr., August 19-29.

HARRIS, B. F.

Gracetown, Tex., July 1-10.
Klondike, Tex., July 15-31.
Dillard, Okla., Aug. 7-21.

HEWSON, JOHN E.

Gordon, Neb., July 17-27.
Sherman, Ill., August 4-14.
Portage, Ohio, Aug. 18-28.
Home address, 127 N. Chester Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.

HODGE, H. W.

East Branch, N. Y., June 30-July 10.

HOLLENBACK, URAL T.

Norristown, Pa., Oct. 2-16.

HOLLENBACK, ROY L.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 1-10.

HORN, LUTHER A.—MARSHALL, R. P.

Healing Springs Camp Meeting, June 30-July 10.
Salem, Ala., July 12-28.
Clear Springs, Ala., Aug. 14-28.
Louisville, Ala., Sept. 1-14.
Home address, Box 1322, Mobile, Ala.

HOTCHKISS, ROY L.

Campbell, Minn., June 29-July 17.
Montevideo, Minn., July 19-Aug. 7.
Winthrop, Minn., Aug. 9-28.
Hull, Iowa, August 30-Sept. 11.

HOWARD, FIELDING T.

Sunrise, Ky., July 4-17.
Depoy, Ky., July 20-31.
Milton, Ky., August 5-14.
Tolu, Ky., August 18-28.
Home address, Wilmore, Ky.

HULSE, AARON.

Newton, Kan., June 16-July 3.
Oklahoma City, Okla., July 10-31.

HUNT, JOHN J.

Douglas, Mass., July 15-25.
Rosslyn, Va., July 28-Aug. 8.
Wilkinsburg, Pa., Sept. 16-25.
Home address, Media, Pa., Rt. 3.

HUTCHERSON, FIELDS AND HILKER.

(Tent Workers)
Slater, Wyo., June 27-July 16.
Basin, Wyo., July 18-31.
Meeteetse, Wyo., August 1-21.
Grass Creek, Wyo., August 22-25.

HYSSELL, HARVEY B.

Lennon, Mich., June 26-July 13.
Baileysville, W. Va., July 17-31.
Bowersville, Ohio, August 4-14.
Mt. Nebo, W. Va., Aug. 17-31.
Home address, Box 1235, Charleston, W. Va.

IRICK, ALLIE AND EMMA.

Olive Hill, Ky., July 8-18.
Goddard, Ky., July 21-31.
Cambria, Ill., August 4-14.
Bonnie, Ill., August 19-29.
Millport, Ala., Aug. 31-Sept. 12.
Thomas, Okla., Sept. 15-25.
Home address, Bethany, Okla.

JOHNSON, RAY N.

Mohabala, Ohio, July 10-24.
McLuney, Ohio, July 25-Aug. 7.

JOHNSON, ANDREW

Norfolk, Va., July 1-17.
Ruggles camp, Ky., July 21-31.

KENNEDY, ROBERT J.

(Singer)
Tusculum, Ala., July 4-24.

KEYS EVANGELISTIC PARTY.

Rev. Clifford E. Keys, Evangelist. Mrs. Clifford E. Keys, Pianist. Rev. Roscoe Bancroft, Trombonist.
Trenton, N. J., June 16-July 3.
Open date, July 7-24.
Cressona, Pa., July 6-17.
Reading, Pa., July 22-31.
Lewisstown, Pa., August 2-14.
Eccles, W. Va., Aug. 18-Sept. 4.
Chillicothe, Ohio, Sept. 11-Oct. 2.
Home address, Mohnnton, Pa.

KINSEY, W. C. AND WIFE.

(Song Leader, Singers, Pianist)
Open date, July 1-10.
Mendon, Ohio, July 14-24.
Campbellsville, Ky., Aug. 12-21.
Home address, 452 So. West 2nd St., Richmond, Ind.

KINSEY FRANK E.

Brown's Corners, Ind., June 19-July 3.
Ft. Branch, Ind., July 7-24.
Birds, Ill., July 31-Aug. 21.
Urbana, Ill., Aug. 24-29.
Home address, 1224 Tecumseh St., Indianapolis, Ind.

LAMP, W. E.

Elkville, Ill., July 3-23.
Shumway, Ill., July 25-Aug. 14.
Home address, Wilmore, Ky.

LEWIS AND EMBERT.

(Singers and Players)
Oil City, Pa., June 27-July 10.

LILLENAS, HALDOR AND BERTHA.

Peoria, Ill., July 3-17.
Carmichael, Pa., July 21-31.
Sherman, Ill., August 4-14.
Connersville, Ind., Oct. 2-16.

LITTELL, V. W. AND MARGUERITE.

Butler, Pa., June 28-July 10.
Uricksville, Ohio, July 22-Aug. 7.
Chariton, Ia., Aug. 14-28.
Home address, 1214 Scott St., Beatrice, Nebraska.

LOVELESS, W. W.

Monticello, Ky., July 1-17.
Warsaw, Ohio, July 21-31.
Home address, London, Ohio.

LUDWIG, THEODORE AND MINNIE.

Litchfield, Minn., June 26-July 10.
Racine, Wis., July 13-24.
Hector, Minn., July 26-Aug. 7.
Nokomis, Ill., Aug. 9-21.
Home address, 772 N. Euclid Ave., St. Louis, Mo.

MCBRIDE, J. B.

Barbersville, Ky., June 29-July 11.
Mount Olivet, Ky., July 15-25.
Hollis, Okla., July 27-Aug. 7.
Noonday, Tex., August 11-21.
Oakland City, Ind., Aug. 25-Sept. 4.
Home address, 112 Arlington Drive, Pasadena, Calif.

MCGHIE, ANNA E.

Sharon Center, Ohio, July 28-Aug. 4.
Mt. Vernon, O., Aug. 4-14.

MCCORD, W. W.

Sale City, Ga., August 11-21.
Home address, Sale City, Ga.

MCNEES, HERBERT J.

Open dates, May, June, July, August, September.
Home address, 13th Ave., New Brighton, Pa.

MCKIE, MARK S.

Open dates after June 15.

MAWSON, R. K. AND WIFE.

(Singers and Pianists)
South Corbin, Ky., June 20-July 3.
Home address, Wilmore, Ky.

MILLER, JULIUS.

Poplar, Mont., June 16-July 7.
New Effington, S. Dak., July 10-24.
Ortonville, Minn., July 26-Aug. 7.
Jamestown, N. Dak., Aug. 10-14.
Home address, Mattoon, Wis.

MILLER, REV. AND MRS. F. E.

Wilmington, N. Y., June 23-July 4.
Moers, N. Y., July 30-Aug. 14.
Richland, N. Y., August 21-Sept. 5.
Home address, Lowville, N. Y.

MILLER, JAMES.

Lynn, Ind., July 10-24.
Hope, Mich., July 31-Aug. 14.
Home address, 1249 N. Holme Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.

MINGLEDORFF, O. G.

Grand Bayou, La., July 17-31.
Orlando, Fla., Aug. 25-Sept. 5.
Home address, Blackshear, Ga.

MONK, ALONZO, JR.

Tusculum, Ala., July 5-24.
Winslow, Ark., July 26-Sept. 1.
Paris, Tenn., Sept. 3-24.
October, November, December open.

MORRIS, (JUDGE) FRANK

China Springs, Tex., July 24.
Aspermont, Tex., August 7.
Hagerman, N. Mex., Aug. 28.
Alamogordo, N. Mex., Sept. 11.
Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 2.
Home address, P. O. Box 1523 Dallas, Texas.

NELSON, S. S.

Copper Hill, Va., July 1-10.
Organ Cave, W. Va., Oct. 1-10.
Ranceverte, W. Va., Oct. 12-25.
Address, 832 Worth Ave., Greensboro, N. C.

OWEN, G. F. AND BYRDIE.

Pt. Dodge, Iowa, July 12-24.
Climbing Hill, Iowa, July 29-August 1.
Open date, August 12-21.
Bath, Maine, Aug. 28-Sept. 12.
South Portland, Maine, Sept. 18-Oct. 2.
Home address, 115 West Pikes Peak Ave., Colorado Springs, Colo.

OWEN, JOHN F.

Mountain Lake Park, Md., June 30-July 10.
Freeport, L. I., July 14-21.
Mt. Vernon, Ohio, August 4-14.
Alexandria, Ind., August 15-21.
Tarrant, Ala., Aug. 28-Sept. 11.
Home address, Taylor University, Upland, Ind.

PARKER, J. R.

Woodlawn, Ky., July 10-24.
Sergeant, Ky., July 25-August 14.
Berry, Ky., August 15-28.
Address, Wilmore, Ky.

POLLOCK, G. S. AND WIFE.

Eldorado, Ill., August 4-14.
Home address, Wilmore, Ky.

POLLETT, S. H.

Open date, June 20-July 3.
Orangeburg, Ky., August 1-14.
Wagoner's Chapel, Ky., August 15-25.

POWELL, JAMES L.

Pence, Ind., June 26-July 12.
Open date, July 17-27.
Corydon, Ky., July 31-Aug. 14.
Open date, Aug. 18-28.

REDMON, J. E. AND ADA

South Bend, Ind., July 8-24.
California, Ky., August 19-28.
Home address,

Jackson, Tenn., July 19-Aug. 3.
Home address, 2912 Meadowbrook Drive,
Fort Worth, Tex.

RICE, LEWIS J. AND EDYTHE
Madill, Okla., July 17-31.
Kingston, Okla., August 4-21.
Home address, 2923 Troost Ave., Kansas City, Mo.

RINEBARGER, C. C.
North Reading, Mass., June 24-July 4.
Douglas, Mass., July 15-24.
North Little Rock, Ark., July 28-Aug. 7.
Ramey, Ind., August 12-22.
Oakland City, Ind., Aug. 26-Sept. 4.
Home address, Olivet, Ill.

ROBERTS, T. P.
Hannible, Ohio, June 23-July 3.
Walton, Ky., July 9-31.

ROBERTS, BYRON F.
Shelby, Ohio, June 29-July 17.
Wadon, Ohio, July 20-Aug. 7.

ROOD, PERRY R.
West Liberty, Ohio, Dec. 2-Jan. 7.
Home address, 2838 Overlook Drive,
Huntington, W. Va.

SANFORD, E. L. AND WIFE.
Richmond, Va., June 25-July 10.
Covington, Ky., July 12-28.
Bethel Ridge, Ky., July 31-Aug. 21.
Home address, 202 Engman Ave., Lexington, Ky.

SHANK, MR. AND MRS. R. A.
Mt. Olivet, Ky., July 15-25.

ST. CLAIR, FRED
Cheney, Wash., June 5-July 10.
Portland, Oregon, July 31-August 28.
Permanent address, 2444 Bowditch St.,
Berkeley, Calif.

SHARROW, C. E. AND NEVA B.
(Singers and Children's Workers)
Manville, Ill., June 26-July 10.
Home address, Wren, Ohio.

SHELHAMER, E. E.
Harrowsmith, Ont., June 30-July 10.
Inkerman, Ont., July 14-24.
Owasso, Mich., Aug. 4-14.
Wichita, Kan., Aug. 15-24.
Binghamton, N. Y., Sept. 25-Oct. 9.
Allentown, Pa., Oct. 16-30.
Home address, 5419 Bushnell Way, Los Angeles, Calif.

SWEETEN, H. W.
Moberly, Mo., June 27-July 11.
Prepport, N. Y., July 14-24.
Toronto, O., July 28-Aug. 8.

TEETS, ODA B.
Joliet, Pa., July 10-24.
Odessa, W. Va., July 31-Aug. 14.
Mt. Nebo, W. Va., Aug. 17-31.
Home address, Aurora, W. Va.

THOMAS, JOHN.
Red Rock, Minn., July 1-10.
Kittanning, Pa., July 14-24.
Moers, N. Y., August 1-14.
Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 16-28.
Clarkburg, C. Can., Sept. 9-18.
Permanent address, Wilmore, Ky.

VANDALL, N. B.
Bentleyville, Pa., July 7-17.
Pittman, N. J., July 20-Aug. 2.
Findlay, Ohio, Aug. 11-21.
Mt. Lookout, Ohio, Aug. 25-Sept. 4.

VAYHINGER, M.
Letts, Ind., July 29-August 7.
Bryantburg, Ind., Aug. 19-28.
Nashville, Ind., July 6-17.

WATTS, E. E.
Payette, Ia., June 28-July 17.
Belle Plaine, Ia., July 18-Aug. 7.
Home address, Sandy Lake, Pa.

WHITEHURST, R. F.
New York District Nazarene Church,
June and July.
Magnolia, Ark., August 4-14.
Home address, Wilmore, Ky.

WILLIAMS, L. E.
Robinson, Maine, August 5-15.
Home address, Wilmore, Ky.

WIMBERLY, C. F.
St. John, N. B., July 1-10.
Greenwood, Ky., July 20-30.
Wilmore, Ky., July 31-Aug. 5.
Eldorado, Ind., Aug. 5-15.
Ringgold, La., August 16-28.

WINLAND, C. B.
Zanesville, Ohio, June 26-July 10.
Wauseon, Ohio, July 13-27.

WIEMAN, C. L.
Kokomo, Ind., July 1-14.
Wilson Run, Ohio, July 20-Aug. 14.
Rising Sun, Ind., Sept. 7-18.
Burlington, Ky., Sept. 20-Oct. 2.
Home address, 726 Scott St., Covington, Ky.

YOUNG, R. A.
Open dates, July 7-31.
Bowersville, O., Aug. 4-14.
Waynesboro, Miss., Aug. 19-28.

CAMP MEETING CALENDAR.

ALABAMA.

Hartselle, Ala., August 4-14. Workers:
Revs. O. H. Callis, Joseph Owen and Harry Blackburn. L. O. Waldsmith, Sec.
Dothan, Ala., Camp, July 15-24. Workers: Rev. K. H. Bird, evangelist; J. P.
Pencock, singer. Address Rev. W. H.
Newton, Sec., Dothan, Ala., Rt. 5.
Healing Springs, Ala., June 30 to July 10. Workers: Rev. Luther A. Horn,
Rev. R. P. Marshall, pianist, soloist and chalk talker. Address Luther A. Horn, manager, Box 1322, Mobile, Ala.

GEORGIA.

Indian Springs, Ga., camp, Aug. 11-21.
Workers: Rev. H. Morrison, Rev. J. L.
Brasher, Rev. C. W. Butler. Young People's worker, Mrs. Jere M. Glenn. Director of music, Mr. Ham Sewell. Address
R. F. Burdew, Macon, Ga.
Savannah, Ga., camp, August 11-21.
Workers: Rev. Chas. Gibson, Rev. O.
J. Nease. Song leader, Rev. Frank Watkins. Musician, Mrs. Frank Watkins.
Special singers, The Vaughn Radio Quartette. W. W. McCord, President.

IDAHO.

Nampa, Idaho, camp, August 4-14. Workers: Rev. Bud Robinson, Revs. Jarrette and Del Aycock and daughter. For information write A. E. Banner, Chair, 14th and 12th, Nampa, Idaho.

ILLINOIS.

Charleston, Ill., camp, Aug. 19-28. Workers: Rev. T. H. Gaddis and the Moser
Sisters, assisted by district preachers. Rev.
Chas. Slater will represent missions. Correspond with Rev. W. M. Hall, Charleston, Ill.

Cambria, Ill., camp, August 4-14. Workers: Rev. Allie Erick and wife, Mrs. Emma Irick, Rev. Elmer McKay, Rev. J. R. Moore in charge of the singing. The Girls' Quartette, of Taylor University, will also be in attendance. Dr. John Paul will be with us for at least one service. A. C. Wolfe,
Sec., Carterville, Ill., Route 1.

Bonnie, Ill., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Rev. Allie and Emma Irick, Rev. Elmer McKay, Prof. John E. Moore, W. T.
Lawson, Cor. Sec., Benton, Ill.

Greenville, Ill., camp, August 18-28.
Workers: Bishop Joseph F. Berry, Rev.
Guy Wilson, The Prestons, song leaders.
A. B. Plog, Cor. Sec.

Normal, Ill., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Rev. Harry W. Morrow, Rev. C. B.
Fugett, Rev. Harold Johnson, song leader.
Rev. Della B. Stretch, children's worker.
Address Mrs. Bertha C. Ashbrook, Sec., 45
W. Allen St., Springfield, Ill.
Sherman, Ill., camp, August 4-14. Workers: Rev. A. L. Whitcomb, Rev. J. E.
Hewson. Haldor Lillenas and wife, song leaders; Mrs. Della B. Stretch, children's worker. For information write Mrs. Julia Short Hayes, 2217 East Capitol Ave.,
Springfield, Ill.

Chesterfield, Ill., camp, June 28-July 10.
Workers: Rev. and Mrs. Jack Linn, Miss
Imogene Quinn, Prof. Edson Crosby, and Miss Karine Kjolseth. Address J. W.
Louthan, Arcola, Ill.

Eldorado, Ill., camp, August 4-14. Workers: Dr. C. F. Wimberly, Dr. Andrew Johnson. Rev. G. S. Pollock and wife in charge of the music. J. M. Keasler, Sec., Omaha, Ill.

INDIANA.

Bryantburg, Ind., camp, August 19-28.
Workers: Rev. Monroe Vayhinger, The Payne Evangelistic Party, consisting of Sister Fannie Payne, Miss Bertha Pultz,
Miss Ruth C. Cooper, Roy C. Brilhart, song leader, Chas. E. Cleek, Madison, Ind., Sec. 9.
Oakland City, Ind., camp, August 26-
Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. J. B. McBride,
Rev. Ira Aykers, Rev. C. C. Rinebarger and wife, song evangelists. Write Mrs.
Warrick Yeager, Sec., 518 S. Hall St.,
Princeton, Ind.

Letts, Ind., Camp, July 29-August 7.
Workers: M. Vayhinger, Dwight M. Peffley, song evangelist, Mrs. Lena Holcomb, pianist. Address Rev. Arthur McQueen,
Pres., Westport, Ind.

New Albany, Ind., Silver Heights, Aug.
4-14. Workers: Revs. Virgil L. Moore and Raymond Browning, Paul S. Rees. Mrs.
T. B. Talbott, children's worker. Male Quartet of Asbury College in charge of music. Address E. E. McPheeters, Sec., 212
Cherry St., New Albany, Ind.

Cleveland, Ind., camp, August 26-Sept. 4.
Workers: Rev. John T. Hatfield, Rev. G.
Arnold Hodgins, Wright Brothers, song leaders, Miss Florence Wyse, pianist. For information write Rev. C. E. Ellsworth,
Sec., Greenfield, Ind., Rt. 3.

Frankfort, Ind., camp, August 5-14.
Workers: Rev. T. M. Anderson, Rev. G.
Arnold Hodgins, J. C. Brilhart, song evangelist, Rev. C. C. Mourer, special musician. For full particulars write R. E.
Snow, Sec., 123 W. 24th St., Anderson, Ind.

IOWA.

Keokuk, Iowa, camp, July 10-25. Workers: Rev. F. W. Sumfield and wife. Address Mrs. F. A. Oilar, Sec., 1027 Timea St., Keokuk, Iowa.

KANSAS.

Wichita, Kan., camp, Aug. 18-28. Workers: Rev. Chas. H. Babcock, Rev. E. E.
Sheehamer, Rev. T. M. Anderson, Mrs. Ernest D. Bartlett, Harold Chapman and Prof.
B. D. Sutton and wife. Address W. R. Cain,
Sec., 515 So. Vine St., Wichita, Kan.

KENTUCKY.

Acton, Ky., camp, August 12-20. Workers: Rev. Andrew Johnson, Prof. W. C.
Kinsey and wife, song leaders. E. E.
Bads, Sec.

Wilmore, Ky., camp, July 28-Aug. 7.
Workers: Rev. C. F. Wimberly, Rev. J. L.
Brasher and H. S. Blackburn, Rev. H. L.
Morrison, Pres., will preach also. Address
C. A. Lovejoy, Sec., Wilmore, Ky.

Callis Grove, Ky., camp, August 5-14.
Workers: Rev. Fielding T. Howard, J.
Dorothy Huyett, song leader, Miss Ethel Sageser, pianist. L. I. H. Driskell, Sec., Milton, Ky., Route 3.

LOUISIANA.

Lake Arthur, La., Camp, July 7-17.
Workers: Rev. Will H. Huff, assisted by Mr. W. R. Wilder, leader of song, and
Mr. James V. Reid, young people's worker.
Address Mrs. A. J. Fontenot, Pres., Box 1621, Shreveport, La.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Douglas, Mass., camp, July 15-25. Workers: Rev. C. H. Babcock, Mrs. Jane Reed, young people's worker. C. C. Rinebarger, musical director. Rev. N. J. Raison, Sec.,
Blue Hills Ave., Mattapan, Mass.
North Adams, Mass., camp, July 8-18. Workers: Rev. William Heslop and wife, Rev. Martha Curry and Rev. Mabel
R. Manning. Write Miss Annie M. Cunningham, Sec., 194 Tremont St., New Bedford, Mass.

MICHIGAN.

Hope Center, Mich., camp, July 31-Aug.
14. Workers: James Miller, Paul White.
Write Ashby Mills, Sec., Hope, Mich.
Eaton Rapids, Mich., Camp, July 29-

August 7. Workers: Dr. John Paul, Rev.
Will Huff, Dr. S. H. Turbeville. Rev. L.
H. Nixon in charge of music, with Morse Skinner at the piano. Mrs. Blanche
Francis in charge of young people's work.
For information write Miss Fern C. Wheeler, Sec., Charlotte, Mich.
Gladwin, Mich., camp, July 21-31.
Workers: Rev. Frank Anshur, Miss Jean
Reider, song leader. For information write
E. F. Bailey, Sec., Gladwin, Mich.
Owosso, Mich., camp, August 5-14. Workers: Rev. Geo. B. Kulp, Rev. E. E. Shelhamer, L. W. Sturk, Sec., 1506 Bennett Ave., Flint, Mich.

Romeo, Mich., camp, August 5-14. Workers: George Bennard, Rev. C. W. Butler, Rev. Will Huff, and Rev. S. H. Turbe-ville. Mrs. W. I. Francis, Young People's worker. Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Shank, song leaders. E. L. Jaquish, Sec., R. F. D. 5, Pontiac, Mich.

MINNESOTA.

Pipestone, Minn., camp, June 23-July 3.
Workers: Rev. A. L. Whitcomb, Rev. H.
W. Blackburn. Address Mrs. Walter H.
Anderson, Sec.

Red Rock, Minn., camp, June 30-July 10.
Workers: Rev. M. M. Anderson, Rev. John
Thomas and wife, Rev. Lloyd Nixon, Rev.
Geo. G. Vallentyne, H. Morse Skinner, pianist. For information write Rev. Jacob
Berger, Fairbault, Minn.

Maybee, Mich., camp, August 11-21.
Workers: Rev. Emma Banning, J. C.
Walker and wife, the Douglas Brothers,
(Scotch duettists). Mrs. Clara Palmer,
Sec., 544 Thompson St., Ann Arbor, Mich.

MISSISSIPPI.

Frost Bridge, Miss., camp, August 19-28.
Workers: Rev. A. A. Young and other helpers. Address Mrs. J. E. Moody, Sec.,
Waynesboro, Miss.

MISSOURI.

Ava, Mo., camp, August 25-Sept. 4. Workers: A. P. Breneman and wife, C. E.
C. G. Stuber, Sec. Address Mrs. C. G. Stuber,
Sec., P. O. Box 384, Omaha, Neb.

Omaha, Neb., camp, July 15-25. Workers: Chas. H. Stalker, W. R. Cain and
C. G. Stuber, Sec. Address Mrs. C. G. Stuber,
Sec., P. O. Box 384, Omaha, Neb.

Kearney, Neb., Camp, August 18-28.
Workers: Rev. E. O. Hobbs, Rev. Jarrette and Dell Aycock, Mrs. C. P. Turner. Address all communications to Mr. B. J. Patterson, Sec., Kearney, Neb.

NEW JERSEY.

Glassboro, N. J., camp, August 11-21.
Workers: Rev. H. J. Olsen, R. G. Flexon,
Alvin Young, Write M. Gallagher, 40
Myrtle Ave., Pitman, N. J.

Aura, N. J., camp, July 8-17. Worker:
Rev. Preston E. Hendry.
National Park, N. J., camp, August 12-
21. Workers: Rev. Bona Fleming, Rev.
John Fleming, Mr. Burl P. Sparks, singer.
Fletcher Grove, Delanco, N. J., camp,
August 27-Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. Theo.
Blisner, Mrs. Theo. Elsner, Rev. Richard
G. Flexon, Jr.

NEW YORK.

Freeport, L. I., N. Y., Camp Roosevelt,
Prince Ave., West of North Main St., July
14-24. Workers: Rev. J. P. O'Connell,
Rev. Howard Sweeten; song leader, Miss Florence Fairbanks. Address H. J. Cornell, 464 Rurling St., Flushing, N. Y.
Moers, N. Y., camp, July 30-Aug. 14.
Workers: Joseph H. Smith, J. F. Knapp,
John and Emily Thomas, Zahniser, John Scobie, Tillie Albright, Arthur Goul, song leader. Address Kenneth 'F. Fee, Sec.,
Moers, N. Y.

Connelly Springs, N. C., camp, August
7-14. Workers: Rev. Joseph H. Smith, The Greensboro Bible School Band and Quartette and others. For information address
Box 200, Connelly Springs, N. C.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Washburn, D., camp, July 7-17.
Workers: Dr. J. L. Brasher, Rev. Raymond Browning, Rev. Leo Slagg and wife in charge of music.

OHIO.

Napoleon, Ohio, camp, July 31-August 14.
Workers: Miss Callie M. Bradshaw and Miss Helena Saneholtz. For information address Rev. R. W. Wolfe, Napoleon, Ohio.
Dayton, Ohio, camp, July 21-31. Workers: Rev. Jesse Whitecotton and others.
Rev. and Mrs. A. H. Johnston in charge of music. Address Rev. L. Kennett, 33
North Kilmer St., Dayton, Ohio.

Mendon, Ohio, camp, July 14-24. Workers: Rev. W. L. Surbrook, W. C. Kinsey and wife. Write W. A. Barber, Sec., Mendon, Ohio, Route 1.
Ludlow Falls, Ohio, camp, July 28-August 7. Workers: Rev. H. M. Metzger, Rev.
J. A. Beery, Rev. S. M. Eidsath. Rev. J. I.
Moore, song leader. Miss Edith Schryer, children's worker. Roy Harsbarger, Sec.,
West Milton, Ohio.

Portage, Ohio, camp, August 18-28.
Workers: Geo. B. Kulp and John E. Hew-son. Song leader, Dwight M. Peffley.
Address E. L. Day, Sec.

Findlay, Ohio, camp, August 11-21.
Workers: C. C. Callis, B. H. Haynes,
Mrs. Anna Smith, W. B. Vandall, singer.
Miss Florine Ewing, pianist. G. W. Egbert, Sec.

Warsaw, Ohio, camp, July 21-31. Workers: Rev. W. V. Loveless and D. W. H.
Muehling, song leaders. Rev. Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Chatfield. For information write
Adah Shepard, Sec., Warsaw, Ohio.

Mt. Vernon, Ohio, (Camp Sychar), camp,
August 4-14. Workers: Rev. C. M. Dunaway, Rev. John Owen, Rev. E. Hilton
Post, song leader. Prof. W. B. Yates,
Young people's worker, Miss Anna McGhie,
Children's workers, Miss May Gorsuch and Miss Olive Tanner. Young people's song leader, Rev. W. L. Mullet. Address Rev.
E. E. Shites, Sec., Shadyside, Ohio.

Toronto, (Hollow Rock) Ohio, July 28-
August 7. Workers: C. W. Ruth, C. H.
Babcock, Howard Sweeten. Song leader,
Prof. Kenneth Wells and wife. Young People's and Children's meeting leader,
Mrs. Saele Misner. Address Roy L. Householder, Sec., Toronto, Ohio.

Sebring, Ohio, camp, July 14-28. Workers: Rev. Joseph H. Smith, Rev. H. C.
Morrison, Rev. C. W. Ruth, Rev. T. M.
Anderson, Rev. Lawrence Reed, Kenneth
Wells and wife, in charge of singing. Mrs.
Jos. Smith and Miss Janie Bradford in charge of young people. Miss Ruth in charge of children's meetings. Address W.

L. Murphy, Sebring, Ohio.

Circleville, Ohio, camp, August 26-Sept.
4. Workers: Rev. T. P. Roberts, Rev.
Howard W. Sweeten, Rev. Charles L.
Slater, Rev. E. A. Keaton, Cor. Sec., 481
N. High St., Chillicothe, Ohio.

Columbus, Ohio, camp, July 28-Aug. 7.
Workers: Rev. Floyd N. Neese, Rev. Raymond Browning, Rev. F. M. Messenger,
Rev. J. G. Morrison, Rev. and Mrs. B. D.
Sutton, gospel singers, Rev. Chas. A. Gibson. Vaughn Radio Quartette. Write Rev.
Orval J. Nease, 146 King Ave., Columbus,
Ohio.

OKLAHOMA.

Blackwell, Okla., camp, August 25-Sept.
4. Workers: Rev. C. H. Babcock, Rev.
Geo. Bennard and Willard Davis. Address
Mrs. A. L. Wright, Sec., 307 E. College,
Blackwell, Okla.

May, Okla., camp, July 21-31. No special help has been called but God's true ones are invited from everywhere. For information write L. B. Pile, Sec., May, Okla.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Carmichaels, Pa., camp, July 21-31.
Workers: Rev. C. W. Butler, Rev. Haldor and Bertha Lillenas. Write Rev. L. O.
Douds, Sec., Carmichaels, Pa.

Kricktown, Pa., camp, July 22-31. Workers: Rev. Theodore Elsner and wife, Rev.
Clifford E. Keys and wife, Rev. C. D.
Dreher, John Aten, Sec., 1102 Douglass
St., Reading, Pa.

Conneautville, Pa., camp, August 5-14.
Workers: Rev. J. L. Brasher, Thomas
Henderson, Rev. F. A. Arthur, Prof. Kenneth Wells and wife, Rev. C. D. Douds,
C. A. Lockwood, Cor. Sec., 2740 Louisiana Ave., (Darmont) Pittsburgh, Pa.

Bentleyville, Pa., camp, July 14-24. Workers: Dr. John Paul, Dr. Will Huff, Rev.
Chas. M. Dunaway, Andy Dalbow, and
Rev. N. B. Vandall. For information write
Rev. J. W. Schrader, Sec., West Elizabeth,
Pa., Box 720.

Clinton, Pa., camp, August 5-14. Workers: Rev. R. G. Flexon, Rev. David Wilson, Rev. J. N. Hampe, Rev. Geo. Cole, song leader. Mrs. Edith Clawson, children's meetings. Write Rev. L. W. King, Clinton, Pa.

Hughesville, Pa., Camp, July 21-July 31.
Workers: Rev. Raymond E. Doble, Rev.
Claude A. Roane. Song leaders, Mrs.
Esther Williamson, assisted by Miss Anna Bushman. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Best in charge of the music. Address Rev. S. P.
Elroyd, Centre Hall, Pa.

Kittanning, Pa., camp, July 14-24. Workers: Rev. and Mrs. John Thomas, Mrs.
Ethel Foiles, song leaders. For information write Miss Nancy Byron, 1214 Fifth Ave., Ford City, Pa.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

Epworth, S. C., camp, August 19-28.
Workers: Dr. E. P. Taylor, Dr. John Paul and others. Address Rev. W. P. B. Kinard, Epworth, S. C.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Mitchell, S. D., camp, June 24-July 4.
Workers: Rev. Frank E. Arthur, Rev. A.
W. Gould, Rev. W. W. Jeffers. Wm. Durkee, Sec.

Wilmet, S. D., camp, July 5-17. Workers: Rev. Frank E. Arthur, Rev. and Mrs.
H. T. Nyhus, singers. James Cameron, clerk, Wilmet, S. D.

TENNESSEE.

Nashville, Tenn., camp, June 26-July 10.
Workers: Rev. W. M. Tidwell, Rev. Z. T.
Johnson, Rev. H. W. Wise. Special singing, Jno. T. Benson, Jr., leader.
Greeneville, Tenn., camp, Sept. 1-11.
Workers: Rev. C. M. Dunaway, Miss Ruth
Harris in charge of music. Address Mrs.
Flora Willis, care Mrs. C. A. Vann, Greeneville, Tenn.

Dyer, Tenn., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Dr. A. O. Henriks, Rev. S. W.
Strickland. Miss Ruth Harris, song leader. Joe T. Hall, Sec., Dyer, Tenn.

TEXAS.

Scottsville, Tex., camp, July 28-Aug. 7.
Workers: Rev. Fred Ross, Rev. Warren C. McIntyre, Singer, C. P. Gossett. B.
P. Wynne, Sec., Marshall, Tex.

Atlanta, Tex., camp, August 12-21.
Workers: Dr. R. T. Williams, The Latham
Sisters, pianist and leaders of song. Mary
E. Perdue, Sec.

Waco, Texas, camp, July 29-August 7.
Workers: Rev. Harry S. Allen. For information address Jno. W. Beresford, Sec.,
Waco, Texas.

VIRGINIA.

Spotsylvania, Va., camp, August 19-29.
Workers: Rev. Fred Canada, Rev. W. L.
King, Rev. Bessie B. Larkin. Mrs. W. L.
King and Mrs. G. B. King in charge of young people's work. Mrs. Merton Steelman and son, song leader. Address Mrs.
B. K. Andrews, Sec., Spotsylvania, Va.

Mt. Vernon, Va., camp, July 20-Aug. 7.
Workers: Rev. Wilson Thomas, Rev. C.
W. Dyer, Rev. H. H. Hoyt and Fred
Canada. Address Annie Hoesley Shrader,
Sec., Acetotink, Va.

Wakefield, Va., camp, August 5-14. Workers: Dr. C. H. Babcock, Rev. Harry Hayes,
Otho M. Cockes, Pres., Elberon, Va.

Greensville, Va., camp, August 19-28.
Workers: Rev. Wm. Norbery, song leader, Mrs. Marion Birrell. For information address Anna L. Hyatt, Sec., 163
Adams St., N. W., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON.

THE FIGHT IS ON

The fight against sin and for holiness.

The fight against impurity and for purity.

The fight against worldliness in the church and for a holy people.

The fight against immodest dress and for a modest womanhood.

The fight against those who would destroy the Bible, and for the Word.

The fight against Sabbath desecration and for Sabbath observance.

The fight against lawlessness, and for obedience to the law.

The fight against trashy literature and for wholesome literature.

The fight against indifference and for a revival.

THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD IS IN THIS GREAT BATTLE FOR RIGHTEOUSNESS.

and the only way for us to make the fight effective in your community is for you to help us by placing it into every home possible. You will be pleased to know that you can send THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD from now until January 1, 1928, for only 50c, and if we may have your co-operation, you will be instrumental in making this fight effective in your community.

Allow us to suggest that you tell every one you come in contact with what THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD is fighting for, and tell them of this special introductory offer. Also speak to one or more financially able and liberal persons, tell them what you are trying to do, and ask for their co-operation in putting the paper into a number of homes. Then, too, you will find a number of people who tithe who will be glad to invest a little tithe money in a fight of this kind.

Use the blanks below and send in your list within the next few days, so as to give the subscribers the benefit of the full 25 weeks.

Pentecostal Publishing Company, Louisville, Kentucky.

Enclosed find $..... for which please send The Pentecostal Herald weekly from now until January, 1928, to the following:

Name	Name
Address	Address
Name	Name
Address	Address
Name	Name
Address	Address
Name	Name
Address	Address
Name	Name
Address	Address

PENTECOSTAL HERALD

Dr. H. C. Morrison, Editor
Mrs. H. C. Morrison, Associate Editor

Louisville, Ky., Wednesday, July 13, 1927.
Entered at Louisville, Ky., Postoffice as Second Class Matter.

$1.50 Per Year.
Vol. 39, No. 28.

"THAT THEY MAY BE ONE."

By The Editor.

OUR Lord Jesus prayed for the oneness of his people. Saint Paul also laid great emphasis on the essential unity of the body of Christ, the church of those who have been born again. He had much to say about the harmony that should exist among the various members of this body. Evidently this was in the mind of Christ and of the great Apostle to the Gentiles a matter of supreme importance. According to them, progress of the Kingdom of God and the salvation of souls largely depended upon this spirit of Christian fellowship and holy union. Jesus prayed for his disciples, "that they all may be one . . . that the world may believe that thou hast sent me." Paul estimated it a great crime to disturb the peace of the members of, and to introduce schism into the body of Christ—the Church.

* * * *

There can be no doubt that much harm has arisen out of the bickerings, strife and jealousies that have existed among the professed followers of the Lord Jesus. Church has been arrayed against church; altar has been builded against altar. One part of the body has preyed upon other parts, often rejoicing more over one proselyte from a rival, than over the conversion of those who are out in the world. Instead of helping each other, like different regiments of an army, supporting one another in combat upon the strongholds of sin, they have often fought one another more than they have fought the world, the flesh and the devil. Frequently, one church organization engages in a revival of religion some other church, instead of encouraging the good work, will unite with the forces of evil to hinder instead of helping forward the sister church in her labor for souls. This unholy rivalry and strife have frequently shaken the confidence of thoughtless people in the world in the religion of those who profess Christ and, sometimes, sad to say, in Christ himself.

* * * *

In our present condition of intellectual development and true piety, there is no probability that we can have the union of the various Christian churches, but no doubt we can have very close union and beautiful fellowship among the true Christians of all churches, and that is to be devoutly sought and carefully practiced. All unnecessary controversy which is likely to offend and cause strife among the children of God of the various denominations of Christians should be avoided, and we rejoice that there has been very large improvement in this particular within the last three or four decades; but there is still room for improvement. There is nothing more pleasing to this writer than to find beautiful harmony and a spirit of genuine Christian fellowship and brotherhood among the members of various religious denominations. The change since I was a boy, or a half century ago, when I was entering the ministry, is remarkable and a cause for genuine joy.

God has always had a hard time with great ecclesiasticisms. As they grow, become rich, build great churches and cathedrals, establish vast institutions, create high offices, give men large authority, pay immense salaries, they develop a condition of things where they are quite likely to think about and become interested in the things of the Kingdom, rather than in the King. We easily become interested in the enterprises, offices, honors and emoluments of the church, developing a sort of ecclesiastical autocracy and, hardly without knowing it, lose the spirit of Christ, divorce the church from the leadership and power of the Holy Ghost, and go forward with vast human programs, drift away from saving faith, fundamental truth, experimental religion, and the supernatural manifestations of God in the midst of his people. What Jesus was praying for was, not the union of ecclesiastical bodies, so much, but a higher and better union—the union of hearts, of sanctified sympathies, of genuine brother and sisterhood in himself. There is a baptism by one Spirit into one body which brings the disciples of Christ into holy oneness. Let us seek after and cultivate this union.

Open Letter to a Young Preacher.

My Dear Young Brother:—

I am delighted to hear that you are going to have a protracted meeting in your church, and trust it may bring on a gracious revival. I am thankful you have secured Brother Blank to assist you in your meeting. He is anything but "blank." I have known and loved him for many years. He is a strong, earnest preacher of the gospel of Christ. He will not try to work up a religious excitement among your people, but give him time and he will sow the seed that will produce an abundant harvest. He will preach strong sermons on sin, judgment, and the future state of the impenitent wicked that will make the people think upon their ways and turn to God.

He will preach upon the greatness of God, the justice of his laws, his will, and his love for sinful men. He will insist that God has a right to rule his own universe, and that we are under obligation to God to obey, believe in, and serve him. His sermons will be awakening messages and force upon the people the conviction that God is not far off, but that he is in the midst in his convicting and saving power.

His messages will search the souls of men; under his powerful proclamation of the word of God sin comes to look unreasonable, a hateful and dangerous thing. Under his ministry, men forsake sin, and sorrow that they have committed it, and feel the need of forgiveness and seek for it. They will not be satisfied with simply becoming a member of the church, being baptized and performing their religious duties, but they want to be delivered from the guilt and power of sin, made new creatures in Christ Jesus, and become living epistles known and read of all men. I have known him to preach in a town until the whole population was humbled and awed with a sense of the presence of God.

Preaching is a very essential part of a revival meeting, but to have the best success, the pastor must be a busy man; you must get out and visit in the homes of the people, and pray for them. Look up the members of the church who are not in the habit of attending church and get them out to the services. You must seek out the people who have moved into the community who are holding their church letters, and persuade them to identify themselves with the church. This is one of the most important works that an evangelist or pastor can do during the revival meeting. These people are the Lord's sheep and should be located and brought into the fold that they may be fed and nurtured in their spiritual lives.

When a boy I went into a new community, took my church letter, but not a person asked me to join the church, consequently I kept my letter and remained out of the church for a year, which did not contribute to my growth in grace. If the pastor or any member of the church had asked me to unite with the church I would have done so, but they left me out, with the feeling that "no man cared for my soul." Make it a point to hunt up the people who have their church letters, bring them into the church, and they will become acquainted during the revival, be revived in their spiritual life, and become useful members and, best of all, saved from backsliding and the loss of their souls.

Be instant in season and out of season in speaking to people on the streets, in the stores, shops, and homes during the meeting. Talk to the people and find out about their spiritual state. If you hear good news about the revival, tell the preacher that the word is taking hold, the people are thinking and talking of the meeting; this will encourage him, strengthen his faith, and he will preach with more power and zeal.

I have preached for pastors who were all about town during the day soul hunting, and would come in with encouraging reports that would greatly stimulate and help me to preach with renewed vigor and earnestness. I have labored with pastors who would lounge around the house, snooze, read the papers and do nothing, simply neglect souls and let them go on in darkness to outer darkness. Pitiful!

Get your people to praying, visiting, hunting up the neglected and bring them out to the meeting, and you will be rewarded by gracious results. Don't be content without seeing souls brought to Christ. Get the people to praying; recognize the presence of the Holy Spirit, trust him to work among the people and bring them into a saving relation with Christ. Use the means God has ap-

(Continued on page 8)

NOT TO BE USED WITHOUT COPYRIGHT PERMISSION

OF ASBURY THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

SPIRITUAL POWER.

Rev. G. W. Ridout, D.D., Corresponding Editor.

Here is a distinct difference between Religion and Spirituality. Many people have religion, of a kind, but they have no spiritual liberty and power. Saul of Tarsus had religion, but not until he became converted and was changed by the Holy Ghost had he any spiritual power and was of any account to the kingdom of God.

Let me set forth some of the aspects of Spiritual Power:

1. It implies Converting Power.
2. It implies Pentecostal Power bestowed as a distinct experience subsequent to conversion; such as the disciples received at Pentecost. Acts 2.
3. It implies living the life in conformity with the Will of God.
4. It implies a constant abiding experience in fellowship with the Holy Spirit.

Let us observe how Spiritual Power exhibits itself.

1. Spiritual Power is Prayer Power.

Rev. S. Chadwick, in his writings on "Lord, Teach us to Pray," relates the following:

"There is one remarkable instance that I cherish because of the way the story came to me. There are two buildings in the City of Bristol which are monuments of answered prayer. One is Muller's Orphanage, and of the other I am not at present at liberty to speak. Dr. A. T. Pierson was my friend and he was the friend and biographer of Muller. It was from him I got the first half of the story. He told me of an occasion when he was the guest of Muller at the Orphanage. One night when all the household had retired he asked Pierson to join him in prayer. He told him that there was absolutely nothing in the house for next morning's breakfast. My friend tried to remonstrate with him and to remind him that all the stores were closed. Muller knew all that. He had prayed as he always prayed, and he never told anyone of his needs but God. They prayed. At least Muller did and Pierson tried to. They went to bed and slept, and breakfast for two thousand children was there in abundance at the usual breakfast hour. Neither Muller nor Pierson ever knew how the answer came. The story was told next morning to Simon Short, of Bristol, under pledge of secrecy till the benefactor died. The details of it are thrilling, but all that need be told here is that the Lord called him out of bed in the middle of the night to send breakfast to Muller's Orphanage, and knowing nothing of the need, or of the two men at prayer, he sent provisions that would feed them for a month. That is like the Lord God of Elijah, and still more like the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ."

Well does Dr. Chadwick remark in connection with the above:

"It is not every kind of praying that works such wonders. It takes a man of prayer to pray as Elijah and George Muller prayed. It is the energized prayer of the righteous man that is of great force. The widow knew that Elijah was a man of God when he prayed back her boy to life. It is always the crowning proof and the ultimate test. Nothing could turn the nation back to God so surely and so quickly as a Church that prayed and prevailed. The world will never believe in a religion in which there is no supernatural power. A rationalized faith, a socialized Church, and a moralized Gospel may gain applause, but they awaken no conviction and win no converts."

"There is passion in the praying that prevails. Elijah was a man of passions all compact. There was passion in all he did. All there was of him went into everything he did. God loves a man aflame. The lukewarm he cannot abide. He never keeps hot

THE WORK OF SANCTIFICATION.

John Wesley relates the following:

"On Friday, Feb. 13, 1760, about thirty persons were met together at Otley . . . in order (as usual) to pray, sing hymns and provoke one another to love and good works . . . When they proceeded to speak of the several states of their souls, some with deep sighs and groans complained of the burden they felt for the remains of indwelling sin; seeing in a clearer light than ever before the necessity of a deliverance from it." Having spent the usual time together a few went home, "but the rest remained upon their knees groaning for the great and precious promises of God. One being desired to pray, he no sooner began to lift up his voice to God, than the Holy Ghost made intercessor in all that were present. . . At length the travail of their souls burst out into loud and ardent cries. They had no doubt of the favor of God (converted), but they could not rest while there was in them anything contrary to his nature. One cried out, in an exceeding great agony, 'Lord, deliver me from my sinful nature!' then a second, a third, and fourth." While praying, "one was heard to say, 'Blessed be the Lord God forever, for he hath cleansed my heart! Praise the Lord, O, my soul, and all that is within me, praise his holy name!' Another said, 'I hold thee with a trembling hand, but will not let thee go;' and in a little time cried out, 'Praise the Lord with me; for he hath cleansed my heart from sin!'"

"Before they parted three believed God had fulfilled his word, and 'cleansed them from all unrighteousness.' The next evening they met again; and the Lord was again present to heal the broken in heart. One received remission of sins, and three more believed God had cleansed them from all sin."

The effect of Sanctification is thus stated:

Out of the wilderness we pass into Canaan. From the seventh of Romans, with its struggle and defeat, we move into the eighth chapter, with its rest and victory. Out of the self-life we rise into the Christ-life. For the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus has made us free from the law of sin and death. The step of surrender must be voluntary, complete and final; the act of faith must be definite, living and aggressive. Such a step of surrender and such an act of faith mean a new Christian experience, a second definite work—a crisis as radical and revolutionary as the crisis of conversion. In nature it is not a gradual development, but a sudden change. In regeneration we pass out of death into life; in sanctification we pass out of self into the Christ-life. In regeneration we receive a "new spirit;" in sanctification Christ comes and takes up his abode within the "new spirit." When such a revolution occurs in our lives, we shall certainly know it; and we may expect the Holy Ghost to witness as definitely and distinctly to his work of sanctification as he did to his work of regeneration.

hearts waiting. 'Then will I be found of you when ye seek Me with all your hearts.' There is an illuminating note in the margin of the Authorized Version (James v. 17) which says of Elijah that he 'prayed in his prayer.' When he prayed, he prayed in his prayer. Is there not much praying in which there is no prayer?"

Regarding Prayer, Dr. Frank Ballard, in discussing prayer in his latest book, says that in it "there is always a definite seven-fold complexity, just as there is in the ordinary light of day. To most folk it is just simple white light, no more. But to the student it means that all the seven colors of the solar spectrum are blended into one. Their separate identity can be shown at any moment by a little prism. They are visible enough, and always in one order—red, orange, yellow, green, blue, indigo, violet—in every rainbow. There could be no truer analogy concerning prayer. For it is always complex, with seven distinct elements, in a rightful order, which blend into one. The seven elements are adoration, thanksgiving, confession, resolution, petition, intercession, and submission. These in their combination alone make reality in prayer."

Secondly. Spiritual Power is that which sanctifies the life and gives the believer victory.

Dr. Pardington has put this aspect of the truth as follows:

"The second point of Divine contact, whereby sanctification is received, is the work of the Spirit. The identification of the believer with Christ in death and resurrection is the historical side of holiness; the transformation of the believer in character and conduct is the experimental side of holiness. The one is apprehension; the other is appropriation. After the vision of victory comes the realization of victory. Now, it is through the presence and power of the Holy Spirit that the vision of victory is transformed into its realization. Indeed, it is through the Holy Spirit that we come to see the hopelessness of struggling against sin; it is through the Holy Spirit that we catch a vision of the cross with its promise and potency of deliverance; it is through the Holy Spirit that the revelation of the indwelling Christ breaks with comforting cheer upon our despairing hearts; and it is through the Holy Spirit that we are enabled to die unto sin and live unto God."

Thirdly. Spiritual Power is that thing which illuminates the soul. In Psalm 34:5 we read, "They looked unto him and were lightened." A certain writer upon this passage says:

The Chinese version of our text is, "All who look to the Lord have light in their faces." This conforms to the original, which will admit of such free translations, "They looked unto him and glowed, sparkled," or again, "they had the sheen of a flowing stream." How suggestive are these expressions! The human countenance is a marvel of God's grace. Here are recorded for all to read the deepest thoughts of the soul and the fleeting phrases of emotions.

Fourth. Spiritual Power is that which brings things to pass for God as nothing else can.

One of the most wonderful missionaries in India was "Praying Hyde."

He was a young missionary sent to India. His strange and marvelous life dates back to a day on the deck of the steamer which was taking him out to his twenty-year missionary service in India, when he crumpled up in anger a letter from a friend urging him "to seek for the baptism of the Holy Spirit as the great qualification for mission work."

After a mighty baptism of the Spirit he prayed till India witnessed thousands brought to Christ and hundreds of workers sent into the harvest fields.

On his way home to die, he was in England in 1911. He went to a mission service where Wilbur Chapman and Charlie Alexander were having a hard time. He took the burden of the mission upon his heart and prayed till victory came. After a meeting of wonderful power, Dr. Chapman asked Mr. Hyde to pray for him, and this is his account of what happened:

"He came to my room, turned the key in the door, dropped on his knees, waited five minutes without a single syllable coming from his lips. I could hear my own heart thumping and his beating. I felt the hot tears running down my face. I knew I was with God. Then with upturned face, down which the tears were streaming, he said: 'Oh, God!' Then for five minutes at least, he was still again, and then when he knew he was talking with God his arm went around my shoulder and there came up from the depth of his heart such petitions for men as I had never heard before. I rose from my knees to know what real prayer was. We believe that prayer is mighty, and we believe it as we never did before."

If You Want Something

Convincing on the tithe, something that tells you what God says about it, send 10c and get a copy of "Will A Man Rob God." It is a splendid little book to hand out to members of your church who do not believe in tithing. We will send one dozen for $1.00.

MODERN APOSTLES OF FAITH.

Rev. C. F. Wimberly, D.D.

CHAPTER XIX.

GIPSY (RODNEY) SMITH.

HE Jew is a wonder among the peoples of the earth; but their origin is no mystery. Their racial characteristics and clannish life are without parallel in all the world. But the gipsy cannot be traced to any certain origin; they have traits and habits found nowhere else; their origin has baffled the anthropologist experts. It is believed that they were first known of in India; but being a wandering, nomadic people without records, or other institutions of civilization, it is all conjecture about the gipsy. They are supposed to be a thieving, immoral, treacherous people; but a close-up of the soul life of the gipsy reveals some astonishing moral qualities. They have laws and methods governing their social and domestic life that our boasted civilization might well copy. They are religious—believe implicitly in God—in spite of their superstitions and other strange notions.

Now in all this we face the mystery; they are doubtless from that great expanse of country lying east of the Mediterranean Sea; they are from the lands and nomadic tribes, yet they are neither Turk nor Arab; yet have many habits and customs similar to those wild "Asses of the Desert." The gipsy is hard to explain, as he rather belongs to the peoples of "No Man's Land." Nobody is sure about him; therefore, we have the same right as others as to who and what, concerning the gipsy—it is all vague. We hear much about the "Lost Tribes of Israel," the Ten Tribes. What has become of them? They could not have been absorbed without violating all the traditions of the Jews in all the world.

We have always had some notions about the gipsy; then after reading the life of Gipsy Smith—an autobiography—we have been confirmed in our views. But the author does not hint at such a proposition. The gipsy belongs to the Semitic races; that much is true; they live in tents, and are pilgrims and strangers in the earth, with no fixed habitation. The Jews are Semitic, and for centuries dwelt in tents. The gipsies do not mix with other races; neither do the Jews. The gipsies are intensely religious in a wild, superstitious way, but are not Christ followers. They reverence God; so does the Jew; they have clean traditions—they keep the Sabbath day—and very few but have Bible names. The gipsies all want their babies christened; and lastly, the two peoples are strikingly similar in face, eyes, hair, etc. Both are a "peculiar people." We therefore believe that the gipsy is of Jewish origin, and there seems to be no other rational explanation of this strange people.

But this chapter proposes to draw a brief pen picture of Gipsy Smith, an evangelist and soul saver of international renown. He was born in a tent, March 31, 1860, in the Parish of Wanstead, Epping Forest, England. He was schooled in all the petty pilfering of his people. One of the most pathetic pictures in the life of this gipsy boy was when smallpox got among them, his mother died of the epidemic, and was quarantined so that none of the children could see the dead mother. "This great sorrow," says little Rodney, "broke my childish heart." This visitation was the turning point in the life of Cornelius Smith—the father; he sought God continually until he found him, and likewise did his two brothers. They visited a Wesleyan Methodist Church during a revival and it resulted in the salvation of the Smith brothers. Cornelius became an evangelist among his people at once. About this time he came in contact with William Booth, who was just beginning his mission work. Booth used the "converted gipsy" in many special meetings, and with unusual success.

Rodney was a street peddler of clothespins and other trinkets made by the women and girls; then men traded, the women worked at making little articles during the day, and told fortunes in the evening, and the children did the selling. But his life soon weighed heavily on the heart of Cornelius Smith who began praying and holding on to God for the salvation of his family. He took them in the order of their age. He was greatly distressed over the salvation of his only daughter Tilly; as Rodney was older than she, he felt that the boy must be converted first. Some one please explain this very unusual notion—that blessings had to come to children, beginning with the oldest. Another Jewish tradition. However, Rodney was graciously saved, with what he called a "sky-blue" experience—and it was at an altar—"mourner's bench."

This great event occurred at the village, or near by, of Caravan, also near to Bedford, the home of John Bunyan, where may be seen a monument in honor of his jail career. Rodney had a hard struggle; he spent much time in the woods, praying alone; he seemed to find peace, but could not get himself reconciled to making a public confession of Christ. He surrendered, but would not do it before men. But while attending a revival in a Primitive Methodist Church, near Cambridge, the transaction was closed. They were singing "Come humble sinners," and when they sang the verse: "I can but perish if I go, I am resolved to try, for if I stay away, I know I shall forever die," he went to the altar and his old gipsy father prayed fervently for the lad. This was Nov. 17, 1876, and the spiritual birthday of little Rodney Smith who, as he says, "Came through" with great assurance. Gipsy Smith often says he is a "Cambridge Man."

At the time of his conversion, Rodney Smith could neither read nor write; his first steps in learning were gleaned from reading various signs. In spite of this handicap, he felt that God had called him to preach, and his "maiden effort" was delivered to a congregation of turnips. He said that, judging from the silence and reverence given him, his message was gladly received. The three big Gipsy Brothers held revival meetings in villages wherever they went, and Cornelius, who had made most of his living fiddling for country dances, was known as the "Fiddling Gipsy," and was a great attraction everywhere.

They were all attending a revival at Whitechapel Road, conducted by William Booth. He called Cornelius Smith to the platform and asked him about his son, whom he had understood wanted to be a preacher. The boy was called into a private room where the great leader interviewed the lad, asking him among other things, if he wanted to join their mission.

This was the beginning of Gipsy Smith's career. The lad returned to their tent city in much joy, took off his gipsy clothes, dressed himself in the way other young men dressed, and left for his first try-out as a member of the Salvation Army, and was assigned by William Booth to his first field of labor. He was sent to Whitby and placed in a kind home, where he ate for the first time with knives and forks on a table covered by a linen cloth. The boy had many seasons of discouragement and embarrassed no little, trying to adjust himself to the social life of his new friends.

But the "Gipsy Boy" was an attraction; crowds filled the building to hear his simple messages, unlearned in every manner of speech and expression, but unctionized by the Holy Spirit. His next field was Harteford, where he became more the master of himself, and the word flourished. His third appointment was at Manchester, under Ballington Booth, and was not well received, owing to some friction which grew very bitter among the workers, because of the popularity of this gipsy boy. It is the same old story; those, who can do the things that others are unable to do, must suffer from mean, contemptible jealousies.

From Manchester he was moved to Hartley. This was the beginning of Gipsy Smith's great career. He secured an old circus building which had a capacity of thousands, and thousands waited upon his ministry, and scores were converted almost weekly. So great had become the popularity of Gipsy Smith that Ballington Booth succeeded in having him again removed. The whole town petitioned for his return, but the old Salvation Army leader felt that he was becoming too worldly popular for service in the Army. When he left Hartley, his friends presented him with a gold watch, and when this was reported to Headquarters, Gipsy Smith was discontinued from the ranks of the Salvation Army.

This only served to increase his reputation; he returned to Hartley and remained there for many years, and his ministry became nation-wide. It was a blessing, both to Gipsy Smith and to the world, that he was dismissed from the Salvation Army, as that line of work would have been a handicap to this man of destiny.

In 1889, he first visited America, and conducted a great revival in Nostrand Avenue Methodist Church, Brooklyn, N. Y. His ministry for over thirty years has been on a large scale, as scarcely anywhere can a building be found that will accommodate his audiences. He has made five evangelistic tours of America, and held revivals in nearly all the large cities. His gospel is pre-eminently one of love, showing a heart of tenderness and compassion for lost men. The fiery denunciation has no place in his messages; like D. L. Moody, he loves people into the kingdom of God.

Until 1897, Gipsy Smith preached as a layman; since that time he has been an ordained minister, or rather a missionary of the National Council of Free Churches. He has one son who is also preaching the gospel with marked success. Gipsy Smith is now sixty-seven years old and will doubtless have many more years of effective service for the Master, who has so signally honored the "Gipsy Boy", and given him a place in the front rank of great soul winners.

This is a skeptical world and many balk at ordinary miracles. A cripple cannot be cured, or an axe float by supernatural means. Oh, no; but, why cannot men see the supernatural in the life of such a man as Gipsy Smith? A poor, ignorant gipsy boy touched by the Divine Healer of souls; then his spirit awakes; he begins to testify of God's work wrought in him. He first tells his gipsy people, then crowds, then multitudes—finally the nations. His life is one long splendid miracle of grace, and thousands will testify to its authenticity. May he continue to do great things in the name of the Lord.

The Moving Picture.

Do you know, that 20,000,000 people see the "movies" every day? Do you know, that most of them are children. Do you know that Protestant ministers are held up in ridicule on the screen, and that Catholic priests are always heroes, and that America is being taught by the movies, that there is no true religion but Catholicism. Get Dr. Wimberly's great book: "Messages for the Times." Price $1.50. Or send one new subscriber for the PENTECOSTAL HERALD, and add 50 cents—and get the book.

JESUS AMONG THE SCIENTISTS.

Rev. John Paul.

With a comment upon current objections to the account of the Virgin Birth.

Text: "The first man Adam was made a living soul; the last Adam, a quickening spirit." 1 Cor. 15:45.

NO one can tell what would have been the glory of Adam, the first head of the human race, if his leadership had been upward instead of downward. Like many of his sons, he had an appointment which he failed to meet. The appointment or office of Adam passed into the shady cemetery of things that might have been; and today we can only conjecture and speculate about the career of Adam and the fortunes of humanity if there had been no fall, no advent of sin; if the innocency of Eden had been a starting point for higher things and man had capitalized his opportunities ready made from the hand of God.

The first Adam was a living spirit, but not a life-giving spirit. He could lead men away from the tree of life but could not lead them back to it again. While there is a definite contrast in the power and ability of the first and second Adam, there is a recorded analogy in the manner of their coming to the earth. "A body hast thou prepared me" applies like to the man who was formed in Eden from the dust of the ground, and the one who Paul tells us was "made of a woman", in the fulness of time. The strange passage, "a body thou hast prepared me", was spoken directly of Jesus. The order of the account would indicate that Adam's body was prepared for his soul in advance or in connection with the creation of his soul. But in the case of Christ's first coming, a body was formed in embryo within the womb of a chosen virgin, to be the nucleus through which the uncreated Son of God should manifest himself; to be the medium for his laboratory examples in the evangelization, leadership and uplift of mankind, and the instrument for his sacrificial death. It is not an accident of rhetoric when Paul says that this Son was "made of a woman." It is a plain reference to a fact then so generally received that he had no occasion to include an account of it, unless he had been making records for future generations as did Matthew and Luke.

I wish we had a more democratic phrase to take the place of that word a priori. It ought to stay in the Logic professor's classroom with his chalk and eraser and compass, and the map of Greece. It refers to a mode of argument in the nature of a snap judgment. A thing ought not to have been, therefore it was not. It is from this subjective style of reasoning that we are today treated with a wave of opposition to the virgin birth of Jesus Christ. God ought not to have done it that way, therefore he did not.

No one holds that God could not have devised some other way to bring about the incarnation; but those who accept the fulfillment of prophetic utterances as something more than an accident or an invented dove-tail are bound to take seriously the report of Matthew and Luke and the early Christians regarding the virgin birth. A bona fide prophecy, from one of the least questioned of all prophetic sources (Isaiah 7:14. If there were "two Isaiahs" this was the original one) reads: "Therefore, the Lord himself shall give you a sign; Behold a virgin shall conceive, and bear a son, and shall call his name Immanuel." Evasive writers might say this meant no promise of an unusual thing, referring merely to the first child of a young woman; but the prophet protects us against this interpretation by saying that it was to be something unusual, a "sign", which "Jehovah himself" should give.

The believers in the virgin birth of Christ are not responsible for the universal airing that the subject is getting today. Its value is incidental as a detail of the Gospel to be preached, and a good sense of propriety does not approve of making a common topic of a theme at once so delicate and so sacred. But, while it is a detail not essential to the pulpit, it is a keystone fact so built in with a group of minor and major facts that its removal would cause them all to fall into a heap of fiction. The shrewd and aggressive skeptical scholars of our day know this very well; but we have a hundred and one preachers and editors who do not understand the game; who intend to be found on the side of the Gospel, but who wish to be classed with men of scientific spirit. These, taking no stand against the virgin birth, say it does not matter how Christ came, or what a man believes about his birth. It is indeed an issue of small significance until it is raised; but one of vital significance after it is raised; and we see that no one could have anything to gain by selecting this as his point of attack upon the lines of New Testament Christianity excepting as he saw targets in the citadels beyond, of which he desired to dispossess the church.

In honor bright, the objectors to the account of the virgin birth of Christ object because?

They do not believe he existed prior to the nativity.

They do not believe that he stilled the tempest or walked on the water or raised a dead man to life.

They do not believe that he arose from the grave and ascended into heaven.

They do not believe that the merit of his blood is essential to salvation.

They do not believe that he was equal with God the Father.

We are not called to quarrel with these friends about their beliefs. We accord them the privilege of their views; but we do deplore the fact that the subject of our Lord's virgin birth should be lugged in to public harangues for the purpose of driving a wedge into that line of teaching which is essential to historic Christianity. Honesty would require a man who objects to the fundamentals of the Christian faith to attack them straight. If I objected to the Christian system, my idea of true manliness would not permit me to attack it by way of the chaste and simple record of the Madonna and her child. It is as embarrassing to us as it is amusing to the infidels, to witness that we have Christian leaders who think that we can concede the doctrine of the virgin birth without giving up other Gospel verities.

It gets us nothing to react to this as an insult to Christ. If God had seen fit to bring his Son into the world under circumstances of degradation we should be prepared to take it philosophically. The insult to Christ and Christianity by undertaking to impeach the legitimacy of the Redeemer under the conventions of good society is of infinitesimal consequence compared with the injury that comes in reducing the Gospel and its author to the naturalistic level and leaving the world without a Savior. It does not reduce the Lord for men to pronounce him reduced. He is no less a Savior when men have proved on paper that he is not. Attacks cannot lower him nor level him, nor can ten thousand cleverly designed movements of opposition forestall the prospect that Jesus shall reign where'er the sun

Does his successive journeys run;

His kingdom spread from shore to shore,

Till moods shall wax and wane no more;

Yet if we quietly submit to a movement that will denature our pulpits and unhorse the commissioned messenger of the Cross we shall be a party to turning the clock of civilization backward and permitting multitudes of souls to continue in darkness and sin who would feel the grip of a virile Gospel and gladly respond to it.

The rejection of the account of Christ's origin is a part of a general movement to extract mystery out of religion. Mystery accepted, there would be no occasion to antagonize the records on scientific grounds. Hence it follows that the champions of faith who remind their critics that there are specimens of monosexual reproduction in the kingdom of biology, while telling the truth, are not touching the issue. It does not generate faith in the mind of a rationalist when we find for him a natural explanation for a thing that seems to be supernatural. If there is a natural explanation for some wonder recorded in the Scriptures we should not evade or dispute it; but when it is palpably and professedly miraculous we must admit the mystery or reject the Book. The Bible records no claim of miracle when Peter walked on a house top, though a child, in a rural village where all roofs were slanted, thought her Sunday school teacher a rationalist for lightening the apostle's task by explaining that oriental roofs were flat. But when we are informed that the feeding of the five thousand was a miracle, and when the whole setting is such as to preclude a natural explanation, our seminary professor betrays a bent to infidelity by saying that the discovery of a lad with five loaves and three fishes only gave Jesus an idea, and that, seeing it was the nature of lads to bring lunches he delegated a committee to find all the lads with their lunches and make a scientific distribution. So, the coming of Jesus as the son of the virgin Mary invites no clever explanations by drawing upon the admitted freaks or variations in biology. The nature of his conception was pre-announced as a sign, a miracle, a mystery. It can be accepted by those who believe in mystery as an essential factor in man's universe. It cannot be accepted by those who identify mystery with the superstitions of primitive man and the credulities of ignorance. It is not desirable, nor is it possible, to extract all mystery from religion.

Under the first head, that it is not desirable to extract all mystery from religion. Science admits that man has a religious nature; which, translated, is a desire to have fellowship with a Power above him, and to draw upon the resources of that Power. The fact that this is universal in the bosom of human nature gives us almost syllogistic proof that there is a Power above man. Otherwise, we should have the only instance in the cycle of human functions where there was no supply to match a generic demand. Man's religious faculty, supporting the absence of the sublime mystery to which it points, would be as grotesque as eyes with no light to answer them, ears with no sound to make them serviceable, or lungs with no air to breathe. The cornerstone of science is its assumption that nature is absolutely reliable. If nature failed the scientist in a single instance his confusion would be like one who felt for a foundation which had vanished. If nature is reliable there is a heaven, whose infinite Father inclines his ear with helpful fellowship to the intelligent beings who trust him and seek him here on earth. In the day that the worshipper gets the object of his worship upon his own level, worship ceases and religion is at an end, despite the ungratified clamor of the heart that may continue unnoticed or unconfessed even in the hard boiled scientist. Skeptical scientists are yet too modest, perhaps, to admit that they are equal with God, but when they succeed to their own satisfaction in doing away with the supernatural, the only logical result is a consciousness of superiority that admits no rank in the universe above itself and hence must not have religion, but must suppress the impulse of worship which nature has put in the breast of the highest as well as the lowest of human beings. This must be suppressed for the reason that there is no Power above with which to have fellowship; no Power whose resources will be needed, excepting as they answer to the natural order, which is the scientist's own order and, hence, his own level.

We have said it is impossible to do away with mystery. We are reminded of the imperishable words of Francis Bacon: "A little philosophy inclineth man's mind to atheism; but depth in philosophy bringeth men's minds about to religion." Rare intellectuality and large scholarship are sometimes found in the same person. Less frequently, but in due proportion, this combination is found in the various branches of science. Be it remembered that rare intellectuality does not know everything. The claim of universal knowledge is reserved for persons of mediocre intelligence, who have an enlarged estimate of their academic training. It is therefore a rare privilege to have one who is at once a great mind and an eminent scholar give a synopsis of what is certainly known or reasonably supposed about such subjects as: The nature of electricity; the law of gravity; the explanation of retentive memory; the origin of life; and even the origin of species, simple as that has become to a few college and high school teachers. The words of the highly intelligent are few on these and several other themes, and their admission of mystery is frank: No solution, and no solution available. Intuition should warn us of some of our limits. One who is large enough to be a leader of thought will not become intoxicated over the achievements of science and promise to explain the unexplainable. Human knowledge is a wonderful thing. Its present achievements are beyond the wildest dreams of the men of former years. Its achievements in the tomorrows under the permissive providences of God may outstrip all that has been covered in the past. But faith need not fear anything from the progress of true knowledge. It is based on faith; and faith, recognizing mystery, spans the area between the known and the unknown. Upon the firm top of a pillar of given data projecting from the unfathomed ocean depths the wise man builds his superstructure of knowledge. Moving back to the Source to make his start, he bares his head in the presence of mystery; and, softly, with reverent tread, he goes through life, ever conscious that he is moving through the halls of mystery. Such a man easily bows before the altar of the living God, and such a man has no time to disturb Christianity with an attack upon the account of Christ's mode of advent into the world. He is prepared to recognize that the law of the usual is defied, in the entire history of Christ's relationships with this world, including his birth, his ministry, his death and the aftermath.

"Go and show John"—and go and remind the honest scholarship of the world—and go explain to the simple hearted jury of mankind which has no hobby to support and no animosity to vent—"The blind receive their sight, and the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, and the deaf hear, the dead are raised up, and the poor have the Gospel preached to them, and blessed is he, whose ever shall not be offended in me." Thus did Jesus present his vindication to them that raised questions in trying to identify him. What was done by the miracle of his touch and the authority of his word during the days of his flesh has been carried forward since those days in the ever expanding agencies of human relief and uplift. Until he came, the world had never learned to appreciate the value of a soul or the worth of a human life. Concepts of liberty and human rights had scarcely been formed. Aside from all that has been done in individual salvation, a fair historian will give him credit for the things that are most divine and gratifying in the present stage of human progress.

The growth of Mohammedanism did not mean the growth of Mohammed in his dominion among men. The spread of Buddhism did not mean a vast prominence for Gautama Buddha; but whatever may have been the wavering fortunes of Christianity and whatever the mistakes of churches, and their rise and fall, the stature of Jesus continues to increase on the horizon of human affairs.

One is startled and bewildered in trying to imagine the condition of this present world if everything for which Jesus Christ is clearly responsible should suddenly be taken away from it. Let each begin with his own life, character, and fortune in trying to imagine the subtraction. Let him carry it back a little to the parents that gave him birth. Let him take the influence of Jesus out of the homes that gave him and them an early environment in which to grow. Then turning to the world in general, let him call the missionaries home and dissolve the missions in every land, dissolving also the missionaries, who without their Savior would have been something else, if they had been at all. With one severe stroke of imagination, sweep away all churches which exist because Jesus came. With these, let the hospitals, asylums and homes for the orphaned and the feeble fade suddenly from their places. Let all improvement that Christ's influence has caused in the prisons be effaced. Let the libraries of the world be relieved of any books about him or caused by him; and then let there be gutted out of the remaining books of the world every appeal and every sentiment that was caused by the influence of the Son of Man. Let architecture, art, music, poetry and fiction make their sacrifice to the great subtraction. Can your imagination furnish you a picture of the world that would have grown since the days of Augustus and Nero? Does not this consideration easily account for the fact that Jesus, unlike any other figure in human history, looms larger in the vista as the centuries pass? Should not the passing years warn the wise man that the world has no norm by which it can measure the Man of Galilee? Does not a full reflection prove the smallness of that man's world who thinks that he can bring the person of Christ into his scientific laboratory and measure it up in terms of chemistry and biology and psychology?

For myriads of years before he came he was foreseen and anticipated by prophets, as "the desire of all nations." They praised him for the discriminating wisdom he would bring. "Butter and honey," said they, "shall he eat, that he may know to refuse the evil and choose the good." They praised him for his appreciation of worth in the weakest, they foresaw that he and broken humanity everywhere would feel their need of each other, and of him it was said: "A Bruised reed shall he not break, and the smoking flax shall he not quench: he shall bring forth judgment unto truth. He shall not fail nor be discouraged, till he have set judgment in the earth: and the isles shall wait for his law." They praised him as the symbol of all that was beautiful, who would impart his beauty to humanity and to the world. He was described as the lily of the valley, the rose of Sharon, the bright and morning star, the fairest among ten thousand.

It is of thrilling interest to note that the light of the ancient seer penetrated far beyond our day and witnessed him to be revealed as the mighty God, the everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace, on whose shoulders all government should finally rest; who would be the only adequate cure for war, causing the nations to beat their swords into ploughshares and their spears into pruning-hooks. Peering through the mists of history yet to be made and looking over the diminutive scenes of human diplomacy and legislation, the prophets saw his final grand appearing, when the angels that sang at his birth in the manger would attend him at the restitution, of all things, acclaiming themselves as citizens with us in the domain of him whose right it is to reign not only in this universe with its sun and its revolving planets, but in the infinite universe of God.

Only 50 cents! But it may plant a seed that will grow into a stalwart character for Christ and humanity. Great oaks from little acorns grow, so great Christians may be made by filling receptive minds and hearts with the truths of full salvation. THE HERALD will give them these truths, if you will send it to those who need it.

Send a Book.

Recently, there has been opened a splendid new Library at Asbury College known as "Morrison Memorial Library." It is a beautiful building; when you come to Wilmore this will be one of the buildings you will want to visit.

We wish to add ten thousand books to the large number we have already shelved in our library, and I am writing this to the thousands of HERALD readers with a request that they send us a book, or as many books as they can, to fill our shelves. If every one who reads this appeal would send one book it will be a great donation; but we are expecting a number to send us several books. Please to look through your books and send us one. Books on History, Biography, Science, Philosophy, Theology and General Literature will be most acceptable. Many of my preacher friends read THE HERALD, whom I feel sure, could cull a book or two from their libraries and send it to us. Address, The Librarian, Asbury College, Wilmore, Ky. If you have a box of books, send them by freight and we will pay the charges.

GEORGE W. RIDOUT.

Have you spoken to your neighbor about our 50-cent offer? We are depending on you to say that word for us. Don't fail us!

The Trouble With The World.

PROF. NEWTON WRAY.

WO questions of vast importance thrust themselves into the foreground of thinking today—What is the matter with the world, and, What can be done about it?

These questions are not peculiar to our times and conditions. An eminent writer has shown that in all essential respects the present situation is identical with that which characterized ancient Rome. Wealth, luxury, love of material things, self-indulgence and selfish isolation, low estimate of ethical principles—these and like considerations prevail now as then.

There are those who hold that what is needed is social betterment. Improve the environment of men, make society different, and things will go well. But that is only begging the question. What is wrong with society? Why is it as it is? And society in its largest application is the nation, and nations compose the world.

Is not the trouble with every nation that it is occupied with the promotion of its own interests, to the exclusion of what is due to the others? Such nationalism is perverted patriotism. What Madam Roland, on the way to the guillotine, said of liberty—"Oh, Liberty, what crimes are committed in thy name,"—may sometimes, with equal propriety, be said of nationalism and of patriotism: O nationalism! O patriotism! what crimes are committed in thy name!

And as for society, what follies are not practiced in its name and under its carnal pressure!

Here, then, is a world of which the poet Browning wrote—

"God is in His heaven,
All is right with the world."

Never was a greater untruth uttered. All is wrong with the world, as observation and reflection prove. God is in his heaven; but the inspired writer has given us a sketch of what he sees from his holy habitation: "The Lord looked down from heaven upon the children of men, to see if there were any that did understand, that did seek after God. They are all gone aside; they are together become filthy; there is none that doeth good, no, not one."—Psa. 14:2, 3; Rom. 3:10-12.

Now, to think of getting at the world's trouble by methods that deal merely with external conditions is the folly of poulticing a surface eruption, while the organic source of the trouble is ignored. Yet that is as far as the wisdom of most men goes.

Says one authority: "Among the great needs are a world-wide network of radio communication, connecting all principal points and a developed and standardized universal language."

The Chancellor of a great university says: "I am inclined to think the world's greatest need just at present is a few more statesmen of the Rooseveltian character."

One U. S. Senator thinks that the world needs work, that it needs to be busy.

Certain prominent physicians state that the first and greatest need is good health.

Others stress the practice of the golden rule.

Senator Borah says: "It seems to me that what the world needs is a body of public men who will legislate and administer for the public good rather than for mere party expediency."

Senator Thomas J. Walsh referring to "the agitated and belligerent state of mind" in the world, dares not "hazard a guess as to the real need of the world to bring about longed for peace," but says: "I was profoundly impressed, while in China, with the view that the political chaos there prevailing was due largely to the deplorable lack of any sort of deep religious spirit among the people. I think I never before appreciated how intimate is the relation between well ordered government and religion."

This Senator has struck close to the real question at issue. The fact is, the world is morally sick, spiritually diseased, because the hearts of men are sinful and tend to evil, and the remedy is suggested by the ancient prophet's inquiry—"Is there no balm in Gilead? Is there no physician there? Why then is not the health of the daughter of my people recovered?"

In the same context the prophet declares—"We looked for peace, but no good came; and for a time of healing and behold dismay!"

And why "no good" and "no healing"? Because, he says, "they have healed the hurt of the daughter of my people lightly, saying, Peace, peace, when there is no peace."

So the responsibility goes back to false prophets, seated in Church and school, who substitute critical quackery for the Divine Physician, who displace the supernatural Book and its infallible prescriptions by speculative fancies, and talk of evolution and progress, while the patient "looks for peace, but no good comes, and for a time of healing, and behold dismay."

The world does not need a new theology or a new Bible, but the old, old Gospel which is the power of God unto salvation to every one who believes. It does not need the earthly politician; not even the statesman, except in so far as he properly diagnoses the case and relegates it to the treatment prescribed by the Holy Bible.

There is no help but in Jesus Christ whose healing ministry is operative through the acknowledgment of his authority in public and private life; through whom the Holy Spirit convicts of sin and renews the hearts of men, thereby releasing the spiritual force that is the only hope of the world.

It was this that changed the conduct of Ancient Rome. It was this that banished the darkness of Medieval Europe when the old Gospel was proclaimed by Martin Luther and his coadjutors. And this alone can remedy the condition of the modern world.

How much, then, depends upon the loyalty to God's Word of those who claim to be its ministers!

Listen to the remark of one of the great statesmen of all time: "If clergymen would return to the simplicity of the Gospel and preach more to individuals and less to the crowd, there would not be so much complaint of the decline of true religion. Many of the ministers of the present day take their texts from Paul and preach from the newspapers. When they do so, I prefer to enjoy my own thoughts rather than to listen."

Burning and Shining.

"Ye are the light of the world. A city that is set on a hill cannot be hid." Matt. 5:14.

There once lived, on an island of the Japanese Empire, a very wealthy man with a very kind heart. This man's home was a large, costly mansion, situated on the summit of a high hill near the center of the island. He greatly loved his people. One very dark night a great storm came up, and the angry sea, rising higher and higher, threatened the people's homes with destruction. So, seeing the peril, and desiring to aid the frightened people, this kind-hearted man set about to find a way to direct their attention to the hill on which he lived, that they might flee to it for safety. He could think of no better way of doing this than setting fire to his beautiful mansion. This he did, and many of the people, seeing the light of the burning building, ran to the hill. Thus their lives were saved.

So must our lives be, if we are to help souls to God—consumed with a passion for the lost, "a burning and a shining light." By such lives people will be convinced of the truth, convicted of sin, and attracted to Jesus to find safety and salvation from the wrath of God.

CHAS. M. KELLY.

Satan's "Hour."

REV. A. S. HUNTER.

To the mob in Gethsemane, Jesus said, "This is your hour, and the power of darkness." Though he could have called to his defense all the armies of the skies, he permitted his enemies to work their will. Their diabolical scheme consummated the redemption of men, and frustrated their purpose.

Much that we see in the organized church now, reminds us of Jesus' words to that mob—the formality, worldliness, and even wickedness. It has ever been so. From Eden till our day, seems like a long "hour," but through all those thousands of years, evil men and "the power of darkness" have been in league against truth and righteousness. As the truth has gained ground, the combat has waxed hotter. At no time in the history of man, were the dogs of hell unleashed, as when Jesus was on earth. And, they accomplished his crucifixion, thinking that was a victory for themselves.

Despite all such things, the truth has made headway. The Bible is the most widely known Book on earth. Its light has shone into every corner of the globe, and its teaching permeates the whole social fabric of men. Because of its holy influence, Satan has trained his heaviest guns against it. It was long chained and locked away from the people. Its possession or reading was a crime, and teaching it led to the stake. Millions of copies of it have made bonfires. But all in vain. The Light penetrated the darkness.

And now Satan has played his trump card! In our time, he has attacked the Holy Scriptures through Modernism, mis-called "science", "scholarship", "modern thought", "the modern mind", etc., in and through the church! Paine, Voltaire, Ingersoll, and their kind, striking at the Bible from outside the church, were comparatively harmless! But, in recent years, the schools have been seized, from the grammar grades up to the universities and seminaries. The pulpit has thus been poisoned with semi-atheism; and by that means, the growing generation, which will be the church and society tomorrow, is robbed of the truth as it is in Christ. Never was a more adroit move made! Surely, "This is your hour, and the power of darkness!"

Yet, nineteen centuries ago, after his enemies had triumphed in taking his life, and had sealed his body in their tomb, Jesus came back from the dead, and left their tomb empty and their guards dazed. He ascended to his Father. Sometime, perhaps very soon, he will return to earth, and will then take the reins of this old world into his own hands. Then will Satan's "hour" end! and he will be chained in the bottomless pit! "Look up, and lift up your heads, because your redemption draweth nigh!"

"Thy saints, in all this glorious war,

Shall conquer, though they die;

They see the triumph from afar,

By faith they bring it nigh."

Crossing the Deadline.

This booklet is one of the most interesting and suggestive of present day conditions of anything written by our editor, Dr. Morrison. It sounds the note of warning that ought to be heeded by a reckless multitude who are losing their faith in the Bible, and at the same time, their reverence for God, their respect for law, and a disregard of all things sacred. Send for this book; get a number of copies and scatter them about over your town and community. Make the people think; and then you may be able to lead them to repentance and salvation. The price is only 25 cents and may be had of The Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky.

The Optimism of Pre-millennialism.

Dr. Morrison's latest book is now in the hands of the binder and will soon be ready for the public. It will prove one of the most interesting books he has given to the public. Price, $1.00.

REPORTS FROM SOUL WINNERS

BROOKLYN TUESDAY HOLINESS MEETING.

After an absence all winter in the South the first Tuesday in June found me where I am to be found every Tuesday when in New York, at this meeting. Two of our number went to heaven during the winter. My special friend, Rev. Samuel Thompson, an Englishman, a retired Baptist minister, went first. A man of strong, every day faith, always the same, always on hand, never lengthy in testimony, nor long in prayer, never taking up time that would have been a blessing to some one, more time, to have had, but what he had to say or to pray, stuck. We miss him.

The other was a night man down on the Bowery at one of the missions. Brother Yates will, I am sure, if he reads this, remember him. He was the one who had a habit of repeating a chorus when the leader was through. There was no denying the fact that Brother John could sing, but it generally is best to leave the leading to the leader. Brother John Robinson, a tall, slender, sandy complexioned Scot had salvation. He gave all his time to the mission and would accept but seventy five cents a day and a place to sleep for his services. That's enough, he said. One day not getting up at his usual time some one went in to see and found he had gone to be with his Lord and live in luxury the rest of eternity. He went up from the Bowery to the blissful abode of the blest. He is now singing to his heart's content. For twelve years now Sister Cooke, who is the leader, has held this meeting steadily to one main thing, prayer. Prayer always comes first. We pray an hour, sometimes an hour and a half, yet not always do all have opportunity to pray as some one sometimes is led out to pray at great length. After the season of prayer there is a short message and then testimonies. I have said nothing about our singing because we don't do any. But if you get to heaven you will hear us sing there. But here and now is our only opportunity to pray, so our leader feels she wants us to improve it. So we pray, and Sister Cooke has enlisted folks all around the globe to join with us in prayer every Tuesday. We meet every Tuesday at twenty three in the Swedish Salvation Army Hall on Atlantic Ave., but a half block away from both the Subway, Elevated and Surface car lines. When in the city on a Tuesday come in and pray with us.

Wm. R. Chase.

HI-SPOTS IN MY EVANGELISTIC TOURS.

It has been almost two years since I reported to The Herald, but they seem brief years, considered in the light of active service. With the exception of my semi-annual vacations I have been busy in his kingdom.

Beginning with my Summer Campaign at Ft. Sumner, New Mexico, the season was a successful one. This was my second return there, and while it was not an Official Union Meeting, it was in reality. The Rev. J. E. Hinman of Baptist Church and an old-time friend of mine, lined up, also the Rev. J. L. Kinder of Methodist Episcopal, Dr. James A. Hedges of the Presbyterian, comprised the delightful trio, and such beautiful harmony! It was a pleasure to serve them. The Campaign resulted in thirty five or forty accessions to their churches.

The second New Mexico Campaign was at East Vaughn, with Dr. Hedges and the Rev. Mack Bentley, Bro. Bentley being critically ill—could only be in the close of the meeting but proved to be a man of rare talent, spirit and ability, and Dr. Hedges with his beautiful spirit of meekness made a fine team to work with. The meeting met with a hearty response and the town was greatly helped.

The Shamrock, Texas Campaign was sponsored by the J. Perry Koons Family who planned and largely financed the Campaign. The object of this meeting was to get the essential doctrine of Holiness before that fast growing oil town. Bro. John Wright, the Englishman, assisted in the music program to the delight of all. The Lord gave us some inspirational services there. To the evangelist it was an epochal revival as Bro. and Sister Koons gave me a lovely new Ford Coupe and sent me home to California for a vacation. May the Lord remember them in a special way for this generous gift. The drive to California had many thrills over mountains and through the deserts.

This spring work began at Lela, Texas, with Pastor John Crow. He is a pleasing christian gentleman to work with and the meeting met his ideals considering the handicaps that could not be overcome.

From there I went to Gladstone, New Mexico, where I organized a church two years ago; the membership has doubled under the leadership of the Rev. D. H. Jordan. Bro. Jordan is an earnest pastor, loved by the people. No one questions his religion; his sincerity is an established fact. I enjoyed his beautiful spirit and co-operation. We had a good meeting with a limited number of conversions. May the Lord continue to bless those dear hearts. Their fellowship is with the Father and his Son Jesus Christ.

Newton was the second campaign, with Bro. Jordan. The Revival did not break through until the last night, but I found the work of two years ago standing. The Superintendent of schools, Bro. Hutchinson, has the S. S. Superintendent work and has had success ever since his remarkable conversion.

Ranchvale, N. Mexico, was our last campaign and it was of the Lord. The meeting drew the largest crowds in history of community. The first altar call was a response, and the climax on Sunday with twenty-five young men and women dedicating themselves to the ministry of preaching, and the fifteen conversions on closing night. The Baptist received twenty-two and the Methodist fourteen, with others to follow. The Baptist pastor, the Rev. T. J. Gamble's spiritual attitude to the campaign endeared himself to the people at large. How good and how pleasant for brethren to dwell together in unity.

—“On with Evangelism!”—

Essie Osborne.

HAMLIN, WEST VIRGINIA.

Saturday night, June 4th, saw the opening of our revival campaign in Hamlin, a fine little county seat town in the beautiful hills of West Virginia. We had a fine crowd, and a wonderful spirit was manifested among the people. On Sunday morning we visited the different churches in the city and Sunday afternoon God gave us a fine service. We were blessed as the people gathered around the altar to pray God's blessing and power upon the lost of Hamlin. Sunday night the tent was filled, and the people showed unusual interest. We had a fine choir and excellent singing. Mrs. Heironimus preached with the unction and power of the Holy Ghost, stirring all our hearts. With Miss Elizabeth Heironimus to assist with the music and children's meetings, and Mrs. Heironimus to lift in ministry, we expect to move things for God. We're claiming his promise. The people are hungry and needy, praying that scores of souls will plunge into the fountain of cleansing; that a great harvest may be gathered for Christ. Pray for us!

“Revival fires will brightly burn,
Keep holding on in faith and prayer;
And sinners to the Lord to turn,
Keep holding on in faith and prayer.”

C. Kildow Lovejoy.

IN THE NORTHWEST.

After a very fruitful tour of meetings in the Northwest and California for the fall and winter, we autoed back East via. of Phoenix, Arizona, to Colorado and the Lord gave us three very good meetings in that State. At Canon City with their live pastor, L. E. Gossett, at Colorado Springs for a third meeting within 18 months, with their good pastor and people and then at Greeley with our Brother L. E. Grattan as pastor. God gave gracious victory in each place and many souls found the Lord in saving and sanctifying power and a fine class came into the church.

In the mean time we performed the wedding ceremony of our son at Hutchinson, Kans., where he has been principal of the Academy of Bresee College and has been elected as President for the coming year.

We spent the month of May at home getting a little rest after having been in the field continually for 11 months. We began our first camp meeting June 3-12 with the Chippewa County Holiness Association at Montevideo, Minn., which was their 12th annual camp meeting. They have a fine class of people who are backing this camp. God gave us a very good camp, regardless of much rain and cool weather during the greater part of the camp. The people were greatly encouraged and have decided to build a good tabernacle for next year. They gave us a unanimous call to come back for their next years camp and, the Lord willing, and Jesus tarries, we have promised to do so.

We are now at Corsica, S. D., where God gave us a very gracious camp last year. We began last night with a good degree of faith and prayer and desire for a time of real salvation. Prayer, faith and an obedient walk with God is a good sign of victory for the individual as well as for the Church of the living God. We covet the prayers of all the saints that we may be at our best for God and souls in each of our summer campaigns. Blessings upon all.

Theodore and Minnie E. Ludwig.

FIELD NOTES.

In March we were in a meeting in Grace church, Greensboro, N. C. While not a great meeting, about 25 souls found the Lord and others were encouraged to press on in the faith. Rev. O. L. Brown is the faithful pastor and has a band of loyal members. We were entertained in the home of Brother Fletcher Aldred and wife, who love the Lord and his church.

We then spent twelve days at Spear, N. C., with Rev. A. H. Brions and his people. The preaching of holiness had an agitating effect and some were led into the light and we trust good may come of it. Brother Ed Vance and wife cared for us in a most hospitable manner. April 3, we worked with Rev. J. N. Wise in the Methodist Church in East Marion, N. C. It would be hard to find the equal of Brother and Sister Wise. He is alert, clear, religious, and untiring in his labors. We had a delightful stay in their home. More than sixty found the Lord, and the shouts of praise were heard with old-time power.

Next, we went five miles into the country with Brother Hartsfield and his kind people at Providence Church, and eighteen were blessed. Brother Taylor Clark and wife kindly ministered to my physical needs. From there we went to Swepsonville and spent two weeks with Rev. F. A. Lupton. The battle was slow for a few days and the opposition stubborn, but God finally gave us victory, and nineteen prayed through to saving faith. Brother and Sister Kirkpatrick kindly entertained us. We are now with Rev. L. E. Adkins in the Methodist Church at West Concord, Minn. Pray for us daily.

Jim H. Green.

FIELD NOTES.

Not long since the writer conducted a battle royal at Warrington, Ind. After waging a relentless war for some time with no “casualties” from the enemy's ranks and very few “captives,” I concluded that Warrington was a very appropriate name for the place. In spite of the fact that we used our heaviest artillery, poisonous gas, and liquid fire, we scarcely went over the top a single time. I preached on themes from damnation to glorification and from degradation to salvation with great effort but little results. The influence of the meeting seemed hopelessly imprisoned within the four walls of the building. The saints were blessed and in the life and death struggle the last night two wayfarers capitulated. Peace to their memory! The pastor is pure gold and has some fine people in the church. We expect God to give them a revival in the future.

My next meeting was in Webster City, Iowa. God gave us a good meeting here with a number of seekers for salvation and one rather marked case of physical healing. We have never labored with a person that prays more than Rev. C. C. SeJards, the faithful pastor of this church does. God bless him.

Following this we spent four nights with Rev. Jas. H. Garrison and his good church at Seymour, Ind. We had some fine services here and souls in the fountain. At this writing we are in a convention with a mission at Stewartsville, Ky. It was in this mission that the writer attempted to preach his first sermon over thirteen years ago. Pray for me.

P. P. Belew.

GREENSBORO, N. C. CAMP.

The annual state camp meeting of the Pilgrim Holiness Church was held at Greensboro, N. C., May 20-29, closing on Sunday night under a halo of glory and shouts of victory such as one seldom sees these days in a camp meeting.

The evangelists this year were Rev. Harry Hays, of Beloit, O., and Rev. W. R. Cox, our general superintendent. These brethren did some wonderful preaching and deep digging with the pick of God's truth. Bro. Hays was not at all well in the early part of the meeting, but God undertook for his body and during the last half of the camp God surely helped him to do some preaching that located men and women and gave them a vision of an all-conquering Christ to such an extent that many found peace for their souls.

Bro. Cox was at his best all during the camp. His sermon on the last Sunday night to one of the largest congregations that has ever gathered on the camp ground will never be forgotten by hundreds of his hearers. The undersigned still hears echoes of this sermon and service by people all over the city. When the altar call was made people began to rush forward and within a short time 35 or 40 people had responded. It is certainly very gratifying to members of the Pilgrim Holiness Church of this district to have a man at the head of the church who has lived here practically all his life and in whom the entire city has such confidence.

The Greensboro Bible School Quartet (a mixed quartet,) together with a ladies quartet, and the Bible School Band furnished the music. Mr. Byron Crouse, one of our boys and a graduate from our school, was the director of the music, and to say he did well is putting it mildly. Byron, as he is known by everybody here, surely knows how to get a large congregation to singing.

The attendance as a whole was pronounced by those who have attended for years as the largest in the history of the camp. On the last Sunday morning a Bible School service was held with Bro. Henschen, the newly elected president, in charge. More than $2,000 was raised in cash and pledges for the support of the school. All the expenses of the camp were met and with faith in God and shouts of victory in our souls we take new courage in the battle of the Lord and press forward.

F. H. Tormohlen, Pastor.

REVIVAL ECHOES.

Since our last report we have been in several meetings in which God has blessed our labors. We were in a meeting at Evansville, Ind., in the early winter, Rev. H. W. Sweeten doing the preaching. The church is on fire and 82 prayed through to victory.

Our next meeting was at Paulding, O., with Rev. A. Murphy and wife, who did the preaching and we led the singing. We enjoyed laboring with those good people and had a splendid meeting. From there we went to Troy, O., with Pastor Fitch and the Lord gave us a wonderful revival. Rev. Cook was the evangelist and the Lord blessed his ministry in the salvation of 83 souls.

We went to Bristol, Ind., with Brother Spry, Rev. Fred Boase being the evangelist. Elkhart was our next point, Rev. I. P. Moore pastor. Rev. Fred Thomas, evangelist, preached and his messages resulted in the salvation of 76 souls. Our next meeting was at Ridgville, Ind., Rev. Fred Boase doing the preaching. This meeting was sponsored by the Winchester church, and the work is still going on. Kendallville, with Rev. Shurman Bowers, was our next appointment, Rev. James Miller being the evangelist; 25 souls found the Lord in saving power. We are in a tent meeting at Yorktown at this writing. We have some open dates for meetings. Address us Frankfort, Ind.

Paul and Dora Geil, Singers.

THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD

Published Weekly by
Pentecostal Publishing Company
523 So. First St., Louisville, Kentucky.

OUR CONTRIBUTORS

Rev. G. Whitefield Simonson	Rev. Len G. Broughton	Rev. Bud Robinson
Rev. O. G. Mingledorff, D.D.	Rev. L. R. Akers, D.D.	Rev. Henry Ostrom
Rev. Richard W. Lewis, D.D.	Rev. G. W. Ridout, D.D.	Rev. C. M. Griffith
Rev. Andrew Johnson, D.D.	Rev. P. F. Asher, B.D.	Rev. J. H. Smith
Rev. C. F. Wimberly, D.D.	Rev. E. E. Shelhamer	Rev. C. W. Ruth
	Rev. J. B. Culpepper

Six Months in Advance $.75
One Year in Advance 1.50
Foreign Countries 2.00

CONCERNING SUBSCRIPTIONS

Subscription Discontinued When Time Is Out.
In ordering address changed give both OLD and NEW address. Write all names plainly with pen and ink or typewriter.
Notify us promptly of any irregularities in receiving your paper.
For distribution, to secure new subscribers, sample copies will be sent free on application.
Remit by Registered Letter, New York Exchange, Express, or Post Office Money Order.

(Continued from page 1)

pointed to secure the ends that God desires and you will see most gratifying results.

There is one other important item that I would impress upon you: If conviction comes, the people become interested, and souls are regenerated and sanctified, continue the meeting. Don't shut down while the people are seeking and finding the Lord.

I note what you say about your predecessor teaching that the day for revivals is passed, and your Sunday school teachers attending a Training School under an expert who prejudiced them against revivals and the necessity of regeneration. Do not let this discourage you, for God is all-powerful and can sweep away the refuge of lies. Pour forth the word of God, which he has promised shall not return unto him void.

When your meeting closes write me the results. Remember that the Holy Spirit is a person, is present to reprove the world of sin, of righteousness, and of judgment. Trust him for guidance, believe in his almightiness to save, and your faith will be rewarded in a harvest of souls.

Your brother,
H. C. MORRISON.

Indian Springs Camp Meeting.

This greatest Southern Camp Meeting will hold its thirty-fifth session, August 11-21.

At a recent meeting of the Executive Committee, final plans were perfected to care for the thousands of visitors who annually attend this notable religious gathering from the Southeastern States.

During the thirty-five years of its history, some of the greatest preachers of America and of Europe have filled the pulpit of this famous camp and this year will no let down in the high standard of its ministry. Rev. H. C. Morrison, D.D., Louisville, Ky., the Dean of the Holiness pulpit, and one of the outstanding preachers in American will be present this year. Perhaps no living man is wielding a mightier influence against the destructive forces of the day, or building more gloriously on the one foundation, Jesus Christ, than this mighty prophet of the Lord. Hundreds of ministers will doubtless avail themselves of this opportunity to hear him again. Rev. J. L. Brasher, D.D., University Park, Iowa, another of the preachers of the camp this year, is one of the greatest preachers of the M. E. Church. Rev. C. W. Butler, D.D., Cleveland, Ohio, Dean of the Cleveland Bible Institute and one of the strong men of the Holiness pulpit, will be at the camp this year for the first time. He comes with highest commendation, and will receive a hearty welcome. Mrs. Jere M. Glenn, Young Harris, Ga., a gifted and trained worker with young people, will have charge of this phase of work again and will be assisted by Miss Clarice Morford, of Portland, Ore., and a trained corps of teachers and workers in the Holiness Movement. Hundreds of the choicest young people in Georgia, South Carolina and other states will be present for these "Studies in Holiness." Hamp Sewell, of Atlanta, Ga., one of the South's leading composers and publishers of sacred music, will have charge again this year. He will be assisted by a full orchestra and a choir of some 200 voices, augmented by the wonderful congregational singing for which this camp is so justly noted. Thomas Eden and sister, Ethel, favorites at all the great camps in the country, will render special music.

The object of these meetings is to spread Scriptural Holiness throughout the earth; that Christ's kingdom may come and his will be done in all the earth as it is in Heaven. Indian Springs Camp Ground is not a disturber of the peace of Zion, but a promoter of peace. It does not stand for "Cranktification," but for that blessed Bible Doctrine of Entire "Sanctification." In the work of this Camp, there is no "Come-out-ism"; but a blessed union of any and all evangelical denominations who feel the need of a clean heart, a holy life and a larger endowment for service. Its trustees are among the leading ministers and laymen of their respective denominations. Mr. R. F. Burden, of Macon, Ga., President of the Board of Trustees, is one of the outstanding business men of his city and for years a leading laymen in Georgia Methodism.

The Board of Trustees extends to the people generally, a most cordial invitation to come and spend ten days at this "feast of souls."

SOMETHING WE ALL MAY DO

MRS. H. C. MORRISON.

RN, addressing the readers of THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD we feel that we are writing to persons who have high ideals and are desirous of doing all within their power to promote those ideals.

The fact that thousands of people have taken THE HERALD for many years is evidence that they find it a helpful soul tonic, and numbers of them have written us expressing their appreciation of its weekly messages. It is because we believe you know THE HERALD's worth, and have found what a spiritual help it is to you, dear readers, that we come with the request that you give us a helping hand as we launch our 50-cent offer to send THE HERALD from now until January 1 for only five dimes—a mere pittance, but may prove mighty in results.

There is so much literature that is being circulated which is calculated to debase and destroy that the lovers of the Lord need to bestir themselves to lift up their voice for God's truth against the devil's falsehoods. Friends, we believe you will find that the scattering of THE HERALD will prove an antidote for the poison that seeps into the minds of the people from unwholesome literature.

Every home needs such papers as THE HERALD to guide them in their religious thinking. Many of our readers know its value when they can read a good sermon on Sunday, get the splendid comments on the Sunday school lessons, read what our evangelists are doing in all parts of the land, feast on the excellent and timely articles by men of wide reading and warm hearts. As you recount the blessings that have come to you, resolve that you will place THE HERALD in some one's hand that they may enjoy the same spiritual food. Hand your paper to your neighbor, ask them to read certain articles, then insist that they have THE HERALD come into their homes the balance of the year, and we believe they will become charmed with its teachings and wise counsel, and that they will conclude they cannot do without it. That is our purpose in making this excellent offer, which is a loss to us, financially, but we are hoping to sow the seed that will multiply an abundant harvest in time to come.

I started this heart-to-heart talk with our readers by saying "Something we all may do," and I trust every one who reads these lines will catch the idea and see if they cannot send us one or more subscribers who will take the paper on their own account, or if you cannot find one near who will yield to your invitation to subscribe, send us the names and addresses of parties whom you want THE HERALD to visit each week until January, 1928, and we shall be glad to place their names on our mailing list.

If we had room to give you a list of testimonies of persons who have written us of the blessing they have received through reading THE HERALD, it would afford some idea of what it has meant to many hungry souls in these times of drouth and spiritual decline. It is our chief desire to fill THE HERALD with such articles as will feed the soul, comfort the heart, inspire hope in times of discouragement, quicken faith, impel to prayer, create a hungering and thirsting for all the fulness of God, and lead you into that blessed experience "Where flowers bloom forever, and the sun is always bright."

Come, Friends, hold up our hands. Pray for us as we fight the good fight of faith, and let us have a substantial token of your confidence and good will by sending us as many subscribers as possible. Many of you have done so, and many of you will do so again, for which we thank you.

A New Hymn.

Dedicated to the Morrison Memorial.

A new hymn, entitled "I'm His Own," has just been published by Evangelist James V. Reid, noted hymn writer. It is a two-page chorus number with a flowing, glowing, singable melody and words full of spiritual inspiration.

This is a chorus appropriate for evangelistic campaigns, Sunday schools, Camp Meetings, and especially serviceable as a campaign song for Young Peoples' Assemblies and Conventions. It is printed on leaflets standard hymn size so that it may be conveniently pasted in your revival or camp meeting song book or regular Sunday school hymnal.

Bro. Reid offers to place the first 5,000 copies on sale for the Morrison Memorial Building at Asbury College, all proceeds from this first edition to be turned into the Memorial Fund.

The song will retail for 10c per single copy; 25 for $1.00; or $3.50 per hundred, postpaid.

This is a good way to show your interest in the Morrison Memorial and at the same time get ample returns for your investment. Get your order in early, be the first to introduce the chorus to your congregation and help swell the Memorial Fund.

Address all communications to James V. Reid, Publisher, 2912 Meadowbrook Drive, Fort Worth, Texas.

Note! We wish every church would send for copies of this chorus. We know of Bro. Reid's ability as a song writer and are sure you would find something that will please and edify your congregation. Let me suggest that your choir director send for a number of copies and I am sure that you will be delighted with the investment.

MRS. H. C. MORRISON.

Time is passing; The moments are flying! Get busy about securing us those subscriptions on our 50-cent offer. We are hundreds of miles from that friend of yours who needs to have THE HERALD come into their home. Tell them about our 50-cent offer for us.

Who Shall be our Next Governor? A Day of Opportunity.

M. P. HUNT.

THIS message is to the good citizens of Kentucky. For years the forces that make for righteousness have sought to elect an administration sympathetic to decency and openly against the bipartisan combination that has, and would perpetuate legalized Race Track Gambling.

While to this good hour we have been defeated in our purpose, yet our labor has not by any means been in vain. Most all of the patriotic, moral, and spiritual organizations of the State have committed themselves heartily in favor of outlawing legalized Race Track Gambling. The work of education, and of creating sympathy, so necessary in a moral fight, has been done.

The time for action is at hand. In spite of the politicians who would have it otherwise, the lovers of country and home in both parties have an opportunity in the coming primaries to nominate men really worthy to occupy the Governor's chair.

Mr. R. H. (Bob) Lucas has the backing of the best elements of the Republican Party for the nomination for Governor. He is a lawyer of outstanding ability. A Christian citizen. A man, who in positions of public trust has proved himself capable and worthy. For years he has been against the crowd in his party that would subvert all else to the perpetuation of Race Track Gambling. He was for Colvin four years ago. He is out and out for the outlawing of legalized Race Track Gambling, and unhorsing of the dirty bipartisan machine that for years has thwarted the will of the people while serving their own selfish ends and those of gamblers and the Kentucky Jockey Club.

If you are a Republican and in doubt as between Lucas and Sampson, you have but to observe the line-up for the two men to know for whom a God-fearing patriot should vote. Men like William Heyburn, Mayor Arthur Will, former Mayor Huston Quin, and Frank Russell are for Lucas, while Maurice Galvin, Chesley Searcy, together with all the undesirables, are for Sampson. I have no hesitancy in saying that, as between Lucas and Sampson, Lucas is incomparably the better of the two. Let every good Republican do their utmost to nominate Lucas.

As for the Democrats—Ex-Governor Beckham, who, after much and persistent urging, has finally come out, has the support and backing of the forces in the party that stand for patriotism and righteousness. He needs no commendation. His long public career speaks for itself. To see the crowd that is against him is enough to line up all who stand for decency, for him, and their enmity is enough to draw to Beckham the support of all that really have at heart the good of our State.

With all of my soul, I believe that pastors and evangelists and Adult Bible class teachers owe it to good government from now until the primary to frequently call attention to the situation and urge the God-fearing people to get in the primary and to vote in harmony with their professions as followers of the Lord Jesus Christ, thus putting God and home first in their activities as citizens.

Another matter that needs attention, is the matter of Senators and Representatives. Take nothing for granted. Again and again a man supposed to be all right has been found to be all wrong. God help us one and all to be up and doing. Not only vote and vote right, but get every right-minded person to the ballot box. In the Barkley-Cantrill race in one precinct there were, in one neighborhood, nine women for Barkley and three for Cantrill. Because of rain, the nine failed to go to the polls and vote, while all three that were for Cantrill were on the job. It should shame and humiliate us that the devil's crowd often shows a loyalty and enthusiasm for a bad man that puts him over, while a good man goes down in defeat for the want of that same support at the hand of right thinking people.

Dear Brethren:

I have read with much interest and hearty approval the above communication from Dr. M. P. Hunt, who has given years of his life to the advance of this cause. We are confronted by a crisis. Never before have the people of Kentucky had an opportunity to nominate a candidate for Governor in each party opposed to Race Track Gambling. Our success in this matter is pivoted on one thing—that of getting the people to the polls in the Primary. An overwhelming majority in both parties are opposed to this iniquity. Remember that it is only the vote that is cast, and counted as it is cast, and reported as it is counted, that determines elections. Votes against legalized gambling at home are worthless. Suffer this word: Don't waste your time trying to persuade half reluctant men to vote your way, and leave your wife and daughters at home. We can double our vote simply by taking the women voters of our families with us to the polls.

In the Republican Party there is no room for doubt as to the position of Mr. Lucas on this question. He took his political future in his hands in advance of all others in declaring uncompromising hostility to legalized gambling. No man who knows Bob Lucas doubts his sincerity. He is supported by the best elements of his party from Senator Sackett and Mrs. Hert to the workers in the trenches. He is opposed by a combine that needs no description by me. Kentuckians know that crowd.

In the Democratic Party there are four candidates. Two favor the pari-mutuels, and the third offers no opposition. Governor Beckham has made no public deliverance, but points to his record as Governor and U. S. Senator as assurance that he stands for what is right, and men and women who know him, do not question his position. He will doubtless speak with emphasis later. Those opposed to him have so long been known as friends and members of the Jockey Club, that no friend of good government doubts that they will go to any lengths to defeat, if possible, his nomination.

But no Governor can rid us of this evil. The people must elect a legislature that will repeal the pari-mutuel law. Follow Dr. Hunt's advice and vote for no man for Representative or Senator whose position on this question is doubtful. If you have no suitable candidate, get your friends together and bring out one who is suitable.

Let me beg every pastor in the state to devote at least one paragraph in each sermon between now and August 6th, to an appeal to the conscience of his people to go to the primary and vote for candidates who will help to destroy this great gambling machine which now demoralizes our people and curses our state.

Believing the day of our deliverance is near, I am,

Sincerely,

GEO. W. YOUNG.

REV. G. P. COMER.

Rev. G. P. Comer, General Song Evangelist, has from July 3rd to August 14th open for camp meetings as song leader and young people's worker. Bro. Comer is a great singer and tireless worker in camp meetings. Wire or write him Stanford, Ky.

THE HERALD stands for everything that is right and against everything that is wrong. It teaches the whole Bible for the whole world, and salvation for all men from all sin. Does not this need to be emphasized in these days of apostasy and spiritual decline? It won't cost much to send THE HERALD into those homes that need it, and it may do incalculable good. Who knows! Are YOU willing to risk it?

Do Not Forget The Great Holiness Camp Meeting at Wilmore, Kentucky

JULY 28th TO AUGUST 7th

Arrangements are being made for one of the greatest Camp Meetings in the history of Wilmore, Ky. Rev. C. F. Wimberly, Rev. John Brasher, Rev. M. P. Hunt and Rev. H. C. Morrison will be the preachers. The singing will be led by Rev. Mr. Blackburn, of South Dakota. All preachers of the gospel will be entertained free of charge and will be very welcome. Let our friends everywhere make a note of the date and arrange to be present. Let those who cannot come, pray for a great blessing on the meeting.

Faithfully yours,

H. C. MORRISON, Pres.

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS

Dear Aunt Bettie: Greetings to all The Herald cousins. The writer is a product of the Wesleyan Methodist Church, in Sunny Egypt of Southern Illinois. Brother G. C. Harrington is our pastor. I accompanied him to the W. M. Conference at Louisville last September and had the joy of viewing the Pentecostal Publishing House. I am twenty-four, saved and seeking the second work of grace. I graduated from the Illinois School for the Deaf, and was offered admission to Gallaudet College, Washington, D. C. My plans were upset and I was obliged to enroll at Ledford's Business College, West Frankfort, Ill., from which I have graduated.

Our vicinity gained admission to the public eye by its tornadoes and gang wars as this county joins with Bloody Williamson County, known for its Klan and anti-Klan clashes, where more than a score of lives have been taken. The tornado of 1925 resulted in a loss of more than two-hundred lives, and about one-thousand were wounded. This vicinity has some of the richest beds of coal in the world, agriculture is well carried on. We also have some excellent schools and colleges in this community which are known for high training. Churches of every denomination exist; they are at a low ebb in regard to holiness. Billy Sunday is booked to hold a revival here next November.

I am sure all the cousins love to trust God and help suffering humanity. It is blessed what we can do with our kind words and deeds; therefore, we do not need a pocket full of money to be a great philanthropist or an angel of mercy. Our inventions of today cause one to stop and think what progress will be made tomorrow toward developing the hidden things of science and turning the discovery into a tower of help to this generation. I believe the Radio or the incandescent light is the king of all inventions at present. The improved light is a source of help to lovers of night reading and duties that must be discharged. I believe the modern ministers' invention such as card signing, church joining, baptism and the like substituted for the old fashion mourner's bench for obtaining salvation, one the saddest of today.

Let each and every Herald Cousin and reader continue to aspire for right living, noble thinking, a closer walk with God and be content to use their talent and time to glorify God, is my humble prayer. Also may The Herald force continue furnishing the readers with clean gospel truth. If any one feels impressed to write, may do so. I am

Your Cousin in Christ,
Joe. D. Edwards.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you please make room for one more little girl, on page ten, in The Herald? I am nine years old, and have two sisters. One named Ruth and one named Kathryn. I have one brother, whose name is Hayden. I go to Sunday School, Church and Junior League. I am saved. Also I go to school. I am in the fourth grade. Mary McAfee

Dear Aunt Bettie: If I live till my next birthday I will be 80 years of age, yet I love to read the Children's Page in The Herald. For many years I traveled as an itinerant preacher; wherever I was sent the children and I were intimate friends and enjoyed each others associations. I would sometimes take them up in my arms or on my lap and tell them how Jesus loves the children. I would play with them in their playhouse, help them keep house and rock their dolls to sleep. I have administered the Sacred rites of Baptism to quite a number of children. I have three precious children who, with their dear Mother and one dear grandson, are no doubt in the enjoyment of that happy home our Saviour has gone to prepare for the people of God. In conducting the funeral exercises of an innocent child I never, for one moment, hesitated to say I believe this precious child is now in the presence of the Angels of God and of him who, when here upon earth said, "Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not for of such is the Kingdom of God." I am living in bright anticipation of soon being permitted to join that happy group of dear children in heaven. And with them and all the blood-washed children of God that surround the throne, give praises to Jesus the lover of children forever. If any of the dear children where I have been in their homes during my ministry read these lines and will write to me I will answer with great pleasure.

John L. Neniger, Danville, Ill.

Dear Aunt Bettie: This is my first letter to The Herald. I enjoy reading it. I am interested in page ten. I live on a farm with my father and mother which I enjoy. Have two sisters and one brother at home, three sisters and two brothers married. I go to Sunday School and Preaching at the Methodist church. Our preacher's name is Brother Chester Smith. I love to hear him preach. Gladys F. Puffenbarger, I guess your middle name to be Fannie. Am I right? If so, don't forget your promise. Who can guess my first name? It begins with C and ends with A and has five letters in it. I am 20 years old. My birthday is May 25. Have I a twin? If so, would like to have a letter from them. What is that racket I hear? Oh, that is Mr. W. B. dragging his heels along. Will close before he gets here.

C. Beatrice Keltner,
Portland, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Please may I have a seat among your boys and girls? I have large blue eyes, light hair and a big mouth. How are all of Aunt Bettie's boys and girls? Aunt Bettie wake up your Louisiana boys and girls. Let's don't let the other states get ahead of us. Well Aunt Bettie, I still go to Sunday School every Sunday it is not raining. Good bye Aunt Bettie, and love to all the cousins.

Ethel Jordan.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Here comes a little girl from West Virginia. This is my second letter to The Herald and I hope to see it in print. Our school was out April 26th. I am in the fourth grade. I received a reward for faithful attendance. I have dark brown hair and eyes, am fifty one inches tall. I will be nine years old July 4. Would like to have a post card shower from The Herald cousins for my birthday. I like to go to Sunday School. My teacher's name is Miss Lura Casto and I like her very much.

Evelyn Mae Cargo,
Dunbar, W. Va.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I have written before to The Herald, but need to be introduced, as you probably have forgotten about me. I am sixteen years of age, have brown hair, light eyes, and am rather small for my age. As a Junior in High School, I like English the best of my studies. Occasionally, I write poetry and stories, study birds, and play music on the piano. What things do you cousins like to do? Besides enjoying music, I read some. I have read several of Dickens' books, and other classics.

As yet, I do not know definitely what my life work will be. I have an idea of being an English teacher. Perhaps I would write some too, on the side. I believe we should do what God wants us to and perhaps he will direct me another way. If any one of you is fond of writing, and care to write to me, you will find my address below.

Mary Biesecher,
52 Columbus Ave, Delaware, Ohio.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a little Ohio girl join your happy band of boys and girls? This is my second letter to The Herald. Mother takes The Herald and I enjoy reading page ten. I am in the fifth grade at school. I am eleven years old. My teacher's name is Miss Mildred Bright, my Sunday School teacher's name is Miss L. Hurris. I go to Sunday School every Sunday. I have been on the Honor Roll for three years. I am a Christian and belong to the First Methodist Church of Bellaire. I sold mottoes and received my Testament. I like it fine. C. M. Carson, I guess your first name to be Caroline. Well I guess I had better go before Mr. W. B. comes.

Jane E. Keyser,
336—33rd. St., Bellaire, O.

Dear Aunt Bettie: This is my first letter to The Herald. I enjoy reading page ten. I am eight years old and in the third grade. My teacher's name is Miss Morrison. I go to Sunday school every Sunday. My Sunday School Teacher's name is Miss Ethel Jones. I go to the first M. E. church. Who has my birthday, July 22?

Margaret Keyser.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a little Ky. girl join your happy band of boys and girls? Mama takes The Herald. I like to read page ten. I am nine years old, and in the fifth grade. My teacher's name is Eugenia Furnish. My middle name begins with M and ends with E and has five letters. The one that guesses it I will send them my picture.

Mattie M. Burgess,
R. R. 2, Corinth, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a little girl from California join your happy band of boys and girls? I am seven years old. My papa takes The Herald and I like to read page ten. I have one brother. We both belong to the United Brethren Church. We go to Sunday School every Sunday.

Beulah Dettweiler.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Would you let an Indiana boy join your happy band of boys and girls? This is my first letter to The Herald. I sure do enjoy reading page ten. Mother takes The Herald. About five years ago I had a dream that judgment day had come. I dreamed that the ones who went to heaven they would put them in line and they would go up the golden steps to the gates of heaven and the ones who were to go to the dark world below would be put aside. He put me in line to heaven and then I woke up. I am trying in every way to live a Christian life. I go to the M. E. church and Sunday school. I have brown hair, blue eyes, fair complexion, am fifteen years old and weigh 100 pounds. My name begins with M and ends with Y and has 8 letters in it.

M. S. Schooling,
Wheatland, Ind.

Dear Cousins: I am enclosing a report of our young people's organization for the month of April and hope to find space for publication on page 10. The young people's meeting at Dempsy, W. Va., was organized on March 27, 1927, with 17 members present. The following officers were elected: Emmerson Cottle, president, Charles Simms, vice president, Ashton Spearen, secretary, Della Nugent, Assistant Secretary, Ruby Nugent, Treasurer and Ruth Simms Organist. Leaders for the month were Ruby Nugent, Madeline Painter, Ashton Spearen, Ruth Simms. A method has been devised whereby credits are given for scripture reading, daily prayer, visiting the sick, distribution of religious literature, church attendance and for participating in the various church services. We now have an enrollment of 26 members several of whom have expressed a determination to live a Christian life and are now contributing to the success of our services. Our Motto is: "J. O. Y." which means Jesus first; others second; yourself last. Slogan: "Do a good deed each day." Why not have reports from other organizations?

A Reader,
Fayetteville, Route 2, West Va.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I am just a girl of eighteen summers ready for my nineteenth. I live in the country with parents and one sister. I certainly love country life. The freedom to get out in your yard without stepping on some one's else ground is wonderful. But I like town and expect to spend a great deal of my time there in the near future. I hope the cousins won't think me silly when I tell you I have four little kittens, and three baby groundhogs for pets. They are dear little pets at that. The groundhogs' eyes are just beginning to open. I feed them warm milk with a spoon. We also have two cows and two calves. We may veal them so I don't want to

Gospel Tents

Smith Manufacturing Company.
DALTON, GA.
22 Years in Business

J. H. DICKEY
of

BARRETT, ROBINSON & DICKEY

General Insurance—Bonds, etc., solicits your patronage.

7th Floor, Columbia Bldg.
Louisville, Ky.

200 Sheets 100 Envelopes

PERSONAL STATIONERY

High Grade White Bond Paper, size 5 1/2 x 7 inches, with envelopes to match. Every sheet and envelope printed in black type up to 4 lines, with your name, business, and address

$1.00

This Stationery also makes an IDEAL GIFT. Shipment within 10 days after receipt of order. ORDER NOW!

Pentecostal Pub. Co.,
Louisville, Ky.

Gentlemen: Enclose please find $1.00 for which send me postpaid, a box of your Personal Stationery consisting of 200 sheets of Paper and 100 Envelopes printed as follows:

To avoid errors write or print clearly begin liking them too much. I am very much interested in piecing quilts and making fancy things. I would like to hear from every cousin who reads this and if you care to, send me just a small piece of goods for a quilt. I would like to have a "Cousins' quilt." I would be glad to hear from the boys, too. Don't think your letters wouldn't interest me for I am as much a boy in thoughts and actions as I am a girl. I drive our horses, haul rock for our road, rake hay, help stack it, rake up oats, bind it and shock it, help sow it, help plant corn as well as hoe it. Am preparing to plow corn this summer. I can fish as well as the most of you boys and enjoy it. And girls I can cook, bake, wash, iron, clean house, piece quilts and plant and care for flowers to beat the band. Oh, yes I can find time to love my little 'pigs'. I will answer every letter I get if you will enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope. If the cousins are as good to me, in regard to letters, as they are to some of the cousins, I am sure I would go bankrupt trying to answer all the letters as I have only about three dollars. Hoping to hear from all of the cousins, especially some around the Mississippi river, I am with lots of love,

Beryl M. Lawson,
Little Falls, W. Va., R. 1. Box 38.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Have you room for a Kentucky girl age 14? Father takes The Herald and I enjoy reading it. I live on the farm. I have five sisters and four brothers. Virginia Taylor, I guess your middle name to be Georgie; if so, don't forget your promise. I have gray eyes, brown hair, fair complexion, am five feet, 6 inches tall, weigh 40 pounds. I go to Sunday School and sure do enjoy going. It is something every person ought to do. Go to meeting every month. We have a fine preacher Bro. Chester Smith. Ina Cummins, I guess your middle name to be Cleo. Am I right? My birthday is Sept. 29. Have I a twin? I live close to the schoolhouse. I live about one half mile and enjoy going. Who can guess my middle name? It begins with E and ends with E has six letters in it. If any of the cousins wish to write I sure will be glad to hear from them.

Elsie E. Keltner,
Portland, Ky.

FALLEN ASLEEP

HEAVEN'S PORTAL.

"There is no death. What seems so is transition.

This life of Mortal breath is but a suburb of the life elysian, Whose Portal, we call death."

—Longfellow.

And so when we with tear-dimmed eyes

Watched pass from sight into the grave

The best-beloved, we realized She was not dead, but entered through

That portal dark unto the Rest— God's Rest, where never more shall sin

Nor pain, nor care their shadows throw,

And so altho the sense of loss— Our loss will cause the tears to flow, Her gain must make our hearts rejoice.

And now when lovely thoughts are sent

We love to think that in this way Our loved one ministers to us.

'Twas she who brought that message fraught

With comfort to the lonely heart, And she who whispered, "Never mind

The cold unsympathetic word, The Master knows—He knows and loves

You still, and will unto the end."

WILSON.

Mrs. Bessie M. Wilson was born at Blue Springs, Neb., June 19, 1871, and departed this life Feb. 23, 1927, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles Blickenderfer, of Farmington, Wash. She was converted when a child and united with the Church of Christ, latter uniting with the Methodist Episcopal Church. She was united in marriage to Mr. Alfred Wilson, Feb. 28, 1890. The following year they came west to Olympia, Wash., and later to Tacoma. To this union were born three daughters; Grace who departed this life when seventeen years old after spending a few years in intensive Christian effort in her own community; Mrs. Charles Blickenderfer of Farmington, Wash., and Mrs. Earl Barnhardt of Tacoma, Wash. About sixteen years ago they moved to a ranch at Andrew Springs, Idaho, getting their mail from Farmington. Sister Wilson organized a Sunday school in the community and was very active in the neighborhood in Christian work. About ten years ago she was afflicted with Antritis Rheumatism causing her great suffering until the release came. Besides her two daughters she leaves three sisters and two brothers: Mrs. E. M. Love, Alhambra, Calif., Mrs. J. O. Deland, Beatrice, Neb., Mrs. Seth McDonald of Tacoma, George S. Hazen of Seattle, and Grant S. Hazen of Auburn, Wash. From Christmas time she suffered extremely. She was ready and anxious to go and be with Jesus. To her, death had no sting. She loved to read the Bible.

Funeral services were conducted at Farmington, Feb. 25, with her pastor, Rev. F. F. Boothby in charge. The remains were taken to Tacoma for burial and on the following Monday a service was held at Tacoma, as she had many friends there.

F. F. Boothby.

BAIRD.

On January 21, as the sun was bidding farewell to all the earth, the spirit of Richard Baird passed into that home of the soul at his home near Renaker, Ky. Had the grim reaper spared him until the dawning of January 29, he would have reached his 66th milestone. He was born near the site of his home at the time of his death. He was married to Miss Mary E. Mathews January 27, 1891. This devoted couple traveled life's rugged pathway almost 36 years. Two children blessed this union: Carl O. Baird and Mrs. Revie Shelton, both of Hamilton, Ohio. He is survived by his wife, one daughter, one son, four grandsons, seven brothers and one sister. He was a devoted husband, kind and loving father, and a friend to the poor and needy. He was converted in July 1896, under the preaching of W. P. Gordon and Charles Bromley. He had served as Superintendent of the Mt. Zion Sunday School for the past 15 years. As long as his health would permit, he was found at his post of duty. He manifested a keen interest in all enterprises of the church. He was kind and loyal to his pastor, glad to perform any task laid upon him.

Brother Baird had been in failing health for some time. "But though his outer man perished, his inner man was renewed day by day." The funeral services were conducted Monday, January 24, by his former pastor, Bro. S. J. B. True, assisted by the pastor, Bro. Carlos Whitaker. A large concourse attended attesting the esteem in which he was held. We know where to find Bro. Baird. Before long we expect to meet him on the right hand.

As we wander round the old home, And we think of days gone by, How our hearts are filled with sadness For you are gone on high.

We will miss you so, dear one, As we do our loved ones dear, Who have preceded you to heaven, Just a few days more than a year. For we know that they have greeted you,

Over on the golden shore, Where the angels sing forever, And the parting days are o'er.

We will miss the kind instruction, And your loving, guiding hand, For you always told us,

Of a brighter, better land. When our life's work is ended, Then we're coming by and by.

There to join the happy family, In that home beyond the sky.

His Wife,

Mrs. Richard Baird.

"Night Scenes of Scripture," by Caie, is another great book of sermons from the bonnie preacher country of Scotland. It is rich in suggestive material, persuasive and practical. Order early before our supply is exhausted. Price $1.25. Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Kentucky.

KOSCINSKO, MISSISSIPPI.

Rev. H. L. Golden has just closed a three-weeks' meeting at Mill Creek Church at Koscinko, Rocky Hill charge. Rev. G. M. Pilgrim is the pastor but could only be with us part time. He is a man of God and out and out for souls. The Lord came in great power; the altar has been full and congregations splendid. There were eight saved and forty-two united with the church. Forty-seven were baptized and a number came in by letter. Brother Golden made ninety visits while here and was welcome to every home. He goes from here to Sallis for a two-weeks' meeting. He has been in the evangelistic work for years and is Missionary Conference Secretary. He has a few open dates in the fall and will be glad to go anywhere the Lord may lead.

Susie Counsell.

Do you want a book of biography, of fine literature, of Christian History, of inspirational value? Get "Deeper Experiences of Famous Christians," by Lawson, and you will have something that will enrich your library. Price $1.50. Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky.

REQUEST FOR PRAYER.

J. D. M. requests prayer that he may be restored to the consciousness of God's favor. He is in great distress and asks us to make this plea for prayer.

Prayer is requested for a child who has never walked nor talked, now being seven years of age.

Please pray for two sisters that they may be saved and sanctified.

Mrs. J. F. R.: "Pray for a dear sister who is a nervous wreck, also for her husband and son."

WHAT'S IN A BOOK?

CONDUCTED BY

REV. Z. T. JOHNSON, A. B., B. O., M. A.

Deeper Experiences of Famous Christians, by J. G. Lawson. $1.50.

The object of this book is to describe the deepest spiritual experiences of the most famous Christians of all ages. "The author has spent much of his time for years in the greatest libraries of Europe and America, searching the whole range of Christian literature to glean from it the most spiritual and helpful Christian experience. He believes that this book contains the very cream of the Christian literature of all ages.

Mr. Lawson takes up Old and New Testament Characters, and then picks from the whole range of Christian living the most outstanding characters for his discussions. He gives something of the life of each character, and shows how that life centered around the "Deepest Christian Experience."

The book is very interesting as biography; very instructive in spiritual matters, and gives valuable basic material for Christian workers and preachers to use in their services. It treats of such men and women as Savonarola, Madam Guyon, Fenelon, Fox, Wesley, Fletcher, Whitefield, Lorenzo Dow, Peter Cartwright, Finney, Frances Haverall, Moody, General Booth, and others.

Seeking the Mind of Christ, by Robert E. Speer. $1.50.

Dr. Speer has written about a score of books. His writings are known around the world. Some years ago I read "Christianity and the Nations," a book on comparative religions, and ever since, have had a high respect for the illuminating style of the author. This book is akin to that.

There are five divisions, and under each there are five chapters. The five general topics are: "The Christian Discipline;" "The Christian Temper;" "The Christian Standard." From the third division you may see the character of the discussions.

III. The Christian Discipline.

1. The Perils of our Virtues.
2. The Why of Hard Conditions.
3. The Glory of Unanswered prayer.
4. The Snare of Sincerity.
5. The Money Test of Character.

Most any book about Jesus is worth reading. This one will help you to understand and appreciate the Master more.

Outlooks on God, by W. C. Blakeman. $1.00.

This is a small book of 155 pages, devotional and not theological. Its purpose is "To present God in the wealth of his tenderness and treasure, in his infinite compassion, in his age-long forbearance, and in his world-wide love, together with his unfathomed plans for the earth-son whom he hath redeemed."

About fifty topics are treated. They are short. The style of the author is pithy and direct. Sometimes he gives way to a flow of imagination and eloquence. His topics are suggestive: viz., "The Conception of God," "The Challenges of God," "The Intensity of God," "The Newness of God," "The Ambassadors of God," "The Surprises of God," "The Travels of God," "The Horizons of God," and "The Goal of God."

This little book will be a blessing to you. It is easy and interesting to read.

Night Scenes of Scripture, by N. Macleod Caie, B. D. $1.25.

This is a book of fourteen sermons built around the general theme of the title. The Scotsman says they are "Graphic in description, lucid in expression, striking in illustration, and persuasive in practical enforcement."

Some of these messages are most suggestive in thought and material. The most outstanding of these are: "Abraham;" "Judas's Betrayal of Jesus;" "Peter's Denial of Jesus;" "The Noiseless Fabric;" "The Crowns of Christ." This last one is especially good.

Prof. James Moffatt, the famous translator of the New Testament, writes in the British Weekly: "Mr. Norman Macleod Caie is one of the most popular preachers in the Church of Scotland. His 'Night Scenes of Scripture' includes sermons on Jacob, Nehemiah, Nicodemus, Paul, Peter, and others. Mr. Caie has not sacrificed direct, eager power to any literary ambition. He can quote poetry aptly and he writes clearly, but one feels through his pages the glow which has made him so effective as a preacher."

Hallelujah Jack, by C. H. Jack Linn. $1.00.

We can give you no better idea of his book than to quote the first three paragraphs. These, with the statement, "If I know my own heart, I am writing this experience for the glory of God and for the salvation of men," will show you the contents of the book, the author's style of writing and its purpose. Note them.

"Less than five years ago I was a prisoner in jail. Less than five years ago I was a fugitive from justice. Less than five years ago I was living under an assumed name. Less than five years ago I was hunted and wanted by the police."

"Today I am a saved man. Today I am an ordained minister of the Gospel. Today I am an evangelist. (Previous to my work in the evangelistic field I was pastor of a growing church.)"

"And this day, moved by the power of the Holy Spirit, I have set about to record how this great change came about."

The story reads like a novel. It grips the interest. There is not a dull paragraph in it. It is a splendid story of a "sinner saved by grace."

All of the books reviewed in these columns may be bought from The Pentecostal Publishing Company, Louisville, Kentucky.

DIVINE PRAISE

A new Holiness book compiled by Evangelist George Bennard, author of the "Old Rugged Cross," especially for Holiness Churches, Sunday Schools, Camp Meetings and Conventions.

"DIVINE PRAISE"

has a collection of the best of the Full Salvation Songs on the market today, including a well rounded collection of the Old Hymns of the Church and a number of prominent solo and duet numbers.

192 pages handsomely printed and bound in Heavy Manila Binding at 25 cents a copy, and Full Cloth Binding 35 cents a copy.

Quantity order at 20 cents for Manila Binding and 30 cents a copy Full Cloth Binding.

Order a supply for your Church or have your committee adopt this new book for your Camp Meeting, and see what an improvement it will make in your music.

Order from

PENTECOSTAL PUBLISHING COMPANY,
523 South First Street
LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

REV. O. G. MINGLEDORFF, D.D.

Lesson IV.—July 24, 1927.

Subject.—David and Goliath.—1 Samuel 17:31-37, 40-42, 48-51.

Golden Text.—The Lord is the strength of my life: of whom shall I be afraid. Psalm 21:7.

Time.—About B. C. 1063.

Place.—The valley of Elah.

Introduction.—Our last Sunday's lesson closed at chapter 16:13, when "Samuel rose up, and went to Ramah." At that time the Spirit of the Lord departed from King Saul because of his unfaithfulness, and "an evil spirit from the Lord, troubled him." "The evil spirit was either immediately sent from the Lord, or permitted to come. Whether this was a diabolic possession, or a mere mental malady, the learned are not agreed; it seems to have partaken of both. That Saul had fallen into a deep melancholy there is little doubt; that the devil might work more effectually on such a state of mind, there can be but little question. There is an old proverb, "Satan delights to fish in troubled waters; and Saul's situation of mind gave him many advantages." Clarke. This explanation is about the best that I have been able to find. Think some for yourselves.

Saul's servants suggested that a skilled musician be called in to play for him during his mad fits—not a bad idea, as even a cobra of India may be soothed by the soft strains of a violin, and the wild roar of a savage lion will yield to good music. A servant suggested young David, the shepherd son of Jesse of Bethlehem. They said that he was a great harpist, and accordingly he was called from his father's flock to play before the king. For a time his music had the desired influence over the troubled nerves of the ruler, but only for a time.

Soon there was trouble with the Philistines who gathered their armies for battle at a place called Shohoh belonging to the tribe of Judah. Saul and the hosts of Israel "pitched by the valley of Elah, and set the battle in array against the Philistines." When all was ready for the battle, there walked out from the Philistine army an immense giant named Goliath. He was about ten feet tall, armed from head to feet, and carried a spear whose staff was like a weaver's beam. This big bully stood and demanded that the contest should be settled by a combat between himself and some man whom the Israelites should select from their forces to meet him in a duel. For some days he came out daily and cursed the army of Israel and defied them to send out a man to fight with him. All Israel seemed to be terrified by this one man, until one day there came into the camp a rosy-cheeked lad, sent by his father to make some inquiry concerning his three brothers who were in Saul's army. This was David, the same shepherd boy who had formerly played his harp before Saul. When he heard the blasphemous Philistine defying the armies of the living God, he asked who he was, and why he was permitted to do this thing. One of his brothers rebuked him for having the big-head; but what he said finally reached the ears of the king; and he sent for David, but did not recognize him—at least he had forgotten what family he belonged to. When he found the lad determined to meet the giant, Saul put upon him his own armor and gave him his sword; but David could not risk himself in battle with such a load of unproved armor, and went to the duel with his shepherd's sling and five smooth stones that had been gathered out of a brook.

There is a suggestive lesson here for some young preachers who are itching to deliver big sermons—and every preacher should do his very best. But maybe it would be best for him to preach his own little sermons until he can grow big enough to think out some big ones for himself. We are just dropping this as a suggestion, seeing that some small fellows are trying to shoot cartridges that have been forged by such men as Jos. H. Smith, Phillips Brooks, Henry C. Morrison, and some others. Better be careful, young brethren, lest such cartridges burst your little guns and ruin you forever.

Comments on the Lesson.

31. When the words were heard which David spake.—He had had some conversation with the private soldiers about Goliath, and they had communicated with king Saul who sent for David to find out for himself what the boy had been saying.

32. Let no man's heart fail because of him.—It would seem that if Israel had any man who could fight with Goliath, it would have been big king Saul who was "higher than any man in the nation from his shoulders and up"; but perhaps he was as badly frightened as the common soldiers were. There was no courage left in him when he heard the Philistine giant swear, and call for some Jewish champion to meet him in the plain. Thy servant will go and fight with this Philistine.—That sounds boastful from the lips of a shepherd lad; and it would have been worthy of ridicule, had David stood in his own strength, but he was standing in the strength of Jehovah, and knew where-in he was trusting. Give us men in the pulpit, who are filled with the Divine Spirit, and Satan's giants will fall before them as Goliath fell before David.

33. Thou art not able to go against this Philistine to fight with him.—Poor Saul! The Spirit of the Lord had left him, and he was too blind to see that the Almighty One was with the shepherd lad. "You are but a youth, and the Philistine is a mighty man of war. Better not go, my boy; for he will surely feed your carcass to the wild beasts." A coward cannot understand courage that is divinely inspired.

34-36. David must convince Saul that he is no common lad. There came a time when he was guarding his father's sheep, and a lion and a bear came out of their dens to tear the flock; but he killed both of them. The lion caught a lamb, but the young shepherd caught him by his beard and slew him. Pretty good fighting for a boy of his age. Basing himself on this sort of a record, he was ready to face the king about fighting Goliath.

"This uncircumcised Philistine shall be as one of them, seeing he hath defied the armies of the living God." Saul did not know that he was listening to a God-anointed king who was soon to take the throne that he must vacate. David was Jehovah's man, filled with the Spirit, and therefore ready for any duty that lay before him. "If God be for us, who can be against us."

37. This verse is fine: "The Lord that delivered me out of the paw of the lion, and out of the paw of the bear, he will deliver me out of the hand of the Philistine." That is splendid; and even Saul is coming to his senses: "And Saul said unto David, Go, and the Lord be with thee." No comment is needed on that.

40-42. Read these three verses, and call upon your imagination to draw a picture of the scene. "The Philistines stood on a mountain on one side, and Israel stood on a mountain on the other side: and there was a valley between them." David came down on his side with his staff, his sling and a few smooth stones in his scrip. Goliath entered the valley on his side armed cap-a-pie, and followed by a servant bearing his immense shield. The entire scene looks ridiculously funny. No wonder Goliath disdained his enemy. Of course, it would be no fight at all. The giant would feed the lad to the fowls of the air in less than no time. But maybe it would be wise to reckon with Heaven before boasting too loud; for this was Jehovah's battle.

48-51. These last verses are so simple that comment is not needed in an expository way. David was eager for the fray—so much so that he ran to meet the Philistine, at the same time drawing from his shepherd's bag at his side a stone with which he loaded his sling. His aim was deadly, for he was a good shot. While the enemy was preparing to pick him up on the point of his great spear, the stone from the lad's sling found a vulnerable spot between the joints of his helmet and buried itself in the giant's brain, and the fight was over. David did have one little bloody job to attend to; but he was out of danger, for the terribly frightened Philistines were flying across the mountains to escape the fury of the oncoming hosts of Israel. David drew out Goliath's big sword, and cut off his head with it, and then presented it to king Saul as a trophy. That was a great day in Israel; for Jehovah was fighting against his enemies; and when he fights, one man means more than whole armies without his aid. God could clothe himself with Gideon, and thrash his enemies as one threshes wheat. He could come upon Jonathan and his armor-bearer, and use them to clean out a whole garrison of heathen soldiers. If the Church will receive him, he will clothe himself with her, and clean up the world for Christ in a generation.

RECOMMENDATION.

To those who are planning on calling an evangelist that you will never regret having called, we would recommend to you Rev. R. L. Morgan, well known over the Iowa, Indiana, and Chicago Central Districts. He has had ten years' pastoral experience, also spent six years in the evangelistic field, with the blessing of God upon his labors. God has given him many souls up and down the land. He is rightly named, "A Bible preacher of the old-time type." He waits on the Lord for his leadings concerning his messages. He is just closing a meeting in Roxana, Ill. God has wonderfully honored the word that has been given out. If you are looking for such a man call or write him at Olivet, Ill. Archie Wilson, Pastor Church of the Nazarene, Roxana, Illinois.

The Charm of Golden-Voiced Chimes is within reach of your church, too! Imagine the rich, musical tones of Deagan Tower Chimes coming from the belfry of your church—constant inspiration to worship; a golden voice eagerly awaited by multitudes every day. Write for plan. Standard Sets $5,000 and Up. J. C. DEAGAN, Inc., 105 Deagan Building, Chicago, Ill.

HOLLOW ROCK CAMP MEETING JULY 28th TO AUGUST 7th, 1927.

Not far from Pittsburgh, Pa., East Liverpool, Ohio, Cleveland, Ohio, Steubenville, Ohio, and Wheeling, W. Va.

THOUSANDS ATTEND EVERY YEAR.

The influence of this camp is felt throughout America and many foreign countries.

A GRAND PLACE TO SPEND YOUR VACATION

WORKERS—Rev. C. H. Babcock, Rev. C. W. Ruth, Rev. Howard Sweeten, Prof. Kenneth and Eunice Wells, Sadie B. Mishey, children and young people. Edwina Wilson, pianist.

Address R. L. HOUSEHOLDER, Sec'y., Toronto, O.

Thousands of New Words spelled, pronounced, and defined in

WEBSTER'S NEW INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

The "Supreme Authority"

Here are a few samples:

hot pursuit	Red Star
Air Council	capital ship
mud gun	mystery ship
S. P. boat	irredenta
aerial cascade	Esthonia
American Legion	Blue Cross
girl scout	airport
cyper	crystal detector
sippio	superheterodyne
shoneen

Is this storehouse of information serving you?

2700 Pages
6000 Illustrations
407,000 Words and Phrases

Gazetteer and Biographical Dictionary

Get the Best!—Write for a sample page of the New Words, specimen of Regular and India Papers, FREE.

G. & C. MERRIAM CO.
Springfield, Mass., U. S. A.

GOSPEL TENTS

Write for Prices on NEW AND USED TENTS.

R. H. ARMBRUSTER CO.,
SPRINGFIELD, ILL.

Established 1875

We Aim To Please—Our Aim Is Good

FOR SALE—Modern six-room bungalow, close to Asbury College, Wilmore, Ky. City water, electricity, furnace, lawn, porches, attic, etc.

REV. G. S. POLLOCK
Box 218, WILMORE, KY.

FOR SALE—A Gospel tent in good condition, 30 feet by 60 feet, and trestle seats

REV. E. M. THARP
RISING SUN, IND., R. 2. care Sam McCellian

"THE MAN WHO FELL."

This is a booklet on the Fall of Man. Interesting, instructive and vital. By Rev. Bethel Cook. You will want a copy. Send 25 cents now. Copies limited. Address

BOOK EXCHANGE
CONWAY SPRINGS, KANSAS.

Baptism,

Its Mode, Subjects and Designs.

By Dr. George H. Means.

Plain, practical and comprehensive discussion of this subject. It discusses very thoroughly The Mode, The Baptism of New Testament, The Meaning of the word Baptize, Infant Baptism, etc. Knowing the ability of the author to handle this subject some of our leading men urged the writing of this book. Price, 50c.

PENTECOSTAL PUBLISHING COMPANY
Louisville, Kentucky.

EVANGELISTIC AND PERSONAL.

The Fifty-Third Annual Camp Meeting of the Christian Holiness Association will be held at Douglas, Mass., July 15-25. The workers will be Rev. C. H. Babcock, Rev. John J. Hunt, Rev. H. P. Morgan, Rev. J. T. Johnson, and Prof. C. C. Rinebarger as song leader. For information, address Rev. N. J. Raison, Sec'y., Blue Hills Ave., Mattapan, Mass.

Rev. G. W. Ridout may be available for a camp meeting. He may have a date suitable to one of the camps. Write him at Wilmore, Ky.

On account of cancellation of some meetings, Rev. J. B. Kendall, 1127 E. Main St., Lexington, Ky., has most of July open, and will be glad to give this time to any one desiring his assistance.

Spend your vacation at Camp View Camp Ground, West Asheville, N. C., beginning July 17 and closing July 31. Camping on the ground will be free. Rev. Raymond Browning will be there from July 19 to July 26. Address Rev. R. V. Self, President, West Asheville, N. C., for information.

Rev. W. E. Lytle is engaged in a meeting in Sag Harbor, Long Island. A number have been at the altar. Bro. Lytle goes to Lansing, Mich., from Sag Harbor. He has open dates in August and September for meetings. Address W. E. Lytle, Lawyer-Evangelist, Wilmore, Ky.

The Drainsville, Va., Holiness Camp will hold its meeting August 19-28. Many of the leading holiness preachers have preached at this camp for the last twenty years. Rev. John Norberry was the special worker last year and God gave a wonderful time of saving and sanctifying power. In addition to the spiritual blessings money was raised for necessary expenses and several hundred dollars subscribed for the new tabernacle. Rev. Norberry is the special worker again this year. Information may be had by writing Anna L. Hyatt, 163 Adams St., N. W., Washington, D. C.

The 29th Annual Camp Meeting will be held on the Pentecostal Grove Camp Ground, Denton, Md., July 21-31, inclusive. Rev. Seth C. Rees, Rev. G. A. Hodgins, assisted by district workers, will be the leaders. Rev. Jacob Hoffman and wife will have charge of the large chorus choir, while Miss Maude Short and Rev. Alvin Young will be the soloists. Address S. L. Adams, Sec., Denton, Md., for information.

The Fifteenth Annual Camp Meeting of the Miami Valley Holiness Association will be held on the Gospel Tabernacle Grounds, 2500 West 3rd St., Dayton, Ohio, July 21-31. Rev. Jesse Whitecotton is the evangelist. assisted by other ministers. Rev. and Mrs. A. H. Johnston, national singers, will have charge of the music. Ample entertainment will be furnished all who attend. Address Mrs. Maude Stottlemeyer, 3201 E. 4th St., Dayton, O.

W. E. Hudnall: "I have held meetings since last report in Tyler, Tex., also Paris, Tex., and am now in the battle in the oil town of Barger, Tex. God is blessing and souls are getting through. I shall be glad to correspond with parties desiring evangelistic help. My address is Conway, Ark."

Rev. Roy L. Hollenback is moving to 108-05 Ninety-Fifth Ave., Richmond Hill, N. Y., and takes this opportunity of notifying the public of his new address. His slate is full for 1927, but can take one or two Eastern camps for 1928.

Pastor John Norberry, of the Trinity M. E. Church, Camden, N. J., has been granted a month's vacation by his church. Brother Norberry expects to spend part of his vacation resting, and part in evangelistic work. He will be the special evangelist at the Drainsville Holiness Camp at Herndon, Va., where God made him such a blessing last year.

C. L. Smith: "This is to introduce the Rev. C. E. Curtis, D.D. I have known Dr. Curtis as pastor on his field, and in my capacity as secretary of the Red Lake Camp Meeting Association we have engaged him as our evangelist, and know whereof we speak. He preaches the old-fashioned Gospel clearly, logically, scripturally, convincingly, and with power. Dr. Curtis is a fine type of Christian gentleman, and no one will make a mistake in engaging him for tent meetings or for evangelistic services. We understand he is open for engagements during July and part of August, and perhaps can be persuaded to continue in definite evangelistic work to which he seems adapted. Address him at Wishek, N. D., or at Sandusky, Mich., where he is at present making his home."

A splendid little devotional book, full of rich suggestions, is "Outlooks on God," by W. C. Blakeman. It sells for $1.00. Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky.

At the hub of

The flow is toward the area embraced in the educational zone of Olivet College the Nation stands

OLIVET COLLEGE

- 75 miles from the population center of the United States.
- 3 hours ride from Chicago—industrial and commercial center and fourth city of the world.
- Centrally located geographically in the heart of the Middle West.

Literature on request

T. W. WILLINGHAM, President, OLIVET, ILL.

Educational Advantages in a Spiritual Atmosphere

It is the Logical Place for You to Attend School

College and Preparatory Courses

FALL TERM OPENS SEPTEMBER 13, 1927

ASBURY COLLEGE

WILMORE, KENTUCKY

A Cosmopolitan School

Born in a passion standing for Wesleyan Essentials. Fall session opens September 14th.

Adequate training consistent with a sound gospel faith.

Write for Bulletin

MEMBER OF THE ASSOCIATION OF KENTUCKY COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES;
MEMBER OF THE ASSOCIATION OF AMERICAN COLLEGES.

L. R. AKERS, M.A., D.D., PRESIDENT.

W. BRANDT HUGHES, M.A., DEAN.

The School With a World Vision

A VIEW AT HOLLOW ROCK CAMP

NOT TO BE USED WITHOUT COPYRIGHT PERMISSION

OF ASBURY THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

EVANGELISTS' SLATES

ALBRIGHT, TILLIE.

Moers, New York, July 24-Aug. 14.
Richland, N. Y., Aug. 21-Sept. 5.

ANDERSON, T. M.

Sebring, Ohio, July 15-24.
Sharon Center, Ohio, July 29-Aug. 7.
Frankfort, Ind., Aug. 5-14.

ARTHUR, FRANK E.

Wilmet, S. Dak., July 5-17.
Gladwin, Mich., July 21-31.
Conneautville, Pa., Aug. 4-14.

ASBURY GOSPEL TEAM.

Kirkpatrick, Jarrett, Moore, DuVal.
Overtown, Pa., July 6-17.
Elmira, N. Y., July 20-31.
Lockport, N. Y., August 5-14.

AYCOCK, JARRETTE AND DELL.

Poteau, Okla., July 13-24.
Mail address, 2923 Troost Ave., Kansas City, Mo.

BABCOCK, C. H.

Douglas, Mass., July 14-24.
Hollow Rock, Toronto, O. July 28-August 7.
Wakefield, Va., August 5-15.
Wichita, Kan., August 18-28.
Blackwell, Okla., Aug. 29-Sept. 4.
Thomas, Okla., Sept. 15-25.

BECK, A. S. AND R. S.

Hiseville, Ky., July 2-15.
Columbia, Ky., July 18-Aug. 5.
Open dates, August 5 to last of October.

BEELER, T. W.

Danville, Ky., July 16-31.
Home address, Wilmore, Ky.

BENNARD, GEO.

LeRoy, Mich., July 3-17.
Meaford, Ontario, Can., July 20-31.
Romeo, Mich., Aug. 4-14.

BENNETT, W. G.

Newark, Ohio, July 1-24.

BROWNING, RAYMOND.

West Asheville, N. C., July 20-26.
Columbus, Ohio, July 28-Aug. 7.
New Albany, Ind., August 8-14.

BUDMAN, ALMA L.

(Song Evangelist)
Hughesville, Pa., July 21-31.
Linden Hall, Pa., August 6-20.
Address 101 Carpenter St., Muncy, Pa.

BURNETT, W. EVANS.

Open dates for July and August.
Alexandria, La., June 17-25.
Home address, Lake Charles, La.

BUSSEY, M. M.

Dallas, Ore., July 17-Aug. 1.

CALLIS, O. H.

Wilmore, Ky., July 3-17.
Nashville, Tenn., July 17-31.
Hartsell, Ala., August 4-14.

CANADAY, FRED.

Mt. Vernon, Va., July 28-Aug. 7.
Open date, Aug. 19-28.
Home address, 1518 Killingsworth Ave., Portland, Ore.

CAIN, W. B.

Omaha, Neb., July 14-24.
St. Croix Falls, Wis., July 28-Aug. 7.
Wichita, Kan., August 18-28.
Home address, 515 So. Vine St., Wichita, Kansas.

CAROTHERS, J. L. AND SADIE.

Ferndale, Wash., July 21-31.
Tacoma, Wash., August 1-14.
Nepesce, Idaho, August 17-31.

CHATFIELD, C. C. AND FLORA.

Lynn, Ind., July 3-17.
Warsaw, Ohio, July 28-August 7.
Radcliff, Ohio, August 14-28.
Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 29-Sept. 11.
Durand, Mich., Sept. 11-Oct. 2.
Ellet, Ohio, Oct. 3-16.
Home address, 410 E. Carl St., Winchester, Ind.

CLARKE, C. S.

Jones, Okla., July 10-24.
Guthrie, Okla., July 31-Aug. 21.
Home address, 808 N. Ash, Guthrie, Okla.

COLE, DOLL.

Marquand, Mo., July 4-17.

COLEMAN, PAUL.

Frankfort, Ind., August 8-11.
Springfield, Ohio, August 12-24.
Home address, 1620 Fairfax Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio.

COLLIER, J. A.

Providence, Ky., July 10-Aug. 7.
Home address, 1917 Cephas Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

COPELAND, H. E.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 4-17.
Thomas, S. Dak., July 24-Aug. 14.
Home address, Oskaloosa, Iowa.

COX, F. W. AND WIFE.

Crawfordsville, Ore., (camp) July 7-17.
Crawfordsville, Ore., (Wesleyan Church) July 20-Aug. 7.

CROSS, WALTER-LOPER, NORRIS.

Silver Creek, Miss., July 11-29.
Stratton, Miss., August 1-19.

DECKER, WALTER REED.

(Song Evangelist)
Open dates for Fall and Winter.
Home address, 124 Gould St., Corry, Pa.

DICKERSON, H. N.

Bloomington, Ind., July 17-31.
Kirk, Colo., August 18-28.
Home address, 2608 Newman St., Ashland, Ky.

DUNAWAY, C. M.

Bentleyville, Pa., July 14-22.
Dalton, Ga., July 23-31.
Mt. Vernon, Ohio, August 4-14.
Home address, 216 N. Candler St., Decatur, Ga.

DYE, CHARLES.

Columbus, Ohio, July 3-17.
Fisher, Ky., July 24-Aug. 7.
Seima, Ind., August 4-14.
Address, 430 Williams St., Troy, Ohio.

ELLIS, G. EDWIN

West Union, Ia., June 28-July 17.
Home address, University Park, Ia.

ELSNER, THEO. AND WIFE.

Old Orchard, Maine, July 8-17.
Reading, Pa., July 22-31.
Wilmington, Mass., Aug. 5-14.
Home address, 1451 Pacific St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

FLEMING, JOHN.

N. Little Rock, Ark., July 29-Aug. 8.
National Park Camp, New Jersey, Aug. 12-21.

FLEMING, BONA.

Dallas, Tex., July 15-24.
Little Rock, Ark., July 29-Aug. 7.
National Park, N. J., August 12-21.
Ingersoll, Okla., Aug. 26-Sept. 4.

FLEXON, R. S.

Lotham, Md., July 15-31.
Clinton, Pa., August 5-14.
Glassboro, N. J., August 15-21.
Delanco, N. J., Aug. 17-Sept. 5.
Home address, Shackelfords, Va.

FRYHOFF, A. J.

Zanesfield, Ohio, July 17-28.
Mt. Gilead, Ohio, July 29-Aug. 7.

FUGETT, C. B.

St. Bernice, Ind., July 4-17.
Haltown, Md., July 24-Aug. 7.
Normal, Ill., August 19-28.
Cape May, N. J., Sept. 9-17.
Home address, 2813 Holt St., Ashland, Ky.

GADDIS, TILDEN H.

Aspen Grove, Ky., July 11-24.
Oregon, Wis., July 31-Aug. 14.
Charleston, Ill., August 19-28.
Upland, Ind., Sept. 2-17.
Home address, 4805 Ravenna St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

GEIL, PAUL AND DORA.

(Singers and Xylophone Players)
North Manchester, Ind., July 1-30.
Kokomo, Ind., Aug. 1-28.
Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 16-Nov. 6.
Brazil, Ind., Nov. 13-27.
Anamosa, Iowa, Dec. 1-30.
Home address, Frankfort, Ind.

GLEASON, RUFUS H.

General Conference, June 22-26.
Marion, Ind., July 3-24.
Cadillac, Mich., July 28-Aug. 7.
Charles City, Ia., Aug. 16-28.
Home address, Central, S. C.

GLENN, REV AND MRS. J. M.

Millport, Ala., July 3-17.
Chatham, Ala., July 24-Aug. 7.
Indian Springs, Ga., Aug. 11-21.
Eastman, Ga., Sept. 4-18.

GREEN, JIM H.

W. Marion, N. C., July 3-17.
Bostic, N. C., July 17-29.
Connelly Springs, N. C., Aug. 7-15.
Home address, Box 200, Connelly Springs, N. C.

GRANT BROTHERS.

Montier, Mo., July 1-16.
Birch Tree, Mo., August 1-16.
Thomasville, Mo., August 16-31.

GROGG, W. A.

Smithers, W. Va., July 2-22.
Mt. Lake Park, Md., July 26-Aug. 4.
Pinch, W. Va., August 20-Sept. 3.
Home address, Ronceverte, W. Va.

GROSE, JOHN A.

Front Royal, Va., Aug. 28-Sept. 11.
Home address, Shepherdstown, W. Va.

HALLMAN, W. A. AND WIFE.

Alsask, Sask., July 7-17.
Didsbury, Alta., July 21-31.
Elkhart, Ind., August 4-14.
Lincoln, Nebr., August 19-29.

HARRIS, B. F.

Kionoke, Tex., July 15-31.
Dillard, Okla., Aug. 7-21.
Riley, Kan., Aug. 17-Sept. 4.

HEWSON, JOHN E.

Gordon, Neb., July 17-27.
Sherman, Ill., August 4-14.
Portage, Ohio, Aug. 18-28.
Home address, 127 N. Chester Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.

HOLLENBACK, URAL T.

Norristown, Pa. Oct. 2-16.

HORN, LUTHER A-MARSHALL, R. P.

Salem, Ala., July 12-28.
Suggsville, Ala., July 31-Aug. 12.
Clear Springs, Ala., Aug. 14-28.
Louisville, Ala., Sept. 1-14.
Home address, Box 1322, Mobile, Ala.

HOTCHKISS, ROY L.

Campbell, Minn., June 29-July 17.
Montevideo, Minn., July 19-Aug. 7.
Winthrop, Minn., Aug. 9-28.
Hull, Iowa, August 30-Sept. 11.

HOWARD, FIELDING T.

Sunrise, Ky., July 4-17.
Depoy, Ky., July 20-31.
Milton, Ky., August 5-14.
Tolu, Ky., August 18-28.
Home address, Wilmore, Ky.

HULSE, AARON.

Oklahoma City, Okla., July 10-31.
Letona, Okla., Aug. 9-28.

HUNT, JOHN J.

Douglas, Mass., July 15-25.
Rosslyn, Va., July 28-Aug. 8.
Wilkesburg, Pa., Sept. 16-25.
Home address, Media, Pa., Rt. 3.

HUTCHERSON, FIELDS AND HILKER.

(Tent Workers)
Slater, Wyo., June 27-July 16.
Basin, Wyo., July 18-31.
Meetesee, Wyo., August 1-21.
Grass Creek, Wyo., August 22-25.

HYSSELL, HARVEY B.

Lennon, Mich., June 26-July 13.
Baileysville, W. Va., July 17-31.
Bowersville, Ohio, August 4-14.
Mt. Nebo, W. Va., Aug. 17-31.
Home address, Box 1235, Charleston, W. Va.

IRICK, ALLIE AND EMMA.

Olive Hill, Ky., July 8-18.
Goddard, Ky., July 21-31.
Cambria, Ill., August 4-14.
Bonnie, Ill., August 19-29.
Millport, Ala., Aug. 31-Sept. 12.
Thomas, Okla., Sept. 15-25.
Home address, Bethany, Okla.

JOHNSON, RAY N.

Mohabala, Ohio, July 10-24.
McLuney, Ohio, July 25-Aug. 7.

JOHNSON, ANDREW

Norfolk, Va., July 1-17.
Ruggles camp, Ky., July 21-31.
Eldorado, Ill., August 4-14.

KENNEDY, ROBERT J.

(Singer)
Tuscumbia, Ala., July 4-24.
Seagraves, Tex., Aug. 17-31.

KEYS EVANGELISTIC PARTY.

Rev. Clifford E. Keys, Evangelist.
Mrs. Clifford E. Keys, Pianist. Rev. Roscoe Bancroft, Trombonist.
Cressona, Pa., July 6-17.
Reading, Pa., July 22-31.
Lewistown, Pa., August 2-14.
Eccles, W. Va., Aug. 18-Sept. 4.
Chillicothe, Ohio, Sept. 11-Oct. 2.
Home address, Mohnton, Pa.

KINSEY, W. C. AND WIFE.

(Song Leader, Singers, Pianist)
Mendon, Ohio, July 14-24.
Campbellsville, Ky., Aug. 12-21.
Home address, 452 So. West 2nd St., Richmond, Ind.

KINSEY FRANK E.

Ft. Branch, Ind., July 7-24.
Birds, Ill., July 31-Aug. 21.
Urbana, Ill., Aug. 24-29.
Home address, 1220 Tecumseh St., Indianapolis, Ind.

LAMP, W. E.

Elkville, Ill., July 3-23.
Shumway, Ill., July 25-Aug. 14.
Home address, Wilmore, Ky.

LEWIS, J. H.

Harrisville, Ohio, July 12-24.
Open date, July 28-Aug. 9.
Jerusalem, Ohio, Aug. 11-21.

LILLENAS, HALDOR AND BERTHA.

Peoria, Ill., July 3-17.
Carmichael, Pa., July 21-31.
Sherman, Ill., August 4-14.
Connersville, Ind., Oct. 2-16.

LITTELL, V. W. AND MARGUERITE.

Butler, Pa., June 28-July 19.
Urishville, Ohio, July 22-Aug. 7.
Chariton, Ia., Aug. 14-28.
Home address, 1214 Scott St., Beatrice, Nebraska.

LOVELESS, W. W.

Monticello, Ky., July 1-17.
Warsaw, Ohio, July 21-31.
Home address, London, Ohio.

LUDWIG, THEODORE AND MINNIE.

Racine, Wis., July 13-24.
Hector, Minn., July 26-Aug. 7.
Nokomis, Ill., Aug. 9-21.
Home address, 772 N. Euclid Ave., St. Louis, Mo.

MCBRIDE, J. B.

Mount Olivet, Ky., July 15-25.
Hollis, Okla., July 27-Aug. 7.
Noondar, Tex., August 11-21.
Oakland City, Ind., Aug. 25-Sept. 4.
Home address, 112 Arlington Drive, Pasadena, Calif.

MCGHIE, ANNA E.

Sharon Center, Ohio, July 28-Aug. 4.
Mt. Vernon, O., Aug. 4-14.

MCCORD, W. W.

Sale City, Ga., August 11-21.
Home address, Sale City, Ga.

MCNEESE, HERBERT J.

Open dates, July and August.
Address New Brighton, Pa., 634 13th Ave.

MCKIE, MARK S.

Open dates after June 15.

MAXWELL, PROF. S. A.

Gold Hill, N. C., July 10-24.
Open dates, August.
Address, Graham, N. C.

MAWSON, R. K. AND WIFE.

(Singers and Pianists)
South Corbin, Ky., June 20-July 24.
Home address, Wilmore, Ky.

MILLER, JULIUS.

New Effington, S. Dak., July 10-24.
Ortonville, Minn., July 26-Aug. 7.
Jamestown, N. Dak., Aug. 10-14.
Home address, Mattoon, Wis.

MILLER, REV. AND MRS. F. E.

Moers, N. Y., July 30-Aug. 14.
Richland, N. Y., August 21-Sept. 5.
Home address, Lowville, N. Y.

MILLER, JAMES.

Lynn, Ind., July 10-24.
Hope, Mich., July 31-Aug. 14.
Home address, 1249 N. Holme Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.

MINGLEDORFF, O. G.

Grand Bayou, La., July 17-31.
Orlando, Fla., Aug. 25-Sept. 5.
Home address, Blackshear, Ga.

MONK, ALONZO, JR.

Tuscumbia, Ala., July 5-24.
Winslow, Ark., July 28-Sept. 1.
Paris, Tenn., Sept. 3-24.
October, November, December open.

MORGAN, R. L.

Tilden, Ill., July 11-24.
Milwaukee, Wis., July 27-Aug. 14.
Home address, Olivet, Ill.

MORRIS, (JUDGE) FRANK

China Springs, Tex., July 24.
Aspermont, Tex., August 7.
Hagerman, N. Mex., Aug. 28.
Alamogordo, N. Mex., Sept. 11.
Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 2.
Home address, P. O. Box 1523 Dallas, Texas.

NELSON, S. S.

Organ Cave, W. Va., Oct. 1-10.
Ranceverte, W. Va., Oct. 12-25.
Address, 832 Worth Ave., Greensboro, N. C.

NORBERRY, JOHN.

Drainsville, Va., August 17-28.
Ocean Grove, N. J., Aug. 29-Sept. 3.

OWEN, G. F. AND BYRDIE.

Ft. Dodge, Iowa, July 12-24.
Climbing Hill, Iowa, July 29-August 1.
Open date, August 12-21.
Bath, Maine, Aug. 28-Sept. 12.
South Portland, Maine, Sept. 18-Oct. 2.
Home address, 1415 West Pikes Peak Ave., Colorado Springs, Colo.

OWEN, JOHN F.

Freeport, I. I., July 14-24.
Mt. Vernon, Ohio, August 4-14.
Alexandria, Ind., August 15-21.
Tarrant, Ala., Aug. 28-Sept. 11.
Home address, Taylor University, Upland, Ind.

PARKER, J. R.

Woodiawn, Ky., July 10-24.
Sergeant, Ky., July 25-August 14.
Berry, Ky., August 15-28.
Address, Wilmore, Ky.

POLLOCK, G. S. AND WIFE.

Eldorado, Ill., August 4-14.
Home address, Wilmore, Ky.

POLLITT, S. H.

Open date, June 20-July 31.
Orangeburg, N. Y., August 1-14.
Wagoner's Chapel, Ky., August 15-25.

POWELL, JAMES L.

Open date, July 17-27.
Corydon, Ky., July 31-Aug. 14.
Open date, Aug. 15-28.

QUINN, IMOGENE.

Oregon, Wis., July 29-August 14.
Home address, 909 N. Tuxedo St., Indianapolis, Ind.

REIDMON, J. E. AND ADA

South Bend, Ind., July 8-24.
California, Ky., August 19-28.
Home address, 2391 North Holmes Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.

REED, LAWRENCE.

Sebring, Ohio, July 15-24.
Albany, N. Y., July 31-Aug. 14.
Richland, N. Y., August 21-Sept. 5.
Cumberland, Md., Aug. 10-20.
Home address, Damascus, Ohio.

REES, PAUL S.

Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, July 8-17.
Ferndale, Wash., July 22-31.
New Albany, Ind., August 4-14.
Cherry Grove, Ind., August 15-19.
Home address, Pasadena, Calif.

REID, JAMES V.

Lake Arthur, La., July 7-17.
Jackson, Tenn., July 19-Aug. 3.
Magnolia, Ark., August 4-14.
Home address, 2912 Meadowbrook Drive, Fort Worth, Tex.

RICE, LEWIS J. AND EYTHE

Dayton, Ohio, July 28-Aug. 21.
Jamestown, Ohio, Aug. 24-Sept. 11.

ROOD, PERRY R.
West Liberty, Ohio, Dec. 2-Jan. 7.
Home address, 2838 Overlook Drive,
Huntington, W. Va.

SANFORD, E. L. AND WIFE.
Covington, Ky., July 12-28.
Bethel Ridge, Ky., July 31-Aug. 21.
Home address, 202 Engman Ave., Lexington, Ky.

SHANK, MR. AND MRS. R. A.
Mt. Olivet, Ky., July 15-25.
Romeo, Mich., August 5-14.

ST. CLAIR, FRED
Portland, Oregon, July 31-August 28.
Permanent address, 2444 Bowditch St., Berkeley, Calif.

SHARROW, C. E. AND NEVA B.
Robinson, Ill., July 17-August 1.
Manville, Ill., June 26-July 10.
Home address, Wren, Ohio.

SHELIAMER, E. E.
Inkerman, Ont., July 14-24.
Owasso, Mich., Aug. 4-14.
Wichita, Kan., Aug. 15-28.
Binghamton, N. Y., Sept. 25-Oct. 9.
Allentown, Pa., Oct. 16-30.
Home address, 5419 Bushnell Way, Los Angeles, Calif.

SWEETEN, H. W.
Freeport, N. Y., July 14-24.
Toronto, O., July 28-Aug. 8.

TEETS, ODA B.
Jollytown, Pa., July 10-24.
Odessa, W. Va., July 31-Aug. 14.
Mt. Nebo, W. Va., Aug. 17-31.
Home address, Aurora, W. Va.

THOMAS, JOHN.
Kittanning, Pa., July 14-24.
Moers, N. Y., August 1-14.
Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 16-28.
Clarksburg, Ont., Can., Sept. 9-18.
Permanent address, Wilmore, Ky.

VANDALI, N. B.
Bentleyville, Pa., July 7-17.
Pittman, N. J., July 20-Aug. 2.
Findlay, Ohio, Aug. 11-21.
Mt. Lookout, Ohio, Aug. 25-Sept. 4.

VAYHINGER, M.
Letts, Ind., July 29-August 7.
Bryantsburg, Ind., Aug. 19-28.
Nashville, Ind., July 6-17.

WATTS, E. E.
Fayette, Ia., June 28-July 17.
Open date, July 19-Aug. 27.
Home address, Sandy Lake, Pa.

WHITAKER, J. H.
Tioga, Texas, July 8-17.
Van Alstyne, Tex., July 22-31.
Open date, Aug. 5-17.
Iredell, Tex., Aug. 19-30.
Home address, Box 385, Arlington, Tex.

WHITEHURST, R. F.
New York District Nazarene Church,
June and July.
Magnolia, Ark., August 4-14.
Home address, Wilmore, Ky.

WILLIAMS, L. E.
Open date, July.
Robinson, Maine, August 5-15.
Open date, Aug. 19-Sept. 4.
Home address, Wilmore, Ky.

WIMBERLY, C. F.
Greenville, Ky., July 20-30.
Wilmore, Ky., July 31-Aug. 5.
Eldorado, Ill., Aug. 5-15.
Ringgold, La., August 16-28.

WINLAND, C. B.
Wentworth, Ohio, July 13-27.
Peoli, Ohio, Aug. 14-28.

WIREMAN, C. L.
Wilson Run, Ohio, July 29-Aug. 14.
Rising Sun, Ind., Sept. 7-18.
Burlington, Ky., Sept. 20-Oct. 2.
Home address, 726 Scott St., Covington, Ky.

YOUNG, ALVIN.
Vermontville, N. Y., July 14-24.
Denton, Md., July 25-31.
Portsmouth, R. I., Aug. 1-7.
Glassboro, N. J., Aug. 11-21.

YOUNG, R. A.
Open dates, July 7-31.
Bowersville, O., Aug. 4-14.
Waynesboro, Miss., Aug. 19-28.

CAMP MEETING CALENDAR.

ALABAMA.
Hartselle, Ala., camp August 4-14. Workers: Revs. O. H. Callis, Joseph Owen and Harry Blackburn. L. O. Waldsmith, Sec. Dothan, Ala., camp, July 15-24. Workers: Rev. K. H. Bird, evangelist; J. F. Peacock, singer. Address, Rev. W. H. Newton, Dothan, Ala., Rt. 5.
Birmingham, Ala., camp, July 20-31. Workers: Rollo D. Wise, Mrs. Golden L. Young. Write W. H. Hillman.

GEORGIA.
Indian Springs, Ga., camp, Aug. 11-21. Workers: Rev. H. C. Morrison, Rev. J. L. Brasher, Rev. C. W. Butler. Young People's worker, Mrs. Jere M. Glenn. Director of music, Mr. Hamp Sewell. Address R. F. Burdew, Macon, Ga.
Salem City, Ga., camp, August 11-21. Workers: Revs. Chas. A. Gibson, Rev. O. J. Nease. Song leader, Rev. Frank Watkins. Musicians, Mrs. Frank Watkins. Special singers, The Vaughn Radio Quartette. W. W. McCard. President.

IDaho.
Nampa, Idaho, camp August 4-14. Workers: Rev. Bud Robinson, Revs. Jarrette and Del Aycock and daughter. For information write A. E. Sanner, Chair, 14th and 12th, Nampa, Idaho.

ILLINOIS.
Murphysboro, Ill., camp, July 21-31. Workers: Rev. Elmer McKay, Rev. Wm. Z. Horbury. Address, A. A. Chamberlain, Sec., Carverville, Ill.

Hillcrest, Ill., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Rev. E. E. Montgomery, Rev. T. P. Roberts. Prof. and Mrs. R. A. Shank in charge of singing and children. Chas. F. Benz, Sec., Kampsville, Ill.

Charleston, Ill., camp, Aug. 19-28. Workers: Rev. T. H. Gaddis and the Moser Sisters assisted by district preachers. Rev. Chas. Slater will represent missions. Correspond with Rev. W. M. Hall, Charleston, Ill.

Cambria, Ill., camp, August 4-14. Workers: Rev. Allie Erick and wife, Mrs. Emma Erick. Rev. Elmer McKay, Rev. J. R. Moore in charge of the singing. The Girls' Quartette, of Taylor University will also be in attendance. Dr. John Paul will be with us for at least one service. A. C. Wolfe, Sec., Carverville, Ill., Route 1.

Bonnie, Ill., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Revs. Allie and Emma Erick, Rev. Elmer McKay, Prof. John E. Moore. W. T. Lawson, Cor. Sec., Benton, Ill.
Greenville, Ill., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Bishop Joseph F. Berry, Rev. Guy Wilson. The Prestons, song leaders. A. B. Plog, Cor. Sec.

Normal, Ill., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Rev. Harry W. Morrow, Rev. C. B. Fugett, Rev. Harold Johnson, song leader. Rev. Della B. Stretch, children's worker. Address Mrs. Bertha C. Ashbrook, Sec., 45 West Allen St., Springfield, Ill.

Sherman, Ill., camp, August 4-14. Workers: Rev. A. L. Whitcomb, Rev. J. E. Hewson. Haldor Lillenas and wife, song leaders; Mrs. Della B. Stretch, children's worker. For information write Mrs. Julia Short Hayes, 2217 East Capitol Ave., Springfield, Ill.

Eldorado, Ill., camp, August 4-14. Workers: Dr. C. F. Wimberly, Dr. Andrew Johnson. Rev. G. S. Pollock and wife in charge of the music. J. M. Keasler, Sec., Omaha, Ill.

INDIANA.
Ramsey, Ind., August 12-21. Workers: M. G. Stanley, J. B. Keifel; Mrs. J. C. Gray, children's worker; C. C. Rinebarger and wife, leaders song. Address Geo. F. Pinaire, Sec., Ramsey, Ind.

Bryantsburg, Ind., camp, August 19-28. Workers: Rev. Monroe Vayhinger, The Payne Evangelistic Party, consisting of Sister Fannie Payne, Miss Bertha Pultz, Miss Ruth Cooper. For information write Chas. E. Cleek, Madison, Ind., Rt. 9.

Oakland City, Ind., camp, August 26-Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. J. B. McBride, Rev. Ira Aykers, Rev. C. C. Rinebarger and wife, song evangelists. Write Mrs. Warwick Yeager, Sec., 518 S. Hall St., Princeton, Ind.

Letts, Ind., camp, July 29-August 7. Workers: M. Vayhinger, Dwight M. Peffley, song evangelist. Mrs. Lena Holcomb, pianist. Address, Rev. Arthur McQueen, Pres., Westport, Ind.

New Albany, Ind., Silver Heights, Aug. 4-14. Workers: Revs. Virgil L. Moore and Raymond Browning, Paul S. Rees. Mrs. T. B. Tabbutt, children's worker. Male Quartet of Asbury College in charge of music. Address E. B. McPheeters, Sec. 212 Cherry St., New Albany, Ind.

Cleveland, Ind., camp, August 26-Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. John T. Hatfield, Rev. G. Arnold Hodgkin, Rev. J. C. Brillhart, song evangelist. Rev. C. C. Mourer, special musician. For full particulars write Rev. D. E. Snow, Sec., 123 W. 24th St., Anderson, Ind.

KANSAS.
Wichita, Kan., camp, Aug. 18-28. Workers: Rev. Chas. H. Babcock, Rev. E. E. Shihamer, Rev. T. M. Anderson, Mrs. Ernest D. Bartlett, Harold Chapman and Prof. B. D. Sutton and wife. Address W. R. Cain, Sec., 515 So. Vine St., Wichita, Kan.

KENTUCKY.
Aliceton, Ky., camp, July 21-31. Workers: Rev. Virgil L. Moore, Rev. G. B. Traynor, Rev. B. W. Winters, song leader, Mrs. P. C. Gillispie, pianist. Mr. H. L. Mt. Hope, Ky., camp, July 21-31. Workers: Rev. Allie Erick and wife, Mrs. Emma Erick, evangelists. Address Robt. Helphinstine, Goddard, Ky.

Carthage, Ky., camp, Aug. 19-28. Workers: Rev. Freddie Thomas, J. E. and Ada Redmon. For information address, J. R. Moore, Pres., California, Ky., R.F.D. No. 1. Rawlings, Sec., Bradford, Ky.

Acton, Ky., camp, August 12-20. Workers: Rev. Andrew Johnson. Prof. W. C. Kinsey and wife, song leaders. E. E. Eads, Sec.

Wilmore, Ky., camp, July 28-Aug. 7. Workers: Rev. C. F. Wimberly, Rev. J. L. Brasher and H. S. Blackburn, Rev. H. C. Morrison, Pres., will preach also. Address C. A. Lovejoy, Sec., Wilmore, Ky.

Callis Grove, Ky., camp, August 5-14. Workers: Rev. Fielding L. Howard, J. C. Huyett, song leader, Miss Ethel Sager, pianist, I. H. Driskell, Sec., Milton, Ky., Route 3.

MAINE.
Robinson, Maine, camp, August 5-14. Workers: Evangelist Life E. Williams, assisted by local help. For information write Rev. P. F. Tronson, Pres., and Sec., 341 Union St., St. Johns, N. B., Can.

MARYLAND.
North East, Md., camp, August 5-14. Workers: Rev. J. B. Chapman, Rev. B. F. Neely and daughters. Miss Christine Williams, children's worker. Information from Iams, N. S. Nielson, Bus. Mgr., 212 Parker Ave., Collingdale, Pa.

MASSACHUSETTS.
Douglas, Mass., camp, July 15-25. Workers: Rev. H. Babcock, Mrs. Jane Reed, young people's worker. C. C. Rinebarger, musical director. Rev. N. J. Kelson, Sec., Blue Hills Ave., Mattapa, Mass.

MICHIGAN.
Hope Center, Mich., camp, July 31-Aug. 14. Workers: James Miller, Paul White.

MISSISSIPPI.
Frost Bridge, Miss., camp, August 19-28. Workers: Rev. B. Young and other helpers. Address Mrs. J. E. Moody, Sec., Waynesboro, Miss.

MISSOURI.
Ava, Mo., camp, August 25-Sept. 4. Workers: A. P. Breneman and wife, C. E. Woodson and local assistants. For information write Mrs. Mattie Wallace, Ava, Mo., Route 1.

NEBRASKA.
Kearney, Neb., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Rev. E. O. Hobbs, Rev. Jarrette and Dell Aycock, Mrs. C. P. Turner. Address all communications to Mr. B. J. Patterson, Sec., Kearney, Neb.

NEW JERSEY.
Erma, N. J., camp, Sept. 9-18. Workers: Rev. C. B. Fugett, Rev. K. Hawley Jackson and wife. For information write Earl Woolson, Cape May, N. J., R.F.D. Glassboro, N. J., camp, August 11-21. Workers: Rev. H. J. Olsen, R. G. Flexon, Alvin Young, Write M. Gallagher, 40 Myrtle Ave., Pitman, N. J.

21. Workers: Rev. Bona Fleming, Rev. John Fleming, Mr. Burl P. Sparks, singer. Fletcher Grove, Delanco, N. J., camp, August 27-Sept. 5. Workers: Rev. Theo. Elsner, Mrs. Theo. Elsner, Rev. Richard G. Flexon, Jr.

NEW YORK.
Moers, N. Y., camp, July 30-Aug. 14. Workers: Joseph H. Smith, J. F. Knapp, John and Emily Thomas, Zahniser, John Scobie, Tillie Albright, Arthur Goul, song leader. Address Kenneth F. Fee, Sec., Moers, N. Y.

NORTH CAROLINA.
Connelly Springs, N. C., camp, August 7-14. Workers: Rev. Joseph H. Smith, The Greensboro Bible School Band and Quartette and others. For information address Box 200, Connelly Springs, N. C.

OHIO.
Unipolis, Ohio, camp, August 25-Sept. 4. Workers: L. S. Hoover, Rev. Herb Walker. Prof. N. B. Vandall has charge of hte music. Address Geo. W. Watman, Unipolis, Ohio.

Napoleon, Ohio, camp, July 31-August 14. Workers: Miss Celia M. Bradshaw and Miss Helena Saneholtz. For information address Rev. R. W. Wolfe, Napoleon, Ohio.

Dayton, Ohio, camp, July 21-31. Workers: Rev. Jesse W. McCotter and others. Rev. and Mrs. A. H. Johnston in charge of music. Address Rev. J. L. Kennett, 33 North Kilmer St., Dayton, Ohio.

Mendon, Ohio, camp, July 14-24. Workers: Rev. W. L. Surbrook, W. C. Kinsey and wife. Write W. A. Barber, Sec., Mendon, Ohio, Route 1.

Ludlow Falls, Ohio, camp, July 28-Aug. 7. Workers: Rev. H. M. Metger, Rev. J. A. Beery, Rev. S. M. Bidsand, Rev. J. I. Moore, song leader. Miss Edith Scher, children's worker. Roy Harshbarger, Sec., West Milton, Ohio.

Portage, Ohio, camp, August 18-28. Workers: Geo. B. Kulp and John E. Hewson. Song leader, Dwight M. Peffley. Address E. L. Day, Sec.

Findlay, Ohio, camp, August 11-21. Workers: C. H. Stalker, B. H. Haynie, Mrs. Aura Smith, W. B. Vandall, singer. Miss Florine Ewing, pianist. G. W. Egbert, Sec.

Warsaw, Ohio, camp, July 21-31. Workers: Rev. W. W. Loveless and Dr. W. H. McLaughlin. Song leaders, Rev. Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Chatfield. For information write Adah Shepard, Sec., Warsaw, Ohio.

St. Vernon, Ohio, (Camp Sychar), camp, August 4-14. Workers: Rev. C. M. Dunaway, Rev. John Owen, Rev. E. Hilton Post. Song leader, Prof. W. B. Yates; Young people's worker, Miss Anna McChie. Children's workers, Miss May Gorsuch and Miss Olive Tanner. Young people's song leader, Rev. W. L. Mullet. Address Rev. E. E. Shiltz, Sec., Shadyside, Ohio.

Toronto, (Hollow Rock) Ohio, July 28-August 7. Workers: C. W. Ruth, C. H. Babcock, Howard Sweeten. Song leader, Prof. Kenneth Wells and wife. Young People's and Children's meeting leader, Mrs. Sadie Mishey. Address Roy L. Householder, Sec., Toronto, Ohio.

Sebring, Ohio, camp, July 14-28. Workers: Rev. John H. Smith, Rev. H. C. Morrison, Rev. C. W. Ruth, Rev. T. M. Anderson, Rev. Lawrence Reed. Kenneth Wells and wife in charge of singing. Mrs. Jos. Smith and Miss Janie Bradford in charge of young people. Miss Ruth in charge of children's meetings. Address W. L. Murphy, Sebring, Ohio.

Circleville, Ohio, camp, August 26-Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. T. P. Roberts, Rev. Howard W. Sweeten, Rev. Charles L. Slator, Rev. E. Keaton, Cor. Sec., 451 N. High St., Chillicothe, Ohio.

Columbus, Ohio, camp, July 28-Aug. 7. Workers: Rev. Floyd N. Neese, Rev. Raymond Browning, Rev. F. M. Messenger, Rev. J. G. Morrison, Rev. and Mrs. B. D. Sutton, gospel singer, Chas. A. Gibson, Vaughn Radio Quartette. Write Rev. Orval J. Nease, 146 King Ave., Columbus, Ohio.

Eaton Rapids, Mich., Camp, July 29-Write Asbury Mills, Sec., Hope, Mich.
August 7. Workers: Dr. John Paul, Rev. Will Huff, Dr. S. E. T. Beville. Rev. L. H. Nixon in charge of music, with H. Morse Skinner at the piano. Mrs. Blanche Francis in charge of young people's work. For information write Miss Fern C. Wheeler, Sec., Charlotte, Mich.

Gladwin, Mich., camp, July 21-31. Workers: Rev. Frank Arthur, Miss Jean Reid, song leader. For information write E. F. Bailey, Sec., Gladwin, Mich.
Owosso, Mich., camp, August 5-14. Workers: Rev. Geo. B. Kulp, Rev. E. E. Shihamer, Rev. W. L. Sturk, Sec., 1506 Bennett Ave., Flint, Mich.

Romeo, Mich., camp, August 5-14. Workers: George Bennard, Rev. C. W. Butler, Rev. Will Huff, and Rev. S. H. Turbeville. Mrs. W. I. Francis, Young People's worker. Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Shank, song leaders. L. Laquish, Sec., R. F. D. 5, Pontiac, Mich.

Maybe, Mich., camp, August 11-21. Workers: Miss Edna Banning, J. C. Walker and wife, the Douglas Brothers, (Scotch duettists). Mrs. Clara Palmer, Sec., 544 Thompson St., Ann Arbor, Mich.

MISSISSIPPI.
Frost Bridge, Miss., camp, August 19-28. Workers: Rev. B. Young and other helpers. Address Mrs. J. E. Moody, Sec., Waynesboro, Miss.

MISSOURI.
Ava, Mo., camp, August 25-Sept. 4. Workers: A. P. Breneman and wife, C. E. Woodson and local assistants. For information write Mrs. Mattie Wallace, Ava, Mo., Route 1.

NEBRASKA.
Kearney, Neb., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Rev. E. O. Hobbs, Rev. Jarrette and Dell Aycock, Mrs. C. P. Turner. Address all communications to Mr. B. J. Patterson, Sec., Kearney, Neb.

NEW JERSEY.
Erma, N. J., camp, Sept. 9-18. Workers: Rev. C. B. Fugett, Rev. K. Hawley Jackson and wife. For information write Earl Woolson, Cape May, N. J., R.F.D. Glassboro, N. J., camp, August 11-21.

Workers: Rev. H. J. Olsen, R. G. Flexon, Alvin Young, Write M. Gallagher, 40 Myrtle Ave., Pitman, N. J.

21. Workers: Rev. Bona Fleming, Rev. John Fleming, Mr. Burl P. Sparks, singer. Fletcher Grove, Delanco, N. J., camp, August 27-Sept. 5. Workers: Rev. Theo. Elsner, Mrs. Theo. Elsner, Rev. Richard G. Flexon, Jr.

NEW YORK.
Moers, N. Y., camp, July 30-Aug. 14. Workers: Joseph H. Smith, J. F. Knapp, John and Emily Thomas, Zahniser, John Scobie, Tillie Albright, Arthur Goul, song leader. Address Kenneth F. Fee, Sec., Moers, N. Y.

NORTH CAROLINA.
Connelly Springs, N. C., camp, August 7-14. Workers: Rev. Joseph H. Smith, The Greensboro Bible School Band and Quartette and others. For information address Box 200, Connelly Springs, N. C.

OHIO.
Unipolis, Ohio, camp, August 25-Sept. 4. Workers: L. S. Hoover, Rev. Herb Walker. Prof. N. B. Vandall has charge of hte music. Address Geo. W. Watman, Unipolis, Ohio.

Napoleon, Ohio, camp, July 31-August 14. Workers: Miss Celia M. Bradshaw and Miss Helena Saneholtz. For information address Rev. R. W. Wolfe, Napoleon, Ohio.

Dayton, Ohio, camp, July 21-31. Workers: Rev. Jesse W. McCotter and others. Rev. and Mrs. A. H. Johnston in charge of music. Address Rev. J. L. Kennett, 33 North Kilmer St., Dayton, Ohio.

Mendon, Ohio, camp, July 14-24. Workers: Rev. W. L. Surbrook, W. C. Kinsey and wife. Write W. A. Barber, Sec., Mendon, Ohio, Route 1.

Ludlow Falls, Ohio, camp, July 28-Aug. 7. Workers: Rev. H. M. Metger, Rev. J. A. Beery, Rev. S. M. Bidsand, Rev. J. I. Moore, song leader. Miss Edith Scher, children's worker. Roy Harshbarger, Sec., West Milton, Ohio.

Portage, Ohio, camp, August 18-28. Workers: Geo. B. Kulp and John E. Hewson. Song leader, Dwight M. Peffley. Address E. L. Day, Sec.

Findlay, Ohio, camp, August 11-21. Workers: C. H. Stalker, B. H. Haynie, Mrs. Aura Smith, W. B. Vandall, singer. Miss Florine Ewing, pianist. G. W. Egbert, Sec.

Warsaw, Ohio, camp, July 21-31. Workers: Rev. W. W. Loveless and Dr. W. H. McLaughlin. Song leaders, Rev. Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Chatfield. For information write Adah Shepard, Sec., Warsaw, Ohio.

St. Vernon, Ohio, (Camp Sychar), camp, August 4-14. Workers: Rev. C. M. Dunaway, Rev. John Owen, Rev. E. Hilton Post. Song leader, Prof. W. B. Yates; Young people's worker, Miss Anna McChie. Children's workers, Miss May Gorsuch and Miss Olive Tanner. Young people's song leader, Rev. W. L. Mullet. Address Rev. E. E. Shiltz, Sec., Shadyside, Ohio.

Toronto, (Hollow Rock) Ohio, July 28-August 7. Workers: C. W. Ruth, C. H. Babcock, Howard Sweeten. Song leader, Prof. Kenneth Wells and wife. Young People's and Children's meeting leader, Mrs. Sadie Mishey. Address Roy L. Householder, Sec., Toronto, Ohio.

Sebring, Ohio, camp, July 14-28. Workers: Rev. John H. Smith, Rev. H. C. Morrison, Rev. C. W. Ruth, Rev. T. M. Anderson, Rev. Lawrence Reed. Kenneth Wells and wife in charge of singing. Mrs. Jos. Smith and Miss Janie Bradford in charge of young people. Miss Ruth in charge of children's meetings. Address W. L. Murphy, Sebring, Ohio.

Circleville, Ohio, camp, August 26-Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. T. P. Roberts, Rev. Howard W. Sweeten, Rev. Charles L. Slator, Rev. E. Keaton, Cor. Sec., 451 N. High St., Chillicothe, Ohio.

Columbus, Ohio, camp, July 28-Aug. 7. Workers: Rev. Floyd N. Neese, Rev. Raymond Browning, Rev. F. M. Messenger, Rev. J. G. Morrison, Rev. and Mrs. B. D. Sutton, gospel singer, Chas. A. Gibson, Vaughn Radio Quartette. Write Rev. Orval J. Nease, 146 King Ave., Columbus, Ohio.

OKLAHOMA.
Blackwell, Okla., camp, August 25-Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. H. Babcock, Rev. Geo. Bennard and Willard Davis. Address Mrs. A. L. Wright, Sec., 307 E. College, Blackwell, Okla.

May, Okla., camp, July 21-31. No special help has been called but God's true ones are invited from everywhere. For information write L. B. Pile, Sec., May, Okla.

PENNSYLVANIA.
Carmichaels, Pa., camp, July 21-31. Workers: Rev. C. W. Butler, Rev. Haldor and Bertha Lillenas. Write Rev. L. O. Douds, Sec., Carmichaels, Pa.

Kricktown, Pa., camp, July 22-31. Workers: Rev. Theodore Blsner and wife, Rev. Clifford E. Keys and wife, Rev. C. D. Dreher. John Aten, Sec., 1102 Douglass St., Reading, Pa.

Conneautville, Pa., camp, August 5-14. Workers: Rev. J. L. Brasher, Thomas Henderson, Rev. F. A. Arthur, Prof. Kenneth Wells and wife, Mrs. Merton Steelman and son, song leader. Address C. A. Lockwood, Cor. Sec., 2740 Louisiana Ave. (Darmont) Pittsburgh, Pa.

Bentleyville, Pa., camp, July 14-24. Workers: Dr. John Paul, Dr. Will Huff, Rev. Chas. M. Dunaway, Andy Dalbow, and Prof. N. B. Vandall. For information write Rev. J. W. Schrader, Sec., West Elizabeth, Pa., Box 720.

Clinton, Pa., camp, August 5-14. Workers: Rev. R. G. Flexon, Rev. David Wilson, Rev. J. N. Hampe, Rev. Geo. Cole, song leader. Mrs. Edith Clawson, children's meetings. Write Rev. L. W. King, Clinton, Pa.

Hughesville, Pa., camp, July 21-July 31. Workers: Rev. Raymond E. Doble, Rev. Claude A. Roane. Song leaders, Mrs. Esther Williamson, assisted by Miss Alma Bitman. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Best in charge of the music. Address Rev. S. P. Elroyd, Centre Hall, Pa.

RHODE ISLAND.
Portsmouth, R. I., camp, July 29-Aug. 7. Workers: Chas. H. Stalker, Winfred R. Cox, Alvin Young. For information address, Andrew B. Starbuck, Pres., Newport, R. I.

SOUTH CAROLINA.
Epworth, S. C., camp, August 19-28. Workers: Dr. E. P. Taylor, Dr. John Paul and others. Address Rev. W. P. B. Kinard, Epworth, S. C.

SOUTH DAKOTA.
Wilmot, S. D., camp, July 5-17. Workers: Rev. Frank R. Arthur, Rev. and Mrs. H. T. Nyhus, singers. James Cameron, clerk, Wilmot, S. D.

TENNESSEE.
Greenville, Tenn., camp, Sept. 1-11. Workers: Rev. C. M. Dunaway, Miss Ruth Harris in charge of music. Address Mrs. Flora Willis, care Mrs. C. A. Vann, Greenville, Tenn.

Dyer, Tenn., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Dr. A. O. Henricks, Rev. S. W. Strickland. Miss Ruth Harris, song leader. Joe T. Hall, Sec., Dyer, Tenn.

TEXAS.
Sanco, Texas, camp, July 20-31. Rev. W. E. Hawkins, Jr., evangelist.

Noonday, Texas, camp, August 10-21. Workers: J. B. McBride, C. P. Gossett, song leader. F. E. Dickard, Sec., Hallsville, Tex.

Scottsville, Tex., camp, July 28-Aug. 7. Workers: Rev. Fred Ross, Rev. Warren C. McIntyre, Singer, C. P. Gossett. B. Wynne, Sec., Marshall, Tex.

Atlanta, Tex., camp, August 12-21. Workers: Dr. R. T. Williams, The Latham Sisters, pianist and leaders of song. Mary E. Perdue, Sec.

Waco, Texas, camp, July 29-August 7. Workers: Rev. Harry S. Allen. For information address Jno. W. Beresford, Sec., Waco, Texas.

VIRGINIA.
Onemo, Va., camp, July 24-31. Workers: Joseph Price, H. A. Handy, Sue Thomas, Alton Lively. W. C. Diggs, Pres.

Spotsylvania, Va., camp, August 19-29. Workers: Rev. Fred Canaday, Rev. W. L. King, Rev. Bessie B. Larkin, Rev. W. L. King and Mrs. G. B. King in charge of young people's work. Mrs. Merton Steelman

THE FIGHT IS ON

The fight against sin and for holiness.

The fight against impurity and for purity.

The fight against worldliness in the church and for a holy people.

The fight against immodest dress and for a modest womanhood.

The fight against those who would destroy the Bible, and for the Word.

The fight against Sabbath desecration and for Sabbath observance.

The fight against lawlessness, and for obedience to the law.

The fight against trashy literature and for wholesome literature.

The fight against indifference and for a revival.

THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD IS IN THIS GREAT BATTLE FOR RIGHTEOUSNESS.

and the only way for us to make the fight effective in your community is for you to help us by placing it into every home possible. You will be pleased to know that you can send THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD from now until January 1, 1928, for only 50c, and if we may have your co-operation, you will be instrumental in making this fight effective in your community.

Allow us to suggest that you tell every one you come in contact with what THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD is fighting for, and tell them of this special introductory offer. Also speak to one or more financially able and liberal persons, tell them what you are trying to do, and ask for their co-operation in putting the paper into a number of homes. Then, too, you will find a number of people who tithe who will be glad to invest a little tithe money in a fight of this kind.

Use the blanks below and send in your list within the next few days, so as to give the subscribers the benefit of the full 25 weeks.

Pentecostal Publishing Company, Louisville, Kentucky.

Enclosed find $..... for which please send The Pentecostal Herald weekly from now until January, 1928, to the following:

Name	Name
Address	Address
Name	Name
Address	Address
Name	Name
Address	Address
Name	Name
Address	Address
Name	Name
Address	Address

PENTECOSTAL HERALD

Dr. H. C. Morrison, Editor
Mrs. H. C. Morrison, Associate Editor

Louisville, Ky., Wednesday, July 20, 1927.
Entered at Louisville, Ky., Postoffice as Second Class Matter.

$1.50 Per Year.
Vol. 39, No. 29.

CLEAVE TO THAT WHICH IS GOOD.

By The Editor.

WE are hearing quite a bit said these days against religious controversy and discussion of doctrine. We have a class of lean theologians and shallow philosophers who apparently seek to divorce the Lord Jesus Christ from the Bible, from his own teachings, from prophecy and the Gospels and claim to hold him up as a splendid example and a worthy object of admiration, in fact, as a very good teacher for the times in which he lived. They prate much about Jesus, but would have us give all our time to raising money to carry forward certain programs of the church and entirely leave out the whole matter of the inspiration of the Scriptures and the importance of a sound, doctrinal basis for our Christian faith.

* * * *

The truth is we have come upon times when every true minister of the Gospel ought to be a doctrinal preacher. He ought to instruct the people under his ministry very carefully in all the fundamental doctrines of salvation. That embraces a very wide range of Bible truth with reference to the sinfulness of man, the necessity of repentance, saving faith, sanctifying grace, the witness, indwelling and empowering of the Holy Ghost, and all of the obligations to God and humanity that rest upon the true disciples of our Lord Jesus Christ.

* * * *

There are certain great fundamental truths such as the inspiration of the Scriptures, the Virgin Birth of our Lord, his Godhead, life, teachings, sacrificial death, resurrection and the all-sufficient atonement he has made for a sinful race that belong to the Gospel. These facts cannot be divorced from the Gospel without taking from it essential truth and saving power. The sinfulness of the race, the need of repentance, the faith that brings regenerating power, the pure heart, the righteous life—these are great truths revealed in the Bible and experienced among men. They must be preached, the people must be taught these truths; they must be preached without apology, without fear, with great earnestness, with positive emphasis and with a constancy that will not permit the people to forget them or to come to believe that they can have salvation here or hereafter without believing and practicing these great essentials of salvation.

* * * *

Your destructive critic is very eager that we shall drop controversy while he is constantly instilling false and skeptical doctrines into the minds and hearts of the people. He regrets so much that we should be diverting the attention of the people from pulling their pocketbook at every call, erecting expensive buildings and gathering up high salaries for various and sundry secretaries and wasting our time on insisting that the Bible is God's inspired Word, that man is a lost and ruined sinner and that Jesus Christ is his only and all-sufficient Saviour. These men have much to say of their own piety and devotion, but if you want to see how they look and act when they are genuinely indignant, preach an earnest, evangelistic sermon, get an altar filled with penitent souls, let them cry out for the mercy of God, trust in Jesus and rise up with shining faces and happy praises to God for salvation. Your average destructive critic has no more love for the preacher of this character and no more delight in seeing these manifestations of grace than the scribes and pharisees had for the Lord Jesus when he was on earth and the people who leaped and shouted because of his healing power. God help us to be faithful in contending for the truth and, if possible, discourage the modern liberalists in the church with a great revival of religion and the salvation of a multitude of souls. Of course, our main objective is not their torment, but it is the best answer that we can give them and nothing can possibly be more disagreeable to them than the manifestation of God's power in the salvation of souls.

Open Letter to the Bootleggers of Chicago.

My Dear Fellowmen:—

I am coming to you in the spirit of friendship with a few suggestions for your thoughtful consideration. I am an old man, and for almost fifty years have been a preacher of the gospel.

I am now on my home run for heaven and eternal life. If I know my heart my greatest desire is to help any and every one I can to saving faith in the Lord Jesus.

Preaching the gospel in many countries, among all classes, and conditions of people, I have seen many men who, for years, have been abandoned to sin of all kinds, powerfully converted, transformed, and become the happy children of God, full of praise, peace, and glad witnesses to the saving power of the Lord Jesus for the service of their fellow-beings.

I am writing this letter with the humble hope that it may touch some heart and win some soul to the merciful Redeemer who has so compassionately saved me. There is one thing certain; all who are now living will soon be dead. Life is short, at longest; it is, of all things, the most uncertain, but we are immortal; this body is not myself, but the residence I occupy, and will fall into decay, but the ego, my real self, will live forever.

The fact of immortality gives great seriousness to life. This is a transient state in which we prepare for an eternal state. In time we build character for eternity; death does not change our character; it changes our place of residence and fixes our destiny.

The whole liquor traffic, from first to last, is injurious to mankind. The history of intoxicating drink is a history of drunkenness, crime, disease, waste, poverty, suffering and death. When you furnish a man with strong drink you endanger his life; he is likely to be shot down at any moment and crushed to death, or he is liable to go home in an intoxicated state and murder his family. This thing has happened thousands of times.

Does it really pay to be a bootlegger? Is the harm done to your fellowmen worth the money? Can you get any real happiness out of such business? Are you building character that will stand the test of the death-bed, judgment day, and eternity? Do you want your sons to follow in your footsteps, violate the law of the land, work the ruin of their fellow-beings, and go into eternity with a character built up out of acts of sheer selfishness?

Come, now, fellow-men, would it not be better every way, to quit this whole business, get a good job, live honestly, seek salvation in Christ, become a blessing to the church and society? Some of you have found that money may buy fine clothing, delicious food, beautiful ornaments, and expensive cars, but it cannot buy peace of mind, rest of conscience, or joy of soul.

Life is hard, anxious, uncertain and unhappy with any man who knows himself to be violating the laws of his country, and to be taking money from his fellow-beings for that which will do them no good, but harm, may take their lives and destroy their souls. It was Jesus who said: "What shall it profit a man, if he gain the whole world, and lose his own soul?" This is a question for you to take home to your heart for serious meditation.

Your mother, your wife, your children, can never say with pride, "my son," "my husband," "my father," "was a bootlegger." Forsake the degrading business for your community, your family, your soul, and for Jesus' sake. You are facing death. You will not say on your death-bed, "I am glad that I have been a bootlegger, violating the laws of my country, destroying my fellow-beings, and sinning against God who created me, and the Christ who died for me." Forsake the whole business and come to Christ for salvation, and spend eternity in heaven.

With a heart that loves all men, and an earnest prayer for you, I am,

Your fellow-being,
H. C. MORRISON.

A Devout Soul Translated.

We were shocked and grieved beyond any words to express when we heard of the sudden death of Rev. R. S. Stewart, pastor of the Methodist Church in Ashburn, Ga., and greatly beloved by his people. I was in the far west at the time of his death and knew nothing of it until I reached home a few days ago. He was a man of rare gifts, strong convictions, and genuine devotion to Christ. He was a gifted and fruitful minister of the gospel. He leaves a devoted wife and three children. He was killed suddenly in an automobile accident. A more extended notice will appear in THE HERALD soon.

NOT TO BE USED WITHOUT COPYRIGHT PERMISSION

OF ASBURY THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

SOME QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Rev. G. W. Ridout, D.D., Corresponding Editor.

HE Bible is full of questions. Some one has put a few of these questions thus:

1. "To whom belongest thou?" (1 Sam. 30:13).
2. "What meanest thou?"

(Jonah 1:6).

3. "What doest thou?" (1 Kings 19:9).
4. "What wilt thou?" (Mark 10:51).
5. "Whom seekest thou?" (John 20:15).
6. "Where dwellest thou?" (John 1:38).
7. "Whither goest thou?" (Zech. 2:2).

We shall seek in this week's article to answer a variety of questions touching Christian experience and the holy life.

1. The Sin Question. In what sense are believers responsible for indwelling sin and its removal?

Let John Fletcher speak on this subject: He says: "Indwelling sin is not only the sting of death, but the very hell of hells. . . . By so much of indwelling sin we carry about us, so much of indwelling hell; so much of the sting which pierces the damned; so much of the spiritual fire which will burn up the wicked; so much of the never dying worm which will prey upon them; so much of the dreadful instrument which will rack them; so much Satan's image which will frighten them; so much of the characteristics by which the devil's children shall be distinguished from the children of God; so much of the black marks whereby the goats shall be separated from the sheep. To plead therefore for the continuance of indwelling sin is no better than to plead for keeping in your hearts one of the sharpest stings of death and one of the hottest coals of hellfire."

From this we conclude that the believer is responsible for indwelling sin in so far as he has the light concerning the provision God has made for its removal. Whosoever refuses to appropriate the precious blood to obtain cleansing from all sin will eventually come into condemnation.

2. What need one do who, through sudden yielding to temptation, loses the blessing?

Says Hannah Whitall Smith: "A sudden failure is no reason for being discouraged, and giving up all as lost. Neither is the integrity of our doctrine touched by it. We are not preaching a state, but a walk. The highway of holiness is not a place, but a way. Sanctification is not a thing to be picked up at a certain stage of our experience, and forever after possessed; but it is a life to be lived day by day, and hour by hour. We may for a moment turn aside from a path; but the path is not obliterated by our wandering, and can be instantly regained. In this life of and walk of faith there may be momentary failures that, although very sad, add greatly to this mistake! It is a snare of Satan to keep the pure one, who has made a misstep, from going back again to the loftiest heights of salvation."

3. In what sense is Holiness a Grace?

The Grace of Holiness is indicated in Heb. 12:28. In verse 14 occurs the exhortation, "Follow peace with all men, and holiness, without which no man shall see the Lord"; then in verse 28, "Let us have grace, whereby we may serve God acceptably with reverence and godly fear."

The Grace of Holiness makes us acceptable unto God in a very special sense.

In Exodus 28:36, we read the High Priest was to wear, upon his forehead, a plate of pure gold with "Holiness to the Lord" engraved upon it. "And it shall be always upon his forehead that they may be accepted before the Lord."

Holiness makes God's people acceptable to him from the fact that it (1) denotes obedience to his command "Be ye holy." (2) Conformity to his will. (3) Likeness to God. Holiness begets and develops reverence of spirit and service. It is no part of holiness to treat holy things and holy experiences with common place familiarity. There is a holy life, that sacred awe, which worships and adores God in all his attributes. The practice of the presence of God makes life in all its bearings a sacred thing.

Holiness maintains a godly fear, and holds it at all times, under all circumstances, and in all places. This godly fear keeps the soul in check and in behavior. Nothing is said or done which displeases God. The life is lived with a single eye to the glory of God. A woman at one of our meetings said she wanted something which would keep her in the summer time—so many lose religion then. Holiness keeps the soul in summer as well as winter and makes December as pleasant as May.

4. What is the relation of Holiness to Temptation, and how is it sustained consistently with the infirmities of the flesh?

One writer has put it this way:

1. "Holiness or perfect love does not consist in the destruction of any of the faculties of the human mind: but does consist in the removal of carnality or hereditary depravity from the same."

2. "To be holy is not to be free from temptation but it is to be given power over temptation."

3. "Holiness is freedom from sin; but not necessarily from infirmity."

4. "Holiness gives continual joy, but not freedom from sorrow."

5. "Holiness puts the mind in heaven; but it deals with earthly things from that standpoint."

6. "Holiness is perfection in love, but not in degree."

7. "Holiness or perfect love is from, and of God only, and is his highest gift to man in substitution of man's highest gift to God; man's own finite self."

8. "Holiness may not be the preservation of the saint from the environments and weakness of the flesh but it is the preservation of the presence of Christ in the flesh."

5. To what extent are we to trust our Emotions in holy living? Are our feelings safe guides in Christian experience?

Bishop William Taylor was a great teacher and writer. He wrote many books and his teachings were always sound as well as unctuous. Let us quote a few lines of his on the subject of Feelings and Faith:

"Our feelings are liable to a thousand changes. It may be from causes within and without over which we have no control, but our loyalty to God should not change; our confidence in God should not change; all the feeling I ask in order to the maintenance of a perfect faith in Jesus is the consciousness of my perfect submission to his will. Maintaining the fact of my entire consecration to God, I have only to trust him—believingly accept his perfected provision in Christ. 'Who is among you that feareth the Lord, that obeyeth the voice of his servant that walketh in'—providential—darkness and hath no light? Let him trust in the name of the Lord and stay upon his God."

"I make my own feelings the test as to the exciting character of an illustration, and my common sense, guided by the light of the Holy Spirit the test of its oppositeness. Whatever wakes me up, stirs my emotions, makes me laugh or cry, I set down as a thing of power. I am hard to move, and when anything excites my soul's emotion, I conclude that it will move almost any person."

6. Is it possible to live up to the standard of the Sermon on the Mount?

I think the remarkable case of DeRenty, of France, answers this question in the affirmative. Professor N. Wray writing on this holy man said:

"The life of De Renty was a replica of the Saviour who, 'anointed with the Holy Ghost, went about doing good and healing all who were oppressed by the Devil.' His testimony was: 'Methinks my soul is all charity, and I am not able to express with what ardor and strange expansion my heart is renewed in the divine life of my Saviour, burning in love to all mankind.' He said to an intimate friend, 'I am ready to serve all men, not excepting one, and to lay down my life for anyone.' Animated by this spirit he promoted every good work of a public nature and became the author of innumerable private ministries. 'At Paris,' says his biographer, 'there was no undertaking tending to the honor of God or good of men, of which he was not either the author, or promoter, or finisher, and very often all these together. He was at all the meetings of piety; and of many the very soul.' He corresponded with persons in all parts of the land concerning works of charity and gave advice regarding hospitals, seminaries of religion, and associations to promote the work of saving souls. 'Wherever he came,' wrote one from the province of Dijon, 'he hath wonderfully advanced all works of piety. We may truly say, that his days were filled with the fulness of God. Nor do we ever believe he lost one minute of time, in which he did not either speak or act something for his service.'"

7. Why stress the Second Blessing as a definite cleansing from sin? May not the heart be gradually sanctified?

Dr. Adam Clarke says: "I have been twenty-three years a traveling preacher, and have been acquainted with thousands of Christians during that time, . . . and I never to my knowledge met with a single instance where God both justified and sanctified at the same time." John Wesley affirms: "We do not know a single instance, in any place, of a person receiving in one and the same moment, remission of sins, the abiding witness of the Spirit, and a new and clean heart." Dr. F. G. Hibbard declares it is not simply "growing in grace," it is distinctly a "second blessing," . . . "promised, prayed for, waited for, believed for, received instantaneously, by all classes of humble believers." Dr. Geo. Smith, F.S.A., says: "As we obtain pardon by simple faith in Jesus, so we must obtain purity. We are no more able to work out the latter in our hearts than the former."

The sainted Fletcher said of this: "Confounding what God has divided, and dividing what the God of Truth has joined, are the two capital stratagems of the god of error. The first he has chiefly used to eclipse or darken the doctrine of Christian perfection." Dr. Steele affirms that "Depraved inclination in the justified soul is not outgrown by spiritual development, but killed by the power of the Holy Ghost, through a specific act of faith." Dr. F. G. Hibbard says: "There is no gradual growing out of sin." "The work is complete at the first, and instantaneous as to time, performed by the Holy Ghost just at the moment when the burdened soul has faith to be made every whit whole." Mr. Wesley, speaking of the idea that we are cleansed when we are justified, says: "It does immense harm; it entirely blocks up the way to further change."

Seven Deadly Fallacies.

Dr. Ridout has conferred a real favor on all pastors and busy Christian workers in getting out in such convenient form a series of neat booklets packed with just the right information as to the harmful fallacies of these seven blighting "isms" which are causing so much havoc among many well-meaning people. These booklets should have the widest possible circulation. It would do much toward steadying faith in the old-time religion.

F. A. WHITTLESEY.

Pastor Methodist Episcopal Church, Severance, Kan.

MODERN APOSTLES OF FAITH.

Rev. C. F. Wimberly, D.D.

CHAPTER XX.

ALVIN C. YORK.

man standing over six feet, modest as a country girl, unsophisticated as a child—Alvin C. York—a miracle. We can see it in no other light—a miracle—but a paradox—a miracle in military achievement—the astonishment of great military experts. Here was a lad living the drab life amid the mountain solitudes; no exemplification of genius in any direction, except his unerring marksmanship and bravery among the mountain toughs where he associated before he was saved. His was a life schooled to the highest efficiency in woodcraft, and sowing "wild oats" across the creek, or across the Kentucky border; a big, ruddy, muscular, sandy-haired product of nature in her simplest form. But in his steady blue eyes and nervous organism there was no such word as fear. He could look you straight in the eye without a tremor. In this untutored lad there slumbered all the elements of greatness—of manhood, par excellence; in him were powers undeveloped in the simplest things of life; powers capable of ruling a Senate or commanding a division of soldiers; and with as much sangfroid as Napoleon ever manifested when at the crest of his military career.

Had Alvin York lived in the days of Romance and Chivalry, he could have easily outshone in thrilling adventure Robin Hood, the Black Knight, Captain Kidd, Wild Bill, Buffalo Bill, or the James Boys. The glamor of such a character in these days comes out in the full blaze of the camera, the Associated Press and leaves no room for the imagination of the thrill writer. But the elements are all there; doubtless, if the world rocks on for another century as it is now, some fiction writer will give the youth of that age, not only a "best seller", but a hair-raising yarn, with our modest hero of Pall Mall featured in the center of the stage. But now the swimming girl, the base ball idol, the foot-ball star overshadows the glory of a man whom General Pershing and Foch declared the "greatest hero of the World War."

Alvin York, the crack marksman, fearless mountain rounder, got religion, then later professed the blessing of sanctification. Herein is the heart of the story—the explanation of a feat which has astonished the whole world. He was not a volunteer, but rather a "conscientious pacifist." He knew little of what it was all about, and had no enmity against the Germans, and had no desire to kill any of them. But he consented to go after much prayer, and after much explanation on the part of an officer, got light on the righteousness of the cause for which he was ready to give his life in defense.

But there is some inside history to this man's calmness and unflinching courage, when the amazing test came. Behind a log altar, in the far away solitudes of his forest home, Alvin York got the assurance that the German bullets would not touch him; this assurance he no more doubted than he doubted that he was in the war. There was no lost motion in the critical moments when the fraction of a second counted big in the issue. When the bushes were torn into shreds all around him by machine gun fire, his mind had the same poise, as when he picked off a squirrel's head from the tallest tree, or clipped off the head of a turkey running at fifty yards away, with rifle or pistol. "A thousand shall fall at thy side, and ten thousand at thy right hand, but it shall not come nigh thee," was literally exemplified with Alvin York on that tragic, critical hour,—October 8, in the woods of Chateau Thierry.

We shall not undertake to retell that marvelous feat, which has been told and retold so many times since the first story appeared in the Saturday Evening Post, by some war correspondent, which at the time, was believed to be an effort to "put over" a thriller on the public. But the whole story had been known and verified "over there" by the authorities before we knew of it; but as a little interlude in this sketch, we will say this quiet boy, with scarcely any training of military technique, single-handed, and alone, during a fusillade of machine gun fire, killed twenty-five German soldiers, while they were all trying to kill him, and so terrible was his marksmanship which was steadily picking them off, that the German officer offered to surrender, if he would stop. Whereupon, the officer blew his whistle and ordered all his men to disarm and surrender, as he thought, to a large number of American soldiers. But after all had been disarmed, and the officer placed between York and his men, the humiliating fact became known that the trick had been turned by one man.

When the capture was complete, and one hundred and thirty-two Germans were marching in front of him, shielded by the German major, who too well knew that if one false move was made, the death-dealing marksman was ready to get him, seven of York's comrades joined him. Like the men of Naphtali, after the battle was won, they joined in the chase. When the prisoners were marched in, and it became known how it was done, an American officer said to him: "York, in the name of God, how did you do it?" "I didn't do it," he replied, with a sincerity that was beyond question. "God did it through me." There you are; that is Alvin C. York, and he gave God all the glory which, within itself, places him in a class of heroes—all things considered—sui generis. History tells us of none like him. Then, like a first magnitude meteor, bursting in the mid-night sky, the simple-hearted, God-fearing boy from Pall Mall was world-wide famous.

Everybody wanted to see the man who had done it. They put him into a basket attached to a motorcycle and hurried him about among the high-ups of all the Allied Armies. "I was scared green," he said, as they bounced him over the shell-torn roads, ninety miles an hour. Everywhere great Generals pinned upon him the highest honor medals. A gigantic reception awaited him in New York; the Stock Exchange suspended business to do him honor. The United States Senate declared an intermission to do him deference, such as was scarcely ever accorded to any private citizen in its history. Everywhere he was banqueted, and eulogies pronounced by America's greatest men.

Through it all, he seemed a bit dazed, as if not able to understand what it all meant. He was anxious to look at the big men, close-up, as they were to look at him. To him they were of far more importance than all the fuss being made over him. Few men can stand the limelight of public applause; but the hero worshipping of presidents, statesmen, diplomats, generalissimos, and the screaming of the crowds changed Alvin York—not in the least. At no time did he lose his poise; he knew himself to be an ignorant boy from the Tennessee mountains, who trusted and believed that God was the One to whom all honor was due, and to this position he remained steadfast.

But contact with the great and learned taught him one supreme lesson; it brought to him keenly his own limitations. He saw that men of large affairs were men of culture and self-confidence, the resultant of mental training. Out of all the hubbub was born a consuming passion in the heart of this wonderful young man; yes, wonderful—no other word will suffice. View him from any angle, and there will be seen basic factors of which the Washingtons, Lincolns, Gladstones, and Wesleys are made. "God will take care of you if you'll trust him," he was often heard to say; and these words were not hackneyed phrases gathered from Sunday school and sermons. To Alvin York, they were as absolute as the faith of Abraham when he offered Isaac.

But another amazing thing happened; a series of things happened fast. Every offer imaginable was made him to cash in on his popularity. A side arms company, a machine gun company, at once made him princely offers in cash to get his endorsement; vaudeville offered him as much as a thousand dollars a week, for an unlimited contract. A movie man begged him for three days to accept $50,000 a day, for three days, perhaps to shoot some Germans before the camera; but he had killed all the Germans he wanted to, and would not accept. Alvin York could have been a millionaire within twelve months from the time he landed in America. But he wanted nothing for himself; he refused to commercialize his fame. God had helped him, guided him, and protected him in a veritable hailstorm of lead; now he would not sell out to gratify a thrill-crazed public for gain—even a fortune.

But his heart was fired with a great passion; not for himself, but for the underprivileged children of the mountains. As he had come in contact with masters in all walks of life, he compared himself, and the comparison was odious. He wanted money, but it must come from sources that his consecrated heart could approve. He had placed himself on the altar for God, and the "altar sanctified the gift." He did not propose to touch or remove the gift from the altar for personal ends.

Now we are face to face with some stubborn facts, and we are appalled at the situation, when we remember that offers were made to turn the cornucopia up-side down upon him. This same Alvin York—the greatest hero of the greatest war of history; this hero extraordinary, whom the world wanted to make rich over night, has gone up and down the land trying to raise money for his school. He has been the guest of multi-millionaires; has been entertained and applauded, but in eight long years, working at this unselfish task, he has succeeded in raising a little over $10,000. The dear man is carrying a burden that is crushing him, actually struggling to meet the Saturday pay roll of his workmen.

We regard the struggle of Alvin York for his righteous cause—when we examine the proposition from every angle—a monumental travesty of American patriotism; it is an indictment on the conscience of a so-called Christian nation, so glaring and inexcusable, that we should hang our heads in shame. But quietly and modestly, he "carries on"—holding on to his trust in God. But he has no doubt begun to see what many preachers are unable to see, that this world is not dominated by the Spirit of God; that the world is under the influence of a great Usurper Prince, who is the god of this world: a being who seeks to defeat, discourage, and destroy every plan and program for the glory of God.

York has been entertained in homes of men who could have given him a check for $100,000, and not missed the amount from their bank account; but none of them has done it. O the shame of it all! Every devout man and woman in the land should hold this saintly character before the Throne, that his faith may not fail him; a faith that has been the marvel of all who know about Alvin C. York. God bless him, and give him the desire of his heart.

See announcements of two great camp meetings on page 11 of this issue.

NOT TO BE USED WITHOUT COPYRIGHT PERMISSION

OF ASBURY THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

CHRIST A HERO.

Rev. Len G. Broughton, D. D.

Text: "And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me." John 12:32.

THERE is not a nation on earth today whether it be pagan or papal or Christian, that will not acknowledge that this man Jesus Christ, whom we worship as Christians, was the world's greatest teacher, and that he gave his life for the accomplishment of the world's greatest redemption.

I talked recently with a returned missionary from Africa, a man spending his life in Africa among the savages; and among these savages the word of Jesus had gradually found its way, until, when he began to speak to them about Jesus Christ as the world's Saviour, they would clap their hands, and then say in the atmosphere of the hand clapping: "Oh, you are talking about a world hero!" And it was from that missionary's word to me that I got the thought of my text and my message to you today. The world's hero; not an Anglo-Saxon hero, not an American hero, not an English hero, or German, but a world hero: "And I," said Jesus Christ, "if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto me."

The uplifted Christ is a monument before which the entire world, civilized and uncivilized alike, bows its head. It may have its views about his religion, it may have its views about his life, it may have its views about his Bible, it may have its views about his church, it may have its views about his people; but about him, as history records the triumphs of his movements in the lives of men and women, it bows its head to him.

Christ, the world's greatest hero: Why was he the world's greatest hero? I mention three things rapidly as explaining my question.

First of all, he is the world's greatest hero because he of all men that ever lived defies explanation. On one occasion when I lived in London I had the honor which came to me by virtue of my friendship to another, of being present at a dinner that was given to Lord Roberts, the Field Marshall at that time of the British army. He had just returned from a year's inspection of his Majesty's forces in India, during which time he had studied carefully the people of that far eastern world. This dinner was given upon his return to England. It was a great affair. I happened to the good fortune of being permitted, since I was an American and the only American present, to talk personally for a few minutes to Lord Roberts, and immediately upon my introduction to him as an American, he said, "Oh!"—and then he hesitated for a moment.

"What part of America are you from?"

I said, "From the South."

"Oh! You are a most happy man."

"Surely, my lord," I said.

"I wonder if you know what I am thinking about?"

"No," I said. "No American ever knows what an Englishman is thinking about!"

Receiving my remark good naturedly, he said: "I am thinking of the greatest military leader and exponent the world, in my judgment, has ever produced." Then rapidly he followed his word with the mention of the name of Stonewall Jackson. He said:

"Stonewall Jackson is studied by the great military masters of all the civilized world."

I said, "My lord, how do you explain that, in the light of the great military leaders that the world has produced; men like Charlemagne, Alexander the Great, Napoleon, and others?"

"The explanation is that Jackson was the one unexplained man of your great Civil War. No man was ever able to explain his movements, no man was ever able to explain the man, and it is the general who is inexplicable, who cannot be fore-foreprophesied nor afterwards described, who stands out as the greatest among the great in all military life. Of course," he continued, "Stonewall Jackson's history has never been written completely. I have read all that has ever been written; but there is not an historian who has ever attempted to write of Stonewall Jackson who has opened the secret that every military man has wanted somebody to open."

What can be said of Jackson in that regard can be a thousand times multiplied—yes, multiplied by infinity, by Jesus Christ. Where is there the man who can explain Jesus Christ? Oh, they try it! Our printing presses are today rapidly bringing out literature in which effort after effort by men of philosophy is being made to explain and interpret to the world the marvelous mystery of this one mystical man. There is not a one of them who can touch it. Read their stuff, and when you have read it, it is like so much chaff in the great literary world. It breaks down of itself. And every such attempt is a strained effort on the part of humanity to invade a secret that God never intended that the world should know about Jesus Christ, for he is the express image of God himself; and until the world is rolled up like a sheet and destroyed, and the new order of life is unfolded, we shall never know the explanation of Jesus Christ.

Who is ever going to explain to us satisfactorily his birth? Of course, there are those who say: "Of course he had a human father; that story of his conception by the Holy Ghost is but a fraud"; and when we ask them the reason for that statement, they say: "It is contrary to reason." Thus they set up reason as the infallible thing to follow in this intelligent age; while the more intelligent we get, the more assured are we of the utter fallibility of the human reason. We do not have to get out of our own home surroundings to find how limited is the human reason; for there is not a man of that class of philosophers who can save his life, though he may have passed through every university in the world and received doctor's degrees in botany and biology and physiology and everything else, who can tell you why one rose bush without being ever handled by the hand of man will grow out of the same dirt a red rose and a yellow rose at the same time. That always will be inexplicable. And I might go on and mention thousands of things just as simple, that occur in the every-day life of every man and woman of use, that are just as inexplicable, just as befuddling, as impossible of human understanding and satisfactory explanation.

Who can explain the miracles of Jesus? They say he was a psychologist, a mere hypnotist, therefore he could speak to the man with the withered arm and cause him to be healed by the power of hypnotism; and that he had the power of hypnotism to such an extent as to hold the man in his grip and to keep that arm so that it could be used all the time.

And then we bring them up to the grave of Lazarus, and ask: "How can you hypnotize a graveyard?" "That never happened," they say. "But the same men who tell everything else he did told us that. If that was false, what right have you to think they told the truth about anything?" And they say: "Oooom—"; and that is the end of that!

Beloved, the one thing that stands out with supreme importance in the history of Jesus Christ today is the fact that there is nobody who can explain him, and the more they try the more they explain themselves with their folly.

He is the world's greatest hero because he preached the one and only world's salvation.

When the great war was on in Europe, and I was still living in London, about three hundred and eighty of the men from my church had volunteered and gone over to France to fight for the preservation of liberty, and in the first day's battle one of my fellows was shot down—I say one; there were one hundred and eighty of the men from our church shot down in that first battle, but this one in particular I refer to; and a surgeon, also a member of my church, was by his side. All during the night the lad was calling to his surgeon to "Read it, read it!"; and he kept trying to get from him what he wanted read; but while his mind was clear, his powers of speech were almost paralyzed. Finally, taking a shot at it, the surgeon turned to the third chapter of John and read that sixteenth verse: "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." And the wounded man said, "That's it, that's it." And that is it, and it is not an American Gospel, it is not a Gentile Gospel, it is not a Gospel to any race or nation; it is a world Gospel, and it is the only Gospel that is world-wide.

Have you taken time to read the histories of the religions of the world? Go back to the oldest; trace them all through; read them; and there is not a religion on earth, save the religion of Jesus Christ, that is world-wide. They are racial and national, but the Gospel of Jesus Christ is world-wide in its scope; and almost at the very beginning of his earthly ministry, at least in the midst of it, he himself promulgated this great fact, that he had come to found a religion that would tower above all others, that would take in its sweep all the world and its nationalities and its races.

"And I, if I be lifted up," referring of course to his Cross, "will draw all men unto me." And in his last great commission, he told his disciples "to go into all the earth and preach the Gospel to every creature." It is world-wide. Go to India; you have a racial and a national religion. Go to Japan; you have a racial and national religion. Go to China; you have a racial and a national. Go anywhere you like, travel through the pages of all the history of humanity; go to Judaism—what have you? The religion of a race. Ali honor to the Jew as far as he deserves to be honored, as we honor every other man; but suppose we were not to invade the teaching of Judaism, what would the world have? Nothing, for salvation. The Gentile world is entirely left out of their program of salvation. It is this Christ who himself, as the embodiment of the Father, looked upon the race as having one tree from which it sprang, and regarded all mankind alike.

He is the world's greatest hero because of his great compassion. You will recall that a few years ago England, backed up by the United States, decreed that Hindenburg, along with others who were the promoters and prime factors in the great World War, must be apprehended and tried for their lives and put to death. On that one decree Lloyd George made his great campaign with success in England. And yet, in this short time, Hindenburg has come back as the ideal of Germany, and by the consent of England and America; and it is now understood that England had an understanding with Germany and America that Hindenburg would be very acceptable, as the one great outstanding figure who could restore order in Germany. Largely his come-back was by the vote of the women of Germany, and the women voted for him because he was so kind to their men, their husbands and their sons, in war. We thought exactly the opposite. It went on to say that much of his time while he had the German army was taken up in visiting hospitals and speaking words of comfort to lads who lay upon deathbeds, and through his great horde of secretaries he kept the folks at home informed of their sons and husbands in hospitals. I do not know—I am telling what I read. I do know you have to hunt somewhere for the reason of his come-back, and that is one, at least.

And what made Mr. Lincoln, the Civil War president, have his great popularity, not only in the North but also in the South? Why is it when Lincoln's picture is displayed anywhere in South or North there is a responsive chord? Why? Because it is known that of all men he was the most compassionate. No mother ever went to him in despair who did not receive from him a great tender hand. Just the other day I read a story that told of how a lad was upon his deathbed in a hospital in Washington, and Abraham Lincoln sat by and held his hand. He was one of our Southern lads, and just before his last moments he looked up through tear-filled eyes, and said: "Mr. President, I am thinking of mother." And he said, "My boy, as far as possible let me take your mother's place." He took his hand in his own, and sitting there with tears in his eyes, he watched him until he breathed his last, and then immediately communicated with his mother, and brought mother and dead boy together.

We talk of these acts of compassion of men—what are they in comparison with the great compassionate heart of Jesus, who not by human decree, not because he was seized upon by human hands—no, not that, for he himself said, "No man taketh my life from me; I lay it down of myself"; he refused to appeal to a power of earth to save him. Why? He had come to this world for that moment, with a human heart and a human body, possessed by a God of heaven, but nevertheless capable of the physical sufferings and sorrows of the human flesh—suffered and compassionately died, that in that atoning death he might pay the ransom for a world lost and groping its way to hell.

Authenticity and Inspiration of the Scriptures.

REV. Z. T. JOHNSON, A.M.

CHAPTER I.

IS DIVINE REVELATION POSSIBLE?

THE Christian world is athrob with alarm listening to the destructive guns of Higher Criticism! A quickened ear can easily discern that the cannonading is focussed on that fortress which is the center of all past, present, and future realities—the Bible, that peerless Book which experience and tradition have evidenced as being God's most permanent way of communicating with man, upon whom has ever rested the primal stamp of divine likeness. It is the "Thus saith the Lord," the ipse dixit of the All-knowing, All-present, Eternal, All-powerful Deity against which the ignorant of spiritual verities are hurling their poisonous arrows and prostrating bombs.

Christendom is agonizing. "It is time for the Lord to work, for the Modernists would make void his law." Those of the orthodox faith are appalled at the boldness of the attack—the fact that it is directed against God himself, and his Record; yea more—the liberalists are denying the fact of divine creation, the origin of man, the virgin birth of Christ, his deity, the resurrection, the miracles, the fact of a depraved nature, the need of a new birth, and the inspiration of the Scriptures and their revelation to man. The whole issue seems to be hinged upon the authenticity of the Bible. Many have turned aside from the old beaten paths of conservative theology, and are preaching "new ideas for a modern age." If men believe the old Book they cannot believe New Theology; if, like David, we "esteem all his precepts concerning all things to be right" we cannot cast aside his Word for a mere hypothesis; if we accept it as the origin of our religion, and the guide of our lives we must have faith in its inspiration. It is a fact that men who believe in its divine origin, and preach it as a revealed truth, are hard to divert to rationalism or higher criticism. Those today who are having revivals, getting the people saved and sanctified, building up the kingdom of God in its spiritual interests, and who are living lives that are consistent with their profession, are those who believe this Book, stand by its truths as revealed by God himself, and practice its precepts in their relationships to their fellowmen. As a result of new theology the revival fires are dying out; the faith of the people is being shattered; and the country is rapidly drifting into materialistic infidelity.

It is important, therefore, that we "find" ourselves relative to our attitude toward the Scriptures, and begin to make a definite, determined fight for our faith. Some are saying that the Bible is able to defend itself without our assistance, and that the best thing to do is to leave God to fight its battles. They are comforted as they seem to hear a voice in word and spirit like unto Jehovah's. "Let the heathen rage and the people imagine a vain thing! Let the kings of the earth set themselves, and the rulers take counsel together, against the Lord, and Word of God saying; Let us break their bands asunder, and cast away their cords from us! I the Lord hold them in derision: I can but laugh at their fury. I will speak unto them in wrath and vex them in their sore displeasure by all the plagues that are written in the last volume of my Holy Book, unless they accept my testimonies, take 'the little book' and eat it up, though it be bitter to the belly."

It is a fact that God will defend his truth, but he counts days by the thousand years, and he urges man to be his human instrument of defense. He is depending upon the love and zeal of his people to defend the Word against the false teachings and preachings of those who would tear the Holy Scriptures into shreds and destroy its power. Let us, therefore, study the Bible in its relations to some of the vital questions that deal with man and his welfare, and if possible, lay a foundation upon which to base our faith, so that every storm of criticism and unbelief will pass over and leave us as undisturbed as the granite cliffs that continually resist the dashing waves of the turbulent sea.

Man is not a mere machine; he is a being with moral capabilities and responsibilities. There has not been a time in the ages of history that have gone by, but that man has realized this moral instinct. He may have gone into the depths of sin and degradation, but he has never gone so far down that there was no tug upon his heart and nature to live a better and nobler life. His moral self has ever cried out for pre-eminence; and has resulted in a desire on his part for a revelation from one who might help him keep that moral self in supremacy. This is illustrated in the sacrifices of Abel; in the cryings of the children of Israel; in the eager acceptance of the mystical religions from the East that poured into Palestine and the Roman Empire just before the time of Christ; in the searchings of such men as Augustine during the Dark Ages; in the mighty turning of the people under the leadership of Martin Luther during the Reformation; in the hungry, surging masses who gathered at five o'clock in the mornings to hear the messages of John Wesley; and in the soul-thirsty multitudes today who hang upon the words of true men of God, and eagerly come to a place of prayer for the needs of their souls. Men want to know God. Is he able to reveal himself to such?

If men have the desire for a Divine revelation, that desire within itself is proof of the fact that he has a capacity to receive that revelation. What would that capacity embrace? If we were to say the mind, surely there is no one who would say that man is mentally unfit to interpret the message of God. Professor Edmun, of Columbia University, in his book, Human Traits, said that the thing that differentiates man from other animals is his peculiar reasoning power. James, in his briefer psychology, states practically the same thing. If man, then, stands out pre-eminently the greatest animal because of his great intellect, and his power therein entailed, it stands to reason that he is capacitated to receive and assimilate any truth that a Higher Power might want to convey to him. If we were to say the moral or spiritual nature is embraced in that capacity to receive a revelation, every thinking man would have to admit that it must be so; because the moral instinct is the base of this longing of man for the revelation and interpretation of himself by the One who knows not sin, but around whom the angels continually cry, "Holy, holy, holy is the Lord God of Hosts." What can we do then, but hasten to the conclusion that the man whose soul cries out for God is capacitated to receive, not only the truth of God, but God himself?

The need of man also speaks for a revelation of God to the human race. The irrevocable law of sin and death had said that, "the soul that sinneth, it shall die." Men have defied, or disregarded that law, and have placed themselves in a state of darkness from which it is impossible to extricate themselves. Sin has become a powerful monster that has taken possession of the souls of men, and stifling the cries of the moral nature has led them into the depths of misery and shame. There is no place where its power has not been felt. From the early dawn of history, with the transgression of Adam and Eve, it has come down through them to all the race, and has left a trail of murder, debauchery, wreck and ruin. But, one might say, "Man has a will-power all his own, and whenever

(Continued on page 9)

The Christian and His Ballot.

REV. L. L. PICKETT.

NO man can separate himself from his daily life. Christianity must control the thinking and acting of the Christian. Jesus said, "Ye are the light of the world." He also said, "Ye are the salt of the earth." The world must be lighted and the earth must be salted. Both the light and the salt must proceed from the Christian. If the Christian is like the world how can he be its light? If he is like the world how can he be its salt. The Christian character must reveal the Christ. It is therefore impossible for the child of God to commend his profession to men unless the whole life is dominated by the spirit of Jesus. We remember those words of Paul, "I beseech you, brethren, that you present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy acceptable unto God." Rom. 12:1. He also bids us, "Abhor that which is evil; cleave to that which is good." 12:9. In his epistle to the Colossians, the Apostle says, "Whatsoever ye do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus." Col. 3:17. This is a very thorough demand. It leaves no phase of life untouched. In every action, in every work, we are to have in mind our allegiance to Jesus Christ. To the Corinthians he said, "Whether therefore ye eat or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God." Many more passages of similar import might be given; but these are perhaps all-sufficient.

Now how can I, a member of the church, a professed follower of Jesus Christ, cast my ballot without reference to the glory of God? I must be as absolutely Christian at the ballot box as at the prayer meeting. As consecrated on election day, as in the revival. Too many people say, "Oh, religion is one thing, politics is another." This position is taken without consulting the scriptures as given, or the Christian ideal.

If I leave my religion at home when I go to the polls, it will evanesce in my absence. I will not be able to find it on my return. If I profess religion on Sunday morning, and vote for liquor and gambling on Tuesday the world can truly label me by my ballot rather than by my profession. Men will put me on the level of the bootlegger and the gambler rather than on the level of the missionary and the evangelist. Many church members at the polls on election day undo the influence of the year's church profession. When I help to put a wet man in office, my dry professions are over-balanced and fly away.

There is a nation-wide movement, fostered by the liquor interests and Roman Catholic politicians to bring to the front in 1928

AL SMITH FOR PRESIDENT.

Tammany and the corrupt politicians of New York, Chicago, and other rotten centers are determined if possible to foist this man upon our nation for the exalted office of the Presidency. Not one good reason can be given why he should be made the nation's choice. A thousand unanswerable reasons may be easily given why he should not be made President. For our present purposes, two or three only of these reasons may be named.

(1) To begin with, he is a perfectly pliant tool of the liquor interests. He was raised in the slums of New York city, and politically the smell of the slums is yet upon him. Morally, he has never been fumigated. The whole atmosphere that surrounds him is permeated with the evil influences of the section in which he grew up. He is a friend of the saloons, a defender of the vicious influences begotten in the liquor strongholds. That he is bright, goes without saying. That he has a vast following is clearly manifest. That the drunkards, the gamblers, the midnight marauders, and the gunmen all favor his exaltation to high position is evident.

His alignment may be well established by one of his own sayings, when he declared, "I long to see the day when I can get my foot on the brass rail, and blow the foam off my mug of beer." This identifies him; it labels him; it gives him his political setting. It will naturally rally to his banner the saloon men, the bartenders, the rough-necks; the habitués of the harem; it also explains his action when he took the chair of Governor of the great state of New York, and at once set about repealing the state prohibition law, which had been enacted by his predecessor. In the repeal of the state prohibition law he proclaimed himself an enemy of the Eighteenth Amendment and our national Prohibition law. He showed himself a friend of booze, and an associate of the liquor forces. He thereby set his own standard, in harmony with the standard of the entire liquor fraternity. But the Bible tells us that "No drunkard shall inherit the kingdom of God." His anti-prohibition activities have made him the natural leader of the booze gang and the representative of all those forces that would restore the discredited liquor oligarchy.

Of his own free will he has identified himself with reactionaries and has chosen as his political equals the friends of the saloon and brewery. He is therefore naturally the candidate of "The Association against the Prohibition Amendment," and the willing tool of the booze interests. He cannot, therefore be the candidate of the lover of God, the adherent of the church, and the friend of humanity. Let it be distinctly known that Al Smith is the candidate of the "booze-histers" for the presidency of the United States.

(2) A Roman Catholic. This is a protestant nation; Romanism has developed Mexico; Protestantism has produced the United States. Romanism is seen in the illiteracy of Poland and its uplifting and refining influence is exemplified, in Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines.

We are not unkind to Mexico and Cuba. Our sympathies are with them and we greatly desire their liberties and their progress. They are today handicapped by illiteracy and poverty because for three centuries or more they have had Roman Catholic leadership rather than Protestant. They have had the bishops, priests and nuns of Popery rather than the preachers, evangelists, and missionaries of Protestant Christianity. The burdens that oppress them have been piled upon their shoulders by the Roman higher-ups. The sore spots on our own nation's life have been produced by popery; the blight of New York and Chicago even as the blight of Peru and Panama are the products of the Papacy. Many are insisting that those of us who oppose Romanism and the papacy are bigots; that we are intolerant. They tell us that a man's religion is not a political question and that we had just as well support a Roman Catholic for president as a Protestant. This I emphatically deny. A Roman Catholic is a part of the political machine that is ruled by a demi-god on the banks of the Tiber. No Roman Catholic can be a freeman. He owes allegiance to a foreign power and therefore cannot be a clear-minded, hundred per cent American citizen. Al Smith has recently published his famous reply to Charles Marshall as to his Americanism. In this letter he strongly affirms that his religion (Roman Catholic) does not affect his politics. It is not very courteous or pleasant to dispute a man's word; but I venture to affirm that his religion does affect his politics, and one single incident in his career demonstrates my assertion. I refer to the fact that when the representative of the Pope and other Cardinals of Rome visited New York City the summer of last year, the Governor (Smith) and the Mayor (Walker) of New York took these foreigners, carried them to the city hall, a Government building, in which ten thrones had been placed upon a platform, and placing these foreigners on the thrones the governor, the mayor and sundry other high officials,

Dr. H. C. Morrison's Books

The Christ of the Gospels.....	$1.00
Remarkable Conversions.....	1.00
The Two Lawyers.....	Cloth 1.50
The Second Coming.....	Cloth 1.00
Prophecies Fulfilled and Ful- filling.....	Cloth 1.00
Romanism and Ruin.....	1.50
Baptism With The Holy Ghost.....	.15
Confessions of a Backslider.....	.25
Crossing the Deadline.....	.25
Pearl of Greatest Price.....	.10
Will a Man Rob God?.....	.10

Special $7.85.

Complete set, postpaid, $7.00.

PENTECOSTAL PUBLISHING CO.,
LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY.

kneel before them as though they were gods. Let the reader observe that this was not in a church, it was in a Government building. It was a plain acknowledgment that the Governor abandoned his authority as chief executive of the state, and that the mayor vacated his headship of the city, in favor of the representatives of a foreign political potentate. Such action was a clear admission not only of personal inferiority to these high moguls of Rome, but an abject political subservience to them. A man who will kneel to another by his own free action accepts the position of inferiority to the one before whom he kneels. As was once well said, "An American never turns his back upon a foe, and he kneels only to his God." All the high political pretensions of the Roman hierarchy were abjectly conceded by the Governor of New York when he fell at the feet of these representatives of the Roman potentate.

No Christian can lend the support of his ballot, of his citizenship to the high pretensions of "That man of Sin," who by his unbiblical teachings has blighted half the world, and the scope of races and nations. I could not as a lover of God, put the approval of my citizenship which is expressed in my ballot at the service of the liquor interests or the blighting power of the hierarchy of Rome. When I support a supporter and a tool of these vicious influences, I am abasing myself and my citizenship to the service of evil and not good. My ballot is myself. What it supports, I therefore endorse, and for the evils which it supports I make myself responsible.

Let every reader dedicate his ballot and his citizenship to the glory of God and the uplift of our civilization.

A few days ago I invested $1.50 in Dr. C. F. Wimberly's new book, "Messages for the Times." After thoroughly reading and digesting the contents of this book, I felt compelled to write you a few lines regarding this literary treasure. If people would only economize on a few gallons of gasoline or a few trips to some cheap picture show and buy this book, they would have something that would be really worth while in the home. If some of our modern preachers, who at the present time are ministering at cold altars, would lay aside, for the time being, their little sermonette, which, as a general thing, has no life or spirit to it, and would read to the congregation several chapters from this wonderful book, we are sure a great improvement would be noticed in the spiritual life of the congregation.

The author of this book, Dr. Wimberly, is not only a marvelous writer but he is a wonderful preacher. He gives abundant evidence of his having been called of the Lord to preach because his sermons are so sound and orthodox. What we started in to say by writing this article was that we earnestly hope that everyone who can possibly do so will buy and read this book. It will help you to live and will be of great assistance on your journey to the Good World.

J. L. O'BRYEN,
Hannibal, Mo.

REPORTS FROM SOUL WINNERS

NATIONAL HOLINESS CONVENTION.

I am pleased to report an early summer National Convention held at Ann Arbor, Mich. Everything considered, it was a remarkably blessed, successful, and significant Convention. Not great, but good and growing in interest, attendance, and results from the very start. The few faithful holiness folks here made every necessary provision and sacrifice to make it a success, and God owned their efforts. The splendid new Citadel of the Salvation Army finely located and nicely equipped was secured for the services. A good song leader and musical help had been provided by the local committee. Nearly half of the expenses had been pledged by subscriptions in advance.

The President was strongly reinforced by Rev. Homer L. Cox as colleague and co-worker. His ministry was richly blessed of God, and highly acceptable to the people. Pilgrims, Quakers, Nazarenes, Baptists, Methodists, Evangelicals, Mennonites, and others were in attendance; but one could not notice any difference as perfect unity prevailed. No sectarian issues were introduced, and the services all held closely to evangelistic lines. Holiness was the one theme—day and night, from start to finish—though backsliders were reclaimed, and sinners converted as well as believers sanctified wholly.

The School of the Prophets conducted each morning by the President proved of interest to preachers, evangelists, teachers and others and seemed one of the popular features of the Convention. All the expenses of the Convention both local and National were well cared for; and between two and three hundred dollars in cash and pledges were contributed to the "National" General Fund.

The people here had come to feel the need of more than a "Committee" such as had been guiding the Holiness work for a few years past. Before the close of the Convention they formed the Ann Arbor Holiness Association (interdenominational) in affiliation with the "National." They secured Rev. Nathaniel Harris of Detroit to serve as President and to superintend a regular work of holiness at this great University Center.

Joseph H. Smith, President.

A GOOD MEETING AMONG SPLENDID PEOPLE.

The very day the great Asbury Commencement closed we began preaching for Rev. C. A. Sweazy at Bryantsville, Ky. The people came, the truth went forth, the Spirit convicted, souls repented, trusted God and were saved. A number in the day services saw the privilege of the believer and embraced the doctrine of full salvation as a second, definite work of grace.

The singing was conducted by Bro. Sweazy, the pastor. The "Sunshine Choir" of the faithful juvenile band helped to gain the day. The Methodists at Bryantsville have the most beautiful brick church in all that country. Some leading citizens are members of it, among them are Mr. Hogan Ballard, former member of the Legislature, Green Bowling, prominent farmer and successful business man, Dr. Rose, cultured and skillful physician, M. O. Kennedy, fine and useful citizen and a number of consecrated, Christian women. They are loyal to their pastor and plan to make their church a great moral, social and spiritual center. They dined us out during the meeting and treated us to the fat of the land and the bounties of creation. May the Lord continue to bless these good people and add to their church such as are being saved.

We are now in a big revival at Sunfield, Mich., with the Methodists, United Brethren and Free Methodists. The greatest need of the whole country is an old-time, Bible revival of free and full salvation. Our slate is full for the summer and by the grace of God we mean to "make hay" while the sun shines. Pray that God may mightily use us in the camps. We go from here for a meeting with Rev. T. M. Hartson, near Portsmouth, Va.

Yours in Christ,

Andrew Johnson.

WINTER PARK, FLORIDA.

After a very successful meeting in the Presbyterian Church, Kissimmee, Fla., I learned again that if you erect an altar of prayer in the Presbyterian church people will pray through the same as in the Methodist Church. This was a glorious meeting; in some services there was not room for the seekers.

Now comes the call from the Everglades of Florida, a section that was opened to homesteaders some years ago and the people rushed in from all parts of the United States and squatted on that land. The public school followed, the bootleggers started their hellish business, but the church stayed out, some of the folks forgot God, the Sabbath, and the damnable cigaret had full sway.

I started the services in the schoolhouse, which had a seating capacity of some 250. What a hungry, neglected people! Some told me "No one cares for us." When the altar call was made they came and wept their way to God. No handshaking and joining the meeting-house only, but when they prayed through they went for the other one. We closed Sunday night with 47 on their knees weeping their hearts out to God.

I organized a young people's meeting of 42 to come together every Sunday night; appointed a secretary and leader who will pray, read the Scriptures and have singing; got ready for a big tent meeting and a choir to sing. What a change! Oh, the big-hearted people! The last Sunday we had an all-day meeting with dinner on the ground, with sweet fellowships and acquaintances renewed. These people live very humbly, in log houses without any window lights, only shutters to let the "blessed sunshin in." They have razor-back hogs, fish, garden stuff, and to be sure, chickens, no starving or freezing here! They catch alligators, some fourteen feet long. Some men told me they made as high as $500 last year selling the hides of these animals. Talk about a preacher's vacation! Go to the Everglades and preach to those neglected people, live in their humble homes where the mosquitoes "present their bills" long before daylight, and you will catch the spirit of what the great Book says, "Go out into the highways and hedges and compel them to come in." You will have more love for people in all stages of life and find that there are diamonds in the rough to be dug out.

Times are hard and money scarce, but man's extremity is God's opportunity. Men and women who, a year ago, had no time for God and salvation, are praying. The harvest is great and the laborers are few. Oh, Lord, send forth laborers. Amen!

A. D. Buck.

CONNEAUTVILLE CAMP.

Vacation time is here once more, and the people are rushing here and there, trying to crowd as much as possible into the few days of respite from their regular labor. They seek pleasure, health, education, or rest; but how few think of the needs of their spiritual life. Many Christians return from their vacation so lean in their souls that the church suffers. The holiness camps held in many places throughout the United States provide a place to spend a profitable vacation. People living in western New York, Pennsylvania, and Ohio will find Peniel Camp at Conneautville, Pa., an ideal place to spend ten days. Peniel Camp is only a few minutes walk from the borough of Conneautville. The Bessemer and Pennsylvania Railroads and a bus line make the place accessible from all directions. Telephone service and mail twice each day keep one in touch with home.

The camp ground and the surrounding country are very beautiful. The large ground always covered with grass and with trees planted in rows resembles a beautiful park. Surrounding the camp are large farms. On one side is a small wood of giant beeches, farther away is a larger woodland. Between these woods lie several acres of what appears to be the moraine of an ancient glacier—a miniature Switzerland. A short walk across another farm brings you to a creek and a "swimmin' hole" which many of the children enjoy. The owners of these farms kindly allow trespassing.

Four large buildings with furnished rooms, a men's dormitory, a woman's dormitory and a goodly number of cottages all having electric lights, and with water running to each building provide comfortable rest and shelter. A large dining hall where excellent food is served at reasonable prices, a large auditorium for the regular services, a rustic tabernacle for children and young people's meetings, and an office and waiting room complete the camp.

Not only is the body well cared for at Peniel, but the soul gets the uplift it needs from the messages of God's servants. There is also a splendid opportunity to help and receive help from the many people who gather there. The workers are always some of the best holiness evangelists and a full salvation is preached, sung and experienced. It is a time of joy and inspiration without fanaticism of any kind. God seems so near that the camp has become a veritable "Peniel" to those who attend each year.

This year the camp is from August 5 to August 14. The workers are Dr. J. L. Brasher, Rev. Thomas Henderson, Rev. Frank Arthur, Prof. and Mrs. Kenneth Wells, and Rev. Woodford Taylor (Missionary Day). The children and young people's meetings are in charge of Emma L. Valentine, Clarendon, Pa.

For information regarding rooms, cottages, camp literature, etc., write C. A. Lockwood, Pittsburgh, Pa., (Dormont).

Plan to come and enjoy the best vacation you ever had.

REPORT FROM E. O. RICE.

Some years ago when the writer was President of the Red Rock Camp Meeting Association at St. Paul, Minn., I published regular articles in the columns of The Pentecostal Herald giving full account of our evangelistic work in Minnesota and other places. After taking up the position as Business Manager and Treasurer of one of our holiness schools I stopped sending in reports of our work. Since resigning that work and having again taken up evangelistic work, reports of our labors will again appear in the columns of The Herald, giving from time to time the progress of the work as the Lord may see fit to bless. Praise his Name forever!

A providential opening for a genuine revival has opened for us at Duquoin, Ill. The Baptists at Duquoin built a new house of worship, costing about $180,000. So on account of moving into this beautiful new church, it left a fairly good church building vacant. Through some of Duquoin's business men and the Trustees of the Baptist Church, the writer secured the use of the old church building which is centrally located and having a seating space of 700 or more, it was all arranged in such a wonderful way, that we went forward step by step, until our faith reached out and we engaged Rev. J. L. Glascock, of Cincinnati, Ohio, as the evangelist, and Rev. M. V. Lewis of Wilmore, Ky., as the leader of song, so at this writing we are in the midst of a real genuine Holy Ghost revival. God is blessing on every hand so that we feel to praise God for his divine leadership. Praise him also for other places that have opened for meetings. God is giving us the desire of our hearts, and that is the salvation of the people. We solicit an interest in the prayers of The Herald family. My home address is Box 155, Up-land, Ind. E. O. Rice.

WESTERN MEETINGS.

The meeting at Goodland, Kan., was very good; some fine people were taken into the church. The pastor was called for another year with a raise in salary of $10 per week. We raised him a nice and needed love offering. He has a good people and they a splendid pastor.

Closed at Big Bow, Kan. We had a hard battle with a few gracious victories. Rev. Carl Hahn, the pastor, is a promising young man.

The next meeting was at Omaha, and was owned of God. The pastor and his good wife can never be excelled in taking care of the workers. May heaven bless them! Here we had some seekers and finders. A fine musician and his wife were surely brought to the Lord. He has been playing in a church for fifteen years; he is now a sanctified man. It did us good to hear him shout, and see him jump for joy after having been dead for so long.

I preached for Rev. Burkhart, of the colored church, Sabbath A. M. Two of his people were sanctified. Wife and I attended our Second Nazarene Church twice during our stay. On Sabbath, June 5, I preached for Rev. Borton in our Council Bluffs, Iowa, church. Both pastor and people claimed this was a great service. Rev. Borton is doing a great work there, and he has a live people.

We closed in Omaha, June 5, with a good altar service. We reached Portland, Oregon, June 9, and held a week-end meeting for Rev. E. J. Lord in our Second Nazarene Church. These were four great days. Some sought and found the Lord. Pastor and people treated us most graciously. The attendance and interest grew every meeting. The pastor and people wished it might have gone on, so do I. God is giving us victory everywhere. We are open for calls on the Coast after August 7th. Address us, care Rev. W. J. Branstetter, Crawfordville, Oregon.

In perfect love,

Rev. F. W. Cox.

HAMLIN, WEST VIRGINIA.

Our meeting is running at such high tide we could not close Sunday night but will continue a week longer. Bro. Lovejoy, business manager, of Asbury College, was with us Saturday and Sunday and was a great blessing to the meeting. He had the Sunday afternoon service especially for the business men of the town, and gave a wonderful talk with telling effect. On Sunday morning he gave a splendid address to the high school students here attending Summer School, which was much appreciated.

Also Misses Mofford and Quigg, of Asbury College, spent Sunday with us and rendered a great service with their harps and voices. Their music and personal efforts were a great help to our meeting. So far about 50 souls have been definitely saved. Had an altar full last night and the service continued till near midnight; one old lady was saved and several young ladies. One woman went home and prayed till 3:00 A. M. and was gloriously saved in her home. Had a great day service this morning. The Holy Spirit fell on us and many shouted; one was saved. We are looking, praying and believing for greater things yet from the Lord.

Yours for souls,

H. T. Heironimus.

SOUTH DAKOTA MEETINGS.

Since we last reported we have conducted four revival meetings, two for Bro. Marsh at Clair City, S. D., the first one at his country charge and the other one in town. And then we held two meetings with Bro. Lee Bates of Rosholt, S. D., also on both his charges in town and in the country. All these meetings were hard-fought battles. We had much rain, which made the roads impassable, at least part of the time. This made it hard for the people to get out, particularly in the country. Also the meetings came during the seeding time in the spring, and the farmers were very busy.

South Dakota has suffered with droughts the last few years and the people there welcomed the rain and the prospects at this time are good for a big crop this summer. They also have suffered with a spiritual drought and we did our best to pray and believe for "showers of blessing," upon them from the Father above. The saints were much refreshed in all these meetings, and we saw people pray through to victory to be saved, reclaimed and sanctified.

We enjoyed our labors with the South Dakota brethren. They are working in a hard field. It is even harder there to get the people to go to Church than it is in some other places; yet we had good crowds when the weather was good. We also found some choice saints there that deny themselves in order to spread the full Gospel.

Our next meeting is out from Poplar, Montana, in a tent campaign with Rev. Roy S. Swim. We wish to be remembered in prayer by all who read this.

Julius Miller, Evangelist.

THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD

Published Weekly by
Pentecostal Publishing Company
523 So. First St., Louisville, Kentucky.

OUR CONTRIBUTORS

Rev. G. Whitefield Simonson	Rev. Len G. Broughton	Rev. Bud Robinson
Rev. O. G. Minglehoff, D.D.	Rev. L. R. Akers, D.D.	Rev. Henry Ostrom
Rev. Richard W. Lewis, D.D.	Rev. G. W. Ridout, D.D.	Rev. C. M. Griffith
Rev. Andrew Johnson, D.D.	Rev. P. F. Asher, B.D.	Rev. J. H. Smith
Rev. C. F. Wimberly, D.D.	Rev. E. E. Shelhamer	Rev. C. W. Ruth
	Rev. J. B. Culpepper

Six Months in Advance$.75
One Year in Advance 1.50
Foreign Countries 2.00

CONCERNING SUBSCRIPTIONS

Subscription Discontinued When Time Is Out.
In ordering address changed give both OLD and NEW address. Write all names plainly with pen and ink or typewriter.
Notify us promptly of any irregularities in receiving your paper.
For distribution, to secure new subscribers, sample copies will be sent free on application.
Remit by Registered Letter, New York Exchange, Express, or Post Office Money Order.

"FEED MY SHEEP."

MRS. H. C. MORRISON.

HAT was a never-to-be-forgotten interview that Jesus had with Simon Peter just after the memorable experience of that night when they toiled all night and caught nothing. Jesus had been watching them as they toiled and struggled at last doomed to failure, and when they came to shore emphasized their embarrassment by asking if they had any meat, to which they frankly answered, no. At his command, however, they cast the net in again and were rewarded by a good pull of one hundred and fifty-three fishes. After dining, Jesus had something very important to say to Peter and in the following language makes the truth press right to Simon's heart.

"Simon, Son of Jonas, lovest thou me more than these?" Jesus assumes the attitude of a lover. He not only believed that Peter loved him, but wanted to hear it often from his lips. No doubt Christ's solicitude was from the fact that Peter had denied his Lord and he sought frequent confessions of his devotion afterward.

We are reminded from this incident that Jesus covets our affection; nothing else will suffice for the devotion of a true heart; without it all else will seem empty and void of comfort. God is a jealous God and in order for him to be satisfied with us, we must offer him the highest and best in our possession. The very fact that God is jealous, indicates the measure of his love to man. What an honor to us that the Creator should desire the adoration of the created.

The idea of a supreme love is brought out in the expression, "more than these." Jesus wants our love full and unstinted; he desires the throne that he might plan the very best for the subject. Some are inclined to think that the "these" spoken of in the text refers to the other disciples, while others think it means the things which attached to his secular life. However that may be, it carries with it the idea that things nor people must not come between Christ and the object of his love. Not only did Jesus want a confession of Peter's love, but he asked for further evidence, so he commissioned him to give expression to his affection by ministering to his sheep and lambs.

To every minister who is really called of the Holy Spirit, the opportunity is given for expression of his love by being placed as shepherd over the flock over which the Holy Ghost has made him overseer. The only way in which we can serve our Lord, is to serve our fellowmen and the highest ministry is committed to the ambassadors of Christ.

We sometimes think the minister is inclined to place his work in the ranks of secular pursuits, thus lowering the high and holy calling which differentiates it from all other avocations. He should feel that his is the grandest and highest work committed to man, at the same time realizing the greatness of the work carries with it great responsibility—responsibilities which end only in eternity. The minister needs to realize the fact that his is a work which cannot be prosecuted without the help of the Holy Spirit, thereby depending upon him daily and hourly for guidance and strength. The minister is expected to look after, not only the soul, but the body as well; that is, he must visit the sick, the poor and distressed and comfort the broken-hearted. The church in turn should see that his temporal needs are supplied and not give occasion for anxiety along temporal lines. This not only will relieve the pastor, but will have a reflex influence upon the donor.

Allow us to close with the following beautiful poem which expresses the spirit of a surrendered soul, a true minister of the gospel.

"His stone am I—

To set as he shall please,
In arch or vault or pediment,
In cornice or in frieze;
A pillar in his temple made,
Or in the lowly pavement laid;
The socket where a torch may rest,
Or jewel flashing on his breast;
He needs them all, each does his will,
Each has its purpose to fulfill.
The stones on which the walls are built,
Deep hidden out of sight,
Have honor as the airy spire
That springs to meet the light.
It matters not where I may be
So he doth set and polish me.

"His lamp am I—

To shine where he shall say;
And lamps are not for sunny rooms,
Nor for the light of day;
But for dark places of the earth,
Where shame and wrong and crime have birth;
Or for the murky twilight gray,
Where wandering sheep have gone astray;
Or where the light of faith grows dim,
And souls are groping after him;
And, as sometimes a flame we find,
Clear shining through the night,
So bright we do not see the lamp,
But only see the light,
So may I shine—his light the flame—
That men may glorify his name!"

Ho, For the Camp Meeting at Wilmore, Ky.

A WORD TO CENTRAL KENTUCKIANS.

The Annual Holiness Camp Meeting begins at Wilmore, Ky., July the 28th and closes August the 7th. We have selected a very strong body of ministers and a great song leader. We are expecting a large attendance and a gracious blessing from the Lord. Come and be with us.

You people who love a full salvation, and everybody who is interested in the provision our God has made for the salvation of souls through faith in Christ, hear me! You can eat your breakfast in Stanford, in Lancaster, in Danville, in Harrodsburg, in Bryantsville, in Lexington, in Frankfort, Versailles, Shelbyville, Newcastle, Winchester, Mt. Sterling, Morehead, Richmond, Berea, Paris, Millersburg, Cynthia, Carlisle, Maysville, and dozens of other towns and villages, get in your autos, run over to Wilmore in time for the eleven o'clock preaching, get a good dinner in the camp meeting dining room, stay to the afternoon and get home for a cold supper and to bed early. Don't fail to come! Bring your family and friends. If you will stay over with us we will arrange to take good care of you. People desiring to spend the entire ten days on the grounds should write to Mr. C. A. Lovejoy. Come praying the Lord to give us a time of gracious blessing.

Faithfully yours,

H. C. MORRISON, Pres.

Great Victory in our League Tent Meetings.

Rev. Charley Dunaway has recently held three great meetings in one of our League tents; two of these meetings were held in Alabama, one in Georgia. Many thousands of people heard the word of full salvation and several hundred were converted, reclaimed or sanctified. These were great revivals in which the gracious power of God was manifested and a host of souls were brought to Christ. Multitudes are hearing the Gospel in our League tents every night. Let all the members of The Evangelical Methodist League pray earnestly for the blessing of God upon this gracious work. The outlook for a summer of gracious victory is most encouraging. Pray day and night, that the Lord may mightily bless this good work.

Faithfully your brother,

H. C. M.

Expecting One Hundred Preachers at Camp Meeting.

We are expecting one hundred preachers of various denominations at the camp meeting at Wilmore, Ky. We are killing a fat beef to feed to them. There will be arrangements made for the entertainment of a host of people. Ministers of all denominations will be entertained free of charge.

We have engaged a great body of devout ministers to do the preaching: Rev. J. L. Brasher, of Iowa, M. E. Church; Rev. C. F. Wimberly, of South Carolina, M. E. Church, South; Rev. M. P. Hunt, of Louisville, Baptist Church; Rev. H. C. Morrison, Rev. H. W. Blackburn, of South Dakota, will have charge of the song services. We are expecting one of the greatest gatherings in the history of this famous old camp ground at Wilmore, Ky.

Preachers of the Gospel of all denominations are invited to be present. Let those desiring to come drop a note to Mr. C. A. Lovejoy and tell us when to expect you.

Wishing you gracious blessings, and hoping to meet you on the camp ground, and believing that the Lord will give us a time of victory and salvation, I am

Faithfully your brother,

H. C. MORRISON, Pres.

A Charming Book.

Rev. W. W. Pinson, D.D., has written a book entitled, "Life and Work of George R. Stuart." Dr. Pinson had a great subject and he has handled it well. George Stuart cannot be put on paper. No book or library of books can contain the man, set him forth in all of his marvelous brilliancy, buoyancy, and many many-sided gifts and graces. No man of his times had more courage, enthusiasm and love for all great and good causes than George Stuart. He was a great preacher, a devoted friend, a loving husband, an affectionate father, a brilliant orator, a tender-hearted, noble soul. To know George Stuart was to love him. One wondered at his inexhaustible information, humor, brilliancy, and marvelous capacity to present in most convincing fashion the truths of the gospel, the interests of the people, and the things that were best for humanity. Tender memories will remain in the hearts of multitudes who sat under his wonderful ministry. Dr. Pinson has rendered fine service in writing the book which will have a large sale and be read with tears and laughter. The price of the book is two dollars, and can be had from The Pentecostal Publishing Co., at Louisville, Ky. H. C. MORRISON.

A Successful Pastor.

Rev. Walt Holcomb has been pastor of Hyde Park Methodist Church for the past six months in Tampa, Fla. He received into the church in that time about two hundred members. He has been returned at the recent Conference to Hyde Park Church and the clipping below will indicate how very glad his people are to have him back with them.

"The Board of Stewards and entire membership of our Church are rejoicing over the return of our pastor, Dr. Walt Holcomb, for another year. Dr. Holcomb has been our pastor for the past six months and has done very fine work in that time. Nearly 200 members have been received into the Church during his pastorate and the entire membership is united and has a mind to work and go forward with Dr. Holcomb as pastor. Doctor, we are mighty glad to have you and Mrs. Holcomb with us for another year."

T. F. ALEXANDER, Chairman,

Board of Stewards.

By the way, have you seen Holcomb's Sermon, Finding Five? It is very interesting reading dividing under the following heads:

- Who Were The Five?
- Who Found The Five?
- Where Were They Found?
- Who Was The Best Find?
- How Were They Found?

Send 15 cents to Corner of Platt and Cedar Ave., Tampa, Fla., and get the sermon. You will enjoy reading same. Faithfully,

H. C. M.

The Bromley Realty Company.

Rev. H. W. Bromley and a group of friends have organized a Realty Company for the enlargement of Wilmore. I often meet with persons that ask me about real estate investments in Wilmore. I am not prepared to give any intelligent answer on the subject; as is well known, I am travelling extensively in evangelistic work and know very little about property for sale or rent in Wilmore. Persons desiring information on that subject can write to the Bromley Realty Company, Wilmore, Ky., to get information. Go down and look over the situation. This Company owns some attractive lots and are building some very excellent resident property.

H. C. M.

AUTHENTICITY AND INSPIRATION OF THE SCRIPTURES.

(Continued from page 5)

he wants to redeem himself from such a situation he can do it." Therein lies the tragedy of it all. God said to Adam, "Have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over every living thing that moveth upon the earth." In other words, he said to Adam, "You are king and master." But when he sinned, his whole nature was changed. That which was kingly became slavish; that which knew no authority save God, now had become a bond-slave of Satan. We can readily see the effect of this as it came down through the ages, growing by leaps and bounds as time moved on.

"Any habit," says the psychologist, "becomes stronger the longer it is adhered to." Sin always weakens the power of resistance; and its by-products affect both the physical and the mental. So it is not so easy a matter to say, "I will arise and throw off this monster of sin that is dragging me down to ruin." With Paul we cry, "O wretched man that I am! Who shall deliver me from this body of death?" And if in the hour of that great need we can find no response from One who can help us, then life is indeed a matter of endless torture.

(Continued)

Paragraphs.

GEO. H. MEANS, D.D.

TWO RECORDS.

Not long ago a mottled concourse of good and evildoers met in a little town of Tennessee to contend for the mastery, in a matter that involved the morals and religious belief of the nation.

One man, the leader of the righteous host, fell suddenly at his post of duty. He was mourned by millions. Garlanded with fame as spotless as the halo encircling a saint, his name and fame will live in the heart of the world as the champion of righteousness, and defender of the Christian faith.

Another man went out from that assembly as the hero of the lawless mob; a defender of murderous villains; the brazen advocate of infidelity; a dweller among the ruins he has wrought; a wrecker of the widow's hope, he casts thorns and brambles in the path of her children. No doubt the wild devil instincts that lead him on once slumbered in the breast of his youth; but was awakened by the plaudits of every wanderer from God. He will no doubt continue to bask in the hopeless smiles of their approval. Let him have them; they will be his only reward.

INFIDELITY.

Modern infidelity is not as profane as the old form, but it is more insane. It can't tell you what it believes, but becomes so hot in declaring what it does not believe that it consumes itself in its own fires. With strange, but characteristic persistence it deals only in negations—statements without proof, assumption without demonstration, premises without conclusion. Of course this is natural because it is necessary. How could one prove that there is no God? What argument could he use? What logic can help him? Where is the fulcrum on which he could rest his lever, to lift one thinking being out of the belief in God. Of course he can shake the faith of the unthinking by noisy presumption, boisterous pretensions, and Billingsgate declamations; but there ends the pitiful farce; and the shaken faith settles down once more into its bed of rest and security.

DRUNKENNESS.

I once asked a victim of the battle, how many drinks it took to make a man drunk. He said about four. Then I replied: "Three drinks would make him three-fourths drunk; two drinks would make him half drunk; and logically one drink would make him one drink drunk." And it is the one drink drunk that is the most dangerous. It is worse than the "dead drunk" that renders him helpless. It is worse than the "maudlin drunk," that makes him silly. It is the size drunk that makes him mean, and starts him on the road to desperate deeds. And so, when a man starts out to commit a crime he takes just one drink to fit him for the job.

POWER.

There are two kinds of power; the negative and the positive—the power of the river and the power of the sea. Silent power is the most potent. The greatest power known to the world is that of silent gravitation. It was not the roaring storm, nor bellowing earthquake, nor the scorching fire, that Elijah heard, and saw, on Horeb's mount that was the most powerful; but "the small voice," a voice small and still.

The greatest powers slumber in silence. The power of the gospel; the power of example, of restraint, of prayer, of faith, love, patience, endurance. These are the powers that are supreme. The earthquake's shock, the resounding thunder, and the crash of war, may hush the world for a time in awe, but above them the sun shines in silent majesty; and in the great workshop of nature, not the sound of a hammer, nor the grating of a saw is ever heard; while millions of bulbs and blooms are being formed, and fashioned, to fill the world with bounty and beauty for the good of man.

All the silent powers are God's tools, or messengers, that minister to the wants of his creatures. God's whispering voice is the loudest sound, and can be heard above the roar of the fiercest storms.

My Impressions of Taylor University.

Twenty-two years when considered in the prospect seems quite a while, but twenty-two years measured by retrospect forms a different basis of reckoning. We speak of this because it was twenty-two years ago this June since we left the halls of Taylor as a graduate of the class of 1905. During this period of twenty-two years it has been our privilege to visit the institution on three different occasions and each visit left with us a lasting memory. But on no visit of the three have we ever had such a thrill, or met up with such glad surprises as awaited us in June, 1927, when we returned to perform our duties as a member of the Legal Hundred, and to renew old fellowships at Commencement time. Honestly we were not prepared for the revelation which greeted us. True we had read in cold print something of what had been taking place, but like the Queen of Sheba in her visit to Solomon, "The half had not been told." We had heard something of the work of Mr. Garr, the landscape artist, in his effort at beautifying the Campus, but we were not prepared for the vision which awaited us. The time is not far distant when the campus of Taylor University will compare favorably with the campus of any college or university anywhere.

The girls' dormitory, with its 175 rooms, is a gem of beauty and would grace any campus anywhere regardless of enrollment or endowment. The æsthetic value and influence of such a building upon the lives of young women during their college days can scarcely be overestimated. What a contrast to our day of twenty-two years ago. Really I wish you might see this building.

Perhaps no impression made by our recent visit was more marked than that made by the student body itself. If there was any morbid spiritual viewpoint held by the students we failed to discover it. On the other hand, we were constantly impressed with their serious purpose and their spiritual sanity.

The Commencement program throughout was of a high order. The number of visitors present was unusually large. With Dr. Westfall of Pittsburgh as the Baccalaureate preacher, and Dr. Morrison of Louisville as the Commencement speaker, you have some idea what the Commencement bill of fare was. Taylor is now strenuously working toward an additional two hundred thousand dollar endowment and if the enthusiasm manifested at Commencement is an indication they are going to realize by January 1st. Dr. Paul is gripping the situation in great shape and the omen for Taylor's future was never brighter.

M. P. ARRASMITH.

THE HERALD stands for everything that is right and against everything that is wrong. It teaches the whole Bible for the whole world, and salvation for all men from all sin. Does not this need to be emphasized in these days of apostasy and spiritual decline? It won't cost much to send THE HERALD into those homes that need it, and it may do incalculable good. Who knows! Are YOU willing to risk it?

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you please open your door to a country girl? I am a medium size girl, age fourteen. I have real black hair which is short, large brown eyes, and fair complexion. I am a Freshman in high school. I attend the Ouachita Parish High School. I go to Sunday School every Sunday, unless it is raining or I'm sick. We have church twice a month. Our preacher's name is Rev. S. L. Brady. As this is my first letter I hope to hear that Mr. W. B. does not get it.

Myrtle Cotten.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I am going to write you a word of testimony. So many of the dear children tell us they are Christians. That is a testimony. I am so glad to know that, for it helps to encourage us to know there are so many who are starting while young to serve the Lord, and they will have much time before them to render service for his kingdom. Let nothing turn you out of the way. There are so many ways Satan has to lead people to "by and forbidden" paths of sin. The dances, movies, card parties, and so many other attractions. One mother tried to persuade her daughter not to follow the immodest fashions of the present day and the reply was, "They all do so." Now, dear children is that a good reason for doing things? Should we do things because others do it? Are we to follow the crowd instead of the narrow way with Jesus? We have to learn to say no when tempted to do the doubtful things which lead us into the byways from the paths of Christian living. A girl was invited to go riding with a crowd of young people on Sunday, but she did not know whether her mother would approve it, and she did not have time to find out. The others said, "She could not blame you as you cannot ask her, so come on." But she said, "I cannot, unless I know she would think it right." So she would not go. Should not we be as anxious to do the will of God as the girl was to do her mother's will? Let us, dear children, study God's word and do always the teachings of it and if a thing is doubtful in our minds ask of him to lead us not into temptation. If he leads us we shall be kept from evil. Your testimony will be sent by The Pentecostal Herald to the 48 states of the Union and let it be for the Christian faith which, whoever reads will be for strength and for the encouragement of all. Let us have your testimony. Let us do nothing that those from other lands will know that a Christian would not do. Let Jesus lead us and may we all "follow the leader."

Love to all the cousins.

Mary Hudson.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Here comes one of the Alabama cousins again. I sure do enjoy reading page ten. I am always looking for The Herald. It has just arrived and I have finished reading the Boys and Girls' Page. I am glad so many of the cousins are Christians. We have prayer meeting every Saturday night, and I think it just grand. Wish Aunt Bettie and cousins could be with us next Saturday night at the dear old church of "Confluence." I appreciate letters from the cousins. Here are lots of Ohio letters I see. I have received one from Ohio. Cousins, please write, for I am the only child and you see I get lonely.

Kate Waddell.
Rt. 3, Rogersville, Ala.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a little Kentucky girl join your happy band of boys and girls? I live on the farm and am a member of the M. E. Church. I go to Sunday school most every Sunday. I have two sisters living and one dead. My father is also dead. Who has my birthday, Feb. 9? I am eleven years old.

Margie Aleene Gott.
Sunny Side, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I want to write a few lines to the children from the Land of Sunshine, oranges and flowers. I like page ten in The Herald because I am especially pleased to see that there are a few boys and girls who can think of other things than cheap shows, Wild West stories and Sunday baseball and movies. I appreciate you very much and wish I could know you personally; also would like to see letters from more boys. I am a teacher in winter and evangelistic pianist in summer. I studied in Chicago, but am a native of Florida, and believe I can tell you anything you might want to know about our interesting state.

Sincerely,
Silas Franklin.
Blountstown, Fla.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a little Arkansas girl join your happy band of boys and girls? I am twelve years old and in the seventh grade. I go to church every fourth Sunday. Genevieve Henderson, I guess your name to be Mary. If so, do not forget your promise. Mother has been taking The Herald for about two years. Who can guess my middle name? It starts with A and ends with Y, and has three letters in it. My birthday is October 8. Who is my twin? I live on a farm.

Thelma Smith.
Box 5, Cedar Glades, Ark.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a Kentucky girl join your band of happy boys and girls? This is my first letter to The Herald and I hope to see it in print. I live in the heart of the Blue Grass region, so you can guess what a beautiful country it is. My birthday is August 5. Have I a twin? Who can guess my middle name? It begins with E and ends with H, and has nine letters. I am five feet tall, have light brown hair.

Mary E. Case.
Rt. 7, Paris, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I have just been reading some good letters in The Herald. Won't you now please move over and let me into your pleasant corner? I am a reader of The Herald and especially of page ten. I live on a farm nine miles from town. I go to school and am a Sophomore in high school. I have brown hair, blue eyes, light complexion and am five feet and six inches tall. I am fifteen years old and my birthday is November 22. I go to church every Sunday and also Epworth League. I belong to the Methodist Church and am Secretary of the Epworth League and Assistant Secretary of the Sunday school. Rev. C. S. Thompson is our pastor. I would be glad to hear from any of the cousins and will try to answer their letters.

Pauline Virginia Feather.
Rt. 2, Albright, W. Va.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a little Arkansas girl enter your happy band of boys and girls? I have blue eyes, light hair, and a fair complexion. I am eleven years old and in the seventh grade. I have been reading the letters for quite a while. I enjoy reading them very much. My daddy is a Baptist minister and he takes The Herald. I always turn to page ten and read the letters. I enjoy reading Rev. Morrison's sermons too. Who has my birthday, Sept. 12th? I will have to close hoping to hear from some of the boys and girls soon.

Willie Doyle.
Box 306, Walnut Ridge, Ark.

Dear Aunt Bettie: This is a June night and the frogs are croaking, the crickets are chirping as if they are having a revival meeting. They seem to be happy, and why not? Should we not sing his praise? My two sisters have just been singing some good old religious songs, such as "The Home Over There," "Blessed be the Name" and "When the Roll is Called up Yonder" while they were in the Kitchen waiting supper on papa. I have read a letter from Mattie L. Jackson in today's paper. You sure did write a nice letter. Mattie, I would like to have heard that blind preacher. I have had five letters printed, and received a lot of nice letters and cards, some tracts and several different kinds of papers. I have two very dear correspondents. I have been corresponding with Nellie Auston since 1925. She is a Christian girl. I would like to get letters from every state in the Union on my birthday, July 28th, with a photo enclosed in every letter. I have a new album and want to fill it. How many of you cousins were in the flood? I was not and I sure am thankful. It seems awful in one way to think about it. I want The Herald family to pray for me, that I may do what the Lord has for me to do. Let's try to make page ten more interesting. Do you cousins like to read good books? I have eleven, among them, "The Dairyman's Daughter," "Pilgrim's Progress" and "Beautiful Girlhood." I think every girl should read the last one named; it is a good book for girls. I live in the country on a farm of 280 acres. We raise cotton, corn, peas, potatoes, peanuts and watermelons. I will be glad when we have ripe watermelons. You cousins come over and help me eat them.

Ruby Alma Dixon.
Sweatman, Miss., Rt. 2.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you make room for an Oklahoma girl? I am five feet, five inches tall, I have dark brown hair, gray eyes and fair complexion. I am not a Christian but I want you all to pray for me that I may be some day. My mother takes The Herald and I enjoy reading it, especially page ten. I have written to The Herald once before and it was in print, and I wish to see this one in print. My birthday is February 15. I am eleven years of age. I was born in 1916. I wonder if I have a twin? If so, I wish she would write to me. I live in town but believe I had rather live in the country.

Kathrine McCarver.
Stratford, Okla.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you allow a little Oklahoma girl to join your happy band of boys and girls? We have not been taking The Herald very long. I like to read page ten. I haven't seen any letters from any of the Oklahoma boys and girls since we have been taking the paper. Wake up, Oklahoma boys and girls, don't go to sleep on the job. I go to Sunday school every Sunday at the Missionary Baptist Church. I belong to this church. My daddy is our pastor. I have dark brown hair, brown eyes and dark complexion. I am twelve years old. I am in the seventh grade. I am four feet and seven inches in height and weigh one hundred pounds. I have no brother or sisters. Anyone who will guess my middle name, I will write to them. My middle name is the name of a state. As this is my first letter to The Herald I hope to see it in print.

Katherine Hill.
Box 177, Rocky, Okla.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Would someone please break the ring of the cousins and let me join? It has been several "moons" since I wrote to the dear Pentecostal Herald. I enjoy the very interesting items in The Herald and sure do enjoy reading page ten. I seldom see a letter from Oklahoma. Why is it? It doesn't seem that the best paper in the universe is circulated enough in Oklahoma. As it has been a good while since I have written to The Herald, I wish to tell all the cousins how I look. I am nineteen years old, weigh 135 pounds, freckled, light complexion, and auburn hair. Now if any of you cousins wish to write to me, after my description, I would like to hear from you. I am a leader of songs in my community, Sunday school secretary-treasurer, and am an all-round handy fellow. Now if you cousins will write I will enjoy receiving letters. Will answer all I can. Miss Henderson, of West Virginia, I guess your middle name is Mary. Am I right? If so, please make your promise good. Best wishes to Aunt Bettie and all.

Walter F. Crump.
Rt. 2, No. 10, Marietta, Okla.

Dear Aunt Bettie: May I join your happy band of boys and girls? I am thirteen years old and in the first grade of high school. I have dark hair (bobbed) brown eyes, and am five feet tall. I enjoy reading The Herald. I think page ten is the best. I am a Christian and belong to the Second Methodist Church. Rev. Figley is our pastor. I go to church every Sunday and read the Bible daily. Who has my birthday, July 13th? My middle name starts with G, and ends

Gospel Tents

Smith Manufacturing Company.
DALTON, GA.
22 Years in Business

J. H. DICKEY

of

BARRETT, ROBINSON & DICKEY

General Insurance—Bonds, etc., solicits your patronage.

7th Floor, Columbia Bldg.
Louisville, Ky.

200 Sheets 100 Envelopes

PERSONAL STATIONERY

High Grade White Bond Paper, size 5 1/2 x 7 inches, with envelopes to match. Every sheet and envelope printed in black type up to 4 lines, with your name, business, and address.

This Stationery also makes an IDEAL GIFT. Shipment within 10 days after receipt of order. ORDER NOW!

Pentecostal Pub. Co.,
Louisville, Ky.

Gentlemen: Enclose please find $1.00 for which send me postpaid, a box of your Personal Stationery consisting of 200 sheets of Paper and 100 Envelopes printed as follows:

To avoid errors write or print clearly in E. It has nine letters in it. Who ever guesses it I will be glad to send you my picture. I would like for some of the cousins to write to me. Will answer all I can. Ina Cummings, I guessed your name to be Ina Cleo.

Margaret G. Williams.
328 W. Crawford, Van Wert, Ohio.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Just to chatter with the boys and girls. I am a little girl, I have light hair and fair complexion and blue eyes. I have six brothers and one sister. My sister is going to school at Boaz; she will get through school next year. I sure do enjoy reading The Herald. I like to read the Boys and Girls' Page. I have lots of friends. My closest friend is Mrs. Yates. I chopped cotton for them two days and a half. I do not like to live on a farm. Who has my birthday? It is in August. Whoever guesses it I will send my picture. It is between the first and tenth of August. I want all my friends to write to me.

Geneva Murphy.
Traae, Ala.

CAMPS FIRST—LECTURE LAST.

I wish it were possible to make the round of the summer camps with my lecture on "Evolution Outlawed by Science," as per the announcement of Dr. C. F. Wimberly in The Herald, but my time will be taken up during the summer in camp meeting work. The greatest thing in the world is to preach a full and a free salvation, evangelically and evangelistically. The next thing to it, so far as I am personally concerned, is to deliver a knock-out blow to the theory of Evolution.

First and foremost and practically for all the time I am in revival work, but I am willing to put in part of my rest period between revivals in giving my lecture against Evolution. In passing from meeting to meeting I may occasionally be able to stop over and "shake the monkey out of the cocoa-nut tree." Let us preach the gospel and fight all falsehood.

Andrew Johnson.

WICHITA CAMP MEETING ANNOUNCEMENT

The 36th Annual Camp Meeting of the Kansas State Holiness Association will be Held in Beulah Park, Wichita, Kansas, August 15-28, 1927.

WORKERS: Rev. C. H. Babcock, Rev. E. E. Shelhamer, Rev. T. M. Anderson, Mrs. Ernest D. Bartlett, Harold Chapman, and Prof. and Mrs. B. D. Sutton.

SONG BOOK: Best of All, Complete.

BOOK STAND: In charge of Rev. Jesse Uhler and wife, Clearwater, Kansas.

DINING HALL: Cafeteria plan. There will also be a first class lunch counter in connection. Groceries can be purchased at the lunch counter.

TENTS: Ranging in rental price from $3 up. Men's compartment, $2.50 for full time or 35c per night—single night. Women's compartment, $3 for full time, or 50c single night. Campers should bring their own supply of pillows.

LAUNDRY: This business will be handled at the business tent.

MAIL: Campers should have their mail addressed to them in care of Beulah Park Camp Meeting, Wichita, Kan.

BAGGAGE: Baggage checks can be brought to the Secretary's office on the camp ground.

BEULAH PARK: At the south end of Water Street, just outside the city limits. Take South Main Street car to end of line. Camp ground is one block west and three south. Water street bus runs direct to the ground. The Yellow Taxicab Co., will convey passengers back and forth at the rate of five passengers for the price of one. Abundance of shade and good water.

INFORMATION: Address Rev. J. O. Orndoff, Manager, R.F.D. No. 1, Wichita, Kan., or Rev. W. R. Cain, 515 South Vine Street, Wichita, Kan.

The management anticipates the best camp meeting we have ever had. Come and spend the ten days at this feast of good things.

REV. J. E. WILSON, President
REV. W. R. CAIN, Secretary.

REV. C. S. PORTER, Vice Pres.
REV. J. O. ORNDOFF, Manager.

Indian Springs Holiness Camp Grounds

Flovilla, Ga., August 11-21, 1927.

LEADERS FOR 1927.

During the thirty-five years of its history, some of the greatest preachers of America and of Europe have filled the pulpit of this camp. This year will see no let-down in the high standard of its ministry, and we have joy in presenting to you the following:

REV. C. W. BUTLER

H. C. MORRISON, D.D.

Rev. H. C. Morrison, D.D., Louisville, Ky., the dean of the holiness pulpit, and one of the outstanding preachers in America, will be with us this year. Perhaps no living man is wielding a mightier influence against the destructive forces of the day, or building more gloriously on the one foundation, Jesus Christ, than this mighty prophet of the Lord. You cannot afford to miss him.

Rev. C. W. Butler, D.D., Cleveland, Ohio, Dean of The Cleveland Bible Institute, and one of the strong men of the holiness pulpit, will be at the camp this year for the first time. He comes with high commendation, and will be a blessing.

Rev. J. L. Brasher, D.D., University Park, Iowa, one of the greatest holiness preachers of the M. E. Church, and always welcomed at this camp, will be with us this year for the third time.

REV. J. L. BRASHER
University Park, Iowa

Mrs. Jere M. Glenn, Young Harris, Ga., a gifted and trained worker with young people, will have charge of this phase of the work again and will be assisted by Miss Clarice Morford, of Portland, Oregon, and a trained corps of teachers and workers in the holiness movement. Hundreds of the choicest young people in Georgia, South Carolina and other states will be present for these "Studies in Holiness."

Hamp Sewell, of Atlanta, Ga., one of the South's leading composers and publishers of sacred music, will have charge of the music again this year. He will be assisted by a full orchestra and a choir of some 200 voices, augmented by the wonderful congregational singing for which this camp is so justly noted. It will be worth a trip to the camp meeting just to hear Hamp Sewell and his wonderful music. In addition to this Thos. Eden and sister, Ethel, who have proven such a blessing wherever they have gone, will be with us in special song.

INVITATION.

"Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters." "The Spirit and the bride say come. And let him that heareth say come. And whosoever will let him take the water of life freely. Saint and sinner—everybody is welcome here. Write Jere M. Glenn, Sec., Young Harris, Ga., for literature concerning the camp ground, rates, etc., and send it to your friends with an urgent personal invitation to come.

DAILY SCHEDULE OF SERVICES.

Tabernacle:

6 to 7 a. m.—Prayer.
9 to 10 a. m.—Praise Service.
10:30 to 11 a. m.—Song Service.
11:00 a. m.—Preaching.
3:30 p. m.—Preaching.

HAMP SEWELL
Atlanta, Ga.

7:30 p. m.—Song Service.
8:00 p. m.—Preaching.

Young People's Tabernacle.

8:30 to 9:30 a. m.—Bible Classes for Young People.
2:00 p. m.—Children's Services.
6:45 to 7:30 p. m.—Vespers.
7:45 p. m.—Cottage Prayer Meetings on Verandas.

NOT TO BE USED WITHOUT COPYRIGHT PERMISSION

OF ASBURY THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

REV. O. G. MINGLEDORFF, D.D.

Lesson V.—July 31, 1927.

Subject.—David and Jonathan. 1 Samuel 18:1-4; 19:1-7.

Golden Text.—There is a friend that sticketh closer than a brother. Prov. 18:24.

Time.—About B. C. 1060.

Place.—Gibea. Of course, we must consider the wanderings of David.

Introduction.—As we pass directly from the end of the 17th chapter into the first verse of the 18th chapter where we find the beginning of today's lesson, there are no connecting links to be studied. It may be well, however, to consider for a moment the friendly relation that sprang up between David and Saul's son Jonathan. They belonged to different tribes, the latter belonging to Benjamin and the former to Judah. Jonathan being the natural heir to the throne, as men count such matters, one would expect to find him very jealous of David who was his rival; but such was not the case. David was Jehovah's choice for the throne; and such was the love and friendship between the two young men, that Jonathan had no semblance of jealousy or envy toward him. Men have been so much impressed with the friendship between Damon and Pithias that they have never ceased to praise them, especially Pithias in whose honor they have organized a great secret order; but Damon is worthy of more honor than his friend, although the secret order named for him has never prospered very much. In view of this fact it is strange that men have so little honored the friendship of David and Jonathan. Although David was Jehovah's heir apparent to the throne of Israel, one feels sure that had it been his will he would rather have seen his friend Jonathan wearing the crown; and we are just as certain that Jonathan was glad to see his beloved friend coming into the kingdom. Such loving friendships are rare in this sin-cursed world. Would that there were more of them. Sin not only separates between God and man, but between men and men.

Comments on the Lesson.

1. Made an end of speaking unto Saul.—This was the end of the conversation between David and Saul after the slaying of Goliath, when the king failed to recognize the ruddy youth, although he had known him in former days. The soul of Jonathan was knit with the soul of David.—The result of David's having slain the big Philistine and his manly bearing toward king Saul. Their love was mutual. So intense was this feeling that "Jonathan loved him as his own soul."

2. And Saul . . . would let him go no more home to his father's house.—The king seems at this time to have been as deeply impressed with the shepherd boy as his son was; and no doubt Saul's love for David would have continued, had it not been for his uncontrollable jealousy which dominated him like a beast, and at a later day turned him into a brute. For some time David became a member of the royal household.

3. Jonathan and David made a covenant.—Love that does not work itself out in the concrete is worth but little. The love that will not feed a hungry man is mean and trashy. Jonathan made a covenant with David "because he loved him as his own soul." In the olden times men made such covenants: we are poor for making so few of them.

4. This verse is beautiful. See Jonathan stripping off his robe and other garments, and presenting them to David; and then bestowing upon him his sword, his bow, and his girdle. Here we have a portrayal of perfect confidence. In truth, Jonathan was literally delivering himself into the hands of his bosom friend. David would have been low and vile, had he not reciprocated such unselfish love and friendship.

The remainder of this chapter portrays a picture both interesting and disgusting. David behaved himself wisely, and conquered the Philistines; but the women of Israel behaved themselves unwisely. Maybe they had not dreamed of Saul's jealousy; but it rose like a tiger for his prey when they sang and danced before the king, and said that Saul had slain his thousands and David his tens of thousands. From that day he "eyed" the young man, and determined to slay him; and when the "evil spirit from the Lord" came upon him, and David played on his harp before him as aforetime, he thrust a javelin at him, vowing that he would smite him to the wall; but "David avoided out of his presence twice." Then the king made him the captain of a thousand men, and sent him out to war against the enemies of the nation. Maybe he cherished a secret hope that the young captain would be slain in battle; but not so. David behaved himself wisely, conquered the enemy, and won the hearts of the people; for God was with him and helped him because he was true.

Then Saul decided to turn the tables a bit by promising to give to David his eldest daughter Merab to wife; but when the time came he lied, and gave her to Adriel. But Saul was a match-maker with a purpose; so he set a snare for David. He would give him his daughter Michal who loved David; but the young man hesitated to become the king's son-in-law; so Saul requested the men of the kingdom to help him persuade David to marry the girl, stating a condition that seemed to jeopardize his very life. He complied with the king's request, won the victory, and Michal loved him for his prowess; but Saul hated him worse than ever. However, David behaved himself more wisely than usual, so much so that among the people "his name was much set by." Now we come to chapter nineteen.

1. Saul spake to Jonathan his son, and to all his servants, that they should kill David.—Can such hatred and such ingratitude be surpassed? But Saul "reckoned without his host." Jonathan would not kill his dearest friend, nor would he permit his people to kill him.

2. Jonathan told David, saying, Saul my father seeketh to kill thee.—It is well to have a good friend at court. The information came with a warning to hide himself and wait for further developments. Jonathan would not fail him when the hour of danger approached.

3. I will commune with my father of thee; and what I see, that will I tell thee.—Jonathan was deceiving his father; but we shall excuse him, as he was risking his life for that of his friend. God did not condemn him for his deception. The case reminds one of the old question: "Is a lie ever justifiable." Decide the question for yourself; and I shall decide it for myself. That is fair.

4. Jonathan spake good of David unto Saul his father.—Now we are far removed from hypocrisy; although Jonathan is playing detective with Saul. His purpose is to discover his father's real feeling toward David, and then to change his mind by portraying his friend's good qualities. Let not the king sin against his servant, against David. That was shrewd. He would win the king by calling David his servant. Because he hath not sinned against thee.—That was good pleading, because Saul knew that the statement was true; but David had done even better than that: "His works have been to thee-ward very good."

5. Jonathan has played his first card, and now he throws in the entire deck. "For he did put his life in his hand, and slew the Philistine, and the Lord wrought a great salvation for all Israel: thou sawest it, and didst rejoice: wherefore then wilt thou sin against innocent blood, to slay David without a cause?" That was fine pleading.

6. Saul hearkened unto the voice of Jonathan.—He had to yield, or lose the respect of his own son. It is well for fathers to listen to the wisdom of their sons when the boys have more sense than the old man has. Saul swore, As the Lord liveth, he shall not be slain.—Jonathan had gained his point for the time being. The future will tell for how long; for Saul was a bad man, and must be watched.

7. Jonathan called David.—David had hidden himself, and was awaiting the answer of Saul to Jonathan's pleadings. He made known to David all that the king had said, and brought him once more into the royal presence where he was as he had been in former times. Be careful, David, you are dealing with a treacherous tiger in human form. You will soon have to flee for your life.

EVANGELISTIC AND PERSONAL.

W. B. Woodrow: "Fletcher Grove Camp for 1927 is passed into history with a record eminently satisfactory. Exceptionally fine preaching by Rev. Will Hill, Atlanta, Ga., and Rev. P. E. Kennedy, New York brought many seekers to the altar. Crowds were good, finances easy, and the camp a marked success."

Rev. J. B. McBride: "We have a date, Sept. 11-25, which we would like to slate somewhere in Indiana or adjoining states as we close our last camp meeting at Oakland City, Ind., Sept. 4, and begin a meeting in Norwood Nazarene Church in Cincinnati, Ohio, Oct. 2. We could have slated this date a number of times but the places were so far out of line with our meetings that we prefer to hold meetings in line to save travel and expense, as Mrs. McBride is with me assisting in meetings. Write me according to my slate in this paper."

The Portage, Ohio, Camp Meeting will be held August 18-28. Rev. Geo. B. Kulp and Rev. John E. Hewson will be the preachers, with A. H. Johnston and wife in charge of the music. Missionary Day will be Thursday, Aug. 25, in charge of Mrs. C. E. Cowman of the O. M. S., of Japan and Korea. Information may be had by addressing E. L. Day, 74 Oakwood Ave., Newark, Ohio.

HOLLOW ROCK CAMP MEETING JULY 28th TO AUGUST 7th, 1927.

Not far from Pittsburgh, Pa., East Liverpool, Ohio, Cleveland, Ohio, Steubenville, Ohio, and Wheeling, W. Va.

THOUSANDS ATTEND EVERY YEAR.

The influence of this camp is felt throughout America and many foreign countries.

A GRAND PLACE TO SPEND YOUR VACATION

WORKERS—Rev. C. H. Babcock, Rev. C. W. Ruth, Rev. Howard Sweeten, Prof. Kenneth and Eunice Wells, Sadie B. Mishey, children and young people. Edwina Wilson, pianist.

Address: R. L. HOUSEHOLDER, Sec'y., Toronto, O.

GOSPEL TENTS

Write for Prices on NEW AND USED TENTS.

R. H. ARMBRUSTER CO.,
SPRINGFIELD, ILL.

Established 1875

We Aim To Please—Our Aim Is Good

Baptism,

Its Mode, Subjects and Designs.

By Dr. George H. Means.

Plain, practical and comprehensive discussion of this subject. It discusses very thoroughly The Mode, The Baptism of New Testament, The Meaning of the word Baptize, Infant Baptism, etc. Knowing the ability of the author to handle this subject some of our leading men urged the writing of this book. Price, 50c.

PENTECOSTAL PUBLISHING COMPANY
Louisville, Kentucky.

Will N. Hill: "We are in the midst of the Fletcher Grove Camp Meeting at Delanco, N. J. Souls, preachers and laymen are daily being blessed at the altar, for which we give thanks. I am associated with Bro. Preston Kennedy. He is a great preacher and a fine spirit. Mrs. Young of Kansas, has charge of the music. She is fine. Bro. Pickett dropped by and talked like he was against the Pope."

Rev. C. E. Bowen: "Will you please make mention of the fact that the Minerva Cottage, at 3107 N. 60th St., Omaha, Neb., is in need of a Cottage Mother? We want a woman of deaconess or missionary spirit who will train the girls for God; a woman under fifty years of age. We also need Christian men to help raise funds with which to build other cottages in Iowa and Nebraska."

Tri-State Camp Meeting, August 5 to 14, Clinton, Pa. One of the most successful camp meetings in this territory is conducted by the Tri-State Camp Meeting Association on their new camp grounds at Clinton, Pa. These grounds are located on a splendid highway, and are also reached by bus from Coraopolis.

The Association plans to hold their great ten day camp meeting beginning August 5 and continuing to August 14. The special workers for the camp meeting are Rev. R. G. Flexon of Shackleford, Va.; Rev. David E. Wilson, of Bangor, N. Y.; Rev. J. N. Hampe, of Los Angeles, Calif.; and Rev. Geo. Cole, of McKeesport as song leader. Mrs. Edith Clawson, of West Newton, Pa., will be in charge of the children's meeting. Meals are $6.00 for the entire ten days, rooms $4.00. For full information, address Rev. L. W. King, President, Clinton, Pa.

Rev. King states that Rev. R. W. Ives, a returned missionary from the Barbadoes, West Indies, will be present during the ten days of the camp; also the Tri-State Quartette composed of Thos. Wilson, Geo. Cole, Edw. Curry and Rev. D. Price, will be in attendance.

The Association recently purchased new grounds, and have erected some new buildings for camp meeting purposes, which include a new dormitory and dining hall. Friends are cordially invited to attend these services and to help push the battle for the Kingdom. Make this year's meetings long to be remembered.

Evangelist John C. Cowell, Jr., well known Fayetteville, N. C., evangelist, who has conducted many successful campaigns throughout the southland, and W. J. Ramsay, who was formerly connected with the famous Ham-Ramsay party, have united in the work of evangelism and are now in the midst of a great revival in Durham, N. C., with the co-operation of the churches. A large warehouse, seating 4,000 people, has been equipped specially for the meeting and a great chorus choir of 350 voices, under the directorship of Mr. Ramsay, is a feature of the meeting. Mr. Cowell, a young man in years, is an evangelist of no mean ability. He is admirably equipped and talented for the work which he is doing. He has the rare combination of Bible teacher and preacher.

WANTED—A sanctified woman, past thirty, married or single to do the cooking in Mt. Carmel High School, a holiness school in the mountains of Kentucky. Address Miss Lela G. McConnell, Lawson, Ky.

TOLEDO, OHIO.

God was manifestly present in our recent meeting in Toledo, Ohio. A number prayed through to real salvation, and some to entire sanctification. There were several additions to the church, of which Rev. J. C. Walker is the efficient pastor. The writer was entertained two weeks in the parsonage home of Brother and Sister Walker who showed us every kindness.

During the past two weeks I have toured the following cities of this great state preaching and representing the cause of Holiness: Walbridge, Payne, Troy, Dayton, Mt. Vernon, Columbus, Marion, Lancaster, Franklin and Middletown. A number stood as desiring the blessing and some came to the altar and found victory. Rev. Melvin Moorehead, singer, and the writer opened a revival at Cecil, Ohio, last night where strange doctrines have about taken the country. If God's people were only as active and persistent as are false teachers what might we not expect!

Yours fully under the blood,
W. W. McCord.

"106 Sermon Outlines", by Dr. U. G. Foote, has many interesting topics outlined for preaching. Price $1.00. Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky.

HUNTSVILLE, ALABAMA.

Sunday, June 25 marked the crowning day in the J. O. Hanes tent meeting at Epworth Methodist Church, Huntsville, Ala. For two weeks Mr. Hanes and his singer, Prof. J. B. Stalnaker, waged battle against sin, and pointed the lost to the wounds of Jesus as a refuge. Great multitudes were held spellbound under the powerful messages of the Evangelist, and the lost were quickened and made their way to the altar in large numbers. Scores of men, women, and children prayed through, and shouted praises in the old-time way.

The two weeks visit of Mr. Hanes and Mr. Stalnaker marked a period in the history of East Huntsville that will be long remembered. Fifty-four were added to the Epworth Methodist; ten offered their names for membership in the Fifth Street Baptist Church, and two for membership in the Lincoln Methodist. Scores of backsliders were reclaimed and multitudes were quickened and given a new grip on God. Any one in need of an evangelist would do well to write Rev. J. O. Hanes, general evangelist, Birmingham, Ala.

Dr. G. M. Davenport, pastor of First Methodist Church of Huntsville, said of Mr. Hanes' evangelistic campaign at Epworth: "I have served in Huntsville for five years and have never seen such a revival. Mr. Hanes holds the distinction of having held more revival meetings than any other minister in America. He has held even one hundred revivals in the city of Birmingham (his home city)." Heaven's blessings upon him and his co-worker. Rev. R. F. McDonald. Pastor of Epworth Methodist Church, Huntsville, Ala.

One of the most remarkable stories ever told is that of Paton in "John C. Paton, Hero of the South Seas", by B. L. Byrum. It breathes the spirit of heroism and the very essence of faith. Price 75c. Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky.

SWEENEY CHAPEL REVIVAL.

The Lord gave us a great revival at Sweeney's Chapel on Pulaski Circuit, Rev. J. E. Tyler being the beloved pastor. He appeared at his best, and had prepared the way for the revival as best he could. This was a very hard field, as we had a young church and the community under the Campbellite influence. The ground on which the church stands was given by a Campbellite. They had fought revivals but God gave us a signal victory in the one recently closed. The pastor said twenty-six were saved, and eleven united with the church; a number were baptized by immersion. The church was thoroughly revived. It is small, but one of the best all round churches we have run across for some time. The members pray by the hour and serve God with all their might. They had 78 in their Sunday school the last Sunday of the meeting. The community was under conviction, but we often had to snatch victory out of the jaws of defeat. We organized the children into a Missionary Society of twenty-one.

We were kindly entertained in the home at night, of E. C. Garver. We are now at Garver's Chapel on part of the Pulaski Circuit under Rev. Paul Nelson as pastor. Two girls were converted at the morning service. We have an open date from July 24 to last of August. Any one needing our services may write us at Vine Grove, Ky.

Robert Johnson and Wife.

Are you looking for a book that will help you in your work with young people? Do you want something as a gift to some young boy or girl? Then get "Our Young People", by R. H. Rivers. Price $1.00. Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky.

BETHEL ACADEMY

Chartered under Asbury College

Accredited Secondary School

Member of Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools of the Southern States, giving it A(SA) rating in Kentucky. This School seeks to give High School training in an atmosphere of Christian fellowship, and where confidence in God's Word is restored. For further particulars write

GEO. B. BURKHOLDER, Principal.
Wilmore, Ky.

20 LIVE BOOKS FOR $1.00. Each one carries a great message in brief form.

Gospel of the Body

REV. C. F. WIMBERLY.

The author tells in a most interesting way some of his recent discoveries of the majesty and artistic glory of the human body and states that there are mysteries and wonders to be found in the body alone greater than the exploration of an unknown continent. There is not a dull sentence in the book. Price 15c.

The Mind of the Master

REV. WILL H. HUFF.

Two of Brother Huff's great sermons, the title of the second one being "Soul Rest." In the first sermon the author deals with the mind of Christ as to its spiritual consciousness, as to its characteristics, and as to the how of our fullest possession of it. The second sermon deals with "His Rest," the rest he has provided for the struggling believer. Price, 20c.

Scriptural Holiness

REV. B. A. CUNDIFF.

The author of this most excellent book enjoyed and preached the experience of entire sanctification thirty-nine years. The author gives chapters on the different theories of holiness, and closes with a chapter on the Bible view of this great theme. Price, 15c.

The Vision of a Popular Minister

COMPILED BY A. SIMS.

The experience of a minister who was satisfied and at ease in Zion, but when the Lord got hold of him he found that he was self-centered and unsaved. Price, 10c

Sin in Believers and Advice to Those Sanctified

JOHN WESLEY.

Two sermons. The first sermon is a point of utmost moment to every serious Christian, the resolving of which very nearly concerns both his present and eternal happiness. In the second, Mr. Wesley's first warning is to watch and pray continually against pride. There are five more warnings in this sermon which are vital to every Christian. Price, 15c.

Doing His Will or Going to Hell

REV. JAMES M. TAYLOR.

This book sets forth the doctrine of entire sanctification as taught in the Scriptures; also that it must be obtained here on earth. Price, 10c.

Malice

REV. J. B. CULPEPPER.

This is a most forceful writer and he handles this subject in a very interesting way. You will be thankful for the privilege of reading this book. Price, 15c.

Water Lily Money

ABBIE C. MORROW BROWN.

A thrilling story for young people; it will interest them as well as instruct and help them. Anyone will read it with pleasure and profit. Price, 15c.

I Want 'Er Go 'Ome

JAMES KNOTT MACKRELL.

A study of heaven, some of the things Jesus taught about heaven, its hope, its people, its certainty, its place, its rewards, its happiness and the way. Price 25c.

Baptism With the Holy Ghost

REV. JAMES M. TAYLOR.

This is a most excellent interpretation of what it is, of who is to receive it, and its effect upon the recipient. Price, 10c.

How to Reach the Masses

REV. JAMES M. TAYLOR.

This book deals with the problems now facing the churches, and points out God's method of doing it. Especially does this book emphasize the need of the blessing of entire sanctification to empower one for effective service in one's work for the Master. Price, 10c.

Heart Purity

REV. E. A. FERGUSON.

A sermon by one of the leading evangelists of his time. The author was very successful in leading thousands of souls into this experience. Price, 10c.

Dr. Fosdick Answered

REV. C. W. RIDOUT.

An expose of Christian liberalism, which is becoming so prevalent in the land, and one needs to be informed about it and how to combat it. This book will be very helpful. Price, 15c.

The Devil's Partners

REV. JAMES M. TAYLOR.

A sermon dealing with the real partners of the devil. The author handles the subject without gloves and starts the reader to thinking. Price, 10c.

Just for Children

REV. J. B. CULPEPPER.

The author writes a story of when and where he was converted in a style that is especially attractive to children. Price, 10c.

Sanctification

REV. J. H. COLLINS.

Dr. H. C. Morrison says this book is one of the clearest presentations of this subject he has ever read. Price, 15c.

A Whiskey Hatch

REV. J. B. CULPEPPER.

The sub title of this book is "Chickens will come Home to Roost." It is an interesting and awful story of the effects of whiskey. Price, 5c.

Little Nuggets for Little Folks

REV. JAMES M. TAYLOR.

A good book to place in the hands of a boy or girl—one that will interest them and teach them the way of salvation. Price, 10c.

Saved to Serve

REV. J. W. WELDON.

This is a life story of a business man who was saved, and afterwards gave his whole life to the service of the Lord. He has been instrumental in winning hundreds of souls to Christ. Price, 20c.

A Bottle of Tears

REV. J. B. CULPEPPER.

A salesman once said of this booklet, "If you will read it without both laughing and crying, you may have it for nothing." You will like it. Price, 5c.

PENTECOSTAL PUBLISHING CO., Louisville, Ky.

Workers of the Evangelical Methodist League

ASBURY GOSPEL TEAM.
Kirkpatrick, Jarrett, Moore, DuVal.
Elmira, N. Y., July 20-31.
Lockport, N. Y., August 5-14.

BECK, A. S. AND R. S.
Columbia, Ky., July 18-Aug. 5.
Open dates, August 5 to last of October.

BEELER, T. W.
(Wilmore, Ky.)
Danville, Ky., July 16-31.

COCHREAN BROTHERS.
Omega, Ga., July 1-28.

CROSS, WALTER—LOPER, NORRIS.
Silver Creek, Miss., July 11-20.
Stratton, Miss., August 1-10.
Piedmont, Ala., Aug. 22-Sept. 4.

DORN, C. O.—SEAMONS, L. H.
Lynchburg, S. C., July 18-31.
Oswego, S. C., August 7-28.

DUNAWAY, C. M.
(216 N. Candler St., Decatur, Ga.)
Bentleyville, Pa., July 14-22.
Dalton, Ga., July 23-31.
Mt. Vernon, Ohio, August 4-14.

GRANT BROTHERS.
Birch Tree, Mo., August 1-16.
Thomasville, Mo., August 16-31.

HOTCHKISS, ROY L.
Montevideo, Minn., July 19-Aug. 7.
Winthrop, Minn., Aug. 9-28.
Hull, Iowa, August 30-Sept. 11.

HOWARD, FIELDING T.
(Wilmore, Ky.)
Depoy, Ky., July 20-31.
Milton, Ky., August 5-14.
Tolu, Ky., August 18-28.

HUTCHERSON, FIELDS AND HILKER.
(Tent Workers)
Basin, Wyo., July 18-31.
Meeteetse, Wyo., August 1-21.
Grass Creek, Wyo., August 22-25.

HYSELL, HARVEY B.
(Box 1235, Charleston, W. Va.)
Baileyville, W. Va., July 17-31.
Bowersville, Ohio, August 4-14.
Mt. Nebo, W. Va., Aug. 17-31.

JOHNSON, RAY N.
Mohale, Ohio, July 10-21.
McLuney, Ohio, July 25-Aug. 7.

KEYS EVANGELISTIC PARTY.
(Mohnton, Pa.)
Reading, Pa., July 22-31.
Lewistown, Pa., August 2-14.
Eccles, W. Va., Aug. 18-Sept. 4.
Chillicothe, Ohio, Sept. 11-Oct. 2.

LAMBERT, B. D.
Eagle Rock, Va., July 17-Aug. 7.
Oil City, Pa., August 14-Sept. 3.

LAMP, W. E.
(Wilmore, Ky.)
Louisville, Ill., July 1-Aug. 4.
Shumway, Ill., August 6-26.

LEWIS, J. H.
Harrisville, Ohio, July 12-24.
Open date, July 26-Aug. 9.
Jerusalem, Ohio, Aug. 11-21.

MAWSON, R. K. AND WIFE.
(Singers and Pianists)
(Wilmore, Ky.)
South Corbin, Ky., June 20-July 24.

MOORE, W. BRADY—MOORE, C. C.—
BOOKER, HORACE.
Brilliant, Ohio, July 21-August 3.

PARKER, J. R.
(Wilmore, Ky.)
Woodlawn, Ky., July 10-24.
Open date, July 25-Aug. 11.
Berry, Ky., August 15-28.

POWELL, JAMES L.
Open date, July 17-27.
Corydon, Ky., July 31-Aug. 14.
Open date, Aug. 18-28.

ROBERTS, BYRON F.
Walda, Ohio, July 7-24.
Dayton, Ohio, July 28-Aug. 21.
Jamestown, Ohio, Aug. 24-Sept. 11.

SMITH AND McCURE.
Open, July 28-August 14.
Richmond, Ill., Aug. 21-Sept. 11.

WHEALDON, J. R.
Vicco, Ky., July 1-August 1.

WILLIS, F. B.
Colon, Mich., July 13-Aug. 1.
Open, August 3-14.

EVANGELISTS' SLATES

ALBRIGHT, TILLIE.
Moers, New York, July 24-Aug. 14.
Richland, N. Y., Aug. 21-Sept. 5.

ANDERSON, T. M.
Sebring, Ohio, July 15-24.
Sharon Center, Ohio, July 29-Aug. 7.
Frankfort, Ind., Aug. 5-14.
Wichita, Kan., August 18-28.

ARTHUR, FRANK E.
Gladwin, Mich., July 21-31.
Conneautville, Pa., Aug. 4-14.
Huntington, W. Va., Aug. 17-Sept. 4.

AYCOCK, JARRETTE AND DELL.
(2923 Troost Ave., Kansas City, Mo.)
Poteau, Okla., July 13-24.
Nampa, Idaho, August 4-14.
Kearney, Neb., August 19-28.

BABCOCK, C. H.
Douglas, Mass., July 14-24.
Hollow Rock, Toronto, O. July 28-August 7.

Wakefield, Va., August 5-15.
Wichita, Kan., August 18-28.
Blackwell, Okla., Aug. 29-Sept. 4.
Thomas, Okla., Sept. 15-25.

BELEW, P. P.
(1529 W. Nelson St., Marion, Ind.)
Franklin, Ind., July 15-31.

BENNARD, GEO.
Meaford, Ontario, Can., July 20-31.
Romeo, Mich., Aug. 4-14.

BENNETT, W. G.
Newark, Ohio, July 1-24.
Manchester, O., Aug. 10-Sept. 1.

BONINE, GRACE O.—RIGGS, HELEN G.
Vandalia, Mich., August 17-28.

BRENEMAN, A. P. AND MRS.
Moberly, Mo., July 15-31.
Seymour, Mo., August 4-14.
Ava, Mo., August 24-Sept. 4.

BREWER, GRADY.
(High Falls, S. C.)
Open date, Sept. 19-Oct. 21.

BROWNING, RAYMOND.
West Asherville, N. C., July 20-26.
Columbus, Ohio, July 28-Aug. 7.
New Albany, Ind., August 8-14.

BUDMAN, ALMA L.
(Song Evangelist)
(101 Carpenter St., Muncy, Pa.)
Hughesville, Pa., July 21-31.
Linden Hall, Pa., August 6-20.

BURNETT, W. EVANS.
(Lake Charles, La.)
Open dates for July and August.
Alexandria, La., June 17-25.

BUSSEY, M. M.
Dallas, Ore., July 17-Aug. 1.

CALLIS, O. H.
Nashville, Tenn., July 17-31.
Hartsell, Ala., August 4-14.

CANADAY, FRED.
(1518 Killingsworth Ave., Portland, Ore.)
Mt. Vernon, Va., July 28-Aug. 7.
Spotsylvania, Va., Aug. 19-28.

CAIN, W. R.
(515 So. Vine St., Wichita, Kan.)
Omaha, Neb., July 14-24.
St. Croix Falls, Wis., July 28-Aug. 7.
Wichita, Kan., August 18-28.

CAROTHERS, J. L. AND SADIE.
Ferndale, Wash., July 21-31.
Tacoma, Wash., August 1-14.
Nezperce, Idaho, August 17-31.

CHATFIELD, C. C. AND FLORA.
(410 B. Carl St., Winchester, Ind.)
Warsaw, Ohio, July 28-August 7.
Radcliff, Ohio, August 14-28.
Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 29-Sept. 11.
Durand, Mich., Sept. 11-Oct. 2.
Ellet, Ohio, Oct. 3-16.

CLARKE, C. S.
(808 N. Ash, Guthrie, Okla.)
Jones, Okla., July 10-24.
Guthrie, Okla., July 31-Aug. 21.

COLEMAN, PAUL.
(1620 Fairfax Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio.)
Frankfort, Ind., August 8-11.
Springfield, Ohio, August 12-24.

COLLIER, J. A.
(197 Cephas Ave., Nashville, Tenn.)
Providence, Ky., July 10-Aug. 7.

COPELAND, H. E.
(Oskaloosa, Iowa)
Thomas, S. Dak., July 24-Aug. 14.

COX, F. W. AND WIFE.
Crawfordsville, Ore., (Wesleyan Church)
July 20-Aug. 7.

DECKER, WALTER REED.
(Song Evangelist)
(124 Gould St., Cory, Pa.)
Open dates for Fall and Winter.

DICKERSON, H. N.
(2608 Newman St., Ashland, Ky.)
Bloomington, Ind., July 17-31.
Kirk, Colo., August 18-28.

DYE, CHARLES.
(430 Williams St., Troy, Ohio)
Fisher, Ky., July 24-Aug. 7.
Selma, Ind., August 11-28.

ELSNER, THEO. AND WIFE.
(1451 Pacific St., Brooklyn, N. Y.)
Reading, Pa., July 22-31.
Wilmington, Mass., Aug. 5-14.

FLEMING, JOHN.
N. Little Rock, Ark., July 29-Aug. 8.
National Park Camp, New Jersey, Aug. 12-21.

FLEMING, BONA.
Dallas, Tex., July 15-24.
Little Rock, Ark., July 29-Aug. 7.
National Park, N. J., August 12-21.
Ingersoll, Okla., Aug. 26-Sept. 4.

FLEXON, R. S.
(Shacklefords, Va.)
Lothian, Md., July 15-31.
Clinton, Pa., August 5-14.
Glassboro, N. J., August 15-21.
Delanco, N. J., Aug. 17-Sept. 5.

FRYHOFF, A. J.
Zanesfield, Ohio, July 17-28.
Mt. Gilead, Ohio, July 29-Aug. 7.

FUGETT, C. B.
(2513 Holt St., Ashland, Ky.)
Haltown, Mo., July 24-Aug. 7.
Normal, Ill., August 19-28.
Cape May, N. J., Sept. 9-17.

GADDIS, TILDEN H.
(4805 Ravenna St., Cincinnati, Ohio)
Aspen Grove, Ky., July 11-24.
Oregon, Wis., July 31-Aug. 14.
Charleston, Ill., August 19-28.
Upland, Ind., Sept. 2-17.

GEIL, PAUL AND DORA.
(Frankfort, Ind.)
(Singers and Xylophone Players)
North Manchester, Ind., July 1-30.
Kokomo, Ind., Aug. 1-28.
Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 16-Nov. 6.
Brazil, Ind., Nov. 13-27.
Anamosa, Iowa, Dec. 1-30.

GLEASON, RUFUS H.
(Central, S. C.)
General Conference, June 22-28.
Marion, Ind., July 3-24.
Cadillac, Mich., July 26-Aug. 7.
Charles City, Ia., Aug. 16-28.

GLENN, REV AND MRS. J. M.
Chatam, Ala., July 24-Aug. 7.
Indian Springs, Ga., Aug. 11-21.
Eastman, Ga., Sept. 4-18.

GREEN, JIM H.
(Box 200, Connelly Springs, N. C.)
Bostic, N. C., July 17-20.
Connelly Springs, N. C., Aug. 7-15.

GROGG, W. A.
(Ronceverte, W. Va.)
Smithers, W. Va., July 2-22.
Mt. Lake Park, Md., July 26-Aug. 4.
Pinch, W. Va., August 20-Sept. 3.

GROSE, JOHN A.
(Shepherdstown, W. Va.)
Front Royal, Va., Aug. 28-Sept. 11.

HALLMAN, W. A. AND WIFE.
Didsbury, Alta., July 21-31.
Elkhart, Ind., August 4-14.
Lincoln, Neb., August 19-29.

HARRIS, B. F.
Klondike, Tex., July 15-31.
Dillard, Okla., Aug. 1-14.
Riley, Kan., Aug. 17-Sept. 4.

HEWSON, JOHN E.
(127 N. Chestnut Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.)
Gordon, Neb., July 17-27.
Sherman, Ill., August 4-14.
Portage, Ohio, Aug. 18-28.

HOLLENBACK, URAL T.
Norristown, Pa., Oct. 2-16.

HORN, LUTHER A.—MARSHALL, R. P.
(Box 1322, Mobile, Ala.)
Salem, Ala., July 12-24.
Suggsville, Ala., July 31-Aug. 12.
Clear Springs, Ala., Aug. 14-28.
Louisville, Ala., Sept. 1-14.

HULSE, AARON.
Oklahoma City, Okla., July 10-31.
Letona, Okla., Aug. 9-28.

HUNT, JOHN J.
(Media, Pa., Rt. 3.)
Douglas, Mass., July 15-25.
Rosslyn, Va., July 28-Aug. 8.
Wilkinsburg, Pa., Sept. 16-25.

IRICK, ALLIE AND EMMA.
(Bethany, Okla.)
Goddard, Ky., July 21-31.
Cambria, Ill., August 4-14.
Bonnie, Ill., August 19-29.
Millport, Ala., Aug. 31-Sept. 12.
Thomas, Okla., Sept. 15-25.

JOHNSON, ANDREW
Ruggles camp, Ky., July 21-31.
Eldorado, Ill., August 4-14.

KENNEDY, ROBERT J.
(Singer)
Tuscumbia, Ala., July 4-24.
Seagraves, Tex., Aug. 17-31.

KINSEY, W. C. AND WIFE.
(452 So. West 2nd St., Richmond, Ind.)
(Song Leader, Singers, Pianist)
Mendon, Ohio, July 14-24.
Campbellsville, Ky., Aug. 12-21.

KINSEY FRANK E.
(1220 Tecumseh St., Indianapolis, Ind.)
Ft. Branch, Ind., July 7-24.
Birds, Ill., July 31-Aug. 21.
Urbana, Ill., Aug. 24-26.

LILLENAS, HALDOR AND BERTHA.
Carmichael, Pa., July 21-31.
Sherman, Ill., August 4-14.
Connorsville, Ind., Oct. 2-16.

LITTRELL, V. W. AND MARGUERITE.
(1214 Scott St., Beatrice, Neb.)
Urichville, Ohio, July 22-Aug. 7.
Chariton, Ia., Aug. 14-28.

LOVELESS, W. W.
(London, Ohio)
Warsaw, Ohio, July 21-31.
Des Arc, Mo., Aug. 13-28.

LUDWIG, THEODORE AND MINNIE.
(772 N. Euclid Ave., St. Louis, Mo.)
Racine, Wis., July 19-24.
Hector, Minn., July 26-Aug. 7.
Nokomis, Ill., Aug. 9-21.

McBRIDE, J. B.
(112 Arlington Drive, Pasadena, Calif.)
Mount Olivet, Ky., July 15-25.
Hollis, Okla., July 27-Aug. 7.
Noonday, Tex., August 11-21.
Oakland City, Ind., Aug. 25-Sept. 4.

McGHEE, ANNA E.
Sharon Center, Ohio, July 28-Aug. 4.
Mt. Vernon, O., Aug. 4-14.

McCORD, W. W.
(Sale City, Ga.)
Sale City, Ga., August 11-21.

McNEESE, HERBERT J.
Open dates, July and August.
(New Brighton, Pa., 634 13th Ave.)

MAXWELL, PROF. S. A.
(Graham, N. C.)
Gold Hill, N. C., July 10-24.
Open dates, August.

MILLER, REV. AND MRS. F. E.
(Lowville, N. Y.)
Moers, N. Y., July 30-Aug. 14.
Richland, N. Y., August 21-Sept. 5.

MILLER, JULIUS.
(Mattoon, Wis.)
New Effington, S. Dak., July 10-24.

Ortonville, Minn., July 26-Aug. 7.
Jamestown, N. Dak., Aug. 10-14.

MILLER, JAMES.
(1249 N. Holme Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.)
Lynn, Ind., July 10-24.
Hope, Mich., July 31-Aug. 14.

MINGLEDOERFF, O. G.
(Blackshear, Ga.)
Grand Bayou, La., July 17-31.
Orlando, Fla., Aug. 25-Sept. 5.

MONK, ALONZO, JR.
Tuscumbia, Ala., July 5-24.
Winslow, Ark., July 26-Sept. 1.
Paris, Tenn., Sept. 3-24.
October, November, December open.

MORGAN, R. L.
(Olivet, Ill.)
Tilden, Ill., July 11-24.
Milwaukee, Wis., July 27-Aug. 14.

MORRIS, (JUDGE) FRANK
(P. O. Box 1523, Dallas, Tex.)
China Springs, Tex., July 24.
Aspermont, Tex., August 7.
Hagerman, N. Mex., Aug. 28.
Alamogordo, N. Mex., Sept. 11.
Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 2.

NELSON, S. S.
(832 Worth Ave., Greensboro, N. C.)
Organ Cave, W. Va., Oct. 1-10.
Ranceverte, W. Va., Oct. 12-25.

NORRIS, JOHN.
Drainsville, Va., August 17-28.
Ocean Grove, N. J., Aug. 29-Sept. 3.

OWEN, G. F. AND BYRDIE.
(1415 West Pikes Peak Ave., Colorado
Springs, Colo.)
Ft. Dodge, Iowa, July 12-24.
Climbing Hill, Iowa, July 29-August 1.
Open date, August 7-21.
Bath, Maine, Aug. 28-Sept. 12.
South Portland, Maine, Sept. 18-Oct. 2.

OWEN, JOHN F.
(Taylor University, Upland, Ind.)
Freeport, La., July 14-24.
Mt. Vernon, Ohio, August 4-14.
Alexandria, Ind., August 15-21.
Tarrant, Ala., Aug. 28-Sept. 11.

POLLOCK, G. S. AND WIFE.
(Wilmore, Ky.)
Eldorado, Ill., August 4-14.

POLLITT, S. H.
Open date, June 20-July 31.
Orangeburg, Ky., August 1-14.
Wagoner's Chapel, Ky., August 15-25.

QUINN, IMOGENE.
(909 N. Tuxedo St., Indianapolis, Ind.)
Oregon, Wis., July 29-August 14.

REDMON, J. E. AND ADA
South Bend, Ind., July 8-24.
California, Ky., August 19-28.

REED, LAWRENCE.
(Damascus, Ohio)
Sebring, Ohio, July 15-24.
Albany, N. Y., July 31-Aug. 14.
Richland, N. Y., August 21-Sept. 5.
Cumberland, Md., Sept. 10-20.

REES, PAUL S.
(Pasadena, Calif.)
Ferndale, Wash., July 22-31.
New Albany, Ind., August 4-14.
Cherry Grove, Ind., August 15-19.

REID, JAMES V.
(2912 Meadowbrook Drive, Ft. Worth, Tex.)
Jackson, Tenn., July 19-Aug. 3.
Magnolia, Ark., Aug. 4-14.
Utica, Miss., Aug. 17-28.

RICE, LEWIS J. AND EDYTHE
(2923 Troost Ave., Kansas City, Mo.)
Madill, Okla., July 17-31.
Kingston, Okla., August 4-21.

RINEBARGER, C. C.
(Olivet, Ill.)
Douglas, Mass., July 15-24.
North Little Rock, Ark., July 28-Aug. 7.
Ramsey, Ind., Aug. 12-22.
Oakland City, Ind., Aug. 26-Sept. 4.

ROMINE, JOHN A.
Poplar Springs, Ala., July 27-Aug. 6.
Mt. Mariah, Ala., Aug. 6-16.
Sanderson's Chapel, Ala., Aug. 17-25.

ROBERTS, T. P.
Helena, Ky., July 18-31.
Hillcrest, Ill., Aug. 19-25.

ROOD, PERRY R.
(2838 Overlook Drive, Huntington, W. Va.)
West Liberty, Ohio, Dec. 2-Jan. 7.

SANFORD, E. L. AND WIFE.
(20 Engman Ave., Lexington, Ky.)
Covington, Ky., July 12-28.
Bethel Ridge, Ky., July 31-Aug. 21.

SHANK, MR. AND MRS. R. A.
Mt. Olivet, Ky., July 15-25.
Romeo, Mich., August 5-14.
Kampsville, Ill., Aug. 8-18.

ST. CLAIR, FRED
(2444 Bowditch St., Berkeley, Calif.)
Portland, Oregon, July 31-August 28.

SHARROW, C. E. AND NEVA B.
(Wren, Ohio)
Robinson, Ill., July 17-August 1.
Open date, August.

SHELHAMER, E. E.
(5410 Bushy W. Dr., Los Angeles, Calif.)
Inkerman, Ont., July 14-24.
Owasso, Mich., Aug. 4-14.
Wichita, Kan., Aug. 18-28.
Binghamton, N. Y., Sept. 25-Oct. 9.
Allentown, Pa., Oct. 16-30.

SWEETEN, H. W.
Freeport, N. Y., July 14-24.
Toronto, O., July 28-Aug. 8.
Circleville, Ohio, Aug. 26-Sept. 5.

TEETS, ODA B.
(Aurora, W. Va.)
Jollytown, Pa., July 10-24.

Odesa, W. Va., July 31-Aug. 14.
Mt. Nebo, W. Va., Aug. 17-31.

THOMAS, JOHN.
(Willmore, Ky.)
Kittanning, Pa., July 14-24.
Moers, N. Y., August 1-14.
Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 16-28.
Clarksburg, Ont., Can., Sept. 9-18.

VANDALL, N. B.
Pittman, N. J., July 20-Aug. 2.
Findlay, Ohio, Aug. 11-21.
Mt. Lookout, Ohio, Aug. 25-Sept. 4.

VAYHINGER, M.
Letts, Ind., July 29-August 7.
Bryantsburg, Ind., Aug. 19-28.
Nashville, Ind., July 6-17.

WATTS, E. E.
(Sandy Lake, Pa.)
Belle Plaine, Iowa, July 19-Aug. 7.
Open dates, August 9-31.

WELLS, KENNETH AND EUNICE.
Hollow Rock, Toronto, O., July 28-August 7.
Conneautville, Pa., August 8-14.
Hopkins, Mich., August 18-28.

WHITAKER, J. H.
(Box 385, Arlington, Tex.)
Van Alstyne, Tex., July 22-31.
Open date, Aug. 5-17.
Iredell, Tex., Aug. 19-30.

WHITEHURST, R. F.
(Willmore, Ky.)
New York District Nazarene Church,
June and July.
Magnolia, Ark., August 4-14.

WILLIAMS, L. E.
(Willmore, Ky.)
Robinson, Maine, August 5-15.
Open date, Aug. 19-Sept. 4.

WIMBERLY, C. F.
Greenville, Ky., July 20-30.
Willmore, Ky., July 31-Aug. 5.
Eldorado, Ill., Aug. 5-15.
Ringgold, La., August 16-28.

WINLAND, C. B.
Wauseon, Ohio, July 13-27.
Peoli, Ohio, Aug. 14-28.

WIREMAN, C. L.
(7276 Scott St., Covington, Ky.)
Wilson Run, Ohio, July 29-Aug. 14.
Rising Sun, Ind., Sept. 7-18.
Open date, August 15-28.
Kingswood, Ky., Aug. 30-Sept. 6.
Burlington, Ky., Sept. 20-Oct. 2.

YOUNG, ALVIN.
Vermontville, N. Y., July 14-24.
Denton, Md., July 25-31.
Portsmouth, R. I., Aug. 1-7.
Glassboro, N. J., Aug. 11-21.

YOUNG, R. A.
Open dates, July 7-31.
Bowersville, O., Aug. 4-14.
Waynesboro, Miss., Aug. 19-28.

CAMP MEETING CALENDAR.

ALABAMA.

Hartselle, Ala., camp, August 4-14. Workers: Revs. O. H. Callis, Joseph Owen and Harry Blackburn. L. O. Waldsmith, Sec.
Birmingham, Ala., camp, July 20-31. Workers: Rollo D. Wise, Mrs. Golden L. Young. Write W. H. Sillman.

ARKANSAS.

Beebe, Ark., camp, August 11-22. Workers: Rev. Josiah Tucker, Willard B. Davis, song leader. Write Mrs. Callie Harrison, Sec., P. O. Box 12, Beebe, Ark.

GEORGIA.

Indian Springs, Ga., camp, Aug. 11-21. Workers: Rev. H. C. Morrison, Rev. J. L. Brasher, Rev. C. W. Butler. Young People's worker, Mrs. Yero M. Glenn. Director of music, Mr. Hamp Sewell. Address R. F. Burdew, Macon, Ga.

Sale City, Ga., camp, August 11-21. Workers: Rev. Chas. A. Gibson, Rev. O. J. Nease. Song leader, Rev. Frank Watkins. Musician, Mrs. Frank Watkins. Special singers, The Vaughn Radio Quartette. W. W. McCord, President.

IDAHO.

Nampa, Idaho, camp, August 4-14. Workers: Rev. Bud Robinson, Revs. Jarrette and Del Aycock and daughter. For information write A. E. Sanner, Chair., 14th and 12th Nampa, Idaho.

ILLINOIS.

Murphysboro, Ill., camp, July 21-31. Workers: Rev. Elmer McKay, Rev. Wm. Z. Horbury. Address, A. A. Chamberlain, Sec., Carterville, Ill.

Hillcrest, Ill., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Rev. E. E. Montgomery, Rev. T. P. Roberts. Prof. and Mrs. R. A. Shank in charge of singing and dancing. Chas. F. New, Sec., Kampsville, Ill.

Charleston, Ill., camp, Aug. 19-28. Workers: Rev. T. H. Gaddis and the Moser Sisters, assisted by district preachers. Rev. Chas. Slater will represent missions. Correspond with Rev. W. M. Hall, Charleston, Ill.

Cambria, Ill., camp, August 4-14. Workers: Rev. Allie Irick and wife, Mrs. Emma Irick, Rev. Elmer McKay, Rev. J. R. Moore in charge of the singing. The Girls' Quartette, of Taylor University will also be in attendance. Dr. John Paul will be with us for at least one week. Sec., A. C. Wolfe, Sec., Carterville, Ill., Route 1.

Bonnie, Ill., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Revs. Allie and Emma Irick, Rev. Elmer McKay, Prof. John E. Moore. W. T. Lawson, Cor. Sec., Benton, Ill.

Greenville, Ill., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Bishop Joseph F. Berry, Rev. Guy Wilson, The Prestons, song leaders. A. B. Plog, Cor.-Sec.

Normal, Ill., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Rev. Harry W. Morrow, Rev. C. B. Fugett, Rev. Harold Johnson, song leader. Rev. Della B. Stretch, children's worker. Address Mrs. Bertha C. Ashbrook, Sec., 45 West Allen St., Springfield, Ill.

Sherman, Ill., camp, August 4-14. Workers: Rev. A. L. Whitcomb, Rev. J. E. Hewson, Haldor Lillenas and wife, song leaders; Mrs. Della B. Stretch, children's worker. For information write Mrs. Julia Short Hayes, 2217 East Capitol Ave., Springfield, Ill.

Eldorado, Ill., camp, August 4-14. Workers: Dr. C. F. Wimberly, Dr. Andrew Johnson, Rev. G. S. Pollock and wife in charge of the music. J. M. Keasler, Sec., Omaha, Ill.

INDIANA.

Ramsey, Ind., August 12-21. Workers: M. G. Stanley, J. B. Keifer; Mrs. J. C. Gray, children's worker; C. C. Rinebarger and wife, leaders in song. Address Geo. F. Pinaire, Sec., Ramsey, Ind.

Bryantsburg, Ind., camp, August 19-28. Workers: Rev. Monroe Vayhinger, The Payne Evangelistic Party, consisting of Sister Fannie Payne, Miss Bertha Pultz, Miss Ruth Cooper. For information write Chas. E. Cleek, Madison, Ind., Rt. 9.

Frankfort, Ind., camp, August 5-14. Workers: Rev. T. M. Anderson, Rev. G. Arnold Hodgkin, Rev. J. C. Brillhart, song evangelist, Rev. C. C. Mourer, special musician. For full particulars write Rev. D. E. Snow, Sec., 123 W. 24th St., Anderson, Ind.

Letts, Ind., camp, July 29-August 7. Workers: M. Vayhinger, Dwight M. Peffley, song evangelist, Mrs. Lena Holcomb, pianist. Address Rev. Arthur McQueen, Pres., Westport, Ind.

New Albany, Ind., Silver Heights, Aug. 4-14. Workers: Revs. Virgil L. Moore and Raymond Browning, Paul S. Rees. Mrs. T. B. Falbot, children's worker. Mate Quartet of Asbury College in charge of music. Address E. B. McPheeters, Sec., 212 Cherry St., New Albany, Ind.

Cleveland, Ind., camp, August 26-Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. John T. Hatfield, Rev. G. Arnold Hodgkin, Wright Brothers, Song leaders, Miss Florence Wyse, pianist. For information write Rev. C. E. Ellsworth, Sec., Greenfield, Ind., Rt. 3.

Oakland City, Ind., camp, August 26-Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. J. B. McBride, Rev. Ira Aykers, Rev. C. C. Rinebarger and wife, song evangelists. Write Mrs. Warrick Yeager, Sec., 518 S. Hall St., Princeton, Ind.

KANSAS.

Wichita, Kan., camp, Aug. 18-28. Workers: Rev. Chas. H. Babcock, Rev. E. E. Shelhamer, Rev. M. Anderson, Mrs. Ernest D. Bartlett, Harold C. Miller and Prof. B. D. Sutton and wife. Address W. R. Cain, Sec., 515 So. Vine St., Wichita, Kan.

KENTUCKY.

Aliceton, Ky., camp, July 21-31. Workers: Rev. Virgil L. Moore, Rev. G. B. Traynor, Rev. B. W. Winters, song leader. Mrs. P. C. Gillispie, pianist. Mr. L. L. Mt. Hope, Ky., camp, July 21-31. Workers: Rev. Allie Irick and wife, Mrs. Emma Irick, evangelists. Address Robt. Helphinstine, Goddard, Ky.

Carthage, Ky., camp, Aug. 19-28. Workers: Rev. Freddie Thomas, J. E. and Ada Redmon. For information write J. R. Moore, Pres., California, Ky., R.F.D. No. 1, Rawlings, Sec., Bradfordsville, Ky.

Acton, Ky., camp, August 12-20. Workers: Rev. Andrew Johnson, Prof. W. C. Kinsey and wife, song leaders. E. E. Eads, Sec.

Willmore, Ky., camp, July 28-Aug. 7. Workers: Rev. C. F. Pinaire, Rev. J. L. Brasher and H. S. Blackburn, Rev. H. C. Morrison, Pres., will preach also. Address C. A. Lovejoy, Sec., Willmore, Ky.

Callis Grove, Ky., camp, August 5-14. Workers: Rev. Fielding T. Howard, J. Dorothy Huyett, song leader, Miss Ethel Sager, pianist. I. H. Driskell, Sec., Milton, Ky., Route 3.

Depoy, Ky., camp, July 20-31. Workers: Rev. C. F. Wimberly, F. T. Howard, Rufus Graham, Sec., Graham, Ky.

Tolu, Ky., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Rev. Fielding T. Howard, Charles I. Lear, leader of song. Write J. W. Napier, Tolu, Ky.

MAINE.

Robinson, Maine, camp, August 5-14. Workers: Evangelist Life E. Williams, assisted by local help. For information write Rev. P. J. Trotton, Pres. and Sec., 341 Union St., St. Johns, N. B., Can.

MARYLAND.

North East, Md., camp, August 5-14. Workers: Rev. J. B. Chapman, Rev. B. F. Neely and daughters. Miss Christine Williams, children's worker. Information from Rev. J. N. Nielson, Bus. Mgr., 212 Parker Ave., Collingdale, Pa.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Douglas, Mass., camp, July 15-25. Workers: Rev. C. H. Babcock, Mrs. Jane Reed, young people's worker. C. C. Rinebarger, musical director. Rev. N. J. Raison, Sec., Blue Hills Ave., Mattapan, Mass.

MICHIGAN.

Hope Center, Mich., camp, July 31-Aug. 14. Workers: James Miller, Paul White. Write Ashby Mills, Sec., Hope, Mich.

Eaton Rapids, Mich., camp, July 29-August 7. Workers: Dr. John Paul, Rev. Will Huff, Dr. S. H. Turbeville. Rev. L. H. Nixon in charge of music, with H. Morse Skinner at the piano. Mrs. Blanche Francis in charge of young people's work. For information write Miss Fern C. Wheeler, Sec., Charlotte, Mich.

Gladwin, Mich., camp, July 21-31. Workers: Rev. Frank Arthur, Miss Jean Reid, song leader. For information write E. F. Bailey, Sec., Gladwin, Mich.

Owosso, Mich., camp, August 5-14. Workers: Rev. Geo. B. Kulp, Rev. E. E. Shelhamer. L. W. Sturk, Sec., 1506 Bennett Ave., Flint, Mich.

Romeo, Mich., camp, August 5-14. Workers: George Bennett, Rev. C. W. Butler, Rev. Will Huff, and Rev. S. H. Turbeville. Mrs. W. I. Francis, Young People's worker. Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Shank, song leaders. E. L. Jaquish, Sec., R. F. D. 5, Pontiac, Mich.

Maybee, Mich., camp, August 11-21. Workers: Miss Edna Banning, J. C. Walker and wife, the Douglas Brothers, (Scotch thumtists). Mrs. Clara Palmer, Sec., 544 Thompson St., Ann Arbor, Mich.

MISSISSIPPI.

Frost Bridge, Miss., camp, August 19-28. Workers: Rev. R. A. Young and other helpers. Address Mrs. J. E. Moody, Sec., Waynesboro, Miss.

MISSOURI.

Ava, Mo., camp, August 25-Sept. 4. Workers: A. P. Beaman and wife, C. E. Woodson and local assistants. For information write Mrs. Mattie Wallace, Ava, Mo., Route 1.

NEBRASKA.

Kearney, Neb., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Rev. E. O. Hobbs, Rev. Jarrette and Dell Aycock, Mrs. C. P. Turner. Address all communications to Mr. B. J. Patterson, Sec., Kearney, Neb.

NEW JERSEY.

Erma, N. J., camp, Sept. 9-18. Workers: Rev. C. B. Fugett, Rev. K. Hawley Jackson and wife. For information write Earl Woolson, Cape May, N. J., R.F.D.

Glassboro, N. J., camp, August 11-21. Workers: Rev. H. J. Olsen, R. G. Flexon, Alvin Young, Write M. Gallagher, 40 Myrtle Ave., Pitman, N. J.

21. Workers: Rev. Bona Fleming, Rev. John Fleming, Mr. Burt P. Sparks, singer. Fletcher Grove, Delanco, N. J., camp, August 27-Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. Theo. Elsnor, Mrs. Theo. Elsnor, Rev. Richard G. Flexon, Jr.

NEW YORK.

Moers, N. Y., camp, July 30-Aug. 14. Workers: Joseph H. Smith, J. F. Knapp, John and Emily Thomas, Zahniser, John Scoles, Tillie Albright, Arthur Goul, song leader. Address Kenneth F. Pee, Sec., Moers, N. Y.

NORTH CAROLINA.

Connelly Springs, N. C., camp, August 7-14. Workers: Rev. Joseph H. Smith, The Greensboro Bible School Band and Quartette and others. For information address Box 200, Connelly Springs, N. C.

OHIO.

Unipolis, Ohio, camp, August 25-Sept. 4. Workers: L. S. Hoover, Rev. Herb Walker. Prof. N. B. Vandall has charge of hte music. Address Geo. W. Watman, Unipolis, Ohio.

Napoleon, Ohio, camp, July 31-August 14. Workers: Miss Celia M. Bradshaw and Miss Helena Sanholtz. For information address Rev. R. W. Wolfe, Napoleon, Ohio.

Dayton, Ohio, camp, July 21-31. Workers: Rev. Jesse Whitecotton and others. Rev. and Mrs. A. H. Johnston in charge of music. Address Rev. J. L. Kennett, 33 North Kilmer St., Dayton, Ohio.

Mendon, Ohio, camp, July 14-24. Workers: Rev. W. L. Surbrook, W. B. Kinsey and wife, Write W. A. Barber, Sec., Mendon, Ohio, Route 1.

Ludlow Falls, Ohio, camp, July 28-August 7. Workers: Rev. H. M. Metger, Rev. J. A. Beery, Rev. S. M. Eldsath, Rev. J. I. Moore, song leader. Miss Edith Schryer, children's worker. Roy Harshbarger, Sec., West Milton, Ohio.

Portage, Ohio, camp, August 18-28. Workers: Geo. B. Kulp and John E. Hewson. Song leader, Dwight M. Peffley. Address E. L. Day, Sec.

Findlay, Ohio, camp, August 11-21. Workers: C. H. Stalker, B. H. Haynie, Mrs. Anna Smith, W. B. Vandall, singer. Miss Florine Ewing, pianist. G. W. Egbert, Sec.

Warsaw, Ohio, camp, July 21-31. Workers: Rev. W. W. Loveless and Dr. W. H. McLaughlin. Song leaders, Rev. Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Chatfield. For information write Adah Shepard, Sec., Warsaw, Ohio.

Mt. Vernon, Ohio, (Camp Sycar), camp, August 4-14. Workers: Rev. C. M. Dunaway, Rev. John Owen, Rev. E. Hilton Post, Song leader. Prof. W. B. Yates, Young people's worker, Miss Anna McGhie, Children's workers, Miss May Gorsuch and Miss Ollie Tanner. Young people's song leader, Rev. W. L. Mullet. Address Rev. E. B. Seitz, Ohio, Shadyside, Ohio.

Montgomery, (Hollow Rock), Ohio, July 28-August 7. Workers: C. W. Ruth, C. H. Babcock, Howard Sweeten. Song leader, Prof. Kenneth Wells and wife. Young People's and Children's meeting leader, Mrs. Sadie Misney. Address Roy L. Householder, Sec., Toronto, Ohio.

Sebring, Ohio, camp, July 14-28. Workers: Rev. Joseph H. Smith, Rev. H. C. Morrison, Rev. C. W. Ruth, Rev. T. M. Anderson, Rev. Lawrence Reed, Kenneth Wells and wife in charge of singing. Mrs. Jos. Smith and Miss Janie Bradford in charge of young people. Miss Ruth in charge of children's meetings. Address W. L. Murphy, Sebring, Ohio.

Circleville, Ohio, camp, August 26-Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. T. P. Roberts, Rev. Howard W. Sweeten, Rev. Charles L. Slater. Rev. E. A. Keaton, Cor. Sec., 481 N. High St., Chillicothe, Ohio.

Columbus, Ohio, camp, July 28-Aug. 7. Workers: Rev. Floyd Neese, Rev. Raymond Browning, Rev. F. M. Messenger, Rev. J. G. Morrison, Rev. and Mrs. B. D. Sutton, gospel singers, Rev. Chas. A. Gibson. Vaughn Radio Quartette. Write Rev. Orval J. Nease, 146 King Ave., Columbus, Ohio.

OKLAHOMA.

Blackwell, Okla., camp, August 25-Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. C. H. Babcock, Rev. Geo. Bennett and Willard Davis. Address Mrs. A. L. Wright, Sec., 307 E. College, Blackwell, Okla.

May, Okla., camp, July 21-31. No special help has been called but God's true ones are invited from everywhere. For information write L. B. Pile, Sec., May, Okla.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Carmichaels, Pa., camp, July 21-31. Workers: Rev. C. W. Butler, Rev. Haldor and Bertha Lillenas. Write Rev. L. O. Douds, Sec., Carmichaels, Pa.

Kricktown, Pa., camp, July 22-31. Workers: Rev. Theodore Elsnor and wife, Rev. Clifford E. Keys and wife, Rev. C. D. Dreher, John Aten, Sec., 1102 Douglass St., Reading.

Conneautville, Pa., camp, August 5-14. Workers: Rev. J. L. Brasher, Thomas

Henderson, Rev. F. A. Arthur, Prof. Kenneth Wells and wife, Emma Valentine. Address C. A. Lockwood, Cor. Sec., 2740 Louisiana Ave., (Darmont) Pittsburgh, Pa.

Clinton, Pa., camp, August 5-14. Workers: Rev. R. G. Flexon and wife, C. E. Wilson, Rev. J. N. Hampe. Rev. Geo. Cole, song leader. Mrs. Edith Clawson, children's meetings. Write Rev. L. W. King, Clinton, Pa.

Hughesville, Pa., Camp, July 21-July 31. Workers: Rev. Raymond E. Doble, Rev. Claude A. Roane. Song leaders, Mrs. Esther Williamson, assisted by Miss Alma Budman. Mr. Harold Best in charge of the music. Address Rev. S. P. Elroyd, Centre Hall, Pa.

RHODE ISLAND.

Portsmouth, R. I. camp, July 29-Aug. 7. Workers: Chas. H. Stalker, Winfred R. Cox, Alvin Young. For information address, Andrew B. Starbuck, Pres., Newport, R. I.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

Epworth, S. C., camp, August 19-28. Workers: Dr. E. P. Taylor, Dr. John Paul and others. Address Rev. W. P. B. Kinard, Epworth, S. C.

TENNESSEE.

Greenville, Tenn., camp, Sept. 1-11. Workers: Rev. C. M. Dunaway, Miss Ruth Harris in charge of music. Address Mrs. Flora Willis, care Mrs. C. A. Vann, Greenville, Tenn.

Dyer, Tenn., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Dr. A. O. Hendricks, Rev. S. W. Strickland. Miss Ruth Harris, song leader. Joe T. Hall, Sec., Dyer, Tenn.

TEXAS.

Sanco, Texas, camp, July 20-31. Rev. W. E. Hawkins, Jr., evangelist.

Noonday, Texas, camp, August 10-21. Workers: J. B. McBride, C. P. Gossett, song leader. F. E. Dickard, Sec., Hallsville, Tex.

Scottsville, Tex., camp, July 28-Aug. 7. Workers: Rev. Fred H. Ross, Rev. Warren C. McIntyre, Singer, C. P. Gossett. B. F. Wynne, Sec., Marshall, Tex.

Atlanta, Tex., camp, August 12-21. Workers: Dr. R. T. Williams, The Latham Sisters, pianist and leaders of song. Mary E. Perdue, Sec.

Waco, Texas, camp, July 29-August 7. Workers: Rev. Harry S. Allen. For information address Jno. W. Beresford, Sec., Waco, Texas.

VIRGINIA.

Onemo, Va., camp, July 24-31. Workers: Joseph Price, H. Handy, Sue Thomas, Alton Lively. W. C. Diggs, Pres.

Spottsylvania, Va., camp, August 19-29. Workers: Rev. Fred Canaday, Rev. W. L. King, Rev. Bessie B. Larkin. Mrs. W. L. King and Mrs. G. B. King in charge of young people's work. Mrs. Marton Steelman and son, song leader. Address Mrs. B. K. Andrews, Sec., Spottsylvania, Va.

Mt. Vernon, Va., camp, July 29-Aug. 7. Workers: Rev. Wilson Thomas, Rev. C. W. Dyer, Rev. H. H. Hoyt and Fred Canaday. Address Annie Hosley Shrader, Sec., Accotink, Va.

Wakefield, Va., camp, August 5-14. Workers: Dr. C. H. Babcock, Rev. Harry Hayes, Otho M. Cokes, Pres., Elberton, Va.

Drainesville, Va., camp, August 19-28. Workers: Rev. John Norberry. Song leader, Mrs. Marion Birrell. For information address Anna L. Hyatt, Sec., 103 Adams St., N. W., Washington, D. C.

Salem, Va., camp, Sept. 9-19. Workers: Dr. J. W. Carter and Rev. O. H. Callis. For information write J. J. True, Pres., Salem, Va.

WASHINGTON.

Ferndale, Wash., camp, July 21-31. Workers: Rev. Paul Rees, Rev. J. L. and Sadie Carothers. Rev. Wm. Park and wife in charge of singing. Rev. S. Ruth Lortz in charge of children's meetings. A. O. Quall, Sec., Pt. Townsend, Wash.

WISCONSIN.

Oregon, Wis., camp, July 29-August 14. Workers: Rev. Tilden H. Gaddis, Moser Sisters, Miss Imogene Quinn, Prof. Edson Crosby, Miss Karine Kjolseth, and Rev. and Mrs. Jack Linn. Address Jack Linn, Oregon, Wis.

WYOMING.

Basin, Wyo., camp, July 18-31. Workers: Rev. James L. Hilker and Alston Fields. Rev. S. Hutcherson, song leader. Address Miss Grace White, Sec. Basin, Wyo.

SLATY FORK, W. VA.

The Lord gave a splendid meeting at Slaty Fork. It rained nearly every day but the house was filled almost every service. The Spirit of the Lord was present and a number of people sought and found the Lord. The altar was crowded at all the services on the last Sunday of the meeting. We were glad to have in the meeting three former students of Asbury College. Rev. N. S. Hill, the pastor, believes in Bible salvation and in having old-time revivals. May the Lord help all the Methodist churches and Methodist pastors to stand for full salvation as they do in this place. We have some open dates from July 15 to October 1, and will be glad to assist in meetings anywhere the Lord may open up the way.

S. S. Nelson.

832 Worth Ave., Greensboro, N. C.

THE FIGHT IS ON

The fight against sin and for holiness.

The fight against impurity and for purity.

The fight against worldliness in the church and for a holy people.

The fight against immodest dress and for a modest womanhood.

The fight against those who would destroy the Bible, and for the Word.

The fight against Sabbath desecration and for Sabbath observance.

The fight against lawlessness, and for obedience to the law.

The fight against trashy literature and for wholesome literature.

The fight against indifference and for a revival.

THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD IS IN THIS GREAT BATTLE FOR RIGHTEOUSNESS.

and the only way for us to make the fight effective in your community is for you to help us by placing it into every home possible. You will be pleased to know that you can send THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD from now until January 1, 1928, for only 50c, and if we may have your co-operation, you will be instrumental in making this fight effective in your community.

Allow us to suggest that you tell every one you come in contact with what THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD is fighting for, and tell them of this special introductory offer. Also speak to one or more financially able and liberal persons, tell them what you are trying to do, and ask for their co-operation in putting the paper into a number of homes. Then, too, you will find a number of people who tithe who will be glad to invest a little tithe money in a fight of this kind.

Use the blanks below and send in your list within the next few days, so as to give the subscribers the benefit of the full 25 weeks.

Pentecostal Publishing Company, Louisville, Kentucky.

Enclosed find $..... for which please send The Pentecostal Herald weekly from now until January, 1928, to the following:

Name	Name
Address	Address
Name	Name
Address	Address
Name	Name
Address	Address
Name	Name
Address	Address
Name	Name
Address	Address

PENTECOSTAL HERALD

Dr. H. C. Morrison, Editor
Mrs. H. C. Morrison, Associate Editor

Louisville, Ky., Wednesday, July 27, 1927.
Entered at Louisville, Ky., Postoffice as Second Class Matter.

$1.50 Per Year.
Vol. 39, No. 30.

LET THE WORK BE THOROUGH.

By The Editor.

ENTIRE sanctification is wrought in the believers' soul by the baptism with the Holy Ghost. The gift of the Holy Ghost is, so far as we know, instantaneous. He descended like a dove and alighted upon our blessed Lord. He came "suddenly" on the day of Pentecost. So it was at Samaria, at the house of Cornelius, and at Ephesus when Paul preached him to the disciples. A man can no more grow into the baptism with the Holy Ghost than he can grow into the baptism with water. Some man administers the baptism with water; Jesus Christ administers the baptism with the Holy Ghost and fire. John the Baptist promised that he would thus baptize his disciples. On the day of Pentecost Peter said, "He (Jesus) hath shed forth this which ye now see and hear."

* * * *

But we did not wish merely to call attention to the fact that the baptism of the Holy Ghost, purifying the hearts of believers, is an instantaneous blessing, but to emphasize the fact that there must be special preparation for the reception of the Holy Ghost. The disciples themselves waited in the upper room ten days, Jacob wrestled all night, and the Psalmist said, "I waited patiently on the Lord." God, who knoweth the heart, cannot bestow the Holy Ghost, until in the heart there is that condition of grateful desire which Jesus calls "hungering and thirsting after righteousness." David says, "As the hart panteth after the waterbrooks, so panteth my soul after thee, O God." Again he says, "I opened my mouth and panted for I longed for thy commandments."

* * * *

In the work of full salvation it is the wisdom of God to draw out the soul with intense longings, and most importunate prayers and desires. While our Lord was walking the earth he did not bestow his blessings upon those who came to him without testing the sincerity of their purpose and faith. Note the importunity of Bartimeus and the woman who cried after him for her daughter. Even after his crucifixion when he walked with the two disciples on the way to Emmaus, and they came to their stopping place, he made as if he would go further and they "entreated him." Before the believer's soul can exercise that faith that brings from Christ the purifying baptism of the Holy Ghost there must come into the soul such conditions of sorrow because of moral uncleanness, and desire for Christlikeness that there is not only a perfect surrender of self, but a complete consecration of self also.

* * * *

Paul gives us a good picture of a true seeker for all the fullness of God in 2 Cor. 7:11: "For, behold, this self-same thing, that ye sorrowed after a godly sort, what carefulness is wrought in you, yea, what clearing of yourselves, yea, what indignation, yea, what fear, yea, what vehement desire, yea, what zeal, yea, what revenge!" Whatever the subject under discussion by the apostle when the above was written, so it is with the soul longing for the baptism of the Holy Ghost.

* * * *

There is in such a soul deep sorrow because of moral impurity; there is carefulness to avoid the appearance of evil, there is a clearing of one's self of every questionable thing, there arises in the heart a real indignation against one's own vain thoughts and foolish words; there is vehement desire for holiness and a revenge against all obstacles that would cut off a right hand and pluck out a right eye.

* * * *

I am quite ready to admit that all of these conditions may, by the word and Spirit of God, be wrought in the soul in a very short time; but I do most earnestly protest against hurrying people into a profession of entire sanctification. Let the Lord lead them on and reveal to them the great depth of their own depravity, and let their longing souls be filled with such longings for the Lord, that make all the world seem a mere trifle compared with the one pearl of greatest price.

* * * *

Turn to the biographies of those men and women who have been conspicuous for purity and usefulness, out of whose lives flowed rivers of living water, and who, being dead, yet speak—they did not hear of entire sanctification one minute and profess it the next. They found out that the "old man" existed within them and that he was very tenacious of life. They knew something of hungering and thirsting after righteousness. They visited in the deep struggles of their own souls, Gethsemane and the cross. They learned to say out of the depths of their hearts, "If it be possible, let this cup pass from me, nevertheless not as I will, but as thou wilt." They also reached a point where they could say with their Lord, "It is finished." Afterwards they can say with the Apostle Paul, in Gal. 2:20, "I am crucified with Christ: nevertheless I live; yet not I, but Christ liveth in me; and the life which I now live in the flesh, I live by the faith of the Son of God, who loved me and gave himself for me." Brethren, let us watch, that our eagerness to get men sanctified does not lead us to get men to profess the experience before they obtain it.

Monthly Sermon.

PAUL'S CHARGE TO TIMOTHY.

Text: "I give thee charge in the sight of God, who quickeneth all things, and before Christ Jesus, who before Pontius Pilate witnessed a good confession; that thou keep this commandment without spot, irreproachable, until the appearing of our Lord Jesus Christ: which in his times he shall show, who is the blessed and only potentate, the King of kings and Lord of lords." 7 Tim. 6:13, 14, 15.

In the text, we have the climax of Paul's exhortation to Timothy, his son in the Gospel. His charge to Timothy is most solemn. He says to the young minister, "I charge thee in the sight of God," and "before Jesus Christ." We understand that the inspired Apostle realizes the omnipresence of the Father and of the Son and that he is giving his solemn charge in their presence. He refers here to the statement of our Lord in the presence of Pontius Pilate at his mock trial: "And Jesus stood before the governor: and the governor asked him, saying, Art thou the king of the Jews? And Jesus said unto him, Thou sayest." Jesus here admits that he was the King of the Jews. He certainly at this time was not crowned king nor did he have authority and rulership over the Jews, but when the ancient prophet predicted that Jesus would be born in Bethlehem of Judea, he also said that he was to rule in Israel. It was before the high priest that Jesus answered concerning his future glory and power, when the high priest said to Jesus, "I adjure thee by the living God, that thou tell us whether thou be the Christ, the Son of God. Jesus saith unto him, Thou hast said: nevertheless I say unto you, hereafter shall ye see the Son of Man sitting on the right hand of power, and coming in the clouds of heaven." This statement of our Lord sealed his doom. It set the whole court into a frenzy of anger. We can but be reminded of that scene when we see the effect on some of our fellow beings produced by the preaching of the second coming of our Lord. They almost rend their garments.

Nothing could have been more revolting to the enemies of Christ than that he should appear again in the clouds of glory with great power, coming in his majesty and might to judge, to overthrow the powers of evil, to set up a kingdom of righteousness and peace, to cast out Satan, to cast down the principalities and powers of evil and to show "who is the blessed and only potentate, the King of kings and Lord of lords."

No man has ever lived who enjoyed a more unquestioning, unlimited and triumphant faith in Jesus Christ than the Apostle Paul. Some months ago, Dr. Fosdick, who is one of the most pronounced and prominent preachers of modernistic doubt with reference to the Virgin Birth of Christ, the divine inspiration of the Bible, and the New Testament account of the miracles wrought by Christ, in one of his sermons, seeking to produce doubt in the minds of his hearers on the all-important doctrine of the Virgin Birth of our blessed Lord, claimed that the founders of various ancient religions were supposed to have come into existence from God in some supernatural way. He undertakes to sum-

(Continued on page 8)

NOT TO BE USED WITHOUT COPYRIGHT PERMISSION

OF ASBURY THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

THE PENTECOSTAL FULLNESS.

Rev. G. W. Ridout, D.D., Corresponding Editor.

I have never doubted, but always believed that Pentecost was not only a great event recorded in Acts 2 when the Holy Ghost fell upon the church and the dispensation of the Holy Spirit was ushered in, but that Pentecost was become a distinct experience in the life of every believer and that it should be sought for with the utmost diligence and perseverance.

Rev. S. Chadwick, of Cliff College, recently wrote in Joyful News what Pentecost meant to him. He said in part:

"I have written and preached much on the Holy Spirit, for the knowledge of him has been the most vital fact of my experience. I owe everything to the gift of Pentecost. It came to me when I was not seeking it. I was like Saul, who found a kingdom when he was looking for his father's asses. I was about my Heavenly Father's business, seeking means whereby I could do the work to which he had called and sent me, and in my search I came across a prophet, heard a testimony, and set out to seek I knew not what. I knew that it was a bigger thing and a deeper need than I had ever known. It came along the line of duty, and I entered in through a crisis of obedience. When it came I could not explain what had happened, but I was aware of things unspeakable and full of glory. Some results were immediate. There came into my soul a deep peace, a thrilling joy, and a new sense of power. My mind was quickened. I felt that I had received a new faculty of understanding. I do not think it is any exaggeration to say that I became aware of a new mentality. Every power was alert. Either illumination took the place of logic, or reason became intuitive. My bodily powers were quickened. I had given the impression when I first went to tackle my job that I was years older than I was, then something happened and I became young. There was a new sense of spring and vitality, a new power of endurance, and a strong man's exhilaration in big things. Things began to happen. What we had failed to do by strenuous endeavor came to pass without labor. It was as when the Lord Jesus stepped into the boat that with all their rowing had made no progress, immediately the ship was at the land whither they went. It was gloriously wonderful."

Rev. Andrew Murray, that matchless writer on Divine things, puts the blessings of Pentecost in the following manner. He shows it as a Seven-fold Blessing:

- 1.—The abiding presence of Jesus. "This was the source of all other blessings that came at Pentecost."
- 2.—The life and power of sanctification. "This in very truth is still the only way of a real sanctification, a life that actually overcomes sin."
- 3.—A heart overflowing with love. "The Spirit, the disposition, the wonderful love of Jesus, filled them because he Himself had come into them."
- 4.—Weakness changed into strength. "It is the joy of the blessing of Pentecost that gives courage and power to speak for Jesus, because by it the whole heart is filled with him."
- 5.—The Scriptures were illumined from heaven. "The whole of their ancient Scriptures opened up before them; the light of the Holy Spirit in them illumined the Word."
- 6.—The blessing blessed others. "Alike in preaching and in the daily life of a servant of Christ, the full blessing of Pentecost is the sure way of becoming a blessing to others."
- 7.—Pentecost makes the Church what it ought to be. "The power of Jewish prejudice and of pagan hardness of heart was overcome, and the Church of Christ won glorious triumphs. This grand result was achieved

HOW TO READ THE WORD.

By Geo. Muller.

- 1.—Read the Scriptures regularly through.
Read, alternately, portions from the Old and New Testaments. Begin at the beginning of each. Mark where you leave off, and begin there next time. When you have finished each Testament, begin it again.
- 2.—Read with prayer.
You cannot by your own wisdom understand the word of God. In all your reading of the Scriptures, seek carefully the help of the Holy Spirit. Ask for Jesus' sake that he will enlighten you.
- 3.—Read with meditation.
Ponder over what you read. The truth is thus applied to your heart. You see new and deeper meanings. It is better to think over a little than merely to read a great deal.
- 4.—Read with reference to yourself.
Never read only with a view to instructing others, but for your own teaching. Receive blessing yourself first, and you will communicate it to others. Always ask yourself: "How does this affect me?"
- 5.—Read with faith.
Not as statements which you may believe or not, but as the revealed word of God. Receive every word as true, with simple childlike trust. Rest upon the promises. Read them as made for you.
- 6.—Read in order to carry into practice.
We must accept his Word as being the revelation of his will. In it he tells us what to be and what to do. He expects us to be "obedient children."

simply and only because the first Christian Church was filled with the Spirit. He dwelt in them and wrought in them all his wondrous deeds. It is to this same experience that the Church of Christ in our age must come back. This is the only thing that will help her in the conflict with mere civilization or paganism, with sin or the world. She must be filled with the Spirit."

Think of what Pentecost meant to Peter. Dr. W. H. Griffith Thomas states the transforming effect of Pentecost upon Peter in the following manner: (See his book, "The Apostle Peter" published by Sunday School Times, Philadelphia, Pa.)

1. Old excellences confirmed.
Courage (John 18:10; 1 Pet. 3:15; 4:13).
Energy (John 21:3; 1 Pet. 5:8, 9).
Zeal (Matt. 14:28; 1 Pet. 1:13, 22).
Promptness (John 20:4; 2 Pet. 1:10).
2. Old deficiencies supplied.
Steadfastness (1 Pet. 5:10; 2 Pet. 1:10, 12; 3:16, 17).
Humility (1 Pet. 5:6, 7).
Tenderness (1 Pet. 2:11; 4:12; 5:1; 2 Pet. 1:1, 12; 3:1, 14).
3. Old tendencies transformed.
Self-satisfaction (Matt. 17:4) into meekness (1 Pet. 3:15).
Selfishness: "What shall we have?" (Matt. 19:27) into unselfishness: "Such as I have give I" (Acts 3:6).
Presumption (Matt. 14:28) into godly fear (1 Pet. 1:17).
Thoughtlessness (Matt. 16:22) into spiritual experience (1 Pet. 5:6, 7).
Impulsiveness (John 13:37) into well-directed enthusiasm (1 Pet. 2:12; 3:16).
4. Old lessons remembered.
About faith (John 20:29; 1 Pet. 1:8).
About humility (John 13:4-8; 1 Pet. 5:5).
About death (John 21:18, 19; 2 Pet. 1:14).
About watchfulness (Luke 12:35; 1 Pet. 1:13).
About service (John 21:15-17; 1 Pet. 5:2).

Pentecost brought to the early church a new baptism of Faith and Courage and Endurance. The Personal Pentecost will do the same today. Some one has written of Faith thus:

Faith came singing into my room,
And other guests took flight;
Fear and Anxiety, Grief and Gloom
Sped out into the night.
I wondered that such peace could be;

But Faith said gently, "Don't you see,
They really cannot live with me?"

Pentecost brings to the Believer new powers. It awakens and develops and inspires new gifts. The story is told of a young American artist who sat in a National Art Gallery in Europe trying to copy a famous painting by one of the old masters. Day by day he patiently toiled at his easel, but with fruitless results. His work was a poor imitation of the original. One day he fell asleep, and as he slept he dreamed. He dreamed that the spirit of the old master came and took possession of his brain and hand. Eagerly he seized his brush, and taking a fresh piece of canvas rapidly reproduced the masterpiece before him. It had the artistic finish and touch of genius of the original. But the poor artist awoke to find it all a dream; and in bitter disappointment he applied himself to his hopeless task.

Pentecost begets dreams (Acts 2:17) but thank God they are dreams which can be realized. Let our prayer be that of Frances Ridley Havergal.

"Live out Thy life within me,
O Jesus, King of kings;
Be Thou Thyself the answer
To all my questionings."

Pentecost leads the believer to a new realization in personal experience of the passion of God's love.

Dr. Daniel Steele writing on Paul's prayer in Ephesians 3:16-20 says:

"That ye may be able to comprehend with all (perfected) saints, what is the breadth and length and depth and height." The breadth and length of what? Paul has failed to say except by implication in the next verse, from which we infer that it is "the love of Christ." In what sense St. Paul has applied these geometrical dimensions to love, an immaterial quality, it is difficult to determine. But we believe that their meaning is to be sought in the logic of Aristotle, in which St. Paul must have been drilled in the university town of Tarsus, the most celebrated seat of Grecian learning east of Athens. The Greek logicians employ the term breadth to denote the extension of a notion, the number of individuals to whom it will apply, as for instance man includes every being possessed of human attributes. The term depth denotes the intension of a notion, the aggregate of qualities which lie piled up one upon another, in one individual differing him from all others. Sir William Hamilton adds to these logical terms a philosophical term, namely, protension, applicable only to time or extended duration. It is a remarkable fact that as soon as love is fully shed abroad in the believer's heart, he immediately overleaps the limitations of his theology, if it has been so unfortunate as to be educated in the belief of a limited atonement and of the mercy of God cribbed and confined to a personal election, and he feels irresistibly drawn toward every lost sinner as the object of Jesus' mighty love. Hence it is that the missionary spirit is so intense in fully consecrated souls. They have been brought into the most intimate sympathy with the breadth of Christ's love. They plunge into the moral cesspools in our great cities, to pluck lost men and fallen women from the fires of perdition, which are beginning to kindle upon them. The secret motive power which impels them to go down into these pits, and cheerfully breathe the fetid miasmas which settle there, is that they know by experience the amazing breadth of Jesus' love.

"He left his Father's throne above,—
So free, so infinite, his grace,—
Emptied himself of all but love,
And bled for Adam's helpless race.
'Tis mercy all, immense and free,
For, O my God, it found out me!"

MODERN APOSTLES OF FAITH.

Rev. C. F. Wimberly, D.D.

CHAPTER XXI.

BISHOP ISAAC W. JOYCE.

IN the traditions of every religious denomination there are outstanding characters; they rise like the peaks of a mountain range. Methodism has produced some great pastors, great evangelists, great parliamentarians, and great religious statesmen. But how rarely do all these qualities obtain in one man. The evangelist cannot have all the qualities of the careful pastor, and vice versa; the pulpit orator finds himself worried and taxed by the strenuous details of pastoral duties; some of the greatest executors and administrators of church affairs are dull uninteresting preachers.

Among the towering high lights of Methodism there was one who comes more nearly combining in all these qualities than perhaps any other—Isaac W. Joyce, of sainted memory. He had a marvelous complex personality, with decided powers of evangelism; also he was an executor, and did big things in the church, and a religious leader and statesman, all blending in an extraordinary degree. At no time did he lose interest and oversight of the program of the church throughout a long life of service.

Bishop Joyce continued until the end, an ardent, active promoter of revivals, according to the ideal and customs of Methodism in her best days. He closed his earthly career at the Red Rock Holiness camp meeting, near Minneapolis, Minn. His last public message was delivered from that platform, giving full approval to the spirit and doctrines proclaimed there. That Bishop Joyce was there an advocate of the type of evangelism, long since obsolete in Methodist churches, gives him a place among the Chief Shepherds of Methodism which cannot be duplicated without reaching far back to the days of Asbury and McKendree. Bishop Joyce stood for the highest things of Wesleyan Methodism, and without new interpretation or new emphasis, he believed and preached the doctrines of his beloved church. Isaac W. Joyce was a great pastor, a great revivalist, and a great church leader.

Ohio is a state with unusual distinction, having given to the nation presidents and bishops far above her quota; it is the fatherland of presidents and bishops. "Born in Ohio for political purposes," once said a wit in Congress; but the state has given to Methodism thirteen bishops. This is due to the fact that, Ohio, like Texas, in Southern Methodism, holds a balance of power, there being four large conferences in the state. The early pioneers of Methodism almost pre-empted that part of the country. Bishop Joyce was born in poverty, but there coursed through his veins the blood of the purest Irish stock, from Galway County, Ireland.

The Joyce family belonged to the British and Welsh line of nobility. The ancestors still own large tracts of land in Connaught County, and they are of such prominence that the historians call it "the Joyce country." A genealogist says the family was first of the "Jorz" stock, and belonged to the Normans, who conquered England, and such records are extant, dating back to the Twelfth Century. While all such human distinctions are found among his ancestors, and are highly regarded by some, he cared absolutely nothing for them. He used to say, "the most useless coat a man could own, was a Coat of Arms." However, he inherited the sturdy, courageous Norman character, and it was fused with the warm Irish temperament—a rare combination.

On a very humble farm in Hamilton Co., near Cincinnati, Ohio, Oct. 11, 1836, Isaac W. Joyce was born. In the year 1850, the family moved to Indiana, and settled near Lafayette, not far from a place made famous years before by the "Battle of Tippecanoe," led by Gen. William Henry Harrison, against "The Prophet", a famous chief, and brother of Tecumseh. Near this battlefield, in a log hut, covered with morning glories, young Joyce spent his boyhood days. There are no unusual Lincoln stories connected with his early life; it was the drab, uneventful drudgery of a poor family, barren of intellectual and cultural environments. Hard manual labor all the spring, summer and autumn, with a few winter months at the district school. But with all this, the young man possessed an innate love for all nature—the woods and streams—teaming with animal and bird life; these were his first and most valuable curriculum.

The early life of young Joyce, as before mentioned, was that of woodman, but not so barren as the stories of Edward Eggleston would indicate. Rural schools were of a high order, in that locality. Just at the time he had finished the district school, the big event of his life happened—his conversion. The story of his conversion was unique. One hot July night in 1852, he with some of his fellows were coon hunting; some way he got separated from his companions, and was for a time lost. Then he heard singing and saw a light through the trees. It happened to be a protracted meeting in a schoolhouse, conducted by Rev. David Brown, a United Brethren minister. He went in and became interested, and when the call was made, went to the altar—a rude "mourners' bench", and was genuinely converted.

Of course, young Isaac joined the United Brethren Church, was baptized in Wabash river, and very soon felt the call to preach. Whereupon he entered Hartsville College, a small school of that denomination. Like scores of other men who have done great things in the world, he had no means wherewith to pay school expenses. He worked his way by doing manual labor for the members of the faculty—building fires and chopping wood. He went two years at this school, from 1854 to 1856. Then he taught school for some time; but never gave up his desire for a finished college education. Even after entering the ministry, and before, while teaching, he kept up his studies, and in the year 1872, received his degree from Asbury College, now DePaw University. Bishop Joyce was an ardent promoter of higher education, and urged all young men entering the ministry to secure the best possible preparation.

While in Hartsville College, young Joyce was granted local license in the United Brethren Church, but when teaching school in Rensselaer, Ind., he attracted the attention of the Methodist preacher because of his unusual gifts, and this fact was communicated to his presiding elder, who also sought his acquaintance, and resulted in Isaac W. Joyce transferring his membership to the Methodist Church. He had already become familiar with the limitations in the line of opportunity of the church of his first love. It was Granville Moody who saved Isaac W. Joyce to Methodism. He was given work as a "supply" in the Northwest Indiana Conference, and assigned to Rolling Prairie Circuit, with sixteen appointments.

His worldly possessions consisted of a horse given to him by his father, saddlebags, Bible, Hymn Book, Discipline, and two dollars and twenty-five cents. Thus he started for his field of labor, one hundred and fifty miles distant. He went without food that his horse might eat and make the journey. Thus began the career of one of Methodism's brightest lights. He was admitted "On Trial" the following year. It was on this first charge that he met the young woman who afterwards became his loving helpmeet and companion to the end of his life-long pilgrimage—Miss Caroline Bosserman.

In 1860 Bishop Simpson sent him to what was known to be the hardest appointment in the conference. But with a genuine experience of salvation, with tact and unusual pulpit ability for a young man, soon won for him a place of continuous promotion. At the age of thirty-two he was made presiding elder of the Lafayette District, a new and a larger responsibility, which he discharged with great success. The whole district was under the impact of a revival, directed in a general way, by the zealous young leader. By the request of the official board he was appointed to the large Trinity Church of Lafayette. For ten years he sustained himself in that cultured center and college community.

Because of failing health, he took a supernumerary relation, and went to Baltimore by invitation, to serve an independent Methodist Church, with the privilege of resting in the country to regain his health. He was urged to continue in Baltimore, but refused unless this church would become regular in the Methodism of Baltimore. A condition growing out of the war made this impossible, so he returned to Indiana, and was appointed to the church in Greencastle, the most commanding charge of the conference. After serving there with the same success as had always attended his ministry, he was transferred to the Cincinnati Conference, and appointed to St. Paul, a great downtown church struggling to hold its place. This was in 1880, and the popular pastor of the big church soon became a positive influence in the city. An auditorium seating at least 2500, was soon filled, and some mighty revivals were held, promoted by the pastor.

At the end of three years, Dr. Joyce was appointed to Trinity Church, Cincinnati, only a few blocks from St. Paul. It was while pastor of Trinity that he secured the services of Rev. Sam P. Jones of Georgia. It was a bold move, and was done over the protest of his fellow pastors; but it was a meeting that made history in Cincinnati. The church could not hold the crowd from the opening service. Then the great Music Hall was rented, and the pastor assumed the whole obligation for the expense. Literally hundreds of souls were saved, and the churches of the city strengthened. The finances were easy and overflowing. The meeting was a success from the beginning, and at every angle, and to no one was the success more clearly shown than to the pastor of Trinity, who had boldly undertaken it. It was said that 40,000 pennies were contributed in the collections—given by children and poor people.

The influence of Dr. Joyce can be seen further in Cincinnati by the fact that at the close of his pastorate of Trinity, he was again appointed to St. Paul. But we wish to pause here for a moment; there is always a minor key in the finest music; the rise to the pinnacle of success with an Apostolic commission, was not all congratulation and applause. "When a man gets tall enough to be seen above the crowd, he becomes a target for the shafts and poison arrows of petty rivals." This is just as true among ministers as any other vocation. The envious and jealous men sought to discount and misrepresent him; his heart was made to ache many times by the unkind and hateful criticism of his brethren.

He was elected to the episcopacy in 1888, to the surprise of a large part of the church, but the action of the General Conference met with the hearty approval of all Methodism of Ohio and Indiana. An earnest effort was made to secure his residence in Cincinnati, but he was sent to Chattanooga, where

(Continued on page 6)

NOT TO BE USED WITHOUT COPYRIGHT PERMISSION

OF ASBURY THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

Why Christians May Not Accept Evolution As It Is Taught.

Rev. W. M. Young, A. M., Sc. D.

SO much depends on definition that we will not attempt to define evolution, but accept the definition of an evolutionist. Probably most evolutionists will accept LeConte's definition, which says: "Evolution is (1) continuous progressive change, (2) according to certain laws, (3) by means of resident forces." The development of the embryo of the hen's egg into a full grown cock is, he says, the type of all evolution. He says further: "The process pervades the whole universe and the doctrine covers alike every department of science—yea, every department of human thought." We can readily see that the hypothesis of evolution is, indeed, practically controlling every department of human thought. Theologians are toning down their teachings to correspond with this theory. The providence of God, the validity of prophecy, the potency of prayer, and all belief in miracles, are being denied in order to conform the belief of the church with this falsely so-called science.

In the first place, we are compelled to deny that LeConte's type of all evolution in the development of the embryo of the hen's egg into a full grown cock actually covers the whole scope of that which is claimed for evolution. The development of the embryo of the hen's egg is only a type of growth which we see all about us in nature, something which nobody denies. Evolution, as it is taught, is something far different, as Philip Mauro points out when he says: "It seems hardly necessary to remind the reader of the difference between evolution and growth (which may characterize a creature). Evolution is the development of a thing or set of things into something else. Growth is the development of an organism into itself; i. e., its maturity; first, the blade, then the ear, then the full corn in the ear."

LeConte's first proposition is that "Evolution is continuous progressive change." We may profitably consider where this "continuous progressive change" is found. Is it in the inorganic realm, in the organic, or the spiritual? The best modern science disproves "continuous progressive change" in the inorganic realm. Sir Ernest Rutherford says: "It is now well established that the radio-active substances are undergoing spontaneous transformation, and that their characteristic radiations—the alpha, beta, and gamma rays—accompany the actual disintegration of the atoms. The transformation of each atom results from an atomic explosion of an exceedingly violent character, and in general results in a liberation of energy many million times greater than from any equal mass of matter in the most vigorous chemical reaction."

Dr. L. Franklin Gruber says: "It has been shown by Sir J. J. Thomson, that in a Crookes' tube other elements give off two kinds of hydrogen and helium. In other experiments by Sir William Ramsay, et al., it has been shown that apparently all elements at least partially decompose with the resultant production of hydrogen gas. Therefore, that disintegration is probably going on in all elements, though less apparently so, is altogether probable. If biologists speak of evolution, chemists can with considerably more certainty, and with apparently more truthfulness, speak of devolution. And in the ultimate upshot, devolution rather than evolution is the great moving principle in the present universe. And, of this devolution, so-called evolution might be only the ascending of a local wave that is surely to break against the rocky barrier of the eternal shore to end in quiescence."

IS THE UNIVERSE RUNNING DOWN?

Professor George Thomas White Patrick says concerning this question: "Another puzzling difficulty in the mechanistic philosophy is one which arises in connection with the second law of thermo-dynamics. According to the law in question, throughout the world of lifeless things there is a continual loss of available energy due to the fact that in all transformations of energy some of it becomes unavailable for doing further work by passing into the form of diffused heat and being radiated into space. We may transform the latent energy of our forests, our coal-beds, and our deposits of oil, into kinetic energy to drive our cars or carry our messages, but some of it is always lost in every energy transformation. The Universe must, therefore, be running down and tending to equilibrium."

J. Arthur Thomson says of the law of conservation of energy that "it is rather a pious opinion than an established fact." Dr. Patrick says further: "Thus it comes about that the atom, instead of being, as was formerly thought, a stable and imperishable entity, has all the marks of being a created thing. It seems to be a kind of structure and storehouse of energies. It seems as if some one or something had made it and stored up the energy in it. Probably this creative process has extended through inconceivable ages of time, taking the form, perhaps, of an inorganic evolution, in which the heavier elements have been evolved from the lighter gases in some 'cosmic crucible.' If this be true, we instinctively wonder what the agency is which has accomplished this. This is all, of course, very speculative. Here and now it seems to be the reverse process which is going on, the disorganization rather than the creation of the elements."

Dr. James W. Lowber says: "There is going on in the visible universe a constant dissipation of energy, and the time must come when it will be exhausted. Man may remain in the material universe a long time, but the great catastrophe must ultimately come. Our system is rapidly spending its very life and energy, and even the great sun himself is growing cold. This is true of the entire visible universe; and if man is destined anywhere to find an eternal home, it must be in the invisible universe."

Perhaps enough has been said to show that "continuous progressive change" is not found in the inorganic kingdom. I have no doubt that God is able to recharge his batteries and to keep his universe running as long as he sees fit, but I see no reason for believing that inorganic matter is going through a process of "continuous progressive change."

IS THERE CONTINUOUS PROGRESSIVE CHANGE IN THE ORGANIC WORLD?

Two principles are found in the condition of organisms, the one is that of progress, the other that of regress. Wonderful developments are possible with plants and flowers under the cultivation of the hot-house and with the care of a Burbank or some expert florist or horticulturist, but the same flowers and plants when left to themselves will soon show signs of degeneration. The finest strawberries in your garden, if planted out on the common or in a pasture lot, will soon revert and become like a common wild variety. I have gone out into an old cemetery and seen roses that were planted many years ago, and they had retrograded until the original planters would hardly have recognized them as the same variety.

WILL BIRDS AND ANIMALS REVERT?

Henry Drummond was an evolutionist, yet he taught reversion to type. He showed that if the most highly developed pigeons and doves were left on a lonely island for a certain number of years they revert to an original type, a slate-colored bird with one white spot. Sir William Dawson shows that pigs will return to less than the original, become miserable wild hogs, in a shorter time than three hundred years. Prof. E. D. Cope says: "The retrogradation in nature is as well or nearly as well established as evolution."

WILL MAN ALSO REVERT?

Dr. Lowber says: "The philosophy of history clearly teaches that civilization was learned from without, and that no really barbarous nation has ever been able to initiate civilization. All tradition seems to point back to the fact that primeval man had a knowledge of Supreme Being. It is a fact that barbarous nations believe that there was a time when they were more highly civilized. Evolution alone cannot account for these facts. As races, men may so degenerate as to die out, but man never reverts to any type of monkey." Dr. J. H. Breasted in his "History of the Ancient Egyptians" shows that about five thousand years ago Egypt had a great civilization. How much evolution has Egypt shown in five thousand years? How much has China progressed in four thousand years except where that country has been touched by a Christian civilization? Wherever the Spirit of Christ touches a man or a nation, there is progress; but, left to themselves, men and nations go down. Oscar Wilde and Babylon are no exceptions. Even those who have once been enlightened, when they reject God and turn back to sin, sink to unthinkable depths. I find no "continuous progressive change" except in the soul that is saved and sanctified by the blood of Christ and the agency of the Holy Spirit.

Join the Evangelical Methodist League.

We have great reason to rejoice over the gracious work being accomplished in the great tent camp meetings under the League tents. The number of these tents ought to be largely increased. Send in your name and address with one dollar, become a member of the League and help to carry on the good work of revivals among neglected and lost people.

Remember that our Lord has taught us that one human soul is worth more than the whole world. No work can possibly be so great and blessed as the winning of human souls for Christ and eternal life. Send your name and address with one dollar to The Pentecostal Publishing Company, Louisville, Ky., become a member and help us to press the great work of full salvation.

The Second Annual Conference of the American Methodist League will be held in Louisville, Ky., Sept. 23, 24, and 25. We look for a great gathering and the gracious blessing of the Lord on us at that time. Make your arrangements to be present.

Faithfully your brother,

H. C. MORRISON, Pres.

I have been perhaps the most voluminous writer of my day, and it is a comfort for me to think that I have tried to unsettle no man's faith, to corrupt no man's principles, and that I have written nothing, which, on my death bed, I would wish blotted out.—Sir Walter Scott.

The Optimism of Premillennialism.

This book from the pen of our Editor, Rev. H. C. Morrison, is just off the press. It offers a new and very suggestive line of thought on the ever interesting subject of the SECOND COMING OF CHRIST. The book is printed in clear type on good paper, neatly bound and contains nearly 150 pages. The price is $1.00. Send same to Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky., get the book and read it. You will find it optimistic, scriptural and thought provoking. The writer introduces a line of thinking on the subject of the coming of our Lord, that will interest the reader.

Authenticity and Inspiration of the Scriptures.

REV. Z. T. JOHNSON, A.M.

CHAPTER II.

IS THE BIBLE COMMENSURATE WITH WHAT THE STANDARD OF REVELATION OUGHT TO BE?

HERE is an objection to some of the statements above set forth, on the ground that the Bible is full of errors and contradictions; and that this being true, it cannot be the Word of God in which we are strictly to believe; but that it is given only as a guide to morals. There is not a more dangerous heresy in all the land today. When men come to believe that the Bible is not the true Word of God, and that its demands are not imperative, there will follow a resultant lack of faith that will unhinge all our spiritual concepts, and throw us into confusion and distrust. If it be not the revelation of God and His will concerning us, then it is no more than any other literature. It is only fair then, to ask, Is the Bible more than any other literature to man? If God has made a revelation of himself is this Book commensurate to what that revelation ought to be?

We might quote from it such words as these, "All scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness; that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works." But when we do, the objection is raised that we are begging the question, and putting up its own claims for itself. There seems to be the idea also, that when we turn aside from the realm of Bible statements, that we can find nothing from which to argue. In their eagerness to do away with the supernatural men raise themselves above simple thinking, and get lost in what they think are "big" ideas. The best way we can get to the bottom of this question is to do some simple thinking. Are there any ideas produced in the Bible that cannot be thought of as coming from any other source than the Divine? It might be well to consider them, if any can be found.

Once "There was a man of the Pharisees, named Nicodemus, a ruler of the Jews; the same came to Jesus by night, and said unto him, Rabbi, we know that thou art a teacher come from God; for no man can do these miracles that thou doest, except God be with him. Jesus answered and said unto him; Verily, verily, I say unto thee, except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God." What? Who ever heard of a man being born again? "Nicodemus saith unto him, How can a man be born when he is old? Can he enter the second time into his mother's womb, and be born? Jesus answered, Verily, verily I say unto thee, except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God. That which is born of the flesh is flesh; and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit. Marvel not that I said unto you, Ye must be born again. The wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh, and whither it goeth; so is every one that is born of the Spirit. Nicodemus answered and said unto him, How can these things be?" Man knew that he was a sinner, but he had not the true concept of what sin does in producing spiritual death; and here was a man that was brought face to face with the fact that he was not alive, and that no man is alive in the spiritual sense who is in sin. He was introduced to a term that revealed the significance of sin and the greatness of his need, and he could not understand it. Does the Koran reveal a truth like this? Do the classics of Confucius anywhere present so astounding revelation? Can there be found in any of the religions of the world and the cults of the races such a proclamation? It must be admitted that no human intellect could conceive of such a gigantic revelation and transmission of Divine Truth. God was the sole author and giver of it, and the Bible is the medium through which it has reached humanity.

Another truth that mere human thinking could not have produced is found in John 3:16-18: "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life. For God sent not his Son into the world to condemn the world; but that the world through him might be saved. He that believeth on him is not condemned; but he that believeth not is condemned already, because he hath not believed in the name of the only begotten Son of God." Here is the mystery of the ages. In these words is wrapped up the whole kernel of the Gospel of salvation for all men from all sin. Who could have conceived of the idea and proclaimed salvation through the coming of a man into the world? What mind could have grasped such a stupendous story, and told of a babe wrapped in swaddling clothes lying in a manger, in whose life lay the powers of the Infinite, and through whose death and resurrection there could come reconciliation for estranged, lost, and sin-sick souls, and a salvation that would release from all condemnation? Who could have woven into words like these the story of Christ leading the woman of Sychar into the knowledge of the truth; "If thou knewest the gift of God, and who it is that saith to thee, give me to drink; thou wouldest have asked of him, and he would have given thee living water—Whosoever drinketh of this water shall thirst again; but whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst; but the water that I shall give him shall be in him a well of water springing up into everlasting life"? Who could have thought of Jesus as the light of the world, the bread of life, the good shepherd; as being one with the Father, as the mighty God, the Prince of Peace; as the Way, and the Truth and the Life? Here are facts that the mind staggers at when related, and how could human mind have conceived and propounded such? It is impossible. The other religions of the world reveal this impossibility. As Robert E. Speer says in his book, Christianity and the Nations, "Hinduism teaches that God is near; but forgets that he is Holy. Mohammedanism teaches that God is great, but forgets that he is loving. It teaches that he is a King, but not that he is a Father. Buddhism teaches that this earthly life is fleeting, but it forgets that God sent us to do work, and that we must do it while it is day. Confucianism teaches that we live in the midst of a great framework of sacred relationships, but it forgets that in the midst of these we have a living help and a personal fellowship with the eternal God, in whose lasting presence is our home. What other religions forget, or never knew; Christianity tells us in the fullness of its truth." We can find only one answer to the question as to why this is true, and that is that the Peerless Book that reveals Christianity to us is inspired of Almighty God.

There is another fact that we might discuss concerning the validity of the claim of the Bible to Divine Inspiration. That is its teaching in regard to personal communion with God. The soul instinctively believes in and fears God. It stands in awe of the Divine; and nowhere outside of the pages of the Book of books do we find any teaching that man may have personal touch and conversation with God. But when we turn to this Book we find it filled with such teaching. It gives us the first intimation of personal communion in Genesis 3:8: "And they heard the voice of the Lord walking in the garden in the cool of the day;—and the Lord called unto Adam and said unto him, Where art thou?" We find it in the life of Abraham who was called the friend of God. It is set forth in the prayer of Jacob at the brook when he wrestled with the angel and said to him, "I will not let thee go, except thou bless me." God strengthened the faith of men in it when he appeared to Moses in the burning bush, and talked with him there. He gave it greater significance when he spoke to the prophet Elijah. We see it in marvelous results when Isaiah had his vision in the temple; and when he cried out because of his sin God answered him by sending the angel with the live coal from off the altar, who said, "Lo, this hath touched thy lips, and thy iniquity is taken away, and thy sin is purged." We see it wonderfully manifested in the life of Jesus, who continually went apart from the multitudes to pray. It is revealed in the life of the Apostle Paul, who heard the voice of Jesus calling him to service. The early church knew of its great power when they prayed, and God heard and delivered Peter out of prison. John caught new visions while on the isle of Patmos; and was enraptured with what he saw and heard. The God of whom the Bible speaks is a personal God, with mighty love for men, who delights to talk with and have fellowship with his children. Prayer, then, the call and response of personality to personality, the finite to the Infinite, is revealed to men as their privilege only within the pages of the sacred Word of God.

(Continued—)

The Red Road to Royalty.

The above is the attractive title to a new book which has just appeared from Fleming H. Revell Company of New York, written by Rev. L. R. Akers, D.D., President of Asbury College. The book is printed in clear type on excellent paper, neatly bound, and in every way very attractive. It contains 188 pages and is made up of ten sermons and addresses by Dr. Akers. It is beautifully written, clear and strong on most interesting and vital subjects. The price is $1.50. It can be had from The Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky., and is well worth the price and the time of reading. Send and get the book. It would be an ideal present for a young man.

H. C. MORRISON.

God knows I'm not the thing I should be,
Nor am I even the thing I could be,
But twenty times I rather would be
An atheist clean,
Than under gospel colors hid be
Just for a screen. —Burns.

The Last Time.

It was a season of some religious interest in the Church that we attended. After our pastor had delivered a faithful discourse, he asked my husband if he would exhort, and make reference to some solemn instances of mortality that he had witnessed the preceding night. My husband did so. During his solemn appeal to those who were unprepared to meet God, three young men hastened out of the house, with noisy steps, and an excited manner. "This is the way the Methodists are always trying to frighten the people," said they, in angry tones, as they hurriedly left the house of the Lord. It proved to be the last time for two of those profane young men. The next morning, at an early hour, they were all three at a large establishment, when the steam boiler in the lower part of the building exploded, and a large number of persons were blown into mid-air, and some to an almost incredible distance, while others were buried beneath the ruins. Two of those young men perished. One only of the three was left, and he was dug out of the ruins.

Have you spoken to your neighbor about our 50-cent offer? We are depending on you to say that word for us. Don't fail us!

MODERN APOSTLES OF FAITH.

(Continued from page 5)

the delicate task of caring for the church in the Southland was given over to him. This work he did with such tact, that it won the love and friendship of all who knew him.

We wish to mention but one feature of his work as a bishop, which gave him added strength and influence. While pastor of St. Paul, he attended the Epworth Heights Camp Meeting, and under the preaching of Dr. William Jones, he sought and received the experience of entire sanctification. After he became bishop, he never failed to place the emphasis on this higher experience. He took with him such men as Dr. Samuel Keen, Dr. E. S. Dunham, McDonald, and Inskip; his conferences were scenes of great religious awakening. On this point, we quote his own words: "When I am resting under the flowers I want it told as a memorial that I had this blessing of entire sanctification, as a work of grace by faith in the blood of Christ, subsequent to regeneration."

He was stricken while preaching at the Red Rock camp meeting, which was not far from his last residence at Minneapolis. It was on Sunday morning, July 2, 1905; the sermon was one of unusual power and unction. But before he finished he was seen to be sinking, and was caught in the arms of Dr. H. C. Morrison, whom he loved devotedly. After he was carried to his room, there was such an awe upon the people, that sixty-five souls were swept into the kingdom that day. Four weeks later his spirit went home, but there remained a halo of glory on his brow. A biographer says this about him: "I most confidently believe that Bishop Joyce came as near to the New Testament of what a bishop ought to be in the Church of God, as is possible for flesh and blood."

THE HEART OF THE SONG.

REV. RAYMOND BROWNING.

The congregation was singing that song which begins

"There's within my heart a melody
Jesus whispers sweet and low,
Fear not I am with thee, peace be still,
In all life's ebb and flow."

My mind went back through the years to the time when I met the author, Luther Bridgers, in a little country church in North Carolina and heard him sing with wonderful sweetness and power. There was something so radiant and beautiful about the faith of this strong and attractive young man, and something so winsome and potent in his preaching that the occasion of our first meeting is indelibly stamped in my memory. It was also the beginning of a friendship that has remained unbroken although our paths cross only at wide intervals. Some years after our first meeting I saw him and heard him tell of his very romantic courtship and marriage to a lovely Kentucky girl, and how God had smiled upon them, and three little boys had come to cheer their hearts and home. He said, "Ray, I am praying God to call all three of my precious boys into the ministry. Wouldn't that be wonderful if all of them should preach?" It was about this time that he wrote the song from which I have quoted. One of the stanzas was as follows:

"Though sometimes he leads through shadows deep,

Trials fall across the way,

Though sometimes the path seems rough and steep,

See his footprints all the way."

When one knows what happened later those words seem prophetic. How little did Luther Bridgers dream that soon he would have to pass through the deep shadows. In after years he told me the tragic story. He left home one morning to conduct a revival campaign in a neighboring Kentucky town. His wife and children walked with him to the gate and kissed him goodbye. When he was about to turn the corner of the block he looked back and there stood the little wife with the baby boy in her arms, and a little fellow on either side and they were all throwing kisses and saying "Goodbye Daddy." He waved them a last goodbye and then ran to catch the train. He was gone two weeks and the last Sunday night of the revival he went to his room after the closing service and fell asleep. About one o'clock in the morning he was called to the telephone and a voice over the phone said, "Is this Mr. Bridgers?" "Yes," he replied. "Mr. Bridgers, we are sorry to tell you, but your house caught fire tonight and burned and your wife and children have been burned to death." I said, "Luther, what did you do?" He said, "It seemed to me that the devil just laughed at me and said, 'God doesn't love you.' You were away from home and couldn't protect your family and now they have all been swept away in flame. Are you going to worship a God like that?" Bridgers said, "I dropped on my knees by that phone and prayed and said, Lord, I have preached this gospel to other people and told them it would comfort them in every hour of sorrow; grant that this same gospel may comfort me."

In spite of that mighty sorrow that broke over him like the surge of the sea there came to him a great sense of the nearness of God and the almighty arms were about him. But next day he had to go back to Harrodsburg and stand in the ashes of what had been their home. He saw them pick up a few little charred bits of bone—all that was left of the little family—and put them into a coffin. He saw something shining in the ashes and stooped and picked up a melted piece of a watch that he had given his wife on her last birthday. He remembered how happy she had been, and how she had put her arms about him and told him that he was a good husband and a good father to her children. Then he said, "I couldn't bear it any longer; I turned away from that scene of desolation and started out to face the world again with an old suitcase and a broken heart."

Six weeks after the tragedy Brother Bridgers was conducting a revival meeting in Broad Street Methodist Church, Richmond, Va. The pastor, Dr. Sam Hatcher, entertained us in the parsonage. One night we were sleeping in the same room when I was awakened suddenly and Brother Bridgers was saying, "Yes, Sallie, I'm coming," and he leaped out of the bed. Then in the darkness of the room I heard him as he knelt down by his bed and began weeping and then he prayed, "O God, I don't know why this sorrow has come on me. I can't understand it, but don't let me fail. Jesus, people are watching me. Help me to be true. Help me to be true."

After he had laid down again and was breathing regularly I slipped out of my bed and turned on the light and looked at him. His head was resting on one arm and the tears were still wet on his face, but he was smiling in his sleep. Maybe he was dreaming of the little wife and the boys once more. The glory of his triumphant faith made that room a holy place. I looked down at him a moment and then said aloud, "O Luther, the greatest sermon you will ever preach to this old world is the way you bore your sorrow when the time came for you to drink the bitter cup."

Last night the congregation was singing that song, and when they came to the chorus,
"Jesus, Jesus, Jesus, sweetest name I know, Fills my every longing, keeps me singing as I go."

I got to thinking about what that name meant to Luther Bridgers in the bitterest trial that perhaps his heart will ever know, and it occurred to me to tell you about it. Maybe your trial is just ahead.

In the Vale.

How do you like to go down low in the vale, quite aside from the higher walks of men, and hide away in the shade to work? It is not pleasant to nature to be hidden away from the observations of the mighty and noble, is it? But, with a sufficiency of grace, and led by the hand of the all-powerful and lowly Savior, we may find it even pleasant to get down low—very low. And here, do we not only find the low, sunken and lost, but sometimes we find the underpinning of some great superstructure of error. And here, in lowly toil, unseen by the great and wise, in omnipotent strength, may we look away at the deep-laid foundations of error, till the loud cry is heard from above, The superstructure is fallen—fallen to rise no more! It matters not, as the note of victory ascends, that he who gave the successful blow is hidden away from human applause. Some shining name may have taken the praise. But it matters not. The lowly Savior was present when the work was done. O, it is indeed good and pleasant to get down to pick up gems, and knock away underpinnings.

Preachers Should be Ambitious.

WILLIAM R. CHASE.

Every Methodist preacher should be a man of great ambition. Otherwise he will not grow in grace. He should be ambitious to please, ambitious to give no offence, ambitious to have a good appointment, ambitious to stand high, ambitious to prosper, ambitious to be appreciated. There is scripture warrant for him to be ambitious in each of these directions. He should be ambitious "to walk worthy of the Lord unto all pleasing" (Col. 1:10); "to offend not in word" (Jas. 3:2); "that the ministry be not blamed" (2 Cor. 6:3); to have the appointment Jesus gives, "And I appoint unto you a kingdom" (Luke 22:29); to have his praise "not of men, but of God" (Rom. 2:29); to prosper by "seeking first the kingdom of God" (Matt. 6:33); and to be appreciated the promise is, "he that humbleth himself shall be exalted" (Matt. 23:12). Would that every Methodist preacher were ambitious in each of these directions! It would bar out all worldly ambitions. They are wrong, lose a man his experience, make him worldly, and no worldly-minded man has a good experience.

Christian, Be Loyal.

God hath redeemed you unto himself; you are his own peculiar possession. "Ye are not your own, for ye are bought with a price." That price was the very life-blood of the Son of God, "who loved us, and gave himself for us." "In whom we have redemption through his blood, the forgiveness of sins." Whatever comes, be true to him. Unflinching loyalty to your Lord at all times will cost you something, may cost you a great deal; but you cannot expect to receive anything of value without paying a price for it. As a rule, the more a thing is worth, the more it will cost. I would not give a cent for a religion that did not cost me something—it would be worth nothing. If Christ is worth anything to you he is worth your all.

If you could serve Christ your best forever, sacrifice your all to him, and suffer agony untold for his sake, you could not begin to pay him the debt of gratitude you owe him for saving your soul. Has he ever failed you? Never! Be careful to be as true to him as he has been to you. "Trust ye in the Lord Jehovah, for in the Lord Jehovah is everlasting strength." Others may fail him, you cannot. You will find this true of many things that even good people do. Be loyal, be separate. You are not of this world any more. "Come out from among them, and be ye separate." You have been redeemed, "not with corruptible things, as silver and gold, but with the precious blood of Christ." Dare to be a Daniel. Be strong in the Lord.

CHAS. M. KELLY.

REPORTS FROM 'SOUL WINNERS

ENCOURAGING REPORT OF THE GOOD WORK IN THE LEAGUE TENTS.

We are glad to be able to give to our readers a number of reports of the gracious work being done on the tent campaign of the Evangelical Methodist League.

Rev. Charles Dunaway recently held two very successful meetings in one of the largest League tents in Alabama, one at Shawmust, and the other at Langdale. The Lord gave great revival. Many thousands of people heard the Gospel and several hundred were converted or sanctified. Many Christians were greatly blessed, refreshed and revived in Christian experience. Bro. Dunaway also held a very successful meeting under one of the League tents at Austell, Ga. Thousands of people heard the Gospel and several hundred souls were blessed at the altar. Among them hardened sinners were converted and devout believers entered into the experience of full salvation. Something like one hundred and fifty of those converted united with the churches. He expects to engage in tent meetings in Georgia and Florida at the close of the camp meeting season.

Dr. Morrison, our Editor, has just returned from Kansas where he held two meetings with Rev. Tom Maitland under one of The League tents. First at Argonia, Kan., in a community of excellent people. The meetings were well attended. There were perhaps not over sixteen who claimed to be definitely blessed, either pardoned or sanctified at the altar, but it was a great time of uplift and blessing to the Christian people. The second meeting was held at Wellington, Kan. The attendance was large and quite a number of people were blessed at the altar. In these two meetings not less than fifty ministers of the Gospel of various denominations, attended the services. It was a time of great seed sowing. Bro. Tom Maitland will go forward with the tent work in Kansas. Let all of the Leaguers pray the Lord to bless Brother Tom in the good work.

GOSPEL TRIO IN COLORADO.

The Asbury Gospel Trio consisting of Evangelists James L. Hilker, Alston G. Fields, and Cyrus Hutcherson, closed the first meeting of the summer campaign on Sunday night, June 26. This meeting was held at Vernon, a small town in eastern Colorado.

This meeting began June 6 during a rainy season. The weather settled and during most of the first week attendance and interest were good, the people coming from far and near. Storms at the beginning of the second week made it impossible to hold services. On Friday evening of that week a severe western wind blew half of the tent over. The outlook for the revival seemed discouraging, but the people of God continued to pray in a daily prayer meeting and elsewhere. The third week began with settled weather and continued so throughout the week. Roads dried up and people came for miles, the tent being filled at nearly every service. Interest increased, conviction seized the unsaved as the truth was preached, and many children and young people and a few older people were saved or reclaimed. At least fifty people knelt at the altar, church members were revived, and the pastor of the M. E. Church, who so graciously co-operated with the evangelists, was greatly encouraged. The good accomplished cannot be estimated entirely by outward results for the seed sown we trust will, in the future, yield an abundant harvest.

These three consecrated young men were mightily used of God in preaching clear-cut messages against sin, and of God's power to save and sanctify. The special messages in song added to the power of the sermons. Mr. Hutcherson, the song leader, gripped the young people and children by choir organization and special children's services. The party goes to Wyoming from here where they will conduct meetings the remainder of the summer. They are true representatives of Asbury College.

Nina Dickson, Reporter.

FINE TENT MEETING AT EAST COLUMBUS, OHIO.

Despite the bad weather, which is always a hindrance to a tent meeting, over five thousand were in attendance at the meetings recently closed here which were conducted by the Keyes Evangelistic Party.

Thirty-four services were held under the tent at which over fifty were wonderfully converted and at least six trusted God for the blessing of perfect love. Many of God's own children enjoyed a refreshing of their spirit under the ministry of Rev. Keyes.

Excellent co-operation of the ministers of the community was greatly appreciated, there being sixteen in attendance during the two weeks of the services.

TENT MEETING REPORT.

Our first meeting was in Louisville, Ky., on Berry Boulevard. Rev. Bandy, pastor of Hill Street Methodist Church, invited us to pitch our tent at that place. We had rain from the start, high winds blew down the tent twice, and several services were completely lost. At the time the meeting began I was sick in bed, but my brother and Brother Bandy started the meeting. The crowds were small, but the Lord gave us two souls, one a woman who came to the altar several times, but finally came through singing, "Oh, how I love Jesus." Brother Bandy organized a church at the close of the meeting. I was invited to return when conditions were more favorable.

We are now at Stephensburg. The roads are bad, but God is blessing. Nine have been saved and the interest and attendance are increasing. We began the meeting in the church, as it was rainy, and had four brightly converted at the altar; the second service we moved to the tent where we could accommodate the crowd. They are asking us to stay a month. We praise God for the old time gospel that wins every time. Sunday forty or more said they felt the need of the baptism with the Holy Ghost.

We have never worked with a finer people. Their courtesies and prayers shall never be forgotten. We have been invited back again next year with the tent. May God's blessing rest upon them.

A. S. and R. S. Beck.

SUCCESSFUL TENT REVIVAL.

Pax, West Virginia.

In the recent meeting at this place, Rev. Harvey B. Hysell being his messenger, God gave us a gracious revival of the old-time religion. We have been needing a meeting of this kind for some time and it is with hearts full of gratitude and reverence to the Lord that we send in this report.

Interest held from the very first and in the thirty services which were held the total number of people attending was well over five thousand.

Rev. Hysell preached a pure Gospel and we rejoice in the fifty souls who found God's mercy in pardoning power. Seventeen very definitely came into the experience of sanctification and there was a general spiritual awakening throughout the whole community.

In the course of the meeting ten other ministers found time to be with us for short visits. Their presence was a benediction and was honored of God in the work which was being accomplished.

Among other items of interest was the baptism of seven of the converts by the evangelist.

Reported by, A. W. Townsend, Jr.

Bro. Hysell gave faithful recognition to the fact that the tent work is being supported by the readers of The Pentecostal Herald by sending in eighteen new subscriptions. The Herald going into that many homes in Pax each week will be a great influence in preserving the results of this fine meeting.

F. D. Morrison.

ASBURY GOSPEL TEAM.

A fine attendance of the services marked the opening of the summer's campaign of the Asbury Gospel Team at Forksville, Pa.

Rev. Ben Duval was the preacher and through his ministry God gave us some soul-searching messages. Nearly fifty found pardon at the altar of prayer, and eight were gloriously sanctified. Many were greatly blessed in their soul though making no definite testimony.

One of the contributing factors of the services was the excellent music rendered by the Gospel Team, as well as the fine congregational singing.

The four young men who were the workers, Ben Duval, Virgil Kirkpatrick, Howard Jarrett, and Victor Moore, all students of Asbury College, Wilmore, Ky., were used of God in the quickening of the spiritual life of Forksville.

GOD'S POWER MANIFEST AT RUSH RUN, O.

Starting here June 8 with but small crowds the numbers in attendance grew until at the close of the meeting there was evidence of a real interest in the work.

The unusually cool weather with much rain hindered the progress of the meeting to some extent, but God was with us, and when his Spirit is present there is little cause to worry over the size of the audience or the weather. Some seventeen souls prayed their way through to the Savior and rejoiced in the cleansing power of the blood.

It was interesting to note that those who were converted at once sought membership in the church. Some of them were already church members but under the searching messages realized that they lacked the forgiveness of their sins.

Moore Brothers and Booker.

A FINE REPORT FROM TIFTON, GEORGIA.

Truly God blesses our efforts when we give the people the true gospel message as conveyed to us from the pages of the New Testament and revealed by his Holy Spirit.

The meeting recently closed in Tifton, Ga., will stand out in the memory of many as a time of most blessed communion with the Savior. Eighty-five precious souls kneeling at the foot of the cross found forgiveness for their sins and accepted through faith the pardon of the Lord. A number professed to have received pure hearts through sanctification.

One of the most encouraging features of the meeting was the organization of a local branch of The Evangelical Methodist League with fifty-seven members. A new tabernacle is being built and will be ready by next season.

Cochran Brothers.

PUSHING THE WORK AT OMEGA, GEORGIA.

From Tifton, Ga., the Cochran Brothers went directly into a meeting at Omega, Ga. The next few lines are quoted from a letter received from them soon after the meeting started. "We are having a most wonderful time in the work this summer. It seems that our gracious Lord has anointed us with a special anointing."

An average of two hundred were in attendance at the services. A hundred and eighteen knelt at the altar and of them eighty-five prayed through to victory. Besides the above number that were converted there were fifteen who came into the experience of sanctification.

Some more members for The Evangelical Methodist League were secured at Omega and nearly ten subscriptions to The Pentecostal Herald were sent in to the office.

The churches of Omega profited largely from the meeting as fourteen of the converts indicated a desire to unite with one or another of the denominations before the close of the meeting.

"We had a most wonderful time here. The Lord was gloriously with us. The old-time power of the Lord was manifested all through the services."

LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY.

At the request of one of the local pastors we pitched our tent at the corner of 4th & N Sts., and began services early in June. Continual rain hindered the progress of the meeting but the Lord was with us and gave his blessing to the efforts put forth.

Though the visible results of the meeting were not large much good seed was sown and the general renewing of the spiritual life of the community are encouraging. Six penitent sinners found peace in the forgiving power of Jesus' blood and six trusting believers accepted the witness of the Spirit in sanctifying grace.

Brother Wilder delivered some very touching messages in song which, coupled with the convicting rebuke of Rev. Lewis' preaching, were used to the honor and glory of God.

A generous offering for the workers was made up among those receiving blessings from the services, a part of which was turned in at this office for the work of the tents, by the evangelists.

EAST ST. LOUIS, ILLINOIS.

Rev. W. E. Lamp, one of the tent workers of The League, sends us in a very fine report of the meeting held at East St. Louis.

It proved a time of renewing of strength for believers and a general improvement of the spiritual life of the entire community.

During the meeting sixty-five seekers were converted or reclaimed and eight sanctified. The power of God was manifested in a wonderful way.

GOOD NEWS OF VICTORY AT WELLMAN, IA.

During our meeting at Wellman, Iowa, sixty-seven seekers found the joy of the Lord either in saving or sanctifying power. The field was ripe unto the harvest and despite the opposition of evil forces we found great success in the strength of the Lord.

Herman U. Smith.

CUB RUN, KENTUCKY.

We were asked to hold a revival at Cub Run, Ky., for the fourth time. Rev. W. H. Oliver is the pastor there.

The services were well attended from the first one although it was a busy time with the farmers.

Some ten or twelve people were blessed at the altar, among them two fine men over sixty-five years of age. There were some beautiful conversions, some of the people were seeking holiness and many expressed themselves as wanting this beautiful work of grace. It seemed more people fell in love with the doctrine than ever before.

Only one person got mad and quit the meeting. He was a minister and an habitual user of tobacco and could not stand for clean living and a pure heart.

We were assisted in the exhortation and altar work by Rev. George Logsdon, a local preacher. He is proving a great blessing to the church and community.

Several ministers of other denominations visited the services from time to time and exhibited a fine spirit of co-operation.

Over a thousand were in attendance the closing Sunday. The people of Cub Run are the kind that stand for the whole Bible and treat you so nicely you want to go back.

We were entertained in the home of Dr. and Sister Hall, who did everything they could for our comfort and contributed splendidly to the support of the meeting with their presence and prayers.

A. S. and R. S. Beck.

A COMBINATION REPORT.

If all of the meetings that are reported on this page had been held in union we would have the following figures for the results of the work of the League tents for the month of June. There have been twelve tent campaigns and within the neighborhood of four hundred services. At these services nearly five hundred souls have found the peace of forgiveness under the blood of Jesus and about one hundred and fifty have been sanctified. God's blessing rests abundantly on his workers. The summer campaign is just getting a good start and before its close we shall hear of many hundreds more falling at the feet of Jesus in prayer.

Join with us in this wonderful work. If you are not now a member of the Evangelical League send your name with the one dollar membership fee to The Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky. Calls for meetings are coming into the office every day which we are not able to fill because all of our tents are in use. If you are a member think on the great good which is being done and help to secure more tents.

F. D. Morrison, Sec.-Treas.

THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD

Published Weekly by
Pentecostal Publishing Company
523 So. First St., Louisville, Kentucky.

Six Months in Advance$.75
One Year in Advance 1.50
Foreign Countries .. . 2.00

OUR CONTRIBUTORS

Rev. G. Whitefield Simonson	Rev. Len G. Broughton	Rev. Bud Robinson
Rev. O. G. Mingleford, D.D.	Rev. L. R. Akers, D.D.	Rev. Henry Ostrom
Rev. Richard W. Lewis, D.D.	Rev. G. W. Ridout, D.D.	Rev. C. M. Griffith
Rev. Andrew Johnson, D.D.	Rev. P. F. Asher, B.D.	Rev. J. H. Smith
Rev. C. F. Wimberly, D.D.	Rev. E. E. Shelhamer	Rev. C. W. Ruth
	Rev. J. B. Culpepper

CONCERNING SUBSCRIPTIONS

Subscription Discontinued When Time Is Out.
In ordering address changed give both OLD and NEW address. Write all names plainly with pen and ink or typewriter.
Notify us promptly of any irregularities in receiving your paper.
For distribution, to secure new subscribers, sample copies will be sent free on application.
Remit by Registered Letter, New York Exchange, Express, or Post Office Money Order.

(Continued from page 1)

mon John the Beloved and St. Paul as witnesses against the Virgin Birth of our Lord and says, "The two men who contributed most to the church's thought of the divine meaning of Christ were Paul and John, who never even distantly alluded to the Virgin Birth."

To whom was John referring in the opening of his wonderful Gospel when he says, "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. . . . and the Word was made flesh and dwelt among us, and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father full of grace and truth." Dr. Fosdick, if he is a man of even ordinary capacity to interpret the Scriptures, certainly knows that John would have meant exactly what he has said if he had said, "In the beginning was the Christ, and the Christ was with God, and the Christ was God and the Christ was made flesh and dwelt among us, and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father full of grace and truth." This is not a mere allusion, but a plain, positive teaching that John believed and knew that Jesus Christ was begotten of the eternal Father, therefore not the son of Joseph or any other man, but the Son of God. In fact, John tells us in plain words the reason why he writes. Note the following: "These things have I written unto you that believe on the name of the Son of God; that ye may know that ye have eternal life, and that ye may believe on the name of the Son of God. . . . and we know that the Son of God is come, and hath given us an understanding, that we may know him that is truth and we are in him that is truth, even in his Son, Jesus Christ. This is the true God and eternal life."

Nothing can be plainer than that John, the Beloved, recognized the divine Sonship of our Lord Jesus in a sense in which he was not begotten of any man, and in a sense in which no one else can be the Son of God; hence, that he was of Virgin Birth. The modern liberals, who are attacking the Godhead of our Lord Jesus, must produce a different line of argument and something much stronger than they have yet been able to muster if they would destroy our faith in him who "is the true God, and eternal life."

John, the Beloved, believed that Jesus was pre-existent, as clearly shown here; that he was one and equal with the Father and in a peculiar sense was the only begotten of the Father. He says of Christ, "All things were made by him; and without him was not anything made that was made. In him was life; and the life was the light of men. And the light shineth in darkness and the darkness comprehendeth it not." It would seem that the famous Dr. Fosdick was a bit in darkness and unable to comprehend the profound meaning of the plain teaching of John, who puts the Lord Christ entirely out of the realm of mere human creation, pre-existent, the only begotten of the Father, one and equal with the Father, the only and all-sufficient Saviour of men.

Would the famous Dr. Fosdick and his followers have us believe that John would write thus of a man whom he believed to be the son of the carpenter, Joseph? It seems quite impossible that the rankest and most irreverent skeptic could come to such conclusion with reference to the belief of the beloved disciple. No finer, stronger, human testimony to the pre-existence of our Lord, his divine Sonship and Virgin Birth, could possibly be given than "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God and the Word was made flesh and dwelt among us." John was perfectly acquainted with all the incidents connected with the history of our Lord Jesus from the visit of the Annunciation Angel to Mary, to his ascension from Mount Olivet. John knew the virgin mother. He was perfectly acquainted with all the facts of the conception and birth of Christ so faithfully recorded by his brother disciples, Matthew and Luke, with whom he lived, loved and labored in the most intimate relations and, knowing all the facts, John says of Jesus that he "was the only begotten of the Father full of grace and truth." This is not a "distant allusion" but a clear testimony to the pre-existence, and the creative activity of Jesus long before the human race existed, and of his being begotten by the Father in order to his incarnation and redemptive work.

Mr. Fosdick, in his unscriptural and illogical gospel of doubt, seeks to get some comfort out of the fact that St. Paul does not give an account of the Virgin Birth of Christ. St. Paul's silence on the subject is presumptive proof that he did believe in the Virgin Birth. St. Paul and the Beloved physician, St. Luke, were intimate friends, traveling companions, co-workers and beloved brethren. Luke gives a most minute account of the Virgin Birth. He also writes the interesting record of Paul's conversion, travels, labors, persecutions and victories. What did these devout and scholarly men talk about in their intimate Association? The one great subject in their thought, love, the conversation was Jesus, the prophecies concerning him, the life he lived, the truths he uttered, the salvation he wrought in his death upon the Cross, his resurrection, His appearance to St. Paul upon the road to Damascus. It is unthinkable that they did not discuss the whole circumstance of the Annunciation Angel, the miraculous conception, the birth, the childhood, and the life of Christ in every phase and detail of it. St. Paul was most intimately acquainted with Luke and all that he knew and wrote about Jesus. If Paul had not accepted Luke's account of the Virgin Birth of Christ, he would not have hesitated a moment to have said so. He was no man to keep quiet in the presence of a false teaching of so great an error as this record of Luke's would have been had Jesus not been of Virgin Birth. Paul never hesitated to enter into controversy in the defense of the truth or the condemnation of error. The whole infant church in the days of Paul was full of the life, the teachings, the crucifixion, the resurrection and ascension of Jesus. Paul knew it all and believed it without question. If he had not, he would have spoken and written against it in the most emphatic and positive manner. His silence on the subject is proof of his unquestioning faith. Notice, in the first verse of our text, the Apostle speaks of Christ's good confession before Pontius Pilate. In that confession, Jesus lifts himself entirely out of the realm of and above all mere men.

Notice Paul, in his letter to the Colossians. Speaking of salvation through Christ, he says, "Who hath delivered us from the power of darkness, and hath translated us into the kingdom of his dear Son: in whom we have redemption through his blood, even the forgiveness of sins: who is the image of the invisible God, the firstborn of every creature: for by him were all things created, that are in heaven, and that are in earth, visible and invisible, whether they be thrones, or dominions, or principalities, or powers: all things were created by him and for him; and he is before all things, and by him all things consist and he is the head of the body, the church: who is the beginning, the firstborn from the dead; that in all things he might have the pre-eminence. For it pleased the Father that in him should all fullness dwell; and, having made peace through the blood of his cross, by him to reconcile all things unto himself; by him, I say, whether they be things in earth or things in heaven."

It is a bit amusing that any man, claiming to be a scholar, would undertake to convince serious thinking people that the Apostle Paul would write thus of the Christ if he believed him to be the son of Joseph or any other man. St. Paul had no such belief. He knew the facts connected with the birth of the Christ and all that disciples had written of him. He accepted his pre-existence, creative power, incarnation, Virgin birth, life, teachings, death, resurrection, power to save men from all sin, and his coming again in glory and power, without one doubt or question. And in our text he is pledging his son in the Gospel to faithfulness to these great truths until our Lord shall appear, who, when he comes in his glory, will confound all doubters, stop the mouths of all gainsayers, and prove to all mankind that he "is the blessed and only potentate, the King of kings and Lord of lords." Let us come to Jesus with absolute faith in his Godhead and his mighty power to save to the uttermost. Love, live, and labor with the joyful thought that at some time, possibly in the not so distant future, he will appear in his glory and every knee bow, and every tongue shall confess his Godhead and undisputed sovereignty of King of kings and Lord of lords!

In a League Tent Out in Kansas.

It was my privilege to spend ten days at Argonia, Kan., in one of our Evangelical Methodist League tents with Brother Tom Maitland, who had prepared the way, set up the tent and shaped things up for the good work.

Brother Maitland had charge of the platform, handled it well, wasted no time. Rev. Robert Schmidt, an Asbury boy, one of the fine young preachers of the M. E. Church in this region, led the singing and did it well. Mrs. Johnson presided at the piano and rendered excellent service. We had fine singing.

The pastor of the M. E. Church of Argonia had me preach in his church the first Sunday of the meeting. Quite a number of preachers of various churches were present during the meeting, and a host of the Lord's people came from the country all around about; many of them from quite a distance. A very large number of people claimed to be greatly refreshed and blessed in their souls. Quite a number were at the altar and several claimed pardon and some were graciously sanctified. Altogether, it was a very gracious meeting. I had a restful and delightful entertainment in the home of Brother and Sister W. E. Hankins. They endeared themselves to me with their great kindness and interest in my welfare. May the Lord bless them graciously.

I met with a number of most excellent people in and around Argonia. It is a great wheat country and I had the very interesting experience of going out and riding on one of those wonderful Combines. These are remarkable harvesters. They cut a swath of wheat from sixteen to twenty feet wide. It falls upon a carrier and is run into a thrasher. The straw is scattered in the rear of the machine while the wheat is carried up into a tank which holds sixty bushels. When this tank is filled, a truck is backed up, the wheat is dumped and hauled away to the elevators at the railroad stations. It takes only two men to operate one of these machines and in one day they can easily cut, thresh, and send away the wheat from fifty acres of land. Sometimes they cut even a larger acreage than that. These Combines have wonderfully settled the difficulty of wheat harvest in Kansas.

Quite a number of old Asbury students attended these meetings. I found them enthusiastic for their Alma Mater and standing steadfastly for the truths which had been inculcated into them while at school. May God bless and keep them faithful and true through thick and thin.

Brother Tom Maitland is laboring at some disadvantages because, in his region, a large percent of people insist that their ancestors were apes and they want Tom to admit that he, too, is some sort of a well developed monkey. Tom is a bit hard headed on this subject and will not consent to claim kin with the monkey family. It's going a little hard on him, but he seems to be determined to fight it out on this line if it takes a lifetime. He is Wesleyan to the core. May God help and bless him. My heart beats with joy as I hear of the gracious meetings going on in the League tents. The Lord is owning and blessing this work. We want to add the names of several thousand more loyal souls who stand for the Bible as interpreted by the Lord Jesus, Saint Paul, and John Wesley. There is one thing of which we may be absolutely sure. Modern liberalism, which is sadly destructive to evangelical faith, is growing and spreading rapidly. Shall we sit still? May God help us to kindle a great revival fire in this nation and carry the Gospel of a full and free salvation to countless multitudes of lost and hungry souls.

Faithfully,

H. C. M.

Our Fifty Cent Offer.

A host of HERALD readers are improving the opportunity to secure a large number of subscribers on our trial offer—THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD from now until January first for fifty cents. Quite a number of our friends have sent as high as ten new trial subscribers. We believe it is a wise investment of five dollars. Others have gone among their friends, soliciting subscriptions and sent in much larger lists.

We are confident that ten thousand readers who have found THE HERALD a great spiritual help can send in anywhere from one to ten new trial subscribers within the next twenty days. We believe that we will be able to give the people some very interesting and profitable reading between this and New Year's day. Help us to broadcast THE HERALD in thousands of new homes.

If you feel you can do nothing more send us the names and addresses of two of your friends that you would like to interest in the all important subject discussed enclosing one dollar to pay for same.

We often receive letters of this character: Pentecostal Pub. Co., Louisville, Ky.

THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD has been coming to me for some time. I suppose its weekly visits are because of some friend who is having the paper sent to me. I find its columns very interesting and feel that it is a real spiritual tonic. Let me know when my time expires as I wish to renew my subscription to the paper for the coming year.

Yours truly,

Send in the names of your friends. They will become interested and become constant readers of THE HERALD.

Faithfully your brother,

H. C. MORRISON.

Out of Touch With Our Lord.

MRS. H. C. MORRISON.

Only a smile, yes, only a smile,
That a woman o'er burdened with grief
Expected from you! 'twould have given relief,

For her heart ached sore the while.
But, weary and cheerless, she went away,
Because, as it happened that very day,
You were out of touch with your Lord.

Only a word, yes, only a word,
That the Spirit's small voice whispered,
"Speak;"

But the worker passed onward, unblessed and weak,

Whom you were meant to have stirred
To courage, devotion and love anew,
Because, when the message came to you,
You were out of touch with your Lord.

Only a note, yes, only a note,
To a friend in a distant land;
The Spirit said "Write," but then you had planned

Some different work and you thought
It mattered little. You did not know
'Twould have saved a soul from sin and woe—

You were out of touch with your Lord.

Only a song, yes, only a song,
That the Spirit said, "Sing tonight;
Thy voice is thy Master's by purchased right."

But you thought "Mid this motley throng.
I care not to sing of the City of God;"
And the heart that your words might have reached grew cold—

You were out of touch with your Lord.

Only a day, yes, only a day,
But oh! can you guess, my friend,
Where the influence reaches and where it will end

Of the hours that you frittered away?
The Master's command is "Abide in me;"
And fruitless and vain will your service be
If out of touch with your Lord.

—Selected.

Have you read the above poem thoughtfully, seriously? If so, did it not provoke in you a determination to adjust yourself to the Lord, if you are not in harmony with him? How often you have, while on your knees in prayer, thought you would arise to meet every demand that might come your way for that day, but alas, when the opportunity came, the needed strength was not there. Why? Because there was not the connection to the powerhouse on high that was necessary to accomplish the work.

But, you say, can a smile do any good? We will let you answer the question by asking, if meeting a person with a face like a sunbeam, has any effect upon you? What is the secret of the various kinds of faces we meet as we pass along through life? We do not think we shall miss it, when we say it is found inside; a heart filled with the joy of the Lord will, unconsciously, let its exuberance touch some one else. There are people, naturally homely, but who wear such a holy glow upon their faces, they are positively attractive. We recently attended a holiness camp meeting, and we remarked to some one, we never saw so many homely, pretty folks in our life. Yes, we have faith enough in a smile to admonish you to try it, and see if you do not feel better for the experiment.

Then, what may a word do? May we emphasize it by asking, what may not a word do? either to sadden or rejoice the heart. We recall an instance when a "God bless you" and a handshake caused a man to repent and turn to the Lord. We are told in the word, that we must study to show ourselves approved unto God, workmen that needeth not to be ashamed. If we would be as zealous about our worldly interests, we would accomplish much more than we do in the things of the kingdom.

What does a little note amount to? It may mean the salvation of a soul, as it has in many instances. Often when one has not the courage to approach a friend personally, they may get the message to them by a line or two from a burning heart. How potent may the pen become when prompted by the Spirit of Christ. We remember of hearing a young married woman say, that her husband had a letter from his Sunday school teacher in his trunk which he received years ago. It surely made an impression upon him, otherwise he would not have preserved it so carefully. The more notes you send, dripping with the unction of the Holy One, the better it will be for you and others.

Only a song! And perhaps the singer did not know it was reaching any one's heart, but here and there fountains were broken up which had not been awakened for years. How many songs have floated out upon the air which we thought were lost, but in after years, we have found the truths they contained, had fallen into the heart of some one who was waiting for the message as it fell from your lips. The singer can often find his way where the minister is not permitted to enter. There is nothing which will attract people, saint or sinner, like a soul-stirring hymn.

How shall we fill our days? Just a day lost; what does that amount to? It is true we do not consider twenty-four hours much, but if we had to meet our Maker at the setting of the sun, and were not prepared, we would be glad, of even one hour, in which to right ourselves with him. The culmination of all great epochs have taken place in a day. Life is made up of days and their acts, and our lives will be just as strong, as a whole, as are the days which compose that life. To the one who thinks, life is a serious proposition anyway, and we should be instant in season and out of season, seeking to fill each moment with deeds which will be helpful to those about us.

"Life is real, life is earnest,
And the grave is not its goal.
Dust thou art, to dust returneth,
Was not spoken of the soul."

Read Report of Tent Revivals on Seventh Page.

This week we fill the entire seventh page of THE HERALD with reports of revivals being held in the tents belonging to The Evangelical Methodist League.

We desire that the generous people who contributed their money for the purchase of these tents shall see that under the blessing of God full salvation is being preached to the multitudes and the Lord is greatly blessing the work. Let all of the members of the League, in fact all readers of THE HERALD who are deeply interested in the salvation of souls pray earnestly for the blessing of God upon these groups of workers. The good work in these tents will go on until the weather is too cool for tent work.

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a little Colorado girl join your happy band of boys and girls? My mother takes The Pentecostal Herald and I enjoy reading page ten. I am eleven years old and will be in the seventh A next year. I have dark blue eyes and long golden hair, and am four feet, eleven inches tall. Who has my birthday, August 13? I go to the Nazarene Church every Sunday. We have a large Sunday school. I recently won a Bible for memory work done in the Sunday school. Two years ago we started a contest in our Sunday school for learning Bible verses and repeating them one a Sunday, or eighty verses in two years. There were over one hundred contestants started and only four that won a Bible as a prize; so many were not faithful and of course some moved away. My older sister and I, and two other sisters, one small like myself, and one a young lady, were the lucky four. I have heard three of the Asbury boys preach. Their names were Householder, Reid and Furbay. We attended two meetings in Laird, Colo., and one service at Arnel, Colo. I would like to hear from any of the cousins who care to write, but especially those who have my birthday.

Evelyn Wassom.
Wray, Colo.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I have been reading the letters on page ten and see none from Ohio and thought I would write. Come on, Ohio boys and girls, wake up! This is my first letter to The Herald, so I hope to see it in print. I am a Christian. We had a revival in our church and have had a prayer meeting in our church every Wednesday night. I go to Sunday school and church. Our minister's name is Bro. Caley. He is a good preacher. My Sunday school teacher's name is Mrs. Roth. Genevieve Henderson, I guess your name to be Mary. If I am right don't forget your promise. When this arrives I hope Mr. W. B. is hiding in the clothes closet.

Carol Ludeker.
Rt. 5, Bryan, Ohio.

Dear Aunt Bettie: This is my first letter to The Herald and I hope to see it in print. I enjoy reading page ten. I have brown hair, am eleven years old and am in the fifth grade. Who has my birthday, Feb. 25? I go to Sunday school. I have five brothers and one sister. Won't some of the cousins write me a letter? I hope Mr. W. B. is out walking when my letter arrives.

Creola Sikes.
Mayville, N. Dak.

Dear Aunt Bettie: May I join your happy band of boys and girls? I am twelve years old. Who has my birthday, August 9? I have light hair, blue eyes and light complexion. I go to Sunday school every Sunday. I haven't missed a Sunday for three years. Who can guess my middle name? It begins with V and ends with R and has six letters in it. Some of you cousins write to me.

Carl V. Colvin.
Cynthiana, Ky., Rt. 2.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Here comes a girl from the old Keystone State. I have never written to The Herald before, so I would like to see my letter in print. I am five feet, two inches tall, weigh 111½ pounds. I have brown hair and brown eyes. I will be thirteen July 22. I will be in the seventh grade next year. Well, I hear Mr. W. B. coming so I will say goodbye.

Ruth McAdoo.
Avella, Pa.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you admit a girl from the distant west to your friendly circle? I have been a silent reader of The Herald for two years. I enjoy the paper very much. I always read as much of it as I can. The west is luring to lots of folks. I love it myself. Western scenery is very beautiful. The snow-capped mountains are enjoyed by all. Words cannot express how the west affects one. Hadley Banta and Lucile Weyenberg, why don't you write to me? I am very much interested in you both and would love to hear from you again. I am five feet, four inches tall, weigh 110 and have dark hair and blue eyes. I will be eighteen the 9th of October! Whoever has my birthday I would like to hear from you. I live thirty miles from the nearest town. I am quite lonesome, especially in the summer time. I go to high school in the winter time. I am a Junior. My letter is getting lengthy so will close. Cousins, please write to me for I am lonesome and do so love to get letters. I hope Mr. W. B. is napping.

LaVerda A. Gilbert.
Buffalo, Wyo.

Dear Aunt Bettie: As father is writing I thought I would write a few lines. It has been a long time since I have written to The Herald. I don't guess any of you cousins will recognize me. I am a high school girl and a Christian. I have finished two years of high school and I can't hardly wait to finish the other two. Father takes The Herald and I enjoy reading it. I want all of you cousins to pray for my dear mother that she may be well again. She has been sick for about nine weeks with her head and eyes. Her eyes have been swollen so bad she could not see, but she is some better now and can see a little. She would be glad to receive letters or cards from anyone for she has been sick so long anything that way is a pleasure to her. Of course she cannot see to read them, but I can read them to her. I read books, papers and many things to her. Her name is Mrs. Lessie Plunk.

Vera Plunk.
Star Route, Finger, Tenn.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Here I come for my first time hoping to have a short chat with you. I know you will admit me, Aunt Bettie, because you are so kind. I do not see many letters from Virginia. I know Aunt Bettie would like to hear from Virginia just as well as any other state, wouldn't you? Opal E. Kent, I think you write good letters. Tera Adcock, I would like to correspond with you as you are somewhat near my age. Aunt Bettie, I am going to tell you my favorite musical instrument. It is the violin. My favorite season is spring because I think it brings everything closer to nature. The trees begin to bud forth their leaves and everything is beautiful. Any of the cousins who care to write I would like to correspond with you. I like to receive letters. I had better run before I wear my welcome out. With best wishes and good luck to Aunt Bettie and cousins.

Stella M. Carson.
Arcola, Va.

Dear Aunt Bettie: This is my first letter to The Herald. We have been taking it about three years and think it is a mighty fine paper. I think it is one of the best papers in the world. My birthday is September 4. If anyone has it I would be pleased if they would write me. I have dark complexion, blue eyes, black hair and am in the sixth grade, or was this last school. I was promoted to the seventh grade. Our school closed May 13.

Audrey Mary Alford.
Many, La.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a Tennessean join your happy band of boys and girls? I take The Herald and like it fine. I would like to see more letters from our boys and girls saying they are Christians. I think it is time for all of God's people to get busy and do something for the Lord. It may be said that we are having to deal with one of the most popular worldly amusements when we consider the picture show. That it is attended by a very large majority of the people is enough to condemn it in the eyes of all who profess to be followers of God. If there ever was a time when God's people needed to be wide-awake and pushing the battle, that time is now. Sin is rampant in the world in every conceivable form. The devil has set his hand to do his worst, and that he is accomplishing his purpose is not hard to be seen. Elderly people can well remember when the parents were the rulers of the home, but now they will tell you that son and daughter do pretty much as they please. There is no question as to who is to blame for this state of things. In many of the popular amusements of the day the parents are setting the example. This may sound a little harsh but you will only have to look about a little to find ample proof. The picture show and theater furnish abundant evidence. There is no question in the minds of God-fearing people as to the degrading influence of the moving picture. It is very harmful. Bible readers know that we are warned to shun all appearance of evil. Jesus said, "Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." Now let us all wake up and be about our Father's business. Any of you cousins who have been going to the moving picture show think it over before you go again, if that's the place where God dwells. Pray for me and my home. I belong to the M. E. Church, and my name is written in the Lamb's book of life.

W. J. Plunk.
Star Route, Finger, Tenn

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a Canadian girl join your Christian band of boys and girls? We take The Herald and I enjoy reading it very much. I am so glad so many of the cousins are Christians. There is so much of work to do for our dear Saviour that there is no time to waste. And I am sure that there is not one of us that wants to miss heaven. Life is so short and eternity so long. Dear cousins, do not miss one moment. I am sixteen years old. My birthday is March 28. Who is my twin? Miss Edney Myers, please write to me as our names are so much alike. Miss Margaret Prescott, I saw your lovely letter in print and I enjoyed reading it. I would love to hear from you. Hoping to see this in print. God bless you, Aunt Bettie and all the cousins. Edna Myers.
Westport, Ontario.

Dear Aunt Bettie: How are you and all the cousins? This is my second letter to The Herald, but I failed to see the first one in print. I am so glad to read of so many of the cousins being saved. I surely praise the Lord for saving me. I am nineteen years old and have been saved nearly nine years. I never regret the day I gave myself to the Lord. We never know what real joy is till we know the joy of the Lord. I love the narrow way. Truly, strait is the gate, and narrow the way that leads unto life, and few there be that find it, but praise the Lord there are a few. It is sad to think how many good people are being deceived in these latter days. There are so many false doctrines in the land. If any unsaved cousins should read this letter I want to urge you to seek the Lord without delay, for Christ's coming is not far off. If you should live a hundred years you would never regret the day you gave your heart to him.

Hazel Thomas.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a Virginia girl join your happy band of boys and girls? This is my first letter to The Herald, so I hope to see it in print. My sister takes The Herald. I love page ten. Verna Perkins, I have your birthday, so write to me. I am fifteen, have blue eyes, light bobbed hair, height five feet, five inches, promoted to the eighth grade. Some of the cousins write to me. I will answer all letters I receive.

Hilda Simpson.
Box 15, Broad Water, Va.

Dear Aunt Bettie: How are you and the cousins? Oh, I am just as fine as a fiddle and trust you folks are the same. I wonder what you all are doing for amusement? I am staying with my aunt of Breeding, Ky. Her husband died last March and left her alone so I'm staying with her to keep her from living by herself. My home is at Sparksville, Ky. My grandmother takes The Herald and I like it fine, and so does she. My father and mother are living. I have two brothers and one sister (Murlene). I am sixteen years old, have blue eyes, light brown hair, fair complexion, am five feet, four inches tall, weigh 147 pounds. My! quite fat! Who has my birthday, Feb. 21? Can any of you guess my middle name? It begins with E and ends with H and

Gospel Tents

Smith Manufacturing Company.
DALTON, GA.
22 Years in Business

J. H. DICKEY
of

BARRETT, ROBINSON & DICKEY

General Insurance—Bonds, etc., solicits your patronage.

7th Floor, Columbia Bldg.
Louisville, Ky.

200 Sheets 100 Envelopes

PERSONAL STATIONERY

High Grade White Bond Paper, size 5½ x 7 inches, with envelopes to match. Every sheet and envelope printed in black type up to 4 lines, with your name, business, and address

$1.00

This Stationery also makes an IDEAL GIFT. Shipment within 10 days after receipt of order. ORDER NOW!

Pentecostal Pub. Co.,
Louisville, Ky.

Gentlemen: Enclose please find $1.00 for which send me postpaid, a box of your Personal Stationery consisting of 200 sheets of Paper and 100 Envelopes printed as follows:

To avoid errors write or print clearly it contains nine letters. Well, as news is exhausted will close hoping to hear from all the cousins, and I will try and answer all letters received.

Mabel E. Loy.
Breeding, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I have some good news which I feel impressed to tell you. I am doing Home Missionary work along with my teaching here in Lincoln, Co., W. Va. Since I came here last fall there have been about twenty-four conversions and three sanctified. I am glad we serve a God who hears our prayers. I desire the prayers of all of God's people that I may become more like Jesus each day I live. I realize if we become the right kind of soul winners we must rely wholly on God for our spiritual strength; also, be willing to do God's will.

Bessie Fonner.
Ranger, W. Va.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a little Kansas boy join your happy band of boys and girls? Who has my birthday, Jan. 3? I go to Sunday school nearly every Sunday. I am in the third grade at school. Who can guess my middle name? It begins with W and ends with R, and has six letters. This is my first letter to The Herald. I live where the sun shines and the wind blows. I hope to see this letter in The Herald.

Frank W. Pro.
Rt. 3, Kingman, Kan.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Here comes another Mississippi girl to join your happy band of boys and girls. I will be fifteen July 13. Have I a twin? If so, write to me and I will answer. I received my eighth grade certificate and am ready for high school. I have dark hair, dark eyes, and dark complexion. I sure enjoy reading page ten. Aunt Bettie, I hope you will print this as it is my first attempt. All who wish to write to me please write and I will answer all I can.

Edith Joiner.
Carthage, Miss.

"The Ten Greatest Sayings of Jesus", by J. C. Massee will make you do some practical Christian thinking. Order it, preachers, and it will help you along many lines. Price $1.50. Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky.

FALLEN ASLEEP

DAVIS.

Mrs. Lydia Davis, the most beloved lady of this community lies at rest in the Methodist cemetery just east of Holly Springs, Iowa. Her death came at 11 o'clock Feb. 25, at the country home a few miles north of this city; following a week's illness, at the age of ninety-four years. The attendance at the funeral services in the M. E. Church at Holly Springs was the largest ever gathered there, including many relatives and lifelong friends. The funeral was conducted by Rev. Kiernan, assisted by Rev. Metcalf, of Sioux City, Rev. Phillips, of Hornick, and Rev. Wetherby, of Climbing Hill; the quartette singers being Mrs. J. L. Peters, Mrs. Frank Burns, Jesse Hadcock and Mr. Freeman Coover. A beautiful duet was sung by Rev. and Mrs. Wetherby and a solo by Mrs. Rose Dean of Sioux City. Joseph Francis, an old neighbor of more than fifty years, read a short verse he had composed the morning of the funeral and dedicated to Sister Davis. It was indeed very impressive.

Grandma Davis had been a resident of Woodbury County for more than fifty-five years and at the time of her death, the oldest active member of the Methodist Church in this section of Iowa, having been a member for over sixty-four years.

"Oh, how sweet it will be in that beautiful Land,
So free from all sorrow and pain,
With songs on our lips and harps in our hands,

To meet one another again."

A granddaughter,
Gwendolyn Hall.

GRUBB.

We gaze with chastened feeling on The spoiler's work. 'Twas but the casket there,
For well we know the precious gem had gone
To deck the Savior's sparkling dia-dem.

Bernie Lewis Grubb came to brighten this earthly home on May 10, 1918, in the little homestead at Vine Grove, Ky. When he was only three months old his parents dedicated him to God and he was baptized in the Methodist Episcopal Church at Cedar Grove in the state where he was born.

Bernie was taken sick on April 6, 1927, while attending school at Jackson, and was taken to the hospital in the hope that his life would be spared. Although his suffering was great he bore it with the patience of one much older in years, but his little body could not withstand the shock of the disease. As we gather here may we trust and say—

"There is no death! The stars go down
To rise upon some fairer shore,
And bright in heaven's jeweled crown
They shine forever more.

"There is no death! An angel form Walks o'er the earth with silent tread—
He bears our best loved things away.
And then we call them 'dead'.

"He leaves our hearts all desolate,
He plucks our fairest, sweetest flowers,
Transplanted into bliss, they now
Adorne immortal bowers."

Rev. Pearce.

UPPER WISCONSIN A NEEDY FIELD.

I have been busy the past fall and winter till Feb. 22, when I closed a meeting at Allerton, Ia. From there I came home, had my teeth extracted, took a bad case of "flu", and was in bed for some time; now I am up and able to be in the battle.

Since being out of the work I have had the opportunity of seeing some of the needy and open fields in upper Wisconsin. Some places have only a Catholic Church, some only a Lutheran Church, and some none at all, others have only formality in the churches they have, while there are some people who have real salvation and others who are hungry. In a meeting I held two years ago an old man who was baptized when a baby, confirmed at 12 years of age, came to the altar and after weeping and repenting trusted Christ to save him and arose with a shining face and said, "the old burden is all gone."

There are numbers of new places where we could get in and grow up with the people, and there is land as good as you find in many parts of the country where it is out of reach of poor men, which can be bought cheap and on terms less than rent in other parts of the country. This land grows all kinds of grass, corn, potatoes, oats, rye, wheat, vegetables, berries and fruits in abundance. Any one interested write to me at Ojibwa, Wis. It costs not more than one half as much to build a church in Northern Wisconsin that it costs in North Dakota or South Dakota, and the people are about the same. The Free and Wesleyan Methodist people are doing some good work and we have a few Nazarene Churches, but oh! the need! Pray for upper Wisconsin.

B. T. Flanery.

CHICAGO CENTRAL DISTRICT BUILDING PROPOSITIONS.

We are glad to report not only have we been making advances on the spiritual side in our district and organizing new churches in the last few years, but God has been giving us some new church buildings. It is not enough to get a following and have them in some hall, but we are going in to house our new churches on good lots well located and with substantial and presentable buildings.

At Elgin, Ill., a little over two years ago a church was organized and a new building erected worth about $30,000.00. The pastor informed me the other day that the people were making preparations to free this building entirely from debt which is nothing more or less than a miracle.

Not only are we in the process of getting permanent buildings but in a number of places we are buying lots, and other places we have bought and are erecting temporary buildings, while in other places we are tearing down the temporary buildings and building permanent churches.

At Rock Island, Pastor Larrabee and his good people have near a hundred good members and they are making plans to buy a lot well located in the city of 150,000 population. At Rockford we have been worshipping in a Hall. Here is a great city of 90,000 people with as good a Protestant background as may be found in any city of America, and is said to be one of the best industrial centers in the United States. Here we are contemplating buying a lot in a good location and doing something permanent. At Peoria, Ill., another city of 100,000 population, and located in Central Illinois, our good pastors, Rev. Edna and J. O. Hoke, have the lot costing about $2,500 almost paid for and this early spring they are going to put in a fine basement with living quarters in the back. The pastor and good people of this place have the finances coming along fine and are going to put this thing across not later than the first of August. At Clinton, Ill., another new proposition, we have a following of about seventy-five members taking good care of their pastor, pay him both salary and rent. Their temporary tabernacle is too small and they are ready to buy a new lot and build larger quarters. At Assumption, Ill., the old building has been torn down and we are preparing to build a larger building. At

WHAT'S IN A BOOK?

CONDUCTED BY

REV. Z. T. JOHNSON, A. B., B. O., M. A.

The Ten Greatest Sayings of Jesus, by Dr. J. C. Massee. $1.50.

If you want a book that will set you to thinking you will find it in this one. The author states that "In the midst of this long and careful study it suddenly dawned upon me that there were sayings which indicated the life philosophy of the Lord Jesus Christ." With this in view, the selections he made produced the fundamental conception that Holiness is a matter of relation, and that Righteousness is a matter of conduct proceeding from relation. His argument is that as we recognize our fundamental relationship to God the Father it will determine our destiny.

There are ten chapters; some of the most interesting are: "The Compulsion of Divine Relationship"; "Divine Relationship Determines Destiny"; "Love's Second Mile"; "Faith Divorces Life from its Worries"; "The Consecration of Conversation."

John G. Paton, Hero of the South Seas, by B. L. Byrum. 75c.

One of the most remarkable stories ever told is that of the life of John G. Paton, missionary to the South Sea Islands. Think of going to a lonely cannibal island with your young wife; think of burying her within three months and living alone, trying to win savages to God. Think of being driven from the island after months of earnest work, with chiefs and their men on all sides seeking to kill you so they could eat your body. Think of going back home to raise money; to secure more missionaries; to buy a ship to bring supplies to the workers on the islands; and finally going back to the South Sea Islands again with a bride of a few days. Think of years of toil; of finally winning the heathen, one by one, until the whole population began to serve Christ; think of honorable old age spent trying to raise more money and secure more missionaries to go to these needy people—and you have this wonderful story.

It will be a blessing to your children to let them read this book. It is filled with the spirit of heroism, and of sublime faith in God.

Our Young People, by R. H. Rivers, D. D. $1.00.

After looking through this volume my verdict is, "One of the finest books I know for young people." It was written especially for the growing boy and girl, and has a natural storytelling style that makes it interesting to read.

The author discusses such subjects as, "The Model Boy"; "Habit"; "Conscience"; "The Model Girl"; "Influence"; "Causes of Failure"; "The Imagination"; "The Battle of Life"; "Temptations, and How to Conquer Them"; "Decision of Character" and "Redemption Made Plain."

There are 255 pages, beautifully bound. It is an attractive work, and would make a splendid gift to a boy or girl.

106 Sermon Outlines, by U. G. Foote, D. D. $1.00.

Every preacher has his own peculiarities of outlining. Some like one style, some another. Those printed in this book follow largely the essay style. The author names the main point and then gives leading sentences under that topic. He weaves his illustrations into the outline, and thus the whole sermon skeleton is before one as he reads. I do not remember ever having seen this particular style of outlining sermons.

It is impossible to give much of an idea of the contents of the book. There are 106 outlines that cover nearly every topic generally used by a preacher in the course of a year's preaching. Many of them are of special interest, and many are quite illuminating.

In the front of the book may be found a complete index of subjects. There is also an index of the texts used. This makes the volume a practical working tool to the man who wishes thus to use it.

James Hudson Taylor, by G. G. Hunnux. 75c.

This is a most thrilling story of the life of one of the world's greatest missionaries. It tells of the struggles of a young Christian druggist to get to the mission work in China; how finally he went, was cast upon faith alone for his provision; went into the inland and preached to the people who had never heard the Gospel; how that work grew until in 68 years there were over a thousand missionaries on the field; and the glorious results that followed.

Taylor adopted as his motto: "To move man, through God, by prayer alone." Many times it seemed this would not work, but never did God fail, and this hero of the Cross in China always came out victorious. To read of the sufferings, of the heartaches, of the disappointments of this life wholly given to God and to see how wonderfully God wrought all to his glory is worth many times the price of this volume.

It is ably written, in story style, for young people, but it will appeal to old as well as young.

All of the books reviewed in these columns may be bought from The Pentecostal Publishing Company, Louisville, Kentucky.

Tilden, a lot has been purchased and they will build there at once.

This year we have built a new church at Pontiac worth possibly $6,000. We sold the old church and parsonage at Kewanee and have moved into a good residence district and are building a new church and parsonage which will be ready to dedicate about August 1. Pastor J. D. Roach has sold the basement at Chicago Heights and is now arranging to build in another part of the city. Pastor H. B. Garvin is up to a new building proposition and his problem at this time is to provide about $5,000 cash with which to start the building. Pastor H. B. Gensen, of Decatur, west side, is giving his church a general going over and he will have one of the most beautiful auditoriums in his church of any church in the district. At Freeport, Ill., we have built one of the most beautiful tabernacles on the district. Pastor Jesse Brown has put in a good substantial basement at Joliet, since Assembly. Time and space would fail to tell of the old church bought at Paris. Church and parsonage at Rantoul and a new parsonage at Richland Center, Wisconsin; and thus the good work goes on.

You see I have made a large report. We absolutely believe that the holiness forces of the nation can give America the old-fashioned gospel. If interested in planning a church in Illinois write E. O. Chalfant, Danville, Ill., general delivery.

E. O. Chalfant.

James Hudson Taylor, founder of the China Inland Mission, the man who adopted as his motto, "To move man, through God, by prayer alone" probably did more for missions in China than any other one man. Read the remarkable story of his life in "James Hudson Taylor", by G. G. Hunnux. It sells for 75c, but is worth twice that amount. Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

REV. O. G. MINGLEDORFF, D.D.

Lesson VI.—August 7, 1927.

Subject.—David Spares Saul. 1 Samuel 26:7-14, 17, 21.

Golden Text.—Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good. Rom. 12:21.

Time.—About B. C. 1060.

Place.—Wilderness of Ziph.

Introduction.—Were I before a class with this lesson, I would review the treacherous wickedness of king Saul, and the manly generosity of David. It is hard for us to understand such lessons, because we have lived ourselves so far away from the times in which these men lived, that we cannot by any stretch of imagination put ourselves into their environment. Their moral code was very different from ours; so that we cannot judge them by our standards of civilization—not that the implicit principles of ethics have undergone a change; but more light has been turned on the subject during the passing years. "The times of this ignorance God winked at, but now commandeth all men everywhere to repent." These things must be taken into account before we can pass just judgment even upon so bad a man as was king Saul.

In the chapters that intervene between today's lesson and that of last Sabbath, we have a rare picture. While Saul did his best to kill David, even commanding his own son Jonathan and his bodyguard to kill him, David displayed a generosity towards the king that would do honor to a good man in any age. Twice he had every opportunity to destroy the wicked man who was plotting in every possible manner to take his life, but spared him, even though some of his own nearest followers begged for the privilege of smiting him to the earth. Once he went so far as to cut off the corner of the king's robe, which he afterwards held up to the monarch's gaze as a proof of his good will toward him in that he did not kill him when an opportunity had come for so doing. Saul seemed grateful that his life had been spared, and even went so far as to shed a few crocodile tears; but David knew him sufficiently well to keep at a distance. A bad man cannot be trusted. On another occasion David and Abishai slipped into the king's camp while he and all his men were asleep, and carried off his spear and his canteen of water; but he returned the spear by an invited messenger from Saul. It is fine to hear David upbraid Abner the son of Ner for his carelessness in not guarding the life of the king. His words are full of biting sarcasm.

Nothing in all this history is more beautiful than Jonathan's behavior toward David. He even rejoices that he is to take the second place in the kingdom. When all the circumstances are considered, we know of nothing in literature more worthy of admiration than the splendid covenant made between those two young men. It included even the family of Jonathan; and David kept the covenant sacredly after Jonathan had been slain in battle, and he was established on the throne of Israel. We may regard those as being very dark days; but with all our boasted civilization, we cannot produce truer men than those two young friends.

David's dealings with Nabal and his wife Abigail touches our lesson only incidentally; but it is full of lessons for all times. It never pays to be a fool, nor to be the son of Belial. Better have good sense, and act the gentleman. A celebrated D.D. came near being flogged some years ago for making some very unkind remarks to some mothers whose little ones happened to disturb his dignity by crying during service. Kind words would have paid better. Fortunately the good brother never knew the imminence of his peril.

Comments on the Lesson.

7. Saul lay sleeping within the trench.—Saul was sleeping between the parts of his baggage, or carriage, as it was termed in the days when King James had the Bible translated into English. David and Abishai stole into the camp by night. Jehovah assisted them by causing Saul and his men to fall into a deep sleep. Saul had "his spear stuck in the ground at his bolster", or pillow. In those days warriors slept thus, so as to be ready to defend themselves in a moment in case of sudden attack from the enemy. In this case Saul had assumed the place of safety by having his soldiers lie all around him. With his 3000 trusted men he felt so safe against David with his little band of fugitives, that all of them went to sleep instead of setting a watch.

8. God hath delivered thine enemy into thine hand this day.—No doubt Abishai was right, but not that David should kill him. Jehovah would teach David and Saul a great lesson. Let me smite him.—Abishai did not have David's generosity. He would take the king's own spear, and kill him so dead that he would not need to stab him a second time.

9. Who can stretch forth his hand against the Lord's anointed, and be guiltless.—Jehovah had selected Saul to be king of Israel, and had Samuel anoint him to his office; wherefore David considered his life sacred in the sight of God and men. He must not be killed, even in self-defense.

10. David said . . . the Lord shall smite him.—He was willing to trust the case in the hands of Jehovah. "His day shall come to die; or he shall descend into battle, and perish." God can fight our battles for us far more successfully than we can fight them.

11. David would not permit Abishai to slay Saul, nor would he himself kill him; but he did tell Abishai to take his "spear and his cruse of water." That was all right, for he needed some evidence to prove to Saul that he had been in the camp that night. The wonder is that he sent the spear back at his own motion. Most men would have kept it as a trophy.

13. David went over to the other side, and stood on the top of an hill afar off.—There was a valley between him and Saul. This would not be safe now with the terrible guns used in warfare; but there were none in those days. The old colored man was not far wrong when he stated it, as his opinion, during the "world-war" that all the enemy wished to know was a man's postoffice, and they would get him. A great space between them.—In that land under certain conditions of the atmosphere men can speak to one another at a great distance across certain valleys.

14. Answerest thou not, Abner?—David is making fun of Saul's best man. One can almost feel the sarcasm in his words. It was his duty to guard the king, but he had slept while the enemy visited the camp. Who art thou that criest to the king?

—The text does not say that David mentioned the king. Maybe Abner was trying to shield himself, trying to hide himself from Saul's wrath.

17. Saul knew David's Voice.—It was time for him to be somewhat frightened. It reminds one of an English hunter in India, who tied a goat to a bush one night and set himself to shoot a tiger; but when he waked up the big cat had carried off the goat. Imagine his pale face and his running qualities. My son David.—There is an insincerity in those words from the lips of Saul. True, Michal, Saul's daughter, was David's lawful wife; but the king had taken her away from him, and had given her to another man, a thing that he—although king—had no right to do. Still, David addresses him with the utmost courtesy: "It is my voice, my lord, O king." That was certainly commendable in the young man. Be a gentleman, if the other fellow is a rascal.

21. We take little stock in what Saul has to say in this verse. Beyond a question, he told the truth when he confessed that he had "sinned", and that he had "played the fool"; but the aftermath makes one feel that he was likewise playing the hypocrite. David knew better than to trust his life in the hands of such a monster.

EVANGELISTIC AND PERSONAL.

Rev. W. W. McCord recently closed a good meeting at Cecil O. A Sunday school was organized and Rev. J. M. Lewis, pastor at Paulding, Ohio, will preach there each Sunday afternoon. Bro. McCord began a meeting at Paulding, Ohio, just after closing the above revival, which is the tenth week of meetings in Ohio.

Robert E. Veach, 632 Pear St., Vineland, N. J., is open for calls as soloist and pianist. References given on request.

South Mississippi Holiness Camp Meeting will be held from August 5th to August 14th. The preachers engaged to hold the meeting are, Rev. R. B. Rawls, of Nashville, Tenn., and Rev. R. C. Rogers, of Nashville, Tenn., (song leader) also Rev. W. P. George, of Watertown, Tenn., will assist in the meeting. This camp is located one mile north of McHenry, Miss., on the Mississippian branch of the I. C. Railroad. All are invited to attend. Remember the meeting in prayer. Mrs. H. P. Hopper, Sec., Sauer, Miss.

One of the greatest world wonders and living miracles has been given by the Lord to the Holiness Movement in the person of Evangelist Grace Haney, a deaf mute. She holds her large congregations spellbound. Sinners fall off their seats with conviction, and a general breaking of the spirits of men results from her messages. The secret of her success lies in the fact that she is saved, sanctified, and called of God. Rev. Merrifield, expostulator of true holiness and the above mentioned marvel with her mother and father will be employed by the Household of Faith in their seventh annual camp. Everyone from far and near is invited. Board and lodging furnished free on the ground—all expenses met by free will offerings. This Feast of Taber-

GOSPEL TENTS

Write for Prices on NEW AND USED TENTS.

R. H. ARMBRUSTER CO.,
SPRINGFIELD, ILL.

Established 1875

We Aim To Please—Our Aim Is Good

Baptism,

Its Mode, Subjects and Designs.
By Dr. George H. Means.

Plain, practical and comprehensive discussion of this subject. It discusses very thoroughly The Mode, The Baptism of New Testament, The Meaning of the word Baptize, Infant Baptism, etc. Knowing the ability of the author to handle this subject some of our leading men urged the writing of this book. Price, 50c.

PENTECOSTAL PUBLISHING COMPANY
Louisville, Kentucky.

nacles will be held at Point Pleasant beginning Sept. 2nd and continuing ten days. For further information address C. A. Maddy, Heights, W. Va.

A. C. Searcy: "I am in a meeting with the Rev. Wallace, the Methodist pastor at Pine Hill, Tex. God is blessing. I have had as many as 3000 people to hear me in the big tent meeting at this place. We have had about 30 saved and many trembling under conviction. I will be open for revival meetings after Aug. 15."

S. S. Nelson: "The Lord permitted us to spend the Fourth of July on top of the mountains in beautiful Old Virginia. The meeting continued for more than ten days. The Spirit of the Lord was present from the beginning to the end of the meeting. More people attended this meeting than have attended for many years. The success of the meeting was not only marked by the number who professed to find the Lord, but the Christians were blessed, and some who had not attended a meeting for a long time came out to this meeting. The meeting closed at high tide and with a shout."

Eighteenth Annual Session Central Michigan Holiness Camp Meeting at Gaines, Mich., Aug. 26 to Sept. 4, 1927. Our workers this year are the Rev. C. W. Ruth, full time; Dr. H. C. Morrison, half time; Rev. H. L. Cox, half time; and Rev. C. W. Butler, with Mrs. Esther Williamson in charge of the music and Miss Gertrude Cook presiding at the piano. With such well known workers and God's blessing we expect a very helpful heart-searching camp and you are urged to pray for, attend, and invite others. Meals are one dollar a day, fifty cents for one in a room and seventy-five cents for two. Cots in the hotel dormitory are twenty-five cents each. Each one furnishes his own towel. For information write the secretary, Mrs. Grace Millard, 614 W. Michigan Ave., East Lansing, Mich. Rev. C. W. Butler, D.D., Pres., Cleveland, Ohio.

Rev. Walter Cross: "A splendid revival has just come to a close at Adelle, Miss. The workers were Rev. Walter Cross, Evangelist, and Rev.

NOT TO BE USED WITHOUT COPYRIGHT PERMISSION

OF ASBURY THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

Morris Loper, song leader. The meetings were held each evening at 8:00 o'clock and Sunday morning at 10:30, under one of the several tents being furnished by The Evangelical Methodist League at Louisville, Ky. The Lord was present in a wonderful way during the entire revival. Of course the devil was there with his opposition but the victory was won for Christ. The meeting resulted in 132 souls who prayed through at the altar of prayer in the old-fashioned way. The last night of the meeting 52 hands were held up with promises to establish the family altar in their homes. Surely the work done there will be largely preserved."

CONNEAUTVILLE CAMP.

In just a few more days the Conneautville camp will be a busy "little city" once more. Saints will be refreshed and built up, believers will be sanctified, backsliders will be reclaimed and sinners saved by the grace of our God. If you need help you can't afford to miss the camp; if you don't need help others need you. Pray for the meeting and plan to come for the ten days—August 5-14.

The evangelists, Dr. J. L. Brasher, Rev. Thomas Henderson, Rev. Frank Arthur, and Prof. and Mrs. Kenneth Wells are all consecrated and talented laborers in the Lord's great harvest field. On Missionary Day Rev. Woodford Taylor, who has spent twenty years in China and has just returned, will have a wonderful message. The Taylor University Quartet and an orchestra rehearsal each day will mean much to the young people. The children and young people's meetings will be in charge of Miss Emma Valentine.

Mr. H. C. Miller, President, and Mr. J. L. Hanna, Secretary, have prepared a folder giving prices of rooms, meals, etc. You can obtain one by writing to C. A. Lockwood, 2740 Louisiana Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Don't forget the time, August 5-14, and the place, Conneautville, Pa.

REPORT.

I am glad to report that I have been preaching the power of God unto salvation. In my last report in April I had just closed a revival with Rev. A. R. Williams, of Richland, Okla. From this place I went to Troutville, Pa., with Rev. J. K. Jones, whom I found to be a consecrated Christian gentleman and soul winner. The Lord gave us a very good meeting in which many souls found the Lord and some united with the church.

Our next meeting was at Clover Run, Pa., a non-union mining town, twenty-one hundred feet above sea level. Several souls bowed at the altar and the church was revived. At the close of this meeting I ran home to be in the great Holiness Convention and Commencement at Asbury College. Asbury College, under the consecrated leadership of Dr. L. R. Akers, is making great progress along educational lines, and at its present stride will be one of the leading educational centers of the nation. As a friend and old student of Asbury, I want to say to the godly parents who wish their children to have the very best religious and intellectual training, that you can make no mistake in sending them to Asbury.

From this Commencement I was in the camp meeting at God's Bible School in Cincinnati for five days. God seems to visit some places, but he stays at this place. God bless the Knapps and Stanleys.

I am now in a revival at Bible Grove, Ill. Some souls are finding God. I have a date open the latter half of August. I will go anywhere the Lord leads. I would like to fill this date in the East as I am to be at River Side Camp, Robinson, Maine, August 5-14. Life E. Williams.

REVIVAL REPORT.

One of the best revivals ever held in the First Wesleyan Methodist Church of Birmingham recently came to a close. It was as if the wheels of time had turned backward forty or fifty years and we were in a revival such as we read about in the long ago. This was Rev. Kennedy's first time with us, but he was here but a short time till we were aware that a man of God was in our midst. He is a fearless preacher and denounces sin in no uncertain language and with telling effect. God surely honored this plain preaching of the word. Often the power of God would so come on a service until we were somewhat reminded of being in an electric storm with lightning striking all around us as people cried out under a burden of sin. Sinners confessed and made restitution in the old-fashioned way. One blessed feature of the meeting was the spirit of humility, tenderness and confession that came on the people of God. We have been in many so-called confession meetings that were anything but edifying. In this meeting every one seemed anxious to take the blame and beg the other's forgiveness. This undoubtedly is one greatly neglected feature of our revivals and is the key that would unlock many difficult situations and rekindle the revival fires. The Holy Spirit is often grieved by a lack of oneness and a spirit of criticism among the people of God.

One dear man serving a life sentence in the penitentiary, but who was recently pardoned after serving some twenty-three years, dropped into the meetings and was beautifully saved. There were but few dry eyes in the house as he arose and told how he had run away from college and mother and got in with a rough gang and then in the penitentiary. After receiving his pardon he returned to his home but found his parents both dead. He was on his way to the coast to leave this country forever but the Lord led him to the service and to the altar and salvation. Another young man got under such conviction he could not sleep and prayed through about three o'clock in the morning. The God of revivals still lives. Any one desiring evangelistic help will do well to secure Rev. Preston Kennedy.

H. R. French, Pastor.

SULPHUR, LOUISIANA.

In the little town of Sulphur, La., we have had a series of spiritual and inspirational services under the preaching of Evangelist W. E. Thomas, of Kentucky, and Prof. M. V. Lewis as choir director and soloist, Wilmore, Ky. Bro. Thomas was engaged by the pastor of the M. E. Church, South, and did some wholesome, practical gospel preaching which was very gratifying in its results. Bro. Thomas feels his messages, and does not bore or tire his congregation.

Brother Lewis in his pleasing and congenial manner carried us into the very presence of the Lord with his wonderful singing. He has the gift of making you forget all else. Many of his selections, the "Radio" being one, attracted much attention, and lifted the veil of doubt and strength-

ASBURY COLLEGE

WILMORE, KENTUCKY

A Cosmopolitan School

Born in a passion standing for Wesleyan Adequate training for the evangeliza- Essentials. Fall session consistent with a tion of the world. opens September 14th. sound gospel faith.

Write for Bulletin.

MEMBER OF THE ASSOCIATION OF KENTUCKY COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES;
MEMBER OF THE ASSOCIATION OF AMERICAN COLLEGES.

L. R. AKERS, M.A., D.D., PRESIDENT.

W. BRANDT HUGHES, M.A., DEAN.

The School With a World Vision

"Every Preacher in America Ought to Have a Copy,"

Says the Pastor of the Largest Methodist Church in the World

"It is interesting and instructive even to children," says an eminent Methodist missionary and author.

WINGS

Nearly Four Hundred True, Thrilling Stories From the Experience of Three Hundred Ministers of Ten Denominations, Written in a Prize Contest, Offered to Each of 109,200 Ministers of the United States and Canada.

Compiled and Edited by
THE REV. GORDON HURLBUTT, Th.D.

The Striking Stories in This Remarkable Book Are Intended to be Used as Illustrations by Religious Workers; as an Aid to Public School Teachers; and as Inspirational and Devotional Reading in the Home.

A FEW OF THE MANY UNSOLICITED OPINIONS

Dr. Elmer Ellsworth Helms, pastor of the First Methodist Church in Los Angeles, the largest Methodist Church in the world: "Nothing like it was ever done before. I have read fully a hundred of the stories, and they are gems—all. Every preacher in America ought to have a copy."

Rev. Benjamin Goodfield, pastor First Baptist Church, Santa Barbara, California: "I am inexpressibly delighted with it. . . . I wouldn't part with my copy, supposing I could not secure another, for $100."

Dr. J. G. Akin, pastor of the Broadway Methodist Church, Louisville, Ky.: "A real contribution to Christendom. Many of the stories are not only striking but unusual."

Dr. G. B. F. Hallock, eminent Presbyterian author and editor, Rochester, N. Y.: "The material is of very unusual value. . . . warm, vital, TRUE STORIES. . . . thrilling in nature and especially usable."

Dr. Fred F. Brown, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Knoxville, Tenn.: "The best book of its kind that is in print."

Dr. William Porkess, rector of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, Wilkesburg, Penn.: "The price of three dollars for the book is ridiculously low." (He has bought ten copies.)

DESCRIPTION—384 very large pages; 338 pieces; three complete indexes; large, clear, artistic type; bound in cloth and stamped with beautiful symbolic design in gold.

Price to Readers of PENTECOSTAL HERALD
$3 Postpaid

SEND YOUR ORDERS TO

THE PENTECOSTAL PUBLISHING COMPANY
523 South First St. Louisville, Ky.

ened faith almost to sight. His voice is mellow and clear and bears the tenderness of a wonderful message that portrays the marvelous love of God to a lost world. We wish we could have it all over again and hope we may hear them again.

Mrs. W. H. Gates.

Tent Workers of the Evangelical Methodist League

ASBURY GOSPEL TEAM.

Kirkpatrick, J. J., Moore, DuVal.
Elmira, N. Y., July 20-31.
Lockport, N. Y., August 5-14.

BECK, A. S. AND R. S.

Columbia, Ky., July 18-Aug. 5.
Open dates, August 5 to last of October.

BEELER, T. W.

(Wilmore, Ky.)
Danville, Ky., July 16-31.

COCHRAN BROTHERS.

Omega, Ga., July 1-28.

CROSS, WALTER—LOPER, NORRIS.

Silver Creek, Miss., July 11-29.
Stratton, Miss., August 1-19.
Piedmont, Ala., Aug. 22-Sept. 4.

DORN, C. O.—SEAMONS, L. H.

Lynchburg, S. C., July 18-31.
Oswego, S. C., August 7-28.

DUNAWAY, C. M.

(216 N. Candler St., Decatur, Ga.)
Dalton, Ga., July 23-31.
Mt. Vernon, Ohio, August 4-14.

GRANT BROTHERS.

Birch Tree, Mo., August 1-16.
Thomasville, Mo., August 16-31.

HOTCHKISS, ROY L.

Montevideo, Minn., July 19-Aug. 7.
Winthrop, Minn., Aug. 9-28.
Hull, Iowa, August 30-Sept. 11.

HOWARD, FIELDING T.

(Wilmore, Ky.)
Depoy, Ky., July 20-31.
Milton, Ky., August 5-14.
Tolu, Ky., August 18-28.

HUTCHERSON, FIELDS AND HILKER.

(Tent Workers)
Basin, Wyo., July 18-31.
Meetsse, Wyo., August 1-21.
Grass Creek, Wyo., August 22-25.

HYSELL, HARVEY B.

(Box 1235, Charleston, W. Va.)
Baileysville, W. Va., July 17-31.
Bowersville, Ohio, August 4-14.
Mt. Nebo, W. Va., Aug. 17-31.

JOHNSON, RAY N.

McLuney, Ohio, July 25-Aug. 7.

KEYS EVANGELISTIC PARTY.

(Mohnton, Pa.)
Reading, Pa., July 22-31.
Lewistown, Pa., August 2-14.
Eccles, W. Va., Aug. 18-Sept. 4.
Chillicothe, Ohio, Sept. 11-Oct. 2.

LAMBERT, B. D.

Eagle Rock, Va., July 17-Aug. 7.
Oil City, Pa., August 14-Sept. 3.

LAMP, W. E.

(Wilmore, Ky.)
Louisville, Ill., July 1-Aug. 4.
Shumway, Ill., August 6-26.

LEWIS, J. H.

Open date, July 26-Aug. 9.
Jerusalem, Ohio, Aug. 11-21.

MOORE, W. BRADY—MOORE, C. C.—

BOOKER, HORACE.
Brilliant, Ohio, July 21-August 3.

PARKER, J. R.

(Wilmore, Ky.)
Open date, July 25-Aug. 11.
Berry, Ky., August 15-28.

POWELL, JAMES L.

Corydon, Ky., July 31-Aug. 14.
Open date, Aug. 18-28.

ROBERTS, BYRON F.

Dayton, Ohio, July 28-Aug. 21.
Jamestown, Ohio, Aug. 24-Sept. 11.

SMITH AND McCURE.

Open date, July 31-August 21.
Richmond, Ill., Aug. 21-Sept. 11.

WHEALDON, J. R.

Vicco, Ky., July 1-August 1.

WILLIS, F. B.

Colon, Mich., July 13-Aug. 1.
Open, August 3-14.

EVANGELISTS' SLATES

ALBRIGHT, TILLIE.

Moore's, New York, July 24-Aug. 14.
Richland, N. Y., Aug. 21-Sept. 5.

ANDERSON, T. M.

Sharon Center, Ohio, July 29-Aug. 7.
Frankfort, Ind., Aug. 5-14.
Wichita, Kan., August 18-28.
Winchester, Ind., Sept. 1-11.

ARTHUR, FRANK E.

Gladwin, Mich., July 21-31.
Conneautville, Pa., Aug. 4-14.
Huntington, W. Va., Aug. 17-Sept. 4.

AYCOCK, JARRETTE AND DELL.

(2923 Troost Ave., Kansas City, Mo.)
Nampa, Idaho, August 4-14.
Kearney, Neb., August 18-28.

BABCOCK, C. H.

Hollow Rock, Toronto, O. July 28-Aug. 7.
Wakefield, Va., August 5-15.
Wichita, Kan., August 18-28.
Blackwell, Okla., Aug. 29-Sept. 4.
Thomas, Okla., Sept. 15-25.

BELEW, P. P.

(1529 N. Nelson St., Marion, Ind.)
Franklin, Ind., July 15-31.

BENNARD, GEO.

Meaford, Ontario, Can., July 20-31.
Romeo, Mich., Aug. 4-14.

BENNETT, W. G.

Manchester, O., Aug. 10-Sept. 1.

BONINE, GRACE O.—RIGGS, HELEN G.

Vandalia, Mich., August 17-28.

BRENNEMAN, A. P. AND MRS.

Moherly, Mo., July 15-31.
Seymour, Mo., August 4-14.
Ava, Mo., August 24-Sept. 4.

BREWER, GRADY.

(High Falls, S. C.)
Open date, Sept. 10-Oct. 21.

BROWNING, RAYMOND.

Columbus, Ohio, July 28-Aug. 7.
New Albany, Ind., August 8-14.
Aspen Hill, Tenn., Aug. 21-Sept. 5.

BUDMAN, ALMA L.

(Song Evangelist)
(101 Carpenter St., Muncy, Pa.)
Hughesville, Pa., July 21-31.
Linden Hall, Pa., August 6-20.

BURNETT, W. EVANS.

(Lake Charles, La.)
Open dates for July and August.
Alexandria, La., June 17-25.

BUSSEY, M. M.

Dallas, Ore., July 17-Aug. 1.

CALLIS, O. H.

Nashville, Tenn., July 17-31.
Hartsell, Ala., August 4-14.
Kincaid, W. Va., Aug. 19-29.

CANADAY, FRED.

(1518 Killingsworth Ave., Portland, Ore.)
Mt. Vernon, Va., July 28-Aug. 7.
Spotsylvania, Va., Aug. 19-28.

CAIN, W. R.

(515 So. Vine St., Wichita, Kan.)
St. Croix Falls, Wis., July 28-Aug. 7.
Wichita, Kan., August 18-28.

CAROTHERS, J. L. AND SADIE.

Ferndale, Wash., July 21-31.
Tacoma, Wash., August 1-14.
Nespeche, Idaho, August 17-31.

CHATFIELD, C. C. AND FLORA.

(410 E. Carl St., Winchester, Ind.)
Warsaw, Ohio, July 28-August 7.
Radcliff, Ohio, August 14-28.
Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 29-Sept. 11.
Durand, Mich., Sept. 11-Oct. 2.
Ellet, Ohio, Oct. 3-16.

CLARKE, C. S.

(808 N. Ash, Guthrie, Okla.)
Guthrie, Okla., July 31-Aug. 21.

COLEMAN, PAUL.

(1020 Fairfax Ave., Cincinnati, O.)
Frankfort, Ind., August 8-11.
Springfield, Ohio, August 12-24.

COLLIER, J. A.

(197 Cephas Ave., Nashville, Tenn.)
Providence, Ky., July 10-Aug. 7.

COPELAND, H. E.

(Oskaloosa, Iowa)
Thomas, S. Dak., July 24-Aug. 14.

COX, F. W. AND WIFE.

Crawfordsville, Ore., (Wesleyan Church)
July 20-Aug. 7.

DECKER, WATER REED.

(Song Evangelist)
(124 Gould St., Cory, Pa.)
Open dates for Fall and Winter.

DICKERSON, H. N.

(2608 Newmain St., Ashland, Ky.)
Bloomington, Ind., July 17-31.
Kirk, Colo., August 18-28.

DYE, CHARLES.

(430 Williams St., Troy, Ohio)
Fisher, Ky., July 24-Aug. 7.
Selma, Ind., August 11-28.
Toledo, Ohio, Sept. 4-18.

ELSNER, THEO. AND WIFE.

(1451 Pacific St., Brooklyn, N. Y.)
Reading, Pa., July 22-31.
Wilmington, Mass., Aug. 5-14.
Delanco, N. J., August 26-Sept. 5.

FLEMING, JOHN.

N. Little Rock, Ark., July 29-Aug. 8.
National Park Camp, New Jersey, Aug. 9-21.
Denver, Colo., Sept. 11-25.

FLEMING, BONA.

Little Rock, Ark., July 29-Aug. 7.
National Park, N. J., August 12-21.
Ingersoll, Okla., Aug. 28-Sept. 4.

FLEXON, R. S.

(Shackelford, Va.)
Lothian, Md., July 15-31.
Clinton, Pa., August 5-14.
Glassboro, N. J., August 15-21.
Delanco, N. J., Aug. 17-Sept. 5.

FUGETT, C. B.

(2513 Holt St., Ashland, Ky.)
Haltown, Md., July 24-Aug. 7.
Normal, Ill., August 19-28.
Cape May, N. J., Sept. 9-17.

GADDIS, TILDEN H.

(4805 Ravenna St., Cincinnati, Ohio)
Oregon, Wis., July 31-Aug. 14.
Charleston, Ill., August 19-28.
Mulberry, Okla., Sept. 2-18.

GEIL, PAUL AND DORA.

(Frankfort, Ind.)
(Singers and Xylophone Players)
North Manchester, Ind., July 1-30.
Lafayette, Ind., August 7-28.
Crawfordsville, Ind., Sept. 7-11.
Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 16-Nov. 6.
Brazil, Ind., Nov. 13-27.
Anamosa, Iowa, Dec. 1-30.

GLEASON, RUFUS H.

(Central, S. C.)
Cadillac, Mich., July 28-Aug. 7.
Charles City, Ia., Aug. 16-28.

GLENN, REV AND MRS. J. M.

Chatam, Ala., July 24-Aug. 7.
Indian Springs, Ga., Aug. 11-21.
Eastman, Ga., Sept. 4-18.

GREEN, JIM H.

(Box 200, Connelly Springs, N. C.)
Bostic, N. C., July 17-29.
Connelly Springs, N. C., Aug. 7-15.

GROGG, W. A.

(Ronceverte, W. Va.)
Mt. Lake Park, Md., July 28-Aug. 4.
Pinch, W. Va., August 20-Sept. 3.

GROSE, JOHN A.

(Shepherdstown, W. Va.)
Front Royal, Va., Aug. 28-Sept. 11.

HALLMAN, W. A. AND WIFE.

Didsbury, Alta., July 21-31.
Elkhart, Ind., August 4-14.
Lincoln, Nebr., August 19-29.

HARRIS, B. F.

Klondike, Tex., July 15-31.
Dillard, Okla., Aug. 1-14.
Riley, Kan., Aug. 17-Sept. 4.

HEWSON, JOHN E.

(127 N. Chestnut Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.)
Sherman, Ill., August 4-14.
Portage, Ohio, Aug. 18-28.

HOLLENBACK, URAL T.

Norristown, Pa., Oct. 2-16.

HORN, LUTHER A.—MARSHALL, R. P.

Box 1322, Mobile, Ala.)
Suggsville, Ala., July 31-Aug. 12.
Clear Springs, Ala., Aug. 14-28.
Louisville, Ala., Sept. 1-14.
Open date, Sept. 18-30.

HULSE, AARON.

Oklahoma City, Okla., July 10-31.
Letona, Okla., Aug. 9-28.
Bradford, Ark., Sept. 2-25.

HUNT, JOHN J.

(Media, Pa., Rt. 3.)
Rosslyn, Va., July 28-Aug. 8.
Wilkesburg, Pa., Sept. 16-25.

IRICK, ALLIE AND EMMA.

(Bethany, Okla.)
Goddard, Ky., July 21-31.
Camden, Ill., August 4-14.
Bonnie, Ill., August 19-29.
Millport, Ala., Aug. 31-Sept. 12.
Thomas, Okla., Sept. 15-25.

JOHNSON, ANDREW

Ruggles, N. Y., July 21-31.
Eldorado, Ill., August 4-14.
Campbellsville, Ky., Aug. 12-22.

JONES, LYMAN.

(North Kingsville, Ohio)
Brothead, Ky., July 17-August 21.
Open dates.

KEEL, MRS. S. A.

Menomone, Wis., August 4-25.

KENNEDY, ROBERT J.

(Singer)
Seagraves, Tex., Aug. 17-31.
Paris, Tenn., Sept. 4-25.
Ft. Worth, Tex., Oct. 2-23.

KINSEY, W. C. AND WIFE.

(452 So. West 2nd St., Richmond, Ind.)
(Song Leader, Singers, Pianist)
Campbellsville, Ky., Aug. 12-21.

KINSEY FRANK E.

(1220 Tecumseh St., Indianapolis, Ind.)
Birds, Ill., July 31-Aug. 21.
Urbana, Ill., Aug. 24-29.

LILLENAS, HALDOR AND BERTHA.

Carmichaels, Pa., July 21-31.
Sherman, Ill., August 4-14.
Connersville, Ind., Oct. 2-16.

LINN, REV. AND MRS. JACK—QUINN,

IMOGENE.

(Oregon, Wis.)
Oregon, Wis., July 29-August 14.
Sanford, Ind., August 18-28.
Louisville, Tenn., Sept. 1-11.
Knoxville, Tenn., Sept. 13-25.

LITTLELL, V. W. AND MARGUERITE.

(1214 Scott St., Beatrice, Neb.)
Urichsville, Ohio, July 22-Aug. 7.
Chidroit, Ia., Aug. 14-28.

LOVELESS, W. W.

(London, Ohio)
Warsaw, Ohio, July 21-31.
Des Arc, Mo., Aug. 13-28.

LUDWIG, THEODORE AND MINNIE.

(772 N. Euclid Ave., St. Louis, Mo.)
Hector, Minn., July 26-Aug. 7.
Nokomis, Ill., Aug. 9-21.

MCBRIDE, J. B.

(112 Arlington Drive, Pasadena, Calif.)
Hollis, Okla., July 27-Aug. 7.
Noonday, Tex., August 11-21.
Oakland City, Ind., Aug. 25-Sept. 4.

MCGHIE, ANNA E.

Sharon Center, Ohio, July 28-Aug. 4.
Mt. Vernon, O., Aug. 4-14.

MCCORD, W. W.

(Sale City, Ga.)
Sale City, Ga., August 11-21.

MENESE, HERBERT J.

(New Brighton, Pa., 634 13th Ave.)
Open dates, July and August.

MAXWELL, PROF. S. A.

(Graham, N. C.)
Open dates, August.

MILLER, REV. AND MRS. F. E.

(Lowville, N. Y.)
Moers, N. Y., July 30-Aug. 14.
Richland, N. Y., August 21-Sept. 5.

MILLER, JULIUS.

(Watson, Wis.)
Ortonville, Minn., July 26-Aug. 7.
Jamestown, N. Dak., Aug. 10-14.

MILLER, JAMES.

(1249 N. Holme Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.)
Hope, Mich., July 31-Aug. 14.

MINGLEDORFF, O. G.

(Blackshear, Ga.)
Grand Bayou, La., July 17-31.
Orlando, Fla., Aug. 25-Sept. 5.

MONK, ALONZO, JR.

Winslow, Ark., July 26-Sept. 1.
Paris, Tenn., Sept. 3-24.
October, November, December open.

MORGAN, R. L.

(Olivet, Ill.)
Milwaukee, Wis., July 27-Aug. 14.

MORRIS, (JUDGE) FRANK

(P. O. Box 1523, Dallas, Tex.)
Aspermont, Tex., August 7.
Hugerman, N. Mex., Aug. 28.
Alanoyardo, N. Mex., Sept. 11.
Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 2.

NELSON, S. S.

(832 Worth Ave., Greensboro, N. C.)
Organ Cave, W. Va., Oct. 1-10.
Ranceverte, W. Va., Oct. 12-25.

NORBERRY, JOHN.

WATTS, E. E.
(Sandy Lake, Pa.)
Belle Plaine, Iowa, July 19-Aug. 7.
Open date, August 9-31.
Hadley, N. Y., Sept. 4-25.

WELLS, KENNETH AND EUNICE.
Hollow Rock, Toronto, O., July 28-Aug. 7.
Conneautville, Pa., August 8-14.
Hopkins, Mich., August 18-24.

WHITAKER, J. H.
(Box 385, Arlington, Tex.)
Van Alstyne, Tex., July 22-31.
Open date, Aug. 5-17.
Irredell, Tex., Aug. 19-30.

WHITEHURST, R. F.
(Wilmore, Ky.)
New York District Nazarene Church,
June and July.
Magnolia, Ark., August 4-14.

WILLIAMS, L. E.
(Wilmore, Ky.)
Robinson, Maine, August 5-15.
Open date, Aug. 19-Sept. 4.

WIMBERLY, C. F.
Greenville, Ky., July 20-30.
Wilmore, Ky., July 31-Aug. 5.
Eldorado, Ill., Aug. 5-15.
Ringgold, La., August 16-28.

WINLAND, C. B.
Peoli, Ohio, Aug. 14-28.
Layland, Ohio, August 31-Sept. 14.
Athens, Ohio, Sept. 18-Oct. 2.

WIREMAN, C. L.
(770 Scott St., Covington, Ky.)
Wilson Run, Ohio, July 29-Aug. 14.
Rising Sun, Ind., Sept. 7-18.
Open date, August 15-28.
Kingswood, Ky., Aug. 30-Sept. 6.
Burlington, Ky., Sept. 20-Oct. 2.

YOUNG, ALVIN.
Denton, Md., July 25-31.
Portsmouth, R. I., Aug. 1-7.
Glassboro, N. J., Aug. 11-21.
Binghampton, N. Y., Aug. 22-28.

YOUNG, R. A.
Bowersville, O., Aug. 4-14.
Waynesboro, Miss., Aug. 19-28.

CAMP MEETING CALENDAR.

ALABAMA.

Hartselle, Ala., camp, August 4-14. Workers: Revs. O. H. Callis, Joseph Owen and Harry Blackburn. L. O. Waldsmith, Sec. Birmingham, Ala., camp, July 20-31. Workers: Rollo D. Wise, Mrs. Golden L. Young. Write W. H. Sillman.

ARKANSAS.

Beebe, Ark., camp, August 11-22. Workers: Rev. Josiah Tucker, Willard B. Davis, song leader. Write Mrs. Callie Harrison, Sec., P. O. Box 12, Beebe, Ark.

COLORADO.

Yuma, Colo., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Rev. L. N. Fogg, H. N. Dickerson. Mrs. J. Hester Peck, song leader. For information write E. O. Walden, Yuma, Colo.

GEORGIA.

Indian Springs, Ga., camp, Aug. 11-21. Workers: Rev. H. C. Morrison, Rev. J. L. Brasher, Rev. C. W. Butler. Young People's worker, Mrs. Jere M. Glenn. Director of music, Mr. Hamp Sewell. Address R. F. Burdew, Macon, Ga.

IDAHO.

Nampa, Idaho, camp, August 4-14. Workers: Rev. Bud Reavon, Revs. Jarrette and Del Aycock and daughter. For information write A. E. Sanner, Chair., 14th and 12th, Nampa, Idaho.

ILLINOIS.

Hillcrest, Ill., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Rev. E. E. Montgomery, Rev. T. P. Roberts. Prof. and Mrs. E. A. Shank in charge of singing and children. Chas. F. Benz, Sec., Kampsville, Ill.

Charleston, Ill., camp, Aug. 19-28. Workers: Rev. T. H. Gaddis and the Moser Sisters, assisted by district preachers. Rev. Chas. Slater will represent missions. Correspond with Rev. W. M. Hall, Charleston, Ill.

Cambria, Ill., camp, August 4-14. Workers: Rev. Allie Erick and wife, Mrs. Emma Erick, Rev. Elmer McKay, Rev. J. R. Moore in charge of the singing. The Girls' Quartette, of Taylor University will also be in attendance. Dr. John Paul will be with us for at least one service. A. C. Wolfe, Sec., Carterville, Ill., Route 1.

Bonnie, Ill., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Revs. Allie and Emma Erick, Rev. Elmer McKay, Prof. John E. Moore. W. T. Lawson, Cor. Sec., Benton, Ill.

Greenville, Ill., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Bishop Joseph B. Berry, Rev. Guy Wilson, The Prestons, song leaders. A. B. Plog, Cor.-Sec'y.

Normal, Ill., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Rev. Harry W. Morrow, Rev. C. B. Fugett, Rev. Harold Johnson, song leader. Rev. Della B. Stretch, children's worker. Address Mrs. Bertha C. Ashbrook, Sec., 45 West Allen St., Springfield, Ill.

Sherman, Ill., camp, August 4-14. Workers: Rev. A. L. Whitcomb, Rev. J. E. Hewson, Haldor Lillenas and wife, song leaders; Mrs. Della B. Stretch, children's worker. For information write Mrs. Julia Short Hayes, 2217 East Capitol Ave., Springfield, Ill.

Eldorado, Ill., camp, August 4-14. Workers: Dr. C. F. Wimberly, Dr. Andrew Johnson, Rev. G. S. Pollock and wife in charge of the music. J. M. Keasler, Sec., Omaha, Ill.

INDIANA.

Ramsay, Ind., August 12-21. Workers: M. G. Stanley, J. B. Keifer; J. B. C. Gray, children's worker; C. C. Rinebarger and wife, leaders in song. Address Geo. F. Finlay, Sec., Ramsay, Ind.

Centerville, Ind., camp, July 31-Aug. 19. Workers: G. M. Rainey, A. M. Moorehead. Address Mrs. J. B. Clevenger, Sec., Centerville, Ind., R. F. D.

Bryantsburg, Ind., camp, August 19-28. Workers: Rev. Moore Vayhinger, The Payne Evangelistic Party, consisting of Sister Fannie Payne, Miss Bertha Pultz, Miss Ruth Cooper. For information write Chas. E. Cleek, Madison, Ind., Rt. 9.

Frankfort, Ind., camp, August 5-14. Workers: Rev. T. M. Anderson, Rev. G. Arnold Hodgkin, Rev. J. C. Brillhart, song evangelist, Rev. C. C. Mourer, special musician. For full particulars write Rev. D. E. Snow, Sec., 123 W. 24th St., Anderson, Ind.

Letts, Ind., camp, July 29-August 7. Workers: M. Vayhinger, Dwight M. Peffley, song evangelist. Mrs. Lena Holcomb, pianist. Address Rev. Arthur McQueen, Pres., Westport, Ind.

New Albany, Ind., Silver Heights, Aug. 4-14. Workers: Revs. Virgil L. Moore and Raymond Browning, Paul S. Rees. Mrs. T. B. Talbott, children's worker. Male Quartet of Asbury College in charge of music. Address E. B. McPheeters, Sec., 212 Cherry St., New Albany, Ind.

Cleveland, Ind., camp, August 26-Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. John T. Hatfield, Rev. G. Arnold Hodgkin, Wright Brothers, song leaders, Miss Florence Wyse, pianist. For information write Rev. C. E. Ellsworth, Sec., Greenfield, Ind., Rt. 3.

Oakland City, Ind., camp, August 26-Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. J. B. McBride, Rev. Ira Aykers, Rev. C. C. Rinebarger and wife, song evangelists. Write Mrs. Warrick Yeager, Sec., 518 S. Hall St., Princeton, Ind.

KANSAS.

Wichita, Kan., camp, Aug. 18-28. Workers: Rev. Chas. H. Babcock, Rev. E. E. Shelhamer, Rev. T. M. Anderson, Mrs. Ernest D. Bartlett, Harold Chapman and Prof. B. D. Sutton and wife. Address W. R. Cain, Sec., 515 So. Vine St., Wichita, Kan.

KENTUCKY.

Carthage, Ky., camp, Aug. 19-28. Workers: Rev. Freddie Thomas, J. E. and Ada Redmon. For information address, J. R. Moore, Pres., Columbia, Ky., R.F.D. No. 1. Rawlings, Sec., Bradfordsville, Ky.

Acton, Ky., camp, August 12-20. Workers: Rev. Andred Johnson, Prof. W. C. Kinsey and wife, song leaders. E. E. Eads, Sec.

Wilmore, Ky., camp, July 28-Aug. 7. Workers: Rev. C. F. Wimberly, Rev. J. L. Brasher and H. S. Blackburn. Rev. H. C. Morrison, Pres., will preach again. Address C. C. Lovejoy, Sec., Wilmore, Ky.

Callis Grove, Ky., camp, August 5-14. Workers: Rev. Fielding T. Howard, J. Dorothy Huyett, song leader, Miss Ethel Sageser, pianist. I. H. Driskell, Sec., Milton, Ky., Route 3.

Tolu, Ky., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Rev. Fielding T. Howard, Charles L. Lear, leader of song. Write J. W. Napier, Tolu, Ky.

MAINE.

Robinson, Maine, camp, August 5-14. Workers: Evangelist Life E. Williams, assisted by local help. For information write Rev. P. J. Truitt, Pres. and Sec., 341 Union St., St. Johns, N. B., Can.

MARYLAND.

North East, Md., camp, August 5-14. Workers: Rev. J. B. Chapman, Rev. E. F. Neely and daughters. Miss Christine Williams, children's worker. Inform from Prof. J. N. Nielson, Bus. Mgr., 212 Parker Ave., Collingdale, Pa.

MICHIGAN.

Hopkins, Mich., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Rev. I. N. Toole, Dr. C. W. Butler, Dr. G. Arnold Hodgkin. Mrs. Fred DeWeerd, leader of young people. Prof. Kenneth Wells in charge of music; Miss Lillian Scott, pianist. Write Dr. L. E. Heasley, Sec., Rt. 9, Grand Rapids, Mich.

Gaines, Mich., camp, August 26-Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. C. W. Ruth, Dr. H. C. Morrison, Rev. H. L. Cox, Rev. C. W. Butler, Miss Esther Williamson, Secretary. Mrs. Grace Millard, 614 W. Michigan Ave., East Lansing, Mich.

Hope Center, Mich., camp, July 31-Aug. 14. Workers: James Miller, Paul White. Write Ashby Mills, Sec., Hope, Mich.

Eaton Rapids, Mich., camp, July 29-August 7. Workers: Dr. John Paul, Rev. Will Huff, Dr. S. H. Turberville. Rev. L. H. Nixon in music. With H. H. Marse Skinner at the piano. Mrs. Blanche Francis in charge of young people's work. For information write Miss Fern C. Wheeler, Sec., Charlotte, Mich.

Owosso, Mich., camp, August 5-14. Workers: Rev. Geo. B. Kulp, Rev. E. E. Shelhamer, W. L. W. Sturk, Sec., 1506 Bennett Ave., Flint, Mich.

Maybee, Mich., camp, August 11-21. Workers: Miss Edna Banning, J. C. Walker and wife, the Douglas Brothers, (Scotch duettists). Mrs. Clara Palmer, Sec., 544 Thompson St., Ann Arbor, Mich.

Romeo, Mich., camp, August 5-14. Workers: George Bennett, Rev. C. W. Butler, Rev. Will Huff, and Rev. S. H. Turberville. Mrs. W. L. Francis, Young People's worker. Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Shank, song leaders. E. L. Jaquish, Sec., R. F. D. 5, Pontiac, Mich.

MISSISSIPPI.

Frost Bridge, Miss., camp, August 19-28. Workers: Rev. C. A. Young and other helpers. Address Mrs. J. E. Moody, Sec., Waynesboro, Miss.

Cleveland, Miss., camp, August 11-22. Workers: Rev. E. E. McKethen, E. E. McKethen, Jr., song leader. Write Mrs. S. C. Taylor, Sec., 297 S. Court St., Cleveland, Miss.

MISSOURI.

Ava, Mo., camp, August 25-Sept. 4. Workers: A. P. Breneman and wife, C. E. Woodson and local assistants. For information write Mrs. Mattie Wallace, Ava, Mo., Route 1.

NEBRASKA.

Kearney, Neb., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Rev. E. O. Hobbs, Rev. Jarrette and Dell Aycock, Mrs. C. P. Turner. Address all communications to Mr. B. J. Patterson, Sec., Kearney, Neb.

NEW JERSEY.

Erma, N. J., camp, Sept. 9-18. Workers: Rev. C. B. Fugett, Rev. K. Hawley Jackson and wife. For information write Earl Woolson, Cape May, N. J., R.F.D.

Glassboro, N. J., camp, August 11-21. Workers: Rev. H. J. Olsen, R. G. Flexon, Alvin Young. Write M. Gallagher, 40 Myrtle Ave., Pitman, N. J.

National Park, N. J., camp, August 12-21. Workers: Rev. Bona Fleming, Rev. John Fleming. Mr. Burl P. Sparks, singer. Fletcher Grove, Delanco, N. J., camp, August 27-Sept. 5. Workers: Rev. Theo. Elsner, Mrs. Theo. Elsner, Rev. Richard G. Flexon, Jr.

NEW YORK.

Moers, N. Y., camp, July 30-Aug. 14. Workers: Joseph H. Smith, J. F. Knapp, John and Emily Thomas, Zahniser, John Scobie, Tillie Albright, Arthur Goul, song leader. Address Kenneth F. Fee, Sec., Moers, N. Y.

NORTH CAROLINA.

Connelly Springs, N. C., camp, August 7-14. Workers: Rev. Joseph H. Smith, The Greensboro Bible School Band and Quartette and others. For information address Box 200, Connelly Springs, N. C.

OHIO.

Unipolis, Ohio, camp, August 25-Sept. 4. Workers: L. S. Hoover, Rev. Herb Walker. Prof. N. B. Vandall has charge of the music. Address Geo. W. Watman, Unipolis, Ohio.

Napoleon, Ohio, camp, July 31-August 14. Workers: Miss Celia M. Bradshaw and Miss Helena Saneholtz. For information address Rev. R. W. Wolfe, Napoleon, Ohio.

Ludlow Falls, Ohio, camp, July 28-August 7. Workers: Rev. H. M. Metzger, Rev. J. A. Beery, Rev. S. M. Bidsath, Rev. J. I. Moore, song leader. Miss Edith Scher, children's worker. Roy Harshbarger, Sec., West Milton, Ohio.

Portage, Ohio, camp, August 19-28. Workers: Geo. B. Kulp and John E. Hewson. Song leader, A. E. Johnston and wife. Address E. L. Day, Sec.

Findlay, Ohio, camp, August 11-21. Workers: C. H. Stalker, B. H. Haynie, Mrs. Anna Smith. W. B. Vandall, singer. Miss Florine Ewing, pianist. G. W. Egbert, Sec.

Mt. Vernon, Ohio, (Camp Sycar), camp, August 4-14. Workers: Rev. C. M. Dunaway, Rev. John Owen, Rev. E. Hilton Post. Song leader, Prof. W. B. Yates; Young people's worker, Miss Anna McGhie. Children's workers, Miss May Gorsuch and Miss Olive Palmer. Young people's song leader, Rev. W. L. Mullet. Address Rev. E. E. Shiltz, Sec., Shadyside, Ohio.

Toronto, (Hollow Rock) Ohio, July 28-August 7. Workers: C. W. Ruth, C. H. Babcock, Howard Sweeten. Song leader, Prof. Kenneth Wells and wife. Young people's and children's meeting leader, Mrs. Sadie Mishey. Address Roy L. Householder, Sec., Toronto, Ohio.

Circleville, Ohio, camp, August 26-Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. T. P. Roberts, Rev. Howard W. Sweeten, Rev. Charles L. Slater, Rev. E. W. Keaton, Cor. Sec., 481 N. High St., Chillicothe, Ohio.

Columbus, Ohio, camp, July 28-Aug. 7. Workers: Rev. Floyd N. Neese, Rev. Raymond Browning, Rev. F. M. Messenger, Rev. J. G. Morrison, Rev. and Mrs. B. D. Sutton, gospel singers, Rev. Chas. A. Gibson, Vaughn Radio Quartette. Write Rev. Orial J. Nease, 148 King Ave., Columbus, Ohio.

OKLAHOMA.

Blackwell, Okla., camp, August 25-Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. C. H. Babcock, Rev. Geo. Bennett and Willard Davis. Address Mrs. A. L. Wright, Sec., 307 E. College, Blackwell, Okla.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Conneautville, Pa., camp, August 5-14. Workers: Rev. J. L. Brasher, Thomas Henderson, Rev. E. Arthur, Prof. Kenneth Wells and wife, Emma Valentine. Address C. A. Lockwood, Cor. Sec., 2740 Louisiana Ave., (Darmont) Pittsburgh, Pa.

Clinton, Pa., camp, August 5-14. Workers: Rev. R. G. Flexon, Rev. David Wilson, Rev. J. N. Hampe, Rev. Geo. Cole, song leader. Mrs. Edith Clawson, children's meetings. Write Rev. L. W. King, Clinton, Pa.

RHODE ISLAND.

Portsmouth, R. I., camp, July 29-Aug. 7. Workers: Chas. H. Stalker, Winfred R. Cox, Alvin Young. For information address, Andrew B. Starbuck, Pres., Newport, R. I.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

Epworth, S. C., camp, August 19-28. Workers: Dr. E. P. Taylor, Dr. John Paul and others. Address Rev. W. P. B. Kinard, Epworth, S. C.

TENNESSEE.

Greenville, Tenn., camp, Sept. 1-11. Workers: Rev. C. M. Dunaway, Miss Ruth Harris in charge of music. Address Mrs. Flora Willis, care Mrs. C. A. Vann, Greenville, Tenn.

Dyer, Tenn., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Dr. A. O. Henricks, Rev. S. W. Strickland, Mrs. Ruth Harris, song leader. Joe C. Hall, Sec., Dyer, Tenn.

Knoxville, Tenn., camp, August 3-11. Workers: Rev. H. Robb French and wife, Mrs. Golden Young. For information write Rev. Percy E. Bailey, 1018 E. Main Ave., Knoxville, Tenn.

TEXAS.

Noonday, Texas, camp, August 10-21. Workers: J. B. McBride, C. P. Gossett, song leader. F. E. Dickard, Sec., Hallsville, Tex.

Scottsville, Tex., camp, July 28-Aug. 7. Workers: Rev. Fred H. Ross, Rev. Warren C. McIntyre, Singer, C. P. Gossett. B. P. Wynne, Sec., Marshall, Tex.

Atlanta, Tex., camp, August 12-21. Workers: Dr. R. T. Williams, The Latham Sisters, pianist and leaders of song. Mary R. Perdue, Sec.

Waco, Texas, camp, July 29-August 7. Workers: Harry S. Allen. For information address Jno. W. Beresford, Sec., Waco, Texas.

WILMORE, KY., The Home of Asbury College, would be an ideal place to locate, especially if you have children to enter that wonderful school. Now we have a good paying drug store that could be purchased outright, or a partnership proposition with present owner, a registered druggist. Act at once, as another school year is nearly here.

Wilmore Drug Co.
Wilmore, Kentucky.

JUST OUT!!

"THE METHODIST CRISIS"

Dr. Ridout has put into pamphlet form under above title the story of the fight for orthodoxy which took place on the floor of the New Jersey Conference, Asbury Park, N. J., last March, in which he and Dr. H. P. Sloan and others debated with Bishop Anderson and Dr. H. H. Meyer, Sunday School Editor, the issues of Modernism within Methodism.

In addition to Dr. Ridout's story there is a fine write-up of the affair by Rev. H. Decker who was present at the debate and whose story appeared in the "Essentialist."

Let every Methodist send and get a copy of this booklet. Every Methodist minister—North and South—should read the story. It will stir your blood. It will show you how Modernism is getting a terrific grip on Methodist Bishops, Editors and Leaders. It will also show you your duty to stand up and show your colors in the hour of peril.

Dr. Sloan, Dr. Ridout and others take the fight for orthodoxy right into their Annual Conferences and it is there the battle should be fought out.

Price 15c, or 7 for $1.00.

PENTECOSTAL PUBLISHING CO.
Louisville, Kentucky.

NEW BOOK

The "Beauty of Holiness and Maxims of the Holy Life"

BY

REV. GEORGE W. RIDOUT, D.D.

This book is specially written for the holiness people and is designed to set forth True Holiness against the fictitious, the false and the fanatical. The book sets forth Holiness under the following aspects:

1. The Beauty of Holiness.
2. The Beauty of Consecration.
3. The Beauty of Perfect Love.
4. The Beauty of Humility.
5. The Beauty of Perfection.
6. The Beauty of Christlikeness.
7. The Beauty of Divine Union.

The book is written in the easy, readable illustrative style of Dr. Ridout's writings and is full of the best of things on the above subject.

Price One Dollar.

PENTECOSTAL PUBLISHING CO.
Louisville, Kentucky.

VIRGINIA.

Spottsylvania, Va., camp, August 19-29. Workers: Rev. Fred Canaday, Rev. W. L. King, Rev. Bessie B. Larkin. Mrs. W. L. King and Mrs. G. B. King in charge of young people's work. Mrs. Merton Steelman and son, song leader. Address Mrs. B. K. Andrews, Sec., Spottsylvania, Va.

Mt. Vernon, Va., camp, July 29-Aug. 7. Workers: Rev. Wilson Thomas, Rev. C. W. Dyer, Rev. H. H. Hoyt and Fred Canaday. Address Annie Hosley Shrader, Sec., Acotink, Va.

Wakefield, Va., camp, August 5-14. Workers: Dr. C. H. Babcock, Rev. Harry Hayes, Otho M. Cockes, Pres., Elberon, Va.

Drainesville, Va., camp, August 10-28. Workers: Rev. John Norberry. Song leader, Mrs. Marion Birrell. For information address Anna L. Hyatt, Sec., 163 Adams St., N. W., Washington, D. C.

Salem, Va., camp, Sept. 9-19. Workers: Dr. J. W. Carter and Rev. O. H. Callis. For information write J. J. True, Pres., Salem, Va.

WISCONSIN.

Oregon, Wis., camp, July 29-August 14. Workers: Rev. Lewis H. Gaddis, Mose Sisters, Miss Imogene Quinn, Prof. Edson Crosby, Miss Karine Kjolseth, and Rev. and Mrs. Jack Linn. Address Jack Linn, Oregon, Wis.

Hillsboro, Wis., camp, August 10-22. Workers: Preston Kennedy, James Bane, Raymond Lewis, Hilde Bro. Enayart song leaders. For information address May Markee, Hillsboro, Wis.

Lord, Teach us to Pray, by Whyte, has gone through ten editions. That speaks for its great popularity. Have you bought yours yet? It sells for $1.00. Pentecostal Publishing Company, Louisville, Ky.

THE FIGHT IS ON

- The fight against sin and for holiness.
- The fight against impurity and for purity.
- The fight against worldliness in the church and for a holy people.
- The fight against immodest dress and for a modest womanhood.
- The fight against those who would destroy the Bible, and for the Word.
- The fight against Sabbath desecration and for Sabbath observance.
- The fight against lawlessness, and for obedience to the law.
- The fight against trashy literature and for wholesome literature.
- The fight against indifference and for a revival.

THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD IS IN THIS GREAT BATTLE FOR RIGHTEOUSNESS.

and the only way for us to make the fight effective in your community is for you to help us by placing it into every home possible. You will be pleased to know that you can send THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD from now until January 1, 1928, for only 50c, and if we may have your co-operation, you will be instrumental in making this fight effective in your community.

Allow us to suggest that you tell every one you come in contact with what THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD is fighting for, and tell them of this special introductory offer. Also speak to one or more financially able and liberal persons, tell them what you are trying to do, and ask for their co-operation in putting the paper into a number of homes. Then, too, you will find a number of people who tithe who will be glad to invest a little tithe money in a fight of this kind.

Use the blanks below and send in your list within the next few days, so as to give the subscribers the benefit of the full 25 weeks.

Pentecostal Publishing Company, Louisville, Kentucky.

Enclosed find $..... for which please send The Pentecostal Herald weekly from now until January, 1928, to the following:

Name	Name
Address	Address
Name	Name
Address	Address
Name	Name
Address	Address
Name	Name
Address	Address
Name	Name
Address	Address

PENTECOSTAL HERALD

Dr. H. C. Morrison, Editor
Mrs. H. C. Morrison, Associate Editor

Louisville, Ky., Wednesday, Aug. 3, 1927.
Entered at Louisville, Ky., Postoffice as Second Class Matter.

$1.50 Per Year.
Vol. 39, No. 31.

NEITHER APOLOGIZE NOR COMPROMISE.

By The Editor.

THE great doctrine of entire sanctification as a second work of grace cannot and will not make any sort of apology to a wicked and unbelieving world, or to a backslidden and worldly church, neither will it make any sort of compromise with any theory of holiness that for one moment proposes to rob the blood of Christ of all the glory.

* * * *

This doctrine of a cleansing subsequent to pardoning, was illustrated in the construction and arrangement of the Tabernacle in the wilderness, the Temple at Jerusalem, and in the sacrifices, forms and ceremonies, and worship of the ancient Jews. The prophets pointed it out in their predictions, John the Baptist proclaimed it in his message, Christ taught it to his followers, the hundred and twenty received it on the day of Pentecost, the evangelists wrote it in the gospels, Paul filled his epistles with it, John Wesley and his coadjutors startled the dead church and awoke a sleeping world by preaching it, and the great Holiness Movement in all lands and among all the churches proclaiming salvation full and free to all men, from all sin, through the precious blood of Christ, pardoning all transgression, and cleansing out the carnal mind, is going forth to certain and glorious victory.

* * * *

This doctrine of the second work of grace, the instantaneous cleansing of a believer's heart from all indwelling sin by the baptism of the Holy Ghost, will not make any compromise with other theories of holiness. Justification, growth and death must keep their proper place, must not undertake to do the one work that can only be done by the baptism of the Holy Ghost and fire.

* * * *

Justification opens the way to sanctification; growth helps the believer forward to the upper room, and constantly increases in the grace and knowledge of our Lord and Savior after Pentecost and death, the last enemy, can do the sanctified soul no hurt, but must bow in submission and, like a servant, throw wide the portals of eternal bliss that the sanctified soul may enter glory. But none of these things nor all of them can cast out inbred sin. Jesus suffered without the gate that he might sanctify the people with his own blood. All those who are living in Canaan land well remember the Egyptian bondage, the crossing of the Red Sea, the wilderness and the passage over Jordan. They all know full well that they entered into this goodly country by two distinct and separate crossings. They cannot forget that there have been two marked periods in their past lives when, having done all they could, they found themselves standing helpless on the borders of impassable barriers. The first of these was the Red Sea of their innumerable transgressions, and the second was the rolling Jordan of a nature defiled by sin overflowing all of its banks.

In the first crisis they stood still amid the mountains with sea in front and foes behind, and with the eye of faith beheld the salvation of the Lord. In the second place they dared by faith to set foot upon Jordan's rolling flood and see with joy its waters stop and stand in wondering heaps while they passed over dryshod. They know it was a second crossing that brought them into Canaan land.

* * * *

This doctrine of entire sanctification as a second work of grace is not only a Bible doctrine, but is simple, plain and easy of comprehension to all who in sincere humility will do his will. This doctrine of the second grace has no conflict with facts as they exist in human experience; but Bible teaching and the conflict in the believer's heart are two good witnesses that bear harmonious testimony to the necessity of this second work. Christ said, "Blessed are they that do hunger and thirst after righteousness for they shall be filled."

* * * *

Those who dwell in "Canaan land" know that after they were born into the kingdom of God they found within themselves a hungering and thirsting after righteousness and they know that they were filled, not by regeneration, for the hunger and thirst came after regeneration; neither was it by growth for most of their satisfactory growth has come since the filling; nor was it by death of the physical man, for they are yet in the body, alive and well. It was by the instantaneous baptism of the Holy Ghost, who came upon them suddenly, purified their hearts, and now fills and abides with them.

* * * *

Let all such persons be steadfast and immovable in experience, in testimony, and in faithful adherence to the Bible doctrine or theory of the divine method of justification and entire sanctification, which by personal experience they have demonstrated to be true.

A Chapter from My Autobiography

CHAPTER XXIV.

MY APPOINTMENT TO DANVILLE, KY.

AT the close of my year in the Highlands, the conference met at Covington, Ky., Bishop Granberry, presiding. Presiding Elder Joseph Rand was anxious to have me go to Frankfort, and spoke to me about it, but Col. John Proctor came from Danville with a unanimous petition of the official board for me to be appointed to that charge. The bishop so appointed. The church membership was large, intelligent, wealthy and liberal. I have never known a more kind and loyal people than the membership of that church. I cannot say they were a deeply spiritual people, but they were religious. Dancing, card playing, theatre going, and such worldly diversions were hardly known among them. Their church finances were attended to with the promptness of banking business. My salary was collected and placed to my credit in the bank, and I was notified to check on it at pleasure.

Col. John Proctor, Henry Sandifer, Ben. Durham, Will Proctor, Charlie Smith, and Bros. Otter, Chrisman, Nichols, Davis, Eastland, Gentry, Gilcher, and others I could mention, were as fine a body of Christian citizens as I have ever known. Their wives were women of the first rank, and their children, such as would make your heart glad. Among the Presbyterians, Baptists, and Disciples, there were many most excellent people. It seems to me that nine-tenths of all the citizens of the place stood firmly for all that was best in education, law and order, and the highest moral standard. If I should have old days of retirement, there is no place in dear old Kentucky where I would rather sit down on the banks of time and wait for the boatman at the setting of sun, than Danville.

I had conducted a number of great revivals during my stay at the Highlands, and went to the conference at Covington with my mind fully made up to locate and enter the evangelistic work. I had engagements made for the year. I think at least forty of the leading preachers of the conference begged me not to locate. Rev. Joseph Rand said, "Take work for a few years longer anyhow. You can hold three or four revivals each year, and then if you must go into the evangelistic field, you will go a more experienced and stronger man." His arguments decided me, and as above related, I was sent to Danville. I have always been thankful for this decision. The three following years in the pastorate in large churches did much for me. The conference met early in September. I left at once for Warrenton, Va., where I held a meeting in the M. E. Church, So., for Dr. J. C. C. Newton, afterward missionary in Japan. I cancelled most of my other engagements and came back to Danville and entered upon my pastorate.

The Spirit spoke to me many times about my lost blessing and urged me to return. One night in October I awoke at two o'clock, the clock on the tower was just striking, with a great sense of danger and a feeling that I must arise at once and pray. I leaped out of my bed and fell upon my knees, and begged Christ to help me. He seemed to deal with me very sternly. He impressed me with his great patience and forbearance, and that I must cut loose from some things to which I seemed almost unconsciously clinging, and come into a closer and more faithful relationship with him, or there must be a separation. I agreed, but not without a soul struggle, and then the conflict began. The first time the Lord had brought me over at Kadesh Barnea, and the crossing was easy;

(Continued on page 8)

A STUDY OF THE MILLENNIUM.

Rev. G. W. Ridout, D.D., Corresponding Editor.

One of our camp meeting songs sounds the note of the Millennium in the following lines:

"I am watching for the coming of the glad millennial day,
When our blessed Lord shall come and catch his waiting Bride away,
Oh, my heart is filled with rapture as I labor watch and pray,
For the Lord is coming back to earth again.
"Oh, our Lord is coming back to earth again,
Yes, our Lord is coming back to earth again,
Satan will be bound a thousand years,
We'll have no tempter then,
After Jesus shall come back to earth again."

I have recently had my interest in the subject of the Millennium aroused by reading the "Millennium Bible," by Dr. W. E. Biederwolf, prominent Presbyterian Evangelist, and now one of the leaders of the Winona Bible Conference and the School of Theology, Winona Lake, Ind.

Let me at the outset say that this Millennium Bible is unique; there is nothing like it in print, and for purposes of studying the Second Coming and all questions relating to the Millennium, there is no setting of the Bible, from Genesis to Revelation, that can compare with it, and I would like to urge all our readers, especially preachers, teachers and evangelists to send to The Pentecostal Publishing Co., and get a copy. Price $4.00.

Dr. Biederwolf tells us that he had a ministry of twenty years without a single sermon preached on the second coming. In preparing a series of doctrinal sermons, of necessity he had to make a study of the Second Coming and this led him to a close, thorough study of the whole subject. The "Millennium Bible" is the result of ten years investigation and study and to show how thorough that study has been it is only sufficient to say that over five hundred different writers and authorities have been consulted.

We shall attempt in this article to trace out with the aid of the "Millennium Bible", some of the foregleams of the Second Coming and its concomitants, The Millennium, etc. We observe that the subject is found from Genesis to Revelation.

In Deuteronomy 30, we have what is called The Palestinian Covenant which has seven parts to it.

1. Dispersion for disobedience. Verse 1.
2. The future repentance of Israel while in the dispersion. Verse 2.
3. The return of the Lord. Verse 3.
4. The Restoration of the Land. Verse 4.
5. (There are many now who believe in the recent developments in the Holy Land that this prophecy is being fulfilled).
5. The National Conversion. Verse 6.
6. (This is further taught in Rom. 11:26-36).
6. The Judgment of Israel's Oppressors. Verse 7.
7. National Propriety. Verse 9.

Verse 20 sets forth once more the condition of life and of long life in the land promised to their fathers.

The Psalms are rich in their Messianic prophecies and in the foregleams they give of the Millennium glory. Take, for instance, Psalm 45. This sets forth the "Union of Christ and the church finally triumphant."

Scofield points out the following:

- "This great psalm obviously looks forward to the Advent. The divisions are:
1. The Supreme beauty of the King.
 2. The Coming of the King in glory.
 3. The Deity of the King and the character of his reign.
 4. The Associates of the King.
 5. The Fame of the King."

In Isaiah 11, we have a beautiful anticipation and prophecy of the Millennium. "This chapter," says Scofield, "is a prophet picture of the glory of the future kingdom." In verse 11, "The Second Time" is emphasized. Blackstone has drawn from this passage the difference between the Restoration from Babylon and the Restoration in Christ through the Second Coming as follows:

1. "In the first Restoration only those who were minded came back from Babylon, but in the Second Restoration not one will be left. Deut. 30:4; Isa. 43:5-7; Ezek. 34:11-13; Ezek. 39:28, 29.

2. "In the first Restoration members of two tribes returned; in the second it will include both the two and the ten tribes.

3. "In the first Restoration they returned to be overthrown again and driven out again; but in the second they shall remain no more to go out. Amos. 9:15; Ezek. 34:28; Isa. 60:15, 16; Micah 4:1; Zech. 8:20-23.

4. "In the first Restoration, because of their blindness they rejected and crucified Jesus, but in the future restoration they shall repent of all this and have clean hearts and accept Christ who shall be their Savior. Zech. 12:10-14; Jer. 31:9, 10; Ezek. 36:24-28; Jer. 22:3-6."

EZEKIEL'S TEMPLE.

The Vision of the Temple given in Ezekiel chapters 40 to 48 has been the subject of much discussion among Bible writers. The Jews were not permitted to read these chapters in public because of the sharp discrepancies between these directions of worship and those of Moses, and because of the difficulty in understanding them. Keil, however, ventures the opinion which seems to be very reasonable, that the Vision of Ezekiel does not depict the rise and development of the new kingdom of God—the Church of Christ—but as Ezekiel sees the temple as a finished building, so the vision sets forth the kingdom of God established by Christ in its perfect form. It is the Old Testament outline of the New Testament picture of the Heavenly Jerusalem of the new earth as set forth in Revelation 21:22.

JOEL'S PROPHECY. JOEL 3.

According to Scofield, the whole picture is of the end time of this present age, of the times of the Gentiles, of the battle of Armageddon, of the regathering of Israel and of the kingdom blessing. The order of events is:

1. The Invasion of Palestine by world powers. Joel 2:1-10; Rev. 6:14.
2. The Lord's Army and the destruction of the invaders. Joel 2:11.
3. The Repentance of Judah. Joel 2:12-17.
4. The Armor of Jehovah. Joel 2:18-27.
5. The Effusion of the Spirit. Joel 2:28, 29.
6. The Return of the Lord in glory. Joel 2:30-32.
7. The Regathering of the Nation and the Judgment of the Nations. Joel 3:1-16; and the full and permanent blessing. Joel 3:17-21; Matt. 25:32.

THE RESTORATION AND THE MILLENNIUM.

Frequently the word "Restoration" occurs in the New Testament. In Acts 3:21, we read "until the times of Restoration of all things whereof God spake by the mouth of his holy prophets that have been of old."

What does this Restoration mean? What shall be restored?

According to Lechler: "All that God has spoken by the mouth of his holy prophets shall be restored and placed in its original order, and in that condition which God designed and promised."

According to Hackett: "It is a restoration to a state of primeval order, purity, holiness and happiness, such as will exist for those who have part in the kingdom of Christ at his second coming."

According to Alford: "I understand it of the glorious restoration of all things, the 'palingenesis' which, as Peter says, is the theme of the prophets from the beginning. The key to the construction and the meaning is to be found in our Lord's own words: 'Elijah shall come and restore all things.'"

According to Gloag: "There will be a moral restoration; the present disorders of this world will be removed, the good will finally triumph over evil; holiness and happiness will prevail throughout the world. The idea of the Apostle seems to be that so long as the unbelief of Israel continues Christ will remain in heaven, but that their repentance and conversion will bring about the times of refreshing and restoration of all things, which will either precede or coincide with the second coming."

THE MAN OF SIN IN II. THESSALONIANS.

There has been a great deal of controversy upon this subject. Let us hear a few of the scholars touching this matter. The Man of Sin is Antichrist. Biederwolf says, "We still look for the Man of Sin as the final and central embodiment of lawlessness and resistance to God. The apostasy is still going on. Papacy, Mohammedanism, Mormonism, Christian Science, etc., of 'that which restraineth' and 'one who restraineth' the one, the general hindrance and the other, the person in whom that hindrance is summed up."

Alford says: "As the Fathers took them of the Roman Empire and the Roman Emperor standing and ruling in their time, representing the outbreathing sin and enormity—so have we been taught by history to widen this view and understand them of the fabric of human polity and those who rule that polity, by which the great upbursting of godliness is kept down."

THE FOUR LIVING CREATURES OF REVELATION.

See Rev. 4:6-9: The following explanations have been given by Bible scholars:

1. The Four Gospels.
2. The Four Elements.
3. The Four Cardinal Virtues.
4. The Four Faculties of the Soul.
5. The Four Principal Attributes of God.
6. The Four Fundamental Principles of Divine Government.
7. The great Churches at Jerusalem—Antioch, Alexandria, and Constantinople.
8. The Four great events in Redemption—Incarnation, Passion, Resurrection and Ascension.

Morgan says: "The four living creatures mark the inner circle of the church, which God has selected, elected and chosen and which Jesus is coming to gather to himself."

The Book of Revelation has had Four Schools of Interpretation.

1. The Spiritual.
2. The Preterist, which holds that Revelation has largely been fulfilled.
3. The Historical, which holds that the prophecies of Revelation embrace the whole history of the Church and its foes from the time of its writing to the end of the world.
5. The Futurist School holds that the whole book looks forward to the Second Coming of Christ.

These writers refer the seven seals, trumpets and vials to the seven years prior to the second coming of Christ with his saints in judgment and declares that all Christians will have been caught up in the rapture when these judgments are enacted.

THE MILLENNIUM.

Revelation 20 clearly teaches the Millennium. Consider the various views held of the Millennium:

1. Post-Millennium. From the 4th century (Constantine's reign) to the 14th century, advocated by Grotius and others.
2. Present Millennium. This is the old Augustan or spiritual idea that the resurrection mentioned in connection with it is a spiritual one and that souls are raised from the death of sin to spiritual life in Christ.

3. Future Millennium. A millennium which is still in the future; of this view there are two schools:

(a) Post-Millennialists. These teach that Christ's coming will be after the Millennium—they explain the first resurrection as resurrection of the cause, Spirit, doctrine and principles of Christianity, etc. The Post-Millennialists of today are found largely among the Modernists. They hold that the coming of Christ will not be personal, but that he comes by way of Gospel influences, through the work of the Holy Spirit and through the civilizing agencies of the Christian faith. Some good people are among the "post" but the majority are those who hold modernistic doctrines and view points.

(b) The Pre-Millennialists. This school teaches that Christ comes before the Millennium; that Christ and his saints will reign a thousand years upon the earth. Satan will be bound and our Lord and King Christ Jesus will reign in righteousness and glory. This school we believe to be nearest the Bible view of the great truth. In this school are to be found many of the saints of the ages as well as many of the most spiritual leaders of the modern church, such men as Moody, Dr.

A. J. Gordon, Dr. A. B. Simpson, Dr. A. T. Pierson, Dr. Torrey, Dr. H. C. Morrison, Dr. Munhall, and a great number of the holiness and full salvation evangelists.

Charles Wesley, that seraphic poet of Methodism, had a vision of the Second Coming and of the Millennium glory, we think, when he wrote this wonderful hymn:

"Lo, he comes with clouds descending,
Once for favored sinners slain;
Thousand, thousand, saints attending,
Swell the triumph of his train—
Hallelujah!
God appears on earth to reign."

MODERN APOSTLES OF FAITH.

Rev. C. F. Wimberly, D.D.

CHAPTER XXII.

JOHN R. MOTT.

IT was during our second year in college; life was all a sophomore uncertainty. It was a struggle, trying to locate plans in the maze of poverty and hardships. The pictures of those days are some of the most sordid of any hanging on the walls of memory. But just now we remember that this sketch is not an autobiography, but a short story of a man who has figured large in the affairs of the world. However, this little page of personal history is given to bring out the setting of another picture.

One morning at chapel, the leader of student activities announced that John R. Mott would be present that Saturday evening, and remain over the Sabbath; that he would address the student body that night, and would hold conferences with the various groups until Monday night. The announcement had no meaning out of the ordinary; but it was the first time we ever heard of Mr. Mott. When he appeared on the platform that night, we saw a tall, athletic looking young man, wearing a very pronounced pompadore.

We remember not a word of the speech, but we remember that his magnetism and personality gripped our inmost being. We have heard Mr. Mott many, many times since then when he addressed great assemblies, but we only think of him as he was then—a young man, only a year or two out of college, traveling as Student Secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association. Mr. Mott has never been so great to this writer as he was then. As a member of the Student Volunteer Movement, we met with the groups as he outlined the big plan to us, and the program for the "Evangelization of the World in this Generation." We got very little from the optimistic plans, but we got much in every way from close contact with the man. It was the first time we were ever in touch with a cultured college man, with a great spiritual vision, and new fires were kindled in the soul. The resume of his visit to our college was that Christ was entitled to the best brain and culture in the land, and that it must be done by college men.

Mr. Mott was not in those days serving as general overseer of big movements or sitting in council with religious leaders, seeking to solve big world problems. He was an evangelist—though a layman—with a burning message to lost men. In two public addresses he preached the gospel and pressed the question of personal salvation upon the students. In fact, all the Y. M. C. A. workers in those days were soul-winners, and salvation was the keynote of their messages. It was truly then, a Young Men's Christian Association. Mr. Mott looked after the functional routine of his work, but personal salvation was the burden of his ministry. Since then his ability as master of assemblies has turned his life into supposed wider channels, but we are glad that we came under his influence when he "preached the gospel" to lost men.

John R. Mott was born in Livingston Manor, New York, in the year 1865. He prepared for college at the local high school, entered Cornell University in 1884, graduating from that institution in 1888. He developed marked powers in religious leadership while in college, and was an active worker in the Y. M. C. A., just then being organized as a factor in college life. Mr. Mott had been a delegate from Cornell to several Association meetings, and this brought him before the National Committee. Immediately upon his graduation he was chosen Student Secretary for the National Committee. About the year 1890, he was made chairman of the Student Volunteer Movement, which was an adjunct to the Y. M. C. A. This position brought the great question of missions, and world evangelization to his attention, and for special study.

Soon Mr. Mott became secretary of the International Student Committee, and step by step, he has climbed in world leadership. He was chosen leader of the Christian Students' Federation about the year 1895, and this position gave him access to the mission fields of all countries and all denominations. No other person had had such a wide opportunity as other great leaders have been in a large measure circumscribed by the fields of some particular church. Three years later, Mr. Mott was made Foreign Secretary of this Federation; at the same time chairman of the American Council of Young Men's Christian Association, having perhaps more to do with the Association work in this country, than any other man.

In 1901 Mr. Mott's position in World Missionary Activities became wider than ever when he was chosen General Secretary of the International Committee, giving him leadership of the Y. M. C. A. for the whole world. In 1910, he was chosen chairman of World's Missionary Conference, which was Interchurch, and International in its scope. No man in any church has enjoyed such distinction. Throughout the years Mr. Mott has traveled into every nook and corner of the earth, and has lectured before students and Christian workers of every nationality; also has presided and lectured before the greatest church gatherings of America and Europe. It is doubtful if there is in America—preacher or layman—who has wielded a wider influence in religious circles of the world, than John R. Mott. It has been conceded that he is the leading religious statesman of the world. However, no man has had the opportunity of knowing facts, first hand, of all world-wide questions.

This extensive travel and study has qualified him to speak with authority on the political situation, as no other man. The careful survey of the Missionary Problems of the various countries has given him the political status of those countries as well. During

Mr. Wilson's first term of office, Mr. Mott was selected on a committee of three by the President, to study the delicate status existing between the United States and Mexico. No man was called into council with Woodrow Wilson more often than he; his advice was sought and heeded on many of the world questions.

As an expression of Mr. Wilson's confidence in Mr. Mott as a statesman as well as a religious leader, he was offered the post of ambassador to China. At that time, no foreign country needed wiser representation from Washington than did the Orient. The position was not accepted by Mr. Mott.

When Woodrow Wilson was elected governor of New Jersey, Mr. Mott, a Methodist layman, was offered the presidency of Princeton University as Wilson's successor; but he declined the honor, and very wisely, as his work at that time was of a much wider sphere. When the World War came on Mr. Mott threw himself into the task of superintending war work. Some believe that some grave and irreparable mistakes were made when the Association agreed to accept the Army Canteen. But General Pershing pressed it upon them, and said that he knew he was giving them a "lemon" when he did; but there was no other organization so related to all churches that could handle it. The Y. M. C. A. will perhaps never regain the ground lost during the World War service.

Here are the facts: the Y. M. C. A. served fifteen hundred "huts" among the Allied Armies, employing eight thousand young men and women (five hundred) every one of which was endorsed by some church. Often they could not get supplies for the front lines; often their trucks were commandeered by the Army. The prices of all supplies were fixed by the War Department. Often goods that had been donated got into the shipment of general supplies. A few crooks got into the employment, resulting in much criticism, and most all of the "much-a-do" was propaganda. The Salvation Army served forty "huts"; the Knights of Columbus served sixty, and with both these organizations, the goods were donated, and of course given to the soldiers. The funds were such, that this could be done. With the Y. M. C. A., this was impossible; they had to account for all goods received and sold. During all the criticism, Mr. Mott kept the troubled waters more quiet, than doubtless could have been done by any other man.

As we are getting a close-up of Mr. Mott, it can be said, that with all his scholarship and association with great institutions of learning, he has remained evangelical and orthodox. He has been a staunch exponent of the Bible, the Lordship of Jesus Christ, and the salvation of men. At no time has his voice or pen sounded out an uncertain note. He has been a positive defender of the faith in the highest intellectual circles of the world for more than thirty-five years.

(Continued on page 6, col. 1)

NOT TO BE USED WITHOUT COPYRIGHT PERMISSION

OF ASBURY THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

THE BETTER COUNTRY.

Rev. R. Heber Wightman.

"But now they desire a better country, that is an heavenly; wherefore God is not ashamed to be called their God; for he hath prepared for them a city." Heb. 11:16.

THE language of the text is indicated of the Hebrew worthies brought to our attention by the Apostle. They were remarkably eminent for their faith in God; the confident expectation of things hoped for,—the assured conviction of things not seen. For what did these Old Testament saints hope? They hoped for the fulfillment and realization of the promises which God made to them and their seed—promises which referred not only to terrestrial Canaan, but also to a spiritual and heavenly. Of what had they an assured conviction? It was of the things not seen, things which involved their temporal political well-being, and their spiritual and eternal happiness. These all died in faith, not having received the promises, etc. It is manifest, we think, that these Old Testament saints did not regard the terrestrial Canaan as their permanent and abiding residence, for they died in faith not having realized on earth the complete fulfillment of all God's promises; but they possessed an assured conviction that the terrestrial Canaan was an expressive type of the heavenly; and that after they had passed away they would realize its full and perfect happiness in the future and eternal state. Faith in God is the same in its nature and results, in all places and under all the different dispensations of revealed religion. The saints of the New Testament are animated by the same faith that characterized those of the Old Testament, hence we hear St. Paul declare, "Here we have no abiding city but seek one to come." You will observe that the heavenly country is denominated a better one, and the use of the adjective in the comparative degree implies and involves a contrast with the present country that we now inhabit, so that the superior excellence of the heavenly may be properly considered and duly appreciated. Delightful to God's chosen people for a local habitation and abode as was the land of Canaan, still in the exercise of faith, they grasped in contemplation, a better and happier land in the unseen and distant future. Christians of the present day, under the New Testament dispensation are impelled by faith in the revelation of God's word to desire a better country, even the heavenly.

The heavenly country is a better one than this we inhabit. First, because of the superior excellence of its government. On earth every country that makes pretensions to civilization has some form of government. Civil government is indispensable to the man in the social compact in the brotherhood of communities, states and nations. But the form of government, whatever it may be, Monarchical, Democratic, Representative or Absolute, we shall find it to be radically defective in the ethical workings of its machinery and inadequate to the prevention and removal of moral evils that abound among men in the body politic. From its very attributes as limited in humanity, it can regulate only overt action. Neither by its eye nor arm, can it reach the moral disposition of its members and can thus control no further than this disposition discovers itself in the outward conduct. Lust, pride, revenge, hatred and other kindred passions of depravity may be rampant in the hearts of the governed, and though in overt acts they may not be detrimental to the public freedom so as to be punishable by law, still they exert a baneful influence upon the development and interchange of the kinder and more generous emotions of our nature, in the social relations of natural being. Now we inquire is it in the power of government to eradicate and destroy the morally depraved dispositions and prevent their disturbing influence upon the harmony and good order and prosperity of the citizenship in organized communities? But if government has not the power to remove moral evil from the hearts of its subjects, and to prevent the influence flowing from it, baneful and corrupting, we ask what power is there to correct and control it in governors themselves? And alas, so widespread and general are the demoralizing influences upon popular elections, of bribery, cunning and fraud at the ballot box, that the wicked and not the righteous, are usually exalted to the high places of power and authority in the government.

But contemplate the government of the heavenly country as that country is revealed to us in the Bible. That government is conducted upon the principles of the strictest equity and righteousness, for God the king immortal, invisible, sits upon the throne and sways the scepter of dominion. As God is holy, just and good, so his rule among the principalities and powers of the heavenly world must be promotive of the highest happiness of the whole. "In his presence is fullness of joy, and at his right hand are pleasures forever more." In that better country there is no oppressor's heel to crush from outraged and bleeding hearts the wail of anguish and despair. No inhumanity or lust of power is there to unseal the fountain of tears, or ruffle the calm and placid atmosphere with the lamentations of injured innocence. The Lord God Omnipotent reigneth in righteousness and love, the King of kings and Lord of lords, and under the administration of his government, all the citizens of that country, without respect of persons, are happy and undisturbed in the possession of their inheritance, the joy of their pleasures.

The heavenly country is a better one than this because of the excellency of its society. All forms of government are defective and inefficient for the securing of the ultimate end of their organization; so human society even among the most refined and polished nations, is a compound of good and evil, a mixed state in which individual interests and passions conflict with each other, and men are mostly the subjects of discontent and disappointment. Perfect happiness in the social state is impossible because of the emanations and workings of human depravity in the hearts of men and women; selfishness, pride, hatred, emulations, strife, envyings, what are these but the feculent and bitter fountains of unregenerate society from which issue streams of moral pollution, that spread blight and mildew over the fairest prospects and the most inviting hopes of individual well being and social prosperity. Where in all the world can you find the "Eden garden" of society, where the trail of the serpent is not to be seen withering the loveliest blossoms of hope and the seductions of the serpent are not to be felt triumphing to the ruin and overthrow of virtuous and happy innocence. Has not the charity of the world been denominated "cold and heartless"? Oh, how the hearts of suffering thousands now entombed have chilled and writhed and died in freezing contact with its deceit, hypocrisy and selfishness. What little, sincere, disinterested and reliable friendship there is in society; self seems to be the center and circumference of individual thoughts, anxieties and activities. But how excellent and glorious in the contrast is the society of the heavenly country! It consists of "an innumerable company of angels," the "general assembly of the Church of the first born", "God the Judge of all", "the spirits of just men made perfect", and "Jesus the Mediator of the new Covenant." Oh, what a blessed and holy society is this happy throng who are accounted worthy to stand in so glorious an assemblage; love; universal love, is the atmosphere of heaven. Among the myriad citizens who people those blissful realms no discordant tone trembles upon the lyres of gold, but heart throbs in unison with heart, and all the air is full of joyful praise.

As there is no sin in heaven, so there can be no place for deception and jealousy and envy and suspicion. These attributes of unregenerate character interrupt and prevent that full flow of confidence and sympathy in the enjoyment of which so much of social happiness is found to consist. In the society of heaven among saints and angels, no tears of sorrow and disappointment are ever to be shed. "They shall hunger no more, neither thirst any more; neither shall the sun light on them nor any heat, for the Lamb which is in the midst of the throne shall lead them to living waters; and God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes." No sighs and groans are ever to be heard, extorted by affliction's weight upon the troubled heart. No death is there and consequently, there is no room for graves and tombstones. Oh, happy state in which the body shall be forever free from all the sad effects of sin and mortality.

The Scriptures allow us but transient glimpses and brief flashes of revelation into the heavenly state. When St. Paul was caught up to the third heavens he saw "visions and revelations of the Lord and heard words which was not lawful for man to utter." Well might the Apostle exclaim after the visions of these revelations—"For eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him."

You may give wing to the imagination and let it soar into the empyrean sublime toward these visions and revelations of the glorious state of the saints of God, but blinded by the dazzling light ineffably it must droop to earth again exhausted by the flight and overpowered by the intensity of the revelation.

The heavenly country is a better one than this because of the imperishableness and everlasting durability of its possessions. How solemn and forcible the declaration of the Apostle, "The things that are seen are temporal." They belong to time; they are of the earth earthy. As the days, weeks, months, and years of time are coming and going, so worldly possessions are ever changing hands, and are insecure. Riches make to themselves wings and fly away, never more to be recovered and enjoyed. What more fickle than fortune. What more unstable than the possessions of earth. How in a brief night may the accumulations of years of hard toil and persevering industry be swept away by the torch of the incendiary, or the flames be kindled by an infuriated and drunken soldiery. The fiat of one man may go forth backed by multiplied thousands of armed hirelings, and as a consequence, bankruptcy and insolvency and impoverishment shall be the portion of a flourishing people, rolling in affluence, counting their money by millions.

But mark the contrast in the better and heavenly country. The inheritance of the saints in light "incorruptible, undefiled and that never fades away." The treasures which the Christian lays up in heaven can never be lost nor wrested from him. The pleasures various and endless and suited to the glorified bodies and spirits of the saints will be ever new and fresh and inviting to the senses. "Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be; but we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is." How resplendent soever with glory we may conceive Christ to be, so refulgent with glory will be the saints in the heavenly state. They shall be like him for they shall see him as he is, all beauteous in person in the ineffable light of unclouded glory. They behold him in the glory which he now enjoys with the Father, and shall abide with him throughout all eternity. For the Apostle does not speak of a transient sight of Christ, but alludes to Christ's words—"Father, I will that they also whom thou hast given me be with me where I am, that they may behold my glory, which thou hast given me."

That the Apostle is speaking of an abiding sight of Christ, is plain, because a transient view would not be reason for their being like him; whereas, if they are to live forever with Christ, their bodies must be fashioned like to his, since corruptible bodies cannot inherit the Kingdom of God. The children of God shall see Christ, all glorious in holiness; without a dimming veil between, they shall be like him in heaven; released from the infirmities of the natural body, they shall be capable of approximating to him more and more in the likeness of holiness. They shall also resemble Christ in happiness. Happiness is the inseparable concomitant of holiness. They alone are happy who are holy. Christ is infinitely holy—so he must be infinitely happy. The children of God in the heavenly state will be like Christ in the enjoyment of the happiness which he possesses to the fullest capacity of their immortal nature; they partake of his ineffable felicity. The likeness does not impart equality, but resemblance. The finite created nature can never through the endless roll of eternal ages enjoy the same degree of happiness which Christ enjoys. But oh, transporting thought—as the cycles of eternity endlessly revolve, this capacity will be advancing from one degree to another degree—from one mount of glory to another mount higher still, in every effort of the wing to soar and reach the towering altitude divine.

There all nature basking in unsullied light—smiling in the purest joy, and blissfully tremulous in the thrill of eternal life dawn upon the spirits of the saints without measure and without end. "Behold what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the sons of God; therefore the world knoweth us not, because it knew him not."

The Apostle does not attempt to scale the heights, or fathom the depths of this amazing and condescending love but is lost in wonder and admiration. What Seraph would not tire in flight sublime of the contemplation of the love of God. What angel line long enough to sound its depths profound. Oh, "love divine all love excelling." In the perfection of mind and body, holiness and happiness, consists the import of the phrase "joint heirs with Christ." The privilege to be the sons of God in this life is fraught with unspeakable happiness, dignity and profit. But how inconceivably heightened this privilege will be when in the heavenly state we shall look like Christ, the blessed Son of God, shining in the glory in which he is encircled forever. Oh, what inducement does the text hold out for the ungodly and impenitent to turn from their iniquity and seek the regenerating and sanctifying grace of God. As long as they continue impenitent and wicked they are the children of the devil resembling him in his moral attributes.

"Go wing thy flight from star to star,
From world to luminous world as far
As the universe spreads its flaming wall;
Take all the music of the spheres
And multiply each through endless years—
One minute in heaven is worth them all."

Authenticity and Inspiration of the Scriptures.

REV. Z. T. JOHNSON, A.M.

CHAPTER III.

ARCHAEOLOGICAL PROOF AS TO THE INSPIRATION OF THE SCRIPTURES.

IT has been the endeavor of the critics, on the pure basis of reason, to tear up the Bible. In this effort they have scoffed at statements that are found in the Word of God and laughed in derision at them. They have even gone so far as to ridicule the authorship of the Book, especially the Old Testament. It is an interesting fact to note that the pick and spade have silenced many of them along these lines. Let us see how this has been done.

One of the critics of the old school, Von Bohlen, scoffed at the idea of Israel, "Such an undisciplined horde," as he says, "having any knowledge of letters." Reuss says, "Now, and this is needful immediately at this stage of our information, it is permitted and with good reason, to ask whether to the extent here presumed they knew how to speak in Moses' time of the art of writing among the Israelites, and of the other thereto pertaining arts. Granted even that this one was instructed in the wisdom of Egypt, according to the tradition, the Canaanitish writing of which the Hebrew made use as far as history reaches, was yet unknown there. Shall he be said to have invented the same? Moreover, no man writes any books whatever but for men who can read and read well. These thoughts ought not, however, to be set up as entirely decisive. It may be that the theory of a widely spread Old-Semitic culture is justified, still the peculiar character of the law and this collection together give the decision on the question of the origin."

Dillman says, "But also the legal portion of the Pentateuch cannot be from Moses, neither written by him nor delivered orally and written by another. And aside from the fact, that so extended a literary production at the rise of the people of Israel is not believable, and points more to a time when the arts of writing and reading were widely diffused there appear also in the legal as in the narrative portion so many repetitions, variations and contradictions of the legal principle in addition to so great formal or reactional dissimilarities, . . . and likewise a series of book-divisions belonging together in what concerns the contents and language and yet distinguished from one another that even on that account a single source of this law-writing is not to be thought of."

Here we have the beautiful theory, (exclusively proved as they thought) that the people in the time of Moses were so ignorant that they could not possibly have produced the writings of the Old Testament. But behold the testimony of archaeology! Professor Sayce, a well-known archaeologist, says, "There was an excellent postal system connecting Canaan with Babylonia which went back to the days of Naram-Sin, and some of the clay bullae which served as stamps for the official correspondence at that period are now in the Museum at the Louvre." How could there have been a postal system if there had been no art of writing? The conclusive argument, however, was rendered when in 1887 the Tell El Amarna tablets were discovered. These tablets turn full light on the subject. They reveal the literary conditions in Palestine about half way between the time of Abraham and of Moses. The widest diffusion of letters is indicated. Letters were written by court officials, governors, private citizens, and even ladies and servants. The Patriarchal age was one of general culture and refinement. This, of course, does not give the exact state of patriarchal civilization, but it excludes any theory that those men were not advanced enough to have written the books of the Old Testament.

Another pet theory of the critics of a few years ago was that the Pentateuch could not have been written by Moses because it showed every sign of a later date than his time. This theory rested upon three things: the ignorance of the patriarchal age; the marks of a later age on the laws, history, etc., of the Pentateuch; and attributing it to many authors instead of one. The first theory is now utterly disregarded. The critics are glad to be silent on the subject. The second theory is easily accounted for in the fact that the laws were written during the wilderness sojourn, and looked to the early establishment of the Israelites in the land of Canaan. Dr. M. G. Kyle says, "The third pillar of support for the theory of the late date of the authorship of the Pentateuch, the literary analysis of the books, is in reality the theory itself in the concrete; for having decided upon the criteria of the analysis in harmony with the theory of the late date and then having parcelled out the materials to the various documents according to the criteria, it is found that the theory is supported by the results. Of course! As when a crippled man puts down his own crutch to support himself upon it, he finds that it reaches the ground. It was made exactly the right length to do so. . . The theory of the late date for the authorship of the Pentateuch, however beautifully it may work out as a theory when applied to the materials of the books, is not established until corroborated by independent facts such as only archaeology can supply. To this present time it has not supplied such facts. On the contrary, as we have seen, there are many evidences, of which we have examined a few, which point very emphatically toward authorship for the books of the Pentateuch not later than the Mosaic age."

One of the storm centers of criticism has been the fourteenth chapter of Genesis. In 1869, Professor Noldeke declared that criticism had forever disproved the claim that
(Continued on page 9)

MODERN APOSTLES OF FAITH. (Continued from page 3)

John R. Mott has written several books that have been translated into other languages, as many, perhaps, as any other religious writer. His personal touch with all the mission fields made this possible. We list below, the leading books he has published: "Strategic Points in the World's Conquest", "Evangelization of the World in this Generation", "Christians of Reality", "The Pastor and Modern Missions", "The Future Leadership of the Church", "Decisive Hour of Christian Missions", besides being a contributor to religious journals for more than two decades. John R. Mott is regarded by all informed men of this country and Europe as the most astute student, and the best authority on the present world situation today than any one man. He will doubtless continue as a great world force for many years to come.

THE QUAKING FAITHLESS.

LOYD STUCKEY.

HERE is a way that seemeth right to man, yet he hesitates, wonders, and the more he thinks about it the farther he is from decision. Why this uncertainty? Difficulties confront us which have perplexed thousands before us and we stand aghast like a cowed animal. It seems to us that our life is fraught with more discouragements and disappointments than our neighbor's. We become envious. We tend to interpret the phenomena of life physically, trembling and failing because we lack spiritual insight.

The problem of fear is in some measure a state of mind which can be changed. Of course it is an instinct, but instincts can be controlled and conquered to some extent in man because he has reason. If we look at the world through blue-colored glasses it appears blue indeed; but when we see the world as God made it we look through transparent glasses. He intends that we shall be happy in every line of progress, and has promised to sustain all who love and obey him. We need educating in the subject of faith. There is nothing simpler than the lesson of faith, yet it is remarkable how hard the simple things are sometimes.

A boy wants to swim. He sees others swimming but there is a terror about the idea of sinking which he cannot suppress. A helping hand on his breast, however, gives him greater confidence and after a few attempts with this help he has the courage to paddle off by himself. Some folk are afraid of thunder and lightning. The wind is a source of great fright for others, especially during a storm. Such fears are somewhat excusable for they hark back to racial instincts which have become world-old habits, and certain of our brain centers refuse to abandon them. So our hearts beat wildly, our breath comes in gulps, and our limbs tremble while we look on, mortified at a weakness we cannot control. On the other hand, being afraid to do the right thing when we know right from wrong seems altogether inexcusable from every standpoint. Pleasure and pain are the chief factors in guiding our conduct. If we shrink from doing the right thing because of possible pain, then we fall far short of the ideal set by Jesus. He wore the thorny crown, carried the heavy cross, and suffered a torturing death in order that a sinful world might be saved by his supreme sacrifice and sublime example. The pleasure, the happiness for which we yearn has a price. If we are not willing to pay something, perhaps suffer certain pain, the blessings will not be fully appreciated when they actually come. Faith increases with experience. Then with faith comes a broader vision, the ability to see things as they really are. When we have reached this point of spiritual conception the things we are wont to fear become as nothing because we feel our Father's hand on our breast guiding our feeble efforts into a larger, deeper life.

What are "Vain Repetitions" in Prayer?

A. W. ORWIG.

Sometime ago a certain person, in writing to me, expressed the opinion that audible or public prayer was unnecessary and "likely to lead to 'vain repetition', of which Jesus spoke." From the general tenor of the letter I knew that the individual was more influenced by Christian Science teachings on the subject of prayer than by God's word.

Verily, Jesus Christ condemns "vain repetitions" and all manner of unreal and heartless petitions. But he never uttered a word against true public prayer. He even set an example of audible and public prayer. Both the Old and the New Testament Scriptures give instances of public prayer on various occasions. When prayer is offered "in the Spirit", whether private or public, it is sure to prove a blessing to the one who prays and to others.

But when Christ said, "Use not vain repetitions", he added, "as the heathen do, for they think they shall be heard for their much speaking." He also warned against being "as the hypocrites are", praying "that they may be seen of men." In heathen countries people are often given to "vain repetitions" when saying their formal and committed prayers. Mohammedans are noted for such a "vain" performance. And the Tibetans and others use what are called "prayer wheels", from which they grind out their worthless, empty so-called prayers. And sometimes the petitions of some cold professors of Christianity are not much better.

The chief thing that Jesus condemned was insincere prayer, if such can be called prayer. The case of the Pharisee in the temple was a very conspicuous instance of vain and hypocritical prayer. But when one prays "in the Holy Ghost", whether the prayer be brief or lengthy, there will be no "vain repetitions", even though there may be an occasional repetition by way of special emphasis or the deep heart-yearnings of the petitioner. It is quite possible that when a repetition bursts forth from a holy and burning heart, other hearts will be set on fire. For when "the Spirit of himself maketh intercession" through the real children of God, there is no telling what mighty results may follow in behalf of both saint and sinner. And those truly living in the Holy Spirit will not be likely to complain of iteration in word or sentiment.

As to legitimate repetitions or such as are born of peculiar circumstances, various cases may be cited. A truly godly parent, deeply solicitous for the salvation of an unsaved son or daughter, may more than once cry out, "O God, save my dear child!" Does anyone suppose that Jesus would call this a "vain repetition"? Or a Christian, with a profound burden for souls and for a genuine and widespread revival of true religion, may properly, profitably and repeatedly utter the cry, "O God, mightily revive thy work", without being guilty of "vain repetitions." Such repetitions are all too infrequent. And it is recorded of Jesus himself that he "prayed the third time, saying the same words." Certainly David could not be accused of "vain repetitions" when, in the 107th Psalm, he four times devoutly exclaimed, "Oh that men would praise the Lord for his goodness and for his wonderful works to the children of men!"

Oh, when the heart is overwhelmed or surcharged with mighty spiritual problems, its outgoings are not to be measured by few or many words, or even by the repetition of its agonizing outcries. Let us beware that

Dr. H. C. Morrison's Books

The Christ of the Gospels.....	$1.00
Remarkable Conversions.....	1.00
The Two Lawyers.....	Cloth 1.50
The Second Coming.....	Cloth 1.00
Prophecies Fulfilled and Fulfilling.....	Cloth 1.00
Romanism and Ruin.....	1.50
Baptism With The Holy Ghost.....	.15
Confessions of a Backslider.....	.25
Crossing the Deadline.....	.10
Pearl of Greatest Price.....	.10
Will a Man Rob God?.....	.10

Special $7.85.

Complete set, postpaid, $7.00.

PENTECOSTAL PUBLISHING CO.,
LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY.

we do not characterize as "vain repetitions" the spontaneous or Holy Ghost inspired utterances of anyone, though sometimes repeated, lest we prove our lack of familiarity with the diversified operations of the divine Being, and possibly our want of faith in truly importunate prayer.

Dr. Wimberly's Book Commended.

Rev. J. D. Prater, pastor of the M. E. Church, South, Marshfield, Mo., writes:

"I have bought at least $100 worth of books this year, and they have been recommended by various people; but in all, I have found but two that were worthwhile, and worth the time and money to read them. One of these books is "Mastery of Manhood", by Dr. C. F. Wimberly, of the South Carolina Conference." Price $1.25. For sale by Pentecostal Publishing Company.

Revival Notes.

D. ROGERS.

"The revival began with a money sermon," says an item of Church News. There is no better way for a genuine work of grace to begin. (See Malachi 3:10.)

Apostolic methods employed in the true apostolic spirit will make the church brighten into primitive glory again as it did in former days when the great revival of New Testament Christianity flooded these lands with a fresh tide of spiritual life.

In all revival movements whatever foreign assistance we may have, the pastor should be the center of the working forces. One has said, "It is not simply a question of pastoral prerogative, for that might be waived; it is a question of pastoral responsibility, and that cannot be evaded."

Pull the gospel net to the shores often. Many preachers seem earnest in their appeals to the unsaved, but seldom give them the opportunity to act upon any deep conviction or gracious impulse wrought within them. The time is short. Let the unsaved see that you mean business.

A revival need not be expected if the pastor has no awful sense of the guilt and peril of sinners. Superficial views of sin and retribution may be compatible with a surface emotional excitement but not with a genuine revival, as we use the term—a revival that turns the people from darkness to light, from sin to holiness, making them new creatures in Christ Jesus.

A famous pulpiteer says: "The evangelistic note is the highest note that has ever been raised, and it is the most difficult to sustain. There is nothing that chokes out my soul like that. I could be a literary preacher on half the struggle. I think I could be the president of a college and not half try; but, oh, the travail of soul, in order to be just where the note will ring out clear, and every man shall hear it as a message from God."

If You Want Something

Convincing on the tithe, something that tells you what God says about it, send 10c and get a copy of "Will a Man Rob God." It is a splendid little book to hand out to members of your church who do not believe in tithing. We will send one dozen for $1.00.

REPORTS FROM SOUL WINNERS

GRAND VIEW, NEW BRUNSWICK.

With profound gratitude, I acknowledge the pleasure and privilege I have had in being the preacher-evangelist at the Beulah Camp, Grand View, N. B. This camp is located on the Saint John River, twenty-five miles above the city of Saint John, and in the very heart of Canada's most picturesque province—the state of New Brunswick. In all this section, it is a perfect riot of lakes, rivers, and miniature mountains, with fertile valleys that charm the eye. The camp is on a high hill overlooking the big river and the view from every angle is a dream of beauty. We have been either a visitor or preacher at most of the large camp meetings in the land, and for equipment and conveniences, none excel the Beulah Camp. All the buildings and the grounds are supplied with water from a great artesian spring high up in the hills near by, and the water is literally as cold as ice. They have the primeval woods, all dotted about with splendid cottages and dormitories; besides a perfect labyrinth of walk-ways, all named in terms which bespeak the spirit of the camp. The entire camp is unique from every standpoint. It is the rallying place, or the assembly of the Reformed Baptist Church.

This is not a large denomination, estimated in terms of statistics; but they are a great company in spirit and zeal for the highest and best things of the gospel. They support a flourishing mission station in the Zulu Land in South Africa, and are soon to send other workers to this field. This denomination came into existence, or were voted out of the regular Baptist Church, over the doctrine of entire sanctification, and for over thirty years have maintained a separate organization of their own. The camp meeting is the annual gathering of the preachers, where all the work of the denomination is transacted—like a Baptist Association, or a Methodist Conference.

We went to this camp with some hesitation and dread, as they are Canadians, with a touch of the English temperament; but we found them to be the same warm-hearted, fervent, full salvation people, underneath an exterior somewhat different from our own folks. We enjoyed a wonderful fellowship among them; great crowds waited upon our ministry, and the blessings of the Lord attended every service. They are a sturdy English group, often praying with seekers until midnight. We enjoyed our stay at Beulah Camp and met many choice spirits. The camp draws from a large area—even down in New England. They have a sane, careful leadership, and allow no fanaticism or extravagances. They remind me very much of the leadership of dear Old Sychar at Mt. Vernon, Ohio. That we may understand just about where this place is located, will say it is about 500 miles northeast of Boston, Mass.

C. F. Wimberly.

VICTORY IN GEORGIA.

A revival of great scope and power closed at Lehigh Methodist Church of the Norman Park Charge in Colquitt Co., Ga., last Sunday night. Revs. John and Leonard Cochran were the evangelists preaching the fundamental doctrines of Methodism with great earnestness and power.

The Sunday school Superintendent, Frank Powell, the church lay leader, W. C. Jay, D. A. Powell, Chairman Board of Stewards, and others had been much in prayer for a revival, and the community was ready for a meeting.

The meeting continued for two and a half weeks during which some seventy-five people professed to be definitely converted or reclaimed and fifteen professed to have attained to entire sanctification. Interest and devotion of the membership of the church were revived, and family altars established. People got the old-time religion in the good old-fashioned way—down at the mourners bench praying through. Nineteen were received into the local church membership on profession of faith.

The Cochran boys are most devout, sane and sound, and make a very efficient and acceptable evangelistic team. Any church or pastor does well to secure their services. H. L. Pearson, Pastor.

YOUNG PEOPLES' WORK AT THE INDIAN SPRINGS HOLINESS CAMP MEETING.

There can scarcely be anything of more vital importance to the future of our country and of our Church than the winning of our youth to a deep Christian experience that will hold them steady through the shocks of rationalistic thinking, the whirl of alluring modern life, the subtle influences that are undermining their morals in so many communities. No better place for such work for young people can be found than our Holiness Camp Meetings, where they hear sane and powerful messages that meet their needs, both intellectually and spiritually and where for ten days the cumulative effect of this continuity of preaching, prayer, testimony, Bible Study and personal work, have a chance to profoundly impress their lives. Few revival meetings offer such an opportunity for consecutive work and teaching.

If the work with young people at these camps is so organized as to give opportunities for the training of the young life on the Bible foundations for the great doctrines of the church—repentance, regeneration, sanctification, and further gives them the opportunity to develop in leadership along these lines in their own vesper services and work at the altar, there is well grounded hope for the return of a deeper spiritual life to our churches. How sorely we need this, only those who love the church and are in touch with it in many places over the country, can realize. For if our young people are to maintain their experience of sanctification, no matter how glorious the blessing they receive at the altar, it must be done through processes of spiritual nourishment and growth in grace which comes through intelligent use of the means of grace, especially the study of the great Bible teachings regarding holiness. The average church young people have not enough general knowledge of the Bible to form such a foundation. Inquiries among many groups of such young people, made in different communities, in different states, reveal the fact that less than one in five of our young people have ever read the New Testament through, less than a third have read one of the gospels. How can they be prepared to withstand the skeptical teachings found in many college class rooms with such a sketchy knowledge of the Bible?

The young people attending the Indian Springs Camp Meeting have the opportunity of studying a Bible Course on Holiness especially adapted to their use. Leaders, gifted in work with the young, teach these courses, which are graded to meet the needs of the pupils. During the 1926 camp there were 156 young people in these classes besides about forty who joined a class for adults.

The children met at a separate time with a leader gifted in work with them.

The Young Peoples' Tabernacle, located in a secluded, shady grove, proves a wonderful gathering place for them. Not only are the Bible classes held here immediately after breakfast, but at twilight. While the older people and children are gathering on the verandas for their prayer services the young people assemble at their tabernacle for a vesper service, a meeting usually led by one of their own number. Very often this little tabernacle which seats 300, is filled to capacity, with one or two hundred listening from the outside. Its altar has been hallowed by the conversion, reclamation and sanctification of many young lives.

The young people get a taste for personal work that develops many splendid soul winners. One young man who attended last year for the first time and received a great blessing told his mother he was coming back to Indian Springs this year if he had to walk the 350 miles between his home and the camp. It means much for a young person to have kindled in his heart such a love for one of the sacred spots in this land.

The recently dedicated Mathews Memorial, a new addition to the camp ground, not only affords a nice place for preachers' wives and girls to room and do light house-keeping, but one building has been made into a boys camp, where more than a hundred can lodge, securing their meals at the hotel at very reasonable rates. The boys camp is under the supervision of Rev. John Gamble, of Swainsboro, Ga., a young preacher with wide experience as Scout Master.

Returned missionaries love to come to the camp meeting. They as well as the preachers of all denominations are given free entertainment. The touch of their lives and that of other consecrated Christian workers give to the young people a vision of service that makes it easy for them to hear the Master's call. They have their own organization, "The Young Peoples' Holiness Association of the Indian Springs Camp Meeting." Mr. Benjamin Waller, of Macon, Ga., is now serving as President. Mrs. Clarice Morford, of Portland, Ore., now studying at Asbury College, will direct the singing in the Young Peoples' services. This organization sends out letters to the young people during the year, encouraging them in their Christian life and enlisting them in publicity for the next camp.

The preachers for the 1927 camp, Dr. H. C. Morrison, Dr. J. L. Brasher and Dr. C. W. Butler, are all men noted for their years of successful work with young people and a great camp meeting is anticipated. The Indian Springs Camp is the greatest in the South and young and old should more and more find it a source of refreshment for their spiritual lives.

Mrs. Jere M. Glenn.

REVIVAL NOTES.

Recently the Rev. E. O. Rice, of Upland, Ind., organized an Evangelistic party, consisting of himself, the writer, and the Rev. M. V. Lewis, of Wilmore, Ky., the latter having charge of the service of song.

The first meeting was held in Duquoin, Ill., June 19-July 3. It was the plan to hold the services in a tent, but not being able to secure the tent in time for the meeting, the way opened to hold it in one of the churches of Duquoin. At first the attendance was not so large, but after a few services were held it increased, and the interest grew, till an intensely hot spell of weather came, and immediately after that a Chautauqua opened up which divided the attention of the people.

Some of the pastors of the city, and a goodly number of the members of the different churches attended the services, and lent a helping hand to promote the work of salvation. Also a goodly number of pastors and people from other towns and the surrounding country attended, and all expressed themselves as well pleased with the manner in which the work was promoted, and the messages given in sermon and song. The wife of Brother Rice was with us a part of the time, and delighted the people with the special pieces she rendered in song from time to time.

On all sides we learned that Duquoin is considered a very difficult field in which to promote revivals of religion, no extensive revival having occurred there for many years, and that the people are noted for non-attendance upon religious services. The Rev. Carroll, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, was especially interested in the work we sought to promote, was present in many of the services, lending a helping hand, and invited the writer to preach in his church on a Sunday morning. He and his people were most hearty in their approval of the message we gave them on Perfect Love, declaring that it is the sort of preaching needed for our times.

Favorable mention ought also to be made of Mr. Essick, a prominent official in the Baptist Church, the leading one of Duquoin, and the editor of the daily paper there, who was present in a number of the services, and published extensive daily reports of our meeting.

By the hearty invitation of the management of the Chautauqua being held in Duquoin, our Evangelistic party held its closing service in their large tent, all of the pastors and their members uniting with us in a union service. It was said that the tent would seat eight hundred people and it was almost full. We had a good time preaching to the assembled throng, and a very fine musical program was put on, led by Brother Lewis, who sang effectively a special number, as did Mrs. Rice, and another lady of the Baptist Church whose name we did not learn. Altogether the meeting closed in a fine spirit, and the people seemed delighted and blessed.

Brother Rice gave a fine exhibition of his characteristic business ability in his management of the meeting, taking charge of all of the preliminary work, and preaching one helpful and timely message.

J. L. Glascock.

GOOD MEETING IN SUNFIELD, MICHIGAN.

We have just closed a fine meeting in Sunfield, Mich. Our good old co-laborer and friend, Rev. G. A. Beacock, who has called us to his assistance on several previous occasions, invited us to come on short notice for a twelve days' meeting. He had planned for and prayed for the meeting for a year or more. The meeting began in the U. B. Church, of which Rev. R. Hoffman is pastor. A large tent was secured from Lansing, Mich., and put in order in a very brief time and crowds came and the gospel rang out, souls were blessed, saved, sanctified and victory was perched upon the banner of the Lord. The last Sabbath of the meeting marked a great day in Zion for the whole community. We had three rousing services. The afternoon meeting was for men only on the subject—"Will there be enough men in heaven to sing bass?"

The closing service at the evening hour was crowded with hundreds of people in and on the outside of the big tent. The writer preached on the Second Coming of Christ and the end of the world (age).

We happened to meet in this revival a musical genius who played the piano—Mr. R. M. Lord from Grand Ledge, Mich. He is certainly one deft toucher of the ivories. He ought to be in the evangelistic field as pianist. If some evangelist is looking for a first-class pianist who can make the music ring to perfection the Grand Ledge genius is the man of the hour.

We are now in a meeting at Portsmouth, Va., with Rev. M. T. Hartson. A large tent is being used. Pray for the revival. Andrew Johnson.

GOOD MEETINGS.

Since my last writing, I have been engaged in several good meetings, and have seen a number of souls converted, many receive the baptism with the Holy Ghost, and the kingdom of Christ extended. We have never seen as many hungry people, and have never realized our great opportunities as now. There is a great need of Bible preaching in every community, and a harvest awaiting the preacher who will keep the burden of the lost on his heart, and be led of the Spirit in his ministry, and let the Spirit apply the word of God, and bring souls under conviction for sin. There is no time for men to waste trying to bring people up to their standards of outward living, for most every one has a different idea about what we should do. It is the opinion and observation of the writer after over twenty years in evangelism, that those who get really saved, are willing to be led of the Spirit, and generally conform to the teaching of the word of God in their manner of life. All outward practices and deportment of life is the result of inward conditions. "From within out of the heart" proceed the actions of men. "A good man out of his heart bringeth forth that which is good, and out of an evil heart bringeth forth that which is evil. . . . A good tree cannot bring forth evil fruit, neither can a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit; therefore by their fruits shall ye know them." Christ solved the whole problem of human life in one utterance: "Make the tree good, and the fruit will be good." This scripture in its application means, make the heart good, and the fruit will be good, or the life will adjust itself to the law of righteousness. There is nothing that will meet the present need but a real Bible revival of regeneration universal in its scope. The writer is going in for greater revivals of salvation, and try to help every pastor with whom he labors to get souls to Christ, and to build up his local church where he labors. We solicit your prayers. May the Lord richly bless this good holiness sheet, and its editor, and readers, and increase its circulation rapidly.

J. B. McBride.

THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD

Published Weekly by
Pentecostal Publishing Company
523 So. First St., Louisville, Kentucky.

OUR CONTRIBUTORS

Rev. G. Whitefield Simonson	Rev. Len G. Broughton	Rev. Bud Robinson
Rev. O. G. Minglehoff, D.D.	Rev. L. R. Akers, D.D.	Rev. Henry Ostrom
Rev. Richard W. Lewis, D.D.	Rev. G. W. Ridout, D.D.	Rev. C. M. Griffith
Rev. Andrew Johnson, D.D.	Rev. P. F. Asher, B.D.	Rev. J. H. Smith
Rev. C. F. Wimberly, D.D.	Rev. E. E. Shelhamer	Rev. C. W. Ruth
	Rev. J. B. Culpepper

Six Months in Advance $.75
One Year in Advance 1.50
Foreign Countries 2.00

CONCERNING SUBSCRIPTIONS

Subscription Discontinued When Time Is Out.
In ordering address changed give both OLD and NEW address. Write all names plainly with pen and ink or typewriter.
Notify us promptly of any irregularities in receiving your paper.
For distribution, to secure new subscribers, sample copies will be sent free on application.
Remit by Registered Letter, New York Exchange, Express, or Post Office Money Order.

(Continued from page 1)

but having drifted back into the wilderness, he brought me this time to Jordan, and it was full to the overflowing of all its banks. The struggle lasted for fifteen days. Much of that time I fasted, often not going to my meals at all, and eating but little when I did go. During those days, "I ate no pleasant bread," taking only food enough to keep up strength for prayer. I was in an awful school. It is hardly lawful for me to go into details of what the Lord revealed to me of sin and its hatefulness to him. He so withdrew all comfort from me, and all witness of acceptance that I had a foretaste of what it would be to be separated from him forever. Satan buffeted, ridiculed, taunted, and tempted me. There were some things I had to learn by experience. At times I would have relief, and a degree of hope and comfort, and then the battle would come on with renewed vigor. At times, although the weather was cool, the perspiration would roll off of me, and I suffered as I did not know one could suffer in the body. I preached a number of times while passing through this conflict, with liberty and unction, but before I could get out of the church the battle would begin raging.

Dr. Lapsley McKee, a celebrated old Presbyterian minister, resided in Danville. He was a professor in the Theological Seminary located at that place; a man of most devout spirit. I called on him, and told him something of my soul struggle. He said: "My young brother, the Lord has not forsaken you, but is leading you into what Mr. Wesley called Christian Perfection. The Baptists call it the rest of faith, the Presbyterians the higher life, or fullness of the Spirit." He told me how he had received the baptism of the Holy Spirit, when a young pastor in Louisville, under the preaching of A. B. Earl, the great Baptist evangelist. He gave me much encouragement, and I laid hold afresh. The last day of this soul conflict, I fainted three times. I was boarding with my sister, Mrs. Meyer. I had been down town, and finding my strength gone, I stopped at the bank and asked Bro. Will Proctor to walk home with me. We went around to the house, and I stepped in and dropped into an arm chair. I was wearing a tall silk hat. I fell backward, and my plug hat fell off, bouncing about the floor. I lost consciousness as it went over the top of the chair. They soon had a doctor with me, and got me up to my bed. Twice more that day I fainted away, and felt that I would certainly die. It seemed that all of his waves and billows went over me. The next morning while on my knees at a little table reading the letter to the Laodicean Church, while reading these words, "As many as I love I rebuke and chasten," the light broke in upon me. It seemed as if Jesus spoke the words from his own lips, and my heart was filled with peace and joy. Again, for want of instruction, I failed to testify, and lost my full assurance, and had a conflict more or less severe many months before I became fully established.

I regret that I must write of my ignorance and want of strength, for I had to be taught by bitter experiences. But out of them all, the Lord finally brought me, and fixed my faith firmly upon the Rock of Ages. In the years of conflict which have followed, the lessons learned in so much sorrow have been invaluable. I suppose that in the midst of misunderstanding, misrepresentation, debts, and constant toil, as I have struggled through the years to found a full salvation paper, and spread the doctrine of redemption from all sin, I could say, none of these things move me. All glory to his name. How constantly my Jesus has borne me up and borne me on, and I am singing today; "Where Jesus is, 'tis Heaven there."

(Continued)

Out In The Tent Campaign.

AFTER the close of our tent meeting at Argonia, Kansas, of which I wrote last week, Brother Tom Maitland moved the tent to Wellington, Kansas. Wellington is a most beautiful little city of some 7,000 population in the midst of the great wheat growing sections of Kansas. The tent was set up on the beautiful grounds of the high school, most convenient and comfortable.

Rev. Charles Hestwood, pastor of the M. E. Church in Wellington, took gracious and helpful interest in the meeting. He had me preach in his great church both Sabbath mornings I was in the city and called in his Sunday evening and mid-week services that his people might attend the tent meeting. He and his family gave delightful entertainment in their large parsonage home to me, for which I cannot fully express my gratitude.

Rev. D. W. Dibbens, of Winfield, Kansas, one of the most devout and sweet-spirited men you can meet with in a year's travel, led the singing. He has a sweet voice and sings with the Spirit and understanding. His presence and service were a real benediction to me. His daughter, who is an accomplished pianist had charge of the instrument. She also has a very sweet voice and sings with unusual melody. The two of them gave us some remarkable duets. Brother Dibbens' wife and son were also with us and their presence was an inspiration and blessing. A number of ministers came in from the adjoining country; some from quite a distance. There must have been at least thirty-five or forty preachers with us during the meeting. Brother Dudley, pastor of the Nazarene Church, dismissed his regular services, and, with his good people, was with us throughout the ten days very faithfully. The Baptist pastor at Wellington, a most excellent Christian brother, and the Lutheran pastor, a delightful Christian gentleman, were often in our meetings.

There was not a large number of persons at the altar of prayer, but several professed forgiveness and a few full salvation. A host of people told me they were greatly refreshed in their religious experience and wonderfully helped in the development of their spiritual life. Brother Tom Maitland was on the job day and night, looking after the tent, managing the platform and rounding up the work. I regret that the name of our faithful brother who took care of the tent day and night, both at Argonia and Wellington, has slipped my mind. He slept in the tent and fought off the winds and rains and kept the tent in good order. His name is written in heaven, and may the Lord graciously bless him.

I greatly enjoyed these two tent meetings in Kansas. What a wonderful state! What plains of wheat! What herds of cattle! What wonderful towns! What beautiful homes! What a blessed people! From what I saw of them, I cannot believe they are even distantly related to the baboon family and my judgment is that sometime in the future those who are now rejoicing to believe that they are well developed monkeys will repudiate their long-tailed relatives and seek to get back into good, intelligent society.

The people who believe the Bible and in the all-atoning merit of Jesus' precious blood can easily develop the work of the American Methodist League until we can have several hundred tents in the field during the summer and see thousands of souls converted and sanctified. You may be sure the God who so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son to die for its redemption wants men's souls redeemed. I think it is perfectly safe to say that the great God of the Universe is more interested in the salvation of human souls than in any and all things else. Out of this, comes all good. Join in with us in this great League work. Send your name and address and $1.00, in care of PENTECOSTAL HERALD, Louisville, Ky., and help forward the great, good work.

H. C. MORRISON.

A SIGNIFICANT FACT.

MRS. H. C. MORRISON.

IN every hand we hear the cry for a revival of old-time religion in all of our churches. While this is in a way encouraging, yet the very fact that the need of a general revival is so apparent, leads us to acknowledge the conditions which make such a revival necessary. What is the cause of this spiritual dearth which seems to have wrapped the church in its embrace, until it is almost impossible to get it aroused sufficiently to feel the pains of travail which are necessary to bring forth sons and daughters to Zion.

In the older days of our church fathers, it was not so difficult to discriminate between the world and the church, for in taking the vows of the church, you were supposed to separate yourself from the world, its vain pomp and glory and be devoted to the cause you had espoused in uniting with the church militant. In these days it seems there is no depth to the sincerity when the vows are taken, but professors go on joining hands with the world and living so much like it, that one would never judge they had pretended to leave its ranks for that of the church.

It is a lamentable fact that, instead of the church moving among the world and lifting it to the high standard of righteousness, the world has invaded the church, the supposed tabernacle of the Most High, and dragged it down to its worldly level. Pharaoh has tolled the church back to the land of Egypt and they are again feeding on the husks of the devil and being driven captive at his will. We need to move back home on God's territory, but in so doing we will have to leave behind a lot of trash, gewgaws, selfishness, worldly entertainments and questionable diversions that are inconsistent with the Christian life, repent of our unfaithfulness, quit our sins and consecrate our lives anew to God, purposing in our hearts to die rather than betray his trust again by going into sin.

It is an indisputable fact that many churches are running on formality rather than spirituality. To have a big preacher, one who can use flowery language which has nothing in it that would prick the consciences of his hearers, to have all the claims met in full, the choir well organized, the ladies active in church suppers, bazaars and oyster stews to raise money to pay the pledges of their societies, this I say, is the ideal church for many people who call themselves Methodists, the followers of him who raised up the Methodist Church to spread Scriptural holiness over these lands. Doubtless there are some who read these lines who will class the above as sarcasm, but we do not accept the charge as being true; we need only to call up witnesses all over this land to testify to its truthfulness, which they have seen time and again to their sorrow. We wish it were otherwise, but when you meet facts face to face, you have to lay aside the bouquets of self-congratulation and bow in shame to the conditions as they really exist.

But is there no balm in Gilead? Is there no physician there? Yes, thank God, there is help in the Great Physician who is patiently waiting for the return of his prodigal church. Through the prophet Jeremiah the Lord said to backslidden Israel, "Go and proclaim these words toward the north, and say, Return, thou backsliding Israel, saith the Lord, and I will not cause mine anger to fall upon you: for I am merciful, saith the Lord, and I will not keep my anger forever. Only acknowledge thine iniquity, that thou hast transgressed against the Lord thy God, and hast scattered thy ways to the strangers under every green tree, and ye have not obeyed my voice, saith the Lord. Turn, O backsliding children, saith the Lord; for I am married unto you." What a picture of yearning compassionateness is this in behalf of the one who has gone astray, yet it is often hard for the backslider to realize that God is not angry with him. We may be assured that whenever we turn toward God, he faces us with outstretched hands ready to embrace the prodigal to his bosom again.

In order to have a revival, we must be willing to pay the price by prayer and travail of soul. We must roll the stones of unbelief away from our own hearts and claim victory in the name of Jesus. We must realize the fact that men are going to perdition right before our eyes and our lethargy and indifference ought to arouse us to action. Any church that is not winning men and women to Christ, is in dire need of a revival. Where are men to get to Christ, if not through the pales of the church? Who, but the real Christian, the one who knows how to prevail in prayer, can bring the sinner to Christ? Then to your knees, oh, Israel! Break up the fallow ground; for it is time to seek the Lord till he come and rain righteousness upon you.

Notice!

There appeared on page eight of last week's HERALD an article about Indian Spring camp meeting written by Rev. J. M. Glenn, whose name failed to be signed.

This famous camp meeting begins August

11, continuing for ten days. Many noted preachers will be there, and the camp promises to be one of unusual interest. Let the people pray that God's presence may be manifested in the salvation of souls.

Monument Fund for the Late Dr. W. G. Nixon.

A number of Detroit friends of our late, and greatly beloved Dr. W. G. Nixon have signified a desire to join with other friends of his in different places in a movement to secure a suitable monument in Grand Lawn Cemetery to mark the last resting place of this valiant leader and mighty warrior.

A committee consisting of those whose names are given below have been appointed to head the movement and to receive funds for this token of our love and esteem.

It is our desire to receive contributions of any amount from those all over the country who admired and loved him and who would want to have a part in erecting this monument.

Any sums received over the cost of the monument will be added to the estate of our beloved brother. Those making contributions are requested to send checks or money orders for same to any member of the local committee, being careful to give name and address as a permanent record is to be made of those contributing to this fund.

(Signed)

Edgar C. Fox, (Fourteenth Ave. M. E. Church.)

520 Fort St., W. Detroit, Mich.

Glenn W. Fausey, (Nineteenth M. E. Church)

4038 Richton Ave., Detroit, Mich.

Chas. C. Valade, (Asbury M. E. Church)

1455 Gratiot Ave., Detroit, Mich.

Thos. Valade, (Bethlehem M. E. Church)

1455 Gratiot Ave., Detroit, Mich.

Dr. J. R. Bird (East Grand Blvd., M. E. Church)

6370 Gratiot Ave., Detroit, Mich.

Local Committee.

Modernism.

Modernism is the suggestive title of a new book from the pen of J. M. Stanfield. I have read the book. It is very suggestive, an excellent answer to the enemies of the inspiration and trustworthiness of the Bible. It is printed on good paper in clear type, and contains 117 pages. It is neatly bound and well worth reading. I could wish that it might be read by every preacher, Sunday school teacher and college student of the land. The matter in the book is divided under the following heads.

Modernism.

What it is.

What it does.

Whence it came.

Its Relation to Evolution.

The price of the book is $1.50. It can be had from The Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky. The book deserves a wide and thoughtful reading. Get it; read it; talk it; circulate it.

H. C. M.

Dr. Ridout at North Jersey Tent Meeting.

A tent meeting will be held at Paterson, N. J., August 14-23. Location of tent will be at the corner of 21st Ave. East 26th St., Paterson, N. J. Rev. G. W. Ridout and wife will be the workers, with Rev. J. P. Blackledge and Mr. C. S. Myers of the Mission. The meeting will be along the lines of the Old-Time Religion and Full Salvation. Readers of THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD living in North Jersey are asked to pray for the meetings and plan to come as much as possible. Paterson is easily reached by street car and bus from Newark and many other points. For particulars write C. S. Myers, 228 S. VanDeen Ave., Ridgewood, N. J.

AUTHENTICITY AND INSPIRATION OF THE SCRIPTURES.

(Continued from page 5)

this chapter is historical. It is the story of the war in the days of Amraphel, when four kings of the East, after the five kings of the Vale of Siddim had rebelled against Elam, invaded the land. When Abraham heard of the war, and how Lot had been captured, he took his trained servants and followed the kings, Chedorlaomer, Amraphel, Arioch and Tidal, and at Dan he routed them and pursued them to Hobah, near Damascus. When he came back, he restored Lot and the possessions of the king of Sodom, and paid tithes to Melchizedek, king of Salem. The critics declared this to be a pure invention on the part of a later Hebrew writer. The patriarchs were said to be but the results of myth and legend. There were no such kings. Even the political facts are inconsistent with the time. But according to Albert T. Clay, Ph.D., we find the following facts: "Weighing carefully the position taken by the critics in the light of what has been revealed through the decipherment of the cuneiform inscriptions, we find that the very foundations upon which their theories rest, with reference to the points that could be tested, totally disappear. The truth is that wherever any light has been thrown upon the subject through the excavations, their hypotheses have invariably been found wanting. . . The names of the four kings we now know are real, and the persons that bore them are historical. . . But further, in an inscription of Lugal-zaggisi, about 4000 B. C., we learn that this ruler accomplished, about two thousand years before Abraham was born, what these critics said was not to be considered as possible as early as the patriarch's days. In other words, he conquered the land from the Persian Gulf to the Mediterranean. The bearing of all these results upon this question has forced the critics to propound a new hypothesis, which in substance, as regards its relation to the historicity of the patriarchal period, is equally obstinately negative in character."

There are many more instances of conclusive proof; but why go further? Every new discovery in archaeological research has borne testimony to the veracity of the Bible. and in not one instance has it been proved false. The story of the flood; the fact of the city of Nineveh; the ethnographical correctness and the geographical trustworthiness of the Scriptures have all been upheld. The Bible that can stand all this search and, in every instance be found true, is beyond all cavil inspired of Almighty God.

(Continued)

The Optimism of Premillennialism.

This book from the pen of our Editor, Rev. H. C. Morrison, is just off the press. It offers a new and very suggestive line of thought on the ever interesting subject of the SECOND COMING OF CHRIST. The book is printed in clear type on good paper, neatly bound and contains nearly 150 pages. The price is $1.00. Send same to Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky., get the book and read it. You will find it optimistic, scriptural and thought provoking. The writer introduces a line of thinking on the subject of the coming of our Lord, that will interest the reader.

Dr. Wimberly's Book Commended.

Rev. J. D. Prater, pastor of the M. E. Church, South, Marshfield, Mo., writes: "I have bought this year not less than $100 worth of books, recommended by various people; but among them all I have found but two that were worth the money and the time to read them. One of these books is "Mastery of Manhood", by Dr. C. F. Wimberly, of the South Carolina Conference." Price $1.25. For sale by Pentecostal Publishing Company.

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let an Indiana girl join your happy band of boys and girls? This is my first letter to The Herald. I am twelve years old and will be in the first year of high school next year. I go to Sunday school every Sunday that I can. I like to go to Sunday school and church. My grandfather takes The Herald. I enjoy reading page ten. Who can guess my middle name? It begins with I and ends with E, and has five letters in it. Virginia Taylor, I guess your middle name to be Genevieve. If I am right please do not forget your promise.

Mildred Ham.
Rt. 2, Orleans, Ind.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I promised to write again and tell something about myself. I am five feet, two inches tall, have light hair, blue eyes and fair complexion. I wonder if I have a twin. I am twenty-two the 19th of December. I shall take a subject which very few people think much of. It is a subject that I have made a study of. We as teachers have to deal with "lies" often. Some one may ask what a lie is. My definition is, "a lie is the wrong impression made with words or actions." From this definition anyone can clearly see that a lie is not always spoken, we should never try to deceive. Scott says, "Oh, what a tangled web we weave when first we practice to deceive." From such stories as, "President Grant's Way," "George Washington and His Hatchet," and "The Honest Woodman" do we find character that stand firm for truthfulness. Some may ask, "How can we break such habits?" Dryden says: "All habits gather by unseen degrees, As brooks make rivers, rivers run to seas."

Tell the truth if it hurts. So many people try to hold up truthfulness. Farrar says, "There is only one failure in life possible, that is not to be true to the best one knows." From this we do not consider any truthful person a failure. Keep your life free from all deceitfulness is my appeal to all young folks. I want to close with a poem on "Honesty" by Horatius Bonar.

"Thou must be true thyself,
If thou the truth wouldst teach,
Thy soul must overflow, if thou
Another's soul wouldst reach:
It needs the overflow of heart
To give the lips full speech.

"Think truly, and thy thoughts
Shall the world's famine feed,
Speak truly and each word of thine
Shall be a fruitful seed;
Live truly, and thy life shall be
A great and noble deed!"

I hope that this letter will make someone think before they weave a web of deceitfulness. If Mr. W. B. doesn't get this letter I will promise to write again on this subject. I wish that some more of the cousins would write me.

Bernyce Bagley.
Wesson, Miss.

Dear Aunt Bettie: It is time for you to hear from Orange, Calif. Thank you for printing my letter, some months ago. We enjoy reading page ten, but page one and all the way through is helpful to any who are trying to live the Christian life. The splendid letter from Mary W. Nell, of Clinton, Ky., in paper of May 25, is worth reading twice. How I like the sentiment of "helpfulness—cheer for others by one of our number. There are suggestions in this letter that make for real happiness. Well might the cousins read it over again. The 91st Psalm is one of my favorites. Would be glad for a number of cousins to commit 1st Cor. 13 ch. and repeat it each day for six months; and report to me how you get along with it. It has worked changes for good in lives of many people. We are having lovely weather now—June 15—and it will likely not rain any more till October or November, then we are liable to have rainy weather a part of the time till next May. Sometimes we don't have many rains all through the year, but we do like to see it rain in the winter season which helps the crops of oranges, lemons, walnuts, and vegetables to do their best. The Valencia oranges are being packed now ready for shipping to eastern markets. Carroll Dockendorff would enjoy being here now to see the oranges grow on the trees and the Mexican people picking them for market. Mrs. A. H. Nickell.

206 W. Palmyra Ave., Orange, Calif.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a little girl from Louisiana join your happy band of boys and girls? My mother takes The Herald and I like to read page ten. I was twelve years old June 14. Who has my birthday? I will be in the seventh grade next year. I belong to the Methodist Church and go to Sunday school every Sunday I can. This is my first letter to The Herald and I would like to see it in print. With love to all the cousins, Dorothy Jones.
Box 114, Sulphur, Ind.

Dear Aunt Bettie: As my first letter was not printed I thought I would write again, hoping to see it in print. My mother takes The Herald and I enjoy page ten best of all. I will give my description here, much as I hate to. I have dark brown hair, blue eyes, am four feet, eleven inches tall, weigh 97 pounds and am eleven years young. My birthday is May 15. Have I a twin? I go to church every Sunday. Our pastor's name is Bro. H. M. Harrison. I like him fine. Our rural school started June 12. I am in the eighth grade. I hear Mr. W. B. coming so I'll ring off with this—I want you cousins to write to me and I will answer your letter.

Madison Bryant.
Box 48, Kathleen, Fla.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a little Texas girl join your happy band of boys and girls? I am nine years old and in the fourth grade. Who can guess my name? It starts with M and ends with E. This is my first letter to The Herald and I hope to see it in print. My grandma takes The Herald and I enjoy reading page ten. I don't see very many letters from Texas. Hurry up Texans, don't let the other places beat us. With best wishes to Aunt Bettie and the cousins, Lena M. Farthing.
Bay City, Texas.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a little Texas girl join your happy band of boys and girls? I am ten years old and have blue eyes and light hair. Can any of you cousins guess my middle name? It starts with I and ends with E and has five letters in it. My grandma takes The Herald and I like to read page ten. I hope to see this letter in print for this is my first letter.
Gladys Farthing.
Bay City, Texas.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Here comes a West Virginia girl to join your happy band for the second time. I wonder what all of you cousins are doing? I have been going to high school at Spencer. I am now a Junior. Spencer is ten miles from Cainsburg. I have brown hair and eyes, am five feet and four inches short, weigh about 108 pounds, and am going to leave my age for you cousins to guess. It is between fifteen and eighteen years. I sure like to read The Herald, especially page ten. I hope more of you cousins would write. I hope to receive and answer letters. Now won't you all write to a little West Virginia girl. I'll answer all I receive. I hope to hear from cousins from every state in the Union. Oh, I hear Mr. W. B. coming.
Eloise Walker.
Cainsburg, W. Va.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Here I am knocking at the door the second time. How are the boys and girls and all The Herald family enjoying life? Cousins, pardon me for not answering all the letters who wrote me for "The Dying Girl's Farewell." I received so many letters I could not answer all. Through the permission of Aunt Bettie I am enclosing "The Dying Girl's Farewell" so every one can get it. I am glad so many of the cousins wrote me. May God be with each and every one till we meet on yonder shining shore. If any of you cousins know the words of the song "No Burdens Yonder" please send it to me. Aunt Bettie, hope you will print my letter soon that the cousins may get "The Dying Girl's Farewell."

Thomas Kirkpatrick.
Pinson, Tenn.

"The Dying Girl's Farewell."

"The time has come, dear papa, when I must say good bye;
I feel the shadows thick'ning, the end is drawing nigh.

I am entered in the valley, but what have I to fear,
For the angels are in waiting and Jesus, too, is near.

Chorus.

"Be faithful, oh, be faithful, it won't be long you know, Till I'll meet you at the portals where angels come and go."

"Dear mother, Oh, dear mother, your love was warm and true,
Cast all your cares on Jesus until he calls for you;
He never will forsake you if sorrows press you sore,
He'll bring you through the city and we shall part no more.

"And you, my precious sister, whose eyes overflow with tears,
Think of my Home in Glory beyond the rolling spheres;
Be ready for his summons, should it come soon or late,
And I'll hail you welcome there at the golden gate.

"Dear Brothers, I must leave you, remember life is brief,
I know my leaving pains you and fills your heart with grief;
But soon I'll be with Jesus to part no more,
Oh, brothers, will you meet me on that Celestial shore?"

"Farewell, my loved companions, I bid you all adieu,
Oh, give your lives to Jesus and be to duty true;
Walk close beside the Master until your journey's o'er,
He'll guide you through the valley and we shall part no more."

Dear Aunt Bettie: I am left alone with six children to support. I live way up in the Blue Ridge Mountains and have no way to support my children. I am asking that my name be published in The Pentecostal Herald for help. I am a Christian and badly in need of shoes and clothes for my children and myself. My address is Mrs. Mary Jenkins.
Stanley, Va.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I am just a newcomer to the Cousins' Page, although I am a reader of The Pentecostal Herald; it certainly is a fine paper and I love to read it. I am so glad that there are so many boys and girls that are Christians. May God bless you all and help you always to live faithful. I am a Christian and love to associate with Christian people. I am a member of the M. E. Church and attend as regular as possible. Our pastor's name is Rev. J. W. Frampton. He is a fine preacher and also a fine man. I have four brothers and one sister; one sister was drowned on Dec. 12, 1926. She was five years and twelve days old. My mother is a Christian, but the rest of the family are not, only my mother and I. I am praying that the rest may be saved and live for Jesus. Will you all help me to pray for them that this may be so? My age is between sixteen and twenty, and my birthday is Jan. 1. Whoever guesses my age I will send my picture to you.
Hazel Abbott.

Care Cribbs Home, Conneautville, Pa.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I wonder if you will let a lonesome Mississippi girl into your sunshine corner again. I am a constant reader of the dear old Herald. I have long black hair, and am twenty-three years old. I have been boeing corn and cotton. I live on a farm and like it fine. Mississippi girls and boys, wake up, most of the letters are from other states. I am glad so many of the cousins are Christians. Let us all strive to live for a better world where there will be shouting and singing. I have read the book, "Beautiful Girlhood" and wish every girl could read it. I visited my uncle's family and had a nice time.

Gospel Tents

Smith Manufacturing Company.
DALTON, GA.
22 Years in Business

J. H. DICKEY

of
BARRETT, ROBINSON & DICKEY

General Insurance—Bonds, etc., solicits your patronage.

7th Floor, Columbia Bldg.
Louisville, Ky.

200 Sheets 100 Envelopes

PERSONAL STATIONERY

High Grade White Bond Paper, size 5½ x 7 inches, with envelopes to match. Every sheet and envelope printed in black type up to 4 lines, with your name, business, and address

This Stationery also makes an IDEAL GIFT.
Shipment within 10 days after receipt of order. ORDER NOW!

Pentecostal Pub. Co.,
Louisville, Ky.

Gentlemen:
Enclose please find $1.00 for which send me postpaid, a box of your Personal Stationery consisting of 200 sheets of Paper and 100 Envelopes printed as follows:

To avoid errors write or print clearly

They live in Neshoba county and work on the farm. I love music, but cannot play. There's nothing that I like any better than good singing and the gospel of Jesus Christ. I always enjoy receiving letters and pictures.

Effie Dixon.
Rt. 2, Sweatman, Miss.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I hope that you will make room for a little nine-year-old Kentucky girl. I am just beginning to sit up a little. I took my bed on Easter Sunday with typoid fever. Mother takes The Herald and likes it fine. She says it is the best paper she takes. Before I could read I would have mother to read page ten to me. I have been reading it myself about three years. I have been aiming to write for about two years, but this is my first letter. I live on a farm and like to raise chickens. I like to go to Sunday school. I think every boy and girl should go to Sunday school and read the Bible and other good books. I would be so glad to hear from some of the cousins, especially some near my age, as I get very lonesome. Paul Frost, I hope that you are well. I hadn't missed a Sunday of Sunday school this year until I got sick. Our school begins July 18. I hope that I shall be able to go. I am in the fifth grade.

Ruby Harrison.
Rt. 3, Box 47, London, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: This is the first time I ever wrote to The Herald. I am ten years old, have brown eyes, dark brown hair, and light complexion. My birthday is Dec. 25. Can you guess my middle name? It starts with E and ends with R and has six letters.

Dorothy Raisor.
Georgetown, Ill.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a little Kentucky girl join your happy band of boys and girls? I am nine years old and am in the fifth grade at school. Who has my birthday, Sept. 9? I have heard Bro. Morrison preach several times. I liked it very much. I go to church every Sunday possible. Who can guess my middle name? It begins with M and ends with it. I have light hair, dark blue eyes, fair complexion. I will answer letters I receive. I hope to see this letter in print.

Geneva Hall.
Danville, Ky.

FALLEN ASLEEP

CORBIN.

On June 20th, our dear father, Rev. J. F. Corbin, went home to glory. His going was a triumphant, victorious one. For nearly five months he lay in the Methodist Hospital where, by his patience and sweet Christian resignation, he endeared himself to nurses and doctors. At the end he was perfectly himself, calling all the family to his bedside and telling us that he committed us to the Lord and admonishing us to live for him. With praying and singing and shouts of praise he came down to the crossing and with never a fear he said, "Peace, wonderful peace is mine. I'm going to rest now," closed his eyes and was with his Master whom he had served so faithfully. The nurses and interns mingled their tears with ours at his going and we love them for their kindness and devotion to him during these long months of sickness.

John Franklin Corbin was born Dec. 18, 1849, in Perry Co., Tenn. At the age of 18 at a prayer meeting on Cedar Creek he was born again November, 1867. He was licensed to preach by the Quarterly Conference of the Linden Circuit, Perry Co., Tenn., in June, 1875, and was received on trial in the Tennessee Conference at Fayetteville the following October. The next seven years were spent on circuits and charges in Tennessee and Texas.

He entered the mission field at Laredo, Tex., Dec. 8, 1882. Here on April 8, 1883, he was married to Miss Annie Williams, a missionary in charge of Lerado Seminary, and together they went to the interior of Mexico. He spent 44 years in active missionary work and for 35 years was a presiding elder. His brethren showed their love and confidence by sending him seven times as their delegate to the General Conference.

Believing in Christian education he set about at the very beginning of his work to establish schools in strategic centers. The following institutions were begun and fostered by him: Roberts College—a normal training school for young women at Saltillo, Mex.; Effie Edington Girls' Boarding School at El Paso, Tex.; Lydia Patterson Institute—a Bible Training School for young men at El Paso, Tex.; The School of the People—Magdalena Sonora, Mex. Twenty-two churches and chapels, and twelve parsonages scattered over the entire field of his labor stand as further monuments of his untiring effort and devotion.

On March 10, 1903, he entered into the experience of Perfect Love and thenceforth with added unction and power he went up and down his district as a flaming evangel. His active ministry came to an end when, in October, 1926, he was superannuated at the meeting of the Western Mexican Mission at El Paso, Tex., thus completing 51 years in the Methodist itinerancy. Truly there are many monuments to his unceasing toil and zeal but the most beautiful, the most enduring of all is that inestimable one the love and devotion of the Mexican people with whom he chose to live and labor that they might know the transforming power of the Gospel of Christ.

His daughter,
Mrs. Anita Corbin Harshman.

MATTHEWS.

Rev. Samuel H. Matthews was born March 24, 1851, and departed for God's beautiful beyond from Neuville, Texas, April 16, 1927, at the ripe age of 76 years. He was an active member and also a local preacher in the Methodist Episcopal Church for many years.

Dear old "Uncle Sam", as he was affectionately called, was a strong advocate of the Wesleyan doctrine of the entire sanctification or second blessing holiness and gave his life and means for the spreading of the great truth that he fearlessly preached and loved so well. He loved Dr. Morrison and God's holy people everywhere. He loved the doctrines of The Pentecostal Herald and was a subscriber and constant reader of her pages for many years, and rejoiced in the great truths that it contained.

We miss him now, and shall miss him more and more as the years go by, for a "Prince in Israel" has fallen, but we rejoice to know his warfare is over and the victory won, and we have the assurance that his promotion has come and that he has risen from the lowlands of earth to the highlands of glory. He is now taking his sweet rest in heaven and some day we shall meet him again as we walk the streets of gold in God's beautiful country.

His funeral was preached from the front veranda of his home at Neuville, Texas, to a large concourse of sorrowing friends. A long funeral procession followed this man of God to his last resting place where the body was tenderly laid away beneath a bank of flowers to await the resurrection morning.

Besides his faithful wife he is survived by seven children and other relatives and a host of friends. We mourn our loss but his influence will live on in the hearts of his children and in the lives of others and will continue to bear fruit to the glory of his God whom he loved so well. We shall meet him again, sometime, somewhere on the streets of gold.

His true friend,
Mary E. Perdue.

NEWMAN.

Madison Bruce Newman departed this life April 17, 1927, in his 80th year. His dear wife is left alone with only her nieces for company, one who lives near, the other one in Oklahoma, whom they raised. Uncle Bruce, as he was known, was a devout Christian. He had been in bad health for some years and was taken down with pneumonia. He bore his sickness with patience only waiting for the Lord to call him home. He was an old-time Methodist and believed in prayer. He was laid to rest in the Hurst Cemetery near his home to await the resurrection morn.

His niece,
Mrs. John H. Cooper.

ELLIS.

Lavern Ellis, of Allegan, Mich., has passed to his reward.

He lived a beautiful Christian life,
Had not a place to call his home;
For years he lived at the county farm,
None cared whither he went or came.

For fourteen years he had not walked,
But was happy in spite of the pain;
Always trying to scatter sunshine,
The Lord made his pathway plain.

As he toiled on in his feeble way,
Trying to help earn his bread,
Singing a song of rejoicing—
Now they tell us "He is dead."

Dead, but alive forever more,
He walks the streets of gold;
Exchanged the almshouse for a mansion,
Heaven's beauties will continue to unfold.

All suffering and sorrow are ended,
His rejoicing is full and complete,
Angels are now his companions,
He is sitting at the dear Master's feet.

We expect to meet him up yonder,
By life's River so bright and fair,
Then we will walk in heavenly sunlight,
There is no dark night over there.

Mrs. S. C. Taylor.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.

Pray for a woman who is suffering mentally, and unless relief comes she cannot stand the strain.

A mother wishes her daughter, son and son-in-law to be remembered in prayer. The Lord knows their several needs.

R. F. P.: "Join me in prayer for my family that they may be saved, and that the Lord would anoint me with the Holy Ghost that I may serve him in the beauty of holiness."

J. M. H.: "Please to pray that my hearing may be restored, and that I may be sanctified wholly."

Mrs. L. J.: "Please to pray that I may be sanctified and that my husband may be saved."

WHAT'S IN A BOOK?

CONDUCTED BY

REV. Z. T. JOHNSON, A. B., B. O., M. A.

A Scientific Man and the Bible, by Howard A. Kelly, M.D., LL.D. $1.25.

This is a day when the average man of science gives little heed to the Book of books. Dr. Kelly is a man of prominence in the scientific world. He was asked by the editor of the Sunday School Times to write these chapters. Since they have been published in book form, the book has gone through four editions.

In this story of his life, Dr. Kelly discusses the following points: "How I Came to My Present Faith"; "Why I Believe the Whole Bible is True"; "Why I Believe That Jesus Christ Is God"; "Why I Believe in the Virgin Birth of Jesus"; "Why I Believe in the Blood Atonement"; "Why I Believe in the Bodily Resurrection"; "Why I Believe Christ is Coming Again."

The book is written in a scholarly yet simple manner. One feels that he is reading from a man of knowledge, yet from a man with a simple faith. The book is very practical, and very much needed today. It has done and will do much to help settle the faith of wavering Christians.

The Methodist Armor, by H. T. Hudson. $1.00.

The author gives 319 pages of discussions of the prominent doctrines, peculiar usages and polity of the M. E. Church, South. The book was written for popular reading, and is well put together.

There is an account of the origin of Methodism in England and America. The articles of religion, general rules, orders and officers of the church are explained.

There are three very fine chapters. The prominent doctrines of Methodism are discussed in Chapter V. The explanation of these doctrines are especially good. Every Methodist ought to read them carefully. There is much material here for good, sound preaching. The explanation of the teaching of the church on Holiness is worth the price of the book. Chapters VII and VIII deal with the question of baptism. I have seen no finer discussion of this subject anywhere.

If you want to be a well-informed Methodist be sure to read this book with great care. It is now in its eleventh edition.

Martin Luther, the Lion-Hearted Reformer, by J. A. Morrison. 75c.

This is another splendid book of 115 pages on the life of a great Christian hero. It was written especially for young people in a simple, easy style.

There are thirteen chapters that touch the high points in the Reformer's stirring life. They tell of his struggle for an education; of his entrance into the monastery against his father's wishes; of his yearning for salvation; of his disappointment with the Catholic Church; of his ninety-five theses directed against the shameful practices of the church of his day; of his break with Catholicism; of the mighty reformation that swept Germany under him; and of his later life.

The book holds up a high ideal for the young; and would be an interesting gift to some young man or woman. It would prove a blessing to such.

New Testament Women and Problems of Today, by M. S. Miller. 75c.

This is a book of twelve chapters, each of which is a discussion of some practical problem that confronts women today. The plan of the lectures is to base the discussion of the problems on some women and their problems as found in the New Testament.

Some of the most representative chapters are: "My Job and I—Do We Fit?"; "Can I Continue My Business Career and Maintain a Happy Home?"; "My Friends—Where Shall I Make Them?"; "Life's Disappointments—How Shall I Face Them?"; "To Whom Am I Neighbor?" At the end of each discussion is listed a series of questions for private and class study.

This book would make an interesting text for a Sunday school class of young women. It would also be good to give to some young woman just entering the business world.

All of the books reviewed in these columns may be bought from The Pentecostal Publishing Company, Louisville, Kentucky.

FORTY-NINTH ANNUAL SESSION

PORTAGE HOLINESS CAMP

At Portage, O., 25 miles south of Toledo, O., on Dixie Highway.
On straight, full salvation lines.

AUGUST 18-28, 1927

Twelve acre grove of forest trees, good water, frame tabernacle, two dormitories, boarding house.

WORKERS.

Geo. B. Kulp—John E. Hewson.

A. H. Johnston and wife, song leaders.

Missionary Day, Thursday, August 25, in charge of Mrs. Chas. E. Cowman.

NO GATE FEE.

Orthodox preachers and wives lodged free.

H. J. ICKES, Pres.,

Helena, Ohio.

E. L. DAY, Sec'y.

74 Oakwood Ave., Newark, O.

Mrs. L. G.: "Pray that I may be baptized with the Holy Ghost, and that my husband may be healed of an incurable disease, if it is the Lord's will."

Prayer is earnestly requested for a mother who has heart trouble and has suffered the loss of two sons.

Pray for a burdened soul to be delivered; also for the healing of a sick man and afflicted girl.

"106 Sermon Outlines", by Dr. U. G. Foote, has many interesting topics outlined for preaching. Price $1.00. Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky.

NOT TO BE USED WITHOUT COPYRIGHT PERMISSION

OF ASBURY THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

REV. O. G. MINGLEDORFF, D.D.

Lesson VII.—August 14, 1927.

Subject.—David Brings the Ark to Jerusalem. 2 Sam. 2:3, 4; 5:1-3; 6:12-15.

Golden Text.—We shall be satisfied with the goodness of thy house, even of thy holy temple. Ps. 65:4.

Time.—B. C. 1042.

Places.—Kirjath-jearim and Jerusalem.

Introduction.—We are making such a long jump between the lesson of last Sunday and that of today, that we are likely to lose the connection, unless we are careful to read all the intervening chapters. I have seen nothing better on the subject than the Introduction given in Arnold's Notes on the lesson; wherefore I am going to quote it here.

Introduction.—1. Religious confusion. Some time after the events of the last lesson, the career of Saul, which began so auspiciously, came to its tragic close in the suicide of the king. The reign of Saul had been marked by religious decline. "Because of repeated acts of disobedience Jehovah rejected him from reigning over Israel. At a later period in a fit of jealousy he broke with the priesthood also, ordering the execution of all the sacerdotal order at Nob." About seventy years before the events of this lesson, the ark of the covenant had been carried from the house of the Lord into battle in the hope that thus God would turn the victory on Israel's side. But Israel was defeated, and the ark was captured by the Philistines, who set it up in the house of their god, Dagon. However, it proved such a curse to the Philistines that they were glad to be rid of it in a few months. Placing it upon a new cart drawn by two cattle, they sent it toward Beth-shemish. Here again it brought calamity, the Lord smiting the people for looking into the ark. Finally it was taken to Kirjath-jearim and placed in the house of Abinidab. The sanctuary at Shiloh seems to have been abandoned, probably having been destroyed by the Philistines. Several places of worship came to be used, but in none was the ark found, to speak of Jehovah's presence.

2. The city of David. One of David's first moves after becoming king of all Israel was to establish a capital. We cannot but feel that divine wisdom was given to him in making this choice. Through all his boyhood he had seen from his Bethlehem home the fortress of Zion, the stronghold of the Jebusites, elevated above all the cities of the land. It is probable that as a military leader he had often looked toward the city's challenging walls and dreamed of the time when he should attempt its capture. Now taking advantage of the increased strength of his army and of the enthusiasm which the reuniting of the tribes had evoked, David made the attack and was successful. "Beautiful for situation, the joy of whole earth is Mount Zion." Not only beautiful was the situation, but exceptionally advantageous. "The importance of this event cannot be overestimated. Jerusalem's central location, its natural defense—difficult to capture and easy to defend—its situation on neutral ground between Judah and Benjamin, and its ancient associations with the priest-king, Melchizedek, made this the wisest selection possible as a capital for the reunited kingdom, and it is one of the best illustrations of David's foresight and executive ability." It is characteristic of the spirit of David that one of his first thoughts should be the desire to give God his rightful place.

Comments on the Lesson.

3. The men that were with him did David bring up.—These were the 600 men who had joined him in his flight from Saul. Their families also followed him. They dwelt in the cities of Hebron.—There was a city called Hebron; but here we have reference to smaller towns that lay near by, just as we have villages surrounding larger towns and cities in America.

4. The men of Judah came.—They were loyal to him. Although David had already been anointed king by Samuel, he was now reanointed by the house of Judah. It was at this time that David received information that the men of Jabesh-gilead had buried Saul; wherefore he was sufficiently wise to send them his blessing, and to notify them that Judah had anointed him king over them. That was good politics.

One item especially needs to be noticed before we pass on: The kingdom was sorely divided. It does not seem that, at first start, David was accepted as king by any of the tribes except Judah. "But Abner, the son of Ner, captain of Saul's host, took Ishbosheth the son of Saul . . . and made him king over . . . all Israel." There was much rivalry and a good bit of fighting between the two kingdoms before David became king over all the people. Chapter 5:1: Then came the tribes of Israel to David unto Hebron.—The other tribes that had for two years followed Ishbosheth now joined the tribe of Judah in making David king of the whole people. They confessed themselves to be bone of his bone and flesh of his flesh. It may be well to remark here that Hebron was David's first capital city, and that he reigned there seven years and six months before moving to Jerusalem.

2. Thou wast he that leddest out and broughtest in Israel.—He was the leader of Saul's army, who had led Israel out to battle and brought them back in safety. They confess also that they knew that he was to be captain of all Israel. Knowing all this, is it not a little strange that Abner should have been able to lead them after Ishbosheth so easily and in such multitudes? Poor, fickle humanity. It will follow almost anybody who calls for it.

3. King David made a league with them in Hebron before the Lord.—This united the kingdom under one head. And they anointed David king over Israel.—This seems to be his third anointing. First Samuel anointed him as God's choice, then Judah anointed him as her choice, and lastly he was anointed as the choice of the entire nation.

Chapter 6:12. The Lord hath blessed the house of Obed-edom . . . because of the ark of God.—For sometime the ark had rested in the house of this man, and it was perfectly natural that the blessing of Jehovah should also abide there. Every home should be God's abiding place. David went and brought up the ark of God . . . into the city of David.—That favors jealousy; but maybe it was right that the ark should follow the king, seeing that he was the head of the nation. Remember that at this time David had his capital at Jerusalem where he reigned till the crowning of Solomon.

13. Had gone six paces.—If we take this literally, they had gone but six steps before they stopped to offer sacrifices to God. It may mean only a short distance, just as many Bible terms are not explicit. Sacrificed oxen and fatlings.—This was a sacrifice of gladness and thanksgiving, just as all our worship should be. Although the worship of Almighty God is a very serious exercise, our hearts should be flooded with the joy of the Holy Ghost. Our "joy should be full."

14. David danced before the Lord with all his might.—In those days there was a form of religious dancing whereby the people expressed themselves in their worship. The writer has often seen some of the best of saints indulge in rhythmic movements akin to dancing, when they were manifestly under the power of the Divine Spirit. Such may have been the case with king David on this occasion. David was girded with a linen ephod.—The ephod was properly the vestment of the high priest—it was sacred; but both Samuel and David wore something that was called an ephod. However, we are not to suppose that this was the true high-priestly ephod which was made of "fine linen", while the vestment worn by Samuel and David was made of "linen", marking a difference in the material. In the Septuagint we find the word translated by the Greek word that is equivalent to our word stole.

15. David and all the house of Israel brought up the ark of the Lord with shouting, and with the sound of the trumpet.—They were glad, and they had sufficient good sense to express themselves openly. God wants a joyous people. But we have permitted the spiritually dead to control things so long that most of our churches are as still and as dead as cemeteries. "Let the people praise Thee, O God, let all the people praise Thee."

EVANGELISTIC AND PERSONAL.

S. S. Nelson: "The Lord gave us a wonderful revival at Ketrion church in which a number professed to find the Lord. This was our fifth meeting we have conducted in the Methodist Church in this part of West Virginia, and it has been a good campaign. Brothers Maness and Hill are pastors who believe in a complete salvation. We are invited back for a later date."

The revival services which were in progress for the pastor three weeks at the Methodist Tabernacle under the direction of Judge Frank Morris and party of Dallas, Texas, were closed Sunday night with another great meeting in which Judge Morris and his helpers bade goodbye to Malvern and her people. Mrs. Morris won the hearts of all who heard her and her sermons were, as one would expect from a woman of her character, full of the love of God and the joy of walking in his ways. Not only had she the power to preach but seemed to enjoy the privilege of telling "The Old, Old Story."

Forest B. Willis: "The gospel tent meetings held in Mendon, Mich., by the Forest B. Willis Evangelistic Party closed July 10 with great success. Three weeks were spent in an earnest endeavor to win souls into the WANTED a young man to manage a small job shop. Good opportunity for the right man. Address Box 846, Monroe, La.

Know Your Bible

By AMOS R. WELLS

In this book are 1,500 questions which any one ought to be able to answer if he really knows his Bible. Through using it, one will gradually familiarize himself with the splendor of the Bible, its variety, its literary values, its wisdom and the summary of all rules for success and happiness. It is simple, practical, entertaining and educational.

Price, $1.00.

PENTECOSTAL PUBLISHING CO.
Louisville, Kentucky.

GOSPEL TENTS

Write for Prices on NEW AND USED TENTS.

R. H. ARMBRUSTER CO.,
SPRINGFIELD, ILL.

Established 1875

We Aim To Please—Our Aim Is Good

In Selecting a Memorial to a Loved One
What could be a happier, a more fitting thought than a living memorial of Golden-Voiced Deagan Tower Chimes serving through the years to keep alive the faith of those who have it, and helping, as no other means can, to re-awaken childhood reverence in those who have strayed. Write for literature. Standard Sets $8,000 and up. J. C. DEAGAN, Inc., 105 Deagan Building, Chicago, Ill.

kingdom of God. Many hearts found Jesus Christ in forgiveness of sins, and some believers received the blessing of entire sanctification. We feel that God's hand has led, and to him belongs all the praise for the good that the meetings may do."

C. W. Ruth: "The Missionary Society of the National Association for the Promotion of Holiness expects to conduct a Holiness Missionary Convention, having a number of returned Missionaries present, this fall,—beginning perhaps Tuesday, Sept. 27th, to continue over Sunday, Oct. 2nd, and will be glad to receive invitations from churches or holiness associations who would be glad to entertain such a Convention. The night services will be Evangelistic, and the day services devoted to Missionary interests. Address the President of the Missionary Society, C. W. Ruth, 1833 Nowland Ave., Indianapolis, Ind."

Mrs. Geo. Baker: "The revival services near Tifton, Ga., which were in progress for sixteen days came to a close July 20th. Every service was uplifting and helpful. The sermons preached were powerful, convincing and convicting. Many people were definitely saved and many Christians who had grown lukewarm were revived and brought into closer fellowship with God. Rev. John and Leonard Cochran did the preaching. Humble and sincere, with wonderful power in prayer, God has certainly honored their ministry. Their next work will be in Omega, Ga."

Ford A. Persons: "I wish to report a tent meeting held in Lawrence Park, Pa., June 19 to July 12, 1927. We had 72 at the altar, 61 for salvation and 6 for the baptism of the Holy Ghost."

Albert Reed and Wife: "We have just closed a good meeting at Peaks Mill in Franklin Co., Ky. The Lord gave victory with some 25 at the altar and 16 praying through. This is a new church which we dedicated last Sunday in June with a large crowd and dinner on the ground, closing out the revival that night. Our next meeting at East Bernstadt, Ky., with Bro. Smith Gilmore, pastor. We are open for dates for August and September."

Hortense camp meeting will be held at camp ground in Hortense, Ga., Aug. 18 to 28. Rev. O. G. McKinley, of Houghton, N. Y., will be the evangelist. He is a strong believer in the old time religion of our fathers and one who earnestly contends for the faith which was once delivered to the saints. This camp is undenominational in its worship and extends invitation to all. The singing will be conducted by Rev. J. M. Willis assisted by others. Rooms and board may be had on camp ground in the new building until rooms are all taken. Prices will be reasonable. There will be plenty of room for those who desire to camp in the camp houses. For any information you desire concerning camp, or board and lodging write to F. H. Harris, Hortense, Ga.

Nineteenth Annual Holiness Camp Meeting at Eckerty, Ind., will be held August 5 to 15. Great Bible sermons by strong preachers, soul-stirring song services, instruction and training for boys and girls. Purpose: "The Uplifting of the Community; the Salvation of the Lost; the Quickening of the Church; and the Sanctification of Believers in Christ." Workers: George R. Aitken, Cleveland, Evangelist; Mabel Mosher, Marion, Ind., children's specialist; Esther Mosher, Marion, Ind., pianist. Rev. W. H. Mosher. Meet with us again in the beautiful grove of native trees. Come praying, come believing. Welcome to all. Bring your song books. Dining room and dormitories on the ground at reasonable rates. Bring your own blankets. Plenty of good water from two wells. Mrs. Lizzie M'Burney, Sec'y., M. L. Newton, Pres.

REPORT FROM TIFTON, GA.

From May 29th to June 15th inclusive, under auspices of The Evangelical Methodist League, using one of the League tents, a real earnest effort to have a revival in our town was engaged. God crowned the effort with victory. There were more than seventy saved at the altar of prayer and two were sanctified. A local unit of the above mentioned League was organized with more than fifty members and arrangements are being made for the erection of a tabernacle.

Cochran Brothers (John and Leonard) were the preachers, and Misses Morford and Quigg led the singing and conducted the children's services. The four are students from Asbury College. We people of Tifton consider them among the best and most effective revival workers. They have been invited to come next year and help us again.

George Baker.

TO THE PATRONS AND FRIENDS INTERESTED IN THE ROBERT CHUNG MISSIONARY MOVEMENT.

A recent letter from Robert recounts the splendid triumphs and achievements of this modern day apostle of missions. His own people are flocking in great numbers to hear his message of full salvation, which other missionaries contingent to his work there and know of the character of his work, are saying that he is delivering with great zeal and earnestness, so much so that literally thousands are being saved under his preaching.

He estimates that between the dates, Jan. 4th last and May 22nd, 5,900 people have been saved or sanctified. That many have come into a clear experience of saving grace in their hearts or have been baptized with the Holy Ghost. In a recent meeting at Wonsan, Korea, where is situated a Girls' High School, 300 high school girls found their way to Christ through repentance and faith in Jesus. He is preaching with old-time power and victory. He has the language of his people and that, together with the anointing of the Holy Spirit on his own soul, coupled with his own natural characteristic zeal, God is making him a mighty power in carrying the Gospel to the lost of his country.

The following is his own language with which he describes his last meeting: "About 1750 to 2000 came to meeting every night. Last night 3500 people were in the meeting. The large church was packed and they stood throughout the gate. It is the center of the Presbyterian Church. The Lord blessed us wonderfully. I cannot say the definite number saved throughout the meeting, the church was too narrow and too many people so failed to call out to the altar, but they knelt on the floor where they were. Every night for five nights the whole church was the altar, especially last night, the Lord sent down the fire and the people fell down and cried for mercy and many were saved.

Dear friends, here is a great opportunity to help this thoroughly worthy young missionary apostle. Place your money where it will count large in the kingdom. Numbers of you have been helping in this worthy enterprise. Will you not continue to help by sending in your tithes and offerings, and will not others who may read this opportunity who have not hitherto helped, give the widow's mite. All monies are transmitted to Robert intact and go at once to work for the perishing.

Prof. F. H. Larabee,
Wilmore, Ky.
Agent for Robert in this country.

A HAPPY AND SUCCESSFUL PASTORATE.

On April 30th, I closed a most happy and successful pastorate of five years in the Chester, W. Va., Church of the Nazarene. God gave us hundreds of souls at our altars during the five years of our pastorate there.

ASBURY THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

A faculty of nine trained and consecrated teachers, experienced in pastoral and evangelistic work. Nine departments. Certificate and Diploma Course for undergraduates. For graduate students a three-year course leading to B.D. degree.

H. C. MORRISON, D.D., President
For Information Write to
F. H. LARABEE, D.D., Dean.
WILMORE, KENTUCKY.

The Whole Bible for the Whole World

Forty-second Annual Session Michigan State Holiness Camp Meeting EATON RAPIDS, MICHIGAN July 29 to August 7, 1927

The Largest In the Middle West

Thirty acres of virgin forest, flowing river, one hundred cottages, fine auditoriums, comfortable home-like hotel accommodations, ample tenting privileges, offer a retreat of real value.

BISHOP THOMAS NICHOLSON, beloved by all Methodists everywhere.

DR. JOHN PAUL, President of Taylor University, eminent educator, preacher, and expositor.

DR. WILL HUFF, World Evangelist and Missionary and Camp Meeting Preacher.

DR. S. H. TURBEVILLE, Pastor-Evangelist from Oskaloosa, Iowa.

REV. ROCKWELL CLANCY, a Veteran Missionary from India.

REV. LLOYD NIXON, an ideal Song Leader.

REV. BLANCHE SHEPHERD FRANCIS, expert worker with Young People.

MR. HOWARD SKINNER, Pianist, an artist that excels.

Ten days of delightful fellowship, quiet rest, and spiritual refreshing await you.

Send for an ample supply of illustrated circulars.

Address the Secretary, REV. F. C. WHEELER, Charlotte, Mich.

REV. H. D. SKINNER, Acting President, Muskegon, Mich.

We more than doubled our church membership of that place. I never worked with a more loyal and willing people than the Chester folks. They stood by us through difficulties seen and unseen. The church building was reseated and relighted, and remodeled throughout, and the seating capacity increased to a hundred or more folks. We sang and shouted together. God gave us the hearts of the people. They prayed, boosted, walked the aisles, and took their liberty in Christ. Harmony existed, and there was a freedom in the atmosphere. To God be all the glory.

Brother Ward, former pastor of the Church of the Nazarene, East Palestine, Ohio, is getting on well and is winning the hearts of the people. On the closing night of our pastorate, when we preached our farewell sermon, it was more like a funeral than anything else. We had a hand-shaking time and the people wept, but we assured them that when we left God would still be with them, which is beautiful to think about. They had a farewell reception for us and between fifty and sixty people gathered in the parsonage to bid us adieu.

They presented us with a nice purse of money, and Brother and Sister Metts gave us a beautiful rocking chair.

We are now in our new field of labor getting on well. Springfield Heights Church of the Nazarene is made up mostly of young people. We have a fine crowd here, and they know how to take care of the pastor. We are now in the midst of a revival in our local church, and we believe that God is going to give us a great year. We have a fine, well organized Sunday school, with a band of well qualified teachers. We have talent in the church, and this is the home church of the Barnett Sisters. The youngest is seven years of age, and the eldest is quite fifteen, but they sing together; it is a fine quartet. Also we have a mixed quartet of young folks. We are going in for an old-fashioned blessing. We are located in the Akron Zone of the Nazarene churches. There is beautiful fellowship among the preachers of this zone.

Please remember this scribe at the throne of grace that God may use us to his glory.
B. H. Pocock.

NOT TO BE USED WITHOUT COPYRIGHT PERMISSION

OF ASBURY THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

Tent Workers of the Evangelical Methodist League

ASBURY GOSPEL TEAM.
Kirkpatrick, Jarrett, Moore, DuVal.
Lockport, N. Y., August 5-14.

BECK, A. S. AND R. S.
Columbia, Ky., July 18-Aug. 5.
Open dates, August 5 to last of October.

COCHRAN BROTHERS.
Omega, Ga., July 1-28.

CROSS, WALTER—LOFER, NORRIS.
Stratton, Miss., August 1-19.
Piedmont, Ala., Aug. 22-Sept. 4.

DORN, C. O.—SEAMONS, L. H.
Oswego, S. C., August 7-28.

DUNAWAY, C. M.
(216 N. Candler St., Decatur, Ga.)
Mt. Vernon, Ohio, August 4-14.

GRANT BROTHERS.
Birch Tree, Mo., August 1-16.
Thomassville, Mo., August 16-31.

HENDERSO, O. R.—ROTHWEILER, D. L.
Bison, Kan., August 4-14.
Nekoma, Kan., August 16-31.

HOTCHKISS, ROY L.
Montevideo, Minn., July 19-Aug. 7.
Winthrop, Minn., Aug. 9-25.
Hull, Iowa, August 30-Sept. 11.

HOWARD, FIELDING T.
(Wilmore, Ky.)
Milton, Ky., August 5-14.
Tolu, Ky., August 18-28.

HUTCHERSON, FIELDS AND HILKER.
(Tent Workers)
Meetses, Wyo., August 1-21.
Grass Creek, Wyo., August 22-25.

HYSELL, HARVEY B.
(Box 1235, Charleston, W. Va.)
Bowersville, Ohio, August 4-14.
Mt. Nebo, W. Va., Aug. 17-31.

JOHNSON, RAY N.
McLure, Ohio, July 25-Aug. 7.

KEYS EVANGELISTIC PARTY.
(Mohnton, Pa.)
Lewistown, Pa., August 2-14.
Eccles, W. Va., Aug. 18-Sept. 4.
Chillicothe, Ohio, Sept. 11-Oct. 2.

LAMBERT, B. D.
Eagle Rock, Va., July 17-Aug. 7.
Oil City, Pa., August 14-Sept. 3.

LAMP, W. E.
(Wilmore, Ky.)
Louisville, Ill., July 1-Aug. 4.
Shumway, Ill., August 6-26.

LEWIS, J. H.
Flushing, Ohio, July 26-Aug. 7.
Jerusalem, Ohio, Aug. 11-21.

MOORE, W. BRADY—MOORE, C. C.—BOOKER, HORACE.
Brilliant, Ohio, July 21-August 3.

PARKER, J. R.
(Wilmore, Ky.)
Open date, July 25-Aug. 11.
Berry, Ky., August 15-28.

POWELL, JAMES L.
Corydon, Ky., July 31-Aug. 14.
Open date, Aug. 18-28.

ROBERTS, BYRON F.
Dayton, Ohio, July 28-Aug. 21.
Jamestown, Ohio, Aug. 24-Sept. 11.

SMITH AND McCLURE.
Open date, July 31-August 21.
Richmond, Ill., Aug. 21-Sept. 11.

WILLIS, F. B.
(Bayard, Ohio)
Colon, Mich., July 13-Aug. 1.
Scotts, Mich., August 3-14.

EVANGELISTS' SLATES

ALBRIGHT, TILLIE.
Moers, New York, July 24-Aug. 14.
Richland, N. Y., Aug. 21-Sept. 5.

ANDERSON, T. M.
Sharon Center, Ohio, July 28-Aug. 7.
Frankfort, Ind., Aug. 5-14.
Wichita, Kan., August 15-28.
Winchester, Ind., Sept. 1-11.

ARTHUR, FRANK E.
Gladwin, Mich., July 21-31.
Conneautville, Pa., Aug. 4-14.
Huntington, W. Va., Aug. 17-Sept. 4.

AYCOCK, JARRETTE AND DELL.
(2923 Troost Ave., Kansas City, Mo.)
Nampa, Idaho, August 4-14.
Kearney, Neb., August 19-28.

BABCOCK, C. H.
Hollow Rock, Toronto, O. July 28-Aug. 7.
Wakefield, Va., August 5-15.
Wichita, Kan., August 15-28.
Blackwell, Okla., Aug. 29-Sept. 4.
Thomas, Okla., Sept. 15-25.

BELEV, P. P.
(1529 N. Nelson St., Marion, Ind.)
Franklin, Ind., July 15-31.

BENNARD, GEO.
Meaford, Ontario, Can., July 20-31.
Romeo, Mich., Aug. 4-14.

BENNETT, W. G.
Manchester, O., Aug. 10-Sept. 1.

BONINE, GRACE O.—RIGGS, HELEN G.
Vandalia, Mich., August 17-28.

BRENNEMAN, A. P. AND MRS.
Seymour, Mo., August 4-14.
Ava, Mo., August 24-Sept. 4.

BREWER, GRADY.
(High Falls, S. C.)
Open date, Sept. 19-Oct. 21.

BROWNING, RAYMOND.
Columbus, Ohio, July 28-Aug. 7.
New Albany, Ind., August 8-14.
Aspen Hill, Tenn., Aug. 21-Sept. 5.

BUDMAN, ALMA L.
(Song Evangelist)
(101 Carpenter St., Muney, Pa.)
Linden Hall, Pa., August 6-20.

BURNETT, W. EVANS.
(Lake Charles, La.)
Open dates for July and August.
Alexandria, La., June 17-25.

CALLIS, O. H.
Hartsell, Ala., August 4-14.
Kincaid, W. Va., Aug. 19-29.
London, Ky., Aug. 31-Sept. 4.

CANADAY, FRED.
(1515 Killingsworth Ave., Portland, Ore.)
Mt. Vernon, Va., July 28-Aug. 7.
Spotsylvania, Va., Aug. 19-28.

CAIN, W. R.
(515 So. Vine St., Wichita, Kan.)
St. Croix Falls, Wis., July 28-Aug. 7.
Wichita, Kan., August 18-28.

CAROTHERS, J. L. AND SADIE.
Tacoma, Wash., August 1-14.
Nezperce, Idaho, August 17-31.

CHATFIELD, C. C. AND FLORA.
(410 E. Carl St., Winchester, Ind.)
Warsaw, Ohio, July 28-August 7.
Radcliff, Iowa, August 14-28.
Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 29-Sept. 11.
Durand, Mich., Sept. 11-Oct. 2.
Ellet, Ohio, Oct. 3-16.

CLARKE, C. S.
(808 N. Ash, Guthrie, Okla.)
Guthrie, Okla., July 31-Aug. 21.

COLEMAN, PAUL.
(1620 Fairfax Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio.)
Frankfort, Ind., August 8-14.
Springfield, Ohio, August 12-24.

COLLIER, J. A.
(197 Cephas Ave., Nashville, Tenn.)
Providence, Ky., July 10-Aug. 7.

COMER, G. P.
(Stanford, Ky.)
Corydon, Ky., July 31-Aug. 14.
Page, W. Va., August 18-28.

COPELAND, H. E.
(Oskaloosa, Iowa)
Thomas, S. Dak., July 24-Aug. 14.

COX, F. W. AND WIFE.
Crawfordsville, Ore., (Wesleyan Church)
July 20-Aug. 7.

DECKER, WALTER REED.
(Song Evangelist)
(124 Gould St., Corry, Pa.)
Open dates for Fall and Winter.

DICKERSON, H. N.
(2908 Newman St., Ashland, Ky.)
Kirk, Colo., August 18-28.

DYE, CHARLES.
(430 Williams St., Troy, Ohio)
Fisher, Ky., July 24-Aug. 7.
Selma, Ind., August 11-28.
Toledo, Ohio, Sept. 4-18.

ELSNER, THEO AND WIFE.
(451 Pacific St., Brooklyn, N. Y.)
Wilmington, Mass., Aug. 5-14.
Delanco, N. J., August 26-Sept. 5.
Anderson, Ind., Oct. 2-16.

FLEMING, JOHN.
N. Little Rock, Ark., July 29-Aug. 8.
National Park Camp, New Jersey, Aug. 19-21.
Denver, Colo., Sept. 11-25.

FLEMING, BONA.
Little Rock, Ark., July 29-Aug. 7.
National Park, N. J., August 12-21.
Ingersoll, Okla., Aug. 26-Sept. 4.

FLEXON, R. S.
(Shacklefords, Va.)
Clinton, Pa., August 5-14.
Glassboro, N. J., August 15-21.
Delanco, N. J., Aug. 17-Sept. 5.

FUGETT, C. B.
(2818 Holt St., Ashland, Ky.)
Halltown, Mo., July 24-Aug. 7.
Normal, Ill., August 19-28.
Cape May, N. J., Sept. 9-17.

GADDIS, TILDEN H.
(4805 Ravenna St., Cincinnati, Ohio)
Oregon, Wis., July 31-Aug. 14.
Charleston, Ill., August 19-28.
Mulberry, Ohio, Sept. 2-18.

GALLOWAY, H. W.
(University Park, Iowa)
Waco, Tex., July 29-August 7.

GANN, J. A.
(Town Creek, Ala.)
Shackleford, Ala., August 11-20.
Sanderson's Chapel, Ala., Aug. 21-28.
Open dates: September.

GEIL, PAUL AND DORA.
(Frankfort, Ind.)
(Singers and Xylophone Players)
Lafayette, Ind., August 7-28.
Crawfordsville, Ind., Sept. 7-11.
Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 16-Nov. 6.
Brazil, Ind., Nov. 13-27.
Anamosa, Iowa, Dec. 1-30.

GLEASON, RUFUS H.
(Central, S. C.)
Jonesboro, Ind., (tent) July 26-Aug. 14.
Charles City, Ia., August 15-28.

GLENN, REV AND MRS. J. M.
Chatam, Ala., July 24-Aug. 7.
Indian Springs, Ga., Aug. 11-21.
Eastman, Ga., Sept. 4-18.

GREEN, JIM H.
(Box 200, Connelly Springs, N. C.)
Connelly Springs, N. C., Aug. 7-15.

GROGG, W. A.
(Ronceverte, W. Va.)
Mt. Lake Park, Md., July 26-Aug. 4.
Pinch, W. Va., August 20-Sept. 3.

GROSE, JOHN A.
(Shepherdstown, W. Va.)
Front Royal, Va., Aug. 28-Sept. 11.

HALLMAN, W. A. AND WIFE.
Elkhart, Ind., August 4-14.
Lincoln, Nebr., August 19-29.

HARRIS, B. F.
Dillard, Okla., Aug. 1-14.
Riley, Kan., Aug. 17-Sept. 4.

HEWSON, JOHN E.
(127 N. Chester Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.)
Sherratt, Ill., Aug. 1-14.
Portage, Ohio, Aug. 18-28.

HOLLENBACK, ORAL T.
Norristown, Pa., Oct. 2-16.

HORN, LUTHER A.—MARSHALL, R. P.
Box 1322, Mobile, Ala.)
Suggsville, Ala., July 31-Aug. 12.
Clear Springs, Ala., Aug. 14-28.
Louisville, Ala., Sept. 1-14.
Open date, Sept. 18-30.

HULSE, AARON.
Letona, Okla., Aug. 9-28.
Bradford, Ark., Sept. 2-25.
Nashville, Kan., Oct. 2-16.

HUNT, JOHN J.
(Media, Pa., Rt. 3.)
Rosslyn, Va., July 28-Aug. 8.
Wilkinsburg, Pa., Sept. 16-25.

IRICK, ALLIE AND EMMA.
(Bethany, Okla.)
Cambria, Ill., August 4-14.
Bonnie, Ill., August 19-29.
Millport, Ala., Aug. 31-Sept. 12.
Thomas, Okla., Sept. 18-28.

JOHNSON, ANDREW.
Eldorado, Ill., August 4-14.
Campbellsville, Ky., Aug. 12-22.
Junaluska, N. C., Aug. 24-26.
London, Ky., (Conf.) Sept. 1-5.

JONES, LYMAN.
(North Kingsville, Ohio)
Brookhead, Ky., July 17-August 21.
Open dates.

JONES, LUM.
(630 W. 9th St., Ada, Okla.)
Peniel, Tex., August 4-14.
Shawnee, Okla., August 15-28.
Britton, Okla., Sept. 4-18.

KEEL, MRS. S. A.
Menomonie, Wis., August 4-25.

KENNEDY, ROBERT J.
(Singer)
Paris, Tenn., Sept. 4-25.
Ft. Worth, Tex., Oct. 2-23.

KINSEY, W. C. AND WIFE.
(452 So. West 2nd St., Richmond, Ind.)
(Song Leader, Singers, Pianist)
Campbellsville, Ky., Aug. 12-21.

KINSEY FRANK E.
(1220 Tecumseh St., Indianapolis, Ind.)
Birds, Ill., July 31-Aug. 21.
Urbana, Ill., Aug. 24-29.

LILLENAS, HALDOR AND BERTHA.
Sherman, Ill., August 4-14.
Connersville, Ind., Oct. 2-16.

LINN, REV. AND MRS. JACK—QUINN, IMOGENE.
(Oregon, Wis.)
Oregon, Wis., July 29-August 14.
Sanford, Ind., August 18-28.
Louisville, Tenn., Sept. 1-11.
Knoxville, Tenn., Sept. 18-25.

LITTRELL, V. W. AND MARGUERITE.
(1214 Scott St., Beatrice, Neb.)
Urichsville, Ohio, July 22-Aug. 7.
Chariton, Ia., Aug. 14-28.

LOVELESS, W. W.
(London, Ohio.)
Des Arc, Mo., Aug. 13-28.

LUDWIG, THEODORE AND MINNIE.
(772 N. Euclid Ave., St. Louis, Mo.)
Hector, Minn., July 26-Aug. 7.
Nokomis, Ill., Aug. 9-21.

MCBRIDE, J. B.
(112 Arlington Drive, Pasadena, Calif.)
Hollis, Okla., July 27-Aug. 7.
Noonday, Tex., August 11-21.
Oakland City, Ind., Aug. 25-Sept. 4.

MCWHIE, ANNA E.
Sharon Center, Ohio, July 28-Aug. 4.
Mt. Vernon, O., Aug. 4-14.

MCCORD, W. W.
(Sale City, Ga.)
Sale City, Ga., August 11-21.

MCCNEESE, HERBERT J.
(New Brighton, Pa., 634 13th Ave.)
Open dates, July and August.

MAXWELL, PROF. S. A.
(Graham, N. C.)
Open dates, August.

MILLER, REV. AND MRS. F. E.
(Lowell, N. Y.)
Moers, N. Y., July 30-Aug. 14.
Richland, N. Y., August 21-Sept. 5.

MILLER, JULIUS.
(Mattoon, Wis.)
Ortonville, Minn., July 26-Aug. 7.
Jamestown, N. Dak., Aug. 10-14.

MILLER, JAMES.
(1249 N. Holme Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.)
Hope, Mich., July 31-Aug. 14.

MINGLEDORFF, O. G.
(Blackshear, Ga.)
Orlando, Fla., Aug. 25-Sept. 5.

MONK, ALONZO, JR.
Winslow, Ark., July 26-Sept. 1.
Paris, Tenn., Sept. 3-24.
October, November, December open.

MORGAN, R. L.
(Olivet, Ill.)
Milwaukee, Wis., July 27-Aug. 14.

MORRIS, (JUDGE) FRANK.
(P. O. Box 1523, Dallas, Tex.)
Aspermont, Tex., August 7.
Hagerman, N. Mex., Aug. 28.
Alamogordo, N. Mex., Sept. 11.
Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 2.

NELSON, S. S.
(832 Worth Ave., Greensboro, N. C.)
Bloxom, Va., (camp) Aug. 5-14.
Hillsboro, N. C., Aug. 26-Sept. 4.
Organ Cave, W. Va., Oct. 1-10.
Ranceverte, W. Va., Oct. 12-25.

NORRIS, JOHN.
Drainsville, Va., August 17-28.
Ocean Grove, N. J., Aug. 29-Sept. 3.

OWEN, G. F. AND BYRDIE.
(1415 West Pikes Peak Ave., Colorado Springs, Colo.)
Open date, August 12-21.
Bath, Maine, Aug. 28-Sept. 12.
South Portland, Maine, Sept. 18-Oct. 2.

OWEN, JOHN F.
(Taylor University, Upland, Ind.)
Mt. Vernon, Ohio, August 4-14.
Alexandria, Ind., August 15-21.
Tarrant, Ala., Aug. 28-Sept. 11.

POLLOCK, G. S. AND WIFE.
(Wilmore, Ky.)
Eldorado, Ill., August 4-14.

POLLITT, S. H.
Orangeburg, Ky., August 1-14.
Wagoner's Chapel, Ky., August 15-25.

QUAKER QUARTETTE OF OHIO YEAR-LY MEETING.
Mt. Gilead, Ohio, July 29-Aug. 7.
Ypsilanti, Mich., August 12-21.
Damascus, Ohio, Aug. 23-28.

REDMON, J. E. AND ADA.
California, Ky., August 19-28.

REED, LAWRENCE.
(Damascus, Ohio)
Albany, N. Y., July 31-Aug. 14.
Richland, N. Y., August 21-Sept. 5.
Cumberland, Md., Sept. 10-20.

REES, PAUL S.
(Pasadena, Calif.)
New Albany, Ind., August 4-14.
Cherry Grove, Ind., August 15-19.

REID, JAMES V.
(2912 Meadowbrook Drive, Ft. Worth, Tex.)
Magnolia, Ark., August 4-14.
Lake Junaluska, N. C., August 21-26.
Utica, Miss., Aug. 28-Sept. 8.

RICE, LEWIS J. AND EDYTHE.
(2023 Troost Ave., Kansas City, Mo.)
Kingston, Okla., August 4-21.

RINEBARGER, C. C.
(Olivet, Ill.)
North Little Rock, Ark., July 28-Aug. 7.
Ramsey, Ind., August 12-22.
Oakland City, Ind., Aug. 26-Sept. 4.

ROMINE, JOHN A.
Poplar Springs, Ark., July 27-Aug. 6.
Mt. Mariah, Ala., Aug. 6-16.
Sanderson's Chapel, Ala., Aug. 17-25.
Chalybeate Springs, Ala., Aug. 26-Sept. 2.

ROBERTS, T. P.
Campbellsville, Ill., August 18-25.
Circleville, Ohio, Aug. 26-Sept. 4.

ROOD, PERRY R.
(2838 Overlook Drive, Huntington, W. Va.)
West Liberty, Ohio, Dec. 2-Jan. 7.

RUTH, C. W.
(1933 Nowland Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.)
Gaines, Mich., August 28-Sept. 4.
Stayner, Ont., Can., Rt. 3, Sept. 18-28.
Danville, Ill., Oct. 6-16.

SANFORD, E. L. AND WIFE.
(20 Englem Ave., Lexington, Ky.)
Bethel Ridge, Ky., July 31-Aug. 21.

SHANK, MR. AND MRS. R. A.
Romeo, Mich., August 5-14.
Kampsville, Ill., Aug. 8-18.

ST. CLAIR, FRED.
(244 Bowditch St., Berkeley, Calif.)
Portland, Oregon, July 31-August 28.
LaGrande, Ore., Sept. 4-Oct. 2.
Spokane, Wash., Oct. 9-Nov. 6.

SHARROW, C. E. AND NEVA B.
(Wren, Ohio)
Open date, August.

SHELHAMER, E. E.
(5419 Bushnell Way, Los Angeles, Calif.)
Owasso, Mich., Aug. 4-14.
Wichita, Kan., Aug. 18-28.
Binghamton, N. Y., Sept. 25-Oct. 9.
Allentown, Pa., Oct. 16-30.

SWEETEN, H. W.
Toronto, O., July 28-Aug. 8.
Circleville, Ohio, Aug. 26-Sept. 5.

TEETS, ODA B.
(Aurora, W. Va.)
Odessa, W. Va., July 31-Aug. 14.
Mt. Nebo, W. Va., Aug. 17-31.

THOMAS, JOHN.
(Wilmore, Ky.)
Moers, N. Y., August 1-14.
Clarksburg, Cat. Can., Sept. 9-18.

VANDALL, N. B.
Findlay, Ohio, Aug. 11-21.
Mt. Lookout, Ohio, Aug. 25-Sept. 4.
Rochester, Pa., Sept. 8-18.

VAYHINGER, M.
Letts, Ind., July 29-August 7.
Bryantburg, Ind., Aug. 19-28.
Nashville, Ind., July 6-17.

WATTS, E. E.
(Sandy Lake, Pa.)
Belle Plaine, Iowa, July 19-Aug. 7.
Open date, August 9-31.
Hadley, N. Y., Sept. 4-25.
Corinth, N. Y., Sept. 27-Oct. 10.

WELLS, KENNETH AND EUNICE.
Hollow Rock, Toronto, O., July 28-August 7.
Conneautville, Pa., August 8-14.
Hopkins, Mich., August 18-28.

WHITAKER, J. H.
(Box 385, Arlington, Tex.)
Van Alstyne, Tex., July 22-31.
Iredell, Tex., Aug. 10-30.

WHITEHURST, R. F.
(Wilmore, Ky.)
New York District Nazarene Church,
June and July.
Magnolia, Ark., August 4-14.

WILLIAMS, L. E.
(Wilmore, Ky.)
Robinson, Maine, August 5-15.
Open date, Aug. 19-Sept. 4.

WIMBERLY, C. F.
Wilmore, Ky., July 31-Aug. 5.
Eldorado, Ill., Aug. 5-15.
Ringgold, La., August 16-28.

WINLAND, C. B.
Peoli, Ohio, Aug. 14-28.
Layland, Ohio, August 31-Sept. 14.
Athens, Ohio, Sept. 18-Oct. 2.

WIREMAN, C. L.
(7276 Scott St., Covington, Ky.)
Wilson Run, Ohio, July 29-Aug. 14.
Rising Sun, Ind., Sept. 7-18.
Open date, August 15-28.
Kingswood, Ky., Aug. 30-Sept. 6.
Burlington, Ky., Sept. 20-Oct. 2.

YOUNG, ALVIN.
Portsmouth, R. I., Aug. 1-7.
Glassboro, N. J., Aug. 11-21.
Binghamton, N. Y., Aug. 22-28.

YOUNG, R. A.
Bowenville, O., Aug. 4-14.
Waynesboro, Miss., Aug. 19-28.

CAMP MEETING CALENDAR.

ALABAMA.
Hartselle, Ala., August 4-14. Workers: Revs. O. H. Callis, Joseph Owen and Harry Blackburn. L. O. Waldsmith, Sec.

ARKANSAS.
Beebe, Ark., camp, August 11-22. Workers: Rev. Josiah Tucker, Willard B. Davis, song leader. Write Mrs. Callie Harrison, Sec., P. O. Box 12, Beebe, Ark.

Batesville, Ark., camp, August 11-21. Workers: Rev. Mrs. Gussie Morris Gill, Rev. J. J. Douglas and wife. For information write E. A. Mashburn, Cor. Sec.

COLORADO.
Yuma, Colo., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Rev. L. N. Fogg, H. N. Dickinson. Mrs. J. Hester Peck, song leader. For information write E. O. Walden, Yuma, Colo.

GEORGIA.
Indian Springs, Ga., camp, Aug. 11-21. Workers: Rev. H. C. Morrison, Rev. J. L. Brasher, Rev. C. W. Butler. Young People's worker, Mrs. Jere M. Glenn. Director of music, Mr. Hamp Sewell. Address R. F. Burdew, Macon, Ga.

Sale City, Ga., camp, August 11-21. Workers: Rev. Chas. A. Gibson, Rev. O. J. Nease, Song leader, Rev. Frank Watkins, Musician, Mrs. Frank Watkins. Special singers, The Vaughn Radio Quartette. W. W. McCord, President.

IDAHO.
Nampa, Idaho, camp, August 4-14. Workers: Rev. Bud Robinson, Revs. Jarrette and Del Aycock and daughter. For information write A. E. Sanner, Chair, 14th and 12th, Nampa, Idaho.

ILLINOIS.
Hillcrest, Ill., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Rev. E. E. Montgomery, Rev. T. P. Roberts, Prof. and Mrs. R. A. Shank in charge of singing. Children, Chas. F. Benz, Sec., Kampsville, Ill.

Charleston, Ill., camp, Aug. 19-28. Workers: Rev. T. H. Gaddis and the Moser Sisters, assisted by district preachers. Rev. Chas. Slater will represent missions. Correspond with Rev. W. M. Hall, Charleston, Ill.

Cambria, Ill., camp, August 4-14. Workers: Rev. Allie Irick and wife, Mrs. Emma Irick, Rev. Elmer McKay, Rev. J. R. Moore in charge of the singing. The Girls' Quartette, of Taylor University will also be in attendance. Dr. John Paul will be with us for at least one service. A. C. Wolfe, Sec., Carterville, Ill., Route 1.

Bonnie, Ill., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Revs. Allie and Emma Irick, Rev. Elmer McKay, Prof. John E. Moore. W. T. Lawson, Cor. Sec., Benton, Ill.

Greenville, Ill., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Bishop Joseph F. Berry, Rev. Guy Wilson, The Prestons, song leaders. A. B. Plog, Cor. Sec'y.

Normal, Ill., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Rev. Harry W. Morrow, Rev. C. B. Pugett, Rev. Harold Johnson, song leader. Rev. Della B. Stretch, children's worker. Address Mrs. Beulah Ashbrook, Sec., 45 West Alton St., Springfield, Ill.

Sherman, Ill., camp, August 4-14. Workers: Rev. A. L. Whitcomb, Rev. J. E. Hewson, Haldor Lillenas and wife, song leaders; Mrs. Della B. Stretch, children's worker. For information write Mrs. Julia Short Hayes, 2217 East Capitol Ave., Springfield, Ill.

Eldorado, Ill., camp, August 4-14. Workers: Dr. C. F. Wimberly, Dr. Andrew Johnson, Rev. G. S. Pollock and wife in charge of the music. J. M. Keasler, Sec., Omaha, Ill.

INDIANA.
Ramsey, Ind., Aug. 18-21. Workers: M. G. Stanley, J. B. Keifel; Mrs. J. C. Gray, children's worker; C. C. Rinebarger and wife, leaders in song. Address Geo. F. Plante, Sec., Ramsey, Ind.

Centerville, Ind., camp, July 31-Aug. 19. Workers: G. M. Rainey, A. M. Moorehead. Address Mrs. Bessie Cleveland, Sec., Centerville, Ind., P. O. D.

Bryantsburg, Ind., camp, August 10-28. Workers: Rev. Monroe Vayhinger, The Payne Evangelistic Party, consisting of Slater Fannie Payne, Miss Bertha Pultz, Miss Ruth Cooper. For information write Chas. E. Cleek, Madison, Ind., Rt. 9.

Frankfort, Ind., camp, August 5-14. Workers: Rev. T. M. Anderson, Rev. G. Arnold Hodgkin, Rev. J. C. Brillhart, song evangelist, Rev. C. C. Mourer, special musician. For full particulars write Rev. D. E. Snow, Sec., 123 W. 24th St., Anderson, Ind.

Letts, Ind., camp, July 29-August 7. Workers: M. Vayhinger, Dwight M. Peffley, song evangelist, Mrs. Lena Holcomb, pianist. Address Rev. Arthur McQueen, Pres., Westport, Ind.

New Albany, Ind., Silver Heights, Aug. 4-14. Workers: Revs. Virgil L. Moore and Raymond Browning, Paul S. Rees. Mrs. T. E. Talbot, children's worker. Male Quartet of Ashbury College in charge of music. Address E. B. McPheeters, Sec., 212 Cherry St., New Albany, Ind.

Cleveland, Ind., camp, August 26-Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. John T. Hatfield, Rev. G. Arnold Hodgkin, Wright Brothers, Song leaders, Miss Florence Wyse, pianist. For information write E. E. Ellsworth, Sec., Greenfield, Ind., Rt. 3.

Oakland City, Ind., camp, August 26-Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. J. B. McBride, Rev. Ira Aykers, Rev. C. C. Rinebarger and wife, song evangelists. Write Mrs. Warrick Yeager, Sec., 518 S. Hall St., Princeton, Ind.

KANSAS.
Wichita, Kan., camp, Aug. 18-28. Workers: Rev. Chas. H. Babcock, Rev. E. E. Shelhamer, Rev. T. M. Anderson, Mrs. Ernest D. Bartlett, Harold Chapman and Prof. B. D. Sutton and wife. Address W. R. Cain, Sec., 515 So. Vine St., Wichita, Kan.

Haviland, Kan., camp, August 31-Sept. 11. Workers: Rev. A. E. Lacour, Rev. H. C. Craven, singer. Write A. L. Bevan, Secretary.

KENTUCKY.
Lawson, Ky., camp, Aug. 21-31. Workers: Rev. W. B. Weaver, Rev. Russel Patton, Rev. C. R. Vincent. Music in charge of the Mt. Carmel Quartet. Address Miss Mary Vandiver, Sec., Lawson, Ky.

Carthage, Ky., camp, Aug. 19-28. Workers: Rev. I. Reddie Thomas, J. E. and Ada Redmon. For information address, J. R. Moore, Pres., California, Ky., R.F.D. No. 1. Rawlins, Sec., Bradfordsville, Ky.

Acton, Ky., camp, August 12-20. Workers: Rev. Andrew Johnson. Prof. W. C. Eads, Sec.

Wilmore, Ky., camp, July 28-Aug. 7. Workers: Rev. C. F. Wimberly, Rev. J. L. Brasher and H. S. Blackburn. Rev. H. C. Morrison, Pres., will preach also. Address C. A. Lovejoy, Sec., Wilmore, Ky.

Callis Grove, Ky., camp, August 5-14. Workers: Rev. F. C. F. Howard, J. D. Dotthay Buyett, song leader, Miss Ethel Sageser, pianist. I. H. Driskell, Sec., Milton, Ky., Route 3.

Tolu, Ky., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Rev. Fielding T. Howard, Charles I. Lear, leader of song. Write J. W. Napier, Tolu, Ky.

MAINE.
Robinson, Maine, camp, August 5-14. Workers: Evangelist Life B. Williams, assisted by local help. For information write Rev. P. J. Trofion, Pres. and Sec., 341 Union St., St. Johns, N. B., Can.

MARYLAND.
North East, Md., camp, August 5-14. Workers: Rev. J. B. Chapman, Rev. B. F. Neely and daughters. Miss Christine Williams, children's worker. Information from Rev. J. N. Nielson, Bus. Mgr., 212 Parker Ave., Collingdale, Pa.

MICHIGAN.
Hopkins, Mich., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Rev. N. P. Poole, Dr. C. W. Butler, Dr. G. Arnold Hodgkin. Mrs. Fred DeWeerd, leader of young people. Prof. Kenneth Wells in charge of music; Miss Lillian Scott, pianist. Write Dr. L. E. Hensley, Sec., Rt. 9, Grand Rapids, Mich.

Gainess, Mich., camp, August 26-Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. C. W. Ruff, Dr. J. C. Morrison, Rev. H. L. Cox, Rev. C. W. Butler, Miss Esther Williamson. Secretary, Mrs. Grace Millard, 614 W. Michigan Ave., East Lansing, Mich.

Hope Center, Mich., camp, July 31-Aug. 14. Workers: James Mear, Paul White. Write Ashby Mills, Sec., Hope, Mich.

Eaton Rapids, Mich., camp, July 29-Aug. 7. Workers: Dr. John Paul, Rev. Will Huff, Dr. S. H. Turbeville. Rev. L. H. Nixon in charge of music, with H. Moore Skinner at the piano. Mrs. Blanche Francis in charge of young people's work. For information write Miss Fern C. Wheeler, Sec., Charlotte, Mich.

Owosso, Mich., camp, August 5-14. Workers: Rev. Geo. B. Kulp, Rev. E. E. Shelhamer, L. W. Sturk, Sec., 1506 Bennett Ave., Flint, Mich.

Maybee, Mich., camp, August 11-21. Workers: Miss Edna Banning, J. C. Walker and wife, the Douglas Brothers, Rev. J. C. Palmer, Sec., 544 Thompson St., Ann Arbor, Mich.

Romeo, Mich., camp, August 5-14. Workers: George Bennard, Rev. C. W. Butler, Rev. Will Huff, and Rev. S. H. Turbeville. Mrs. W. I. Francis, Young People's worker. Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Shank, song leaders. E. L. Jaquish, Sec., R. F. D. 5, Pontiac, Mich.

MISSISSIPPI.
Frost Bridge, Miss., camp, August 19-28. Workers: Rev. R. A. Young and other helpers. Address Mrs. J. E. Moody, Sec., Waynesboro, Miss.

Cleveland, Miss., camp, August 11-22. Workers: Rev. E. B. McKee, E. E. McKee, Jr., song leader. Write Mrs. S. C. Taylor, Sec., 297 S. Court St., Cleveland, Miss.

MISSOURI.
Ava, Mo., camp, August 25-Sept. 4. Workers: A. P. Breneman and wife, C. E. Woodson and local assistants. For information write Mrs. Mattie Wallace, Ava, Mo., Route 1.

NEBRASKA.
Kearney, Neb., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Rev. E. O. Hobbs, Rev. Jarrette and Dell Aycock, Mrs. C. P. Turner. Address all communications to Mr. B. J. Patterson, Sec., Kearney, Neb.

NEW JERSEY.
Erma, N. J., camp, Sept. 9-18. Workers: Rev. C. B. Fugett, Rev. K. Hawley Jackson and wife. For information write Earl Woolson, Cape May, N. J., R.F.D.

Glassboro, N. J., camp, August 11-21. Workers: Rev. H. J. Olsen, R. G. Flexon, Alvin Young, W. M. Gallagher, 40 Myrtle Ave., Pitman, N. J.

National Park, N. J., camp, August 12-21. Workers: Rev. Bond Fleming, Rev. John Fleming, Mr. Burl P. Sparks, singer.

Fletcher Grove, Delanco, N. J., camp, August 27-Sept. 5. Workers: Rev. Theo. Elsner, Mrs. Theo. Elsner, Rev. Richard G. Flexon, Jr.

NEW YORK.
Moers, N. Y., camp, July 30-Aug. 14. Workers: Joseph H. Smith, J. F. Knapp, John and Emma Zabin, song leaders, Scobie, Tillie Albright, Arthur Goo, song leader. Address Kenneth F. Fee, Sec., Moers, N. Y.

NORTH CAROLINA.
Connelly Springs, N. C., camp, August 7-14. Workers: Rev. Joseph H. Smith, The Greensboro Bible School, Band and Quartet and other address. For information address Box 20, Connelly Springs, N. C.

OHIO.
Millersburg, Ohio, camp, August 18-29. Workers: F. Lincicome and daughters. For further information write Mrs. E. D. Hedington, Sec., Millersburg, Ohio, Rt. 7.

Unipolis, Ohio, camp, August 25-Sept. 4. Workers: L. S. Hoover, Rev. Herb Walker, Prof. N. E. Vandall has charge of the music. Address Geo. W. Watman, Unipolis, Ohio.

Napoleon, Ohio, camp, July 31-August 14. Workers: Miss Celis M. Bradshaw and Miss Helena Saneholtz. For information address Rev. R. W. Wolfe, Napoleon, Ohio.

Ludlow Falls, Ohio, camp, July 28-Aug. 7. Workers: Rev. H. M. Metger, Rev. J. A. Beery, Rev. S. M. Eldsht, Rev. J. L. Moore, song leader. Miss Edith Schrey, children's worker. Roy Harshbarger, Sec., West Milton, Ohio.

Portage, Ohio, camp, August 18-28. Workers: Geo. B. Kulp and John E. Hewson. Song leader, A. H. Johnston and wife. Address E. L. Day, Sec.

Findlay, Ohio, camp, August 11-21. Workers: C. H. Stalker, B. H. Haynie, Mrs. Aura Smith, W. B. Vandall, singer, Miss Florine Ewing, pianist. G. W. Egbert, Sec.

Mt. Vernon, Ohio, (Camp Sychar), camp, August 4-14. Workers: Rev. C. M. Dunaway, Rev. John Owen, Rev. E. Hilton Post, Song leader, Prof. W. B. Yates; Young people's worker, Miss Anna McChie. Children's workers, Miss May Gorsuch and Miss Ollie Tanner. Young people's song leader, Rev. W. L. Mullet. Address Rev. E. E. Shiltz, Sec., Shadyside, Ohio.

Toronto, (Hollow Rock) Ohio, July 28-Aug. 7. Workers: C. W. Ruth, C. H. Babcock, Howard Sweeten. Song leader, Prof. Kenneth Wells and wife. Young People's and Children's meeting leader, Mrs. Sadie Mishey. Address Roy L. Householder, Sec., Toronto, Ohio.

Circleville, Ohio, camp, August 26-Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. P. H. Roberts, Rev. Howard W. Sweeten, Rev. Charles L. Slater, Rev. E. A. Keaton, Cor. Sec., 481 N. High St., Chillicothe, Ohio.

Columbus, Ohio, camp, July 28-Aug. 7. Workers: Rev. Floyd N. Neese, Rev. Raymond Browning, Rev. F. M. Messenger, Rev. J. G. Morrison, Rev. and Mrs. B. D. Sutton, gospel singers. Rev. Chas. A. Gibson. Vaughn Radio Quartette. Write Rev. Orval J. Nease, 146 King Ave., Columbus, Ohio.

OKLAHOMA.
Blackwell, Okla., camp, August 25-Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. C. H. Babcock, Rev. Geo. Bennard and Willard Davis. Address Mrs. A. L. Wright, Sec., 307 E. College, Blackwell, Okla.

PENNSYLVANIA.
Conneautville, Pa., camp, August 5-14. Workers: Rev. J. L. Brasher, Thomas Henderson, Rev. J. Arthur, Prof. Kenneth Wells and wife, Emma Valentine. Address C. A. Lockwood, Cor. Sec., 2740 Louisiana Ave., (Darmont) Pittsburgh, Pa.

Clinton, Pa., camp, August 5-14. Workers: Rev. R. G. Flexon, Rev. David Wilson, Rev. J. M. Hampe, Rev. Geo. Cole, song leader, Chas. G. Clawson, children's meetings. Write Rev. L. W. King, Clinton, Pa.

RHODE ISLAND.
Portsmouth, R. I., camp, July 29-Aug. 7. Workers: Chas. H. Stalker, Winfred R. Cox, Alvin Young. For information address, Andrew B. Starbuck, Pres., Newport, R. I.

SOUTH CAROLINA.
Epworth, S. C., camp, August 19-28. Workers: Dr. E. P. Taylor, Dr. John Paul and others. Address Rev. W. P. B. Kinard, Epworth, S. C.

TENNESSEE.
Greenville, Tenn., camp, Sept. 1-11. Workers: Rev. C. M. Dunaway, Miss Ruth Harris in charge of music. Address Mrs. Flora Willis, care Mrs. C. A. Vann, Greenville, Tenn.

Dyer, Tenn., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Dr. A. O. Henricks, Rev. S. W. Strickland, Miss Ruth Harris, song leader. J. T. Hall, Sec., Dyer, Tenn.

Knoxville, Tenn., camp, August 3-11. Workers: Rev. H. Robb French and wife, Mrs. Golden Young. For information write Rev. Percy E. Bailly, 1018 E. Main Ave., Knoxville, Tenn.

TEXAS.
Noonday, Texas, camp, August 10-21. Workers: J. B. McBride, C. P. Gossett, song leader. F. E. Dickard, Sec., Hallsville, Tex.

Scottsville, Tex., camp, July 28-Aug. 7. Workers: Rev. Fred H. Ross, Rev. Warren C. McIntyre, Singer, C. P. Gossett. B. P. Wynne, Sec., Marshall, Tex.

Atlanta, Tex., camp, August 12-21. Workers: Dr. R. T. Williams, The Latham

Sisters, pianist and leaders of song. Mary J. Perdue, Sec.

Peniel, Tex., camp, August 4-14. Workers: Rev. Lum Jones, Rev. Kendall White and wife, song leaders. For information write E. C. DeJernett, Sec.

Waco, Texas, camp, July 29-August 7. Workers: Rev. Harry S. Allen. For information address Jno. W. Beresford, Sec., Waco, Texas.

VIRGINIA.
Spottsylvania, Va., camp, August 19-29. Workers: Rev. Fred Canaday, Rev. W. L. King, Rev. Bessie B. Larkin, Mrs. W. L. King and Mrs. G. B. King in charge of young people's work. Mrs. Merton Steelman and son, song leader. Address Mrs. B. K. Andrews, Sec., Spottsylvania, Va.

Mt. Vernon, Va., camp, July 29-Aug. 7. Workers: Rev. Wilson Thomas, Rev. C. W. Dyer, Rev. H. H. Hoyt and Fred Canaday. Address Annie Hosley Shrader, Sec., Accotink, Va.

Wakefield, Va., camp, August 5-14. Workers: Dr. C. H. Babcock, Rev. Harry Hayes, Otho M. Cockes, Pres., Elberon, Va.

Drainesville, Va., camp, August 19-28. Workers: Rev. John Norberry. Song leader, Mrs. Marion Birrell. For information address Anna L. Hyatt, Sec., 163 Adams St., N. W., Washington, D. C.

Salem, Va., camp, Sept. 9-19. Workers: Dr. J. W. Carter and Rev. O. H. Callis. For information write J. J. True, Pres., Salem, Va.

WISCONSIN.
Oregon, Wis., camp, July 29-August 14. Workers: Rev. Tilden H. Gaddis, Moser Sisters, Miss Imogene Quinn, Prof. Edson Crosby, Miss Karine Kjolseth, and Rev. and Mrs. Jack Linn. Address Jack Linn, Oregon, Wis.

Hillsboro, Wis., camp, August 10-22. Workers: Preston Kennedy, John B. Raymond Lewis with Bro. Eneyart song leaders. For information address May Markee, Hillsboro, Wis.

"WHY I LOVE JESUS"

—and—

"THE OLD CAMP MEETING"

(Melody—"When You and I Were Young, Maggie")

Both in one folder
Words and Music

One copy 15c; for 25c
Rev. Jarrette E. Aycock
Bethany, Okla.

DR. RIDOUT ON DRESS QUESTION.

At last the holiness people are going to have a real, outspoken, frank, powerful booklet on the Dress Question. Dr. Ridout has written it. Title is, "The Dress Question and Modern Abominations." Price will be 15c. Send in your order and read this book and get your friends to read it.

PENTECOSTAL PUBLISHING CO.
Louisville, Kentucky.

JUST OUT!!

"THE METHODIST CRISIS"

Dr. Ridout has put into pamphlet form under above title the story of the fight for orthodoxy which took place on the floor of the New Jersey Conference, Asbury Park, N. J., last March, in which he and Dr. H. P. Sloan and others debated with Bishop Anderson and Dr. H. H. Meyer, Sunday School Editor, the issues of Modernism within Methodism.

In addition to Dr. Ridout's story there is a fine write-up of the affair by Rev. H. Decker who was present at the debate and whose story appeared in the "Essentialist."

Let every Methodist send and get a copy of this booklet. Every Methodist minister—North and South—should read the story. It will stir your blood. It will show you how Modernism is getting a terrific grip on Methodist Bishops, Editors and Leaders. It will also show you your duty to stand up and show your colors in the hour of peril.

Dr. Sloan, Dr. Ridout and others take the fight for orthodoxy right into their Annual Conferences and it is there the battle should be fought out.

Price 15c, or 7 for $1.00.

PENTECOSTAL PUBLISHING CO.
Louisville, Kentucky.

James Hudson Taylor, founder of the China Inland Mission, the man who adopted as his motto, "To move man, through God, by prayer alone" probably did more for missions in China than any other one man. Re: the remarkable story of his life in "James Hudson Taylor," by G. G. Hunnax. It sells for 75c, but is worth twice that amount. Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky.

THE FIGHT IS ON

The fight against sin and for holiness.
 The fight against impurity and for purity.
 The fight against worldliness in the church and for a holy people.
 The fight against immodest dress and for a modest womanhood.
 The fight against those who would destroy the Bible, and for the Word.
 The fight against Sabbath desecration and for Sabbath observance.
 The fight against lawlessness, and for obedience to the law.
 The fight against trashy literature and for wholesome literature.
 The fight against indifference and for a revival.

THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD IS IN THIS GREAT BATTLE FOR RIGHTEOUSNESS.

and the only way for us to make the fight effective in your community is for you to help us by placing it into every home possible. You will be pleased to know that you can send THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD from now until January 1, 1928, for only 50c, and if we may have your co-operation, you will be instrumental in making this fight effective in your community.

Allow us to suggest that you tell every one you come in contact with what THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD is fighting for, and tell them of this special introductory offer. Also speak to one or more financially able and liberal persons, tell them what you are trying to do, and ask for their co-operation in putting the paper into a number of homes. Then, too, you will find a number of people who tithe who will be glad to invest a little tithe money in a fight of this kind.

Use the blanks below and send in your list within the next few days, so as to give the subscribers the benefit of the full 25 weeks.

Pentecostal Publishing Company, Louisville, Kentucky.

Enclosed find $..... for which please send The Pentecostal Herald weekly from now until January, 1928, to the following:

Name	Name
Address	Address
Name	Name
Address	Address
Name	Name
Address	Address
Name	Name
Address	Address
Name	Name
Address	Address

PENTECOSTAL HERALD

Dr. H. C. Morrison, Editor
Mrs. H. C. Morrison, Associate Editor

Louisville, Ky., Wednesday, Aug. 10, 1927.
Entered at Louisville, Ky., Postoffice as Second Class Matter.

$1.50 Per Year.
Vol. 39, No. 32.

Do Not Let the Enemy Choose Your Weapons.

By The Editor.

JUST before the breaking out of the Civil War, a prominent southerner was making a speech to a gathering of his fellow citizens in Georgia. The tide of strife and bitterness was running high. The orators of the North were telling their hearers that the South could be "soundly thrashed within six weeks," and the southern orators were assuring their enthusiastic listeners that "one southerner could whip ten Yankees."

It was under the inspiration of these influences and conditions that our orator down in Georgia said: "Why, boys, we can whip the Yankees with cornstalks." Said orator went to the front and fought bravely through the war, and at its close came home a celebrated general having won many honors by his indomitable courage on many a hard-fought battlefield. He was soon a candidate for office and speaking to the multitudes who gathered with great interest to hear him. At a pause in his speech, some one in the audience cried out: "General, we have not forgotten that you said, 'we can whip the Yankees with cornstalks,' what about that?" Instantly the general replied: "We could have whipped the Yankees with cornstalks, but they would not fight that way."

When we come to think of it, it would certainly be poor tactics to fight a strong enemy with cornstalks when long-range, repeating rifles are at hand, with plenty of smokeless ammunition. It is a safe proposition that in going to war we should never let our enemy choose our weapons. This policy will hold good in religious discussion. It will be wise not to let your opponents choose your arguments or suggest to you the words, phrases, or line of argument you set up in debate in your effort to establish your position or carry your point.

And this prepares the way for me to say, there are those who are not friendly to the doctrine of entire sanctification as taught by the fathers and founders of Methodism, and in the standard doctrines of said church for the past century and a half. Of late we have noticed that they would like to force the advocates of this great Bible doctrine and Christian experience into the exclusive use of the term "second blessing." It is so easy for the opposers to say: "I do not believe in the 'second blessing.' I have had a thousand blessings and expect to get many more." And in this off-hand manner they propose to dismiss a serious and important subject as if it were unworthy of further attention.

Let it be understood that we find no fault with Mr. Wesley for his use of the term "second blessing." There is a "second blessing" properly so-called. Regeneration is a very definite experience in the history of a soul. It brings one into newness of life, and in this life there are many blessings, heart warmings, times of refreshing, occasions of uplift—this is quite well understood; but none of these is that great epoch in the history of a Christian soul when it is cleansed from all remaining sin and filled with the Holy Ghost. This is something new, definite, and radical in the history of a soul. When Mr. Wesley used the term "second blessing," he did not for a moment think to propagate the notion that there are only two blessings in a man's spiritual history; but he was calling attention to the fact that subsequent to regeneration there is a definite, clear-cut, and gracious experience of entire cleansing from sin.

There was a very definite and marked experience in the history of the disciples. Just when and where they experienced the forgiveness of their sins the record does not tell; that they were forgiven is very plainly implied in the word of God. The whole tenor of the teachings of Jesus, their ministry and work, all go to show that they were not only pardoned but regenerated men—in Christ new creatures, but on the day of Pentecost they received a new, definite experience—something they had never known before—an outpouring of the Holy Ghost, and that day and at that time their hearts were purified by faith and they were divinely filled with the Spirit. This outpouring of the Holy Ghost occurred a number of times in the early history of the church and is faithfully reported in the Acts of the Apostles. In every instance he fell upon regenerated people, never upon sinners. The baptism with the Holy Ghost is never for the unregenerated, but always for those who have passed from death unto life—who have been born of the Spirit.

It is not worth while to undertake to set aside or to belittle the teachings of the Holy Scriptures on a full atonement from sin, made by our Savior on Calvary, neither will we be able to get away from the truth that carnality remains in the regenerated and that this carnality may be cleansed away by a fiery, direct and gracious baptism with the Holy Ghost. This doctrine must be faithfully preached, carefully explained, earnestly urged upon the people, and fearlessly contended for as a great cardinal teaching of the word of God. Preachers and teachers of this truth must not permit themselves to be waved aside with the trite saying: "I do not believe in the 'second blessing.'" We must be faithful to such a brother and ask him: "Do you believe in the Holy Ghost? Do you believe in that divine baptism so faithfully promised by our Lord Jesus? Do you believe that he can come to us and in a definite, positive, and glorious way deliver us from all the remains of sin?"

We should press home upon the people four great facts: The fallen and sinful condition of the human race, the regenerating power of the Holy Spirit, the remains of sin or carnality, the evil and downward tendency in the regenerated, and the distinct, definite, baptism with the Holy Ghost, cleansing and abiding. These truths are clearly taught in the Holy Scriptures. The need for them is found in human experience and the blessed fulfillment of the gracious promises of a full deliverance from sin as realized by a great cloud of witnesses who are sitting at the Master's feet and others pressing on their way. Let us faithfully preach and witness and press the battle to awaken, revive, and stir up the children of God to seek after and find in Jesus, all that divine fullness provided for in the atonement made on Calvary, and the glorious provision of Pentecost.

A Chapter from My Autobiography

CHAPTER XXV.

STATIONED AT FRANKFORT.

I had a prosperous year at Danville—some were saved and a number were added to the church. The Conference met at Nicholasville, Bishop McTyeire presiding. Petitions went up signed by all the members of my official board, one to my presiding elder, and one to the Bishop for my return, but the Bishop sent me to Frankfort, the capital of the State. Frankfort was a city of twice the population of Danville, with much more material to work on. We had a handsome church, and a nice brick parsonage. During the year at Danville I had married one of the most charming young women in old Kentucky, the daughter of the celebrated orator, Col. George W. Bain. We set up house-keeping first in the Frankfort parsonage. Our nearest neighbor was Judge Hines, of the Appellate court, the same Captain Hines who escaped from the Ohio State Prison with Gen. John Morgan. Judge Hines one evening told me the interesting story of the escape, how the tools were secured, the tunnel dug, the guards deceived, the outer walls scaled; of the flight to Cincinnati, and the crossing the river in a tow boat to the Kentucky side. Judge Holt, also of the Appellate bench, lived across the street just in front of our church; an able lawyer, a just judge, and one of the most courteous and accomplished gentlemen in our state.

In Frankfort I found a larger intellectual and spiritual life. I served for a time as chaplain both of the house of Representatives, and of the Senate. During these two years, I came in touch with many strong men and formed many delightful acquaintances. This Frankfort Church is one of the most interesting churches in the State, in some particulars. While there I had fine congregations, preached often in the penitentiary, and had some interesting fruit there. It was at one of these prison services that Proctor Bill, now a successful Presbyterian preacher,

(Continued on page 8)

RELIGIOUS INSPIRATION.

Rev. G. W. Ridout, D.D., Corresponding Editor.

N Job 32:8, we read: "There is a spirit in man; and the Inspiration of the Almighty giveth them understanding."

Religious genius has been described as "Intuitive power to grasp the things of God in a superhuman and miraculous way, as distinguished from the slow and plodding human methods of reaching up to the divine life and light."

The difficulties facing the modern mind which refuses to admit the supernatural in the heart and life of man are on the one hand how to account for the phenomena of conversion and on the other how to find a substitute for the supernatural in the ordinary processes of education or philosophy or culture.

The Twentieth Century mind is ingenious but not inspirational; it is inventive but not spiritual. It desires to bring everything down to the basis of psychology and philosophy and reason, and puts up fences and walls to keep the supernatural out—as a result we have church life without spirit, pulpits without fire, prayer without energy and services without inspiration. Indeed many of our highly advertised "Inspirational" services are the deadest things in creation because there cannot be such a thing as religious inspiration in the absence of the Holy Spirit. Let it be remembered when the touch divine comes on the soul it may "Burst upon the soul like a flood;

Steal in gently like the dawn;
Tempest may bring it or a storm
Sweeping the being by the power of God."

There are certain things we cannot account for on reason's ground. We must say with Wesley:

"Where Reason fails with all her powers,
There faith prevails and love adores."

"There are souls," said one, "carried on the wings of Inspiration over mountains of difficulty in the religious life, which other souls just as worthy, are laboriously climbing. There is a passion for things spiritual and divine miraculously implanted, living and growing in some, whilst others are painfully striving merely to remove the hindrances to the Godward movement of their hearts."

The history of sainthood reveals characters in whom this idea of inspiration shines forth radiantly; such saints as Catharine of Siena, Francis of Assisi, Halle of Germany, Boehn, Mad. Guyon, Hester Ann Rogers, Savonarola and Fenelon, Fletcher of Madeley and Carvosso. To these saints religious experience was not the result of effort but of faith; it had its rise at the Cross, its merit in the precious blood of Jesus; it consisted not of duty painfully performed but rather in love and delight in the will of God; its impulses were joyful not sad, its spirit one of patience, forbearance, self sacrifice and whole-hearted dedication to the Lord Jesus.

In the early morn of creation God changed chaos into order by divine decree. He said: "Let there be light and there was light." Carlyle has said: "It is with man's soul as it was with nature; the beginning of creation is—Light. Till the eye has vision the whole members are in bonds. Divine moment! When over the tempest tost soul, as once over the wild-weltering chaos, it is spoken: 'Let there be Light!'"

The light which John the Divine writes about in John first chapter and which was designed to light every man, cometh not by sweat of brain, or deeds of the law; it breaks upon the soul like the glory of the morning sun when the shutters are opened and the barriers are taken away, and when this light from the upper skies bursts upon the soul.

FRAGMENTS.

The ardent soul touched by Love Divine cries out:

"O fill me with thy fullness, Lord,
Until my very heart o'erflow,
In kindling thought and glowing word,
Thy love to tell, thy praise to show."

"O teach me, Lord, that I may teach
The precious things thou dost impart,
And wing my words that they may reach
The hidden depths of many a heart."

The saint to whom divine inspirations are not strange knows how to steer towards the open sea of God's fullness when all things else are shrouded with fear and doubt reminding us of those old-time lines of school days—

"O father, I hear the church bells ring!
O say, what may it be?
'Tis a fogbell on a rock bound coast,
And he steered for the open sea."

Steering for the open sea! That's the attitude of faith. Wesley sang about it in the line,

"By faith I plunge me in this sea."

Also in the lines:

"Plunged in the Godhead's deepest sea,
And lost in its Immensity."

Herein is the failure of many a Christian life. Its morning is bright with promise, and its noon-day with experience, but its evening is black with storm-clouds. Beginning with a deep sense of personal inefficiency, we seek the help of God in things great and small alike. Nor does his fellowship fail us. But in the very success which it assures us lurks our greatest peril. For we are apt to become intoxicated at the sight of attainment and accomplishment, and to lose all sense of proportion. We imagine that somehow these gifts of God are indications of our own quality. We come to look upon them as expressions of human ascendancy rather than of divine condescension. And as we thus become strong in our own eyes we become miserably weak. How pathetic is this record: "Marvelously helped until he was strong"; and then?—Rev. Stuart Holden, D.D., M.A.

"The horizon widens,

New beauties appear at every step;
Tenderer, holier lights pierce all darkness,
Hardness disappears and love ascends the throne."

The poet in alluring language calls upon us to seek the higher heights of spiritual experience in those familiar lines:

"Build thee more stately mansions, O my soul,

While the swift seasons roll!
Leave thy low-vaulted past,
Let each new mansion, nobler than the last,
Shut out from heaven with dome more vast,
Till thou at length art free,
Leaving thine outgrown shell by life's unresting sea."

It was said of one divinely inspired poet that he valued his poems, not because they were his; but because they were not. He thought the angels had brought them to him; and Emerson commenting upon this said: "The depth of notes which we accidentally sound on the strings of nature is out of proportion to our taught and ascertained faculty."

Longfellow thinking on this line said: "Inspiration which, could they be things And stay with us, and we could hold them fast,

Were our good angels."

Phillips Brooks in one of his addresses urges his hearers in the hour of spiritual exaltation to do some great work for God which would be impossible in weaker moments and lower moods, else the great light unused fades away and leaves the soul in darkness.

It is well always to bear in mind that our holiest moods are not earth born—it takes more than talent and genius to beget them, they are born of God:

"And every virtue we possess,
And every victory won,
And every thought of holiness
Are his alone."

John Wesley, when he rediscovered and proclaimed the doctrine of Entire Sanctification, taught both the negative and positive side of true holiness. He taught that the heart may be cleansed from all sin, the root of sin destroyed and the soul thus cleansed by the Blood may be indwelt entirely and fully by the Holy Ghost and this Divine indwelling would constantly supply the soul with divine inspirations and holy impulses by means of which the sanctified soul would do exploits within the realm of the spiritual. As the soul in complete and unreserved consecration and dedication yields itself to God, there comes by the Divine Spirit a quickening and an inspiring of all the faculties by which the Believer is enabled to undertake and achieve things for God beyond the range of human genius or talent.

The greatest need of our day in the religious world is a floodtide of holy enthusiasm which will cause people to break away from their false moorings and their deadly unbelief and reach out after the possibilities of divine grace. The seers and prophets and saints of old passed through a period of transformation and exaltation by which they reached up and brought heaven down and reached down and brought the earth up and connected the human with the divine.

It is expected that the only power which can have any effect upon the moral and religious nature of man must be religious—sainthood is its name. It has been the saints which have saved the world in the hour of crisis. All mankind at times have turned to the saints for deliverance in the hour of greatest peril. "All sorts and conditions of men intuitively turn to the saint with expectation; childhood, youth, old age, alike seek a response in him; all hands stretch out to him, all eyes fasten upon him with yearning and hope." Of one of the saintly characters of the church it was written, "She is just like a hot-house for making people grow in! A shelter from chill and adverse influences, and yet so transparent that the light of God shines through and ripens those she surrounds with her influences, a Christian so glorious in all directions with such depth and height of purely spiritual experience, and at the same time such breadth of human sympathy and practical energy!"

Browning in one of his poems says:

"Belief's fire, once in us
Makes of all else mere stuff to show itself
We penetrate our life with such a glow
As fire lends wood and iron.
Enthusiasm's the best thing, I repeat!"

The secret of the saint's strength and success is his faith. To the saint "Faith lends its realizing light,

The shadows flee and doubts disperse.
The invisible appears in sight
And God is seen by mortal man."

The saint's faith makes him aspire constantly to higher ground; the language of his soul is,

"I'm pressing on the upward way,
New heights—I'm gaining day by day;
Still praying as I onward bound,
Lord, plant my feet on higher ground."

Inspiration, as it is applied to religion, must keep the soul moving or it becomes inert. "Ye have dwelt long enough," said the Lord to Moses, "in this mountain; turn you and take your journey!" Mountains of transfiguration we must all have, but we must remember what awaits us down in the plain in the hours of exaltation—some blind and palsied and distressed and sin-sick souls are awaiting our coming down out of the Mount with faith and power adequate to help them out of their distresses.

Of what avail are our holiness camps, our conventions, our great assemblies, if when we come down to the common lot of people we have no power to help them?

MODERN APOSTLES OF FAITH.

Rev. C. F. Wimberly, D.D.

CHAPTER XXIII.

THE REMARKABLE STORY OF A MOONSHINER'S SON.

THE subject of this sketch was born in White county, Tennessee, the son of a mountain moonshiner, in poverty, squalor, and ignorance, a type such as can be found only in those remote regions of eastern Kentucky and Tennessee. Barring a few secular headliners of the Billy Sunday type, there is no man in America better known, whose unique witticisms are more widely quoted, and whose name is more devoutly revered than that of the Rev. "Bud" Robinson. From a social stratum, the depths of which can no longer be found, even far up in the fastnesses of the Cumberland, to a place of national prominence, whose tongue and pen are reaching as wide a circle as any churchman in the United States, is the remarkable story of this striking figure.

The place of his nativity was a one-room cabin on a mountain side, one hundred miles from the nearest railroad, and twenty miles from a post office. The cabin had a dirt floor, and windowless except a section cut from one of the logs of the wall. The chimney was made of mud and sticks, scarcely rising half way up the ragged, squatty comb; the "fire place" smoked like an Indian wigwam, except when the wind blew in a certain direction. Cook stoves and chairs were unknown; the one bedstead was made by two holes bored in the wall, and the poles driven into these holes resting on posts driven into the "floor." The Robinsons belonged to the poorest and most degraded of the "mountain whites." Speaking of his infancy, he says: "My father was a moonshiner of the lowest and wickedest type; the first sounds that greeted my infant ears, were cursing, fighting, and drunken brawls. My baby buggy was a hollow log, four feet long, split open, making a nice little trough. It was supplied with one old dirty quilt, and a 'poke' of turkey feathers." There were seven or eight other children, most of them older than "Buddie." They all slept on sheepskins, spread on the damp floor. "Until I was past fifteen," he says, "I cannot remember a single winter night that I was not hungry and cold, and all I had to keep my little feet warm was a dog."

The first five years of his life were terrified by the ravages of guerrilla warfare, and the Yankee army of occupation. Early in the 70's a new phase of war broke out in the mountains. The government levied a tax of fifty cents a gallon on whiskey that was selling for twenty-five cents a gallon. "Within five miles of our home," he says, "there were ten big still houses running day and night. Whiskey peddlers called at the house daily, with ox carts loaded, exchanged it for all kinds of produce. We used it like milk. No one could die, get married, or a baby born, without all hands getting drunk—even little boys ten years old got drunk two or three times a week—and no one objected." There was almost a reign of terror; men organized against the intrusion of the "revenuers," and hundreds of men were killed. Neighbors would fall out and fight, and bloody tragedies were a common occurrence.

That a clearer idea may be had of the social and moral condition of that section, fifty years ago, it can best be given in his own language: "We did not know there was such a thing as a church or schoolhouse. Most of the young women were raising families without the encumbrance of a husband. I have been in homes where there were eleven or twelve children, half of whom belonged to the unmarried daughters of the family. All of them living in one or two little rooms with dirt floors. This condition was the rule, and not the exception. Young men who came to see my sisters were usually so drunk they had to be helped off their horses. It was no uncommon thing to hear it said: 'Did you know that John and Sallie had took up together?' That was their style of matrimony, without the expense of license or preacher. These people were as well respected as any one. I was going with the girls before I wore a pair of shoes. The girls did not cramp their little feet with shoe leather; so we all sparked bare-footed."

The obstacles of poverty and environment were not all the hindrances of Bud's early life. The dissipations of his immature years drew a heavy toll from his already under-nourished constitution; he had known little but hunger and exposure until his later teens. Following this period of his life, he has this to say concerning his bodily afflictions: "There were eleven long weary years full of toil, pain and disappointment—at times without money and no bread in the house, and thinly clad—my body undergoing the most excruciating pain it is possible for a man to pass through and live. For fifteen years I had epileptic fits, for sixteen years paralysis, and for ten years bleeding at the lungs. My arms had been several times pulled out of place and put back. When spasms came upon me, a keen pain would strike me in the arms, and they would jump out of place. After a few years they would not stay in place; when I reached a little too high, or too far back, they would pull out of place. If I sneezed or threw up my arms, one or both arms would come out of place. When at work in the field, or in my sleep, my arms would jump out of joint. Then I would have to 'lay' on my back, and my brother would take me by the wrist, and place his foot in my arm pit, and jerk it back in place. Finally they got so bad I had to leave them out of place, because I could not endure the suffering of having them pulled back."

When Bud was fifteen years old, his father died, leaving behind nothing but a record of debauchery, a widow and a house full of children in the most abject poverty. After struggling for a while in their mountain home, Mother Robinson loaded her rough belongings into an ox-cart, and the family moved to Texas. When they got settled on those vast plains, Bud became a proverbial "cow puncher," living up to all the sinful traditions of that life. His boss on the ranch, besides being a depraved man, had indoctrinated young Robinson with the tenets of infidelity.

However, a change came; this was what happened. A traveling evangelist pitched a tent on the prairie near the cattle ranch. At the earnest solicitation of Bud's mother, he was induced to attend. Dressed in old overalls, shirt ragged at the elbows and buttons off, he mingled with the crowd for three days, but did not go under the tent. He had on him at the time, a bottle of whiskey, a six shooter, and deck of cards, a plug of tobacco, and enough money to start as a stake, providing he could get some one to gamble with him. In this he failed, and to drive away his lonesomeness, he attended a service. The untutored evangelist attracted his attention. He tells of his "conversion" in the following language: "I felt like I was right over hell on a broken rail, and would be there in another minute. I began to pray at the top of my voice for God to keep me out. As I lay there in the straw, my whole life came up before me. The lies I had told seemed to have stingers in them like bald-headed hornets, and they were stinging my guilty conscience. The oaths I had uttered seemed to have teeth in them, and they were biting pieces out of my guilty soul. All the water-melons I had stolen seemed piled up around me, and their striped backs grinned in my face; every grass sack of peaches I had stolen seemed to be lying across my stomach holding me down to the earth. Just then it seemed that a landslide from the New Jerusalem struck me in the soul, and I have never seen those watermelons, lies, oaths, or peaches from that day until now."

His conversion occurred when Bud was twenty years old, and it marked the beginning of a career unparalleled in the religious history of America. He could not read, neither could he write his own name. No lad in Texas was poorer; he owned not a second shirt for his back. From infancy he had suffered with a stoppage of speech—"tongue-tied," so that when a bit confused, could only stutter and stammer at an effort to speak. For more than ten years he struggled in poverty and obscurity, trying to preach, and raise a little cotton patch with one blind mule to keep soul and body together.

Notwithstanding the long, hard, up-hill climb, handicapped in more ways than most any other human being, perhaps, for a public career, Rev. Bud Robinson, the cow-boy preacher "broke in." He claims a miraculous healing of all his bodily afflictions, and for twenty-five years he never missed a single engagement, or lost a single day from active duty on account of sickness. For twenty-five years the "feeble, stammering tongue" has been a "tongue of fire." The simple announcement that Bud Robinson is to speak in any city from Boston to San Francisco, from Chicago to New Orleans, will mean a capacity audience in a church, hall, or theater. He has filled engagements in every city of one hundred thousand people or more, in the United States, and in every capital city in the union. He has traveled by rail more than five hundred thousand miles, and has preached about fifteen thousand times. More than fifty thousand people have professed conversion under his ministry.

We doubt if there is a man living who has committed to memory more of the Bible than he. His knowledge of it is not an automaton, but his is a workable knowledge. There are 31,173 verses in the Bible, and he can quote, giving book, chapter, and verse, of more than 6,000 of them. He has such absolute mastery of the Word that he can handle any particular theme quoting every scripture in the Old and New Testament on that subject, without opening the Bible. Bud Robinson has such marked ability as a teacher, that his success in cultured, university circles in the presence of scholarly divines, is just as marked as when he preaches under a brush arbor far up in the mountains of Tennessee. The poor and the unsophisticated hear him gladly; the wise and great are astonished at his grasp of the truth.

Not only as a preacher has he achieved success, but his work in the realm of authorship has been quite as remarkable. He has written nine books, every one of which has passed through several editions. When it is remembered that in his ministry and writings he has given special emphasis to the deeper things of Christian experience which, of necessity, greatly limit the constituency, his books would easily rank in the secular market as "best sellers." Besides he contributes weekly to several religious periodicals, and it can be said of Bud Robinson what can be said of few writers, either religious or secular: no one ever saw a dull sentence or paragraph from his pen. There is a freshness and originality in all his writing and preaching that sparkles like the mountain brooks back in his Tennessee home.

(Continued on page 6, col. 1)

THE BAPTISM OF THE SPIRIT.

Rev. William A. Bevis

"Have ye received the Holy Ghost since ye believed?" Acts 19:2.

IN John's Gospel we read that on the last day of the feast of tabernacles Jesus cried: "He that believeth on me, from him shall flow rivers of living waters."

But these words are followed by a parenthetical statement: (But this spake he of the Spirit, which they that believe on him should receive; for the Holy Ghost was not yet given, for that Jesus was not yet glorified).

Towards the end of his days with his disciples our Lord had much to say about the gift of the Holy Ghost. In fact, he explained that there were many things that he could not tell them then, because they were incapable of understanding; but their lack would be supplied, for the Holy Spirit would teach them and guide them into all truth. He told them that they must not start out immediately after he left them, but that they must wait until the Holy Ghost came upon them.

The sealed orders of a ship's captain, not to be opened until he has passed out of communication with land, will have his most careful attention. The instructions in the Will of a deceased father, as it is opened in the presence of sons and daughters grieving for the sound of a voice they will hear no more on earth, make a deep impression on their hearts. So the last instructions to his followers from our Lord, especially when they were so definite as to their course and the results, should have most careful attention, not only on the part of his immediate disciples, but of all that afterwards believe through their teaching. Let us, therefore, consider these instructions, not so much from a doctrinal as from a practical standpoint. Have we the consciousness of having in our lives the power of effective witnessing, as was evidently possessed by the apostles and disciples after Pentecost? "Have ye received the Holy Ghost since ye believed?" The revised version puts it: "Did ye receive the Holy Ghost when ye believed?" We are not considering so much the form of the question as the fact.

According to the statement of our Lord, this experience was to be new and distinctive from any that had previously been enjoyed by men. In other words, believers in Jesus could have something after Pentecost which they could not experience before. What were some of the spiritual experiences men had previous to that time? From the earliest times in history, even before there was any written Word, men held communion with God. Among them was Abel, who offered up an acceptable sacrifice; Enoch, who walked with God; Noah, a preacher of righteousness. There were the patriarchs, judges, kings, prophets, priests, and multitudes of the common people, as Simeon and Anna, looking for the consolation of Israel, who held communion with God. Incidents in the lives of these reveal a love, a faith, a consecration, experiences with God which are an inspiration to God's children today.

All these received not the promise, God having provided some better thing for us.

Previous to Pentecost men had received the forgiveness of their sins. In the Old Testament sins were forgiven through the proper sacrifice, and an acceptable disposition of heart. "Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts, and let him return unto God, for he will abundantly pardon." Many with David had cried: "I acknowledged my transgression and thou forgavest the iniquity of my sin." John the Baptist came preaching repentance for the remission of sins. Even our Lord countenanced his ministry by accepting baptism at his hands. John's own statement was that "I baptize you with water, but there standeth one among you, the latchet of whose shoes I am unworthy to unloose. He shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost and with fire." Even after Pentecost we read that Philip went down to Samaria and preached Christ. Many believed and were baptized, and there was great joy in that city. With condemnation gone, they could be joyful. But when the disciples at Jerusalem heard it, they sent down Peter and John, who preached and prayed for them that they might receive the Holy Ghost; whereupon the Holy Ghost fell upon them. Here were people who received forgiveness at one time, and later received the Holy Ghost.

Again, men could be regenerated, born again, previous to the day of Pentecost. In the interview between our Lord and Nicodemus, Jesus tells him that before a man can see the kingdom of God, he must be born again. This certainly was not stated as a matter of information, but in order that Nicodemus might see his privilege and become born the second time. In the beginning of his Gospel John says of Jesus that "He came unto his own, but his own received him not, but as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God; which were born, not of man, nor of the will of man, but of God." While on earth Jesus told his Father that the disciples were not of the world, hence, in the kingdom; so that they were already twice-born men.

The gift of the Holy Ghost, and the flow of living waters from the life of the believer at Pentecost, was an experience which included all that had gone before, but one which was far richer and fuller. For a new era had come to this old world. By the light of the moon and stars of revelation, men had dimly seen their way to God. The Day Star had risen, and the dawn of a new day was approaching. The lesser lights paled as the Sun of Righteousness arose with healing in his wings. The Jewish nation had been the channel through which previous revelations had been made. Their history had been of benefit to them and to a few proselytes. Doubtless God had revealed himself to others outside their influence, for we read that in every nation him that serveth God and worketh righteousness, is accepted. But the light of the knowledge of God shone but dimly, and was far from being universal.

But now the desire of nations had come. God incarnate, being the brightness of his glory and the express image of his person, came as the Son of man. By the Cross of Calvary he had made the supreme revelation of the love of God for all mankind. When Jesus died, a new day burst upon the world, more glorious than any that had gone before.

The new era brought with it a new message and a new equipment. The old schoolmaster must go. The law with its injunctions to do this and do that as a means of salvation, had served its purpose. No more need there be a remembrance of sins committed by a continuance of sacrifices. A full and complete sacrifice of the Lamb slain before the foundation of the world had been made. God was now in the world reconciling men to himself by the death of his Son. By simple faith in him, all might live. The news of this Gospel was to be carried throughout the whole world so that every kindred, and tribe, and nation, and tongue, hearing and believing, should be saved.

How was this message to be delivered? By men. Surely then those who had been with him, heard him, and seen all those things which he did, were competent witnesses of these things, so that they might go forth and give the message! But no! There was a halt in the program, and this halt was at the instruction of our Lord himself. He commanded them that they should not depart from Jerusalem, but wait for the promise of the Father. "Tarry in Jerusalem until ye be endued with power from on high." "Ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you, and ye shall be witnesses of me, both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost parts of the world." A new era had come; a full salvation had been provided; but the messengers were to wait until the Holy Ghost came upon them. The apostles followed the divine program. They waited. The Spirit was outpoured. They went everywhere preaching the word with boldness.

By what right do we accept the message of the new era, and then neglect to follow the instruction to receive the equipment, namely, the baptism and filling of the Holy Ghost? That here is the failure of the times in which we live, is evident. We prepare all sorts of equipment, but do not generally wait for the equipment which God has provided ever since Pentecost. We build churches and Sunday schools equipped with auditoriums, classrooms, gymnasiums, kitchens, etc., but what is done about the divine equipment? We ask candidates for the ministry and for missionary work about their training, educational qualifications, but only cursorily as to their beliefs, and not at all whether they have received the Holy Ghost. In our schools of theology, and from the pulpits, this equipment is mentioned by only a few. The whole question is relegated to the thought and expression of a by-gone age. Dr. C. I. Scofield says: "What is the attempted service of an unfilled Christian but an insolent attempt to override the order of God." No wonder the results are division, controversy, uncertainty, doubt and skepticism of the whole program of Christianity. No program of social service, nor any other program for the Kingdom can succeed, when the divine program is neglected. "Except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain."

There is an analogy between the principle of power for Christian service and success in salesmanship in business life. A salesman with doubts of the excellence of his goods, or of the integrity of the firm he represents, will lack a quality which no school of commerce can supply. On the other hand, convinced of the superior quality of his line, and knowing by his own experience as well as observation of the honor and good-will of his firm, he will carry conviction and enthusiasm with him that will enable him to have power with those whom he would influence. Such qualities are contagious; other things being equal he will succeed. Let us apply the principle. If in proclaiming the Gospel of salvation from sin, there are reservations, questions or doubts in our minds, we cannot do our best, nor carry conviction to those we seek to persuade. But with the Holy Ghost filling our being, supplying all our own spiritual needs, we go to the work of witnessing divinely energized, and with all the strength of our mind, soul and will released for service; and that fact will not fail to be noted by those who hear us. If we would have the power that makes service effective, we must receive the Holy Ghost. The Christian era was ushered in at tremendous cost. Who can measure the price of that most precious sacrifice? Can we afford to wreck the undertaking by failing to properly equip?

In the beginning God created man in his own image, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life, and man became a living soul. After his resurrection our Lord appeared to his disciples behind closed doors. "Then were the disciples glad when they saw the Lord." And leaving, he breathed on them, and said: "Receive ye the Holy Ghost." God at first breathed into man and he became a living soul; again, Jesus breathed on his disciples to impart his own life to them.

"Breathe on me, Breath of God,
Fill me with life anew,
That I may love what thou dost love,
And do what thou wouldst do.

"Breathe on me, Breath of God,
Until my heart is pure,
Until with thee I will one will,
To do or to endure.

"Breathe on me, Breath of God,
Till I am wholly thine,
Till all this earthly part of me
Glow with thy fire divine."

"And Jesus breathed on them and said: Receive ye the Holy Ghost."

Kavanaugh Camp Meeting.

The Kavanaugh Camp Meeting, held at the famous old camp ground at Crestwood, Ky., eighteen miles out from Louisville, covers August 11th to 21st. The camp is being largely advertised and promises a great variety of talent. Rev. Gus A. Klein, of Memphis, Tenn., is to be the evangelist and will preach every day at 11:00 A. M. and 7:30 P. M. He is said to be very successful in revival work. We are hoping that Kavanaugh will have a great camp and see many souls brought to Christ at this meeting.

H. C. MORRISON.

A Tiny Testament.

This Testament is bound in leather, stamped in red ink, has a wonderfully clear, large type for a small book. The type is nonpareil. The size is 2½x4x¼ in. thick, and the weight is 2 ozs. The regular price of this Testament is 75c. We are closing out 50 of them at 50c each, postpaid. Pentecostal Publishing Company, Louisville, Ky.

Authenticity and Inspiration of the Scriptures.

REV. Z. T. JOHNSON, A.M.

CHAPTER IV.

PROPHETICAL PROOF OF THE DIVINE INSPIRATION OF THE BIBLE.

NE of the favorite stamping grounds of the objectors to the Divine authority and inspiration of the Bible has been that of Prophecy. The idea that one could write about and foretell events hundreds of years before they happened has been held up in derision. "So absurd," is the cry, "No one can tell what is going to happen in the future." It may be readily granted that this is impossible if the fact of a Divine revelation to man is thrust aside; but if we take into consideration the fact that God is omniscient we shall have to admit that he could reveal that knowledge to man if he so desired. That he did so desire could be argued from the fact of his love for men that caused him to give his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth on him might not perish, but have everlasting life. But that would be useless since we have a more direct argument on the question. And that argument is this: God did speak through the prophets, and those prophecies were literally fulfilled. Proof of this is so evident that it seems useless to try to convince those who have eyes, but see not; and have ears, but hear not. It is such a blessed fact and aid to faith, however, that some of these evidences must not be withheld.

Since the Jews stand out so prominently because of their relation to the Bible, both the Old and New Testaments, it will be interesting to read some of the prophecies concerning them. They were the peculiar and chosen people of the Lord. God called Abram out of his country in order that he might build up a nation through whom he could send the blessed Redeemer. In Genesis 12:1-3 we find these words: "Now the Lord had said unto Abram, get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and from thy father's house, into a land that I will show thee; and I will make of thee a great nation, and I will bless thee and make thy name great; and thou shalt be a blessing; and I will bless them that bless thee, and curse him that curseth thee; and in thee shall all the families of the earth be blessed." In Deuteronomy 14:1-2 God says, "Ye are the children of the Lord your God; ye shall not cut yourselves, nor make any baldness between your eyes for the dead; for thou art an holy people unto the Lord thy God, and the Lord hath chosen thee to be a peculiar people unto himself, above all the nations that are upon the earth." Here is the promise and the call to this nation; and it is but history that they were the people who gave to the world the Bible; and it was through them that God sent the revelations of the Gospel.

Concerning the building of this nation we find in Genesis 17:1-8 these words, "And when Abram was ninety years old and nine, the Lord appeared to Abram, and said unto him, I am the Almighty God: walk before me, and be thou perfect. And I will make my covenant between me and thee, and will multiply thee exceedingly. And Abram fell on his face: and God talked with him, saying, As for me, behold, my covenant is with thee, and thou shalt be a father of many nations. Neither shall thy name any more be called Abram, but thy name shall be Abraham; for a father of many nations have I made of thee. And I will make thee exceedingly fruitful, and I will make nations of thee, and kings shall come out of thee. And I will establish my covenant between me and thee, and thy seed after thee, in their generations, for an everlasting covenant, to be a God unto thee, and to thy seed after thee. And I will give unto thee, and to thy seed after thee, the land wherein thou art a stranger, all the land of Canaan, for an everlasting possession; and I will be their God." Here is a promise; and five hundred years later, after God had led the children of Israel out of Egypt he spoke these words to them through their leader Moses, Deuteronomy 7:6-9, "For thou art an holy people unto the Lord thy God: the Lord thy God hath chosen thee to be a special people unto himself, above all people that are upon the face of the earth. The Lord did not set his love upon you, nor choose you, because ye were more in number than any people; for ye were the fewest of all people; but because the Lord loved you, and because ye would keep the oath which he had sworn unto your fathers, hath the Lord brought you out with a mighty hand, and redeemed you out of the house of bondmen, from the hand of Pharaoh king of Egypt; know therefore that the Lord thy God, he is God, the faithful God, which keepeth covenant and mercy with them that love him and keep his commandments to a thousand generations." Thus we see that time is no element in the reckonings of God; but that he knows far in advance what will happen; and here is an instance of his promise, or prophecy having been fulfilled.

But some will object to this on the ground that the Jews have been dissolved as a nation, and that God's promise concerning the establishment of an everlasting covenant has not been kept. We must remember that although God is omnipotent he takes into consideration the free moral agency of man; and all these promises may be set aside by our disobedience. He knew that this would be the case with the Jews, so he prophesied of their destruction and scattering; and also of their restoration as a nation and their return in the distant future. Let us examine some of these utterances relative to the destruction of the nation. In Deuteronomy 28:41 and 49-53 we find these words: "Thou shalt beget sons and daughters, but thou shalt not enjoy them; for they shall go into captivity; . . . The Lord shall bring a nation against thee from afar, from the end of the earth, as swift as the eagle flieth; a nation whose tongue thou shalt not understand; a nation of fierce countenance, which shall not regard the person of the old, nor show favor to the young; and he shall eat the fruit of thy cattle, and the fruit of thy land, until thou be destroyed: which also shall not leave thee either corn, wine, or oil, or the increase of thy kine, or the flocks of thy sheep, until he have destroyed thee. And he shall besiege thee in all thy gates, until thy high fenced walls come down, wherein thou trustest, throughout thy land: and he shall besiege thee in all thy gates throughout thy land, which the Lord thy God hath given thee. And thou shalt eat the fruit of thine own body, the flesh of thy sons and daughters, which the Lord thy God hath given thee, in the siege, and in the straitness, wherewith thine enemies shall distress thee."

This is a very clear prophecy of the coming of the Romans, whose standard was the eagle at the head of their legions. Josephus, the Jewish historian, gives an interesting account of how the Romans besieged Jerusalem, and one by one, took the three walls that surrounded the city and laid them in ruins, until finally the city was conquered. He tells how, in the course of this long siege the people died in large numbers; "Even by families," he says, and finally, when the city fell how they were killed in vast numbers by the Romans and all the Jews over seventeen years of age were carried to Egypt and sold as slaves. He said that the market was so

(Continued on page 9)

MODERN APOSTLES OF FAITH. (Continued from page 3)

When he chooses to use it, he has a gift of irony and sarcasm that is withering; but his strongest fort in public address is his wit, which is spontaneous and inexhaustible. Having drained the cup of suffering to its dregs, there is a tenderness and pathos in voice and a naturalness of gesture that is irresistible in its appeal. The life of Bud Robinson cannot be explained by any law of cause and effect, other than the miraculous!

A recent occurrence in the life of this man adds another chapter to its wonder and astonishment. In May of 1919, while filling an engagement in San Francisco, he was crossing a street after the close of the night service. In an effort to dodge a street car, he sprang in front of an auto, running at a rate of speed prohibitable according to the traffic laws, and was run down. He tells about it in a lecture, "My Hospital Experience": "As I knew there would be no chance for me if the street car ran over me, I took my chances with the auto. I knew one of them was bound to get me, and as I leaped from the car track the large automobile was trying to outrun the street car and struck me. I heard the awful crash and felt the pain shoot through my body and heard the bones cracking. The men who were standing on the sidewalk said I shot into the air ten feet high, and I fell thirty feet in front of where the big car struck me. The only time I lost consciousness was while I was going through the air. I knew when I struck the ground. I heard some more bones pop; but by the time I had struck the ground the big car had come on and run over me. All the wheels of the big car ran over my body, and I heard some more bones pop."

He remained conscious long enough, while lying there mangled on the street, to forbid the policeman arresting the man who had run over him. This is what he has to say of his "smash-up": "My left arm was pulled bottom-upwards, and the bone broke about an inch and a half below the joints, and the bone running down to the elbow was split. My right arm was broke just below the shoulder, and so badly slivered that a number of pieces of the bone went into the muscle, and the long end of the bone was driven right through the muscle and through the undershirt sleeve, and the top shirt sleeve and the coat sleeve, and the end of the bone came on over and struck through my coat into my chest. When I reached the hospital, there were two inches of the arm bone sticking out through the flesh and my clothes! My left knee was smashed and my left leg was broken. My left ankle was pulled apart, and foot turned around in the joint."

So mangled was he, that the leading surgeon of Leland Stanford did not want to take the case, but finally the friends of Bud persuaded him to do so. For five months the best medical and surgical attention was given him, and from every nook and corner in the United States, money poured in to cover the expenses. Commenting on this fact, he says: "Other people go to the hospital with plenty of money, and come out broke; but I went in broke, and came out owing nobody, and money enough to fill up a big handkerchief, tied at the four corners."

Five months from the time of the accident, he entered the field apparently as good as new. He recently closed a "coast-to-coast" preaching and lecturing tour, covering all the winter months, and his slate is filled for many months ahead. Bud Robinson has a beautiful home at Pasadena, Cal., but does not get to enjoy it very long at a time, as his life has been given to others for forty years.

He who has nothing to give is poor, but he who has plenty and refuses to give is poor indeed. The first may still be in grace, but the second is certainly in disgrace.

How to Train and Save your Child

REV. E. E. SHELHAMER.

TRAIN up a child in the way he should go; and when he is old, he will not depart from it." Prov. 22:6.

In the first place if we would find a model child, morally, mentally, and physically, we must begin about 200 years before he is born. The parents must be taught how to live. For, sad to say many people simply exist, and have never caught the vision of living to bless others. They exist as animals and eat, drink, and toil for the things that perish.

In the next place, many a person is not fit to marry. There ought to be a law requiring a strict and high standard on all lines in order to secure a marriage certificate. No one should be allowed even to court who is mentally or morally deficient. In addition to this there should be a strict test of compatibility. For though a person may be sound in mind and body, yet in disposition he may be unfit to live with another.

No two persons should think of living together whose temperaments are too near alike, or too far apart. If too near alike they will not be a help in overcoming each other's weaknesses. If too far apart they will not be likely to bridge the chasm. One or both must not only have ability, but adaptability to gladly submit as well as rule. It does not require an ounce of grace, nor a thimble-full of brains to be stubborn and hold out for one's opinion. When they are mismatched, or to say the least, when it is hard to understand each other, then the mighty grace of God must be sought or there will be two blighted lives. Oh, the blasted homes, overcrowded prisons, and howling asylums, simply because of hasty and mis-mated marriages.

We must face facts! While many marriages should have been positively prohibited, many others should have required more time. It would seem that at least one year's engagement is not too long prior to the ceremony. And during this time there should not be an instance of serious friction. For, if there is lack of perfect harmony before marriage, it is quite certain there will be a stormy voyage afterward. Our flooded divorce courts prove that the large percent of divorces come from "incompatibility" and hasty marriages.

Where then does the responsibility lie? In one or the other of the contracting parties. In about nine cases out of every ten where marriage is a failure it can be traced to a party, a dance, or the rear of the church where the acquaintanceship was first made. Had one or both parties associated with the people of God, and like Obadiah, "feared him greatly," God would have chosen for them. No doubt, if they were now to look back they could remember where the Holy Spirit, or some faithful friend warned them against taking the fatal step. They had doubts and misgivings at times whether it was the best thing to do. But instead of counseling with the godly, they listened to those who urged them on to their ruin. Love and lust were blind and said, "I just could not live without Mabel, or John." Later, this sentimental feeling changed and since then it has been, "I wish I had never seen him."

Well, what is the best way out? Blame each other? No! Suggest a separation? Never! For statistics show that very few divorced and remarried people are happy and steady in their Christian experiences. The surest way out of all difficulties is mighty prayer. Think of it! Perhaps a short hour or so with God may change the entire situation and insure a year or more of peace. A fine investment! If, perchance the other side of the house is not thereby affected for good, the one who prays will be well repaid. The consolation from heaven will more than repay for what is lacking from earth. Make the best of it; learn the lesson and learn it so well you can teach others. Who knows but that in the end, God may rule and overrule so that you will develop strength of character such as could not be had in any other way. God permits some things in our lives as a last resort to get us to heaven.

Hardly one in a hundred begins to realize the responsibility of rearing children. The thought of glorifying God never once enters their minds. The idea of praying for a son as did the parents of Samuel would seem absurd. Now, where children are born to such parents,—parents who are haters of God and scoffers at his word, it will be readily seen that such children are about half damned when they are born and many of them entirely damned when but fifteen years of age. Poor little things, products of lust, how can they be a blessing in the earth unless some one teaches them the good and right way. No wonder they are vicious and licentious at an early age. What a pity that these parents went to so much suffering and expense to bring forth children, then raise and educate them, for what? To be a curse in the earth, then die and be eternally damned.

Parents, have you no pity for these little ones who are not responsible for being here? Can you not feel for them, yea, pray and fast for their salvation. Their salvation is much more important than their education. Do not think for a moment that you must let them wait till in their teens before they can "intelligently" decide for Christ. No! As soon as they can manifest self-will they can be taught to curb it.

Parents plan for earthly advantages. If they live too far from where they work, they plan on moving nearer. If they want special school privilege they plan to move, even though it means extra expense. If they want better health, they sell out and go to a different climate. But, strange to say, these same parents, for the sake of a little cheaper rent or a few extra dimes, seem content to live so far from a good live church that the children cannot go regularly to a spiritual Sunday school, or attend old time revival meetings. What is the result? These children grow up to be Sabbath breakers, marry into the wrong families and in the end the parents shed more tears, and pay out more money than would have been the case, had they considered that the salvation of their household was the first and most important thing in the world.

But can we compel them to be Christians? Yes and no! While they must of their own free will submit to God, yet we can so humble ourselves before them and God, that as a rule they will break down and yield. Prayer and fasting will often bring blessed returns. Others have proven it so. Try it!

"Beautiful Girlhood"

The book was written by Mable Hale, price $1.00 may be purchased through The Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky.

This book, delightfully written for girls is one of the most inspiring for character building to be read. It takes a vision into the depths of womanhood to create in others the desire to live up to an ideal. Mable Hale has given in her book facts which will help girls understand themselves as well as others, in thoughts, attitudes and expressions of development. This book will inspire girls to a greater effort of living true, sincere lives, if they would be all that the title, "Beautiful Girlhood" implies.

The above is an unsolicited testimonial written by Miss Aileene Lewis, director of young people's work, The Kentucky Council of Religious Education.

Some people hide their light under a bushel when a pint cup would do.

REPORTS FROM SOUL WINNERS

M. V. LEWIS REPORTS.

Through the columns of The Herald I come again, reporting some very interesting meetings in Louisiana. Evangelist W. E. Thomas did the preaching while I had the pleasure of assisting in song, prayer and personal work. Our first meeting was at Rustin, La., the leading Methodist Church of the State, Rev. Bush, pastor. It was not my privilege to be in this campaign from the first, but was permitted to come on the scene when the work was in full swing. The church was packed each night, and many times great throngs were turned away. There was every evidence that the church received great help both intensively and extensively.

Sulphur, La., was our second place of meeting, with Rev. Perry, pastor. God blessed in an unusual way from the beginning. Extra choir space was provided and the best musical talent of the city responded in the organization of a large chorus-choir. For two weeks we preached, prayed and sang. People from the surrounding country supported the meetings in great fashion, some driving 100 miles to enjoy the meetings. Brother Thomas preached the word effectively and the choir sang beautifully. Many professed to find our life-giving Christ, and a large number united with the Church.

Our third meeting was at Vinton, Rev. Perry, pastor. This is a thriving town with a great surrounding country in support. Fearing the church building would not accommodate the attendance, we pitched a large tent in the heart of the city. Again we were favored with an excellent choir. The response was delightful. By the third night the tent was packed, with large crowds standing without. We had planned to run only two weeks, but the interest constrained us to hold four days longer.

The fourth meeting was at Rayne, with Rev. A. A. Wood, pastor. In many respects this was a hard meeting with numerous difficulties to overcome. On the first day we had 14 inches of rain, forcing many people to move residence. Then the levee at St. Martinsville broke, putting the water within 14 miles of us, and crowding the city with refugees. The loss and suffering were appalling. But we tried to keep our faith stayed on him, and despite these obstacles we had an exceptionally good meeting. The Christian people manifested great interest; God's Spirit was in marked evidence, and many (including several Catholic friends) accepted Christ. I feel that we did some of our best work at Rayne.

At this writing I am in Duquoin, Ill., which, from all appearances, promises to be a hard field. I am always solicitous of your prayers for the glory of Christ through my life.

M. V. Lewis, Song Evangelist.
Wilmore, Ky.

GOOD MEETINGS.

Since reporting to The Herald I have conducted a number of meetings in California in which the Lord blessed me with many precious souls. After coming from California my first camp meeting campaign was the state camp of the Nazarenes at Hutchinson, Kan. Bro. Balsmeier, the District Superintendent, with the good Nazarenes of this place, secured the State Fair Ground for this campaign. Bro. Bud Robinson and the Edwards' quartet were our collaborators in this battle. The blessings of the Lord were upon the entire campaign and there were about five hundred at the altar.

My next meeting was at Princeton, Ind., with Rev. L. O. Green. God gave us a good meeting with seekers at the altar from the beginning and closing out on the last Sunday night with forty-five at the altar. At the present I am with Rev. Harry Carter in a tent meeting at St. Bernice. Souls are praying through and we are expecting a great time before the close. I have never loved Jesus better and lost souls more in all of my life than I do at the present time.

C. B. Fugett.
4812 Williams Ave., Ashland, Ky.

A GRACIOUS REVIVAL.

Rev. Virgil L. Moore, pastor-evangelist, from Ferguson, Ky., assisted the writer at his Science Hill, Ky., M. E. Church pastorate in what proved to be one of the most successful revivals ever held in the Science Hill community. The services which continued for three weeks were held each afternoon, except Mondays and every night, in one of the large Evangelical Methodist League Tents.

Day after day as Bro. Moore unfolded the Word, his eloquent appeal held the attention of the crowds, while his convincing logic revealed to men their need of the old-time religion. Great crowds attended many of the night services. In the fifty or more services held under the tent during the course of the meeting it was estimated that between twelve and fifteen thousand people heard the gospel which is the power of God unto salvation. There were between 40 and 50 seekers for pardon or purity. Many of this number prayed through to victory in the old-fashioned manner. Several of the services broke up with great tidal waves of glory sweeping over the crowd. It reminded one of old camp meeting days. Twenty-one have already united with our local Methodist Church with prospects for others coming in.

No man with whom we have ever labored, worked harder, preached more earnestly, nor packed more sound, logical holiness gospel into his messages than did the evangelist, Bro. Moore. He touched upon every phase of Christian experience from conviction for sin through regeneration and entire sanctification into the glorious inheritance of the children of God of growing in grace after they have received these fundamental foundation experiences. We consider ourselves fortunate in securing and slating him to hold our meeting when he had between twenty and thirty other invitations for camps and meetings of various character in many parts of the nation. We thank God for an old-time revival which changed the hearts and many of the homes of men in our community. We take new courage to stand for all the truths contained in the old Book, and determine anew to "contend for the faith once for all delivered unto the saints."

Alex J. Reid, Pastor.

FROM BROTHER CHARLIE TILLMAN.

My dear people: It's been so long since I wrote you I may have gotten out of your mind, but I assure you there has not been an hour but what I have thought of The Herald family and thanked God for everyone of you, for you have always prayed for me which has been appreciated.

At this writing, July 14, daughter and I are engaged in a revival at Lyerly, Ga., a small place nestling among the mountains of North Georgia, and we are glad to report some unusual things are taking place. It is such a joy to labor among a people who are accessible. We are more and more inclined to the town and village work in preference to the city-wide campaigns, and allow me to say just here that any pastor who may need such service as we can render, do not hesitate to invite us because your place is small.

Many of The Herald readers will be interested in what we are doing this year to have a great camp meeting at Mount Gilead, 8 miles of Atlanta. A new Board was elected last year with Judge John D. Humphries as chairman and many improvements are being made, among which is the enlargement of the platform in the tabernacle to accommodate two hundred singers. It will be my pleasure to direct this chorus as I have done for the last two years. The leading preacher is to be Rev. John C. Patty, of Chattanooga, one of our strongest pulpits orators who comes highly recommended by Arthur Moore and others. We have special arrangements made by which those who want to build a cottage can do so at a cost all the way from one hundred dollars up. As to this, address Mr. John Simonton, 917 Atlanta Trust Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., Sec'y. Mt. Gilead Camp Ground. The lots are free. We have arranged the date of this meeting, August 4-14, giving those who attend an opportunity to attend Indian Spring Camp the last week. Pray for us and be with us if you possibly can. In him and his service, Charlie D. Tillman.

CHESTERVILLE, ILLINOIS.

The Illinois Interdenominational camp held in the beautiful Davis woods one mile north of Chesterville came to a close Sunday evening, July 10, with nearly a thousand people in attendance. The engaged workers this year were Rev. and Mrs. Jack Linn, Miss Imogene Quinn, Prof. Edson Crosby and Miss Karine Kjolseth. Rev. Linn and Miss Quinn alternated each service with the preaching which was of the highest type and many were the seasons of refreshing which were enjoyed by all. Rev. Linn is a nationally known preacher, while Miss Quinn is the well-known Hoosier Girl Evangelist of Indianapolis, Ind. Mrs. Linn's sweet solos, together with the beautiful music of Prof. Crosby on the silver bells and musical saw, and Miss Kjolseth at the piano charmed the great audience which thronged the tent each night.

These workers were unanimously called back for the camp of 1928, and already extensive plans are being laid for a bigger and better camp. Though the camp is one of the new camps of the state, yet the people came from long distances and enjoyed the fellowship of saints together. The children's meetings attracted both old and young and many of the boys and girls were wonderfully saved.

On Monday evening, Rev. Linn told his life's story, "From Stage to Pulpit," and the party left early Tuesday for their next engagement in Wisconsin. Thus closed the best camp thus far the Association has yet promoted.

Reporter.

ELMIRA, PENNSYLVANIA.

The Asbury College Quartet have closed their second series of meetings of the summer and are now well into their third series of meetings, being held in the city of Elmira, Pa., and are being supported by the Methodist Union of Elmira. I was privileged to visit the Quartet in their first two series of meetings several times and found that they were finding great favor because of the splendid work which they were doing among the people of these two communities. They were decidedly rural communities where the work was badly in need of reviving. There is a great future for both of these communities, however, if the churches in which the Gospel Team has labored are kept active.

Following the second series of meetings which closed on Sunday night, July 3, the Quartet were the guests of Keuka Epworth League Institute under the management of the Rev. E. E. Merring, D.D., of Elmira, who is the dean. They were the special guests of the large delegation of 30 leaguers from the Liberty Corners and Terrytown circuits who camped together in one large group all during the week of the Institute. While immediate results cannot be tabulated in figures as is possible to a certain degree in an evangelistic campaign, nevertheless, the work which the boys were able to accomplish at the Institute by mingling with 300 young people for a whole week is of eternal value. The Institute management and faculty expressed great appreciation at having the Quartet there to help in the music and to have Victor Moore in charge of the Institute Orchestra. The dean publicly expressed his appreciation by saying that the spiritual tone of the whole Institute had been wonderfully helped by having the Quartet in attendance. Among the delegation in which they camped, where Asbury College students are the pastors, they were able to do very effective work in cultivating young people for Asbury College. It is rather expected that as the result several will be in attendance at Asbury either this fall or a year from this fall.

Those who are interested in the work of The Evangelical Methodist League should remember much in prayer the work of the Quartet during the remainder of the summer. The opening which they have at the present time in Elmira is a bit unusual, and it is believed that great things are going to result from the tent meeting which commenced there Sunday, July 10, contemplated to close on July 31.

Rev. Harold R. Barnes.

MODOC POINT, OREGON.

Rev. George Bennard was with us for a ten-days' tent meeting from June 17 to 26. There was a varied group co-operating, made up of Indians and whites of many and no denominations, but from the first service we realized that we were plunged into the midst of a revival meeting, for the Lord was present. People immediately began seeking salvation and the Christians seemed to feel that they, too, needed to be made holy in that Awful Presence. Perhaps two hundred knelt at the altar for pardon or purity. The whole work of the Reservation is strengthened and much done to clarify the religious atmosphere.

Brother Bennard did some mighty preaching. He so led us into the very presence of God that a modernist would feel his need of a holy, blood-bought salvation, and the radical Pentecostal would fear to attempt to "use" the Holy Spirit. He went from the serious to the humorous without the loss of conviction and was so interesting that every one wished for him to go on, but we were much more impressed with the man's mighty Savior and the great salvation that he preached. He has a message too big for men. My District Superintendent, who was with us the last three days, invited Bro. Bennard to come back for meetings in any or all of his churches.

Brother Murray L. Morford, of Portland, led the singing very effectively and his voice and solos were greatly appreciated by all.

Dean C. Poindexter.

Missionary on the Klamath Indian Reservation.

REPORT OF EVANGELIST W. W. LOVELESS.

It has been sometime since I reported, but not because I have been idle. I have been very busy, and am still in the fight. Some of my meetings were good victories, and some not so good. Most of April I spent in Lake Charles, La., with the Church of The Nazarene. I found Rev. Charles Woodson, the pastor, and his fine people to be the salt of the earth. My! how I did enjoy preaching to them. We had some good fruit in this revival. On my way back to Ohio I preached one night for Rev. L. B. Matthews and his fine band of Nazarenes in Birmingham, Ala., and one night in the First Church of The Nazarene in Chattanooga, Tenn. Rev. W. M. Tidwell has one of the greatest churches in the world, I believe. This great and good pastor has served this church for over 20 years and preaches to congregations ranging from 1,000 to 1,200 every Sunday.

After our great District Assembly of the Church of The Nazarene in Troy, Ohio, I hastened to Pittsburgh, Pa., and had a fine two-weeks' meeting in Everybody's Mission. We had quite a number of seekers here and some splendid cases of salvation.

My next engagement was in Lancaster, Ky. Rev. Joe Tyson and his good wife had charge of the music and singing here. We rented a large Opera House, and had large crowds and some good fruit in this revival. Rev. Ollie Johnson was serving as temporary pastor, and is a fine man. We are expecting to hear good things from Lancaster.

From Lancaster we went to Monticello, Ky., where last winter we had a fine revival which ended by organizing a Church of The Nazarene with 30 members. Rev. J. A. Norris is their good pastor. We had a real battle here and some difficulties to face that militated against the meeting. One thing was sickness in the home of dear Brother Norris, so that he did not get to attend much. His fine son, aged about 21 years, died during the revival, but he died shouting the praises of God. This sickness and death divided the interest in the revival, yet we had a good victory. Among the converts was an old blind lady 78 years old who had never been saved. At present we are in Warsaw, Ohio, in a camp and the outlook is good for a great victory. We are expecting to keep true, and keep busy. Amen.

W. W. Loveless.

If You Want Something

Convincing on the tithe, something that tells you what God says about it, send 10c and get a copy of "Will A Man Rob God." It is a splendid little book to hand out to members of your church who do not believe in tithing. We will send one dozen for $1.00.

THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD

Published Weekly by
Pentecostal Publishing Company
523 So. First St., Louisville, Kentucky.

OUR CONTRIBUTORS

Rev. G. Whitefield Simonson	Rev. Len G. Broughton	Rev. Bud Robinson
Rev. O. G. Minglehoff, D.D.	Rev. L. R. Akers, D.D.	Rev. Henry Ostrom
Rev. Richard W. Lewis, D.D.	Rev. G. W. Ridout, D.D.	Rev. C. M. Griffith
Rev. Andrew Johnson, D.D.	Rev. P. F. Asher, B.D.	Rev. J. H. Smith
Rev. C. F. Wimberly, D.D.	Rev. E. E. Shelhamer	Rev. C. W. Ruth
	Rev. J. B. Culpepper

Six Months in Advance $.75
One Year in Advance 1.50
Foreign Countries 2.00

CONCERNING SUBSCRIPTIONS

Subscription Discontinued When Time Is Out.
In ordering address changed give both OLD and NEW address. Write all names plainly with pen and ink or typewriter.
Notify us promptly of any irregularities in receiving your paper.
For distribution, to secure new subscribers, sample copies will be sent free on application.
Remit by Registered Letter, New York Exchange, Express, or Post Office Money Order.

(Continued from page 1)

was saved. I preached frequently in the jail, and down in crowds on the street corner.

I had some good revivals while there. I was assisted by Bros. Will Rowland, John Keen Henck, Dr. Rinehart, Bro. and Sister Collins, and Dr. Tigert, afterwards made bishop. Dr. Tigert, then Professor in Vanderbilt University, came up and spent a Sabbath with me, preaching morning and evening, with such power and grace that the church and people generally were anxious to have him return for a series of sermons; and while the summer season was not favorable for protracted meetings, yet as he could only be with us during vacation, we had him come to us for two weeks in the mid-summer. The memory of those two weeks rises vividly before me. The weather was so warm that we did not have day services; and the days, Dr. Tigert and myself spent alone following the bends in the river and climbing the beautiful hills and cliffs about Frankfort. Nights, we sat up until after midnight and talked of the greatest and best things. In these long walks and quiet conversations, I got a deep insight into the great man's mind and soul. Some such opportunity was necessary to know him as he was. There was massive strength in his intellect, and deep tenderness in his heart. In those days of close communion, he was without ostentation, was on the level of a brother, and listened with as much appreciative attention to what I had to say, as I did to his stronger words. I felt the lifting influence of his companionship, and from that time have had a devoted love for him, and a high confidence in his unswerving integrity. After the first week of the meetings, his wife came, and they were entertained at the home of one of our members, and broke up our night vigils, but not our daily tramps. How vividly I remember many things he said, the hills we climbed, and the paths we followed.

I was arranging to enter the evangelistic field at the next conference. At the first of the meeting, he begged me to remain in the pastorate, and talked of the great possibilities in that splendid field of service. He pointed out hardships and disadvantages in the evangelistic field. But I had been moved in the matter from above, and my heart was fixed. Before the meetings closed he said he believed it was my field, and the will of the Lord, and bid me Godspeed in the work. It is hard to bring myself to realize that he is gone. He entered the pastorate shortly after his visit with me, and after a few years was shut up in his study as book editor. I always grieved over this. He was the best man in the church for the place, perhaps; but I longed to see him on the firing line, in the battle for souls.

Through all these years he has been my true friend. However misunderstood, misjudged and misrepresented by others, it was always a comfort to my heart to know that this great, strong man knew me, and knew that my motives were pure, and my purpose and life consecrated to the promulgation and defense of saving truth. No one will understand me to say that he endorsed all that I said and did. I suppose he did not, but he gave me confidence and friendship in days when my heart hungered for the love of the brethren, which I shall treasure to my dying day.

I hate no man; in a sense I love all men, but I care but little for the companionship of the man who does not carry a burden on his heart. I love to get close to the man full of a great purpose, whose heart aches for the race, who is girded for battle, and who is never so happy as when in the midst of the fray. All honor to the man who has stood for something and fought and won, or died with the harness on.

(Continued)

Mountain Lake Park Camp Meeting

IT was my privilege to spend five days at the Mt. Lake Park Annual Holiness Camp Meeting. I made a long run from Wellington, Kan., spending three nights and most of two days on the train to get there, but it was well worth the trip to get on top of that beautiful mountain.

A choice people gather there once a year for this feast of the tabernacles in this famous spot where such multitudes have come to be blessed and gone on their way heavenward. I left this year just as the meeting was gaining momentum and growing in numbers of attendance and gracious power in salvation.

The workers this year were Rev. John Owen of Taylor University, one of the finest Christian gentlemen that you meet with in a lifetime, a great preacher, clear, convincing, with gracious drawing power. Rev. Charles Babcock lifts up and glorifies Jesus Christ; the people hear, believe, are mightily moved and come to the altar in droves and are blessed, converted, reclaimed, sanctified. Brother Charles Dunaway was also with them with his usual power and enthusiasm, a man of marvelous resources and a wonderfully fruitful ministry. He was exercising his evangelistic gifts most graciously. Andy Dolbow, now 82 years of age, with the physical, mental and spiritual activity of a man of excellent health at 57 or 60, had charge of the ring meeting and put life into it. Andy Dolbow is a most remarkable man. His dear wife, with whom he lived in happy harmony for 62 years, died a few weeks ago. He feels the loss very keenly, but rejoices on his way to meet and greet her in that City where separation never comes. Brother Wells and his wife had charge of the singing. They sing with great sweetness and unction, two of the very best in all the land for camp meetings and full salvation revivals.

The Mt. Lake Park meetings are growing in interest and Brother Hood of Moundsville, W. Va., who is the President of the camp, is full of enthusiasm for larger things in the upbuilding of the encampment, the increase of the attendance, and the permanency of this great work. Mt. Lake Park is one of the most beautiful, healthful, attractive spots in all the land. It is nearly 3,000 feet above sea level, well drained, beautifully shaded and altogether a most attractive and healthful spot. It is to be hoped that it may be made one of the greatest gatherings in all the land for the propagation of the gospel of full salvation from sin.

It was my great pleasure the short while I was there, preaching only five times, to meet with a host of HERALD readers, and I judge on the Sabbath there were not less than 25 old Asbury students. It was an inexpressible joy to meet with these friends and these delightful Asburians. May the blessing of God rest richly upon Mountain Lake and those who come and go from its beautiful sanctuary among the great oak trees at this wonderfully sacred spot of 10,000 precious memories in the highlands of Maryland. If the meetings at this camp abide and grow it must be a distinctively holiness camp meeting without any breaks or opposing bosses.

H. C. MORRISON.

Does it Pay to Be a Christian?

MRS. H. C. MORRISON.

SOME one asked Senator Dolliver, of Iowa, whether it was any advantage to a man to be a Christian, and his answer was as follows:

"I am convinced that there has been a great improvement in the morals of our public men during the past twenty-five years. I have made something of a study of this subject, examining into the habits and customs of the statesmen of the times of Clay and Webster, and for the intervening period, and I know that a great many habits and practices of those days would not be tolerated as honest. I think it is a decided advantage today to a public man to be known as a professing Christian. It is certainly true that no man who has openly scoffed at religion, has ever achieved a prominent place in the leadership of our people."

The above coming from one in authority, and who has, as he says, made a study of the subject, is a frank confession of a public man who has no "ax to grind" by thus expressing himself, therefore we conclude that he is making a frank statement based on observation and candid judgment. We appreciate the above, coming as it does from a source which does not savor of the ecclesiastical, but however much we respect the opinions of men high up in civil affairs, there is no testimony so strong and forceful as that contained in the old Book, upon which all civil law is founded.

Let us hear what the wisest man said through the pages of inspiration in Prov. 14:34: "Righteousness exalteth a nation: but sin is a reproach to any people." If this be true of nations, as the margin reads, does it not apply equally as well to the individual? Let us read it thus: Righteousness exalteth an individual: but sin is a reproach to any man or woman. Paraphrasing it in this way we have an answer to the above query which the powers of evil cannot overthrow or refute.

Why is it an advantage to be a Christian? In the first place, we would say that it is an advantage because right is stronger than wrong. Truth is mightier than error. As one has truly said,

"Truth crushed to earth, will rise again,
The eternal years of God are hers,
While error writhing, sinks in pain,
And dies amid its worshippers."

In the second place, we believe in the old adage that, "Honesty is the best policy." One has but to keep his eyes open to see that the man who does the square thing in the sight of God and man, is the one who will be promoted to places of trust and influence. We do not say that a man who is not a Christian, will not be upright and honest in his dealings with his fellow-men, but we do not hesitate to affirm that the Christian indeed, will be found worthy of the confidence by those who have committed their interests to his keeping. A man cannot be a Christian and be dishonest, so the matter to determine is, are you a Christian?

In the third place, it is an advantage to be a Christian, because the highest code of morals known to man are those laid down by the Maker of all law, hence the only way for a life to be the best that it may, is to pattern after the tables of stone given to Moses. Paul felt the force of square-dealing when he said, Provide for honest things, not only in the sight of the Lord, but also in the sight of men.

In the fourth place, it is better to be a Christian, for we have the Lord as the strength of our life. The Psalmist declared that, "Blessed is the man whose strength is in thee." Surely if the voice of inspiration pronounces a man under such conditions, blessed, there is left no room for controversy on the matter. Man was never intended to be an independent creature as far as his relation to God is concerned, but we are ever to recognize the fact that, without supernatural help, we can do nothing, but rejoice in the marvelous truth that we can do all things through Christ who strengtheneth us. The consciousness of this superhuman power led the inspired writer to exclaim, "For by thee I have run through a troop; and by my God have I leaped over a wall." Thus we see that being a Christian, opens to us the resources of the divine storehouse, the keys of which are turned over to all who fully commit themselves to the Keeper. In answer to the prayer of faith, the Master said, "O woman, great is thy faith: be it unto thee even as thou wilt." Even stronger language than this is used when it was declared, "All things are yours, and ye are Christ's, and Christ is God's," thus linking us on to the Father through Jesus Christ. What more need a human being desire? Surely with such a backing, no one should make a failure of this life, but allow the Creator to direct and plan our lives so they will be turned into those channels where the greatest good can flow from them.

Let us hear the advice that David gave his son, Solomon: "And thou, Solomon my son, know thou the God of thy father, and serve him with a perfect heart and with a willing mind: For the Lord searcheth all hearts, and understandeth all the imaginations of the thoughts: if thou seek him, he will be found of thee; but if thou forsake him, he will cast thee off forever." What a glorious reward on the one hand and what an awful fate on the other! To have God on your side, or to be cast off forever, is not a question that should be debated, yet men rush on in sin as if there were no higher tribunal than themselves, or no day of reckoning. It is no wonder that Paul exhorted the Corinthians to endeavor to be accepted of the Lord whether present or absent. "For," says he, "we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ; that every one may receive the things done in the body, according to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad."

Did it pay Paul to give up worldly ambitions, social prestige, prospect of position and all that he held dear from an earthly standpoint? We shall give him the witness stand and let him testify for himself. "But what things were gain to me, those I counted loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord: for whom I have suffered the loss of all things, and do count them but dung that I may win Christ." You say Paul was speaking under the impulse of a new experience, and that his ardor will cool down as the days go by? Well, let us hear his testimony as he is nearing his departure and see if he has changed his mind. "I have fought a good fight. I have finished my course, I have kept the faith: henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me at that day: and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing."

With these solemn facts before us which have to be met at the judgment, and the truth that whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap, it behooves us to seek diligently the right way and walk humbly before our God, that we may shun the pitfalls of Satan here and make sure of an abundant entrance into the everlasting kingdom prepared for the redeemed of all ages.

AUTHENTICITY AND INSPIRATION OF THE SCRIPTURES.

(Continued from page 5)

full that finally a Jew was sold for a pair of slippers. At last no one would buy, and three thousand Jewish slaves were left to starve to death. This is a direct fulfillment to the prophecy in Deuteronomy 28:68, "The Lord shall bring thee into Egypt again with ships; and there shall ye be sold unto your enemies for bondmen and bondwomen, and no man shall buy thee." In 2 Kings 6:25-29 we get a graphic picture of the direful situation of Jerusalem about five hundred years after the prophecy of its destruction, "And there was a great famine in Samaria: and, behold, they besieged it until an ass's head was sold for fourscore pieces of silver, and the fourth part of a cab of dove's dung for five pieces of silver. And as the king of Israel was passing by upon the wall, there cried a woman unto him, saying, Help my Lord, O king. And he said, If the Lord do not help thee, whence shall I help thee? Out of the barnfloor or out of the wine-press? And the king said unto her, What aileth thee? And she answered, This woman said unto me, Give thy son, that we may eat him today, and we will eat my son tomorrow. So we boiled my son and did eat him: and I said unto her on the next day, Give thy son, that we may eat him: and she hath hid him."

In Jeremiah 19:7-11 we read the prophecy of the final destruction of Jerusalem, "And I will make void the counsel of Judah and Jerusalem in this place; and I will cause them to fall by the sword before their enemies, and by the hands of them that seek their lives; and their carcasses will I give to be meat for the fowls of heaven, and for the beasts of the earth. And I will make this city desolate, and an hissing: every one that passeth thereby shall be astonished and hiss, because of all the plagues thereof. And I will cause them to eat the flesh of their sons, and flesh of their daughters, and they shall eat every one the flesh of his friend, in the siege and straitness wherewith their enemies and they that seek their lives shall straiten them. Then shall thou break the bottle in the sight of the men that fought with thee, and shalt say unto them, Thus saith the Lord of Hosts, even so will I break this people, and this city, as one breaketh a potter's vessel, that cannot be made whole again; and they shall bury them in Tophet, till there be no place to bury." Micah reiterates this when he says in the third chapter of his prophecy; verses 9 to 12, "Hear this, I pray you, ye heads of the house of Jacob, and princes of the house of Israel, that abhor judgment, and pervert equity. They build up Zion with blood, and Jerusalem with iniquity. The heads thereof judge for reward, and the priests thereof teach for hire, and the prophets thereof divine for money; yet will they lean upon the Lord and say, Is not the Lord among us? none evil can come upon us. Therefore shall Zion for your sake be ploughed as a field, and Jerusalem shall become heaps, and the mountain of the house as the high places of the forest." How completely these prophecies have been fulfilled history plainly testifies.

The last set of prophecies concerning the Jewish nation that we desire to call attention to is that concerning the return of the Jews to their native land. In Deuteronomy 30:1-3 we read, "And it shall come to pass, when all these things are come upon thee, the blessing and the curse, which I have set before thee, and thou shalt call them to mind among all the nations, whither the Lord thy God hath driven thee, and shall return unto the Lord thy God, and shalt obey his voice according to all that I command thee this day, thou and thy children, with all thine heart, and with all thy soul; that then the Lord thy God will turn thy captivity, and have compassion upon thee, and will return and gather thee from all the nations whither the Lord thy God hath scattered thee." Nearly seven hundred years later Isaiah said in Chapter 11:11, 12, "And it shall come to pass in that day, that the Lord shall set his hand again the second time to recover the remnant of his people, which shall be left, from Assyria, and from Egypt, and from Pathros, and from Cush, and from Elam, and from Shinar, and from Hamath, and from the islands of the sea. And he shall set up an ensign for the nations, and shall assemble the outcasts of Israel, and gather together the dispersed of Jacob from the four corners of the earth." Jeremiah records in the twenty-third chapter of his prophecy, verses 5, 7, 8, "And I will gather the remnant of my flock out of all countries whither I have driven them, and will bring them again to their folds; and they shall be fruitful and increase. Therefore, behold, the days come, saith the Lord, that they shall no more say, The Lord liveth which brought up the children of Israel out of the land of Egypt; but, The Lord liveth, which brought up and which led the seed of the house of Israel out of the north country, and from all countries whither I had driven them; and they shall dwell in their own land." In Jeremiah 33:7, 8 God says, "And I will cause the captivity of Israel to return, and will build them, as at the first. And I will cleanse them from all their iniquity, whereby they have sinned against me; and I will pardon all their iniquities whereby they have sinned, and whereby they have transgressed against me." These prophecies are at this very period of history beginning to be fulfilled. Jerusalem today is a fairly good-sized city. For several years the Jews have been going back home; and all signs point to its rapid re-population. The power of the Turk has been lifted from the country, and the movement to rehabilitate Jerusalem and country is assuming vast proportions.

(Continued)

A Liberal Offer.

Trevecca College, located at Nashville, Tenn., is the Nazarene school for the Southland. It is well located and has been doing a good work. The school finds itself in pressing need for $50,000 and we are glad to notice that Mr. John P. Benson, a very devout and consecrated business man of Nashville, has agreed to give $25,000 toward the sum above mentioned if the other friends of the school will raise a like sum by October 1. It is to be hoped that the friends of Trevecca will rally earnestly to this splendid offer and raise the amount necessary to avail themselves of the generous offer of Brother Benson.

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS

THE PENCIL AND ERASER. For Children.

On my fifth birthday, a good woman made me a present of a lead pencil, without an eraser. I made many mistakes trying to draw and write. So I got a rubber eraser which fitted over one end of the pencil, and in time I wore the rubber out, erasing my mistakes and blunders; but every mark I erased meant improvement. I prized the pencil very highly, but I think I liked the eraser just as much, for it helped me to do better. Well children, I am grown up now, and still use an eraser, for I still make mistakes. But the ones I am most sorry for, will not rub out,—wrong thoughts, words, and deeds. Sinful habits, missteps, neglect: what tears of regret these caused me. But I kept to the slogan of the good woman who gave me the pencil—"Never too poor to pray, never too weak to win." Jesus long ago forgave my sins, but even he does not erase the memory of them, I cannot forget, nor go back to undo the past. Dear children, learn a lesson from the pencil and eraser,—watch your step; do not begin a wrong habit, for it cannot be erased like a pencil mark. Here are two lines from St. John, the first is good,—"If we sin we have an Advocate with the Father." The second is better,—"Little children I write unto you that ye sin not." For if you sin not, then you will not have the regret. Write me for my poem, "School Children." T. Richardson Gray, Green Ridge, Mo.

Dear Aunt Bettie: May I join your happy band of boys and girls? I have never written to The Herald and hope to see this letter in print. I am a boy four feet, two inches tall. I have brown hair and blue eyes. I will be nine years old January 9. Have I a twin? Mabel Fuget, I guess your name to be Lillian. If so, send me a card. Love to Aunt Bettie and the cousins. Harvey Downing, Depeystr, N. Y.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I am a lonely Hoosier boy, age sixteen. I have brown hair, brown eyes, and a fair complexion. I thought that you would let me join your happy band of boys and girls. I have not been reading The Herald very long, but I always love to read page ten. I find it interesting, and a new group of boys and girls every week. I would love to hear from all who read this letter. Charles W. Fields, Jr., Tipton, Ind.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a little Ohio girl join your happy band of boys and girls? I have gray eyes, brown hair. I go to Sunday school every Sunday. I am in the seventh grade at school. Wake up, Ohio boys and girls, the other states are getting ahead of us. Who can guess my age, between eleven and fourteen? My birthday is April 9. Have I a twin? Who can guess my name? It begins with A and ends with A, has four letters in it. This is my first letter. My grandmother lives with us; she takes The Herald. I enjoy reading page ten. Mae Hall, I guess your name to be Annie. Am I right? I hope Mr. W. B. has gone fishing and fell in when my letter arrives. I wish someone would write to me. I will answer all the letters I receive. Ruth Shumway, Sumner, Ohio.

Dear Aunt Bettie: How are you and all the cousins? I wonder if any of the cousins remember me? I am a Nebraska girl twelve years old. I wonder how many have gone in swimming? Two other girls and I fastened the spray on to the hose and turned the water on and went in in our bathing suits. I am visiting my Aunt and Uncle. They get The Herald. I sure like to read it. I always turn to page ten as soon as I get it. What is the matter with Nebraska? Wake up, boys and girls of Nebraska, don't let the other states beat us. I attend the Christian Church, but since I am visiting my aunt and uncle in the country I go to a Union Sunday school. I will not take up too much room, so the other cousins may have some. I hope to receive letters from any boys or girls who would like to write to me. I will gladly answer all letters I receive. Genevieve McNett, 217 W. 3rd St., Alliance, Neb.

Dear Aunt Bettie: How are you and all the cousins? Aunt Bettie, I sold all those mottoes that I got, the same day I got them, and received the Testament. I like it fine. I wrote a letter to you and the cousins before, but my name was misprinted. It was printed Corinne Waters. Whoever guesses my middle name I will write them a letter. It begins with H and ends with E and has eight letters in it. I hope Mr. Waste Basket is feeding his chickens when this letter arrives. Corinne Watne, Rt. 3, Cooperstown, N. Dak.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I have been reading your interesting letters for quite a bit. I would be glad to hear from all of the cousins who wish to write me. I am five feet, ½ inch tall, blue-eyed, have fair complexion and black hair. I am a Christian girl, don't go to dances or anything that way, for I don't believe it is right. My age is between seventeen and twenty. Who is my twin? I am still blessed with father and mother and I have two brothers and one sister. I go to meeting once every month and to Sunday school every Sunday. We have a good singing school of morning and in the afternoon Sunday school. I am going to leave for Illinois next Monday so if any of the cousins want to write to me please send it to Springfield, Ill., Box 95. Mary E. Roberts.

Dear Aunt Bettie: May I join your happy band of boys and girls? This is my first letter to The Herald and I hope to see it in print. I was eight years old last February. I am in the fourth grade. I have dark hair, brown eyes and fair complexion. I have three brothers and two sisters. I go to church and Sunday school whenever I can. My teacher's name is Mrs. Neely. She is sure a god teacher. I live on a farm and help daddy with the work. Grandma takes The Pentecostal Herald and I like to read it, especially page ten. Donald Miller, Rt. 8, Ashland, Ohio.

Dear Aunt Bettie: This is my first letter to The Herald and hope to see it in print. I am twelve years old and in the seventh grade. I go to Sunday school every Sunday I can. Rev. LeRoy is our pastor. The one who guesses my first name I will write you a long letter. It starts with H and ends with E and has six letters in it. Martha M. Graham, I guess your age to be thirteen. If I am right I hope to hear from you. H. Gouie Price, Box 55, Beebe, Ark.

Dear Aunt Bettie: As I have written several times and have always seen my letters printed I am writing again. I don't see many Michigan letters so I guess I'll have to write to keep us on the map. A good way to get acquainted with holiness young people is to write to this page. So anyone that is lonesome or wants someone to write too, just try it and see. Will close for this time still praising Jesus for full and free salvation. Your cousin and brother in Christ, Walter H. Quandt, Royal Oak, Mich.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I enjoy reading the letters in The Pentecostal Herald. I am ten years old, and about 54 inches tall. I am converted but not yet sanctified. I would like all the Christian cousins to pray for me that I will be sanctified. I have one sister and one brother. I will be in the fifth grade at school this coming term. Our school closed June 17, 1927. The cousins who are Christians know how it feels to be saved. My mother, father and sister are Christians, but my brother pays little or no attention to the cause of Jesus Christ. We have one school and one church in Pennsylvania. I love the hymn called "Love Lifted Me", for if it wasn't for the great love of Jesus Christ, I would not be a Christian today. I would like some of the cousins to write to me. As this is my first letter, I would like to see it in print. Sophie H. Thorein, Box 14, Pennsville, N. J.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I am a little girl eight years old. My daddy is optometrist in St. Helens, Ore. I go to the M. E. Church and Sunday school there. I am in Scotts Mills now visiting my grandpa and grandma. I like to read The Herald. My mamma brought me a little dog Saturday. The dog's name is Tiny. I am a Christian girl. Margare Bartholomew, St. Helens, Ore.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a Indiana girl join your happy band of boys and girls? I have light brown hair, fair complexion, blue eyes and I am five feet, four inches high. I am in the seventh grade in school. My birthday is Feb. 16. Have I a twin? I will write to the one who has my birthday. Della Mae Vanover, Deputy, Ind.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let an Ohio boy join your Christian band? I am a boy thirteen years old, nearly five feet tall, have brown eyes and light brown hair. I am in the seventh grade. We take The Pentecostal Herald and I like to read page ten. I love my Savior and try to be, say and do as good as I would like to be when Jesus comes. I had a trip to Asbury College for Commencement. It sure was good. I know I am saved and sanctified now. Aunt Bettie, I am afraid I am writing too long, so I will close. Binford Dehnert, Rt. 16, Box 37, Mt. Heights, Ohio.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Here I come again. I saw my letter in print and decided to write again. I am the same Mississippi girl that I was when I last wrote. I am still enjoying the presence of my Lord Jesus. I am trying to serve him for I know it pays. May the 7th has past and now at the age of fifteen I am striving to do my Master's will. I never shall forget Friday night before the fourth Sunday in August, 1926. Jesus came into my heart to dwell. How sweet is the love of my Savior and 'tis growing dearer and dearer to me. I was saved in a revival conducted by Rev. B. G. Carnes. He is a great minister of Christ. Probably some of you know him. We have a new Methodist Church, of which I am a member. It has been built since August, 1926. Before this we didn't even have Sunday school. In September we organized a Sunday school and also an Epworth League. We have prayer meeting, too. I am secretary of the Sunday school, Treasurer of the League, Golden Cross director of this church. I help get up all the programs and take part in them. Pray that God will give me strength of mind and body to keep all my work going. My desire is to tell the world Jesus saves. I want to sing his praise with an understanding. Now let me have the pleasure of writing part of a song I love to sing, which is entitled "Praise God, I'm Satisfied."

"My heart was always restless, I sought peace everywhere. I found no satisfaction And gave up in despair Until I learned the story, How Jesus bled and died To purchase me on Calvary's tree, Now I am satisfied." May God's richest blessings rest upon you all is my prayer. Ethel Mae Stone, Meehan, Miss.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Here I am again after about a year's absence. Most of you cousins do not recognize me, so I will now introduce myself by saying I am a girl of nineteen years, attending business school here in Arcadia. I enjoy my school work very much, and hope to finish in near future, then I will be ready for work if the Lord wills. I do not go to shows of any kind, dance, play cards, read novels or any trashy literature of any kind. I am interested in the better things in

Gospel Tents

Smith Manufacturing Company.
DALTON, GA.
22 Years in Business

J. H. DICKEY
of
BARRETT, ROBINSON & DICKEY

General Insurance—Bonds, etc., solicits your patronage.
7th Floor, Columbia Bldg.
Louisville, Ky.

200 Sheets 100 Envelopes

PERSONAL STATIONERY

High Grade White Bond Paper, size 5½ x 7 inches, with envelopes to match. Every sheet and envelope printed in black type up to 4 lines, with your name, business, and address

This Stationery also makes an IDEAL GIFT.
Shipment within 10 days after receipt of order. ORDER NOW!

Pentecostal Pub. Co.,
Louisville, Ky.
Gentlemen:
Enclose please find $1.00 for which send me postpaid, a box of your Personal Stationery consisting of 200 sheets of Paper and 100 Envelopes printed as follows:

To avoid errors write or print clearly life. I am reading the book, "Beautiful Girlhood." I think it is just wonderful; it gives so much good advice to girls, and contains many things mother has often advised me about. Thanks be to the Lord for the good people who are able and willing to publish good literature, and send it out to both old and young. I was converted about six years ago, and my desire today is to be a Christian. How many of you cousins try to obey your parents, and believe it is your duty? I do. We are having pleasant weather down here in the land of flowers. Of course we have some hot days, but it is breezy most of the time. I will be glad to receive letters from any of the cousins. Will try and answer all letters received. Vesta Walker, Box 63, Arcadia, Fla.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you admit a Kentucky girl into your happy band of boys and girls? Thank you, Aunt Bettie. I certainly enjoy reading The Herald. I wish I could go to some of the camp meetings this summer and hear those wonderful sermons preached and see souls blessed. My desire is that I may do good in this world for the Lord, but it seems that I am doing very little. Cousins, we ought to be thankful that things are as well as they are. We have two churches in our community, Methodist and Baptist Church. Both churches have pastors that seem to love the people of both churches alike. We are having a good Sunday school in our community. I am teacher of the young folks, but I had rather be taught. We have a nice crowd of young people here. I am expecting to start to high school in August. It will be my Senior year. I started to high school in 1924 and have taught two schools. I like teaching fine but I had rather go to school than teach. My birthday was May 17. Do I have a twin? Who can guess my first name? It begins with M and ends with E, and has six letters. I am between twenty and twenty-five. Would like to receive letters from the cousins. Bessie Childress, here are the answers to your questions. Jonah was cast into the ocean because he did not want to obey God. He stayed in the fish three days and three nights. Love to all.

M. Florence Owens,
Rt. 2, Smiths Grove, Ky

"PROFIT AND LOSS."

Evangelist H. J. McNeese.

Text: "For what shall it profit a man, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul?" Mark 8:36.

It is the custom of most business men to have their book-keepers prepare what is known as the profit and loss statement at the close of each fiscal month in order to ascertain the financial condition of the firm or individual. And we believe it is the right way to find out. Yet, too often we think God out of order for writing in the language of our text.

God has always had a message for the people and always will. First of all let us ask a few questions: Can one man gain the whole world? No. Henry Ford is rich, but he does not own a tenth of our own Nation. What is a soul worth? Ten times the wealth of the whole world at the least. Yet here we go selling out for a mess of beans, movies, dances, card parties.

"Twill profit thee nothing,
But fearful the cost,
To gain the whole world
If thy soul should be lost."

LENNON REVIVAL.

Rev. Harvey Hysell and wife came to Lennon, Mich., and started a tent campaign on June 26, under the auspices of the M. E. Church. The Lord was very gracious, giving splendid weather throughout the entire meeting. Although the number of those blessed was not as great as we had hoped, yet the revival was a great blessing to the church and community. Several sought and found Christ as their Savior, and some were definitely sanctified. It was a clean, rather than a big, work. Fifteen subscriptions for The Pentecostal Herald were sent in. The spiritual life of the entire church is strengthened, and as a people we are encouraged to press the battle for further victory.

We can say for Bro. Hysell that he preaches the full gospel fearlessly, yet humbly. He is true to God and kind to the people. He has won the hearts of everyone here, and we heartily commend him for revival work anywhere. Mrs. Hysell is an artist at the piano, and also sings the gospel message into the hearts of the people. We hope to have Brother and Sister Hysell with us again.

Hugh S. Townley, Pastor.

HANNIBAL, MISSOURI.

April 10-24 was spent in services with The Holiness Mission people in Hannibal, Mo. A band of choice saints carry on that work. Jesus surely included them when he said—"Ye are the salt of the earth." Always ready for prayer, praise, song or labor about the altar. They have a commodious, two-story brick building, free from debt, with living rooms up-stairs and audience room below. God gave us some souls. Bro. Edson Crosby was with us and played on the Silver Bells each service. The sunrise Sunday prayer meetings were signally blessed of God. Some came down from Quincy and other near-by towns and helped us push the battle.

Went to Davis, Mo., from May 1 to 15. The meeting was held in the Baptist Church and they showed us every kindness. Frequent rains, bad roads, and swollen streams hindered regular attendance from a distance. We enjoyed our labor among that people.

Stopped one night with Brother and Sister Box in St. Louis. Had the rare treat of hearing the noted English minister, G. Campbell Morgan. His theme was "The Pharisee's Problem." They criticised Jesus for associating and eating with sinners, fearing he would be contaminated by them, but each time Jesus lifted them to his plane of morals and spiritual life.

May 17 we began a meeting in Neoga, Ill., with a Pilgrim Holiness preacher, who went in there from Mattoon with a burden for lost souls in that place. He has the support and sympathy of a company of spiritual people who are eager for soul food, and 'twas easy to preach to them. Our fellowships were refreshing and encouraging. I trust all were benefited by the word of God.

A terrible rain and electric storm came up about church time the last Sunday night and only a few got to the church. God gave us one soul, and we rejoiced in him, even though the lights went out several times and rain poured, flooding streets, thereby converting them into streams. Still I could say:

"There is nothing in the world like Jesus,
He's the treasure of my soul;
When I'm troubled he dispels my sorrow,
When I'm sick he makes me whole."

Closed Decoration Day evening. Am ready now to use the sword of the Spirit in some other place.

Della B. Stretch.

WEST VIRGINIA MEETINGS.

Our Hamlin meetings closed in a blaze of glory. Several souls prayed through victorious at the last service and shouted the praise of God for a new found experience. There was hardly a barren altar service in the whole revival excepting the first few nights. One night it was all altar service. When the collection was being taken a lady came crying to the altar, others kept coming until fifteen prayed through to victory. There were 115 professions, people of all ages. It was an old-time revival of real conviction, earnest praying, and triumphant shouts. At least four went home under conviction and prayed through to deliverance at 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning.

This meeting like the one held at South Charleston, W. Va., had the same number of professions, 115, either saved, reclaimed and sanctified, with definite experiences after prayer and earnest seeking. At each place we had a praying band of people that held on with us till things came to pass. To God be all the glory. The children's services conducted by Bro. Kildow Lovejoy, were also a great feature in this revival.

We spent Saturday and Sunday with Bro. Browning in the two last days of the camp meeting in Charleston, W. Va. He closed up with great victory and an altar full of souls that were prayed to overflowing joy.

We are just starting our campaign in Wayne, W. Va., a county seat town of near 2,000 population and three churches. Our tent is situated in a beautiful grove near the center of the town. The opening services are encouraging. Pray for us. There is great need for a God-sent revival here.

H. T. Heironimus,
Mrs. H. T. Heironimus,
Elizabeth Heironimus,
Kildow Lovejoy,
Gospel Tent Quartet.

If you need some new material for your prayer meeting talks, get "Outline Chalk Talks", by Paul E. Holdcraft. It is brim full of material, just such as you need. It costs only 75c. Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky.

WHAT'S IN A BOOK?

CONDUCTED BY

REV. Z. T. JOHNSON, A. B., B. O., M. A.

Jerusalem, Past and Present, by G. G. Atkins. $1.25.

Jerusalem; "the city of undying memories." It has held the interest of the world for three thousand years. What a history it has! Ruled by Rome, by Egypt, by the Turk, it has had a checkered career. It has heard the tread of marching armies through the centuries. Its walls have shivered under the impact of the battering ram, and crushed by cannon ball. The Moslems have scorned it. Men like the Kaiser of Germany have ridden proudly through its broken wall. It took a man from a Christian nation, General Allenby, to get down from his horse and walk reverently through its gates when the city came under his care.

This book by Dr. Atkins gives a history of Jerusalem in six chapters. They are: 1. Introductory. 2. Jerusalem, the Glory of the Great King. 3. Jerusalem, the Desire of the Exile. 4. Jerusalem, the Despair of Our Lord. 5. Jerusalem, the Goal of the Crusader. 6. Jerusalem, the Hope of the Soul.

This work is valuable as history. It is especially useful as religious history, particularly that of the Jew as it connects with the city. It is good reading matter.

Sermons on Great Tragedies of the Bible, by Rev. Ashley Chappell, D.D. $1.60.

"The Tragedy of Sin"; "Of the Insufficient"; "Of Wrong Decision"; "Of the Almost"; "Of the Missing Bridegroom"; "Of the Ashen Face"; "Of Losing One's Soul"; "Victory and Defeat"; "Of the Blighted Memory"; "Sin's Insanity"; "Of Spiritual Death"; "Of the Empty Hand"; "The Test of Fire"; "The Tragedy of Spiritual Sleep" are the titles of fourteen sermons found in this book.

This is another of the popular books of sermons by this great "down-town preacher." There is a literary charm about them that has its appeal. Many suggestions may be found in them for use in Christian work. The book has a beautiful blue binding with gold titles. It has 136 pages.

Quiet Talks on John's Gospel, by S. D. Gordon. $1.25.

The messages in this book are built around the topics discussed by the Apostle in the Gospel of John. It is not on the commentary style; but the whole book centers in the message of John as one of Divine Love as revealed by Christ. The Christian Work says, "It is to this message that Mr. Gordon directs attention. His method has in it nothing of verse-by-verse commentary, nor even of chapter-study. He halts his reader here and there, at some precious text, some outstanding instance of God's tenderness, much as a traveler lingers for refreshment at a wayside spring or tarries in a sheltered vale, and bids us hearken as God's wooing note is heard pleading, with rare entreaty, for the heart's allegiance, and for consecrated service."

There are seven chapters: "John's Story", which deals with the prologue; "The Wooing Lover"; "The Lover Wooing"; "Closer Wooing"; "The Greatest Wooing"; "An Appointed Tryst Unexpectedly Kept"; "Another Tryst." They give the love picture of Christ in his relations to men. There are many suggestive thoughts in the book for sermon material. It is splendid as a devotional study. It would be good to read around the family altar at night.

Outline Chalk Talks, by Paul E. Holdcraft. 75c.

This is a booklet of 50 outlines of talks for blackboard use. The drawings are easy to make; and the talks thus illustrated are very fine indeed. One cannot appreciate this book without seeing it.

If one cannot draw, the outlines given in these talks make splendid prayer meeting topics. Many have bought this book for just that purpose. There are enough topics to last a whole year of prayer meetings. You will not regret the money you spend for a book like this. Try it.

Heart Talks, by Rev. Lovick Pierce Law. $1.00.

Mr. Law is a General Evangelist in the M. E. Church, South. He has put into this book twelve addresses that have been delivered to morning congregations in his revival meetings over various parts of the United States. The style of the sermons is evangelistic. They are not scintillating gems of literary skill—they were not produced as such—but they have a personal appeal about them that belongs peculiarly to the man who produced them.

Some of the best are: "The Greatest Thing in the World"; "We are His Witnesses"; "Character"; "A Call to Fellowship and Fruit Bearing"; "A Cripple in Your Pathway." A poem at the close of the book, "Reading the Appointments" is very good, and well worth reading.

More Sermons on Biblical Characters, by Rev. C. G. Chappell, D.D. $1.00.

Dr. Chappell's Sermons on Biblical Characters had a wide sale. This gave encouragement to this book and since its publication it has gone through four editions.

There are sixteen sermons given here on different characters depicted in the Scriptures. Some of those I liked best are: "The Prodigal Wife—Gomer"; "A Full Man—Stephen"; "Coming by Night—Nicodemus"; "The Field Preacher—The Lily"; "Scarecrows—The Man of One Talent"; "The Undying Fire—Moses."

The things you will like about these sermons is the originality of interpretation and illustration and the graphic character of portrayal.

All of the books reviewed in these columns may be bought from The Pentecostal Publishing Company, Louisville, Kentucky.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.

Pray for a revival in Whittier, N. C.

Pray for a son to be saved from drink, and that his soul may be saved.

Pray for a family of unsaved children.

Pray for a man and his family to be saved and become soul winners.

Mrs. W. M. S.: "Pray for my husband and sons."

Mrs. C. A. M.: "Pray for my daughter-in-law who is sick, and for my son to be saved."

Mrs. L. B. U.: "Pray that my father may be saved."

Pray for a revival in Gettysburg, Pa.

Pray for a young woman who is almost in despair because of losing faith in God.

M. A. K.: "Pray that I may be saved and sanctified and healed of nervous trouble."

Mrs. J. A. Pruett: "Pray that I may be healed of asthma and another affliction."

Pray for a wife and mother who is in a critical nervous condition that she may be restored to her family.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

REV. O. G. MINGLEDORFF, D.D.

Lesson VIII.—August 21, 1927.

Subject.—God's Promise to David.
1 Chron. 17:1-12.

Golden Text.—Thy throne, O God, is for ever and ever: a sceptre of righteousness is the sceptre of thy kingdom. Hebrews 1:8.

Time.—About B. C. 1040.

Place.—Jerusalem.

Introduction.—At the close of our last lesson we learned that "David and all the house of Israel brought up the ark of the Lord with shouting, and with the sound of the trumpet." David danced before the Lord "with all his might." With him it was an expression of joyous worship; but Michal, Saul's daughter and David's wife, looked out of a window upon the wild movements of her royal spouse, and prepared a "curtain lecture" for his improvement. The good (?) sister was so indignant that she despised her husband in her heart. Wherefore she went out to meet him when she saw him returning to his domicile, and poured out upon him the vials of the wrath of her womanly indignation. What beautiful sarcasm she meted out to him: "How glorious was the king of Israel today, who uncovered himself today in the eyes of the handmaids of his servants, as one of the vain fellows shamelessly uncovered himself." Of course, she had prepared this little speech before hand, and had committed it to memory for the occasion; for such finely wrought venom does not gush out extempore. David's reply was dignified and manly: "It was before the Lord, which chose me before thy father, and before all his house, to appoint me ruler over the people of the Lord, over Israel; Therefore will I play before the Lord. And I will yet be more vile than thus, and will be base in mine own sight: and of the maidservants which thou hast spoken of, of them shall I be had in honor." Michal blundered, and was a discarded wife to the day of her death.

There is a lesson here that may be worth taking along. The criticisms of a godly, intelligent wife are good for a preacher; but God pity the poor fellow whose wife wishes him to shine for high appointments. Her criticisms carry the venom of damnation to her husband's heart. I am using strong language, because I am dealing with a strong subject. Unholy hands must not touch Jehovah's vessels. Many a good man has been helped by the gentle advice of a wife whose eye was single to God's glory; but many a man would have succeeded in his ministry, if a worldly-minded wife had held her tongue and swallowed her speech.

This brings us to the time when the ark of Jehovah had come to its resting place in the tabernacle in Jerusalem, after wandering for nearly five hundred years in the desert life of Israel and from place to place after the people had been settled in Canaan. There was as yet no permanent temple, or house of worship; but the old tabernacle of Moses, built in the wilderness, had perhaps been repaired, or—perchance—a new one had been provided to take the place of the old one when it was worn out. Here in this moveable tabernacle the ark of the Lord rested at the time of today's lesson.

Comments on the Lesson.

1. As David sat in his house, that

David said to Nathan the prophet.—This is a restful scene, if your imagination can picture it for you. The stir and excitement incident to the removal of the ark had passed away; and the prophet is visiting the king, in order that they may talk over some important matters of Church and State. Nathan might be termed a member of David's cabinet. The king has been thinking a bit, and seems to be conscience-smitten for neglect of duty towards Jehovah: "Lo, I dwell in a house of cedars, but the ark of the covenant of the Lord remaineth under curtains." David felt right about the matter, even though God was not yet ready for him to build the temple for his worship.

2. Do all that is in thy heart; for God is with thee.—Nathan had not yet heard from heaven on the subject, so was speaking his own mind instead of God's mind. God was with David, but he had not yet spoken.

3. The same night the word of God came to Nathan.—That changed things. Nathan could not speak definitely to David during the day; but in the night hours God gave him a clear message for the king.

4. Go tell David . . . Thou shalt not build me an house to dwell in.—That settled the matter for David. He must worship in a tent till the day of his death.

The remainder of the lesson is so simple that it hardly needs any critical comment of the wording of it. Jehovah reminds David that from the day wherein he brought Israel up out of Egypt, he had dwelt in tabernacles and tents, and that he had at no time even suggested to the rulers of the people to build him a house for his worship. He renews his oft-repeated promise to deliver them from their enemies, and to establish them in the land of Canaan. He even goes so far as to make a promise that the kingdom shall never fail; but we must not forget that all of God's promises are conditioned on man's good behavior. He promises salvation to all men through his Son Jesus Christ; but it is conditioned, for no one can be saved unless he by repentance and faith shall accept his part in that salvation. Likewise, he has promised the baptism of the Holy Ghost to all men; but no man will ever receive that baptism until he definitely accepts it by faith.

Jehovah would not permit David to build the temple (maybe it was because he had shed too much human blood), but he did give him a blessed promise, saying, "When thy days be expired that thou must go to be with thy fathers, that I will raise up thy seed after thee, which shall be of thy sons; and I will establish his kingdom." This was definitely fulfilled in his son Solomon; and the fulfillment would have been much larger, had Solomon stood true to God. It will be remembered that he backslid in the latter years of his life, and hereby cut short the promise that Jehovah made to his father David.

12. He shall build me an house.—David provided immense stores of building material—gold, silver, and other things; but he was not allowed to have any part in the actual erection of the temple; that was reserved for Solomon. I will establish his throne forever.—How shall we understand this? So far as men can see, the throne of David and of Solomon is gone for ever; and yet we read here the sacred promise of Jehovah that he would establish it for ever. Two explanations are open to us: (1) The promise was conditioned upon the faithful discharge of duty, and would fail if Solomon and his successors failed in office; (2) The other explanation is more satisfactory: The promise is true, and will be fulfilled in Jesus Christ who, on his human side, came of the seed of David. He is not only a Priest forever after the order of Melchizedek, but he is a king forever after an eternal inheritance. David's kingship over Israel was typical of Jesus Christ's kingship over all redeemed men and women for ever. God's word will never fail. When the affairs of this age are all finished, and the world redeemed and purified by its bath of fervent heat, we shall have it back as our everlasting inheritance, and Jesus Christ our Lord and Savior will forever be our reigning King. God's promise to David will be gloriously fulfilled in the redemption of the race and of the earth itself.

You will want to read about the "city of undying memories," or "Jerusalem, Past and Present," by G. G. Atkins. You will hear the tread of marching armies in their attacks on "the city of God" as you read its pages. Price $1.25. Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Kentucky.

DEEPER THAN THE STAIN HAS GONE.

By Raymond Browning.

(Suggested by a sermon of Dr. John Brasher's.)

Dark the sin that soiled man's nature,
Long the distance that he fell,
Far removed from hope and heaven
Near to deep despair and hell;
But there was a fountain opened
And the blood of God's own Son
Purifies the soul and reaches
Deeper than the stain has gone.

Conscious of that deep pollution
Sinners wander in the night.
Even though the Shepherd's calling,
Still they fear to face the light.
This the tender consolation
That should melt the heart of stone,—

This sweet balm of Gilead reaches
Deeper than the stain has gone.

All unworthy we who've wandered
And our eyes are wet with tears
As we think of love that sought us
Through the dreary wasted years;
Yet we walk this holy highway
For the pure in heart alone
Knowing Calvary's fountain reaches
Deeper than the stain has gone.

When with holy throngs we're standing
In the presence of the King
And our souls are lost in wonder
As the white-robed choirs sing
Then we'll praise the name of Jesus
With the millions round the throne,
Praise him for the power that reaches
Deeper than the stain has gone.

A NEW HYMN.

Dedicated to the Morrison Memorial.
A new hymn, entitled "I'm His Own," has just been published by Evangelist James V. Reid, noted hymn writer. It is a two-page chorus number with a flowing, glowing, singable melody and words full of spiritual inspiration. This is a chorus appropriate for evangelistic campaigns, Sunday schools, camp meetings, and specially serviceable as

BAPTISM QUESTION SETTLED

Oldest records confirm Sprinkling! Latest research finds original facts all should know. Illustrated book, plain as day, 30c; 5 for $1, to cover actual cost. Largest sale ever known. Ed. limited.

Mahaffey Press, Gray Court, S. C.

WANTED a young man to manage a small job shop. Good opportunity for the right man. Address Box 846, Monroe, La.

Know Your Bible

By AMOS R. WELLS

In this book are 1500 questions which any one ought to be able to answer if he really knows his Bible. Through using it, one will gradually familiarize himself with the splendor of the Bible, its variety, its literary values, its wisdom and the summary of all rules for success and happiness. It is simple, practical, entertaining and educational.

Price, $1.00.

PENTECOSTAL PUBLISHING CO.
Louisville, Kentucky.

GOSPEL TENTS

Write for Prices on NEW AND USED TENTS.

R. H. ARMBRUSTER CO.,
SPRINGFIELD, ILL.

Established 1875

We Aim To Please—Our Aim Is Good

a campaign song for Young Peoples' Assemblies and Conventions. It is printed on leaflets standard hymn size so that it may be conveniently pasted in your revival or camp meeting song book or regular Sunday school hymnal.

Bro. Reid offers to place the first 5,000 copies on sale for the Morrison Memorial Building at Asbury College. All proceeds from this first edition to be turned into the Memorial fund. The song will retail for 10c per single copy; 25 for $1.00; or $3.50 per hundred postpaid.

This is a good way to show your interest in the Morrison Memorial and at the same time get ample returns for your investment. Get your order in early, be the first to introduce the chorus to your congregation and help swell the Memorial fund.

Address all communications to James V. Reid, Publisher, 2912 Meadowbrook Drive, Ft. Worth, Tex.

S. D. Gordon has given the Christian world a rare treatise in his "Quiet Talks on John's Gospel." It will do you good to read it. Price $1.25. Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky.

ASBURY COLLEGE

WILMORE, KENTUCKY

A Cosmopolitan School

Born in a passion
for the evangeliza-
tion of the world.

standing for Wesleyan
Essentials. Fall session
opens September 14th.

Adequate training
consistent with a sound gospel faith.

Write for Bulletin.

MEMBER OF THE ASSOCIATION OF KEN-TUCKY COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES;
MEMBER OF THE ASSOCIATION OF AMER-ICAN COLLEGES.

L. R. AKERS, M.A., D.D., PRESIDENT.

W. BRANDT HUGHES, M.A., DEAN.

The School With a World Vision

EVANGELISTIC AND PERSONAL.

Rev. G. P. Comer, of Stanford, Ky., a song evangelist of rare talent, has some open dates during September. His slate has been full this summer and the Lord has graciously blessed his ministry in song.

Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Liddell, of Chicago, are holiness preachers and singing evangelists. They have some open dates which they desire to give any one needing their services. References, Rev. John Hatfield and Rev. G. W. Ridout. They may be addressed, 6659 Dorchester Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Any of the brethren who are interested in securing the services of a consecrated and successful preacher of full salvation will very likely find the man they are looking for in Rev. L. E. Williams, Wilmore, Ky. Bro. Williams has an open date from Aug. 19 to Sept. 4.

The Locust Grove, Va., camp meeting will hold its annual meeting Aug. 26 to Sept. 4, inclusive. Rev. F. F. Shoup, Rev. H. A. Federick, Rev. J. M. Jennings and others will be the workers. Information may be had of Mrs. Lillie R. Bowler, Sec., Locust Grove, Va., or Rev. H. A. Federick, Culpepper, Va.

The camp meeting at Hillcrest, Ill., August 18-28, promises to be the best in many years. The workers who have been secured are messengers of full salvation, and put into practice in their own lives the messages they give to others. Bro. E. E. Montgomery and Bro. T. P. Roberts are to be the preachers and Bro. and Sister Shank, the well known and greatly beloved singers, will have charge of the music and the childrens work. Those interested in securing further information may do so by writing to Chas. F. Benz, Kampsville, Ill.

Come to Gains, Mich., to the camp meeting, August 26-Sept. 4, and expect great things of the Lord. Much thought and earnest prayer were given to the selection of the evangelists for this year. Dr. H. C. Morrison, Louisville, Ky., Rev. C. W. Ruth, Indianapolis, Ind., Dr. C. W. Butler, Cleveland, Ohio, and Rev. H. L. Cox, are the evangelists who have been chosen to bring us the messages that will refresh our souls and give us strength and determination, with the aid of the Holy Spirit, to press on towards the mark of the high calling.

The Asbury College Gospel Team which has been working in Pennsylvania and New York this summer will divide for a few days in order to cover a wider field. A fine meeting has just been closed at Elmira, N. Y., in which over 200 professions were made. The team is working under the auspices of The Evangelical Methodist League and thus far this summer have had three meetings which have been honored of the Lord. The members of the team will be united in the last meeting of the summer which is to be held at Blue Mountain Lake, N. Y., August 17 to 28. A request has been made that the readers of The Herald pray earnestly for the success of the work.

Herbert J. McNeese: "As it has been some weeks since we have reported our efforts for God in The Herald it may be inspiring to some to read what God has been doing here and in the county jail at Beaver, Pa. We have held seven weeks of services on the streets of Fallston and have passed out 150 holiness papers. Last Thursday evening I was absent from the service but the brother in charge told me that one man who lives about one block from the street where the meetings are held, was despondent and decided to drown himself. He passed the open air meeting and was on his way to the river, but the Holy Spirit stopped him and brought him back to the meeting where he was brought under mighty conviction and had the workers go with him to his house where he was gloriously saved. Hallelujah! Our services at the jail are owned of God in a mighty way as well. Men and women are being saved at every service. We give God the glory and march on up the road. We have a few open dates.

20 Live Books for $1.

575 SETS

$2.60 Value for $1.

Each one carries a great message in brief form

Gospel of the Body

REV. C. F. WIMBERLY.

The author tells in a most interesting way some of his recent discoveries of the majesty and artistic glory of the human body, and states that there are mysteries and wonders to be found in the body alone greater than the exploration of an unknown continent. There is not a dull sentence in the book. Price 15c.

The Mind of the Master

REV. WILL H. HUFF.

Two of Brother Huff's great sermons, the title of the second one being "Soul Rest." In the first sermon the author deals with the mind of Christ as to its spiritual consciousness, as to its characteristics, and as to the how of our fullest possession of it. The second sermon deals with "His rest," the rest he has provided for the struggling believer. Price, 20c.

Scriptural Holiness

REV. B. A. CUNDIFF.

The author of this most excellent book enjoyed and preached the experience of entire sanctification thirty-nine years. The author gives chapters on the different theories of holiness, and closes with a chapter on the Bible view of this great theme. Price, 15c.

The Vision of a Popular Minister

COMPILED BY A. SIMS.

The experience of a minister who was satisfied and at ease in Zion, but when the Lord got hold of him he found that he was self-centered and unsaved. Price, 10c.

Sin in Believers and Advice to Those Sanctified

JOHN WESLEY.

Two sermons. The first sermon is a point of utmost moment to every serious Christian, the receiving of which very nearly concerns both his present and eternal happiness. In the second, Mr. Wesley's first warning is to watch and pray continually against pride. There are five more warnings in this sermon which are vital to every Christian. Price, 15c.

Doing His Will or Going to Hell

REV. JAMES M. TAYLOR.

This book sets forth the doctrine of entire sanctification as taught in the Scriptures; also that it must be obtained here on earth. Price, 10c.

Malice

REV. J. B. CULPEPPER.

This is a most forceful writer and he handles this subject in a very interesting way. You will be thankful for the privilege of reading this book. Price, 15c.

Water Lily Money

ABBIE C. MORROW BROWN.

A thrilling story for young people; it will interest them as well as instruct and help them. Anyone will read it with pleasure and profit. Price, 15c.

I Want 'Er Go 'Ome

JAMES KNOTT MACKRELL.

A study of heaven, some of the things Jesus taught about heaven, its hope, its people, its certainty, its place, its rewards, its happiness and the way. Price 25c.

Baptism With the Holy Ghost

REV. JAMES M. TAYLOR.

This is a most excellent interpretation of what it is, of who is to receive it, and its effect upon the recipient. Price, 10c.

How to Reach the Masses

REV. JAMES M. TAYLOR.

This book deals with the problems now facing the churches, and points out God's method of doing it. Especially does this book emphasize the need of the blessing of entire sanctification to empower one for effective service in one's work for the Master. Price, 10c.

Heart Purity

REV. E. A. FERGERSON.

A sermon by one of the leading evangelists of his time. The author was very successful in leading thousands of souls into this experience. Price, 10c.

Dr. Fosdick Answered

REV. G. W. RIDOUT.

An expose of Christian liberalism, which is becoming so prevalent in the land, and one needs to be informed about it and how to combat it. This book will be very helpful. Price, 15c.

The Devil's Partners

REV. JAMES M. TAYLOR.

A sermon dealing with the real partners of the devil. The author handles the subject without gloves and starts the reader to thinking. Price, 10c.

Just for Children

REV. J. B. CULPEPPER.

The author writes a story of when and where he was converted in a style that is especially attractive to children. Price, 10c.

Sanctification

REV. J. H. COLLINS.

Dr. H. C. Morrison says this book is one of the clearest presentations of this subject he has ever read. Price, 15c.

A Whiskey Hatch

REV. J. B. CULPEPPER.

The sub title of this book is "Chicken will come Home to Roost." It is an interesting and awful story of the effects of whiskey. Price, 5c.

Little Nuggets for Little Folks

REV. JAMES M. TAYLOR.

A good book to place in the hands of a boy or girl—one that will interest them and teach them the way of salvation. Price, 10c.

Saved to Serve

REV. J. W. WELDON.

This is a life story of a business man who was saved, and afterwards gave his whole life to the service of the Lord. He has been instrumental in winning hundreds of souls to Christ. Price, 20c.

A Bottle of Tears

REV. J. B. CULPEPPER.

A salesman once said of this booklet, "If you will read it without both laughing and crying, you may have it for nothing." You will like it. Price, 5c.

Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky.

Enclosed you will find $ for which please send me postpaid sets of your twenty pamphlets for $1.00 per set.

Name

Address

Street or Route No.

Tent Workers of the Evangelical Methodist League

ASBURY GOSPEL TEAM.
Kirkpatrick, Jarrett, Moore, DuVal.
Lockport, N. Y., August 5-14.

BECK, A. S. AND R. S.
Open dates, August 5 to last of October.

COCHRAN BROTHERS.
Omega, Ga., July 1-28.

CROSS, WALTER-LOPER, NORRIS.
Stratford, Miss., August 1-10.
Piedmont, Ala., Aug. 22-Sept. 4.

DORN, C. O.—SEAMONS, L. H.
Oswego, S. C., August 7-28.

DUNAWAY, C. M.
(216 N. Candler St., Decatur, Ga.)
Mt. Vernon, Ohio, August 4-14.

GRANT BROTHERS.
Birch Tree, Mo., August 1-16.
Thomasville, Mo., August 16-31.

HENDERSON, O. R.—ROTHWEILER, D. L.
Bison, Kan., August 4-14.
Nekoma, Kan., August 16-31.

HOTCHKISS, ROY L.
Winthrop, Minn., Aug. 9-28.
Hull, Iowa, August 30-Sept. 11.

HOWARD, FIELDING T.
(Wilmore, Ky.)
Milton, Ky., August 5-14.
Tolu, Ky., August 18-28.

HUTCHERSON, FIELDS AND HILKER.
(Tent Workers)
Meetses, Wyo., August 1-21.
Grass Creek, Wyo., August 22-25.

HYSELL, HARVEY B.
(Box 1235, Charleston, W. Va.)
Mt. Hope, W. Va., August 4-14.
Mt. Nebo, W. Va., Aug. 17-31.

KEYS EVANGELISTIC PARTY.
(Mohnton, Pa.)
Lewistown, Pa., August 2-14.
Eccles, W. Va., Aug. 18-Sept. 4.
Chillicothe, Ohio, Sept. 11-Oct. 2.

LAMBERT, B. D.
Oil City, Pa., August 14-Sept. 3.

LAMP, W. E.
(Wilmore, Ky.)
Louisville, Ill., July 27-Aug. 14.
Zenith, Ill., Aug. 15-30.

LEWIS, J. H.
Jerusalem, Ohio, Aug. 11-21.

PARKER, J. R.
(Wilmore, Ky.)
Open date, July 25-Aug. 11.
Berry, Ky., August 16-28.

POWELL, JAMES L.
Corydon, Ky., July 31-Aug. 14.
Open date, Aug. 18-28.

ROBERTS, BYRON F.
Dayton, Ohio, July 28-Aug. 21.
Jamestown, Ohio, Aug. 24-Sept. 11.

SMITH AND McCLURE.
Open date, July 31-August 21.
Richmond, Ill., Aug. 21-Sept. 11.

WILLIS, F. B.
(Bayard, Ohio)
Scotts, Mich., August 3-14.

EVANGELISTS' SLATES

ALBRIGHT, TILLIE.
Moore, New York, July 24-Aug. 14.
Richland, N. Y., Aug. 21-Sept. 5.

ANDERSON, T. M.
Frankfort, Ind., Aug. 5-14.
Wichita, Kan., August 18-28.
Winchester, Ind., Sept. 1-11.

ARTHUR, FRANK E.
Conneautville, Pa., Aug. 4-14.
Huntington, W. Va., Aug. 17-Sept. 4.

AYCOCK, JARRETTE AND DELL.
(2923 Troost Ave., Kansas City, Mo.)
Nampa, Idaho, August 4-14.
Kearney, Neb., August 19-28.

BABCOCK, C. H.
Wakefield, Va., August 5-15.
Wichita, Kan., August 18-28.
Blackwell, Okla., Aug. 29-Sept. 4.
Thomas, Okla., Sept. 15-25.

BENNETT, GEO.
Romeo, Mich., Aug. 4-14.

BENNETT, W. G.
Manchester, O., Aug. 10-Sept. 1.

BONINE, GRACE O.—RIGGS, HELEN G.
Vandalia, Mich., August 17-28.

BRENNAN, A. P. AND MRS.
Seymour, Mo., August 4-14.
Ava, Mo., August 24-Sept. 4.

BREWER, GRADY.
(High Falls, S. C.)
Open date, Sept. 18-Oct. 21.

BROWNING, RAYMOND.
(H+ J 3500 N. W. 1st St., Muncy, Pa.)
Aspen Hill, Tenn., Aug. 21-Sept. 5.

BUDMAN, ALMA L.
(Song Evangelist)
(101 Carpenter St., Muncy, Pa.)
Linden Hall, Pa., August 6-20.

BURNETT, W. EVANS.
(Lake Charles, La.)
Open dates for July and August.
Alexandria, La., June 17-25.

CALLIS, O. H.
Hartsell, Ala., August 4-14.

Kincaid, W. Va., Aug. 19-29.
London, Ky., Aug. 31-Sept. 4.

CANADAY, FRED.
(1518 Killingsworth Ave., Portland, Ore.)
Spotsylvania, Va., Aug. 19-28.

CAIN, W. R.
(515 So. Vine St., Wichita, Kan.)
Wichita, Kan., August 18-28.

CAROTHERS, J. L. AND SADIE.
Tacoma, Wash., August 1-14.
Nezperce, Idaho, August 17-31.

CHATFIELD, C. C. AND FLORA.
(410 E. Carl St., Winchester, Ind.)
Radcliff, Ohio, August 14-28.
Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 29-Sept. 11.
Durand, Mich., Sept. 11-Oct. 2.
Ellet, Ohio, Oct. 3-16.

CLARKE, C. S.
(808 N. Ash, Guthrie, Okla.)
Guthrie, Okla., July 31-Aug. 21.

COLEMAN, PAUL.
(1620 Fairfax Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio.)
Springfield, Ohio, August 12-24.

COMER, G. P.
(Stanford, Ky.)
Wakefield, Va., (camp) Aug. 5-14.
Page, W. Va., August 18-28.
Open date, September.

COPELAND, H. E.
(Oskaloosa, Iowa)
Thomas, S. Dak., July 24-Aug. 14.

DAVIDSON PARTY.
East Springfield, Ohio, Aug. 10-21.
Perryville, Ohio, Aug. 25-Sept. 4.
Carrollton, Ohio, Sept. 15-25.

DECKER, WALTER REED.
(Song Evangelist)
(124 Gould St., Corry, Pa.)
Open dates for Fall and Winter.

DICKERSON, H. N.
(2908 Newmain, St. Ashland, Ky.)
Kirk, Colo., August 18-28.

DYE, CHARLES.
(430 Williams St., Troy, Ohio)
Selma, Ind., August 11-28.
Toledo, Ohio, Sept. 4-15.
Portsmouth, Ohio, Sept. 25-Oct. 9.

ELSNER, THEO AND WIFE.
(1451 Pacific St., Brooklyn, N. Y.)
Wilmington, Mass., Aug. 14.
Delanco, N. J., August 26-Sept. 5.
Anderson, Ind., Oct. 2-16.
Owosso, Mich., Oct. 20-Nov. 6.

FLEMING, JOHN.
National Park, New Jersey, Aug. 12-21.
Denver, Colo., Sept. 11-25.
Chicago, Ill., (1st church) Oct. 9-23.

FLEMING, BONA.
National Park, N. J., August 12-21.
Ingersoll, Okla., Aug. 26-Sept. 4.

FLEXON, R. S.
(Shackelfords, Va.)
Clinton, Pa., August 5-14.
Glassboro, N. J., August 15-21.
Delanco, N. J., Aug. 17-Sept. 5.

FUGETT, C. B.
(2813 Holt St., Ashland, Ky.)
Normal, Ill., August 19-28.
Cape May, N. J., Sept. 9-17.

GADDIS, TILDEN H.
(4805 Ravenna St., Cincinnati, Ohio)
Oregon, Wis., July 31-Aug. 14.
Charleston, Ill., August 19-28.
Mulberry, Ohio, Sept. 2-18.

GANN, J. A.
(Town Creek, Ala.)
Shackelford, Ala., August 14-20.
Sanderson's Chapel, Ala., Aug. 21-28.
Open dates: September.

GEIL, PAUL AND DORA.
(Frankfort, Ind.)
(Singers and Xylophone Players)
Lafayette, Ind., August 7-28.
Crawfordsville, Ind., Sept. 7-11.
Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 16-Nov. 6.
Brazil, Ind., Nov. 13-21.
Anamosa, Iowa, Dec. 1-30.

GLEASON, RUFUS H.
(Central, S. C.)
Jonesboro, Ind., (tent) July 26-Aug. 14.
Charles City, Ia., August 18-28.

GLENN, REV AND MRS. J. M.
Indian Springs, Ga., Aug. 11-21.
Eastman, Ga., Sept. 4-18.

GREEN, JIM H.
(Box 200, Connelly Springs, N. C.)
Connelly Springs, N. C., Aug. 7-15.

GROGG, W. A.
(Ronceverte, W. Va.)
Pinch, W. Va., August 20-Sept. 3.

GROSE, JOHN A.
(Shepherdstown, W. Va.)
Front Royal, Va., Aug. 21-Sept. 4.
Odenton, Md., Sept. 5-11.

HALLMAN, W. A. AND WIFE.
Elkhart, Ind., August 4-14.
Lincoln, Nebr., August 19-29.

HARRIS, B. F.
Dillard, Okla., Aug. 1-14.
Riley, Kan., Aug. 17-Sept. 4.

HEWSON, JOHN E.
(127 N. Chester Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.)
Sherman, Ill., August 4-14.
Portage, Ohio, Aug. 18-28.

HODGE, H. W.
(120 S. 16th St., Flushing, N. Y. City)
Bushville, N. Y., August 21-31.
Open date, September.

HOLLENBACK, URAL T.
Norristown, Pa., Oct. 2-18.

HORN, LUTHER A.—MARSHALL, R. P.
(Box 1322, Mobile, Ala.)
Suggsville, Ala., July 31-Aug. 12.

Clear Springs, Ala., Aug. 14-28.
Louisville, Ala., Sept. 1-14.
Open date, Sept. 18-30.

HULSE, AARON.
Letona, Okla., Aug. 9-28.
Bradford, Ark., Sept. 2-25.
Nashville, Kan., Oct. 2-16.

HUNT, JOHN J.
(Media, Pa., Rt. 3.)
Wilkinsburg, Pa., Sept. 16-25.
Detroit, Mich., (Tabernacle) Oct. 1-Dec. 31.

IRICK, ALLIE AND EMMA.
(Bethany, Okla.)
Cambria, Ill., August 4-14.
Campbellsville, Ky., Aug. 19-29.
Millport, Ala., Sept. 31-Sept. 12.
Thomas, Okla., Sept. 15-25.

JOHNSON, ANDREW.
Eldorado, Ill., August 4-14.
Campbellsville, Ky., Aug. 12-22.
Junaluska, N. C., Aug. 24-26.
London, Ky., (Conf.) Sept. 1-5.

JONES, LYMAN.
(North Kingsville, Ohio)
Brookhead, Ky., July 17-August 21.
Open dates.

JONES, LUM.
(630 W. 9th St., Ada, Okla.)
Peniel, Tex., August 4-14.
Shawnee, Okla., August 15-28.
Britton, Okla., Sept. 4-18.

KEEL, MRS. S. A.
Menomonee, Wis., August 4-25.

KENNEDY, ROBERT J.
(Singer)
Paris, Tenn., Sept. 4-25.
Ft. Worth, Tex., Oct. 2-23.

KINSEY, W. C. AND WIFE.
(452 So. West 2nd St., Richmond, Ind.)
(Song Leader, Singers, Pianist)
Campbellsville, Ky., Aug. 12-21.

KINSEY FRANK E.
(1220 Tecumseh St., Indianapolis, Ind.)
Birds, Ill., July 31-Aug. 21.
Urbana, Ill., Aug. 24-20.

LILLENAS, HALDOR AND BERTHA.
Sherman, Ill., August 4-14.
Connersville, Ind., Oct. 2-16.

LINN, REV. AND MRS. JACK—QUINN, IMOGENE.
(Oregon, Wis.)
Oregon, Wis., July 29-August 14.
Sanford, Ind., August 18-28.
Louisville, Tenn., Sept. 1-11.
Knoxville, Tenn., Sept. 13-25.

LITTRELL, V. W. AND MARGUERITE.
(1214 Scott St., Beatrice, Neb.)
Chariton, Ia., Aug. 14-28.

LOVELESS, W. W.
(London, Ohio)
Des Arc, Mo., Aug. 13-28.

LUDWIG, THEODORE AND MINNIE.
(772 N. Euclid Ave., St. Louis, Mo.)
Nokomis, Ill., Aug. 9-21.

MCBRIDE, J. B.
(112 Arlington Drive, Pasadena, Calif.)
Boonday, Tex., August 11-21.
Oakland City, Ind., Aug. 25-Sept. 4.

McGHEE, ANNA E.
Mt. Vernon, O., Aug. 4-14.

McCORD, W. W.
(Sale City, Ga.)
Sale City, Ga., August 11-21.

McNEESE, HERBERT J.
(New Brighton, Pa., 634 13th Ave.)
Open dates, July and August.

MAXWELL, PROF. S. A.
(Graham, N. C.)
Bath, N. C., July 27-Aug. 12.
Highlands, N. C., August 14-24.
West Burlington, N. C., Aug. 28-Sept. 8.

MILBY, E. C.
(Song Evangelist, Gabe, Ky.)
Open dates, August.
Middletown, Ohio, Sept. 11-Oct. 4.

MILLER, REV. AND MRS. F. E.
(Lowville, N. Y.)
Moore, N. Y., July 30-Aug. 14.
Richland, N. Y., August 21-Sept. 5.

MILLER, JULIUS.
(Mattoon, Wis.)
Jamestown, N. Dak., Aug. 10-14.

MILLER, JAMES.
(1249 N. Holme Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.)
Hope, Mich., July 31-Aug. 14.

MINGLEDORFF, O. G.
(Blackshear, Ga.)
Orlando, Fla., Aug. 25-Sept. 5.

MONK, ALONZO, JR.
Winslow, Ark., July 26-Sept. 1.
Paris, Tenn., Sept. 3-24.
October, November, December open.

MORGAN, R. L.
(Olivet, Ill.)
Milwaukee, Wis., July 27-Aug. 14.

MORRIS, (JUDGE) FRANK
(P. O. Box 1523, Dallas, Tex.)
Hagerman, N. Mex., Aug. 28.
Alamogordo, N. Mex., Sept. 11.
Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 2.

NELSON, S. S.
(832 Worth Ave., Greensboro, N. C.)
Blaxom, Va., (camp) Aug. 5-14.
Hillsboro, N. C., Aug. 20-Sept. 4.
Organ Cave, W. Va., Oct. 1-10.
Ranceverte, W. Va., Oct. 12-25.

NORRIS, JOHN.
Drainsville, Va., August 17-28.
Ocean Grove, N. J., Aug. 29-Sept. 3.

OWEN, JOHN F.
(Taylor University, Upland, Ind.)
Mt. Vernon, Ohio, August 4-14.

Alexandria, Ind., August 15-21.
Tarrant, Ala., Aug. 28-Sept. 11.

OWEN, G. F. AND BYRDIE.
(1415 West Pikes Peak Ave., Colorado Springs, Colo.)
Open date, August 12-21.
Bath, Maine, Aug. 28-Sept. 12.
South Portland, Maine, Sept. 18-Oct. 2.

POLLOCK, G. S. AND WIFE.
(Wilmore, Ky.)
Eldorado, Ill., August 4-14.

POLLITT, S. H.
Orangeburg, Ky., August 1-14.
Wagoner's Chapel, Ky., August 15-25.

QUAKER QUARTETTE OF OHIO YEAR-LY MEETING.
Ypsilanti, Mich., August 12-21.
Damascus, Ohio, Aug. 23-28.

REDMON, J. E. AND ADA.
(1231 N. Holmes Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.)
Stringtown, Ind., Sept. 23-Oct. 9.
New Castle, Pa., Oct. 1-30.

REED, LAWRENCE.
(Damascus, Ohio)
Albany, N. Y., July 31-Aug. 14.
Richland, N. Y., August 21-Sept. 5.
Cumberland, Md., Sept. 10-20.

REES, PAUL S.
(Pasadena, Calif.)
New Albany, Ind., August 4-14.
Cherry Grove, Ind., August 15-19.

REID, JAMES V.
(2012 Meadowbrook Drive, Ft. Worth, Tex.)
Magnolia, Ark., August 4-14.
Lake Junaluska, N. C., August 21-28.
Utica, Miss., Aug. 28-Sept. 9.

RICE, LEWIS J. AND EDVTHE.
(2923 Troost Ave., Kansas City, Mo.)
Kingston, Okla., August 4-21.

RINEBARGER, C. C.
(Olivet, Ill.)
Ramsey, Ind., August 12-22.
Oakland City, Ind., Aug. 26-Sept. 4.

ROMINE, JOHN A.
Mt. Mariah, Ala., Aug. 6-16.
Sanderson's Chapel, Ala., Aug. 17-25.
Chalybeate Springs, Ala., Aug. 26-Sept. 2.

ROBERTS, T. P.
Campbellsville, Ill., August 18-25.
Circleville, Ohio, Aug. 26-Sept. 4.

ROOD, PERRY R.
(2838 Overlook Drive, Huntington, W. Va.)
West Liberty, Ohio, Dec. 2-Jan. 7.

RUTH, C. W.
(1933 Nowland Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.)
Gaines, Mich., August 28-Sept. 4.
Stayner, Ont., Can., Rt. 3, Sept. 18-28.
Danville, Ill., Oct. 6-16.

SANFORD, E. L. AND WIFE.
(20 Engman Ave., Lexington, Ky.)
Bethel Ridge, Ky., July 31-Aug. 21.

SHANK, MR. AND MRS. R. A.
Romeo, Mich., August 5-14.
Kaupsville, Ill., Aug. 8-18.

ST. CLAIR, FRED.
(2444 Bowditch St., Berkeley, Calif.)
Portland, Oregon, July 31-August 28.
LaGrande, Ore., Sept. 4-Oct. 2.
Spokane, Wash., Oct. 9-Nov. 6.

SHARROW, C. E. AND NEVA B.
(Vernon, Ohio)
Harrison, Ohio, Aug. 5-21.
Open date, August 16-31.

SHELHAMER, E. E.
(5419 Bushnell Way, Los Angeles, Calif.)
Owasso, Mich., Aug. 4-14.
Wichita, Kan., Aug. 18-28.
Binghamton, N. Y., Sept. 25-Oct. 9.
Allentown, Pa., Oct. 16-30.

SWEETEN, H. W.
Circleville, Ohio, Aug. 26-Sept. 5.

TEETS, ODA B.
(Aurora, W. Va.)
Odessa, W. Va., July 31-Aug. 14.
Mt. Nebo, W. Va., Aug. 17-31.

THOMAS, JOHN.
(Wilmore, Ky.)
Manchester, N. Y., Aug. 16-21.
Clarksburg, Cat. Can., Sept. 9-18.

VANDALL, N. B.
Findlay, Ohio, Aug. 11-21.
Mt. Lookout, Ohio, Aug. 25-Sept. 4.
Rochester, Pa., Sept. 9-18.

VAYHINGER, M.
Bryantburg, Ind., Aug. 19-28.
Nashville, Ind., July 6-17.

WATTS, E. E.
(Sandy Lake, Pa.)
Open date, August 9-31.
Hadley, N. Y., Sept. 4-25.
Corinth, N. Y., Sept. 27-Oct. 16.

WELSH, H. W.
(Box 108, Olivet, Ill.)
Paris, Ill., August 14-28.
Olivet, Ill., Sept. 1-3.
Northfield, Minn., Sept. 4-18.

WELLS, KENNETH AND EUNICE.
Conneautville, Pa., August 8-14.
Hopkins, Mich., August 18-28.

WHITAKER, J. H.
(Box 385, Arlington, Tex.)
Van Alstyne, Tex., July 22-31.
Iredell, Tex., Aug. 19-30.

WHITEHURST, R. F.
(Wilmore, Ky.)
Magnolia, Ark., August 4-14.

WILLIAMS, L. E.
(Wilmore, Ky.)
Robinson, Maine, August 5-15.
Open date, Aug. 19-Sept. 4.

WIMBERLY, C. F.
Eldorado, Ill., Aug. 5-15.
Ringgold, La., August 16-28.

WINLAND, C. B.
Peoli, Ohio, Aug. 14-28.
Layland, Ohio, August 31-Sept. 14.
Athens, Ohio, Sept. 18-Oct. 2.

WIREMAN, C. L.
(7276 Scott St., Covington, Ky.)
Wilson Run, Ohio, July 29-Aug. 14.
Rising Sun, Ind., Sept. 7-18.
Open date, August 15-28.
Kingswood, Ky., Aug. 30-Sept. 6.
Burlington, Ky., Sept. 20-Oct. 2.

YOUNG, ALVIN.
Glassboro, N. J., Aug. 11-21.
Binghamton, N. Y., Aug. 20-28.
Winchester, Ind., Aug. 30-Sept. 11.

YOUNG, R. A.
Bowersville, O., Aug. 4-14.
Waynesboro, Miss., Aug. 19-28.

CAMP MEETING CALENDAR.

ALABAMA.

Hartselle, Ala., camp, August 4-14. Workers: Revs. O. H. Callis, Joseph Owen and Harry Blackburn. L. O. Waldsmith, Sec.

Milport, Ala., camp, August 31-Sept. 11. Workers: Allie and Emma Erick, H. H. Hocker. Music and congregational singing. J. L. Shelton and Mrs. H. A. Forester. For information write Juneous Shelton, Sec., Milport, Ala.

ARKANSAS.

Beebe, Ark., camp, August 11-22. Workers: Rev. Josiah Tucker. Willard B. Davis, song leader. Write Mrs. Callie Harrison, Sec., P. O. Box 12, Beebe, Ark.

Datesville, Ark., camp, August 11-21. Workers: Rev. Mrs. Gussie Morris Gill, Rev. J. J. Douglas and wife. For information write E. A. Mashburn, Cor. Sec.

COLORADO.

Yuma, Colo., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Rev. L. N. Fogg, H. N. Dickerson. Mrs. J. Hester Peck, song leader. For information write E. O. Walden, Yuma, Colo.

GEORGIA.

Indian Springs, Ga., camp, Aug. 11-21. Workers: Rev. H. C. Morrison, Rev. J. L. Brasher, Rev. W. Butler. Young people's worker, Mrs. Jere M. Glenn. Director of music, Mr. Hamp Sewell. Address R. F. Burdew, Macon, Ga.

Sale City, Ga., camp, August 11-21. Workers: Rev. Chas. A. Gibson, Rev. O. J. Nease. Song leader, Rev. Frank Watkins. Musicians, Mrs. Frank Watkins. Special singers, The Vaughn Radio Quartette. W. W. McCord, President.

IDAHO.

Nampa, Idaho, camp, August 4-14. Workers: Rev. Bud Robinson, Revs. Jarrette and Del Aycock and daughter. For information write A. E. Sanner, Chair., 14th and 12th, Nampa, Idaho.

ILLINOIS.

Hillcrest, Ill., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Rev. E. E. Montgomery, Rev. T. P. Roberts. Prof. and Mrs. R. A. Shank in charge of singing and children. Chas. F. Benz, Sec., Kampsville, Ill.

Charleston, Ill., camp, Aug. 19-28. Workers: Rev. T. H. Gaddis and the Moser Sisters, assisted by district preachers, Rev. Chas. Slater will represent missions. Correspond with Rev. W. M. Hall, Charleston, Ill.

Cambria, Ill., camp, August 4-14. Workers: Rev. Allie Erick and wife, Mrs. Emma Erick, Rev. Elmer McKay, Rev. J. R. Moore in charge of the singing. The Girls' Quartette, of Taylor University will also be in attendance. Dr. John Paul will be with us for at least one service. A. C. Wolfe, Sec., Carterville, Ill., Route 1.

Bonnie, Ill., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Revs. Allie and Emma Erick, Rev. Elmer McKay, Prof. John E. Moore. W. T. Lawson, Cor. Sec., Benton, Ill.

Greenville, Ill., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Bishop Joseph F. Berry, Rev. Guy Wilson, The Prestons, song leaders. A. B. Plog, Cor. Sec'y.

Normal, Ill., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Rev. Harry W. McGow, Rev. C. B. Fugett, Rev. Harold Johnson, song leader. Rev. Della B. Stretch, children's worker. Address Mrs. Bertha C. Ashbrook, Sec., 45 West Allen St., Springfield, Ill.

Sherman, Ill., camp, August 4-14. Workers: Rev. A. L. Whitcomb, Rev. J. E. Hewson, Haidor L. Lomas and wife, song leaders; Mrs. Della B. Stretch, children's worker. For information write Mrs. Julia Short Hayes, 2217 East Capitol Ave., Springfield, Ill.

El Dorado, Ill., camp, August 4-14. Workers: Dr. C. F. Wimberly, Dr. Andrew Johnson. Rev. G. S. Pollock and wife in charge of the music. J. M. Keasler, Sec., Omaha, Ill.

INDIANA.

Ramsey, Ind., August 12-21. Workers: M. G. Stanley, J. B. Keifel; Mrs. J. C. Gray, children's worker; C. C. Rinebarger and wife, leaders in song. Address Geo. F. Pinaire, Sec., Ramsey, Ind.

Centerville, Ind., camp, July 31-Aug. 19. Workers: G. M. Rainey, A. M. Moorehead. Address Mrs. Bessie Clevenger, Sec., Centerville, Ind., R. F. D.

Bryantburg, Ind., camp, August 19-28. Workers: Rev. Monroe Vaninger. The Payne Evangelist Party, consisting of Sister Fannie Payne, Miss Bertha Pultz, Miss Ruth Cooper. For information write Chas. E. Cleek, Madison, Ind., Rt. 9.

Frankfort, Ind., camp, August 5-14. Workers: Rev. T. M. Anderson, Rev. G. Arnold Hodgkin, Rev. J. C. Brillhart, song evangelist. Rev. C. C. Smith, special musician. For full particulars write Rev. D. E. Snow, Sec., 123 W. 24th St., Anderson, Ind.

Letts, Ind., camp, July 29-August 7. Workers: M. Vayhinger, Dwight M. Poffly, song evangelist. Mrs. Lena Holcomb, pianist. Address Rev. Arthur McQueen, Pres., Westport, Ind.

New Albany, Ind., Silver Heights, Aug. 4-14. Workers: Revs. Virgil L. Moore and Raymond Browning, Paul S. Rees. Mrs. T. B. Talbott, children's worker. Male Quartet of Asbury College in charge of music. Address E. B. McPeeters, Sec., 212 Cherry St., New Albany, Ind.

Cleveland, Ind., camp, August 26-Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. John T. Hatfield, Rev. G. Arnold Hodgkin. Wright Brothers, Song leaders, Miss Florence Wyse, pianist. For information write Rev. C. E. Ellsworth, Sec., Greenfield, Ind., Rt. 3.

Oakland City, Ind., camp, August 26-Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. J. B. McBride, Rev. Ira Aykers, Rev. C. C. Rinebarger and wife, song evangelists. Write Mrs. Warrick Yeager, Sec., 518 S. Hall St., Princeton, Ind.

KANSAS.

Wichita, Kan., camp, Aug. 18-28. Workers: Rev. Chas. H. Babcock, Rev. E. E. Shelhamer, Rev. T. M. Anderson, Mrs. Ernest D. Bartlett, Harold Chapman and Prof. E. D. Sutton and wife. Address W. R. Cain, Sec., 515 So. Vine St., Wichita, Kan.

Haviland, Kan., camp, August 31-Sept. 11. Workers: Rev. A. E. Lacour, Rev. E. H. Craven, singer. Write A. L. Bevan, Secretary.

KENTUCKY.

Lawson, Ky., camp, Aug. 21-31. Workers: Rev. W. B. Weaver, Rev. Russel Patton, Rev. C. R. Vincent. Music in charge of the Mt. Carmel Community. Address Miss Mary Vandiver, Sec., Lawson, Ky.

Carthage, Ky., camp, Aug. 19-28. Workers: Rev. Freddie Thomas, J. E. and Ada Redmon. For information address J. R. Moore, Pres., California, Ky., R.F.D. No. 1. Rawlings, Sec., Bradfordville, Ky.

Acton, Ky., camp, August 12-20. Workers: Rev. Andrew Johnson. Prof. W. C. Eads, Sec. and wife, song leaders. E. E. Eads, Sec.

Wilmore, Ky., camp, July 28-Aug. 7. Workers: Rev. C. F. Wimberly, Rev. J. I. Brasher and H. S. Blackburn, Rev. H. C. Morrison, Pres., will preach also. Address C. A. Lovejoy, Sec., Wilmore, Ky.

Callis Grove, Ky., camp, August 5-14. Workers: Rev. Fielding T. Howard, J. F. Mororthy Huyst, song leader, Miss Ethel Sageser, pianist. L. H. Driskell, Sec., Milton, Ky., Route 3.

Tolu, Ky., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Rev. Fielding T. Howard, Charles D. Lear, leader in song. Write J. W. Napier, Tolu, Ky.

MAINE.

Robinson, Maine, camp, August 5-14. Workers: Evangelist, Life E. W. Adams, assisted by local help. For information write Rev. P. J. Trofoten, Pres. and Sec., 341 Union St., St. Johns, N. B., Can.

MARYLAND.

North East, Md., camp, August 5-14. Workers: Rev. J. B. Chapman, Rev. B. F. Neer and daughters. Miss Christine Williams, children's worker. Information from Rev. J. N. Nielson, Bus. Mgr., 212 Parker Ave., Collingdale, Pa.

MICHIGAN.

Penn. Mich., camp, August 17-28. Workers: Helen G. Riggs, Grace O. Bonine. For information write Rev. Olive Knapp, Pres., Edwardsburg, Mich.

Hopkins, Mich., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Rev. I. N. Toole, Dr. C. W. Butler, Dr. G. Arnold Hodgkin. Mrs. Fred DeWeerd, leader of young people. Prof. Kenneth Wells in charge of music; Miss Lillian Scott, pianist. Write Dr. L. E. Heasley, Sec., Rt. 9, Grand Rapids, Mich.

Gaines, Mich., camp, August 26-Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. C. W. Ruth, Dr. H. C. Morrison, Rev. H. L. Cox, Rev. C. W. Butler, Miss Esther Williamson, Secretary. Mrs. Grace Millard, 314 W. Michigan Ave., East Lansing, Mich.

Hope Center, Mich., camp, July 31-Aug. 14. Workers: James Miller, Paul White. Write Ashby Mills, Sec., Hope, Mich.

Eaton Rapids, Mich., camp, July 29-August 7. Workers: Dr. John Paul, Rev. Will Huff, Dr. S. H. Turbeville. Rev. L. F. Nixon in charge of music, with H. Morse Skinner at the piano. Mrs. Blanche Francis in charge of young people's work. For information write Miss Fern C. Wheeler, Sec., Charlotte, Mich.

Owosso, Mich., camp, August 5-14. Workers: Rev. Geo. B. Kulp, Rev. E. E. Shelhamer, L. Sturk, Sec., 1506 Bennett Ave., Flint, Mich.

Maybee, Mich., camp, August 11-21. Workers: Miss Edna Banning, J. C. Walker and wife, the Douglas Brothers, (Scotch duettists). Mrs. Clara Palmer, Sec., 644 Thompson St., Ann Arbor, Mich.

Romeo, Mich., camp, August 5-14. Workers: George Henderson, Rev. C. W. Butler, Rev. Will Huff, and Rev. S. H. Turbeville. Mrs. W. I. Francis, Young People's worker. Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Shank, song leaders. E. L. Jaquish, Sec., R. F. D. 5, Pontiac, Mich.

MISSISSIPPI.

Frost Bridge, Miss., camp, August 10-28. Workers: Rev. R. A. Young and other helpers. Address Mrs. J. E. Moody, Sec., Waynesboro, Miss.

Cleveland, Miss., camp, August 11-22. Workers: Rev. E. B. McKeithen. E. E. McKeithen, Jr., song leader. Write Mrs. S. Taylor, Sec., 297 S. Court St., Cleveland, Miss.

MISSOURI.

Ava, Mo., camp, August 25-Sept. 4. Workers: A. P. Breneman and wife, C. E. Woodson and local assistants. For information write Mrs. Mattie Wallace, Ava, Mo., Route 1.

NEBRASKA.

Kearney, Neb., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Rev. E. O. Hobbs, Rev. Jarrette and Dell Aycock, Mrs. C. P. Turner. Address all communications to Mr. B. J. Patterson, Sec., Kearney, Neb.

Imperial, Neb., camp, August 19-28. Workers: Thomas Clark Henderson, Jay and Virginia Rice. Jno. J. Kitt, Sec., Wauweta, Neb.

NEW JERSEY.

Erma, N. J., camp, Sept. 9-18. Workers: Rev. C. B. Fugett, Rev. K. Hawley Jackson and wife. For information write Earl Woolson, Cape May, N. J., R.F.D.

Glassboro, N. J., camp, August 11-21. Workers: Rev. H. J. Olsen, R. G. Flexon, Alvin Young, Write M. Gallagher, 40 Myrtle Ave., Pitman, N. J.

National Park, N. J., camp, August 12-

21. Workers: Rev. Bona Fleming, Rev. John Fleming. Mr. Burl P. Sparks, singer. Fletcher Grove, Delanco, N. J., camp, August 27-Sept. 5. Workers: Rev. Theo. Elsner, Mrs. Theo. Elsner, Rev. Richard G. Flexon, Jr.

NEW YORK.

Moers, N. Y., camp, July 30-Aug. 14. Workers: Joseph H. Smith, J. F. Knapp, John and Emily Thomas, Zahniser, John Scobie, Tibbe Albright, Arthur Goul, song leader. Address Kenneth F. Fee, Sec., Moers, N. Y.

NORTH CAROLINA.

Connelly Springs, N. C., camp, August 7-14. Workers: Rev. Joseph H. Smith, The Greensboro Bible School Band and Quartette and others. For information address Box 200, Connelly Springs, N. C.

OHIO.

Millersburg, Ohio, camp, August 18-29. Workers: F. Lincicome and daughters. For further information write Mrs. E. D. Hedington, Sec., Millersburg, Ohio, Rt. 7.

Unipolis, Ohio, camp, August 25-Sept. 4. Workers: L. S. Hoover, Rev. Herb A. Stalker, Prof. N. B. Vandall has charge of hte music. Address Geo. W. Watman, Unipolis, Ohio.

Napoleon, Ohio, camp, July 31-August 14. Workers: Miss Celia M. Bradshaw and Miss Helena Saneholtz. For information address Rev. R. W. Wolfe, Napoleon, Ohio. Ludlow Falls, Ohio, camp, July 29-August 7. Workers: Rev. H. M. Metger, Rev. J. A. Deery, Rev. S. H. Eidsath, Rev. J. I. Moore, song leader. Miss Edith Schryer, children's worker. Roy Harshbarger, Sec., West Milton, Ohio.

Portage, Ohio, camp, August 18-28. Workers: Geo. B. Kulp and John E. Hewson. Song leader, A. H. Johnston and wife. Address E. L. Day, Sec.

Findlay, Ohio, camp, August 11-21. Workers: C. H. Stalker, B. H. Haynie, Mrs. Laura Smith, W. B. Vandall, singer. Miss Florence Ewing, pianist. G. W. Egbert, Sec.

Mt. Vernon, Ohio, (Camp Sychar), camp, August 4-14. Workers: Rev. C. M. Dunaway, Rev. John Owen, Rev. E. Hilton Post. Song leader, Prof. W. B. Yates; Young people's worker, Miss Anna McGhie. Children's worker, May Cersuch and Miss Ollie Tanner. Young people's song leader, Rev. W. L. Mullet. Address Rev. E. R. Shiltz, Sec., Shadyside, Ohio.

Toronto, (Hollow Rock) Ohio July 29-August 7. Workers: C. W. Ruth, C. H. Babcock, Howard Sweeten. Song leader, Rev. Kenneth Wells and wife, Young People's and Children's meeting leader, Mrs. Sadie Mishey. Address Roy L. Householder, Sec., Toronto, Ohio.

Circleville, Ohio, camp, August 26-Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. T. P. Roberts, Rev. Howard W. Sweeten, Rev. Charles L. Slater. Rev. E. K. Scattee, Cor. Sec., 481 N. High St., Chillicothe, Ohio.

Columbus, Ohio, camp, July 28-Aug. 7. Workers: Rev. Floyd N. Neese, Rev. Raymond Browning, Rev. F. M. Messenger, Rev. J. G. Morrison, Rev. and Mrs. B. D. Sutton, gospel singers, Rev. Chas. A. Gihl, Rev. Vaughn Radio Quartette. Write Rev. Orval J. Nease, 146 King Ave., Columbus, Ohio.

OKLAHOMA.

Blackwell, Okla., camp, August 25-Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. C. H. Babcock, Rev. Geo. Bennard and Willard Davis. Address Mrs. A. L. Wright, Sec., 307 E. College, Blackwell, Okla.

Thomas, Okla., camp, Sept. 15-25. Workers: Rev. C. H. Babcock, Revs. Allie and Emma Erick. For information write to Miss Anna Kraybill, Sec., Thomas, Okla.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Conneautville, Pa., camp, August 5-14. Workers: Rev. J. L. Brasher, Thomas Henderson, Rev. F. A. Arthur, Prof. Kenneth Wells and wife, Emma Valentine. Address C. A. Lockwood, Cor. Sec., 2740 Louisiana Ave., (Darmont) Pittsburgh, Pa.

Clinton, Pa., camp, August 5-14. Workers: Rev. G. Flexon, Rev. David Wilson, Rev. J. N. Hampe. Rev. Geo. Cole, song leader. Mrs. Edith Clawson, children's meetings. Write Rev. L. W. King, Clinton, Pa.

RHODE ISLAND.

Portsmouth, R. I., camp, July 29-Aug. 7. Workers: Chas. H. Staiker, Winfred R. Cox, Alvin Young. For information address, Andrew B. Starbuck, Pres., Newport, R. I.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

Epworth, S. C., camp, August 19-28. Workers: Dr. E. P. Taylor, Dr. John Paul and others. Address Rev. W. P. B. Kinard, Epworth, S. C.

TENNESSEE.

Greeneville, Tenn., camp, Sept. 1-11. Workers: Rev. C. M. Dunaway, Miss Ruth Harris in charge of music. Address Mrs. Flora Willis, care Mrs. C. A. Vann, Greeneville, Tenn.

Dyer, Tenn., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Dr. A. O. Henricks, Rev. S. W. Strickland, Miss Ruth Harris, song leader. Joe T. Hall, Sec., Dyer, Tenn.

Knoxville, Tenn., camp, August 3-14. Workers: Rev. H. Robb French and wife, Mrs. Golden Young. For information write Rev. Percy E. Bailly, 1018 E. Main Ave., Knoxville, Tenn.

TEXAS.

Noaday, Texas, camp, August 10-21. Workers: J. B. McBride, C. P. Gossett, song leader. F. E. Dickard, Sec., Hallsville, Tex.

Scottville, Tex., camp, July 28-Aug. 7. Workers: Rev. Fred H. Ross, Rev. Warren C. McIntyre, Singer, C. P. Gossett. B. F. Wynne, Sec., Marshall, Tex.

Atlanta, Tex., camp, August 12-21. Workers: Dr. E. T. Williams, The Latham Sisters, pianist and leaders of song. Mary E. Perdus, Sec.

Peniel, Tex., camp, August 4-14. Workers: Rev. Lum Jones, Rev. Kendall White and wife, song leaders. For information write E. C. DeJernett, Sec.

Waco, Texas, camp, July 29-August 7. Workers: Rev. Harry S. Allen. For information address Jno. W. Beresford, Sec., Waco, Texas.

VIRGINIA.

Spottsylvania, Va., camp, August 19-29. Workers: Rev. Fred Canaday, Rev. W. L. King, Rev. Bessie B. Larkin, Mrs. W. L. King and Mrs. G. B. King in charge of young people's work. Mrs. Merton Steelman and son, song leader. Address Mrs. B. K. Andrews, Sec., Spottsylvania, Va.

Wakefield, Va., camp, August 5-14. Workers: Dr. C. H. Babcock, Rev. Harry Hayes, Otho M. Cokes, Pres., Elberon, Va.

Mt. Vernon, Va., camp, July 29-Aug. 7. Workers: Rev. Nelson Thomas, Rev. W. Dyer, Rev. H. H. Hoyt and Fred Canaday. Address Annie Hosley Shrader, Sec., Accotink, Va.

Locust Grove, Va., camp, August 26-Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. F. F. Shoup, Rev. H. A. Frederick, Rev. J. M. Jennings. For information write Mrs. Lillie R. Bowles, Sec., Locust Grove, Va.

Drainesville, Va., camp, August 19-28. Workers: Rev. John Norberry. Song leader, Mrs. Marion Birrell. For information address Anna L. Hyatt, Sec., 163 Adams St., N. W., Washington, D. C.

Salem, Va., camp, Sept. 9-19. Workers: Dr. J. W. Carter and Rev. O. H. Callis. For information write J. J. True, Pres., Salem, Va.

WISCONSIN.

Oregon, Wis., camp, July 29-August 14. Workers: Rev. Tilden H. Gaddis, Moser Sisters, Miss Imogene Quinn, Prof. Edson Crosby, Miss Karine Kjolseth, and Rev. and Mrs. Jack Linn. Address Jack Linn, Oregon, Wis.

Hillsboro, Wis., camp, August 10-22. Workers: Preston Kennedy, James Bane, Raymond Lewis with Bro. Eneyart song leaders. For information address May Markee, Hillsboro, Wis.

Is the Antichrist at Hand?

What of Mussolini--The Iron Man of Rome?
The Revival of the Roman Empire?
The End of the Present World Order?

THE book of the hour, containing Bible evidence of a most startling nature from the world of demonology, politics and religion concerning the end of the present world order.

IS THE ANTICHRIST AT HAND?
By EDWARD J. SMITH

What of Mussolini--The Iron Man of Rome?
The Revival of the Roman Empire
The End of the Present World Order

Over 30,000 Sold!

Two Editions: Cloth, $1.00; postpaid, $1.10.
Paper, 50c; postpaid, 55c.

At your bookstore, or from
Pentecostal Publishing Company
523 South First Street
LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY

DR. RIDOUT ON DRESS QUESTION.

At last the holiness people are going to have a real, outspoken, frank, powerful booklet on the Dress Question. Dr. Ridout has written it. Title is, "The Dress Question and Modern Abominations." Price will be 15c. Send in your order and read this book and get your friends to read it.

PENTECOSTAL PUBLISHING CO.
Louisville, Kentucky.

JUST OUT!!

"THE METHODIST CRISIS"

Dr. Ridout has put into pamphlet form under above title the story of the fight for orthodoxy which took place on the floor of the New Jersey Conference, Asbury Park, N. J., last March, in which he and Dr. H. P. Sloan and others debated with Bishop Anderson and Dr. H. H. Meyer, Sunday School Editor, the issues of Modernism within Methodism.

In addition to Dr. Ridout's story there is a fine write-up of the affair by Rev. H. Decker who was present at the debate and whose story appeared in the "Essentialist."

Let every Methodist send and get a copy of this booklet. Every Methodist minister--North and South--should read the story. It will stir your blood. It will show you how Modernism is getting a terrific grip on Methodist Bishops, Editors and Leaders. It will also show you your duty to stand up and show your colors in the hour of peril.

Dr. Sloan, Dr. Ridout and others take the fight for orthodoxy right into their Annual Conferences and it is there the battle should be fought out.

Price 15c, or 7 for $1.00.

PENTECOSTAL PUBLISHING CO.
Louisville, Kentucky.

THE FIGHT IS ON

The fight against sin and for holiness.

The fight against impurity and for purity.

The fight against worldliness in the church and for a holy people.

The fight against immodest dress and for a modest womanhood.

The fight against those who would destroy the Bible, and for the Word.

The fight against Sabbath desecration and for Sabbath observance.

The fight against lawlessness, and for obedience to the law.

The fight against trashy literature and for wholesome literature.

The fight against indifference and for a revival.

THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD IS IN THIS GREAT BATTLE FOR RIGHTEOUSNESS.

and the only way for us to make the fight effective in your community is for you to help us by placing it into every home possible. You will be pleased to know that you can send THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD from now until January 1, 1928, for only 50c, and if we may have your co-operation, you will be instrumental in making this fight effective in your community.

Allow us to suggest that you tell every one you come in contact with what THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD is fighting for, and tell them of this special introductory offer. Also speak to one or more financially able and liberal persons, tell them what you are trying to do, and ask for their co-operation in putting the paper into a number of homes. Then, too, you will find a number of people who tithe who will be glad to invest a little tithe money in a fight of this kind.

Use the blanks below and send in your list within the next few days, so as to give the subscribers the benefit of the full 25 weeks.

Pentecostal Publishing Company, Louisville, Kentucky.

Enclosed find $..... for which please send The Pentecostal Herald weekly from now until January, 1928, to the following:

Name Name

Address Address

Name Name

Address Address

Name Name

Address Address

Name Name

Address Address

Name Name

Address Address

PENTECOSTAL HERALD

Dr. H. C. Morrison, Editor
Mrs. H. C. Morrison, Associate Editor

Louisville, Ky., Wednesday, Aug. 17, 1927.
Entered at Louisville, Ky., Postoffice as Second Class Matter

$1.50 Per Year.
Vol. 39, No. 33.

"I SEEK NOT YOURS BUT YOU."

By The Editor.

THE evangelist who has the reputation for being saved from seeking a great reputation has the best reputation.

The evangelist who has victory over money love, who becomes known among the people as so loving his Lord, and the souls of men, that he has but little place for money love or self-love, will never have written on his tombstone: "Here lies a man who starved to death."

This is not condemning the evangelist for wanting to support his family decently, and meet his many obligations promptly, but the church and even the wicked world will love, and take care of the man who is clearly saved from money love. Martin Luther, John Wesley, Charles Finney, and Dwight L. Moody were so filled with the love of God, and the love of men, that material things had no claim upon them, and yet their wants were supplied.

The times are in great need of men in the pulpit who are wonderfully absorbed with that greatest work—the proclamation of the gospel that will save the souls of men from sin and an awful hell that sin will eventually bring. This is true with regard to the pastor as well as of the evangelist.

People are not willing that the physician, the dentist, the scientist, the college professor, the politician, the statesman, or any man in any calling, should give himself up to money love and money making. Of course it is honorable to transact business, and make money, and get on in the world, but there is something little and contemptible about giving one's self up to making money, and especially is this true if a man should be found in the pulpit with an open Bible before him, claiming to be God's messenger, and manifesting a love and desire to win men's dollars instead of their priceless souls.

We have fallen upon bad times when we bring out a translation of the Scriptures that reads: "How hardly shall a poor man enter into the kingdom of heaven." Or that the people glorify a man simply because he is rich. Character must count instead of gold. We are in danger that the rising generation make a serious mistake here and come to believe that money must have first consideration, that the whole population become materialistic and that we strive and struggle for the things that perish, that we set our minds and hearts on things temporal instead of things eternal.

Just at this time a few carloads of gospel preachers well sprinkled over the world, genuinely saved from the world and a desire for its wealth and its applause, but fearless and earnest proclaimers of the truths of God and the salvation of lost men through the atonement of Christ, men who exalt things of the soul above the things of the body, the things of eternity above the things of time, the things that are invisible above the things that are visible, would be of inestimable value to the present generation.

I can easily conceive of a stingy, narrow, selfish man who grudgingly gives a pittance to the minister of the gospel through whose labors his children have been brought to Christ, pronouncing his unqualified indorsement of the above statements. There are plenty of men who have been won to Jesus Christ through the faithful ministry of earnest preachers, who have spent their lives pinched with poverty, laboring for the salvation of their fellowmen, who have never had any proper appreciation of their high obligation to provide for the temporal wants of the servant of the Lord. I am prepared to sympathize with hard-pressed ministers who scarcely know which way to turn in order to meet their obligations. I know something of the feeling that comes to a man who has traveled far and labored faithfully, who is

SPECIAL NOTICE!

It will be remembered by some of our readers that in our bill of editorial fare we promised to discuss the following question:

"Will the Opposition to the Old Methodist Doctrine of Sanctification and the Propaganda of Modern Liberalism in Methodism Make the Organization of Another Methodist Church a Necessity?"

When we made the above statement, we thought that one article would be sufficient for the discussion of the subject as far as we cared to go into it, but, thinking on the subject, we find it grows and calls for a series of articles which we are now preparing in the form of letters and will be commenced in The Herald along about the first of November. We have been so constantly pressed with revival work that it has been impossible for us to give the attention to this very serious matter in which we are in danger of being misunderstood that we are compelled to give it more time and thought that we had at first supposed.

Faithfully yours,
H. C. Morrison.

paid off in noisy compliments. I have known what it was to preach to hundreds of audiences who have never, for a moment, seemed to remember that a minister of the gospel cannot live on wind and water. The reader may be sure I have no sympathy with such stingy and selfish indifference to the proper support of the servants of the Lord. But such neglect of duty may be turned to good account in driving a man closer to the man of Galilee, who had not where to lay his head, in weaning him more and more away from this world, and in seeking with greater earnestness to lay up his treasures "Where moth and rust doth not corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal."

It was not our purpose to write so much on the subject of the importance of supporting the ministry, but just now we were thinking of the importance of the ministry being genuinely saved from the love of money, and absorbed with the love of souls.

A fully redeemed ministry, men in the pulpit saved from sin and filled with the Spirit of Christ, who have no desire for office, or fame, or gold, but who are content to live the simple life and labor in unremitting zeal for the salvation of the lost, are invaluable factors in the preservation and advancement of our civilization—the salvation of our republic now, as well as the salvation of the individual hereafter. Let those who preach the word of God, aspire to the spirit and faith and love that moved the great Apostle to write: "God forbid that I should glory, save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom the world is crucified unto me, and I unto the world."

ONE OF MY GREAT DESIRES.

CHAPTER I.

WHEN I was a very young preacher I could not understand the deep interest that old preachers of the gospel manifested in me. They cautioned, corrected and encouraged me in many ways. They called me to assist them in revival meetings and were wonderfully kind in helping me up into larger and better things as a preacher of the Gospel. I used to wonder at their interest and solicitude. I have come to understand it now.

These old ministers loved their Lord. They loved the souls of men. They loved the Gospel message. They realized that they were reaching the end of their pilgrimage. They must soon lay down the Gospel trumpet and they were deeply concerned with regard to those who were to follow them with the proclamation of the Gospel.

I find myself burdened with this same concern. I have tried the Gospel. It has proven its gracious power to save in my own soul. I have seen its power demonstrated in the salvation of many other souls, from little children and the highly moral to the desperately wicked and the very old. There is power in the Gospel of Christ to redeem men from sin, or perhaps I should say there is power in the Christ of the Gospel to save to the uttermost.

It is very generally known that I am now President of the Theological Seminary at Asbury College. We have a great school here for the preparation of young men for the ministry. It has a fine body of scholarly, consecrated and devout men who are sound in the faith. They have under their direction and instruction as fine a body of young men as can be found anywhere. They are doing a great work, but I can think of no way in which I can spend the evening of life to better advantage than in an earnest effort to build up this theological seminary.

I am praying God to spare my life and give me wisdom, grace and guidance to help

(Continued on page 8)

John The Divine and John Wesley.

Rev. G. W. Ridout, D.D., Corresponding Editor.

OTH Johns have made a profound impression on the religious thought of the ages. To John the Divine we are indebted for the fourth Gospel, the four Epistles and Revelation. To John Wesley we are indebted for the great Revival of Religion, the great Holiness Awakening which came to the Eighteenth Century, which gave Methodism and her great body of Evangelical Theology to the Protestantism of two continents.

It is a singular fact that all the holiness churches and all the holiness movements trace back their doctrine of entire sanctification to the teachings of John Wesley. It has been truly said that Luther was moved of God to rediscover to the church the great doctrine of justification by faith, and John Wesley was used of God to open up, unveil and reproduce to the church the long hidden truth of Christian Perfection—otherwise known as entire sanctification, perfect love, full salvation, etc.

To John the Divine in his First Epistle, fourth chapter, verses 17 and 18, we meet the expression "Perfect Love." The idea of sanctification, or perfect love, is expressed in that old hymn which should be sung more often in our holiness camp meetings:

"O glorious hope of perfect love,

It lifts me up to things above,

It bears on eagles' wings;

It gives my ravished soul a taste,
And makes me for some moments feast
With Jesus' priests and kings."

John Wesley in proclaiming anew to the church the great privilege of perfect love came into possession of the doctrine and experience after a long study and struggle. A certain writer gives us the statement of his progress in these deep things as follows:

"The blessing came to him along the line of serious reading. At twenty-three he was profoundly moved by Bishop Taylor's 'Rules of Holy Living and Dying.' In the following year he was praying through Thomas à Kempis' 'Christian Pattern.' These gave him a fixed intention to give himself wholly to God and set his heart to seek after Christian perfection. A year later it was William Laws' 'Christian Perfect,' and 'Serious Call,' that strengthened and reinforced his vow to be 'all devoted to God, in body, soul, and spirit.' Taylor was a Bishop, a Kempis was an Augustine Monk, Law was an eminent scholar and theologian. No reason is given, but three years later, he put aside all others and became a man of one Book. He turned to the Bible. He writes in his Journal: 'I then saw, in a stronger light than ever before, that only one thing is needful: even faith that worketh by the love of God and man, all inward and outward holiness: and I groaned to love God with all my heart, and to serve him with all my strength.' There is no such definite statement of his experience of entire sanctification as that of his 'warmed heart' in Aldersgate Street, but he testified very definitely to the experience, and defended and preached it everywhere."

In a letter to Dr. Dodd in 1756, he wrote: "When I began to make the Scriptures my study (about seven and twenty years ago). I began to see that Christians are called to love God with all their heart, and to serve him with all their strength, which is precisely what I apprehend to be meant by the Scriptural term 'perfection.' After weighing this for some years, I openly declared my sentiments before the University, in the sermon on 'The Circumcision of the Heart.' About six years after, in consequence of an advice I received from Bishop Gibson, 'Tell all the world what you mean by perfection,' I published my coolest and latest thoughts in the sermon on that subject. I therein build on no authority, ancient or modern, but the

THERE IS A LIFE.

There is a life of faith in Christ to live
That links us to a life of bliss above,
And all who humbly follow Him below
In heaven will share the triumphs of his love.

There is a cross that all his own must bear,
Exchanged in glory for a radiant crown
Which all his faithful ones will one day wear,
And at his feet lay all their laurels down.

There is a peace, to carnal minds unknown,
Unruffled by the world's distracting care—
Christ's legacy to hearts that are his own,
And guarded by his Spirit's presence there.

There is a rest beyond this shadowland
From pain and sorrow, weariness and toil,
Where faithful pilgrims of earth's transient days
Unite with loved ones they had lost awhile.

There is a song which ransomed ones will sing,
Who practiced here each rudiment and chord
To Him that loved and washed us from our sins,
And made us kings and priests unto the Lord.

There is a home for every child of God,
A mansion fair, not made by mortal hands;
Indissolubly sure and undefiled
The Father's house on high for ever stands.

So let us run by faith the heavenly race,
Casting aside each hindrance and each sin,
Looking to Jesus Christ, the first and last,
Striving by heavenly grace the prize to win.

—Samuel C. Wood.

Scripture." Writing to the Countess of Huntington he says: "The loving God with all the heart, soul and strength, and the loving all men as Christ loved us, is, and ever was, for these twenty years, the sum of what I deliver as pure religion and undefiled."

John Wesley was very explicit, frank and plain in all his teachings. He avoided loud-sounding words; unlike so many modern writers he totally refused to put his meaning in philosophic language. Wesley believed in simplicity. As one has said touching his statement of perfect love:

Wesley's mind could never be satisfied with general statements, and he was constantly setting forth his doctrine in logical and specific order. For instance in one place he says: "By 'Christian perfection' I mean:

"Loving God with all our heart. Do you object to this?

"A heart and life all devoted to God. Do you desire less?

"Regaining the whole image of God. What objection to this?

"Having all the mind that was in Christ. Is this going too far?

"Walking uniformly as Christ walked. And this surely no Christian will object to. If any one means anything more, or anything else, by perfection, I have no concern with it."

ELEMENTS OF PERFECT LOVE.

We shall put here Rev. S. Chadwick's analysis of this great truth and experience.

"First: Perfect love pre-supposes a real experience of concerting grace. Before one is eligible for Perfect Love there must be a clear witness of a New Birth through grace and adoption into the family of God. 'Sanctification begins in the moment a man is justified. Yet sin remains in him, yea, the seed of sin, till he is sanctified throughout . . . There does still remain even in them that are justified a mind which is in some measure carnal.'

"Second: Perfect Love is a second distinct work of grace, wrought subsequent to regeneration and witnessed to by the Holy Spirit.

"Third: Perfect Love is obtained through Faith. It is the gift of God, entirely of grace, and without works of righteousness. As we are justified by faith, so are we sanctified by faith. It is given instantaneously. 'To talk of this work as being gradual would be nonsense, as much as if we talked of gradual justification.' John Wesley wrote to his brother Charles in 1766: 'Insist everywhere on full redemption received now by faith alone. . . . Press the instantaneous blessing.' The command is clear, the promise is sure, and there is no condition but claiming and receiving faith.

"Fourth: In Perfect Love the soul is delivered from indwelling sin, the carnal mind is destroyed; and inbred sin subsists no more. 'Entire sanctification, or Christian Perfection, is neither more nor less than pure love; love expelling sin, and governing both the heart and life of a child of God."

METHODISM AND FULL SALVATION.

Two things need to be recalled:

"(1) That Wesley regarded this doctrine and responsibility as the special privilege and responsibility of Methodism. 'It is the grand depositum which God has given to the people called Methodists; and chiefly to propagate this it appears God raised them up. . . . We believe that God's design in raising up the preachers called Methodists was to spread Scriptural Holiness throughout the land and reform the nation.' What has modern Methodism to say to this?

"(2) That Wesley traced all worldliness and spiritual failure in the churches to the neglect of this doctrine and the decline of this testimony. Where Christian Perfection is not strongly and explicitly preached there is seldom any remarkable blessing from God; and consequently little addition to the Society, and little life in the members of it. . . . Till you press the believers to expect full salvation now, you must not look for any revival."

"It is nothing strange that those who love the world should not love to continue with us. Our road is too strait.

'Down in the stream of nature driven,

They seek a broader path to heaven.'

"If you press all the believers to go on to Perfection, and to expect deliverance from sin, every moment, they will grow in grace. But if they lose that expectation, they will grow flat and cold."

"I found the plain reason why the work of God had gained no ground. The preachers had given up the Methodist testimony. Either they did not speak of Perfection at all (the peculiar doctrine committed to our trust), or they spoke of it in general terms, without urging the believers to go on unto Perfection, and to expect it every moment. And wherever this is not done the work of God does not prosper."

The Living Truth.

"Thy Word, almighty Lord,

Where'er it enters in,

Is sharper than a two-edged sword,

To slay the man of sin."

The Bible is the word of God. The awful sublimity of this truth is strikingly exhibited in Rev. 19:13: "His name is called The Word of God." Here the Word is personified as Christ himself. Also John 1:1: "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God." "He that rejecteth me and receiveth not my Word, hath One that judgeth him, the Word that I have spoken, the same shall judge him at the last day." In many other passages is the Word of God thus personified, as identical with God himself. In relying upon it, efficacious influences ought to be expected as confidently as were healing influences from touching Christ when he was on earth; for in relying upon the Word, we in verity rely upon Christ, and touch him as truly as though his bodily presence was with us, and we were permitted to lean upon him.

The practice of real Christianity will solve political, economical, and social, as well as religious problems.

MODERN APOSTLES OF FAITH.

Rev. C. F. Wimberly, D.D.

CHAPTER XXIV.

BISHOP W. A. CANDLER.

GORGIA has given more than her quota of great men to the nation. Any one passing through the state for the first time, is disappointed at the apparent poverty of the country. However, it is not the rich soil that produces men; it is blood and environment—often grinding and hard—that produce the highest type of men. Among the names that have added luster to the Empire State, during the present generation is Candler.

There were three sons born to the parentage of Samuel C. and Mary B. Candler; all of whom have taken places of state-wide leadership: one a capitalist and philanthropist; another an eminent jurist, and once the governor of the state; the other—the subject of this sketch—an outstanding preacher, a parliamentarian, a religious statesman and leader, holding the highest office in the gift of a great church—Warren A. Candler.

For more than three decades he has been recognized as one of the southland's leaders in civic and religious life—a preacher of tremendous power. His mind is cast in a mould that can take in nothing little or mean. As a parliamentarian, we doubt if he has an equal on the continent. He could manage a United States Senate as easily as he could preside over a district conference. Bishop Candler is a master of assemblies. A dozen men may be on the floor at once, all clamoring for recognition; motion after motion, with amendments and substitutes may be fired at him from every part of the building, but he never loses his head; or what is next in order, or what is "out of order." As the chairman, he can state the motion, the amendment, or what is before the house amid all the confusion.

We have always regarded Bishop Candler as a kind of ideal in all he did, but he was never greater to me, than when he presided over one of the General Conferences in one of the stormiest sessions, perhaps, in the history of the church. It was when the old War Claim question was before that body. Those who remember the calm abandon with which Bishop Candler guided the heated session, must see in him a consummate parliamentarian. Others lose their heads, but the Bishop never does. In this regard he towers above all other men, so far as we have observed.

It can be said with justice to all, the south has no greater preacher. There may be others with some scholarly touches which the Bishop may not possess, but in expounding the Gospel of the Atonement and sacrificial death of Christ, without any new emphasis or apology, Bishop Candler easily ranks at the top. Regardless of what text, or subject he may be expounding, one has the feeling when he is through, that it has about all been said.

It is a great pity that Bishop Candler cannot be in some metropolitan pulpit, where the throngs could wait on his ministry, and a powerful broadcasting station attached, so that he could preach to the whole nation. What a contrast would be his mighty gospel, as compared with Cadman, Fosdick, and others, who are favored with such opportunities. The episcopacy is a big job, but it circumscribes a man of Bishop Candler's calibre.

Warren A. Candler was born August 23, 1857, in Carroll Co., Ga. At the age of fourteen, he entered Emory College, Oxford, Ga., and four years later, graduated with the highest honors. The following autumn, 1875, he joined the North Georgia Conference of the M. E. Church, South, and was assigned to the Newton Circuit. Two years later he was married to Miss Nettie Curtright. Each appointment was a promotion; the third charge was Merritt's Avenue, Atlanta. The following year he was made presiding elder of the Dahlonga District, and was at the time the youngest presiding elder in the church. After he finished his term on the district, he served Sparta and St. John, in Augusta. After this he was elected assistant editor of The Nashville Christian Advocate, where he served for two years. While living in Nashville, he supplied for a time the old McKendree Church, and being in this religious and intellectual center, soon gained a church-wide reputation as a preacher.

At the end of two years, he was called by the board of curators of Emory College—his alma mater—to the presidency. Being only thirty-one years old, he was the youngest college president of any American college. In this new position, he very soon exhibited unusual ability as a financier, and the school's endowment grew to such an extent that it was placed in a rank with the foremost colleges of the state. His work as an educator gave him prestige throughout the church; and his well known ability as a preacher was such that it was no surprise when he was elected to the episcopacy in 1893, scarcely forty years of age.

During the three decades he has served as a bishop, no man in American Methodism has wielded a greater influence. He has been a regular contributor to the Atlanta Journal, giving out timely messages on whatever theme he desired to discuss. In those contributions he has produced for the world "the beaten oil of the sanctuary"; truth on social, political, and religious problems, handled by a master. He has been able to draw from a ripe scholarship and extensive reading such information that qualifies him to speak with authority. What he says goes without challenge. Many of those messages, along with others, have been reproduced in the church press; so that Bishop Candler speaks to the entire southland, and touches other parts of the nation.

Bishop Candler is being charged with being ultra conservative, and to a degree, prejudiced on matters pertaining to orthodox faith, unification of Methodism, and other modern tendencies of the times. It is a calamity to our southland that we have so few of his kind. He is holding a place in defense of the Bible, and the doctrines of the church which will be hard to fill. The charges being made against our beloved Bishop reflect no discredit on him; he could not be more highly honored, than standing as he does, the champion of the Bible, and the faith which was once delivered unto the saints. Bishop Candler believes the Bible. We once heard him say: "The trouble with the gospel today is, that it has bleached out." In other words, the blood was no longer being given the proper emphasis.

We regret more than we have words to express, that Bishop W. A. Candler is so near the sunset. While he is still vigorous, and it seems that his mental and physical powers were never stronger, think of what it would mean to our church in her fight against modernistic tendencies, if the Bishop were twenty years younger. His Damascus Blade is still keen, and it is unsheathed for all enemies of the church; but it cannot continue in the distant to-morrows, when such a blade will be sorely needed.

He is a true son of the South; born and bred in Georgia, and was a lad not yet in his teens, when the dark scourge of war prostrated his country, and with thousands of others he has not forgotten those fearful experiences. When all these things are remembered, we can better understand the conservative spirit of the man touching the questions that have been agitating Methodism for many years; he knows the people of the South—their faults and their virtues—and the dear Bishop is not alone in his views of what is best for our church.

We have noted some of the factors in the make-up of this great leader: He is an executor and a master of assemblies—par excellence; he is a writer, lucid, terse, epigrammatic on any theme he wishes to discuss, there are no dull, monotonous paragraphs coming from his pen. His logic leaves no open spaces for the enemy; his sarcasm is withering. It is a genuine thrill to read from his pen when he turns the broadside of his powers upon conceited, sophisticated scholarship and apostles of new ideas, "Mossbackism." Oh, yes, perhaps it is, but like a cat tossed into the air, the Bishop always lights on his feet.

We have observed that, in sermon or public address, the same powers of repartee and cutting sarcasm, and flashes of timely wit are always at his command, and can be brought into action with the same telling effect, as when preparing a rejoinder or contribution in the quiet of his study. He knows the language of the street; he knows the viewpoint of the negro and the unlearned white man of the South. When he chooses he can use slang, so that it fits like classic English. He has a spontaneous wit that is never lacking in sermon or address, and holds the sympathy and good will of his auditors so completely that their minds and hearts are open for tremendous truths that will follow.

Bishop Candler is a rare combination. We love and honor him as a ten-talented man, not only to our Methodism, but to the whole nation. In the first minute of his appearance before an audience they will discover that a man is before them. He is unique in physical aspects; his soft—though stentorian voice—accentuated by southern vernacular of speech, grips his hearers and time flies by unnoticed. Bishop Candler is truly a great preacher. We doubt if ever an audience grew tired under his messages, and this is the acid test of a public speaker, and the true orator.

As a writer, the Bishop has made some lasting contributions to the literature of his church. Scarcely a year passes but he produces a book on some vital theme. In addition to all those rare and unusual qualifications mentioned above, he has been an efficient agency in giving to the church one of her greatest universities, and one that is foremost in the south. He more than any one else, did the planning, organizing, and carrying to a success the big task of bringing into being—Emory University. So, in conclusion, it can be said that, from the beginning, as a youth until the present hour, Warren A. Candler has been a successful doer of big things.

"Beautiful Girlhood"

The book was written by Mable Hale, price $1.00 may be purchased through The Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky.

This book, delightfully written for girls is one of the most inspiring for character building to be read. It takes a vision into the depths of womanhood to create in others the desire to live up to an ideal. Mable Hale has given in her book facts which will help girls understand themselves as well as others, in thoughts, attitudes and expressions of development. This book will inspire girls to a greater effort of living true, sincere lives, if they would be all that the title, "Beautiful Girlhood" implies.

The above is an unsolicited testimonial written by Miss Aileen Lewis, director of young people's work, The Kentucky Council of Religious Education.

THE GIFT OF REST.

Rev. Joseph H. Smith

Text, Hebrews 4:11: "Let us labor therefore to enter into that rest, lest any man fall after the same example of unbelief."

NEW Testament Christians are to be admonished by Old Testament examples. This is plainly set forth in 1 Cor. 10:11, thus: "Now all these things happened unto them for ensamples and they are written for our admonition, upon whom the ends of the world are come." The particular example before us in this instance is that of the fall of the children of Israel in the wilderness: With whom was he grieved forty years? Was it not with them that had sinned, whose carcasses fell in the wilderness? And to whom sware he that they should not enter into his rest, but to them that believed not? So we see that they could not enter in because of unbelief. (Heb. 3:17-19). Our text relates directly to this "Let us labor to enter into that rest, lest any man fall after the same example of unbelief." We shall inquire first, "What is that rest?"; consider, second, this example and its tremendous incentive and appeal to fear; and in the third place, note the labor necessary to bring forth the faith by which we are to enter in.

Some have thought it was the rest of heaven, but this idea disappears when we consider (1) that it is typified by Canaan into which Joshua as God's reward had led the people. But Canaan is unlike heaven in these two cardinal particulars! Canaan's occupation was still contingent upon aggression and warfare; but in heaven they rest from their labors, the wicked cease to trouble, probation is ended. In Canaan there was yet possibility of defeat, as at Ai, and of the death penalty infliction as upon Achan, but in heaven they are fixed as pillars in the temple of God and none die any more.

(1) There is claim made here that the writer and others with him had actually possessed this rest. And this in most positive and emphatic form. See verse 3 of the chapter. "For we which have believed do enter into rest." This brings it somewhere within the range of this life possibility. And besides this the chapter opens with an admonition to "fear lest any should seem to come short of it." As though it was not only a rest that is possible here, but that it would be a reproach for any Christian at all to seem to stop short of it.

This plainly locates this rest in the domain of present Christian experience, makes it incumbent upon all Christians to attain unto it, and presents it as conditional upon faith.

Now that it must be a most exalted state, as well as a very necessary one, will appear upon reflection that it is compared unto the Sabbath, typified by the Canaan inheritance of Israel, and identified as the Rest of God. There is a promise left us of entering into "his rest." Beyond what God gave them through Joshua there remaineth a rest unto the people of God. (A 'Sabbath keeping' this is rendered in the margin) And "God did rest the seventh day from all his works."

Then, too, we do well to pause a bit before the demonstrative "that" in the text: "Let us labor therefore to enter into that rest." Now this phraseology fixes it in a class. We think of these other things to which Inspiration gives such distinction. "That day." "That Holy Spirit of promise", of whom later Peter, quoting the promise of Pentecost, said, "This is that."

Now above all rest of satiety, all rest of indifference, or inertia, or indolence; and beyond the rest of mere abstractions or of philosophical complacency, "that" rest is the calm and composure of God who knows neither indifference nor inaction. It is the quiet of a holy Sabbath that has hushed the world to wait in worship of God. It is the confidence of an assured possession, as when Canaan tenure rests in the promise and oath of a covenant-keeping God.

It will be no violence to this word of the Rest of God to identify it with the peace of God which passeth all understanding. It is plainly and clearly that "second rest" which Jesus promised when he said, "Ye shall find rest unto your souls." It must be then an end to turmoil, friction, and strain within our inmost bosom. It must be equipoise of heart despite all tempest tossings without. It doubtless is that "quietness and confidence" which lends the "strength" of the divine to the frailty of the human. It must fulfil the Old Testament assurance: "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on thee because he trusteth in thee." It is the probating of his will when Jesus said: "My peace I leave with thee." From this on, you need not have a troubled heart or be afraid. Identifying this rest with Holiness Charles Wesley describes it as:

"A rest where all the soul's desire

Is fixed on things above;

Where fear and sin and grief expire,

Cast out by perfect love."

Coming next to the example mentioned in the text, we are first confronted with the wilderness state; first in distinction from their previous state in Egypt, and second, contrasted with their proffered state in Canaan which was a type of "that rest."

Their bondage in Egypt had been inevitable and represented man's natural condition in sin: But their state in the Wilderness was in consequence of their own unbelief and disobedience. And their responsibility in this had been accentuated by the light of their great deliverer from Egypt and their passage of the Red Sea, which was a type of Conversion; and it was also accentuated by the farther light of the word of the testimony of the two good spies at Kadesh-Barnea, and the sight of the fruits of the land brought in proof of the good promises of God. "They could not enter in because of unbelief." And "they were overthrown in the wilderness." What an alternative to have chosen! The wilderness and its perils in lieu of Canaan! Instead of the sunlight of God's abiding pleasure; the shadows, the clouds, and the storms betimes of God's frown and fierce wrath.

As a consequence of forfeited favor and reversed relationships with God, they fell into various sins:

They murmured,
They lusted,
They worshipped idols,
They committed fornication,
They tempted Christ.

And as a consequence of these, "their carcasses were strewn in the wilderness." We suppose that desert graveyard (or bone-yard) of some half-million of (once) God's people is the most desolate scene on earth that heaven ever looked down upon, and God ever wept over.

Nor must we forget that such physical judgments are but shadows—only samples of what pertains to the final judgment and the Second Death. "He that despised Moses' Law died without mercy under two or three witnesses; of how much sorer punishment suppose ye shall he be thought worthy, who hath trodden under foot the Son of God . . . ?" (See Hebrews 10:28, 29). This "wilderness" fate was for example and it is written for the admonition of those of us upon whom the ends of the world has come in this final and full dispensation of grace. "Let us labor to enter into that rest lest any man fall after the same example of unbelief."

Ye shall consider then the "laborer" that is called for to "enter in." It is a little delicate to be reminded here that this labor is not work, but travail. It was but a short step over the boundary from where they were at Kadesh-Barnea into the Canaan land. Maybe not a day's journey. Neither time nor works were needed to bring them there. Naught but the obedience of faith. And the difficulties to faith are not in our circumstances or environment; they are in ourselves. That same carnal mind which would later murmur, or lust, or fall into idolatry, or commit sin will now project more formidable difficulties and barriers to the faith that would cast out the old man. This is the battle of the ages. Victory here means eternal life hereafter. Defeat means wilderness next and death to ensue. Well may the soul cry out:

"Give me the faith that casts out sin and purifies the heart." "This kind goeth not out but by prayer and fasting," said the Master concerning certain devils which were too hard for his disciples to cast out; and concerning the faith alone by which they could be cast out. It is the "labor of soul" travail of prayer, by which the faith is brought forth with which we enter into this rest.

And "we which have believed do enter into rest", and "truly his rest is glorious." It is the rest of purity—for the heart is no longer divided against itself. "God hath united our hearts to fear his name." It is the rest of love; and love reposes in perfect confidence in him we love, and utter unselfishness and goodness towards those we love. It is the rest of his presence, as he hath said, "My presence shall go with thee and I will give thee rest." And as its only condition is faith, it is, lastly, the Rest of Faith.

Authenticity and Inspiration of the Scriptures.

REV. Z. T. JOHNSON, A.M.

CHAPTER V.

PROPHECIES CONCERNING NATIONS CONTEMPORARY WITH THE JEWS.

WE shall now give a few of the prophecies that were uttered concerning the destruction of the nations that persecuted the Jews. It will need no argument to prove the actual transpiring of these prophecies, for history has already given testimony to them. Concerning Tyre and Sidon through whom the abomination of Baal was transplanted to Israel it was said, Ezekiel 26:3, 4, 12, 14, "Therefore thus saith the Lord God, Behold, I am against thee, O Tyre, and will cause many nations to come up against thee, as the sea causeth his waves to come up. And they shall destroy the walls of Tyre, and break down her towers; I will also scrape her dust from her, and make her like the top of a rock. And they shall make a spoil of thy riches, and make a prey of thy merchandise; and they shall break down thy walls, and destroy thy pleasant houses! and they shall lay thy stones, and thy timber, and thy dust, in the midst of the water. And I will make thee like the top of a rock; thou shalt be a place to spread nets upon; thou shalt be built no more; for I the Lord have spoken it, saith the Lord God."

Lamartine, in his book, "Voyage en Orient," marvels at how this prophecy was so literally fulfilled. About two hundred and fifty years after the utterance of these words Alexander the Great laid siege to Tyre, and built a dam a half mile long between the island and the main land. In this project the doors and walls, the temples and palaces of the old city were taken, and the stones and timbers, and even the earth, or dust, were carried into the midst of the sea. Such was the end of Tyre.

Assyria and Babylon were two nations that brought desolation and distress to Israel. Concerning them it was said in Jeremiah 50:23-4, "How is the hammer of the whole earth cut asunder and broken! How is Babylon become a desolation among the nations! I have laid a snare for thee, and thou art also taken, O Babylon, and thou wast not aware: thou art found, and also caught, because thou hast striven against the Lord." And Jeremiah 51:29, 31, 33, 58 says, "And the land shall tremble and sorrow: for every purpose of the Lord shall be performed against Babylon, to make the land of Babylon a desolation without an inhabitant. One post shall run to meet another, and one messenger to meet another, to shew the king of Babylon that the city is taken at one end. For thus saith the Lord of Hosts, the God of Israel, The daughter of Babylon is like a threshing floor, it is time to thresh her: yet a little while, and the time of her harvest shall come. Thus saith the Lord of hosts, The broad walls of Babylon shall be utterly taken, and her high gates shall be burned with fire; and the people shall labor in vain, and the folk in the fire, and they shall be weary."

Concerning the downfall of Babylon, Dr. H. C. Morrison, in his book, "Prophecies Fulfilled and Fulfilling," says, "Cyrus captured Babylon by turning the river which ran through the city out of its course, and at the same time two armies entered the city, one beneath the wall where the river entered the city, and the other where the river left the city so that the watchmen who ran from either side of the city to notify the king that an enemy had entered Babylon, fulfilled the prediction that one post or messenger should meet another carrying the message to the king of the fall of the city." F. Bettex, in his book, "The Bible the Word of God," says, "But the chief enemies of Israel were Assyria and Babylonia. The downfall of these two proud powers is prophesied; and never has the downfall of an empire been more complete. Their land was a granary, a blooming garden carefully watered by canals, so fruitful, that Herodotus feared he would be accused of lying if he related what he had seen; that a grain of wheat bore two hundred to three hundred fold, and that many ears were the width of four fingers. How incredible that such a land, swarming with highly civilized inhabitants, should be converted into a desolate, seared, wholly unproductive and uninhabited desert! How could it come about? For such a thing has never taken place in Europe, China, or India. But the Lord said through the prophet, 'Her cities shall be a desolation, a dry land, and a wilderness, a land wherein no man dwelleth, neither doth any son of man pass thereby.' And it is a desert. Of this land the traveler Fraser says, 'The entire plain is densely covered with traces of former habitations, but now offers the eye nothing but an immense barren waste.' And Ker Porter says, 'Every bit of ground, as far as eye could reach, was wholly unproductive.'"

The last prophecy that we shall notice concerning these nations is that concerning the city of Nineveh, the capital of Assyria. Zephaniah 2:13, 14 says, "And he will stretch out his hand against the north, and destroy Assyria; and will make Nineveh a desolation, and dry like a wilderness, And flocks shall lie down in the midst of her, all the beasts of the nations: both the cormorant and the bittern shall lodge in the upper lintels of it; their voice shall sing in the windows; desolation shall be in the thresholds: for he shall uncover the cedar work." In Nahum 1:1, 8, 10, we find, "The burden of Nineveh. The book of the vision of Nahum the Elkoshite. But with an overrunning flood he will make an utter end of the place thereof, and darkness shall pursue his enemies. For while they be folded together as thorns, and while they are drunken as drunkards, they shall be devoured as stubble fully dry." According to Herodotus, the city wall was broken down by a flood during the siege of the Medes and Babylonians, and the city was taken. Another historian, Siculus, says that the Assyrians were drunk when the city was taken. The prophecies against the city were so literally fulfilled that its very existence was denied by some of the critics of the Bible until archaeologists verified it through their excavations. (Continued)

HOLINESS EVANGELISM.

EVANGELIST H. W. GALLOWAY.

WHILE thinking over the past, present and future relative to this subject, and realizing in a measure the need of a clear and definite understanding of the nature of this type of evangelism, I shall endeavor to treat the subject from a reasonable and definite standpoint of view. First: What It Is. Second: Its Need. Third: Its Place. Fourth: Its Purpose. Fifth: Its Ministry.

I. WHAT IT IS.

Holiness evangelism is a specific type of evangelism carrying a definite message for a particular need. The doctrine and preaching of evangelical principles and experiences that present every man perfect in Christ Jesus. It offers no apology for any phase of Divine truth, but it declares faithfully the whole counsel of God. It has a definite message on the doctrine of sin, and depicts sin in its twofold nature in all of its hideousness and guilt, tenderly, but earnestly warning the impenitent sinner of the coming judgment and hell with its eternal punishment.

It sounds forth the denunciation of God's law with no uncertain sound and faithfully declares upon the authority of God's word, that all men everywhere must repent or perish. It clearly sets forth in order, and places the proper emphasis upon the cardinal doctrines of the Bible, teaching that men must be convicted by the Holy Spirit before they will repent, and that they must repent before they can be born of God; that believers must be convicted for a clean heart and walk in the light of this conviction before they can or will entirely consecrate to God their all for time and eternity which means a dying out to sin, to the world, and to self, a three-fold death, before God will sanctify them wholly, and that entire sanctification instantaneously wrought by the Holy Spirit in the heart of the believer subsequent to regeneration is the experience that enables men to live a holy life. It also teaches that this experience is the wedding garment that gives men the only true hope of being like him when he comes. "And every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as he is pure." 1 John 3:3. Holiness evangelism also teaches that the experience of entire sanctification is witnessed to by the Holy Spirit as clearly and definitely as to the new birth, and that the only true evidence of the experience is the witness of the Spirit, accompanied by the fruits of the Spirit. Gal. 5:22, 23. True Holiness evangelism is definite "Second Blessing" evangelism.

II. ITS NEED.

A totally depraved soul needs a full and complete redemption. Since the disease of sin is so deeply rooted in the human soul, there must be and there is provided a radical sin-killing cure, which holiness evangelism must faithfully declare. In this age of indefiniteness along the lines of all vital issues, when sin is looked upon by a faithless church and an apostate ministry, with no small degree of allowance, and lawlessness stalks seemingly unmolested through the land, with the signs of the times pointing with an index finger to the soon coming of our Lord, the need of a definite holiness evangelism which will give sin and lawlessness no quarters anywhere nor make any compromise with the spirit of this age, in the church or out, is certainly paramount. We need definite preaching, clear-cut doctrinal preaching, positive preaching, scriptural preaching, "Thus saith the Lord." True holiness evangelism is certainly the need of the hour. No other type of evangelism will meet the need and stand the test.

III. ITS PLACE.

In the church and out of the church; wherever man is found, homeland and foreign fields. It cannot be sectarianized, it must not be localized. It has a world-wide mission. It must enter every open door, regardless of race, creed, or color. Its place is at the front ranks in this holy warfare. It must be on the offensive. Where sin has gone, Holiness evangelism must go. Where it is hindered and its place in the church is taken and doors are closed against its message; it makes a place, builds tabernacles, pitches tents, goes into missions and with song, prayer, testimony, and the preached word, Holiness evangelism heralds the message of full salvation to throngs of hungry people every year. Holiness evangelism has a God-given place. It has a specific place in the church, and woe be to the man or church who will dare close the door against the message of full salvation. Nothing can take its place in the church and as a result of its absence, there is a tremendous falling away and a spiritual dearth that is increasingly alarming.

IV. ITS PURPOSE.

Primarily, its specific purpose is the sanctification of believers and the edifying of the body of Christ. Its general purpose is to carry a definite message of full salvation that condemns sin, that awakens the sinner

(Continued on page 9)

JOB'S TWO EXPERIENCES.

T. RICHARDSON GRAY.

Have heard of Thee through the hearing of the ear." This was his first experience, an ear knowledge. "But now mine eye seeth Thee." This was his second experience, an eye knowledge, a clear perception of God. The first was hazy, indefinite; the second was direct, and convincing.

There was a vast difference between the disciples who said, "That which we have seen, and our hands have handled," and they who could only say, "We have heard of him." Nicodemus had also "heard" of Jesus, and sought a close-up knowledge of him, which Jesus taught was a "Born again" experience. We fear there are many today who, like Job, have only an "ear" knowledge, and lack the "eye," or soul perception in a fuller experience of God.

RESULT OF JOB'S NEW VISION.

"Wherefore I abhor myself and repent." The new light that discovered God's excellences, revealed to Job his own villainy; before this he had been rated as a "good fellow," perhaps a man at his best, but not at God's best. Isaiah, one of the holiest of prophets, had many excellences, but later he cried out, "Woe is me for I have seen the Lord." Zacchæus was a trusted servant and officer, perhaps as good a man as the custom and community of his day demanded, but when the real Christ came into his life, he saw how small he was by comparison, and found he had many things to straighten up. Not until then could Jesus say, "This day has salvation come to this house."

A NOTABLE EXAMPLE.

A wealthy merchant who, during revival, often attempted to be a Christian, as his wife was, but seemed never to get beyond conviction, one evening fell in with our prayer meeting crowd on the way to church. Meeting many folk going to the annual "Fireman's Ball," the dance became subject for discussion, during which our merchant gentleman, though mildly opposed, strongly upheld the pastime. "No harm in an orderly dance," he contended. It transpired, however, that the prayer service was one of spiritual power and heart-searching, a verifying of that promise so often experienced by praying saints—"Draw nigh to God and he will draw nigh to you." Our merchant arose, and with tears said, "My friends, I wish to retract what I said about the dance awhile ago; I do believe it is harmful, especially for Christians it would be weakening. I was just as honest in my contentions in favor of the dance, as I am now against it; but here is the difference: under the power of God's Spirit here, I am enabled to see it all in a new light—his light. If only we could abide under this Presence, what Christians we could be." He then declared himself a seeker for this new, abiding experience.

A PERSONAL REFERENCE.

In the interest of this subject, I may be pardoned for this personal mention. As a lad I was brought up in Sunday school and church influences, but my knowledge of God was like Job's, limited to "hearing by the ear." I knew of him, but did not know him. I was no better, nor worse, than the average boy of my age; in a summer-time revival I became deeply convicted however, and began to feel Job's later experiences. "Now mine eye seeth thee, I abhor myself and repent." Night after night after hard day's toil, we drove a team of horses four miles to the rural church and return. My uncle advised me to remain home a few nights and rest. How could I? Unknown to him, each night I went fully determined to confess Christ, only to have my courage fail me. Needing, as I thought, a little human aid, I proposed to a boy companion that we two "join church together." Seeing he was not interested, and no others were responding to the invitations, I determined to fight the battle out alone—and real battle it was, but with many failures I finally won, and I was followed by many others, one and all of whom, like myself, had only Job's first experience—that of "Hearing of God through the ear," but now there began in us the new life in Christ Jesus. How much this later experience comprehends—"Now mine eye seeth thee." The very life of Christ imparted to the soul, evidenced in a new and clear perception of him: a new urge; the stir of service; new growths; new wood; new fruit. Inspirations, aspirations, confessions, repentings—"I abhor myself and repent."

Why Chastened?

A. W. ORWIG.

A Christian woman moaned piteously, "Why, oh why, dear Lord, this great affliction?" It was but the sorrowful cry of many a bewildered mind and bleeding heart. Numerous, indeed, are the phases of suffering in this sin-cursed and Satan-bound world. And some of God's children are ready to suplicate, with the Psalmist, "Remove thy stroke away from me; I am consumed by the blow of thine hand." But our heavenly father's purpose is not to consume us but only the alloy which he detects in us. In love he seeks the perfecting of our faith, the complete purification of our hearts, and a higher degree of efficiency in his holy service. Should not that satisfy us?

Why chastened? Let God himself answer. "For our profit" is his loving reply. That we may "be partakers of his holiness," "partakers of the divine nature," "partakers of the Holy Ghost." But let us not forget that such a glorious and necessary likeness to God is chiefly acquired by being "partakers of Christ's sufferings." Ah, do we shrink from that? Do we refuse to walk in the footsteps of Christ? Are we not willing to be made "perfect through sufferings," as was Christ? Do any of us reply, "Are we saved through suffering?" No, beloved, except that sometimes, through affliction, we are redeemed from a life of actual sin, or, as children of God, we are lifted to a higher plane in the divine life and bear more precious fruit.

As real children of God we ought not only to be perfectly willing to endure suffering for Christ's sake, but even to "rejoice." Of the apostles, Peter and John, it is declared that they rejoiced on being "counted worthy to suffer shame" for Jesus' sake. And the apostle Paul declared, "I am exceeding joyful in all our tribulation." And he asserted that "we must through much tribulation enter into the kingdom of God." Christ enunciated the same truth. Again Paul says, "For unto you it is given in the behalf of Christ not only to believe on him, but also to suffer for his sake." We ought to be able to say, "For I reckon that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us."

Why chastened? Let God again answer: "That we should not be condemned with the world." People of the world often judge and curse God when afflicted and perish. Again, "if ye be without chastisement, . . . ye are not sons." And "whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth." Verily in love he chasteneth as does an earthly parent for the benefit of his child. And still another reason why he chasteneth, that we may "reign with him." Willing suffering for Christ will doubtless introduce us to a more lofty station in the eternal world than those repining Christians who "despise the chastening of the Lord."

"Oh for a faith,

That will not murmur or complain

Beneath the chastening rod,

But in that hour of grief or pain

Will lean upon its God."

An owner of sheep once purposely broke a leg of one of his flock. Do you exclaim, "Cruel man!" To one who thought so, the answer was substantially given that this particular sheep was the most wayward of the entire flock. It would not follow in the path in which the other sheep were led. It was stubbornly disobedient to the motion and voice of its master. What did it need? Chastening. And reluctantly it was administered. But it learned obedience through suffering, just as is the case with many of God's children, doubtless all of them at some time.

"Now, no chastening for the present seemeth to be joyous, but grievous; nevertheless, afterward it yieldeth the peaceable fruit of righteousness unto them which are exercised thereby." Oh, to be Scripturally "exercised" by the trials and afflictions that God in mercy and love permits to be ours. Let us be willing even to "resist unto blood striving against sin." God help us.

The Holiness Register.

The Southwestern Interdenominational Holiness Convention to be held in Arlington, Texas, next May 15-20, promises to be, by far, the greatest meeting of its kind ever conducted in the Southwest.

The undersigned Committee wishes to prepare a Register of all the holiness people who have labored in holiness institutions or revivals, or who have been saved or sanctified in meetings conducted in the states of Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana, Texas and New Mexico: the five states comprising the Great Southwest.

The initial meeting of the Convention this year was a decided success: there were fully one hundred preachers and more than four hundred laymen in attendance. This large attendance and the deep spiritual interest manifested has inspired the committee to plan, prepare for, and expect, not less than two hundred preachers, one thousand laymen, two hundred children between the age of four and twelve, and five hundred young people to be present next year.

The following workers are engaged for the convention: Preachers, Dr. H. C. Morrison, Rev. Bad Robinson, Paul Rees, and M. E. Lewis; singers, Prof. B. D. Sutton, Johnie J. Douglas, and Lawson Brown. We plan for, and hope to have every holiness institution and publication represented, that has contributed to the holiness work in the Southwest.

We know it will be impossible for all who have been redeemed, or who have labored in the Southwest to be present in person, so we desire to conduct a great Post-card Testimony Meeting, and we want you to write us a card Now, giving your present address, and telling when you were saved or sanctified in any of the above states, or what special work you have engaged in in the Holiness Movement. Your name will be placed on the Register and you will be furnished literature giving full, detailed, information about the plan for the convention. Please send us this card at your very earliest convenience. Address Rev. P. L. Pierce, Secretary, 221 Santa Fe Bldg., Dallas, Texas.

The most spiritual people of this country believe we must have a Nation-wide revival or a Revolution will be upon us: Let us have the revival. Yours to "Spread Scriptural Holiness over these lands."

The Executive Committee:

Dr. J. H. Upchurch, Chairman.

(Church of the Nazarene)

Rev. W. H. Vance, Vice Chairman.

(Pastor M. E. Church, South).

Rev. P. L. Pierce, Secretary.

(Pastor, Nazarene Church).

Miss H. V. Saylor, Treasurer.

(Southern Methodist).

J. A. Williams.

(Layman, M. S. Church).

Rev. R. E. Fletcher.

(Pastor, Free Methodist Church)

A. P. Hunt.

(Layman, Southern Methodist).

J. M. Thompson.

(Layman, Southern Methodist).

REPORTS FROM SOUL WINNERS

A GREAT TENT MEETING AT MONTIER, MO.

Grant Brothers, from Asbury College, Wilmore, Ky., have just closed one of the greatest, if not the foremost revival, ever held at Montier. They preached with power and sinners wept their way to God. The largest crowds ever known to gather at Montier were here, time and again the tent being more than full. Some who attended came twenty miles; those who heard one message were sure to hear another. There were 44 conversions and 33 received the second blessing. Some entire families are now happy because of their hearts being filled with perfect love. Family altars are being erected in many homes. This meeting has certainly opened the eyes of many people to the unsearchable riches of God.

We spent a few nights at Pleasant Grove, one of my churches three miles from Montier; our congregations were large, with very good results. There were four conversions and nine received the second blessing, this making a total of eighty for the two places.

All day services were held at the river Sunday and nineteen were baptized. There were twenty united with the church, with more to follow. This meeting was made possible by the earnest prayers of the good people of Montier and vicinity, and the earnest way in which these young men worked in God's service.

Any one in need of an evangelist, surely could not ask for more sincere, earnest, Spirit-filled men.

S. C. Headrick.

Pastor M. E. Church, South.

DALTON, INDIANA.

From July 10 to 24, we held evangelistic services at Dalton, Ind., the Rev. E. O. Rice and his wife being our colleagues, the latter having charge of the service of song the most of the time, the Rev. Miss Muri Huff, a minister of the Friends Church, substituting for Mrs. Rice in her absence. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Friends Church of Nettle Creek, the Rev. Thornburg, pastor, the people and pastors of different other churches joining in to help out with the meeting. During the first four days the services were held under a tent, but a severe storm blew it down, and after that the services were held in Nettle Creek Friends Church.

Brother Thornburg and his people, as well as the pastors and people of other churches, stood nobly by us in the work. We have rarely labored with a more spiritual people, or one that carried the burden for souls, and prayed more earnest and effectual prayer than the people of Nettle Creek and vicinity. There had been considerable difficulty in the church and with others, but the pastor and his people held steady in fervent prayer and abiding faith, and won the victory, though not all of the difficulties were cleared away, but it was believed that our meeting had a salutary effect upon the situation. Though it was a busy time with the farmers and others, in the main the attendance was good, and on the Sabbath days the house was crowded.

The Spirit was consciously present from the first service to the very closing one. The conviction was deep and pungent, so that at times it was oppressive, and a stillness settled down upon the people like the stillness of death. Quite a few yielded to the entreaties of the Spirit, and were graciously pardoned, reclaimed, or purified, and the Christian people were greatly blessed and strengthened.

The last two Sundays were all-day meetings, when the people brought well-filled baskets, a long table was spread on the church lawn laden with an abundant supply of wholesome food of which all present partook. The noon hour was a time of delightful Christian fellowship, without the dissipation that too often characterizes such gatherings.

We had royal entertainment at the hospitable home of Brother and Sister George Beeson, while Brother and Sister Rice had like entertainment at the home of Brother and Sister Bruner. We also had like hospitality extended to us in their homes by a number of other people, but their names are too numerous to mention. There were many expressions of appreciation of the service rendered in sermon and song by our evangelistic party. The meeting closed in a fine spirit, with a number of seekers at the altar, some of whom professed to pray through into pardon or purity.

We are now making dates for fall and winter meetings, but we have some time not yet taken. Persons desiring to correspond with us relative to dates should address us, 1350 Grace Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio.

J. L. Glascock.

ELMIRA, NEW YORK.

We closed our three weeks' meeting here at Elmira last night with a service of gracious victory.

Thus far this summer we have had approximately 300 professions of definite blessings. In our three weeks' campaign here in Elmira we have had nearly 200 expressions of salvation or sanctification. The people co-operated heartily from the very beginning. It was a union meeting of two Methodist Churches of the city, but all of the other M. E. churches co-operated. Bro. Bacon, pastor of the Pennsylvania Ave., M. E. Church, and Bro. McConnell, of Centenary M. E. Church, advertised the meeting thoroughly and co-operated in a wonderful way. Dr. Eli Pitman, the District Superintendent, gave us fine support. He wants some more League units on his district next summer.

A praying, consecrated group of laymen of the Pennsylvania Avenue Church did much to make the meeting a success. Just before the service each evening the men held a special prayer meeting. Shop meetings were held at noon in some of the large manufacturing plants of the city. The crowds were large. After the first week the tent was filled to capacity, and many times overflowed with people standing and sitting in their cars on the street.

Kirkpatrick did splendid work with the children. There were over 150 enrolled in the "Booster" club. On the first night that sanctification was presented there were about 50 who came to the altar for the blessing. On Young People's night there were delegations from several Epworth Leagues, and at the close of the service about 75 consecrated themselves to God for life work. On July 31, the closing day, there were 26 who came to the altar for salvation. The Lord certainly blessed our efforts here, and to him be all the praise.

Ben L. Duval.

TENT WORKERS IN WYOMING.

A two-weeks' revival meeting conducted by the Asbury Gospel Trio, James L. Hilker, Alston G. Field and Cyrus Hutcherson, held in the Slater, Wyo., rural farm community, with tent pitched on the Chimney Rock schoolhouse grounds, closed Sunday evening, July 17th, with a harvest of sixty-three souls garnered. Aside from the 32 who were saved, and the 31 who were definitely blessed, the entire community for miles around was spiritually awakened, surpassing any like religious effort ever witnessed here. Faith and prayer were graciously rewarded, and the Spirit had right of way in a marvelous manner.

The messages were deeply spiritual, scripturally fundamental and were presented with such unction of the Holy Spirit, and earnestness and devotion on the part of God's messengers, that hearts were touched, and lives blessed in a very wonderful manner. The memory of this meeting, and the blessed fellowship that sprang up between evangelists and people during the brief two weeks together will never be forgotten.

Ross D. Burhans.

CHICAGO CENTRAL DISTRICT—HOME MISSIONARY ACTIVITIES.

We are now full blast in our tent meeting campaigns and Home Missionary activities, and our summer meetings in churches. We have a string of meetings on—starting and closing—all away across the two states of Wisconsin and Illinois. Evangelist Lyman Brough is in the midst of a good Home Missionary meeting at Antigo, Wis. Evangelist Keel has just closed a good tent meeting with pastor George Cornelius at Forrest Center, Wis., and is starting with Rev. J. S. Leggett at Durand, Wis. Pastor Archie Gustofson is being assisted by Evangelist B. A. Nelson at Janesville. The Rev. Andrew DeSmidt, pastor at Martintown, is putting on a Home Missionary meeting at Monroe and also one at Broadland, Wis. Rev. P. A. Dean and Evangelist Stella Adams are in an evangelistic meeting at New Richmond, Wis., where they hope to organize a Church. Evangelist R. L. Morgan has plans under way to start at Milwaukee on July 27th. Evangelist Theodore and Minnie E. Ludwig have closed a good camp at Racine. At Mattoon, Wis., Evangelist L. J. Rice and wife recently closed a victorious meeting under a tent. About the first of August W. R. Cain will assist Rev. P. A. Dean in the camp at St. Croix Falls. During the month of August Evangelist Keel is to start a Home Missionary meeting at Menomonie, Wis., where we hope to organize.

Quite recently we have visited the churches in Southern Illinois, and are glad to report that the work there is in the best condition by far that it has known during the past five years. We have substantial churches at Mt. Vernon, Benton, Carterville, Royalton, Tilden, Roxana, Murphysboro, Gorham, and we are beginning to get some hold in Cairo. Also we have meetings planned for Herron, and Johnson City with Evangelists J. S. Wallace and Pastor I. G. Young. Also quite recently we have organized a good church at Olney, Ill., with Evangelists S. N. Mitchell and R. N. Banning. L. J. Rice and wife are now in a Home Missionary meeting at Flora, Ill. R. L. Morgan is holding a great meeting at Tilden where a new church building was dedicated July 24th. Evangelist C. J. Garrett recently closed a good meeting at Ryalton. There is no finer lot of pastors and people than can be found in Southern Illinois. The Tongues Movement has loosened its grip and the Nazarenes are having their day down there now.

Rev. Noah Garvin is doing Home Missionary work and getting some good churches around Champaign. He has held meetings at Mohamet, Farmer City, and Villa Grove. He has been assisted by Rev. Homer Burton and wife. Rev. J. E. Williams, pastor at Olivet, is assisting E. W. Larabee in a tent meeting around the first of August. Evangelists Haldor and Bertha Lilienas have been assisting J. O. and Edna Wells Hoke in a tent meeting at Peoria. Rev. E. W. Roach and wife are assisting Rev. A. J. Mitchell at Lomax. Quite recently Evangelist J. C. Beevers has closed a good meeting at Mason City with Pastor Helen Peters. Pastor C. B. Brown is holding a Home Missionary meeting at Montrose, Ill. Pastor H. B. Jensen reports a great camp at Manville, Ill., with Evangelist Dickerson. We are closing fine meetings in July at Maples Mills, with Evangelists Will Neery and wife. Also we have on good Home Missionary meetings at Argo and Elmhurst. Evangelist John Fleming has been assisting Pastor H.

B. Garvin in a great meeting under a tent at Champaign, with great crowds and crowded altars.

I believe I am safe in saying—speaking in a general way—that we have had more good revivals and more desire for Home Missionary meetings this summer than at any time since I have been District Superintendent. We keep the tents busy, and have many meetings in churches. This summer we are starting and closing each month between twenty-five and forty meetings. We hope to get—from early spring to late fall—between ten and twenty-five good new propositions that range all the way from good, strong churches to Missions and Prayer bands.

E. O. Chalfant.

HOMERVILLE, GEORGIA.

We are in a great meeting in Homerville, Ga., and plan to run one more week. Great crowds are coming and people are finding God in the good old-fashioned way and the saved are rejoicing that the meeting is on. Prayer meetings are held in the homes every morning and up-town in the afternoon, and then to the tent, for afternoon and night services. John B. Culpepper, Jr., is with me now and we are delighted to be together and are ready for you to call us for your meeting. We begin a tent meeting at Nashville, Ga., August 7, and will be ready for a tent meeting or church meeting with any of you on August 28th. Come on brethren, and let's go and have some real meetings. My home address is Jasper, Fla. John B. Culpepper's home address is New Smyrna, Fla. We are both General Evangelists of our Southern Methodist Church, loyal to the church and are ready for service anywhere the church calls us. We go for expenses and a freewill offering.

F. P. McCall and John B. Culpepper.

SCIENCE HILL, KENTUCKY.

We had a gracious revival under the tent. Rev. Virgil L. Moore did the preaching and I took charge of the other part of the service. I shall give you a few facts regarding the meeting, with some averages of attendance. Four Sunday morning services, average attendance, 220; nine children's services, average attendance, 70; 18 afternoon services, average attendance, 103; 22 night services, average attendance, 425.

Besides this in many of the night services there were great numbers who stood outside who of course could not be counted.

In the 53 services held under the tent during the three weeks of meeting a close estimate would place the number who heard the gospel at approximately between twelve and fifteen thousand people. There were between 43 and 50 seekers for pardon or purity. God honored the preaching of the old-fashioned gospel in a marvelous way.

As pastor of the Science Hill Methodist Church, I want to express my appreciation for the use of the tent pitched in the rear of our church.

Yours in his service,

Alex. J. Reid.

The Optimism of Premillennialism.

This very interesting book is just off the press. It is well bound, in unusually clear type, on good paper, and contains 147 pages. It is for sale by The Pentecostal Publishing Company, Louisville, Ky., for $1.00 the copy.

This book on an agitated subject presents the doctrine of the second coming of Christ in a rather new and striking way. We are sure it will be read with great interest. It is divided into eleven chapters with the following heads:

1. The Optimistic Outlook.
2. The Divine Objective.
3. The Divine Program.
4. Is the World Growing Better or Worse?
5. The Power of the Gospel.
6. The Fulfillment of Prophecy.
7. Concerning the Coming of Christ.
8. The Signs of Christ's Coming.
9. The Falling Away.
10. The Millennium.
11. Jesus is Coming Back to Earth.

Those who believe the teachings of the word of God on the second coming of Christ are accused of being pessimists when in fact they are the most optimistic people in the world. No people can have a brighter outlook for the world's future than those who believe that Jesus Christ will come and inaugurate a reign of perfect peace when we shall have a warless world. The Pre-Millennialist is, in the highest and best sense, a genuine optimist. Send and get this new book by Rev. H. C. Morrison and you will find it thoroughly interesting.

THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD

Published Weekly by
Pentecostal Publishing Company
523 So. First St., Louisville, Kentucky.

OUR CONTRIBUTORS

Rev. G. Whitefield Simonson	Rev. Len G. Broughton	Rev. Bud Robinson
Rev. O. G. Mingledorff, D.D.	Rev. L. R. Akers, D.D.	Rev. Henry Ostrom
Rev. Richard W. Lewis, D.D.	Rev. G. W. Ridout, D.D.	Rev. C. M. Griffith
Rev. Andrew Johnson, D.D.	Rev. P. F. Asher, B.D.	Rev. J. H. Smith
Rev. C. F. Wimberly, D.D.	Rev. E. E. Shelhamer	Rev. C. W. Ruth
	Rev. J. B. Culpepper

Six Months in Advance $.75
One Year in Advance 1.50
Foreign Countries 2.00

CONCERNING SUBSCRIPTIONS

Subscription Discontinued When Time Is Out.
In ordering address changed give both OLD and NEW address. Write all names plainly with pen and ink or typewriter.
Notify us promptly of any irregularities in receiving your paper.
For distribution, to secure new subscribers, sample copies will be sent free on application.
Remit by Registered Letter, New York Exchange, Express, or Post Office Money Order.

(Continued from page 1)

in the enlargement and making permanent of this theological school. It is well understood that a very large percent of the theological schools of the country are not only lacking in the evangelistic element, but are shot through with unscriptural and skeptical teachings. It would be difficult to exaggerate the calamities that will come to any country or people who are under the influence of a skeptical and worldly minded ministry. Doubt is one of the greatest blights that can shadow and destroy the human soul. Put doubters into your pulpit and you will have unbelievers in your pews. Sow the seeds of unbelief from the lips of your preachers and you will have a harvest of skepticism and all the evils that follow in the train of unbelief. There will be wickedness, lawlessness, bloodshed and bye and bye cruel war, the wreck and ruin of the nations.

Give us educated, sanctified, Spirit-filled preachers and the fear of God will prevail among men. Jesus Christ will be exalted as Savior. The Holy Spirit will dwell in the church and consecrated men and women will be the salt of the earth, permeating and saving society, and the light of the world revealing to prodigals the return road to the Father.

I have in my mind some plans for the future of this Seminary connected with Asbury College at Wilmore, Ky. I want to confide these plans to the Lord's people. I want your prayers, your sympathy, and your help to build up a great center here into which young men will flow by scores and hundreds, and out from which they will go flames of holy fire to preach the Gospel of a full salvation. I shall have something further on this subject next week. I want you to read it, think about it, pray over it and give me a helping hand. H. C. MORRISON.

A Chapter from My Autobiography

CHAPTER XXVI.

LOCATING TO EVANGELIZE.

ONE of the saddest days of my life was the day on which I stood up on the floor of the Kentucky Annual Conference in Lexington, Ky., and asked to be located in order that I might devote all of my time to the evangelistic work.

The prejudice against evangelists was very strong in those days; so strong indeed that the Conference, the church rather, would not give any man such an appointment. It was because of this that I was compelled to locate in order to become an evangelist.

The call of God was upon me and it was of necessity that I entered the evangelistic field. For a number of years, while engaged as a pastor, I had been helping many of my brethren in their revival meetings, sometimes with considerable success. If memory serves me correctly I had some thirty-odd calls to help my brethren of the conference in meetings the last year I was in the pastorate; most of these calls were to county seats within the the bounds of the Kentucky Conference.

When I located at Lexington, I expected the brethren to ask me to help in meetings all over the Conference but, to my surprise, they seemed to be so busy with other matters that they either did not wish my assistance, or forgot to speak to me about the matter while we were together at the seat of the Conference. The only call I received came from Brother Sawyer, at that time presiding elder of the mountain district. He was going away to visit friends in the far South and asked me to go up and hold his quarterly conferences at Middlesboro and Pineville and, in connection with this work, to preach a week or ten days at each place. I accepted this invitation, held the quarterly conferences, and the revival meetings in these two very beautiful and interesting mountain cities. I left the seat of the Conference at Lexington greatly surprised at the lack of interest the brethren seemed to feel toward me and my future work and with a loneliness that could not be described. There is a fellowship, a close and sacred brotherhood among Methodist preachers that is very delightful and very helpful. I felt that in ceasing to be a member in the travelling connection of the Conference I had largely broken up that wonderful tie of a high and sacred fraternity, and the brethren who had been so eager and insistent that I should assist them in meetings seemed to have little or no desire for my presence and help.

That was some thirty-seven years ago, and I have been quite successfully kept out of the churches of central Kentucky, so far as revival meetings are concerned, from that day to this. God had for me a much larger field and opened doors for me, without my seeking, in the great churches in almost all of the large cities of the nation. He was helping me to scatter THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD and the doctrines, principles and Christian experiences for which it stands, throughout the land and around the world and giving me a wide acquaintance in order that I might build up a large circulation for the paper and also cultivate an acquaintance and extend an influence that would count large in the upbuilding of Asbury College in time to come. There is a scripture which assures us that all things work together for good to those who are called of God. I have felt as consciously my call to the evangelistic work as I did my call to preach the Gospel. Bye and Bye, I saw that the closed doors of comparatively small churches in central Kentucky sent me out to the large churches throughout the land.

I was blessed in a gracious revival in old McKendree Church in Nashville. I had a very gracious meeting in Broad Street Church, Knoxville, Tenn., had a wonderful meeting with Dr. John McFerrin in Trinity Church, one of the greatest churches and one of the finest congregations in Southern Methodism, located in Chattanooga, Tenn. I was in one of the great churches in Memphis; I was in two churches in New Orleans; I had two fine meetings in large churches in Richmond, Va.; I was in a gracious revival in Fort Worth, Tex.; I had a gracious meeting in Buffalo, N. Y.; held a revival in Cleveland and Columbus, Ohio. I held meetings in Brooklyn, N. Y., had a gracious meeting in old John Street Church, New York City. I held a number of meetings in Philadelphia. I preached in Baltimore; I preached in a number of churches in Michigan, across the Northwest, up and down Kansas and Oklahoma. I had a gracious revival in Minneapolis, held revival meetings from San Diego, Calif., to Everett, Wash, taking in Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Seattle and many other places.

When I think of my age at the time of my location and how I have gone up and down the states of the Union and made an evangelistic tour of the world, it seems to me that I must be growing old. Not long since, I remarked to one of our bishops that I had infallible sign that I was growing old. He asked me what it was, and I told him that I believed I could preach better than ever before. He said that settled it; that I was undoubtedly betting to be an old man. He was quite amused.

In those early days, the contributions to evangelists were comparatively small. I do not think I received any more, if as much financial help from the churches I assisted in meetings as I had received while pastor drawing a salary. I had a great battle making ends meet, traveled hard, rarely taking a sleeper, stopped in cheap hotels and while I was generally well fed by the people, not infrequently, however, finding myself entertained in cheap boarding houses, but always I judge receiving better than I deserved and more of the comforts of life than my blessed Master had while on earth. In travel, we evangelists of those days who were preaching full salvation became quite well acquainted with sandwiches, frequently rather stale ones. But we were very happy. We were desperately in love with a great truth. To seek for full salvation in Jesus' blood draws us very close to the Master and exalts him high over all; to love Jesus means to love the sinner for whom he died and to long to bring his people into an entire consecration and faith for full redemption from sin. This puts a holy glow into one's heart, and a bit of hard times, ostracism, and persecution is a wonderful means of grace.

The thing that made my financial problem an interesting and serious one was the fact that I was establishing THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD. I doubt if there is a much more difficult task than to start a new religious weekly without the backing or sympathy of the church or of any sort of organization. Most people who read religious literature are subscribers to some paper, and they do not care to change their affiliations or give up a paper they have been reading for years for some new publication, and they will tell you when you approach them for a subscription that they have more religious papers coming to their homes now than they have time to read, and so will waive you off. I met with that sort of welcome from hundreds of people.

There was another interesting experience in this work of undertaking to establish a paper standing for holiness. Many of the very enthusiastic professors of this blessing and earnest advocates of the movement seemed to entirely overlook the fact that I was making a hard struggle to establish such a paper. I can name at once half a score of men that I have known intimately and loved devotedly who are no doubt my sincere friends, who have read THE HERALD for years, and who no doubt like the paper, who have never given me any assistance in securing subscribers.

I believed that I was divinely impressed to undertake the publication of THE HERALD. I am fully convinced that this view of the subject is correct. The Lord was leading me in the matter, but if I had known at that time what a task there was before me it would certainly have required great courage to undertake the work. However, I profoundly thank God that I did not know, and went forward through thick and thin. I am confident if the letters which have come to me from every quarter of the nation and over the seas from persons who have been converted, sanctified or greatly blessed in their Christian experiences by reading THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD, had been stacked up there is not a two-horse wagon bed in the State of Kentucky that would hold those letters.

At some future time I want to give the readers of THE HERALD some account of the difficulties I had to contend with in launching and keeping THE HERALD going.

(Continued)

THIS LIFE ONLY.

MRS. H. C. MORRISON.

PAUL in First Corinthians says: "If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men most miserable." The Revised Version reads, "If in this life only, we have hoped in Christ, we are of all men most pitiable." These quotations convey the same idea, and mean that if our hope reaches no farther than the limited time of our sojourn here, we should be shorn of the greatest incentive for a holy life. It is true, we should love the Savior for the great sacrifice he made for us on Calvary, but if there were no hope of a longer and better life than this, the chief anchorage of the soul would be cut asunder and we should be left to despair.

Some one has said, "There is no such thing as 'this life only.' Life cannot be bisected; no man has an instrument keen enough to cut life up into little pieces, allocate some of the pieces in this place and others in that place." We need not wonder that Paul was pressed with many questions concerning the resurrection of the dead. One asked, "With what body do they come?" And Paul answers by saying, "thou fool, that which thou sowest is not quickened, except it die." Just as it is necessary for the seed to be planted in the ground before it can bring forth a larger life, so it is necessary that we suffer this physical body to die and moulder back to mother earth, before we can rise to a higher and eternal life.

When we consider how the seed multiplies itself when planted in the ground, and how much of its production, the stalk and leaf, is so unlike itself, we can understand somewhat how the great God who will watch over our sleeping dust, will bring it together fashioned after his own likeness of immortality. There is much about these things we cannot understand, but this should not shake our faith in the resurrection, for neither can we understand the workings of the Divine when changing the seed into the beautiful stalk, and afterward the grain. Surely the God who made us and fashioned us in his own image, can recreate us when the time comes for his own to be gathered from the four corners of the earth. This wonder-working God of ours is able to clothe the corruptible in incorruption, and the mortal with immortal, and to cause the sleeping ashes to rise with the shout of triumph, "Death is swallowed up in victory." And for this reason the Apostle adds as a stimulant to their faith, "Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye steadfast, unmoveable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labor is not in vain in the Lord."

No, thank God, there is an endless, cloudless eternity awaiting those whose faith rests upon the immutable word of God. He says we shall rise again, and that should be enough to anchor every soul whose trust is in the Savior of mankind. Can we imagine what it would mean to the followers of Jesus, if this hope were taken from them. What would stimulate the drooping heart when beset by discouragements on every known. How weary would drag the days, soothed by the promise of a land where heartaches never come and sighs are unknown. How wearily would drag the days, and weeks, and years, if the burdened soul could not look away to a time and place when all burdens shall be laid down, and every pang of disappointment and every blighted hope is left behind. How dark the grave would be, how unbearable the separation, and how lonely the hours, if the hope of again meeting our loved and lost did not sustain and comfort in the dark hours of grief.

But to the Christian, there floats across the chasm of sorrow and the grave the blessed hope that was given to Martha, when in her grief and hopelessness the Master said, "thy brother shall rise again." Then followed the assurance that whosoever liveth and believeth in him should never die. Our bodies may slumber in the grave, but our souls shall be living in waiting for the glorious time when he shall speak the life-giving word and we shall be clothed with immortality.

HOLINESS EVANGELISM.

(Continued from page 5)

to his lost condition and need of God, that alarms the backslider and points him the way back to God, and that arouses the church to its need of the baptism with the Holy Ghost, and with fire in sanctifying power and its responsibility to God and man as a soul-saving institution. God is a holy God, and heaven is a holy place prepared for a holy people. The purpose of Holiness evangelism is to warn every man, and teach every man in all wisdom; that we may present every man perfect in Christ Jesus. Col. 1:28. The word has gone forth, "Be ye holy, for I am holy." 1 Peter 1:16, and again, "Follow peace with all men, and holiness, without which no man shall see the Lord." Heb. 12:14, and with these commands comes the provision that was made on the cross to meet them: "Wherefore Jesus also, that he might sanctify the people with his own blood, suffered without the gate. Let us go forth therefore unto him without the camp, bearing his reproach. For here have we no continuing city, but we seek one to come." Heb. 13:12, 13, 14.

There is much preaching today on the doctrine of the Second Coming of our Lord that we enjoy and delight to hear, but we have noticed carefully that on several occasions nothing was said whatever relative to the experience of entire sanctification or the life of holiness that this experience makes possible and that fits us for his coming. Without this fitness, there cannot be anything but a false hope of being ready to meet our Lord when he comes again. The purpose of Holiness evangelism is to present the doctrine and experience of entire sanctification as a necessity and the only fitness for the coming of our Lord and a home in heaven.

V. ITS MINISTRY.

A wholly sanctified ministry. A ministry that has died out to sin, to the world, and to self; a three-fold death. Not a ministry that just merely believes in holiness and seeks to preach the doctrine without offense, but a ministry that has been sanctified wholly and has the experience now. Holy men with heaven-born convictions that are based on the word of God, who have the courage of their convictions, and martyrs blood coursing through their veins. A ministry that is not ashamed of the gospel of Christ and offers no apology whatever for its calling and its message of full salvation. A ministry that cannot be bought or sold on the bargain counters of ecclesiasticism or popular sentiment. A ministry that knows no defeat, and stands the test under fire. A ministry that knows God, and has a clear, definite knowledge of his word and a heart filled with the love of God and a burning passion for lost men and women. A ministry that is straight on the doctrine of sin. (A ministry that does not deal definitely with sin in its two-fold nature and its cure only through the blood, cannot be the ministry of Holiness evangelism). Give us more holy men and women who are called of God, fire-baptized and Spirit-filled to dispense truth and carry this great message of full salvation unto the uttermost parts of the earth. Not a sickening, sentimental, effeminate, man-pleasing, cowardly, compromising, office-seeking, fearful, weakling ministry, but a stalwart, courageous, God-fearing, God-called, God-anointed, God-sent ministry that will deliver God's message of full salvation in the language of the Book to a dying world. I believe the Holiness Movement would move and revivals of old-time religion would break out over these lands as in the days of old, under such an irresistible, irrepressible, holy ministry.

W. B. YATES—Gone.

William Brown Yates was born August 14, 1869, and was called to his heavenly home July 31, 1927, at 4 P. M. He was converted when very young, but wandered away for a while. He was reclaimed while yet a young man and two days later was sanctified at a camp meeting held at Hurricane Camp Ground, Kentucky.

He was married to Miss Addie Stallions, December 22, 1889. To this union was born one son, E. H. Yates, a business man of Evansville, Ind. He was early bereaved of his first wife and was married a second time to Miss Cora Daughtrey, September 13, 1898. To this union were born two children, Eva and William, both of whom are left. He is also survived by his wife and three brothers and one sister, in addition to the children named.

For thirty years he was in the forefront of the battle as song evangelist, having conducted services in almost every state in the Union. He was a licensed preacher of the Methodist Church, South. No more untiring worker has been among us and no more efficient leader of song or soloist. Multiplied thousands have been thrilled by his singing and blessed by his personal ministry.

He had a sudden break in December, having contracted a peculiar disease of the heart, and ever since he had been a great but patient sufferer. His last illness was the occasion for the display of his deep spiritual life and victory. Though unable to sing, the word "Hallelujah" was on his lips as long as his tongue could speak.

The funeral was held at Marion, Ky., Aug. 2. It was under the direction of the pastor, Rev. May, assisted by Drs. Adams and Dillon, former pastors. About fourteen ministers were present. Rev. J. L. Brasher preached the funeral discourse. The church was filled to capacity and the floral offerings were profuse and beautiful. He will be missed by many of his friends, who will feel keenly the loss of his departure, but we shall know where to find him when our time comes to answer the summons. Do not forget his family in your prayers.

Yours in the glorious hope,

J. L. BRASHER.

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS

A WARM OVERCOAT FOR FORTY YEARS.

By Robert S. Satterfield.

"Not in a spirit of self-praise but because this story preaches better than I can, I want to give you a bit of my own life," said the preacher I heard this morning. His theme was: "Parents, Why Honor Them?"

"I was working in a railroad office at $60 a month. I was anxious to make and save enough money to go to college. The saving account grew slowly, despite the fact that I denied myself of most luxuries.

"It was with a concern that I observed that Pa's overcoat was getting old and worn and slick. Mind you, it was 'Pa'; not 'Dad.' The latter would not have fitted him. He was Pa, my Pa. I told Pa one day that there was an overcoat down at a certain clothing store that I was thinking about buying, and that I wanted him to go with me and look at it and tell me what he thought of it. Pa seemed to be pleased. If he thought I planned buying the coat for myself, that was his own affair and I did not deem it my duty to enlighten him or tell him of his mistake.

"We went to see the coat. Pa examined it carefully, feeling of the cloth and rubbing it against his cheek. He pronounced it fine material that would be warm and would last well.

"I told Pa that I wanted to see the coat on somebody, and I suggested that he put it on. It fitted him as if it had been tailor-made for him. He buttoned it up, stood before the glass, one of those combination glasses that made it possible for him to see the coat from every angle. I asked him if he liked it. He said he did. I told him just to keep it on.

"Pa looked at me, a look that I shall never forget. He wanted to say something but it was plain that he was too full to say it. He turned and walked out of the store and up the street. From that day to this Pa has never mentioned that overcoat, and I know why. He could not trust himself to say what was in his heart.

"That was forty years ago. I have bought lots of clothes since then. I have two or three overcoats now. But no other garment I ever purchased so warmed my heart as has that overcoat all these two score years."

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a Louisiana girl join your happy band of boys and girls? This is my first letter to The Herald. I love to read page ten. My father is Superintendent of the Sunday school at Thornwell. I go to Sunday school every Sunday. I belong to the Methodist Church. We have a camp meeting at Lake Arthur every summer. We go every summer to it, and sometimes we camp there during the ten days of the meeting. We have fine evangelists and sermons. I hope Mr. W. B. doesn't get my first letter.

Ursabelle Longman,
Thornwell, La.

Dear Aunt Bettie: It has been quite a while since I have written and I hope to see this letter in print. I am eleven years old and was promoted to the seventh grade. A medal was given to the one in the sixth grade who made the highest in spelling, and I won it. My teacher was Mrs. Williams. She sure was a good teacher. I go to school at Wacona. All the cousins write to me and send me one of your pictures. Beatrice Miller.
Rt. 1, Waycross, Ga.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Here comes a West Virginian to join your band of Christian boys and girls. It has been a long time since I wrote to the Boys and Girls' Page. I take The Pentecostal Herald and love to read it. I love to read the letters on page ten, to hear what the boys and girls are doing for Jesus. I can say Jesus is still precious to my soul. He is my Savior, sanctifier and keeper. I want to do what would please him each day so when he comes for me I will be ready to go with him. I have a class of boys and girls in Sunday school. I want to live so they will know that I am living for Jesus. I am praying that God will lead me where he would have me to go and do. I just came back from camp meeting at Charleston where Bro. Browning did the preaching. God was with us in that meeting. I came back home more determined to go through with Jesus than ever before. We sure are having some pretty hot weather out here.

Edith Parker,
Pinch, W. Va.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a Louisiana girl join your happy band of boys and girls? I am seven years old. My birthday is July 9. I am in the third grade. My mother takes The Herald. I have light hair, blue eyes, and fair in the face. I go to Sunday school every Sunday I can. This is my first letter to The Herald and I hope to see it in print.

Mildred Jones,
Box 114, Sulphur, La.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a little Louisiana girl join your happy band of boys and girls? This is my first letter to The Herald and I hope to see it in print. I am twelve years old and in the fifth grade. My birthday is Nov. 19. Have I a twin? I have brown hair, brown eyes and dark complexion. I weigh 75 pounds and am four feet, eight inches in height. I belong to the Christian Church. My father is a Christian preacher. With love to all the cousins.

Ethel Penny,
Sulphur, La.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you please let a California girl join your happy band of boys and girls? My grandmother takes The Herald and I always like to read it. I am thirteen years old, and my birthday is June 23. Have I a twin? If so, write to me and I will answer. I am a member of the Nazarene Church. I have four sisters and three brothers. This is my first letter and I would like to see it in print. I would like to hear from some of you.

Gertrude Anderson,
Box 83, Lindsay, Calif.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let me come in again? This is my second letter to The Herald. Wake up, Idaho boys and girls, for as long as I can remember I have not seen a letter from Idaho, except my brother wrote once. My grandpa takes The Herald and gives it to us. I go to Sunday school every Sunday. My father has a store and he lets me work in it. It's fun to wait on the customers. Boys and girls, what kind of life are you living? I think the boys and girls should not tell so much about themselves, but write something to help somebody. I am nine years old. I hope Mr. W. B. is at church. I will be glad to answer all letters that I receive.

B. Isabel Hall,
Box 167, Murtaugh, Idaho.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let me have a seat by the cousins? I am in the seventh grade. Who can guess my age? It is between eight and fifteen. The one who can guess my middle name I will send them my picture. It begins with an L and ends with an E, it has seven letters in it. We have a revival meeting going on here. My father is a Methodist preacher. Bro. Pynes is helping my father in the meeting. Mattie M. Burgess, I guess your middle name to be Mamie. If so, remember your promise. I hear Mr. W. B. knocking at the door for fresh beef. Maybe I had better run.

Nora Swanson,
Keatchie, La.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Here I come knocking at your door again for entrance. May I come in? Thank you. All the cousins seem to be a very happy group of Christians. I love to read page ten with its interesting letters from all over the Union, as well as the other pages of The Herald. This is my second letter to The Herald, but it has been quite a while since I wrote last, so Aunt Bettie, don't get discouraged with me and I will thank you now for printing my other letter. Cousins, what do you think of Aunt Bettie? Don't you think she is the "very bestest" Auntie you ever knew? I do. I was fifteen years old July 13, and will be a Freshman in high school next school term. I will leave my middle name for you to guess. It begins with F and ends with E, and has three letters in it. I will write to all who guess it. I thank God that I have started on the right road. I like that song which says, "Jesus, I my cross have taken, all to leave and follow Thee." Cousins, what does it mean to follow closely in his steps?

"As the sunlight o'er the mountain,
And the dew upon the lea,
Is the presence of my Savior,
As he overshadows me."

I will have to say good-by now as I hear Mr. W. B. coming up for dinner. Love to Aunt Bettie and all the cousins.

Bertha McCulley,
Box 33, Waynesboro, Miss.

Dear Aunt Bettie: We are twin girls from Georgia, eleven years old. We so much like to read page ten. As we rarely ever see any letters from our State we hope this one will be in print. We go to Sunday school every Sunday. We live ten miles from dear old Indian Spring Camp Ground and we attend this meeting every year. We are looking forward now for the time to come. Our daddy is leading a choir in a revival meeting now; that is his job. Good luck to Aunt Bettie and all the cousins. We hope to write again if this letter is printed.

Lafon and Laru Hooten,
Jenkinsburg, Ga.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Goodness, it's hot! and we've come all the way from Mississippi in this hot sun. I will sit over here in the corner awhile with my friends, the ones I wrote to. As I sit at my window this lovely summer morning and behold the beauties of the earth, I am made to say, "Isn't life wonderful?" The trees have on their robes of green, while the birds are singing their same cheerful songs we all love to hear. How happy we should be with all these wonderful, amazing things that make life so wonderfully interesting, and how thankful we should be that we can enjoy them all. I cannot say just which season of the year I like most; yet I do think autumn is quite interesting, as old Sol rises each morn and shires o'er the hills and on the colorful little groves of forest that I am surrounded, disappearing from our view at nightfall, just to enter into another land. Time is swiftly passing by and another year will soon be closing out. What about ourselves? Do we find our lives and all in a better line than at the beginning? Surely we realize that we too often let the good fade out of our lives and something much less occupies its place. We should be better and happier as the year slants westward for we have great and good promises made by one who never fails. As we sit and dream of days just passed, we can only think of the past as good or bad, whichever it has been. Yet, we can hope and put forth our best efforts to make present and future better, for present will soon be gone, and the future is not far away and our chances grow fewer each hour. Some cannot afford to lose one moment of their precious unreturning time, for we are but a generation under God's sun and, like the flower of summer, must sometime fade away. Soon will the end of the journey come. Travelers we are. As we go about on our different avocations, some pleasure bent, some wealth-seeking, some one way and another, but as we plod along we are fast stepping off the stage of action on this earth and going somewhere. Unsaved man or woman, have you ever considered the end of the journey? Men and women are fast reaching the end of the journey all around you and the end is coming fast upon you. Dives arrayed himself in purple and fine linen and fared sumptuously every day, but the end came, and to his surprise and horror found him unprepared. He thought he would "get by" on account of his church relationship, but failed. Thousands today are trying the same way only to awaken to their horror in the same condition. It takes more than church relationship. "Ye must be born again." You must become a new creature in Jesus. "Fared sumptuously." Enjoyed life—had a good time with the "boys," but the end came.

Gospel Tents

Smith Manufacturing Company.
DALTON, GA.
22 Years in Business

J. H. DICKEY
of

BARRETT, ROBINSON & DICKEY

General Insurance—Bonds, etc., solicits your patronage.

7th Floor, Columbia Bldg.
Louisville, Ky.

200 Sheets 100 Envelopes

PERSONAL STATIONERY

High Grade White Bond Paper, size 5½ x 7 inches, with envelopes to match. Every sheet and envelope printed in black type up to 4 lines, with your name, business, and address

$1⁰⁰

This Stationery also makes an IDEAL GIFT. Shipment within 10 days after receipt of order. ORDER NOW!

Pentecostal Pub. Co.,
Louisville, Ky.

Gentlemen: Enclose please find $1.00 for which send me postpaid, a box of your Personal Stationery consisting of 200 sheets of Paper and 100 Envelopes printed as follows:

To avoid errors write or print clearly

No doubt a large funeral procession followed that casket to the tomb, but oh, what a pitiful wail as he lifted up his eyes in hell, "Have mercy on me," "I am tormented in this place," "Send Lazarus that he dip the tip of his finger in water, and cool my tongue." No time for prayer while on earth, but now—mercy had flown—oh pitiful wail, "Have mercy on me." Young people, have you ever stopped to think how valuable your life is? Think of it! Won't you give it to the service of God and lead souls to Christ? Of course, we are not all called to be preachers or missionaries, but if we live true Christian lives, we do nothing we are ashamed of everybody knowing. Cousins, let's get to work for Jesus, and make this life worth living. And, Christians who know the worth of prayer, please remember me that I might be a true soldier and let my light shine for Jesus.

Your cousin and niece,
Mattie Ree McCulley,
Box 33, Waynesboro, Miss.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Love to you and all the writers of The Pentecostal Herald. I have been a reader of The Herald for a good many years and I like to give my flowers to the living. I love to read The Herald and it is food for my soul. I read it over and over again and then pass it on. May God bless you and Bro. Morrison and each one of the writers; they all seem like old friends to me. Rev. I. M. Hargett was our pastor in South Dakota some years ago. We all loved him and his family; maybe he will read this. Please, Brother Hargett, give us a sermon in the dear Herald and we will enjoy to read it. The Lord bless you all. Mrs. T. Arends.
251 Lincoln St., Redwood City, Calif.

Dear Aunt Bettie: May I join your band of boys and girls? I am a little girl; will be ten years old October 16. I have long brown curls and brown eyes. I am four feet, two inches tall. I go to Sunday school nearly every Sunday. I hope to see my letter in print.

Jessie Mae Smith.

A strange tale is "Confessions of a Backslider" by Dr. H. C. Morrison. Hundreds have been sold. You will want a copy. It is paper covered and costs only 25c. Order early. Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky.

PEPPERY PEPS FOR THINKERS.

(Rev. Robert L. Selle, D.D., Pastor of First Methodist Church, Rogers, Ark.)

That whale was better off without Jonah than with him. Think!

It isn't any further from the earth to heaven than to hell. Think!

If you are pleased with your pastor and his work, tell others; if not, tell him. Think!

Marriage ceremonies are about as common in some places as divorce suits. Think!

Had my mother been a flapper I would say that I had always been an orphan. Think!

What kind of work would your church do, if every member in it were just like you? Think!

With but a single hope, the world is in a lurch; that one and only hope, is in a Christlike church. Think!

Sometimes when a pastor preaches against sin, some of his members accuse him of personating them. Think!

If your membership is not in the church where you can do the most good, it is not in the right church. Think!

If a few of the big ducks in the booze puddle should be trapped, the little ones would hike for dry land. Think!

"Sow a thought, reap an act; sow an act, reap a habit; sow a habit, reap a character; sow a character, reap a destiny." Think!

There isn't a skunk in the world today that would claim kin with the modernist who teaches that he descended from a lower order of beings. Think!

Yes, bootlegging can be stopped easily by penalizing equally the derelict officer, the drinker, the peddler and the maker with five years in the penitentiary without pardon or parole, for each offence. Think!

Speaking of religious leaders, a now sainted Methodist Bishop once said that he would rather follow such leaders as John Wesley, Adam Clarke, Richard Watson and others who had lived holy lives and died well than modern leaders who were yet alive because it was not certain where they were going. Think!

"Christ's Militant Kingdom," by L. R. Scarborough, D.D., gives a full discussion of the Kingdom of Christ on earth. Read it. Price $1.60. Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky

NO-HARM THINGS.

Mrs. Kathleen Arnold.

We have a lot of church members today who seem to think it is no harm to dance, to go to the movies, attend card parties, play for premiums and do a lot of other things just as bad, and maybe worse; claiming that such things don't interfere with their religion. Well, if such things don't interfere with one's religion, it is simply because he does not possess the genuine article—that's all. Surely you will agree that the dance, the movies, the card games, and all such things are of the world. Then, dear friend, are we not admonished to keep ourselves unspotted from the world? Jas. 1:27.

Furthermore, if these things do not pertain to righteousness, they certainly come under the head of unrighteousness; and "All unrighteousness is sin." 1 John 5:17. I can't believe that any one who lives a life that is pleasing in the sight of God, can get any pleasure out of such things. "Oh," but you say, "Our preacher is smooth along these lines; and he's also very intellectual, and seems to see no harm in these innocent amusements. In fact, he often indulges in such diversions himself." But listen! the preacher is no better off than any other sinner if he lives in the practice of such things. Furthermore, he will have to give an account of himself in the last great day, and if he is not right with God, that is, if unpardoned sins are resting against him, he will just have to go to hell the same as anybody else. No matter how intellectual he may be, if his name is not recorded in the Lamb's Book of Life, he will not be saved, but will be driven from the presence of the Lord into outer darkness. "And whosoever was not found in the Book of Life was cast into the lake of fire." Rev. 20:15. How inconceivably awful must be a preacher's hell; yet, alas! alas! so many seem to be traveling in that direction, if compromising with the world, the flesh and the devil means that people are in a lost condition. Oh, we need more "God-called, Spirit-filled ministers of the gospel" who will declare the whole counsel of God, without fear or favor; ministers who will not compromise the truth to please a lot of worldly-minded, pleasure-seeking church members, and a sin-loving, God-hating, Christ-crucifying world. These old-time Spirit-filled ministers of God, of course, are regarded as back numbers, and are never sent to the best paying churches; rarely, if ever, are they sent to high-steeple churches, but nearly always to hard-scrabble charges. On top of that, they are generally persecuted upon the right hand and upon the left; hence, they may rightly claim the beatitudes recorded in Matt. 5:10-12, "Blessed are they who are persecuted for righteousness' sake: for theirs is the kingdom of Heaven."

I should like to say one other word to all who are not walking with the Lord; and that is, you are traveling in a dangerous way.

Your way is dark, and leads to hell;

Why will you persevere?

Can you in endless torments dwell,—

Shut up in black despair?

Will you, my brother, my sister, cease to travel in this dark road of sin, and turn to the Lord, while time and opportunity affords? And will you Begin the Christian Life Today?

Now is the time, now is the accepted time, now is the day of salvation. Rom. 6:2. The Lord himself invites you to come, assuring you of his blessing. It is the sweetest way that mortal man ever trod. Only commit yourself unto the Lord, trust also in him, and he will bring it to pass. Such commitment means that you will go where he wants you to go, do what he wants you to do, say what he wants you to say, and be what he wants you to be.

Don't try to serve two masters and walk in two different ways at the same time; for you can't do it. So give yourself fully and completely over to him, and then put on the whole armor of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil. Eph. 6:11. "Walk in the light as he is in the light, that ye may have fellowship one with another, and realize that the blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth from all sin." 1 John 1:7. It is then that you can triumph over the world, the flesh and the devil, coming out more than conqueror through him that loved you. Rom. 8:37.

"Draw nigh unto God, and he will draw nigh unto you; resist the devil

WHAT'S IN A BOOK?

CONDUCTED BY

REV. Z. T. JOHNSON, A. B., B. O., M. A.

The Confession of a Backslider, by H. C. Morrison, D.D. 25c.

This is a paper bound book of 93 pages written by Dr. Morrison in his best story-telling style. It is the tale of a man who was converted in his youth; who went to college and there lost his faith through the modernistic teachings of his professors. From this beginning he drifted into all sorts of sin. He became a gambler, a murderer, a libertine, a train robber and convict.

This story is told in a simple, yet interesting style. It has an element of pathos running through it that is touching. The picture of the man's "love affair" with a beautiful Christian girl who died is tragic. It is written from a cell in a penitentiary where the man has been sentenced to serve ten years or more for train robbing. While there he is converted. This is a beautiful part of the book. It shows how God can save the worst of men.

The whole story teaches the dangers of modernistic teaching. The book ought to be cloth bound and sell for a dollar; but it is paper bound and costs only twenty-five cents. You ought to read it.

John Wesley, the Christian Hero, by E. E. Egermeier. 75c.

This beautiful cloth-bound book of 132 pages is the story of John Wesley, written especially to interest young people. It takes up the high points in the career of this wonderful preacher, and in splendid story style, tells many interesting incidents. It is authentic, simple, direct, vital. It will appeal to the old as well as to the young.

As a gift to some young man, or even to some young woman, it would be splendid. The titles of the chapters are well chosen and the story is aptly told.

The Dairyman's Daughter, by Leigh Richmond. Cloth $1.00. Paper 40c.

It is said that this book has been instrumental in the conversion of hundreds of people who have read it. It is the true story of the conversion and Christian life of a servant girl in England. Her experience was remarkable, and resulted in the salvation of many people who came in contact with her.

There are three striking things about it. First, the marvelous experience of the ignorant girl as a soul winner commands attention. Second, the evangelistic character of the subject, and third, the simplicity of the style of the author holds interest. The fact that thousands have been sold testifies to its popularity.

Seven Deadly Fallacies, by Dr. G. W. Ridout.

Everyone who has read Dr. Ridout's articles knows that he gathers his material from many sources. This gives his writings a spice and variety not in command of the ordinary author.

This is a series of seven pamphlets of from ten to fifteen pages each on the subjects of Christian Science, Fanaticism, Mormonism, Russellism, Seventh Day Adventism, Spiritualism and the Gift of Tongues. They take up these different beliefs one by one, give briefly their beginnings, their teachings, and the results they have brought.

The pamphlets are too short to give exhaustive treatment of the subjects, but they present enough material to cover the general outlines of the various theories. There is much authentic source material for further study.

Each pamphlet sells for 15c; the whole set of seven together sell for 75c.

Christ's Militant Kingdom, by Rev. L. R. Scarborough, A.B., D.D. $1.60.

Dr. Scarborough is President and Professor of Evangelism in the Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary. Out of a wide experience as teacher and evangelist he has written this book on the nature and consummation of the Kingdom of Christ.

The discussions, centering around the general subject of the Kingdom, take up such matters as "The King of the Kingdom," "The Realm of the Kingdom," "Its Terms of Entrance," "Its Cardinal Principles—The Gospel of the Kingdom," "Its Unit of Life—The Saved Individual," "Its Structural Agencies."

There are many other themes relative to the Kingdom in the twenty-four chapters in the book. The dominant note of optimism runs all through the book. Its value to the reader lies mostly in the inspirational.

Charles H. Spurgeon, Prince of Preachers, by Elver F. Adcock. 75c.

This is another one of the beautiful Christian Heroes Series. It is bound in blue cloth, has 116 pages, and is the story of the life of one of the really great preachers of all time. It was written especially for young people, and is interestingly told.

The chapter on "Why he did not enter college" is very practical and inspiring. Any young person would appreciate this book as a gift.

All of the books reviewed in these columns may be bought from The Pentecostal Publishing Company, Louisville, Kentucky.

and he will flee from you. Cleanse your hands, ye sinners; and purify your hearts, ye double-minded." Jas. 4:8. "Then let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father who is in heaven." Matt. 5:16. Furthermore, "Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world. If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him." 1 John 2:15.

Many prophecies are being fulfilled, and that right before our eyes. It seems to me that his coming draweth nigh. But alas! one sad thought is, that some will not be ready to meet him; and shall cry for the rocks and the mountains to fall upon them and hide them from the face of him that sitteth upon the throne, and from the wrath of the Lamb. Rev. 6:16. But all who are ready for his coming shall rejoice when, as his elect, they are gathered unto him from the four winds of the earth. Matt. 24:31. Will it not be a glorious day for his saints, when the City of the Lord shall come down? Rev. 21:2-27. When a great voice from Heaven shall proclaim that the Tabernacle of God is with men; that he shall dwell with them, that they shall be his people, and God, himself shall be with them, and be their God? And God shall wipe all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away. Then in the Eternal City, with its walls of Jasper, its gates of pearl, its streets of gold, with all of our loved ones gone before, we shall take up our abode, to live and reign with Christ forever. Amen! Bless his Holy Name!

"Heart Talks", by Rev. L. P. Law, is a series of his evangelistic sermons. They contain many interesting discussions. Price $1.00. Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky.

Dr. Ridout strikes the nail on the head in his pamphlets called "Seven Deadly Fallacies." They sell for 15c each, or 75c for the set.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

REV. O. G. MINGLEDORFF, D.D.

Lesson IX.—August 28, 1927.

Subject.—Nathan leads David to Repentance. 2 Sam. 12:1-10, 13.

Golden Text.—A broken and a contrite heart, O God, thou wilt not despise. Psalm 51:17.

Time.—B. C. 1035.

Place.—Jerusalem.

Jehovah did not write biography as we do. This story of king David's sin is told in such straightforward, simple language, that we realize at once the truth of it. When some great one dies in our times, some friend is requested to write his life-story; but in most cases we cannot read the story and know the man. We tell but half the truth, leave out the bad and write the good. When one reads the story, he longs to imitate it in his own life, but feels the impossibility of it. Sometimes he wishes the subject of the biography had been a human being instead of a wingless angel. God's manner of writing the lives of such men as Abraham and Moses and David demonstrates the truthfulness of the Bible.

Maybe it is wrong, but one can hardly read the story of David without wishing that he had died before he sinned so terribly. Some men live too long, and thereby spoil a good life. One of the writer's dearest friends lived ten years too long. Had he died at the proper time, the world would have considered him a saint; but when he "shuffled off his mortal coil" his reputation was a stench in the nostrils of his generation. Poor David! How one's heart breaks for him. What a fine young man he had been. He could have cracked the necks of some of these modern prize-fighters. He could kill bears and lions single-handed, and with nothing but a sling and a stone, the same weapons wherewith he laid low the towering Goliath. He was brilliant in intellect. He wrote poems for the race. Who has ever equalled "The Lord is my Shepherd, I shall not want"? That twenty-third Psalm will be good for a million years to come. There is little doubt but that the saints and angels in glory have had the author of it repeating it for them for the last three thousand years; and they will keep it going for three thousand years to come. David's poems are not air bubbles; they have meat in them. His thoughts are bigger than his words. He was clean in soul during the early part of his life. Jehovah looked upon him and loved him. He was a man after God's own heart. But David acted the fool when a silly woman carelessly exposed her person. I wish I could say a thing that would cut as a bolt of lightning. Our young women are damning our young men, and damning themselves, and a lot of older women are leading the way. This devilish want of clothes among our American women is becoming scandalous. I am no longer a young man, but I am a father and a grandfather, and I have a right to speak. I believe: therefore I am speaking. Nature makes its calls and demands upon young life, and there is nothing wrong or sinful in those demands when held within proper bounds; but it becomes a devilish shame that cries to heaven for vengeance when half-naked women flaunt themselves before the public view, and do so in the name of fashion and what they are pleased to call "comfort." Of course, ungodly women will pay little attention to what I am saying (they care little for the morals of men); but in the name of God, "whose I am and whom I serve," I plead with you women who profess to be followers of Jesus Christ. For the sake of his glory, and for the sake of the souls of men, use more cloth. May I give one example to clinch what I am saying? I was in a meeting some time ago, in which I got a shock. A young woman in the community was a regular attendant, and always sat in a conspicuous seat in the choir, with no screen in front of her. Her face was painted to the limit, and her lips were loaded with lipstick. Her form was ample. Her dresses came to her knees. She sat cross-legged with her lower limbs exposed almost to her body—the naked flesh showing above her knees. She seemed to have neither shame nor modesty. Now comes my shock. When we had a testimony meeting that shameless "critter" stood up with a sort of supercilious air, and said: "Thank God, I am saved, sanctified and kept up to date." God save the mark. I would like to know what she was saved from. And what was worse, before I could realize what was happening the simple-headed song leader had that "thing" sing a solo; and some of the less heavenly minded vowed that her singing was "just heavenly." "Nuff sed." No wonder the world is going to the devil fast. If modest women think that I have written too plainly in the foregoing, I have no desire to beg pardon. I have simply written the unvarnished truth as I am seeing it day after day; and I have tried to give a solemn warning to church women.

If ever a man hit the bottom in sin, David hit it, and hit it hard. All his sin was premeditated, and cold-blooded, and diabolical. He knew the law of Jehovah, but he used his kingly authority to violate the seventh commandment, and violated it without mercy. With Satanic cruelty he plotted and completed the murder of his faithful subject, Uriah the Hittite. He dared not kill him with his own hands, but forced him into a place where he was sure that the deed would be done. It is hard to keep one's indignation from rising against David. God's mercy towards the big sinner is beyond us. He deserved hell, but Jehovah had mercy. The lesson says that Nathan led David to repentance; but I am rather inclined to believe that the Holy Spirit was moving on him before the prophet got there. Listen to David's wail in the 32nd Psalm: "When I kept silence, my bones waxed old through my roaring all the day long. For day and night thy hand was heavy upon me: my moisture is turned into the drought of summer."

Nathan's little parable about the poor man and his little ewe lamb, and the rich man is fine. He caught the king unawares, and thrust him through with the sword of the Spirit. How indignant was David, until Nathan said: "Thou art the man." Maybe we need a few modern Nathans to handle a few of our big sinners. But David was not only a big sinner; he was a big repenter. Nathan did not mince matters with the royal sinner, but laid his heart and his life bare, just as every faithful preacher must do in dealing with the wicked; and David fairly wilted under the rebuke. The Spirit of God was working

EIGHTEENTH ANNUAL SESSION

Central Michigan Holiness

Camp Meeting

At Gaines, Mich., Aug. 26 to Sept. 4

WORKERS:—Rev. C. W. Ruth, full time; Dr. H. C. Morrison, first half of camp; Rev. H. L. Cox, the last half of camp; Dr. C. W. Butler; Mrs. Esther Williamson, song leader; Miss Gertrude Cook, pianist.

The preachers have had wide experience and are well known as advocates of an uttermost salvation by faith that brings real joy and satisfaction to the troubled heart and victory over sin. The singing will be of the best with such a talented leader and pianist. Bring "Best of All" song book. Meals are one dollar a day, fifty cents for one in a room and 75 cents for two. Cots in the hotel dormitory are 25 cents each. Free tenting space.

Plan for the first service and stay through and help push the battle for God and righteousness. Preaching services at 10:00 A. M., 2:30 P. M., and 7:30 P. M. The opening service at 2:30 P. M., Friday, Aug. 26. For information and posters write the Secretary, Mrs. Grace Millard, 614 W. Michigan Ave., East Lansing, Mich.

through the prophet to save the fallen king. Would you know the depth of his repentance? Read the fifty-first psalm. For genuine repentance and an honest cry for pardon, that psalm cannot be surpassed. Since David's day it has been the cry of many a sinful soul. "Have mercy upon me, O God, according to thy lovingkindness: according unto the multitude of thy tender mercies blot out my transgressions."

Sin is a terrible thing. It is treason against God and his government. Jehovah himself could not be just and pardon the sinner until Jesus made an atonement that satisfied the law of justice; but now he can pardon a repenting sinner and still be a just God. Sin destroyed the bliss of Eden, and has left its slimy trail from that hour to this. It turned Cain into a murderer, and soaked the ground with the blood of Abel. It has hung crepe on the doorknobs of the world. It has broken billions of human hearts. It has dug the graves of earth, and has erected its tombstones. It has built our courthouses and our jails. It has erected every gallows the world has ever used for the hanging of men. It built the cross on which Jesus died, along with all the other crosses that have cursed the race of men. It has forged every dagger and every sword that men have ever used for the destruction of their fellows. It has manufactured pistols and guns and cannon for the ruin of whole nations. Every bloody battlefield is a monument to sin. Every warship that plows the main is a tribute to sin. The very monuments that we build in honor of dead military heroes spell out in rock and marble the ravages of sin.

David was just one of us sinners. Maybe he was like us, and maybe we are like him. It makes no difference: "We have all sinned and come short of the glory of God." Blessed be God! He who could pardon such an adulterous murderer as David can, and will pardon all of us helpless sinners, if we will only repent and trust the blood of his dear Son.

We are looking forward to a great spiritual assembly when the Kansas City District Assembly meets (D. V.) Aug. 24-28. The past year has been one of growth and expansion. God has honored the preaching of his word. It is with hearts full of thanksgiving that we will gather for the Assembly at Webb City, Mo.

A Nazarene Pastor.

GOSPEL TENTS

Write for Prices on NEW AND USED TENTS.

R. H. ARMBRUSTER CO.,
SPRINGFIELD, ILL.

Established 1875

We Aim To Please—Our Aim Is Good

WILMORE, KY., The Home of Asbury College, would be an ideal place to locate, especially if you have children to enter that wonderful school. Now we have a good paying drug store that could be purchased outright, or a partnership proposition with present owner, a registered druggist. Act at once, as another school year is nearly here.

WILMORE DRUG CO.
Wilmore, Kentucky.

"THE WHOLE BIBLE TO THE WHOLE WORLD"
is the motto of

THE MISSIONARY TRAINING INSTITUTE

Courses are offered which prepare men and women for active soul-winning ministry at home or in the foreign field. Strong courses in evangelistic music are also featured.

Last year students were enrolled from 24 states of the U. S. A. and from 18 foreign countries.

The Forty-fifth Session begins September 13, 1927.

For catalogue or other information address

THE PRINCIPAL
MISSIONARY TRAINING INSTITUTE
Nyack-on-Hudson, N. Y.

WANTED a young man to manage a small job shop. Good opportunity for the right man. Address Box 846, Monroe, La.

A book with literary charm and full of suggestive thoughts is "Sermons on Great Tragedies of the Bible", by Rev. Ashley Chappell. It sells for $1.60. Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky.

What to give that young man or woman for a present? or what to place in the young folk library at home? are questions easily answered. Get "John Wesley, the Christian Hero" and "Charles H. Spurgeon, the Prince of Preachers." They were written especially for young people. Price 75c each. Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky.

BETHEL ACADEMY

Chartered under Asbury College

Accredited Secondary School

Member of Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools of the Southern States, giving it A(SA) rating in Kentucky. This School seeks to give High School training in an atmosphere of Christian fellowship, and where confidence in God's Word is restored. For further particulars write

GEO. B. BURKHOLDER, Principal.
Wilmore, Ky.

EVANGELISTIC AND PERSONAL.

Rev. W. W. McCord: "We closed with victory at Paulding, O. The church went several miles up the road and increased the pastor's salary. Rev. K. M. Lewis is the efficient pastor and we feel that God will bless his labors. After eleven weeks of campaigning in Ohio, I go to Sale City, Ga., for our home camp meeting, Aug. 11-25. The glory holds and the blood cleans."

Rev. V. B. Embrey: "I recently closed a revival at Mt. Pleasant church in Ohio county, in which 45 professed conversion, four reclamation and a number united with the church."

Rev. Nancy Galbreath: "We closed a meeting at Glensfork, Ky., in the Methodist Church. Great conviction rested on the people and a number prayed through. I will give up my pastorate in September and am ready to go anywhere the Lord may call. I am a graduate of Olivet College and a minister in the Nazarene Church. Address me, Columbia, Ky."

There has been a lively interest in the evangelistic services now being conducted at Meaford, Ontario, Canada, with Rev. Geo. Bennard of Hermosa Beach, Calif., as the special speaker. Mr. Bennard is a very pleasing and effective speaker who has a very attractive and effective way of placing the old truths of salvation before the people. His addresses are replete with illustrations which one cannot readily forget clinching the truth so clearly expressed. The interest in the services was well attested by the presence on Sunday of people from Collingwood, Thornbury, Owen Sound, Lion's Head and other points. This is Mr. Bennard's first visit to Ontario through for twenty years he has been a well-known evangelist in the United States. His song, "The Old Rugged Cross", has been sung around the world and his new ones are fast becoming favorites. He introduces one of his new songs in each service this week. Mr. Bennard however, is first of all an evangelist, a strong believer in the old-fashioned Gospel and an able exponent of the same.

Rev. F. E. Miller: "Wilmington Camp, N. Y., for 1927 has gone down in history as one of the best in its history of twenty-five years. It has had its trials and tests the past few years, but is now on the up grade and promises to be among our large inter-denominational camps. Plan now to come next year. Rev. Fred Suffield is in charge, Mrs. Suffield in charge of the singing. A good corps of workers will be selected for 1928. Money was raised for a new floor and seats for the Tabernacle. A new Dining Hall, 30x60, will be erected, also a Children's Tabernacle with dormitories. God was indeed gracious to us this year in saving and sanctifying power. As a spectator and now a member, I feel I owe to those who have stood in the gap these years and those who will be interested, to give this brief report. Wilmington is a coming camp."

Rev. Lewis Reep, Wilmore, Ky., can give some church or community a two or three-weeks' meeting. He is willing to go where needed.

M. Vayhinger: "The ninth annual camp meeting of the Brown County (Ind.) Association is now history. The Lord of Hosts was with us in great power. The Holy Spirit gave pungent conviction and many walked in the light and were converted, sanctified or healed. The tide in this camp has been rising in these nine years through faith and prayer and sacrifice and devotion until now it is firmly established in the hearts of the people as a permanent institution. The night congregations filled the auditorium to overflowing. The Holiness League of Indianapolis attended and rendered efficient service on both weeks ends. Many visiting ministers gave valuable help. The Light family—father, mother and daughter—of New Richmond, Ohio, were the leaders of song, and Reverend Garnet Jewel of Columbus, Ind., with his devoted co-workers, Rev. Charles Galbraith and Brother Walker, were the wise managers of the camp. It was a blessed meeting and will be a blessing to Brown and all surrounding counties."

The tent meeting, August 14-28, which Rev. G. W. Ridout and wife were going to hold at Paterson, N. J., has been changed to "The little Church around the Corner," 175 Ellison St., Paterson, N. J. Owing to weather conditions it has been thought best to hold the Convention in the church. For particulars, write C. S. Myers, or Rev. J. P. Blackledge, 175 Ellison St., Paterson, N. J.

Read the offer on this page of 20 Live Books for $1.00.

20 Live Books for $1.

575 SETS

$2.60 Value for $1.

Each one carries a great message in brief form

Gospel of the Body

REV. C. F. WIMBERLY.

The author tells in a most interesting way some of his recent discoveries of the majesty and artistic glory of the human body, and states that there are mysteries and wonders to be found in the body alone greater than the exploration of an unknown continent. There is not a dull sentence in the book. Price 15c.

The Mind of the Master

REV. WILL H. HUFF.

Two of Brother Huff's great sermons, the title of the second one being "Soul Rest." In the first sermon the author deals with the mind of Christ as to its spiritual consciousness, as to its characteristics, and as to the how of our fullest possession of it. The second sermon deals with "His Rest," the rest he has provided for the struggling believer. Price, 20c.

Scriptural Holiness

REV. B. A. CUNDIFF.

The author of this most excellent book entered and preached the experience of entire sanctification thirty-nine years. The author gives chapters on the different theories of holiness, and closes with a chapter on the Bible view of this great theme. Price, 15c.

The Vision of a Popular Minister

COMPILED BY A. SIMS.

The experience of a minister who was satisfied and at ease in Zion, but when the Lord got hold of him he found that he was self-centered and unsaved. Price, 10c.

Sin in Believers and Advice to Those Sanctified

JOHN WESLEY.

Two sermons. The first sermon is a point of utmost moment to every serious Christian, the resolving of which very nearly concerns both his present and eternal happiness. In the second, Mr. Wesley's first warning is to watch and pray continually against pride. There are five more warnings in this sermon which are vital to every Christian. Price, 15c.

Doing His Will or Going to Hell

REV. JAMES M. TAYLOR.

This book sets forth the doctrine of entire sanctification as taught in the Scriptures; also that it must be obtained here on earth. Price, 10c.

Malice

REV. J. B. CULPEPPER.

This is a most forceful writer and he handles this subject in a very interesting way. You will be thankful for the privilege of reading this book. Price, 15c.

Water Lily Money

ABBIE C. MORROW BROWN.

A thrilling story for young people; it will interest them as well as instruct and help them. Anyone will read it with pleasure and profit. Price, 15c.

I Want 'Er Go 'Ome

JAMES KNOTT MACKRELL.

A study of heaven, some of the things Jesus taught about heaven, its hope, its people, its certainty, its place, its rewards, its happiness and the way. Price 25c.

Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky.

Enclosed you will find $ for which please send me postpaid sets of your twenty pamphlets for $1.00 per set.

Name

Address

Street or Route No.

Baptism With the Holy Ghost

REV. JAMES M. TAYLOR.

This is a most excellent interpretation of what it is, of who is to receive it, and its effect upon the recipient. Price, 10c.

How to Reach the Masses

REV. JAMES M. TAYLOR.

This book deals with the problems now facing the churches, and points out God's method of doing it. Especially does this book emphasize the need of the blessing of entire sanctification to empower one for effective service in one's work for the Master. Price, 10c.

Heart Purity

REV. E. A. FERGERSON.

A sermon by one of the leading evangelists of his time. The author was very successful in leading thousands of souls into this experience. Price, 10c.

Dr. Fosdick Answered

REV. G. W. RIDOUT.

An expose of Christian liberalism, which is becoming so prevalent in the land, and one needs to be informed about it and how to combat it. This book will be very helpful. Price, 15c.

The Devil's Partners

REV. JAMES M. TAYLOR.

A sermon dealing with the real partners of the devil. The author handles the subject without gloves and starts the reader to thinking. Price, 10c.

Just for Children

REV. J. B. CULPEPPER.

The author writes a story of when and where he was converted in a style that is especially attractive to children. Price, 10c.

Sanctification

REV. J. H. COLLINS.

Dr. H. C. Morrison says this book is one of the clearest presentations of this subject he has ever read. Price, 15c.

A Whiskey Hatch

REV. J. B. CULPEPPER.

The sub title of this book is "Chickens will come Home to Roost." It is an interesting and awful story of the effects of whiskey. Price, 5c.

Little Nuggets for Little Folks

REV. JAMES M. TAYLOR.

A good book to place in the hands of a boy or girl—one that will interest them and teach them the way of salvation. Price, 10c.

Saved to Serve

REV. J. W. WELDON.

This is a life story of a business man who was saved, and afterwards gave his whole life to the service of the Lord. He has been instrumental in winning hundreds of souls to Christ. Price, 20c.

A Bottle of Tears

REV. J. B. CULPEPPER.

A salesman once said of this booklet, "If you will read it without both laughing and crying, you may have it for nothing." You will like it. Price, 5c.

Tent Workers of the Evangelical Methodist League

ASBURY GOSPEL TEAM.

Kirkpatrick, Jarrett, Moore, DuVal.
Blue Mountain Lake, N. Y., Aug. 17-28.

BECK, A. S. AND R. S.

(1019 So. Fourth St., Louisville, Ky.)
Cecilia, Ky., Aug. 8-22.
Rocky Hill, Ky., Aug. 24-Sept. 8.
Campbellsville, Ky., Sept. 10-25.

CROSS, WALTER—LOPER, NORRIS.

Stratton, Miss., August 1-19.
Piedmont, Ala., Aug. 22-Sept. 4.

DORN, C. O.—SEAMONS, L. H.

Oswego, S. C., August 7-28.

GRANT BROTHERS.

Birch Tree, Mo., August 1-16.
Thomasville, Mo., August 16-31.

HENDERSON, O. R.—ROTHWEILER, D. L.

Nekoma, Kan., August 16-31.

HOTCHKISS, ROY L.

Winthrop, Minn., Aug. 9-28.
Hull, Iowa, August 30-Sept. 11.

HOWARD, FIELDING T.

(Wilmore, Ky.)
Tolu, Ky., August 18-28.

HUTCHERSON, FIELDS AND HILKER.

(Tent Workers)
Meeteetse, Wyo., August 1-21.
Grass Creek, Wyo., August 22-25.

HYSELL, HARVEY B.

(Box 1235, Charleston, W. Va.)
Mt. Nebo, W. Va., Aug. 17-31.

KEYS EVANGELISTIC PARTY.

(Mohnton, Pa.)
Eccles, W. Va., Aug. 18-Sept. 4.
Chillicothe, Ohio, Sept. 11-Oct. 2.

LAMBERT, B. D.

Oil City, Pa., August 14-Sept. 3.

LAMP, W. E.

(Wilmore, Ky.)
Zenith, Ill., Aug. 15-30.

LEWIS, J. H.

Jerusalem, Ohio, Aug. 11-21.

PARKER, J. R.

(Wilmore, Ky.)
Berry, Ky., August 15-28.

POWELL, JAMES L.

Open date, Aug. 18-28.

ROBERTS, BYRON F.

Dayton, Ohio, July 28-Aug. 21.
Jamestown, Ohio, Aug. 24-Sept. 11.

SMITH AND MCCLURE.

Open date, July 31-August 21.
Richmond, Ill., Aug. 24-Sept. 11.

EVANGELISTS' SLATES

ALBRIGHT, TILLIE.

Richland, N. Y., Aug. 21-Sept. 5.

ANDERSON, T. M.

Wichita, Kan., August 18-28.
Winchester, Ind., Sept. 1-11.

ARTHUR, FRANK E.

Huntington, W. Va., Aug. 17-Sept. 4.

AYCOCK, JARRETTE AND DELL.

(2923 Troost Ave., Kansas City, Mo.)
Kearney, Neb., August 19-28.

BABCOCK, C. H.

Wichita, Kan., August 18-28.
Blackwell, Okla., Aug. 29-Sept. 4.
Thomas, Okla., Sept. 15-25.

BENNETT, W. G.

Manchester, O., Aug. 10-Sept. 1.

BONINE, GRACE O.—RIGGS, HELEN G.

Vandalia, Mich., August 17-28.

BRENNEMAN, A. P. AND MRS.

Ava, Mo., August 24-Sept. 4.

BREWER, GRADY.

(High Falls, S. C.)
Open date, Sept. 19-Oct. 21.

BROWNING, RAYMOND.

Aspen Hill, Tenn., Aug. 21-Sept. 5.

BUDMAN, ALMA L.

(Song Evangelist)
(101 Carpenter St., Muncy, Pa.)
Linden Hall, Pa., August 6-20.

BURNETT, W. EVANS.

(Lake Charles, La.)
Open dates for July and August.
Alexandria, La., June 17-25.

CALLIS, O. H.

Kinsaid, W. Va., Aug. 19-29.
London, Ky., Aug. 31-Sept. 4.
Salem, Va., Sept. 9-19.

CANADAY, FRED.

(1518 Killingsworth Ave., Portland, Ore.)
Spotsylvania, Va., Aug. 19-28.

CAIN, W. R.

(515 So. Vine St., Wichita, Kan.)
Wichita, Kan., August 18-28.

CAROTHERS, J. L. AND SADIE.

Nepzeper, Idaho, August 17-31.

CHATFIELD, C. C. AND FLORA.

(410 E. Carl St., Winchester, Ind.)
Radcliff, Ohio, August 14-28.

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 29-Sept. 11.
Durand, Mich., Sept. 11-Oct. 2.
Ellet, Ohio, Oct. 3-16.

CLARKE, C. S.

(808 N. Ash, Guthrie, Okla.)
Guthrie, Okla., July 31-Aug. 21.

COLEMAN, PAUL.

(1620 Fairfax Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio.)
Springfield, Ohio, August 12-24.

COMER, G. P.

(Stanford, Ky.)
Page, W. Va., August 18-28.
Open date, September.

DAVIDSON PARTY.

East Springfield, Ohio, Aug. 10-21.
Perryville, Ohio, Aug. 25-Sept. 4.
Carrollton, Ohio, Sept. 15-25.

DECKER, WALTER REED.

(Song Evangelist)
(124 Gould St., Corry, Pa.)
Open dates for Fall and Winter.

DICKERSON, H. N.

(2608 Newman St., Ashland, Ky.)
Kirk, Colo., August 18-28.

DYE, CHARLES.

(430 Williams St., Troy, Ohio)
Selma, Ind., August 11-28.

Toledo, Ohio, Sept. 4-18.
Portsmouth, Ohio, Sept. 25-Oct. 9.
West Jefferson, Ohio, Nov. 6-20.
Open date, Oct. 18-30.

ELSNER, THEO. AND WIFE.

(1451 Pacific St., Brooklyn, N. Y.)
Delanco, N. J., August 26-Sept. 5.

Anderson, Ind., Oct. 2-16.
Owosso, Mich., Oct. 20-Nov. 6.

FLEMING, JOHN.

National Park New Jersey, Aug. 12-21.
Denver, Colo., Sept. 11-25.

Chicago, Ill., (1st church) Oct. 9-23.

FLEMING, BONA.

National Park N. J., August 12-21.
Ingersoll, Okla., Aug. 26-Sept. 4.

FLEXON, R. S.

(Shacklefords, Va.)
Glassboro, N. J., August 15-21.

Delanco, N. J., Aug. 17-Sept. 5.

FUGETT, C. B.

(2813 Holt St., Ashland, Ky.)
Normal, Ill., August 19-28.

Cape May, N. J., Sept. 9-17.

GADDIS, TILDEN H.

(4805 Ravenna St., Cincinnati, Ohio)
Charleston, Ill., August 19-28.

Mulberry, Ohio, Sept. 2-18.
Mt. Washington, Ohio, Sept. 23-Oct. 9.

Binghampton, N. Y., Oct. 14-30.

GANN, J. A.

(Town Creek, Ala.)
Shackleford, Ala., August 14-20.

Sanderson's Chapel, Ala., Aug. 21-28.
Open dates: September.

GEIL, PAUL AND DORA.

(Frankfort, Ind.)
(Singers and Xylophone Players)

Lafayette, Ind., August 7-28.
Crawfordsville, Ind., Sept. 7-11.

Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 16-Nov. 6.
Brazil, Ind., Nov. 12-22.

Anamosa, Iowa, Dec. 1-30.

GLEASON, RUFUS H.

(Central, S. C.)
Charles City, Ia., August 18-28.

GLENN, REV AND MRS. J. M.

Indian Springs, Ga., Aug. 11-21.
Eastman, Ga., Sept. 4-18.

GROGG, W. A.

(Ronceverte, W. Va.)
Pinch, W. Va., August 20-Sept. 3.

GROSE, JOHN A.

(Shepherdstown, W. Va.)
Front Royal, Va., Aug. 21-Sept. 4.

Odenton, Md., Sept. 5-11.

HALLMAN, W. A. AND WIFE.

Lincoln, Neb., August 19-29.

HARRIS, B. F.

Riley, Kan., Aug. 17-Sept. 4.

HEWSON, JOHN E.

(127 N. Chester Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.)
Porter, Ohio, Aug. 18-28.

HODGE, H. W.

(129 S. 16th St., Flushing, N. Y. City)
Bushville, N. Y., August 21-31.

Open date, September.

HOLLENBACK, URAL T.

Norristown, Pa., Oct. 2-16.

HORN, LUTHER A.—MARSHALL, R. P.

Box 1322, Mobile, Ala.)
Clear Springs, Ala., Aug. 14-28.

Louisville, Ala., Sept. 1-14.
Open date, Sept. 18-30.

Mobile, Ala., Oct. 1-8.

HULSE, AARON.

Letona, Okla., Aug. 9-28.

Bradford, Ark., Sept. 2-25.

Nashville, Kan., Oct. 2-16.

HUNT, JOHN J.

(Media, Pa., Rt. 3.)
Wilkinsburg, Pa., Sept. 16-25.

Detroit, Mich., (Tabernacle) Oct. 1-Dec. 31.

IRICK, ALLIE AND EMMA.

(Bethany, Okla.)
Bonnie, Ill., August 19-29.

Millport, Ala., Aug. 31-Sept. 12.

Thomas, Okla., Sept. 15-25.

JOHNSON, ANDREW.

Campbellsville, Ky., Aug. 12-22.

Junaluska, N. C., Aug. 24-28.

Londons, Ky., (Conf.) Sept. 1-5.

Terrills Creek, Ky., Sept. 6-16.

JONES, LYMAN.

(North Kingsville, Ohio)
Brodhead, Ky., July 17-August 21.
Open dates.

JONES, LUM.

(630 W. 9th St., Ada, Okla.)
Shawnee, Okla., August 15-28.

Britton, Okla., Sept. 4-18.

Hugo, Okla., Sept. 21-25.

KEEL, MRS. S. A.

Menomonee, Wis., August 4-25.

KENNEDY, ROBERT J.

(Singer)
Paris, Tenn., Sept. 4-25.

Ft. Worth, Tex., Oct. 2-23.

KINSEY, W. C. AND WIFE.

(452 So. West 2nd St., Richmond, Ind.)
(Song Leader, Singers, Pianist)

Campbellsville, Ky., Aug. 12-21.

KINSEY FRANK E.

(1220 Tecumseh St., Indianapolis, Ind.)
Birds, Ill., July 31-Aug. 21.

Urbana, Ill., Aug. 24-29.

LILLENAS, HALDOR AND BERTHA.

Connorsville, Ind., Oct. 2-16.

LINN, REV. AND MRS. JACK—QUINN, IMOGENE.

(Oregon, Wis.)
Sanford, Ind., August 18-28.

Louisville, Tenn., Sept. 1-11.

Knoxville, Tenn., Sept. 13-25.

LITTRELL, V. W. AND MARGUERITE.

(1214 Scott St., Beatrice, Neb.)
Charlton, Ia., Aug. 14-28.

LOVELESS, W. W.

(London, Ohio.)
Des Arc, Mo., Aug. 13-28.

LUDWIG, THEODORE AND MINNIE.

(772 N. Euclid Ave., St. Louis, Mo.)
Nokomis, Ill., Aug. 9-21.

LYTLE, W. E.

(Wilmore, Ky.)
August and September open.

Richland Center, Wis., Sept. 28-Oct. 23.

McBRIDE, J. B.

(112 Arlington Drive, Pasadena, Calif.)
Noonday, Tex., August 11-21.

Oakland City, Ind., Aug. 26-Sept. 4.

McCORD, W. W.

(Sale City, Ga.)
Sale City, Ga., August 11-21.

McNEESE, HERBERT J.

(New Brighton, Pa., 634 13th Ave.)
Open dates, July and August.

MAXWELL, PROF. S. A.

(Graham, N. C.)
Highlands, N. C., August 14-24.

West Burlington, N. C., Aug. 28-Sept. 8.

MILBY, E. C.

(Song Evangelist, Gabe, Ky.)
Open dates, August.

Middletown, Ohio, Sept. 11-Oct. 4.

MILLER, REV. AND MRS. F. E.

(Lowville, N. Y.)
Richland, N. Y., August 21-Sept. 5.

MONK, ALONZO, JR.

Winslow, Ark., July 26-Sept. 1.

Paris, Tenn., Sept. 3-24.

October, November, December open.

MORRIS, (JUDGE) FRANK.

(P. O. Box 1523, Dallas, Tex.)
Hagerman, N. Mex., Aug. 28.

Alamogordo, N. M., Sept. 11.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 2.

NELSON, S. S.

(822 Worth Ave., Greensboro, N. C.)
Hillsboro, N. C., Aug. 26-Sept. 4.

Open date, Sept. 6-30.

Organ Cave, W. Va., Oct. 1-10.

Ranceverte, W. Va., Oct. 12-25.

NORRIS, JOHN.

Draughton, Va., August 17-28.

Ocean Grove, N. J., Aug. 29-Sept. 3.

OWEN, JOHN F.

(Taylor University, Upland, Ind.)
Alexandria, Ind., August 15-21.

Tarrant, Ala., Aug. 28-Sept. 11.

OWEN, G. F. AND BYRDIE.

(1415 West Pikes Peak Ave., Colorado Springs, Colo.)
Open date, August 12-21.

Bath, Maine, Aug. 28-Sept. 12.

South Portland, Maine, Sept. 18-Oct. 2.

POLLITT, S. H.

CAMP MEETING CALENDAR.

ALABAMA.

Hartselle, Ala., camp, August 4-14. Workers: Revs. O. H. Callis, Joseph Owen and Harry Blackburn. L. O. Waldsmith, Sec.
 Milport, Ala., camp, August 31-Sept. 11. Workers: Allie and Emma Erick, H. H. Hocker. Music and congregational singing. J. L. Shelton and Mrs. H. A. Forest. For information write Juneus Shelton, Sec., Milport, Ala.

ARKANSAS.

Beebe, Ark., camp, August 11-22. Workers: Rev. Josiah Tucker, Willard B. Davis, song leader. Write Mrs. Callie Harrison, Sec., P. O. Box 12, Beebe, Ark.

Batesville, Ark., camp, August 11-21. Workers: Rev. Mrs. Gussie Morris Gill, Rev. J. J. Douglas and wife. For information write E. A. Mashburn, Cor. Sec.

COLORADO.

Yuma, Colo., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Rev. L. N. Fogg, H. N. Dickinson, Mrs. J. Hester Peck, song leader. For information write E. O. Walden, Yuma, Colo.

GEORGIA.

Indian Springs, Ga., camp, Aug. 11-21. Workers: Rev. H. C. Morrison, Rev. J. L. Brasher, Rev. C. W. Butler. Young People's worker, Mrs. Vere M. Glenn. Director of music, Mr. Hamp Sewell. Address R. F. Burdew, Macon, Ga.

Sale City, Ga., camp, August 11-21. Workers: Rev. Chas. A. Gibson, Rev. O. J. Nease. Song leader, Rev. Frank Watkins. Musicians, Mrs. Frank Watkins. Special singers, The Vaughn Radio Quartette. W. W. McCord, President.

IDAH0.

Nampa, Idaho, camp, August 4-14. Workers: Rev. Bud Robinson, Revs. Jarrette and Del Aycock and daughter. For information write A. E. Sanner, Chair., 14th and 12th, Nampa, Idaho.

ILLINOIS.

Hillcrest, Ill., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Rev. E. E. Montgomery, Rev. T. P. Roberts. Prof. and Mrs. R. A. Shank in charge of singing and children. Chas. F. Benz, Sec., Kampsville, Ill.

Charleston, Ill., camp, Aug. 19-28. Workers: Rev. T. H. Gaddis and the Moser Sisters, assisted by district preachers. Rev. Chas. Slater will represent missions. Correspond with Rev. W. M. Hall, Charleston, Ill.

Cambria, Ill., camp, August 4-14. Workers: Rev. Allie Erick and wife, Mrs. Emma Erick, Rev. Elmer McKay, Rev. J. R. Moore in charge of the singing. The Girls' Quartette, of Taylor University, will also be in attendance. Dr. John Paul will be with us for at least one service. A. C. Wolfe, Sec., Carterville, Ill., Route 1.

Bonnie, Ill., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Revs. Allie and Emma Erick, Rev. Elmer McKay, Prof. John E. Moore. W. T. Lawson, Cor. Sec., Bonine, Ill.

Greenville, Ill., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Bishop Joseph F. Berry, Rev. Gay Wilson, The Prestons, song leaders. A. B. Plog, Cor. Sec'y.

Normal, Ill., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Rev. Harry W. Morrow, Rev. C. B. Fugett, Rev. Harold Johnson, song leader. Rev. Della B. Childs, children's worker. Address Mrs. Bertha C. Ashbrook, Sec., 45 West Allen St., Springfield, Ill.

Sherman, Ill., camp, August 4-14. Workers: Rev. A. L. Whitcomb, Rev. J. E. Hewson, Haldor Lillenas and wife, song leaders; Mrs. Della B. Stretch, children's worker. For information write Mrs. Julia Short Hayes, 2217 East Capitol Ave., Springfield, Ill.

Eldorado, Ill., camp, August 4-14. Workers: Dr. C. F. Wimberly, Dr. Andrew Johnson. Rev. G. S. Pollock and wife in charge of the music. J. M. Keasler, Sec., Omaha, Ill.

INDIANA.

Ramsey, Ind., August 12-21. Workers: M. G. Stanley, J. B. Keifel; Mrs. J. C. Gray, children's worker; C. C. Rinebarger and wife, leaders in song. Address Geo. F. Pinaire, Sec., Ramsey, Ind.

Centerville, Ind., camp, July 31-Aug. 19. Workers: G. M. Rainey, A. M. Moorehead. Address Mrs. Bessie Clevenger, Sec., Centerville, Ind., R. F. D.

Bryantburg, Ind., camp, August 19-28. Workers: Rev. Monroe Vayhinger, The Payne Evangelistic Party, consisting of Sister Fannie Payne, Miss Bertha Paul, Miss Ruth Coffman, and wife. Write Chas. E. Cleek, Madison, Ind., Rt. 9.

Frankfort, Ind., camp, August 5-14. Workers: Rev. T. M. Anderson, Rev. G. Arnold Hodgkin, Rev. J. C. Brillhart, song evangelist, Rev. C. C. Mourer, special music. For full particulars write Rev. D. E. Snow, Sec., 123 W. 24th St., Anderson, Ind.

New Albany, Ind., Silver Heights, Aug. 4-14. Workers: Revs. Virgil L. Moore and Raymond Browning, Paul S. Rees. Mrs. T. B. Talbott, children's worker. Male Quartet of Asbury College in charge of music. Address E. E. McPheeters, Sec., 212 Cherry St., New Albany, Ind.

Cleveland, Ind., camp, August 26-Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. John R. Hatfield, Rev. G. Arnold Hodgkin, Wright Brothers, Song leaders, Miss Florence Wyse, pianist. For information write Rev. C. E. Ellsworth, Sec., Greenfield, Ind., Rt. 3.

Oakland City, Ind., camp, August 26-Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. J. B. McBride, Rev. Ira Aykers, C. R. Rinebarger and wife, song evangelists. Write Mrs. Warrick Yenger, Sec., 518 S. Hall St., Princeton, Ind.

KANSAS.

Wichita, Kan., camp, Aug. 18-28. Workers: Rev. Chas. H. Babcock, Rev. E. E. Shelhamer, Rev. T. M. Anderson, Rev. Ernest D. Bartlett, Harold Chapman and Prof. B. D. Sutton and wife. Address W. R. Cain, Sec., 515 So. Vine St., Wichita, Kan.

Haviland, Kan., camp, August 31-Sept. 11. Workers: Rev. A. E. Lacour, Rev. E. H. Craven, singer. Write A. L. Bevan, Secretary.

Lawson, Ky., camp, Aug. 21-31. Workers: Rev. W. B. Weaver, Rev. Russel Patton, Rev. C. R. Vincent. Music in charge of the Mt. Carmel Quartet. Address Miss Mary Vandiver, Sec., Lawson, Ky.

Carthage, Ky., camp, Aug. 19-28. Workers: Rev. Freddie Thomas, J. E. and Ada Redmon. For information address, J. R. Moore, Pres., California, Ky., R.F.D. No. 1. Rawlings, Sec., Bradfordsville, Ky.

Acton, Ky., camp, August 12-20. Workers: Rev. Andrew Johnson. Prof. W. C. Kinsey and wife, song leaders. E. E. Eads, Sec.

Callis Grove, Ky., camp, August 5-14. Workers: Rev. Fielding T. Howard, J. Dorothy Huyett, song leader, Miss Ethel Sageser, pianist. I. H. Driskell, Sec., Milton, Ky., Route 3.

Tolu, Ky., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Rev. Fielding T. Howard, Charles H. Lear, leader of song. Write J. W. Napier, Tolu, Ky.

MAINE.

Robinson, Maine, camp, August 5-14. Workers: Evangelist Life E. Williams, assisted by local help. For information write Rev. P. J. Trofion, Pres. and Sec., 341 Union St., St. Johns, N. B. Can.

MARYLAND.

North East, Md., camp, August 5-14. Workers: Rev. J. B. Chapman, Rev. B. E. Neely and daughters. Miss Christine Williams, children's worker. Information from Rev. J. N. Nielson, Bus. Mgr., 212 Parker Ave., Collingdale, Pa.

MASSACHUSETTS.

North Reading, Mass., camp, Sept. 2-5, inclusive. Workers: Rev. J. L. Rogers, Rev. H. V. Milford. For information address G. E. Waddle, Sec., 620 Columbia Rd., Boston, Mass.

MICHIGAN.

Penn. Mich., camp, August 17-28. Workers: Helen G. Riggs, Grace O. Bonine. Write for information to Rev. Olive Knapp, Pres. Edwarburg, Mich.

Hopkins, Mich., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Rev. I. N. Toole, Dr. C. W. Butler, Dr. G. Arnold Hodgkin. Mrs. Fred DeWeerd, leader of young people. Prof. Kenneth Wells in charge of music; Miss Lillian Scott, pianist. Write Dr. L. E. Heasley, Sec., Rt. 9, Grand Rapids, Mich.

Gaines, Mich., camp, August 26-Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. C. W. Ruth, Dr. H. C. Morrison, Rev. H. L. Cox, Rev. C. W. Butler, Miss Esther Williamson. Secretary, Mrs. Grace Millard, 614 W. Michigan Ave., East Lansing, Mich.

Hope Center, Mich., camp, July 31-Aug. 14. Workers: J. H. Miller, Paul White. Write Ashby Mills, Sec., Hope, Mich.

Owosso, Mich., camp, August 5-14. Workers: Rev. Geo. B. Kulp, Rev. E. E. Shelhamer, L. W. Sturk, Sec., 1506 Bennett Ave., Flint, Mich.

Maybee, Mich., camp, August 11-21. Workers: Miss Edna Banning, J. C. Walker and wife, the Douglass Brothers, duetists, Mrs. Clara Palmer, Sec., 544 Thompson St., Ann Arbor, Mich.

Romeo, Mich., camp, August 5-14. Workers: George Bennard, Rev. S. W. Butler, Rev. Will Huff, and Rev. S. H. Turbeville. Mrs. W. I. Francis, Young People's worker. Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Shank, song leaders. E. L. Jaquish, Sec., R. F. D. 5, Pontiac, Mich.

MISSISSIPPI.

Frost Bridge, Miss., camp, August 19-28. Workers: Rev. R. A. Young and other helpers. Address Mrs. J. E. Moody, Sec., Waynesboro, Miss.

Cleveland, Miss., camp, August 11-22. Workers: Rev. E. E. McKeithen, E. E. McKeithen, Jr., song leader. Write Mrs. S. C. Taylor, Sec., 297 S. Court St., Cleveland, Miss.

MISSOURI.

Ava, Mo., camp, August 25-Sept. 4. Workers: A. P. Brownman and wife, C. E. Goodson and local assistants. For information write Mrs. Mattie Wallace, Ava, Mo., Route 1.

NEBRASKA.

Kearney, Neb., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Rev. E. O. Hobbs, Rev. Jarrette and Dell Aycock, Mrs. R. P. Turner, address all communications to Mr. B. J. Patterson, Sec., Kearney, Neb.

Imperial, Neb., camp, August 19-28. Workers: Thomas Clark Henderson, Jay and Virginia Rice. Jno. J. Kitt, Sec., Wauweta, Neb.

NEW JERSEY.

Erma, N. J., camp, Sept. 9-18. Workers: Rev. C. B. Fugett, Rev. K. Hawley Jackson and wife. For information write Earl Woolson, Cape May, N. J., R.F.D.

Glassboro, N. J., camp, August 11-21. Workers: Rev. H. J. Olsen, R. G. Flexon, Alvin Young. Write M. Gallagher, 40 Myrtle Ave., Pitman, N. J.

National Park, N. J., camp, August 12-21. Workers: Rev. John A. Fleming, Rev. John Fleming. Mr. Burl P. Sparks, singer.

Fletcher Grove, Delanco, N. J., camp, August 27-Sept. 5. Workers: Rev. Theo. Elsnor, Mrs. Theo. Elsnor, Rev. Richard G. Flexon, Jr.

NEW YORK.

Moore's, N. Y., camp, July 30-Aug. 14. Workers: Joseph H. Smith, J. P. Knapp, J. L. and Emily, and Thomas, Zahniser, John Scobie, Tillie Albright, Arthur Goul, song leader. Address Kenneth F. Fee, Sec., Moore's, N. Y.

NORTH CAROLINA.

Connelly Springs, N. C., camp, August 7-14. Workers: Rev. Joseph H. Smith, The Greensboro Bible School Band and Quartette and others. For information address Box 200, Connelly Springs, N. C.

OHIO.

Millersburg, Ohio, camp, August 18-29. Workers: F. Lincione and daughters. For further information write Mrs. E. D. Hedington, Sec., Millersburg, Ohio, Rt. 7.

Unioopolis, Ohio, camp, August 25-Sept. 4. Workers: L. S. Hoover, Rev. Herb Walker. Prof. N. B. Vandall has charge of the music. Address Geo. W. Watman, Unioopolis, Ohio.

Napoleon, Ohio, camp, July 31-August 14. Workers: Miss Cora Bell, M. Bradshaw and Miss Helena Saneholtz. For information address Rev. R. W. Wolfe, Napoleon, Ohio.

Portage, Ohio, camp, August 18-28. Workers: Geo. B. Kulp and John E. Hewson. Song leader, A. H. Johnston and wife. Address E. L. Day, Sec.

Circleville, Ohio, camp, August 26-Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. T. P. Roberts, Rev. Howard W. Sweeten, Rev. Charles L. Slater, Rev. E. A. Keaton, Cor. Sec., 481 N. High St., Chillicothe, Ohio.

Mt. Vernon, Ohio, (Camp Sychar), camp, August 4-14. Workers: Rev. C. M. Dunaway, Rev. John Owen, Rev. E. Hilton. Song leader, Rev. W. B. Yates; Young people's worker, Miss Anna McGhie; Children's workers, Miss May Gorsuch and Miss Oliver Tanner. Young people's song leader, Rev. W. L. Mullet. Address Rev. E. E. Shiltz, Sec., Shadyside, Ohio.

Findlay, Ohio, camp, August 11-21. Workers: C. H. Stalker, B. H. Haynie, Mrs. Aura Smith, W. B. Vandall, singer. Miss Florine Ewing, pianist. G. W. Egbert, Sec.

OKLAHOMA.

Blackwell, Okla., camp, August 25-Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. C. H. Babcock, Rev. Geo. Bennard and Willard Davis. Address Mrs. A. L. Wright, Sec., 307 E. College, Blackwell, Okla.

Thomas, Okla., camp, Sept. 15-25. Workers: Rev. C. H. Babcock, Revs. Allie and Emma Erick. For information write to Miss Anna Kraybill, Sec., Thomas, Okla.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Conneautville, Pa., camp, August 5-14. Workers: Rev. J. L. Brasher, Thomas Henderson, Rev. F. A. Arthur, Prof. Kenneth Wells and wife, Emma Valentine. Address C. A. Lockwood, Cor. Sec., 2740 Louisiana Ave., (Darmont) Pittsburgh, Pa.

Clinton, Pa., camp, August 5-14. Workers: Rev. R. G. Flexon, Rev. David Wilson, Rev. J. N. Hampe, Rev. Geo. Cole, song leader. Mrs. Edith Clawson, children's meetings. Write Rev. L. W. King, Clinton, Pa.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

Epworth, S. C., camp, August 19-28. Workers: Dr. E. P. Taylor, Dr. John Paul and others. Address Rev. W. P. E. Kinard, Epworth, S. C.

TENNESSEE.

Holmes' Gap, Tenn., camp, Aug. 18-28. Workers: Rev. C. B. Jernigan, Rev. Mrs. Johnny Jernigan, J. D. Shelton, Chorister. Miss Johnny Jernigan, pianist and violinist. Miss Margaret Jernigan, soloist. J. W. Taylor, Sec., and Treas., Bush Creek, Tenn.

Greeneville, Tenn., camp, Sept. 1-11. Workers: Rev. C. M. Dunaway, Miss Ruth Harris in charge of music. Address Mrs. Flora Willis, care of C. A. Vann, Greeneville, Tenn.

Dyer, Tenn., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Dr. A. O. Henricks, Rev. S. W. Strickland, Miss Ruth Harris, song leader. Joe T. Hall, Sec., Dyer, Tenn.

Knoxville, Tenn., camp, August 3-14. Workers: Rev. H. Robb Frest, song leader. Mrs. Golden Young. For information write Rev. Percy E. Baily, 1018 E. Main Ave., Knoxville, Tenn.

TEXAS.

Atlanta, Tex., camp, August 12-21. Workers: Dr. R. T. Williams, The Latham Sisters, pianist and leaders of song. Mary A. Perdue, Sec.

Peniel, Tex., camp, August 4-14. Workers: Rev. Lum Jones, Rev. Kendall White and wife, song leaders. For information write E. C. Deberniet, Sec.

Noonday, Texas, camp, August 10-21. Workers: J. B. McBride, C. P. Gossett, song leader. F. E. Dickard, Sec., Hallsville, Tex.

VIRGINIA.

Spottsylvania, Va., camp, August 19-29. Workers: Rev. Fred Canaday, Rev. W. L. King, Rev. Bessie B. Larkin, Mrs. W. L. King and Mrs. G. B. King in charge of young people's work. Mrs. Merton Steelman and son, song leader. Address Mrs. B. K. Andrews, Sec., Spottsylvania, Va.

Locust Grove, Va., camp, August 26-Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. E. F. Shoup, Rev. H. A. Frederick, Rev. J. M. Jennings. For information write Mrs. Lillie R. Bowles, Sec., Locust Grove, Va.

Drainesville, Va., camp, August 19-28. Workers: Rev. John Norberry. Song leader, Mrs. Marion Birrell. For information address Mrs. L. Hyatt, Sec., 163 Adams St., N. W., Washington, D. C.

Salem, Va., camp, Sept. 9-19. Workers: Dr. J. W. Carter and Rev. O. H. Callis. For information write J. J. True, Pres., Salem, Va.

WISCONSIN.

Oregon, Wis., camp, July 29-August 14. Workers: Rev. Tilden H. Gaddis, Moser Sisters, Miss Imogene Quinn, Prof. Edson Crosby, Miss Karine Kjolseth, and Rev. and Mrs. Jack Linn. Address Jack Linn, Oregon, Wis.

Hillsboro, Wis., camp, August 10-22. Workers: Preston Kennedy, James Bane, Raymond Lewis with Bro. Eneyart song leaders. For information address May Markee, Hillsboro, Wis.

The Christ of the Gospels

BY HENRY CLAY MORRISON

Addreses vibrant with vital religious conviction, hope and devotion to the Christ of the Gospels, which have met with wonderful success when delivered at revival and camp meetings. Dr. Morrison, widely known through his long service as editor an author of many popular books on spiritual themes, here writes on such momentous topics as "The Modern Judas," "How to Bring Sinners to Christ," "The Value of a Soul," "The Second Coming of Christ," etc.

A volume of soul-winning discourses which brings a message.

Price, $1.00.

PENTECOSTAL PUBLISHING CO., Louisville, Kentucky.

COMFORT BIBLE

Large pica type. (See specimen below). Beautiful morocco binding with overlapping edges. Thin and light, size 6x9-1 in. thick, weight only 22 ounces, fine India paper, red under gold edges, silk head bands and marker, family record.

Regular $8.00 value. Our special price $5.00, post-paid.

PENTECOSTAL PUB. CO., Louisville, Ky.

The superiority of HEBR

6 Now when these things were thus ordained, the priests went always

Is the Antichrist at Hand?

What of Mussolini--The Iron Man of Rome?
 The Revival of the Roman Empire?
 The End of the Present World Order?

THE book of the hour, containing Bible evidence of a most startling nature from the world of demonology, politics and religion concerning the end of the present world order.

Over 30,000 Sold!

Two Editions: Cloth, $1.00; postpaid, $1.10. Paper, 50c.; postpaid, 55c.

At your bookstore, or from

Pentecostal Publishing Company
 523 South First Street
 LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY

DR. RIDOUT ON DRESS QUESTION.

At last the holiness people are going to have a real, outspoken, frank, powerful booklet on the Dress Question. Dr. Ridout has written it. Title is, "The Dress Question and Modern Abominations." Price will be 15c. Send in your order and read this book and get your friends to read it.

PENTECOSTAL PUBLISHING CO., Louisville, Kentucky.

JUST OUT!!

"THE METHODIST CRISIS"

Dr. Ridout has put into pamphlet form under above title the story of the fight for orthodoxy which took place on the floor of the New Jersey Conference, Asbury Park, N. J., last March, in which he and Dr. H. P. Sloan and others debated with Bishop Anderson and Dr. H. H. Meyer, Sunday School Editor, the issues of Modernism within Methodism.

In addition to Dr. Ridout's story there is a fine write-up of the affair by Rev. H. Decker who was present at the debate and whose story appeared in the "Essentialist."

Let every Methodist send and get a copy of this booklet. Every Methodist minister--North and South--should read the story. It will stir your blood. It will show you how Modernism is getting a terrific grip on Methodist Bishops, Editors and Leaders. It will also show you your duty to stand up and show your colors in the hour of peril.

Dr. Sloan, Dr. Ridout and others take the fight for orthodoxy right into their Annual Conferences and it is there the battle should be fought out.

Price 15c, or 7 for $1.00.

PENTECOSTAL PUBLISHING CO., Louisville, Kentucky.

THAT UNPUBLISHED BOOK OF YOURS

We make a specialty of publishing books, pamphlets, and sermons. We guarantee good work at reasonable prices. Will advise how to put your book on the market profitably. Write us about it.

PENTECOSTAL PUBLISHING CO., Louisville, Kentucky.

NOT TO BE USED WITHOUT COPYRIGHT PERMISSION

OF ASBURY THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

THE FIGHT IS ON

The fight against sin and for holiness.

The fight against impurity and for purity.

The fight against worldliness in the church and for a holy people.

The fight against immodest dress and for a modest womanhood.

The fight against those who would destroy the Bible, and for the Word.

The fight against Sabbath desecration and for Sabbath observance.

The fight against lawlessness, and for obedience to the law.

The fight against trashy literature and for wholesome literature.

The fight against indifference and for a revival.

THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD IS IN THIS GREAT BATTLE FOR RIGHTEOUSNESS.

and the only way for us to make the fight effective in your community is for you to help us by placing it into every home possible. You will be pleased to know that you can send THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD from now until January 1, 1928, for only 50c, and if we may have your co-operation, you will be instrumental in making this fight effective in your community.

Allow us to suggest that you tell every one you come in contact with what THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD is fighting for, and tell them of this special introductory offer. Also speak to one or more financially able and liberal persons, tell them what you are trying to do, and ask for their co-operation in putting the paper into a number of homes. Then, too, you will find a number of people who tithe who will be glad to invest a little tithe money in a fight of this kind.

Use the blanks below and send in your list within the next few days, so as to give the subscribers the benefit of the full 25 weeks.

Pentecostal Publishing Company, Louisville, Kentucky.

Enclosed find $..... for which please send The Pentecostal Herald weekly from now until January, 1928, to the following:

Name	Name
Address	Address
Name	Name
Address	Address
Name	Name
Address	Address
Name	Name
Address	Address
Name	Name
Address	Address

PENTECOSTAL HERALD

Dr. H. C. Morrison, Editor
Mrs. H. C. Morrison, Associate Editor

Louisville, Ky., Wednesday, Aug. 24, 1927.

Entered at Louisville, Ky., Postoffice as Second Class Matter.

$1.50 Per Year.
Vol. 39, No. 34.

Stand Fast for The Doctrine and Experience of Holiness.

By The Editor.

FOR the conviction of sinners, the regeneration of penitents, the reclamation of backsliders and the sanctification of believers give me a regular holiness meeting that lays great stress on full redemption from sin through the atoning blood of Christ.

Through a long and varied ministry, I have found that in order to preach holiness or full salvation from sin, it is necessary to cover the whole ground of the fall of man and the redemptive scheme in all of its ramifications and abundant provision for the redemption of mankind. It is the preaching of the truth, as revealed in the Word of God, that brings men to repentance and saving faith, and to preach holiness is to begin at the beginning and come forward to the culmination of the redemptive scheme on the Cross.

If you would preach holiness, or entire sanctification, you must lay emphasis upon sin and distinguish between sin as a principle within and sinning as outbreaching acts of wickedness. The holiness preacher is a doctrinal teacher. He always lays emphasis upon the fall and sinfulness of the race. He stresses repentance, the full surrender of the broken heart and contrite spirit. He lays great emphasis upon the new birth. He says we must come out of Egyptian bondage in order that we may come into the Canaan of Perfect Love. The holiness preacher is a doctrinal preacher. The people who sit under his ministry become students of the Bible; they begin to see the systematic teaching of sin and redemption as it runs through the Word of God.

The great holiness camp meetings throughout the country are Bible schools as well as places of repentance, regeneration, consecration and sanctification. No people in the land are better trained in the fundamental teachings of the Holy Scriptures than those people who, summer after summer, attend the holiness camp meetings and listen to the careful and discriminating exposition of the Holy Scriptures on the entire problem of sin and redemption. The people known as the holiness people, who have been thus trained and instructed through the years, have been made wonderfully safe from the inroads of the teaching of fanatics or modern liberals. They are rooted and grounded in their faith in the Holy Scriptures, the lostness and sinfulness of the race, and the mightiness of Christ to save to the uttermost.

Those who have charge of the camp meetings should be careful in the selection of the preachers who are to minister to the hungry people that gather at these camps. There is no place in these camps for any one who is in the least tainted with modernism or who is wont to hear with pleasure and praise such men as Fossdick or those of his school of thinking. These holiness camp meetings are powerful centers of instruction in Bible truth. They give the people a firm foundation on which to rest their faith in the inspiration of the Scriptures, the deity of our Lord and his saving power.

So much of the revivalism of today, which is not on full salvation lines, is shallow and short-lived. The birds get much of such sowing and the stony ground prevents its rooting and growth. The thorns and briars of worldliness spring up and choke it. It is not characterized by the searchings of the Word, the call for the surrender of the world, the tarrying in prayer, the consecration which keeps back no part of the price and that gracious in-coming of the Holy Ghost to set up the Kingdom of God in the hearts of the people. There is no way to calculate the value of the holiness camp meeting, convention, revival, literature and schools in this country which have sent a warm current of spiritual life sweeping through the ocean of humanity in this nation. It has delivered untold thousands from the bondage to strong drink, drugs and tobacco. It has set up family altars in a hundred thousand homes. It has brought bright young people out of obscure places into schools where they have become educated and have gone out into lives large with usefulness. It has landed in heaven a mighty host of immortal souls, washed from all sin in the blood of the Lamb. On with the revival of Full Salvation for the glory of our blessed Christ and the redemption of those he bought with his own blood upon the Cross.

Monthly Sermon.

THE REVELATION OF THE TRINITY.

Text: "And be not drunk with wine, wherein is excess; but be filled with the Spirit." Eph. 5:18.

It will be well for us to remember that in the unfolding of the great plan of redemption, it was divine wisdom that the fulness of the Trinity should be revealed in the following order:

- I. The Father.
- II. The Son.
- III. The Holy Spirit.

The revelation of the Father was, in a remarkable sense, a preparation for the revelation of the Son. The Father revealed himself to the prophets and revealed to them his plan and purpose for the revelation of his Son. The prophets, in their teachings, prepared the Hebrew Church for the coming of the Son. When Jesus came he bore witness to the inspiration and trustworthiness of the prophecies concerning himself. He also set his approval upon the whole of the Old Testament Scriptures, as they then existed, the Scriptures we have and believe today, and he, in a most remarkable way, revealed the Father. We never could have had any correct understanding of God, the Father, had not Jesus come and given us a revelation of him. It was Jesus who taught us to say, "Our Father, who art in heaven." It was Jesus who taught us that, "God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." It was Jesus who forgave the woman who was being dragged to be stoned to death for fearful sin and said to her, "Go, and sin no more." It was Jesus who spoke peace and gave assurance to a dying thief that he should be with him in Paradise the very day of their death upon the Cross, and added to all this, "He that hath seen me hath seen the Father." What a marvelous revelation Jesus gave of the God of the Universe! We never could have had any accurate conception of God had not Jesus come. In fact, Jesus taught that "No man knoweth the Father save the Son and he to whom the Son will reveal him." He said, "No man cometh to the Father but by me."

It was our Lord Jesus Christ who prepared the church for the coming of the Holy Spirit. Jesus in the flesh was comparatively local throughout his life ministry upon the earth. His life in the flesh was circumscribed to a very small part of the world's geography. It was in part because of this fact that he said, "It is expedient," that is, "better for you" that I go away.

The ministry of Jesus was full of teaching with reference to the Holy Spirit, his Person, his equal in honor and power with the Father and the Son, and in his concern and work in the salvation of men. The Holy Spirit was to be world-wide in his presence and influence. He was to touch men everywhere at the same time. The coming of the Holy Spirit was the climax of revelation. It was one of the greatest epochs in the history of God's dealings with men. Man was created for God. Sin brought separation. The coming of the Holy Spirit to indwell men was a marvelous restoration of communion and fellowship between men and the blessed Trinity.

It is an interesting fact that each person of the Trinity reveals the other person of the Trinity, that is, while we had the revelation of the Father before we had the revelation of the Son, and never could have had any correct understanding of the Father if the Son had not come and revealed him, even so we shall not be able to have anything like a correct comprehension of the Lord Jesus Christ without the coming of the Holy Spirit. The Holy Spirit reveals, explains, exalts and glorifies the Lord Jesus Christ. The Apostle evidently has this in mind when he says, "No man calleth Jesus Lord but by the Holy Spirit." The Holy Spirit exalts Jesus high

(Continued on page 8)

NOT TO BE USED WITHOUT COPYRIGHT PERMISSION

OF ASBURY THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

THE LOST ART OF RELIGION.

Rev. G. W. Ridout, D.D., Corresponding Editor.

A great Orator of years ago had a wonderful lecture on "The Lost Arts." He contended that the ancients knew some secrets and had some arts in the world of physics and achievements which we know not—they are lost arts. Men look with amazement at the Pyramids and other gigantic stone structures of the ancients and they cannot figure out how they accomplished such feats in the world of mechanics without the machinery that men have today. It seems to be a case of lost arts.

In the realm of religion we are compelled to think these days of the lost arts. Let us enumerate some of those Lost Arts.

I. THE LOST ART OF CHRISTIAN TESTIMONY

In recent numbers of the Advocates (both New York and Central) the editors call attention to the class meeting. Dr. Spencer says:

"In the days of the fathers, there was a species of Methodist who was known as an attendant on class meetings. He is extinct, or at most he is a curiosity fit for the museum of Methodist antiquities. Let us look back across the years at the germ cell of Methodism. The Methodist movement was not conceived by Mr. Wesley as a new and independent church; it was a series of groups of church members within the precincts of the Established Church, who met to pursue holiness of life and who allowed others to meet with them if they desired to flee from the wrath to come and to be saved from their sins."

"Those groups possessed what Chalmers called 'Christianity in earnest.' The uppermost thing in their desires was the knowledge of sins forgiven, the witness of the Spirit that they were accepted of Christ, the witness they had of his companionship; the Spirit answered to their present experience telling them they were born of God. Out of that sprang the hymns of the Wesleys; out of it the preaching of Whitefield; out of it the movement which pervaded and saved England from the terrors that reddened the streets of infidel Paris with blood; the movement that fixed its eyes on heavenly standards, heavenly associations, heavenly ecstasies that judged of earthly standards by the heavenly, and sought associations that could converse of heavenly experiences."

"In our earliest years in the pastoral ministry, working among Methodists born and raised in Cornwall, men whose fathers had known Billy Bray and who had read Haslam, and sat in the presence of Wesley himself, we attended class meetings. We heard the leader say, 'Brother ———, how is it with your soul?' or 'Brother ———, what is the good word from you?' And men and women talked of the things of God in their own life, without circumlocution, or preaching or Phariseism. We look back upon those meetings as among those fullest of God. We recall them with quickened pulse and eyes turned to heaven."

"Often we ask ourselves: Are such things no longer possible? When we quit the testimonies of class meeting, we carried them over for a time to the mid-week prayer meeting. We still had the quarterly love feast. But now the prayer meeting is an exchange of opinion—not of experience—and the love feast? How often is a love feast the agape of the New Testament church, a part of the quarterly meeting?"

II. THE LOST ART OF WINNING SOULS.

Dr. Joy writing in the New York Christian Advocate, July 7, says:

"One of the major factors in the success of an evangelist like Dr. Stanley Jones of India, is the personal testimony which he is able to give out of his own religious experience. He has reported how Indian students flock to him, not so much to inquire about his

TO METHODIST PREACHERS AND LAYMEN.

I hope a great number of Methodists interested in the present crisis in the Methodist Episcopal Church, will send to The Pentecostal Publishing Company and get my recent booklet entitled "The Methodist Crisis, or The Fight for Orthodoxy."

I have put in this a full account of our debate with Dr. Meyer and Bishop Anderson at the New Jersey Conference. It will be interesting reading. Price, 15c.

Our Publishing House has just put out my new booklet on "Dress and Modern Abominations." In this I handle the Dress Question without gloves and show the scandal upon the Christian religion of the prevailing undress and flapperism that is working such havoc. Send for a copy. Price 15c.

G. W. Ridout.

religious opinions as to hear him talk about the spiritual illumination and guidance that have come to him in the conduct of his own inner life. This testimony from experience convinces. In this he is only repeating—and in the same manner—the conquests which Wesley and the early Methodists achieved. Their preachers were not as a rule men of learning or of extraordinary intellectual power. Their power to win converts was mainly due to their ability to communicate to others a real appreciation of the deep spiritual experiences which they themselves enjoyed. Not only the preachers, but the members had this power, and 'testimony meetings,' in which the brothers and sisters narrated their experience of the saving and keeping power of God, were a recognized means of grace.

"It is an occasion, therefore, for great regret that the present generation of Christians, notably the Methodists, have in so many cases forfeited or lost the vital consciousness of spiritual reality with which their fathers were blessed. It is a loss to them and to those to whom they might otherwise communicate it. It is hard to understand how any preacher or teacher of religion can be effective in carrying conviction to others, if he has not felt and lived the truths which he endeavors to communicate."

We have before us as we write, a letter from Korea in which Robert Chung, who went out from Asbury College, a flame of fire back to his native land to preach Christ, in special evangelistic work tells us that in one meeting 3,000 people came every night to the services and the church floor was turned into an altar. In six months he has seen over 5,000 souls seeking God for pardon, reclamation or holiness. What is the secret of it? The Baptism of Fire! Stanley Jones went to India on fire and set things on fire for God.

Soul winning used to be one of the prime objects of the Christian ministry—young men entered the ministry with that in view. Ministers used to hold their own protracted meetings. They did not depend on evangelists to bring on revivals. But now-a-days a great army of ministers no longer look upon the ministry as a soul-saving endeavor but rather as having as its object education, civilization, Christianization, cultivation, etc. In consequence the art of soul saving has been lost in the ministry to a great extent. The lost art of soul saving will be regained if preachers and ministers will wait till they get the endowment from on high.

III. THE LOST ART OF REPENTANCE.

A great deal of modern evangelistic work fails to maintain that permanency so much desired, because so many converts do not go deep enough in real repentance for sin. Many souls have their symptoms dealt with, not their sins. The work of Repentance has not gone down deep.

Dr. Albert Barnes in his sermon on "The Nature of Repentance" gives the following points on true repentance:

"Repentance, in general, is a state of mind which springs up in view of perceived personal guilt.

2. "Evangelical repentance, or repentance as connected with true religion in the soul, is a state of mind which arises from the perception that all sin is committed against God. 'Against thee, thee only, have I sinned, and done this evil in thy sight.' Psal. 51:4.

3. "True repentance, as a part of religion involves not only regret for past sin as an evil in the sight of God, but a purpose to abandon it and to do it no more."

IV. THE LOST ART OF PRAYING THROUGH.

'More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams off'—so writes the poet. Prayer is the mightiest force at the command of the Christian. It is the believer's highest privilege, the church's supremest power, hell's most vital foe. "Prayer," said Andrew Munsy, "is the strategical point which Satan watches. If he can succeed in causing us to neglect prayer, he has won, for where communion between God and his people is broken the true source of life and power is cut off. In how large a measure he has succeeded in causing the church of Christ to neglect prayer, faithful, constant, prevailing prayer! Prayerlessness shows that we do not value communion with God."

Once we had an official board who in a time of stress thought the only way to get out of their financial difficulty was to hold an oyster supper. We were presiding at the meeting when the motion was made that such a supper should be held. Before putting the motion we said: "Brethren, let us go to prayer first over this matter." We took to prayer, and something happened to that motion. It got lost, and has never been found to this day. When we arose from our knees it was clean gone out of sight, and no one felt inclined to go after it. The supper was not held, the crisis was passed, and never again did that church entertain a thought of holding anything for money-raising purposes other than according to the scriptural method. More things may be settled through prayer than can be imagined. Contentions settle nothing; lawsuits breed bitterness; arguments create antagonism.

The Lord is the hearer of prayer. "I shall not want." He maketh me to rejoice in answers manifold and to tell of the wonders of prayer. Through prayer he has "restored" me plentifully and "led me in paths" remarkable. Though I have "walked in valleys" of discouragement and humiliation he has "comforted" me in prayer, and given me light for darkness. "In the presence of my enemies" he has answered my prayers in ways truly marvelous. "He has anointed me with oil," and given me a full "cup" in the time of drought. "Surely all my life long shall his goodness follow me" if I pray unto him and in this way of prayer shall I "abide."

If people would only take time to pray things through, things would happen, the heavens would bend and victory would come, but alas, so few people will pray through—hence no victory!

V. THE LOST ART OF PREACHING "WITH THE HOLY GHOST SENT DOWN FROM HEAVEN."

Baxter, that great pastor-preacher and soul winner of the Seventeenth Century, said of his preaching: "I preach as if I never shall preach again and as a dying man to dying men."

The poet has said:

"He that negotiates between God and man, As God's ambassador, the grand concerns Of Judgment and of mercy, should beware Of lightness in his speech. 'Tis pitiful To court a grin, when you should win a soul; To break a jest, when pity would inspire Pathetic exhortation: and to address

The skittish fancy with facetious tales
When sent with God's commission to the heart."

"Stir up yourselves," said Baxter, writing upon pulpit ardor, "to the great work of God when you are upon it and see that you do it with all your might. Oh speak not one cold or careless word about so great a business as heaven or hell. You cannot break men's hearts by jesting with them or telling them a smooth tale or patching up a gaudy oration."

What a Holy Ghost preacher was Redfield, of the Free Methodists. Preaching at one time he said:

"I felt an unearthly thrill charging me from head to foot while the place was filled with a sense of the awful presence of God. I soon saw that the minds of the congregation were in great commotion; and in a few minutes the power of God broke like a thunderclap upon the people, and such screaming, falling, shouting and crying for mercy I had no thought of seeing in that place."

Writing about the Newburg, N. Y., camp meeting where Redfield preached the writer said:

"The camp meeting at Newburg, N. Y., was wonderful. The preachers tried to get along without Redfield, but in vain, and finally he was asked to preach. He presented the Gospel of Full Salvation. Scarcely had they engaged in prayer before the slaying power fell upon them, and sinners, without an invitation, rushed forward to find a place to kneel as seekers. The tent was eighty feet long, with a row of seats running the whole length of the tent, through the center. During the remainder of the camp meeting, without cessation, that long bench was filled with seekers, and sometimes two and three rows on each side, the men on one side and the women on the other. As soon as they were converted they were taken away to make room for others, and there seemed to be someone waiting to take the vacant place at all times. No one had to exhort or persuade penitents to come. God was there in awful power. Many testified that they were convicted at their homes two or three miles away. Nothing was said at any time on the subject of dress, yet fashionable ladies with their bonnets filled with artificial flowers would struggle and weep and cry and, when all else failed, would put up both hands and tear out the flowers. In a few moments, smiling through their tears, they would make the woods ring with their shouts of joy."

We have today a better educated pulpit than our fathers had, but, alas, Education has too often ruled out the unction and power of the Spirit, topics of the times have taken the places of eternal verities, and the vagaries of modernism have been substituted for the truth as it is in Jesus. Fire-baptized preachers are rare in the big pulpits of today, and the most important stations are occupied by careful men who preach neither repentance or holiness, hence there is comparatively little preaching today in the regular churches "with the Holy Ghost sent down."

THE FULNESS OF THE BLESSING.

Rev. C. W. Ruth.

Romans 15:29.

SANCTIFICATION, negatively stated, is "the act of divine grace whereby we are made holy;" the crucifixion of "our old man;" the cleansing of the heart from all sin. The positive aspect of sanctification is the infilling, and indwelling of the Holy Spirit. When the heart is cleansed from all sin, the Comforter, whom Jesus promised, comes in to abide, according to John 14:16. Hence the sanctified life is not simply a holy life, but a Spirit-filled life.

When people profess to have the experience of entire sanctification, and yet seem to be empty, and dry, and mechanical, we become distressed. We fear they have simply assented to the teaching, subscribed to the doctrine, and joined the procession; that they have swallowed the prescriptions given by the physician instead of waiting on the drug-gist and having the prescription filled, and then taking the remedy according to the directions given by the prescription; in other words, they have been sanctified by syllogism, but have not yet received the actual experience; or, if they had received the experience they have cooled off, and the experience has leaked out. While they still pronounce the shibboleth, and in a cold-blooded, stereotyped way testify to being "saved and sanctified," and vote with the sanctified people, there seems to be no victory nor glory in the soul; no light nor radiance in the countenance, and no spontaneity nor unction in the testimony; it is all professional, mechanical, and metallic. Jesus said of one portion of the good seed of the Sower, "some fell upon a rock, and as soon as it was sprung up, it withered away, because it lacked moisture." Luke 8:6. It is this lack of moisture that we deplore among some holiness professors.

David said, "The trees of the Lord are full of sap." "He shall come down like rain upon the mown grass: as showers that water the earth." Psalms 104:16; 72:6. And in giving the promise of this experience Jesus said, "He that believeth on me, as the scripture hath said, out of his belly (his inward parts) shall flow rivers of living water. This spake he of the Spirit, while they that believe on him should receive." John 7:38, 39. On the day of Pentecost, when the disciples were sanctified, "they were all filled." Acts 2:4.

The command is, "Be filled with the Spirit." Eph. 5:18. This fulness of the Spirit is characteristic of all who are truly sanctified. Of course the heart must be emptied, and cleansed before it can be filled; however this cleansing and filling usually occurs simultaneously,—just as the room is emptied of its darkness by the influx of light. Not only does the apostle speak to the Ephesians about being "filled with the Spirit;" but he also urges the "fulness of Christ" (4:13) and insists that they should "know the love of Christ, which passeth knowledge that (in order that) ye might be filled with all the fulness of God." 3:19. Here is the fulness of the Spirit, the "fulness of Christ," and "all the fulness of God."

There is a "fulness of blessing" for all. In Matt. 6:22, we read, "If therefore thine eye be single, thy whole body shall be full of light." Here is a fulness of "light." In Rom. 15:13, the apostle prays, "The God of hope fill you with peace in believing." So we may be filled with "peace." In John 15:11, Jesus said, "These things have I spoken unto you, that my joy might remain in you, and that your joy might be full." Here we see that Jesus wants us to have the fulness of "joy"—in a joy that remains; not merely a spasmodic joy, but a constant and abiding joy. In John 10:10, Jesus said, "I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly." "The fear of the Lord is a fountain of life." Prov. 14:27. Here, then is a fulness of "life." Micah testified, "Truly I am full of power by the spirit of the Lord." Micah 3:8. So there is a fulness of "power."

In writing to the Colossians the Apostle Paul said he prayed and desired that they should "be filled with the knowledge of his will in all wisdom and spiritual understanding." Col. 1:9. And his prayer for the Philippians was that they might be "filled with the fruits of righteousness, which are by Jesus Christ, unto the glory and praise of God." Phil. 1:11. Peter insisted that although ye have not yet seen Jesus, "yet believing, ye rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory." 1 Pet. 1:8.

We confess, we like to see the saints get blessed occasionally as was David, when he said, "Thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over." Psalms 23:5. And the promise is that if we will bring all the tithes into the storehouse, (meet conditions), our God will open the windows of heaven, and "pour out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it." Mal. 3:10. His measure is "good measure, pressed down, and shaken together, and running over." "Thus saith the Lord . . . I will pour water upon him that is thirsty, and floods upon the dry ground." "In the light of the king's countenance is life; and his favor is as a cloud of the latter rain." (Luke 6:38; Isa. 44:3; Prov. 16:15).

In view of all these scripture references, and these promises, it is self-evident, that multitudes are living beneath their privileges, and failing to measure up to the divine standard. Why go dry, and lean, and empty, when God is waiting to fill you with his fulness? Why not insist on having a drenching shower, and a thorough submerging,—saturating and overflowing all your being? Remember that the New Testament standard of a sanctified life is,—"Be filled." "Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness: for they shall be filled." Matt. 5:6.

No, we are not pleading for any particular demonstration, or outward manifestation. We are simply urging that every sanctified soul should "be filled with the Spirit;" nevertheless, we are persuaded that where there is this "fulness"—according to the Scriptures cited above—there will be some outward manifestation and expression of the same. We are quite willing that the Spirit should manifest himself, as he may please; but when there is a blessing—so abundant and full, that there is not "room enough to receive it," it is bound to overflow in some fashion.

We have found that many persons who had boasted of the fact that they were "not emotional" in their religion: and had supposed that their lack of "emotionalism" was due to the fact that they were more "conservative," and of a more modest temperament, later discovered, when filled with the Spirit, that they had simply been empty and dry, and formal because of the carnality of their hearts; and when they were sanctified wholly, and filled with the Spirit, they became just as jubilant, and emotional, and demonstrative, as the rest. While some will manifest this fulness in one way, and some in another, yet in any case, there will be the overflowing and the outward manifestation. "When the Lord turned again the captivity of Zion, we were like them that dream. Then was our mouth filled with laughter, and our tongue with singing; then said they among the heathen, The Lord hath done great things for us, whereof we are glad." Ps. 126:1-3.

If You Want Something

Convincing on the tithe, something that tells you what God says about it, send 10c and get a copy of "Will A Man Rob God." It is a splendid little book to hand out to members of your church who do not believe in tithing. We will send one dozen for $1.00.

Why Christians May Not Accept Evolution as it is Taught.

Rev. W. M. Young, A. M., Sc. D.

EVOOLUTION is (1) continuous, progressive change, (2) according to certain laws, (3) by means of resident forces," says LeConte. In this article we wish to deal with the second proposition of Dr. LeConte's definition. The evolutionist, who is consistent with his theory, believes that all things are under the control of certain fixed laws in nature. Shailer Mathews is consistent with his belief in evolution when he refuses to believe in what he calls "nature miracles," and denies that Christ walked upon the water or turned water into wine; he also denies that the body of Christ rose from the tomb. He says that to walk on the water or turn water into wine is contrary to the laws of nature. I wonder if he professes to understand all the laws of nature. A few years ago we believed that it was contrary to the laws of nature to fly with a heavier than air machine, or to send messages across continents without wires. Harry Fosdick is even more nearly consistent with the theory of evolution in denying all miracles; he says: "The miracle idea is gone. Do you wish to be a reactionary or a progressive? Give up all miracles and we have not lost anything. There isn't anything essential in miracles to your faith. The world used to be static, rigid, law sets one free." Professor Huxley taught that God would have to work a miracle to deflect one ray of light. Recently a small boy came around into my back yard and with a little mirror deflected light into my eyes; but Mr. Huxley would deny to the Almighty God the power possessed by a small boy. Any of us can pit one law of nature against another and produce wonderful results. We can overcome the law of gravity with electricity. Every time one lifts hand or foot, he is overcoming one law of nature with another. The tree builds its huge trunk upward toward the sky, seemingly contrary to the law of gravity. If feeble man by his wisdom and skill can get results contrary to the ordinary known processes of nature, making one natural force to overcome another, who shall deny to the Creator of all things a similar power? Shall we deny to the man who makes the automobile the power to operate and direct it as he pleases?

A theological student in Drew Theological Seminary recently said to me, "Belief in miracles is pretty shaky just now." Why should this be so? Because the theologians are basing their teaching upon the theory of evolution. Men are not denying the story of the Virgin Birth of Christ on any historic evidence or because of any lack of moral integrity on the part of the historians, but to make their theology agree with their scientific theory.

Faith is breaking down, and a breaking down of faith is soon followed by a breaking down of morals. When a man loses faith in the Bible and the authority of Christ, he soon begins to set his own standard of morals. A student from Drew recently told me that he came across a group of students who were discussing theology in that institution, and one said he would not accept Paul's interpretation of Christ, he thought he could interpret Christ as well as Paul could. Another said 'Christ was only a personality, and I am a personality,' and so he thought he could set his own standards. The man who tells me these things also tells me that the morals of the students at Drew are breaking down, and that many are running to vile shows and not living up to the highest New Testament standard of life. Bishop Blake may try to make us believe that it does not make much difference what you believe so long as your life is good; but we all know very well that a good belief is the basis of a good life. We all know very well that since Modernism has become popular among ministers, there has been a tremendous slump in morals in the ministry.

About a year ago I was listening to a professor teaching a class of theological students, and when the doctrine of the Virgin Birth came up, one young man said, "To me it is a physical impossibility." Now, what do we know about physical impossibilities? Jesus Christ taught that with God all things are possible. Augustine said "that a miracle is not contrary to nature, but only that nature which is known to us." "The ordinary operations of nature," he says, "were they unfamiliar, would excite not less amazement, and are in reality not less wonderful, than miracles." If the Almighty God saw fit to bring his Son into the world by a miraculous birth, why should modern science try to put God into a strait-jacket, and say that he could not do it, or even that he would not? If God saw fit to attest the authority of his Son by means of miracles, what argument can there be against such a procedure? Jesus appealed to his works: "The works which the Father hath given me to finish, the same works that I do, bear witness of me, that the Father hath sent me." John 5:36. The Jews said to Christ, "If thou be the Christ, tell us plainly," and Jesus answered them, "I told you, and ye believed not: the works that I do in my Father's name, they bear witness of me." John 10:25. If Christ were born a natural birth and lived a natural life and performed no miracles, we would probably classify him with Confucius, Zoroaster, Buddha, and other such leaders of men just as Prof. William James actually does, calling these the Saviors of men.

Some one has said that one can be a Christian and an evolutionist if he is not much of either. Certainly, if any one believes in materialistic evolution as it is taught in many of our schools and universities, he will not be much of a Christian.

WHEN ALL ELSE FAILS.

MRS. JULIA A. SHELHAMER.

PERHAPS the greatest sorrow that could come to parents, is that of losing a child eternally. To know that the little darling God laid in your arms some years ago has fought against prayers and loving counsel and has dashed headlong into sin and finally into hell, is a grief beyond our ability to describe.

There are three thoughts I wish to emphasize in this chapter.

1. God willeth not the death of any, hence your child may be saved.

2. God is able. No matter how deep into sin one has gone, God can save, provided he can have the full co-operation of the child's will.

3. There are some prayers more easily answered than others. This is because there is little or no opposition in the form of antagonizing forces. God can more easily overpower all natural hindrances than he can a mind that is set against him. This is partly because Satan unites with a free moral agent to combat God. A simple little prayer will often bring an answer if it is for needed finances, health or some other material thing that can be answered without coming up against an obstinate mind. In the latter case prayer must be of a different nature. It must be prevailing, importunate, interceding. This will of course take more time than the other and will consume more strength, but it is necessary to the salvation of souls.

Importunate prayer often leads one to fast; and it is sometimes the case that if a person does not have a spirit of prayer for an unsaved one, a decision to fast and pray for that soul will bring that spirit of prayer which is so necessary to his salvation.

Dr. Chapman in his "Revival Sermons," says: "We have had days of prayer; I wonder how many of us have had nights of prayer. We have prayed minutes for our children. How many of us have prayed by the day for them?"

"Do you believe," said a young woman to me in the city of Boston, 'that if my mother and I should pray all night that my brother would be saved?' I said to her, 'If I were you I would pray all night if I were led to do it.' To my certain knowledge that brother had not been within four miles of the place of meeting. Before ten o'clock they were on their knees. At twelve o'clock they were praying, at three o'clock they were still crying out unto God, when the mother rose from her knees to say, 'I believe God will hear us;' and closed her eyes in sleep. I saw that young man the next evening stand in the great church and say that he had spent a sleepless night. I heard him say that he occupied a most important position in the city of Boston. He said, 'This morning, as the day was breaking, I gave myself to Jesus.' I think the story of the Shunamite is in the Old Testament that we might thus learn how to pray. 'As the Lord liveth and as thy soul liveth, I will not leave thee.'"

One evening my telephone bell rang. When I went to answer the call I heard a voice that seemed to me to be almost choked with emotion say, "Will you pray for me?" and I said, "Certainly, I will pray for you. But will you not meet me this evening at the close of the service?" I went to the service that night and at the close of the meeting there came up to me this man who had telephoned me. He said he occupied a responsible position as book-keeper in the city. He said, "My father is a minister, my mother is a sincere Christian. I have been feeling the power of their praying. I have felt a great sense of need in my soul, and when I heard the song this evening, 'O, mother, when I think of thee, 'tis but a step to Calvary,' I bowed my head and took Christ."

This young man may have been thus saved without much of a struggle, because he was truly penitent and had not resisted light as some have. But whether it is a long or short battle it will certainly pay to pray through and obtain the smile of God rather than lose the soul.

A Starless Crown.

"They that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament, and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars for ever and ever."

Never, for a moment, let us aim at anything less than "an abundant entrance into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ." The ambition for a starry crown—an "abundant entrance," is of the Holy Spirit, and should be cherished. With such inspirations were the apostles and holy martyrs fired. We are permitted to see much to encourage us. We are not without our conflicts. But conquests are seldom gained without previous conflicts. If Zion's foes are still, it is because her friends are idle. When the Lord works, Satan musters his forces to withstand. Of this we are aware; for we have been placed in circumstances when we were called to resist. But to the Christian warrior opposition is an incentive. Never has a battle been lost where a steady trust in Christ has been maintained. Those who are led into battle by following the Lamb, can never be overcome.

Authenticity and Inspiration of the Scriptures.

REV. Z. T. JOHNSON, A.M.

CHAPTER VI.

PROPHETICAL PROOF OF THE DIVINE INSPIRATION OF THE BIBLE.

WE have studied the prophecies concerning the Jewish nation; let us now turn to the prophecies concerning Christ. Surely, if we can find that prophecy and actual facts fit in so that they dovetail exactly together, we have an irrefutable argument for the inspiration of the Word. Let us see if they do thus coincide. We read in Isaiah 11:1 that Christ would be a Jew. "And there shall come forth a rod out of the stem of Jesse, and a Branch shall grow out of his roots." In Matthew 1:1, 16, we read, "The book of the generation of Jesus Christ, the son of David, the son of Abraham. And Jacob begat Joseph the husband of Mary, of whom was born Jesus, who is called Christ." We find in Isaiah 7:14 that he was to be born of a Virgin; "Therefore the Lord himself shall give you a sign: Behold a virgin shall conceive, and bear a son, and shall call his name Immanuel." In Matthew 1:18-25 we read, "Now the birth of Jesus Christ was on this wise: When as his mother Mary was espoused to Joseph, before they came together, she was found with child of the Holy Ghost. Then Joseph her husband, being a just man, and not willing to make her a public example, was minded to put her away privily. But while he thought on these things, behold, the angel of the Lord appeared unto him in a dream saying, Joseph, thou son of David, fear not to take unto thee Mary thy wife: for that which is conceived in her is of the Holy Ghost. And she shall bring forth a son, and thou shalt call his name Jesus: for he shall save his people from their sins. Now all this was done that it might be fulfilled which was spoken of the Lord by the prophet, saying, Behold, a virgin shall be with child, and shall bring forth a son, and they shall call his name Emmanuel; which being interpreted is, God with us. Then Joseph, being raised from sleep, did as the angel of the Lord had bidden him, and took unto him his wife; and knew her not till she had brought forth her firstborn son: and he called his name Jesus." In Micah 5:2 we read, "But thou, Bethlehem Ephratah, though thou be little among the thousands of Judah, yet out of thee shall he come forth unto Me that is to be ruler in Israel; whose goings forth have been of old, from everlasting." In Matthew 2:1-11 we find, "Now when Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judea, in the days of Herod the king, behold, there came wise men from the east to Jerusalem saying, Where is he that is born king of the Jews? For we have seen his star in the east, and are come to worship him. When Herod the king had heard these things, he was troubled, and all Jerusalem with him. And when he had gathered all the chief priests and scribes of the people together, he demanded where Christ should be born. And they said unto him, In Bethlehem of Judea; for thus it is written by the prophet; and thou Bethlehem, in the land of Juda, art not the least among the princes of Juda: for out of thee shall come a governor, that shall rule my people Israel. Then Herod when he had privily called the wise men, inquired of them diligently what time the star appeared. And he sent them to Bethlehem; and said, Go and search diligently for the young child; and when ye have found him, bring me word again, that I may come and worship him also. When they had heard the king, they departed: and, lo, the star, which they saw in the east, went before them, till it came and stood over where the young child was. When they saw the star, they rejoiced with exceeding great joy. And when they were come into the house, they saw the young child with Mary his mother, and fell down, and worshipped him: and when they had opened their treasures, they presented unto him gifts; gold, and frankincense, and myrrh." Zechariah 9:9 says, 'Rejoice greatly, O daughter of Jerusalem; behold, thy King cometh unto thee; he is just, and having salvation; lowly, and riding upon an ass, and upon a colt the foal of an ass.' Mark 11:7-11 records, "And they brought the colt to Jesus, and cast their garments on him; and he sat upon him. And many spread their garments in the way; and others cut down branches off the trees, and strawed them in the way; and they that went before, and they that followed cried, saying, Hosanna; Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord: Hosanna in the highest. And Jesus entered into Jerusalem and into the temple: and when he had looked round about upon all things, and now the eventide was come, he went out unto Bethany with the twelve." Zechariah 11:12, 13 prophesies, "And I said unto them, if ye think good, give me my price; and if not, forbear. So they weighed for my price thirty pieces of silver. And the Lord said unto me, Cast it unto the potter; a goodly price that I was prized at of them. And I took the thirty pieces of silver, and cast them to the potter in the house of the Lord." Matthew 27:3-7 finishes the

SPECIAL NOTICE!

It will be remembered by some of our readers that in our bill of editorial fare we promised to discuss the following question:

"Will the Opposition to the Old Methodist Doctrine of Sanctification and the Propaganda of Modern Liberalism in Methodism Make the Organization of Another Methodist Church a Necessity?"

When we made the above statement, we thought that one article would be sufficient for the discussion of the subject as far as we cared to go into it, but, thinking on the subject, we find it grows and calls for a series of articles which we are now preparing in the form of letters and will be commenced in The Herald along about the first of November. We have been so constantly grieved with revival work that it has been impossible for us to give the attention to this very serious matter in which we are in danger of being misunderstood that we are compelled to give it more time and thought that we had at first supposed.

Faithfully yours,
H. C. Morrison.

story, "Then Judas, which had betrayed him, when he saw that he was condemned, repented himself, and brought again the thirty pieces of silver to the chief priests and elders, saying, I have sinned, in that I have betrayed innocent blood. And they said what is that to us? see thou to that. And he cast down the pieces of silver in the temple, and departed, and went and hanged himself. And the chief priests took the silver pieces, and said, It is not lawful for to put them into the treasury, because it is the price of blood. And they took counsel, and bought with them the potter's field, to bury strangers in."

The prophets recorded how he was to die. Isaiah 50:6 says, "I gave my back to the smiters, and my cheeks to them that plucked off the hair: I hid my face from shame and spitting." Mark 14:65 records, "And some began to spit upon him, and to cover his face, and to buffet him, and to say unto him, Prophesy: and the servants did strike him with the palm of their hands." Isaiah 53:12, "Therefore will I divide him a portion with the great, and he shall divide the spoil with the strong; because he hath poured out his soul unto death; and he was numbered with the transgressors; and he bare the sin of many, and made intercession for the transgressors." Luke 23:32-34 records, "And there were also two other, malefactors, led with him to be put to death. And when they were come to the place, which is called Calvary, there they crucified him, and the male-factors, one on the right hand and the other on the left. Then said Jesus, Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do." Psalm 69:21 relates, "They gave me also gall for my meat; and in my thirst they gave me vinegar to drink." Mark 15:36 says, "And one ran and filled a sponge full of vinegar, and put it on a reed and gave him to drink." Psalm 22:18 prophesies, "They part my garments among them, and cast lots upon my vesture." John 19:23, 24 records, "Then the soldiers, when they had crucified Jesus, took his garments, and made four parts, to every soldier a part; and also his coat: now the coat was without a seam, woven from the top throughout. They said therefore among themselves, Let us not rend it, but cast lots for it, whose it shall be: that the Scripture might be fulfilled, which saith, They parted my raiment among them, and for my vesture they did cast lots. These things therefore the soldiers did." Psalm 22:1 gives this prophecy, "My God, My God, why hast thou forsaken me? why art thou so far from helping me, and from the words of my roaring?" Matt. 27:46 gives the incident, "And about the ninth hour Jesus cried with a loud voice, saying, Eli, Eli, lama, sabachthani? that is to say, My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?" Psalm 34:30 says there were to be none of his bones broken, "He keepeth all his bones: not one of them is broken." John 19:32 records, "Then came the soldiers, and brake the legs of the first, and of the other which was crucified with him. But when they came to Jesus, and saw that he was dead already, they brake not his legs. Zechariah 12:10 prophesies, "And I will pour upon the house of David, and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, the spirit of grace and supplications; and they shall look upon me whom they have pierced, and they shall mourn for him, as one mourneth for his only son, and shall be in bitterness for him, as one that is in bitterness for his firstborn." Psalm 22:16 says further, "For dogs have compassed me; the assembly of the wicked have inclosed me; they pierced my hands and feet." John 19:34 records, "But one of the soldiers with a spear pierced his side, and forthwith came thereout blood and water." Isaiah 53:9 says, "And he made his grave with the wicked, and with the rich in his death; because he had done no violence, neither was any deceit in his mouth." John 19:38, 41, 42 gives the occurrence, "And after this Joseph of Arimathea, being a disciple of Jesus, but secretly for fear of the Jews, besought Pilate that he might take the body of Jesus. Now, in the place where he was crucified there was a garden; and in the garden a new sepulchre, wherein was never man yet laid. There laid they Jesus therefore because of the Jews' preparation day; for the sepulchre was nigh at hand."

Prophecy and history have taken the witness stand. Side by side they have stood and have been questioned. History is a merciless revealer of facts; it bends not to the wishes of any man; nor to the creeds of any faith; but testifies of that which is true. Prophecy said these things that have been quoted, in many instances from five hundred to eight hundred years ahead of time, and it has been shown by the unswerving testimony of history that the prophets did not lie. There can be no stronger proof of the inspiration of the Word of God than these unquestioned fulfillments of the prophecies that were given by men of old who claimed that they spake only as they were moved by the Holy Ghost. Thank God for the Old Book that has stood the test of the ages, and has come out from under fire with a clean record that cannot be doubted.

(Continued)

But right is right, since God is God;
And right the day must win;
To doubt would be disloyalty.
To falter would be sin!

John Wesley Misrepresented.

REV. R. H. CLARK.

THE Pittsburgh Christian Advocate of June 30, publishes an article written by Bishop William F. Anderson, the title of which is, "Our Wesleyan Inheritance." He represents Wesley as being but little concerned about doctrine.

Rev. Sam Jones said: "You can prove anything by the Bible." Let me give you an example. "Judas went and hanged himself." "Go thou and do likewise." "What thou doest do quickly." I have proved, first, that Judas hanged himself; second, that you should do likewise; third, that you should do so quickly. Wesley did make some statements, which, when disconnected and disjointed prove the Bishop's contention. I regret that the Bishop followed this method to prove that Wesley was indifferent to doctrine.

Many years ago a man was being tried in a Magistrate's court for failure to work the road. The Prosecuting Attorney read from the Law Code, "Every man who is twenty-one years old but under fifty years of age, must work the road three days annually." "Now," said the attorney, "we can prove that the defendant failed to comply with this law." The defendant said, "Mr. Attorney, that is a large book to have no more in it than you have read. Read some more." The lawyer hesitated, but the defendant said, "Mr. Lawyer, I insist that you read the next paragraph." The lawyer reluctantly read, "But he must have three days notice." "Now," said the defendant, "I did not have three days notice." The Magistrate said, "The case is out of court." Read a little more of the sermon from which the Bishop quotes, and you will see the Bishop's case is out of court.

The devil said to Jesus: "If thou be the Son of God cast thyself down; for it is written he shall give his angels concerning thee." But Jesus said: "It is written again, thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God." The Bishop has given us what "Is written"; but he has not given what "is written again." Let us play fair with Wesley.

In Vol. I, of Wesley's Works we have his sermon: "Catholic Spirit." Wesley's text is 2 Kings 10:15. "And when he was departed thence, he lighted on Jehonadab the son of Recab coming to meet him. And he saluted him, and said to him, is thine heart right, as my heart is with thy heart? And Jehonadab answered, It is. If it be give me thine hand."

Mr. Wesley seems to have known that some statements in this sermon would be misrepresented and misunderstood. On page 433, Vol. I. Mr. Wesley says: "There is scarcely any expression which has been more grossly misunderstood, and more dangerously misapplied than this. But it will be easy for any who consider the preceding observations, to correct any such misapprehension of it, and to prevent any such misapplication."

"For, from hence we may learn, first, that a catholic spirit is not speculative latitudinarianism. It is not indifference to all opinions. This is the spawn of hell, not the offspring of heaven. This unsettledness of thought, this being 'driven to and fro, and tossed about with every wind of doctrine,' is a great curse not a blessing; an irreconcilable enemy, not a friend to true catholicism. A man of a truly catholic spirit has not now his religion to seek. He is fixed as the sun in his judgment concerning the main branches of Christian doctrine. It is true, he is always ready to hear and weigh whatsoever is offered against his principles. But as this does not show any wavering in his own mind, so neither does it occasion any. He does not halt between two opinions, nor vainly endeavor to blend them into one. Observe this, you who know not what spirit ye are of: who call yourselves men of a catholic spirit, only because you are of a muddy understanding: because your mind is all mist: because you have no settled consistent principles, but are for jumbling all opinions together. Be convinced, that you have quite missed your way: you know not where you are. You think you are got into the very spirit of Christ: when in truth you are nearer the spirit of antichrist. Go, first, learn the first elements of the gospel of Christ, and then shall you learn to be of a truly catholic spirit."

What tremendous, weighty words. The Bishop seems to have overlooked this part of the sermon.

Further quotations from Vol. I. Sermon, "Original Sin." Page 485. "Or to come back to the text, is every imagination of the heart evil continually? Allow this and you are so far a Christian. Deny it and you are a heathen still."

Page 349. Concerning hearing false prophets: "I can only say, if by experience you find hearing them hurts your soul, then hear them not: then quietly refrain, and hear those that profit you. If on the other hand you find it does not hurt your soul, you then may hear them still. Only take heed how you hear: beware of them and their doctrine. Hear with fear and trembling, lest you should be deceived, and be given up like them, to a strong delusion. As they continually mingle truth and lies, how easily you may take in both together? Hear with fervent continual prayer to him who alone teacheth man wisdom. And see that you bring whatever you hear to the law and to the testimony. Receive nothing untried, nothing until it is weighed in the balance of the sanctuary: believe nothing they say, unless it is clearly confirmed by plain passages of Holy Writ." Ponder these striking words. Jesus said, "Beware of false prophets." They are extremely dangerous; because they wear sheep's clothing. Let us be alarmed before it is too late to recover ourselves from the "snare of the devil."

Suffer a few quotations from, "Doctrinal Standards of Methodism," by Bishop Neely.

Page 75. "John Wesley's preaching and his writings were largely of a doctrinal character, and if we had nothing but his sermons, we would have a great and comprehensive body of divinity."

As Professor John A. Faulkner, of Drew Theological Seminary, has said of the Rev. John Wesley: "He was the greatest doctrinal preacher of the eighteenth century."

"The great mass of Wesley's sermons were decidedly doctrinal."

Page 74. "Not only did he preach and print doctrines, but he freely and forcefully entered into public controversies, and Wesley's opponents gave currency to his views in what they printed."

"Wesley always gave prominence to personal experience, spiritual life, and discipline, but he had constantly before him doctrine, doctrine first, and the basis of the others. His great care was doctrine."

As the Rev. West, D.D., of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, said of Wesley: "He preached doctrines. Mr. Wesley did more in refuting theological errors and in formulating and expounding the doctrines of the Bible than any one man of the centuries." Let us hope our leaders will do likewise.

Page 75. "As a matter of fact Wesley taught Scriptural doctrines, and demanded corresponding beliefs from his hearers, and his followers. With his hearers of all classes he reasoned: but with his followers, after reasoning, he commanded."

Page 81. "Wesley never meant, or tolerated, indifference to religious opinions, or churches, or Latitudinarianism in theology. He would not have men of all beliefs come into his ministry and conference, and he would not allow people to come into and remain in his societies, regardless of doctrinal views held and uttered." Bishop Anderson says: "Methodism is big enough and broad enough for men of all shades of opinions."

Page 85. "Thus Mr. Wesley and his followers, on the 20th of July, 1740, marched out of the Fetter Lane Society, in London, and permanently withdrew from that body because of doctrines therein taught, and against which he had strongly protested."

Page 86. "Mr. Wesley broke with his early and beloved friend, the Rev. George Whitefield, because Whitefield taught Calvinistic doctrines to which he was opposed."

Page 87. "In 1765, before his conference, he said: 'I have no more right to object to a man holding a different opinion from mine than I have to differ with him because he wears a wig and I wear my own hair: but if he takes his wig off and shakes the powder in my eyes, I shall consider it my duty to get quit of him as soon as possible.' It is easy to see why Wesley had such clear vision. Let our leaders take the hint."

"Wesley wrote an octavo volume, 522 pages, on the 'Doctrine of Original Sin; According to Scripture, Reason, and Experience', in answer to Doctor John Taylor, the noted Socinian Minister, who had written his 'Doctrine of Original Sin,' a subject at that time apparently more interesting than it seems to be to some in the present time."

In view of the foregoing facts, what are we to make of the Bishop's statement: "John Wesley was one of the most tolerant of men, but he found it difficult to be tolerant toward the waste of time and energy involved in fruitless theological discussions." If theological discussions are fruitless, Wesley wasted much time.

Is Bishop Neely right in the following conclusion, found on page 75? "For any one to assert that John Wesley was indifferent as to doctrines and that he put little stress on doctrinal matters, is to assert that which is absolutely untrue, and no well informed and candid student of the history will venture the assertion."

If the good Bishop is opposed to controversy, it will be well for him to refrain from giving occasion for it.

The Optimism of Premillennialism.

This very interesting book is just off the press. It is well bound, in unusually clear type, on good paper, and contains 147 pages. It is for sale by The Pentecostal Publishing Company, Louisville, Ky., for $1.00 the copy.

This book on an agitated subject presents the doctrine of the second coming of Christ in a rather new and striking way. We are sure it will be read with great interest. It is divided into eleven chapters with the following heads:

1. The Optimistic Outlook.
2. The Divine Objective.
3. The Divine Program.
4. Is the World Growing Better or Worse?
5. The Power of the Gospel.
6. The Fulfillment of Prophecy.
7. Concerning the Coming of Christ.
8. The Signs of Christ's Coming.
9. The Falling Away.
10. The Millennium.
11. Jesus is Coming Back to Earth.

Those who believe the teachings of the word of God on the second coming of Christ are accused of being pessimists when in fact they are the most optimistic people in the world. No people can have a brighter outlook for the world's future than those who believe that Jesus Christ will come and inaugurate a reign of perfect peace when we shall have a warless world. The Pre-Millennialist is, in the highest and best sense, a genuine optimist. Send and get this new book by Rev. H. C. Morrison and you will find it thoroughly interesting.

PENTECOSTAL PUBLISHING COMPANY,
Louisville, Ky.

REPORTS FROM SOUL WINNERS

AN ADVENTURE IN CHRISTIAN EDUCATION AND EVANGELISM.

Glyndon Grove is ten miles west of Springfield, O., on the old National Highway number one. This beautiful ten-acre lot of woodland is sprinkled with wonderful oak, elm, black cherry, hickory and cottonwood of some thirty years' growth. The shade is not so heavy however, so that there is a good mat of bluegrass carpeting the smooth level surface throughout. The Highway with its busy traffic is some forty-five rods distance retiring this beautiful spot in restful quiet. A country road passes the grove giving easy access to ample and convenient parking space for two hundred and fifty autos. A drilled well furnishes pure water for the thirsty traveler who comes hither. Birds and squirrels with their chatter abound throughout the grove.

Here five years ago the Western Ohio Holiness Association built a beautiful tabernacle seating about 1100. A splendid dining room with good kitchen and equipment was also added, together with an ample office building. These well proportioned buildings in white trimmed with green set well into the landscape, lending that attractiveness so often missed by the lovers of camp meeting life.

Glyndon Grove is easily accessible by good roads to a score of thriving Ohio cities; Cincinnati being 62 miles to the South, Middleton about 30 and Dayton about 18. Troy is 20 miles to the Northwest, Piqua about the same distance to the North. While Bellefontaine is 30 to the North, Delaware 50 to the Northeast, and Columbus 50 straight to the East. Springfield is just 10 miles East, and Xenia 20 miles Southeast. From every one of these centers people could get into a 10:30 morning service with less trouble than some folks have in going down town to buy a yeast-cake. The busses going east and west run by the camp forty-five rods away every half hour, and the Big Four and Pennsylvania Railroads come into Springfield from all parts of the State, with the very best of bus connection for the camp.

Glyndon Grove Camp Meeting was opened this year, July 21, under the auspices of the Western Ohio Holiness Association, assisted by Asbury College. The interdenominational spirit of good will in the services commended itself to all, several nearby ministers taking part, and bringing their people. One pastor brought his young people in several auto loads and was rewarded to find the altar services lined with his own folks seeking the Lord. So the camp grew in favor with God and man. The free dining-room laden with savory viands attracted the young and old, rich and poor. There was no murmuring nor complaining—not even about mosquitoes. (These birds were pleasantly absent.) Without trying to be exact, in the three special visitations by the Spirits power, there were some sixty seekers who prayed through to victory. The last Sunday night brought its fruitage with four or five hungry souls getting through. The workers this year were Professor M. V. Lewis, of Wilmore, Ky., and Miss Daisy Dean Gray, Dean of Asbury College, Department of Expression, for one week with the young people in a morning service. Dr. H. C. Morrison paid us a visit and preached three very wonderful sermons to the delight and edification of all. Tilden H. Gaddis, with his party of singers, was with us two days in most fruitful services. Several pastors visited the camp and generously loaned their assistance, making valuable contributions to its success. Professor Lewis was ably assisted in music by Brother and Sister Schell.

This camp has a future is the expressed and firm conviction of all who attended this year's services. A Glyndon Grove Interdenominational Holiness Camp Meeting Association was organized with representation from every known Evangelical denomination in Western Ohio. The new Board in its second meeting, called Dr. H. C. Morrison, Prof. M. V. Lewis, Tilden R. Gaddis and his party, together with the writer, for 1928 encampment. There is a plan by the Board to put on month-end evangelistic one and two-day meetings throughout the year in the various churches of Western Ohio. These meetings will be manned by the best evangelists and Christian workers. With the same spirit of unselfish good-will displayed in the Camp this year, these services have promise of growth and large usefulness. A summer school under the auspices of Asbury College Theological Seminary is in our plans for next July.

Memberships in the new Association at $1.00 a year are sought by the Board. All who are interested in spreading scriptural holiness, and are in sympathy with the interdenominational spirit of good-will to all people, are eligible to membership. (Let us have your membership card by return mail).

Reported by Rev. E. L. Eaton, Director of the Life Service Department, Asbury College, and George S. Bucher, Secretary of the Camp Meeting Association.

RED ROCK CAMP—MINNESOTA.

Friends of Red Rock Camp Meeting, just outside St. Paul, Minn., will rejoice to hear that this year's camp which closed July 10, will go down as a memorable year in Red Rock history. For some sixty years now, God has been meeting with his people on this sacred spot. He did not fail us this year, but came with a glorious visitation of divine power. Many of the saints had prayed earnestly for the encampment, and they went forth expecting God to answer. And God came and did more than we had asked or thought.

The workers were Rev. and Mrs. John Thomas, and Rev. T. M. Anderson, of Wilmore, Ky., and Rev.

Floyd Nixon was in charge of the music, and Mr. Skinner of Taylor University, presided at the piano. From the very first service to the close, a gracious spirit of unity prevailed, and it is not surprising at all that with such people of God as our leaders, the preaching and singing should be owned of God himself. The writer was present at almost every service, and does not, at this writing recall one service that was barren of visible fruit. Almost 300 seekers were definitely helped at the altar. We deem this the outstanding achievement of the camp. And where the spiritual blessing comes, financial matters are easily taken care of. Mr. W. P. Carr, Treas., of John Fletcher College, and the able treasurer also of the Red Rock Park Association, says that this year was the best year out of the eight that he has served. A debt was taken care of, and in all some $6,000 in cash and pledges was received.

Attendance this year was a marked improvement over last. More people stayed on the grounds. There were more preachers. More than a half dozen states were represented. Some from Canada were in attendance. The two Sundays of the camp and Monday, July 4th, were great days, when hundreds came from the Twin Cities and elsewhere.

The Asbury College Quartet was with us for a number of days. Likewise the Chicago Evangelistic Institute Trio, and the John Fletcher College Quartet. Dr. L. R. Akers, President of Asbury College, was with us for a few services; also Dr. J. L. Brasher, former President of John Fletcher College. All of the holiness schools had representatives on the grounds.

Dr. G. G. Vallentyne, of Minneapolis, continues as the much beloved president of the Association. Mr. A. P. Andrews again demonstrated his ability as Superintendent of Grounds. Surely the camp was wonderful. Eternity alone will reveal all that was accomplished. We give God all the glory.

Wallace G. Mikkelsen.

NORTH READING CAMP.

We have just closed what many think to be the greatest camp meeting ever held at North Reading Camp. The attendance was perhaps not as large as in former years on account of rain and cold, but the spirit was great and the results very satisfactory. A new twenty-room dormitory was completed in time for the opening and all camping facilities were taken and many turned away during the closing days of the camp.

Rev. George B. Kulp, Civil War veteran and prince of preachers, was greatly blessed of the Lord and preached with the unction and power of the Spirit, that made the saints rejoice and sent terror to the devil and his crowd. It is blessed to see how God is preserving the youth of this warrior of many battles and crowning his ministry with many souls in the fountain. Dr. James B. Chapman, Editor of Herald of Holiness, was indeed at his best, and preached to the great delight of all who heard him. Prof. C. C. Rinebarger was the director in song and soloist, and that means that the singing was good, but if the writer is to be the judge, the music was far ahead of the ordinary camp meeting singing.

Dr. Chapman was accompanied by Mrs. Chapman and the children, all of whom added much to the meeting, Misses Loise and Grace playing violin and saxophone, and Mr. Harold at the piano. With members of choir and orchestra from Malden, Lynn, Lowell, Somerville, Everett, Cambridge and Wollaston, and many other churches of the district, you would only expect just such singing and music as it was our privilege to enjoy.

Rev. H. V. Miller, District Superintendent, was in charge and from the first service labored day and night, with faith, patience and charity to make the meeting unprecedented in every way. There were more than one hundred and fifty who prayed through to definite victory at the altar. The climax was reached the closing day, July 4, Bro. Kulp preaching in the morning on, "Our Citizenship," and Dr. Chapman in the afternoon on, "The Second Coming of Christ." It would be difficult to describe the scenes of that day, with souls seeking the Lord at the altar throughout the day, some remaining at the altar until five o'clock the following morning.

The finances came easy, and the educational and missionary anniversaries were times of blessing and inspiration, especially the missionary address by Rev. A. H. Kauffman in the interest of our work in Palestine. Plans are going forward for a greater fall camp than ever, Sept. 2 to 5.

G. E. Waddle, Sec.

SEBRING CAMP MEETING.

The 1927 Sebring Camp Meeting has gone down in history as one of the best ever held since the camp's inception in 1905. It was characterized by a spirit of unity and prevailing prayer, and souls prayed through to reclamation, pardon or purity in almost every service. It was truly a blessed season of refreshing from the presence of the Lord.

There is no other camp like Sebring. It holds a unique position in the great Holiness Movement. The camp site—a beautiful grove of stately maples—surmounting an eminence originally known as Quaker Hill—was given by George E. Sebring to the cause of God to be held in trust by the Sebring Camp Meeting Association so long as it was used for the "spreading of scriptural holiness." During the past year the donor, Mr. Geo. E. Sebring, of Sebring, Fla., passed on to his reward, but his works are still following him. In recent years the burden and responsibility of the camp has largely fallen on the shoulders of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Murphy. They have given unstintingly of their time and money for the maintenance and growth of the camp, that God's people might have a place to come and feast, and hungry, needy souls might hear the good news of a full salvation.

The workers for this year were C. W. Ruth, Dr. H. C. Morrison, Joseph H. Smith, T. M. Anderson, Lawrence Reed and Prof. and Mrs. Kenneth Wells. The young people's services were under the direction of Mrs. Joseph H. Smith and Miss Janie Bradford. Children's services were conducted by Miss Grace Ruth, daughter of Evangelist Ruth. Many of the children and young people prayed through to a definite personal experience in these services, and it was felt that these meetings were highly profitable.

Rev. C. W. Ruth was the very efficient platform manager for the camp. He saw to it that the machinery of the camp kept running smoothly. All friction was avoided by giving the Holy Spirit the greatest freedom and by keeping on hands a good supply of the "oil of gladness" to lubricate the working parts. The preaching was of a very high order given in the power and demonstration of the Spirit and God saw to it that his word did not return unto him void.

The singing under the efficient leadership of Prof. Kenneth Wells, Director of Voice at Taylor University, was inspiring and uplifting. Two new Grand pianos were loaned to the camp by the Schoch Studio of Alliance and at these pianos presided two of the most wonderful evangelistic pianists in America, Miss Thelma Atkinson, of Upland, Ind., and Miss Edwina Wilson, of East Liverpool, Ohio.

There were many visiting preachers and singers whose presence added inspiration and blessing to the camp, and who in return found refreshing for their own souls. The scope and influence of the camp is broadened by the encouragement that is given to the various phases of the Holiness Movement. A welcome is extended to the representatives of the holiness schools and colleges, and subscriptions are taken for the various holiness papers and substantial financial support is given the Chinese Missionary work of the National Holiness Association.

Some idea of the far-reaching influence of the Sebring Camp Meeting may be had from a census which revealed the fact that 32 different denominations and 19 different states were represented in attendance of the camp this year. One thousand dollars was pledged for the enlargement and improvement of the Children's and Young People's Tabernacle. Plans are being made for even a better and bigger camp next year.

Kenneth Wells.

LEILA CHURCH GETS THE BENEFIT OF A POWERFUL REVIVAL.

On July 4th one of the great meetings, or tent revivals of the year closed with a very touching sermon and altar call, in which all the space was filled. Many souls were saved and salvation was a gift to many graciously in prayer at the altar.

This revival was on the pastoral charge of Rev. H. L. Pearson, of Norman Park, Ga., under the auspices of the Evangelical Methodist League, of Louisville, Ky., Cochran Brothers of Asbury College preaching. The eighteen days of this powerful work in the cause of Christianity will never be forgotten in the lives of those who attended, and we thank the preachers for their time and labor here, pray for their victory in their revival to follow in this beautiful work of bringing souls to God. About seventy were saved in this revival and eleven sanctified.

Victory For Oak Ridge.

Four miles out from Tifton, Ga., at the Methodist Church, closed one of the most victorious gospel tent meetings of the church's history. This wonderful work was under the auspices of the Evangelical League of Louisville, Ky., Cochran Brothers, of Asbury College, preaching.

The meeting closed after a fifteen-day run and was a spiritual refreshing for Christians; the convincing and convicting gospel sermons brought the power of the Holy Ghost which brought on a soul-saving feast at the altar. About sixty people were converted to God. The altar of prayer has been the outstanding beauty of the revival.

Tifton, Georgia.

The two-weeks' tent meeting started the first of June under the auspices of the Evangelical Methodist League of Louisville, Ky., Cochran Brothers, of Asbury College, preaching. From the beginning the gospel sermons were of depth and power, and the attendance grew better day by day.

Harp music and beautiful songs was one great feature. Misses Anna Quigg and Clarice Morford gave their time and talent in the gospel worship and were appreciated by all who heard them. Before these preachers came to us their efficiency was well known as they held a successful revival here last year and were called back to us again for their gospel power. Their Christian spirit, and influence make the sinner and erring realize they must depend upon a Being greater than one's self and greater than the world gives us. A movement was made to erect a tabernacle in time to hold a meeting next summer. Eighty souls were gloriously saved in this revival, and two sanctified.

They will carry their tent to Leila Church, four miles from Lenox, Ga., to hold their second revival at that place; their first work was at that church last summer.

Mrs. R. Hooks.

THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD

Published Weekly by
Pentecostal Publishing Company
523 So. First St., Louisville, Kentucky.

Six Months in Advance $.75
One Year in Advance 1.50
Foreign Countries 2.00

OUR CONTRIBUTORS

Rev. G. Whitefield Simonson	Rev. Len G. Broughton	Rev. Bud Robinson
Rev. O. G. Mingleford, D.D.	Rev. L. R. Akers, D.D.	Rev. Henry Ostrom
Rev. Richard W. Lewis, D.D.	Rev. G. W. Ridout, D.D.	Rev. C. M. Griffith
Rev. Andrew Johnson, D.D.	Rev. P. F. Asher, B.D.	Rev. J. H. Smith
Rev. C. F. Wimberly, D.D.	Rev. E. E. Shelhamer	Rev. C. W. Ruth
	Rev. J. B. Culpepper

CONCERNING SUBSCRIPTIONS

Subscription Discontinued When Time Is Out.
In ordering address changed give both OLD and NEW address. Write all names plainly with pen and ink or typewriter.
Notify us promptly of any irregularities in receiving your paper.
For distribution, to secure new subscribers, sample copies will be sent free on application.
Remit by Registered Letter, New York Exchange, Express, or Post Office Money Order.

(Continued from page 1)

over all. Those persons who have been baptized by the Holy Ghost are entirely safe from any of the shallow conceptions or false teachings of Unitarianism. They are fixed forever in their abiding faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. Those who have received the Holy Spirit have gotten such a revelation of Jesus that they have no trouble in believing in the Virgin Birth, the Godhead, the sinless life, the absolute truth of the teachings of Jesus and the atoning merit of his suffering, of his triumphant, bodily resurrection, and his existence and intercessions at the right hand of the Father, his power to forgive sins, to cleanse and sanctify souls. The baptism with the Holy Spirit is a tremendous epoch in the history of a child of God and wonderfully confirms and establishes the faith of those who receive him in his in-coming, cleansing, and abiding.

How wonderful it is that the third Person of the Trinity, One and equal with the Father, should come to abide, to comfort, illuminate, and empower the child of God for service. We can think of nothing more marvelous in the scheme of redemption than that God, from whom we were separated by sin, should separate us from sin through the merit of our blessed Lord and Savior and come to indwell us. With what diligence, humility, self-examination, and earnestness we should pray, wait, long for and receive the Holy Spirit, and having received him how humbly we should walk in obedience to his blessed guidance.

There is this that should be remembered carefully. The Holy Spirit will never guide us into any teaching or action out of harmony with the plain teachings of the Word of God. This should be a final test in all impressions and leadings and if we should be impressed or feel led to say or do anything that contradicts the Word of God, as taught in Old Testament and New Testament Scriptures, we must conclude at once that it is not the leading or impression of the Holy Spirit. He is always and absolutely true to the Scriptures and the teachings of Jesus.

In the Epistle to the Ephesians, from which we have selected our text, we find constant reference to the Holy Spirit, his presence and his holy offices in the Church of God and the individual child of God. It is in this Epistle that we learn that we are "sealed with the Holy Spirit of promise." It is here we are taught that through Christ we have "access by one Spirit unto the Father" and "are built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief cornerstone; in whom all the building fitly framed together groweth unto an holy temple in the Lord, in whom ye also are builded together for an habitation of God through the Spirit." Eph. 2:20, 21, 22. It is in this wonderful Epistle that the Apostle gives us a description of the result of the indwelling of the Holy Spirit, saying, "For the fruit of the Spirit is in all goodness and righteousness and truth, proving what is acceptable unto the Lord."

Immediately following the Text, in which we are commanded, "Be not drunk with wine, wherein is excess; but be filled with the Spirit," the Apostle goes on showing the result of such filling. He says, "Speaking to yourselves in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing and making melody in your hearts to the Lord, giving thanks always for all things unto God and the Father in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ." How blessed is such an experience. What more could we ask than that the great scheme of redemption provides for the forgiveness of all our transgressions, the cleansing away of all our unrighteousness, and the indwelling of the Holy Spirit to bear witness to the truth of God's Word, to the Deity and saving and sanctifying power of the Lord Jesus Christ? Then, let us see to it that we be filled with the Spirit, that we be intoxicated with the indwelling and empowering of the Holy Spirit, who shall bring into us the spirit of the Lord Jesus, who shall make us more and more like the blessed Christ, ever remembering that the spirit of Christ is the spirit of holy courage, that would bear witness to the truth and who knew it meant the cruelty of the Cross, and a spirit of forgiveness and pity that could pardon and pray for those who nailed him there. The indwelling of the Holy Spirit means that we shall become wonderfully Christlike in our absolute faith in the Eternal Father, his Word and blessedly submissive to his will, and, at the same time, greatly concerned for the salvation of the people, always bearing about with us an attitude of pity, humility and mercy and love, even for our enemies. O that we may know what it means to be filled with, comforted and empowered by, the indwelling of the Holy Spirit.

ONE OF MY GREAT DESIRES.

CHAPTER II.

I said something last week about my great desire to establish and build up the Theological Seminary at Asbury College.

Throughout the history of the church, a very large per cent. of those called of God to preach the Gospel have come from among the poor. Every church from the very early history of its organization has been compelled to give large assistance to the education of its ministry. No doubt this will always be so. A revival which has wrought graciously under God in this country for the past three or four decades, known as "The Holiness Movement," has contributed in a remarkable way to the increase and building up of a faithful and zealous ministry. It would be hard to calculate the host of young men who have been converted in the revivals, conventions, and camp meetings of the holiness people. Hundreds of them have been assisted more or less in their preparation for the ministry at the holiness schools. They have gone out through the world and belted the globe with their full Gospel message and their glad testimony.

There are, in the various holiness schools, now in this nation, a large number of young men preparing for the ministry. They are under good instruction. They are making fine preparation. They will count in the time to come in the gracious work of bringing a multitude of souls into the Kingdom of our Lord Jesus Christ. The thing in which I am deeply interested is the building up and making permanent the Theological Seminary at Asbury College. The school is well organized. It has an excellent faculty. We have one fine building. It has a number of classrooms, a beautiful chapel and dormitory space for a considerable body of young men. But we need much more room, a good, large loan fund, and an arrangement by which a number of these young men preparing for the ministry can do some work and, in this way, earn a part of their expenses. I am quite confident this can be done. I am praying about the matter. I want your prayers, I want you to join your faith with mine and I want your practical assistance in this very best of enterprises. This is a matter involving the salvation of souls, the saving of men from eternal darkness and the bringing of them into eternal life and glory with our blessed Master. What can we do better than to help in preparing and sending forth a consecrated, faithful, enthusiastic ministry to preach the Gospel to the perishing multitudes? To my mind, this is one of the greatest works and best tasks in which we can possibly engage.

Please join with me in prayer. Write me a letter. Ask me for some details of my plan. Promise a helping hand. Let's get busy and do something that will count for the glory of our Christ and the salvation of immortal souls for all time and eternity. I shall have more to say on this subject next week.

Faithfully, your brother,
H. C. MORRISON.

Central Holiness Camp Meeting.

THIS camp meeting covered July 28 to August 7, inclusive. The preachers were Rev. J. L. Brasher, D.D., of Alabama, the first few days of the meeting.

He gave us some great messages, and the people were greatly pleased with his soul-stirring sermons. Dr. C. F. Wimberly spent the last week of the meeting with us, and his ministry was with power and blessed in the salvation of many souls.

Rev. E. L. Griffey, of Irvine, Ky., preached us one powerful sermon. The writer preached seven times during the camp meeting. We were greatly blessed with the ministry of Rev. M. P. Hunt, a prominent Baptist minister from Louisville, Ky., who gave us three powerful messages which stirred the audience in a remarkable way. Brother Hunt related his story of the leading of the Lord up to a remarkably gracious baptism with the Holy Spirit received many years after he entered the ministry.

The song services were led by Rev. Harry Blackburn, of Milbank, S. D. We have never had any one at this famous camp who gave us more efficient service and won the confidence and love of our people more completely than did this old Asbury graduate of several years ago. Bro. Blackburn's wife attended him and rendered fine service in duet and solo work. Harry Blackburn is one of the greetest camp meeting singers in the country. Quite a number of visitors rendered excellent service in song.

Rev. L. E. Otter and wife had charge of the young people's services. The last few days Miss Florence Sleicher was present and rendered excellent service with the young people. We have never had young people's services, which were held in one of the large League tents, conducted with more excellent, helpful messages than this year. Sister Hoffman had charge of the children's work, which she guided with gracious success. Mrs. E. C. Wills and Miss Anna Laura Jones presided at the pianos and are noted for their ability as musicians.

The dining room and kitchen were, as usual, under the control and direction of the W. C. T. U., of Wilmore, and merited the praise of every one for the excellent meals and beautiful service they gave us. They had two of the old-time colored women and one colored man doing the cooking. We challenge the entire world to produce any better cooks than these old-time colored people who know just how to prepare the food, season it and dish it out to the hungry multitudes.

Brother C. A. Lovejoy, who has large experience, is secretary of the meeting and was assisted most efficiently by Prof. J. B. Kenyon. Brother O. C. Garvey and wife have contributed much to the success of the camp by their devoted interest in beautifying the grounds, and the care of the dormitories for women. Mrs. Wyatt, who has charge of the dormitory for men, looked carefully after the comfort of the hosts of preachers and laymen who came and went during the meeting. Rev. J. W. Hughes, D.D., who was the principal agent in founding this encampment, pronounced this one of the best in its history.

At one time by actual count, there were ninety-two preachers representing many denominations in the audience. Not less than 125 ministers of the gospel attended the camp during the meeting, many of them taking an active part in working in the congregation and about the altar. Bro. May, Bro. Humphrey, A. P. Jones, Bro. Savage and Bro. Wills, with others, rendered faithful service in conducting the prayer and praise meetings. Our pastor, O. C. Seevers, was present at almost every service and endeared himself to us all, ever ready to perform valuable service in announcements, song, prayers, altar work and in every way giving help and inspiration to the gracious work of salvation.

A large number were at the altar and most of all of them prayed through to victory. Dr. Wimberly preached the closing sermon to a great audience and not less than twenty-five, smitten with old-time conviction, came forward for prayer; all but a very few, found the Lord in gracious mercy and salvation.

Considerable money was raised for expenses, brotherly love prevailed, and we have never seen better order at any place of worship in all of our lives. The outlook for growth and blessing of Central Holiness Camp Meeting has never been better. Rev. L. L. Pickett was with us from first to last and delivered one address on the Anti-christ. We used Bro. Pickett's last song book, and I have never seen a better for camp meeting work. It has old songs, new songs, and good songs. We are looking forward with faith and enthusiasm for the encampment for the year 1928 covering the last Sunday in July and first Sunday in August.

H. C. MORRISON.

Pleased With The Idea.

Dear Dr. Morrison:—

I read with interest your editorial headed "One of my great desires," in which you speak of your purpose to enlarge and make permanent the Theological Seminary of Asbury College. I shall be very glad to hear more of your plans for this great and needed work. I know of nothing to which I could contribute more gladly than to the education of spiritual young men to preach the full gospel of our Lord Jesus.

I cannot make a large contribution, but I shall certainly be very glad to contribute all I can of my income to the work of which you speak. It has been my privilege to hear a number of young men from Asbury College preach the gospel and have been impressed with the earnest manner in which they deliver the message of the Lord. I shall watch THE HERALD with interest for what you have to say. A READER OF THE HERALD.

BUT LEAVES ONLY.

MRS. H. C. MORRISON.

JESUS had been to Bethany to spend the night with his friends, Mary, Martha and Lazarus, and in the morning as he returned to the city, he hungered, and when he saw a fig tree he sought for fruit to satiate his hunger, but alas, he found on it "but leaves only."

We do not know but what this barren fig tree, or rather this fruitless fig tree, represents a class of people who appear well at a distance, but on close inspection, will be found sadly lacking in the true and substantial elements of real character. Doubtless this tree had fooled many passers-by, with its beautiful foliage, but when the real value was sought, it was deficient. There are many people who live to make themselves attractive to the passers-by; they think if they can gain the attention of the world, their cup of joy will be full, but how empty and unsatisfying are such returns.

Then, too, we have persons who have identified themselves with the church, who are mere wall-flowers; they never contribute anything to the real growth and life of the church, but occasionally fill a small space in one of the pews, decorated with the most gaudy apparel and costly plumage they can afford, and sometimes cannot afford, hoping to attract the attention of those who should be assembled for the worship of God. Yes, such persons are full of the beautiful leaves of the world's adornment, but where is the fruit that should grow on the Christian tree? Where is that for which this hungry old world is longing and looking to the church of Jesus Christ to give? Just as the rank growth of the leaves saps the strength of the tree and makes it unable to bear fruit, so the deep-seated growth of worldliness saps the strength from that which develops the spiritual life and the one who should be a tower of strength in the cause of Christ, is rendered powerless to produce any fruit for the Master with which to feed this famishing world.

SHOWY CHRISTIANS.

Do any of our readers remember to have come across any of these "showy" Christians? Those who, when they start to church on Sunday morning, seem to be more on dress parade, than going to the house of God? Well, these are human (fig-ures) fig trees which appear beautiful from a distance but in their branches are jewels of gold and costly apparel, instead of the fruits of righteousness which the Master is seeking for in the lives of his followers. We are told, as children of the King, to be adorned with good works, which becometh women professing godliness. It was Lord Bacon who said, "Woman least adorned, was most adorned," but it seems in these days of craze after fashion, that we could more consistently say, "Woman in fashion's hideous garb" is most admired (by the world), but when a true woman is sought, the one in gaudy attire and shameless face is not considered for one moment. When we see how unsightly some of our sex appear on the street, and how they seem to be a walking temptation to the passers-by, we are almost ashamed that we are sisters by creation, and want to hie away that we might blush for them.

We talk about the need of revivals, but it seems to us we are in sore need of a revival of common sense, womanly modesty, and ideals above those of the fashion plate, among the female portion of our civilization. It is no wonder that we have so few homes in this our day, when the shallow-brained, street-gadding, midnight-roving, half-dressed misses of today are to be the mothers of tomorrow. It was said of France once, that she needed mothers, and so it may as truly be said of America, only with more emphasis. We hear it often said that the country needs men, but there have to be mothers lest we lack true men. A generation of mothers of the Susanna Wesley type, who feel their highest duty on earth is to train their children in the paths of rectitude and right, would mean a revolution in this or any other country. There is no higher calling, than that of shaping the destiny of immortal souls committed to our care, and we would whisper into the ears of the honest-souled, true-hearted mothers who may chance to read these lines, be true to your trust in training your children for God and a life of usefulness, and after while when the final balances are made, you will be surprised at the many sheaves which will be laid at the Master's feet, to your account, because you acted a true mother's part.

The World Says—

REV. W. E. HARRISON.

The World says, "Do or you will be done." The Bible says, "Do as you would be done by."

The World says, "Stand up for your rights."

The Bible says, "If any man sue thee at the law and take away thy coat let him have thy cloak also."

The World says, "When in Rome, do as Rome does."

The Bible says, "Prove all things, hold fast that which is good."

The World says, "Choose the lesser of two evils."

The Bible says, "Abhor that which is evil, cleave to that which is good."

The World says, "The end justifies the means."

The Bible says, "Shall we continue in sin that grace may abound? God forbid."

The World says, "Every fellow for himself."

The Bible says, "Bear ye one another's burdens."

The World says, "Treat every man as a rascal till you find he is not."

The Bible says, "Love hopeth all things."

The World says, "Tit for tat, you kill my dog and I will kill your cat."

The Bible says, "Return good for evil."

The World says, "Get all you can and can all you get."

The Bible says, "Lay not up for yourselves riches."

The World says, "Honesty is the best policy."

The Bible says, "Thou shalt not steal. Thieves shall not enter the kingdom of heaven."

The World says, "Sunday is a holiday."

The Bible says, "Sunday is a holy day."

The World says, "Self-preservation is the first law of life."

The Bible says, "He that saveth his life shall lose it. He that loseth his life shall save it."

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS

Dear Aunt Bettie: I am going to write about our opportunities. Sometimes we do not appreciate the duties of our lives as opportunities for greater usefulness in our after life. Some people complain that the cause why they are not in positions of larger usefulness was because they had no schooling or helps when young. There was a boy who lived where there were no schools as we have now and while his brothers went to the war or worked on the farm he was set to care for the sheep. He led them where the green grass was best, the water clear and still, not in rushing torrents, a rod to fight off the lions and bears and a sling to practice throwing stones. He could write of all the things he could see, the sun, moon, stars, trees, flowers. He could play on a harp and sing of God and compare his work to God's care to him, and whatever his work he did it well. So well did he become in practice that he could throw a stone and hit a giant in the head and knock him down and take the sword from him and cut off his head and deliver his country from the army of the enemy. When the king wanted a man to play the harp there could be none found so good as he, and the king took him into his home to furnish his music. Little did he know that the amusements of his spare moments in his boyhood would bring him to a king's palace, or a victory over the enemy of his country. May we all, whether we work or play, do all we do for God and our fellowmen. Will some of the boys and girls tell us the name of this boy and the book where we read of him and his comparison of his life and work to God's care for his children? Dear boys and girls, may we all use the opportunities we have while young in such a way that they may bring us to the best of life for us and realize that a loving Father has a plan for our life for our good and his glory. We cannot know what is in store for us in this life, but if we fulfill our duties here we will be sure of a place in his heavenly kingdom in the life everlasting. With love to Aunt Bettie and The Herald cousins I am yours for life eternal.

Mary Hudson.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Here are eight of the sweetest little girls that I know of that are writing you, and they are so anxious to see their letters in print. I have been trying to train them up for the Lord but will have to give up the work on account of my health, so please pray for them that they may have another matron that will take up the work and lead them on. Would be glad to see these letters in print together. Mrs. L. C. Chambers. Matron Pennebaker Home for Girls, Harrodsburg, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: How are all the cousins? May I join your happy band of boys and girls? The Matron takes The Herald and I enjoy reading the letters on page ten. I am twelve years old. Have I a twin? I have three sisters but one is dead. I have heard Brother Morrison preach at Harrodsburg, Ky. I like to hear him. I am saved. I live at the Pennebaker Home for Girls at Shakertown, Ky. I want to be a school teacher when I get big. I go to the Methodist Church at Harrodsburg. This is my first letter to The Herald. My birthday is March 30. Will you pray for the Matron because she is in bad health? My favorite verse is John 3:16. I live on a farm. I have a hen and chickens. I want to work hard and get back to my studies just as soon as I can.

Vivian Mearl Bland.
Rt. 1, Harrodsburg, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: May I join your happy band of boys and girls? This is my first letter. We take The Herald and I enjoy reading page ten. I go to the Methodist Church at Harrodsburg. I have heard Dr. Morrison preach there. I love Jesus and am trying to live for him. I live at the Pennebaker Home for Girls at Shakertown, Ky. I go to school in the home and I like it. I am twelve years old. I go to Sunday school every Sunday I can. I have been reading The Herald for only a few months and enjoy reading it, especially page ten. How are you cousins? Are all you cousins Christians? Best wishes to The Herald friends.

Lillian Pearl Bland.
Harrodsburg, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I am a little girl who lives at the Pennebaker Home for Girls at Shakertown, Ky. The Matron takes The Herald and I enjoy page ten very much. I have heard Brother Morrison preach at the Methodist Church in Harrodsburg. Aunt Bettie, I want you to pray for me so I will be ready when the judgment comes. I want you cousins to answer my letter. I live on the farm.

Mabel Quinn.
Rt. 1, Harrodsburg, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Here I come; look out so I won't scare you, for I believe I am a stranger among you cousins. This is the first time I have ever written to The Herald. I live at the Pennebaker Home for Girls at Shakertown. I have been saved but I haven't been sanctified. I love Jesus with all my heart and I am trying to live a Christian life. When I grow up I want to be a missionary, so will you pray for me. I am so glad that I chose Jesus for my Savior because life has been so happy. I go to the Baptist Church at Harrodsburg. The house-mother takes The Herald and I enjoy reading page ten. If any one will write to me I will be very glad to answer all letters received.

Valeria Ransdell.
Rt. 1, Harrodsburg, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: May I join your happy band of boys and girls? This is my first letter to The Herald, and I hope to see it in print. I live at the Pennebaker Home for Girls at Shakertown, Ky. I have been saved but not sanctified. The matron takes The Herald and I enjoy page ten. I want you and the cousins to pray for me. I enjoy reading the letters. I am ten years old. I go to the Baptist Church in Harrodsburg, but I am not a member. I would not give all the Christian influence my matron taught for all the society. I have heard Brother Morrison preach at the Methodist Church in Harrodsburg. We have family prayer together. I hope Mr. W. B. won't be there.

Mamie Gibbs.
Rt. 1, Harrodsburg, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you move over and let a little orphan girl join your happy band of boys and girls? The matron takes The Herald and I enjoy reading page ten. I am going to be a kindergarten teacher. I go to the Methodist Church in Harrodsburg. I have heard Brother Morrison preach and I like to hear him. I was converted in my home. I have the love of Jesus in my soul. Pray for me so that when the judgment comes I may be placed with the saved on the right hand of God. Dear cousins, write to me and I will answer all letters received. I live at the Pennebaker Home for Girls at Shakertown.

Velma Newberry.
Rt. 1, Harrodsburg, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I am very glad to join your happy band of boys and girls. My house-mother takes The Pentecostal Herald. I read page ten and I enjoy it very much. I am eleven years old and trying to live for Jesus. I live at the Pennebaker Home for Girls at Shakertown. I am saved but not sanctified. Pray for me that I may live for Jesus. Pray for my house-mother for she is in bad health. I want to be a nurse when I get grown. I love to think about Jesus. My favorite scripture is John 3:16.

Margaret Messman.
Rt. 1, Harrodsburg, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Would you and the cousins move over a little and let me talk with you a while? As this is first letter to The Herald I would like to see it in print. I live at the Pennebaker Home for Girls at Shakertown, Ky. My matron takes The Herald and I enjoy reading page ten.

I am saved but not sanctified. I want you to pray for me. I try to live as Jesus would have me to. I attend Sunday school at the Baptist Church every Sunday I can. I heard Brother Morrison preach at Harrodsburg, Ky. I like him fine. I think it would be better to tell more about our Christian life than describing ourselves. Man looketh on the outward appearance but the Lord looketh on the heart. My matron is in bad health. Will you please pray for her that God will restore her to health. I would love to hear from any of the cousins. I will try to answer all letters received. I will be watching for my letter in The Herald.

Josie Kátheleene Bader.
Rt. 1, Harrodsburg, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Here comes a Georgia Cracker if I'm permitted to enter your happy band. Say, wake up, Georgia boys and girls! I scarcely ever see any of your letters in print. It makes me feel like a stranger to see letters from all the states except Georgia. Now please let me see some in the next issue of The Herald. I'm a girl thirteen years of age. But anyway, I go to school and I'm in the seventh grade. I take music and have just stopped taking expression. I'm a lover of nature and music. I could sit for hours just hearing beautiful music. And I'd be content. In our small town there has been a revival. I was converted and joined the Methodist Church. Many lost souls found Jesus. Thank God, I found him too. Bro. Dunaway and song evangelist, Miss Anna Budman, conducted the meeting which lasted two weeks. Every one hated so much to see them leave. There's where I became acquainted with The Herald. I read it lots, and think it is a good paper. I say my prayers every night now and read two or three chapters in the Bible. Must say good-bye. Everybody write me and I'll assure you an answer.

Emma Jane Spink.
Austell, Ga.

Dear Aunt Bettie: May I join your happy band of boys and girls? I am fourteen years old and am a Junior in high school. I am five feet, seven inches tall, have dark brown hair and eyes, and weigh 130 pounds. I go to the Nazarene Sunday school and my pastor's name is Rev. John Croft. We all like him fine. Who is my twin? My birthday is December 4. I will be glad to hear from some of the cousins and will answer all letters I receive. I hope Mr. W. B. is out for a hike when my letter arrives.

Mabel Band.
Rt. 4, Moscow, Idaho.

Dear Aunt Bettie: My birthday was July 12 and I was 13 years of age. I promised God that if he would help me pass the common school examination I would tell about it in the paper so he did. He helped me make an average of 89.5-6. I live on the farm and have one sister and one brother. My father takes The Pentecostal Herald. My mother gets God's Revivalist. My sister takes The Christian Home Magazine, and my brother and I get a little magazine named Everyland. I would like to hear from a Christian girl my age.

Ruby Sanford.
RFD, Clements, Kan.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Please move over and let a Kentucky girl join your happy band of boys and girls. This is my first letter to The Herald, so please put it in. I enjoy reading page ten. I am sixteen years of age, have brown hair, brown eyes, and fair complexion. I was saved a year ago under Rev. J. J. Smith. He is a fine preacher and loved by every one. I belong to the Methodist Church at Carrsville, Ky. We have prayer meetings every Sunday night at Thompson Chapel. I thank Brother Smith for helping me to find God.

Katie E. Johnson.
Smithland, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you move over and let a little girl nine years old join your happy circle of boys and girls? I have blue eyes, blond hair, fair complexion, and am three feet, six inches high. We do not take The Pentecostal Herald but my aunt does and we get it from her. I love to go to school and am in the fifth grade. How many of you cousins are Chris-

Gospel Tents

Smith Manufacturing Company.
DALTON, GA.
22 Years in Business

J. H. DICKEY
of

BARRETT, ROBINSON & DICKEY

General Insurance—Bonds, etc., solicits your patronage.

7th Floor, Columbia Bldg.
Louisville, Ky.

200 Sheets 100 Envelopes

PERSONAL STATIONERY

High Grade White Bond Paper, size 5½ x 7 inches, with envelopes to match. Every sheet and envelope printed in black type up to 4 lines, with your name, business, and address.

This Stationery also makes an IDEAL GIFT. Shipment within 10 days after receipt of order. ORDER NOW!

Pentecostal Pub. Co.,
Louisville, Ky.

Gentlemen: Enclose please find $1.00 for which send me postpaid, a box of your Personal Stationery consisting of 200 sheets of Paper and 100 Envelopes printed as follows:

To avoid errors write or print clearly tians? I am. Cousins, how many of you have read the book, "Beautiful Girlhood?" I have read part of it, and sure do like it. Who can guess my middle name? It begins with S and ends with E and has five letters in it. Rose Lancaster, I sure agree with you about giving to the poor.

Ruby S. Holbrooks.
Rt. 2, Comanche, Tex.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Thanks for printing my other letter in The Herald sometime ago. Philip M. Smith. I received your birthday greeting which has helped me greatly. I'm a sister of Rose Lancaster. I look so much like her that people are often mistaken and call me Rose. Well, as you cousins cannot guess my middle name I had might as well tell you what it is. It begins with A and ends with A, which is Amanda. I have kept you cousins guessing so long and as you have not guessed it you need not now. As Mr. W. B. might get a curl of my hair (roots and all) I had better bring this to a close and leave space for some one else to add a line.

Mary Lancaster.
Somerset, Pa.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you allow a little Kentucky girl to join your happy band of boys and girls? This is my first letter to The Herald and I hope to see it in print. I am twelve years old and will be a freshman in high school here. We have been having a revival. Two young ladies from Louisville were here and several of my girl friends found Jesus. I belong to the Methodist Church. I hope I am received in your number and will hear from many of the cousins. My mother takes The Pentecostal Herald and I do enjoy reading the letters from the boys and girls.

Grace Pauline Haddix.
Quicksand, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I have just finished reading page ten in The Herald, I enjoy it very much. I was fifteen years old, June 19. My hair is a light brown, my eyes gray, my complexion fair, I weigh about 99 pounds. I go to Sunday school every Sunday I am able and intend to go to Epworth League when it begins this fall. I heard Billie Sunday this spring and thought him very good. I am going into my second year at high school. Katherine Hill, I guess your name to be either Georgia or Virginia. Am I right? Thelma Smith, I guess yours to be Amy. My middle name sounds like another name for "Jolly." Who can guess it? I wish some of you cousins would write to me and tell me about yourselves.

Katherine Worth.
1322 N. 5th St., Geneva, Ill.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a Kentucky girl join your happy band of boys and girls? I am ten years old and go to the Baptist Sunday school. I am in the fifth grade; our school began July 25. My grandma takes The Herald. I enjoy reading page ten very much. There is a missionary in China that has been writing to us; in one letter he sent us the kitchen god that the Chinese worship. His letters sure are interesting. Wake up, Kentucky boys and girls, you are letting the other States get ahead of you. Who has my birthday, September 21?

Helen Henry,
Index, Ky.

THE EVANGELISTIC CONFERENCE AT JUNALUSKA.

The program of the Evangelistic Conference to be held at Junaluska, N. C., August 21st to 26th is before me. It offers a most interesting bill of fare. We are publishing the same below. I shall be engaged in camp meetings during the progress of this conference and for that reason will not be able to attend. May the Lord graciously bless the brethren.

H. C. M.

Sunday, August 21.

11:00 A. M.—Sermon, Bishop Edwin D. Mouzon, Charlotte, N. C.

8:00 P. M.—Sermon, Dr. Arthur J. Moore, Birmingham, Ala.

Monday, August 22.

Subject: Our Need of a Revival.

9:00 A. M.—Devotional, led by Dr. Luther Bridgers, Gainesville, Ga.

9:30 A. M.—Our Need—as seen by one of our bishops, Bishop E. D. Mouzon.

10:15 A. M.—Our Need—as seen by one of our pastors, Dr. Robert E. Goodrich, Shreveport, La.

11:00 A. M.—Our Need—as seen by one of our evangelists, Dr. Burke Culpepper, Memphis, Tenn.

11:45 A. M.—Our Need—as seen by one of our laymen, Mr. O. B. Andrews, Chattanooga, Tenn.

Monday Afternoon.

3:00 P. M.—School of Methods: "The Opportunity of the Evangelist in the Coming Revival." Rev. L. J. Miller, Nashville, Tenn. This address will be followed by a round-table discussion of the subject.

Monday Night.

8:00 P. M.—Sermon, Dr. Arthur J. Moore, Birmingham, Ala.

Tuesday, August 23.

Subject: Preparation.

9:00 A. M.—Devotional, led by Dr. Lovick P. Law, Siloam Springs, Ark.

9:30 A. M.—Preparing for the Revival—"The Motive," Dr. Harry M. North, Wilmington, N. C.

10:15 A. M.—Preparing for the Revival—"The Means," Dr. Walt Holcomb, Tampa, Fla.

11:00 A. M.—"Methodism and Revivals," Dr. L. R. Akers, Wilmore, Ky.

Tuesday Afternoon.

3:00 P. M.—School of Methods: "The Opportunity of the Pastor in the Coming Revival," Dr. Arthur J. Moore, Birmingham, Ala.

This address will be followed by a round-table discussion of the subject.

Tuesday Night.

8:00 P. M.—Sermon, Dr. Charles L. Goodell, New York City, N. Y.

Wednesday, August 24.

Subject: Methods.

9:00 A. M.—Devotional, led by Rev. J. W. Carter, Lexington, Ky.

9:30 A. M.—Mobilizing the different groups—Church and Community—"The Whole Church Engaged," Dr. R. L. Russell, Atlanta, Ga.

10:15 A. M.—"How to Reach the Unchurched," Dr. Thurston B. Price, Lake Junaluska, N. C.

11:00 A. M.—Sermon, Dr. Charles L. Goodell, New York City, N. Y.

Wednesday Afternoon.

3:00 P. M.—Schools of Methods: "Getting Results," Rev. Henry W. Bromley, Cynthiana, Ky.

This address will be followed by a round-table discussion of the subject.

Wednesday Night.

8:00 P. M.—Sermon, Dr. John A. Hutton.

Thursday, August 25.

Subject: Conservation.

9:00 A. M.—Devotional, led by Rev. John B. Andrews, Siloam Springs, Ark.

9:30 A. M.—Conserving the Results: "After the Revival—What?" Dr. Luther Bridgers, Gainesville, Ga.

10:15 A. M.—"Shepherding the Flock," Dr. J. W. Perry, Nashville, Tenn.

11:00 A. M.—Sermon, Dr. John A. Hutton.

Thursday Afternoon.

3:00 P. M.—School of Methods: "Relating the Revival to the Whole Progress of the Church," Dr. W. G. Cram, Nashville, Tenn.

This address will be followed by a round-table discussion of the subject.

Thursday Night.

8:00 P. M.—Sermon, Dr. Charles L. Goodell, New York City, N. Y.

Friday, August 26.

Subject: Consecration.

9:00 A. M.—Devotional, led by Rev. W. M. McIntosh, Columbus, Miss.

9:30 A. M.—"The Preacher and Prayer," Dr. Andrew Johnson, Wilmore, Ky.

10:15 A. M.—"The Preacher and His Devotional Reading," Dr. William F. Quillian, Macon, Ga.

11:00 A. M.—"The Preacher: A Man Sent from God," Bishop U. V. W. Darlington, Huntington, W. Va.

11:45 A. M.—"The Preacher and His Equipment," Dr. Arthur J. Moore, Birmingham, Ala. Consecration Service.

The music of the Conference will be in charge of the song leaders of our Church who are approved by the Committee on Evangelism.

On August 19 all railroads in the Southeastern Passenger Association except the Florida East Coast, Atlantic Coast Line, and Clinchfield, will sell round-trip tickets for one fare plus one dollar.

Arrangements are made for the entertainment of guests at the hotels including the Assembly fee for the six days of the Conference at $15.

HOW OLD ARE YOU?

How old you say? You ask how old? I pray you friend, be not so bold; I am not old, and shall not be, Not in time nor eternity.

O yes, 'tis true, my coat and shoes, Their shing lustre soon will lose, My eyes wax dim—my hair turn gray, This well-wrought frame sometime decay;

But I, dear friend, please hear the truth— Shall ever have the bloom of youth. The years may come, the years may go,

But I each year shall younger grow, For I have found a secret, dear, Which drives away my every fear:

My life is hid with Christ in God, Because I trust the Living Word.

W. A. Van Gundy.
Wellington, Kan.

WHAT'S IN A BOOK?

CONDUCTED BY

REV. Z. T. JOHNSON, A. B., B. O., M. A.

How Jesus Won Men, by L. R. Scarborough, D.D. $2.00.

The evangelistic methods of Jesus made him the pre-eminent evangelist of all times. He found opportunity to win souls no matter where he went. In the synagogues, on the streets, by the seaside, in the fields, in the homes he visited, in the cemeteries, on the ships, among all classes of people, this Model Evangelist was at his task of bringing men to the Father.

Dr. Scarborough gives a study of the evangelistic methods of Jesus, and in this book shows him to be the pattern for us today. In the 290 pages he discusses the vital points of soul-winning. Some of the most suggestive of the 28 chapters are: "My Creed Concerning Christ"; "Jesus Starts a School of Evangelism"; "Evangelism By Spiritual Radio"; "Soul-Winning in a Cemetery"; "Jesus Won Where Others Failed"; "The Seeking Element in Evangelism"; "The Master Motive in Evangelism"; "Jesus Our Model in Intercession."

Every pastor and evangelist would profit by a careful reading of this splendid presentation of the Master as a personal soul-winner.

101 Hymn Stories, by Carl F. Price. $1.00.

The title of this volume almost explains it. The stories are ones that center around the author and beginning of the hymns, or that tell how the hymns have affected various people through the years. In most instances the history of the hymn is told in a brief manner.

There are 109 pages in the book. It is a neat little volume. Such hymns as, "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross," "Nearer, My God to Thee," "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," that is, those that have stood out prominently as the leading hymns of the centuries are the ones treated.

The book is valuable for illustrative material; for historical data about the hymns; and for inspirational use. When I began to read it, it set me to singing at my desk.

Sermons on New Testament Characters, by Rev. Clovis G. Chappell, D.D. $1.60.

Dr. Chappell's books are proving to be "best sellers" today in the religious world. This one is in its fourth edition, and is still going strong. In looking over his books I have tried to find the reason for this great popularity. I have at least found some suggestions for it.

The language is very simple and delightfully pure. There are few big words used. The sentences are likewise simple; practically none of them are complicated. They are rather like the staccato beats of a trip hammer. There is a suggestiveness in the thoughts that appeals. Imagination and illustration are used effectively. The sermons are all short; he knows how to say what he wants to say—and then sit down.

This book deals with New Testament characters. The titles of the chapters suggest the nature of the sermons. There are sixteen characters treated. Some of the best discussions are on the following: "The Evangelist—Philip"; "The Deserter—Demas"; "White Feathers—Mark"; "A Noble Boast—Paul"; "The Giver—Peter"; "The Drudge—The Elder Son"; "The Dying Fire—Timothy."

Days of the Son of Man, by W. M. Mackay, D.D. $2.00.

Scotland is known as the land that produces preachers. There is something about the rugged life of that country which seems to produce men, rugged men, fit for the gigantic task of preaching. Dr. Mackay preaches in Glasgow. His sermons have an element of strength that make them worth while.

The emphasis should be on the word, "Days" in the title. This is a series of twenty sermons on the special days in the church calendar. While the direct aim of the book is to provide sermons for these special occasions, yet they are so given that they may be used most any time.

There is a sermon for Christmas, called "The Dayspring"; one for the close of the year on "Our Little Life"; a New Year sermon, "The Christian Mariner's Compass"; two sermons for Good Friday, called "The Groups Around the Cross" and "The Garden of Sorrow and Victory"; two for Easter, on "Seeking Christ in the Wrong Place" and "The Young Man at the Empty Tomb"; two for Whitsunday, "The Secret of Power" and "Waiting is—What?"

"The Rose in the Heart" is a beautiful sermon for a flower service. For Communion day there is a sermon on "Love's Tenses."

Many preachers have been looking for just such a book as this. If you do not use it in helping to sermonize, you will like it for your own personal spiritual profit. There are twenty chapters in the 287 pages.

The Twelve Apostolic Types of Christian Men, E. A. George. $1.00.

"The Twelve" is a study in the lives of the twelve Apostles. It is a study of the characteristics of the men, their place in Christian service and their corresponding types today.

There are twelve chapters in the book. The first is a brief discussion of the Disciples. The next ten take up "Impetuous Peter," "John the Apostle of Love," "Sympathetic Andrew," "James the Martyr," "Doubting Thomas," "Matthew, Man of Affairs," "Prosaic Philip," "Nathanael the Mystic," "Judas the Traitor," "The Obscure Three." Chapter XII is a fine discussion of "The Twelve in Tradition, in Art and in Literature." This chapter alone is well worth the price of the book.

These discussions are full of suggestive thoughts, illustrative material and human touches on the lives of these marvelous men of New Testament times. It will interest you.

All of the books reviewed in these columns may be bought from The Pentecostal Publishing Company, Louisville, Kentucky.

PIKE'S PEAK CAMP.

L. D. Sharp: "The Pikes Peak camp that has just gone down in history was one of the greatest camps ever held on the hill. From the very first God's presence was manifested and souls began to pour into the altar. Rev. Chas. Stalker, that well-known Holy Ghost preacher, was at his best, his messages were freighted with Holy Ghost power which brought penitents to the mourner's bench. Rev. S. K. Wheatlake, that dear old veteran of a half century in the battle for God and souls, was at his best, and his ministry was a benediction to the entire camp. Gen. Supt. Finch, of the Foreign Missionary work, was on hand full of fire and missionary zeal that added greatly to the spiritual tide of our camp. The services ran at high tide all day and up in the early hours of the morning, some praying through and some under the slaying power of God. The finances came easy, about seven thousand dollars being given for the different departments of the Lord's work. Rev. W. R. Cox, Gen. Supt., was with us the last few days of the camp; on the last Sunday morning he preached in the Friends Church and they reported a good service. The District Assembly of The Pilgrim Holiness Church convened on Monday after camp closing. Bro. Cox presided and God's blessing was on the Assembly."

NOT TO BE USED WITHOUT COPYRIGHT PERMISSION

OF ASBURY THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

REV. O. G. MINGLEDORFF, D.D.

Lesson X.—September 4, 1927.

Subject.—Solomon's Wise Choice. 1 Kings 3:4-15.

Golden Text.—Happy is the man that findeth wisdom, and the man that getteth understanding. Prov. 3:13.

Time.—About B. C. 1014.

Places.—Jerusalem and Gibeon.

Introduction.—It is remarkable how David's sons coveted their father's throne. When Solomon was but a lad, Absalom tried by every artifice he could conjure up to win the hearts of the people from David to himself, and he succeeded so well that he grasped for the reigns of government; but as he rode his mule beneath a tree his bushy hair caught in the limbs, and he was left dangling in the air. One of David's men came along, and thrust him through with a dart, thus ending the rebellion. The king was heart-broken, and went to his chamber crying: "O Absalom, Absalom, my son; would God I had died for thee." Perhaps Jehovah was chastising him for his terrible sin against Uriah and against himself.

David had promised Solomon and his mother that he should be the successor to the throne; but when the king was very old, Adonijah who seems to have been, in some sense, his father's pet, induced Joab the general of the king's army, and Abiathar the priest to make him king instead of his father. Having invited all the king's sons, except Solomon, he was anointed at a place called Enrogel; and the people cried: "Long live king Adonijah." But another scene was being enacted in the king's chamber in the royal palace. Nathan, David's faithful prophet, and Bathsheba, the mother of Solomon, were planning to consult the old king about the matter; and when each of them in order had laid the case before him, he commanded Nathan, Zadok, and Benaiah to set Solomon upon the king's own mule, to take him down to Gihon, and there anoint him king over Israel. When the news reached the ears of Adonijah and his supporters there was consternation in the camp. The people all forsook their new king, and fled to their homes. Adonijah fled to the tabernacle, and laid hold upon the horns of the altar. Through messengers sent to king Solomon he begged for his life, which was granted to him on condition that he would be a true man and behave himself properly.

One other thing occurred just before our lesson that is worthy of note: David numbered the people, perhaps to learn the strength of his fighting men; but the thing displeased Jehovah, and he decided to chastise him; but he allowed him the choice of one of three things: "Three years of famine, three months of flight before his enemies, or three days of pestilence." He chose the latter, and lost seventy thousand men before the pestilence was stayed by an angel. Draw your own conclusion: my conclusion is that it is a dangerous thing to provoke the wrath of Jehovah.

Comments on the Lesson.

4. And the king went to Gibeon to sacrifice there.—We call attention to the preceding verses of this chapter. Solomon made a fearful blunder, in that he made affinity with Pharaoh king of Egypt, and married his heathen daughter. He was already approaching heathenism, nor was it long before his strange marriage led him into idolatry. The heathen worshipped their false gods on high places; and here we find Solomon worshipping Jehovah on the high places of Gibeon. It was a big day of worship; for Solomon offered a thousand burnt offerings that day upon that altar. There was nothing niggardly about his worship.

5. Ask what I shall give thee.—These were Jehovah's words to Solomon in a dream at Gibeon. The door to the richest blessings was thrown wide open to Solomon. What would you have asked for?

6. And Solomon said.—Here follows a recital of God's mercies to king David his father. He does not forget to give Jehovah credit for the throne that has passed down to him: "Thou hast kept for him this kindness, that thou hast given him a son to sit on his throne, as it is this day." He reminds Jehovah that he had made him king instead of his father, and in his humility calls himself "a little child." His request is rather astounding for a young ruler: "Give therefore thy servant an understanding heart to judge thy people, that I may discern between good and bad: for who is able to judge this thy so great people." That choice could not be beaten for sound sense and deep humility. Some modern rulers need to read, ponder and practice it.

10. And the speech pleased the Lord.—God likes humility and good sense; but he despises boastful ignorance.

11. God said unto Solomon, Because thou hast asked this thing.—Solomon could have ruined himself by asking for the things that men usually covet. God reminds him of the fact that he had not asked for long life for himself, nor for riches, nor for the lives of his enemies; but that he had asked for "understanding to discern judgment." Would that Solomon could have shown such wisdom in his later years. Had he done so, he would not have besmirched his own character and reputation; and he would not have brought reproach upon the Church of his God.

12. Behold, I have done according to thy words.—Gave him the understanding and the wisdom that he asked for. The work seems to have surpassed the asking; for God said: "Lo, I have given thee a wise and an understanding heart; so that there was none like thee before thee, neither after thee shall any arise like unto thee." How far down the ages God intended that this promise should extend, we know not; but we must not forget that, like all of his promises, this one depended upon Solomon's fidelity to the trust imposed upon him. If we betray our trust, God is always at liberty to withdraw his promises. Many a man who was once called to preach the Gospel, has lost, forfeited, his call through laziness, negligence and sin. Take heed what thou doest, and what thou doest not.

13. I have given thee that which thou hast not asked, both riches and honor.—That sounds like God. If we are sincere in our prayers, and if our faith fail not, our God will give us manifold more than we ever thought of or asked for. He is abundantly able; for he has riches untold. His resources are without limit. There shall not be any among the kings like unto thee all thy days.—What a pity

ASBURY THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

A faculty of nine trained and consecrated teachers, experienced in pastoral and evangelistic work. Nine departments. Certificate and Diploma Course for undergraduates. For graduate students a three-year course leading to B.D. degree.

H. C. MORRISON, D.D., President
For Information Write to
F. H. LARABEE, D.D., Dean.
WILMORE, KENTUCKY.

The Whole Bible for the Whole World

that Solomon so acted as to render it impossible for Jehovah to fulfill this gracious promise. God is even now looking for men and women whom he can trust with wondrous things for his Church and for the world. Can he trust you? If so, you will soon hear from Heaven.

14. Now comes Jehovah's condition: "If thou wilt walk in my ways, to keep my statutes and my commandments, as thy father David did walk, then I will lengthen thy days." Solomon's closing days were pitiable. He turned away from God, died in darkness, and as far as we know, was lost forever. Years ago when I was a college boy, I heard Bishop A. G. Haygood deliver a masterly sermon on the life and character of King Solomon. He pictured the great man under the figure of a fine ship going out to sea with a costly cargo, with a band of music on board and sails standing out to a propitious breeze. All on board were happy until a fearful thunderstorm enveloped the ship, and she was lost to view for a long time. Finally there came a rift in the cloud, and the craft was seen near the other shore with rigging and sails torn to shreds, her masts broken and her hull broken here and there from the force of the waves. Then the clouds closed over her, and she was seen no more. The great preacher cried: "No one knows whether or not she ever reached her desired haven."

15. Solomon awoke; and, behold it was a dream.—Yes; it was a dream, but God was speaking to him through his dream; so that he went back to Jerusalem to offer sacrifices and to worship Jehovah. God spoke to William Booth in a dream, and he went out to begin the work of the Salvation Army. God who made men to dream can speak to them through dreams, and make his messages as clear as the noonday sun. "Your old men shall dream dreams."

"More Sermons on Biblical Characters", by Dr. Clovis Chappell has an originality of interpretation and illustration that will appeal to you. Price $1.50. Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky.

Touching Incidents is a compilation of touching incidents of devotion to God, and remarkable answers to prayer. It will help your faith to read many of these victories of faith. Price $1.00. Pentecostal Publishing Company, Louisville, Ky.

GOSPEL TENTS

Write for Prices on NEW AND USED TENTS.

R. H. ARMBRUSTER CO.,
SPRINGFIELD, ILL.

Established 1875

We Aim To Please—Our Aim Is Good

"THE WHOLE BIBLE TO THE WHOLE WORLD"

is the motto of

THE MISSIONARY TRAINING INSTITUTE

Courses are offered which prepare men and women for active soul-winning ministry at home or in the foreign field. Strong courses in evangelistic music are also featured.

Last year students were enrolled from 24 states of the U. S. A. and from 18 foreign countries.

The Forty-fifth Session begins September 13, 1927.

For catalogue or other information address
THE PRINCIPAL,
MISSIONARY TRAINING INSTITUTE
Nyack-on-Hudson, N. Y.

NEW BOOK

The "Beauty of Holiness and Maxims of the Holy Life"

BY

REV. GEORGE W. RIDOUT, D.D.

This book is specially written for the holiness people and is designed to set forth True Holiness against the fictitious, the false and the fanatical. The book sets forth Holiness under the following aspects:

1. The Beauty of Holiness.
2. The Beauty of Consecration.
3. The Beauty of Perfect Love.
4. The Beauty of Humility.
5. The Beauty of Perfection.
6. The Beauty of Christlikeness.
7. The Beauty of Divine Union.

The book is written in the easy, readable illustrative style of Dr. Ridout's writings and is full of the best of things on the above subject.

Price Seventy-five Cents
PENTECOSTAL PUBLISHING CO.
Louisville, Kentucky.

Read the offer on page 13 of 20 Live Books for $1.00.

EVANGELISTIC AND PERSONAL.

Rev. W. L. Shell, 721 S. W. 8th St., Miami, Fla., is open for calls as an evangelistic singer or preacher. Communicate with him at above address. Brother Shell is an earnest worker in the Lord's vineyard.

Rev. E. L. Sanford: "We are in a gracious revival at Bethel Ridge. Fourteen precious souls have prayed through to pardon and the church is being revived. Rev. R. L. Wilson, pastor, is delighted with the meeting. Mrs. Sanford was called away to Seattle, Wash., to attend the funeral of her brother who was accidentally killed in an explosion. We look for her back this week."

The Beck Brothers have recently closed a good meeting at Brownsville, Ky., and a number professed to be saved and united with the church. The people of Brownsville treated these brethren with much kindness and are planning for them to return for another meeting.

The Florida Holiness Camp Meeting that was announced to be held this summer has been cancelled. The winter camp will be held in March, 1928. For information, address Rev. H. H. McAfee, 1114 North Fern Creek Ave., Orlando, Fla.

The Millport Camp Meeting of the Alabama District of the Church of the Nazarene, will be held at the camp grounds, Millport, Ala., Aug. 31 to Sept. 11. Rev. Allie Irick and wife will be in charge, assisted by Rev. H. H. Hooker and wife, song leaders, and H. O. Shelton and other workers. There are 65 acres of woodland, plenty of shade and camping room and a fine spring of water. Bring your bedding and Bible and come to the Feast of Tabernacles. Address Rev. P. M. Covenington, Jasper, Ala.

The Jack Linn Party will conduct the camp meeting at Louisville, Tenn., Sept. 1-11. The party consists of Rev. Jack Linn, Mrs. Linn and Miss Imogene Quinn, the Hoosier Girl Evangelist. Friends of full salvation are asked to pray. Healing services will be held. Bring the sick or send requests.

It will set you to singing at your work if you will read "101 Hymn Stories," by Carl F. Price. Order now. Price $1.00. Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky.

"ATHEISTIC BUNK."

Dr. A. Hamilton.

Clarence Darrow is said to have made this statement: "Life has only one purpose—the pursuit of pleasure and the avoidance of pain."

I wonder if the Christian Martyrs were in pursuit of pleasure when they clung to their religion and allowed themselves to be cast into the den of lions, rather than deny their Lord? I wonder if they were trying to avoid pain when they deliberately chose the stake and the flames, rather than turn their backs upon their God?

I wonder if they were seeking pleasure when they sang the praises of their God, as old Nero made them into flaming torches with which he lighted his arenas where he and his demons of perdition wallowed in bestial lust, drunkenness and sin?

I wonder if the beautiful maidens who sang psalms to the God of heaven, were enjoying the show when the Romans herded them into the bloody, reeking arena, and then turned the ferce beasts of the jungle loose and watched them tear those tender, beautiful bodies into shreds?

I wonder if the Martyr Christians tried to avoid pain, when they deliberately chose the instrument of torture, rather than fall down and worship the heathen gods?

And let us come down to the years which made our own history replete with deeds of heroism, and ask Mr. Darrow if he thinks George Washington really enjoyed the horror of Valley Forge, or the ghastly battles which he fought for freedom from the yoke of England?

Let us ask him if he really thinks Lincoln enjoyed the agony of a disrupted Union. Ask him if he thinks Lee was fighting because he loved to fight, or if he thinks he had a principle at heart for which he fought until he was forced to cease his struggle?

Let us ask him if motherhood all over the world is working its life out to keep a little band together simply because of the pleasure of doing it, or is it a great love which God has placed within that mother's heart, which forces the tired limbs to go, and the weary fingers to work and the despairing heart to hope that some way, some how, some time, she will live to see her little brood a happy, joyous family?

Martyrs all over the world and through all the ages past, have faced the issue, without a thought of pleasure, or the fear of pain deterring them. Suppose they had assumed the attitude of Mr. Darrow. Just where would we be today?

And what if Jesus had avoided his Gethsemane? Suppose Jesus had slipped away and had not taken up his cross and staggered up the long slope of Calvary.

I wonder if Darrow thinks Jesus really enjoyed his cross? I wonder if he thinks Jesus enjoyed the crucifixion agony? Say, dear reader, what if Jesus had said as Darrow is quoted as saying: "Nothing can be changed." Suppose Jesus had said that? Where would our salvation be now? My dear reader, his agony changed our condition from that of a lost soul into a state of redemption.

"Nothing can be changed." Oh yes it can. Jesus on Calvary changed us from lost, despairing souls, into happy, joyous ones.

Let us go him one better and ask him if he thinks our many loyal preachers who are giving their lives for a mere pittance are seeking pleasure from their efforts, or if they are really trying to make this world a better place in which to live and rear our children?

Of course we know that Darrow and his kind have a great many reasons for believing as they do. We know that a great many professing Christians are mere pretenders. We know there are many pulpits filled by infidels who cast doubts over the Virgin Birth, the creation of man, and a lot of other things. Of course we know that any preacher who throws doubts over a single chapter of God's Word is simply sowing the seeds of doubt about the whole Book, but we have many who are sowing the seeds of belief and reverence in and of a God, and are bringing souls to Christ.

We are sincerely sorry for a man like Darrow who is looking at life in such a pessimistic way and through such blue glasses.

"The Twelve," by E. A. George is a history of the lives of the Twelve Disciples. It is worth many times the selling price of $1.00. Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky.

20 Live Books for $1.

575 SETS

$2.60 Value for $1.

Each one carries a great message in brief form

Gospel of the Body

REV. C. F. WIMBERLY.

The author tells in a most interesting way some of his recent discoveries of the majesty and artistic glory of the human body, and states that there are mysteries and wonders to be found in the body alone greater than the exploration of an unknown continent. There is not a dull sentence in the book. Price 15c.

The Mind of the Master

REV. WILL H. HUFF.

Two of Brother Huff's great sermons, the title of the second one being "Soul Rest." In the first sermon the author deals with the mind of Christ as to its spiritual consciousness, as to its characteristics, and as to the how of our fullest possession of it. The second sermon deals with "His Rest," the rest he has provided for the struggling believer. Price, 20c.

Scriptural Holiness

REV. B. A. CUNDIFF.

The author of this most excellent book enjoyed and preached the experience of entire sanctification thirty-nine years. The author gives chapters on the different theories of holiness, and closes with a chapter on the Bible view of this great theme. Price, 15c.

The Vision of a Popular Minister

COMPILED BY A. SIMS.

The experience of a minister who was satisfied and at ease in Zion, but when the Lord got hold of him he found that he was self-centered and unsaved. Price, 10c.

Sin in Believers and Advice to Those Sanctified

JOHN WESLEY.

Two sermons. The first sermon is a point of utmost moment to every serious Christian, the resolving of which very nearly concerns both his present and eternal happiness. In the second, Mr. Wesley's first warning is to watch and pray continually against pride. There are five more warnings in this sermon which are vital to every Christian. Price, 15c.

Doing His Will or Going to Hell

REV. JAMES M. TAYLOR.

This book sets forth the doctrine of entire sanctification as taught in the Scriptures; also that it must be obtained here on earth. Price, 10c.

Malice

REV. J. B. CULPEPPER.

This is a most forceful writer and he handles this subject in a very interesting way. You will be thankful for the privilege of reading this book. Price, 15c.

Water Lily Money

ABBIE C. MORROW BROWN.

A thrilling story for young people; it will interest them as well as instruct and help them. Anyone will read it with pleasure and profit. Price, 15c.

I Want 'Er Go 'Ome

JAMES KNOTT MACKRELL.

A study of heaven, some of the things Jesus taught about heaven, its hope, its people, its certainty, its place, its rewards, its happiness and the way. Price 25c.

Baptism With the Holy Ghost

REV. JAMES M. TAYLOR.

This is a most excellent interpretation of what it is, of who is to receive it, and its effect upon the recipient. Price, 10c.

How to Reach the Masses

REV. JAMES M. TAYLOR.

This book deals with the problems now facing the churches, and points out God's method of doing it. Especially does this book emphasize the need of the blessing of entire sanctification to empower one for effective service in one's work for the Master. Price, 10c.

Heart Purity

REV. E. A. FERGERSON.

A sermon by one of the leading evangelists of his time. The author was very successful in leading thousands of souls into this experience. Price, 10c.

Dr. Fosdick Answered

REV. G. W. RIDOUT.

An expose of Christian liberalism, which is becoming so prevalent in the land, and one needs to be informed about it and how to combat it. This book will be very helpful. Price, 15c.

The Devil's Partners

REV. JAMES M. TAYLOR.

A sermon dealing with the real partners of the devil. The author handles the subject without gloves and starts the reader to thinking. Price, 10c.

Just for Children

REV. J. B. CULPEPPER.

The author writes a story of when and where he was converted in a style that is especially attractive to children. Price, 10c.

Sanctification

REV. J. H. COLLINS.

Dr. H. C. Morrison says this book is one of the clearest presentations of this subject he has ever read. Price, 15c.

A Whiskey Hatch

REV. J. B. CULPEPPER.

The sub title of this book is "Chickens will come Home to Roost." It is an interesting and awful story of the effects of whiskey. Price, 5c.

Little Nuggets for Little Folks

REV. JAMES M. TAYLOR.

A good book to place in the hands of a boy or girl—one that will interest them and teach them the way of salvation. Price, 10c.

Saved to Serve

REV. J. W. WELDON.

This is a life story of a business man who was saved, and afterwards gave his whole life to the service of the Lord. He has been instrumental in winning hundreds of souls to Christ. Price, 20c.

A Bottle of Tears

REV. J. B. CULPEPPER.

A salesman once said of this booklet, "If you will read it without both laughing and crying, you may have it for nothing." You will like it. Price, 5c.

Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky.

Enclosed you will find $ for which please send me postpaid sets of your twenty pamphlets for $1.00 per set.

Name

Address

Street or Route No.

Tent Workers of the Evangelical Methodist League

ASBURY GOSPEL TEAM.
Kirkpatrick, Jarrett, Moore, DuVal.
Blue Mountain Lake, N. Y., Aug. 17-28.

BECK, A. S. AND R. N.
(1019 So. Fourth St., Louisville, Ky.)
Rocky Hill, Ky., Aug. 24-Sept. 8.
Campbellsville, Ky., Sept. 10-25.

CROSS, WALTER—LOPER, NORRIS.
Piedmont, Ala., Aug. 22-Sept. 4.

DORN, C. O.—SEAMONS, L. H.
Oswego, S. C., August 7-28.

GRANT BROTHERS.
Thomasville, Mo., August 16-31.

HENDERSON, O. R.—ROTHWEILER,
D. L.
Nekoma, Kan., August 16-31.

HOTCHKISS, ROY L.
Winthrop, Minn., Aug. 9-28.
Hull, Iowa, August 30-Sept. 11.

HOWARD, FIELDING T.
(Willmore, Ky.)
Tolu, Ky., August 18-28.

HUTCHERSON, FIELDS AND HILKER.
(Tent Workers)
Grass Creek, Wyo., August 22-25.

HYSELL, HARVEY B.
(Box 1235, Charleston, W. Va.)
Mt. Nebo, W. Va., Aug. 17-31.

KEYS EVANGELISTIC PARTY.
(Mohnnton, Pa.)
Eccles, W. Va., Aug. 18-Sept. 4.
Mohnnton, Pa., Oct. 9-23.
Open date, Oct. 30-Nov. 13.
Camden, N. J., Nov. 16-Dec. 4.
Chillicothe, Ohio, Sept. 11-Oct. 2.

LAMBERT, B. D.
Oil City, Pa., August 14-Sept. 3.

LAMP, W. E.
(Willmore, Ky.)
Zenita, Ill., Aug. 15-30.

MACKEILL, JAMES—DAVIS, JOHN W.
Beaumont, Tex., August 7-Sept. 11.
Burkeville, Tex., Sept. 18-Oct. 2.

PARKER, J. R.
(Willmore, Ky.)
Berry, Ky., August 15-28.

POWELL, JAMES L.
Open date, Aug. 18-28.

ROBERTS, BYRON F.
Jamestown, Ohio, Aug. 24-Sept. 11.

SMITH AND McCLURE.
Richmond, Ill., Aug. 21-Sept. 11.

EVANGELISTS' SLATES

ALBRIGHT, TILLIE.
Richland, N. Y., Aug. 21-Sept. 5.

ANDERSON, T. M.
Wichita, Kan., August 18-28.
Winchester, Ind., Sept. 1-11.

ARTHUR, FRANK E.
Huntington, W. Va., Aug. 17-Sept. 4.

AYCOCK, JARRETTE AND DELL.
(2923 Troost Ave., Kansas City, Mo.)
Kearney, Neb., August 19-28.

BABCOCK, C. H.
Wichita, Kan., August 18-28.
Blackwell, Okla., Aug. 29-Sept. 4.
Thomas, Okla., Sept. 15-25.

BENNETT, W. G.
Manchester, O., Aug. 10-Sept. 1.

BONIE, GRACE O.—RIGGS, HELEN G.
Vandalia, Mich., August 17-28.

BRENNEMAN, A. P. AND MRS.
Ava, Mo., August 24-Sept. 4.

BROWNING, RAYMOND.
Aspen Hill, Tenn., Aug. 21-Sept. 5.

BURNETT, W. EVANS.
(Lake Charles, La.)
Open dates for July and August.
Alexandria, La., June 17-25.

CALLIS, O. H.
Kincaid, W. Va., Aug. 19-29.
London, Ky., Aug. 31-Sept. 4.
Salem, Va., Sept. 9-19-9.

CANADAY, FRED.
(1515 Killingsworth Ave., Portland, Ore.)
Spotsylvania, Va., Aug. 19-28.

CAIN, W. R.
(515 So. Vine St., Wichita, Kan.)
Wichita, Kan., August 18-28.

CAROTHERS, J. L. AND SADIE.
Nezperce, Idaho, August 17-31.

CHATFIELD, C. C. AND FLORA.
(410 E. Carl St., Winchester, Ind.)
Radcliff, Ohio, August 14-28.
Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 29-Sept. 11.
Durand, Mich., Sept. 11-Oct. 2.
Ellet, Ohio, Oct. 3-16.

COMER, G. P.
(Stanford, Ky.)
Page, W. Va., August 18-28.
Open date, September.

COX, F. W.
(Lisbon, Ohio)
St. John's, Portland, Ore., Aug. 14-28.
Portland, Ore., Sept. 1-18.
Summit, Ore., Sept. 21-Oct. 9.
Jefferson, Ore., Oct. 16-Nov. 6.
Albany, Ore., Nov. 10-27.
Open dates, Dec. 1-18 and on.

DAVIDSON PARTY.
Perryville, Ohio, Aug. 25-Sept. 4.
Carrollton, Ohio, Sept. 15-25.

DECKER, WALTER REED.
(Song Evangelist)
(124 Gould St., Corry, Pa.)
Open dates for Fall and Winter.

DICKERSON, H. N.
(2608 Newmain St., Ashland, Ky.)
Kirk, Colo., August 18-28.

DYE, CHARLES.
(430 Williams St., Troy, Ohio)
Selma, Ind., August 11-28.
Toledo, Ohio, Sept. 4-18.
Portsmouth, Ohio, Sept. 25-Oct. 9.
West Jefferson, Ohio, Nov. 6-20.
Open date, Oct. 16-30.

ELSNER, THEO. AND WIFE.
(451 Pacific St., Brooklyn, N. Y.)
Delanco, N. J., Aug. 26-Sept. 5.
Anderson, Ind., Oct. 2-16.
Owosso, Mich., Oct. 20-Nov. 6.
East Liverpool, Ohio, Nov. 8-20.
Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 27-Dec. 11.

FLEMING, JOHN.
Denver, Colo., Sept. 11-25.
Chicago, Ill., (1st church) Oct. 9-23.
Ft. Wayne, Ind., Oct. 30-Nov. 13.
Warren, Ohio, Nov. 17-27.

FLEMING, BONA.
Ingersoll, Okla., Aug. 26-Sept. 4.

FLEXON, R. S.
(Shacklefords, Va.)
Delanco, N. J., Aug. 17-Sept. 5.

FUGETT, C. B.
(2813 Holt St., Ashland, Ky.)
Normal, Ill., August 19-28.
Cape May, N. J., Sept. 9-17.

GADDIS, TILDEN H.
(4805 Ravenna St., Cincinnati, Ohio)
Charleston, Ill., August 19-28.
Mulberry, Ohio, Sept. 2-18.
Mt. Washington, Ohio, Sept. 23-Oct. 9.
Binghampton, N. Y., Oct. 14-30.

GANN, J. A.
(Town Creek, Ala.)
Sanderson's Chapel, Ala., Aug. 21-28.
Open dates, September.

GEIL, PAUL AND DORA.
(Frankfort, Ind.)
(Singers and Xylophone Players)
Lafayette, Ind., August 7-28.
Crawfordsville, Ind., Sept. 7-11.
Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 18-Nov. 6.
Brazil, Ind., Nov. 13-27.
Anamosa, Iowa, Dec. 1-30.

GLEASON, RUFUS H.
(Central, S. C.)
Charles City, Ia., August 18-28.
Luverne, Minn., Sept. 4-18.
Pipestone, Minn., Sept. 20-Oct. 2.
Fairmont, Minn., Oct. 4-16.

GLENN, REV AND MRS. J. M.
Eastman, Ga., Sept. 4-18.

GROGG, W. A.
(Ronceverte, W. Va.)
Pinch, W. Va., August 20-Sept. 3.

GROSE, JOHN A.
(Shepherdstown, W. Va.)
Front Royal, Va., Aug. 21-Sept. 4.
Odenton, Md., Sept. 5-11.

HALLMAN, W. A. AND WIFE.
Lincoln, Neb., August 19-29.
Sloan, Iowa, Aug. 30-Sept. 4.

HARRIS, B. F.
Riley, Kan., Aug. 17-Sept. 4.

HEWSON, JOHN E.
(127 N. Chester Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.)
Portage, Ohio, Aug. 18-28.

HODGE, H. W.
(120 S. 16th St., Flushing, N. Y. City)
Bushville, N. Y., August 21-31.
Open date, September.

HOLLENBACK, URAL T.
Norristown, Pa., Oct. 2-16.

HORN, LUTHER A.—MARSHALL, R. P.
Box 1322, Mobile, Ala.)
Clear Springs, Ala., Aug. 14-28.
Louisville, Ala., Sept. 1-14.
Open date, Sept. 18-30.
Mobile, Ala., Oct. 1-8.

HULSE, AARON.
Letona, Okla., Aug. 9-28.
Bradford, Ark., Sept. 2-25.
Nashville, Kan., Oct. 2-16.

HUNT, JOHN J.
(Media, Pa., Rt. 3.)
Wilkinsburg, Pa., Sept. 16-25.
Detroit, Mich., (Tabernacle) Oct. 1-Dec. 31.

IRICK, ALLIE AND EMMA.
(Bethany, Okla.)
Bonnie, Ill., August 19-29.
Millport, Ala., Aug. 31-Sept. 12.
Thomas, Okla., Sept. 15-25.

JOHNSON, ANDREW.
Junalaska, N. C., Aug. 24-28.
London, Ky., Sept. 2-15.
Terrills Creek, Ky., Sept. 6-16.

JONES, LYMAN.
(North Kingsville, Ohio)
Open dates.

JONES, LUM.
(630 W. 9th St., Ada, Okla.)
Shawnee, Okla., August 15-28.
Britton, Okla., Sept. 4-18.
Hugo, Okla., Sept. 21-25.
Pasadena, Calif., Oct. 5-23.

KEEL, MRS. S. A.
Menomonee, Wis., August 4-25.

KENNEDY, ROBERT J.
(Singer)
Paris, Tenn., Sept. 4-25.
Ft. Worth, Tex., Oct. 2-23.

KINSEY FRANK E.
(1220 Tecumseh St., Indianapolis, Ind.)
Birds, Ill., July 31-Aug. 21.
Urbana, Ill., Aug. 24-29.

LILLENAS, HALDOR AND BERTHA.
Connersville, Ind., Oct. 2-16.

LINN, REV. AND MRS. JACK—QUINN,
IMOGENE.
(Oregon, Wis.)
Sanford, Ind., August 18-28.
Louisville, Tenn., Sept. 1-11.
Knoxville, Tenn., Sept. 13-25.

LITTELL, V. W. AND MARGUERITE.
(1214 Scott St., Beatrice, Neb.)
Chariton, Ia., Aug. 14-28.

LOVELESS, W. W.
(London, Ohio.)
Des Arc, Mo., Aug. 13-28.

LUDWIG, THEODORE AND MINNIE.
(772 N. Euclid Ave., St. Louis, Mo.)
Nokomis, Ill., Aug. 9-21.

LYTLE, W. E.
(Willmore, Ky.)
August and September open.
Richland Center, Wis., Sept. 28-Oct. 23.

MCBRIDE, J. B.
(112 Arlington Drive, Pasadena, Calif.)
Oakland City, Ind., Aug. 25-Sept. 4.
Patrickburg, Ind., Sept. 11-25.

MCNEESE, HERBERT J.
(New Brighton, Pa., 634 13th Ave.)
Open dates, July and August.

MAXWELL, PROF. S. A.
(Graham, N. C.)
West Burlington, N. C., Aug. 28-Sept. 8.

MILBY, E. C.
(Song Evangelist, Gabe, Ky.)
Open dates, August.
Middletown, Ohio, Sept. 11-Oct. 4.

MILLER, REV. AND MRS. F. E.
(Louisville, N. Y.)
Richland, N. Y., August 21-Sept. 5.

MONK, ALONZO, JR.
Winslow, Ark., July 26-Sept. 1.
Paris, Tenn., Sept. 24-28.
October, November, December open.

MORRIS, (JUDGE) FRANK
(P. O. Box 1623, Dallas, Tex.)
Hagerman, N. Mex., Aug. 28.
Alamo, N. Mex., Sept. 11.
Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 2.

NELSON, S. S.
(552 Worth Ave., Greensboro, N. C.)
Hillsboro, N. C., Aug. 26-Sept. 4.
Open date, Sept. 6-30.
Organ Cave, W. Va., Oct. 1-10.
Ranceverte, W. Va., Oct. 12-25.

NORRERY, JOHN.
Drainsville, Va., August 17-28.
Ocean Grove, N. J., Aug. 29-Sept. 3.

OWEN, JOHN F.
(Taylor University, Upland, Ind.)
Tarrant, Ala., Aug. 28-Sept. 11.

OWEN, G. F. AND BYRDIE.
(1415 West Pikes Peak Ave., Colorado
Springs, Colo.)
Bath, Maine, Aug. 28-Sept. 12.
South Portland, Maine, Sept. 18-Oct. 2.

POLLITT, S. H.
Wagoner's Chapel, Ky., August 15-25.

QUAKER QUARTETTE OF OHIO YEAR-
LY MEETING.
Damasus, Ohio, Aug. 23-28.

REDMON, J. E. AND ADA.
(1231 N. Holmes Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.)
Stringtown, Ind., Sept. 23-Oct. 9.
New Castle, Pa., Oct. 14-30.

REED, LAWRENCE.
(Damasus, Ohio)
Richland, N. Y., August 21-Sept. 5.
Cumberland, Md., Sept. 10-20.

REID, JAMES V.
(2912 Meadowbrook Drive, Ft. Worth, Tex.)
Lake Junaluska, N. C., August 21-28.
Utica, Miss., Aug. 28-Sept. 9.
Ft. Worth, Tex., Sept. 11-23.
Birmingham, Ala., Sept. 25-Oct. 16.

RICE, LEWIS J. AND EDYTHE.
(2923 Troost Ave., Kansas City, Mo.)
Kingston, Okla., August 4-21.

RINEBARGER, C. C.
(Olivet, Ill.)
Oakland City, Ind., Aug. 26-Sept. 4.

ROMINE, JOHN A.
Mt. Mariah, Ala., Aug. 6-16.
Sanderson's Chapel, Ala., Aug. 17-25.
Chalybeate Springs, Ala., Aug. 26-Sept. 2.
New Bethel, Ala., Sept. 3-9.
Harmony, Ala., Sept. 9-17.

ROBERTS, T. P.
Campbellsville, Ill., August 18-25.
Circleville, Ohio, Aug. 26-Sept. 4.

ROOD, FERRY R.
(2538 Overlook Drive, Huntington, W. Va.)
West Liberty, Ohio, Dec. 2-Jan. 7.

RUTH, C. W.
(1833 Nowland Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.)
Gaines, Mich., August 28-Sept. 4.
Stayner, Ont., Can., Rt. 3, Sept. 18-28.
Lexington, Ky., Aug. 11-21.

SHANK, MR. AND MRS. R. A.
Kampsville, Ill., Aug. 8-18.

ST. CLAIR, FRED
(2444 Bowditch St., Berkeley, Calif.)
Portland, Oregon, July 31-Aug. 28.
LaGrande, Ore., Sept. 4-Oct. 2.
Spokane, Wash., Oct. 9-Nov. 6.
Colfax, Wash., Nov. 13-Dec. 18.

SHARROW, C. E. AND NEVA B.
(Wren, Ohio)
Open date, August 16-31.

SHELHAMER, E. E.
(5419 Bushnell Way, Los Angeles, Calif.)
Marion, Ohio, Sept. 8-18.
Wichita, Kan., Aug. 18-28.
Binghampton, N. Y., Sept. 25-Oct. 9.
Allentown, Pa., Oct. 16-30.
Lewistown, Pa., Nov. 3-13.

SWEETEN, H. W.
Circleville, Ohio, Aug. 26-Sept. 6.

TEETS, ODA B.
(Aurora, W. Va.)
Mt. Nebo, W. Va., Aug. 17-31.

THOMAS, JOHN.
(Willmore, Ky.)
Clarksburg, Ont., Can., Sept. 9-18.
Carysville, Ohio, Aug. 28-28.

VANDALL, N. B.
Mt. Lookout, Ohio, Aug. 25-Sept. 4.
Rochester, Pa., Sept. 8-18.
Baltimore, Md., Oct. 2-16.
Brooklyn, N. Y., Nov. 4-13.

VAYHINGER, M.
Bryantburg, Ind., Aug. 19-28.
Nashville, Ind., July 6-17.

WATTS, E. E.
(Sandy Lake, Pa.)
Open date, August 9-31.
Hadley, N. Y., Sept. 4-25.
Corinth, N. Y., Sept. 27-Oct. 16.
Hookstown, Pa., Oct. 23-Nov. 6.

WELSH, H. W.
(Box 108, Olivet, Ill.)
Paris, Ill., August 14-28.
Olivet, Ill., Sept. 1-11.
Northfield, Minn., Sept. 4-18.

WELLS, KENNETH AND EUNICE.
Hopkins, Mich., August 18-28.

WHITAKER, J. H.
(Box 385, Arlington, Tex.)
Van Aistyne, Tex., July 22-31.
Iredell, Tex., Aug. 19-30.

WILLIAMS, L. E.
(Willmore, Ky.)
Open date, Aug. 19-Sept. 4.

WIMBERLY, C. F.
Ringgold, La., August 16-28.

WINLAND, C. B.
Peoli, Ohio, Aug. 14-28.
Layland, Ohio, August 31-Sept. 14.
Athens, Ohio, Sept. 18-Oct. 2.

WIREMAN, C. L.
(7276 Scott St., Covington, Ky.)
Rising Sun, Ind., Sept. 7-18.
Open date, August 15-28.
Kingswood, Ky., Aug. 30-Sept. 6.
Burlington, Ky., Sept. 20-Oct. 2.

YOUNG, ALVIN.
Binghampton, N. Y., Aug. 22-28.
Winchester, Ind., Aug. 30-Sept. 11.
Monticello, N. Y., Oct. 4-16.

YOUNG, R. A.
Waynesboro, Miss., Aug. 19-28.

CAMP MEETING CALENDAR.

ALABAMA.
Millport, Ala., camp, September 1-11.
Workers: Allie and Emma Irick, H. H. Hocker. Music and congregational singing, J. L. Shelton and H. A. Forrester. For information write Juneus Shelton, Sec., Millport, Ala.

ARKANSAS.
Beebe, Ark., camp, August 11-22. Workers: Rev. Josiah Tucker, Willard B. Davis, song leader. Write Mrs. Callie Harrison, Sec. P. O. Box 12, Beebe, Ark.

BATESVILLE, ARK.
Workers: Rev. Mrs. Gussie Morris Gill, Rev. J. J. Douglas and wife. For information write E. A. Mashburn, Cor. Sec.

COLORADO.
Yuma, Colo., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Rev. L. N. Fogg, H. N. Dickerson. Mrs. J. Hester, song leader. For information write E. O. Walden, Yuma, Colo.

GEORGIA.
Indian Springs, Ga., camp, Aug. 11-21. Workers: Rev. H. C. Morrison, Rev. J. L. Brasher, Rev. C. W. Butler. Young People's worker, Mrs. Jere M. Glenn. Director of music, Mr. Ham S. Sewell. Address R. P. Burdew, Macon, Ga.

Sale City, Ga., camp, August 11-21.
Workers: Rev. Chas. A. Gibson, Rev. O. J. Nease. Song leader, Rev. Frank Watkins. Musician, Mrs. Frank Watkins. Special singers, The Vaughn Radio Quartette. W. W. McCord, President.

ILLINOIS.
Hillcrest, Ill., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Rev. E. B. Montgomery, Rev. T. P. Roberts. Prof. and Mrs. R. A. Shank in charge of singing and children. Chas. F. Benz, Sec., Kampsville, Ill.

Bonnie, Ill., camp, August 18-28.
Workers: Revs. Allie and Emma Irick, Rev. Elmer McKay, Prof. John E. Moore. W. T. Lawson, Cor. Sec., Benton, Ill.

Greenville, Ill., camp, August 18-28.
Workers: Bishop Joseph F. Berry, Rev. Guy Wilson, The Prestons, song leaders. A. B. Plog, Cor. Sec'y.

Normal, Ill., camp, August 18-28.
Workers: Rev. Harry W. Morrow, Rev. C. B. Fugett, Rev. Harold Johnson, song leader. Rev. Della B. Stretch, children's worker. Address Mrs. Bertha C. Ashbrook, Sec. 45 West Allen St., Springfield, Ill.

Charleston, Ill., camp, Aug. 19-28.
Workers: Rev. T. H. Gaddis and the Moser Sisters, assisted by district preachers. Cor. Sec. Slater will represent missions. Correspond with Rev. W. M. Hall, Charleston, Ill.

INDIANA.
Ramsey, Ind., August 12-21. Workers: M. G. Stanley, J. B. Kelfel; Mrs. J. C. Gray, children's worker; C. C. Rinebarger and wife, leaders in song. Address Geo. F. Pinaire, Sec., Ramsey, Ind.

Bryantsburg, Ind., camp, August 19-28. Workers: Rev. Monroe Vayhinger, The Payne Evangelistic Party, consisting of Sister Fannie Payne, Miss Bertha Pultz, Miss Ruth Cooper. For information write Chas. E. Cleek, Madison, Ind., Rt. 9.

Cleveland, Ind., camp, August 26-Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. John T. Hatfield, Rev. G. Arnold Hodgins, Wright Brothers, Song leaders, Miss Florence Wyse, pianist. For information write Rev. C. E. Ellsworth, Sec., Greenfield, Ind., Rt. 3.

Oakland City, Ind., camp, August 26-Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. J. B. McBride, Rev. Ira Aykers, Rev. C. C. Rinebarger and wife, song evangelists. Write Mrs. Warlick Yeager, Sec., 518 S. Hall St., Princeton, Ind.

KANSAS.

Wichita, Kan., camp, Aug. 18-28. Workers: Rev. Chas. H. Babcock, Rev. E. E. Shelhamer, Rev. T. M. Anderson, Mr. Ernest D. Bartlett, Harold Chapman and Prof. B. D. Sutton and wife. Address W. R. Cain, Sec., 515 So. Vine St., Wichita, Kan.

Haviland, Kan., camp, August 31-Sept. 11. Workers: Rev. A. E. Lacour, Rev. E. H. Craven, singer. Write A. L. Bevan, Secretary.

KENTUCKY.

Lawson, Ky., camp, Aug. 21-31. Workers: Rev. W. B. Riggs, Rev. Russel Patton, Rev. C. R. Vincent. Music in charge of the Mt. Carmel Quartet. Address Miss Mary Vandiver, Sec., Lawson, Ky.

Carthage, Ky., camp, Aug. 19-28. Workers: Rev. Freddie Thomas, J. E. and Ada Redmon. For information address, J. R. Moore, Pres., California, Ky., R.F.D. No. 1, Rawlings, Sec., Bradfordsville, Ky.

Tolu, Ky., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Rev. Fielding T. Howard, Charles D. Lear, leader of song. Write J. W. Napier, Tolu, Ky.

MASSACHUSETTS.

North Reading, Mass., camp, Sept. 2-5, inclusive. Workers: Rev. J. L. Rogers, Rev. H. V. Miller. For information, address G. E. Waddle, Sec., 620 Columbia Rd., Boston, Mass.

MICHIGAN.

Penn. Mich., camp, August 17-28. Workers: Helen G. Biggs, Grace O. Bonline. Write for information to Rev. Olive Knapp, Pres., Edwardsburg, Mich.

Hopkins, Mich., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Rev. I. N. Toole, Dr. C. W. Butler, Dr. G. Arnold Hodgins, Mrs. Fred DeWeerd, leader of young people. Prof. Kenneth Wells in charge of music; Miss Lillian Scott, pianist. Write Dr. L. E. Heasley, Sec., Rt. 9, Grand Rapids, Mich.

Gaines, Mich., camp, August 26-Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. C. W. Ruth, Dr. H. C. Morrison, Rev. H. L. Cox, Rev. W. Butler, Miss Esther Williamson, Secretary. Mrs. Grace Millard, 614 W. Michigan Ave., East Lansing, Mich.

Maybee, Mich., camp, August 11-21. Workers: Miss Edna Banning, J. C. Walker and wife, the Douglas Brothers, (Scottish duetists). Mrs. Clara Palmer, Sec., 544 Thompson St., Ann Arbor, Mich.

MISSISSIPPI.

Frost Bridge, Miss., camp, August 19-28. Workers: Rev. E. A. Young and other helpers. Address Mrs. J. E. Moody, Sec., Waynesboro, Miss.

Cleveland, Miss., camp, August 11-22. Workers: Rev. E. E. McKeithen, E. E. McKeithen, Jr., song leader. Write Mrs. S. C. Taylor, Sec., 297 S. Court St., Cleveland, Miss.

MISSOURI.

Ava, Mo., camp, August 25-Sept. 4. Workers: A. P. Breneman and wife, C. E. Woodson and local assistants. For information write Mrs. Mattie Wallace, Ava, Mo., Route 1.

NEBRASKA.

Kearney, Neb., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Rev. E. O. Hobbs, Rev. Jarrette and Dell Aycock, Mrs. C. P. Turner. Address all communications to Mr. B. J. Patterson, Sec., Kearney, Neb.

Imperial, Neb., camp, August 19-28. Workers: Thomas Clark Henderson, Jay and Virginia Rice. Jno. J. Kitt, Sec., Wauweta, Neb.

NEW JERSEY.

Erma, N. J., camp, Sept. 9-18. Workers: Rev. C. B. Fugett, Rev. K. Hawley Jackson and wife. For information write Earl Woolson, Cape May, N. J., R.F.D.

Glassboro, N. J., camp, August 11-21. Workers: Rev. H. J. Olsen, R. G. Flexon, Alvin Young, Write M. Gallagher, 40 Myrtle Ave., Pitman, N. J.

National Park, N. J., camp, August 12-21. Workers: Rev. Bona Fleming, Rev. John Fleming, Mr. Burl P. Sparks, singer.

Fletcher Grove, Delanco, N. J., camp, August 27-Sept. 5. Workers: Rev. Theo. Elsner, Mrs. Theo. Elsner, Rev. Richard G. Flexon, Jr.

OHIO.

Millersburg, Ohio, camp, August 18-29. Workers: Rev. E. L. and daughters. For further information write Mrs. E. D. Hedington, Sec., Millersburg, Ohio, Rt. 7.

Unopolis, Ohio, camp, August 25-Sept. 4. Workers: L. S. Hoover, Rev. Herb Walker, Prof. N. B. Vandall has charge of the music. Address Geo. W. Watan, Unopolis, Ohio.

Portage, Ohio, camp, August 18-28. Workers: Geo. E. Kulp and John E. Hewson, Song leader, A. H. Johnston and wife. Address E. L. Day, Sec.

Circleville, Ohio, camp, August 26-Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. T. P. Roberts, Rev. Howard W. Sweeten, Rev. Charles L. Slater, Rev. E. A. Keaton, Cor. Sec., 481 N. High St., Chillicothe, Ohio.

Findlay, Ohio, camp, August 11-21. Workers: C. H. Stalker, B. H. Haynie, Mrs. A. R. Smith, W. B. Vandall, singer. Miss Florine Ewing, pianist. G. W. Egbert, Sec.

OKLAHOMA.

Blackwell, Okla., camp, August 25-Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. C. H. Babcock, Rev. Geo. Bennard and Willard Davis. Address Mrs. A. L. Wright, Sec., 307 E. College, Blackwell, Okla.

Thomas, Okla., camp, Sept. 15-25. Workers: Rev. C. H. Babcock, Rev. Alie and Emma Irick. For information write to Miss Anna Kraybill, Sec., Thomas, Okla.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

Epworth, S. C., camp, August 19-28. Workers: Dr. E. P. Taylor, Dr. John Paul and others. Address Rev. W. P. B. Kinard, Epworth, S. C.

TENNESSEE.

Holmes' Gap, Tenn., camp, Aug. 18-28. Workers: Rev. C. B. Jernigan, Rev. Mrs. Johnny Jernigan, J. D. Shelton, Chorister. Miss Johnny Jernigan, pianist and violinist. Miss Margaret Jernigan, soloist. J. W. Taylor, Sec., and Treas., Bush Creek, Tenn.

Greeneville, Tenn., camp, Sept. 1-11. Workers: Rev. C. M. Dunaway, Miss Ruth Harris in charge of music. Address Mrs. Flora Willis, care Mrs. C. A. Vann, Greeneville, Tenn.

Dyer, Tenn., camp, August 18-28. Workers: Dr. A. O. Henricks, Rev. S. W. Strickland, Miss Ruth Harris, song leader. Joe T. Hall, Sec., Dyer, Tenn.

TEXAS.

Atlanta, Tex., camp, August 12-21. Workers: Dr. R. T. Williams, The Latham Sisters, pianist and leaders of song. Mary S. Perdue, Sec.

Noonday, Texas, camp, August 10-21. Workers: J. B. McBride, C. P. Gossett, song leader. F. B. Dickard, Sec., Hallsville, Tex.

VIRGINIA.

Spotsylvania, Va., camp, August 19-29. Workers: Rev. Fred Canaday, Rev. W. L. King, Rev. Bessie B. Larkin. Mrs. W. L. King and Mrs. G. B. King in charge of young people's work. Mrs. Merton Steelman and son, song leader. Address Mrs. B. K. Andrews, Sec., Spotsylvania, Va.

Locust Grove, Va., camp, August 26-Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. F. E. Shoup, Rev. H. A. Frederick, Rev. J. M. Jennings. For information write Mrs. Lillie R. Bowles, Sec., Locust Grove, Va.

Drainesville, Va., camp, August 19-28. Workers: Rev. John Norberry. Song leader, Mrs. Marion Birrell. For information address Anna L. Hyatt, Sec., 163 Adams St., N. W., Washington, D. C.

Salem, Va., camp, Sept. 9-19. Workers: Dr. J. W. Carter and Rev. O. H. Callis. For information write J. O. True, Pres., Salem, Va.

WISCONSIN.

Hillsboro, Wis., camp, August 10-22. Workers: Preston Kennedy, James Bane, Raymond Lewis with Bro. Enyeart song leaders. For information address May Markee, Hillsboro, Wis.

A GREAT EXPERIENCE.

May the 4th will always be remembered as the greatest day on the calendar. It was my emancipation day. I have been a Methodist preacher for 25 years and God has honored my ministry in an unusual way, and the church has been a real mother to me, my brethren have been unusually kind and considerate. But some five years ago I became convicted for a deeper work of grace in my heart. It seems that I tried everything but to no avail. Joy seemed to die, the music slipped out of my message and I began to live in Paul's sad exclamation: "O wretched man that I am, who shall deliver me from the body of this death?" But I could not say with him: "I thank God through Jesus Christ, our Lord."

I came into the world with a subconscious pre-natal fear, a fear that had cast a shadow over all life's pathway. I lost my health, got into debt, and for three years I have felt that death would be a great boon, and but for the grace of God I would have sought to end it all.

The first of May the crisis came and I knew something had to be done. The afternoon of May the 3rd I took my Bible and went to the mountain and spent the afternoon and a part of the night waiting on the Lord. The morning of the 4th I slipped away to the mountain again. I was able to be more definite than ever before. I was able to say with a conviction I had not known: "Right here I will stay until I die or until God lifts the burden." Just before noon the clouds lifted and the Holy Spirit brought the 103rd Psalm to me as his message for me, and as I repeated slowly: "Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits; who forgiveth all thine iniquities; who healeth all thy diseases; who satisfieth thy mouth with good things so that thy youth is renewed like the eagles." Without undue excitement and with but little conscious emotion, I felt a thrill as an electric shock and I knew that God, for Christ's sake, had lifted my burden, and my fear, the fear of a lifetime was gone, forever gone. And the strange, sweet peace, God's peace simply flooded my soul. Only those who have been there can share the meaning of it all.

I know now what Moses found at the bush, what Jacob found at Jabbok, what Isaiah felt when the coal touched his lips, and I know the meaning of pentecost. I know what Mr. Wesley felt at a quarter to nine at Aldersgate Street. I know what Finney found in the evening of his conversion. I know something of Mr. Moody's experience as he walked along a New York street. I know my Lord who has been my Savior for years from the guilt of sin, as he becomes my Savior from the power of sin. I can now say "I thank God through Jesus Christ our Lord."

Weeks have come and gone. I have preached the same sermons, but they are different. I have been quietly measuring and weighing it all in the light of the Bible which is the only rule of our faith and practice. I find that in keeping with the meaning of pentecost I want to tell it. "Ye shall be witnesses," and that is the only apology for this paper.

It is too early to make plans, but I find a desire to throw our doors and our hearts wide open and invite tired, hungry, nervous people to come and rest, pray and get the full benefit of my experience. My years of study in the control of nerves would be a great help to many. If there are those whose lives are tormented with fear and haunted with failure, it will be the joy of my life to help.

W. Hardy Neal,

General Evangelist, Green Forest, Ark.

A series of sermons on days of special occasions in the church calendar is "Days of the Son of Man." It has some interesting material for special presentation. It was written by W. M. Mackay, D.D., and sells for $2.00. Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky.

THE MODERNIST.

I've joined the modernistic crowd,
There ain't no inspiration;
The Pentateuch is all a fake,
And so is Revelation.

The Bible is not up to date,
It don't fit modern thinking;
The Jonah tale we can't accept,
Or David, and his slinging

Theres Job, with all his ills and pains,
With no thought of complaining;
Which proves the story is a fake,
As modern minds now take it.

Take Moses, and his walking stick,
Old Pharaoh's crowd deceiving;
He never could have pulled that trick,
On modern minds, we're thinking.

So, as grand-dad was a monkey,
Then, I'm a monkey too;
I'll lay aside my Bible,
And crawl back to the zoo.

Rev. M. L. Watson.
Central City, Ill.

Every Christian wants to know how to be a better soul winner. Dr. Scarborough has given us a fine study of the methods of Jesus in this great task in his book, "How Jesus Won Men." It sells for $2.00. Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky.

COMFORT BIBLE

Large pica type. (See specimen below). Beautiful morocco binding with overlapping edges. Thin and light, size 6x9-1 in. thick, weight only 22 ounces, fine India paper, red under gold edges, silk head bands and marker, family record. Regular $8.00 value. Our special price $5.00, postpaid. PENTECOSTAL PUB. CO., Louisville, Ky.

The superiority of HEBR

6 Now when these things were thus ordained, the priests went always

Is the Antichrist at Hand?

What of Mussolini--The Iron Man of Rome?
The Revival of the Roman Empire?
The End of the Present World Order?

THE book of the hour, containing Bible evidence of a most startling nature from the world of demonology, politics and religion concerning the end of the present world order.

Over
30,000
Sold!

Two Editions: Cloth, $1.00; postpaid, $1.10.
Paper, 50c.; postpaid, 55c.

At your bookstore, or from
Pentecostal Publishing Company
523 South First Street
LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY

BAPTISM QUESTION SETTLED

Oldest records confirm Sprinkling! Latest research finds original facts all should know. Illustrated book, plain as day, 30c; 5 for $1, to cover actual cost. Largest sale ever known. Ed. limited.

Mahaffey Press, Gray Court, S. C.

DR. RIDOUT ON DRESS QUESTION.

At last the holiness people are going to have a real, outspoken, frank, powerful booklet on the Dress Question. Dr. Ridout has written it. Title is, "The Dress Question and Modern Abominations." Price will be 15c. Send in your order and read this book and get your friends to read it. PENTECOSTAL PUBLISHING CO. Louisville, Kentucky.

JUST OUT!!

"THE METHODIST CRISIS"

Dr. Ridout has put into pamphlet form under above title the story of the fight for orthodoxy which took place on the floor of the New Jersey Conference, Asbury Park, N. J., last March, in which he and Dr. H. P. Sloan and others debated with Bishop Anderson and Dr. H. H. Meyer, Sunday School Editor, the issues of Modernism within Methodism.

In addition to Dr. Ridout's story there is a fine write-up of the affair by Rev. H. Decker who was present at the debate and whose story appeared in the "Essentialist."

Let every Methodist send and get a copy of this booklet. Every Methodist minister--North and South--should read the story. It will stir your blood. It will show you how Modernism is getting a terrific grip on Methodist Bishops, Editors and Leaders. It will also show you your duty to stand up and show your colors in the hour of peril.

Dr. Sloan, Dr. Ridout and others take the fight for orthodoxy right into their Annual Conferences and it is there the battle should be fought out. Price 15c, or 7 for $1.00. PENTECOSTAL PUBLISHING CO. Louisville, Kentucky.

THE FIGHT IS ON

The fight against sin and for holiness.

The fight against impurity and for purity.

The fight against worldliness in the church and for a holy people.

The fight against immodest dress and for a modest womanhood.

The fight against those who would destroy the Bible, and for the Word.

The fight against Sabbath desecration and for Sabbath observance.

The fight against lawlessness, and for obedience to the law.

The fight against trashy literature and for wholesome literature.

The fight against indifference and for a revival.

THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD IS IN THIS GREAT BATTLE FOR RIGHTEOUSNESS.

and the only way for us to make the fight effective in your community is for you to help us by placing it into every home possible. You will be pleased to know that you can send THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD from now until January 1, 1928, for only 50c, and if we may have your co-operation, you will be instrumental in making this fight effective in your community.

Allow us to suggest that you tell every one you come in contact with what THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD is fighting for, and tell them of this special introductory offer. Also speak to one or more financially able and liberal persons, tell them what you are trying to do, and ask for their co-operation in putting the paper into a number of homes. Then, too, you will find a number of people who tithe who will be glad to invest a little tithe money in a fight of this kind.

Use the blanks below and send in your list within the next few days, so as to give the subscribers the benefit of the full 25 weeks.

Pentecostal Publishing Company, Louisville, Kentucky.

Enclosed find $..... for which please send The Pentecostal Herald weekly from now until January, 1928, to the following:

Name	Name
Address	Address
Name	Name
Address	Address
Name	Name
Address	Address
Name	Name
Address	Address
Name	Name
Address	Address

PENTECOSTAL HERALD

Dr. H. C. Morrison, Editor
Mrs. H. C. Morrison, Associate Editor

Louisville, Ky., Wednesday, Aug. 31, 1927.

Entered at Louisville, Ky., Postoffice as Second Class Matter.

$1.50 Per Year.
Vol. 39, No. 35.

BETTER THINK IT OVER.

By The Editor.

OUR probation will soon be ended. Our conduct fixes character, and character fixes destiny. Where will you spend eternity? Three books will be opened on the day of judgment—the Book of Life, the Book of Records, and the Book, which is the Bible out of which we shall be judged. The same old Book which says, "Without holiness no man shall see the Lord," and "The blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin," will be there. No one can deny the truth of its statements on that day.

* * * *

A searching sermon on secret sins, and the importance of confession and restoration often creates a stir and brings the most unexpected revelations to light. Preaching ought to uncover everything of a sinful character that the judgment day will reveal. Now there is pardon; then it will be too late to ask for mercy. Today the sinner may repent; in that day he will be punished. God grant that we may all sit under a ministry which will search us just as severely as the judgment day will. Now we can change; then it will be too late.

* * * *

If there is any man in the final day who will deserve hell above all others, it is the preacher whom God has called to proclaim the truth to the people, to warn them against sin, to call them to that holiness without which no man shall see the Lord, but who, instead, sought position and favor for himself, who sought the people's money and neglected their souls, who comforted them in their worldliness, excused their sins and joined with them in the ridicule of holiness. For such a poor, self-deceived soul there doubtless awaits a fearful judgment.

* * * *

How contemptible is the earnest preacher of righteousness who makes no apology for the plain words of the Bible on sin, hell and holiness, but who presses the awful truths home upon the people with an earnestness born of a consciousness of the presence of God and the value of human souls. We say, how contemptible is such a preacher to lawyers who are robbing their clients, and physicians who are seducing their patients, and professors of schools who have thrown away the Bible, and merchants who sell sand sugar, and real estate men who will tell two lies where one might have answered their dishonest purpose better, and bankers who are wasting their depositors' money in future, and politicians who have mortgaged their souls to the devil, and society women who murder their innocents and pet poodle dogs, and ecclesiastics who are the pets of wealth and the world's culture, who draw big salaries and let the people go unrebuked and unwarned into hell. The faithful preacher will many times be made to feel lonely and despised in this world, but he will meet a glad welcome in the next.

* * * *

Did you say that you did not believe in holiness? Have you ever read the New Testament? You say that you have, but how is it that you missed that saying of Christ's, "Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God;" and that saying of Paul's, "Follow peace with all men, and holiness, without which no man shall see the Lord;" and that statement by the same disciple, "For this is the will of God, even your sanctification." "The very God of peace sanctify you wholly." My friend, we suggest that you talk less and pray more. There is coming a time when a heart from sin set free will be worth more to you than all the world besides. Better think it over.

A Chapter from My Autobiography

CHAPTER XXVI.

MY FIRST YEAR AS AN EVANGELIST.

MY first revival after my location to become an evangelist was held in Middlesboro, Ky. The young town was then on a boom. We had no church, and preached in a hall. Bro. Sam Peeples was pastor. We had a fine meeting at Pineville, at which Andy Johnston, one of the most noted quick shots in Kentucky (he had killed a number of men, and one woman), was powerfully converted. I shall never forget the night he was saved, and the scene which followed when he and the brother of one of his victims met in the altar and embraced each other. Poor Andy, he ran well for several years, but unfortunately was made town marshal, and not long after entering upon his duties was shot down while attempting to arrest a man and died in the streets with his boots on.

I pressed the battle almost without intermission for six months, and having not yet learned how to husband my strength, at the close of the first half year I was much fatigued, and suffering with sore throat. The last meeting of this first six months' campaign was held at Hopkinsville, Ky., Rev. Granville Lyon, pastor. Hopkinsville is one of the finest little cities in Southern Kentucky. The Southern Methodist Church is strong there. The church had been without a revival for sometime, and a fine crop of young people had grown up, and were ready for the harvest. Bro. Lyon, the pastor, was a fine song leader, mighty in prayer, and one of the most active pastors I have ever assisted in meetings. No one came to the altar that he did not speak to, no one was converted that he did not shake their hand, find out where they lived, and inquire into their wishes about church membership. He visited and prayed and looked after the delinquents through the day, brought in encouraging reports, and was all over the town pressing the battle in every quarter.

It will be hard for the reader to believe, when I say one-half of the pastors I have assisted in meetings, take things entirely too easy. Many people come to the altar to whom they never speak, many get converted with whom they never shake hands, whose names and addresses they do not get, keeping in doors in the day, and failing to get notices of the meetings in the daily papers. It is hard to have a great revival with an easy going, inactive pastor, and there are many more such men in the ministry than one would suppose.

The meetings took a deep hold upon the town and country, and many nights after every seat was taken and all standing room was occupied, the doors were locked with many persons outside. The Rev. Thomas Bottomley, a superannuated Methodist minister, many years a member of the Louisville Conference, up in the eighties, but of sprightly mind and fervent spirit, was a great help to us. He was one of the most delightful old men I ever met, was loved by all the people, and a great moral and spiritual force in the community.

On Saturday mornings we had special meetings for the young converts only. Bros. Lyon, Bottomley and myself would each give them a short talk on the duties and privileges of the Christian life, the various means of grace, etc. Such meetings for young converts while the revival is on are of great value. They become settled and established before the enemy has opportunity to draw them away.

The Lord gave us a great meeting. I never saw brighter conversions in my life. All classes of people were touched, and something near one hundred members were added to our church. It was here that I met with Earnest Folks, a pure souled man with large heart and frail body, for whom later on I opened the way to the far West where he has been a faithful itinerant for many years. Just as the meetings were closing in Hopkinsville, Bishop Hargrove appointed me to the pastorate of Broadway M. E. Church, South, in Louisville, Ky., to fill out the last six months of Dr. Gilby Kelley's fourth year, Dr. Kelley having been compelled to resign because of poor health. Bro. Overton was then presiding elder of the Louisville District. He telegraphed, and afterward wrote me on the subject. My jaded physical condition and the fact that I was moving THE HERALD (Methodist) to Louisville at the time influenced me in the matter, so I took charge of the church, if I remember correctly, about the first of April, and remained until conference met in September. We had a profitable time; quite a number of people came into the church, and many were stirred up to seek a higher Christian education.

When I commenced the work at Broadway it was understood that I was still an evangelist, and under no circumstances would give up that work. Strong pressure was brought to bear, at the close of the six months, to bring me back to the pastorate; and I was offered a good church with much larger re-

(Continued on page 8)

NOT TO BE USED WITHOUT COPYRIGHT PERMISSION

OF ASBURY THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

MISUSED SCRIPTURES.

Rev. O. G. Mingledorff, D. D.

ONCE a passage of Scripture has been applied in a wrong way, it is hard to set it right again. Some years ago this writer heard a celebrated bishop tell the Lord, that, according to his own Word, "the Gospel is the power of God unto salvation, or unto damnation." But the good bishop was not alone in his quotation: one may hear that, or something similar to it, almost anywhere in the churches. The bishop and his coadjutors make an effort to quote from 2 Cor. 2:15, 16, where St. Paul says: "For we are unto God a sweet savour of Christ, in them that are saved, and in them that perish: To the one we are the savour of death unto death; and to the other the savour of life unto life." Note that the apostle does not mention the Gospel in this quotation, but says that "we" are this savour. One is not surprised that he should ask: "And who is sufficient for these things?" Maybe this is a trick of Satan to make men shift responsibility from themselves to the Gospel; but the trick will not work. We are responsible for the souls of men.

Here is another that we met with some few days ago in an article written by a very learned college president, with D.D., LL.D. attached to his name: "For none of us liveth to himself, and no man dieth to himself." This is from Romans 14:7, and is an oft-quoted verse. The writer made it apply to our inter-human relations, as most men do when they quote it; but the verse has no such bearing. Had the writer quoted the 8th verse, he might have seen the folly of his interpretation. "For whether we live, we live unto the Lord; and whether we die, we die unto the Lord: whether we live therefore, or die, we are the Lord's." We are our brother's keepers; but the doctrine cannot be forced out of this passage, although many are making the effort so to do.

The writer used to sit quite frequently under the platitudinous vociferations of an old divine whose hatred of holiness was almost sublime. About two or three times in the course of a year he would enter his pulpit on Sabbath morning with flushed face, plus certain nervous movements of his limbs—a signal for a declaration of war on a small group of "holiness cranks" who, although they paid far more than their quota of the old man's salary and never missed a meeting of any sort in the church, were nevertheless a thorn in his side; for they made his tobacco taste bad and smell worse. On such occasions his favorite text was Philippians 3:13, 14: "Brethren, I count not myself to have apprehended: but this one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." In a few moments the old preacher's face would take on a scarlet hue, spit would fly clear over the book-board, while he seemed bent on pounding the insides out of the sacred Word. He never called names, but looked daggers at certain members of the congregation, declaring madly that St. Paul was too humble and modest to make any big claims; holiness was something to be lived, not professed. If he had just read the 15th verse, he would have found St. Paul professing Christian perfection; but that verse would have ruined his "Sugar Stick" forever. One could let the dear old man alone, but for the fact that he has a host of kinsfolk in the pulpit, who are playing with the same passage in order to fight holiness. This sort of thing is a shameful perversion of the Word of God. It is as reprehensible as the conduct of the old Quaker who used as a text the words, "Top-knot come down," when he wished to berate the ladies for the manner in which they were wearing their hair. God-called men have no time for dealing in such trashy use of the Scriptures.

In Matthew 16:13-19 we have a passage that has long been a veritable battle-ground of foolishness. We quote the passage in full to get it before our readers. "When Jesus came into the coasts of Cæsarea Philippi, he asked his disciples, saying, Whom do men say that I the Son of man am? And they said, Some say that thou art John the Baptist: some, Elias; and others, Jeremias; or one of the prophets. He saith unto them, But whom say ye that I am? And Simon Peter answered and said unto him, Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God. And Jesus answered and said unto him, 'Blessed art thou, Simon Bar-jona: for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee; but my Father which is in heaven. And I say also unto thee, That thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it. And I will give unto thee the keys of the kingdom of heaven: and whatsoever thou shalt bind on earth shall be bound in heaven: and whatsoever thou shalt loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven.'" The Roman Catholics teach that this passage proves that Jesus Christ founded his church upon St. Peter as their first pope, and that he gave to him and all succeeding priests of their denomination authority to forgive sins; but not one word of this claim has ever yet been proved. The Master was making a beautiful play upon two words used in the Greek text, Petros and Petra, the former meaning a small stone and the latter a great table rock. He meant to say: "Thou art Petros—a little stone; but upon this Petra—a great table rock, Myself, I will build my Church." He does not say found, but build: the Church had been already founded upon him for more than four thousand years. He is the Rock of Ages, the cornerstone which had been rejected by the Jewish builders. He is, and always will be, the Church's foundation. No mere man ever was, or ever can be, big enough to be the foundation of the Church of God.

Some Protestant theologians have assayed to answer Rome by teaching that Christ has built His Church on Peter's confession: "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." Alas! No confession is big enough for the Church's foundation. Her foundation is Jesus Christ crucified, risen, living, and reigning forever more. Nothing less will sustain her: nothing more is needed; for in him dwells all the fullness of the Godhead bodily; and his Church is complete in him.

Rome has made great claim to the keys of the kingdom. What ridiculous claims her priests make for their power to open the kingdom of heaven for a poor soul for a monetary consideration, or to shut the door against any one whom they may not approve. Were it not so serious because of the millions of duped souls who have been led to stake their all upon it for time and eternity, the thing would be laughable. It has cursed every spot on earth where it has obtained full control—cursed it, because it could do nothing else; for it is a snare and a falsehood, and can never command God's blessing upon its deceived people.

But what about the keys of the kingdom of heaven? What does the passage mean? "When the Jews made a man a doctor of the law, they put into his hands the key of the closet in the temple where the sacred books were kept, and also tablets to write upon; signifying, by this, that they gave him authority to teach, and to explain the Scriptures to the people."—Martin. "This prophetic declaration of our Lord was literally fulfilled to Peter, as he was made the first instrument of opening, i. e., preaching the doctrine of the kingdom of heaven to the Jews, and to the Gentiles."—Clarke. The words, "Whatsoever thou shalt bind on earth," etc., were well understood by the Jews; for they were accustomed to say, that whatsoever was done on earth by their priests was also done in heaven. They even went so far as to say that when the high priest offered two goats for a sin offering on the day of atonement, two goats were likewise offered in heaven; and that when the scape-goat was let loose on earth, one was also let loose in heaven. The strange expression meant that the ministers of the Gospel were to have divinely given authority to teach the Word of God to the flock, and to have oversight over them. It did not mean that they were to have authority to lord it over God's heritage, and to fleece them at will, as some seem to imagine; but they were to be true shepherds of the sheep, and—if need be—to lay down their lives for them. We cannot learn from the Bible that either St. Peter, or any others of the Lord's apostles ever claimed to have authority to forgive sins. Peter never claimed to be a pope, nor did any of the other disciples ever so consider him. St. Paul rebuked him pretty severely, and corrected his faults; but none of them ever kneeled down to him and kissed his big toe, or called him "the holy father." Nay, nay; Peter was just a plain man like the rest of them. Men fall on their knees before the pope today; but "as Peter was coming in, Cornelius met him, and fell down at his feet, and worshipped him. But Peter took him up, saying, Stand up; I myself also am a man." Not much pope in Peter. Thank God for such men as Teddy Roosevelt, who will not disgrace our fair land by bowing the knee to a foreign potentate.

One more passage will suffice for the present. In Matthew 26:27, in instituting the Eucharist, Jesus handed the cup of wine to the disciples, saying, "Drink ye all of it." A distinguished prelate came to our town once upon a time to preach and to administer the communion to the little flock of his denomination, who lived in that place. When all had partaken of the elements he commanded the old toothless pastor to get down on his knees. Then he fed him dry oyster crackers so fast that the old man's springs ran dry; and every time he would open his mouth for another cracker, the dust would fly, much to the amusement of certain youngsters who seemed to possess a full sense of the ridiculous. When the old brother had worried down the last cracker, the officiating clergyman turned around and drank all that remained of the bottle of wine. If he had known a little Greek, he would have known that the word all in the text is a translation of the Greek word pantes, and that the Master simply meant that all of the apostles should drink some of the wine. But the dear man seemed to greatly enjoy his bottle of wine; albeit, there was enough of it to have made some less doughty man beastly drunk. "Let all things be done decently, and in order."

Seven Deadly Fallacies.

Dr. Ridout has conferred a real favor on all pastors and busy Christian workers in getting out in such convenient form a series of neat booklets packed with just the right information as to the harmful fallacies of these seven blighting "isms" which are causing so much havoc among many well-meaning people. These booklets should have the widest possible circulation. It would do much toward steadying faith in the old-time religion.

F. A. WHITTLESLEY.
Pastor Methodist Episcopal Church, Severeance, Kan.

Wanted: A Living Christ for a Dead World.

Rev. L. R. Akers, D.D., LL. D.

CHRISTIANITY is essentially the religion of good cheer. The difference between it and Paganism may be found in a choice of prepositions. The one is a religion of sorrow; the other a religion for sorrow. While Christ was called "The Man of Sorrows" it is interesting to note that his message was one of optimism. "Be of good cheer for I have overcome the world." Never was the hour so dark nor the shadows so deep that Christ could not behold his cause triumphant. He saw Lucifer fall like lightning from Heaven. In a world rent asunder by greed and carnal strife, he beheld his Kingdom covering the world as the waters cover the sea.

Never had any one such cause for pessimism, yet never has the world seen such a glorious optimist. "He came unto his own and his own received him not." "There was no room for him in the inn." He it was who, with infinite pathos, declared, "The foxes have holes and the birds of the air have nests, but the Son of Man hath no place to lay his head." "He was despised and rejected of men; a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief; we hid our faces from him and esteemed him not. He was wounded for our transgressions, bruised for our iniquities. He was oppressed and afflicted and brought as a lamb to the slaughter. He was cut off out of the land of the living. He made his grave with the wicked." Yet "He did see of the travail of his soul and was satisfied."

Christianity has always suffered from its bleak and sour professors. Some people's faces, if they were not so long, would make good hind wheels for a hearse. We should remember that anything raven in religion is repelling. Yet even the strongest characters of sacred writ at times sought the shade of the juniper tree. Few are the spirits whose sunny hours have not been overshadowed by the indigo tints of life. During the after years of the World War, we have been impressed with the universal reaction of disillusionment and pessimism which seemingly has fallen like a pall upon all nations. From the high heights of idealism we have trekked down into the miasmatic swamps of selfishness and greed. We went into the war to make the world safe for democracy, while our ambassador at the court of St. James since the War has declared that "we went in to save our skin." Amid the toppling ideals of the preceding generation, in this age of crass materialism, and ultra-luxurious living, when it would seem that our people are daily bowing at the shrines of the false deities of pleasure, lust and luxury, it is indeed difficult to keep from feeling that "the world is out of joint" and suffering from the depressing pessimism which tends toward the paralysis of personal effort.

However, the antidote for this prevailing taint of gloom should not be a blind, superficial, Pollyanna optimism. The wisest course is for us to look squarely into the face of life and interpret its facts in the light of faith in man and in the purposes of God.

It is evident that throughout Christendom there is a dearth of revival spirit and a marked decline of the missionary passion. Dr. Northridge, fraternal delegate from Irish Methodism, stirred the last General Conference of the M. E. Church, South, with his account of the Irish Revival which is still on. Said he, "That revival answered the challenge of the empty pew." When we consider today the crowded "movie" palaces, the jammed ball parks and pugilistic arenas, the crowded resorts, and then the empty churches, we are keenly conscious that man's thoughts are not on the things of God nor his feet in the path of righteousness.

During the summer months we have witnessed an almost abolition of the Sunday evening service in our churches, and even a union service of all churches fails to fill the auditorium of a single edifice. Too many prophets, like John McNeil of London, can say, "I have a church filled with holy memories and empty pews." We believe there is a cure for this condition. The remedy must be to take note of man's inherent desire for God and his fundamental instinct for worship, as well as his consciousness of sin and the need of deliverance from it.

Early Methodism made her spectacular rise to spiritual leadership in the world by way of the altar and the mourner's bench. The Gospel messages heralded by the mighty preachers of those days were concerning sin and its penalties, regeneration, and the sanctification of human hearts through personal faith in Jesus Christ and his vicarious atonement. Nine-tenths of the preaching of early Methodism was evangelistic and the other tenth had to do with the development of the spiritual life and the strengthening of the faith of the saints. Moral reform, social service, and humanitarian methods were magnified only as the fruits and graces of a genuinely transformed life, proceeding from a heart from sin set free.

Our beloved Methodism was born amid the shouts of new-born souls and she has made herself a world evangel through her mighty spiritual revival awakening. She has always fostered Christian education, but, during the years that have passed, she never made this necessary measure a substitute for the supernatural works of the Holy Spirit in human hearts.

Had we then the resources, membership, equipment and educated leaders which we now possess with the passion for the salvation of men which burned within the breasts of the early preachers, the accomplishments in those crude days would have swept the world with a divine conflagration of spiritual power, the results of which cannot be even imagined. Had we today that divine passion for bringing a lost world to the feet of our crucified Saviour, that passion which animated the heroic hearts of Asbury, Whitefield, Wesley, Coke, Whatcoat, and others, we could easily change the disheartening and alarming report of a stagnated church without an increase in converts and members, to the glorious announcement of the addition of a million souls for Methodism throughout the world.

It is high time that we realize the futility of man-made programs and return to the only source of power, namely, the guidance of the Holy Spirit and a recognition of his leadership as the head of this dispensation. Would that our bishops might issue a world call for a convocation of the Methodist ministry which would mean a tarrying before God in humility, contrition, and genuine sorrow for the spiritual barrenness and dearth that is so widely evident in the present day pulpit,—a tarrying that should endure until the long withheld Pentecost should again descend, tipping the tongues of his evangelists with the sacred fire of the skies and creating anew a ministry of John the Baptist, as well as Johns, Pauls and the Apostles. The insistent cry of every one who loves the Lord Jesus Christ should be that of the Psalmist of old, "Wilt thou not receive us again: that thy people may rejoice in thee?" This is the supreme need of the hour: a God-sent revival, not a man-made revival, a prayed-down revival in answer to the prayers of people who know and meet the conditions of prevailing prayer.

As I travel from one end of this land to another and have opportunity to see for myself the condition of the churches; as I read the various religious periodicals and talk with men and women in positions of influence and power in the church, my heart would be sick, yes, nigh unto despair, if I did not know God and that he answers prayer. When I hear the gross error and the superficial and unsatisfying things taught by many professedly orthodox ministers; the absence of a real, living Gospel from many who do not preach error but who are certainly not preaching the truth in its fullness and in the power of the Holy Spirit; the unconcern of apparently the great mass of the membership of our churches regarding the loss, both at home and abroad; the rapidly growing compromise with the world on the part of a very large proportion of the membership of our churches; the almost forgotten family altar, and the neglect of private prayer, together with the openly avowed disbelief in prayer on the part of not a few; the inactivity in soul winning on the part of an overwhelming majority of the members of our church today; these things cannot but fill any intelligent and properly instructed Christian with a sorrow that almost breaks the heart.

The spiritual barrenness of our own land has brought with it a marked subsidence of the missionary passion. The nerve of our missionary endeavor seems to be paralyzed. Our much boasted "far-flung battle line" of missions is being attenuated at a rapid rate. The spirit which gave it birth is receding into a mere impulse of spiritual interest.

The passion which gave birth to the most remarkable spirit of sacrificial service since the apostolic era appears to have been anesthetized at the very time when the object of its accomplishment was in its grasp. The soldiers of Christ, instead of pressing forward, in a conquering crusade which would bring the crown of victory are drifting about in barques of ease amid the lotus flowers of an enervated generation.

India, China, and the far islands of the sea still constitute the heartbreak of the Christ who died to save all men from the shackles of sin, superstition and despair. The situation calls for a desperately earnest endeavor; first, a universal getting together in a covenant of prayer,—intercessory prayer, definite prayer, intense prayer, persistent prayer; then the preaching of a glorious and conquering Gospel, a Gospel shot through with the shining promises of redemption from sin. This is no hour for a muffled message; no time for a bootleg religion; but the glorious truth of full salvation, which comprehends the regeneration of the human heart and its sanctification or cleansing from all sin; this complete cure, bringing with it the largest measure of growth in grace and consciousness of a victorious life,—this, and this alone, will suffice for present day needs and give humanity a surcease from its sorrow and sin.

A Thought for Thinkers.

The All-wise Creator has provided a sufficient remedy for every ill and placed it within reach of the suffering. A revival resulting in the permanent application of Golden Rule principles in every phase of life is the remedy and the only remedy that can save the world from utter ruin. Everything else has been tried and failed. The human family as it exists today is a conglomeration resulting from wars and rumors of wars, selfishness in constant action, wealth and poverty, education and ignorance, industry and idleness, luxury and starvation. Nothing but the revival indicated will give us the homes, the churches, the schools, the business and the society the world must have or fail. God will give such a revival to the world as soon as the people are ready to receive it. Think! DR. ROBERT L. SELLE.

THE KISS OF JUDAS.

Rev. Edward R. Kelley.

"Judas, betrayest thou the Son of Man with a kiss."—Luke 22:48.

THE last private conversation the Master had with his disciples had taken place. The last pass-over feast had been eaten, and the first Lord's supper had been partaken of. It was while sitting at the table partaking of the last named feast that the Master said to the arch traitor: "What thou doest, do quickly." And immediately Judas left the room to complete his bargain for the sale of the life of his Lord to the officary of the Church of God—at that time. After singing a hymn the Master withdrew from the room where the feast and Supper were eaten and went to the Mount of Olives, accompanied by his disciples, and withdrew himself into the deep shadows of the olives of Gethsemane there to meet with his Father face to face. With the great heart cry he approached the Father; "Father, if Thou be willing, remove this cup from me: nevertheless not my will, but Thine, be done."

Judas had gone from the room hurriedly, and angry and uncomfortable; for his secret sin had been discovered; and having found his fellow conspirators and receiving from them the thirty pieces of silver—the price of a common slave—he comes with the money in his pockets, and as he walks the music of the jingle of the coin is sweet to his ears; and in this spirit he leads the rabble into the presence of the Master. What a picture!

Is it not rather strange, think you, that Judas should have added the awful, hellish horror of a kiss to the treachery of his betrayal of his Lord? Why, one would naturally think that Judas himself would have shuddered at such a thought, but, poor fellow, he had sold his soul to the devil and now he was only reaping his reward.

But this only illustrates to what extent a man will go in sin; to what extent the current of wrong-doing and the life of sin will carry a man when he once gives himself up to it. You will recall the first time you ever swore, and how the blood rushed to your face in a blush of shame, and then later on it became a habit and grew on you until almost every word you spoke was an oath. You will recall the first glass of strong drink you took and thought nothing of it, but after a while the habit grew and the appetite increased until you became an outcast from society, friends and home. Oh! how sin will drag a man down toward hell.

Have you ever thought seriously about the character of Judas? Upon one occasion some one asked Dr. Chapman: "Doctor, can you tell me why it was Jesus chose Judas as a disciple?" "I am not concerned why Jesus chose Judas," the man of God replied, "but I am concerned why Jesus thought enough of me to call me to his side, to be his follower." This man loved money. He enjoyed to have it about him, and this enjoyment increased during the time he was the Lord's treasurer.

One would naturally think his association with the Master would have made a different man of him, and that it would be impossible for him to have such base thoughts and desires, but we are confronted with this fact: Keeping company with Jesus failed to make this man what he should have been, and what Jesus desired him to be.

There is a lesson just here for us. It is this: It is not safe to presume too much on the fact that we have been reared and tutored in Christian homes and under Christian influences, or that we belong to some church. It is much better to be brought up in a Christian home, rather than to be brought up in a home where Christ is not known; but this alone does not mean that you are a child of God. It has not been very long since we heard in Methodist circles something about the "preservation of the child." This pernicious teaching originated in the fertile brain of one of the leaders of Methodism, and its author denied the fact of inherited depravity in the heart of the infant. But see here! Here is your little boy, with golden, flaxen hair and eyes of blue. He is like other children of his age when he wants his way and can't have it. He gets mad just like they do, and just like some of you big, over-grown Christians do. Do you for a moment think that I'd care to have my child "preserved" in that condition? It is a fact that at the present time and age he is innocent, but would it be either satisfactory to him or to his parents for him to continue through life with that sin-principle within him? Ah! my brother, it is possible to be brought up in a Christian home, surrounded by the best of Christian influences, taught the Apostle's Creed, the Lord's Prayer and the Ten Commandments, and at last wind up in hell. We may be brought up under such circumstances as these and in the midst of such surroundings, and still be out of harmony with Jesus Christ. The men who assisted Noah build the ark, and to whom he preached, were all lost. King Hiram was the first man to put his name on the subscription list for the building of Solomon's temple, but he never enjoyed so much as a glimpse of it. And Judas was the treasurer of the Lord for three years or more and got meaner and more devilish, until he sold his Master for thirty pieces of silver. Many of you condemn this man for the bargain he entered into, but I have known people, members of the Church and professed Christians, to sell their Lord for much less than what Judas received for the Master. I have known Jesus to be sold for a dime, ay! for a nickel. Every time you attend the rotten theatre, every time you sit at the progressive euchre or bridge whist table, every time you attend the dance; you sell Jesus for much less, very much less than what Judas sold him for. Judas got more for the Master than what many receive for him today.

Ah! but that kiss! Have you ever thought how black and hellish it was? God put no such idea into the head or mind of that man. It was conceived in hell and born of the devil. Do you think he thought how it would look at the time? Do you think he cared anything for appearances? He cared not for any of these things. They concerned him not. It was the manner he had in fulfilling his part of the hellish contract he had entered into with the official members of the Church—at that time. Little by little this man had lost all interest in Jesus as the Messiah, and thought he could affect an outward affection that would blind the eyes of the other disciples. It looks as if he succeeded pretty well, too, does it not? But I am sure of this one thing: He did not deceive his Lord. We may be able to hide our secret sin from the eyes of our friends and companions, but we cannot hide it from God's eternal sight.

Let us look for a moment at the attitude of Jesus when he received the kiss of the arch-traitor. Elizabeth Stuart Phelps in picturing this incident says: "The lips of Jesus curled. Every fibre in his being recoiled. But he submitted to the embrace of Judas, as a god might submit to the touch of a befooled spirit in the process of some plan of events too grand to be disturbed by personal repulsion." This may be considered good rhetoric, but it is not true. I cannot get myself to believe even for a moment that the lips of Jesus Christ curled in scorn as Judas planted the kiss of treason upon his face; but I can believe that his great heart almost broke as his own disciple, one whom he had called and ordained to preach his gospel, took this means of debasing more completely his own soul. The lips of Jesus never curled in scorn upon any soul; but his great heart has been torn and wrenched more than once at the faithlessness of his followers. May God help you and me to be true to him!

The awful thing of it all is, that Judas' heart did not break; but it did not. He had gone too far now. He never repented of his foul, devilish deed. If he had, the Master would have gladly forgiven him. His heart was filled with remorse at his foulness and he hanged himself and went to hell. Repentance never drives a man to suicide; but it does drive a man to God.

I have given you a fearful, an awful, a terrible picture! Now then, what message has all this in it for us? Is your heart right with God? The difficulty with Judas was his heart. He was wrong in his heart, not in his head. If you are a sinner tonight, it is because you have never given your heart to Jesus. You may give him your head and even then be finally lost; but if you will give him your heart you will be eternally saved. Outwardly this man was a good church treasurer. In a formal way he seemed to be like the rest of the twelve, but at the heart he was out of tune with Jesus.

"Master, my heart is out of tune,

A poor, discordant thing;
With chords that will not chime aright,
And notes that falsely ring;
With many a harsh and jarring tone
And many a broken string.

"To Thine own golden keynote, Lord,
Tune Thou this, heart of mine;
And shape my will's poor wavering flight
Till it is one with Thine;
And dwell with me until I reach
The Father's house divine."

Another difficulty with Judas was, he had lost genuine loyalty and devotion of heart for the Master. This is a fearful state to enter into, but, O! so many have thus lost out, either consciously or unconsciously; and like Samson, you go out as at other times and shake thyself and "wist not that the Lord has departed" from you.

Brothers, when you and I consider even for a moment what Jesus has done for us, we can but acknowledge that he deserves the most perfect loyalty and obedience that we can possibly render him. Is it not too bad that he has to suffer on account of our disloyalty, as he does? How often have we been guilty of wrenching his great heart of compassion and love?

The story is told of General Robert E. Lee that some months after the Civil War had ended one of his old soldiers met him on the public road as he was riding to Lexington, Va., to take his seat as president of the college, and said to him: "General Lee, will you do me a favor?" "Certainly," the general said. "Then please get off of your horse." The great commander did as he was asked, and after the man had tied the animal to one of the near-by trees he came back and said: "General, I am one of your old soldiers, and I just want you to let me give three rousing cheers for 'Marse Robert.'" General Lee's head fell upon his breast as the first yell was given. The next yell was choked in sobs, while the third died away in tears. Ah! my brother, if such loyalty as that can be aroused in the soul for a brave and generous leader of men, what shall we not give to Jesus Christ, who thought it not robbery to be equal with God, but he emptied himself and came in the form of a servant that through him we might have life, and that we might have it more abundantly? Will we not yield to him, as Christian men and women, our very best? Some one has said; "The great trouble with Judas was that he never gave himself in any self-denying surrender to Christ. He was all the time receiving from Christ, but he never gave back anything." And such an attitude as that always means ruin. And is it not just as true of many today? Is it not true that many fail at this all-important point, and by your failure fall short of the great enjoyment of the real "worth-while" Christian; the blessing and experience of holiness!

Dr. G. Campbell Morgan, the great English preacher, tells of a young woman who came to him after a service and said: "I wish I had five loaves and two small fishes that I could give to the Master." "But you have a talent, do you not?" the man of God asked. "None that I know of." "Do you sing?" he asked. "A little." "Well, this is the talent that God has given you. Will you not use it for him?" Hesitating for a little while at first, afterward she yielded her voice to God and Dr. Morgan had her sing the following evening in the meetings he was conducting. That night one man gave his heart to the Master; not on account of the preached message, but through the gospel of song, and for years he has been one of the greatest personal workers for Jesus in England. I call upon every man, woman and child here to bring what you have and place it at the feet of your Lord, be it great or small, and from this hour on be God's fully surrendered child. Brothers, think! how much Jesus has done for you and me, and how little we have done for him. O, I declare unto you that it should break our hearts!

"General Booth, what is the secret of your power?" asked a man of him upon one occasion. "The secret of my power lies in this one thing. When I said to God: 'God, take the best there is in me and use it for Thee.' Not till I got to the place where I could give the best I had in me to God, did I have victory and power." Believe me, brothers, it pays to give God our best. Will you do so just now; just at this moment? Come.

Can a Christian be An Evolutionist?

Rev. W. M. Young, A. M., Sc. D.

"BY MEANS OF RESIDENT FORCES."

WE wish to take up in this article the third point of LeConte's definition that "Evolution is (1) continuous, progressive change, (2) according to fixed laws, (3) by means of resident forces."

This last proposition that the world and all that is in it and all other worlds and suns came into being "by means of resident forces," is the basis of that vast amount of materialism, agnosticism, and atheism which is spreading over our country. Prof. E. D. Cope says: "The doctrine of evolution may be defined as the teaching which holds that creation has been and is accomplished by the agency of the energies which are intrinsic in the evolving matter, and without interference of agencies that are external to it. It holds this to be true of the combinations and forms of inorganic nature as well." Those who adhere to such a belief can have no use or place for a transcendent God, objective answers to prayer, evidences of prophecy, the providential care of God, or any form of miraculous power. A complete loss of faith is the natural and inevitable outcome of such a belief.

Dr. Alfred Fairhurst, in "Atheism in Our Universities," says: "The greatest mistake that universal evolution makes is its claim that the forces manifested in the inorganic world are the sum total of forces that exist in the universe, and that, consequently, out of their action on matter sprang all things."

We may charge up a very large proportion of the crime which is blighting our fair country to the crass materialism which grows out of belief in this third proposition of evolution. The newspapers of June 24, 1927, told us that, "Hugh, Ray, and Roy D'Autremont sped under guard toward the state penitentiary today to spend the remainder of their lives in expiation of the dynamiting of a mail train in the Siskiyuu Tunnel of Oregon in 1923, in which four men died.

"Assuming the guilt in a statement, Hugh, who is 23 years old, told the story of the three brothers—how they absorbed the ideas of Schopenhauer, Huxley and Darwin, and steeled themselves with a philosophy that carried them through one of the highest crimes in the history of the modern north-west."

How ministers, bishops, and legislators can read such a statement as this from one of the most noted criminals of our times, and then bolster up the theory advanced by Darwin, Huxley, and Schopenhauer, is more than some of us can understand.

Let me quote the following from Fairhurst's book, "Atheism in Our Universities:" "A Christian had two sons. He sent the older one, a very bright boy, to a university. He graduated with honor. He brought home much Latin and Greek and things he had learned, but he left his Christian faith behind. The teaching he got did the work. The second son was kept at home. He was a great worker in the church and a man of undimmed faith. Must a university, dependent on public funds, be so organized as to destroy Christian faith?"

I am personally acquainted with three very bright young ladies, and was pastor of each of them in different churches. One of them, having attended a university for three years, came back an avowed agnostic, but would not tell her parents for fear they would not send her back for the fourth year. She had been brought up by good Christian parents and was one of our best young people in Epworth League and Sunday school.

The second young lady was brought up in a Christian home; her mother was the daughter of a Methodist preacher: she was a girl of unusual ability and led her class in High School. She was one of our good workers in Sunday school and Epworth League in a large city church. After one year in the university she could talk agnosticism like a full-fledged agnostic.

The third young lady was daughter of the president of a great First National Bank, a man of unusual piety. His home seemed to be almost ideal. He was one of the leaders in a great church. He told me that he selected the safest and most Christian college of which he knew, that his daughter might be safe from unbelief; but after the young lady was in college six months, she had lost her faith.

God has given my wife and me seven sons and three daughters, and all we can give them is an education, and yet we are afraid of the influences of the modern university, and even of the theological schools of our own denomination. There are a few colleges yet that have not bowed the knee to the modern Baal; God bless them, and may their tribe increase!

But, if materialistic evolution be true, perhaps we will have to abide by the results whatever they be. We deny that such a theory is true. Prof. G. T. W. Patrick says that when we explain everything by means of evolution, then we have to explain evolution, and Prof. Patrick is an evolutionist. He says: "Another difficulty with the theory called Energetics arises from the fact that science does not at present reduce ultimate physical concepts to one—namely, energy. The present analysis seems rather to stop with two—energy and electricity—or perhaps with three—energy, electricity, and ether. Furthermore, it appears that positive and negative electricity are different 'entities,' if we may call them entities, so that any monistic hope coming from pure science seems to be vanishing." Are we to believe in a "creative evolution" arising out of "energy, electricity, and ether?" Shall we give up the worship of an Almighty, Omniscient, and Omnipresent God, to bow down to the forces of nature? Is there wisdom in dirt? Can "energy, electricity, and ether," create mind and soul, and give design and purpose through all the realms of nature? The space of the present article will not permit an argument against so-called "creative evolution," but it may be that at some future time the editor may have space for such an article.

We are glad to give to the readers of THE HERALD the following lines from a recent letter that came into our office from the evangelist, Rev. Raymond Browning. "I will be preaching (Sept. 4-18) over broadcasting station WOAN of Lawrenceburg, Tennessee. Wave length 285½." Tune in on WOAN some evening and hear Bro. Browning. His messages are always helpful and never fail to profit the hearer.

It has been said and truthfully, "The hand that rock the cradle is the hand that rules the world."

"CHRIST IS ALL AND IN ALL."

REV. B. F. DURLING.

WHAT a marvelous statement is that given above. How comprehensive in its meaning. How much it means in the life of one who can truly say "Christ is 'all and in all to me.'" Yet how necessary that one be able to say this. Upon this ability hangs destiny. Nothing more vitally concerns a human soul than the relation it sustains to the infinite Redeemer. Some relation it must sustain. Is it a saving relation?

When we consider the various realms which exist in God's creation, we find that in some very important way Christ is related to each. He is the Creator and Preserver of all. From archangel and galaxy, to electron, all owes its existence to him; for he is God. As some one has so well expressed it, "Jesus is God on earth; God is Jesus everywhere."

In every realm Jesus is supreme. Consider this in nature; he is its Author. He thought and willed, and it came into being, and is moving on with its procession of unfolding wonders. From the rose and lily, which caught their beauty from his creative hand, to the mountain standing snow-capped in its sublime solitude; yea, to the highest constellation, all owe their existence to him. Not a sun leads on its planets, nor Pleiades rolls onward its suns with harmony as of symphony, but is guided by him. All move at the impulse of his will. By him at last, as a vesture will they be folded up and changed. May we not suppose that they will be clothed with a still brighter glory when that "new heavens and new earth" shall be brought forth?

Turning now in thought to other realms and those in which man himself is more visibly and actively present, we find there the influence of Jesus. In literature, should this be withdrawn, how would the greatest masterpieces of the world be blotted out. Gone would be the inspired prophecies and poetry. These are some of the world's greatest literature. There would be no Dante, that one golden voice of ten otherwise "silent centuries." Where would be Milton that "Organ-voice of England?" Gone would be the highest strains of Tennyson, who wrote, "Strong Son of God, Immortal Love." Faint would be the voice of Browning, without the inspiration of the divine. The highest notes in literature would be withdrawn were it not for the influence of Christ.

So, the greatest achievements in art are due to this same great source of inspiration. The works which have immortalized Raphael and Angelo were those suggestive of the Christ. The galleries of art would be stripped of their choicest treasures were all such removed.

The finest examples of architecture which Europe and America possess in their cathedrals, would have had no existence had there been no Christ. What is now the great glory of France and England would have had no existence. So America never had known that stately cathedral now being erected, which with its unfolding beauties, crowns the height overlooking the metropolis of the world.

So too, it may be said that music's greatest charm owes its existence to the divine Author of music. From the time when the "Morning Stars" sang together, to the hour that Richard Wagner sent forth his sacred "Parsifal," music has reached its sublimest heights when it has stood related to him. Hence came Hayden's "The Creation." Also that greatest of all Oratorios Handel's "The Messiah." Mendelssohn's "Elijah" owes its existence to him whose own the prophet was. Silent had been all without him.

We may now turn our thoughts to that higher realm, that of Grace. Here all, all is due to Christ. To him we owe our Redemption making possible pardon and transformation of character. Without him there had been no Bible, that source of our civilization and of our happiness. There could have been no Paul, Luther, Wesley, Moody; no pulpits publishing the glad story; no gospel transforming sinners clothed with their scarlet sin, into saints destined sometime to stand amidst the absolute purity of Heaven. All this we owe to him. Life made victorious and death, "the abundant entrance."

How the sunset of life is made radiant by his presence. As the closing hours of day, when the sun is sinking behind the western hills, and the scattered clouds, drinking in of his light, make the way of the departing day glorious, so Jesus, present in life's closing hours, fills them with peace and heavenly light. Or, as the sunset-gleam shining across the ocean's bosom lights a golden pathway upon the waters, so as the spirit is passing out of the narrow stream of time, looking out upon the ocean of Eternity which it is nearing, the Sun of Righteousness clothes the opening way of that untried deep with a celestial beauty and light. It is Jesus the light of the world and of Heaven. As Eternity deepens in its wonders of beauty, glory and love, every advance will be made with him whom our souls adore. Earth's crown of Thorns will have become Heaven's diadem of glory. We shall ever see new beauties shining forth from the character of him who loved us. This will be not because he changes, but we shall grow in our power of appreciation. Our consciousness of God will be increasing. The vision of Jesus will forever become brighter. No matter to what heights Eternity may bear us, or upon what sublime outlooks we may be placed, Christ will be to us still, all and in all. Our quickened, celestial sight may gather within its vision the glories of far-flung worlds; our hearing adapted to heavenly symphonies, may be thrilled by strains of which Beethoven's harmonies would be scarcely a faint suggestion; our hearts may swell with emotions of adoration known only in Heaven, yet he still will be our all and in all.

Twentieth Century Methodism---or Modernism.

REV. A. S. HUNTER.

THERE is not a God merely because the church says so. The liberal-minded man of today examines his several experiences, and these lead him into the presence of an organizing, integrating force, a purposive agency, which he recognizes as God. The greatest stimulus to a belief in God, is the satisfaction we find in him, for a dominant need for such a being. The principal question is, "What kind of a God do we believe in?" I would rather live in a godless universe, than one worshipping the kind of an ogre set up in some minds. We must rid ourselves of a Hero God, who fiddles in paradise while hell burns. On the other hand, we cannot tolerate a Pollyanna God, who smiles on the wickedness of men. God must embody the highest conceptions of the human mind.

How far is that from the pagan conception of the gods, as pictured in Psalms 115 and 135? "They that make them, are like unto them"—their gods are whatever their own minds conceive as gods. So we are here told that "God must embody the highest conceptions of the human mind."—He is to be a creature of the human mind, the product of examining our own "several experiences." Man finds "a dominant need for such a being"; namely, "an organizing, integrating force, a purposive agency"; and, in his own thought, he constructs such a god as he imagines he needs. We may have as many kinds of gods as there are varieties of human experience.

Apparently, twentieth century pagans have improved on their ancestors of three thousand years ago, and now discard the clumsy, material tree. Instead, they make a mental conception suffice—"the highest conception." What is "the highest conception?" of the producers and exploiters of the vile films and plays now in vogue? And their "god" embodies that! Evidently that, whatever it is, is rather popular at present; if one may judge by Hollywood, New York, etc. In this connection, Romans 1:21-22 makes interesting collateral reading. Three times it is stated that "God gave them up," in their progressive degrees of villainess. Has he done the same in this twentieth century?

Then, the God of the Bible and of Christians of all ages, seems to be a dreadful "ogre," out-Neros Nero, and must be banished. Of course that is easily done, seeing he is but the creature of the human fancy. How far is all this from Eddyism—think a god, and it is; unthink it, and it is not! And so one could run on indefinitely, showing the wholly false conceptions of the above quotation. Each reader can carry the thing out to its logical conclusions for himself.

Who is it that says all this? A Buddhist? A Brahmin? A Confucian? An atheist? An infidel? Was it Paine? Was it Ingersoll? No, none of them. He is a Methodist doctor of divinity, a member of one of our oldest conferences, pastor of a "leading" Methodist congregation in a great city.

The above quotation is taken from the Gazette Times of Wednesday, March 30, 1927, and is an excerpt of a sermon preached in a series of union pre-Easter services. The speaker was Doctor Albert E. Day, of the Pittsburgh Conference, Methodist Episcopal Church, and is pastor of Christ Church, Pittsburgh, Pa. He has been preaching since 1904, and is a relatively recent product of our modern schools.

And this is the church of Wesley, and Asbury; the church which was raised up and thrust out "to spread Scriptural holiness over these lands"; the church, which, during a century, was the mightiest evangelistic force on earth since apostolic days; the church which saved England and America from Paineism a hundred years ago; the church which made the moral wilderness to blossom with righteousness like the rose! To this has it come! In another twenty-five years, should it continue on the path, where will Methodism be? Where will the world be?

GOD IS! He is the great, eternal fact of the universe! Epithets, as "ogre," "Nero," "Pollyanna," etc., do not change nor affect him—they do affect us! Our believing this or disbelieving that, makes no difference in God's character—it does make a difference in our character. Man did not make God, neither can he get rid of God nor make him over. God is, and he is what he is! God is, before man ever examined his "several experiences." God is a Person. He is the supreme Person. He is much more than "an organizing, integrating force, a purposive agency." He is something beside a satisfaction "for a dominant need" in humanity. God is the Originator, the Creator of all that exists; including man, body, mind and spirit. Our intellect, with which we think, is from him. "God is a Spirit." "God is Love." God is Holiness. God is omnipotent, omnipresent. His thoughts are infinitely higher than "the highest conception of the human mind." Let puny man "stand in awe and sin not" in his pride and presumption.

If You Want Something

Convincing on the tithe, something that tells you what God says about it, send 10c and get a copy of "Will A Man Rob God." It is a splendid little book to hand out to members of your church who do not believe in tithing. We will send one dozen for $1.00.

REPORTS FROM SOUL WINNERS

SPRINGTOWN, WEST VIRGINIA.

With the coming of September 28, the Lord will have closed out four years of service in this part of the Lord's moral vineyard. The charge (Hiawatha) consists of four appointments, serving six operations in the famous Pocahontas coal fields. The coal companies furnish the churches and pay part of the pastor's salary. They also bore a large part of the expense of erecting a splendid home for the pastor which they furnish with light, water and coal.

The transitory nature of the population, combined with worldliness, sin and indifference, on the one hand, and fanaticism on the other, makes church work very difficult. But we find among those, who handle the "black diamonds," some of the Lord's precious jewels, and we rejoice over the fact that we have seen some real work of salvation which, we believe, will stand the test of the judgment.

We have had some good revivals during these four years. Our last was conducted by Rev. T. W. Beeler, of Wilmore, Ky., Conference Evangelist of the Kentucky Conference, M. E. Church, South, and Prof. R. E. Frost, of Salvisa, Ky., one of our General Song Evangelists. I have never had more consecrated, earnest, hard working helpers than these men. Bro. Beeler is a strong dispenser of the Gospel, preaching it in an attractive, convincing, yet uncompromising way. He preaches the doctrine of entire sanctification in a way that people cannot fail to understand and see the need of it. He is fearless in his denunciations of sin and yet sinners are attracted to him and are saved. His altar work is thorough. He does not urge penitents to make a profession before they repent.

Bro. Frost is a sweet singer. His solos, reinforced by a Spirit-filled life, reach and stir the hearts of the people. But he is more than a singer. He knows how to help people through to an experience of salvation, by prayer and testimony. His work and presence meant much to the success of the meeting.

Among other results of the meeting, one young man was reclaimed, sanctified, and called to preach. He expects to enter Asbury College after finishing at a preparatory institution. C. A. Pangle.

MEAFORD, ONTARIO, CANADA.

It has been a long time since the writer sent in a report to The Herald. If we are not mistaken our last report had to do with the Blissfield, Mich., campaign, which was a meeting truly blest of God. It will be a joy to look back to that glorious outpouring of the Holy Spirit and the altar scenes where so many souls sought God for pardon and purity. Tustin, Mich., was the next place on our slate and there again we saw the power of God come down upon the crowded congregation. So packed was the place that actually we were handicapped when we came to the altar work. God's people were united in a beautiful spirit of Christian unity. A number of churches standing for evangelical faith and the whole Bible joined heart and hand for the salvation of souls.

Riverside Methodist Church, Flint, Mich., was our next appointment and again the Lord was in the midst to bless his own Word. Large crowds attended and God gave a harvest. The Easter Sunday was a day long to be remembered on account of the crowded church and the well filled altars.

The Temple Methodist Church, Muskegon Heights, Mich., was next on the list and even though the meeting was a short one, nevertheless the Lord made it a worth while one. Crowds of young people attended the services and many of them sought salvation and the blessing of holiness of heart and life. The church building is a very beautiful one. God be praised for the privilege of seeing such sights as were witnessed in many of the services in the Temple Church.

From Muskegon Heights we jumped away over to Orchards, Wash., where we held two weeks and a half meeting with the Methodist Church. Here we encountered one of the hardest battles in many a day. The community seemed to care nothing for the church, revivals, or anything of the kind. The pastor and little band of faithful workers have been doing their best to bring the people to Jesus, but for years, it seems, the results have been very meager. We did see a few at the altar as seekers, but there was not a real break.

From Orchards we went to Portland, Ore., and on down the coast to our little home at Hermosa Beach, Calif., to renew acquaintances with wife and son after being away for very nearly five months. After three weeks we left for Chiloquin, Ore., where we held a camp meeting with the whites and Indians. Chiloquin is on the great Klamath reservation where hosts of Indians live. Perhaps two-thirds of the congregation was made up of the red skins. A number of the chorus choir were Indians. They do like to sing. Our good friend, Rev. Dean Poindexter, a graduate of Asbury College, is in charge of that work. He is a faithful shepherd of that flock away on those mountains. He weeps over their condition and lays himself out in every way to bring them to God. God bless him. We had seasons of melting and power during those ten days. Mr. Murray Morford, a student of the Portland Bible School, had charge of the music. He is a fine young man and has a beautiful high tenor voice which he is using entirely for the glory of God.

From Chiloquin, Ore., to LeRoy, Mich., is a long distance, nevertheless, we reached it on schedule time and opened the two-weeks' campaign with a fine crowd. All the Christian forces of the little village united with the evangelist and singer and the Lord visited the place in a blessed way. The meetings were held in the Town Hall owing to the fact that there wasn't a church large enough to take care of the attendance. The victory didn't come without a battle, but we fought it through in his name, and the victory came. There were many forward as seekers. The people came for miles and miles around. Miss Hannah Dahlstrom, of Reed City, Mich., held some children's meetings, presided at the piano and sang. She is one of God's faithful young women and is very efficient. She sings the Gospel with power. Our friend and brother, Mr. Ugo Nakada, of Japan, spent three days with us in the Leroy campaign and he was blest and made a blessing to the people. He has just finished his musical education having graduated from two of the leading music schools of Chicago. He has a very fine baritone voice. He expects to return to his native land the coming fall to assist his father who has the oversight of more than 150 holiness stations. God bless this splendid young man.

Our meeting here at Meaford, Ont., Canada, has been rather up-hill business up until the present writing but the blessing of the Lord has been poured out and a number of young folk have broken down and are seeking his face. The Lord be praised for the manifestation of his presence and power. The Gospel Workers are separate from the union of churches in Canada and are a fine spiritual lot of folk. Their work as an organization is small but God is using them to do a good work. They feel they are called to do a humble but faithful work for the Lord and souls wherever doors of opportunity are opened to them. The people of other churches are bound to respect them because of the unselfish way they carry on their work. They are a fine lot to work with. We closed July 31, then hastened to Michigan, for the Romeo camp. The Lord be with all his people, everywhere. Geo. Bennard.

METHODIST STATE CAMP MEETING SELECTS WORKERS FOR 1928.

The Michigan State Holiness Association of the Methodist Church closed its 42nd annual camp meeting at Eaton Rapids, this week after a very successful ten-day session. The meetings were well attended by people from all over Michigan, Northern Indiana and Ohio. More than one hundred pastors of Michigan visited the camp this year, many of them staying all through. Bishop Nicholson preached the first Sunday morning. Evangelists Paul Huff, and Turbeville preached daily to fine crowds, good spirit, and encouraging results.

Rev. H. D. Skinner, pastor of First Methodist Church, Muskegon, Mich., is the newly elected president and announces the following workers as selected for 1928 camp: Bishop Nicholson, of Detroit; Bishop Oldham, of South America; E. Stanley Jones, famous author and outstanding missionary of India; Rev. Will Huff, world evangelist; Rev. Raymond Browning of Wilmore; Rev. John Thomas, Welsh evangelist, of Wilmore, Ky.; Rev. Jos. Smith, of Redlands, Calif., well known at Eaton Rapids; T. M. Anderson, of Wilmore, Ky.; and Miss D. Willia Caffrey, of Spokane, Wash., as young people's leader; Rev. Lloyd Nixon, Methodist pastor of Lowell, Mich., will again act as musical director and leader of chorus choir. This will be Rev. Nixon's ninth year at Eaton Rapids; he was also elected First Vice President of the camp. Rev. J. C. Willits, of Holland, was elected Second Vice President. Howard Skinner, of Muskegon, Mich., expert pianist, will return for his sixteenth year. Mr. Skinner excels as an accompanist and as a vocalist.

Rev. Fern Wheeler, pastor-evangelist of Charlotte, Mich., faithful secretary of the camp for past ten years, was unanimously re-elected. M. B. Crawford, of Eaton Rapids, is treasurer. The new Trustees are Cary Seipp, of Woodland, Hubert Post, of Albion, and Rube Wolcott, of Battle Creek.

THREE GOOD MEETINGS.

I have had three good revivals since the opening of my summer's campaign. Sardis, Ohio, was my first one. This camp is just three years old, but you would think it much older if you could see the great crowds that attend and how the camp is organized. Brother Hales, the pastor of the Methodist Church there, who is the platform manager, is one among the truest souls we have in Ohio Methodism. Prof. Allbright and wife had charge of the music and I want to say that there is no better in the song field. Brother Rush, the president of the camp is a mighty man of God and is putting time and labor, money and prayers into this camp to make it go and I predict for them a great future. There were a number that bowed at the altar and found the Pearl of Great Price. It was a great blessing to labor with these consecrated co-workers.

My next meeting was at Walton, Ky., where I have been pastor since the first of the year. I did my own preaching and for two weeks we waged battle against the common enemy. He fought hard to hold his ground, but the last week his hold was broken and such a revival as they had not had in many years came to the Walton Methodist Church. There were upwards of thirty professions of reclamations, regenerations and sanctifications. We received into the Church at the close a nice class in which there were two entire families. All the church folk that attended this revival testified that they were wonderfully blessed and thanked God for the great revival. Brother G. R. Tomlin came over for the last services of the meeting and helped us out in the singing, for which we were all very grateful. J. W. Parish came over with his good people and added fuel to the fire as well as the good folk of Carter's Chapel, whom Brother G. R. Tomlin shepherds, and by the help of all these good people and with our good people at Walton standing so nobly by the gun and the gunman, while he fired volley after volley into the ranks of the enemy helped to make this meeting possible for the white banner of holiness to float once more over the Methodist Church in Walton. We closed this meeting with one of the best Quarterly Meetings on Sunday night during the entire year. Our beloved presiding elder, Dr. J. L. Clark, gave us a wonderful message full of love and encouragement. To God be all the glory.

Our next engagement was with Rev. Gordon Rainey, Helena, Ky., which was another hard-fought battle but a glorious victory. Brother Rainey had the ground well prepared for the sowing of the gospel seed. He is closing out his fourth year and has the love and respect, not only of his own people, but of the entire community. He and his dear ones carry the burden for souls as few people do. There were a number blessed at the altars of the church, being either reclaimed, regenerated or sanctified. Entire families were brought into the Kingdom and also into the church. I was entertained in the parsonage and never had better. We had some great times around the family altar. God heard our prayers and poured out his Spirit and gave us the salvation of souls in the revival. At the close, the pastor took a nice class into the church and will be able to come up to Conference with a good report. Blessings on pastor and Helena folk. We are winding up our Conference year at Walton and Florence and hope to meet you at the seat of our Annual Conference with everything in full and the blessings of our God upon us. T. P. Roberts.

KAMPSVILLE, ILLINOIS.

Since my last report I have assisted in five meetings, the first on Fairfield Circuit with the pastor, Rev. J. L. Miller. This was a very good meeting in spite of the fact that the services were rained out almost every other night during the three weeks we were there. A number were blessed at the altar and the church greatly strengthened. We had a very fine Junior Choir in this meeting which added much to the success.

While here I received a call to Pennsylvania to assist Rev. Henry Shilling at Emericville M. E. Church. This meeting was preceded by four weeks of cottage prayer meetings and continued for five weeks. A goodly number sought the Lord and found him precious. These Pennsylvania Dutch are a very fine class to labor with and showed us every kindness. The pastor and wife are products of God's Bible School and although a young man, Bro. Shilling is a mighty preacher of the Word. He expects to enter Asbury College this fall for his college work and we predict a great future for him.

From here we went to Mahaffey, Pa., and assisted Rev. Samuel Hughes in a meeting at Newtonburg M. P. Church. This neighborhood has been cursed with Russellite teachings and the people seemed minded to wait the "second chance." While in this part of the state I attended the tabernacle meetings conducted by the Bosworth Brothers for a few days, and saw some almost unbelievable miracles of divine healing. My faith was strengthened to take hold of God for my own health and he is answering prayer for me in a marvelous way.

My next meeting was with the Kittanning, Pa., Camp, and the evangelists in charge there were Rev. John Thomas and wife. How we did enjoy the ministry of these saints. Their rich, unctuous messages were greatly owned of God and there were some fine cases of conversion, sanctification and healing. This is the second time I have been privileged to labor with this camp and I found them growing in many ways. The new dormitory building added much to the comfort of those who stayed on the ground.

From this camp I was called to Cisne, Ill., where a meeting was already in progress at the M. E. Church with Dr. John Harmon as evangelist. Dr. Harmon was president of McKendree and Kansas Wesleyan Colleges each for a number of years and is widely known. He drew good crowds at every service and a goodly number united with the church as a result of this meeting. This was my eleventh meeting since Conference last fall and I praise God for the great field of labor he has given me this year in which to sing the old gospel story. "I can do all things through Christ who strengtheneth me." Mrs. Etta Foiles.

GOOD SUMMER MEETINGS.

I have had some good meetings during the summer, Bryantsville, Ky., Sunfield, Mich., Portsmouth, Va., and the famous old historical Ruggles camp meeting near Maysville, Ky., and am now in the Acton camp meeting near Campbellsville, Ky. The Lord has honored the gospel, souls have been blessed and the kingdom extended. There have been over five thousand chapters of Scriptures read by the people in these revivals.

I am now pressing on in the regular revival field in which I have been engaged for years. Pray for my Fall and Winter meetings. From the Acton camp we go to the great Evangelistic Convention of the General Evangelists of the Methodist Church, South, at Lake Junaluska, N. C.

Andrew Johnson.

THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD

Published Weekly by
Pentecostal Publishing Company
523 So. First St., Louisville, Kentucky.

OUR CONTRIBUTORS

Rev. G. Whitefield Simonson	Rev. Len G. Broughton	Rev. Bud Robinson
Rev. O. G. Mingleford, D.D.	Rev. L. R. Akers, D.D.	Rev. Henry Ostrom
Rev. Richard W. Lewis, D.D.	Rev. G. W. Ridout, D.D.	Rev. C. M. Griffith
Rev. Andrew Johnson, D.D.	Rev. P. F. Asher, B.D.	Rev. J. H. Smith
Rev. C. F. Wimberly, D.D.	Rev. E. E. Shelhamer	Rev. C. W. Ruth
	Rev. J. B. Culpepper

Six Months in Advance $.75
One Year in Advance 1.50
Foreign Countries 2.00

CONCERNING SUBSCRIPTIONS

Subscription Discontinued When Time Is Out.
In ordering address changed give both OLD and NEW address. Write all names plainly with pen and ink or typewriter.
Notify us promptly of any irregularities in receiving your paper.
For distribution, to secure new subscribers, sample copies will be sent free on application.
Remit by Registered Letter, New York Exchange, Express, or Post Office Money Order.

(Continued from page 1)

muneration than I was getting in the evangelistic field, but I felt to return to the pastorate would be to break my covenant with God. I had a definite call.

(Continued)

ONE OF MY GREAT DESIRES.

CHAPTER III.

Following up what I have been saying with reference to the permanent establishment and enlargement of the Theological Seminary of Asbury College, I wish to take you a little more fully into my confidence.

What we need is a large new building with ample basement containing kitchen and dining room, with three floors above ground for offices and dormitory space. This building should become a sort of clubhouse for young men preparing for the ministry. They should organize themselves with the proper officials, do their own buying, cooking and housekeeping.

When I was a student in the Seminary at Vanderbilt, Wesley Hall was just such a place. We had a committee and this committee appointed a young man who had once been a traveling salesman, who bought all of our food, much of it in bulk, to great advantage. We hired our cooks and each student paid his proportion of the expenses. We lived comfortably and at the same time remarkably cheap. We practiced careful economy and formed a most delightful co-operative fellowship.

We need just such a building and arrangement here in the Asbury Seminary. The young men could buy their food in bulk, do their own butchering, cooking, dish-washing and every phase of the work in running this club and could get along at a remarkably small outlay of actual cash. What a splendid arrangement this would be for young men called into the ministry who have small means, strong wills and good-grit, who are willing to work with their hands in order that they may educate their heads and keep their hearts warm with the love of Christ and human souls.

Can you conceive of any better way to make an investment of some of your means? If you are wealthy, here is your opportunity to invest a goodly sum of money for your Lord and the spread of his Gospel. If you are in moderate circumstances, here is a place for some of your tithe. If you are poor, here is an opportunity to drop in your two mites.

I am hoping to live to see such a building and such an organization, filled with God-called young men on fire with the perfect love of Christ preparing themselves to go out into the world's great fields so white to the harvest.

Let me hear from you. Tell me you want to help in the greatest work in which we can possibly engage. This is a subject in which I am so greatly interested that I shall have to speak to you again next week.

Faithfully, your brother,

H. C. MORRISON.

Important Notice

By some means the impression has gotten abroad that Rev. Andrew Johnson, D.D., of Wilmore, Ky., has quit the evangelistic field and is devoting all of his time to lecturing on evolution. This is a mistake.

Brother Johnson is devoting his time to the evangelistic work and occasionally delivers a lecture on evolution. He has a very convincing lecture, answering the sceptical views and teachings of evolutionists, but his great work is preaching the Gospel and winning souls to Christ. Those desiring his services will remember that his postoffice address is Wilmore, Ky. He is an earnest and powerful preacher of Christ, and him crucified, for the full salvation of all who come to him by faith.

Pruning Needful For Fruitage.

MRS. H. C. MORRISON.

A gentleman had many rosebushes in his garden and the gardener came with his shears to cut off the branches unmercifully, as it seemed to him. He begged him to be more considerate, as the bushes had borne about 3,000 roses the season previous. "And how many do you expect this summer," he asked. "Well, about 4,000," the man replied. Then he took his knife and cut off still more. "Why, you are not leaving anything to the bushes," he protested. "I am not cutting away anything but wild branches. Or do you want your bushes to bear leaves instead of roses? I know what I am doing."

There is a lesson in this for us as Christians; one we would do well to heed and practice in our lives. We admit that the pruning is unpleasant and, for the time being, disfigures the beautiful bush which stands out in all its magnificent foliage, but foliage is not what we are after as Christians. The fig tree was beautiful to behold, but the Master said, "Cut it down." There was a significance in the fact that he found thereon nothing but leaves—only show.

There are many Christians who are perfectly willing to be adorned by the religion of Jesus Christ who are not willing to adorn it. It is not in their line to submit to the pruning that is necessary to bring out the full capacity of their spiritual being, so they grow in outward show and thrive apparently, but when it comes to the fruit season, we search in vain for the fruits of the Spirit, which are love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, kindness and many others which grow profusely on the life that submits to the divine pruning and rubs up against the blade with sweet submission realizing that thereby he will be more fruitful for his Master.

It seems sometimes that the gardener will almost tear the bush to pieces when he undertakes to prune it, but he understands his business and knows just how much limb to leave in order to produce the most and best fruit. So we as Christians may feel at times that the Divine Gardener is shaving us pretty close, and is severing us from what seems at the time, most necessary to our happiness, but hold still, he understands his business and will only take away from you that which will hinder your highest development and fruitfulness. If we are fully submitted to him, he will trim us up to suit himself. It is true that, while we are going through the pruning process, we may not be shouting happy, and appear as beautiful as at other times, but when the new life sets in, and the buds begin to peep forth, and later the beautiful fruit of a ripened Christian experience appears, you will know and understand that he knew what was best. We must not thwart his plans, nor chose any way other than the one he indicates.

"God will not change; the restless years may bring—

Sunlight and shade—the glories of the spring,

And silent gloom of sunless winter hours,
Joy mixed with grief—sharp thorns with fragrant flowers;

Earth-lights may shine a while, and then grow dim,

But God is true; there is no change in him."

Authenticity and Inspiration of the Scriptures.

REV. Z. T. JOHNSON, A.M.

CHAPTER VII.

ITS DIVINE INSPIRATION PROVED BY ITS EFFECT UPON THE WORLD.

ONE of the strongest arguments that can be brought concerning the Divine authority and inspiration of the Bible is that of its effect upon the world of men. It is safe to make these statements. If the Bible were not inspired, then it would have been the production of men and no more than any other book. If it claims to be inspired, which it does, then the test of that claim must necessarily be worked out in human experience. The resultant facts will either bear out its claim, or prove that claim to be false. Theory must go down before facts. It would be a fearful tragedy if the Bible were mere theory. As Huxley said, "A tragedy is the murder of a beautiful theory by a gang of brutal facts." The moment a fact strides into view theory must slink out. Is it a fact as attested by human experience that the Bible is the Word of God; or is it a beautiful theory of reformers of ages gone by? Let us examine its record of influence.

One ineffaceable fact is Jesus Christ himself. Critics might try to do away with his Divinity, his Virgin Birth, and all the claims he made as to his power, but there is one thing that cannot be done away with, and that is the fact of his existence. Lecky, the historian, says, "The simple record of three short years of Christ's active life has done more to generate and soften mankind than all the disquisitions of philosophers and all the exhortations of moralists." His influence pervades the greater part of the earth today. It might be claimed that he was an impostor claiming that which he could not prove, but it must be admitted that he did live, and that his influence moves on today. Flavius Josephus, the learned and authentic Jewish historian essays of Christ, 'Now there was about this time, Jesus, a wise man, if it be lawful to call him a man; for he was a doer of wonderful works, a teacher of such men as receive the truth with pleasure. He drew over to him both of the Jews and many of the Gentiles. He was (the) Christ. And when Pilate, at the suggestion of the principal men amongst us, had condemned him to the cross, those that loved him at the first did not forsake him; for he appeared to them alive again the third day; as the divine prophets had foretold these and ten thousand other wonderful things concerning him. And the tribe of Christians, so named from him, are not extinct at this day.'

Here we have the records of two authentic historians as to the fact of Christ's sojourn on earth, and their estimation of his influence. And the tribe of Christians, millions strong, increases as time goes on. Every agency of charity today is in operation under his name and influence; every hospital stands as a testimony of the Great Physician who came and who had compassion on the multitudes about him and "healed all they brought unto him." Every great educational system began operation under the influence that he has brought to bear for the enlightenment of the race. Even by those who do not accept the fact of his Divinity, he is hailed as the peerless man. When a certain preacher of world renown was speaking to a temperance body in India he closed his address with a tribute to Jesus Christ. He said, "I know that the taking down of the black flag of the brewery and saloon in America was in the heart of a young man two thousand years ago, who was called Jesus of Nazareth." The audience cheered his remarks, and in reply a judge, prominent in that country rose up and said, "No tribute that you can pay to this man Jesus will be objected to here."

Napoleon Bonaparte said, "I know men; Jesus Christ was no mere man." Renan said in substance, that this man who said he would take the burdens of the world on his shoulders was the One who brought order out of chaos, and kept the world aright. Here is a man that the Bible tells us about as having been conceived by the Holy Ghost in the womb of a virgin; as having been born in a manger; who came from the carpenter's shop and proclaimed that he was the Son of God; who was crucified by Pilate; who was laid in a tomb for three days, and then arose and proclaimed that he had the keys of hell and death; who ascended into the clouds announcing to the disciples through the angels that he would come in like manner as he had gone. And it is the testimony of thousands even today that they have tested the promises that the Book makes about this man and have found personally that it does not lie. Such stupendous facts could never be given the slightest degree of faith if it were not for their Divine origin.

Because of the testimony of the Word concerning Jesus Christ, the Man of Palestine, and the revelation of God through him, this Book has made itself felt among nations as no other book has. A few hundred years ago our Anglo-Saxon ancestors were worshipping in the forests of western Europe. Behold them! It is about time for the sun to rise; and there stands a Druid priest before the multitude on the regular feast day, with a glittering knife in his hand. Before him is an altar, and upon that altar lies a living human form. As the sun begins to tint the eastern skies with bars of orange, gold, and gray, the people begin to chant, and just as the gleaming light flashes upon that cold, cruel steel the priest plunges the knife into the heart of the victim and another sacrifice is made to the sun god. But those hundreds of years have passed; and today the white race shudders at such heathenism. A few hundred years ago the races in Africa were doing the same things that our ancestors did; but the tragedy is that they are still doing those things. What was it that changed our ideals, and brought from the forests a savage race of men who have developed into the Christians of today? The answer is simple; the white people have had the Bible, the Inspired Word, to teach them a system of ethics and religion; while the men of Africa have had no such advantage. Had the conditions been reversed, there is no doubt that we would have still been savages, and Africa would have been the enlightened nation of the world. It is the testimony of the nations of the earth that where the Word of God has been carried those nations have risen to heights hitherto unknown. Would it have that effect if it were not supernatural?

When the period in history known as the Dark Ages was on, the Bible was in the hands of a few. The common people knew practically nothing concerning its teachings. Ethics ran along a low level. Education was slightly regarded. But Martin Luther discovered that in this Book was a message that the just shall live by faith! He rose up from his knees and standing on the sacred stairway resolved to give to the people that revelation that had come from God through the Scriptures. What was the result? The fires of the Renaissance climbed high and higher until they swept over Germany. Schools were established; the Word was put in the hands of the people, and in a few years Germany was a Christian nation, and soon became a leader in educational circles. The effect has reached down to this day, and Luther's teachings have left their mark of piety on the hearts of the people.

In England, about three hundred years ago, practically the same conditions as those of Germany were manifest. The common people were not permitted to have the Bible. The only opportunity they had to read it was to pay a certain amount to the priest for the privilege of going to the church where it was chained to the pulpit, and reading it. But an agitation sprang up and was concluded with the granting of an opportunity for the common people to have and read the Book. A few years later John Wesley came proclaiming salvation by faith, here and now; the witness of the Spirit to that salvation; and the fact that one can be made perfect in love in this life. The people thronged the squares to hear him, and a mighty revival of faith in the teachings of the Word of God sprang up. The ethical principles that were inculcated by these teachings broadened her culture, gave a foundation for the establishment of her schools and colleges, and lifted her to moral and literary achievements that were hitherto impossible. The result was that England became the greatest missionary nation of the world, and was saved from religious oppression and despair. This is what the Bible has done for that country.

Why was America founded and colonized? Was it by a band of men who came here seeking gold and vast riches? No! The first to establish a permanent colony upon its shores was a band of brave men and women who came seeking not the wealth of this world, but seeking a place where they could worship God according to the dictates of their own consciences. And the first thing that they did when they reached shore was not to rush out into the forests seeking the best places where the most of material things could be produced, but it was to kneel and devoutly thank God that it was now their privilege to reach a shore where the Word of God could run and be glorified in their lives without let or hindrance. And this thought is written in the constitution of this country; that all men are free to read and believe this Book, and worship God according to their faith. Thank God! Where does America stand today in the list of nations? She stands as the richest nation of the world.

She stands as the nation that upholds the principles of democracy and freedom for all men. She stands as the nation that proclaims her moral beliefs without fear or favor. She is heralded as the nation of all nations, and her government is imitated by many of the other peoples of the earth. She leads in finance, in politics, and in morals. America! The land of the free and the home of the brave is the nation that she is because of the Book that has been her guide.

(Continued)

Annual Conference "Appointments."

A. W. ORWIG.

One of the most interesting transactions of an annual conference is the assigning of the preachers to the various fields of labor. With some of them it doubtless is a matter of anxious concern, especially if they expect to be transferred to a different charge. Some may accept the change with open expressions of disappointment. Others may possibly attribute unkind or sinister motives to the appointing power.

Any man who has been a member of a conference only a few years ought to know something of the difficulties confronting those making the appointments. When we consider the lofty and holy calling of the Gospel ministry, and what Christ and his apostles suffered, we should feel highly honored to be assigned even the lowliest pulpit.

Especially reprehensible is an attempt to secure a charge simply because of its popularity or unusual financial advantage. Of course "the laborer is worthy of his hire," as Jesus himself declares; but those who have true faith in God will trust him as to really necessary temporal support.

BISHOP SIMPSON AND THE DISAPPOINTED

YOUNG PREACHER.

The "appointments" had been publicly read on Saturday afternoon, and the young preacher complained to the bishop that he could not accept the one assigned to him. The salary was too small and the place not congenial to his tastes. The bishop tenderly expostulated with the young man and requested him to pray over the matter and to hear him preach on Sunday. The text was, "None of these things move me, neither count I my life dear unto myself," etc. As the bishop very vividly portrayed the apostle Paul's perils, persecutions and great sufferings, and as he repeatedly took up the victorious cry of the apostle, "None of these things move me," the young preacher's soul was very deeply stirred. He received such an exalted conception of the blessedness and glory of "the Gospel of the grace of God," that he startled the congregation by rising to his feet and exclaiming, "Anywhere, anywhere, my Lord!" And with abounding joy and faith he gladly went to his new place of holy service.

Beloved brethren in the Gospel ministry, a new and enlarged vision of Calvary, with its infinite adaptations to the great needs of a lost world, will doubtless settle all real or imaginary difficulties connected with our God-given work. And a thoughtful reading of the mighty apostle's extraordinary experience, as depicted in 2 Cor. 11:24-27, may help very greatly to reconcile us to any privations which may fall to our lot.

At a certain Methodist annual conference, near where I live, a prominent visitor publicly said that some of the preachers would "lose their religion" if they did not get the "appointments" they wanted. Doubtless the statement was more caustic than correct. Disappointment does not necessarily imply degeneracy. God help all of us to be truly willing to "follow his steps" "who, for the joy that was set before him, endured the cross, despising the shame," that we may be exalted with him "at the right hand of the throne of God." And may our sincere language be "Where he leads me I will follow, I'll go with him, with him all the way."

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS

Dear Aunt Bettie: You kids move over and make room for one who has been reading page ten all these years looking for one who has a birthday dated March 31, 1849, but have never found one whose birthday is March 31 any year. If Aunt Bettie don't think I am too young to spoil a little space on page 10, here's at you. I have written a few times and my letters were all published, except one. I love children and don't like to see them crowded out. I live in the largest state in the U. S., and as far as I can get one way, without taking water. Look on your maps and find Corpus Christi and you will have me located. I wish you could all see our city, especially those who do not live in cotton States. Its cotton every-where a vacant lot or plat of ground can be found to store it. All the large warehouses, compresses, sheds, etc., all full and sometimes as many as five big ships in port, loading cotton for foreign markets. We have many new buildings going up, so the sound of the hammer is heard many places. We have as fine bathing beach as can be found anywhere, with large bathing houses and other conveniences as can be found at most places of this kind. Our First Methodist Church is building a large Sunday school educational building. That and the other repairs being made on church, annex and parsonage, will cost about 70 or 75 thousand dollars. The Annual Conference will meet here in October. We have a number of good churches in Corpus, and all have fine pastors, good Sunday schools and large congregations. Wish all the page ten correspondents could look in on us, take a swim, go to church, catch a fish, eat some of our delicious figs, berries, melons, oranges, grapefruit, and such like and then take a trip through the country to see the millions of acres of level black land almost like a snow-bank at times when the cotton opens. Now don't think we are boasting without a cause when we tell you we are folk down here with the greatest body of fine land imaginable. People come here in their cars from all the States and away up in Canada. I am not getting any pay for this advertisement. Be good children. A good wish for all including Bro. and Sister Morrison. I had a fall in June, broke three ribs and have been in the hospital seven weeks. Wish you could have seen the flowers, good things to eat and drink the good people brought me. I think there are lots of good people this year, don't you? By, by.
H. C. Cobb.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you move over a little bit and give me a seat among your boys and girls? This is my third letter to The Herald. I am interested in page ten. I live on a farm with my father and mother. I have one sister and three brothers and they are all at home. I go to Sunday school every Sunday I can. Our pastor is Brother Judkins at Granville. I am eleven years of age. My birthday is March 6. Have I a twin? If so, I would like to hear from them. I weigh 70 pounds. I think we will have to shake the Tennessee boys and girls up from sleep because the other States will get ahead of us. I hope Mr. W. B. is out. Gracie Phillips.
Granville, Tenn.

Dear Aunt Bettie: May I join your happy ring? I am a little girl age twelve, and in the sixth grade. This is my second letter to The Herald, but Mr. W. B. got the first one, so I hope that he is eating his breakfast when this arrives because I want to surprise my mother. I guess that you all are wondering how I look, so I will describe myself. I have light brown hair, gray eyes, and fair complexion, weigh 105 pounds, and am five feet, two inches tall. My birthday is Sept. 19. Have I a twin? If so, write to me and I will answer. Who can guess my middle name? It starts with J and ends with T and five letters in it. The one who guesses it I will write to them. I haven't any sisters, but I have one little brother (Wilbur) five years old. W. J. Plunk, we would like to hear from you again. Hazel Thomas, I read your nice letter. We would like to hear from you again also. My name is Hazel too. Well, I will close hoping to see this in print. Love to Aunt Bettie and all the cousins.

Hazel J. King.
Box 1F, Ellenton, Ga.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a little Indiana girl join your happy band of boys and girls? My father takes The Herald. My daddy is a preacher. I am a Christian. Margaret G. Williams, I guess your middle name to be Genevieve. Am I right? Don't forget to send me your picture. Who has my birthday, August 25? I will be ten years old. Have I a twin? Who can guess my middle name? It begins with L and ends with A. Who ever can guess it I will be glad to send them my picture. I have two brothers, Charles Lee and Earl Wayne. Earl is six years old and Charles is seven years old. I live in the country. Why don't you wake up, Indiana boys and girls? Don't go to sleep on the job. I would like to hear from some other cousins.
Florence L. Sharp.
Rt. 2, Roanoke, Ind.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let an Indiana girl join you and the cousins? I have been to Sunday school today. I go every Sunday. My father is the superintendent and I am the assistant secretary. Our pastor's name is Rev. H. G. Wedding; we like him fine. I belong to the U. B. Church, but I attend the M. E. as it is nearer to me. Mary Case, I guess your middle name to be Elizabeth. Am I right? Margaret Williams, I guess your middle name to be Genevieve. Am I right? If so, don't forget your promise. I also have your birthday, July 13. Will close with best wishes to The Herald family.
Clara Sturm.
Elizabeth, Ind.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a little Arkansas girl join your happy band of boys and girls? My grandmother takes The Herald and I like to read page ten. I am twelve years of age and in the seventh grade. I have black hair and brown eyes. I live on a farm. I ride horseback. I have for my pet a cow which I enjoy very much. Mattie M. Burgess, I guess your middle name to be Marie. If I am right don't forget your promise. I go to church at the M. E. church every Sunday. My birthday is April 6. Who has my birthday?
Floy F. Garner.
Rt. 5, Charleston, Ark.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Here comes one of the Louisiana cousins again. I enjoy reading page ten so much till I'm going to write again. I am always glad when The Herald comes. We are having a revival meeting now. Our pastor is Rev. Bro. George. I go every chance I get. I love to go to church and Sunday school. My Sunday school teacher's name is Miss Chessie Yates. I belong to the Methodist Church. I am five feet and four inches tall, weigh 112 pounds, have dark hair, blue eyes and wear glasses. How many of you cousins will be glad when school starts again? I will. Come on, Louisiana boys and girls, don't let the other States beat us. Who can guess my middle name? It starts with F and ends with Y and has five letters in it. The one that guesses it I will write to them.
Estell Mixon.
Rt. 1, Box 138, Crowville, La.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I have written to The Herald before but I need to be introduced again, as you probably have forgotten me. I am thirteen years of age and I am five feet and three inches tall. I weigh 120 pounds. I go to Sunday school every Sunday that I can. I belong to the Free Methodist Church. I have a sister and brother-in-law in the ministry. They belong to the Nazarene Church. They live in Wisconsin. I have a brother still out in sin. I want all of you cousins to pray for him that he may be brought into the fold also. I was sick all through the month of April, and they thought that I wouldn't live over it, but I sure did and I am thanking the Lord for it. I wasn't saved then but along in May there was a good holiness revival came to town. The preacher was Brother McKay. I wish all of you cousins could hear him. My mother takes The Herald and I enjoy reading page ten. I am wondering if I have a twin? My birthday is April 18. If any one can guess my middle name which begins with L and ends with E, has six letters in it, I will write to them. Well I must close for fear of Mr. W. B. Helen Ludlow.

2812 Highland St., Eldorado, Ill.

Dear Aunt Bettie: May I join your happy band of boys and girls? I am a Nebraska girl. I was ten years old August 10. I am four feet and three inches tall and weigh sixty-five pounds, have black hair, brown eyes and dark complexion. I will be in the fifth grade when school starts. I like to read page ten. I have two brothers and two sisters; am the youngest of the family. My mother and father are both living. I go to the M. E. Church. I go to Sunday school every Sunday I can. I would like to receive letters from both the boys and girls and I will be sure to answer all I receive.
Pauline McNett.
Alliance, Neb.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Your club was so inviting just couldn't resist opening the door and coming in. Now since the door is open if you don't mind, I'll stay awhile. This is my first time to write, so if everything I have to say isn't all right, please let me know. Oh! I do enjoy reading your letters so much. Virginia Winkle, I certainly enjoyed your letter and oh! so many more. But how sad I feel when I find not a single one from my state writes. Am sure they read The Herald. I most feel like a stranger. Georgia is a real State. I love it because of the good peaches and watermelons. So I love the state of Kentucky because of the beautiful grass and horses. Horseback riding is my favorite sport. God has made things so beautiful. Think how pretty he has made the flowers and various kinds of trees! I love nature and praise God for making things so beautiful and being so gracious to me. I am not blind, or crippled, and my health is of the best now. I used to be sick all the time and missed two years in school, but now I am all well, and thank God for letting it be so. There are three brothers and five sisters in my family. We all have a good time, only one of my brothers is in Central America. How I wish he were here, but he has told me many interesting things about that country I did not know before. What do you all do since school is out? I take music, then I have lots of house work to do. Every day I practice three hours and sometimes more. I can be happy always with music. My music teacher is so good and sweet. I practice on her account more than my own for she does so much for me.
Rose Spink.
Austell, Ga.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I have read page ten in The Herald for several years. I sure enjoy it. This is my first letter to the cousins and you, and I hope Mr. W. B. does not claim my letter. I am eighteen, have brown hair and eyes. I am five feet, four inches tall. Who has my birthday, May 11? I belong to the Methodist Church and go every Sunday. We also attend Wichita camp meeting every summer, which we enjoy very much. I would love to hear from all of the cousins who care to write to me.
Hazel Gleason.
Larned, Kan.

Dear Aunt Bettie: As I have never seen any letters from South Dakota, thought I had better add a letter from the Sunshine State. We live on a large farm. My father and two brothers are farming about 500 acres this year. My brother George attended College at Brookings, S. D., last year, and my other brother, Verald, attended College at Huron, but they have both quit school now and gone to farming. I was eleven years old December 11, and am the only girl, but very tall for my age. We live just across the road from the Methodist Church. I attend church, Sunday school, and prayer meeting quite regularly. We have just had some very good revival meetings in our church conducted by Rev. C. A. Jacobs. He

Gospel Tents

Smith Manufacturing Company.
DALTON, GA.
22 Years in Business

J. H. DICKEY
of

BARRETT, ROBINSON & DICKEY

General Insurance—Bonds, etc., solicits your patronage.

7th Floor, Columbia Bldg.
Louisville, Ky.

200 Sheets 100 Envelopes

PERSONAL STATIONERY

High Grade White Bond Paper, size 5½ x 7 inches, with envelopes to match. Every sheet and envelope printed in black type up to 4 lines, with your name, business, and address

$1.00

This Stationery also makes an IDEAL GIFT. Shipment within 40 days after receipt of order. ORDER NOW!

Pentecostal Pub. Co.,
Louisville, Ky.

Gentlemen: Enclose please find $1.00 for which send me postpaid, a box of your Personal Stationery consisting of 200 sheets of Paper and 100 Envelopes printed as follows:

To avoid errors write or print clearly is a fine holiness man. I am a much better Christian since these meetings. Three years ago we took a trip down through the Ozark Mountains. We thought the scenery was very beautiful. We also have taken a couple trips through the Black Hills of South Dakota where President Coolidge is now spending his summer vacation. The scenery is just grand. The Black Hills are really mountains instead of hills. I have climbed Harney Peak three times. It is the highest point between the Rocky Mountains and the Atlantic Ocean. Margaret Williams, I guess your middle name to be Geraldine. My middle name begins with E and ends with E and has six letters in it. I will write to the one that guesses it right.

Alys E. Bateman.
Cavour, S. Dak.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a little Louisiana girl join your happy band of boys and girls? I live on a farm and am a member of the South Methodist Church. I go to Sunday school every Sunday. We have church once a month. Our revival meeting started August 7th. I have black eyes, dark hair and a dark complexion. Who can guess my age? It's between twelve and sixteen. My birthday is April 3rd. I take The Herald and do enjoy reading it. Aunt Bettie, wake up your Louisiana boys and girls, don't let the other States get ahead of us. This is my first letter to The Herald and I would love to see it printed on page ten.
Ethel Young.
Rt. 3, Box 90, Church Point, La.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a girl from Blackwell join your happy band of boys and girls? I have written before and saw my letter in print so thought I would write again. I have dark brown hair and blue eyes. I love to go to Sunday school and church. I am a Methodist. I think every boy and girl should go to Sunday school and church for we need a Bible education as well as a school education. Who can guess my age? It is between seven and twelve. I have two grandpas and two grandmas and a father and mother living, so I am happy and thankful. I want my daily life to always count for Jesus. I will close with love to Aunt Bettie and all the cousins.
Ruby Mae Covey.
914 West College, Blackwell, Okla.

ARKANSAS DISTRICT.

The work on this District is coming just fine. We were never in better shape, and the work of Bible Holiness is coming on fine. The pastors will come up to the Assembly with good reports, and some progress will be made along most every line.

Rev. J. W. Bost held a very successful meeting for Pastor Huston, at Waldron. The work was left in good shape, and the evangelist was invited back another year.

Rev. Allie and Emma Irick held a good meeting for Rev. L. L. Gaines, of the North Little Rock Church. Many were brought to the Lord, but not what was expected. However, the work is in better shape than for some time, and prospects are good for the future.

Rev. J. L. Wallace has done some good work on the District with Rev. T. C. Grigsby and wife at Eldorado and Fordyce.

Rev. Lee Hamrick held a good meeting for Rev. J. K. Davidson at Fort Smith. We will be glad when we can have a church right down in town at this place.

Rev. J. K. Davidson held a good meeting in Van Buren, and organized a brand new church.

Rev. Lee Hill, that prince of young preachers, has just closed a good meeting at Sutton.

Rev. W. O. Felts recently closed a good meeting at Pleasant Grove. Felts is a splendid pastor, and is loved by his people.

Rev. J. H. Huston recently closed a good meeting at Shark, and organized a good church.

Rev. J. D. Wiggington, Jonesboro, where there has been so much trouble for the past three years, is moving along fine, and making good progress.

Rev. J. R. Francis is now in a meeting at Russells Chapel. We are expecting a repetition of Pentecost at that place.

Rev. C. C. Cluck has just closed a good meeting at Vilonia. This is the best meeting that Vilonia has had in some time, according to reports.

The State Camp Meeting is now history. It was the best we have ever held. The Flemings were at their best, and never did better preaching than at this camp. Prof. Rinebarger and his good wife were with us, and never did better singing than at this time. Many people from over the state and out of the state came and camped. For a young camp, we feel we made an enviable record. We had more than forty camps, and about 250 on the grounds in the camps, over 400 knelt at the altar, about 50 anointed for healing, about $5,000 in cash and pledges for the grounds, shed, and workers.

Our pastors over the state recognized in a large measure what the camp means to them, and came and encouraged their members to come. The children's services were real blessings to the children and the grove services were times of powerful refreshings. District Superintendents Chalfant, Balsmier, and Owens were with us, and Rev. A. H. Kauffman, Dr. Benton and Mrs. Standridge were with us representing their several interests.

We are now looking forward to the camp for another year. We must have 500 campers, take on new enthusiasm in our work on this District, and plan second blessing holiness in every nook and corner of this Wonder State. Join us in prayer to this end.

John W. Oliver.
Dist. Supt.

"REJOICING IN HOPE."

Will O. Scott.

With the heart open to receive the truth one does not have to go far to find the most conclusive evidences of man's immortality. It is only when men have closed every avenue for the entrance of light, by their unbelief that they speak of dying as "a leap in the dark."

There is at times, to every intelligent individual, the vision of something better beyond this vale of tears. "A solemn murmur in the soul

Tells of a world to be;
As travellers hear the billows roar
Before they reach the sea."

Columbus, as he looked out over the trackless ocean to where it touched the horizon, and then at his globe where only one side was marked as land surface, concluded there must, of necessity, be another hemisphere to match the one already discovered. And it was his faith in the unseen that moved the heart and opened the purse of Queen Isabella of Spain, that sent the bold intrepid navigator across the uncharted sea to be the discoverer of a new continent.

It is related of Col. Ingersoll, the noted agnostic, that when nearing his end, his two daughters came to his dying bed and solemnly requested their father to give them his final decision regarding the future life. "We have frequently heard your popular lectures," said they, "and the bursts of loud and frequent applause that greeted them as your eloquent lips gave expression to your pronounced disbelief in the immortality of the soul. Now we want to know, in all sincerity, whether you desire that we who will soon be left fatherless shall follow your teaching or those of our mother which, you know, have been just the opposite?" Quickly but faintly came the answer, "Seek a refuge for yourselves."

When the planet Uranus was giving astronomers no end of trouble by fluctuations in its orbit, they suspected the presence, somewhere out in space of another revolving world with powerful attractive force. In pointing the telescope to a certain part of the heavens, like a bow drawn at a venture, their fondest hopes were realized in the discovery of Neptune. So when individual men like Luther are so strong that neither nations nor armies can break them; so brave that lions have no terrors; so holy that temptations cannot lure nor sin defile them; so pure in walk that God walks with them—shall not we infer an attracting, though unseen world, high and pure and strong as Heaven, like that roll-call of heroes of faith (Heb. 11) whom the world to come influenced "that they might obtain a better resurrection." If we turn to the pages of Holy Writ how often we find from Moses on Sinai to John on Patmos the truth running down along the line that the grave is not the goal of man, that God is the God of the living and not the dead. In conversation with his disciples Jesus removed every doubt from their minds regarding the future by saying, "In my Father's house are many mansions; if it were not so I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you."

How beautifully a noted divine has expressed his estimate of the value of the soul: "However stately the human structures erected, or life-like the statues chiseled, the soul is grander than them all. The soul of Dante, or Shakespeare, or Milton, was more sublime than their poems. The soul

WHAT'S IN A BOOK?

CONDUCTED BY

REV. Z. T. JOHNSON, A. B., B. O., M. A.

The Gist of The Bible, by A. E. Bell, D. D.

"The Bible in a Nutshell" very nearly describes this capital book. The author gives a short discussion of about two pages of each book in the Bible. In each one he shows the origin, nature, purpose and teachings of each one of the sixty-six books in the Holy Scriptures.

Dr. Bell, in his analysis of the books of the Bible, takes the conservative stand, and his messages ring true to the Old Faith. His explanation of Genesis, or of Ecclesiastes, is easily worth the price of the book.

After looking over this volume carefully I said to the Business Manager, "This is the finest book you have in the house." I pass that judgment on to you. If you want something that will be a vital help to you in your prayer meetings, in your preaching, and in your own study of the Book of books, be sure to get this one. It costs only $1.50.

The Leaven of the Sadducees, by Ernest Gordon. $1.50.

This is a book of eight chapters in 163 pages. It was written especially as a book of source information, showing the actual facts as related to the attitude of the modernists in their attack on the fundamentals of Christianity. There are many quotations from leading modernist authorities. Many of these are startling in their blatant defiance of the Scriptures.

Concerning the book, Bishop Candler says, "The Leaven of the Sadducees is a startling exposure of Unitarian designs on the evangelical churches of the United States. I think that all of us who have the ear of the public should seek to promote its wide circulation. If the facts which it contains are brought to the attention of the evangelical churches I believe they will be aroused to the most vigorous opposition to all these betrayers of trust."

If you want some first-hand information on this vital subject of modernism vs. fundamentalism, you should have this book.

Animal Land, by W. A. Colcord. $1.75.

Animal Land is a book of three hundred choice stories, each of which centers around some animal. It has 427 pages of interesting material written especially for young people and children. When the children want a story, this is a good book to furnish interesting stories for parents to read to children, for teachers, and for children themselves to read, but also is to foster a spirit of kindness toward all animal life.

The Better Way, by Beverly Carradine, D.D.

In this book of sermons or addresses, Dr. Carradine deals in his own interesting way with the deeper things of Spiritual life. The specific aim of the book is to lead people into the blessing of sanctification.

There are twenty-two chapters. Some of the most suggestive are: "The Better Redemption," "The Better Hope," "The Better Covenant," "A Better Experience," "A Deeper Salvation," "How I Entered," "Divine Fellowship," "Why Another and Subsequent Work of Grace?"

The simplicity of style, the purity of language, the depth of teaching, are the essential elements of the book.

The Singers of Judah's Hills, by C. A. Boy. $1.25.

The author tells eighteen stories in this book, each one centering around a well-known Psalm. They attempt to give the original setting of the Psalm, and to show how they came to be composed. The stories are not expository, nor are they critical, but there is a charm about them that appeal to the reader. They certainly help one to catch the real spirit of the Psalm better.

There are eighteen chapters in the three divisions of the book. Part I has eight chapters on "Songs of God's Out-of-Doors." Part II has four chapters on "Songs of Worship." The third part has six chapters on "Songs of Trust."

You will enjoy the stories given here, and they will help you to understand and enjoy these eighteen Psalms better.

Motives and Methods in Modern Evangelism, by Dr. C. L. Goodell. $1.50.

Dr. Goodell gives a wide range of discussion in these lectures on Evangelism. Beginning with "The Evangelistic Motive" he shows that we must realize that men cannot get along without Jesus Christ, and clear through the book this thread of thought runs until in the last chapter called "The Evangelistic Imperative" he shows that there must be the heart cry of evangelism surging through the soul of the true preacher of the Gospel.

It is impossible to adequately describe this book in such a limited space. The author discusses such vital phases of evangelism as prayer, Bible study, preaching, personal work, Sunday school evangelism, visiting, Men's evangelistic clubs, etc. The question is treated from every practical angle. Thus the book is not only inspirational but is also very practical in its nature.

Christ and His Companions, by W. J. Bryan. $1.50.

Every one knows that William Jennings Bryan was thoroughly orthodox in his Christian faith. For years he taught a Sunday school class in Miami, Florida that had a membership of hundreds. In this work he gave many of the talks that appear in this book.

As the title indicates the discussions center around Christ and the men with whom he had the most intimate dealings while he was on earth. Mr. Bryan shows Jesus as intensely Divine, yet thoroughly human. Jesus is revealed simply, lovingly and firmly. The discussions are thoroughly alive.

There are twenty-eight chapters on that many subjects. You will enjoy every one of them.

All of the books reviewed in these columns may be bought from The Pentecostal Publishing Company, Louisville, Kentucky.

of an Angelo was nobler than St. Peters; that of Mozart diviner than his music. The soul of Newton was infinitely superior to his wonderful discoveries—yea, grander than the shining worlds which he bound together with bands invisible. Yes, the soul is superior to all the apparatus of modern inventions and discoveries. What visions of beauty and grandeur did the mind of Milton create, after his eyeballs were closed to every ray of earthly light. Destroy any or all organs of sense and yet the mind continues to reason, the imagination to soar, the judgment to discriminate, the conscience approve, or condemn."

What wondrous truth!

"If all our hopes and all our fears

Were prisoned in life's narrow bound;

If travellers through this vale of tears

We saw no better world beyond;

Oh, what could check the rising sigh?

What earthly thing could pleasure give?

Oh, who would venture then to die?

Oh, who could then endure to live?"

"Sermons on New Testament Characters," by Dr. Clovis G. Chappell, has had a large sale. Its pointed discussions will interest you. Price $1.60. Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky.

NOT TO BE USED WITHOUT COPYRIGHT PERMISSION

OF ASBURY THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

REV. O. G. MINGLEDORFF, D.D.

Lesson XI.—September 11, 1927.

Subject.—Solomon Dedicates the Temple. 1 Kings 8:1-11; 11:62-63.

Golden Text.—I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go into the house of the Lord. Psalm 122:1.

Time.—B. C. 1004.

Place.—Jerusalem.

Introduction.—Our subject covers so much ground, that we shall be able only to touch it here and there. It will be well for the reader to get before his mind certain facts that are preliminary to the dedication.

I. This is the temple that king David wished to build for the worship of Jehovah, but was not permitted to build. However, he spent much of the time of his later years providing material for it. The material thus provided consisted of gold, silver, brass, etc. No one has ever been able to calculate its value. Could we compute it in our money, that would give us little idea of its value in the money of David's kingdom. Maybe one will get a rough notion of the value of this provided material, if we copy the computation of others and say that it was worth millions, whatever that may mean.

II. The temple when finished was costly almost beyond our conception. Valued in our money, it was worth millions of dollars. It stood on Mt. Moriah; and although it did not cover such an immense space as one at first blush might suppose, yet when we consider its many rooms and apartments, we are astonished at its floor-space. The tabernacle proper did not follow the dimensions of the old wilderness tabernacle, but was much larger. Everything was measured by cubits, instead of feet; but according to the best calculation it must have been about thirty feet in breadth, ninety feet in length, and forty to forty-five feet in height. Of course, this does not include the outer court. It will pay the reader to get some first-class work on the temple, and read it carefully.

III. I am rather amazed at the number of men who are said to have been used in building the temple. They were at work in forests and in stone quarries, felling timbers and hewing them out for the structure, cutting out great blocks of stone and preparing them for their places; for we are to bear in mind that nearly all this material was put into exact shape before it was taken to Jerusalem. The Bible indicates that the structure was erected as nearly in silence as possible. Other multitudes of men were busy conveying cedar timbers by sea from Tyre. But those great stones, how did they move them in those days? We know not, but the work must have required thousands of men to do what a few skilled men could now do with well equipped machinery. I have tried to calculate the number of men employed in building the temple, but do not know how nearly correct I am. It must have been nearly two hundred thousand. Suppose my readers make calculations for themselves.

IV. As we approach the day of dedication, one may well use his imagination to picture the scene. No two of us will see it alike; but such mental pictures create life and enhance interest in the study. I think every one who could do so went to church that day. It must have been a surging mass of men, women, children, with an almost innumerable host of animals. The animals brought together for sacrifice numbered thousands; and there must have been a great drove of beasts of burden, such as asses, camels, horses, etc., for some had come from considerable distances. Some one says there were more than a million human beings on the ground—maybe there were several millions. Nobody knows anything about it. Suffice it to say, that it was the greatest dedication day in all history.

V. Some people may not agree with me in this fifth item. Solomon's temple was no criterion for the churches we are to build now for the worship of Almighty God. That was built for the entire nation—the only one they had; and it was intended to attract the people of Israel, and to draw them away from heathenism. We are erecting great church buildings, in large measure, to satisfy our own personal vanity. O, we speak of building them to draw the multitudes; but they pass by without entering them. Is it too much to say that the multitudes in their poverty and squalor are not wanted in many of our costly churches? God is not glorified in such a waste of money while the heathen perish for the Gospel. Any one is welcome to kick me who may wish to do so; but I declare that this thing is a ridiculous farce and an ignominious failure. Erecting immense costly edifices to attract the perishing multitudes, is to offer them bricks and stones when they cry for food. Nothing can ever attract them, save a holy Church preaching a blood-stained "Gospel with the Holy Ghost sent down from heaven." That will attract anywhere, from a brush arbor to a cathedral.

Comments on the Lesson.

1. The first thing to be done on the day of dedication, was to "bring up the ark of the covenant of the Lord out of the city of David, which is Zion." Zion was the place of worship prior to the erection of the temple. For this purpose Solomon called together the elders, the heads of the tribes, and all the chief men of the nation. He would give dignity to the great occasion, and that was right and proper.

2. Note this verse for the time of the year in which the dedication took place. In our calendar the Jewish month Ethanim covered the latter part of September and the early part of October.

3. All the elders came, and the priests took up the ark.—The former were an escort; but none but the anointed priests were allowed to handle that sacred treasure. Maybe we are too careless today about the worship of God: we have, in large measure, lost reverence for holy things. "Holiness becometh thine house, O Lord, forever." With us such places are about like barns, or club houses.

4. This was moving time. Not only did they bring up the ark, but the tabernacle and all its holy vessels. Most of these things would be useless in the temple, but they were sacred and must be cared for.

5. Sacrificing sheep and oxen, that could not be told nor numbered for multitude.—This is one of those hyperboles in which the Hebrew mind revelled. It simply means a large number.

ASBURY THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

A faculty of nine trained and consecrated teachers, experienced in pastoral and evangelistic work. Nine departments. Certificate and Diploma Course for undergraduates. For graduate students a three-year course leading to B.D. degree.

H. C. MORRISON, D.D., President
For Information Write to
F. H. LARABEE, D.D., Dean.
WILMORE, KENTUCKY.

The Whole Bible for the Whole World

6. This verse needs to be quoted in full: "The priests brought in the ark of the covenant of the Lord unto his place, into the oracle of the house, to the most holy place, even under the wings of the cherubims." This is holy ground. The ark was a type of heaven, and the light that shined in the holy of holies typified the Divine Presence.

7. The cherubims spread forth their two wings over the place of the ark.—These images were of gold. Their presence typified guardianship over the ark and its sacred treasures, but they were not worshipped, for that would have been idolatry.

8. They drew out the staves.—These were bars run through rings, and were used in carrying the ark. Now that it had reached its final resting place, they would be needed no more, so were put out of the way.

9. There was nothing in the ark save the two tables of stone, which Moses put there at Horeb.—In their wanderings and their wars they had lost Aaron's budding rod, the golden pot that had manna in it, and perhaps the golden censer. The nation was growing poor through sin.

10. When the priests were come out of the holy place, the cloud filled the house of the Lord.—This was indicative of Jehovah's presence and of his approval. It was the same cloud that hovered about the old tabernacle in the wilderness.

11. So that the priests could not stand to minister because of the cloud.—I suppose that the cloud was too dense for them to see in the midst of it. The glory of the Lord filled the house of the Lord.—Glory seems to be but another term for the cloud. In the sixth chapter of his prophecy Isaiah records a vision of the same sort of glory in the temple.

Solomon's great prayer of dedication comes between this eleventh verse and the two verses that close the lesson. It is a model prayer of its kind. Perhaps it has never been surpassed. Read it carefully. It seems to touch everything that could ever happen to Israel, and even reaches beyond her borders to the Gentile world.

62. The king, and all the people with him, offered sacrifice before the Lord.—It is blessed to find that Solomon gave the people a part in the worship of that wonderful day. They had built the temple; and they had

GOSPEL TENTS

Write for Prices on NEW AND USED TENTS.

R. H. ARMBRUSTER CO.,
SPRINGFIELD, ILL.
Established 1875

We Aim To Please—Our Aim Is Good

NEW BOOK

The "Beauty of Holiness and Maxims of the Holy Life"

BY

REV. GEORGE W. RIDOUT, D.D.

This book is specially written for the holiness people and is designed to set forth True Holiness against the fictitious, the false and the fanatical. The book sets forth Holiness under the following aspects:

1. The Beauty of Holiness.
2. The Beauty of Consecration.
3. The Beauty of Perfect Love.
4. The Beauty of Humility.
5. The Beauty of Perfection.
6. The Beauty of Christlikeness.
7. The Beauty of Divine Union.

The book is written in the easy, readable illustrative style of Dr. Ridout's writings and is full of the best of things on the above subject.

Price Seventy-five Cents
PENTECOSTAL PUBLISHING CO.
Louisville, Kentucky.

as much right there as did Solomon their king.

63. This verse gives us some idea of the sacrifice: "Two and twenty thousand oxen, and an hundred and twenty thousand sheep." That was immense, but not so large when we consider the multitudes of people who had come up to worship at the dedication of their beautiful temple.

FOR SALE CHEAP.

Maxwell truck Gospel Car.

David E. Hoar.

Camden Park Place, Minneapolis, Minn.

EVANGELISTIC AND PERSONAL.

Rev. A. S. Beck: "We recently closed a tent meeting near Columbia, Ky., in a little town called Garlin, in which there were 17 souls converted and one received the baptism with the Holy Ghost. Mr. M. O. Stevenson and family kindly cared for us while there. We are invited to return next year."

The Callis Grove camp closed with a sweeping victory. Rev. F. T. Howard did the preaching; he is safe and sound on the doctrine of holiness. This camp has been running for eighteen years and this year's meeting was second to none. Miss Dorothy Huyett led the music and Miss Ethel Sagaser played the piano. All of our workers rendered most valuable service.

Eaton Rapids Camp Meeting for 1927 had great crowds, fine preaching, and many at the altar. Rev. John Paul, S. H. Turbeville and Will Huff did the preaching. Debts were all paid and cash in treasury to finance next year's camp. The workers for next year are Rev. Raymond Brown, Will Huff, T. M. Anderson, John Thomas, full time; Miss Caffrey, Bishop Oldham and E. Stanley Jones, and Joseph H. Smith part time. Rev. H. D. Skinner, Methodist pastor at Muskegon, Mich., was elected president to succeed Rev. W. G. Nixon, deceased, and Rev. Fern Wheeler, of Charlotte, Mich., was elected secretary.

Margaret K. Crammond, Evangelist, and Prof. C. C. Crammond, Pianist and song leader, are open for meetings September 1. Address them 815 Allegan St., Lansing, Mich.

Rev. R. F. Whitehurst, Wilmore, Ky., has some open dates after September 1.

FRED ST. CLAIR'S REPORT.

We had a most terrific battle at Cheney, Wash., but a blessed victory. Hallelujah! Meeting continued six weeks, and we preached to at least 2,000 people in the tent; saw altar full several times and some prayed clear through to salvation and entire sanctification. Brothers Galloway and O'Harra did yeoman service in prayer, preaching, shouts and general usefulness.

A remarkable thing connected with our stay there was dear Bro. and Sister Bloomquist turned their whole house, nicely furnished, over absolutely to the evangelists. Can you beat that? And they lived in a two-room outhouse in the back yard.

We came to beautiful Portland to rest before our meeting here with Brentwood Church. We attended the Nazarene Camp, conducted by "Uncle Buddie" and Evangelist Earl Wilde. It was tremendous. At least 400 seekers and scores prayed through to victory.

We are here to August 28. Then LaGrande, Ore., September 4 to October 2. God's very best for all The Herald family. Fred St. Clair.

Dear Herald Readers:

Being a reader of The Herald for many years makes me want to write a few words. I hardly know what would become of us if it was not for the great messages we receive through the columns of The Pentecostal Herald. I like to keep up with the slates of the evangelists, and when convenient always spend a night or week-end where one of these men are laboring.

It was my pleasure recently to visit Ghent, Ky., where M. V. Lewis was in a campaign with the Methodist Church. I have read his reports for many years, also noticed the commendation of those he had assisted until I was eager to see and hear him. My heart was filled with gratitude and praise when he stepped to the platform in his masterful, unassuming way, announcing his hymns in such a manner, every one would sing them with ease and grace. It affords me great pleasure to be in a town or community where such meetings are being held. The people of Ghent said no man had ever been to that town that won the people so completely as did Bro. Lewis. May God give us more like him. A Salesman.

DANVILLE, KENTUCKY.

Will you please report through your good paper meetings we just held in three places?

I was called to Heart's Chapel by Pastor J. G. Root on the 20th of June for a two-weeks' meeting. We found the church anxious for an old time revival and through strong faith and waiting on our God in much prayer we were able to see our heart's desire brought to pass. We leaned heavily upon the arm of our dear Lord and poured forth his message as given through the work of the Spirit which will always give results. There were 20 that prayed through at the altar in the old-fashioned way for pardon or cleansing. Brother Root is a pastor of strong faith and much loved by his good people. I have never worked with a man of a sweeter spirit than dear Brother Root. May God continue his blessings upon this man of God and his fine people.

From Heart's Chapel we went to South Corbin with Pastor Earl Catron, who had a large tent waiting for us. Brother Catron's people were a fine bunch of folks to preach to. They came out and crowded the big tent every evening. It was estimated that we had 600 people to preach to in the evening services. The day services were small but God was there in great power to bless and save. We preached the Gospel in its fulness and kept on our knees before God in prayer and fire fell in the good old Bible way. Folks fell at the good old place of prayer and wept their way through to gracious victory in Jesus. Brother E. C. Milby led the singing for us. He had a large choir of young people who did some fine singing. Also, we had the Young Men's Orchestra which rendered us splendid music. Brother Milby is a wonderful song leader. He is safe and the best of all is that he knows the Lord. For results in this meeting, the dear Lord gave us 45 souls either for pardon or cleansing. Thank God forever. The dear old gospel has never lost its power.

Our third meeting was at Brodhead, Ky., with Pastor G. A. Young. Bro. Young just turned us loose to the leadings of the Lord and for two weeks we poured forth the truth in its purity and in the second week the break came with 23 saved and sanctified. Brother Milby had a fine choir and good music. He is a young man who can just get the folks to sing and have them in fine shape to receive the gospel message to follow. This was a time of great victory through Jesus' blood. This was my third revival in Brodhead. So successful was the meeting at the close we asked for a testimony as to our return in the future and there was an unanimous call to return. Rev. M. L. McGraw.

535 Adams St., Danville, Ky.

20 Live Books for $1.

575 SETS

$2.60 Value for $1.

Each one carries a great message in brief form

Gospel of the Body

REV. C. F. WIMBERLY.

The author tells in a most interesting way some of his recent discoveries of the majesty and artistic glory of the human body, and states that there are mysteries and wonders to be found in the body alone greater than the exploration of an unknown continent. There is not a dull sentence in the book. Price 15c.

The Mind of the Master

REV. WILL H. HUFF.

Two of Brother Huff's great sermons, the title of the second one being "Soul Rest." In the first sermon the author deals with the mind of Christ as to its spiritual consciousness, as to its characteristics, and as to the how of our fullest possession of it. The second sermon deals with "His Rest," the rest he has provided for the struggling believer. Price, 20c.

Scriptural Holiness

REV. B. A. CUNDIFF.

The author of this most excellent book enjoyed and preached the experience of entire sanctification thirty-nine years. The author gives chapters on the different theories of holiness, and closes with a chapter on the Bible view of this great theme. Price, 15c.

The Vision of a Popular Minister

COMPILED BY A. SIMS.

The experience of a minister who was satisfied and at ease in Zion, but when the Lord got hold of him he found that he was self-centered and unsaved. Price, 10c.

Sin in Believers and Advice to Those Sanctified

JOHN WESLEY.

Two sermons. The first sermon is a point of utmost moment to every serious Christian, the resolving of which very nearly concerns both his present and eternal happiness. In the second, Mr. Wesley's first warning is to watch and pray continually against pride. There are five more warnings in this sermon which are vital to every Christian. Price, 15c.

Doing His Will or Going to Hell

REV. JAMES M. TAYLOR.

This book sets forth the doctrine of entire sanctification as taught in the Scriptures; also that it must be obtained here on earth. Price, 10c.

Malice

REV. J. B. CULPEPPER.

This is a most forceful writer and he handles this subject in a very interesting way. You will be thankful for the privilege of reading this book. Price, 15c.

Water Lily Money

ABBIE C. MORROW BROWN.

A thrilling story for young people; it will interest them as well as instruct and help them. Anyone will read it with pleasure and profit. Price, 15c.

I Want 'Er Go 'Ome

JAMES KNOTT MACKRELL.

A study of heaven, some of the things Jesus taught about heaven, its hope, its people, its certainty, its place, its rewards, its happiness and the way. Price 25c.

Baptism With the Holy Ghost

REV. JAMES M. TAYLOR.

This is a most excellent interpretation of what it is, of who is to receive it, and its effect upon the recipient. Price, 10c.

How to Reach the Masses

REV. JAMES M. TAYLOR.

This book deals with the problems now facing the churches, and points out God's method of doing it. Especially does this book emphasize the need of the blessing of entire sanctification to empower one for effective service in one's work for the Master. Price, 10c.

Heart Purity

REV. E. A. FERGUSON.

A sermon by one of the leading evangelists of his time. The author was very successful in leading thousands of souls into this experience. Price, 10c.

Dr. Fosdick Answered

REV. G. W. RIDOUT.

An expose of Christian liberalism, which is becoming so prevalent in the land, and one needs to be informed about it and how to combat it. This book will be very helpful. Price, 15c.

The Devil's Partners

REV. JAMES M. TAYLOR.

A sermon dealing with the real partners of the devil. The author handles the subject without gloves and starts the reader to thinking. Price, 10c.

Just for Children

REV. J. B. CULPEPPER.

The author writes a story of when and where he was converted in a style that is especially attractive to children. Price, 10c.

Sanctification

REV. J. H. COLLINS.

Dr. H. C. Morrison says this book is one of the clearest presentations of this subject he has ever read. Price, 15c.

A Whiskey Hatch

REV. J. B. CULPEPPER.

The sub title of this book is "Chicken will come Home to Roost." It is an interesting and awful story of the effects of whiskey. Price, 5c.

Little Nuggets for Little Folks

REV. JAMES M. TAYLOR.

A good book to place in the hands of a boy or girl—one that will interest them and teach them the way of salvation. Price, 10c.

Saved to Serve

REV. J. W. WELDON.

This is a life story of a business man who was saved, and afterwards gave his whole life to the service of the Lord. He has been instrumental in winning hundreds of souls to Christ. Price, 20c.

A Bottle of Tears

REV. J. B. CULPEPPER.

A salesman once said of this booklet, "If you will read it without both laughing and crying, you may have it for nothing." You will like it. Price, 5c.

Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky.

Enclosed you will find $ for which please send me postpaid sets of your twenty pamphlets for $1.00 per set.

Name

Address

Street or Route No.

Tent Workers of the Evangelical Methodist League

BECK, A. S. AND R. S.
(1019 So. Fourth St., Louisville, Ky.)
Rocky Hill, Ky., Aug. 24-Sept. 8.
Campbellsville, Ky., Sept. 10-25.

CROSS, WALTER—LOPER, NORRIS.
Piedmont, Ala., Aug. 22-Sept. 4.

GRANT BROTHERS.
Thomasville, Mo., August 16-31.

HENDERSON, O. R.—ROTHWEILER, D. L.
Nekoma, Kan., August 16-31.

HOTCHKISS, ROY L.
Hull, Iowa, August 30-Sept. 11.

HYSELL, HARVEY B.
(Box 1235, Charleston, W. Va.)
Mt. Nebo, W. Va., Aug. 17-31.

KEYS EVANGELISTIC PARTY.
(Mohnton, Pa.)
Eccles, W. Va., Aug. 18-Sept. 4.
Mohnton, Pa., Oct. 9-23.
Open date, Oct. 30-Nov. 13.
Camden, N. J., Nov. 16-Dec. 4.
Chillicothe, Ohio, Sept. 11-Oct. 2.

LAMBERT, B. D.
Oil City, Pa., August 14-Sept. 3.

MACKEILL, JAMES—DAVIS, JOHN W.
Beaumont, Tex., August 7-Sept. 11.
Burkeville, Tex., Sept. 18-Oct. 2.

ROBERTS, BYRON F.
Jamestown, Ohio, Aug. 24-Sept. 11.

SMITH AND MCCLURE.
Richmond, Ill., Aug. 21-Sept. 11.

EVANGELISTS' SLATES

ALBRIGHT, TILLIE.
Richland, N. Y., Aug. 21-Sept. 5.

ANDERSON, T. M.
Winchester, Ind., Sept. 1-11.

ARTHUR, FRANK E.
Huntington, W. Va., Aug. 17-Sept. 4.

BABCOCK, C. H.
Blackwell, Okla., Aug. 29-Sept. 4.
Thomas, Okla., Sept. 15-25.

BENNETT, W. G.
Manchester, O., Aug. 10-Sept. 1.

BRENNAN, A. P. AND MRS. A. M.
Ava, Mo., August 24-Sept. 4.

BROWNING, RAYMOND.
Aspen Hill, Tenn., Aug. 21-Sept. 5.

BURNETT, W. EVANS.
(Lake Charles, La.)
Alexandria, La., June 17-25.

CALLIS, O. H.
London, Ky., Aug. 31-Sept. 4.
Salem, Va., Sept. 9-19-9.

CAROTHERS, J. L. AND SADIE.
Nespeher, Idaho, August 17-31.

CHATEFIELD, C. C. AND FLORA.
(410 E. Carl St., Winchester, Ind.)
Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 29-Sept. 11.
Durand, Mich., Sept. 11-Oct. 2.
Ellet, Ohio, Oct. 3-16.

COMER, G. F.
(Stanford, Ky.)
Open date, Sept. 4-25.
Louisville, Ky., Sept. 27-Oct. 2.

COX, F. W.
(Lisbon, Ohio)
Portland, Ore., Sept. 1-13.
Summit, Ore., Sept. 21-Oct. 9.
Jefferson, Ore., Oct. 16-Nov. 6.
Albany, Ore., Nov. 10-27.
Open dates, Dec. 1-18 and on.

DAVIDSON PARTY.
Perrysville, Ohio, Aug. 25-Sept. 4.
Carrollton, Ohio, Sept. 15-25.

DECKER, WALTER REED.
(Song Evangelist)
(124 Gould St., Corry, Pa.)
Open dates for Fall and Winter.

DYE, CHARLES.
(430 Williams St., Troy, Ohio)
Toledo, Ohio, Sept. 4-18.
Portsmouth, Ohio, Sept. 25-Oct. 9.
West Jefferson, Ohio, Nov. 6-20.
Open date, Oct. 16-30.

DUNAWAY, C. M.
Greenville, Tenn., Sept. 1-12.

ELSNER, THEO. AND WIFE.
(1451 Pacific St., Brooklyn, N. Y.)
Delanco, N. J., August 26-Sept. 5.
Anderson, Ind., Oct. 2-16.
Owosso, Mich., Oct. 20-Nov. 6.
East Liverpool, Ohio, Nov. 8-20.
Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 27-Dec. 11.

FLEMING, JOHN.
Denver, Colo., Sept. 11-25.
Chicago, Ill. (1st church), Oct. 9-23.
Ft. Wayne, Ind., Oct. 30-Nov. 13.
Warren, Ohio, Nov. 17-27.

FLEMING, BONA.
Ingersoll, Okla., Aug. 26-Sept. 4.
Marksville, La., Sept. 9-18.
Shreveport, La., Sept. 19-Oct. 2.
Chicago, Ill., Oct. 9-23.

FLEXON, R. S.
(Shackelfords, Va.)
Delanco, N. J., Aug. 17-Sept. 5.

FRYHOFF, A. J.
(Singing and Preaching Evangelist)
(3172 West 73rd St., Cleveland, Ohio)
Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 2-16.

FUGETT, C. B.
(2513 Holt St., Ashland, Ky.)
Cape May, N. J., Sept. 9-17.

GADDIS, TILDEN H.
(4805 Ravenna St., Cincinnati, Ohio)
Mulberry, Ohio, Sept. 2-18.
Mt. Washington, Ohio, Sept. 23-Oct. 9.
Binghamton, N. Y., Oct. 14-30.
Huplock, Md., Nov. 1-13.
Baltimore, Md., Nov. 25-27.

GANN, J. A.
(Town Creek, Ala.)
Open dates: September.

GEIL, PAUL AND DORA.
(Frankfort, Ind.)
(Singers and Xylophone Players)
Crawfordsville, Ind., Sept. 7-11.
Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 16-Nov. 6.
Brazil, Ind., Nov. 13-27.
Anamosa, Iowa, Dec. 1-30.

GLEASON, RUFUS H.
(Central, S. C.)
Luverne, Minn., Sept. 4-18.
Pipestone, Minn., Sept. 20-Oct. 2.
Fairmont, Minn., Oct. 4-18.

GLENN, REV AND MRS. J. M.
Eastman, Ga., Sept. 4-18.

GROGG, W. A.
(Ronceverte, W. Va.)
Pinch, W. Va., August 20-Sept. 3.

GROSE, JOHN A.
(Shepherdstown, W. Va.)
Front Royal, Va., Aug. 21-Sept. 4.
Odenton, Md., Sept. 5-11.

HALLMAN, W. R. AND WIFE.
(5478 Ridgewood Ct., Chicago, Ill.)
Sloan, Iowa, Aug. 30-Sept. 4.
Luverne, Minn., Sept. 4-18.
Pipestone, Minn., Sept. 20-Oct. 2.
Fairmont, Minn., Oct. 4-16.

HARRIS, B. F.
Riley, Kan., Aug. 17-Sept. 4.

HODGE, H. W.
(120 S. 16th St., Flushing, N. Y. City)
Bushville, N. Y., August 21-31.
Manhattan Tabernacle, New York City,
Sept. 6-16.
Open dates, October, November, December.

HOLLENBACK, URAL T.
Norristown, Pa., Oct. 2-16.

HORN, LUTHER A.—MARSHALL, R. P.
(Box 1322, Mobile, Ala.)
Louisville, Ala., Sept. 1-14.
Open date, Sept. 18-30.
Mobile, Ala., Oct. 1-8.

HOWARD, FIELDING T.
(Wilmore, Ky.)
London, Ky., Sept. 7-9.
Kingswood, Ky., Sept. 9-15.

HULSE, AARON.
Bradford, Ark., Sept. 2-25.
Nashville, Kan., Oct. 2-16.

HUNT, JOHN J.
(Media, Pa., Rt. 3.)
Wilkesburg, Pa., Sept. 2-25.
Detroit, Mich., (Tabernacle) Oct. 1-Dec. 31.

IRICK, ALLIE AND EMMA.
(Bethany, Okla.)
Millport, Ala., Aug. 31-Sept. 12.
Thomas, Okla., Sept. 15-25.

JOHNSON, ANDREW
London, Ky., (Conf.) Sept. 1-5.
Terrills Creek, Ky., Sept. 6-16.

JONES, LYMAN.
(North Kingsville, Ohio)
Open dates.

JONES, LUM.
(630 W. 9th St., Ada, Okla.)
Britton, Okla., Sept. 4-18.
Hugo, Okla., Sept. 21-25.
Pasadena, Calif., Oct. 5-23.

KENNEDY, ROBERT J.
(Singer)
Paris, Tenn., Sept. 4-25.
Ft. Worth, Tex., Oct. 2-23.

KINSEY FRANK E.
(1220 Tecumseh St., Indianapolis, Ind.)
Urbana, Ill., Aug. 24-29.

LILLENAS, HALDOR AND BERTHA.
Connersville, Ind., Oct. 2-16.

LEWIS AND EMEYART.
(Singers and Players)
Hayward, Wis., (camp) Aug. 24-Sept. 4.

LINN, REV. AND MRS. JACK—QUINN, IMOGENE.
(Oregon, Wis.)
Louisville, Tenn., Sept. 1-11.
Knoxville, Tenn., Sept. 13-25.

LOVELESS, W. W.
(London, Ohio)
Lexington, Ky., Sept. 7-11.
Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 8-23.
Marion, Ohio, Oct. 24-Nov. 6.

LYTLE, W. E.
(Wilmore, Ky.)
August and September open.
Richland Center, Wis., Sept. 28-Oct. 23.

MCBRIDE, J. B.
(112 Arlington Drive, Pasadena, Calif.)
Oakland City, Ind., Aug. 25-Sept. 4.
Patrickburg, Ind., Sept. 11-25.

MAXWELL, PROF. S. A.
(Graham, N. C.)
West Burlington, N. C., Aug. 28-Sept. 8.

MILBY, E. C.
(Song Evangelist, Gabe, Ky.)
Middletown, Ohio, Sept. 11-Oct. 4.

MILBY, L. G. AND BERTHA.
(Box 327, Danville, Ill.)
Danville, Ill., Sept. 1-10.
Middletown, Ohio, Sept. 11-Oct. 2.
Lockland, Ohio, Oct. 9-23.

Mont Pelier, Ind., Oct. 25-Nov. 6.
Richmond, Ky., Nov. 13-27.

MILLER, REV. AND MRS. F. E.
(N. Y.)
Richland, N. Y., August 21-Sept. 5.

MILLER, JAMES.
(1249 N. Holmes Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.)
Fairland, Ind., Aug. 23-Sept. 11.
Bedford, Ind., Sept. 23-Oct. 9.
Armel, Colo., Oct. 11-30.

MONK, ALONZO, JR.
Winslow, Ark., July 26-Sept. 1.
Paris, Tenn., Sept. 3-24, 21-Sept. 11.
October, November, December open.

MORRIS, (JUDGE) FRANK
(P. O. Box 1523, Dallas, Tex.)
Alamogordo, N. Mex., Sept. 11.
Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 2.

NELSON, S. S.
(832 Worth Ave., Greensboro, N. C.)
Hillsboro, N. C., Aug. 26-Sept. 4.
Open date, Sept. 6-30.
Organ Cave, W. Va., Oct. 1-10.
Ranceverte, W. Va., Oct. 12-25.

NORRERY, JOHN.
Ocean Grove, N. J., Aug. 29-Sept. 3.

OWEN, JOHN F.
(Taylor University, Upland, Ind.)
Tarrant, Ala., Aug. 28-Sept. 11.

OWEN, G. F. AND BYRDIE.
(1415 West Pike Peak Ave., Colorado Springs, Colo.)
Bath, Maine, Aug. 28-Sept. 12.
South Portland, Maine, Sept. 18-Oct. 2.

POLLITT, S. H.
Wagoner's Chapel, Ky., August 15-25.

REDMON, J. E. AND ADA.
(1231 N. Holmes Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.)
Stringtown, Ind., Sept. 25-Oct. 9.
New Castle, Pa., Oct. 14-30.

REED, LAWRENCE.
(Damasco, Ohio)
Richland, N. Y., August 21-Sept. 5.
Cumberland, Md., Sept. 10-20.

REID, JAMES V.
(2912 Meadowbrook Drive, Ft. Worth, Tex.)
Lake Junaluska, N. C., August 21-26.
Ft. Worth, Tex., Sept. 11-23.
Birmingham, Ala., Sept. 25-Oct. 16.

RINEBARGER, C. C.
(Olivet, Ill.)
Oakland City, Ind., Aug. 26-Sept. 4.

ROMINE, JOHN A.
Chalybeate Springs, Ala., Aug. 26-Sept. 2.
New Bethel, Ala., Sept. 3-9.
Harmony, Ala., Sept. 9-17.

ROBERTS, T. P.
Circleville, Ohio, Aug. 26-Sept. 4.

ROOD, PERRY E.
(2838 Overlook Drive, Huntington, W. Va.)
West Liberty, Ohio, Dec. 2-Jan. 7.

RUTH, C. W.
(1535 Nowland Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.)
Gaines, Mich., August 28-Sept. 4.
Stayner, Ont., Can., Rt. 3, Sept. 18-23.
Lexington, Ky., Aug. 11-21.

ST. CLAIR, FRED
(2444 Bowditch St., Berkeley, Calif.)
LaGrande, Ore., Sept. 4-Oct. 2.
Spokane, Wash., Oct. 9-Nov. 6.
Colfax, Wash., Nov. 13-Dec. 18.

SANFORD, E. L. AND WIFE.
(262 Engman Ave., Lexington, Ky.)
Nicholasville, Ky., Aug. 23-Sept. 5.
Open date, Sept. 7-19.
Pikeville, Ky., Sept. 21-26.

SHARROW, C. E. AND NEVA B.
(Wren, Ohio)
Open date, August 16-31.

SHELHAMER, E. E.
(6419 Bushby Way, Los Angeles, Calif.)
Marion, Ohio, Sept. 8-18.
Binghamton, N. Y., Sept. 25-Oct. 9.
Allentown, Pa., Oct. 16-30.
Lewistown, Pa., Nov. 3-13.

SWEETEN, H. W.
Circleville, Ohio, Aug. 26-Sept. 5.

TEETS, ODA B.
(Aurora, W. Va.)
Mt. Nebo, W. Va., Aug. 17-31.

THOMAS, JOHN.
(Wilmore, Ky.)
Clarksburg, Ont., Can., Sept. 9-18.
Carysville, Ohio, Aug. 23-28.

VANDALL, N. B.
Mt. Lookout, Ohio, Aug. 25-Sept. 4.
Rochester, Pa., Sept. 9-18.
Baltimore, Md., Oct. 2-16.
Brooklyn, N. Y., Nov. 4-13.

VAYHINGER, M.
Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 15-19.
Lawson, Ky., Sept. 20-29.
Osgood, Ind., Oct. 2-23.

WATTS, E. E.
(Sandy Lake, Pa.)
Open date, August 9-31.
Hadley, N. Y., Sept. 4-25.
Corinth, N. Y., Sept. 27-Oct. 16.
Hookstown, Pa., Oct. 23-Nov. 6.

WELSH, H. W.
(Box 108, Olivet, Ill.)
Olivet, Ill., Sept. 1-3.
Northfield, Minn., Sept. 4-18.

WHITAKER, J. H.
(Box 385, Arlington, Tex.)
Van Alstyne, Tex., July 22-31.
Irredell, Tex., Aug. 19-30.

WILLIAMS, L. E.
(Wilmore, Ky.)
Open date, Aug. 19-Sept. 4.

WINLAND, C. B.
Layland, Ohio, August 31-Sept. 14.
Athens, Ohio, Sept. 18-Oct. 2.

A PLEASANT HOME
In Wilmore, Ky., stones throw from Asbury College, seven rooms and bath. Has garage. Enquire of D. W. Cox, Mansfield, Ohio.

GIFT FOR GIRLS.

A beautiful smooth leather, dark maroon color, stamped in pure gold, neat in size, 4x5 1/2, only 1 inch thick, overlapping edges, with silk headbands and marker, frontispiece for presentation purpose, a large number of beautiful sepia illustrations, maps in colors, light in weight, with a good clear, readable ruby type, beautiful quality of thin Bible paper—a Bible that would delight any young person. The regular net price of it is $2.50. We are closing out about 50 copies at $2.00 each, postpaid. Can you give anything more appropriate? Order from Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky.

WIREMAN, C. L.
(7272 Scott St., Covington, Ky.)
Rising Sun, Ind., Sept. 7-15.
Open date, August 15-28.
Kingswood, Ky., Aug. 30-Sept. 6.
Burlington, Ky., Sept. 20-Oct. 2.

YOUNG, ALVIN.
Winchester, Ind., Aug. 30-Sept. 11.
Monticello, N. Y., Oct. 4-16.

CAMP MEETING CALENDAR.

ALABAMA.
Millport, Ala., camp, September 1-11.
Workers: Allie and Emma Irick, H. H. Hocker. Music and congregational singing. J. L. Shelton and Mrs. H. A. Forester. For information write Juneoos Shelton, Sec., Millport, Ala.

INDIANA.
Cleveland, Ind., camp, August 26-Sept. 4.
Workers: Rev. John T. Hatfield, Rev. G. Arnold Hodgkin, Wright Brothers, Song leaders, Miss Florence Wyse, pianist. For information write Rev. C. E. Ellsworth, Sec., Greenfield, Ind., Rt. 3.
Oakland City, Ind., camp, August 26-Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. J. B. McBride, Rev. Ira Aykers, Rev. C. E. Rinebarger and wife, song evangelists. Write Mrs. Warrick Yeager, Sec., 518 S. Hall St., Princeton, Ind.

KANSAS.
Haviland, Kan., camp, August 31-Sept. 11. Workers: Rev. A. B. Lacour, Rev. E. H. Craven, singer. Write A. L. Bevan, Secretary.

KENTUCKY.
Lawson, Ky., camp, Aug. 21-31. Workers: Rev. W. B. Weaver, Rev. Eussel Patton, Rev. C. B. Vincent. Music in charge of the Mt. Carmel Quartet. Address Miss Mary Vandiver, Sec., Lawson, Ky.

MASSACHUSETTS.
North Reading, Mass., camp, Sept. 2-5, inclusive. Workers: Rev. J. L. Rogers, Rev. H. V. Miller. For information, address G. E. Waddell, Sec., 620 Columbia Rd., Boston, Mass.

MICHIGAN.
Gaines, Mich., camp, August 26-Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. C. W. Ruth, Dr. H. C. Morrison, Rev. H. L. Cox, Rev. C. W. Butler, Miss Esther Williamson. Secretary, Mrs. Grace Millard, 614 W. Michigan Ave., East Lansing, Mich.

MISSOURI.
Ava, Mo., camp, August 25-Sept. 4. Workers: A. P. Breneman and wife, C. E. Woodson and local assistants. For information write Mrs. Mattie Wallace, Ava, Mo., Route 1.

NEW JERSEY.
Erma, N. J., camp, Sept. 9-13. Workers: Rev. C. B. Fugett, Rev. K. Hawley Jackson and wife. For information write Earl Woolson, Cape May, N. J., R.F.D.
Fletcher Grove, Delanco, N. J., camp, August 27-Sept. 5. Workers: Rev. Theo. Elsner, Mrs. Theo. Elsner, Rev. Richard G. Flexon, Jr.

OHIO.
Unipolis, Ohio, camp, August 25-Sept. 4. Workers: L. S. Hoover, Rev. Herb Walker. Prof. N. B. Vandall has charge of late music. Address Geo. W. Watman, Unipolis, Ohio.

Circleville, Ohio, camp, August 26-Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. T. P. Roberts, Rev. Howard W. Sweeten, Rev. Charles L. Slater, Rev. E. A. Keaton, Cor. Sec., 481 N. High St., Chillicothe, Ohio.

Findlay, Ohio, camp, August 11-21. Workers: C. H. Stalker, B. H. Haynie, Mrs. A. A. Smith, W. B. Vandall, singer. Miss Florine Ewing, pianist. G. W. Egbert, Sec.

OKLAHOMA.
Blackwell, Okla., camp, August 25-Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. C. H. Babcock, Rev. Geo. Bennard and Willard Davis. Address Mrs. A. L. Wright, Sec., 307 E. College, Blackwell, Okla.

Thomas, Okla., camp, Sept. 15-25. Workers: Rev. C. H. Babcock, Revs. Allie and Emma Irick. For information write to Miss Anna Kraybill, Sec., Thomas, Okla.

TENNESSEE.
Greenville, Tenn., camp, Sept. 1-11. Workers: Rev. C. M. Dunaway, Ruth Harris in charge of music. Address Mrs. Flora Willis, care Mrs. C. A. Vann, Greenville, Tenn.

VIRGINIA.
Locust Grove, Va., camp, August 26-Sept. 4. Workers: Rev. F. P. Shoup, Rev. H. A. Frederick, Rev. J. M. Jennings. For information write Mrs. Lillie R. Bowles, Sec., Locust Grove, Va.

Salem, Va., camp, Sept. 9-19. Workers: Dr. J. W. Carter and Rev. O. H. Callis. For information write J. J. True, Pres., Salem, Va.

"ASK ME" YOUR INTIMATE QUESTIONS THE ANSWERS ARE HERE

ONE MILLION DRIVE
THIS ANNIVERSARY YEAR

FOUR BOOKS TO MEN By SYLVANUS STALL, D. D.

Condensed Tables of Contents follow

What a Young Boy Ought to Know
Part I.—How God reproduces the flowers, insects, fishes and animals.—The two natures in the oyster.—The bird's egg and the baby bird. Part II.—The manner in which the reproductive system is injured in boys by abuse. Part III.—The consequences in boys of abuse. Part IV.—How boys may preserve their purity and strength. Part V.—Our duty to aid others. Part VI.—How purity and strength may best be regained. Part VII.—The age of adolescence.

What a Young Man Ought to Know
Part I.—Strength.—The manly mastery of self. Part II.—Weakness: How to overcome. Part III.—Etils to be shunned and consequences o be dreaded. Part IV.—Reproduction.—All life from the seed or egg. Part V.—Who should not marry.—Selection of a wife.—Early and late marriage, etc., etc.

What a Young Husband Ought to Know
Part I.—What he ought to know concerning himself.—What is sex.—Purity and fidelity. Part II.—What he ought to know concerning his wife.—Wedding joys.—The mother nature.—The wrongs of witchdoom. Part III.—What he ought to know concerning his children.—Hereditv.—Parental influences, etc.

What a Man of 45 Ought to Know
Part I.—What he ought to know concerning himself.—Physical changes in men at middle life. Part II.—What he ought to know concerning his wife.—The menopause, and the physical changes which follow.

FOUR BOOKS TO WOMEN

Condensed Tables of Contents follow

What a Young Girl Ought to Know
By Mrs. Mary Wood-Allen, M. D.
Part I.—The origin of life.—Plant life, bees and insects. Part II.—Fishes and their young.—Larvæ from the birds. Part III.—Animals and their young.—Human infants the most helpless. Part IV.—Care of the body.—Mothers dealing honestly with their children.

What a Young Woman Ought to Know
By Mrs. Mary Wood-Allen, M. D.
Part I.—Growth and growth.—How to obtain health and development. Part II.—Womanhood.—The crisis in the girl's life.—Causes and cures for wrong physical conditions.—The consequences of mistakes. Part III.—Love.—What are the requisites in a husband.—Engagements.—Weddings.

What a Young Wife Ought to Know
By Mrs. Emma F. A. Drake, M. D.
Choice of a husband. The marital relations. Parenthood. Maternity and health. The stages of parental culture. Expectant maternity. Baby's wardrobe. Physician and nurse. The birth-chamber. Care of baby. Guarding against vice. Helps for mothers.

What a Woman of 45 Ought to Know
By Mrs. Emma F. A. Drake, M. D.
Physical changes in middle life. Causes, symptoms, etc., etc. Importance of right mental attitude. Valuable suggestions.

The Self and Sex Series

Books for the Masses

Now in Their Third Million Edition

FREE FROM MEDICAL TIES

People are bound to know of the functions of their own bodies, and these books give this information properly and cleanly. They are recommended by plain people, as well as by the eminent, such as:

Edward W. Bok
Rev. F. B. Meyer, D. D.
Judge Ben B. Lindsey
Bishop Vincent
Joseph Strong, D. D.
W. H. Griffith Thomas
Francis C. Clark, D. D.
Rev. John Clifford, M. A.
Carrie M. Sheldon, D. D.
Frederick A. Atkins
President W. M. F. Paunce, D. D.
John R. Mott
J. Whitely Chapman, D. D.
Eugene H. Porter, M. D.
Mrs. Alden (Pansy)
Mrs. S. Bolton
Mrs. M. L. Dickinson
Mrs. Lillian M. N. Stevens

ORDER BLANK

PENTECOSTAL PUBLISHING COMPANY
Printers—Publishers—Book Sellers
523 South First Street Louisville, Kentucky

Please forward postage paid, the following books checked X by which find enclosed $1.00 for each book.

<input type="checkbox"/> BOY	<input type="checkbox"/> GIRL
<input type="checkbox"/> YOUNG MAN	<input type="checkbox"/> YOUNG WOMAN
<input type="checkbox"/> HUSBAND	<input type="checkbox"/> WIFE
<input type="checkbox"/> MAN OF 45	<input type="checkbox"/> WOMAN OF 45

Name _____
Address _____
Town _____
State _____

WRITE NAME AND ADDRESS PLAINLY

WALKING WITH GOD OR THE DEVIL, WHICH?

Mrs. Kathleen Arnold.

In traveling the journey of life, every individual who has reached the age of accountability is walking either with God or with the devil; but one thing suré, nobody is walking with both at the same time. "No man can serve two masters; for either he will hate the one and love the other; or else he will hold to the one and despise the other; ye cannot serve God and mammon." Matt. 6:24. We willingly serve those whom we love: If we love God, we will render unto him a willing service, which is the only kind he will accept. Such a service includes the keeping of his commandments: Jesus said, "If you love me, keep my commandments." John 14:15. "He that hath my commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me." 14:21.

If we are falling down at this point, we need not go around professing to be Christians; for in reality, we are not. We may succeed, however, in making somebody think we are; we may deceive the people, and even deceive ourselves, but we cannot deceive God; for he knows the most inmost secret of our hearts: nothing can be hidden from him. There may be sins of which some people are guilty, and which they have succeeded thus far in covering up; but never mind, God knows, and some day the world may know. "For God shall bring every work into judgment, with every secret thing, whether it be good or whether it be evil." Eccl. 12:14. There may be loud profession without real possession. There may be a mere outward righteousness, which is not the righteousness of God imputed and imparted through faith in Jesus Christ, but only a human righteousness; a kind that may be found among the unconverted, and even among the heathen. The Pharisees possessed this special type of righteousness, and they lived it, too; but Jesus said: "Except your righteousness shall exceed the righteousness of the scribes and Pharisees, ye can in no case enter into the kingdom of heaven." Matt. 5:20.

We fear, however, that there are many professed Christians who, today are living far below even this standard of righteousness. Many of the scribes and Pharisees no doubt, lived beautiful lives; they did a number of commendable things; their lives no doubt were far above that of the average Christian of today;—but Jesus said: "Woe unto you scribes, Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye shut the kingdom of Heaven against men: for ye neither go in yourselves, neither suffer ye them that entering to go in." Matt. 23:13. "Woe unto you, scribes, Pharisees, hypocrites; for ye make clean the outside of the cup and the platter, but within are full of extortion and excess." Matt. 23:25. "Oh!" but you say, "I am not of that kind." But, my friend, you would better be sure; it may be that you don't know exactly what kind you really are. Perhaps, you would better ask the Lord to show you your heart. But if you do, don't fail to ask him to give you grace to bear the sight. Do you have the love of God in your heart? If not, I seriously question that you are his child. You may belong to the church—the biggest and finest church in the town or community; you may also be regarded as one of the most loyal members of that church, and yet be in the "gall of bitterness and in the bonds of iniquity." You may be even the impersonation of liberality, going to the extent of giving all your goods to feed the poor and also giving your body to be burned; yet, if you have not charity, or love, it will profit you nothing. 1 Cor. 13:3. There are people today who are held in high esteem in the church to which they belong, who seem to be good, "awfully good," sanctimoniously good, and yet they are rejecting the truth, fighting "Holiness of heart and life," and are putting a question mark over nearly every fundamental doctrine of the Bible. They say, "It is impossible to live without sin," notwithstanding the fact that God's word says: "Whosoever is born of God doth not commit sin; for his seed remaineth in him: and he cannot sin, because he is born of God." 1 John 3:9. Jesus came that He Might Save His People From Their Sins.

Not in their sins, as some people seem to imagine, but from their sins. Listen, brother, sister, if you are not saved from you sins, you are not saved at all: get that, and keep it. "Oh!" but says one: "The standard is too high." Well, I am not responsible for that; Jesus held out that very standard, when he said: "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your father who is in heaven is perfect." Matt. 5:48. Yet some say, that we can't live it. How then are we going to get a heaven? In Heb. 12:14, we read these words: "Follow peace with all men, and holiness (sanctification) without which no man shall see the Lord." Take God's word for it, brother; not what some man says about it.

If The Bible Doesn't Teach Sanctification, and that almost from lid to lid, will you kindly tell me what you think it does teach. It seems to me that if it doesn't teach this, it could hardly be depended upon to teach anything very clearly. There is enough in the 17th chapter of St. John, to convince anybody with an unprejudiced mind, that this prayer of Jesus was for the sanctification of believers. If it does not teach this, then we fail altogether to get its significance. In no place did Jesus teach his disciples that they should keep on sinning. Surely none of them got that impression; nor did the Apostle Paul so understand the gospel: For he says, in Rom. 6:12, "Shall we continue in sin, that grace may abound?" God forbid. How shall we who are dead to sin, live any longer therein?

According to the teaching of the Bible, the Christian can have but one attitude to sin and that is "total abstinence." He must refrain from all sin: nor does the matter stop there: he must shun the very appearance of evil. 1 Thess. 5:22.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.

Mrs. O. R. C.: "Pray for my husband and I that we may both be filled with the Spirit."

Mrs. E. A. B.: "Pray that the Lord will restore my husband to health."

I. H. T.: "Pray for the work at Dublin, Ga."

R. E. H.: "A young preacher desires the prayers of The Herald family for a coming revival in a very wicked city."

Mrs. J. M.: "Please pray for a bed-ridden believer in Jesus' power to heal."

COMFORT BIBLE

Large pica type. (See specimen below). Beautiful morocco binding with overlapping edges. Thin and light, size 6x9-1 in. thick, weight only 22 ounces, fine India paper, red under gold edges, silk head bands and marker, family record. Regular $8.00 value. Our special price $5.00, post-paid. PENTECOSTAL PUB. CO., Louisville, Ky.

The superiority of HEBR

6 Now when these things were thus ordained, the priests went always

Is the Antichrist at Hand?

What of Mussolini—The Iron Man of Rome?
The Revival of the Roman Empire?
The End of the Present World Order?

THE book of the hour, containing Bible evidence of a most startling nature from the world of demonology, politics and religion concerning the end of the present world order.

Over
30,000
Sold!

Two Editions: Cloth, $1.00; postpaid, $1.10.
Paper, 50c; postpaid, 55c.

At your bookstore, or from
Pentecostal Publishing Company
523 South First Street
LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY

Baptism,

Its Mode, Subjects and Designs.

By Dr. George H. Means.

Plain, practical and comprehensive discussion of this subject. It discusses very thoroughly The Mode, The Baptism of New Testament, The Meaning of the word Baptize, Infant Baptism, etc. Knowing the ability of the author to handle this subject some of our leading men urged the writing of this book. Price, 50c.

DR. RIDOUT ON DRESS QUESTION.

At last the holiness people are going to have a real, outspoken, frank, powerful booklet on the Dress Question. Dr. Ridout has written it. Title is, "The Dress Question and Modern Abominations." Price will be 15c. Send in your order and read this book and get your friends to read it. PENTECOSTAL PUBLISHING CO. Louisville, Kentucky.

JUST OUT!!

"THE METHODIST CRISIS"

Dr. Ridout has put into pamphlet form under above title the story of the fight for orthodoxy which took place on the floor of the New Jersey Conference, Asbury Park, N. J., last March, in which he and Dr. H. P. Sloan and others debated with Bishop Anderson and Dr. H. H. Meyer, Sunday School Editor, the issues of Modernism within Methodism.

In addition to Dr. Ridout's story there is a fine write-up of the affair by Rev. H. Decker who was present at the debate and whose story appeared in the "Essentialist."

Let every Methodist send and get a copy of this booklet. Every Methodist minister—North and South—should read the story. It will stir your blood. It will show you how Modernism is getting a terrific grip on Methodist Bishops, Editors and Leaders. It will also show you your duty to stand up and show your colors in the hour of peril.

Dr. Sloan, Dr. Ridout and others take the fight for orthodoxy right into their Annual Conferences and it is there the battle should be fought out.

Price 15c, or 7 for $1.00.

PENTECOSTAL PUBLISHING CO.
Louisville, Kentucky.

NOT TO BE USED WITHOUT COPYRIGHT PERMISSION

OF ASBURY THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

THE FIGHT IS ON

The fight against sin and for holiness.

The fight against impurity and for purity.

The fight against worldliness in the church and for a holy people.

The fight against immodest dress and for a modest womanhood.

The fight against those who would destroy the Bible, and for the Word.

The fight against Sabbath desecration and for Sabbath observance.

The fight against lawlessness, and for obedience to the law.

The fight against trashy literature and for wholesome literature.

The fight against indifference and for a revival.

THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD IS IN THIS GREAT BATTLE FOR RIGHTEOUSNESS.

and the only way for us to make the fight effective in your community is for you to help us by placing it into every home possible. You will be pleased to know that you can send THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD from now until January 1, 1928, for only 50c, and if we may have your co-operation, you will be instrumental in making this fight effective in your community.

Allow us to suggest that you tell every one you come in contact with what THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD is fighting for, and tell them of this special introductory offer. Also speak to one or more financially able and liberal persons, tell them what you are trying to do, and ask for their co-operation in putting the paper into a number of homes. Then, too, you will find a number of people who tithe who will be glad to invest a little tithe money in a fight of this kind.

Use the blanks below and send in your list within the next few days, so as to give the subscribers the benefit of the full 25 weeks.

Pentecostal Publishing Company, Louisville, Kentucky.

Enclosed find $..... for which please send The Pentecostal Herald weekly from now until January, 1928, to the following:

Name	Name
Address	Address
Name	Name
Address	Address
Name	Name
Address	Address
Name	Name
Address	Address
Name	Name
Address	Address

PENTECOSTAL HERALD

Dr. H. C. Morrison, Editor
Mrs. H. C. Morrison, Associate Editor

Louisville, Ky., Wednesday, Sept. 7, 1927.
Entered at Louisville, Ky., Postoffice as Second Class Matter.

$1.50 Per Year.
Vol. 39, No. 36.

GOD ANSWERS PRAYER.

By The Editor.

THERE is much complaint coming from many quarters of the lack of spiritual life and revival power in Methodism. We hear that the modern liberalists are in positions of power and influence; that there is much dangerous teaching in our training schools for Sunday school teachers; that there is much modern skepticism taught in our Summer Schools for young preachers. Have we tried prayer? Have those persons in the Methodist Church, north and south, believed in the power of the gospel, gone to God with a mighty cry for a manifestation of his power among Methodists?

* * * *

We do not believe that those of us who hold steadfastly to the original doctrines of Methodism, the possibility and importance of great revivals, have yet done our very best at the mercy seat. Let us try prayer. Let all true Methodists, north and south, who are grieved over the inroads that false teachings are making among us, gather about the throne of God and call upon him for gracious displays of his power in turning back the tide of unbelief and the bringing in of a great revival.

* * * *

Not long since I suggested in one of our great camp meetings, that we Methodists who love the whole Bible, the Methodist Church, and who desire a mighty revival of religion, unite ourselves to fast and pray on the first Friday morning of each month. A number of persons responded at once to this suggestion, and we are hoping that devout Methodist people of the various Methodist Churches, but more especially of the M. E. and the M. E. C., S., will fast at the breakfast hour on the first Friday of each month, and tarry at the throne of grace before God for a mighty awakening in Methodism, for a gracious outpouring of the Holy Ghost upon the church.

* * * *

God hears and answers prayer. He has not changed, his truth has not changed and human nature has not changed, neither has the plan of salvation changed since the days of John Wesley, Bishop Asbury, and a host of Methodist saints who are now in glory. Let us carry our cause to high heaven and call upon God to answer with divine fire, moving mightily upon the church, staying the tides of unbelief, worldliness and wickedness, and giving us a mighty revival of salvation.

* * * *

It is quite true that there is much false and dangerous teaching being spread abroad in our Methodism. Let us ask God to confuse the gainsayers, to lay his hand upon those who would bring in false doctrines, discount the atonement, and draw the people away from the mighty saving truths of the gospel. God is mightier than man, than all men. He can stand up in defense of his own truth and put the seal of his power upon his people. We are approaching a great crisis in Methodism, in fact, in the religious history of the nation. Let us go to God in prayer. We are not asking for any sort of organization; we are not forming a prayer league, but we are begging that multitudes of Methodists meet about the throne of grace upon their knees the first Friday morning of each month in an earnest cry to God to stay the tide of false teaching, to pour his Spirit upon his people, to confuse the counsels and plans of the enemies of regeneration and revivals of religion, and to awaken in the minds and hearts of the Methodist people of this nation the importance of a great revival of true religion. We would not suggest that prayer be offered on this subject only on the first Friday morning of each month, but we do suggest that this be a time of special fasting and prayer for a gracious manifestation of God's power in the confusion and overthrow of false teaching and the granting of a mighty revival of pure religion.

ONE OF MY GREAT DESIRES.

CHAPTER IV.

I have great confidence in that class of people scattered throughout these United States known as "The Holiness people." I have had opportunity for close acquaintance with them. I believe in their intelligence, their piety, their sincerity and zeal. To me, their work has been quite remarkable. They have kept up their church relations, paid their per cent. for the building of churches, schools, orphanages, salaries for pastors and, at the same time, they have contributed in a marvelous way for the building up of this great revival movement.

They have built up a number of schools. They have built rescue homes. They have opened up missions. They have sent out missionaries and have established considerable work in foreign fields. They have helped to educate thousands of young people who feel a call to the ministry and other fields of Christian service. I understand that by many they are regarded as noisy enthusiasts but lacking in true devotion and practical religion. I do not see them in that light at all. They have spent hundreds of thousands of dollars in the great camp meetings to a good and glorious purpose. In these camps a vast multitude have been saved from wicked lives, made good, devout Christians and thrifty, intelligent citizens with the highest moral standards. In these camp meetings, thousands of souls have been sanctified and have become liberal contributors to the work of God. No figures can tell what a host of immortal souls have been converted, saved from hell and landed safely in Heaven because of the holiness camp meetings scattered far and near over these United States.

When I hear people ridiculing the holiness folk for their lack of practical religion and an intelligent use of their means, and the direction of their zeal, I like to point them to Asbury College. The work done in this institution in the last seventeen years is quite remarkable. Seventeen years ago, school opened with less than 250 students, including little children in the primary department. The outlook was indeed gloomy. Our buildings were inadequate. We had no heating plant, no waterworks, a poor library, no bathtubs nor sewerage system, no gymnasium, a small faculty and less than seventy-five college students in the school. The rest of the student body was made of Academy and Primary students.

Behold, what God hath wrought! We now have a much enlarged campus with eight large brick buildings ranging in cost from $50,000 to $225,000 each. We have quite a number of frame buildings, a vast heating plant, excellent waterworks, a fine sewerage system, ample tub and shower baths, something over 600 college students last year with a fine Academy bringing the total number of attendance up to considerably over 800 students. This great work has been done by those despised and ridiculed Christians called "The Holiness people." Scarcely a dollar has come to the upbuilding and enlargement of this plant from any one who did not profess full salvation through faith in the Lord Jesus Christ; other monies that may have come to us have come from persons who were thoroughly friendly to the doctrines we believe, the experiences we profess, and the great principles for which we stand.

I am looking to God's holiness people to help me in this enlargement of the Theological Seminary. I believe in God, in the Lord Jesus Christ, his Son, and in the Holy Ghost. I believe that the Holy Ghost can make profound impressions upon the people, make them see and feel their obligations and appreciate their opportunities. I want the great HERALD family to join with me in earnest prayer for this enlargement of which I am writing. We want to prepare the way for devout, earnest young men with small means or no means to get into this theological school and prepare themselves for a faithful and earnest soul-winning ministry.

Please let me hear from you and help in this good work with large sums or small, all the way from one to ten thousand dollars or more. I believe there are a number of consecrated women who are able and will be willing to contribute liberally to this good work. I believe there are men scattered over this nation who will not hesitate to help forward in this splendid task. Please understand that I am not asking you to send me any cash at this time, but I am asking you to become interested and to indicate to me that you will be glad to help, and something of the amount you might be able to contribute.

Faithfully, your brother,

H. C. MORRISON.

(Continued)

NOT TO BE USED WITHOUT COPYRIGHT PERMISSION

OF ASBURY THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

AN OPEN LETTER TO BISHOP BERRY.

Rev. G. W. Ridout, D.D., Corresponding Editor.

My Dear Bishop Berry:

I have read with deepest interest the address of the Bishops on spiritual conditions in the Methodist Church delivered at your meeting at Warren, Pa., and published in the New York Christian Advocate under the head of "The Bishops and Spiritual Rebirth."

The utterance is a notable one and very frank and open. It shows that the Bishops are deeply concerned about the condition of our Church from the standpoint of the spiritual.

The Bishops certainly set a worthy example to the church when they gave up a day to heart-searching inquiry about spiritual matters.

"For an entire day the Bishops of the church gave themselves to deep heart-searching, to unreserved surrender of themselves to the Lordship of Jesus Christ... and for the endowment of the power of God."

That the Bishops are stirred up as to the unspiritual and worldly state of the church is clearly seen by this statement:

"Extensive correspondence by the committee with district superintendents, pastors, laymen, educators and editors, disclose a desperately low spiritual vitality within our membership. Deeper than all meager and disturbing statistical returns was revealed the primary need of spiritual rebirth in Methodism."

Furthermore, the Bishops confess the need of real spiritual convictions in the following words:

"The Bishops are unanimous in their conviction that a piercing sense of the appalling spiritual need in the church can come only through the convicting power of the Holy Spirit, and not by any attempt to discover some new human mechanism or to rely upon some cleverly conceived evangelistic method."

That the Bishops stand willing to co-operate in an evangelistic movement looking toward this new birth of Methodism we are assured by the following:

"There should be new chapters written in the evangelistic life of every district in Methodism. To that glorious achievement, through this district leadership the Bishops dedicate themselves anew. With one accord the entire Board of Bishops recognized the obligation of every Bishop to take the Area leadership in direct evangelism."

The Bishops are calling for a change in methods when they say:

"Back of all effective evangelistic methods we recognize the urgency of the making of a new evangelistic mind and the creation of a different evangelistic method.... An evangelistic motive dominated by the spirit of our Redeemer must control all our varied evangelistic methods or modern Methodism will be going through evangelistic motions without the spiritual motor power of a new and needed modern Pentecost."

The Bishops are aware that the situation in Methodism cannot be changed immediately, that it will take time to change things, hence they say:

"We do not forget that it is the work of more than a season or a year, to change completely the spiritual mood of the church, but we declare our purpose to help make the coming year but the beginning of years in the development of a victorious evangelistic life in Methodism."

Now Bishop Berry, the whole of Methodism, I think, ought to feel encouraged by this deliverance on the part of their chief shepherds. You are the Senior Bishop of the church; you retire at the next General Conference, and through you I desire, as a Methodist preacher of over thirty years' standing, to call your attention to a few things which I believe will have to be changed in the Methodist Episcopal Church before we can hope to witness any very successful evangelistic achievements.

In the first place, Bishop, how has it come to pass that in all your addresses and appeals to the church the office and work of the evangelist is never recognized? In this particular address the district superintendent, the pastor, the layman are recognized, but the evangelist is never mentioned. We have hundreds of Methodist evangelists in this country—they are revivalists; they go to dead places and raise the dead; to desert places and make them blossom as the rose; to desperate situations and pray things through; to hopeless churches and bring on new life and these things they do through the old-time religion, the mourner's bench, and the old-time power! Why, in the evangelistic movements put on in the districts and the areas, etc., are the evangelists ignored and too often men put at the head of things who have never been soul winners nor revivalists?

Again, Bishop, how may we hope to have a "spiritual rebirth" when so many district superintendents are utterly opposed to evangelism on their district, and discourage their pastors from attempting to hold revival meetings? In some Conferences the district superintendents seem to maintain a policy of positive indifference and too often active opposition to special revival meetings. Many of those district superintendents treat with harshness pastors who have revivals; more especially do they set their faces against ministers on their districts who preach holiness and push the great doctrine of entire sanctification. It is a fact, Bishop Berry, that Methodist preachers who are true to the great central idea of Methodism—holiness—are men who invariably have awakenings and revivals on their charges. They get sinners saved, backsliders reclaimed and believers sanctified; they build up the churches; they raise the collections; they have good congregations, they have live prayer meetings and bring prosperity to the church, but too often when Conference comes on they are moved at the behest of some unspiritual official member of the church and sent to some obscure and hard place, whilst the modernistic preacher who seldom sees a soul converted, is exalted to a prominent church.

Then, Bishop, another matter which must be corrected before we can hope to have much of a spiritual rebirth, is this matter of modernistic training of our young ministers. It is a sad, heart-breaking fact that our young preachers taking their training in our official schools and in the summer schools are being taught and trained in a manner that makes it impossible to be Methodist preachers and revivalists. I have had many first-hand reports from the summer schools which are invariably managed by a set of ministerial educators who are modernists to the core. Some of these instructors make fun of Methodist doctrines; they belittle our great founder, John Wesley; they teach salvation by character instead of through the precious blood; they undermine the inspiration of the Scriptures; they teach religious education as a substitute for regeneration by the grace of God; they make it hard for students who stand by the "old paths." Many devout soul winners and full salvation preachers in the pastorate have expressed to me their dread of the summer schools. They are so shocked with the Modernism and Unitarianism that prevails and the worldly program put up that they feel they imperil their soul and their Christian experience by attending these schools.

In fact, Bishop, I know so many things about those summer schools of theology that I am bold enough to say that as at present carried on their abolishment would be a distinct gain to spiritual Methodism and would mean much to the movement towards the spiritual rebirth so much desired by the Bishops. We cannot expect to have a spiritual Methodism when we oblige our young preachers to go to schools where evangelistic fervor and fire are taken out of them and they are subjected to processes which destroy their faith in the "old paths" and the old gospel and make them peddlers of Modernistic oddities, instead of preachers of a great Redemption.

The Bishops say "that it is the work of more than a season or a year to change completely the spiritual mood of the church." Bishop, what is it that brings about a "spiritual mood" in the church? Will intellectual processes do it? Will the dominance of modernistic philosophy do it? Will the promotion of so-called Religious education propaganda in which sin, conviction of sin, regeneration and justification by faith are almost completely ignored, do it? Will socinian doctrines and unitarian practices contribute anything to a new spiritual mood?

Then, Bishop, how are we going to get back the evangelism that we have lost and bring on a spiritual rebirth which, as you say, is "Methodism's primary need," unless we get back to the principles and doctrines with which we started out? How about our great chief doctrine of Christian Perfection? Does not our Discipline declare that "God thrust us out to raise up a holy people"? To be exact the Discipline says: "We believe that God's design in raising up the Methodist Episcopal Church in America was to evangelize the Continent and spread Scriptural Holiness over these lands."

I have heard you, Bishop, Berry, on several occasions exalt the great doctrine of Entire Sanctification. I have heard you deplore the fact that this great doctrine had got so much into the hands of fanatics and radicals. I have heard you exhort the preachers to preach this great truth. No one has ever heard you cast a slur at the great doctrine of Christian Perfection. You have often preached at the holiness camp meetings and the people have enjoyed your messages. Bishop Simpson was a mighty preacher at the holiness camp meetings. Bishop McIntyre preached it marvelously. Bishop Joyce set his Conferences on fire as he preached the pentecostal blessing. Bishop Warne has preached it through his marvelous ministry, also Bishop Oldham, but the majority of our Bishops of today are never heard to preach on our chief doctrine.

Then, Bishop, pardon another word. How is it that our Bishops nowadays never have any revivals when they preach? and how is it that it is a rare thing to hear of sinners being converted when our Bishops preach? It is true, Bishop Henderson is always at it sounding the evangelistic note and having people forward to the altar, but why do not more of our Bishops upon great occasions when they come to preach aim to get souls converted under their preaching? If the Bishops are going to head a new evangelistic movement for the rebirth of Methodism may we not expect from now on that they will preach more soul-saving sermons than is their common habit? Crowds come to hear the Bishop when he preaches. If he would preach toward the altar of prayer and call sinners to repentance, and invite seekers for salvation to come to the altar it would be a blessed thing. Let our Bishops lead the church in this matter. Let our preachers take a leaf out of the Bishop's book as to how to win souls every time they preach and a new day will dawn upon the Church.

Dear Bishop, I have spoken out of my heart. My convictions are back of every word I have written, nor have I spoken as a man uninformed on these matters. I know whereof I speak. I shall hope and pray that the spiritual rebirth of our Church may certainly take place.

Sincerely yours,

GEORGE W. RIDOUT,
Methodist Minister.

MODERN APOSTLES OF FAITH.

Rev. C. F. Wimberly, D.D.

CHAPTER XXV.

JOHN A. BROADUS.

IT is a very rare achievement for one man to rise superior to all his brethren of a great denomination. This cannot be possible in the economy and polity of Methodism; of course, Methodism has her outstanding men which tower above the others, but when the highest pinnacle is reached, and they are elected to the episcopacy, honors strike a dead level—a flat rate, as it were. There is a wide range of difference among those chosen as bishops; but the man of small calibre is still "Bishop", carrying all the honors which attach to the office, or to any of his colleagues.

But in a denomination more democratic, and with a congregational form of government, it is possible for a man to reach an altitude of position and power where the ecclesiastical wheel of fortune cannot swing a man of smaller mould. We believe this position was reached by one man, in a way, individual and peculiar, in the person of Dr. John A. Broadus who, for many years, was the president of the Southern Baptist Seminary, and leader of the great Southern Baptist Church. Such distinction did not come to this man of his own brethren alone; but it was a consensus of opinion that found its way into the thinking of other denominations. The theology of this particular church is considered a bit narrow—a close corporation, religiously speaking; but its conservatism was not so narrow as to limit the place occupied by this great leader of his fellows. In other words, Dr. John A. Broadus was bigger than his church, and cosmopolitan enough to rise above creeds and dogmatism.

We do not presume to hint that Dr. Broadus did not believe with all his heart, the tenets and doctrines of his church; but we do say there was a bigness about him, so sincere, and yet so omni-christian, that leaders of other faiths felt and appreciated the majesty of the man. While he believed his particular doctrines, yet his spirit was so wholesome and generous, that those who differed with him were fellowshiped with such a catholic spirit that creeds were forgotten. The mind of Dr. Broadus was so towering, that small things like prejudice and sectarian narrowness found no place in him. The man was great enough not to recognize his own greatness. There are two kinds of greatness: one is such, as to carry a self-consciousness of the Who and What; the other is dominated with simplicity and humility to such a degree that the knowledge is never quite found out.

Dr. John A. Broadus belonged to the latter class. There was a charity about him touching other men and creeds that won for him a place of nation-wide renown.

•We doubt if one single man ever wielded a greater influence upon a great church, as did he on the Baptist Church in America, in general, and the Southern Baptist Church, in particular. He placed an indelible stamp upon the preachers of that faith in his generation, and his influence is living today and is bearing fruit. We can but attribute to Dr. Broadus some of the credit for the fearless and unequivocal stand taken by that denomination recently, touching the faith of the Bible. It must be said to the honor of the Southern Baptist Association that, by unanimous action, they proclaimed to the world their absolute orthodox stand on the Bible, and the authenticity of Revelation. They will permit no teacher in college or university who does not stand foursquare for the Bible, as over against Modernism, that is being fostered so boldly in some religious denominational families.

Dr. Broadus was a scholar—par excellent, and along with it, held a faith of childish simplicity. His personality was so marked, that though dead, is still speaking in the great assemblies of the Baptist Church. It is being done through the hundreds of preachers who were so fortunate as to sit at his feet. The by-products of his faithful soul reflect light on the Southern Association.

John Albert Broadus was born in Culpeper county, Va., Jan. 24, 1827. Of his childhood and early preparation for his life work we have no sure data. However, he was educated at the University of Virginia, and as a recognition of his ability, was chosen soon after graduation as assistant professor of ancient languages in his alma mater. He entered upon these duties at the age of twenty-four. In the year 1853, he was called to the pastorate of the First Baptist Church of Charlottesville, Va., and continued in this field until 1859, when he was called to the chair of New Testament Greek and Interpretation, also of Homiletics in the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, which was then located at Greenville, S.C. When this institution was moved to Louisville, Ky., John A. Broadus was elected the president, a position he held with unusual distinction until the day of his death.

The Southern Baptist Seminary served the entire southland, and no doubt many candidates for the ministry living beyond the bounds of the Southern church, as well as other denominations. Therefore, Dr. Broadus has given his personal stamp to more young preachers, than perhaps any religious teacher in America. The standards of admission looking to a degree, in this school, were equal to any others in the country; but young ministers of all ranks—even after serving churches and with families, have gotten some training at this great center of religious education. These facts, however, as to the personnel of the student-body, their educational qualifications, are hearsay.

We must acknowledge another important fact; this school, we believe to be as free from every taint of modernism as can be found in the United States; we mean among the theological seminaries. We believe the impact of Dr. Broadus has never been destroyed. The charge of genuine scholarship must have the taint of the modern viewpoint is overwhelmingly refuted in the life of this great leader. We doubt if in all America there was a Greek scholar superior to Dr. Broadus; and as a New Testament critic, he stood at the head of his denomination, and throughout the country even of other faiths. However, he wrote very little in the line of research; but enough of his reviews appeared in the religious journals to give him first rank among scholars.

Dr. Broadus was the teacher of Dr. Gross Alexander, who for years was the teacher of New Testament Greek in Vanderbilt University, and who was also one of the outstanding Greek scholars in America. Dr. Broadus said that Dr. Alexander was second to none in New Testament Greek.

Dr. Broadus did not write many books; but the ones he did write were masterpieces. In 1870 he published "Preparation and Delivery of Sermons," than which nothing greater and more practical was ever given into the hands of young ministers. It is a classic, and was adopted as a text-book in seminaries of other denominations, and was in the course of study for undergraduates, not attending seminaries. He also prepared a book on the "Harmony of the Gospels," which was in keeping with all his other excellent contributions. He wrote in the 'Religious Herald' on travels, and other data of value in the east. In 1877, he published a volume of "Lectures on the History of Preaching"; in 1884 he wrote "Three Questions as to the Bible." This was a great scholarly credential of the old Book. In 1886 he wrote a commentary of the book of Matthew, and the same year published a volume of "Sermons and Addresses."

The memory and influence of such a man remains as a benediction to the religious people of a whole nation. As a preacher his greatness was in his simplicity; he was scholar enough to submerge the "show of much learning" and translate his rich, mature "beaten oil of the sanctuary" to the level of a plain gospel preacher whom the common people heard gladly and understood. Dr. Broadus was big enough to see greatness in others—a rare qualification. We once heard him say, that Dr. Bledsoe of the Southern Methodist Church, was the greatest analytical mind America ever produced.

As to the exact date and circumstances of Dr. Broadus' death, we have been unable to secure. Our recollection is that he died early in the year 1895. He sleeps beneath an unpretentious monument in beautiful Cave Hill Cemetery, Louisville, Ky. As a man of consummate scholarship, deep piety, and simple orthodox faith, wielding an influence for righteousness second to no man of his generation, we are glad to place his name in the long list of "Modern Apostles of Faith."

MISUSED SCRIPTURES.

REV. O. G. MINGLEDORFF.

No. II.

WE begin this paper by a consideration of Romans 8:9: "Now if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his." It is false exegesis to make this passage mean the mind of Christ.

That is modernism, not Christianity. In this verse St. Paul uses the Greek word Pneuma whose primary meaning is mind or breath; but in the New Testament it usually carries the meaning of Spirit. In the third chapter of the Gospel according to St. John it is used in both senses, wind and Spirit. It is doubtful if a single passage can be found in the entire New Testament where this word carries the meaning of mind. When St. Paul exhorts the Philippians to "Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus," he uses the expression touto phroneite, think this. The Greek word commonly used to express mind or disposition is phroneema, sometimes phroneesis. The Spirit of Christ, the Holy Spirit, is given instantly at the moment of regeneration; but getting the mind of Christ is the work of years. Some years ago the writer was so unfortunate as to hear a brother preach from the text: "If any man

(Continued on page 6, col. 1)

DAVID'S DOWNFALL AND RECOVERY.

Rev. E. E. Shelhamer.

Text: "But the thing that David had done displeased the Lord." 2 Sam. 11:27.

A man may climb to the top branch of a tree, but if he should lose his hold he falls and, as a rule, continues to fall until he is at the bottom. Sometimes he may regain his hold but generally he keeps slipping until he hits terra firma. In like manner when men begin to break step with God they are so enamored by the temptation that they do not fully realize that they are slipping until they find themselves under guilt and condemnation.

Here we have a full-sized picture of the "Man after God's own heart," falling from a mighty pinnacle. Infidels in all ages have gloated over David's sin, though they have not "acknowledged" as did he, their transgression, nor written their penitential Psalm.

Let us look at the facts. In the first book of Samuel 13:14, David is mentioned as a man after God's own heart. More than a half century later, when corrupted by power and indulgence, and led astray by temptation, he sinned, repented, and suffered. When it was said that David was 'a man after God's own heart' he was a lad with a stainless record, ready to take the place that Saul had failed to fill, and do whatever God commanded him. Acts 13:22. His life as a whole was marked by rare humility and nobility. The wrong things which he did were things which were done by other kings and monarchs in his day and in other days without rebuke and with little reproach. But for those things David was smitten with sore affliction, and doomed to perpetual trouble; while the account of them has been written down in all its details, without suppression, apology or defence, and sent down through the ages, giving infidels an 'occasion' to blaspheme (2 Sam. 12:14); and they read the record and denounce king David, forgetting that some of their own records if fully unfolded might be as dark as his.

In studying this sad picture we will see the steps other men have taken in getting away from God. David for the time being had conquered all his enemies, but we read, "After the year was expired at the time when kings go forth to battle David sent Joab and his servants with him and all Israel. But David tarried still at Jerusalem."

1. He was idle. This will ruin any man, family or nation. It has caused the downfall of kings and the overthrow of empires. David was invincible until he "tarried still at Jerusalem" and ceased to fight the battles of the Lord. Then when ease, luxury, and popularity came, he went down with a crash. It would put a stop to a lot of disgrace and divorce scandals if a host of idle men and women could be kept busy caring for a home with several children. They have too much time to gad about and meddle with the affairs and affections of others. This is what damned Sodom. We read, "This was the iniquity of Sodom, . . . Pride, Fullness of Bread, and Abundance of Idleness was in her and her daughters."

2. He allowed his eyes to wander. "In an eventide, (after an afternoon nap) David arose from off his bed and walked upon the (flat) roof of his house and from the roof he saw a woman." Drop the curtain! It is too sad! The mighty Samson also "saw a woman" which led to his downfall. This seeing business is a serious thing. Peter spoke of "Having eyes full of adultery and that cannot cease from sin." The eye is the avenue to the soul. Most men who have fallen into sin first looked, then desired, then planned and yielded. It would have been a great blessing in disguise if some men had been born blind. Either this, or been so thoroughly sanctified as to have power not to look the second time, yea, if necessary to turn the back and, like Joseph, flee. It is wonderful to have self mastery over your eyes and every other part of the body and be able to say, "Stay at home and mind your own business." Temptation must be nipped in its incipency. Job realized this when he said, "I made a covenant with mine eyes; why then should I think upon a maid." 31:1. If this were necessary in Job's day, it is much more so today.

3. He became curious. "David sent and inquired after the woman." An old writer said, "Idleness and curiosity married together beget envy." True! Let any one be idle and curious and he will likely pry into the affairs of others where he has no business. All sin begins in thought. He who is able to call back and control his thoughts will never go into sin of any kind. No doubt we will get a higher reward in heaven for good thoughts than good acts; for our thinking determines our behavior. In fact it is impossible to say an unkind word, or perform an unholy deed except as one has first thought along a similar line. No marvel then that we read, "As he thinketh in his heart so is he." This then is the real man, regardless of what he professes. He is no better than his thoughts. Tell me what you think and I will tell you what you will do if you have the opportunity. Tell me your mental pictures and I will tell you your standing with God.

4. He became oblivious to others' rights. "David sent messengers and took her." Here he loses all sense of justice and deliberately becomes a high-handed robber. There was no domestic, or physical excuse for this act. But when a man loses his footing and is swept into the vortex of evil desire, there is no telling how insane he will become. It is too late to reason with a man when he is half-crazed with passion or rage. The time for putting on the brakes was way up the road, before the declivity of the incline was so steep. Satan takes as much delight in getting one to inwardly consent under a whisper to let down just one rail and look over the fence for a moment, as later on when the same victim is stone blind to a future good and ruthlessly tramples under foot or throws to the winds all semblance of restraint. It is impossible for a collapse to come except for the slightest indiscretion up the road there.

One step leads to another. Next, Beth-Sheba "sent" word to David that caused the cold sweat to come. Now he must cover up his devilry as quickly as possible, so he "sent" to Joab, saying, "Send me Uriah the Hittite."

David was a great sender. Five times did he "send," then God began to send sickness, sorrow, and sedition upon him and his household. When a man takes the first step out of divine order he does not look down the road and see an awful harvest awaiting him. This one step may require a thousand others to undo it if ever it is undone. O, the blindness and deception of sin!

This is a dark picture, but there is another side to it. David was a great sinner, but he was also great at confessing. The penitential psalm (51) is one of the sublimest pieces of literature ever written. In it we find the personal pronoun thirty-five times in the first sixteen verses. This, perhaps was the chief reason why David was "restored" to the favor of God and the throne, while poor Saul lost everything—because he could not humble himself. Some men fall so hard and low that they cannot be gathered up and put together again: Saul, Absalom and Judas were such men. But though David and Peter went down, they were too sincere to stay down. There was something left, out of which to make a saint. Their repentance was so genuine that God was moved with passion to forgive.

Look at David! When Nathan the prophet confronted him with his sin, instead of equivocating he prostrated himself in dust and ashes. The prophet had hardly finished his burning message and left the king's palace, until God told him to return and say, "The Lord also hath put away thy sin; thou shalt not die."

According to the Mosaic law, anyone found guilty of adultery was to be stoned to death. But David so humbled himself that the death penalty was transferred to the illegitimate child. What a thought! That we can so abase ourselves and plead the merits of Jesus, that living faith will seize and sheath the uplifted sword and instead, receive the kiss of reconciliation.

True, like the Psalmist, we may be chastened for our sins, but if we can truly say, "I acknowledged my sin and mine iniquity have I not hid," perhaps God will yet rule and overrule so that in the end others may take warning and profit from our sad mistakes. Amen and Amen.

Seven Deadly Fallacies.

Dr. Ridout has conferred a real favor on all pastors and busy Christian workers in getting out in such convenient form a series of neat booklets packed with just the right information as to the harmful fallacies of these seven blighting "isms" which are causing so much havoc among many well-meaning people. These booklets should have the widest possible circulation. It would do much toward steadying faith in the old-time religion.

F. A. WHITTLESEY.
Pastor Methodist Episcopal Church, Severance, Kan.

Authenticity and Inspiration of the Scriptures.

REV. Z. T. JOHNSON, A.M.

CHAPTER VIII.

THE BIBLE IN PERSONAL EXPERIENCE.

WE turn to another phase of argument that proves the inspiration of the Scriptures, that of personal experience. The effect of the Sacred Page on the lives of men cannot be estimated.

Leaving out the lives of Abraham, Moses, John, Peter, Paul, and many others mentioned in the Word, we can trace the balance of power in the history of the world in the lives of such men as Chrysostom, Augustine, Luther, Calvin, Wesley, Cromwell, Washington, Brooks, Asbury, and Woodrow Wilson. Those men of high ideals, who have stood for principles of right instead of might; who have advocated the cause of the common people, and led in the onward march of civilization have been men who were taught to believe in the Bible as the Inspired Word of God. What would the Dark Period of history have been without its Chrysostom and Augustine? What would the Reformation have been without its Calvin and Luther? What would the revival of the eighteenth century have been without its Whitefield and Wesley? What would America have been without its political leaders like Washington, and Lincoln, and Wilson? What would its influence have been without its preachers like Phillips Brooks and Bishop Asbury? Every great movement must have its leaders, and those who lead aright must be imbued with unselfish principles, with principles that are set forth in the Word of God. Daniel Webster said, "If there is anything in my speeches that has had power in them it is because I study the Word of God." Ruskin said, "If there is anything in my style that is good, it is because I was saturated with the Bible, and my mother made me read it." Quoting from Dr. C. L. Goodell: "Benjamin Franklin, when our minister in Paris, grew weary with the French words of criticism and said to a group of men one day, 'Gentlemen, let me read you something.' He read to them from the book of Ruth. When he came to those words, 'Entreat me not to leave thee, or to return from following after thee: for whither thou goest I will go; and where thou lodgest, I will lodge; thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God; where thou diest will I die, and there will I be buried; the Lord do so to me, and more also, if ought but death part thee and me,' the most beautiful vow in all literature. One of the most blatant of the critics said, 'Where in the world did you find that rapturous pastoral?' 'O,' said Franklin, 'This is the book which you attempt to despise, and about which you do not know.' In the hour of weariness and stress the mind turns to the Book of books and finds within its page the soothing balm that brings restful repose."

The Bible has left its indelible imprint upon the ages. Suppose that by some strange chance, in a single night the ethics of the Bible entered into the imagination of the whole world. Suppose it took possession of every human life; reshaped to its own pattern the ideals, the wills, the politics, the tempers, the literature, and the appetites of mankind; and the whole world awoke with the Christian religion supreme? Certain results would immediately follow; there would be no liar's tongue, no rogue's brain, no thief's palm, no scolding wives, no faithless husbands, no wrecked homes, no broken-hearted mothers; hunger and strife would be vanished; wars would cease, and the sword and spear and shield would be hung up forever.

Suppose the opposite. Suppose the conviction prevailed that God is a dream; ethics are no longer binding; religion is a fraud; and heaven is a fairy tale. Think what would follow: the last hymns of adoration and praise to God would be sung; the Bible would be relegated to the musky book shelf; mortality would be shortened and the fear of arraignment before a just God would completely vanish. Under such conditions all the disruptive forces of society would gain a new and strange energy, and civilization would die. Why is this so? It is so because as F. Bettex, in his book, "The Bible the Word of God," says, "The Spirit shows that this Word in the past and the present, among the high and the lowly, among all nations, is the only Word and Book that has power to change sinful men into children of God; the only one that teaches and enables men to live patiently and die happily. The Christian, whose soul is heartily tired of the incessant change of things, of phenomena that ever evade our grasp, of the monotonous and hollow song of human knowledge and ability, and of the falsehood of the world that is in him and about him, reaches out after this Divine Word, and there finds absolute words, eternal rocks; and in him the word of Christ is verified: 'Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest.'"

What else needs to be said concerning the effect of the Bible upon the world? It stands as a monumental testimony to itself! As L. Gaussen, in his book, "Theopneustia," says, "One of the strongest proofs, no doubt, of the Divine authority of the Scriptures, is that majesty of theirs which fills us with respect and awe; it is the imposing unity of that Book, the composition of which extends over a period of fifteen hundred years, and which has had so many authors, some of whom wrote no less than two centuries before the fabulous times of Hercules, Jason, and the Argonauts; others in the heroic days of Priam, Achilles, and Agamemnon; others in the days of Thales and Pythagoras; others in the age of Seneca, Tacitus, Plutarch, Tiberius, and Domitian; and who all, nevertheless, pursue one and the same plan, constantly advancing, as if they all understood each other, towards one sole grand end, the history of the world's redemption by the Son of God; it is this vast harmony of all the Scriptures; this Old Testament filled with Jesus Christ, as well as the New; this universal history, which nothing of time, and which, when its scenes of the past have come to a close, continues them onward with those of the future, until the moment arrives when all the world's empires shall have become the possession of Jesus Christ and his saints:—at the first page, the earth created for the reception of sinless man; in the following pages, the earth cursed for the reception of man ever sinning; at the last page, a new earth for the reception of man who will never sin more! At the first page the tree of life interdicted, paradise lost, sin entering into the world by the first Adam, and death by sin; at the last page, paradise found, life again entering into the world by the second Adam, death vanquished, no more sorrow to be found, God's image restored in man, and the tree of life in the midst of the paradise of God. Assuredly there is in this majestic whole, commencing before there were men, and continued on to the end of time, a powerful and altogether heavenly unity; a convergence of long ages, universal, immense, whose grandeur captivates our thought, transcends all our human conceptions, and proclaims its Author's Divinity as irresistibly as, on a summer night, the view of a sky glittering with stars, and the thought of all those shining worlds which revolve day and night in the immensity of space."

The Bible! Love it and live! Hate it and die! Believe it and rise up in righteousness to eternal life! Doubt it, and go down in darkness to eternal death and despair!

THE WELLS OF SALVATION.

HELEN OAKLEY.

GOD very significantly uses water as the symbol of spiritual life. Only those who have lived in desert lands can appreciate the value of an unfailing water supply. As we read the Scriptures and note the multitude of references to water, to rivers, springs, fountains and wells it may mean little to us; but how appropriate it was and how easily it was understood by the Hebrews, as they saw around them parched lands and wells dried up during long periods of drouth. Without water, life could not be sustained, and every water supply was highly prized and guarded. Fortunate was the man in possession of a well which would not fail in a continued drouth. Thus God has used that physical element which is so essential to man, to represent that life so necessary to our spiritual being. And as we look into his Word with this in view, we find some precious spiritual lessons.

What man, having in his possession a well, would let it lie idle and untouched, depending upon a cistern for his water? The capacity of the cistern is limited; and if the little it holds is not soon used, it becomes stale and stagnant. If nothing were taken out, it would soon evaporate, leaving naught but sediment. But how many people we see today, who might have possession of the wells of salvation, yet are satisfied with a cistern experience.

They have turned from God's way for them and have put their dependence in man-made ceremonies and creeds. It may be that these have been dug out and built with no small cost and labor, but they prove to be only cisterns.

The prophet Jeremiah cried to Israel in warning because they had "forsaken God, the fountain of living waters, and had hewed them out cisterns, broken cisterns, that can hold no water." They were trusting in the empty worship of idols instead of the living God. If we make an idol of wealth, or pleasure, or works, expecting to find therein the happiness, comfort and satisfaction we should find in God, it will be to us a disappointment. We may rejoice, when times of refreshing come from on high, that our cistern is filled;—but when the heat of the summer of trial, the scorching winds of opposition come our cistern will appear as it really is, a broken cistern, out of which the blessing and spiritual life have gone.

There are those who have not been content with a cistern supply; they have not rested short of the fulness of God's blessing. With the drill of prayer and faith they have pierced through every rock of doubt and sin that appeared; and at last, having broken through to the Fountain Head of his life, God has poured blessing into their souls. And then, as Jesus promised, out of their lives "flow rivers of living water"; they are a blessing and help to every one that comes in contact with them. They are as streams in the desert to souls thirsting for God.

The more a well is used, the better and fresher will be the water obtained. In proportion as the soul gives out to others, so is its own supply increased and enriched. If we have a continuous out-go from our life God will take care of the inflow. When too little is given out, the life becomes stagnant, its freshness and joy go, the testimony becomes stale and the prayer life weak.

With what delight does the weary desert traveller reach the cool waters of a flowing well; but how distressing, how disappointing, to arrive at a well where one had expected to find water, only to find it dry and empty. "What a tragedy!" we say, and rightly; it might mean that traveller's physical death. But how callous and indifferent have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his," the preacher interpreting it to mean the mind of Christ. His purpose seemed to be to make religion easier for his worldly people; but if he preached the truth, there was not a Christian in the entire congregation, he himself being counted among them. We have seen multitudes of converted people; but we have seen very few people who really had the mind of Christ. This modernistic interpretation is common at the present time, but it is very misleading and very dangerous.

(Continued on page 9)

MISUSED SCRIPTURES. (Continued from page 3)

There is a large batch of passages lying around the doctrine of the final "preservation" of the saints, nearly all of which are misinterpreted. Take Ezekiel 18:20: "The soul that sinneth, it shall die." This certainly cannot apply to an unregenerate soul; for it is already dead in trespasses and in sins. Its only application must be to a converted soul. There is no reference here to the death of the body, for that will come, whether one sins or not. The plain inference is to spiritual death. It may be argued that this is Old Testament teaching; but inasmuch as God never changes, we may know that it takes regeneration in all ages to start a soul towards the kingdom of heaven.

Rom. 8:37-39 is a good case in point: "Nay, in all these things we are more than conquerors through him that loved us; for I am persuaded, that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord." Thank God. There is nothing finer than that. But the apostle has said nothing about himself, the free agent Paul. Has he lost his free agency? Has he been turned into a mere machine? If so he is ruined forever. I trust that there is no place in any world where a soul cannot sin. I am sure that there will be no probability of one sinning in heaven; but if the possibility is taken away from us, we shall be no better than sewing-machines. Our service to God will be robbed of all merit. Unless we keep our free wills, we shall be unable to enjoy the bliss of heaven. Let us not use the Scriptures to our own ruin.

What a blundering use has been made of 1 John 3:9: "Whosoever is born of God doth not commit sin; for his seed remaineth in him: and he cannot sin, because he is born of God." Some have tried to save their doctrines by declaring that it means that God will not impute sin to a converted soul, no matter what he may do. Others tell us that this refers only to the soul, but that the body will continue to sin as long as one breathes the breath of life. The writer confesses his inability to comprehend such meaning. Sam Jones was once asked for his opinion of this passage. His reply was short, but clear: "Can an honest man steal?" The simple meaning of the verse is that one cannot keep his salvation and continue to sin against God; for "no man can serve two masters."

If the above interpretation be correct, what shall be done with 1 Kings 8:46: "There is no man that sinneth not?" Eccl. 7:20 is almost identical in language: "There is not a just man upon earth, that doeth good and sinneth not." Multitudes who love sin glory in these two passages. "Of course, everybody sins; why cannot I use my liberty and sin some too?" And they do. They roll sin as a sweet morsel under their tongues. The writer once heard an old gentleman rejoicing because Moses "broke all the commandments when he smashed up the two tables of stone." He declared that Moses broke the tables because God never intended that we should keep his commandments; and he even went so far as to vow that he made no pretense at keeping them. If these two passages mean what they say, we are face to face with irreconcilable discrepancies between their teachings on the subject of sin and that of the New Testament; but, fortunately for us, the best Hebrew scholars inform us that the translation is defective in both texts. Dr. A. Clarke says: "The truth is the Hebrew has no mood to express words in the permissive or optative way, but to express this sense it uses the future tense of the conjugation Kal." The if in the preceding clause throws some light on the parenthetical sentence now under discussion. From this standpoint Dr. Clarke translates the passage thus: "There is no man that may not sin." This brings out the sense of the Hebrew, and harmonizes the passage with other passages throughout the Bible. One rule of interpretation is, that a disputed passage must not be so interpreted as to make it conflict with other passages whose meaning is perfectly clear; the rule is a good one.

In line with the foregoing passages comes almost the entire seventh chapter of the epistle to the Romans. It is passing strange how anyone can so twist his judgment as to make that chapter apply to a converted soul. How can anyone be a Christian, and be "sold under sin" at the same time? That contradicts Romans 6:14: "For sin shall not have dominion over you." If one is sold under sin, he is the bond-slave of sin. St. Paul is describing, under the guise of his own personality, a man who wishes to do right, but cannot because of his bondage to sin. When he would do good, evil is present with him. He fails to do what he desires to do, but does the very thing he did not wish to do. This seems

SPECIAL NOTICE!

It will be remembered by some of our readers that in our bill of editorial fare we promised to discuss the following question:

"Will the Opposition to the Old Methodist Doctrine of Sanctification and the Propaganda of Modern Liberalism in Methodism Make the Organization of Another Methodist Church a Necessity?"

When we made the above statement, we thought that one article would be sufficient for the discussion of the subject as far as we cared to go into it, but, thinking on the subject, we find it grows and calls for a series of articles which we are now preparing in the form of letters and will be commenced in The Herald along about the first of November. We have been so constantly pressed with revival work that it has been impossible for us to give the attention to this very serious matter in which we are in danger of being misunderstood that we are compelled to give it more time and thought than we had at first supposed.

Faithfully yours,

H. C. Morrison.

to be rather an old realization among men. How is this from Ovid?—

"My reason this, my passion that persuades; I see the right, and I approve it too; Condemn the wrong, and yet the wrong pursue."

This from Adrian may turn some heathen light on the problem:—

"For, truly, he who sins does not will sin, but wishes to walk uprightly: yet it is manifest that what he wills he doth not; and what he wills not he doth."

If we compare St. Paul in his seventh chapter with St. Paul in his eighth chapter of this epistle, we shall find a marvelous difference. If he is saved in the former, what has happened to him in the latter? In the one he is "sold under sin," a slave to it, and is crying out: "O wretched man that I am! who shall deliver me from the body of this death?" But hope has already sprung up within him, for he is shouting: "I thank God through Jesus Christ our Lord." In the next chapter he is no longer under condemnation. "For the law of the Spirit of life in Jesus Christ hath made him free from the law of sin and death." It is possible that some, in their desire to leave room for the work of entire sanctification, have concluded that this seventh chapter portrays the status of a converted soul; but such begging of the question is not necessary. We do not need to minimize regeneration to make room for the work of entire sanctification. Each has its own place, and each is a perfect work of grace.

What a miserable mess certain self-styled theologians have made of the two words death and sleep as they are used in the New Testament. In 1 Cor. 15:52 St. Paul uses the future tense of the Greek word koimao with reference to certain persons who will be alive on the earth when Jesus returns. The English is, "We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump." In 1 Thess. 4:11 he uses the same word in exactly the same sense as it is used in the foregoing quotation. What does he mean? Is this what is termed "soul-sleep"? Never! There is no such folly taught in the Bible. The primary import of the word koimao is to sleep, but its secondary meaning is to die. That is its New Testament signification. We use our English word sleep in exactly the same sense. What a shame that ignorant fanatics will continue to trouble the Church of God with their unqualified foolishness.

An offshoot from the preceding heresy is the effort to destroy the wicked forever, and to blot hell out of the Bible. They tell us that eternal punishment cannot be; but God says it can be, and that it shall be. The same Greek word, aiōnios, that is used to describe heaven is used to describe hell. If the latter is but temporary, so is the former. This is clearly stated in Matthew 25:46, as well as in other parts of the Book. At least three different Greek words are used in the New Testament to portray the punishment of the wicked. While it is true that all of them may sometimes be used to express complete destruction, they cannot be so twisted as to mean the entire annihilation of the wicked, without doing violence to the plain teaching of the Book. According to the Bible, hell is a place, a lake of fire and brimstone, that will continue to burn forever. It is the penitentiary of the universe—a place of punishment for the devil, for demons, and for hopelessly depraved human beings. Twist words as we may, we can never obliterate hell. I hope it is real, just as it is described in the Bible, for if that language is figurative, then hell is awful sure enough. Figures are but shadows of realities.

A fearfully misused passage is 1 Cor. 9:27. St. Paul says: "I keep my body under, and bring it into subjection: lest that by any means, when I have preached to others, I myself should be a castaway." An awful thought! But some tell us that St. Paul had no fear of being finally lost, but that he was afraid of losing "the keen edge of his experience." Paul uses the Greek word adokimos, which means disapproved, worthless, reprobate, rejected, worthy of condemnation. That looks dangerous to this writer. Once at sunset he stood on the deck of a ship that was steaming near the coast of Africa. The captain handed him his field-glasses, and directed him to look across a certain point of land. There lay the hull of a great ship several miles inland. It had been carried there by a tidal wave during a terrible storm that had swept that coast some years prior to that hour. The captain said, "Sir, that is what St. Paul means by being a castaway. That ship will never see the ocean again." It is an awful thing to destroy the Word of God to sustain our creeds.

The writer has endeavored to be fair and candid in these papers. Permit him now to exhort his younger brethren in the ministry to devote themselves to a careful, critical study of the very words of the sacred Book. Ignorance may be excusable in some places, but it is not excusable in the pulpit. The discussion is far from being complete; but enough has been written for the stimulation of all conscientious souls.

REPORTS FROM SOUL WINNERS

A GLIMPSE OF SYCHAR DAY BY DAY, 1927.

Aug. 4: First service at seven thirty p. m. A large audience present. As expressive of his own feelings, Pres. Lewis asked the song leader if he would not have sung as an opening song, "This is like heaven to me." It struck a responsive chord in the audience and they sang it as only folks at a holiness camp sing. Sychar is a heavenly place to multiplied thousands. At its close, with tears in his voice, he said, "Our Bro: Yates, I reckon, has been the one name of all Sychar folks whom you have had in mind as we sang. He is singing in a nobler, sweeter song up in the choir of heaven." Your scribe was called on for the first prayer. Evangelist E. Hilton Post then from Heb. 2:28 brought the first message. It was as to the unshakeable kingdom, the one that is obtainable in no way but as a gift from God, for us right here and now that he spoke. Two were at the altar. The day was good, the weather being perfect. But rain or shine Sychar days are all good days. Sychar has naught but such.

Friday, Aug. 5: The weather has warmed up. So has the meeting. Two from Pasadena, two from Oregon, and one from Missouri arrived today. Large early morning prayer meeting. Rich testimony meeting at eight thirty. At ten Bro. Owen, a prime favorite here, preached from Eph. 4:11-16. It was as to the gifts of the Spirit and their purpose, the perfecting of the saints, the edifying of the body of Christ, the Christ. At two p. m. Bro. Post, another one always welcomed here, took the incident of the woman who had been bound by Satan 18 years for text. Complete healing will result when we get in touch with Jesus was his thought. Five at the altar. The young schoolteacher came through with a shout. At 7:15 Bro. C. M. Dunaway, who is here for the first time, captured the folks with his sermon on the evidences of the divine sonship of Jesus Christ. At the early prayer meeting a fine looking large man, quietly and unobserved, save by two brethren, received Jesus as his sanctifier. The Spirit is at work.

Saturday, Aug. 6: The tide, as we say, is up. Before Bro. Post could get at his sermon, at ten a shout got on the folks and when they would let the preacher get to his sermon seemed very uncertain. And at the close of it when they would leave the altar seemed also a question. The Lord is in the camp. At the young folks' meeting this evening at six o'clock, Miss McGhie gave a strong sermon on how to be saved and four bowed at the altar. At one of the services last year the audience was asked to pray for a good woman out in Oregon who was very ill and seemingly near death. She and her husband are here this year for the meeting. They are from Grass Valley, Oregon. They wanted to become a part of the place that had prayed for them in their trouble. As soon as her recovery was assured they began looking this way. Much prayer and praise are going up. A full altar of seekers closed the services of the day.

Sunday, Aug. 7: Heavy shower last night, but it was kept off until after midnight. God watered our souls today. From six a. m., the hour of the early prayer meeting, until ten p. m., when near twenty were at the altar and, I think, every one of them prayed through before the retiring bell had rung; the meetings went on and on. The last one to get through was a young woman who, under instructions by her pastor, took Jesus and the work was done. Seven sermons during the day gave all a chance to hear. The ring meetings under the lead of Bro. Bush, a returned missionary from Africa, are big and good. Having come to Sychar with steam up, stopped for a while at this station, the ring meeting is a place for the escaping of surplus steam and is heard there every day at six o'clock p. m. Ready to pull loads as soon as the ten days are over the popping of the safety valves at that meeting and the escaping surplus steam blesses the souls of those who stand under the trees there and hear and take part.

Monday, Aug. 8: The first Monday of the camp is Memorial Day when the names of those of our number who have gone on are read and a sermon preached at ten a. m. This year Bro. Owen did the preaching of it. Text John 11:25, 26. Two at the altar. This service always takes on the character of rejoicing over the victory that has come to our number in their promotion to heaven. At two p. m., Bro. Post took Psalm 51 and showed from it that the man of the text had an intelligent understanding of his case, knew what the matter was, that it was inbred sin, and wherein was his only hope of relief. Among those at the altar were two sisters who, side by side, bowed and both prayed through to victory. That was a cheering sight. A gray-headed brother, known by your scribe, came to meeting today because his wife wanted to come. He came just to please her. She had an object. It was successful for the sermon seemed for him specially. He went to the altar, not to please his good wife, but to get soul rest. It pleased the Lord to meet him there. How he did rejoice. It is dangerous to come to Sychar if you don't want to be sanctified wholly.

Tuesday, Aug. 9: Bro. Woodford Taylor, of China, our representative on the foreign field, came today. It may interest you to know that even now representatives are here from California, Oregon, Nebraska, Missouri, Minnesota, Illinois, Indiana, West Virginia, Kentucky, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, Michigan, Georgia and Florida. More states will send folks before the meeting is over. At the two o'clock hour Bro. Dunaway finished his sermon began yesterday on the babyhood of Christians. Interestingly, convincingly and helpfully he handled his subject. Paul's defense before Agrippa was the subject of Bro. Owen's sermon at the night hour. His contrast between the outlook of the Christian and the man who was not, raised a shout in the camp. At the morning hour Bro. Post gave a clear exposition of what holiness is. The day closed with seeking mourners at the mercy seat. Sychar days are full days, full of seeking, finding, rejoicing. The atmosphere is charged with the spirit of praise. Miss McGhie and Miss Gorsuch give their young folks chance at most of the services to give expression to it and the ring meeting and eighty thirty a. m. People's Meeting are given over to it entirely.

Wednesday, Aug. 10: This is Missionary Rally Day with us at Sychar. It is in charge of Bro. Goodwin of the Board. Counting the five children of Bro. and Sister Taylor there are nine present today. The son and two of the daughters of the Taylor family are now at Taylor University preparing for the mission field. All of these children were born in China and spoke the language before they spoke English. Both Bro. and Sister Taylor spoke on the work they were engaged in. Bro. Roy D. Adams of the Oriental Missionary Society doing evangelistic missionary work both in Japan and Korea, as I understand, spoke representing his work there. Bro. Raymond Bush of Africa, now waiting to be returned, spoke on Africa. The Bro. Goodwin of the Association spoke, calling on the people not to let any money they gave here to in any way affect their home giving. The collection called for amounted to just a little bit under eight hundred dollars. Sychar supports Bro. Taylor. So many young people get their call to the work here, or finally yield to the call while here, that Sychar feels she must have a personal representative over there in some part of the world. Twenty at the altar at night. Something like 30 young people at an altar service at the Missionary meeting gave themselves to special work.

Thursday, Aug. 11: And now Virginia and Mississippi are added to the states represented here in addition to Ohio and three foreign countries, Africa, China, Japan. Gratifying results are coming at each service. Young people in numbers are finding God in conversion and entire sanctification. A stranger to drop down here from some other planet would be impressed that holiness must be very popular from what they would see here among all classes from the ones of eight years and under up and all with shining faces and the great majority with praises coming from their hearts as they witness to the cleansing power of the blood. Like an engine standing at a station where there is a popping of the safety valve and then an escape of steam the folks here give vent to the pent-up steam of praise and everybody rejoices. Congregations are very big. Receipts at the gate during the day are in slight excess of last year.

Friday, Aug. 12: The early morning prayer meeting had 206 present by actual count. And the people prayed. Asbury, Taylor, Cleveland Bible Institute, Chicago Evangelistic Institute, Bethel Orphanage of the mountains of Eastern Kentucky, and the work being done by Sister Evangeline Reams at the Rescue Home of Columbus have all been represented from the platform in ten minute speeches. These all stand for holiness and so Sychar stands by them. Bro. Post preached at the ten o'clock hour, Bro. Dunaway at two p. m., and Bro. Owen at the night service. Their subjects were, in the order named, The tabernacle, The second coming of our Lord, and Heart purity. Each one pointed to the absolute necessity of absolute obedience. Fruitful altar services followed each sermon. And now the state of Washington is represented here. This makes 18 states here.

Saturday, Aug. 13: The boys and girls and the little tots had their annual march down from Chase Auditorium through the grounds to the meeting place of the ring meeting near the front entrance. I counted 155 in line of march not counting their leaders nor the musicians that headed the line. What that tells for the future we know from what we know of those now in the active work that in other days your scribe has seen in a similar marching line of Sychar youngsters. That line will in the near tomorrow have of their number in foreign field and all over this land of ours working for the Lord. An address by their leader, Miss Gorsuch, Pres. Lewis, and testimonies from them and also songs after the opening prayer by a former leader Sister Crouse, made that service of much interest to great numbers that collected to hear. Sychar attends to her finances on Saturday that the Sabbath may be a day of worship indeed. So at the two o'clock hour they called for five thousand dollars to apply on the indebtedness still on the dormitory and got it and thirty dollars more. Nor did it take any pulling and hauling to get. Bro. Post took it up.

Sunday, Aug. 14: Rained hard from seven up to near noon. But the main auditorium was filled as usual. The People's Meeting was never larger nor better than today. And the receipts at the gate fell short but $176.00, in spite of the rain. The sermon at ten o'clock by Bro. Owen caused such a wave of praise as your scribe never saw at any meeting anywhere before. Wider and wider it spread until it seemed as if all would be swept from their feet. The holy joy that swept that great auditorium when the people shouted, wept, laughed, and cried while the hallelujahs and amens went up in mighty volume exceeded anything ever seen or heard here. As overflow meetings Bro. McLaughlin, of the Evangelical Church, preached at one o'clock and Bro. Charles Kolb at two. Bro. Post preached the regular two o'clock sermon at which time ten bowed for the fullness of the blessing. Then Bro. Dunaway brought the last message on three great crises, death, the resurrection, the judgment. It brought seekers to the altar. Sychar has never had a better meeting than the 1927 one. We thank God. Africa, Japan, China, California, Oregon, Washington, Nebraska, Minnesota, Michigan, Illinois, Indiana, Missouri, Iowa, Kentucky, Virginia, West Virginia, Mississippi, Georgia, Florida, Arkansas, New Jersey, New York, and all parts of Ohio have been here. All roads lead to Sychar. God honors Sychar and Sychar praises him. Some ninety young people gave their hearts to God this encampment.

Wm. R. Chase.

CALLIS GROVE CAMP.

The writer is hereby reporting one of the greatest camp meetings he has had since at Centerville, Ind., in 1924. This one has just closed at Callis Grove, Trimble County, Ky.

The fire began to fall on the third day of the meetings, and souls were praying through along during the week following, until on Friday night when the greatest break came, at which service the long altar was most filled with adult penitents, most of whom prayed through to blessed victory.

During the ten days there were many services in which the old tabernacle, and towering beeches of the grounds were caused to echo with the joyful praises of the newly redeemed. We were told by the camp committee and many of the grounds that this was by far the greatest camp in fifteen years of its history. It is indeed a comfort to all hearts concerned to know that there is a going in the mulberry trees which indicates somewhat of a turning back to a greater spirituality in Zion. God speed the day.

Crowds coming from surrounding communities, towns, and southern Indiana swelled the attendance until hundreds were assembled; and the Sunday morning praise services were times of refreshing and power.

This camp is situated near the birth places of evangelists H. C. Morrison and O. H. Callis. While there it was our privilege to see a number of the near kinsmen of the latter wonderfully blessed at the altar of prayer.

The song leaders of the meetings were Misses Dorothy Huyett, and Ethel Sageser, both Asbury College graduates. We are now in route for the Old Hurricane Camp of Crittenden County, Ky., and solicit prayers of The Herald family for a great harvest of souls at that place.

Fern Grove Camp.

We wish to report another good annual encampment held at the Fern Grove Camp near Greenville, Ky. The preaching was done this year by the well known author, lecturer, and preacher, Dr. C. F. Wimberly, of Charleston, S. C. Brother Wimberly certainly did endear himself to the people of the Fern Grove Camp and his service was requested for another year. There were a number who prayed through during the ten days, some who had been seekers for the blessing of sanctification for years.

There are some improvements being placed on the grounds of this camp each year and the committee hopes before the time of next encampment to have the grounds well lighted with current from the Kentucky Utility's system.

Respectfully,

Fielding T. Howard,
Evangelist, Wilmore, Ky.

ARMSTRONG GROVE CAMP.

This camp is located near Kittanning, Pa., and is held under the auspices of the Armstrong County Holiness Association. The date of the meeting for this year was July 14-24. The camp is only in its third year, but its growth has been amazing. From a mere half-dozen the Association has passed the two hundred mark in membership. This was by far the best year yet. A good spirit pervaded the entire camp period. People came from distant points and all the meetings were well attended. On the last Sunday evening 1100 people were in attendance.

Rev. and Mrs. John Thomas were the preachers for this year, and they favored the camp with the preaching of the highest order. There must have been well over 100 seekers at the altar. It was a gracious sight to behold new subjects of the King giving their allegiance to him, and being owned of him.

Mrs. Etta Foiles, of Illinois, was the leader in song, and she sang the gospel in a very effective way. Much credit is due Mr. and Mrs. Mark R. Smith as the founders of the camp, and for the burdens they have borne on its behalf.

We believe Armstrong Grove Camp has a great future. The best of workers will be engaged for next year. T. M. Anderson is among this number. We extend an invitation to all to join us next year at camp. For information about the camp write Carl R. Hammerly, McGrann, Pa.

Yours for more and better camp meetings,
Carl R. Hammerly.

If You Want Something

Convincing on the tithe, something that tells you what God says about it, send 10c and get a copy of "Will A Man Rob God." It is a splendid little book to hand out to members of your church who do not believe in tithing. We will send one dozen for $1.00.

THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD

Published Weekly by
Pentecostal Publishing Company
523 So. First St., Louisville, Kentucky.

OUR CONTRIBUTORS

Rev. G. Whitefield Simonson	Rev. Len G. Broughton	Rev. Bud Robinson
Rev. O. G. Minglehoff, D.D.	Rev. L. R. Akers, D.D.	Rev. Henry Ostrom
Rev. Richard W. Lewis, D.D.	Rev. G. W. Ridout, D.D.	Rev. C. M. Griffith
Rev. Andrew Johnson, D.D.	Rev. P. F. Asher, B.D.	Rev. J. H. Smith
Rev. C. F. Wimberly, D.D.	Rev. E. E. Shelhamer	Rev. C. W. Ruth
	Rev. J. B. Culpepper

Six Months in Advance $.75
One Year in Advance 1.50
Foreign Countries 2.00

CONCERNING SUBSCRIPTIONS

Subscription Discontinued When Time Is Out.
In ordering address changed give both OLD and NEW address. Write all names plainly with pen and ink or typewriter.
Notify us promptly of any irregularities in receiving your paper.
For distribution, to secure new subscribers, sample copies will be sent free on application.
Remit by Registered Letter, New York Exchange, Express, or Post Office Money Order.

A Chapter from My Autobiography

CHAPTER XXVIII.

WHEN THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD WAS BORN.

WHILE pastor at Frankfort, I went to assist the pastor of our church in Maysville, Ky., in a protracted meeting. I think at the time of my going to Maysville, I had not less than thirty calls in my Conference to assist in revival meetings, most of them in the largest churches in the Conference. As it was impossible for me to assist more than a very few of these churches, it occurred to me that through the medium of the press I might speak to these people. The subject arose before me many times always to be dismissed, but to return again.

Kentucky Methodism had suffered untold injury, because that publicly and privately, from the pulpit, and about the streets and firesides, the altar of prayer, mourning over one's sins, and rejoicing because of the forgiveness of them, had been set at naught and in every way possible made the constant subject of ridicule. Hence, it had come to pass that in many portions of the state, especially in the "Blue grass region" our Methodist churches had largely discarded the use of the altar. In the revival meetings people were asked to "come forward and give me your hand, and God your heart." And so they came and joined the church, thousands of them, without much conviction, any altar instruction, or any sort of evidence, at the time or afterwards of having experienced a new birth. I saw this, much of it, participated in it somewhat, but with a heavy heart. My own conviction had been deep, my altar struggle a severe one, and my conversion like a sunburst from a dark cloud.

I think I can safely say there were Methodist churches all about us, whose walls had not resounded with the shouts of a newborn soul for many years. I anticipate any possible objector, by saying now, it is useless to deny these statements. Many of us now living were on the field, and are well acquainted with the facts. Thousands of people joined the Methodist Church on the basis of "A profession of faith," instead of that of a personal experience of sins forgiven, and the new birth. That a few souls were soundly converted there is no doubt, but that the majority of those coming into the church were converted, had passed from death to life, there is no probability.

Dancing, card playing, theater going, and attending horse races among our Methodist people were so commonplace that but little was thought or said of it. As the matter of the paper came up for consideration, all of the above facts passed before me. But worst of all there had arisen among us a small class of men, of considerable culture and influence, who claimed to be "advanced thinkers," who seemed to hate the old Methodist doctrines worse than they did sin. They never let an opportunity pass to strike at fundamental truth. The doctrines of inherited depravity, the necessity of the new birth, the consciousness of pardon, the remains of the carnal mind, entire sanctification, and the future punishment of the wicked were all assailed and ridiculed.

To cap the climax, the only paper in the state claiming to represent Methodism was at that time the willing mouthpiece of these deluded brethren. In the pulpit, at District and Annual Conference, camp meetings and everywhere, John Wesley Hughes, Charles Boswell, myself and a few others fought these men every time they struck old Methodism. The common people rallied about the old flag and revivals were breaking out here and there. But we were in great need of a paper that we might combat false teachings and spread the truth of Bible salvation broadcast. These things lay on my heart day and night, and one night during the meetings referred to above, as I lay in bed thinking, the conviction that God would have me publish a paper came upon me with such force that I could not refuse to undertake it. The duty of the work was so plain that I believed at the time, and since then have never doubted, that God was leading me. My health was poor, I had never written enough for publication to fill one page of this paper; I had not a single dollar, and owed a small debt, but the voice of God was in my soul, and my mind was so clearly made up that all doubts and questions were swept away and I could hardly wait for daylight, to begin my work. I believe the divine leading in this matter was as clear as my call to preach.

To combat worldliness in the church, to lift up a standard against the teachers of false and un-Methodistic doctrines, and to spread the doctrine of Christian holiness as taught by Paul and proclaimed by the founders of Methodism, was the purpose which filled and animated me. I arose early and wrote out that day the matter for the first issue of the new paper. I told the people what I proposed to do, and before leaving Maysville they gave me twenty-one yearly subscribers.

(To be continued)

THE INDIAN SPRING CAMP

I have been attending Indian Spring camp meeting off and on many times for something more than a quarter of a century. The camp covering Aug.

11-21, was one of the greatest I have ever attended in all of these years. Thousands of people came to the meeting; they manifested a deep interest in the gospel messages. I was told that not less than one hundred and twenty-five preachers were present. As the poison of modernism makes way in the church, a host of devout people are becoming more deeply interested in the Holiness Movement and a constructive work that is going on in Bible teaching and Christian experience in the great holiness camp meetings.

Rev. C. W. Butler, D.D., Rev. J. L. Brasher, D.D., and this writer were the preachers at the camp. Dr. Akers, president of Asbury College, was present and preached one very impressive sermon, which was listened to with great attention. Ministers were present from various states and rendered gracious service in the cottage prayer meetings, about the altar, and in creating an atmosphere of prayer and faith.

Mr. R. F. Burden, of Macon, Ga., president of the camp, presided with a patience and good humor that could not be excelled. Rev. J. M. Glenn, D.D., secretary and treasurer, was instant in season and out of season. He and Mrs. Glenn, with a fine force of consecrated workers, had charge of the young people's meetings in which a large number were either converted or blessedly sanctified.

Prof. Hamp Sewell, with a great choir and instruments and excellent voices, had charge of the music. Sewell is a great leader, untiring, and stands like an Aaron and Hur to hold up the hands of the ministers. His shining face and amens were an inspiration to us who delivered the messages. Drs. Butler and Brasher were greatly blessed in breaking the bread of life to the hungry multitudes, and were highly appreciated by the Board and the people who heard the Word.

The long altar was filled with seekers at almost every service, and frequently the side altar had to be used to accommodate those who were weeping and praying their way to the Lord. One of the interesting features of the meeting was the sanctification of a devout colored woman. She came as a nurse assisting an invalid woman to the meeting; powerful conviction fell upon her; she came to the side altar and was graciously wrought upon by the Holy Spirit. Her joy was unbounded. She was heartily welcomed into Canaan by a host of people who gave her the glad hand of fellowship and rejoiced with her in the full salvation of her soul.

There is always reserved at Indian Spring a few seats for colored people and quite a number attended and enjoyed the services. One old saint bound in black amen the preachers and helped us forward with her happy endorsement of gospel truth. "Aunt Treecy," the great old saint, black as a crow's wing, who came to Indian Spring for years, and who was nearly a century old, has gone away to glory. She was a marvel of God's grace and walked in the high places of perfect love.

Mrs. Osborne had charge of the large Dodge Memorial for preachers and looked after their comfort with great care. She, with her faithful colored women assisting, took excellent care of the Lodge for workers. Mrs. Broyles, of Florida, with her sisters, had charge of the hotel and dining room. More faithful women never looked after the physical wants of the people than they did; excellent food, well cooked and splendidly served. I must not forget the faithful colored people who cooked the food in the hotel and many large boarding houses and private families who camped on the ground. They are devout Christian women and no better servants, or kinder souls can be found on the earth. May God bless them.

Indian Spring stands out as one of the greatest religious gathering places on the continent. There is nothing just like it. The spirit of fellowship, good humor, the Christian courtesy and kindness make one think of the Millennium, when peace and love shall reign supreme.

I do not know that any one kept count of the number of souls blessed at the altar of prayer; there must have been several hundred. Many days there were more than fifty at the altar in the main tabernacle, besides those who sought and found salvation in the young people's and children's meetings. Last year several thousands of dollars were expended in improving the grounds. The large Mathews' Memorial building was purchased and put in beautiful order for the camp meeting home of the wives of preachers. This year a large barn was put in shape for a comfortable camp for ministers' sons, who were under the care of Rev. John Gamble, an old Asbury boy. I think there were not less than fifty Asburians on the grounds, neck deep into the good work of prayer, praise and soul winning.

The Board passed a resolution inviting this writer to be with them at these annual camps as one of the workers during life. This touched my heart deeply, and I promised to accept the invitation. If God spares me, I hope to see thousands of souls converted and sanctified at the altars at Indian Spring Camp Ground.

May God bless the president and spare him, and all the officials and workers, and prayers and givers, who have made this camp such a power for good in the world. Something over $4,000 were raised for improvements and enlargement for the good work. All praise be to the blessed Trinity! The Holy Ghost was in our midst at work among the people. The word of God was powerful, the blood of Christ was applied with cleansing power. We were humbled, and quickened and blessed. Pray for Indian Spring Camp and make your arrangements to be present next year.

Christ the True Foundation.

MRS. H. C. MORRISON.

HY should there be such diversities of opinions as to what is the true and right way in matters religious? It is the devil's prerogative to get people muddled on the essentials of religion, to divert their attention from the "one thing needful," and get them to searching after that which cannot save the soul.

Paul, in writing to the Corinthians, 3:11, tells them, "For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ." When people have not the true experience of salvation in their hearts it is very easy for them to be led away into erroneous ideas of salvation, and are ready to fall in with every ism that chances to come their way. If Christ is the true foundation, then we are not safe only as we build upon him. If our building is of wood, hay, stubble, when it is revealed by fire it will not stand the test.

In a matter that is as important, and that means so much to us as the question of eternal life, it seems we would search the Scriptures night and day to see if we are traveling the right way. It is a weakness of humanity to want that which is tangible, that which can be paraded before men, and in which the "I" of carnality is master of ceremonies. The same writer to the Corinthians warned them by saying, "Let no man deceive himself. If any man among you seemeth to be wise in this world, let him become a fool, that he may be wise. For the wisdom of this world is foolishness with God."

We get very smart sometimes and think we can improve upon the Lord's plan of salvation. In these latter days we find men who have decided that we do not need the convicting power of the Spirit upon the hearts of sinful men. We do not need to repent of sin, nor come to an altar of prayer in contrition for our sins. We can grow up into Christianity, and all we need is to step out of the Sunday school into the Church, when we become full-fledged Christians. But what are we to do with those sins which blackened our souls! What disposition can be made of the guilty past, and what can change the heart of stone into a heart of flesh! If it is true that sin cannot enter heaven we must get rid of it somewhere between this world and the world to come. If we cannot atone for our own sins who is to take them away! Surely salvation is of the Lord, and no man cometh unto the Father but by Jesus Christ, the sinless One, who tasted death for every man.

It is true we can improve our methods of Sunday school teaching, we can devise better ways to conduct meetings in our Epworth League, etc., but when it comes to the saving of the soul there is none other Name given among men whereby we must be saved, but the blessed Redeemer who came to redeem us from all iniquity, and to purify us unto himself a peculiar people zealous of good works. Without the shedding of blood there is no remission of sins, yet we find those who are strangers to this blood-bought salvation saying that we can train up children in the way they should go, and conversion is not necessary for them.

You may take all the modern theories and notions of the present time, no matter who hatches them out, and we can knock them all into smithereens with that one passage of Scripture spoken by our blessed Master, "Ye must be born again." We need to remember that the "kingdom of God is not in word, but in power." When we decide that the inventions and plans of men can take the place of God's Spirit, we are left to disappointment, and in the end, despair. No, the truth is, the farther we get from spiritual things ourselves, the more we are inclined to resort to human means to save from sin. The old-time way is the only way—repentance and faith in the blood of Jesus Christ, which brings a conscious knowledge of sins forgiven, and that peace which passeth all understanding. If the love of God is shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Spirit we will love what God loves and hate what God hates. His service will be our chief delight, and it will be easy to love him supremely and our neighbor as ourself. Nothing short of this can meet the divine requirement as contained in the first and greatest commandment. God help us to steer clear of the man-made schemes of salvation and cling to the cross of Jesus, by which we are crucified unto the world and the world is crucified unto us. "I am the way, the truth, and the life. No man cometh unto the Father but by me" Let us seek the only true way of salvation

Announcement.

After an absence of two years, during which I have enjoyed a much needed rest, I am back in Millersburg, Ky., and have resumed ownership and control of the Millersburg College, and am making all necessary preparations to open the school on Thursday, Sept. 22.

The warm welcome accorded me, not only by the people of Millersburg, but by friends all over the state, is most inspiring and encouraging, and it is with great confidence and enthusiasm that the president and his faculty are beginning their work in the college.

The Elementary, Junior and Senior High School courses will be maintained as heretofore, the Senior High being fully accredited in Class A. The special departments of music, including piano, voice, violin and pipe organ, together with art, expression and home economics, will be under the supervision of thoroughly competent instructors.

I have taken charge of the college too late to issue a new catalogue, but the catalogue issued by my predecessor will furnish interested ones such general information as they may desire with reference to courses of study, rates for board and tuition, etc. Any special information desired will be gladly and promptly furnished on application to the president.

To the Alumnae and former pupils of the college, as well as to all friends and prospective patrons, we send this announcement, and ask for your hearty co-operation in every way that you may give it.

The honorable history of seventy-seven years which is back of the school, together with the pleasant, safe and inspiring environment which is constantly present, makes a strong appeal to discriminating parents who have daughters to educate. We solicit correspondence. C. C. FISHER, President.

Millersburg College, Millersburg, Ky.

THE WELLS OF SALVATION.

(Continued from page 5)

we are at the tragedy of the dry wells all around us. Lives that were once full of joy and freshness, blessing all whom they touched, now are dry and empty. The Apostle Peter calls them, "wells without water."

We see them in the church, with no power in prayer, no testimony, no passion for lost souls; we see them in the pulpit with no unction and no message for dying sinners. There has been water in the well at one time, no doubt of that; and how many thirsting, perishing souls come now for the water of life, only to be turned away in disappointment. If it were only disappointment, we could hold our peace; if it were only the physical life that would perish, we might even then appear unconcerned; but what a responsibility is ours when it is spiritual death they suffer—when it is eternal life they forfeit, when it is immortal souls that perish for lack of a Spirit-filled ministry and church.

Back of every well, richly flowing with pure, sweet, satisfying water, there must be a hidden source of supply—there must be an underground current or spring. Back of every spiritual life, flowing with peace and joy, lies an underground stream—a hidden supply. That hidden supply, that underground stream, is in God. The Psalmist says "all my springs are in Thee." He is the Fountain of living waters. He has an unlimited supply, exhaustless riches of mercy, of grace, of peace, and of joy flowing like a river.

We read of Achsah the daughter of Caleb, who asked of her father springs of water; and he gave her both the upper and nether springs. We praise God for the joys and the sweet waters of our upper springs; are we as faithful to praise him for the testings and the sometimes bitter waters of the nether springs? The same God who led Israel from bondage, yet humbled them and proved them, that he might do them good at their latter end. Truly, all our springs are in him, whether they be of joy and sunshine or testing and shadow.

Need we lack, friends? If we lack the joy we thought to find, is it because his supply failed? Has his grace proved insufficient? Does his stream run low?

God says "No." "My grace is sufficient for you." His promise is, "With joy shall ye draw water out of the wells of salvation."

Has the peace departed that once was yours? Listen again to what God says, "Oh, that thou hadst hearkened to my commandments! Then had thy peace been as a river, and thy righteousness as the waves of the sea."

Just as water flows into the well, if the channel is clear, so will streams of peace and joy and grace in abundance flow from our God. If the supply runs low, search your well for the hindrance. The same drills of confession, prayer and faith that brought you life from God, will break through the obstruction and let the streams of God's blessing into your soul.

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS

DAILY "JOY" FOR CHILDREN.

Abbie C. Morrow Brown.

"Thy Word was unto me the joy and rejoicing of my heart."—Jer. 15: 16.

October 1.

Memory Text: "Love one another, as I have loved you." John 13:34.

Story: This was the Golden Text. A brother and sister were learning it together. She said to her brother, "Love; that is easy, it means a big hug and a kiss, 'one another,' that means you 'are one and I am another; you love me and I love you.'"

Poem:

Little children who love,
Are like Jesus above,
It pleases His heart
That they have a part
In his love.

Prayer: Heavenly Father, help me to love like Jesus.

October 2.

Memory Text: "Thou, Lord, art good, and ready to forgive." Ps. 86:5.

Story: Eddie came down stairs and said, "Mama, the Lord Jesus forgave all my sins, last night." "How do you know?" "I asked him twice." "What are your sins?" "I tease grandma, I don't mind you, and I pull kitty's tail till she squeals."

Little Eddie did not do these things afterward. He loved Jesus.

Poem:

"One dear gift above the rest,
'Tis the sweetest and the best,
God's own Son sent down from heaven
That we all might be forgiven."

Prayer: Thank you, heavenly Father, for sending Jesus to forgive all my sins, and keep me from sinning."

October 3.

Memory Text: "Look . . . on the things of others." Phil. 2:4.

Story: Two little slum boys were looking in the garbage barrels, hoping to find something to eat. The elder picked out a peach. He rubbed out the rotten part, and handed it to his little friend, and said, "You may bite little Billy, cause you ain't found nothing." Billy took a little bite. Then the big boy said, "Bite bigger, Billy, bite bigger."

Poem:

"Lord, help me live from day to day,
In such a self-forgetful way,
That in my work, and in my play,
And even when I kneel to pray,
It all shall be for—Others."

October 4.

Memory Text: "Take us . . . the little foxes that spoil the vines." Song of Solomon 2:15.

Story: Years ago, as I was to give a Bible Reading on Little Foxes, at our Young People's Meeting, I took my little four-year-old Rilla Pate, not thinking she would understand, but because there was no one to leave with her. On the way home she said, "Aunt Abbie, when mama don't want me to do anything I tease her, I think that is one of my little foxes." I had not spoken of teasing.

Poem:

"Among your tender vines I spy,
A little fox named 'By and By.'
Then set upon him quick, I say,
The swift young hunter, 'Right away.'
'Around each tender vine you plant,
I find the little fox, 'I can't.'
Then fast as ever hunter ran
Chase him with bold and brave, 'I can.'
'No-use-of-trying,' lags and whines,
This fox among your tender vines?
Then drive him low, and drive him high,

With this good hunter, named 'Ill try.'
"Among the vines in your small lot
Creeps in the young fox, 'I forgot?'
Then hunt him out and to his pen
With, 'I will not forget again.'
"A little fox is hidden there
Among the vines, named, 'I don't care'.

Then let, 'I'm sorry', hunter true,
Chase him afar from vines and you."

Prayer: Jesus, help me to chase every single little fox out of my life.

October 5.

Memory Text: "Ask anything in my name. I will do it." John 14:14.

A mother was suffering and slowly dying from a terrible cancer. Her little 12-year-old boy said, "You are not going to die. I cannot live if you die Jesus said he would do anything we asked in his name. Mama, you kneel right down here and pray, and I will go in the other room and pray."

He was gone a long time. When he came back to his mother she was healed.

Poem:

"I know a world sunk in sickness and shame,
But I know a Name, a wonderful Name,
'Tis Jesus."

Prayer: Lord Jesus, teach me to pray.

October 6.

Memory Text: "My God shall supply all your need." Phil. 4:19.

