NEW YEAR'S GREETING.

By The Editor.

WE heartily wish all the readers of THE HERALD a happy New Year, and trust that the year 1927 may be to them a year of usefulness, healthfulness and great spiritual growth and peace.

Let us begin the year on bended knees with an open Bible. There are three means of grace that will, if properly used, insure a useful and happy life: the searching of the Scriptures, prayer and unselfish toil for others.

* * * *

Let us go out into the year of 1927 with our minds fully made up to use these three means of grace to the greatest possible advantage. The field is white unto harvest and precious souls are perishing on every hand; not that the grace of God is not sufficient for them, nor is it because they would not appreciate or respond to an earnest effort for their salvation—the one superlative need is consecrated workers, full of the Holy Ghost and on fire with zeal for souls.

* * * *

Let us read the Scriptures until we are saturated with the truths contained in them, pray until we are full of love for the lost, and then go out and seek the wanderer from the Father's house. There are few greater means of grace than personal work for the salvation of souls.

* * * *

The great doctrine and life for which THE HERALD stands is making encouraging progress. Notwithstanding oppositions, misrepresentations, divisions and strife, there are multiplied thousands of people who are becoming profoundly impressed that the one great need of the human soul is PURITY. They are hungering and thirsting after righteousness and God is filling them with perfect love which casteth out all fear.

* * * *

The creed and motto of THE HERALD is, Jesus Christ can save all men from all sin, pardoning their transgressions and cleansing away their depravity. To all who thus believe, we have a brother's hand and a brother's heart, whatever the differences may be in non-essentials. With the greatest care, we should guard against the spirit of division and strife and cultivate the spirit of holy love and Christian union, agreeing in all things possible, and where we cannot agree, exercising the broadest charity and sanctified patience.

* * * *

We believe THE HERALD has just closed one of its most successful years, and we go forward into the new year with strong faith and high hopes. We want to join hands with all people who are offering Jesus Christ to this poor, lost world as one able and willing to pardon, cleanse and save to the uttermost.

* * * *

THE HERALD stands for a whole Bible and a full salvation. We believe that Jesus Christ died, not so much to save men from hell, and bring them into a heavenly state, but that he died to save men from sin and to bring them into a state of purity of heart. Salvation from all sin makes hell an impossibility and heaven a certainty. We believe that it is the purpose of God, and within the power of the gospel, to so change, renew, cleanse with the atoning blood, and fill with the Holy Ghost, that we will come to hate the sin we loved, and love the holiness we hated. We believe that Christ died on the cross to redeem us from sinning and from sin in this life, on this planet; that he is able and willing to pardon all our transgressions and cleanse away all of our impurity of heart. We have read in the Scriptures that "He suffered without the gate, that he might sanctify the people with his own blood" and that "The blood of Jesus Christ his Son, cleanseth us from all sin." The above being our creed we bespeak the hearty co-operation of all who love the Lord out of a pure heart, and long for the speedy evangelization of this prodigal world.

The One Remedy for the World's Evils.

HERE is no human emergency, or crisis in history, or pressing need of humanity that may not be adequately met by the power, the grace, and the abundant sufficiency provided in the love of God which gave his Son to die for the redemption of the human race.

We think it will be generally admitted that we are living in perilous times; no one can claim that there is widespread promise of abiding peace among men. We must not forget that China is a part of us; that the human race is so united that if one member suffers the entire body must feel the bad effect. No one can contemplate conditions of bloodshed, fire, destruction of life and property in China without regret and a serious question as to what the end shall be. If China would only turn to Christ, then the guns of battle would be silent, the smoke of conflict would pass away, and the great Chinese people would move forward to take their triumphant place in the front rank of the most progressive nations of the world.

India, with its millions, is in confusion. The upper classes are chafing against the rule of a foreign power. The masses of the uneducated people are living in destitution, struggling through a short life and actually perishing by millions with slow starvation before one-half of human life has been lived. It would seem impossible for present conditions to continue in India without a convulsion, revolution and bloodshed. Would God the church had given India the gospel in the fulness of its power a thousand years ago.

The nations of Europe are in contention and strife with each other. There was cessation of battle on the fields of France, but we have not had peace; misunderstanding, disagreement, confusion and strife among the people remain. Preparation for war goes forward. The carnal mind is not only at enmity against God, but it is selfish, grasping, and envious against human kind. We do not believe that any serious statesman is optimistic in his view of conditions in Europe. Of course, there is hope for better things, and men have certainly learned that the ways of war are not the ways of peace, and the slaughter of millions of men does not produce love and fellowship among those who escaped death on the battle field. If Europe finds help and peace it must come from God. Will those people turn to him with humility, repentance and faith and receive the Christ who brings into men the spirit of forgiveness and love?

We think students of history will agree that Great Britain has contributed much to the progress of civilization and while, through the centuries she has gone to war, she has helped to bring peace on earth, to spread the gospel, and to contribute in a very large way, to the best things in our civilization. To many thoughtful observers it looks as if Great Britain had reached the zenith of her power and usefulness, had turned the hilltop of her national leadership, was on the down-grade and approaching disintegration and failure. God forbid it should be so. The breaking up of the British Empire would be a calamity so widespread that it would affect the entire world.

We have serious conditions in these United States. There is an army of criminals among us, with widespread murder and pillage bringing conditions next to the evils of civil war. Thousands of criminals go unpunished, while the courts have the appearance of a startling generosity toward the lawless, and the pardon mills work overtime, turning out the unpunished, unreformed, and impatient violators of law meanwhile, the mass of our people seem to be bent on money getting and pleasure seeking. Thank God, there are many wholesome influences at work in our nation, but we cannot ignore the fact that there is lawlessness, immorality, immodesty, Sabbath desecration, a wild, wasteful extravagance in sports and pleasure seeking that has become appalling.

There is only one remedy for the confusion, ruin and unrest of our world, and that remedy is provided, and can be found in the gospel of Christ, which is the power of God unto salvation. The nations and the peoples must turn to God or hasten to ruin. The world needs a powerful visitation of the Holy Spirit in such a revival as has never been known in the history of the church. Would God, all religious literature might begin to call for, insist upon, and show the need of a great revival; that all bishops, church leaders, pastors, Sunday school teachers and devout laymen would unite in urging upon the people the need, and calling

WATCHNIGHT AND OTHER MEETINGS.

Rev. G. W. Ridout, D.D., Corresponding Editor.

As the old year draws to its close and Time, like a never ceasing stream, bears us to the threshold of a New Year, as Christian people we cannot afford to neglect the opportunity of the Watchnight service. Watchnight holds a significance that should not be ignored. Let the old year pass out in prayer; let the New Year be welcomed with praise. Let consecrations be confirmed, covenants be renewed and fresh vows be taken by the soul. Resolve not to carry into the New Year a lot of rubbish which cluttered up the soul and life during the year past. Bury the hatchet, make up with your enemy; confess the wrong, seek forgiveness of those you have hurt, let grace cleanse the chambers of the soul and enter upon the New Year with a clean heart and with the Spirit's blessing and presence.

The approach of the New Year brings to us serious thinking. Of the old year we may say, "What I have written, I have written." "The moving finger writes, and having writ, Moves on; nor all your piety and art Shall lure it back to cancel half a line, Nor all your tears wash out a word of it."

And if this be true, we might well take time to reflect whether we have lived the life of the past year well and to the glory of God. Some years ago when Bishop Foster was living in the gloaming, just waiting for the summons home, Bishop Mallalieu and Bishop McCabe visited him. He said to them: "Here I am eighty-one years old and I can say that I have spent my whole life in trying to do good. I have had no other thought, no other ambition, but to do good, and now I long to depart; and when I get home I will tell my heavenly Father that I have spent my whole life trying to do good. Every day I pray that I may be allowed to come home Glory! Glory be to God."

In New York over twenty-five years ago a young business man started on New Year's eve to have a good time with gay companions. Before leaving the office his bookkeeper handed him a check balancing his share of the profits for the year. He thoughtlessly thrust it in his pocket and spent some hours in jolly company. After he had parted with them and engaged to meet them later to see the old year out, he paused under a street lamp to read his check. The amount was so large that it astounded him. At once serious thoughts seized him and he saw that without the grace of God he never could stand the temptations that awaited him. Instead of going to meet his boon companions he went to a Methodist watch night service where his godly mother was praying for him. She was at the altar in prayer. He walked up and knelt beside her. That night settled things for him. He gave himself to God and became one of the foremost Christian workers and philanthropists of New York. The hour had struck for him. He took the way of renunciation. God blessed him and he became a blessing.

How definitely the old year closed and the New Year opened from that soul whose plaint was thus expressed by the poet: "Where are those prayers from mother's fond lips?

Oh! they are lost! they are lost!
Where are those scorners with whom I did sit?

Now I am lost! I am lost!
Where are those songs that once ravished my ears?
Where are those friends that so startled my fears?

Ah! I remember them 'warning with tears.'
But I am lost! I am lost!
Yonder is heaven; but 'tis far, far away,
Now it is lost! it is lost!

PLAN FOR WATCHNIGHT AND THE WEEK OF PRAYER

Says the World's Evangelical Alliance of London, in its recently issued annual invitation to the Universal Week of Prayer:

"Evidences that our Divine Lord is preparing some new thing for us, and that he is about to display his power and to manifest himself to the Church, it may be in person, encourage us to unite in prayer."

What a profoundly significant statement! And it challenges attention, not alone for what it says, but because appended to it are the signatures of bishops and archbishops, moderators of assemblies and presidents of councils, men whose names command respect and compel attention.

Three and one-half years! But do we realize that we are at the very threshold of the 1900th anniversary years of this period, and that these three and one-half years immediately ahead may possibly witness events of all but unparalleled character in human history? Should not the Church go down before God as it has never gone down before him? Should not the Week of Prayer, and the Watch Night preceding, and the Ten Days Prayer Season (Dec. 31 to Jan. 9) embracing both Watch Night and the Week of Prayer, be observed by the whole Church in confession of sin and in "supplications, prayers, intercessions, and giving of thanks for all men"? "For this is good and acceptable in the sight of God our Savior; who will have all men to be saved, and to come to the knowledge of the truth" (see 1 Tim. 2:1-6).

The world in bondage waited forty centuries for its promised Redeemer, But He Came! Israel in bondage waited forty decades for the promised Deliverer, But He Came! And Simeon waited perchance forty years or more to see the promised Anointed One, But He Came!

"The Lord is not slack concerning his promise," and therefore the promised "Desire of all nations" is coming again! But in the meantime the "long-suffering" of God (as in the days of Noah) is delaying Christ's coming because God is "not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance" (2 Pet. 3:9). Oh, that the Church might seize upon its extended opportunity, and that the three and one-half years just ahead might witness such a redeeming of time on the part of the Church and such a turning to God on the part of the world as has never before been known! Pray for revival!

"Closed are its gates, and far off its bright day,

Now it is lost! it is lost!
Harps, crowns, and angels, I bid you farewell;
On those bright regions it torments me to dwell,

Ye lightnings and tempests that blast me in hell,

Echo I'm lost! I'm lost!

"Fly! fly! ye lost spirits; away to the earth:
Say I am lost! I am lost!

Go to the land that has given me birth:

Say I am lost! I am lost!

Go to my friends, my companions, and tell,
One whom they cherished now suffers in hell:

Go, and proclaim 'twas through sin that I fell.

Oh! I am lost! I am lost!"

As Times carries us on to New Years, and new epochs, new experiences, new trials and new triumphs, we are reminded that life is a Pilgrimage and a journey. I remember reading in connection with the life of that wonderful preacher, Rev. John Maffitt, the following thrilling incident:

In a camp meeting in Indiana years ago, John Maffitt, the preacher eloquent, had thrilled a great audience with a most wonderful piece of preaching. Colonel Ray sent a description of it to the Christian Advocate of New York which published as follows:

Maffitt's discourse he describes as 'wonderful, and the effect still more so. At the close of his address the orator began to sing:

"Whither goest thou, pilgrim stranger,
Passing through this darksome vale?

Knowest thou not, 'tis full of danger,
And will not thy courage fail?

(Chorus)

"I'm bound for the kingdom,
Will you go to glory with me?
Hallelujah! Praise ye the Lord!"

Far out in the congregation, which numbered nearly three thousand, sat a lady from Louisville, Ky., long a member of Robert Park Methodist Episcopal Church of Indianapolis, who responded to the query:

"Pilgrim, thou dost justly call me,
Wandering o'er this waste so wide,
But no danger will befall me,
While I'm blessed with such a guide."

Both joined in the chorus:

"I'm bound for the kingdom,
Will you go to glory with me?
Hallelujah! Praise ye the Lord!"

Maffitt replied:

"Such a guide; no guide attends thee,
Hence for thee my fears arise,
If some guardian power befriends thee,
'Tis unseen by mortal eyes."

Both sang:

"I'm bound for the kingdom,
Will you go to glory with me
Hallelujah! Praise ye the Lord!"

The lady responded:

"Yes, unseen—but still believe me,
Such a guide my steps attends,
He'll in every strait relieve me,
He from every harm defends."

By this time the entire congregation had caught the chorus and tune, and all joined with hearty Methodist fervor:

"I'm bound for the kingdom,
Will you go to glory with me?
Hallelujah! Praise ye the Lord!"

Maffitt again sang:

"Pilgrim! see that stream before thee!
Darkly winding through the vale,
Should its deadly waves roll o'er thee
Would not then thy courage quail?"

All sang:

"I'm bound for the kingdom,
Will you go to glory with me?
Hallelujah! Praise ye the Lord!"

She replied:

"No, that stream has nothing frightful,
To its brink my steps I bend,
There to plunge will be delightful,
There my pilgrimage will end."

Every voice rang out in joyful song:

"I'm bound for the kingdom,
Will you go to glory with me?
Hallelujah! Praise ye the Lord!"

Both voices sang:

"While I gazed with speed surprising
Down the stream she plunged from sight,
Gazing still I saw her rising,
Like an angel clothed with light.

"Oh, she's gone to the kingdom,
Will you follow her to glory?
Hallelujah! Praise ye the Lord!"

Colonel Ray, a man full of energy and common sense, said: "The scene of that hour will go with me through life. Shoutings, praises, thanksgiving, singing from every father, mother, husband, wife, son, daughter till it seemed as if the very doors of heaven were opened, and the Holy Spirit was in every heart, the joys of redeeming grace, the welcome guest of every soul. Words cannot describe the raptures of thousands of happy mortals who then and there sang with all their powers:

"I'm bound for the kingdom,
Will you go to glory with me?"

HALLELUJAH! PRAISE YE THE LORD."

Such a union of oratory and music, together with the hypnotizing power of a crowd in the open air, and the fact that Maffitt always preached with greatest simplicity when he was describing the way of salvation, produced a scene that no spectator could fully describe.

MODERN APOSTLES OF FAITH.

Rev. C. F. Wimberly, D.D.

BISHOP MATTHEW SIMPSON.

CHAPTER I.

AMONG the traditions of every denomination there appears some outstanding name, or names. It is understood that the crest of greatness was reached in the life and personality of the individual. Rome has her Hildebrand; the church of Germany her Luther; Presbyterians, their Calvin; Scotland, her Knox; Methodism, her Wesley; the Church of England, her Cranmer; the Baptist, her Roger Williams; the Methodist Episcopal Church has one name that towers out and above all her celebrities—Matthew Simpson.

In this man were found the elements of true greatness; not only was he a prince in the pulpit, with a personality surcharged with the Holy Spirit, until his messages were irresistible and compelling; but he was a statesman of the highest order. When he preached before the greatest intellects of the land, or the wealthy nobility of England, both felt alike the marvelous power and charm which could not be explained.

An expert of the histrionic art, in company with an eminent scientist, once heard Bishop Simpson preach. The trainer of speakers went eager to study the art of the great preacher—his delivery, voice, gestures, etc., but soon found himself swept away by a power which caused him to forget the object of his visit. The other man whose life was filled with straight-edged formulas, and definitions, never allowing himself to take a position, or accept a proposition, without first giving careful analysis, as to terminologies, and the rationale of it all, also met with the same fate as the elocutionist, overwhelmed and convicted of the power and majesty of the Truth to which they had listened. Coming away subdued and overwhelmed, they both decided what they had heard was a power unknown to natural things; it was God speaking through a man.

Matthew Simpson was born Jan. 20, 1811, near Cadiz, Ohio, of humble, but respected parents; his father died when he was two years old. But fortune favored the child, as his uncle, for whom he was named, an educated cultured gentleman, being a senator and a judge, became personally interested in his nephew and undertook the education of young Matthew. He taught him all the rudiments of an English education, and the judge being a Greek scholar, prepared him for college. This section of Ohio at that time was in the far west, barren of all social and educational advantages.

At the age of sixteen Matthew left home and entered Madison College in Pennsylvania; this institution is now Alleghany College, at Meadville, Pa. At the age of nineteen he graduated, and because of his unusual ability as a student, was given a position as teacher in his alma mater. In connection with his work as an instructor, he took up the study of medicine, and in 1833 received his degree as Doctor of Medicine, and allowed to practice his profession.

But for this chosen vessel, God had other and greater plans. The circumstances and particulars of his conversion seem to be unknown; but the genuineness of his faith cannot be questioned, for after his arduous application in both teaching and the covering of his medical course at the same time, then to drop it all and enter the humble itinerancy of a Methodist minister, is sufficient proof that God was dealing with him.

One year after receiving his medical degree he entered the Pittsburg Conference—1834—and was assigned as third preacher, or assistant on the St. Clairville circuit. It did not require a long period of obscure service to bring this gifted young man into the limelight; he soon attracted wide attention, and so marked was his pulpit ability, that in one year he was removed from the circuit, and stationed in Philadelphia. In the new and cultured society of this large city—as it was large even then in comparison with other places—he attracted the same enthusiastic attention for his natural eloquence and his unusual gifts as a sermonizer. At once Matthew Simpson was a marked man and destined to a great career.

He remained in the Quaker City but a short time, when there arose an urgent call for him at Williamsport Station, then one of the strongest appointments. At no place was he allowed to remain very long; in 1838 he was elected Vice President of Alleghany College, and appointed to the chair of ethics and science. In this position he remained but one year, and was then chosen President of Asbury College, located at Greencastle, Ind. This institution is now the great DePaw University, and has been a great educational center of Methodism for nearly one hundred years.

As President of Asbury College, he labored for nine years, and with marked distinction; his fame as a platform orator and powerful preacher of the Gospel had gone throughout the land. He wielded a strong influence over the students by his personality and Christian character. He was a man of God, and looked upon as one of America's greatest religious leaders. The college grew under his presidency, and this was especially true of his success in being able to touch laymen of means, and providing a large endowment for the school; all this was aside from his gifts as a Gospel preacher. It was the leadership of Matthew Simpson which gave to Methodism DePaw University as it is today. More is due to his labors than to any other influence. He laid a deep foundation, and built upon it also.

He was a favorite preacher and orator before the great institutions of learning, such as Harvard and Yale; and in whatever place, or before whatever audience, he was a pronounced master. He lectured before all manner of select gatherings, and always with transcendent success and triumph. We find him first figuring in the larger circles of his church at the famous General Conference which met in Baltimore in 1844. His leadership became a factor in that stormy assembly; but his generous and patient spirit kept him above much of the flaming oratory and debate which characterized that historical session. It was this Conference which ended in the separation of the Methodist Church of America. He was also a member of the General Conference in 1848; so pronounced had become his superior leadership, that in 1852, he was elevated to the episcopacy of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

In the year 1857, he was a delegate to the English and Irish World's Evangelical Alliance, which met in Berlin, Germany. In this international gathering, his preaching was outstanding feature of the occasion; it was of such unusual power, that from that time he was known as a world character, and stood without a peer as a pulpit orator. For some years he traveled in Turkey, Greece, Egypt, and Palestine, studying the missionary situation in those countries.

In the year 1859 he was placed at the head of the Garrett Biblical Institute, Evanston, Ill., and brought this school of theology into national prominence, for its strong defense and teaching of the Word of God. At this time, he made Philadelphia his permanent home. The war between the states was at this time hanging like a pall of darkness over the nation. Abraham Lincoln was elected President of the United States, on a platform of freedom of slaves. Bishop Simpson had been for years an ardent leader in this new crusade, and there was soon formed a close friendship between the President and the Bishop. During the dark and perilous days, between 1861 to 1865, Bishop Simpson was one of the president's most confidential advisers; no man wielded a greater influence during the war than he. Lincoln was once heard to remark, that he regarded Bishop Simpson as the greatest living orator. When the president was assassinated, Bishop Simpson conducted the funeral, and preached the sermon. The friendship between the two men was like Jonathan and David.

Bishop Simpson's official duties kept him abroad in the years 1870 to 1875. He was a member of the Ecumenical Conference which met in London, and was honored by preaching the opening sermon. Then in 1882, he was in London at the time of the assassination of President Garfield, and delivered the memorial address in Exeter Hall. In the year 1879 he delivered a series of lectures before the faculty and students of Yale University, which were published by that institution the same year.

Bishop Simpson became a veritable patriarch among his brethren; age seemed to ripen and elevate his mental and spiritual powers. He was a consummate executive, and his judgment always carried weight in the highest circles of his church. In 1884 he attended his last General Conference, which met in Philadelphia, and his farewell address before that body remains in the memory and records of the Methodist Church as one of the high lights of her history.

He was the author of "One Hundred Years of Methodism," and also "The Encyclopedia of Methodism." After his death a volume of his sermons was published. A memorial window to Bishop Matthew Simpson occupies a conspicuous place in City Road Chapel, London, where John Wesley preached. He died in Philadelphia, June 18, 1884, just one month after his last General Conference.

The Little Town of Bethlehem.

PAUL S. REES.

SIX miles south of Jerusalem on a commanding and fertile highland lies the town of the world's most celebrated Nativity. About it are an air and touch of modernity more pronounced than in the case of Jerusalem. Many of its residences, done in Italian and Byzantine style and set in the midst of thriving gardens and orchards, testify to a prosperity rarely witnessed in the Holy Land. They speak of wealth accumulated abroad. Their owners, with few exceptions, have made their fortunes in distant America.

Bethlehem, which means the "House of Bread," is in reality one of the most fertile spots in all Judæa. Its olive orchards are the largest in Palestine. The population, numbering about 10,000, is overwhelmingly Christian. Nominally it is the most Christian city of the land.

I.
Our car stopped in the market place. Alighting, we made our way directly to the most historic structure of the city, the Church of the Nativity. It stands on the western side of the market square. Entrance is gained by means of an exceedingly

The HERALD PULPIT

What the Coming of Christ Has Meant to the World.

Dr. Len G. Broughton

ABOUT this time of the year the thought of the entire Christian world is directed in one way or another to Christ, to the coming of Christ to this world, to his birth. There is of course, as we all know, no one who can tell exactly what day he was born. But we are not concerned, beloved, about the day; we are concerned, about the fact. We do know that it is a fact that Jesus was born into this world, that he came to this world in the form of a child and grew up to mature manhood; and at the age of thirty years, he entered upon his priestly ministry, and for three years he lived in the exercise of that priestly ministry.

Now the question of greatest concern, at least to me, is what blessing did the world get out of the coming of Christ? Was there any special blessing that came to it? Is there any blessing that has remained with it from the coming of Christ? If there is, let us look briefly at what it involves.

If I were to attempt even to give a reasonably accurate account of the things that have come to the world, as I have observed them, as the result of Jesus Christ, I should write many books; so what I hope to do this morning is to touch at least upon three things that have come to the world directly as the result of the coming of Jesus Christ in the way that he came. Mark you, I say in the way that he came, for had he come in any other way what I am going to say to you would not be true.

The first thing that I suggest to you is this: that as the result of the coming of Jesus Christ and the way that he came we have a fulfilled Messianic prophecy. If we go back to the Old Testament scriptures and consider the prophecy with regard to the coming of Jesus, we will see that it is literally true. Had he come in any other way than he came, these prophecies would be meaningless, and the Old Testament scriptures would be untrue.

In the first place, we have back there in the Old Testament scriptures prophesied the fact of his coming; and then, likewise, we have prophesied the manner of his coming, that he would come from a virgin mother. Now had Jesus not come from a virgin mother that prophecy would have fallen to pieces, and that prophecy would have been discredited, and with it would have been a discrediting of the whole Old Testament regime.

Then, also, we have prophesied the place from which he would come, Bethlehem of Judea. Had Jesus not come from Bethlehem of Judea that prophecy would have fallen down, and that prophecy would have been discredited, and all the prophecies that look to Bethlehem Judea as the birthplace of the Lord would have been discredited.

Then, we have prophesied back there in the Old Testament scriptures the conduct of the people at the time of his coming. They told us, those Old Testament prophets way back there in the dim distance of the long ago, that at his coming there would be presented to him gold and frankincense and myrrh, the three things that were always presented to royalty at birth. When we come to look at the records of the birth of Jesus we find that it was literally so; they did present to him gold and frankincense and myrrh, thus acknowledging at that time, unquestionably, perhaps, his royal blood. Now had that not been true, had they not presented to him gold and frankincense and myrrh at the time of his birth, that prophecy would have failed, and again there would have been a discrediting of the Scriptures.

Then we find back there, also, minute prophecy with regard to his last days, prophecy with regard to his betrayal. Those old prophets were able to foretell his betrayal by a so-called friend; way back there in the dark distance they told us that he would be betrayed by a friend. They told us also that that so-called friend would get thirty pieces of silver for his dirty work of betrayal. Mark you, that was way back, way back in the distance, more than a thousand years before Jesus came. I repeat, they told of the betrayal of a friend, and that the so-called friend (I must put it that way, for no friend would be guilty of such a deed) would receive for his betrayal thirty pieces of silver; and they told us also what that thirty pieces of silver would be used for. Think of it!

They told us those thirty pieces of silver would be used to buy a Potter's Field, to bury poor dead folks. There was not such a thing in the world at the time of that prophecy. They did not care anything about poor folks in those days, did not even bother to give their dead bodies burial. They were thrown out and allowed to stay upon the ground in the open air and be consumed by the vultures, and their bones to bleach in the sun. But looking way down the telescope of inspiration they saw a group of men with thirty pieces of silver in their hands, which had been thrown down by the betrayer of the Messiah. They could not use it for themselves, and they had to use it in some way, and so those Old Testament prophets saw these men buying a Potter's Field in which to bury the poor dead.

They prophesied something else. They prophesied that he would be crucified, that in his crucifixion not a bone in his body would be broken. Yes, and they saw something else, strange to say, and yet not strange when we think of the working of inspiration upon the holy men who wrote the Bible; they saw him taken down from the cross and placed in a tomb already prepared, a tomb they called that of a rich man. Yes, and they saw something else. They saw him in that tomb break the bands of death, push aside the sealed door, come forth and live again among men, and they prophesied it, they told the world of his resurrection more than a thousand years before he was born. And we find David, the sweet singer, composing a song and sitting by its harp singing its sentiment, singing of the risen Lord; and yet, doubtless, he never knew of the truth about which he sang. God's spirit simply put into his intelligence a fact, which fact he sang into the world, not knowing the full significance of what he said.

So, when we take up our New Testament and begin to look at the story of the birth of Jesus as given in the different Gospels, we see that in the coming of Jesus the way that he came—we must insist upon that, the way that he came—we have a perfect, literal, complete fulfillment of Messianic prophecy. How any man with any intelligence can read in the Old Testament scriptures the prophecies with regard to the coming of Jesus Christ into this world, and then the New Testament account of his coming, and take the two together, and remain with any sort of doubt in his mind with reference to Jesus Christ as represented today by the Church, I do not know.

The second thing I want to call your attention to is that in the coming of Jesus Christ to this world we have a completed form of human redemption. In the Old Testament scriptures we have redemption presented in sacrifice and symbol. Men were saved then as they looked forward to the coming of the Redeemer. Those sacrifices and symbols may in a sense all be summed up in one—the Passover.

Pharaoh had given his last word to Moses with regard to the liberation of the Children of Israel. He had withstood plague after plague until finally he had said, "Plague or no plague, they shall not go." Then God went to work through another plague, the plague of the passover. You remember how he directed the Children of Israel to take blood, the blood of the lamb, and sprinkle it upon the lintel and the door posts of their houses, so that in that terrible night of death when the destroying angel was to visit the dominion of Egypt he might pass the Children of Israel by, providing they had the blood upon the lintel and the door posts. And when that terrible night came and the destroying angels arrived, if he found blood upon the lintel and door posts of a house he passed that house by.

There is a beautiful legend that has been excavated in that wonderfully interesting land, where records are constantly being unearthed. It runs like this:

"The night had come, the sun had passed

THE MIGHT OF SACRIFICIAL LOVE.

Rev. E. Stanley Jones, D.D.

THE CROSS OF JESUS CHRIST—WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

OME one has said that the power of a Redeemer would depend upon two things: first, upon the richness of the self that was given; and, second, upon the depth of the giving. Assuming for the moment this to be true, we shall ask these two questions concerning Jesus Christ, for he declared himself to be a Redeemer. How rich was the self that he gave, and how deeply did he give?

As to the richness of Christ's personality there can be scarcely two opinions. Both friend and intelligent foe alike are agreed on the question of the character of Jesus Christ. Whatever our creed we stand with admiration before the sublime character of Jesus. 'His emphasis was not in any of the seven kingdoms in which men win their crowns: Art, Literature, Philosophy, Science, Invention, Statesmanship and War; and yet we call Jesus great.' Wherein was his greatness? It was in the realm of character. Character is supreme in life; hence Jesus stood supreme in the supreme things. He did not come to teach science, for had he done so, he would have limited himself; since science can only be the pursuit of the few. Nor did he come to teach philosophy, except incidentally, for philosophy can only attract the prepared. Here he would have limited himself to a learned class. These are marginal. But character is central in life. Jesus, therefore, came to show God's character, and to remake and uplift human character. Jesus was greatest in the greatest realm. In the majesty of pure living, in the breadth of his sympathy, in the balance of his character—no virtue being fostered at the expense of another,—in the unselfish, sacrificial outlook of his life, in pure disinterested love; in fact, in all those qualities that make up real character, Jesus Christ was supreme. So supreme that 'when we think of the Ideal we do not add virtue to virtue, but think of Jesus Christ,' so that 'the standard of human life is no longer a code, but a Character.' Philosophy knows nothing of a realized ideal, but here seems to have been realized a Character-Ideal unimproved after centuries of ethical thought and progress.

And so the Word had breath and wrought, With human hands the creed of creeds, In loveliness of perfect deeds, More strong than all poetic thought.

There seems to be no doubt as to the richness of the Self that was given; but our discussion concerns the depth of the giving. How deeply did Jesus Christ give? Was his supreme gift his teaching? His sympathy? His example? His supreme contribution to mankind was not his teaching, or his sympathy, or his example—it was himself. 'He gave himself for us.' And how deeply did he give himself? He gave, even to self-sacrifice.

It has been suggested that 'the answer to the riddle of the universe is God, and the answer to the riddle of God is Christ.' Then the answer to the riddle of Christ is to be found in his sacrificial spirit culminating in his death. To understand his cross is to understand Christ and his Christianity; to fail to understand his cross is to fail to understand Christianity at its deepest and most vital place. Not that we can grasp its full meaning. We can grasp sufficient for our need; but there are times when we must stand before the miracle of his death, and with the poet cry,

"'Tis mystery all—the Immortal dies!"

But what we do see gives us a clue to what lies back in the heart of the Infinite.

In order to understand something of the meaning of the cross of Christ there must be a certain attitude of mind and heart. This cannot be insisted upon too strongly. There are certain attitudes that render a man incapable of grasping the deepest things of religion. For we cannot grasp the deepest things of religion by an argument, but by an attitude—an attitude of openness, of spiritual desire, of willingness to be led wherever the light would lead. Moreover, to understand art one must have art within him; to understand music, real music, one must have somewhat of the musician within him; above all, to understand a sacrificial death one must possess to some extent the sacrificial spirit. If one is selfish, thinking of his own needs and ends, by his very attitude he is rendered incapable of fully grasping the meaning of a death that is sacrificial. Selfishness and sacrifice are in two opposite and opposing realms; and selfishness could never understand sacrifice for lack of a point of contact. But the man who would help others, even at cost to himself, who thinks and lives in terms of helpful service, he will see the beauty and power and meaning of the cross, for he has the point of contact. There are some to whom what I shall say will be as an idle tale, for their souls are out of tune with the thought of sacrificial helpfulness. On the other hand, there are those whose very nature craves to help and to save. They will see the beauty and feel the power of the death of Christ. I cannot hope to influence the former but I do hope to influence the latter, for to such the appeal of the cross of Christ must be well-nigh irresistible. 'The cross is a Master-key which fits every lock of human experience.' Whatever your belief or lack of belief, the cross always has something to say to you; and if a man begins with the point where it touches his life in vital fashion and walks out along the path which opens before him, at last he will come to know its deepest and fullest meaning.

There is in all life a dark, terrible problem—the problem of evil. Spencer defines physical life as an inward correspondence with outward environment. When we take in food and air from our environment we live. When we fail to do so we die. There must be response to environment. This is in regard to our physical environment. But there is also a spiritual environment to which we must respond. Our spiritual environment is made up of our higher self, other human souls and God. When we are in harmony with our higher self, with our fellow-men and with God, we live, live spiritually. The facts of life fairly faced proclaim with heart-breaking emphasis that man is, or has been, out of harmony with his spiritual environment. I say 'has been', for some have found the three-fold harmony, but as a whole the life of mankind is a discord. First, there seems to be in man's life a cleavage in his inmost nature. His higher self stands over against his lower self. The higher self craves goodness, nobleness—craves God. The lower self craves and conceives evil. As Byron says: (and who knew it better than Byron) 'Our life is a false nature. It is not in the harmony of things.' There is division and discord in our inward nature. Moreover, we are out of harmony with our brother man. The jealousies, the petty quarrels, the court wranglings, the family feuds, the wars, the social clashes, the despising of man by man because of so-called superior class or caste—all these and more, tell us that man is out of harmony with man. But the saddest element, and the most far-reaching in its consequences, is our lack of harmony or correspondence in the highest and most important portion of our environment, namely, God. We are out of harmony with him. 'The history of man is one long search for God.' We stand beside our altars, we breathe our prayers, we make our vows, we crave with unspeakable cravings of the inmost heart—we long for fellowship with God. But something dark, dreadful and often decisive, stands between us and God. We realize that he must be holy and, because of our conscious unholiness, we dare not ask for fellowship with him. We are separated and guilty.

Now the problem of religion will be to do away with these inharmonies and discords: to solve the problems of evil. To make man at one with his highest self, so that his divided soul-forces are fused into one; to bring man into harmony with his brother man, and to bring him into harmony with God—this is the task of religion. If it fail to do this, it fails at the vital point. Its ritual may be beautiful, its sanctions may be ancient, its precepts may be good, but if it fails here it fails vitally and irretrievably. All else is useless, for if this problem is ignored or slurred over, we are like one who dreams and plans about next year's happiness while a cancer is eating at his vitals.

If Jesus Christ has done anything vital in the history of mankind, he must have solved this three-fold problem of bringing us into harmony with our highest self, with our brother, and with God. If he has failed here, he takes his place as one of the beautiful characters of history, but utterly impotent and powerless to be a Redeemer.

Here is a task worthy of God. If Jesus be other than God he cannot do it. If he is not God, if he is not that 'Personal Approach from the Unseen' meeting us in our environment, he will not be able. Horace warns the tragedian not to bring a god on the stage unless there is an entanglement worthy of a god. Evil presents an entanglement worthy of God, and it is no mere stage affair. It is a tragic fact. To deliver men from evil is a problem that challenges God's power and certainly would have a claim on his love.

low and inconspicuous door. A strengthful simplicity marks the interior, which consists of a nave and double aisles, a transept and a semi-circular apse. The supporting columns of reddish limestone are immense. The lofty ceiling is crossed with very ancient brown beams.

It is all intensely interesting, these features of the interior, in view of the fact that this is considered the oldest Christian Church in the world and one of the finest examples of early Christian architecture. Much of it remains practically unaltered since its erection by Constantine in 330 A. D.

One reminder will suffice to show what a memorable part the Church of the Nativity has played in the noble succession of Christian structures, and this quite apart from the event which it was built to commemorate. We refer to the little known fact that in one of the stone-hewn chambers beneath the building the distinguished father and patient scholar, St. Jerome, lived in voluntary confinement. Here he wrote the Vulgate translation of the Bible about 400 A. D. Near his cell, which is known as the Chapel of St. Jerome, he is said to be buried.

II.

However, one's main interest in the Church of the Nativity necessarily centers in the Grotto. All evidence points to the fact that Emperor Constantine built his church where the "inn" stood, the cavern cut below in the rocky hill-side having served as the stable. The latter is called the Grotto. Candles in hand, we started to descend but were turned back by a Moslem policeman on guard. Inquiry revealed that trouble had just occurred between the priests of the Greek Church and those of the Roman Church in connection with their respective ceremonies in the crypt. We learned that the Greeks in retiring at the close of their service had failed to remove, according to custom, from the altar above the birth-place a certain picture offensive to the Romans. The latter coming down refused to conduct their ceremonies until it was taken away. They waited until their allotted time for service expired, whereupon the Greeks started to re-enter. To avert blows in the dispute which followed the police had to interfere.

The Governor of the town had to be summoned to adjust the matter. Thus at the birth-place of the Prince of Peace we waited for fully twenty minutes, prevented from entering the sacred chapel by the bitter jealousy and intolerant bigotry of those who profess to worship at his feet and to be the living exponents of his doctrine. Here is paradox indeed: where the Prince of Peace was born peace must be maintained at the point of a sword.

Finally, however, we were allowed to descend the dark, winding stairs worn smooth by the treading of millions of pilgrims. At their foot we found ourselves in a cave some forty feet long by ten wide, dimly lit with pendant lamps. Draperies and old paintings decorate the walls. The floor is of marble, as is the manger niche on the side. In the pavement in front of the altar a silver star is fixed, marking, for the benefit of credulous visitors, the precise spot where the Child was born.

The more important the event involved the more resistlessly does the query rise in the mind of the traveler: Is this the place? In the present instance the finest scholarship concedes the extreme probability of its being so. Certainly there is everything in the physical situation to point to such a conclusion.

III.

Strip the scene of its present garish trappings, its ecclesiastical inventions of silk and gold and marble. Here in the cattle stall, beneath the crowded inn, an anxious husband on a lonely night sought refuge for his young bride. Here in the darkness, with no glittering lamps suspended from above, with none of these costly embroideries at hand to be used as a covering, with no basin of marble in which to be bathed, was born—your Lord and mine, the Redeemer of a prodigal world, the Savior of an imperiled planet. O, the solemn and unsearchable mystery of the Incarnation. He who wrought the stellar palaces of the night was born to us in a barn. He whose Kingship was acclaimed above by seraphic intelligences came to us by motherhood's hazardous toil, by peasantry's lowly walk. He who rode upon the crimson splendors of the sunset came an infant to Mary's cradling arms, born to no purple, greeted by no prince.

With these reflections crowding one's mind and warming his heart he feels like hurrying out of the tapestried Grotto to look down to the hills just below the town. These are the hills over which broke the light of the world on high. Through these dales, now sun-burnt and dust-laden, resounded the serenade angelic. Startled shepherds keeping their night vigil heard it with fear and wonder and throbbing hope: "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men."

Just north of the "Shepherds' Fields" lies what was once in all probability the field of Boaz where Ruth won rare favor by her modest gleanings and where were laid the scenes so sacredly dramatized in that lovely prose-poem which bears her name. And yonder rises Frank Mountain, a conspicuous pinnacle. On it once stood the palace of Herod the Great. There he is buried.

Around the mountain and far beyond it to the east spreads the desolate gray-brown Judæan Wilderness, the Tekoa section of it, facing the violet mists of the Dead Sea basin. Over these wide, undulating horizons roamed the shepherd-prophet Amos, steeping himself in the rustic culture of the open air and the solitary hills. His was the eloquence of the heights where the spaces are far-flung and the stars are friendly: "For, lo, he that formeth the mountains, and createth the wind, . . . that maketh the morning darkness, and treadeth upon the high places of the earth, The Lord, The God of hosts, is his name . . . Seek him that maketh the seven stars and Orion, and turneth the shadow of death into morning, and maketh the day dark with night: that calleth for the waters of the sea, and poureth them out upon the face of the earth: The Lord is his name." (Amos 4:13, 5:8). A superb study in majestic and eloquent prose!

IV.

Since the new road into Bethlehem from the north has been put in use few travelers have passed the celebrated Well of David, the well which tradition declares was "by the gate." A short walk from the present highway, however, brings one to the once frequented spot. Though it is now within a walled garden which is usually closed, we were admitted by our good guide who mounted the wall and turned the key on the other side. In spite of the fact that there is still water in it very little use is made of the well at the present time.

Yet how admirably and forcibly it serves to refresh the mind with one of the finest stories of heroism and loyalty recorded in the Old Testament! Here it is in sketchy form. David, bold son of Jesse, on the defensive; maintaining himself in the stronghold of Adullam; the Philistines in possession of his beloved town—Bethlehem; the siege a long one; a chieftain's tongue thirsting for a draft from the spring of his boyhood days—the well by the gate; the secret expedition of the three mighty men, piercing the guard of the enemy, risking their lives—all to get their leader a drink; the success of the venture; the overcomer captain refusing to drink but pouring out the contents of the vessel as an offering to the Lord. This was the moving story borne in upon us with such impressiveness that lovely evening as the Syrian sun was dipping into the golden west and the Bethlehem hills were getting ready to sleep beneath a pale, waning moon.

"O little town of Bethlehem,
How still we see thee lie!
Above thy deep and dreamless sleep
The silent stars go by;
Yet in thy dark streets shineth
The everlasting Light;
The hopes and fears of all the years
Are met in thee tonight."

RADIANT LIVING.

REV. C. M. GRIFFETH.

BY WAY OF THE CROSS.

"I would be a Christian if it would not interfere so much with my plans!"

Have you not heard this remark before?

But there is no easy way of being a Christian.

Why is it that the star of Bethlehem was never selected as an emblem of Christianity? It is because men have come to recognize that it was not by life but by death, not by indulgence but by sacrifice that Christ has revealed to us the way to service and to joy.

The cross is more than a mere symbol of Christianity. It is expressive of that denial and that sacrifice which is a part of every true Christian life and service.

The cross meant death to Jesus Christ. The cross means the same to the Christian. It means that he will pass through such a full consecration of his will to the will of God as to actually die out to his own desires and to the desires or to the ridicule of the worldliness around him.

When the Christian has actually gone to the cross for Christ's sake in the full meaning of that term, the world may as well hold his funeral for worldliness will not see his face again around its hangouts, for he has died out to it all.

Such a man is now living in Paradise—a paradise of divine fellowship!

That the way to victory and the way to successful Christian life and service is by the way of the cross is forcibly impressed upon us by the remark made by James Calvert who, when on his way to the cannibal Fiji Islands, was warned by the captain of the vessel upon which he was sailing not to land there for if he did he would surely die.

"We died before we came," calmly replied the consecrated man.

Calvert had the secret. He had died out to all his own plans and to his own will. He could say with the Apostle Paul: "I have been crucified with Christ, nevertheless I live, yet not I, but Christ liveth in me."

Notice!

I am sure the readers of THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD will be glad to know that Miss Edna Banning, of Cleveland, Ohio, who has been laid aside by illness for nearly a year, is now able to be in the field again. She has recently held a meeting here in her home city and is now engaged in a second meeting here.

Miss Banning is well known in the field of evangelism as one of the strong and true evangelists in our Movement. I most heartily commend her to the consideration of pastors and camp meeting committees desiring help. Having been laid out so long on account of a breakdown after nearly twenty-five years of continuous and hard work, she is now without a full slate. No doubt numbers who read this announcement are thinking of securing help on short notice, a thing one cannot often do successfully, but at this time Miss Banning is able to accept calls for this present winter. When she was well and in the field, her slate was usually filled a year ahead.

REPORTS FROM SOUL WINNERS

"A TEAM ABROAD."

Mrs. Fisher and I have just returned from a wonderful journey through the Holy Land, Egypt and a part of Europe. This trip was made possible to us through the generosity of two Christian friends. And we think they made an excellent investment in the cause of the Gospel, for the information and inspiration which came to us on this trip through the "Land of our Lord" will better fit us for our work and greatly enrich our ministry through the coming years. We were much benefited physically, mentally and spiritually.

We entered Syria at Beirut and motored over the Lebanon Mountains, a most picturesque drive, to Baalbek for a visit to the colossal ruins of the ancient temples there, and then on to Damascus, which is claimed by some to be the most ancient city in the world. It is certainly a most interesting city. Here we found the streets patrolled by French troops, with breast-works at almost every corner, and at night the streets were all closed with barbed wire entanglements, for Syria was in the throes of civil war between the Druses and the French Authorities. French Bombs had demolished many of the finest and oldest buildings in the heart of the city—even on the "Street called Strait." And we were told that many human bodies lay buried beneath the ruins. Our impression with the Druses was that not less than ninety per cent of the natives were in sympathy with the Druses, but they did not publicly so declare themselves because they feared the cruelty of the French. In fact we did not find one person who loved the French, and if half of the stories regarding the French cruelty be true, and we got them from good authority, the French deserve little sympathy.

It was our privilege to view the road where Paul was stricken to the earth by the bright light of the Lord's presence, and where he first heard the voice of Jesus speaking to him. We walked along the Street called Strait, out past the Eastern Gate, to the house of Ananias, and then visited in a nearby street the house of Judas, where Paul had scales removed from his eyes, where he was converted and changed from an enemy of Christianity, later to become one of the greatest Christian leaders of all time.

It was an interesting thing to note the contrast between the Moslem and the Christian sections of the city. Leaving the Moslem section with its historic, ancient Mosque, decorated with pure gold, its sad-faced, sore-eyed and filthy beggars, and its vice, one finds the Christian section, only a street or two removed, so different that he feels himself transported into another world. Here the streets are clean, and the people are clothed, friendly and smiling. Any intelligent, unbiased mind would be impressed with the fact that vital Christianity is the world's only hope.

On the day we left Damascus a real battle was in progress, and we later received reports that hundreds were killed. The French cannon began in earnest about four o'clock in the morning. The windows of our hotel rattled and the building trembled and shook—and so did we. Our train pulled out of Damascus something after nine o'clock in the morning with more than a hundred soldiers acting as our escort. Flat cars were armed with machine guns for our protection. Our train was unmolested, but a train that passed us on its way into Damascus never reached its destination—it was blown up. We were thankful to be quit of this section of the country.

We passed through Arabia in full view of the snow-capped Mt. Hermon to arrive at Tiberias on the shore of the Sea of Galilee. We were thrilled as we gazed upon that beautiful body of placid blue waters which, with its fishermen, fishing nets and boats, remains much the same as it was in that long gone day when the Master trod its shores and walked upon its bosom. Passing around the Lake on the west we saw Magdala where Mary once lived and where her tomb now is. Farther on we came to Capernaum and stood amidst the tumbled-down ruins of what was once the synagogue where Jesus preached and taught, and nearby is the supposed site of the home where Peter's wife's mother lived. The synagogue, long buried, has been excavated and is now in process of reconstruction out of the original stones. Nearby is the place where Jesus fed the four thousand hungry folk, and a little farther away is the Mt. of Beatitudes where Jesus announced the platform of his Kingdom in the world. Directly on the opposite side of the Sea one views the almost barren hills of the land of the Gadarenes where Jesus met and restored the demented man.

With deep emotion and regret we left this region where Jesus had done so many mighty works and lived so many eventful days, and motored through Galilee to Cana and on to Nazareth where His boyhood days were spent. Here we visited those places where tradition says Jesus worked and taught. The people here seem to have changed but little in the nearly two thousand years since Jesus wrought in the little carpenter shop.

In Jerusalem, the heart of the Holy Land, we visited the Church of the Holy Sepulchre (so called), Pilate's Hall, Via Dolorosa, Mosque of Omar (supposed to be on the site of Solomon's Temple), Solomon's Stables, the Jews' Walling Place, Tomb of David, the Upper Room, Pool of Bethesda, Mt. of Olives, Garden of Gethsemane, Absalom's Tomb, Tomb of St. James, Pool of Siloam, Vale of Hinnom, etc. We made excursions to Bethany, Tomb of Lazarus, Apostles' Fountain, Good Samaritan Inn; to Jericho, Springs of Elisha, River of Jordan and the Dead Sea; to Bethlehem, David's Well, Church of the Nativity, Well of the Magi and Rachel's Tomb. We viewed the Fields of the Shepherds from the City of David, Ruth and Boaz.

It is disappointing to find Jerusalem so over-run with Mohammedan and Roman Catholic heathenism. It is disconcerting to see Roman Churches costing millions of dollars—some of them built with United States money—while some of our Protestant Churches worshipping in shacks or in a single room of a residence—because they can't get the money that they need for their work. It is disgusting to hear some of the stories and superstitions of the heathen concerning the sacred places. But while one may point out this place, and another that, as the spot where certain events took place, there are some few places and things about which we may feel sure as to their authenticity. There is no doubt about the Mt. of Olives from which one may have an unobstructed view of the whole City and the country for miles about. It was good to spend some time here where Jesus so often went with his disciples. We are satisfied that the hill just outside the old City known as "Chinese Gordon's Calvary" was the place where Jesus died, and that he was buried in the tomb in the garden nearby. Short services were held on each of these sacred spots by one or another of our party. And here we dedicated our lives anew to our crucified and risen Lord, and to the work he has called us to do.

REPORT.

I have just returned from the East Coast of Florida where I conducted revivals last winter in Miami at Riverside, Miami Beach and Allapattah; also at the First Methodist Church in Fort Lauderdale and in Progresso, where Brother Gutteridge and I launched a missionary revival resulting in the building of a Methodist Church.

All of these churches were greatly damaged during the hurricane and some of them completely demolished. At Riverside and Miami Beach the heroic people are repairing the losses, while the First Church at Fort Lauderdale is rebuilding from the foundation. The main auditorium of our Church at Hollywood is completely destroyed and a pitiful little Sunday school room is being patched up in which to hold the people together. It is sad beyond expression to look at the small annex all out of proportion while our handsome auditorium is completely wrecked. At Dania, a suburb of Hollywood, we saw the wreck and debris of our Church while the flock is scattered.

At Progresso, where we went without a sign of a Sunday school or religious service, and after two weeks of missionary evangelism, succeeded in organizing a large Sabbath school and a church with a hundred members. The new building was literally wiped away and the first pastor had for his pulpit only a wrecked house. Remember these are just a few places where I had worked. There are hundreds of other places which suffered as great losses.

Our Church is now calling upon its members to contribute funds to the rebuilding of churches and parsonages in the devastated areas of Florida. Therefore, I want to add my word to this most urgent call and remind our people to mail a check to my good friend, Dr. T. D. Ellis, Secretary, Board of Church Extension, Louisville, Ky.

MEETING REPORT.

Sunday night, Dec. 5, we closed a great revival at Clay, W. Va. We were called there by the pastor of the M. E. Church, Bro. Hawkins. The Methodist Church being in repairing, the meeting was held in the Baptist Church; the Baptists were willing to make it a union meeting. The two churches worked together nicely. A fraternal spirit exists between the two churches. Clay being a county seat town we had the co-operation of the leading lawyers of the town.

There were something like one hundred bowed at the altar either for regeneration, sanctification, or reclamation. Something like forty came the last night of the meeting for church membership. Bro. Hawkins is a Holy Ghost man. We preached the old-time gospel the best we knew how, and the Lord honored the messages in a marvelous way. We realize that the old-time gospel has not lost its power, when preached in all of its fulness. The way grows brighter, if we keep close to the bleeding side of Christ.

FOXBURG, PENNSYLVANIA.

We are in the closing week of a three-weeks' meeting in the M. E. Church at Foxburg, Pa. Bro. C. M. Dunaway is doing the preaching. We have never heard better preaching or more searching sermons. We feel safe in saying there is no one in the field who uncovers sin as Bro. Dunaway does. And how we need just such preaching in these terrible days when sin is rampant. The meeting has been a hard one but night before last the Lord broke through. After Bro. Dunaway had preached on "The need of a pure heart" he gave the invitation for seekers and the altar and front seats were crowded with seekers, some for pardon and some for the Baptism of the Holy Ghost. We haven't seen as many tears and heard such earnest praying in a long time. Some real victories were won. Thank God! The Lord blessed again in last night's service and gave us at least thirty-five seekers.

We are having nearly a hundred boys and girls at the children's meetings each afternoon at the close of school.

Rev. C. C. Mohny, the pastor, and his splendid wife stand out and out for full salvation and are as fine folk as we ever labored with. May he richly bless them in their work. We never felt more like pressing the battle for God. Pray for us.

The Mackey Sisters.

CENTRALIA, ILLINOIS.

Revival services at Central City Methodist Church, Centralia, Ill., closed December 5th. This was the best meeting held in this church in many years, according to the old people of the town. Evangelist W. E. Lamp, of Wilmore, Ky., was the preacher, supported by the pastor, Rev. M. L. Watson. The break came on Thursday night of the second week, and from that service up to, and including, the final service, victory was ours. The results of the meeting were 39 conversions, all praying through at the altar; 16 united with the church and 11 baptized. We heartily recommend Brother Lamp to all pastors needing evangelistic help; however, if you belong to the "Modernist", "Evolutionist", "Monkey-ites" or Zoo crowd, don't send for Brother Lamp, or he will get your "scalp." Brother Lamp is sane, deeply spiritual, and, as some of our folk said, you can see the glory shining in his countenance.

OKMULGEE, OKLAHOMA.

We recently closed a very fine meeting in the Trinity Methodist Church, Okmulgee, Okla. About 70 were at the altar during the two weeks, some for the first time, others renewing their covenant, and some for a clean heart. We had received 52 into the Church at the close of the meeting. The last Sunday was a great day for the church; about 25 of the members were at the altar in 5:00 P. M. service, praying for a clean heart and a Spirit-filled life as per Acts 1:8. Several pastors of other churches of the city and their members attended and were blessed in the meetings.

Dr. G. W. Sawyer is the pastor of this loyal, consecrated people. They have erected a nice stucco church building during the past year, and while the membership consists of day laborers, they were ready and willing to pay the price for a revival. No finer band of young people can be found; they are ready to testify, pray, do personal work or anything the Spirit leads them to do. Dr. Sawyer preaches the doctrines of the Bible and Methodism; we are expecting to hear good things from them in the future. Several were taking The Herald and we are sending seven new subscribers.

Miss Carrie Graham, who has worked with me for two years, was married Nov. 9, to Mr. D. B. Shutt, of Lambert, Okla. I have secured the services of Rev. Edgar J. Banks, who has charge of music and young people's work. God is blessing our labors together. We desire the prayers of The Herald family.

To The Readers of The Pentecostal Herald:

My last report was closed just as the great Steamer Majestic was nearing the shores of the British Isles. We landed there on Oct. 15. We however, first called at Chouberg, France, where many passengers were taken ashore in a small ship which came out to meet the great Liner. It was nice to see the lovely green hillsides of old England once again.

There the great preachers of the Wesley Revival caught the vision of the great need of their day and went everywhere as flames of fire to proclaim a message that shook the world and put on a program that stirred to the deep of men's hearts and lives.

Our hearts cry for the old-time word of power and stirring! Oh God, give us men and women who are on fire for God and lost souls. We were only about one hour on shore in England as we immediately transferred to the R. M. S. Balmoral Castle which left that same day for Cape Town, South Africa, where we are due to arrive after a voyage of seventeen days. We have had a remarkable calm sea all the way thus far. We have many nationalities on board. English, French, Italians, Belgians, Spanish, Scotch, Dutch, Greeks, etc. They are going to the various parts of South and Central Africa. We have not found any missionaries among them. There are some of the Clergy of the Church of England on board but evidently they are not awakened as I notice that they are busy smoking their pipes, which seems to give them much pleasure. How sad to see the standard thus put in the mud. These people need a real message from God. Who will give it to them?

We are now near Cape Town; tomorrow is Sunday, D. V., that will be our last day on this steamer. Oh! how glad we are that we will soon be in dear old Africa once again. We have only made one stop on this long voyage of seventeen days, that was at the Island of Madeira, a Portuguese Possession 520 miles from Lisbon. We passed through the lovely Islands of Canary and Cane Verde. Thank God for such a lovely calm sea all the way. Beloved, pray for the lost in Africa.

Faithfully in Jesus.

upon God for a genuine revival of pure religion.

Through the coming year THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD will continue to insist upon the need of a great revival. It is for this that the paper was born; to this work it consecrates itself afresh. Our readers would be surprised if they understood the pressure that is brought against us, the combinations to destroy us, the animosity, public and private efforts to break down and hinder this paper in its God-given task. Pray God to give us the guidance of the Holy Spirit, for strength and courage to press faithfully on our way and to make THE HERALD a messenger of life and peace and salvation to multitudes of struggling souls.

Our Tent Workers' Conference.

THE tent workers' conference of The Evangelical Methodist League convened in Louisville, Dec. 10 and 11. It was not our purpose to have a large meeting of the members of the League, but to bring together the tent workers to see what we have been able to accomplish, and to arrange for larger work the coming tent season.

We had representatives from quite a number of states; Kentucky, Illinois, Georgia, Kansas, Pennsylvania, Indiana, and several other states. They had remarkably interesting and encouraging reports of the work done last summer. God had wonderfully wrought through them in the conversion of sinners, the reclamation of backsliders and the sanctification of believers.

Several of our most successful tent workers were kept away from the meeting because they were engaged in gracious revival work in various churches. Throughout the campaign most everywhere the pastors had given a helping hand, and in a number of instances had received large benefit to their churches. One pastor dropped in on our meetings and told how his own congregation had been blessed and helped in a tent meeting held near his church.

From the reports we find that full salvation had been preached in these tents during the past summer to many thousands of people. Some of the brethren think the estimate would go far over a hundred thousand, which is doubtless true, when we remember the large number of meetings held, and the very large attendance in many places. Some of the members of The League put in practically all of their time in church meetings with pastors, having gracious results.

The Lord was with us in the upper room of our praying and planning and we all melted into tears, and our hearts overflowed with love to Christ and longing for the salvation of human souls. It would seem that a group of brethren never got together in more holy and beautiful fellowship. It was understood and agreed by all that we must be messengers of grace, that in this work we must guard against any appearance of fault-finding or attack upon the church, officials of the church, pastors, or anyone else; that if people came to our tent meeting expecting to hear rant or accusation of any sort against the church, its officials or work, they should be disappointed, but should always hear an earnest gospel message against wickedness and a plea for repentance, regeneration, consecration, a clean heart and a holy life; that it shall be the supreme purpose of this tent work to lift up and glorify the Lord Jesus Christ, and call the people to him for a free and full redemption from sin.

We do not believe that a great revival is possible without laying emphasis upon the final outcome of sin; that we must try to show the people that to live in sin, and die in sin, is to go out into everlasting punishment; that we must point out and emphasize the teachings of our Lord Jesus on this subject. We do not believe that a great revival is possible without special recognition dear friend for money sufficient to secure a large tent and we are hoping the Lord will put it into the hearts of others to send in money to buy an entire tent. The advantage of a contribution now is that we can have the tents made during the winter season which enables us to get them at a reduced price. Let those who are interested in the work respond as soon as possible. In the spring the tent companies are very busy putting up awnings, and other work that keeps such manufacturers crowded and the making of our gospel tents is more expensive.

A few days ago we received a letter from a district superintendent in an eastern state asking for a tent and a couple of consecrated young men to be used in his district next year. He will receive a tent as soon as the weather will permit tent work. Our hearts would leap with joy if twenty-five district superintendents and presiding elders would ask for tents, oversee and guide the work, gather and preserve the fruit of the revivals.

This tent evangelism comes out of a great

of the Holy Spirit, his presence in the world, and his supremacy in the administration and guidance in the church; that he must be relied upon to reprove, convict, reveal, regenerate, witness, sanctify, empower and guide the people of God. These great facts must be emphasized in preaching the gospel, if we would have an awakening, a true revival of pure religion.

The brethren were wonderfully encouraged with the work last year and are looking forward with faith, prayer, and holy enthusiasm for the campaign for the coming summer. The money for new tents has not come in as we had hoped, and while we are having dozens of calls for tent meetings next year, and many applications for tents, we are not going to be able to furnish the large number we had expected unless we receive liberal donations for this great work. We are profoundly grateful for what has come, and some donations are coming in every day, and we are hoping that many friends yet will give a helping hand for the tent campaign next summer. It was our hope to have ordered twenty-one new tents; we have received sufficient money to purchase about eleven tents. Our hearts were gladdened yesterday on the receipt of a check from a desire in the hearts of many people for the salvation of souls. Some thousands of us are longing to bring lost sinners to our blessed Saviour. Traveling on the train we look out the windows at the villages and towns through which we pass, and think of the spiritual desolation in many places, of the lost multitudes, of the untold thousands of prodigals in the far country who are so busy with the hogs of greed and lust and sin, and what they call pleasure, that they have not yet realized the starvation of their own souls. They have not awakened to the fact that they are perishing with hunger, and that there is bread, and to spare, in the Father's house. We want to awaken them. May the compassionate God so fill us with the love of Christ, and so baptize us with the Holy Ghost, that we shall be able in these tent meetings to reach multitudes of our lost fellowbeings on their way to eternal night, and bring them to repentance and to the blessed Christ. Help us. Pray for us.

Of course, there will be criticism, accusation, and hindrances in plenty; all of this is well understood, but there is a divine call within us, a holy urge upon us, and while life lasts, we must press the work with all possible zeal to rescue the perishing.

A closing word to the members of The Evangelical Methodist League: If we have a gracious revival; if God uses the tent workers for his glory in winning souls; if we have a widespread and abiding work of grace among the people, it must be in answer to prayer. The revival must be born in our own hearts while we tarry upon our knees. There must be a divine and holy fire burning in those of us who contribute to purchase the tents, and those who go out to preach and witness in the tents. We and these evangelists must be filled with that love of God which is imparted to his people by the Holy Ghost. We must have within us a great pity for sinners, an unselfish love for them, and a zeal to seek them and give them the blessed gospel. We must be wonderfully saved from any selfish motive, and on fire with a holy passion for the salvation of sinners through the redemption provided in Jesus by the power of the Holy Spirit.

Faithfully your brother in Christ,
H. C. MORRISON.

The Passing of a Great Man.

WE have just received the sad news of the death of Rev. W. G. Nixon, D.D., pastor of Ninde Methodist Episcopal Church, Detroit, Michigan.

For some time, we have felt deep concern for Dr. Nixon's health. He was an overworked man. He had the care of a large and growing church and put himself into the work body, mind and soul, both as pastor and preacher. There were few men in Methodism more beloved and honored by a congregation than was Dr. Nixon. In addition to this, he was a great camp meeting man. He was President of the Eaton Rapids Camp and also closely connected with the Romeo Camp. Beside the care and burden of conducting these encampments, he traveled far in the summertime to preach at other camp meetings. He worked beyond the power of the human. He was eaten up with zeal for the glory of his Master and the salvation of his fellowbeings.

Dr. Nixon was a man of very commanding appearance; fully six feet tall, broad shouldered, a fine head and a face full of intelligence, strength, kindness; and any one who knew the Lord Jesus, looking at him, would at once recognize him as a Christian. He carried the seal and stamp of a disciple of Jesus Christ in his pure, glowing countenance. There was a peculiar blending of fearless courage and genuine kindness in Brother Nixon. He was loyal to the Word of God, to Jesus Christ and to the church. He never hesitated to protest against the things that he thought were hurtful to the Kingdom of Christ. He stood boldly for that pure New Testament Gospel which is the power of God unto salvation.

His physique, his intelligence, his courage, his wisdom and the Spirit of God resting upon him made him a recognized leader of men. Devout souls rallied about him for instruction and command. The people who knew him had confidence in him. He will be greatly missed. It will be no easy matter to find some one to take his place. He fully believed in the Wesleyan interpretation of the Bible doctrine of Holiness. He preached this full redemption in Christ with courage in the spirit of compassion and love. Many years ago, he entered into the gracious experience of entire sanctification. He witnessed to the power of the cleansing blood of Jesus and lived a life beautifully harmonizing with his testimony.

While we lament his departure, we submit to the wisdom of our gracious God who doeth all things well. There is no question but he is now with his Lord. What a company has gathered over there! Those men who stood through trying times, fearless and earnest contenders for the faith as believed and taught by the founders and fathers of Methodism! No doubt, our beloved Brother Nixon is now in sweet fellowship with a host that have gone before him: Brother George Kunz, Dr. C. J. Fowler, Brother Dodge and George Matthews of Georgia, Dr. Reinhardt, Dr. Pepper and a countless host who, in the past fifty years, plunged into the fountain of cleansing, lived and witnessed for their Lord, died in triumph and have gone up to join that vast throng of the saints of all ages.

Later on, we will be able to publish something with reference to Dr. Nixon's life and labors. We have learned that he held his prayer meeting, went home, complained of weakness, and in a few hours fell on sleep to awake amidst the glories of the home of redeemed souls. May the blessing of God rest upon his family. Those of us who knew him will treasure him in our memory and gird ourselves to press forward until we too shall join the happy host on the eternal shores.

down into his bed of rest, the darkness was beginning to creep over the land, and a little boy who had heard talked in the homes of the Israelites about this night and about the blood upon the lintel and the door posts of the house, approached his father and said, 'Father, is the blood on the lintel and door posts of our house?' And the father said, 'Yes, I ordered it put there.' 'But,' he said, 'Father, have you seen that it was put there? Father, this is a terrible night. We dare not go outside ourselves to look. Are you sure that the blood is upon the lintel and the door posts of our house?' And the father said, 'I will go and see.' And the father went out to see, and lo! the blood was not on the lintel nor on the door posts of the house, and hence he made haste to get it and put it there."

Reader, are you sure that the blood of Jesus of which this speaks is on the lintel and door posts of your heart? Have you fixed it there? Have you by your faith accepted the bloodshed of Jesus as your protection, as your salvation, as your redemption from bondage to light, to life? Are you sure, or are you just waiting and drifting and hoping that it is so. For, listen! The destroying angel never died that night. He did his best, he did his most terrible work, he literally filled the land with dead, but he did not die himself. The destroying angel, clad in black, with bony fingers like unto ice, is still in the land, and he is doing his best at all times, and but for the mercy of God he would succeed in grappling with the heart chords of your life, and he will get them some day. Are you sure that the blood of Christ is there as your hope?

The coming of Jesus Christ as he came is the fulfillment of the Christian's hope. Back yonder in the Old Testament they had hope beyond the grave, but it was a mingled hope, mingled with doubt because the light was very dim. They had the hope, but they were not able, as we are able as we look through the teachings of the New Testament of Jesus Christ and his apostles, to assert themselves in knowledge as we are now. But as we come thus now to look back at the coming of Jesus, and at his own resurrection and his teaching with regard to the future life, and all the teachings of the apostles following him, we are able to put our hands upon our hearts in Christ Jesus and say, "We know." We know that there is beyond this life another life, and to us as Christians there is heaven, and in that heaven there is everything that the heart can desire, that the mind could fix on to make it happy; there are loved ones, our friends that have gone on before us in his name.

It was because of this hope that the Apostle Paul in that wonderful fifteenth chapter of I Corinthians that we read so often around the casket of those who have passed on in hope, wrote that wonderful challenge. Oh, think of it, the daringness of it, and yet not at all daring because true in his own personal experience as he had seen it in others: "Oh, death, where is thy sting? Oh, grave, where is thy victory?" I can imagine that he is standing bending over a corpse, or one who is soon to be a corpse, and he utters the challenge as he looks into the face of a dying saint. Then he answers his own questions: "The sting of death is sin, and the strength of sin is the law; but thanks unto God"—and then we can hear the shout—"which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ."

Steps Toward Heaven.

The years which come and go so fast
Leave me a sign which shows they've passed—

A snow-white wreath upon my brow
Which crowns my head with beauty now.
I count the years as steps towards Heaven
Because my sins have been forgiven;
And climb with joy, year after year,
God's heavenward steps without a fear;
And when at last I reach the top,
On that high step I will not stop,
But on with Jesus, rapturous thought,
I'll enter heaven, my soul blood-bought!

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS

Dear Aunt Bettie: This is my first letter to The Herald. I hope I can write again. Who is my twin? I was born March 21. I live in the beautiful country of Maryland on a dairy farm. We have about sixteen cows. We sell our milk to another man that sells it in Delmar. Have any of you ever heard Mr. Slater and Mr. Finch preach? If you haven't you ought to. They tell some of the most touching stories you ever heard. They are foreign missionaries from Africa.

Ruth Hampshire.
Rt. 3, Salisbury, Md.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a little Kentucky girl join your happy band of Boys and Girls? I am seven years old. I have light hair, blue eyes and fair complexion. I went to school most every day last year and some this year. I am in the second grade. I would like to see my letter in print. Who has my birthday, May 11? I hope Mr. W. B. is out walking. I have two sisters and one brother. Mama and papa and two sisters belong to the M. E. Church. I hope to some day. With love to Aunt Bettie and all the cousins.

Tanbark, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: My mother has been taking The Herald for three years. I am eleven years old. I am in the fifth grade at school. I sometimes hope to be a Christian worker. I have gray eyes and dark brown hair. I go to the Presbyterian Church. There are four different churches in this town. This is my first letter to The Herald. I have one whole brother and one half sister and three half brothers. I guess I will close my letter for the first time.

Julia Ross.
Pleasanton, Kan.

Dear Aunt Bettie: About a year ago I wrote a letter for my son to your valuable paper, stating his helpless condition and invited as many as cared to, to write him words of comfort and cheer. The response was fine, letters came from far and near bringing sympathy and comfort and the promise of prayer in his behalf. We have not the words to express our appreciation and thanks to our unseen friends. Was only able to answer a few of the beautiful letters, but take this method to thank one and all, and pray God's blessing upon each one who visited him through the written message. He who said, "Inasmuch" shall give you a reward.

Son's condition is no better, he lies perfectly helpless in one position all twisted and drawn with rheumatism. His eyes of brown are now sightless, but thanks to God his mind is clear and he memorizes so easily. Recently he gave a recital to friends. They gave him a silver offering and he in turn gave it, his all, to the Methodist Church, of which we are members. His father being an old local preacher, he would be pleased to hear again from the readers of The Herald. We wish all a Happy New Year.

Address, Delbert Stith.
Hardin, Mo.

Dear Aunt Bettie: May I join your happy band of boys and girls? Mother and father take The Herald and I enjoy reading page ten very much. My age is between ten and eighteen. To anyone who guesses my age, I will gladly write. I belong to the M. E. Church. I am a follower of Christ. I have no desire to turn back to the world, but to go on and at last gain a home in heaven. I think I have taken up enough time, but I love to write to The Herald. This is my first letter to The Herald. I hope Mr. W. B. is at home for his dinner when this arrives.

Hazel L. Laughlin.
93 Linden St., Ludlow, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Please permit me to write again. This is my third letter to The Herald but Mr. W. B. got the second one and I thought I would write again. How are you and all of the cousins getting along? I am just fine and going to school every day. I go to school to my sister Lavettao, and I like to go to school. I am a member of the Methodist Church. I live on a farm and like farm life fine. I am fourteen years old, five feet tall and weigh 94 pounds. I enjoy reading the letters you write very much. I am sure the others do too. How many of you cousins take The Sparkling Water paper? I do. My brother sends it to me and I sure do enjoy reading it. All of you should take it. It is only 40c a year, and is published weekly from God's Bible School and Revivalist, Ringgold, Young and Channing streets, Cincinnati, Ohio. Well as my letter is getting long will close.

I am thirteen years of age, have brown hair, brown eyes, light complexion, and am four feet, eleven inches tall. My father takes The Herald and I do love to read page ten. When I start reading it I cannot stop until I read every letter. It is a wonderful page. I have been intending to write to page ten a long time, but I finally got to it. Thank God I am with you boys and girls who are Christians and hope to be with you as long as Christians stand. Girls and boys, God will help you if you will ask him to. I have asked him. He has helped me. He will help you through your darkness, trouble and sorrow. Thank God this is a wonderful world to live in. God calls lots of our friends, relatives and loved ones home. But still we must trust and pray that, when the Roll is called up yonder I shall be there. I have four brothers, one sister, and mother and father. They all are living, thank God. Well, I will close hoping to see this letter in print for this is my first one. If any boy or girl wishes to write me, do. Aunt Bettie, we cousins would love to hear from you.

The Pilgrim Band.

In a lost and lonely land
Women and men gathered a little band,

To cross the wide, wide sea
So they could worship God, you see.
They sailed across the deep blue sea;
For which they could worship God, you see.

And a lost and lonely band
Wandered in a forest land.
In 1620 did they sail on a good
Mayflower's gliding snail,
They thought and wandered about this land;

And wished to make a pilgrim band;
With them to make a glory land,
And worship God on foreign sand.
When they landed on a cold and bleak shore

They made their refugees one hundred and more,
And in a log cabin did they sleep
To retire and rest their weary feet.
And in the first winter nearly all of them died;

And Priscilla was to be John Alden's bride,

When the ceremony was being held,
Miles Standish came ringing the bells.
Miles Standish the brave captain of Plymouth,

On landing the 21st of December;
Made some Lieutenants
And every one a royal member.

The Indians were hostile and began to attack;!

The Pilgrim's were brave and drove them back.

They came with sledges, hammers and axes,

And they shot them down at their backs.

Dear Aunt Bettie: We do not take The Herald, but my grandfather does. My grandfather is a retired Methodist preacher. I love to read the letters of the boys and girls. I am eight years old and in the third grade at school. I go to Sunday school in St. Paul M. E. Church, South. I have a little brother five years old. We have a little dog named Judy. We have lots of fun with her. I hope I will see this printed in The Herald. I will now say good-by to Aunt Bettie and her happy band of boys and girls.

I like him fine. I live on a farm about nine miles from town and sure enjoy farm life. There isn't much to describe about me, but here goes: I have light, straight hair, blue eyes and fair complexion, weigh 75 pounds, am about four feet and five inches tall. My father and mother are both alive. As this is my first attempt at writing I would like to see it in print. Cousins, I would like for you all to write me. I have three sisters and four brothers. One of my sisters is married and one of my brothers. As I am running blank of things to write I will close. Would love to hear from all who care to write. Will close. Good-by cousins.

Elizabeth Delashmitt.

Dear Aunt Bettie: As it has been sometime since I wrote to your page I will attempt to write a few words. How are you and all the cousins? Please may I have a seat by Evelyn Tipton? Many thanks. What are all the cousins doing? I am going to school whenever I am able to go. I have missed thirteen days this year on account of sickness and a sprained ankle. I am not in school today, but I long to be there with the other students. We sure do have some jolly times in school. The school is on a hill and it is so nice and pleasant to go to school, and such a nice playground. The trees are shedding their beautiful golden brown leaves. The flowers are all gone except a few hardy ones and house flowers. Cousins, please don't learn to dance as it is a bad habit, as anything else. I heard a girl talking to another girl about dancing. The girl had been to a dance. So she asked her if she ever expected getting to heaven on the road she had started. She said, "Yes." But cousins, I don't think she will, do you? Rev. C. F. Chestnut, if you see this letter please write to me. I have written you several letters, but never do get any answers, so write and tell me where you are preaching and how you are getting along. Well, cousins, please write to me and send a picture to go in my album. I have written to several of the cousins who wanted the cousins to write, and I never received any letters in return. so please stick to your promise and answer. With love to Aunt Bettie and all the cousins.

FALLEN ASLEEP

KENNA.

Among the quiet forces contributing to the far-flung influences of the modern holiness revival, but few, if any, have been productive of more intensive and extensive righteousness than the modest and earnest services of the Reverend John M. Kenna whose death occurred at (near) Daingerfield, Texas, on Dec. 17, 1926, in the 72nd year of his age.

Brother Kenna's church membership dated from young manhood; but, according to his oft-repeated testimony, the fullness of joyful salvation and the era of spiritual fruitfulness began with an experience received in the summer of 1894. His natural endowments, disowned by himself but recognized and appreciated by his associates, were allowed to remain dormant preceding his discovery of the possibilities of a life fully surrendered to the Source of power. From that time his assiduous fidelity to Christian service and the marvelous results emanating therefrom occasioned widespread attention and appreciative comment.

Brother Kenna's personal activities were confined to his native section in south Mississippi and in east Texas, but many led by him into the experience of saving grace and encouraged by him to enter the ministry and other vocations of Christian service are proclaiming and supporting a victorious gospel in widely separated fields of labor—some filling pulpits of prominence and influence.

The eloquent parting message from the silent lips to the living would be, Be a true soldier, whatever the cost.

THOMPSON.

Matilda Artelia Thompson, nee Burchard, was born near Loveville, Perry Co., Tenn., Jan. 16, 1860. She departed this life in her home near Bell's Chapel, Oct. 4, 1926, aged 76 years, 8 months and 19 days. She professed faith in Christ in early life and joined the Cumberland Presbyterian Church. On Dec. 25, 1901, she was married to T. J. Thompson and afterwards joined the Methodist Church with her husband.

On August 3, 1913, she with her husband, joined the Nazarene Church at Zion, where she remained a faithful member and lived a consistent Christian life until death. She loved her church and attended the services as often as health permitted.

She was one of the pioneer members of the holiness camp ground at Vincent Springs, and a reader of The Pentecostal Herald for nearly 28 years.

Aunt T. was a devoted wife and a patient, loving step-mother, always looking on the bright side of life and making others happy about her.

Her husband preceded her to the grave, June 29, 1924, after which she made her home with her brother, T. C. McCage. She is survived by two brothers, one sister and eight step-children. The children feel like they have given up one of the truest, best, step-mothers that ever lived.

We miss her, but rejoice to know her warfare is over and to have the assurance of her promotion from the lowlands of earth for the highlands of heaven where all is peace and rest.

The funeral service was conducted by Rev. Willie Zaricor, and after the beautiful floral offering was given and some of her favorite hymns were sung, her body was laid to rest by the side of her husband in the Bell's Chapel cemetery.

REID.

George W. Reid was born in New York City, July 28, 1843, and went to his reward October 13, 1926, from his late home in Nyack, N. Y., at the age of 83 years. He was married in 1874 to Miss Margaret A. Hovell. God gave them two children, a son Charles Frederick, who became a Free Methodist preacher, and died in the early part of his ministry, and a daughter Mrs. Ada Schauss, of Richmond Hill, N. Y. He is survived by his wife, daughter and six grandchildren. Bro. Reid was converted when a young man and joined the Hanson Place Methodist Episcopal Church, of Brooklyn, N. Y. About thirty years ago he became interested in the doctrine of Bible Holiness and received the blessing of entire sanctification under the ministry of Rev. Charles BeVier and Rev. William H. Hoople. About two years later he joined what was then the Association of Pentecostal Churches of America, and has remained with us through the different stages of the organization of our church. At the time of his translation he was a much beloved member of Utica Avenue Church of the Nazarene, of Brooklyn N. Y. He was a man of sturdy Christian character, and of strong religious convictions. He will be much missed in the religious world. He was associated in the clothing business for fifty years, and was much respected for his integrity—he lived his religion in his business life. He was among the first of the traveling men to join the Gideons, and was an active member of this association of Christian men at the time of his death. It was the writer's privilege to be the pastor of this good man for nearly five years, and during this time we have always found him a happy consistent Christian, putting his life and influence into the cause of righteousness. He was a man of great faith and consecrated life. We laid him to rest in the family lot to await the resurrection of the just.

WALKER.

Mrs. Wiley Walker fell asleep in Jesus Nov. 8. She was nearly 83 years of age; is survived by her husband, Wiley W. Walker, near the 91st milestone, four children, Jos. T. Edwards, of Bushnell, Fla., J. E. Walker, of Dallas, Tex., Mrs. A. E. Burnett, of Honolulu, T. H. and the writer, Mrs. J. D. Tucker, Arvin, California. Three children, two girls and one son, are in heaven and welcomed her to her home. She was a faithful Christian from early girlhood, known and loved by many in Texas, Missouri and California. She and father were married nearly 63 years. We mourn not as those who have no hope. There will be a glorious resurrection and reunion by and by.

Yours in his name,

Mrs. J. D. Tucker.

GRIGGS.

George H. Griggs was born in Mercer Co., Pa., Nov. 25, 1846, and died in Topeka, Kan., Nov. 4, 1926. He came to Kansas first in 1869 and lived in Salina about three years. Returning to Pennsylvania, he was married to Sarah Jane Perrine, Nov. 25, 1875. In Feb. 1876, they came to Topeka and made their first home in the old stone house near 20th Street, on Kansas Ave., which was then a farm house with only two or three small houses south of 17th street. Washburn College was away out in the country with only one building—Rice Hall.

Surviving Mr. Griggs are his widow and four children: Mrs. Harvey E. Philips, of Cairo, Egypt; George B. Griggs, Chicago, Ill.; Mrs. L. G. Thorpe, Topeka, Kan., and Mrs. Elizabeth Griggs Dadisman, of Petaluma, Calif., who for many years lived in China. There are six grandchildren, Helen, Margaret and Wilbur Thorpe; Harriet Jane Philips, Virgin Dadisman, and Geo. H. Griggs III. There survive also two brothers, P. R. Griggs, of Franklin, Pa., and P. W. Griggs, of Topeka, besides several nephews and nieces.

Mr. Griggs was a public spirited man, interested in and a student of Civic, State and National affairs. He was a public school teacher in Shawnee county for several years and attended the first County Normal Institute held in Topeka, in 1876.

He was appointed Street Commissioner for Topeka in 1902, and following that served as paving and sidewalk inspector. His last work at the time of his death was also acting in this capacity.

Mr. Griggs was a great Bible student and in earlier years was instrumental in organizing and superintending several Sunday schools in Shawnee county. He was the first Superintendent of the Methodist S. S. which grew out of the Union S. S. held in the old Van Buren schoolhouse in 1887. From this developed the Walnut Grove Church, now Trinity M. E. Church. Mrs. L. E. Thorpe and Mrs. Griggs were teachers in this Sunday school and several of the children

A HARD-FOUGHT BATTLE.

We closed a hard-fought but victorious battle at Wichita, Kan., North Side Church. This church has had a hard time, there being eleven members; ten of these are of one family, and another good sister making eleven. It seemed like defeat but God was on the throne. We had a real revival. The last week the house was about filled and we found thirty had prayed through and four joined the church.

We crossed the country to Pennsylvania, our native state, and held a very good meeting for our Pittsburgh Church. This is one of the older churches on that district. They have a fine church building and parsonage, Rev. R. J. Keifer being their pastor. This was a good meeting; the people say it was as good as any ever held there. We found a number had found God either as their Savior or Sanctifier. The famous Bethany Male Quartett of Canton, Ohio, gave us some wonderful messages in song. And the Colored Quartett of the Christian and Missionary Alliance sang to the delight of the church. We are now in a meeting for our Nazarene church at Dana, Ind. God met with us here the first night and has been giving us victory every night. Pray for us that God will keep us busy, humble, true, and on fire for him. Anyone desiring to correspond with us may do so at 2923 Troost Ave., Kansas City, Mo.

Yours for Christ and souls,
Lewis J. and Edythe Rice, Evangelists.

E. W. Swann: "We just closed a very successful union revival between the two Methodist churches of Sardis, Ky., with Rev. E. P. Swann, pastor of the M. E. Church, and Rev. J. R. Kendall, pastor of M. E. Church, South. Rev. B. C. Gamble, of Newport, Ky., did the preaching, with Rev. M. V. Lewis, of Wilmore, Ky., as choir leader. A goodly number of souls were definitely blessed, while the entire community was stirred by these men of God."

REPORT.

Since reporting last we have held two meetings. The first one was at Bethel Chapel, out from Edmunds, N. Dak. Rev. J. W. Youngblood and his good wife are the pastors, and they are very faithful and sacrificing people. They are in a hard field and are trying to bring the Gospel to the people there. We were informed that this church at one time was a strong holiness and revival center, but in recent years it has lost out. Some of the older members went to heaven, some moved away, others turned the light down, and the result is that the work is weak and struggling. "There were not many mighty works done" here, save a few children who bowed at the altar, and the remaining few saints were refreshed.

Our next meeting was at Buffalo Lake, Minn. Rev. Wm. H. Dietzman is the faithful pastor here. This is a young Nazarene congregation, and is gradually coming to the front. We had a good meeting and the blessing of the Lord was upon all the services. Quite a number prayed through and a nice class of twelve united with the Church. There are some very fine people in this church and they are constantly gaining ground and bid fair to become a strong congregation. The pastor, Rev. Dietzman, is an intelligent young man and stands for the highest Christian ideals. He has the respect of the people at Buffalo Lake and the Lord is blessing his work.

We are now at home for the holidays. Our next meeting is at Mohall, N. Dak., with Rev. Tittmore, pastor of the Nazarene Church. Pray for us.

Julius Miller,
Evangelist.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

REV. O. G. MINGLEDORFF, D.D.

Lesson III.—January 16, 1927.

Subject.—The Christian's Use of the Bible. Deut. 6:4-9; 2 Tim. 3:14-17.

Golden Text.—Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path.

Time.—About B. C. 1450 and A. D. 63.

Places.—Moses was near Mt. Nebo when he spoke; St. Paul wrote from his prison in the city of Rome.

Introduction.—There has been no little controversy during recent years as to whether the Bible is the Word of God, or simply contains the Word of God; the former being the position taken by the ultra-Fundamentalists, and the latter taken by the Modernists. The Fundamentalists claim that the Holy Spirit dictated every word of the book; but that claim is too big, for no one can prove it true. If that were the case what would we do about those passages that have various readings in the different versions? Our translations into the tongues of earth would lose their authority, for they exhibit many shades of meaning. To claim more than one can prove is rather a dangerous process of reasoning. The purpose of the extreme Modernist is to get rid of inspiration altogether. He says an inspired book is impossible, but that Bible writers were inspired just as Milton was inspired when writing Paradise Lost. Again his claim is too big, rendering it impossible for him to explain prophecies and many other things in the Book.

Suppose we take this position: The Bible is an inspired book in the sense that it is the work of inspired writers who enjoyed plenary inspiration; that is, they were so directed by the Holy Spirit as to be able to tell men what God wished them to know; but they were permitted to use their own words (they could use no others), and to write—each one—in his own peculiar style. There is a very marked difference between Paul's diction and that of St. John, for instance. Taken in this sense, the Bible is the Word of God, and does not simply contain the Word of God. Word means far more than what we ordinarily mean when we spell w-o-r-d. It means God's message to men. In John 1:1 it means the person and office work of the only begotten Son of the Father. It is tremendously important that we weigh words in our study.

America has many pressing needs just at this time; but I am persuaded that the greatest of all is a profound study of the Bible. A civilization built upon any foundation other than the Word of God can be only weak and heathen in character. And the study must be reverent and with faith in the Book and in the God of the Book. Modernism cannot produce a civilization worth while, because it has no faith in the Book, and as a matter of course, can have none in the God of the Book. Men are tired of hearing what some learned Dr. So-and-So thinks about who wrote, or did not write, the Pentateuch. They are hungry for the Bread of Life. We must teach and preach Jesus Christ and him crucified—the eternal Word of the Father.

I do not mean to say that the Modernist believes in no God. No, no; he is not an atheist, but an infidel so far as the Bible is concerned. He has a home-made god; for taking what he feels to be the needs of his own heart and life, and what he conceives to be the needs of his fellowmen, he projects these needs into the objective and calls the aggregate God. In other words, every man must manufacture his own God. Heathenism has tried something of that sort with very direful results. Can modernism do any better? It may look a whit better on the outside, being gilded by the by-products of Christianity, but at heart there can be little difference. The Private Church-Member and His Bible.

Here I am dealing with a delicate matter; for the majority of church-members are not Christians. Some of them were once converted, but are now backslidden; while many others have never been converted at all. I doubt not that most of them mean well; and they hold to their membership with a tenacious grip. All of us, converted and unconverted, need such a study of the Word as will help us heavenward. There is little benefit in reading a bit of the Bible every day just to ease conscience; and there is very little more to be had from reading so many chapters consecutively, in order to be able to say that one has read the Bible clear through. Brother, get down to a careful, prayerful study of the great fundamental teachings of the Bible concerning yourself and God and your personal salvation from sin. I believe that St. John wrote the fourth Gospel; but that is a small matter compared with my having a clear, unmistakable consciousness of the fact that I am born of the Holy Ghost. Get something out of your study of the Word that will save your soul. Make it a daily business, and study for salvation.

The Sunday School Teacher and His Bible.

I am presuming that the teacher is soundly converted to the very core of his being, for he has no business before a class if he is not. Now, Brother Teacher, saturate your own being with the Word of God. Dry wells furnish no water to thirsty men.—You must have before you can give to others. What a farce to see a teacher come before a class and simply ask the few questions laid down in the quarterly, and then sit down and "throw and catch foolishness" with his class during the rest of the lesson period. Teacher, your business before that class is to bring its unsaved members to Christ, and to establish the saved ones in our most holy faith. If you will not do your best to accomplish this, you are a humbug, and some better soul needs your place. Have a conscience before God, for you are going to have to answer. Mind you, you cannot save yourself by resigning. If you can get ready and do that work, God will hold you responsible to the last letter.

The Preacher and His Bible.

My dear brethren, I trust some of you will read this paragraph. I write, not as one who has come back from death, but as one who, in some sense, has seen his own casket and looked into his own grave. Most of our preaching will not stand the test of death and the final day of judgment. We have no time now to review books and preach on popular topics. Men are dying in sin, and we are judgment bound. For Jesus Christ's sake let us save them. Fill up on the Word, and tell men about God, the coming eternity, the atoning blood of the cross, repentance, pardon, regeneration, adoption, the witness of the Spirit, "holiness without which no man shall see the Lord." O! Preach Christ and him crucified, as it is told us in the blessed Book of God. Men are hungry for the real meat of the Word; and they will hear, if our souls are on fire. But we must fill up ourselves before we can feed others.

Comments on the Lesson.

4. The LORD our God is one LORD.—Moses wrote: "Jehovah our God is one Jehovah." The Israelites had lived in the midst of Egyptian idolatry so long that their belief in monotheism must have been shattered; otherwise we would not find Moses working so hard to re-establish it. Polytheism is unthinkable to an intelligent man. Unitarianism is absurd. Nothing meets the logic of the case, or gives a satisfactory interpretation of Scripture, but a trinity of persons in the one Godhead.

5. Thou shalt love the LORD thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might.—Verily God changeth not. When Jesus said: "Be ye therefore perfect even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect," he was not setting up a new standard; he was simply confirming that which was from the beginning. He quoted this Mosaic law of perfect love to the man who desired to know which was the greatest commandment. Perfect love is Holiness.

Three things are enjoined in the three next verses: The Israelites must lay up these commandments in his own heart, he must teach them diligently unto his children, and he must wear them as a sign on his hands and between his eyes. How careful was Jehovah that his people should know the law. As this lesson concerns the Christian and his Bible, permit me to say that our obligation is no less than was that of the ancient Jew. Our children are being woefully neglected. Most of them know almost nothing about the Word of God.

9. Write them upon the posts of thine house, and on thy gates.—A few homes have Scripture verses, as mottoes, hanging upon the walls. This is good, and, in a measure, carries out the purpose of the commandment.

Three things in that part of the lesson taken from 2 Timothy demand special attention: (1) And Timothy's knowledge of Scripture would be worthless, unless he lived up to what he had been taught; (2) When Paul speaks of the "holy Scriptures" he is referring to the Old Testament, there being no New Testament at that time—some of the books had been written, but were not recognized as a part of the Word of God, which would help some of us, if we could only remember it; (3) All Scripture is inspired, or God-breathed. Of course, he meant the Old Testament; but now that we are sure that the New Testament is a part of the Word of God, we must receive it too as no less inspired. Some doubters would have us believe that the passage should be translated: "All Scripture that is inspired"; but the Greek means no such thing. King James' version tells us exactly what St. Paul wrote to Timothy.

GOOD MEETING.

Our meeting at the Methodist Episcopal Church in Louisville, Ill., closed Nov. 30th. It was a good meeting, some thought it was the best meeting held at this church in years. There was a goodly number of conversions and accessions. Rev. M. V. Lewis gave splendid assistance in song and exhortation. The pastor of the church never had a better helper.

Brother Lewis has a striking personality. He is a wonderful singer and a good general of difficult situations. He is tactful and knows how to co-operate with the plans of the pastor and the local church.

Owen Wright, pastor.

EVANGELISTIC AND PERSONAL.

Rev. E. C. Tarvin, California, Ky., recently held a good meeting in Mackey, Ind., with Rev. C. R. Pattison. Many were blessed. He went from there to Wurtland, Ky., where God owned his work in the salvation of souls.

Rev. F. D. Swanson is holding meetings in Kansas and will be glad to hear from Herald readers desiring assistance in revival work. He will be at Lenexa, Kan., Jan. 2-16.

Rev. P. P. Belew: "Just returned home from an eight-days' evangelistic tour. The first eight days were spent with the Church of the Nazarene at Valparaiso, Ind. A meeting had been running for two or three weeks with the pastor, Rev. Guy C. Williams, doing the preaching and Rev. Mertie Hooker singing. The writer was called for the last Sunday and requested to continue the meeting till Thursday night, which was done with good results. There were fifteen at the altar on Sunday morning and seekers every night till the close. The other three days were spent with the church of which Sister Hooker is the pastor at Ladoga, Ind. God gave us a great time with seekers every night and a veritable deluge of power and victory on Sunday morning. We are to begin the New Year's work in Michigan. Remember to pray for me."

THE INSPIRATIONAL LIBRARY.

This little library of nine pamphlets is indeed inspirational. It tells of what God has wrought in the lives of those who have been wholly surrendered to his will, and in the telling brings a blessing to the reader.

Everyone has read of Alvin C. York, said to be the greatest soldier of the World War. "Alvin York," by Dr. G. W. Ridout, gives the personal testimony of this man of God who captured 132 Germans at the point of a gun. It tells of the amazing offers that the movies offered York to commercialize his feat, and how he refused, because he believed that it is far better to serve God and remain poor than to sell out to the Devil and get rich. Do you want something thrilling? Read these pages yourself and you will find a blessing hidden therein.

Mrs. Eva M. Watson has told in a simple story form some of the remarkable answers to prayer that were experienced by a dear old Irish woman in Toronto, Canada. "Holy Ann" is full of thrilling incidents of the realm of prayer and faith.

For real comfort, for depth of spiritual blessing, and for a faith tonic that strikes to the very center of the soul, "The Nightingale of the Psalms," by Jarrette C. Aycock cannot be surpassed. This message on the wonderful Shepherd Psalm sings like a nightingale to the Christian as he reads it. Over twenty-five thousand of these little books have been sold. It is worth the price of this whole set of books. If you want a rich blessing on your soul, if you want a deeper love for God to possess your heart, if you want new visions of faith, get this sermon and read it. You will read it more than once and every time it will be a means of spiritual strength.

A remarkable story of how God can work through the weakest vessels is that of "Samuel Morris." This tells of a poor black African savage who found God, and who worked his passage all the way to New York to hear of the Holy Spirit. He was a power in prayer, a man of simple undeniable faith, and was full of the Holy Ghost. If you want to teach your church something about missions, Brother Pastor, get several copies of this pamphlet and distribute among your members. It will open their eyes.

"Power," by Dr. C. F. Wimberly, is a treatise on the subject of Holy Ghost power. The author shows that the power of the Holy Spirit coming on men is their right in this life, that it accords with all the laws of power in the material world, that it is the supreme law of power and that it is the supreme need of the Christian heart.

Do you want to see the old war horse of evangelism marching along the battle front? Then read J. B. Culpepper's book on "The White Stone; or The Overcomers." It is a sermon on that subject and gives several different uses and customs in which the stone has played a prominent part. It is full of illustrations from every-day life. There is some good material in this for the preacher. It is full of suggestive ideas. Read it.

A. J. Jarrell, in "The Key to the Storehouse" shows that faith in God is the key to all triumph in the Christian life. It is worthy of your consideration.

James M. Taylor in his pamphlet on "How to Reach the Masses" gives some helpful suggestions to the preacher or Christian worker who wants to be a real soul-winner.

Nearly ninety thousand copies of "My Hospital Experience," by Robinson, have been sold. That means that thousands of people have been blessed by reading of the marvelous way in which God took care of his anointed one in one of the supreme crisis in his life. You will appreciate your loving Father more if you will read this little book.

The Pentecostal Publishing Company has grouped these valuable pamphlets together and is selling the set for $1.00. What a wonderful help they would be to some shut-in, or some person who does not get to church often. They would be fine to give to some person who is sick to read while convalescing. Get them; read them and then pass them on to someone else. They will prove a blessing.

CLEVELAND, OHIO.

I have just closed a splendid meeting at the St. Clair Mission in Cleveland. The blessed Holy Spirit was mightily present every night, blessing the word and convicting hearts.

We had some at the altar every night but one. It ran on evenly till the end of the second week, then it broke in such a wonderful way that we decided to go on with the meeting. God did bless our decision and we closed Wednesday of the 3rd week with a full altar; could suitably have held on till Sunday night only we felt worn, and in view of other calls, felt we must rest up to be ready for them. Mission much encouraged and everything is looking up; about the only direction any of us dare look these days. Praise God from whom all blessings flow.

Edna M. Banning, Evangelist.

Do You Appreciate the 23rd Psalm?

Do you derive from it the full inspiration, promise and assurance with which it abounds? Does it give you the wonderful consolation and peace of mind that it is intended to give? If not, you should read "The Nightingale of the Psalms" by Rev. J. E. Aycock. A masterpiece of interpretation of this most beautiful of scriptural masterpieces. Get a copy and read it, study it. It will do your heart good and you will wish other copies for your relatives and friends. A delightful remembrance for Christmas. Published in attractive book form, in red envelope. DAYTON, OHIO.

October 24 to November 7 was a time of gracious revival in the First Church of the Nazarene, Dayton, O. Rev. W. R. Cain and Rev. and Mrs. A. H. Johnston were the evangelists. Those who know them will be assured that we had preaching and singing of the highest class. We wish to add our testimony to the quality of their ministry. Every message was in the Spirit and owned of the Lord to the blessing of the saints and producing conviction on the unsaved and unsanctified. There were over one hundred seekers counting the repeaters, about sixty-five different ones, most of whom prayed through to the salvation they sought. The church was well filled at nearly all the services though the first week it rained about every day, the first Sunday was a steady downpour, but the people came in spite of the rain. The last Sunday the church and Sunday school rooms were filled.

This was Rev. Cain's tenth meeting in the city of Dayton, seventh in the Church of the Nazarene, and the Johnston's have been here several times also. The people seemed to appreciate them more than ever.

W. R. Gilley, Pastor.

GOOD MEETING IN KANSAS.

It has been quite awhile since I have reported to The Herald, nevertheless, my time has not been idly spent. We have been in several good meetings since the last report; at Leoti, Kan., where 75 were saved; Pleasant Valley, with a splendid showing; Beulah Community, and Selkirk, Kan., all in Wichita county, with the result of 146 seekers, and other visible results.

Held a meeting at Hanston, Kan., and God gave us victory, but a hard storm came along and the meeting had to close. Just closed a very good meeting at Bethel, Kan., for the Methodist Church; and while there were no large numbers at the altar, yet we feel that much good was done. We met some of the finest people in the state at this meeting, and our stay there was a real feast. The pastor, Rev. V. O. Horney, and his good wife, are real Christian workers, and both labored hard to make the meeting a success. Bro. Horney is doing a fine work and will make great strides the coming year. We are now in a meeting at Albert, Kan., for the M. E. Church, with Rev. Stanley Welch, pastor. God is blessing, the interest is growing, and we are looking forward to a real sweep of old-time victory.

We go from here to Hodgeman, Kan., where we expect to take the community for God and Bible holiness. Wish to extend my best wishes to all my dear friends for a prosperous New Year.

Evangelist and Mrs. Harry A. Boone.

"AMAZING GRACE"

By Dr. Ridout.

This book, one of Dr. Ridout's best, is now in its second edition. It will make a splendid book for the holidays. Thomas Harrison, famous as the "Boy Preacher," and one of the mightiest evangelists in his day, said of Dr. Ridout's book, "Amazing Grace": "I read Amazing Grace in the Congressional Library, Washington, D. C., and of all the books I have ever read no book covers the ground so thoroughly. To me, it is one of the best books, the most interesting I have ever read. I think it will have quite a sale."

THE UNFAILING WORD OF GOD.

By The Editor.

HEAVEN and earth shall pass away, but my word shall not pass away."—Jesus.

"Let the love of Christ dwell in you richly."

"Why call ye me Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I say?"

"Whoso keepeth his word in him verily is the love of God perfected."

* * * *

"For the word of God is quick and powerful, and sharper than any two-edged sword, piercing even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, and of the joints and marrow, and is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart."

* * * *

"The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul: the testimony of the Lord is sure, making wise the simple, the statutes of the Lord are right, rejoicing the heart: the commandment of the Lord is pure, enlightening the eyes."

* * * *

Aside from the fact that the Bible is an inspired Book, revealing the laws of God for the just, equal and happy regulation of society, and the Gospel plans for the saving of a lost race, it is also the most interesting Book in all the world's literature. Its records are the most ancient; its histories the most accurate; its incidents the most thrilling to be found anywhere on the printed page. Where will one find such startling stories of war, such peaceful pastoral tales, such heart-warming romances of love as are found related in the sacred pages of the Bible? Its poetry is pitched on the highest plane, its proverbs contain the richest wisdom, its prophecies reveal the future and its promises give anchorage and hope to the soul. The whole of it leads one to bow at the feet of the Lord Jesus Christ, trust in him as a Saviour, and worship him as a God.

* * * *

Lord Bacon has truly said that "There never was found in any age of the world, either religion or law, that did so highly exalt the public good as the Bible." A wholesome truth was expressed by some one who declared "That the truths of the Bible have the power of awakening an intense moral feeling in man under every variety of character, learned or ignorant, civilized or savage; that they make bad men good, and send a pulse of healthful feeling through all the domestic, civil and social relations; that they teach men to live right, to hate wrong and to seek each other's welfare; that they control the baleful passions of the human heart, and thus make men proficient in the science of government; and, that they teach him to aspire after conformity to a Being of infinite holiness, and fill him with hopes infinitely more purifying, more exalted, more suited to his nature, than any other which this world has ever known."

We are glad to note that the Bible is now being more largely circulated than ever before. The Bible Societies are printing and distributing copies of the Holy Scriptures by millions. More Bibles are sold than any other one hundred books altogether. The output of the British and Foreign Bible Society is increasing from year to year by hundreds of thousands. It is said if you should pile in a single pyramid all of the Korans since Mohammed's day till now, with all the copies of the Scandinavian Zendavesta, the Buddhist Tripitakas, and the Chinese Five Kings and add to the pile the hundred other most famous books the world has ever known, including the best sellers of all ages, the pyramid contrasted with the millions of copies of the Bible would be as an ant heap to Mount Everest. Thank God, his Word is going forth in spite of all the efforts of men and devils to destroy and prevent its getting to the people with its message, and the people from believing that it is divinely inspired and absolutely trustworthy, a revelation from God bringing to us a saving knowledge of his law, his will, his love and the redeeming power of his Son, our blessed Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ.

May We Expect Continued World Peace?

IN thinking about the future of the world, let's divorce ourselves from the false notion that our community is the center of the globe, or that the United States is the world. Let's try to grasp the entire human race in our thought as we contemplate the future with its problems and development. We should ever be mindful of the fact that civilization moves with a slow and lagging tread, that now and again it seems to pause and occasionally to go backward. From our point of view wars have frequently marked an epoch in the history of mankind, and set up a milepost along the highway of progress. The powers of evil have been broken, bondage has been swept away, the liberties of men have been secured, larger democracy has come into the world.

At the same time we had as well face the fact that war is not going to regenerate human nature. Men will continue to be conceived in iniquity and born in sin. There still remains in the human heart that strange and awful something which the inspired book calls carnality. China is still a pagan nation and will make its slow and cumbersome tread up the difficult pathway of progress. Japan still has her veneer of civilization with an idolatrous and ambitious heart beating underneath. Italy remains to a large degree under the blight of a dead and corrupting ecclesiasticism. The millions of France worship plaster paris images and pray to a woman who can neither hear nor answer prayer. The Balkan states are in a fearful condition of disruption, poverty, and half blind sullen hatred. Austria and Hungary glare at each other while they count their beads and make crosses upon their heads with holy water. Germany is Germany since the war is over. Perhaps the most prolific and healthy people in the world. Every year will see a vast army of stalwart children born in Germany, the whole nation will hum with industry, economy and thrift will assert itself and low prices will attract trade, men cannot stay mad always and gradually Germany will again find her way with her products into the marts and markets of the world. She is and will remain one of the most powerful nations on earth. Vast Africa with her unknown millions of naked bodies, ignorant minds, and lost souls. And Russia—how long will it take Russia to adjust herself to a new order of things, to glut her greedy appetite and false notions of freedom, to settle into tranquil and virtuous peace? This is perhaps a question which the most optimistic prognosticator of future events would not like to undertake to answer.

My patient reader, we had as well gird ourselves for a great moral battle, and most tremendous and comprehensive missionary program in all history. We have many of the same old problems and not a few new and stubborn ones on our hands since wading through the blood of the World War. The world can only be won to righteousness by the preached gospel, and the power of the cross. We shall be disappointed if we conclude that the world war, or any blessing to the race can be ushered in by means of the world war, or fulfill the mission which can be accomplished only by the gospel. Let us gird ourselves as Christians for the greatest task that ever offered itself for performance to human beings. Let us gather in the upper rooms of prayer and receive again those baptisms of the Holy Ghost which shall endue us with power from on high, to go forth to preach Jesus and him crucified. Let us cry to God to raise up a multitude of consecrated, sanctified, Spirit-filled young people to go forth into the great harvest field of lost humanity which will not and cannot find redemption until it finds it at the foot of the cross. Let us not permit ourselves to be drawn away from the stubborn and awful facts of sin, the depravity and wickedness of mankind, the atonement made upon the cross of Calvary and the blessed gospel that can bring peace and purity.

If Africa is ever brought up out of the tangled jungle of darkness and despair her pathway must be lighted by the torch of the gospel. If Russia ever sits down in peace, virtue and contentment under her own vine and fig tree, it must be accomplished through the power of the cross of Christ.

A PAGE FOR PREACHERS AND OTHERS.

Rev. G. W. Ridout, D.D., Corresponding Editor.

I have been reading, recently, some old books combining history and biography of preachers of long ago, and of the old school. It was inspiring reading and very suggestive. Of some of the great preachers of long ago it might be said in the words of Longfellow:

"Were a star quenched on high,
For ages would its light,
Still traveling downward from the sky,
Shine on our mortal sight.

"So when a great man dies,
For years beyond our ken,
The light he leaves behind him lies
Upon the paths of man."

"There is a psychology of the saints which is unintelligible apart from adequate knowledge of the faith that has kindled and ennobled their souls," said Dr. Ottley, of England. One thing I have noticed in the preachers of the old school who wrought wonders in the pulpit and in the church and kingdom, they experienced a powerful work of grace in their conversion to God.

Let me cite a few expressions by some of them when "going through," or when under conviction for sin and finally getting the witness of the acceptance with God.

One of those preachers describes his conversion thus: "My guilt and condemnation and fear were gone; and all was light and peace and joy. O the wonders of that blessed hour I shall never forget! It appeared to me that it was such amazing condescension and goodness that God in Christ Jesus could reach my case and enable such a poor sinner as I was to understand his redeeming grace and pardoning love. Such was the illumination of my soul that all appeared to be light around me."

Another tells of his conversion thus: "Divine light flashed all around me, unspeakable joy sprang up in my soul. I rose to my feet, opened my eyes and it really seemed as if I was in heaven; the trees, the leaves on them, and everything seemed, and I really thought, were praising God."

Of another it was said: "Conviction became so pungent that he cried aloud for mercy. For twenty-seven days he continued to agonize in prayer, but found no relief. . . . On September 19, he was enabled by faith to cast himself wholly on the merits of Jesus and realize redemption through the most precious blood."

Another testified thus of his conversion: "The impression took hold upon me that I was doomed to be lost, and no longer able to weep I retired to the woods to mourn over my dreadful condition. I looked up and the silent heaven seemed to frown upon me; I looked down and the earth beneath had a voice to condemn; the trees, the grass, and every object of nature stood forth as witnesses against me. . . . I returned to the encampment. A preacher was inviting mourners to the altar. I did not wait—I ran. I fell prostrate on my face and cried, 'Lord, if it be possible to save a wretch like me, O, save me for the sake of Jesus.' In a moment I apprehended the fullness of the atonement. I saw how God could be just and yet the Justifier of them that believe in Jesus, and claiming an interest in the sinner's Friend instantly, I felt the renewing power of the Holy Ghost. My burden was removed, my guilt absolved, my sorrow turned into joy, and my lamentation into praise."

2. Another thing we note was their devotion to Evangelical truth and doctrine, and their dependence upon the Holy Spirit. Among the old-time soul winners of Methodism none was more mighty than Rev. James

There is no safety, efficiency, or satisfaction in anything less than being filled with the Spirit of God. The command to be filled with the Spirit is as imperative as that to abstain from being drunk with wine.

The coming of the Spirit of Power will not make all apostles nor all evangelists. It will not secure for all the same manifest results, but it will fill each to the full limit of his powers; it will quicken, sanctify and strengthen every faculty to the utmost of its capacity, and it will make everyone efficient and effective in the work to which he is called in the will of God.

Every revival creates a new hymn-book. When the soul is stirred it needs no hireling to send forth its praise.

With God, all man ought to be he can be. With God, all man ought to do he can do.

—Chadwick.

In his memorable series of lectures at Yale Divinity School, Silvester Horne, that dynamic practical-mystic of modern England, said, "The one thing needful to make us prophets is an experience akin to that of Zechariah—the soul's awakening. Some angel of the Lord, some messenger from His Presence, some ministry of His hands must wake us out of our sleep. Of this I am very sure—no preacher will thrill and move his generation who has not himself known this kindling of the soul."

"SIT DOWN!"

So some one said to William Taylor when he first testified to full salvation. But it was a good thing that Taylor did not sit down. He kept on his feet and he traveled the whole round world for souls for His Master. India, Africa, Australia, South America, America all felt the touch of his Spirit-baptized soul. He refused to sit down!

Caughey, of Troy Conference, who became widely known throughout Canada, U. S. A., and England for his evangelism. He had been reading Dr. Adam Clarke on the need of the Holy Spirit for the Ministry, and said:

"I shall have eternal cause of thankfulness that the above sentiments ever came under my notice. If my ministry has been rendered a blessing to many, that blessing has been vouchsafed through the merits of Christ, to a steady recognition of the necessity of the influence of the Holy Spirit. On the evening of that never-to-be-forgotten day in which I read the above, I took up my pen in secret, before God, and gave vent to the emotions of my deeply-impressed heart, in language something like the following: I see, I feel now as I have never done before upon this particular subject. From the convictions of this hour, I hope, by the grace of God, never to vary. I see, I feel,—

"1st. The absolute necessity of the immediate influence of the Holy Ghost to impart point, power, efficacy, and success to a preached gospel.

"2nd. The absolute necessity of praying more frequently, more fervently, more perseveringly, and more believingly, for the aid of the Holy Spirit in my ministry.

"3rd. That my labors must be powerless, and comfortless, and valueless, without this aid; a cloud without water, a tree without fruit, dead and rootless; a sound, uncertain, unctious, and meaningless; such will be the character of my ministry. It is the Spirit of God alone which imparts significance and power to the word preached, without which, as one has expressed it, 'all the threatenings of the Bible will be no more than thunder to the death, or lightning to the blind. A seal requires weight, a hand upon it, in order to make an impression. The soul of the penitent sinner is the wax; gospel truth is the seal; but, without the Almighty hand of God, the Holy Ghost, that seal is powerless. A bullet demands its powder, without which it is as harmless as any other body. The careless sinner is the mark; truth is the ball that must pierce him; but it cannot reach, much less penetrate, him, separate from this influence from heaven. The apostolic times, they preached the gospel with the Holy Ghost sent down from heaven. In our day we need an energy from no lower source, to overturn the wickedness of the vile and the profane, and to counteract the formality and worldliness which are everywhere visible.

"4th. I am now fully persuaded, that in proportion as the Spirit of God shall condescend to second my efforts in the gospel message, I shall be successful; nor need I expect any success beyond. No man has ever been signally useful in winning souls to Christ without the help of the Spirit. With it, the humblest talent may astonish earth and hell, by gathering into the path of life thousands for the skies; while without it, the finest, the most splendid talents remain comparatively useless.

"5th. The entire glory of all my success shall henceforth be given to the Holy Spirit. By this I shall conscientiously abide, as by any other principle of our holy religion. It is written: 'They that honor me, I will honor.' To this may be added, that righteous, inalienable, and unchanging determination of Jehovah: 'My glory I will not give to another.'

Of a certain other great soul winner it was said: "His greatness was the regular development of mind and heart in harmonious proportion, under the light of revealed truth. He was educated in the school of Jesus; religious books were his delight, and his familiarity with those giant thinkers—Wesley, Watson, Fletcher, etc., showed itself in his modes of thought and life. His mind was enriched with holy acquaintance with divine truth; his heart was the home of faith and love. . . . he preached, in all its distinctiveness, Methodist theology with all its rich privileges, joys and hopes."

3. A further note about these men of old, they enjoyed the rich emotion of revealed religion but this emotion was bred at the cross and not at the altars of wild fire and fanaticism. This emotion we see reflected in some of the revival songs of these days. We give a sample or two:

"Precious soul, while Jesus calls thee,

Rise and follow his command;

Rise and leave your sin and folly,

Fly to Christ the sinner's friend.

Hear his heralds loudly sounding,

Free salvation in his name,

Pardoning grace and love abounding,

Through the merits of the Lamb."

One of those itinerant preachers, being tired and hungry from his long journey, knocked at a home and asked that he might stay over night. The lady objected saying she would not have such cattle around her home. As he warmed himself by the cozy fire he thought about spending the night in the cheerless woods, but he turned his thoughts toward God and heaven and began to sing:

"Peace, troubled soul, thou needst not fear,

Thy great Provider still is near;

Who fed thee last, will feed thee still,

Be calm and sink into his will."

He sang on:

"The Lord who built the earth and sky,

In mercy stoops to hear thy cry;

His promise all may freely claim;

Ask and receive in Jesus' Name."

As he sang his soul caught fire, his feelings became elevated and his song melted the family to tears; and the lady relented, sent his horse to the stable and gave him all the comforts of home for the night.

5. Their power in preaching very often was truly remarkable. The story of Samuel Parker, who came from New Jersey to Kentucky about 1800, is very thrilling. He had an eloquence and power in the pulpit that were irresistible, and wherever he went, wondering and weeping audiences crowded to hear him; his fame as a pulpit orator was state-wide. The following story is told by Redford: On one occasion a very pious German brother came to hear Parker preach. The old brother took his seat and listened to the slow and measured words of the preacher as he proceeded to advance his proposition. Not being able to discover anything extraordinary, either in the matter or manner of the preacher, the honest old German would drop his head, giving it a significant shake and say to himself, 'Dis bees not Parker; dis be not him surely.' After a while as the preacher warmed up to his theme and occasionally flashed out a bright and beautiful thought the Dutchman would say, 'Maybe dis is Parker.' The preacher at length got fairly under way; his soul was on fire and impassioned strains of eloquence fell like full bursts of glory from the upper sanctuary upon the rapt audience. The old German rose to his feet and was moving unconsciously forward charmed with the eloquence of the preacher. He was lost to all surrounding objects and lost to himself; for so intently was his attention fixed that he dropped his hat. When the preacher closed, the old man was at the altar, as near as he could get to the pulpit, and, drawing a long breath, he turned round, exclaiming in a loud voice, "Mine Gott, vot an outcome dis Parker got."

4. A further element of power about those preachers was their sacrifice and endurance for the Christ and his Gospel.

Elisha W. Bowman was a pioneer down in the swamps of Louisiana; he wrote a description of his journeys in which he said: "It is now the 29th of January. Every day I travel, I have to swim through creeks or swamps and I am wet from my head to my feet, and some days from morning till night, I am dripping with water. . . . Let me tell you how it is with my soul, 'While my body is wet with water and chilled with cold, my soul is filled with heavenly fire, and longs to be with Christ. I feel my soul all alive to God and filled with love to all the human family.'"

"They climbed the steep ascent to Heaven Through peril, toil, and pain, O God! to us may grace be given To follow in their train."

CHAPTER II.

BARBARA HECK.

METHODISM is the greatest Protestant body in America. When we survey vast possessions of churches everywhere, and other great institutions, we are prone to forget her insignificant beginning. John Wesley, an unconverted churchman, had established a work in Savannah, Ga.; but it proved a failure. It was not until thirty years later, that this religious movement took root in the new world.

As one pushes along through the congested sections of lower Manhattan, among towering skyscrapers and a seething throng, there is an unpretentious church building, almost smothered from view, on what is now John Street, New York City, where American Methodism had its birth.

During the reign of Louis XIV there lived in Palestine, along the lower Rhine, German Lutherans. By order of the powerful henchman of the pope, the thousands of families in this section were driven from their homes, and their town and villages laid in ashes. About one hundred families settled in Limerick county, Ireland; the rest were exiled to America. Among the settlers in Ireland, were two families, Embry and Heck.

Soon after they settled in Limerick, John Wesley visited and preached to them. Philip Embry and wife, and his cousin, Barbara Heck and husband, were also among the converts to Wesleyanism. The sturdy German stock was genuinely transformed in the new life. In the year 1760, the Hecks and Embrys emigrated to New York, with several other palatinate families. In this strange new city they were cut off from all religious privileges, and many of them soon lapsed into sinful dissipation, such as drinking and card playing.

Barbara Heck and her cousin's family remained true to their faith. It is said that Philip, a local preacher under Mr. Wesley, tried to hold some kind of religious service when he first came to New York, but being a timid man was soon forced to give it up. One night Barbara Heck learned that a large company of her people were congregated in a house near by engaged in card playing and drinking. She entered the house without knocking, seized the cards, and threw them into the fire, without saying a word. Then she delivered a scathing rebuke to the dumb-founded participants.

Barbara then hastened to the home of her cousin, Philip Embry, and delivered a message to him, with pent-up righteous indignation. "Philip, you must preach to us," she declared, "or we shall all go to hell and God will require our blood at your hands." "Preach!" exclaimed Philip. "How can I preach; I have neither house nor congregation." "Preach," shouted the noble woman, "in your own house, and to your own company."

Before leaving, she prevailed on him to undertake the task again. In a few days the first Methodist sermon was preached in America. There were five souls present, one of whom was the negro servant, and it was preached by Philip Embry in his own house. This humble place soon became too small, and a loft was secured, much larger, and in this place Embry preached every Sunday morning and evening, and after some weeks, on Thursday nights. In the year 1767, the humble worshippers were forced to find even larger quarters, and a room sixty by eighteen feet in size was rented. However, before this little plant had assumed the proportions of a congregation, the leaders suffered much at the hands of rowdies and unbelievers. The infidels scoffed at the fanaticism as they thought, was so evident. Barbara Heck, above all others, was the inspiration of the movement.

The "Rigging Loft"—the name by which the meeting place was known—became a salvation center for the growing city, and its walls resounded with the shouts and praises of the new-born converts. It was an early conviction among them, that if the work was to abide, a building was a necessity; they had to have a church house. In 1768 a site was secured by option, and later purchased, on what is now John Street. This property was purchased later. The task of building a church tested their faith, but Barbara says that, while praying about it "an unexpressible sweetness and power came upon her, and the Lord seemed to say: 'I, the Lord, will do it.' A subscription list with over two hundred names on it is still preserved in the archives of the Old John Street church. The list was headed by Captain Webb, an officer of the Royal Army, who gave a contribution of $150.

There was a law at this time which forbid dissenters of any kind to erect houses of worship. In order to evade this unreasonable ruling of the Established Church, a chimney was built, so as to bear the marks of a residence. It was named "Wesley Chapel." The chapel was built of stone and faced with blue plaster, and was sixty feet long, by forty-two feet wide. Just two years from the time Philip Embry preached the first sermon in his own hired house to five people, he preached the dedication sermon in the new church.

The movement was greatly helped by the generosity of Capt. Webb who, being an army officer, carried much prestige and, besides this, was a mighty preacher. Under his ministry the multitudes were saved. The pulpit of John Street church was occupied by Philip Embry until the missionaries of Mr. Wesley arrived; he then went to the interior of New York and died in the early days of the Revolution. Captain Webb planted Methodism in Philadelphia, where he was often heard by members of the Continental Congress, and was greatly admired for his zeal and eloquence.

The stream of Methodism has deepened and widened with the passing years; but we are not tracing these streams, or their confluence. The purpose of this sketch is to pay tribute and give honor to the humble German woman who dared to be true to her experience and faith. To her fidelity and zeal, the founding of the great Methodist Church owes more than to any other individual. The fire that burned in her soul touched the dry fagots of sin and formalism, and there sprang up a mighty conflagration of righteousness.

When it became known that the Colonists were engaged in war with the Mother Country, Paul and Barbara Heck, accompanied by the widow of Philip Embry, left New York and crossed the line into Canada, as they were perhaps not in sympathy with the American Revolution. They landed on the banks of the St. Lawrence River, and land was granted them by the Canadian Government. The change of location did not alter their zeal for the cause so dear to them; an old newspaper article says of them: "They pitched their tents beneath the spreading trees, and set up an altar of worship. They labored incessantly, erecting comfortable homes in the wilderness. The settlement was the nucleus of civilization; it became an important center of religious activity. Here was organized the oldest Canadian Methodist society, and here was held the first camp meeting." It seems that the great camp meeting movement which swept the frontier life of the United States was unknown then; but to Barbara Heck and her co-workers, we are indebted for this unique religious movement—out in the open spaces of the great primeval forests.

Barbara Heck's place in American Methodism has been overlooked; but the facts remain that it was her courage and devout heroism that planted the little germ in the virgin soil of two nations. She has been called the "Mother of American Methodism," and it is an honor that is due her memory. The two great sister churches of this country and Canada united and placed above her sleeping dust a granite shaft of appreciation.

Barbara Heck enjoyed and testified to the Wesleyan Depositum of Entire Sanctification, and died in the full enjoyments of an experience, so often tested to the limit, and never found wanting.

OUR MONTHLY SERMON.

The Carnal Mind and Its Treatment

W. A. REVIS.

Text: For to be carnally minded is death; but to be spiritually minded is life and peace. Romans 8:6.

WE intend to consider this subject, taking our main source material from the word of God, the only book which teaches with authority or in any sense adequately the theme. For clearness' sake we present it under three heads:

- I. What is the nature of the Carnal Mind?
- II. Where is the Carnal Mind?
- III. How to deal with the Carnal Mind.

I. What is the nature of the carnal mind? In the verse of Scripture preceding our text we read: "The carnal mind is enmity against God; for it is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be." This statement is so plain as to need no comment. The carnal mind is of a nature antagonistic to God, and an outlaw. In Galatians 5:17, we read concerning the flesh and the Spirit. Now "fleshly" and "carnal" have practically the same meaning and are used in the English language in a similar sense. A carnivorous animal is a flesh-devouring animal. With out going further into the derivation of the words, having shown a connection, we quote: "the flesh lusteth against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh: and these are contrary one to the other." Thus we have a repetition of the same truth, that the fleshly or carnal mind is antagonistic to the Spirit of God.

The nature of a tree may be known by its fruits, and so the nature of the fleshly mind may be known by its manifestations. In Galatians, fifth chapter, we learn that the works of the flesh are: "Adultery, fornication, uncleanness, lasciviousness, idolatry, witchcraft, hatred, variance, emulations, wrath, strife, seditions, heresies, envyings, murders, drunkenness, revellings and such like." Again, we trace the workings of the same contrary principle in Paul's first epistle to the Corinthians, in which he writes a chapter on the subject of divisions among them, another chapter on fornication, and still another on the subject of litigation.

If we take the front page of the average morning newspaper, and catalog the sins which are the news of the world for the day, you will have a more or less complete list of the works of the flesh as given by St. Paul to the Galatians. We would be pleased to stop here, but alas, we have to admit what might appear in the world's news items which show traces of the works of the flesh attributed to the church life of the day. Even the church papers have abundant evidences of these works of the flesh, such as, for instance, divisions and heresies. This last we do not commonly trace to a work of carnality, but St. Paul seems to do that very thing. Thus the Bible and the Press give abundant evidence of the workings of a principle, whose very nature is enmity to God, and not subject to his law, namely, the carnal mind.

II. Where is the carnal mind? The apostle James asks this question: "From whence comes wars and fightings among you? come they not hence, even of your lusts that war in your members?" David traces its source when, repenting of a great crime, he cries out in anguish for his individual and racial sin: "I was shapen in iniquity; and in sin did my mother conceive me. Behold, thou desirest truth in the inward parts, and in the hidden part thou shalt make me to know wisdom." Paul also laments: "O wretched man that I am! who shall deliver me from the body of this death." But we have a clear and definite answer to our question, from the lips of the greatest Teacher, who spake as never man spake. In St. Mark's gospel, 7th chapter and 21st verse, he tells us: "For from within, out of the heart of men, proceed evil thoughts, adulteries, fornications, murders, thefts, covetousness, wickedness, deceit, lasciviousness, an evil eye, blasphemy, foolishness: All these things come from within."

As long as our findings as to the carnal mind are applied to the natural man, to men of the world, to those opposed or indifferent to religion, we shall find almost universal agreement. It is agreed that such men have in them a principle which manifests itself in outbreaching sins. The scriptures very clearly state that "they which do such things shall not inherit the kingdom of God." Again St. John states: "He that committeth sin is of the devil. . . . For this purpose the Son of God was manifested, that he might destroy the works of the devil." We find a case of outbreaching sin in the Corinthian church, and Paul's method of dealing with it is to "put away from yourselves that wicked person." He also tells them: "Ye judge them that are within. But them that are without God judgeth." This is as much as to say that the Church had nothing to do with outbreaching sinners but to put them out and let God deal with them; but there were cases of judgment for those within the church, and to those the Corinthians should attend.

DO YOU KNOW

That several Sunday school classes take The Pentecostal Herald for use in teaching and studying the lessons? One teacher ordered 25 for her class, another ordered 30.

That this is a very practical thing, because it not only gives them the Sunday school lesson for each Sabbath, but also a wealth of material for illustration and application in their studies?

That we can send the papers to you at the rate of twenty-five cents per subscription a quarter, or one dollar per subscription a year if ordered in a group of ten or more to be sent to one address?

Send us your order for the first quarter and give this a trial, you will be more than pleased.

The Scriptures teach by direct statement of the fact as well as by internal evidence that the carnal mind was in the church, among believers, and there caused much trouble. In listing the sins of the flesh and in writing to the Corinthians, with one exception, there is nothing which would necessarily imply that they were committing these sins. There is, however, abundance to show that there was a war going on, and that the struggle hindered the church and themselves from doing the things they ought to do, but which they were not free to do because of the internal battle. You will also notice, in reading these scriptures that Paul addresses the Corinthians as "brethren." In his first epistle, third chapter, first verse, he calls them "babes in Christ" yet "carnal." From this it is clearly established that there is a residue of carnality in the hearts of believers, brethren in the church of Christ.

The various churches, taking the truth from the Scriptures have so taught, and formulated their doctrines accordingly. We quote below from a sermon on "Sin in believers" by John Wesley: "But can Christ be in the same heart where sin is? Undoubtedly he can. Otherwise it could never be saved therefrom. Where the sickness is, there is the physician:

'Carrying on his work within Striving till he cast out sin.'

"Christ cannot reign where sin reigns; neither will he dwell where any sin is allowed. But he is and dwells in the heart of every believer, who is fighting against all sin; although it be not yet purified according to the purification of the sanctuary." Again, we quote from the same source: "the opposite doctrine, that there is no sin in believers, is quite new in the church of Christ; that it was never heard of for seventeen hundred years; never till it was discovered by Count Zinzendorf." And here is a further quotation from Wesley that will sound strange in modern ears: "But whatever doctrine is new must be wrong; for the old religion is the only true one; and no doctrine can be right, unless it be the very same 'which was from the beginning'." The fact is that Catholics, Calvinists, Presbyterians and Methodists unite in this doctrine that there is a residue of sin in believers, though each has a different theory as to how to deal with it.

For proof of the fact of sin in believers we need only point to conditions among the followers of Christ today. Christianity makes little impression among the nations of the earth today, because Christians do not live up to the holy principles inculcated by their Founder. The cause is carnality. Our own lives since we first saw the Lord and became believers in him convicts us of the same trouble. The writer once knew a young man, a Christian, who travelled much with considerable money at his command. At times of relaxation the lure of sinful pleasure became strong and troubled him. To settle the struggle, he conceived the idea of putting all his surplus funds in an envelope and mailing it to himself further on his itinerary. This was an ingenious method you will say, but it points to a warfare in which against his will, evil was present with him. We have written enough to locate the carnal mind in the heart of man, even a residue of it in the heart of the believer; and this is proved from Scripture, from the teachings of the Church, from observation, and from experience.

III. How shall we deal with the carnal mind in the believer? The carnal mind, wherever found, is enmity to God. Since God must reign, the carnal mind must be eliminated. It is an outlaw, and since it may not be left at large to work harm, it must be apprehended. The carnal mind is incorrigible, and since no remedial measures can have any effect, the full penalty of the law must be invoked. And it is appropriate that the mode of capital punishment prescribed in the scripture is the same as that meted out to our Lord, for which the carnal mind was responsible, namely, death by crucifixion. This is set forth in Romans sixth chapter, sixth verse. Here the aliases of the same culprit are the terms: "our old man," and "the body of sin." "Knowing this, that our old man is crucified with him, that the body of sin might be destroyed." The awful method of crucifixion is well known. No matter how long or short the time, the result is death. In our Lord's case the time was shortened; but when they came and with the point of a spear thrust his side, there was no answering quiver of the flesh, nor sigh from his lips. "He died unto sin once." "He that is dead is freed from sin."

The subject of the sixth chapter of Romans is as to a continuance in sin on the part of the believer. Two previous chapters are on the imputation of righteousness by faith, or the entrance into a Christian life; but the sixth tells how the Christian is to deal with sin, how the Christian's character is transformed from sin to holiness. The process of transformation is variously expressed. We are "baptized into his death," "buried with him by baptism unto death," "planted together in the likeness of his death." "Our old man is crucified with him, that the body of sin might be destroyed." This body of sin, this outlaw in us, which will not keep God's holy law, which will not allow us to do

THE MIGHT OF SACRIFICIAL LOVE.

Rev. E. Stanley Jones, D.D.

PART II.

HE followers of Christ from the very beginning have found a deep significance in the death of Christ. Whether that significance be a true deduction or not, it has been there from the very beginning. It is not something that after-centuries have read back into the account, and then read it out again. True or untrue, this has formed the warp and woof of Christian thinking from the very beginning. Six hundred years before he came, Isaiah the prophet, looking down the vistas of coming history, saw One who was led as a lamb to the slaughter, One who should make his soul an offering for sin—he should suffer in behalf of others. When the mother was informed of the coming birth of Christ she was told that a sword would pierce through her soul, for the Child was to dedicate himself to sacrifice. Jesus began his ministry and became immensely popular, so much so that they wanted to make him a king by force; but he told his disciples (to their amazement and disappointment and sorrow) that his crown was to be gained by suffering, that the cross was before him, that he was going to Jerusalem to give his life. He died and rose again, and immediately the thought spread from heart to heart that a deep, saving meaning was attached to his sufferings and death. Right or wrong, it is not an after-thought of later centuries.

What then is the real meaning of the death of Christ? A merely superficial glance shows it to be a remarkable death, a fitting climax to a remarkable life. He hung upon the cross in shame. How deep and bitter that shame and degradation we may gather from these words of Cicero: "Far be the very name of a cross, not only from the bodies of Roman citizens, but from their imaginations, eyes and ears." But he, innocent and stainless, was on a cross. Although blood was flowing from the mock-crown of thorns on his brow, from the back that had been lacerated by cruel Roman blows, from his palms where the flesh was tearing from the weight of his body, and from the pierced feet, yet he refused the deadening drug offered him on a sponge. He underwent the ordeal with brain unclouded and with nerves unsoothed. In their hatred and venom the crowd watched him suffer. "And they watched him there," is one of the cruelest verses in literature. Then they mocked him, and wagged their heads in scorn, crying, "He saved others, himself he cannot save." Strange as it may seem the mocking phrase of those hatred-crazed enemies became the central truth of Christianity. He was saving others and, therefore, himself he could not save. That is the deep truth of life. If one is to save others, himself he cannot save. It is an appalling mystery, yet an "everlasting fact that goodness in all moral natures has a doom of bleeding upon it, allowing it to conquer only as it bleeds. All goodness conquers by a cross." Those who save themselves cannot save others, and those who save others cannot save themselves.

This law of saving by sacrifice runs through life, from the very lowest to the very highest life. In any realm of life those who save others cannot save themselves trouble, sorrow, yes, sometimes even death. Take the lowest form of life—the seed. Supposing it to have a will, it might decide whether it should save itself or others. If the latter it would be placed in the ground to die—itself it does not save. But the result? A waving golden harvest has come. The seed saved the harvest, itself it could not save. Come up a little higher in life. The mother bird nestles her little ones under her wings. She has surrendered herself in her little ones, imprisoning herself in her nest that she may hatch her eggs and shelter her birdlings; the father bird becomes a forager and grows lean and weak to provide food for the family at home. A serpent makes his treacherous way up the tree. The mother bird careless of her danger, forgetful of everything except her young, lures the serpent away and throws herself into its open jaws and makes the supreme sacrifice. She saved her little family, herself she could not save. Take the human mother; she goes down to the valley of the shadow of death to bring a child into the world. She does not save herself pain and anguish; she is saving a child to the world. When that child becomes ill, forgetful of herself she spends her strength, her time and, if need be, her very life. She is saving another, herself she cannot save. Here is a country in danger. The young patriot, with all life before him, takes his one life into his hands and marches out and bares his bosom to the bayonets of the enemy; he falls a bloody sacrifice. He is saving his country, his home—he is saving others, himself he cannot save. Moreover in the realm of character "history is full of stirring evidence of the fact that the life of mankind can be raised to a higher intellectual and spiritual plane only through the sacrifice of the noble for the ignoble, the learned for the ignorant, the holy for the corrupt—life can only come from life. And the lower can be lifted to the plane of the higher only at the expense of the higher, as it stoops to lift the lower to its own level."

This spirit of sacrifice is the most beautiful thing in life. There is no nobler spirit that we know of than the spirit of self-sacrifice. In it life rises to its highest level. This is so true that we can determine the elevation or depression of a life in the scale of being by this important law: "The extent of the elevation of an animal, and of course any free moral agent, can be infallibly measured by the degree to which sacrificial love for others controls that being." Here then is a law by which life be judged. Where the sacrificial spirit is absent from life, that life is lowest in the scale of being; where it is partially developed, that life is higher; and where it is perfectly embodied that life is highest in the scale of being.

Where do we find the lowest life? Much of it is found in the sea. Everything is against everything else. Each fish lives upon other fish. The female spawns her eggs, and then when hatched often eats her own young. As we come up in the scale of being we find altruism, or thought for others, being born. When we reach man we find the lowest man—he be he savage or civilized, has the least sacrificial spirit within him—the lowest man is the most selfish man. The highest man is the one who thinks least of himself and most for others, or in other words, one who embodies the law of saving by sacrifice.

Now if this is a universal law—and it seems to be—then, reasoning from analogy, when we come to God, who must represent the highest stage of being, we would expect to find that he embodies and represents the sacrificial spirit most highly developed. If this law holds good for all life then God must embody and represent the sacrificial spirit greater, higher and more at the maximum than we could have imagined. If this be not true, then at the lowest form of life and at the highest form of life there is selfishness—at both ends of life there is selfishness, and in the middle—at the highest man,—there is the sacrificial spirit. If this infallible law holds true on up through the scale of being even when it gets to man, but reverses itself when it gets to God, then laws are meaningless and the universe is without a Head. But on the other hand if this law holds good from the very lowest to the very highest, as the sacrificial idea of the cross implies that it does, then the universe is a whole, laws are not enigmas, God is not a disappointment, and the universe has a sacrificial Head.

Otherwise the highest man would be better than God. He would embody the spirit which God lacks, and that spirit is the noblest of which we have any knowledge. In that case the highest man should obtain our interest and our worship.

A loving worm beneath its clod
Were diviner than a loveless God.

Bacon was right when he said that, "It is better to have no conception of God than an unworthy one." To think of God with the sacrificial spirit absent is an unworthy conception, for man would rise higher than his God. Fairbairn, a great thinker, aptly says, "Theology has no false idea than the impossibility of God, or the incapability of God to suffer. If he is incapable of sorrow he is incapable of suffering; and were he without the capacity for either, he would be without any feeling for the evil of sin or the misery of man." If God has love within his nature—and we cannot conceive him worthily unless we conceive him thus—he cannot be a disinterested spectator of the world's tragedy. As certainly as God is love, the burdens of love must fall upon him. For it is "the nature of love universally to insert itself into the miseries, and take upon its feelings the burdens of others." Such a God in love must be a Saviour in suffering.

We land in confusion when we try to conceive of God apart from suffering love. Bushnell calls our attention to the fact that when we say God is "displeased," we show that we conceive of God as capable of suffering, for is not displeasure a pain. When we say he "loathes" all impurity and evil, what is closer to pain than loathing? God "hates" evil,—is not hate a fire of suffering? He is "long-suffering,"—is there no suffering in long-suffering? He is a "patient God,"—is not patience regulated suffering?

So far from this self-sacrificial spirit being found more in man than God, Jesus taught us the very opposite. He announced to his disciples that he was going to the cross. They were amazed. Peter took him aside and earnestly said, "Be it far from thee, Lord. This shall never be." Jesus turned to him in pain and said, "Your outlook is not God's, but man's." (Mark 8:33, Moffatt). Peter's outlook on life was not sacrificial. He tried to stop Jesus from being sacrificial; hence Jesus said, "Your outlook and God's do not harmonize. You are thinking like an ordinary man. God's thought is sacrificial."

But this sacrificial spirit is in many men. Men do help others at cost to themselves. Again we ask, is man nobler and better than God? Browning asks this pertinent question and answers it, "Would I suffer for one I love? So wouldst Thou, so wilt Thou." Would I, as a father, would you as a father, suffer for a child you love? Then "O God, our Father, so wouldst Thou, so wilt Thou." Suppose, dear reader, that you are a father or mother and that you have in your home a child, say, a little girl. After she grows to the years of accountability should you see her in moral danger, or worse still, see her fallen into evil, would you be willing to do anything—everything, even at cost to yourself, to bring that child back from moral danger or moral fall? The fatherhood within us cries out that any true father would. But are we better than God? Would we suffer to save our children and he refuse to suffer to save his? It cannot be.

The record of her life says she died sitting in her chair, with her German Bible in her lap. It seems that her last act was reading from the blessed Word of God. Barbara Heck died August 17, 1804, seventy years of age. She was buried in the Blue Church Cemetery, near Prescott, Ontario. The monument was erected to her memory by the American and Canadian Methodists, in the year 1904, the centenary of her home-going. The inscription on the monument reads as follows:

"Barbara Heck put her brave soul against the rugged possibilities of the future; under God brought into existence American and Canadian Methodism, and between these her memory will ever form a most hallowed link. In memory of one who laid foundations others have built upon."

CHRISTMAS MORNING.

RAYMOND BROWNING.

THE house is still in an uproar because of what Santa Clause and kind friends sent in to my children. Wife is in the kitchen cooking a nice turkey made possible by a check from a dear thoughtful saint in South Carolina. In a little while the four foreign students who are left here on the Asbury College campus for the holidays will be down to enjoy the dinner with us, and while it is being prepared I want to send a message of love and goodwill to my friends everywhere through THE HERALD broadcasting station. If any of these friends did not get a Christmas card from me let them not be surprised for I didn't send any. This letter will be cheaper and more impartial and doubtless more like me than a pretty little card that somebody else composed. Last night Jim Green and his family were with us for supper and we had such a delightful time of fellowship together. After he had prayed with us and gone away it occurred to me that the sweetest and most profitable gifts ever bestowed are spiritual gifts. His prayer made me happier than any Christmas present I received and after this I am resolved to pray more often with the folk I visit.

My last meeting was in the Highland Avenue Friends Church of Columbus, Ohio. It was my first time to conduct a revival in the Friends Church, but from the very first service I felt perfectly at home. Holiness brings people into closer fellowship than any other experience obtainable in this life. The pastor, Edgar Elford, was a most congenial spirit and one of the greatest personal workers I have ever met. Nearly every service we would have a few saved or sanctified. It was so near Christmas that we did not have overflowing crowds but the meetings were steady, fruitful and satisfying. Rev. Charles Lee, a Korean, who is an Asbury graduate was with us often in the services and his wife came into the experience of full salvation early in the revival. Many of us are praying that the Lord may open the way for Brother Lee to return to Korea and engage in the work of preaching for which he has been so splendidly educated. This church has so many capable workers that it is not possible to mention them all in this letter. There is enough local talent to run a revival continuously and have a great variety of vocal and instrumental music. Brother and Sister Shank were with us during the last ten days of the services. They were supposed to be resting for awhile in their cosy little home but it's hard for them to rest when a revival is in the neighborhood. They are greatly loved in the community both for their splendid musical talent and their godly conversation.

In November I was for twenty-five days in the Methodist Church of Richardson Park, Wilmington, Del. The pastor, L. B. Morgan, was such a princely gentleman that I ventured to play on him the first practical joke I have risked for years. He drove up near my brother's house where I was being entertained and left his car standing while he went to call on a family. I got in the car and drove it into the garage. After awhile I saw the preacher come along with his head down as if in a deep study. He stopped of a sudden where he had left the car and passed his hand over his forehead as though he had forgotten something. About that time I stepped out on the porch and he saw me and his face lighted up. He may use that car for years but he never will enjoy it as much as he did in that moment when he found out it had not been stolen. His congregation is made up for the most part of men who are trying to pay for their homes out in this new section of the city. They have built the first unit of what promises to be one of the best churches in the city. The most of them were cordial and open-minded and willing to listen to full salvation and some came into the experience. A small number of the worldly were members of a civic club that was planning a dance during the revival and when I advised the sheep to keep away from the goats it threw part of the community into a spasm. They had a big public dance and some of the attendants went dressed as Puritans, others in ministerial garb, and one as a negro preacher. They had cakes and other favors made in the shape of goats. They called themselves goats and a few nights later when I was passing the drugstore near the church some of the young men and boys lined up and bleated like goats. Some wrote bitter sarcastic letters for the paper and signed them as "one of the goats." All this served to convince me that this day and age when the man who preaches all the truth will feel the fangs and the claws of sin. I believe however that all this furor that my remarks precipitated cemented the good people more closely together. Some of those who joined with the devil's crowd to mock the church were later ashamed of it. My brother, Guy Browning, and his wife entertained me delightfully in their home. Altogether it was a happy experience. One of the most pleasant features of the services was the presence of four or five splendid local preachers who would be an asset to any church.

Following this revival I had one of the greatest surprises of my life. I went up to preach on Monday morning to the Philadelphia Methodist Preachers' Meeting. Someone had told me that they were very critical and somehow I had the idea that they were chiefly Modernistic with the exception of Dr. Harold Paul Sloan and a few others. Just before I went into the Wesley Building I saw a venerable-looking Italian playing a large harp. In the upper pocket of his coat I noticed a well-worn copy of the New Testament so I engaged him in conversation and found that he was a devout Spirit-filled believer. He played several selections for me but the most beautiful was the song with the refrain "There's a deep settled peace in my soul." As his fingers passed lightly over the harp strings my spirit grew warm and I went in to Preachers' Meeting with a glad heart. The first thing that impressed me was the fine appearance of that body of men. There wasn't the suggestion of tobacco in the whole crowd. It seemed as though one might shut his eyes and pick a bishop out of that body without much trouble,—and a smokeless bishop at that. The subject announced for my sermon was "About Three Seconds" and I spoke for about an hour on the Second Birth (John 3:4), the Second Blessing (2 Cor. 1:15), and the Second Coming (Hebrews 9:28). Instead of being in a hostile atmosphere as I had expected I suddenly discovered that it was spiritual and sympathetic. In all my life I never had a more gracious reception and they gave me a rising vote of thanks for the message. With all our heralded reputation for orthodoxy I do not know of a group of Methodist preachers of similar size anywhere in the South who would have received a message of that nature as sympathetically. The Northern Methodists may be more modernistic as a whole than the Southern Methodists but they are certainly more tolerant about the preaching of holiness. Another thing I like about them is that they don't have smoke in the faces of a lot of us who are conscientiously opposed to the use of it.

That last remark reminds me of the revivals that I held in South Carolina recently. The pastor of the Methodist Church was courteous, amiable, cultured, and attractive; but he smoked cigarettes so constantly that the fingers on both hands were stained with nicotine. The situation was terribly embarrassing. He had invited me to preach to his people and I shrink from saying anything that is going to discredit a pastor in the eyes of his flock. It was necessary for me to preach my convictions and I did. He never took offense but the sad part was that he never gave up the habit. Let those of you who read this sad paragraph remember to pray for him. Maybe when his eye falls upon these lines the Spirit of the Lord will deeply convict him and lead him into that deeper and richer experience of full salvation where all such habits are impossible. Some of his people have crossed the Jordan ahead of the pastor and are grazing in the rich fields of Canaan. The shepherd ought to lead the sheep and not the sheep lead the shepherd as is sometimes the case. Occasionally I am asked what is my plan for the people who are sanctified and have to remain under an unsanctified preacher and in a cold church. Often I just recommend them to the grace of God and tell them to subscribe for THE HERALD. At this point suffer a word of exhortation. Nearly fourteen years ago a good woman of Bennettsville, South Carolina gave me a year's subscription to THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD. That was one of the outstanding blessings of my life. It brought me in contact with the great HERALD family and gave me an insight into the great holiness movement which to me was an undiscovered world at that time. If some good man who reads these lines would invest a hundred dollars and put THE HERALD into that many homes in his community I believe that he would lay the foundation of a revival that wouldn't die out until our Lord returns to the earth again.

By the time this letter appears the New Year will be begun. It ought to be a wonderful year for holiness evangelists. They have the doctrine that exposes sin, rebukes worldliness, produces conviction, recommends the blood, honors the Holy Spirit, and produces results. Some bright day a crowd of Methodists somewhere are going to get tired of this endless round of suppers, pageants, drives, and the like and they are going to say to the pastor, "We want a revival here in our church. We don't want simply a protracted meeting nor special services nor inspirational addresses. We want an old-fashioned revival meeting even if you have to invite a holiness preacher to do the work." Our opportunity will surely come and may be sooner than we are ready so let's keep in spiritual trim. During nearly twenty years of evangelistic work I have found that my opportunity was usually at hand before I was really ready. This leads me to believe that about the best way for an evangelist to have plenty of work is to tarry before the Lord.

REPORTS FROM SOUL WINNERS

SYCHAR SAYS SO.

Wm. R. Chase.

The injunction given by scripture, "Let the redeemed of the Lord say so," is heeded by souls which came to Sychar. Read some of the testimonies heard this year at the camp. Of the multiplied hundreds that were given during the ten days the following are samples.

Bro. J. M. Brafford: "I have heard people say that when they heard the old-time gospel that they had no more sense than to accept it. Let me say that to accept Jesus was by far the wisest thing ever I did. He sanctifies my soul and fills me with the precious Holy Ghost. I find all things in him. When Jesus sanctified my soul I lost the world and the world lost me. I am having a blessed time in him. In the words of the poet, 'He grows sweeter and sweeter to me.'"

Sister Mary Pangle: "Eight years ago this fall I was converted in my own home about ten o'clock at night. One week later in the Nazarene mission at Coshocton I was sanctified. I praise God. This is my ninth year at Sychar and I am looking for the best meeting Sychar ever has had."

Sister C. H. Patterson: "Praise God for the Comforter who abides. When I press the wounded palm as he leads me over slippery places thrills of glory flood my soul. I feel that I need greater power of discernment to know exactly what he wants me to say and to do, and more courage promptly to obey."

Brother Grooms: (90 years old who lives in Shadyside on the sunny side of life) "I told the people at home when I came up here it was to have the best time of my life and I am having it. I praise God I am on the road."

Rev. C. L. Lewis: (Sychar Press). "I bless God that I am one of them. This is my crowd; I am on the inside. I bless God."

Brother: "Last year right here I got victory over the old man. They did not have to ask me to the altar. I was there before the invitation was given."

Brother: "The Lord sanctified me from head to foot. He cured me of stammering. I don't know as much as these big preachers, but I know enough to tell lost sinners how to find their Saviour. I am going to stay in the battle. I make a lot of fuss at times, but I've something to make a fuss over."

Sister: "This is my first year at Sychar and I thank God for the help that I have received here."

Bro. Pappas, (Greek): "I have Jesus Christ in my soul as my Saviour and Sanctifier. The way grows brighter and sweeter and this morning, Jesus is very real to me."

Sister: "It was fourteen years ago that I was here and it seemed like heaven. Now I am glad to be mingling with my folks once more. I can report that all these fourteen years he has kept me."

Brother Hellyer: "This is my first year for full time at Sychar. I was converted in the Mt. Vernon Ave. M. E. Church, Columbus, ten years ago. Two years after I felt the call to preach. Two years later I felt the need of a clean heart and it was in Sunday school that Jesus gave me the blessing. I wouldn't give what I've got here this year for all the millions of John D."

Brother: "It was last night that the windows of heaven were opened and a blessing that I could not contain poured out."

Sister: "I hardly expected to be here this year, but every night when I retired I felt that if I did not wake in the morning I would take my breakfast in heaven. It is so good to be saved."

Brother: "I thank God that I am on the way to that city whose walls are of precious stones."

Sister: "It is the sweetest thing to know that he can cleanse and sanctify."

Sister: "I praise God that I am in the King's Highway."

Sister Evangeline: "Since I received Jesus I have the blues no more."

Rev. Hollowell: "I bless God that I have the victory over the world, the flesh, and the devil."

Sister: "We drove here in a Ford, and came to find sanctification. Thank God, I have found it."

Sister: "When I began to say when I was seeking him, 'He comes, he comes, he comes' how he did bless my soul. I just feel that I will do anything for him. I praise him for sanctification."

Mrs. W. C. Roberts: (Deaconess in Wesleyan M. C.). "I have often heard of Sychar through friends, but never was privileged to be here until now. The clean-cut gospel messages to which I have listened have inspired me to move forward in this great battle against sin and the devil. I have realized a development in grace under them. They have been rich food to my soul."

Sister Frances Scott: "I praise God for a salvation which we can know. I thank him that when I made the consecration and trusted him he did baptize me with the Holy Ghost. He sanctified my soul. The Comforter abides."

Sister Katherine J. Ogilvie: "I am praising God for the abiding presence of the Holy Ghost. His love is keeping me."

Sister E. H. Lewis: "I was a Christian fourteen years and eight years of that time I felt a great need in my heart. I praise God that I came to camp Sychar and God cleansed my heart and filled it."

Sister F. E. Sims: "My sins are under the blood. The Comforter abides. I am on the victory side and shouting glory since the old man died. I am saying to God, 'Here am I; send me.'"

Sister Ruth Buchanan: "I was g'ad when they said unto me, let us go into the house of the Lord."

The past year I have been helped so much by the help I received from M:ss McGhie, the evangelist, last year."

Sister Mary M. Ogilvie: "I praise God for the way he has led me this year. He has used me in his service and provided for all my needs. He says, he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life."

Sister L. E. Haviland: "I love the old-fashioned gospel of full salvation. I thank the Lord and kind friends for the privilege of being here this year. What a place of refreshing from the presence of the Lord Sychar is."

Sister Griffith: "I am praising God because his blood cleanses my heart and I am in love with this Christ."

Sister Ensley: "I am so glad for the blood covering souls. I praise him that all is clear between God and me this morning."

Brother Peters: "Years ago a friend asked me to go to camp meeting, and I asked him, 'Charlie, is the thing spiritual?' I had been genuinely saved. I enjoyed the presence of God, but I knew nothing about camp meetings. But my heart was hungering for spiritual things. When we came back I said to Charlie, 'I know what is the matter with these folks, they've backslidden.' I got into a holiness meeting the second time, and saw the folks had something that I did not have. I went to my room, shut the door, and before I had left there the Holy Spirit had come in to abide. I have the victory in my soul, bless God."

Sister Seabrook: "I praise the Lord because he has saved and sanctified my soul. I have the joy and peace within."

Bro. Weatherwax: "I am glad that this morning I can testify to the saving, sanctifying and keeping power of God. I am rejoicing in his love." (Bro. W. has been promoted to heaven since the camp).

Sister: "I received a telegram from my husband this morning telling me that at home all is well. And I got another one, one from heaven this morning also and it said all is well. I had such a hard time before I got here, but oh, I have had such a good time since I got here."

Brother: "When I came over here I was not clear in my experience. A little feeling of resentment which I felt against a certain person made me walk under a cloud. I didn't want to go to the altar, but I did, and I praise God that everything is clear this afternoon. The cloud is gone."

Mother Evans: "I feel delightfully good in my soul. I realize what it is to be marvelously, wonderfully converted, and to be thoroughly sanctified."

Sister Rudolph: "I am praising God this morning for the knowledge I have of the salvation that is both free and full. Jesus is my sanctifier."

Dr. Berry: "I want to praise God for saving me, and I want to bless his holy name for sanctifying me."

Bro. Minard: "I have a camp meeting all year long. I've been coming out to Sychar nearly every week all through the year. I have come out to look after Bro. Lewis. In December, or any other month, what a wonderful peace strikes you when you enter the grounds. I thank God for the wonderful spirit of Sychar."

Bro. L. Chester Lewis: "Eight years ago, I slipped away to India without leaving any farewell testimony at Sychar. I had been in New Jersey at camp meeting time the two preceding summers. Today, there is a possibility that we may get away to India again, within a couple of months or a little longer, and I want to leave my testimony and to ask for your prayers. I've been at Sychar nearly every year of my life, until ten years ago, and I used to be acquainted with many of the people. The camp has grown and I've been away, and I don't know so many people, but I wish I knew all of you, for I covet your prayers. When we went to India before, we started with much of the spirit of adventuring. Now we look forward not so much to adventuring as to carrying on the work that God has called me to do. And that divine call is the only reason why we can face such a work, the stress and strain of a tropical climate, and all the things that demand the utmost of God's grace in the soul. I thank God for his salvation and that the 'blood of Jesus Christ' . . . cleanseth from all sin." Please pray that the way may be fully open for us to get back to India, and that we may be filled with the Holy Spirit constantly while there."

UNION KENTUCKY MEETING.

Four churches and their pastors a few miles from the city of Cynthia, Ky., agreed to hold a union revival meeting, and invited the writer to be their evangelist. The meeting continued from Nov. 21 to Dec. 5. In the main the weather was favorable for the meeting, and large crowds of people attended the services. It was said that at times numbers were not able to get into the church because of its crowded condition.

We followed the advice of John Wesley, in that we preached holiness constantly, strongly, explicitly, and brought it in somewhat in every sermon. This course had the desired effect, and after the second service some were sanctified, and the work proceeded along that line up to the closing day, and one lady received the blessing of holiness while we were preaching on the last Sunday morning of the meeting.

Besides those who were sanctified a goodly number were reclaimed or converted. Among the number reclaimed was a man past middle age, who had been a backslider for twenty years, and his friends were fearful that he would never be saved, so indifferent did he appear to every appeal made to him. He had invited one of the pastors and the writer to dine with him, and while we were praying with him in his home he was graciously reclaimed. When he gave his testimony in the evening service of that day there was great rejoicing among his many relatives and friends. Many heads of families were either converted or sanctified, and a goodly number of fine young people, together with not a few of promising boys and girls.

It has been a long time since we have witnessed more pungent conviction, importunate praying, or clearer conversions and sanctifications on the part of the seekers than in this meeting. We had a good praying and working force among the Christian people. Some seekers came to the altar and prayed through before the message was given. The people of the most prestige, both male and female, were among the number who shouted the loudest when they prayed through, or when their relatives and friends received the blessings they sought. A number received the sacrament of baptism in the last service, and a nice class united with the church, and the meeting closed in the finest sort of spirit. The pastors, the Rev. I. S. Pineur, and the Rev. J. W. Gilbert, together with the people of the church, stood nobly by us in the work, and treated us fine in every way.

We had our home with Brother Virgil Colvin and his good wife during the meeting, and they treated us most hospitably, as did many of the good people who invited us to their homes for dinner. That region abounds in fine cooks, and it can never be truthfully said of them that they do not make their guests more than welcome.

This meeting was one of the very best we have held for a long time, and one would have to be present in the services properly to appreciate it. It cannot be adequately described by tongue or pen.

We are now home for a little rest, but will soon be afield again. We have some vacant dates, and any one desiring to correspond with us relative to our holding a meeting with him should address us, 1350 Grace Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio. J. L. Glascock.

REVIVAL EVANGELICAL CHURCH, WELLSVILLE, OHIO.

An old-fashioned revival meeting was held in the Wellsville Evangelical Church under the efficient leadership of Evangelist H. A. Frye, Findlay, Ohio. Souls were definitely saved from sin, others came forward for heart cleansing.

The attendance showed a marked interest in the salvation of souls. A number of nights the church was well nigh filled. The height of the spiritual tide came the last Sunday. Hearts were melted together in real joy and love, and the shouts of praise and victory made the church ring.

Thirty-six souls prayed through to salvation. Fifteen united with the church. The people are more encouraged than ever before, and with their pastor will hold the standard of Jesus Christ high.

E. L. Zachman, Pastor.

REVIEW OF MY YEAR'S WORK.

As the year draws to its close, my heart swells with praise to God for his unspeakable mercies which have attended me this year. Surveying the labors of the year, I say, in all fear and humility, this has been the most fruitful year of my ministry in the field of evangelism. I have held seventeen revivals and camp meetings this year, and have traveled by train something over fifteen thousand miles. Held one union meeting, with four churches co-operating. The rest were camps and revivals in the Methodist Church, Freewill Baptist, and Church of the Nazarene.

At this writing, I am closing a gracious revival at Newman Grove, Neb., in the Church of the Nazarene. It has been a profitable meeting, and a number of souls have sought the Lord for salvation.

I will spend a few days at home, then go to Waterford, Ohio, for a union revival to be held in the Presbyterian Church. While I am in that part I would like to slate the first three Sundays of February with some pastor either in Ohio or Pennsylvania. I can do this conveniently. Address me between January 5th and 23rd at Waterford, Ohio, general delivery. If Jesus tarries, I am anticipating the best year of my life in 1927. Thy brother.

Roy L. Hollenback, Evangelist.

AN OLD-TIME REVIVAL.

We are glad to report that the days of revivals are not passed. The God of Elijah still lives and answers by fire. God wonderfully blessed Evangelist Edna Banning in declaring a full gospel. For sixteen nights the meeting went on under the leadership of the Holy Ghost. About forty souls knelt at our altar and were reclaimed, saved or sanctified. Folks trembled and sobbed under Holy Ghost conviction. Saints wept for joy. We thank God for our superintendent, O. C. Grindle, a man of prayer and faith. Any church will do well in securing this fire-baptized holiness evangelist, Edna Banning. She is the embodiment of perfect love, a child of humility, yet bold and fearless in prayer and preaching. The meetings just closed have been the most wonderful meetings I have ever attended. Pray for the St. Clair Street Mission, and when in Cleveland come over and help us.

If the German people are ever delivered from the spirit of militarism, if they learn to love their fellow beings beyond the seas that bound their own fatherland, it must be because they have been regenerated and made in Christ new creatures by the power of the Holy Ghost. If the great nations we once called our Allies and brothers in arms, ever realize the highest and best civilization it must be brought about by the regeneration of the individual man and woman, by the sowing broadcast of the Word of God with its power to make men in Christ new creatures. If the United States with all its mixed multitudes ever come to an ideal state of civilization, and peace and harmony within her own borders, justice and the broad unselfishness which should characterize brother men, then we must kindle the fires of revival and rally the multitudes and millions about the altars of prayer from the northern lakes to the southern gulf, and from the Virginia beach to the California shore. Jesus alone, by his life, his teachings, his death on the cross, his prayers before the mediatorial throne of his Father, and the gospel of his power, can redeem men and baptize them with one Spirit into one body, which will make them brothers indeed and bring peace and rest to a sinful and weary world.

The momentous question is, have we a proper appreciation of the situation? Will the church arise and gird herself for the great task before her? Will the Protestant ministry be done with the vagaries of modernism and the contradictions of evolution, come back to the Bible and the Cross and lift up Jesus Christ as the Son of God, the only and all-sufficient Savior of men? Will the preachers of today stand up fearlessly and in the name of God call the people to repentance and insist that there must be a turning back to God and obedience to his commandments or a visitation of his judgment?

Let it not be forgotten that the scientists of all nations are busy getting ready for war, and with their airships, their undersea boats, their powerful shells and poison gas, with the distribution of disease germs and the havoc they are prepared to spread behind the battle lines, in the cities and communities that heretofore in times of war were comparatively safe, would cause fearful loss of life among women and children with great destruction of property. Another world war would very nearly destroy civilization and turn the wheels of progress backward into conditions of savagery, bloodshed, fire and disease beyond anything ever known in the world. Ought not the whole church and ministry turn at once to the Word of God and the Son of God, the Prince of Peace, for the only hope and help and remedy for a sinful world? Or shall we so broadcast the seeds of doubt, neglect the souls of men, and raise up a generation of infidels to bring on the blast and ruin, the savagery and destruction that is bound to come if we continue in the ways of sin. There is but one remedy and that is a world-wide returning to the Bible and the Christ of the Bible for salvation of the individual and peace among men.

The Great Missionary Meeting In Louisville.

ON December 15th and 16th, there was a great assembly of bishops, secretaries, presiding elders, lay leaders, the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society and pastors of the M. E. Church, South in Fourth Avenue Methodist Church, Louisville, Kentucky.

The object of this meeting was to arouse the church to raise one million of dollars to meet the slump in missionary collections and carry forward the work in foreign fields without curtailment.

It was our privilege to attend a few of the meetings and hear several excellent addresses by various representatives. We were especially interested in the account of the splendid home work being done by the Home Board in the cotton mill regions, and we rejoiced in the remarkable improvement being made in those laboring classes which offer such a fine field for Christian effort.

The M. E. Church, South, has a marvelous field of opportunity in the great mountain regions of Kentucky, Tennessee, Virginia and North Carolina. There is also a field white to the harvest among the people of French descent in Louisiana. There are hungry souls by the thousands that await the Gospel message to which untold numbers would gladly respond.

One of the most cheering addresses during the conference was delivered by Bishop Hay, who has under his care the great western field, embracing Arizona, New Mexico, California and the Northwestern coast. He spoke most encouragingly of the consecration and zeal of his preachers, the courage and devotion of the people, the excellent organization which he found out in that region which was a beautiful tribute to the great work wrought by Bishop DuBose. Bishop Hay insisted that the preaching of the pure Gospel of Jesus Christ was effective everywhere and was welcomed and brought forth abundant fruit among the great stalwart aggressive people of the far West.

Bishop Darlington recently returned from an extensive trip in Europe, told of the encouraging work in Poland, Czecho-Slovakia and the region under his care and direction. The need over there is great and insistent. The people are a wonderful people and they are ready to receive the pure Gospel of Christ by the ten thousands. It is the urgent business of the church to break to them the Bread of Life. Bishop Darlington seems to have been graciously used of the Lord in his evangelical messages to those people. He was up in what is known as White Russia and found great, hungry souls among those wonderful people.

The interests of all the great mission fields were presented and pressed and emphasis was laid upon, I may say, three facts: The urgent need of the Gospel among the neglected peoples; the high privilege and duty of the church to give it to them; and the prime importance of a combined movement to educate the entire church with reference to these needs among the neglected multitudes, the duty and the privilege of the church to meet those needs, and the importance of doing the work now.

Dr. Cook, in an illuminating address, insisted that we are not to jump to the conclusion that a man is not a Christian if he fails to contribute to missions, that he may be a Christian without instruction with reference to his Christian obligation; that it is the duty of the church to bring the whole matter of world evangelization before its entire membership and give the people to understand their duty and the blessedness of helping to save their fellowmen.

It would seem that the raising of one million of dollars by three millions of people ought to be an easy task and no doubt it would be if the three millions of people could be brought to see and feel the need of a lost world and the blessed privilege of giving them the Gospel.

Doubtless, if God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son for its redemption, he wants the world to know it. The church has far too long neglected to bring the good news of salvation to the lost. How will she be able to face these tremendous facts in the Day of Judgment. We believe that the one big thing that should stir the heart of the united Christian Church of the world is the immediate spread of the Gospel among all heathen people everywhere. We believe that God would be pleased if we spent less money in erecting magnificent churches in this country and more money in erecting commodious chapels in heathen lands. We believe that God would be pleased if, for a few years, the churches of this nation did entirely without the use of tobacco, substituted cotton for silk stockings, and went in with joyful resolution to curtail all waste, extravagance and luxury, and piled up millions of gladly-given money to send a pure Gospel into all the world.

Give us a great revival of pure religion. Give us a period of intense education on missions, the need of the neglected, the duty and privilege of the church and within ten years it would be difficult to find with an airplane and a search warrant a region where the Gospel has not been preached.

That Commentary!

Are you a Sunday school teacher? Then you will want one of the best Commentaries on the market, and speaking from a long experience, I do not hesitate to recommend Arnold's Practical Commentary. It has four full pages of matter on the S. S. lesson, and brings out the spiritual phases of the lesson in a way that not only blesses one's soul as they teach, but blesses those who sit under the teacher's explanation of the lesson. Then the price is within reach of all—only $1.00. Be sure to send for your book at once, that you may get the full benefit of the entire year. One year with this book means that you will never be without it.

Asbury College Speaks to Christian America.

BY PRESIDENT LEWIS ROBESON AKERS.

WITH the coming of the New Year, there also dawns the opening of the new semester in Asbury College. A brief resume of the happenings of the school up to this point may be of interest. The enrollment this year is larger than ever before. The personnel of the student body the finest we have ever known.

At the beginning of the fall semester, as is the annual custom, special evangelistic services were held under the leadership of President Emeritus, Dr. H. C. Morrison. It was a period of great spiritual refreshing, the altar being crowded with students who were seeking regeneration or entire sanctification. The blessed results of the services have been felt throughout the months and only eternity can reveal the good that was done.

Following this special season of revival, there has been no cessation in spiritual emphasis, but individual lives have been blessed all through the session. Preceding the Christmas holidays, revival fires again burst forth and, for a week, the school and community enjoyed a spiritual deepening of Christian experience. Never has our school proceeded along more definite lines of Christian experience and service than now, and the claims of Jesus Christ upon human life are continually presented.

As we go from place to place and touch the various sections of our nations we are profoundly convinced that there is a new interest in, and an awakening toward Asbury College, and that the conservative element, which is far greater in numbers, but less noisy in manifestation, than the radical and modernistic wing, are looking to this institution as one of the great strongholds of orthodoxy in America.

There was a time when the conflict centered about the teaching of entire sanctification as a second work of grace, subsequent to regeneration,—a work of cleansing which not only removed the guilt of sin, but broke its power as well. The fight now, however, has become more general, and the storm center would seem to be about the personality of Jesus Christ as a world Redeemer. At present, the efficacy of his Atonement, his Virgin Birth, his Resurrection, his Deity,—all these essentials of the Christian faith—are being attacked by a rationalistic and skeptical force under the leadership of men who have long ago lost their prophetic office and their passion for souls, and whose fetish is now a superficial scholarship or a pseudo-scientific assumption of superior knowledge and an ethical philosophy which they imply transcends the tenets and teachings of historic Christianity.

So fierce does this battle wage between the conflicting schools of thought that many conservative and orthodox Christians who have hitherto differed on minor doctrinal points now begin to draw together in a united force against the tidal wave of unbelief and relaxed morals which threaten to paganize our nation.

Never has there been a greater need for such an institution as Asbury College than at the present time. This institution embodies not only a thorough and accredited intellectual training, but, with it, a deeply devotional religious life which is loyal and true to the time-tested principles of Christianity which have been instrumental down through the centuries for the salvation of innumerable souls.

May we not ask the American public today to carefully consider the following:

Where can you find anywhere in this world a school with an enrollment of 825 individuals with less than a score unsundered to Jesus Christ at the end of the school year?

Where can you find a school with up-to-date and modern equipment, with every accommodation conducive to comfort and study, with splendid electrically cooked meals and a most healthful environment, at a total cost of less than four hundred dollars for the entire school year?

Where can you find a faculty of forty-five well trained professors most of whom hold Master's degrees, who combine with this necessary scholarship, a spiritual devotion and loyalty to the truth, without a taint of modernistic belief or destructive criticism?

Where can you find an institution, which during the year past, reports not a single expulsion for misconduct, yet whose rules are kept intact and are much more carefully framed than in the average institution?

Where can you find a college which has no fraternities or sororities, which permits no dancing, nor cards, nor tobacco using, nor trashy literature, nor jazzy music, nor intercollegiate athletics; yet, which, at the things that we would, that defeats our best intentions to do good, while evil is present with us; this principle of evil has a place on his cross with him. Man may devise other methods of dealing with this question; but we are interested only in the scriptural way; for the Holy Spirit will perform a successful operation on us only in harmony with his truth. His method is by a spiritual crucifixion of our evil nature. Shall we go beyond the written word? Shall we stop until we analyze or understand the psychology of the treatment? Let us remember that his enemies did not stop to explain to our Lord. They put him to the Cross. The great Physician will deal with us kindly and well. "Let us therefore go unto him without the camp, bearing his reproach."

THE CARNAL MIND.

For an illustration let us take two plant bulbs. One is a perfect bulb; the other is small, wrinkled and apparently worthless. It makes little difference for our purpose. The only requirement is that there must be life in it, for no one plants a dead bulb. A Christian must have life, or he cannot be planted together in the likeness of his death. Now let us plant the two bulbs together in the same bed of ground; bury and leave them. It is hardly necessary to say that in our illustration the perfect bulb is our Lord, and the other one his disciple, planted together. He himself said concerning his own death (John 12:24): "Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone; but if it die it bringeth forth much fruit." We know that he did die unto sin once, and that he arose to draw all men unto himself, and to reign forever. This is the perfect bulb that we planted, that sprouted and became the full corn in the ear. But now let us look at the place where we planted the small and insignificant looking bulb. Yes, there is another green blade springing up. And wonderful to relate, it looks singularly like the other one! For if we are "planted together in the likeness of his death, we shall also be in the likeness of his resurrection." Is it possible? Men may say no, but the Bible says it is so. After the carnal mind is destroyed, we live anew. But what a change! This new man is Christlike. He lives in his presence. He has "righteousness, peace and joy in the Holy Ghost." And to this change there are many witnesses from the days of the apostles to the days of John Wesley, and down to this day and year of our Lord. And they testify not only to their conversion, but also to the fact that after they were converted, they died to sin or the carnal mind, and the Holy Ghost was given to them as an abiding presence, causing them to live only to God. Hallelujah!

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS

THE RESULT OF A BOY'S FAITH.

"Do you know God?" was the question a little boy asked a man who came to his widowed mother's home. And the man answered "Yes."

But why did the boy ask such a question? Because their little cottage was in danger of being lost to them, and he thought if some one who truly knew God would help him and his mother to pray, it would not be taken from them for the debt that was on it.

What a beautiful and real faith that boy had! He believed that united prayer and faith would be answered.

But what about the result of that boy's faith in God? It greatly increased the faith of the man, and he not only prayed that the little cottage would be saved to the family, but he began very earnestly to pray for a far deeper work of grace in his own heart and for a revival in the church. And God graciously answered his prayer.

And thus we see that the faith of pious children can help the faith of even grown up people. And this reminds me of another little Christian boy who was asked, "What is prayer for?" And his sensible and Bible reply was, "To get things with."

Let the little ones, and the big ones too, who read this, more fully trust God for all he has promised in temporal and spiritual things. Oh how great is the need in and out of the church for a mighty work of grace, the salvation of sinners and the fullness of the Holy Spirit for all Christians.

A. W. Orwig.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I am a little stranger from Wisconsin. Please move over a bit and let me have a seat so that I may get acquainted. Thank you. I am a little boy just past my sixth birthday. I have medium light hair and blue eyes. I love Jesus. I know Jesus can and does heal folks, because one day when I was sick he healed me, when I prayed to him. I mean to live my life for Jesus. Papa and mama are both Christians. My mama is writing this for me. I have a dear baby brother who is five months old. His name is Robert. I think I had better close for I may take up too much space for a small boy. I would like to see this in print; also, won't some little cousin send me a post card of scenery around your country. Love to all the cousins and Aunt Bettie.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a little Oklahoma girl join your happy band of boys and girls? Oklahoma boys and girls, wake up, don't let the other states beat you. I have read letters from other states but few from Oklahoma so I decided I would write. I have been reading The Herald for a few months now. My grandfather sends us The Herald and I enjoy reading page ten best of all. I have two brothers older than myself and one brother and two sisters younger than myself. I have blue eyes, light complexion and blonde hair. I am thirteen years old and am in the eighth grade, and I weigh about 83 pounds. My teacher's name is Mr. W. C. Barton and I like him fine. I live three and one-half miles out in the country, but I go to town school. I go to Sunday school every Sunday I can. This is my first letter to The Herald. I wish to see it in print. With love to Aunt Bettie and all cousins.

Lenae E. Holder.

Rt. 3, Box 89, Bristow, Okla.
P. S.—I will answer all letters received. Who has my birthday, Aug. 4?

Dear Aunt Bettie: It has been a long time since we have sent you a letter, so here goes. We are in the midst of a revival meeting here in Central City, Ill.; and it is a hard pull, both spiritually and in finances. Ever since the strike five years ago our town has had a struggle to meet actual living expenses, as all of our people are poor working people and only have about one week out of three to work, makes it fearfully hard for them to keep our little church going. We certainly need help. We have Evangelist W. E. Lamp, of Wilmore, Ky., with us in the meeting and he is a strong preacher. Our town is made up of Germans, Russian, Irish, Italian, and American; unbelief seems to predominate, and the battle is waging hot. Oh, how we need an old-time Holy Ghost revival, too many lukewarm folks, nominal Christians, if there is such thing. One redeeming feature is that we have no "Monkey-ites", and our folk cling to the "Faith of the fathers," and we are looking forward to a great victory in the near future. We always read the letters on page ten for we know that the messages on that page are the real heart sayings of the writers. We received a great bundle of letters last year from the cousins. Thanks to all of them. Wish we might hear from every one that reads this message, telling us of your problems. We have had some real experiences in the past few years in the Master's work, and possibly I shall write another letter and relate some of them. We often think of Dr. Morrison. It was our privilege to hear him preach in Oakland City, Ind., some years ago, when, during his sermon he asked the question, "How many have read the book of Ezekiah?" and there was quite a number of hands went up; the smile that spread over the face of Dr. Morrison was like a "new moon." Well, I reckon I had better quit for Mr. W. B. is rather jealous of his paper. Will be glad to hear from all the cousins.

M. Luther Watson.

115 W. Hardin St., Centralia, Ill.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I am a member of the M. E. Church and go to Sunday school every Sunday. I am eight years old and in the third grade. My father is a Methodist minister so we can't live in the same home all the time. My mother says the Sunday school page is worth many times the price of the paper, but I like the Children's Page best. Who has my birthday, Feb. 6? I have dark brown eyes and hair, am tall and slender. I have two brothers at Duke University and hope some day to be that smart myself. I would like to hear from any of the cousins.

Frederick Lupton.
Sweponville, N. C.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Mother and father have taken The Pentecostal Herald and I have taken an interest in reading it, and I love to read the Boys and Girls' Page, and I intend to keep writing to it. I am saved and my sister is saved too. I am twelve years old and in the sixth grade. I love school and my teacher too. I love the Lord and I want other little children to too. We have three pet cats named Spit, Tiger and Whitey. We have a little mule named Mike. Well, Aunt Bettie, I want you to put my letter in The Herald, and I want all the boys and girls to write to me. If they do I will answer all.

Wanda Monroe.
Rolla, Kan.

Dear Aunt Bettie: May I join your band of boys and girls? This is the first letter I ever wrote to The Herald. I was eleven years old the 25th of July. My mama and papa take The Herald and I enjoy reading page ten. I have two sisters, Naomi and Virginia. Naomi is five years old and Virginia is ten. I go to Sunday school every Sunday. I hope to see my letter in print soon.

Mary Foster.
Derwent, Ohio.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a Kentucky girl in to your band of boys and girls? I am fourteen years of age; I will be fifteen Jan. 4, 1927. If any one has my birthday, please write to me, and send me your picture. I have dark brown hair and am in the eighth grade at school. I have two teachers, Miss Studie Fowler, and Mr. Young. Mr. Young is the principal of our school and Miss Studie Fowler my other teacher. I live at Berry, Ky.; it is a small town, has three churches, the M. E. Church, the Christian Church, and the Baptist. I go to Sunday school, church and prayer meeting at the M. E. Church. My mother and I go to the M. E. Church, and my father belongs to the Christian Church, but he goes to the M. E. My mother is a religious woman, and I have been saved and sanctified. Bro. Tomlin is the pastor of the M. E. Church; he sure is a good preacher. Edith Phillips, who belongs to the M. E. Church, died on Sunday morning early on Nov. 28; probably she has written to The Herald. My mother takes The Pentecostal Herald. Marie Lancaster, how are you getting along? How do you like to live at Detroit, Mich.? Will you or any of the other girls write to me, and send me your picture? I hope this letter is in print.

Helen Frances Lyter.
Berry, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let me join your happy band of boys and girls? I live in the good old state of Louisiana. I am about five feet tall; thirteen years old; have fair complexion. I have long black hair, blue eyes and am in the seventh grade. I have missed two years in school since mother died. I am trying to live like she did so I can meet her in heaven. Grandfather takes The Herald and I enjoy reading the many good things; also the Cousins' Page. I belong to the M. E. Church at the Sanders Chapel. Rev. G. E. Corry is the pastor. I sure do like him. Anice Horton, I guess your middle name to be Marie. Am I right? If so, please write me. Edith Barker, in answer to your question why Moses could not enter Canaan land, because when he struck the rock he said I bring forth water, but God brought forth water. If I be right write me and tell me. Well, for fear Mr. W. B. will get this I will close hoping to see this in print, as it is my first letter.

Leo Velma Sanders.

Dear Aunt Bettie: As my papa is writing to Bro. Morrison I am going to write to you and the cousins. I am a little Indiana girl eleven years old. I have brown hair and brown eyes, rather fair complexion. I am an invalid; have never been able to walk a step or stand alone, so would enjoy receiving a postcard or a letter from any of the cousins. I love to have my mama read page ten to me. I have one brother who goes to school. He is in the sixth grade. He is lame too, from infantile paralysis. We want all the cousins to pray with us that God will heal us. I have two half brothers; one is married and has a baby girl.

Mildred Martin.
Rt. 1, Monroeville, Ind.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Here I come for the first time. I am a little boy past four years old. I go to Sunday school every Sunday. My teacher's name is Gladys Kendall. My father is superintendent. Rev. S. W. Dean is our preacher. I always make a speech at our Children's Day Exercise, and Mother's Day program. Come to Salt well, Aunt Bettie, sometime and hear me. I must say good-bye.

Chester Ray Mattox.
Salt Well, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you allow a little change in your program? I have been much interested in the Children's Page ever since I first took The Pentecostal Herald, and that is many years. I first took the "Guide to Holiness," then I took the "Consecrated Life," then The Herald. I have been very much pleased with the good letters and poetry they write. I am 77 years old. The children would not think of guessing my age. Have been an M. E. member for nearly sixty years. I want to tell the dear children of the great comfort the true Christian life is to old people. What a comfort to start early, to consecrate our whole lives, for Jesus loves little children, and as you grow older you will have the sweet assurance of his love all the way. "At evening time it shall be light," is the dear Lord's promise to me. Mrs. D. H. Diller.
4 Marion St., Clinton, N. Y.

Dear Aunt Bettie: As my other letter was in print I will come again. I am going to school every day and in the seventh grade. My teacher's name is Miss Texie Kerns. There are five in my class; two boys and three girls. I go to Sunday school every Sunday. I have one sister and four brothers. I don't have to go far to school. My mother is my Sunday school teacher. I am in the Junior class. I hope Mr. W. B. is in bed when this arrives.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I would like to join your happy band of boys and girls. I am saved and sanctified by the Lord Jesus Christ; he has washed every one of my sins as white as snow. We are holding a revival at our church now, and the Lord is working in a wonderful way. Cousins, don't fall back on the blood-stained banner of Jesus Christ, for he says in his precious book to put on the whole armor of God that ye may be able to withstand the wiles of the devil. Oh, my precious cousins, don't slip away from your Lord Jesus Christ, for he is needing many reapers to reap his harvest. Don't be afraid to stand as a witness for the Master. I am fourteen years of age, have golden bobbed hair, blue eyes, and I am five feet, two inches in height.

I am going to school. I study the sixth grade. My birthday is Feb. 2. My uncle takes The Herald. I like to read page ten. I have two brothers. I am the only girl. I will answer all the letters I receive from all the cousins, both boys and girls.

FALLEN ASLEEP

YOUNG.

Marinda Olive Crawford was born at Whiteland, Ind., Jan. 1, 1848; was married to Martin A. Young, of Normal, Ill., Dec. 10, 1890, at Indianapolis, Ind. She was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church for more than 50 years, and for many years a member of the Central Illinois Holiness Association. She was a member of the Official Board of the Normal Church for 25 years. She died March 4, 1926, leaving her husband, one daughter, two granddaughters, and a host of relatives and friends.

Funeral services were held at the church in charge of the pastor, Rev. Guy Z. Moore, assisted by W. H. Shelper, Superintendent of the City Rescue Mission of Bloomington. Memorial Services were held in her memory by the Holiness Association at their tabernacle in August. We miss her but expect to meet her before long, for we know she is in the Celestial City. Her husband,

M. A. Young.

LYON.

Bertha Gladys (Mendel) Lyon, daughter of John and Margaret Mendel, was born at Sunman, Indiana, October 8, 1892, and departed this life to be with the Lord on December 8, 1926, in Colorado Springs, Colorado. Mrs. Lyon's parents moved to Indianapolis, Ind., when she was five years of age. They reared a family of four boys and five girls. Four of them have preceded her to the Spirit Land—the father on June 18, 1912; her brothers as follows: Talma in 1914, Willie in 1917, and Harry on November 27, 1926.

Mrs. Lyon was united in marriage to Oscar B. Lyon on February 15, 1919. This union was blessed with one daughter, Willamay Lyon. Interment was made at Crown Hill Cemetery, Indianapolis, Ind. Funeral was in charge of Dr. John E. Hewson. Funeral sermon was preached by Dr. Manson E. Baker, these men both nationally known evangelists. The Ministerial Alliance of Indiana was represented by Dr. W. W. Bolinger of the Edwin Ray Methodist Episcopal Church, where funeral services were conducted. Dr. Baker at one time was Mrs. Lyon's pastor. It was under his ministry that she obtained entire sanctification as taught by the M. E. Church. Her body rested at the chancel rail where her husband sought and obtained the same experience while Dr. Baker helped him pray through to victory. It was at this same chancel rail, May 23, 1920, that her daughter, Willamay, was given wholly to the Lord in Christian baptism.

During her entire life she has been an efficient soul winner for Christ, but serving in a greater field and leading multiplied scores to a definite experience of salvation after her marriage. She lived and died in this experience, giving her entire life to the service of God. Mrs. Lyon was the happy possessor of the necessary qualities to make the parsonage home a real Christian home and the church to glow with the presence and the power of God, and to make her husband a better preacher and soul winner for God.

Mrs. Lyon leaves to mourn her loss, a husband, daughter, a mother, four sisters, and a host of friends. These all will mourn their great loss while she enjoys the reward of the "redeemed of the Lord."

DAYTON, OHIO, REVIVAL AND HOLINESS RALLY.

Jan. 16-30, 1927, Daily, 2:30 and 7:30 P. M.

It will be held in the Second Pilgrim Holiness Church in Dayton. The church is located on the corner, 2500 West Third Street.

The engaged evangelists are Rev. and Mrs. Charles H. Stalker, and Rev. and Mrs. J. L. Shell. Other preachers, musicians and singers will be with us.

Brother Stalker, the well-known world evangelist, will come to us fresh from the mission fields of Central America. You will want to hear him. We are now receiving letters from parties from a distance who are making arrangement to attend this meetings, and we are doing our very best to find free entertainment for all who desire to be with us in this great battle for God and souls and the feast of good things.

Please write immediately and tell us when you expect to arrive that we may prepare for you; and pray with us that every element may be subdued and in submission to the mighty workings and power of the Holy Ghost.

The Committee.

Rev. J. L. Kennet, Pastor.

NEW ROCKFORD, NORTH DAKOTA.

Beginning October 1, I was with the Carroll County Holiness Association in their rally at the home of the late Dick Albright. The meeting was conducted in the Tabernacle, which is centrally located, and a well-known place, not only in Carroll County but their faith to Godward is spread abroad, as the most of the old-line holiness evangelist have labored there. This was my third meeting for the County Association, two others being held in their tent, the first at Mt. Olive and the other at Irondale, Ohio. These meetings were all owned of the Lord.

While laboring at the Mooers, N. Y., camp meeting in August I met a number of the loyal boys from Asbury College who are up in northern New York. They are standing true to the faith and believe in old-time revivals. My work at the camp resulted in three invitations for fall meetings in three different Methodist Churches—Mooers Forks, Ellenburg Center, and Saranac. In all these meetings God manifested himself. The saints prayed, got blessed and shouted the victory; sinners got under conviction, wept, prayed, and came through shouting.

I am in New Rockford, N. Dak., where we are having it thirty below zero, but the revival is on; about fifty have been to the altar, and a number of happy finders. Brother L. W. Wick is the pastor of this church, which is the Church of the Nazarene, and is doing a good work.

THE J. C. PENNEY MEMORIAL HOME.

We send you Christmas greetings from this lovely home.

J. C. Penney, merchant, is building the home in memory of his father and mother. His father was a Primitive Baptist Minister. His church dismissed him because he believed in (1) Educated ministry; (2) Paying Ministers, and (3) Conducting Sunday Schools.

This home is eight miles west of Green Cove Springs, Clay county, Fla., on a smooth surface road. A large bus makes trips each day. This home, when gardens and poultry yards are laid out, will embrace about forty acres. There are 22 apartment houses, with four to five families in each one. They are so built that no sound can be heard from neighboring apartments. They are beautifully furnished with all needed furniture. Even a sink and washtub are combined. An ironing board and electric iron are provided. We are to have electric cookers and Frigidaires, which make our own ice.

The apartment houses are about 125 feet apart. In the center of the colony is a boulevard 300 feet wide. At the South side, a $75,000 church is being constructed.

It is estimated that these homes will cost over a half million dollars to construct. It is the pride of Mr. Penney's life to care for us.

From the church, a smooth surface road runs north to the Community Church about two miles. This church has called a pastor and is made up of all churches. They have a big Sunday school. There were 76 men in Bible Class last Sunday and 275 at the church service. There are about 65 families on the farms and a fine class of folks.

The church for our homes is being modeled after the English style and will be very lovely. We ministers are to conduct services and have already organized as "The Ministers' Memorial Association" and adopted By-Laws and a Constitution. We have about 35 ministers here now and look for 70 more by spring.

I have a garden and a poultry yard, and a monthly appointment at a little church on the St. John's River. With a home garden with truck coming up, a poultry yard and a place to preach—what more could I want?

S. L. C. Coward and Wife.

GOOD MEETINGS AT VALLEY FALLS, KANSAS.

We have just closed a great meeting in the Federated Church, Valley Falls, Kan. There were about two hundred people forward during the three weeks we were there, and most of them united with the churches. There were fifty people forward the last Sunday night of the meeting. The young people's meetings, school meetings and special meetings for business men and women will long be remembered. The Rev. I. N. Reid is the pastor, whom I have assisted in many other meetings in Kansas the last fifteen years.

Our next meeting is in the First Methodist Church, Shelbyville, Ill., beginning Jan. 10th.

J. B. Kendall.

Evangelist W. W. McCord, of Sale City, Ga., writes: "Our camp ground here is in debt $500, and the man we owe is calling for his money. The low price of cotton has put the South to the bad. Ours is the only place within several counties where holiness is preached. Our work is interdenominational. Brethren John Clement, T. P. Baker, W. H. Massey, Joe Lawrence, J. A. Wood, and others have been our special workers. I am not asking our folk for gifts. My plan is this: To everyone sending money I will mail prepaid one pound of fancy paper-shell pecans for every dollar received. I understand that such nuts are retailing at $1.25 per pound in the north, so you see everyone will get value received and at the same time help a needy and worthy cause. We must keep holiness in southwest Georgia. We thank one and all who see fit to lend us a helping hand at this time."—Wesleyan Methodist, Syracuse, N. Y.

"AMAZING GRACE"

By Dr. Ridout.

This book, one of Dr. Ridout's best, is now in its second edition. It will make a splendid book for the holidays. Thomas Harrison, famous as the "Boy Preacher," and one of the mightiest evangelists in his day, said of Dr. Ridout's book, "Amazing Grace": "I read Amazing Grace in the Congressional Library, Washington, D. C., and of all the books I have ever read no book covers the ground so thoroughly. To me, it is one of the best books, the most interesting I have ever read. I think it will have quite a sale."

If you have not sent in your order better do so at once. Price $1.00.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

REV. O. G. MINGLEDORFF, D.D.

Lesson IV.—Jan. 23, 1927.

Subject.—Prayer in the Christian Life.—Mark 1:35; 14:32-36; Matt. 6: 9-13.

Golden Text.—Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you.—Matt. 7:7.

Times.—There are three: (1) A. D. 28; (2) the night before the crucifixion; (3) A. D. 28. As best we can make out, the first was in the spring, and the third in summer.

Places.—Three again: Capernaum, Gethsemane, and the hilltop from which he delivered the message commonly known as "The Sermon on the Mount."

When one undertakes a study of the prayer life of Jesus, he finds the subject too big for him. Why should he pray? I do not know; but I can guess. Much of his praying, I doubt not, was communion with the Father. That part of it is simple enough, and need give us no trouble. But what about his intercessory prayers? Some would tell us that this was solely the work of his human nature; but that does not satisfy us, seeing that the incarnation resulted in a single personality. The two natures, the human and the divine, remained intact; but the two personalities became one. In that single personality he was (and will ever be) the God-man—not two, but one. The nature does not pray, but the personality.

Now I am going to give my theory for the praying of Jesus while he lived in the flesh among men and in his glorified state in heaven, and for all we know, before he was incarnated. It is a truth of science that no force is ever lost; and I suppose that that truth will hold good in any and all worlds. Not even the force of a thought is lost; for it reacts upon the thinker, and leaves its impress stamped upon him permanently. Prayer is the exercise of a God-given privilege whereby we project from our souls into the spiritual universe currents of living, vitalizing spiritual power that God uses for the accomplishment of great ends, thereby making us co-workers with himself. Herein we may find some explanation of the praying of Jesus. He is the mighty dynamo of prayer power. We are permitted to join our feeble prayers with his; and together we are furnishing dynamics for the conversion of the world.

It has been often said that Jesus prayed as an example for us; but that will not pass at all. To think of his doing a thing as solemn as praying, merely as an example for us, is absurd. He could not do that. His example is blessed; but he must have some deeper reason for getting up a great while before day and going apart for prayer. He could not go through whole nights of useless prayer simply to show us how. That would have been a sort of hypocrisy at best. Jesus did real praying: the example was a secondary matter.

I fear that it is impossible for us to know much about his Gethsemane prayers. "The well is too deep, and we have nothing to draw with." We can understand nothing spiritual that is deeper than our own experience. Could we have a Gethsemane experience, and not die, we might understand the praying of Jesus. I am sure that he did not wish to shun the cross, and leave the world to perish forever.

No, no; that would have made his loving God-heart miserable at all eternity. His prayer puzzles us. When the Father placed upon him the sins of the world, and he became the "Scape Goat" it was too much. Never before had he felt the horror of sin; but now he is bearing the world's load. The cross is not in sight. He wanted help, lest he should die in the garden; and the prayer was answered; for the Father sent an angel to strengthen him in that hour. He conquered through prayer. The scene amazes me, and leaves me undone. Study it for yourself. It is too big for me.

When we come to study the Lord's Prayer, as it is commonly termed, we are on safer ground. Really this is our prayer, given us by our Lord. It is short, but comprehensive—an epitome of all genuine prayer. The address, Our Father which art in heaven, makes it as broad as the entire Christian family. It was never intended that it should be mumbled by any and everybody. Jesus taught it to his little band of disciples; and they published it for the use of the saints "unto the ages of the ages." This is holy ground. For such an assemblage as the Chicago Congress of Religions to repeat it in concert was little short of blasphemy.

Its first petition, Hallowed be Thy name, can be uttered only by such as are careful to keep it holy themselves. Of course, many ungodly people use God's name in their profanity; and we can scarcely expect them to do otherwise; but I am sorry to have to say that some who profess to be Christians are not careful in this matter. Most of the by-words of the day are corruptions of the names of Jehovah. Brother, be careful; for he will not hold you guiltless. You do not have to curse to take God's name in vain, and to profane it. You may do it in your prayers by uselessly repeating it over and over again. Some months ago I heard a preacher repeat it one hundred and seventy-five times in one prayer. I was not irreverent, but knowing his failing in this line, decided to find out first hand what he really did say. The so-called prayer sounded profane to my ears.

Thy kingdom come.—Better be careful how you pray that petition, unless you are doing your best to make it come. There is little profit here in splitting hairs over the meaning of the word kingdom. It is used in a broad sense, meaning the salvation of the lost, and the establishing of the reign of Christ in the hearts and lives of men.

Thy will be done in earth as it is in heaven.—It should be upon earth, the preposition in the Greek being epi. That is a hard petition. How many of us can utter it with sincere hearts? As many as are striving to live as he lived while he walked and labored among men. The rest of us need a mourners' bench.

Give us this day our daily bread.—This is no bid for laziness, or idleness. Pray the prayer, but dig with all your might, and trust God for his blessing upon what you are doing. That will cut you off from all questionable employment.

Forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors.—Forgive us our wrong doing just as we have forgiven those who have wronged us. Better not pray this petition as long as you have an unforgiving spirit in you, else you may find yourself asking God not to forgive you at all. There is grave danger here. See the Master's command just at the close of the prayer.

Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil.—I am persuaded that the word temptation should be trials. That is the meaning of James in the second verse of his first chapter. If I may be permitted to paraphrase a bit, I think this is about the meaning: "Shield us from sore trials, and protect us from things that are evil."

The remainder of the prayer is an interpolation that was added by some unknown copyist sometime after Matthew finished his work; but it is beautiful, and so in keeping with the body of the prayer, that I hope no ruthless critic will ever undertake to expunge it from the record.

Would that I could say something that would set our people to praying again; but I do not know how. Prayer and Bible study are twin sisters—Siamese twins. One cannot live without the other. The Christian must have a close, personal acquaintance with both of them, or die spiritually. Shall we live, or shall we die?

EVANGELISTIC AND PERSONAL.

Rev. D. F. Brooks will preach in the Nazarene Church at High Springs, Fla., during the months of January and February, by invitation of the pastor and members of the church. He will leave for the South January 5.

Rev. O. G. Mingledorff, D.D., who has been critically ill for three months, is sufficiently recovered to take up his evangelistic work. Let those who desire his services address him, Blackshear, Ga.

Rev. Jos. H. Lewis, Wilmore, Ky., has open dates from Feb. 1 to April 1. He has one date in Florida and would be glad to have other calls in that state. Brother Lewis is conference evangelist of the Kentucky Conference.

Suggestions to Singers.

Always see that the song-book used in your meeting has a supply of good invitations and good altar songs. Our "Gladness and Praise" has a fine selection of both; and there are thirty of them.

Also see that the doctrines of the Bible, especially those touching salvation and sanctification are in the book. The songs should back up and support the sermons preached. Many song-books contain no searching gospel truths on full salvation lines. But they are in Gladness and Praise. See Nos. 2, 5, 10, 15, 25, 70, 76. Also see 103, 130, 138, 143, 146, 174, 176, 179, 208, 211. One evangelist says: "I have sold thousands of song-books in meetings, but it's best yet." Another says, "The more I use it the better I like it. It is a gem." Price, 25c. Special rates to evangelists. Round notes or shaped. Always state choice. PENTECOSTAL PUBLISHING CO., Louisville, Ky.

addressing me at 1249 N. Holmes Ave., Indianapolis, Ind., until Jan. 16. After this address me 2923 Troost Ave., Kansas City, Mo."

W. S. Runyon: "We wish to say in behalf of Rev. R. Wilkinson that he will be open to calls for evangelistic work the first of the year, having moved to Keokuk, Iowa, where he could be centrally located for the field. We are glad to recommend this man of God, who is walking softly with Jesus and has been fruitful in his work. Address him 128 Cor. 21st and Exchange, Keokuk, Iowa."

T. A. Swartwood, 743 Fehr Ave.: "After an illness extending over a period of two years I am now back in the evangelistic field. I have open time from Feb. 5, 1927, and would especially like to have meetings in City Missions, small town and country churches. No matter what condition the church is in or what denomination I will gladly go. My best work has been in small town and country churches that were almost abandoned. I depend upon freewill offerings to take care of me according to Phil. 4: 19. I am aware of the fact that there are many localities that need an evangelist and really want one who stand back on account of finances, hence my desire to reach this class." Louisville, Ky.

BOOKS OF POINTS AND POWER.
Z. T. Johnson, M.A.

Amusement Library.

"The need of the hour is to warn the folk of harmful amusements and bad habits." Because of this fact a series of sermons and lectures has been put together and called the "Amusement Library." These books deal frankly with the questions discussed and fearlessly expose the evils in these things.

Rev. James M. Taylor has two lectures in this set. The first, "Associations, or Society Goats Disrobed", shows the evil results of keeping company with the wrong kind of companions. The second is a strong sermon to men only, called "Problems of Manhood." It shows the fearful consequences of leading an impure life and calls men to the same standard of purity as that expected of their mothers and sisters. Every young man should read this sermon.

There are two books that treat of the dance. Rev. J. J. Smith gives "34 Reasons Why Christians Should Not Dance" and closes the lecture with some vivid illustrations of what harmful results have come from dancing. Rev. J. B. Culpepper, in "The Dance Shown Up" quotes from authorities to show that practically every church in America is against the dance. He intersperses these quotations with vivid illustrations. There are one or two illustrations he gives that are worth the price of the book. If you have any doubts about the dance get these two books and read them; then pass them on to someone in whom you are interested.

"Flirting With the Devil" by C. H. Jack Linn, is a red-hot book on the three greatest evils of the day, the movies, the dance and the cards. He treats them under the following heads: The Movies—The Devil's Incubator; The Dance—The Devil's Hugging Match; The Cards—The Devil's Schoolroom. This is not just rant, but the writer brings good evidence forward to back up his statements. This booklet would be fine for some pastor to distribute among fifty of his church members. I know of no better thing some good layman could do than to put a number of copies of this book among the worldly-minded members of his church. A companion book to this is "The Moving Picture" by C. F. Wimberly. This is a calm treatment of the question and is very thought-provoking.

Two other pamphlets have been put into this series that are worthy of consideration. "The Hell of the Bible and the Harm of the Card Table" has in it two sermons by Rev. M. P. Hunt, the famous Baptist preacher of Kentucky, who has been so prominent in fighting the evils of race track gambling. They will stir you up. "The Vision of a Popular Minister" is a little book that would be fine to give to any preacher to read. It would help him, especially if he is prone to be self-satisfied. It has in it a marvelous vision that one preacher had, and also the story of two other men who saw their need and "let the Holy Ghost come in."

"The Devil's Seed Corn," by Rev. S. L. C. Coward, is one of the best treatments on the subject of tobacco that I have ever read. He goes into the subject not only from the moral viewpoint, but takes up the testimony of physicians, surgeons, nurses, etc., and gives their opinions on its harm to the mind and body. Chapter IX, on "The Minister" shows why a preacher should not use the weed in any form.

Every preacher in the land who uses tobacco should read this book. If he is honest he would have to throw away his tobacco and never use it again. Do you know a preacher addicted to the filthy habit? Buy this book and send it to him.

All of these pamphlets should be widely circulated. One dollar will bring them to your home. Read them, then pass them along to some person who needs wise counsel. Suppose you should be the means of saving a soul in this manner; would it be worth it?

MY MOTHER AT THE GATE.

Oh, there's many a lovely picture hung
On memory's chequered wall.
There is many a cherished image
That I tenderly recall.
The sweet home of my childhood,
With its brooks and singing birds,
The friends who grew beside me
With their loving looks and words
The flowers that decked the wildwood,
The roses fresh and sweet,
The violets and hyacinths that blossomed at my feet.
All, all are precious memories that often come to me
Like the fragrance of another land
Beyond life's troubled sea.
But the sweetest, dearest picture
That my fancy can create
Is the image of my mother,
My mother at the gate.

It is there I see her standing,
Her face so pure and fair,
With the parting rays of sunlight
On her eyes and silvered hair.
I can feel the soft warm hands that clasped
With tenderness my own.
I can see the look of precious love
That in her soft eyes shown.
I can hear her parting blessing
Through the lapse of weary years,
I can see through all my sorrow
Her own sweet silent tears,
And amid the darkest trials
That were mingled with my fate
I have turned to that blessed image
My Mother at the gate.

But she has crossed the river,
She is with the angels now,
She has laid aside Earth's crosses
And the crown is on her brow.
She is clothed in robes of righteousness
And walks the streets of gold.
An aged saint forever
Within the Saviour's fold.
No parting words can reach thee there,
No grief is thine today.
Thy mourning into joy is turned,
Thy tears are wiped away.
Thou art waiting for me in that home
Where the blessed angels wait.
I'll see thee and I'll know thee there,
My Mother at the gate.

THE TRAIL AHEAD.

Clyde Edwin Tuck

"Until the day dawn, and the shadows flee away."—Song of Sol. 2:17.
So dark the trail is leading on ahead,
No ray of light from over me is shed;
A way to scale the heights I cannot see,
But Savior, I am trusting all to Thee.
The path of life I need not know, nor care
Where it may lead—I onward gladly fare
Since Thou, I know, art walking by my side;

The School With a World Vision

I fear no more, but calmly trust my Guide.
The reason for the dark I do not not know,
But all the way I shall rejoicing go,
Since Thou art ever nigh, up rocky steep,
Through bog and fen, beneath black skies that weep.
My soul has need for each stern, fiery test,
And Thou, my Shepherd, always knowest best;—
I do not question why, though woes prevail—
I know dawn's light will break upon the trail.

FOR ME.

In sunny land across the sea
Was born the Christ Who wrought for me.
There suffered poverty and woe
That I his wondrous love might know.
It cost him agony and shame
For me to know his Father's name.
And e'en bore scorn and hate untold
To give me shelter in his fold.
And then endured the wrath of men
To help me trust till he comes again.
The awful scourging he did feel
That every sickness he might heal.
And also bore the greatest pain
That I a heavenly home might gain.
Upon a cross was crucified,
For me there suffered, bled and died.
And there the power of death he broke
Thus freeing me from Satan's yoke,
And what for me the Christ has done
He also did for everyone.

"I SEEK NOT YOURS BUT YOU."

By The Editor.

1 Corinthians 12:14.

THIS statement of the Apostle Paul, in his second letter to the Corinthians, "I seek not yours but you," has in it wonderful charm. It would be well for every evangelist to make it a careful personal study and get it fixed in his mind and heart and thought and desire so that he speak with all truthfulness as did the great Apostle, "I seek not yours but you."

The preacher of the Gospel, evangelist or pastor, who has the victory over the love of self, the love of money, the love of applause, and who is filled with the love of Christ and a longing love for the souls of men, that manifests itself in his behaviour, conversation and life in the pulpit and out of it, will never have it written on his tombstone, "Here lies a man who starved to death." This is not condemning the evangelist or pastor for wanting to support his family decently, to meet his obligations promptly, to have a roof over his head and a bit laid by for the rainy day. We have long, dry spells, but sooner or later the rainy day comes and a few dollars are very convenient in the damp weather of old age when the preacher no longer commands a salary and may truly be said to be "the forgotten man."

The story is told that when Martin Luther's bishop tried to quiet him in his protest against the dead formalism and wicked practices of the church and his heralding of "salvation by faith," and failed; he wrote to the pope for advice and assistance, and that the pope wrote back to the bishop, "Stop his mouth with gold." To which, the bishop replied to the pope, "The German fool does not love gold." Thank God, the love of Christ and the love of human souls had mastered Martin Luther and crowded the love of gold entirely out of his heart. No one ever accused John Wesley, Charles Finney or Dwight L. Moody of loving money, and yet they lived, loved Christ, loved men, wrought powerfully, fell on sleep in great peace and no one doubts but they are at this time with their blessed Lord. Their work abides. The influence of their lives spreads abroad in the earth and they will be remembered, their sermons heard and their words heeded long after millionaires have been forgotten.

People are not willing that the physician, the dentist, the scientist, the college professor, the politician, the statesman, the architect, the artist, the merchant, the farmer or any man in any calling or sphere of life shall give himself up to the love of money and the making of money. Of course, it is honorable to transact business, to make money and to get on in the world, but there is something little and contemptible about giving one's self up to money-making for the love of it, and this is especially true if that money-lover should be found in the pulpit with an open

Bible before him claiming to be God's messenger and manifesting a love and desire to win men's dollars instead of their priceless souls.

* * *

We have fallen upon bad times when we so translate the Scriptures as to make them read, "How hardly shall a poor man enter into the Kingdom of Heaven." How unfortunate that the people glorify man simply because he is rich. Character must count instead of gold. We are in danger that the rising generation make a serious mistake here and come to believe that money must have first consideration, that the whole population become materialistic and that we strive and struggle for the things that perish, that we set our minds and hearts on things temporal instead of things eternal.

* * *

Just at this time a few carloads of Gospel preachers well sprinkled over the world, genuinely saved from the world and a desire for its wealth or its applause, but fearless and earnest proclaimers of the truths of God and the full redemption provided in the death of Christ,—men who exalt things of the soul far above the things of the body, the things of eternity above the things of time, the things that are invisible—such preachers are one of the greatest needs of our times. May God anoint his ministers, evangelists and pastors with the Holy Spirit so that their one consuming desire may be the glory of Christ, the salvation of men. Let every preacher be characterized with an earnestness and zeal that will compel the people to hear him, to believe that he is not seeking themselves but seeking them.

Keep the Movement Moving.

THE World War has not closed. It has changed its stage of action from the blood-stained fields of Belgium and France to the political, religious and moral arena. It has changed its implements of warfare, but the forces of evil continue to fight with unabated vigor the truth of God and all the forces of righteousness. We are now engaged in one of the most powerful conflicts with evil in the history of modern civilization.

The aftermath of the World War in its moral influence is worse than the war itself. The abundance of money, the high cost of living, the greed for wealth, the craze for pleasure, the reckless extravagance, the immoral suggestiveness of modern dress, the breaking down of the barriers which, heretofore, had somewhat separated and protected the opposite sex during that period of life when they are influenced more by physical appetite than by the wisdom which comes through experience and more mature age, have all combined to produce moral conditions that are appalling to all thoughtful and pious people.

The enemies of God and humanity are carrying the war into the Church, the school and the home—the very heart of those sacred institutions that should most powerfully influence a nation for righteousness and build up the whole morale of society. The Church is being turned into a show house; the place of prayer is becoming a place of play. The laughter of the festival rings out from the walls of the sanctuary of God instead of the prayers of those who fast and wait upon him for divine power.

Seats of learning are becoming hotbeds of infidelity. The rising generation is being taught to ridicule the new birth, to sneer at the thought of Christian Holiness, to regard the Bible as a patchwork of fiction and unreliable history written by uninspired and untrustworthy men. A large percent of our schools are so under the influence of skeptical teachers that those who go into them radiant with saving faith come out mystified with doubt, or confirmed skeptics.

The home, the chief cornerstone of society, is no longer, or rarely, under the control of wise and positive discipline. Young people roam the streets of our cities at will, chase up and down the land in automobiles, spend their hours of leisure in degrading shows where the lowest vices are seen through the gloss of interesting and fascinating tragedy which entertains and cultivates the carnal nature. The dance halls of the land are packed until late hours by hundreds of thousands of our young people in their early teens. Meanwhile, large numbers of preachers seem to be asleep upon their picket posts while the rising tides of wickedness sweep society on in its mad race for gold and pleasure. Divorce courts are crowded with tens of thousands of applicants for separation; families are broken up everywhere and children who need the protection and nurture of peaceful and happy homes are sent adrift in every direction.

Rescue homes report twice as many blighted lives as were recorded previous to the war. Recently, in a vacant lot in one of our cities, there was found the dead body of a young woman. The body was taken to a morgue; notices were put into the daily papers calling attention to the murder of the unknown girl. Within a few days, there came to the officials of that city inquiries with reference to this girl from ninety homes within a radius of one hundred miles of the city in which she was found murdered, from parents whose daughters had disappeared, asking for minute description of the dead body. It must not be thought for a moment that there are stronger temptations or weaker characters in the vicinity of that city than may be found throughout the entire nation. The floods of wickedness have indeed reached a high tide.

Is there a remedy for these conditions? Is A Bundle Of Arrows For Soul Winners.

Rev. G. W. Ridout, D.D., Corresponding Editor.

I. THE PRAYERS OF THE SAINTS.

REVELATION 8th chapter, verses 3-4. Note (a) They owe their efficiency to Christ's sufficiency. (b) He renders them acceptable and sufficient. (c) Puts fire in them. (d) Brings fourfold result. (1) Voices. (2) Thunderings. (3) Lightnings. (4) Earthquakes.

Bishop Asbury was a man of prayer. He says: "I have given myself to private prayer seven times a day... and while thus exercised my soul has been both quickened and purified." Again he writes: "I purpose to rise at four o'clock as often as I can and spend two hours in prayer and meditation." "I spent better than an hour in fervent prayer and was much blessed having my soul divinely filled with love when I lay down."

"Restraining prayer, we cease to fight; Prayer keeps the Christian's armor bright; And Satan trembles when he sees The weakest saint upon his knees."

"Prayer makes the darkened cloud withdraw, Prayer climbs the ladder Jacob saw; Gives exercise to faith and love; Brings every blessing from above."

II. "THEY ARE DEAD." MATT. 2:20.

The whole verse reads, "Saying arise, and take the young child and his mother and go into the land of Israel; for they are dead which sought the young child's life."

The Christian Faith has had a hard time in this wicked world. The Bible, likewise, has come up out of fire and blood and smoke, but think of this: Where are those who despised and persecuted and imprisoned and scourged God's people through the ages? Where now is he who persecuted the Christians of Rome and executed Paul? Nero is dead! Where now is Julian, the apostate? Dead! Where now is Bloody Mary who burned the Christians in Smithfield fires? Mary is dead! Where now is Voltaire who prophesied that soon Christianity would be a thing of the past? Voltaire is dead! Where now is Tom Paine and Bradbaugh and Ingersoll who scorned the Bible and made ridicule of the Christian religion? They are dead! Dead and buried! But the Bible lives on, and the Church lives on, and Faith lives on, and Christ lives on in the hearts and lives of countless thousands.

III. A FOURFOLD PROPOSITION.

An infidel went to hear Moody preach in Boston. After hearing the preaching several nights he came home and greatly to the surprise of his praying wife he said as he read the Bible, "If that Book is true, I'm a sinner."

Another night he came home and said, "If that Book is true, I'm a lost sinner."

Next night after coming home from meeting he said, "If that Book is true, I may be saved."

Finally he came back from the service and said, "If that Book is true, I am a saved man."

He had taken Christ for his Savior and knew that he had saved him. Rom. 10:8, 9.

IV. STRANGE PRAYERS.

The following is recorded of a negro preacher who prayed thus:

"Oh, Lawd, give thy servant dis mawnin' de eye of de eagle and de wisdom of de owl; connect his soul wid de gawspel telephone in de central skies; 'luminate his brow wid de light uv hebin; overrun his mind wid rivah uv love for de people; turpentine his imagination; grease his lips wid gospel oil; loosen his tongue wid the sledge hammer of thy powah; 'lectrify his brain wid de lightning of de wurd; store up a cyclone in his lungs, roll de thunder of feah into his voice; fill him plum full de dynamite uv thy glory; noint

"Though there is a Hell for every sinner out of Christ, there is a Christ for every sinner out of Hell."

"No heart is pure that is not passionate," "No virtue is safe that is not enthusiastic," "Confessing sin means subscribing to God's judgment upon sin, a definite renunciation of sin."

"In conversion a reversing movement is set up in the soul."

him all over wid de kerosene uv thy salvation and sot him on fiah."

Another colored brother is reported thus: A dignified Negro divine, pastor of a popular church visited his old home in Dooly Co., Ga., recently, and was invited to preach on Sunday at the local church. After such a sermon as only a Negro can preach, he called on one of the old deacons, who had known him in childhood, to lead in prayer, and the latter closed his petition as follows:

"O Lawd, gib dis pore brodder de eye ob de eagle dat he spy out de sin afar off. Glue his han' to de gospel plow. Tie his tongue to the plowline of trufe, an' nail his yere to de wi'less telefoam pole of salvation. Bow his head 'way down in de narrer, dark valley, where much prayer is wanted; den, O Lawd, 'noint him wif de kerosene ile of sanctification and set him on fiah."

V. SEVEN INDISPENSABLE THINGS.

1. Holiness: "Holiness, without which no man shall see the Lord." (Heb. 12:14).

2. Blood: "Without shedding of blood is no remission." (Heb. 9:22).

3. Faith: "Without faith it is impossible to please him." (Heb. 11:6).

4. Chastisement: "Without chastisement... not sons." (Heb. 12:8).

5. Works: "Faith without works is dead." (James 2:26).

6. Love: "Though I have all faith and have not charity, I am nothing." (1 Cor. 13).

7. The Lord Himself: "Without Me ye can do nothing." (John 15:5).

VI. THE DEVIL.

An old Scotch divine preaching on the devil, said, "From the word devil, which means an enemy, take the d and you have 'evil'; remove the e and you have 'vil'—(vile) take away the v and it is 'ill'; so you see my brethren, he's just an ill, vile, evil devil." Job 1:6; 1 Pet. 5:8.

VII. THE OLD-TIME RELIGION AND IMMORTALITY.

Colonel Ethan Allen was a skeptic who made light of religion. Sorrow came into his life in the death of his little daughter. Placing her arms around her father's neck she said when dying, "Father, ye have taught me that there is no hope for us after death, that there is no Christ and that religion is foolishness. Mother is a Christian and she has taught me to believe in the blessed Saviour who has gone to prepare a home for those who are faithful to him. Father, I am dying, whom now shall I believe?" Colonel Allen moved with emotion, said: "My precious baby, believe your mother."

His philosophy and skepticism were powerless and helpless in the hour of death.

Robert Ingersoll could not get away from the sense of immortality when he said over the casket of his brother, "There is a narrow vale between the cold and barren peak of two eternities. We strive in vain to look beyond the heights. We cry aloud and the only answer is the echo of our wailing cry. From the voiceless lips of the unreplying dead there comes no word; but in the night of death hope sees a star and listening love can hear the rustle of a wing."

VIII. ABRAHAM'S FOUR SURRENDERS.

Moody tells about it in one of his intensely biblical sermons.

1. When he went out from his kindred and his native country at God's call. Gen. 12.

2. When he surrendered his rights. Gen. 13.

3. When he surrendered the chance to get rich at the hands of the King of Sodom. Gen. 14:22.

4. When he surrendered his son Isaac. Gen. 22.

IX. LIFE AS SERVICE TO GOD AND A LOST

WORLD. 1 CHRON. 29:5.

Bishop Fisher writes:

"When Lord Shaftesbury, through the weakness of old age, came near to his death, he delivered a final address to the House of Lords in England. In this address he made the following remarkable statement, showing the tenderness of his heart and the breadth of his love for men: 'My Lords, I am now an old man. I realize that I am soon to die, and I am deeply grieved because I cannot bear to leave the world with so much misery in it.' This was a loving valedictory for an old and beautiful Christian about to leave the world."

The biography of the great Christians of the world is a rich literature. David Livingstone went out across the world to Africa and laid down his life there for the one hundred and fifty millions of black people who roamed the continent without knowledge of Christ or civilization. What a wonderful sentence his diary contains! It is this, "How gladly would I die to heal this open sore of the world!" Robert Morrison went out across the world to the great country of China and through a lifetime of Christian service founded schools, hospitals, and churches. He was succeeded by other great Christian spirits, who have carried the work forward to greater glory. William Carey went out across the world to India and spent his whole life in the study of Indian languages and in the translation of the Bible. Adoniram Judson went out across the world to Burma and languished there in prison for the sake of carrying the message of Jesus Christ to the Burmese people."

Dr. Selle In Arkansas.

Rev. Robert L. Selle, of the Oklahoma Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, who has been active in the evangelistic field for a number of years, holding successful meetings in Oklahoma, Kansas, Texas, Arkansas, Tennessee, North Carolina, Alabama, California, and other states, has taken the pastorate of First Methodist Church of Rogers, Arkansas, where he is putting on a program of evangelism and development of church activities such as is needed in every church throughout the land. Dr. Selle will take some time to devote to evangelism outside of his own great parish where pastors and churches are anxious for real spiritual revivals. He may be addressed at Rogers, Arkansas, 212 North Second St.

MODERN APOSTLES OF FAITH.

Rev. C. F. Wimberly, D.D.

A. B. SIMPSON.

CHAPTER III.

HERE is very little true history written; we get from such so-called volumes the doings of armies and parliaments; we get the externals of civilization. We repeat that, history makers are God-sent men, working behind the scene, touching invisible powers; they deal in the realm of the supernatural. A. B. Simpson was one of God's history makers; a builder of an invisible empire. Like Muller, Hudson Taylor, and John Wesley, he tapped the artesian fountains of spiritual energies, and injected his marvelous personality into the world, second to no man of his generation.

The Christian and Missionary Alliance is just what the name suggests, an organization within the churches; until recent years had no separate body in all its work throughout the country. It was a "wheel within a wheel," as it were; the devout of every denomination were banded together for prayer and missionary endeavor. They usually rented a hall in the larger cities, where they gathered, preached and anointed for healing. From these scattered groups, all belong to their own churches, funds were collected for missions, the result of which is one of the marvels of missionary history.

However, their work has assumed a much larger sphere than formerly; they now have pastors, churches, tabernacles, schools, hospitals, and publishing houses, and a great constituency, which tithe with the Lord, and the work they are doing for world evangelization puts to shame many of the well organized denominations of America.

The man who inaugurated this movement was from sturdy Scotch stock; from the clans of "Bonnie Highlands," who were never conqueror, and bowed to no master except the King of kings. The Simpson family emigrated from Morayshire, Scotland, in 1774, and settled in Prince Edward Island, and belonged to the old "governmenters", who signed the documents of loyalty in their own blood. A. B. Simpson's father came to Canada in 1847, and settled in the primeval forests, where he carved out a home in the Ontario wilderness. A large family of children were reared in this home, and under the most rigid Puritan Scotch regime.

The father held religious services in the home, reading the Bible, and other books far beyond their understanding. The mother was a gentle, poetic soul, who reveled in classic literature. Mr. Simpson dedicated his two sons to the Christian ministry, giving little thought to their personal salvation, owing to his predestinarian theology. Both sons prepared for college, but finances were such that there was not enough to keep both in school at the same time.

Many times A. B. Simpson's life was preserved in a miraculous manner, and this fact made a profound impression on his young mind, even before he could interpret spiritual truths. His conversion was brought about during a long, and serious illness; each day he had a feeling that he was going to die, and this kept him in a great agony of spirit, as he was without saving faith. At last the true light came to him, and when he recovered sufficiently, he signed a covenant with the Lord, which was an earnest of the religious character then in the making: fidelity in the face of every earthly obstacle.

This young man finally entered Knox College, Toronto, in 1861, with a large class of ministerial students, many of whom became famous, and near-famous. Early in his college career, he tried for, and won two or three scholarships and prizes which were a source of great help in his struggling effort to carry on his college course. He was ordained in the church which became later, the Canadian Presbyterian Church. While yet a student, his preaching ability was recognized wherever he "filled a pulpit." He was graduated from Knox College in June, 1865, and was at once received on trial by the Ontario Synod, and called to the Knox Presbyterian Church, Hamilton, where he very soon distinguished himself as one of the most brilliant young ministers of Canada. He proved not only to be a great gospel preacher, with unusual insight to the truths of God, but he was a tender pastor, keeping a careful oversight with his people by pastoral visitation. On the day following his ordination to his first pastorate, he was married to Margaret Henry, of Toronto, a sweetheart of college days. They took a brief honeymoon down the St. Lawrence River, and were given a warm, Christian welcome to the manse of Knox Church.

The Hamilton pastorate was a success in a large measure; during nine years seven hundred and fifty new members were received into communion, and a big debt on the church liquidated. The Evangelical Alliance Conference met in New York, 1873, and A. B. Simpson was there as a delegate. During the conference he was invited to preach in the Thirteenth Street Presbyterian Church. In the audience were some delegates from the Chestnut Street Presbyterian Church, of Louisville, Ky., then without a pastor. Shortly afterwards, Mr. Simpson received an urgent call from this church, which was accepted, and was to take effect in December following.

This pastorate in Louisville marked the turning point in his career. Chestnut Street was one of the most important charges in the Northern Presbyterian denomination, and paid a princely salary of $5,000 a year. In the former years, A. B. Simpson had been a true exponent of all the conservative ideals of his denomination; but a new vision came to him shortly after assuming this charge. It was not long before the city discovered that a real personality was in their midst. Louisville was on the borderline between the North and South; even in one communion, there remained bitter antagonisms, and sectional strife. The pastor decided that there was but one remedy, and that was a genuine revival, and at once set about to organize for it. All the pastors were called together, and a campaign was inaugurated, with Major Whittle as the evangelist, then famous throughout the country; and P. P. Bliss was the leader in song. The whole city was awakened, and brought under the influence of the great gospel preaching; especially was this true of the Chestnut Street Church. After the revival, he undertook a union Sunday night service, but in this he failed to get the co-operation of the other churches. Then he decided to put this meeting on alone, and the Public Library Hall was secured, seating about two thousand people; this new departure of religious activities met with unusual success; it brought upon Mr. Simpson a lot of strong criticism; but the press of the city gave the movement their full endorsement.

The next step in city evangelism was to build a big tabernacle, and Fourth and Broadway was selected; the building committee planned a much more expensive building than the pastor wanted; and there a big debt was incurred. When the day for dedication arrived, Mr. Simpson refused to dedicate, until it was free of debt. This disagreement resulted in the pastor resigning the pulpit, and accepting the pulpit of Thirteenth Street Presbyterian Church, New York City. However, about one year later, they wired him to come to Louisville and dedicate the church, as it was free of debt. This great church was dedicated as "Warren Memorial" in honor of the man whose generous donation made it possible to remove the debt.

We cannot interpret the ministry of A. B. Simpson in Louisville, and the unprecedented attitude he assumed without knowing of the great spiritual crisis that came to him under the Spirit-filled ministry of Major Whittle. He became convicted for the "Fullness of the Blessing of Christ," and he sought until he received his Pentecost, and was sanctified through faith in provisions of the Atonement. His cultured people rejoiced in his evangelistic zeal for the unchurched, but would not follow him in the way "more perfectly," the way of holiness. Speaking of his Ebenezer Stones of his life, he said: "Twenty-seven years ago I floundered in the waters of despondency, and got out by believing in Jesus as my Savior; twelve years ago I got into deep conviction and got out by believing in Jesus as my Sanctifier. After years of teaching and waiting on him, he showed me that it was his blessed will to be my complete Savior for my body as well as my soul." Those three crises gave to the world, A. B. Simpson, internationally known leader in the things of the Kingdom.

The revelation of Jesus as Healer, came to Mr. Simpson after he had gone to New York as pastor of that church, when his health completely gave way, and the doctors told him he could not possibly live but a few months. The next great truth that came to him as an epoch maker—it had been growing on him for some years—that Jesus was not only a Savior, Sanctifier, and Healer, but the Coming King; that he will return bodily, as the rightful ruler of this world. The gospel, therefore, that A. B. Simpson and his world-wide followers have preached, is known as the "Four-fold Gospel." With supreme emphasis on these truths, they have conquered.

Mr. Simpson soon discovered the wide chasm between him and his New York congregation; they could not appreciate his vision. At last a decision was reached, and A. B. Simpson, without manse, salary, or following—with a large family to support—stepped down and out from one of the most lucrative pulpits in America, paying him a salary which would be equivalent to ten or fifteen thousand dollars a year these days. And this church in the nation's greatest metropolis. His ministerial friends looked upon his move as utter folly, and saw no possible chance of success. But he had heard the "Macedonian Cry," not only from the unchurched masses of New York, but from the "regions beyond." This daring step was taken in November, 1881.

They opened the work in Caledonian Hall, Eighth Avenue and Thirteenth Street, with seven souls present. The number increased, and soon larger quarters had to be secured to accommodate the interested people; the Park Theater was rented for the Sunday evening crowds. From there they went to the Academy of Music, and finally to Madison Square Garden, for a great campaign, with Dr. Geo. F. Pentecost as the evangelist. In May, 1882, Simpson and his workers met in Grand Opera Hall, which was their headquarters for two years for all activities. Thus began the movement, which is today so well known as the Christian and Missionary Alliance, with Tabernacles and organizations in all the great cities of this country, and in many neglected places among the southern mountains. Not only are they doing a remarkable work in America, but they have

THE WORDS OF JESUS THE CHRIST.

Walter Estes Harrison, A.B., M.D.

"Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away." Matt. 24:35.

WHAT a strong figure our Lord uses to emphasize the certainty of the fulfillment of his words! The earth, the moon, the sun, the host of heaven, which seem eternal to the natural mind, are not like the words of the Son of God. They shall pass away; the "words of Jesus shall remain."

It is significant that he says "words" and not "word." It is not the Bible as a whole that he is speaking of but the words, the small signs of ideas, that make up that whole. Matthew and Mark might be destroyed and yet the truth they contain would be preserved to us in Luke and John, but take out words here and there or change them to other words and the truth is destroyed. From the first of Genesis to the last of Revelation the "words" of the Bible are more than significant. The Holy Spirit saw to it that Moses should use a Hebrew word which means to create or bring into existence what did not exist before in Genesis 1:1 and 1:27, while in 2:7 the word "formed" is used as man's body is spoken of, and it was made of what existed before.

The Lord of life having put such emphasis on his w-o-r-d-s it behooves us to "give the more earnest heed" lest we miss their meaning. They are not something that are juggled with to hide truth; they are not used as men use words to approximate truth, but they say exactly what they are intended to say, they are used so as to give the exact shading of truth.

The value of words in the Bible is shown when Jesus hangs the resurrection of the dead on the present tense of the word "to be." In answering a quibbling question propounded by the Sadducees Christ quotes from the Pentateuch God's words to Moses at the burning bush, "I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac and the God of Jacob." His comment on these words, "God is not the God of the dead, but of the living," says that God is, is now their God, not was while they were in the earthly life.

Now that we see how Christ evaluates words let us look further at some of his words. In talking to the woman at the well of Sychar Jesus said, "the water that I shall give him shall be in him a well of water springing to everlasting life." The meaning is evident. He compares the new birth to a well or spring of water.

Now notice a verse in the seventh chapter of John. "He that believeth on me . . . from within him shall flow rivers of living water." Again there can be no mistake as to the meaning. The verse following gives an exposition. "But this spake he of the Spirit which they that believed on him should receive." (R. V.). They, his disciples, had believed. At Pentecost they "should receive" the Holy Ghost.

It is not an accident that in one place Jesus uses a well as a type of spiritual life and in another a river. The well is a type of conversion the river is a type of the baptism with the Holy Ghost. The second is just a larger volume of the first. The well has life, the river has life,—and power.

Yet weather springs will not do. They stop running when the rain stops. Tanks will not do, they have wiggle tails in them. God wants you to have a well, then a river.

Notice again how Christ used a word in the superlative degree. "I am come that ye might have life, and that ye might have it more abundantly." We know that he is speaking of spiritual life for in another place he says, "He that believeth on me hath eternal life." Here he is speaking of having this spiritual life in a superlative degree.

Vegetable life will give us a good illustration of the meaning of this verse. I have seen the clay pea grow, or exist rather, in soil so poor that it could just manage to put on one or two pods, with few peas in the pods. Again I have seen the same pea in a cornfield where it had made a solid mass of vine, bloom and pod covering the face of the ground and climbing all over the corn. You could not say that the first peas in poor soil did not have life, they did, and fruit, but they did not fulfill their function like the second did. The Son of God was saying that he wanted us to have life like the last field of peas. In regeneration you get life, in sanctification you get abundant life.

There are two kinds of joy, that of the world and spiritual joy. There are degrees of spiritual joy. In John 15:11 are these words: "These things have I spoken unto you that my joy might remain in you and that your joy might be full." And in 16:24 these words: "Ask and ye shall receive, that your joy may be full." There can be no "fullness of joy" unless there is "Joy." Jesus says, "that my joy might remain . . . and that your joy might be full." One of the fruits of every regenerated Christian is "Joy." But that joy is not full. This fullness of joy has not only the idea of full to the top, but staying full. That is the joy that remains when sadness and death come. It cannot be explained, but it can be experienced.

What Jesus says of his words is also true of the words in the rest of the New Testament for they too, are "outbreathed of God." The word "sanctified" in 1 Cor. 1:2 is used synonymously with "regenerated." But the word is used in a different sense in 1 Thess. 5:23. It is not the word "sanctify" itself that I wish to notice so much as two words that are used with it. The first one the intensive pronoun "himself" used in the American revised Bible. "The God of peace himself sanctify you." This calls attention to the fact that it is not that kind of sanctification which is legal or human, that kind that is the same as consecration. God cannot consecrate me. I am free. I must do that. But I cannot make my heart pure; God must do that. The sanctification I get by my own effort is legal. It puts me where God can give me his kind, which is to make the legal sanctification evangelical sanctification. The other word that is used in this verse is the adverb "wholly." The Greek word here means quite completely, wholly to the end. In the vulgate it is per omnia, which means, in all your collective powers and parts. Dr. Daniel Steel says that the Greek word used for "wholly" is an adjective with an adverbial use and that it is found nowhere else in the New Testament or the Septuagint. So the Holy Ghost coined it to teach us that there are two kinds of sanctification, that the first cleanses from the guilt of sin and the second from the principle of sin. Amen!

One more superlative. We have "victory through our Lord Jesus Christ" when we become his. We have victory over the power of sin, but not over its principle, at least not completely to the end. But there is such a thing as being more than victor. "Who shall separate us from the love of Christ? Shall tribulation, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or peril, or sword? Nay, in all these things we are more than conquerors through him that loved us."

Did you ever see two roosters fight till both were exhausted and one of them turned and staggered away and hid? Then did you notice the other look like he was saying, "I am glad you ran, for I was just fixing to myself." He was victor, but that was all. Christian, have you not been in the same place in your fight against the world, the flesh, and the devil?

You can be like this other picture if you will. A rusty looking little game cock is attacked by that dude of the barnyard, a white leghorn. The game runs at him, leaps into the air and knocks him end over end. The white fellow, minus a handful of feathers, runs for his life. The game flies up on the fence and crows a challenge to any other cock that wants to try him. He is more than conqueror.

Remember my text, "Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away." Then these words to which I have called your attention are not accidents. They have been placed there by the Holy Spirit and if we believe we shall receive what they promise.

Whenever we grow impatient and lose faith in man and in the march of events, God's book bids us look at things in God's way. William R. Crane.

THE MIGHT OF SACRIFICIAL LOVE.

Rev. E. Stanley Jones, D.D.

PART III.

MOREOVER, from whence did this sacrificial spirit come which is found in the best men? I turn to Nature and ask whether she gave it. But Nature knows little about it. Her message on sacrifice is weak. Nature spells law, unbending and unforgiving. Huxley wrote to Kingsley: "I cannot see a shadow or tittle of evidence that the great Unknown underlying the phenomena of the universe stands to us in the relation of a Father, loves us and cares for us as Christianity asserts." And if we looked for evidence only where Huxley looked, we would say the same. He could find only law, and not fatherly love in lower Nature. Nature did not and could not give us the sacrificial spirit. Ex nihilo nihil fit—out of nothing nothing comes. If nature lacks it, and likewise God, then earth's finest spirit is unaccounted for. But suppose what man has is but an echo of the Divine, that we, who have been made in the image of the Divine, have it because God had it before us, that it is a transcript of God's nature—then the matter is plain, for this quality seems Divine and must have come from the bosom of the Divine.

I cannot believe that God would write a law of saving by sacrifice through the universe and be empty of it himself. I cannot believe God would put an impulse to sacrifice within our hearts and draw back from it himself. The Psalmist asks: "He that created the eye shall he not see?" and Browning adds, "He that created love shall he not love" and we may ask, "He that created sacrificial love, shall he not sacrifice?"

That which we feel in our best moments, in fatherhood, in motherhood, in friendship, in martyrdom, blazes forth into light in the cross of suffering. Here we understand our own deepest experiences. God thus interpreted becomes the interpretation and the fulfilment of our noblest moments. This is illustrated by a scene on the battlefields of France. Some Punjabi Mussalmans waited on the authorities and asked that crosses be put over the graves of their fallen comrades. They were told that this could not be done as the cross was a Christian symbol, but that other suitable signs would be put over the graves of their dead. But they insisted, saying, "Yes, we know the cross is a Christian symbol; but the cross has come to stand for the highest self-sacrifice, and we want that sign to be put over our dead." They understood their deepest experiences in the light of the cross.

If there is not a loving sacrificial God in the universe then there ought to be! The highest in man and the universe calls for it. The old Chinese scholar was right, who, after having listened for the first time to the story of the loving, sacrificing God, exclaimed to his neighbor, "Didn't I tell you there ought to be a God like that?" The spiritual instincts of the old man brought him closer to reality than the disquisitions of the philosophers. Plato too seemed to catch a fleeting vision of this when in the Republic he says, "The perfectly good man would meet disaster, and finally would come to death by impaling or crucifixion." And still nearer the truth and with a surer vision, the poet in the Rig Veda cries, "Prajapati, the Lord of creatures himself was their sacrifice. He gave himself for them." In the Mahayanist writings the Bodhisattva is represented as reflecting on the evil state of wicked men and thus resolving: "For their sake I will, in the midst of the three evil creations, suffer all their sufferings and deliver every one of them. Painful as their sufferings are I will not retreat, I will not be frightened, I will not be negligent, I will not forsake my fellow beings. Why? Because it is the will (of the Dharmakaya) that all sentient beings should be universally emancipated." Later than these, Tulsi Das in the Ramayan catches a glimpse of this truth where he says: "For the love he bore his followers Rama took the form of a man, and by himself enduring misery secured their happiness." These seemed dimly to feel the necessity and to greet it from afar. Man's spiritual instincts have felt the necessity of a sacrificial God.

We have thought of a sacrificial God, and common sense would say that we have not thought higher and nobler than the truth of things. In answer to our anxious questionings God replies, "O heart I made, a heart beats here."

Again, if we believe in incarnation or even in immanence, we cannot but be brought to this same thought and conclusion. "Immanence is costly to God. God cannot keep himself so near to sin without suffering the perpetual cross on account of that sin." Our joy becomes His joy and our pain becomes his pain. He is not a mere spectator. An immanent God is a suffering God; and an incarnate God, by reason of the deeper identification with man, passes into a deeper sympathy, and consequently a deeper suffering, than a merely immanent God. The cross is the culmination of the identification. If there is incarnation there is identification, and if there is identification there is suffering—there is a cross.

most miserable. "There is nothing so absolutely blessed as to suffer well." There is another consideration that brings an impressive lesson, namely, that the higher in the scale of being we go, the greater do we find the obligation of parenthood toward the offspring. In lower life parenthood involves little responsibility and little consequent suffering on behalf of the offspring. But when we come to man we find that the lengthened period of infancy involves parenthood in a degree of care and suffering to which lower life is a stranger. When we come to God we would expect Parenthood in him to involve an infinite degree of care and vicarious suffering on behalf of his children. God could not ask the human parent to undergo suffering on behalf of his children, and not be willing himself to undergo the larger responsibility and suffering on behalf of his own.

One of the recent discoveries of science is the fact of the unity or solidarity of all life. We are not isolated particles, without relationship, floating in the ether of time. All life is bound up with all other life. You cannot touch life anywhere without affecting all other life, both up and down the scale of being. There is a social solidarity in all life, so that if one stood at the centre he could raise all life with him. Jesus Christ thus stood at the centre of life. God and man met in him. As "Son of Man", mankind suffered in him; and as "Son of God", God suffered in him. In this synthesis of suffering, the lower life is raised by the Higher Life taking on itself the burdens and sufferings and sin of the lower.

But we are met by the objection that "it is unjust for the innocent to suffer for the guilty." This is the argument that seems conclusive and would nullify all our hopes and reasonings upon the subject. But one who would hold this to be conclusive has not looked at life very closely. Let us look at the objection for a moment. Here is a mother with a son who is breaking her heart. She had splendid hopes for him, but now he is spending his days in reckless folly and evil. You go to that mother and say, "It is unjust for you to suffer in this way on account of your son. You are innocent and he is guilty. It is unjust." She would look at you with a pained expression and say, "Suffer for my son—unjust? It is the very thing that motherhood within me wants to do. My heart longs to do it." Could we in the name of justice deny to that mother the privilege of suffering for her son? In the name of justice would you deny to her the privilege of being noble? Suppose we should say to her, "You must deal with your child after the manner of strict justice. Whatever he gives to you you may give in return—no more, no less." Would she obey you if she were a real mother? Would you really want her to do so? A family life founded upon strict justice alone would become a baniya ship, where good deeds are bargained for and paid for in the coin of similar deeds. The finest thing in life would die, namely, sacrificial love.

As Bushnell says: "When we deal with an enemy according to the 'eye for an eye and the tooth for a tooth doctrine,' which is strict justice, we are on his level. When we, abandoning that low level, try to do him good, forgive him and win him, we rise above him. There is a justice above justice in which, as a righteous man, I am bound to subordinate the lower ranges of vindictive impulse and give myself to courses of patience and suffering sacrifice that I may gain my enemy."

fering, than a merely immanent God. The cross is the culmination of the identification. If there is incarnation there is identification, and if there is identification there is suffering—there is a cross.

We may look at it from another standpoint. "Pain increases as life becomes higher." Man has sufferings to which the brute is a stranger. The perfect man would be, and was "The Man of Sorrows." In God then there would be a greater capacity for pain and suffering than man has.

But we must not lose sight of the counter truth. As life becomes higher joy also increases. We have joys to which the brute is a stranger. Through suffering higher joys are reached. The "Man of Sorrows" was "anointed with the oil of gladness above his fellows." A sacrificial God would know joys deeper than a God who held aloof. The happiest people are those who sacrifice most for the sake of others; the most selfish are the kept on the foreign field an average of three hundred missionaries, preaching the Four-fold Gospel in sixteen foreign fields.

A Methodist bishop once said that, "The Premillennial doctrine of our Lord's Return would cut the spinal cord of missions." The ministry of A. B. Simpson utterly refutes that statement. Until within the past decade, The Christian and Missionary Alliance, through the faith of one man, giving this doctrine pre-eminence was doing mission work in more countries—twice the number—and with more missionaries than the whole church to which this bishop belonged.

The movement started in Caledonian Hall in 1881, shifted about in a dozen locations, until in 1890, a permanent home was built at Eighth Avenue and Forty-fourth Street. This plant has a large book-room facing the Avenue, with a spacious Tabernacle in the rear, with training school quarters and the Alliance Home facing Forty-fourth Street. This Tabernacle is one of the greatest evangelical centers of the city; the leading men of this, and other nations are called to this pulpit.

Nearly a score of missions doing a variety of service, have been established in New York and Brooklyn, caring for those dark corners of sin and degradation with a message of Hope. The Alliance has a fine Training School at Nyack-on-the-Hudson, some twenty miles north of the city, beautifully located, looking down on the majestic river.

A. B. Simpson began early in his ministry, the gospel of the printed page, and in addition to about twenty-five soul-stirring books from his pen, he published various periodicals, and today, they have a modern, well-equipped publishing house, where every character of spiritual literature is given to their people; the central organ is the Alliance Weekly, a strongly edited religious journal giving always the latest and most timely news from the home and foreign fields.

A. B. Simpson was a great prophet; the mysteries of God were revealed to him. He was a man of prayer, and an indefatigable worker, who passed to his eternal reward October 29, 1919. A fallen prince who had power with God and man had prevailed.

Asbury Theological Seminary.

Z. T. JOHNSON, A.M.

FOR since the school started her work Asbury College has been giving her students theological training. It has been the plan of the authorities for a long time, however, to put on regular seminary work. This has been possible only for a few years now.

When the new boys' dormitory, Morrison Hall, was planned several years ago it was arranged with the idea of making it not only a dormitory for the preacher boys who should come to Asbury, but also to have it set apart for a Theological Seminary building. Hence it was built with that purpose in view. It is a handsome structure. The basement is really the first floor. It is divided into eight rooms for classes and has a wide hallway, and two bathrooms. On the first floor are several class rooms and a large chapel. The other two floors house the young preachers of the school.

Morrison Hall is occupied only by students who are preparing for the ministry. No others are allowed to room there. Thus you see that with its own class rooms, etc., it is separate from the direct work of the college. This makes for greater efficiency in caring for the theological end of the work.

The administration of the Seminary is separate from that of the College. Dr. H. C. Morrison is President; Dr. L. R. Akers is Vice President, and Dr. F. H. Larabee is Dean. There are several prominent men on the faculty. These men have not only had the necessary training in the schools to qualify them for the work of teaching, but have also had wide experience in the pastorate and evangelistic fields. Dr. Larabee is thoroughly trained and is a man of several years' experience in college and seminary work. Dr. Ridout is a writer of note. He has spent many years in the evangelistic field and is a teacher of experience. Dr. Morris came from a large pastorate in Indiana to teach. He is thoroughly equipped for the great work he is doing. Dr. Harrison is a man of seasoned experience in school work and evangelistic fields. The other teachers know their work and do it well.

The character of the work done in the Seminary is equal to that of any other school of its class. The basis of the teaching, of course, is on the fundamentals of the Bible. No doubts are taught the students. The most intricate questions of criticism are delved into, but there is always the element of faith that is sponsored by the teacher.

The students use the regular College library for their reference work. They are blessed in this, for some of the best classics ever written on religious questions have been put on the shelves. Some of the older books are there, as well as the newer ones. They also have the same chapel privileges as the College students. Thus they have the privilege of hearing some of the leading preachers of the country preach and lecture from the College platform. All in all, the preacher who wants to really prepare for the ministry, who wants to come out of the seminary a soul-winner, who wants his faith strengthened, and who wants to lay a foundation for stalwart Christian service should attend Asbury Theological Seminary.

The Element Carbon.

A. E. HOLT.

FOR illustrating Christian truths the realm of nature has always been a fruitful source of facts. Our Master himself often drew from this supply. But as we look back upon the comparatively limited fund of knowledge he was permitted to use, how much richer are we of this day with all the new resources that scientific discovery has placed in our hands.

One such new field for exploration is Chemistry. It is a veritable mine of wealth, the various physical elements representing principles or agencies of like characteristics existing in the spiritual world. In this article we will take up one of these elements—Carbon.

To begin with, Carbon exists in the atmosphere; hence it can be called a celestial or heavenly element. It is very abundant also in the earth; but as all the terrestrial Carbon has apparently been derived from the air, it can be truthfully said to be of heavenly origin. So Christ, or Christianity, to which I am likening Carbon, has likewise come down to us from above.

That Carbon is the principle of life is another way in which it is symbolic of Christ, or Christianity. It is the most important constituent of all living organisms. Extracted from the air by the leaves of plants it becomes a part of our food, and also of us; and dissolved in the water of the ocean is the chief source of marine life. Of course one could mention here the part also played by Hydrogen and Oxygen, two other celestial elements,—but that is material for another essay.

Now Carbon exists in the earth in three uncombined, or nearly uncombined forms—coal, graphite, and the diamond. In their symbolic interpretation, coal, as a source of heat, light, power and industrial activity, is the material aspect of Christianity. Just as we get these benefits from coal, so are the corresponding blessings in our religion. That the Christian countries of the earth are the largest coal producers, agrees with this interpretation. Graphite, used in lead pencils and came from the Greek word to write, represents moral training and education, which also everywhere accompanies Christianity. In this connection it is significant that all our books and writing materials—paper, ink, cloth and leather covers, and even chalk—contain this indispensable substance. The very highest, the spiritual, the æsthetic attributes of Christ shine forth in that gem of matchless purity and beauty, the diamond. In these three grand divisions there is material enough for many sermons.

Further truths of vast import can be secured from an examination of the compounds, or combinations, that Carbon makes with other elements. Thus Carbon is a leading constituent of limestones and marbles, which furnish us with building stone, lime, cement and mortar. Wood is also one-half Carbon.

Another department—and a very profound one—for the study of Carbon is iron and steel making. In limestone, and as coke, it is employed in the smelting of iron ore, and in the subsequent processes of refining it is the one ingredient that transforms the raw metal into steel. Here the doctrinal truths of Christianity stand out in all their clearness and perfection. Even the terms in use are strikingly similar; for steel plants have converters, regenerative furnaces and even pulpits.

One more impressive fact about Carbon is the time of its appearance in the formation of the earth, several geological ages having first passed before it came down to impart life to the seas and clothe the dry land with verdure.

My purpose in writing this article is to show the remarkable similarity between Carbon and Christianity, and to recommend the study of this element for an easier understanding of divine truth. Just as Carbon is the principal source of our food, our clothes, our building materials, our educational supplies, our temporal comforts, our industrial prosperity, and even the precious diamond, so are all these good things available in Christ. Moreover, as Carbon is the one essential in the smelting and refining of iron ore, in like manner Christ is the only power that can take man in his natural state, purify him, and make of him an instrument of service and blessing to the world.

It would not do to close this sketch without calling attention to some of the perverted uses to which men have degraded this worthy element. For Carbon is put into gunpowder and explosives, and is also in alcohol. This, however, only serves to strengthen our analogy. That every good thing can be applied to evil purposes is a sad truth, everywhere confirmed. And the fact that the Christian nations of the earth are those most guilty of warfare and intoxicants makes a rather tragic ending to this little treatise on Carbon.

A Word of Recommendation.

I am happy indeed to speak a hearty word of recommendation for my good friend, Rev. J. M. Hames, of Greer, S. C., whom I have known many years. He is a man of studious habits, deep piety, and has a genuine evangelistic passion. He has given years of intensive evangelism to his own denomination and I believe his ministry and message would have real worth to all churches, camp meetings and conventions. I, therefore, commend him to the brethren everywhere.

REPORTS FROM SOUL WINNERS

FUNDAMENTALIST CONVENTION A GREAT SUCCESS.

Andrew Johnson.

The first regular Annual Fundamentalist Convention recently held at Wilmore, Ky., was a wonderful success. Large crowds attended and a great program was rendered. We shall not take the space to give anything like a detailed account of this instructive and inspirational convention, but will merely touch upon the high points and the prominent features of the feast of fat things.

Rev. W. L. Clark, the pastor of the Methodist Church, South, Richmond, Ky., delivered the first main address. He discussed the "earmarks" of the Kentucky Methodist Modernists. He said they did not believe in revivals, laid great stress on being broad and liberal, denied total depravity and substituted decision day for the mourners' bench.

Rev. T. T. Martin, a heroic fighting fundamentalist, dropped into the convention and stirred the people with a great speech against Evolution. He dealt a heavy blow to the evolutionary theory refuting its claims based on Natural Selection, Transmission of Acquired Characteristic and Geology. Dr. Martin is a sworn enemy to modernism and is making himself felt in defense of Fundamentalism.

Dr. J. W. Porter, of Lexington, Ky., former editor of The Western Recorder, gave a splendid speech on the "Missing Link." He proved that the missing link is still missing and exposed the unfair and unscientific methods of the Modernists.

Rev. Mark Collis of Lexington, the well-known Christian pastor and fundamentalist of long standing and high repute, delivered a message on the "Stability of Spiritual Law." He pointed out the different errors that have been grouped around the conception of the Triune God—Father, Son and Holy Spirit. He was a great blessing and benediction to the convention.

Rev. John Paul, D.D., President of Taylor University, contributed much to the success of the Convention. He brought a great message on the subject, "Christ Among the Scientists"—in which he demonstrated the reasonableness and reality of the Virgin Birth. He delivered a fine address to the student body of Asbury College (the chapel service being held in the church during the convention) on the divine injunction, "Let no man take thy crown."

Among our local men who spoke at the convention were Rev. L. L. Pickett, Rev. J. W. Hughes, Rev. O. C. Seever and Rev. George W. Ridout, D. D. Rev. Pickett read a strong paper on "Why I am a Premillennialist." Dr. Ridout, one of the contributing editors of The Herald, read a well-prepared paper on the question, "Shall the Fundamentalists Win?" He pointed out the essential prerequisites to victory. He emphasized the necessity of conducting the present controversy on high levels.

Dr. Harold Paul Sloan, D.D., of Hattenfield, N. J., President of the Methodist League for Life and Faith, attended the convention and gave us two stirring addresses. He is making a gallant fight on Modernism in American Methodism.

Prof. Leander S. Keyser, a learned Lutheran of Whittenberg College, Springfield, Ohio, completely captured the convention and made a profound impression upon all who heard his superlative lectures on "A Lamp unto my Feet and a Light unto my Pathway" and "Godliness is Profitable unto all Things, Having the Promise of the Life that Now is and of That Which is to Come." His speech was in the form of a sermon-lecture-address. He declared that the Bible gave us the only true, authoritative and official information on the three great subjects of Origin, Purpose and Destiny. The origin of the universe, the origin of life, the origin of man and the origin of species. The Scriptures, he said, gave us the true purpose of life, which he defined as follows: to serve, trust and obey God; to help others and to prepare ourselves for the future glory. The Bible is the supreme authority and the infallible information on the subject of Immortality and the Future Life.

His sermon or address on godliness, the promise of the life that now is and that which is to come, was a masterpiece. He expounded the Scriptures, explored the fields of philosophy, delved into the depths of science and searched to the heights of soteriology. All who attended—and the number was large—rendered the same verdict that the convention was one of the greatest blessings that ever came to Wilmore.

ATHENS, OHIO.

A great revival has just closed at the Plains, M. E. Church, of which Rev. I. P. Day is pastor. Rev. Day was the pastor-evangelist, preaching the old-time gospel in its power and demonstration. He visited from house to house, praying in the homes, and inviting the people to church until the whole town was stirred for the Lord. The second Sunday of the revival was the greatest service held in the church in nineteen years. All of the other churches of the town came to the Methodist Church to worship and hear Rev. Day preach on Scriptural Holiness. It was a great day for the Lord. During the revival there were 86 conversion, also 84 united with the churches; 54 united with the Methodist Church, 27 united with the Nazarene Church, and 3 united with the Church of God. People are still getting saved in the community since the revival closed. This was a revival where people prayed through at the altar, and the church was led on to holiness. Praise the Lord. I. P. Day.

REPORT.

At the Kentucky Annual Conference of the M. E. Church in Maysville, Ky., we were appointed to the Advance M. E. Church. All the appointments have been filled for first quarter, and all claims have been paid in full, and things are looking bright for the future. Our faithful District Superintendent, Rev. E. R. Overly, came to us and held the first quarterly meeting, preaching three fine sermons which were encouraging and helpful. He is certainly making good on the Ashland district.

We closed out a successful four-weeks' meeting Dec. 19. When we began this meeting the conditions in the church were very unfavorable for a revival as the people had become discouraged and inactive in the work of the Lord. Congregations were good in the beginning of the meeting and increased as the work continued. After the first few services there was not a service to the very close in which there were not seekers for pardon, reclamation, or purification, and they prayed through in the old-fashioned way. There were forty-five testified to receiving one or the other of these blessings. Praying people from local churches of the community came in which added greatly to the success of the meeting. We never witnessed deeper conviction or brighter cases of pardon and purity in all our ministry; there was quite a good deal of genuine shouting among the saints when one after another of the seekers prayed through. It was said to be the best meeting in the history of the church. Things are looking bright. God is blessing, the church is looking up, and expecting great things from the Lord.

REPORT OF EVANGELIST W. W. LOVELESS.

The year of 1926 was a busy year for me in the evangelistic field. I was privileged to labor in fourteen different revivals in churches, tents, camps, and missions in various parts of the country. My revivals were with different denominations; and it seems to me that I met some of the most consecrated and Spirit-filled pastors and laymen it was ever my privilege to labor with. It was my privilege to see hundreds of earnest seekers at my altars during the year, and the most of them were happy finders for one or both works of grace. God also blessed me with almost perfect health the entire year, for which I devoutly thank him.

My last revival for the year was with the Third Street Holiness Rescue Mission in Columbus, Ohio. We closed a 15-day campaign there on December 19. There were three other holiness revivals going on in the city at the same time; also preparation of Christmas programs was on the people's minds; yet despite these circumstances, we had 95 seekers at the altar during the campaign. Most of these seekers prayed through to a definite experience of regeneration or sanctification. Many of the shining faces, and joyous shouts of praise and victory, as the seekers would pray through, I shall never forget. Bro. G. V. Parker is the Superintendent of this Mission, and I must say he is one of the most indefatigable workers I ever met. This Spirit-filled young man is certainly a terror to Satan and the powers of darkness. Sister Jenny Kocher, and her daughter, Miss Leah, greatly blessed the revival with their beautiful duets. Also Brother Bierd with his good music on the accordion.

The evangelist was well paid, and the people gave a love offering of $40.00 to Brother Parker, the Superintendent. This was our eleventh revival campaign in Columbus in the last thirteen years in various churches and missions, and we surely love the good people of this city.

Our slate for 1927 is filling up nicely, and we are looking forward to a busy year. However, we have some open dates, so anyone desiring our services may address us at London, Ohio.

FAITH FOR A VICTORIOUS NEW YEAR.

The victories of the past year gives us faith for the new year that is now dawning upon us. Last year was full of labors in many states, reaching into New Brunswick, Canada. We hardly lost a day of service. It was only while in transit that we failed to preach a gospel message every time the sun came up and went down, and sometimes three messages a day, and on one or two occasions four messages in a single day, besides we engaged many times during the year in other forms of worship, and service to suffering humanity. We never enjoyed the battle more in the thirty years of continuous labors. We saw several hundred souls bow at the altar and receive pardon, reclamation, and full sanctification, and some very definite cases of healing. We have taken a goodly number of subscriptions to holiness papers, and distributed much sample literature among the people, and have done our best on all lines to help spread scriptural holiness over these lands. When we review the past year's work, we are encouraged to enter into 1927 with faith for a victorious year. We have several meetings and camps slated for the coming year, and I take this method of thanking all those who have prayed for me the past year, or have contributed to the success of the work in any way, also to solicit your prayers, and assistance in the great work of soul-saving this year. You who pray, and contribute in any way to this work will receive your share in the dividends here, and through all eternity.

I am now in the beginning of a revival in Boise, Idaho, which will close January 9. Souls are getting to God in pardon or purity every service, and the prospects for a great closing is most splendid. I go from here to the Methodist Church, Abbyville, Kan., Jan. 13-30, where great preparations are being made for a revival. Soliciting your prayers, and assuring you of my fellowship and faith for a great year for the Holiness Movement, I am yours for service and glory,

J. B. McBride.

112 Arlington Drive, Pasadena, Calif.

ECKFORD, MICHIGAN.

Under the very efficient leadership of evangelists Professor C. C. and Margaret Crammond, the revival meetings just closed, at the West Eckford M. E. Church, were a marked success. Forty-one persons came to the altar, some seeking salvation and some seeking the baptism of the Holy Ghost. The thoroughness of the work done here was shown, not only at the altar but also in prayer and testimony elsewhere. Seven new family altars were erected, and ten more pledged their tithe to the Lord's work. Quite a number will be uniting with the Church—an additional result of the meetings.

These, we think, are especially worthwhile accomplishments since the church has been in action for more than twenty years without a revival. We were compelled to work against much opposition in starting a revival meeting, for some had come to believe that a revival was a childish method of procedure and a thing of the past. Some thought, as many others think still, that full salvation is something which only those highly emotional or intellectually shallow can accept or possess. But many are thanking God for the clear and concise preaching of the truth during the past two weeks. They have found that God pours out his Spirit on all who ask him, whatever their temperament may be.

Our church is looking into the future with brighter hope and in anticipation of greater things for the Kingdom in our community. Surely, the Lord has set his seal upon revival work, and we know of one more church that is back of it with its prayers. I do not hesitate to recommend Brother and Sister Crammond to any church desiring a real revival.

D. L. Reedy, Pastor.

REPORT.

It has been sometime since I have sent in a report, but I have not had a Sunday off since September. The month of September was spent in Colorado. We had a good little meeting at Golden, Colo., with Pastor Dunn. We came on to Denver without a night off where we had salvation scenes from first to last. They have two altars in this church and many times they were both filled and also the front seats. They said the largest crowds attended this revival of any previous revival. Bro. D. I. Vanderpool, their pastor, is one of the great men of the Holiness Movement, he prays the heavens open. We sure enjoyed our stay with this church.

Our next meeting was at Hammond, Ind., with Brother and Sister Turner. They have a great church and people and the church and people in turn have great pastors. We had a gracious time here, both in seekers and church joiners. It was a delight to work with this church and pastors. Canton, Ohio, comes next. This was our fourth meeting in Canton and to my mind there is no finer class of people in the Holiness Movement. Bro. Clark is led of the Holy Ghost as few men whom I know. We helped him string a fine bunch for his church. Room is always at a premium both for seekers and people during his revivals.

Our next meeting was Somerville, Mass. We spent a month at this place and Everett, which is now all Boston. These were our first revivals in New England. The holiness people in New England are a very fine people and not nearly so conservative as we expected to find them. We had many of the New England preachers in our revivals and they shouted and prayed and helped push the battle.

We came from Boston to Philadelphia to begin the Philadelphia Holiness Convention in the Columbia Avenue Methodist Church. My brother John joined me there. We could only give them from Monday over one Sunday. Quite a few preachers of different denominations attended this meeting. Bro. Joseph H. Smith was with us one night. This is one of the large Methodist churches of the city and has the longest altar in the main auditorium that I have ever seen. It was filled and many of the front seats on Sunday morning after a message on Thess. 5:23. They are making great plans for another convention for New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and Delaware, to be held next year. They called my brother and me as workers. We have been home for Christmas and are now ready to leave for Illinois. The year of 1926 has been a busy year, hard on the physical, but we have witnessed some of the greatest victories of our ministry. We wish a Happy New Year to one and all and covet an interest in your prayers.

Bona Fleming.

there a balm in Gilead? This is a vital question. The remedy will not be found in the election of a president or by a change of administration at the Capital of our nation. We must be eager for the enactment of good and wholesome laws and their enforcement, but the only power that can turn the tide of wickedness, bring salvation power back to the Church, faith back to the schools, purity and happiness back to the home, is infinitely higher than anything human. We must have God in his divine authority. We must have Jesus in his compassionate love. We must have the Holy Ghost in his cleansing and empowering for service.

A shallow and sensational evangelism will not reach and remedy the situation. There must be something deep and awful out of Heaven that will regenerate the hearts of men, change their natures, sanctify their hearts and establish them in righteousness and true holiness. There is somewhere in sacred writ the assurance that "when the enemy shall come in like a flood, the Spirit of the Lord shall lift up a standard against him."

God has been true to this comforting promise. Anticipating the World War and knowing the fearful moral conditions which would follow, God raised up the Holiness Movement. Holiness in doctrine, experience, and life is God's tremendous weapon against sin. He used it once before in a great crisis in history. It was in England when spiritual death hung like a pall over the Church, when infidelity was rife in the schools, when literature was saturated with insinuation and inuendo against the Holy Scriptures, when the rich lived in luxury and lust, and the poor raved in anger and formed themselves into riotous mobs. When the British Government was corrupt and tottering to her decay and fall, God summoned from Oxford University a group of young men, wrought powerfully upon their minds and hearts, gave them extraordinary vision, both of the sufficiency of grace and the needs of the race. It was then and there that the Holiness Movement was formed. It came out of the prayers and struggles of the hearts of John and Charles Wesley. United with them in due time was George Whitefield, one of the greatest preachers in the history of the Church, and John Fletcher, one of the purest saints that ever lived.

Time would fail me to tell how the holy fire spread through England, broke out in Wales, touched Scotland, found its way into Ireland, leaped the ocean, ran along the Atlantic coast and sent its fire-baptized circuit riders across the continent toward the golden West. Methodism in its spiritual vigor, in its evangelistic power, in its rapid spread, in the blessings which sprung up in its wake, is one of the marvels of human history. Its campfires blazed throughout the nation. Millions heard its trumpet call to repentance, to pardon, to the cleansing, sanctifying power in Jesus' precious blood. Schools were established and the spires of Methodist Churches pointed heavenward from village, city and country place throughout the nation while the holy fire of family devotion blazed upon tens of thousands of home altars.

The conditions which brought the Civil War came on apace; the war broke out in a storm of blood and agony, the nation rocked to and fro, and there were strife, disintegration and blood. Following the war, there was a most unfortunate state of things which, with previous conditions and the war itself, were entirely unfriendly to Bible Holiness. Fires went out on many altars; prejudice and hatred broke up friendship; many churches rang with the challenge of political prejudice rather than with the gospel of salvation in Jesus. Methodism largely lost her power. She continued to gather numbers, many of them unconverted. The old camp meeting places, where thousands had rallied around the blood-stained cross and multitudes were converted, were turned into chautauquas. Entertainments began to take the place of humiliation and prayer. The floods of wickedness broke out, unbelief crept into the pulpit, and worldliness into the pew. Hunting about in old bookcases, hungry-hearted people, found Wesley's "Plain Account of Christian Perfection," Fletcher's "Checks" and Hester Ann Roger's "Christian Experience." These people commenced praying, God answered with fire and the modern Holiness Movement broke out and spread abroad. Great preachers were wholly sanctified; influential women received the cleansing of the incoming Comforter. Wild, reckless young men were caught in the flame of spreading revival fire, converted, sanctified, and entered the ministry with a shout of young giants filled with new wine.

The early history of the present Holiness Movement in the United States is romantic and full of the thrill of tragedy, of battle, and of victory. There have been misunderstandings, misrepresentations, persecutions, broken and bleeding hearts, but our resurrected and crowned King Jesus has ridden through this nation, converting and sanctifying countless hosts of souls. The revival of the doctrine of experience of full salvation has sent its missionaries to the ends of the earth; judgment day and eternity only can tell the glorious story of the revival of holiness which is justly called a movement. There is power in it, life in it. It has moved, it has gone through the earth, crossed the seas. Its standard-bearers have preached the full redemption, witnessed to entire sanctification, rejoiced over trophies won, died and gone up to Heaven from all continents and countries and mission fields of the world and there await with joy the coming home of the fruits of their labors.

One of the greatest means that God has used in the spread of holiness on this continent has been the holiness camp meetings. Many Methodist preachers and laymen had arisen who, like the ancient Pharaoh, knew not Joseph. They did not know either the history, the doctrine, or the experiences of their church. They ridiculed entire sanctification. They declared that holiness of heart as a Christian experience wrought at once by the Holy Ghost was impossible. People were turned out of the churches, ministers were driven hither and thither, lay people were ordered not to testify or hold full salvation prayer meetings in their homes; many local preachers had their license taken away from them; while whole sections of country were without the preaching of the full gospel and God's hungry hosts turned to the woods and worshipped under the shade of the friendly trees. Brush arbors were erected, sheds were built, camp meetings sprang up from the Canadian border to the Louisiana coast. The people went singing and shouting to those tabernacles in the forest from the Virginia Beach to the golden sands of sunny California. Mighty men stood in these rugged wooden structures, poured out their souls, preached a full redemption, wore out their bodies, fell in the battle and their immortal spirits ascended beyond the stars to shout and worship at the feet of the Christ who is able to sanctify and keep. Enough people have been converted, reclaimed and sanctified at our holiness camp meetings to fill great streets and squares in the New Jerusalem. Oh, to walk those streets by and by and hear those redeemed hosts sing the songs of Moses and the Lamb, and bear glad testimony to the glory of the Christ who is able to save to the uttermost.

Perhaps the next greatest agency in the spread of the Holiness Movement, the gospel of full redemption, has been the printing press; the weekly paper, like the apocalyptic angel, has flown over continent, across the sea, and around the world. Tons and carloads of books and pamphlets and tracts have carried the good news of the Christ, able to save from all sin. Out of this movement has been born a beautiful melody of full salvation songs, and from the great city to the log cabin of the backwoods, hearts are tuned to full redemption, singing "The Blood has never lost its power."

Next to the printed page, one of the most powerful influences in the propagation of the Holiness Movement has been the holiness schools. They have sprung up in various places throughout the nation. From their halls, preachers, missionaries and teachers have gone out to publish a redemption full and free for all men, from all sin.

In it all, one of the most gracious agencies for this good work has been personal testimony. The sanctified people have been the Lord's witnesses, testifying to the truth of the Holy Scriptures, to the deity of Jesus, to the personality of the Holy Ghost, to the cleansing power of the precious blood of Christ. No mathematician can calculate the influence of a host of glad witnesses who, with songs and shouts and praises in the church, in the home, in the shop, at the desk, in the store, in the kitchen, over the wash-tub, on the train, in the army camp, on the sick bed, anywhere and everywhere, give the glad testimony that my Lord Jesus, my Master and King, saves, sanctifies and keeps my soul in purity and peace.

One of the hopeful signs of our times is the fact that the people appear to be hungering for the gospel message. I do not believe at any time, during my ministry of nearly half a century, the great common people, that class from whom most of the converts to Christ are made, were so ready and willing to hear the gospel of full salvation as at the present time.

Those of us who claim this high and gracious experience owe a debt to those who have not yet heard of the power of Christ to save and cleanse and keep from sin. We must bestir ourselves with holy zeal to bring them the message. We are praising God for the gracious tent work that is now going on, which is touching tens of thousands of people. If you are interested in this work give us a helping hand. We have calls for tents constantly. If we had double the number they could be kept busy from the first of May to the last of October. Join The Evangelical Methodist League and help us in this good work. The membership fee is one dollar, but it is your privilege if you are disposed, to give all you wish to spread the gospel of full salvation among the people. Send your name and address to Mrs. H. C. Marching Orders: Thoughts For New Year, MRS. H. C. MORRISON.

PAUL likens the Christian life to that of a soldier, when he says, "Thou therefore endure hardness, as a good soldier of Jesus Christ," and further suggests, by way of warning, that, "No man that warreth entangleth himself with the affairs of this life;" for what purpose? "That he may please him who hath chosen him to be a soldier." It will be interesting to notice, by way of comparison, some of the commands which regulate the life of the soldier and see if there is any application to that of the Christian soldier. One of the most common orders is HALT!

Does this apply to any of our Christian lives? Are we in a sphere of service which does not have the endorsement of the Master? Or have we gone ahead of orders, depending upon our own judgment, thus imperiling our safety? If so, it is time to call a halt. On the other hand, it may be that we have run away from the call of duty, and like Jonah, are trying to hide ourselves from the Captain of our salvation; should such be the case, the sooner we return to the diverging path where we missed the way, the better it will be for us; the farther we go from the path of duty, the longer it will take us to retrace our steps. Then HALT!

ATTENTION!

One cannot be in the presence of soldiers who are being trained, without hearing the sharp, positive command, attention. How may this be applied to the Christian soldier? How often in the past did God say unto his people, "Hearken unto me." We believe our readers will agree with us when we say there was never a time when the Christian needed more to heed this command, than in this busy, fast, worldly, greedy, commercial age. When the command for "attention" is given, every soldier opens his ear to hear what the captain has to say; so we, as those who would fight a good warfare in the Christian life, must often listen to what our Captain has to say to us; if we do not, we are in danger of irreparable loss.

RIGHT ABOUT FACE.

Jeremiah, in speaking of the apostasy of the children of Israel said, "They have turned unto me the back, and not the face." This represents the picture of the backslider, whether it be total or in part. Right here let us search our hearts and see if we are facing the Captain; if our eye is on the mark of the prize of our high calling in Christ Jesus, if not, let us quickly "right about face" until the old things are forgotten and we are pressing onward toward the goal of a perfectly surrendered life. Ezekiel tells the Israelites to "Repent, and turn away your faces from all your abominations," which he further says are idols in their hearts. Ah, this may be our trouble. We may not have gone as far as others away from the Lord; our outward life may be the same, but in the secret chambers of our soul, there may be something which claims our attention more than the Master, in which case our face needs to be turned toward him.

QUICK MARCH!

The one command which rings in our ears more than any other in the Bible is, to "Go forward." Moses had told the children of Israel to stand still, that the Lord would fight for them, but hear what he says to Moses: "Wherefore criest thou unto me? speak unto the children of Israel, that they go forward." The law of progression is as old as time, and applies as forcefully in the spiritual kingdom as in the natural kingdom. There is no stand still in the onward march from the cradle to the grave, but at each day's sunset we should be able to say we are a day's march nearer our eternal home; if we cannot, there is something wrong; perhaps we have stopped to listen to the enemy's suggestions along the way, and have not only lost a day, but are farther from the land of pure delight, where saints immortal reign. No, we cannot afford to even halt, for onward, upward, must be the impelling ambition of our lives.

FORWARD!

This must be our eternal watchword. Jesus' advice to Peter was, "Follow thou me," and if we do this, there is certain to be an onward moving toward the New Jerusalem. We are not to follow a man, nor a creed, nor a church, but ever look unto Jesus, the author and finisher of our faith. The Christian race is a much more serious proposition than many of us are wont to think. The Master has told us to strive to enter in at the strait gate, and we are told that the word strive in this passage, means to agonize, so we see this is not a flowery-beds-of-ease route, but one where we are to lay aside every weight and the sin which doth so easily beset us, that we may run with patience, the race that is set before us. The fact that the way is narrow, and few there be that find it, is a solemn thought and should bring us in humble heart-searching before the Lord.

Paul admonished Timothy to flee from all worldly things, follow after righteousness and to fight the good fight of faith, so this warfare meant for Timothy to flee, to follow, and to fight if he was to reach the goal of eternal life. Then, as if he had a fear that Timothy had not felt the import of his admonition, he pleads, as it were, with him: "O Timothy, keep that which is committed to thy trust." Nor was Paul unmindful of the dangers which lurked in his own pathway, for he says of himself, "I therefore so run, not as uncertainly; so fight I, not as one that beateth the air: but I keep under my body, and bring it into subjection: lest that by any means, when I have preached to others, I myself should be a castaway."

My dear readers, let us at the beginning of this new year, take time for heart-searching, take an inventory of our stock in trade, get our accounts all straightened up, gird on the whole armor afresh and through the days, weeks and months of 1927 "take heed unto ourselves" that we may be found faithful to every trust committed to our care. May the prayer of our heart be,

"Arm me with jealous care,
As in thy sight to live;
And O, thy servant, Lord, prepare
A strict account to give!"

The Holy Way.

In Jesus Christ, my Lord and King,
To whom my all I gladly bring,
I've found—'tis mine!—the Holy Way
Which leads to realms of endless day.

The Holy Way is my delight,
For in it heaven's almost in sight;
And I can feel the holy glow
Of love supreme where'er I go.

Light from the golden hills up there
In gleams of beauty rich and rare,
Falls softly on the Holy Way
With its illuminating ray.

The Holy Way and heaven blend
Just over yonder at the end,
So all I need for that blest day
Is just to keep the Holy Way.

ROBERT L. SELLE.

Ye have not yet resisted unto blood, striving against sin: Heb. 12:4.

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS

CHILDREN AS MISSIONARIES.

A. W. Orwig.

Do any of my young readers think they cannot be missionaries until they become men or women, and that in order to be a missionary one must go to a foreign land? That is not the case at all. Jesus gives us to understand that all around us are opportunities to do missionary work. Please read what he said in Matthew 9:36-38.

Oh, yes, the young can be missionaries, and right where they live, and sometimes even in their own homes. I am very glad that some Christian children have the missionary spirit and try to get their unsaved companions to love the Lord. A returned lady missionary from a foreign land asked a pious little girl if she would not like to be a missionary some time. Her good answer was, "I'm a missionary now." She was known to try to get her playmates saved.

Not long ago, as I was walking the street, two little girls approached me with tracts in their hands which they handed to passers-by, and a tract was handed to me. That was indeed one kind of missionary work, and one that might be done oftener by both grown up persons and children.

A little girl who heard a man swear said to him, "Please, sir, don't do that. The way you use God's name hurts me, for he is my Father." The man accepted the gentle reproach with bowed head, and replied, "Thank you, miss. My mother taught me about God when I was a child, and he shall never hear me again take his name in vain." That little girl did the kind of missionary work that fell to her lot at the time, and it may have led the man to seek his mother's God.

But what I have thus far said of children as missionaries has been about little girls. Let me now tell you about a few boys who did missionary work right in their own neighborhood. A little boy hearing of a very poor widow not being able to subscribe for a religious paper saved his pennies and paid for the paper. Noble boy! He had the missionary spirit of self-sacrifice.

Another boy, who gave some money for the missionary cause said, "I am all the happier, because I earned it myself." A little boy was asked to write something about missionary work, as he belonged to a mission band, and this is what he wrote: "It's my opinion that the folks in all the world what has got the Bible ought to send it to all who hasn't got it." A very good "opinion" indeed.

A preacher met a little boy going through rain and mud to a missionary meeting and said to him, "Where are you going, my boy?" "To the missionary meeting," was the reply. "To the missionary meeting!" exclaimed the preacher. "What do you know about missionary meetings?" "I am part of the concern," was the boy's prompt answer.

Ah, that's the point, dear children. I trust you will become so deeply interested in Christian missions that you will read and think and talk and pray over the subject, and also give what money you can for the good cause, and then you will indeed be "part of the concern." That is, you will feel that what is God's cause in behalf of the salvation of souls is your cause. Attending missionary meetings, whenever you can, will increase your knowledge and love of missions and enable you to see more clearly the great need of missionary work. I hope the time will come when there will be a mission band of children in every church, conducted by some one with head and heart full of the holy cause of missions.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you admit an Iowa girl to greet the group of happy cousins? I say happy cousins for I know they are happy when we all try to follow our Savior as best we can. I have been a silent reader of The Herald for about three months and I surely enjoy it from cover to cover. I am also taking God's Revivalist and I hardly know which paper I really enjoy the most. I am nineteen years of age and I am wondering who has my birthday, April 10? Do I have a twin? If so, please write to me. I have finished high school and

I am planning to teach school next fall. Now I don't want to talk too long but I would like to see more letters from other Iowa boys and girls in The Herald.
Helen I. Rode.
Rt. 6, Sac City, Iowa.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I thought I would write. My age is between nine and thirteen. Who has my birthday, Sept. 6? I go to Sunday school every Sunday I can. Wake up, Kentucky boys and girls. I am in the fourth grade. I weigh 53 pounds. For pets I have one pig, one rooster, and two cats. The pig's name is Jewel and the rooster's name is Donald, and the cats' names are Grayie and Blackie. Our pastor is Rev. J. C. Galloway. My father has been taking The Herald for years. We don't think we can do without it. My father has heard Dr. Morrison preach.

Hilda Olena Lockard.
Woodrow, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Won't you please move over and make room for me? I guess you don't know me as I have never written to The Herald before. I am a country girl and live about seven miles from town. I am 5½ feet tall, and weigh 91 pounds. I have light brown bobbed hair, light blue eyes and a rather fair complexion. I am fifteen years old. I am a Christian girl. I have three brothers and one sister. My birthday is October 28. Have I a twin? There is a thin crust of ice all over the ground. I hope when my letter arrives Mr. W. B. is outside skating. All our family, except one, are Christians. We belong to the M. E. Church. I would like to hear from all the boys and girls.

Helen Sanders.
Rt. 3, Stafford, Kan.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I have been a silent reader of page ten in The Pentecostal Herald for some time, so if you will give me a little space I will write a few lines. Greenville is my home town and also is the headquarters for the East Tennessee Holiness Association. I have been attending the meetings ever since I was a small child and have seen many souls saved and sanctified. Greenville is also the home and burying place of Andrew Johnson, seventeenth president of the United States. The shop he used when he was a tailor has been taken over by the state and enclosed in a brick building. The burying ground is on a large hill and is a beautiful place. As my letter is getting long I will close. Will say I am a Christian and glad to know so many of the cousins are living for the One who gave his life for us. Hope this escapes the W. B.

Mrs. J. A. Duncan.
211 Floral St., Greenville, Tenn.

Dear Aunt Bettie: It has been quite awhile since I wrote to this page. I received several answers from the cousins all over the country, so I will try again. I don't see many Michigan cousins and I'm sure Jesus has several young people here so come on cousins, show your colors. Would appreciate letters from any of the cousins. Let's all be true to him regardless of the cost. The Lord will richly repay us.

Walter H. Quandt.
Royal Oak, Mich.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I didn't see my other letter in print so if I don't see this one in print I am not going to write any more. I have just got my school lessons done and am writing a line or two. I have just got over the tonsillitis. Mama and one of my little brothers have it now. I suppose the rest will get it. Well this isn't a very long letter, but I will close to night.

Genevieve.
Rt. 1, Box 28, Lindsay, Calif.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Here comes another Kentucky girl to join your happy band of boys and girls. My mother takes The Herald and I enjoy reading page ten. I am fourteen years of age and a freshman in high school. My father is jailer of Russell County. Whose birthday is in the month of July? Please write and let me know. I go to the M. E. Church. My Sunday school teacher is Mrs. Alice Sharp and she is a good teacher. Our pastor is Mr. James Ramsey. Well, as this is my first letter I will stop before you get tired of reading.

Ovalene Whittle.
Jamestown, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a West Virginia girl join your happy band of boys and girls? I live on a farm and like farm life fine. My daddy takes The Herald and I enjoy reading page ten. I am twelve years old. I will be thirteen this month. I have fair complexion, brown hair (not bobbed) and brown eyes. I have read about some of the girls wanting to learn to dance. Please don't do that. I don't know the first step, and don't want to. I hope Aunt Bettie doesn't shut the door on me and leave me out in the weather.

Leola Schamp.
Minnie, W. Va.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a little West Virginia girl join your happy band of boys and girls. I go to Sunday school every Sunday I can. I have to walk three miles. I have a dog, two cats, and six rabbits. I was eleven years old Nov. 10, and am in the sixth grade. My teacher's name is Oran Gray. My papa and mama belong to the M. E. Church, South. I have a sister and a brother. I am reading the Child's Bible. I have fair complexion, brown eyes and brown hair. I do not see many letters from West Virginia.

Mary Schamp.
Minnie, W. Va.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a little girl join your happy band of boys and girls? My father takes The Herald and I enjoy reading page ten. I go to Sunday school every Sunday. I am in the sixth grade at school. This is the first time I have ever written to The Herald and I hope to see it in print.

Mildred Andrea.
Taylors, S. C.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a little girl join your happy band of boys and girls? I am eleven years old and in the sixth grade at school. My father takes The Herald and I enjoy reading page ten. As this is my first letter I hope to see it in print.

Freddie Mae Andrea.
Rt. 22, Taylors, S. C.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I have read page ten for the past two years and thought I would like to join in this happy band of boys and girls. I am sixteen years old and a Junior in high school. I have dark brown hair and brown eyes. I am a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Our minister's name is Frank Day; he is surely a man sent from God. We have had the privilege of having him with us for the past four years. My favorite Bible verse is Isaiah 50:10. I am writing this in school. I wish some of the cousins would write as I like to receive letters and I will try and answer all I get. Wake up, Michigan boys and girls, I don't see many letters from Michigan.

Dear Aunt Bettie: As this is one day set apart for thanksgiving, I will begin by being thankful for such a source of helpfulness and inspiration as The Pentecostal Herald. I have taken The Herald but a short time, but how I do enjoy it. How we ought to thank God for such men as Dr. Morrison. I have been a Christian almost a year. Last New Year's Eve at a watch meeting services I knelt with eleven others at a small altar where God brought peace and pardon to my soul. It was indeed the dawning of a new year, and proved to be the turning point in my life. My ambition then was to be a dancer, but how glad I am that I ever found Christ, and I intend to go with him all the way. The attractions of the world offer pleasure, but nothing but Christ offers peace and hope. If only more young people would catch a vision of the crucified Christ of Calvary others would soon cry out, "What must I do to be saved?" Seven months after, at Romeo camp meeting I made the full consecration and put myself on the altar to be used of God. The victory life is a walk with God, where communion is sweet and refreshing. If we keep the vision of the cross we will keep the victory. Since I launched out with Christ I have felt Dear Aunt Bettie: Would you mind to let an Illinois girl join your happy Christian family? I am glad to say that I am a Christian and know Jesus as my personal Savior. I am also glad to know that all the boys and girls are not following the things of the world. My oldest brother and I are the only young people members in our church. However, there are two young girls that come to our church who are Christians, but are not members. We have taken The Herald for almost two years and I like the paper very much. We have also been taking The Herald of Holiness and the "Full Gospel Advocate." One of the main reasons why I take The Herald is because of Dr. Morrison's sermons, which I find very helpful to me in my Christian experience. I had the pleasure of hearing Dr. Morrison preach several times during the S. S. Convention at Olivet College last year. I was greatly helped and inspired to go through with Jesus and I know many others were also. You might like to know that I live within an hour's drive, by automobile, of Olivet College. I go there quite often to the camp meeting, revivals and other services. I wanted to finish my high school course at that college but was unable to do so. Since this is my first letter to The Herald I will not make my letter so long, for Mr. W. B. might be unusually hungry and then I would not see my letter in print; so I will describe myself and close. I am a farmer's daughter. I have light hair, (unbobbed), gray eyes and light complexion. I am nineteen years of age. My birthday is Sept. 30. Who has my birthday? Would be especially pleased to hear from any of The Herald cousins who would care to write and I will try to answer all letters received. Would be glad for those of near my own age to write.

THE CHALLENGE.

Bert Ewald.

Luke 10:2. Therefore, said he unto them, the harvest truly is great, but the laborers are few; pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest that he would send forth laborers into his harvest.

In the Republic to the South of us is a great white field, and the laborers truly are few. A people who have been held in thralldom for centuries by state and church, are awakening, and are casting off the chains that have bound them. Those who have been in close touch with Mexican affairs, and in Mexican work, have caught a glimpse of the greatness of that awakening, and stand in awe at the immensity of it.

The peon is becoming a free man. I mean by that, that he is free to make his own way, and has become a small holder. As a class, the peons are 95 percent illiterate, for, taking all classes, Mexico is 85 percent illiterate. You can imagine what freedom will mean to a people like that. They are very emotional and they like the bright lights, the music, the dance, and the excitement, and are now being bound by chains that are almost worse than the old ones. It is sad, but all too true, that Mexico has become the dumping ground for the liquor, vice and gambling forces of this country. Our countrymen are there, with all the paraphernalia the devil has. Oh, I tell you, the devil is equipping his emissaries with the very worst he has at his disposal, the movie in its lowest form, saloons, brothels, dance halls, and gambling dens decked and equipped with everything that will allure and please the eye and destroy the soul, and 90 percent of this is owned by American capital. They are adding the worst vices of this country to that which Mexico already has, and God only knows that that is awful enough. They are corrupting the youth and girls of a people who are already down and out to a point nearly beyond redemption, and yet so little is being done to remedy it. The harvest truly is great, and Satan and his emissaries are trampling down the grain. Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send laborers into his harvest. My experience in this work, and the testimony of those who have been in this work for years, has proven that it is much easier to reach the boy and the girl who has not come in touch with the vice of this country!

It is a known fact that one Mexican can do more with his people than a half dozen of foreign birth. They do love their own people. The forces of evil are quick to recognize this fact, and they get hold and train and equip men and boys to corrupt their own people, and they are reaping an awful harvest.

Mexico is awakening. But who is going to be there to point the way when the dawn breaks? It depends almost entirely upon the Christian people of this nation what that awakening will be; whether it will be lighted by the rays of Hope, Love and Redemption, or be clouded by the dank, clammy fog of perdition. You will ask the question, "How can we best meet the situation?" Why, by using the most powerful agent that God has placed in our hands, namely the young people. We must prepare and equip them, so that they may go and let in the light; those whose hearts are torn with the condition of their people, and whose lives are filled with a Christian love, and purpose to make the morning, and the day which is dawning for this people, bright with the radiance of the love of Christ.

President Calles is trying to purge and lift his country, but see the forces he has to combat; the priesthood, the vice squad, ignorance and poverty. He hates the saloon, the gambling den, the brothel, and Romanism. But can we see him fight a lone fight, and stand idly by? As Christians, we cannot.

I know of a group of Mexican young people, brilliant, consecrated, and full of the spirit of Christ, who want to go to their own people and help lift them up to a higher plane. I know a young man, who six years ago could neither read nor write. Now he is in the last year of high school. He writes songs, and hymns, and composes music for them. He went among his own people last year, preaching, receiving only $40.00 per month, and paid for his board, when he could have been making good money to help himself along; but he said, "God will take care of me," and he has. I know another, who has won twenty-five of his relatives to Christ, and another who, despite mobbings, continued to preach on the street corners, and there are girls whose hearts are torn for the suffering womanhood of their country. I could go on down the line, and give you many more instances. These people do not have the money to pay for their preparation to go to their people.

I want to send them to Asbury College, where they will get the very best of Christian training, as well as a high standard of education. I am a graduate of Asbury, and I know what it means to a fellow to have had the privilege of receiving the training, such as one receives there, how it holds one steady when the tempests roar; no matter how fierce the storm, the ship rides safely; we trust and know our Pilot, and praise God, the anchor holds. I covet this training for these young men and women. Satan equips his emissaries with the worst he has, so I want to see God's messengers equipped with the best he has for them. I have been praying and trying to raise funds to send them, and one night on my knees, it came over me to ask Dr. Morrison to let me make an appeal through The Pentecostal Herald. I made this request, and he not only granted it, but he and Mrs. Morrison headed the list with a fine subscription. So I am throwing out the challenge to the readers of The Pentecostal Herald, and asking them the question Pilate asked the Jews, "What will ye do with Christ?" Will you turn your backs on him, and on the people who are holding out their hands to you, crying the Macedonian cry, "Come over and help us."

It will cost $450.00 for each one, for railway fare, and for College expenses. I hope to be able, God willing to send at least six, and perhaps nine boys and girls this coming September. They are all willing to work, and will do anything to get their preparation, but the first year it will be almost impossible to do anything but study, as it is pretty hard, when a person is trying to master another language. They are throwing out a challenge to us, saying, "We will give our lives for God's work, if you will help us to prepare ourselves for the battle, so that the many weary souls who are straining their eyes to catch the first glimpse of the coming dawn, may have the Sun of Righteousness rise in their souls with healing in his wings! They are hungering and thirsting, and must they be turned away from the fountain of the clean, pure water of Christ, to the stagnant pools of Satan, and to an eternity among the lost; lost from Christ? The most terrible knell of doom that has ever been sounded over the harp strings of the soul." How can we face Christ in the day of judgment with that awful cry of lost from Christ ringing in our ears, if we do not do everything in our power to help? Oh! if you could only see the things that I have seen, and I have only seen the edge of things, you would understand the better what I have been trying to tell you, and you would open your hearts and pocket-books, and not only help educate these boys, but would call for more. My heart goes out to the Mexican people, and I love them, and love their souls. I wanted to go to Mexico to work with them there. After viewing the situation, however, as it is at present, I concluded that the most effective way to accomplish the most is to help train them in the Mexican schools here, and raise money to send them to Asbury, and then send them back to their own people, thus accomplishing much more than by going myself, so we are giving ourselves and our money until it hurts, but our souls are feasting on the milk and honey of Canaan, and are clothed in garments of white, and we go down the way praising God for the privilege he has given us to labor in this part of his vineyard. We, of ourselves, can do so little, but when we look down through the ages, and think of what this group of young people may do, if properly equipped, and we look with our mind's eye down into the great eternity, and see a wonderful company among the bloodwashed throng, who are leaping, and praising God, a shout goes up that makes the portals of heaven ring, Rejoice, Rejoice, I have found my sheep!

Some day, God willing, I hope to go with a band of these young folk, down into the heart of things, and open up an Institution. My soul's eye has caught a vision of what a wonderful work could be accomplished with a band of truly sanctified and consecrated young Mexicans, and I am working and praying to that end.

The money is to be paid to Dr. Morrison, who will hold it in trust for the education and preparation of Mexican boys and girls, who have consecrated their lives to the work among their people. We owe it to them. We took their land from them. When they ask us for bread, will we give them a stone, or when they ask for meat, will we give them a serpent? Instead of the happy group walking the golden streets with harps in their hands, singing and praising God, will we have them wandering through the pits of perdition wailing, "Lost from Christ, and no one would show us the way." What will we do with Christ?

God bless, and keep you, and show you the way you should go. Pray for us and our work. Please send in your contributions as soon as possible, so that all arrangements can be made before our school closes. Anything from $1,000 to $1.00 will be very acceptable. I pray God that I may be able to send twelve, instead of the six or nine. A soul shouting in glory is worth more than a few paltry dollars, that is left behind us when God says it is enough. That shout will be ringing down through eternity, but the pleasures of this earth are but for a short season, and do not satisfy.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

REV. O. G. MINGLEDORFF, D.D.

Lesson V.—January 30, 1927.

Subject.—The Christian Overcoming Temptation. Luke 4:1-13; 1 Cor. 10:12, 13.

Golden Text.—In that he himself hath suffered being tempted, he is able to succor them that are tempted. Heb. 2:18.

Time.—The early part of A. D. 27. Place.—In the wilderness near the Dead Sea, and the temple in Jerusalem.

Temptation, in the ordinary sense, means a solicitation to do wrong. It may come from Satan in person, or from a demon, or from a bad human being. It may come directly, as in the case of Jesus, or indirectly, as in the case of Eve in the Garden of Eden. One may even lead himself into temptation by yielding too much to his natural appetites. James uses the word lust in this normal sense when in his epistle (1:14) he says, "Every man is tempted, when he is drawn away of his own lust, and enticed. Then when lust hath conceived, it bringeth forth sin; and sin, when it is finished, bringeth forth death." It began with a natural desire, but ended in death.

There seems to be some discrepancy between the lesson caption: "The Christian Overcoming Temptation", and the major portion of our scripture lesson, which deals directly with the temptation of our Lord. Yet it may be true that they are nearer together than one would suspect at first blush. Dr. Samuel Chadwick says that Jesus met Satan simply as a man, and that he used no power in overcoming him except such as he will give to us when we are under temptation; that is, the fullness and power of the Holy Spirit. Jesus being God incarnate, had he chosen to use his divine authority and power, could have crushed the Devil in a moment of time; but that would have left us discouraged forever. No mere man is a match for Satan; but the weakest saint, filled with the Holy Spirit, can overcome him and all the demons in the universe.

I see that I am plunging headlong into the heart of the lesson at one bound. Let me bring up the first verse of the last part of the lesson: "Wherefore let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall." Herein lies the secret of our trouble with the Devil. "Pride goeth before a fall." Our only hope in the hour of temptation is in the Spirit given unto us through Jesus Christ. Our Golden Text makes the matter clear. "In that he himself hath suffered being tempted, he is able to succor them that are tempted." In him is the source of all our power to resist temptation, no matter from what source it may come. There is great consolation in the last verse of the lesson: "There hath no temptation taken you but such as is common to man: But God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation also make a way to escape, that ye may be able to bear it." No one has any excuse for sinning against God. The promise is clear; and his grace is sufficient.

Now let us come back to the temptation of Jesus. I am not very anxious (as I was years ago) to undertake the needed comments. When I was a college boy I heard Dr. Jesse Boring preach on the temptation of our Lord with such weird, burning eloquence that I was frightened almost out of my wits. My hair stood on end, and cold chills chased one another up and down my spine till I was nearly done for. How clear it all seemed. Of course, I understood. As soon as I got an opportunity, I tried to preach on the awful theme; but I got into the brush, blundered, flattened out like a flounder, and discovered that I had neither eloquence nor sense. Since then I have been cautious—always feel like pulling off my hat whenever I meet the subject, and calling for my dear old father Boring, who licensed me to preach, to come back and tell me about it again.

In former days the great point in the discussion was what the theologians termed the peccability, or the impeccability, of our Lord; that is, could he sin, or could he not sin. We do not hear much about that any more. Maybe we have found out that we know a little less than nothing about it, and that we have no means by which we can learn any more. Some mysteries are hidden too deep for our ken. I confess that I do not know a single thing about it; but I am big-headed enough to believe that I know as much about it as any one else does. Let us pass it by.

I believe that our Lord's temptation was real, and not figurative. He went out to meet the Devil in the most terrible combat in all the ages; but it is a joy to know that the Holy Spirit filled him with his presence, and that he led him out to the battle. He will do likewise for us. Jesus conquered Satan in the power of the Divine Spirit; and since he will clothe us with the same power for our times of temptation, we may rest assured that we too can overcome; for we have the promise of being made more than conquerors through him that loved us and gave himself for us.

Satan made one big mistake in tempting Jesus. No doubt he thought to take advantage of him because he was hungry and physically weak; but he blundered. After one has fasted and communed with God for some time, he is stronger to resist temptation than at any other time. The Devil cannot overthrow a fasting, praying saint. He would not make a like mistake a second time. Try fasting and prayer when you must go into a severe trial. The Spirit will see you through.

That first temptation seems to be full of appeal; but Satan made a mistake to which common sense would forbid yielding. A man who has fasted forty days does not need bread: it would kill him. He needs broth and soft fruits. Jesus knew that; for he made all things. But he meets the temptation with a glorious rebuttal from the Book: "It is written, That man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word of God." Bodies can live on bread, but souls must have better pabulum—spirits must have spiritual food. How we people in America need to learn that lesson. As a nation we are fat in purse and store; but we are very, very lean in soul.

The second temptation was far more subtle than the first; and for pure devilry, nothing in the universe can surpass it. Satan claims to be the owner of all things; but if Jesus will just fall down and worship him one time, all shall be his. Satan is wondrously thoughtful and tender. He would save Jesus from Gethsemane and the cross. He was pretending to offer him an easy way to power. "No use to suffer to win; just lower the Godhead sufficiently to do me an act of homage, and I will vacate my throne for you, and turn the world over to you." Think about it just a little bit. Did you ever get a full conception of what Satan was trying to tempt Jesus to do? To worship him would be to acknowledge him as his superior. That almost outdevils the devil himself. But again Jesus meets him with Scripture: "Get thee behind me, Satan: for it is written, Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve." The "Sword of the Spirit" is our best weapon in meeting the enemy of our souls.

The last temptation calls for presumption and foolhardiness. I do not know how the Devil got Jesus up on a pinnacle of the temple; but so it was. That is a small matter; but when the Devil wanted him to jump off and see how the angels would catch him in their hands, I become tremendously interested. One almost admires this bold dash of Satan. True he was close run; for Jesus had crowded him fearfully. Brass! May I use that word? Cheek! All words are too tame. Satan risked all his resources on a single throw. Jump! I sometimes wonder if he did not attempt to push Jesus from the pinnacle. How he would have rejoiced for the privilege of helping just a wee bit. The reply of Jesus sounds like a mixture of artillery and thunder shot through with death-dealing lightning. "Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God." Sins of presumption are fearful. The Psalmist prayed to be delivered from them; and well may we do the same.

The Devil left him for a season, but came again before the work of redemption was complete. You and I will never be free from temptation till we are inside heaven's gate.

A PRAYER.

Oh, thou gracious Lord and Savior,
Take my helpless hand in thine,
Lead me onward and forever
Toward that peace that is sunshine

When my footsteps have grown weary
When my heart doth miss its cheer,
And the world seems dark and dreary
Be thou to me ever near.

Guide me through the waves and turmoil
With thy never ending care,
Watch me Savior, lead me onward
Teach me God to give and bear.

When the foils of Satan clutch me
Save me, save me, lest I fall,
Give me kindness, thought and patience,
Help me God, my life, my all.

Suggestions to Singers.

Always see that the song-book used in your meeting has a supply of good invitations and good altar songs. Our "Gladness and Praise" has a fine selection of both; and there are thirty of them.

Also see that the doctrines of the Bible, especially those touching salvation and sanctification are in the book. The songs should back up and support the sermons preached. Many song-books contain no searching gospel truths on full salvation lines. But they are in Gladness and Praise. See Nos. 2, 5, 10, 15, 25, 70, 76. Also see 103, 130, 138, 143, 146, 174, 176, 179, 208, 211. One evangelist says: "I have sold thousands of song-books in meetings, but it's best yet." Another says, "The more I use it the better I like it. It is a gem." Price, 25c. Special rates to evangelists. Round notes or shaped. Always state choice. PENTECOSTAL PUBLISHING CO., Louisville, Ky.

THE PATHS OUR FATHERS TROD. PAYING THE CHURCH BILLS.

Rev. H. J. Roberts.

Text: "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse." Mal. 3:10. (Lesson Heb. 7:1-10).

First, let us look at the Levitical tithe. The tenth was given as we saw in the lesson, long before the law of Moses. Abraham gave tithes. This morning we will not look back farther than the Levitical tithe or the law of Moses.

The tithe is merely a just return to God for his blessings. There is no one who is not and who has never received blessing upon blessing from God. The food we eat, the water we drink, and the clothing that we wear, are all blessings from God. Look at the beauties of nature and a thousand of other things that God has given to the children of men; can any one say that God has not blessed him? The Christian has on top of these temporal blessings spiritual refreshings of soul which are worth ten times the tithe; indeed their value cannot be thus counted.

Jacob after seeing the ladder from Heaven to earth and the angels descending and ascending upon it, considered the tithe to be a just return to God for his blessings and said: "And this stone which I have set for a pillar shall be God's house; and for all that these shall give me I will surely give the tenth unto thee."

Under the law the tithe belongs to God; it is not only a just return to him for his blessings but it belongs to him. In Lev. 27:30 we read, "And all the tithe of the land, whether of the seed of the land, or the fruit of the tree, it is the Lord's, it is holy unto the Lord." We see from this bit of scripture that the Lord has a claim on the tenth part of our increase,

We owe God the tenth part just as truly as we owe the grocer the grocery bill.

The Jews and those under the law were reprov'd for changing or altering the tenth. God requires the tenth as it comes and not as we would like to change it or fix it to please ourselves. For an example let us take a herd of sheep; we are going to tithe these sheep; first we will get our pens ready, here to the back of the pulpit is the pen they are in now. We will have a passage just wide enough for one sheep to go through at a time, at the end of this passage we will have a swinging gate, at the left for this gate is the pen for our sheep and to the right is the one for the Lord's. Let the sheep come down the passage, nine of them we let go into the pen on the left but the tenth one is to go into the one on the right hand side, as God's. This works very nicely until we see that the tenth one is a nice fat one and a fine sheep; we will let it go to our pen and let the next one go to the Lord's pen. No, my friends, that will not work: that is not God's way. Turn with me to Lev. 27:33, "He shall not search whether it is good or bad, neither shall he change it: and if he change it at all, then both it and the change thereof shall be holy; it shall not be redeemed." We cannot fool with God, for he requires the change and the one changed.

Some good people think they will pull the wool over the eyes of God and not give anything. No, you cannot do that, you cannot fool with God. Let us turn to Mal. 3:3, "Will a man rob God? Yet ye have robbed me. But ye say, wherein have we robbed thee? In tithes and offerings." We think ourselves to be good, honest people, and never think of such a thing as our names being listed with thieves and robbers; yet that is where we belong. In every church there are those who are robbing God in tithes and offerings. "Will a man rob God? Yet ye have robbed me. In tithes and offerings. Does not the man who robs God almighty deserve to have his name written with the robbers of men? In 1 Cor. 6:10 we learn that no thief shall inherit the kingdom of God. May we early learn that God is God and not to be trifled with.

Let us now consider the Christian tithe. Some one has said, "Jesus came and did away with the law." No, Jesus came to fulfill the law and not to destroy it. The Christian tithe is given because of love. The Christian tithes not because the law commands it, but because of the love he has for Jesus Christ and his cause on earth. Jesus said, "If ye love me keep my commandments." John 14:15 and in the 21st verse, "He that hath my commandments and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me." I say again the Christian tithe is given because of love.

Man gives to what his heart is in. Men whose hearts are in having good roads give their time and money to making good roads, (for this part of the country I wish more would take an interest in them). During the war people of our country gave to the Red Cross because their hearts were in it. Many had sons, brothers, husbands, and sweethearts over there and they gave because their hearts were over there with their loved ones.

Let us figure just a little. The laborer in town receives at least $3.00 per day, for 26 days he would get $78.00, the tithe of which would be $7.80, and for a year it would be $93.60. That is the Lord's and is only a just return to him for his blessings. Let us consider the laborer on the farm; he will receive at least $1.50 per day, making his tithe for a year amount to $46.80. Three or four such men would keep up a country church. It may be a little harder for the farmer to keep books of his tithe but nevertheless God demands his part, the tenth. Suppose you have a half dozen calves and sell them for $25.00 each, the tithe would be $15.00. There are the hogs, the sheep, the grain, and the chickens and eggs to be tithed.

The tithe is the tenth part of the income and not the savings, also the tithe is the first part to come out; after that lay up for yourselves. An offering cannot be made until the tithe has been given. "Yet ye have robbed me in tithes and offerings."

The offering of the other person is of no avail for you. Just because Brother So-and-So can keep up the church is no excuse for others not to give. If all the people that profess the name of Christ were tithers the cry would not be, "How are we going to meet our church bill?" but the cry would be, "How and where can we use this money to do the most good and bring greater glory to God?"

"Will a man rob God? . . . in tithes and offerings?"
"Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse."

"The greatest book I have read in twenty-five years."—Dr. G. Campbell Morgan.

Such words were uttered in a Cincinnati book store by one of the greatest Bible scholars and preachers of this age in connection with E. Stanley Jones' famous book "The Christ of the Indian Road." Dr. Stanley Jones went out from Asbury College to India. He has made the profoundest impression upon India. His book is one of the most remarkable books of the century. Have you got your copy yet? While my evangelistic work last year was, in a measure, fruitful, it could have been more so if calls could have gotten in earlier, which would have helped in making out the 1926 slate to a better advantage. May I ask that pastors who contemplate my services please keep this in mind.

The first meeting I hold this year is Jacksonville, Fla., continuing till February. The year's program will be only one meeting a month, allowing more time between engagements.

A REAL BATTLE.

We have just closed a very blessed meeting at Wyandotte, Okla., which was a real battle for the Lord. We did not see so many souls gathered in, yet there were quite a number saved. One blessed feature of the meeting was a real manifestation of old-fashioned conviction, where men, and even women and children trembled under conviction and some never ceased to tremble until they had prayed through, while some left the meeting weeping and trembling and did not come back again. One man, a father and grandfather, was so under conviction he sat in his seat while we prayed for him, but he would not yield, but arose from his seat, shook hands with all present.

We are just beginning a meeting at Lowell, Kan., with the Friends. We are expecting a great meeting.

COMING TO THE TRUTH.

By The Editor.

IT is with some gratification that we notice that there is a large number of preachers and writers in various Protestant churches of wide influence, learning and piety, who believe and teach that there is a baptism with the Holy Spirit to be received by believers subsequent to regeneration.

* * *

Evidently, such preachers and teachers have been brought to this conclusion by the words of our Lord, commanding those who loved him and were evidently in a saved state to "tarry at Jerusalem" until they were filled with the Spirit. Searching the Book of Acts, we find a number of instances where believers received the Holy Ghost. There is nothing said about repentance or the forgiveness of sin in any of these instances. They had already repented; their sins had been forgiven and they received the baptism with the Holy Ghost as a distinct and gracious work of grace after repentance and forgiveness.

* * *

In commanding his disciples who loved him to tarry in Jerusalem until they received the Holy Ghost, our Lord assures them that this is a blessing which the world, that is, the unregenerated, cannot receive. Sinful men must repent and obtain forgiveness. Regenerated men should tarry, pray, consecrate, believe and receive the Holy Ghost in a gracious baptism, in addition to the forgiveness of sins and the regenerating grace of God. Peter, on the day of Pentecost, teaches us that this blessing is for all of God's children, "even as many as the Lord our God shall call." Undoubtedly, it is the will of God that every child of his should receive the baptism with the Holy Ghost.

* * *

Peter tells us that when the disciples received this baptism on the day of Pentecost, their hearts were purified by faith. They certainly were wonderfully changed men. They had courage. They rejoiced in the midst of persecution. They could answer their accusers without fear. "Whom shall we obey, God or men?" It must be remembered that our Lord assured his disciples that this baptism would bring to them an endowment of power, equipping them for the great task before them. Who believes that these disciples, unlearned men without an organized church behind them or a Board of Missions to support them, could have gone out into the world and accomplished the superhuman task that they did accomplish if they had not received the Holy Ghost with the power the Lord promised?

Who will doubt if the church today,—and we mean by the word, "church," all those great bodies of evangelical Christians—should tarry in prayer and consecration until filled with the Holy Ghost, there would come upon the church a great, supernatural power that would make her a far more powerful agency than she now is for the evangelization of the world. Such a baptism of fire would burn up selfishness, would consume worldliness, the card table, the vulgar show, the immodest dance; the excitement of the race course would no longer have any charm for church members; neither would they have fear, timidity, and hesitation in witnessing for their Lord or seeking after the lost.

* * *

The human alone is not competent to perform the task of world evangelization. We need power from on high, the endowment of the Holy Ghost. We must have our Pentecost or fail in winning a lost world to Christ. There is something God imparts with the baptism of the Holy Ghost that gives a peculiar power and endowment for service. We need that power in the world today and it would be well to remember that it is not apart from, but comes with, the Holy Ghost. We sometimes hear men praying, "Give us the power of the Holy Ghost" as if the blessed Spirit imparted a power apart from himself. We should pray for the Holy Ghost himself and when he comes he is the power; his presence in us gives us courage, wisdom, daring, holy enterprise, confidence, a full assurance of faith. Then we are able to accomplish something far beyond anything that can be done by the mere human.

* * *

From the beginning of what is known as "The modern Holiness Movement," its advocates have insisted that there is a baptism with the Holy Ghost subsequent to regeneration, that this baptism should be sought and may be received by all regenerated people, that the in-coming of the Spirit cleansing from the carnal mind, crucifies the sinful nature and that he then takes up his abode and keeps the temple in which he dwells to teach, guide and empower the children of God. The Apostle commands us to be filled with the Spirit. How wonderful and blessed that one should be thus saved from sin, sealed and empowered with the indwelling of the Third Person of the Trinity. Such a blessing will put to rout all unbelief in the Godhead of Jesus and the cleansing power of his precious blood. If we would have a gracious revival, if we would turn back the tides of sin, lawlessness, bloodshed and ruin, let the church wait in the Upper Room of Consecration for a gracious outpouring of the Holy Ghost.

THEOLOGICAL DISCUSSION.

WE are constantly meeting the statement that "we should get so busy saving the world that we would have no time for theological discussion." Sometime ago a returned missionary who is, perhaps, none too sound in teaching, expressed a regret that he should come home from a country cursed with sin and find the church disturbed with theological discussion.

It would be well for such persons to remember that Christianity is founded on certain great truths; if you prefer, you may say, doctrines; for instance, the inspiration of the Scriptures, the miraculous birth and godhead of Christ, his life, his teachings, his sacrificial death and resurrection, and the coming of the Holy Ghost into the church at Pentecost.

The fall of man, his sinful nature, his wickedness of heart, his need of repentance, of belief of revealed truth, of trust in Jesus Christ for salvation, of his regeneration by the power of the Holy Ghost, a pure heart, a holy life, and devoted, earnest service in bringing others to saving faith and carrying the gospel to all the world. These truths are fundamental; they lie at the foundation of the whole superstructure of Christianity. You can no more build a spiritual organization for the spread of the gospel, the salvation and spiritual nurture of the people without foundation Bible truth, than you can build a twenty-five story skyscraper on a bank of quicksand.

Those men who seem distressed that there should be theological discussion seem indifferent or ignorant of the fact that every great fundamental Bible doctrine which furnishes a foundation for the superstructure of our Christianity, and its carrying forward a gospel message to a lost world, has been attacked boldly, and repeatedly, and that, within the church. The modern liberalist—another name for infidelity—is aggressive all over this land. He is irreverent and insolent. It is his pastime and amusement to question practically every vital Bible truth contained in the Holy Scriptures. He assumes superior scholarship. He claims to be the last word in some sort of a new-found intelligence. He looks with contempt upon people who believe the Word of God, and trust in the Son of God for supernatural regeneration. He is aggressive and noisy. Are we to understand that we must be so busy hoeing our garden that we submit quietly, without protest or interference, to incendiaries burning our houses? Are we to smilingly take up collections for foreign missions, hold festivals, and sell ice cream to get ten cent pieces to save the heathen Chinese, while the modernists strut around with big fat salaries and destroy the faith of our children in the Scriptures, in the Lord Jesus, in the power of his gospel, and the necessity of a spiritual regeneration of the heathen peoples?

You cannot have a church with any sense in it, power in it, vitality in it, or capacity to reach and save humanity, without doctrine, without Bible truth. There must be a positive faith, a definite message. The preacher, missionary, or else, must believe

I. The Sin Question. 1 John 1:8-10.

RASCAL points out that all questions connected with the origin and transmission of sin are quite beyond our present capacity to answer, and Augustine deprecates the attempt to search into the cause of the evil—in other words into the origin of sin. Evil, according to him, is the negation of good; defect or declension from that which in the highest degree exists. To inquire into the cause of this defection is like attempting to see darkness or listen to silence.

Sin must be confessed and forgiven and cleansed away in order to get right with God. A certain great preacher tells the following story:

"It is good to receive pardon, but I believe sometimes there is pardon without a change; a freedom can still be found. I have a man in my church who was once a thief. I met him one day on the street clapping his hands, and he said, 'I'm out—I'm free.' He had just come from court in the City Hall. He got pardoned by the politicians. I said to him, 'I wish you could get pardon and freedom.' He replied, 'What do you mean; didn't the judge let me go?' I said, 'Yes, but the Great Judge has not freed you from guilt. You have been in behind the bars six or seven times, and if you don't get saved you'll be back there again. Come down to church and let us pray to God that you may get freedom from the power of sin.' He came and got down on his knees and cried out, 'Lord, help me stop stealing.' 'No,' I said, say, 'God, take the thief out of my heart.' He said, 'Can the Lord do it? I can't understand it.' He did so, and asked God for a new heart. He came in, down and out; and went down and up and on his way rejoicing. For six years that man has led an honest life, and is still in the church. They don't have to lock things up where he is employed; in fact, he carries the keys. This man asked God for a new heart—something which God alone can make. The devil comes and raps and tries to break in; but it withstands all his fierce assaults and only leaves a few scars."

II. Christian Courage. Acts 28:15.

An English writer tells us: "Columbus was in the habit of writing in his log-book in the evening of each day, when he failed to sight the land he was seeking, first the date, and then under it the words, 'Sailed on.' No slackening of purpose marred the dauntless adventure. Not as though he had already attained, or were already perfect, but with the prize in view, the great bond-slave of Jesus Christ pressed on, conscious that the past could never suffice either to create in himself the character that would rightly bear witness to the power of his Lord, or fill up the measure of his Master's grace. On, on to the goal, he hastened, with face set steadfastly toward the sunrise, his being awake and open to the "supply of the Spirit of Jesus Christ."

Let no man think that sudden in a minute All is accomplished and the work is done; Though with thine earliest dawn thou shouldst begin it Scarce were it ended in thy setting sun.

III. The Witness of the Spirit. Rom. 8:16.

Bishop Foss writing upon this subject said: "But no man has ever been called of God to so effective and far-reaching a proclamation of the doctrine and experience of the witness of the Spirit as John Wesley. When he began his work as a minister it is not probable that a thousand persons could have been found in all England who would have dared to say that they knew their sins forgiven. After he came to manhood it took him fifteen years of the intensest devotion to God as a 'servant,' in constant longing

SOUL ENLARGEMENT.

Ex. 3:8: "I am come down to . . . bring them . . . into a good land and a large." Ours is a land of great resources and boundless opportunities.

Judges 18:10: "When ye go, ye shall come into . . . a large land." We have a very large spiritual life to enter into through the gift of the Holy Spirit to us.

II. Sam. 22:20: "He brought me forth also into a large place." If we follow the third verse of the 18th Psalm, (in which the above scripture is also quoted) and call upon the Lord, He will bring us into a large sphere of service.

Neh. 4:19: "The work is great and large." While God's work extends over a vast territory, yet He unites His servants together.

Ps. 31:8: "Thou hast set my feet in a large room." Our room of Christian fellowship takes in, not only states but countries as well.

Ps. 118:5: "The Lord answered me, and set me in a large place." Through distress He brings me out into a large place spiritually.

I. Kings 4:29: "God gave . . . largeness of heart." We need this, as well as Solomon, to meet the multitude of things and people.

Ex. 34:24: "I will cast out the nations before thee, and enlarge thy borders." There must be a casting out, as well as adding to, if there is to be real spiritual prosperity.

Deut. 12:20: "The Lord thy God shall enlarge thy border, as he hath promised thee." We must pray, not only more extensively, but more deeply, and thus enlarge our borders.

I. Chron. 5:10: "Oh that thou wouldst bless me indeed, and enlarge my coast!" We must be blessed ourselves so we can bring more lives into the fullness of the grace of God.

Isa. 54:2: "Enlarge the place of thy tent." We should constantly be on the stretch to enlarge our lives in helping other lives.

I. Sam. 2:1: "My mouth is enlarged over mine enemies." God catches men for us when we commit our cases to Him.

Isa. 60:5: "Thine heart shall fear, and be enlarged." Our hearts are enlarged with the unity and sympathy of Christian friends.

II. Sam. 22:37: "Thou hast enlarged my steps." The Lord makes provision for our journeying and establishes our going.

II. Cor. 20:15: "Having hope, . . . that we shall be enlarged by you." We are to seek to help others, as well as to be helped by others, and thus there will be enlargement of the Lord's cause.

Deut. 33:20: "Blessed be he that enlargeth." If we will give ourselves to enlarge God's cause, His blessing will be upon us.

Esterh 4:14: "Then shall there enlargement . . . arise." It may seem like we are all shut up by the enemy, but when we wait on the Lord, deliverance will come.

Ez. 47:7: "There was an enlarging, and a winding up." Whether it is an altar, or aught else, we are building for God, there should be constant progress.

after something better, before his 'heart was strangely warmed' with the absolute assurance that he was a 'son' of God; but his heart-experience blazed the way for millions to enter the same Canaan by a shorter road. We may do well to pause a moment on his clear-cut definition of this vital and vitalizing truth, which is the inspiring heart of all personal religious experience. He says: 'By the testimony of the Spirit I mean an inward impression on the soul, whereby the Spirit of God immediately and directly witnesses to my spirit that I am a child of God; that Jesus Christ hath loved me and given Himself for me; that all my sins are blotted out, and I, even I, am reconciled to God.'

Bishop Foss has well added the following: "Some elaborate publications in recent years concerning the witness of the Spirit seem to me not to explain it, but to explain it away, reducing it to a very wild and indefinite type of 'religious consciousness.'"

Wesleyan Hymnology was most definite on the witness of the Spirit.

His spirit answers to the blood
And tells me I am born of God.

On this subject of the Witness of the Spirit it might be said in the words of Bishop Foster, "The Methodists have become as proper and almost as dull as the other denominations."

IV. Ruskin's Bible.

John Ruskin was one of the great writers of England. He attributed much to his godly mother, who early taught him to love the Bible. The following words of Ruskin will be read with deep interest: "I opened my oldest Bible just now . . . yellow now with age, and flexible, but not unclean, with much use, except that the lower corners of the pages at chapter 7 of the First Book of Kings, and chapter 8 of Deuteronomy are worn somewhat thin and dark, the learning of these two chapters having caused me much pain. My mother's list of chapters with which, every syllable learned accurately, she established my soul in life, has fallen out of it, as follows: 'Exodus 15 and 20; I Samuel 1, 5, 17, to end I Kings 8; Psalms 23, 32, 90, 91, 103, 112, 119, 139; Proverbs 2, 3, 8, 12; Isaiah 58; Matthew 5, 6, 7; Acts 26; I Corinthians 13, 15; James 4; Revelation 5, 6. And truly, though I have picked up the elements of a little further knowledge . . . in mathematics, meteorology, and the like, in after life, and owe not a little to the teaching of many people, this maternal installation of my mind in that property of chapters I count very confidently the most precious and, on the whole, the one essential part of my education. For the chapters became, indeed, strictly conclusive and protective to me in all modes of thought, and the body of divinity they contain acceptable through all fear and doubt; nor through any fear or doubt or fault have I ever lost my loyalty to them, nor betrayed the first command in the one I was made to repeat oftenest, 'Let not mercy and truth forsake thee.'"

"Discere cor Dei in Verbis Dei," said Gregory the Great. "We are to learn the mind of God from the Word of God." Another has well said, "A full acceptance of the Word of God confers a new sensitiveness to right and wrong and a new vision of life in all its possibilities."

V. A Prayer for Deliverance. Ps. 116:4.

David prays, "O Lord I beseech thee deliver my soul."

John Wesley made the following prayer: "Deliver me, O God, from too intense an application to even necessary business. I know how this dissipates my thoughts from the one end of all my business, and impairs that lively perception I would ever retain of thee standing at my right hand. I know the narrowness of my heart, and that an eager attention to earthly things leaves it no room for the things of heaven. O teach me to go through all my employments with so truly disengaged a heart that I may still see thee in all things, and see thee therein as continually looking upon me, and searching my reins; and that I may never impair that liberty of spirit which is necessary for the love of thee."

"Deliver me, O God, from a slothful mind, from all lukewarmness, and all dejection of spirit. I know that this cannot but deaden my love to thee; mercifully free my heart from them, and give me a lively, zealous, active and cheerful spirit, that I may vigorously perform whatever thou chooseth for me, and be ever ardent to obey in all things thy holy love."

"Above all, deliver me, O my God, from all idolatrous self-love. I know, O God—blessed be thy infinite mercy for giving me this knowledge—that this is the root of all evil. I know thou madest me, not to do my own will, but thine. I know that the very corruption of the devil is the having a will contrary to thine. O be thou my helper against this most dangerous of all idols, that I may both discern all its subtleties and withstand all its force. O thou who hast commanded me to renounce myself, give me strength, and I will obey thy command. My choice and desire is to love myself, as all other creatures, in and for thee. O let thy almighty arm so establish, strengthen and settle me that thou mayest ever be the ground and pillar of all my love. Amen."—Selected.

VI. Methodist Fire.

We might well ask in these days where is the old-fashioned fire of Methodism? We have money, education, culture and educated ministry but we have lost the fire.

The Rev. Dr. Charles L. Goodell, when pastor of St. Paul's M. E. Church, Manhattan, long in Brooklyn, in speaking at the Plymouth Church dedicatory services said, among other things:

"I count it a great pleasure, both for my denomination and myself, to share with you the fellowship of this memorial and dedication. When, a few moments ago, our toastmaster referred to Wesley as the leader of the 'shouting Methodists,' I felt like uttering a mild disclaimer. For myself I beg to assure you that I am 'the mildest mannered man that ever scuttled ship.' If at any time there were shouting Methodists it was not within the memory of most of the men now living. That race is as extinct as the dodo. It would really be refreshing if we could have a shout of conquest now and then in our Israel. 'As a matter of fact,' as Bishop Foster used to say, 'the Methodists have become as proper and almost as dull as the other denominations.'"

The following are statements by Dr. Dinsdale T. Young, the brilliant Wesleyan Methodist minister, who is said to preach to the largest Sunday night audiences that assemble in any church in London, England:

"Fire has always been a characteristic of the Methodists. There was a day when if a minister of another church preached without a manuscript, and if he had a message to declare, instead of a philosophy to expound—the highest compliment which could be paid him was to say, 'Sir, you preach like a Methodist preacher.' A cold, phlegmatic Methodism would never have won the victories that red-hot Methodism did in the past. Let us remember the words of Archbishop Alexander: 'The Church which renounces its past, renounces also its future.'

"John Wesley's motto was, 'I am a man of one Book; I refer to it in all things great and small.' The presupposition of all Wesley's teaching was the plenary inspiration of Holy Scripture. The rock on which the Methodist Church was built was the impregnable rock of Holy Scriptures. It is only churches which are true to the uttermost to the plenary inspiration of the Bible, to its sovereign character as the Word of God, that can meet the needs of this age, and which will live without a wrinkle on their radiant brows.

CHAPTER IV.

CHARLES HADDON SPURGEON.

THERE are nations in general, and men in particular, that are born fighters. It is in the blood as naturally as others turn to literature or music; such people breathe the spirit of heroism. The Spurgeon family belonged to a noble stock—the kind that counted life as nothing compared to honor and convictions. They lived in the "Low country of the Netherlands"—a people famous for their industry, skill and good citizenship. When Charles V. of Spain abdicated the throne to his son Philip II. he instructed the youthful ruler to never cease until he had exterminated Protestantism from his kingdom. Charles had issued several edicts, and had burned many at the stake, executed them by hanging, and the block, even strangling and burying them alive; but he was unable to stamp out the believers of the Reformation.

As soon as Philip established himself, his first undertaking was to carry out his father's instructions. Lutheranism had a firm hold in the Netherlands and they, being under the dominion of Spain, felt the full force of the King's wrath. Philip proved to be a worthy son of his father, and at once organized a great army under the Duke of Alva, who was one of the most heartless and blood-thirsty monsters in Spain. He established the "Council of Blood," and passed sentence of death on all the Netherlands, unless spared by special exemption. The crimes of this devil incarnate have no parallel in history. At the close of his career, he boasted of having executed eighteen thousand heretics.

When the Inquisition was at its crest of murderous propaganda, thousands of Hollanders fled to England, among them was a family named Spurgeon, known in their homeland for their piety and courage. Two branches of this family settled in England—one in Norfolk, and the other in Essex. The subject of this study belonged to the Essex branch. These people did not escape persecution entirely, even in England, as the Established Church was bitter against the nonconformists. Dissenters were not allowed to assemble; and for this offense Job Spurgeon was arrested for righteousness' sake, and finally sentenced to prison. Job Spurgeon was serving his fifteen years in the Chalmersford jail about the same time John Bunyan was in the Bedford jail, and for the same offense.

This gives us a glimpse of the ancestry of Charles Haddon Spurgeon, who was a son belonging to such a family. He was one of seventeen children, and was born June 19, 1834, in the little village of Kelvedon, Essex Co., England. The Grandfather of C. H. Spurgeon, Rev. James Spurgeon, was a minister of the Independent Church, and was one of the most pronounced evangelistic preachers of his day. Then when we remember that the boyhood of Charles H. Spurgeon was spent under the spiritual tuition of such a man, we get some explanation of his ideals in later life. In this parsonage he was given lessons of a wise and intelligent family; the grandchild was not spoiled, and foretokens of his greatness were evident even in his childhood. After the death of his Grandmother, which brought a sorrow to the child's life, from which he did not recover for many years, he returned to his own home, and was but one in a large group of children. However, he would assemble the smaller ones for his congregation, and preach to them.

There were many interesting events in the child life of Spurgeon; one which is worth passing on. His Grandfather had many friends among the Independent and Church of England ministers, who were welcome visitors at Stamborne. Once little Charles was on the knee of Rev. Kniel, who was visiting at the time. Placing his hand on the child's head, he remarked: "I have a strange premonition that this boy will preach the gospel, and when he preaches in Rowland Hill's Chapel, as he surely will some day, I should like him to promise me that he will give out the hymn commencing—

"God moves in a mysterious way,
His wonders to perform."

His prophecy came true, and when Spurgeon went to London and preached in the pulpit once occupied by Rowland Hill, he gave out the hymn suggested so many years before by the man of God.

The conversion of any great man is interesting. Mr. Spurgeon had been rigidly taught in righteousness, but the age of fifteen found him unconverted, and the burden of sin weighing down his soul. He attended preaching here and there, but could find no help. He tried to settle down with the assurance that he had never been immoral; and observed strictly the highest standards; but this gave him no comfort. He next tried good works, seeking always to find some mission of charity; but his soul still groped in darkness. One Sunday he started to church, and was overtaken by a heavy snowstorm, and he turned into a side street, where was located the obscure "Artillery Primitive Methodist Church." The minister failed to appear; at length an ungainly, awkward fellow entered the pulpit, who resembled "a shoemaker, tailor, or something of the sort." He took a text: "Look unto me all ye ends of the earth, and be saved." About all there was in the rambling exhortation was—"Look, Look to Jesus." Then, as if directing his words to young Spurgeon, he said: "Young man, you are in trouble, and you will never get out until you look to Jesus." Pointing upward he shouted: "Look! Look! Look!" Then and there the floodgates of light broke in upon Charles Haddon Spurgeon and it was like the heart warming of John Wesley, it marked the beginning of the career of the greatest gospel preacher of the Nineteenth Century.

Young Spurgeon attended school but a short time at Newmarket. In 1850 he went to Cambridge, where he joined a flourishing Baptist Church, although his father was a congregational minister. He at once became active in teaching a class, and gained a reputation for story telling. He was invited to address the whole school, and step by step, was led into the ministry. His first preaching was in and around Cambridge; but he finally was called to a pastorate at Waterback and his youth, his originality, and sincerity drew large congregations to the unpretentious chapel. He was heard by an officer of the New Park Street Church, London, that was then without a pastor. His appearance in London, dressed in country garb, created no little critical comment, however, when he delivered two sermons, there was a strong demand for his call to be pastor. By and by, he was called to this church, and the youthful appearance, the personality, the force of his gospel messages created a sensation. The church seated twelve hundred, and in less than one month, the house was packed.

What happened? Just what always happens; ministers and Friars poured out such a tirade of criticism and persecution, as would have discouraged a less brave soul. He did in London what had not been done before, and he must pay the penalty of ministerial jealousy. They berated his ignorance, his pulpit manners, his lack of ministerial culture. Through it all, he went on, preaching to his capacity house; they tried to slander his character, but the Lord delivered and blest him.

The storm finally blew over, and Charles Haddon Spurgeon stood in this pulpit the best advertised, the most talked about, of any preacher in England. Thus began the career of this prince of preachers. The church was being enlarged, and the congregation met in Exeter Hall; then they were forced to go to Royal Surrey Garden Music Hall, seating ten thousand. So it went on until a new tabernacle was built and the first Knowing All That's In The Heart.

Rev. W. Evans Burnett.

"Howbeit, in the business of the ambassadors of the princes of Babylon, who sent unto him to inquire of the wonder that was done in the land, God left him to try him, that he might know all that was in his heart."
—2 Chronicles 32:31.

KING Hezekiah, to whom the passage of Scripture above refers, had the reputation in God's sight of being of the best of the rulers of Judah. Speculation as to his ever being sanctified wholly, or ever having had the experience of heart purity, is largely a waste of time, because it's not the experience we may have had that counts, but one now possessed. Some no doubt will admit that the believer in Christ can get an experience or heart purity in these New Testament times who are unwilling to accept the idea that Old Testament saints had the blessing. Be this as it may, we are sure Hezekiah needed something else done for him because our text intimates as much, even though he was reputed one of Judah's most spiritual kings.

Over and over again able holiness preachers of various denominations have proven publicly from the published books of doctrine of belief of the various churches that holiness of heart must somehow and somewhere be obtained before entrance into Heaven can finally be gained. In one of Rev. John Wesley's sermons (Sin in Believers, possibly) he makes the following statement, in substance, which is absolutely unanswerable, viz.: "Let every one say what they may against the Bible experience of entire sanctification as a second work of grace, or let it be styled whatever you may please, the fact still remains, nevertheless, and is very plain to real believers in Christ. especially at times, that they need something more than they received when converted or regenerated." Surely facts are the end of all controversy on any subject.

And so it was with King Hezekiah. "God left him to try him, that he might know all that was in his heart." The Lord will seem to step aside many times in order to allow the young convert, or older one for that matter, to glimpse the feelings of their heart under some fiery trial, temptation, or bitter disappointment. Or, as it was with Hezekiah, just when extra prosperity comes either spiritually, socially, or perhaps in a financial way, or when you have gained some great victory. The good Book says if we faint in the day of adversity our strength is small. Somebody has said if we faint in the day of prosperity our strength is small, and how true all this is nobody knows better than those who have gone down under trial.

The Lord will ever be true to us, and it is the work of the Holy Spirit to see that we get real light on the inner workings of our hearts—find out what is on the inside. Some are puzzled as to what "light" really is. The Bible says that whatsoever doth make manifest (uncover, reveal) is light, and King Hezekiah saw the light as plainly as the noonday sun. This summer I requested one of Georgia's faithful pilgrims to give me the straight of his sanctification, and this is his story:

"After much prayer, fasting, and seeking the Lord I was reclaimed from a backslidden state in a holiness meeting, but at that time I was a member of the Methodist Church. Somebody insisted that I get sanctified wholly at once, but I tried to make them understand that not only did I not know just what they were talking about, but that I was so blessed then that I hardly had room to contain my blessing. However, I promised that if ever I felt the need of more that I would seek the second blessing. One day not long after my reclamation, while driving in my buggy with my wife down Peter's street, a young negro whom I had never seen before or since, and without any apparent reason in the world, came deliberately out into the street, and, catching the bridle of my horse, stopped us in the street. The negro said nothing, and neither did I say anything, and, after detaining us a short time he loosed the bridle of the horse and walked away. Even though I said nothing to this impudent negro yet what I saw in my heart made me to understand most emphatically that I needed to have that anger taken out of my heart that boiled up against him when he stopped my horse. I left my business in the hands of others and started in at once to seek the experience of entire sanctification as I had promised, and found the blessing after seeking several days."

The carnal trait that this brother saw was anger shut up in his heart. King Hezekiah saw that pride remained. What do you suppose the Lord would reveal to you if he should leave you some time in the near future to try you? We never shall forget the feeling of disgust we felt in our heart when just a young convert on hearing a story of a young girl whose mother was horribly burned and disfigured on her face when she risked her life for her when a baby, but in later years after becoming quite a belle among her gay young friends she refused to recognize her mother with her scarred face, false pride in her heart making her insult her best earthly friend.

That most remarkable man, Mr. Wesley, defines the carnal mind as being "pride, self-will, and hell." The most spiritually-minded agree that no believer could stand a full view of the carnal mind all at once, but enough is revealed to honest hearts from time to time to convince them that they need something that was not obtained when they were converted. Maybe you will get a view of a stubborn, unteachable spirit, or a disposition to criticise and pick flaws when set aside or unnoticed. Some are seriously hindered because of a man-fearing trait, or a jealous, envious disposition; an unpleasant feeling because of the prosperity or success of another. Others realize that there is a lack of concern for souls, a spirit of selfishness, love of ease and love of money. Going into the real estate business and other secular employment when called to preach and evangelize has no doubt caused some to make shipwreck of their faith, failing to see the cloven hoof of carnality in this money-getting business, and excuse their actions by hiding behind Paul's tent making.

The good Book plainly promises us that if we confess our sins he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and if we confess our unrighteousness (carnality) he is faithful and just to cleanse us from all unrighteousness. One of the most eloquent preachers to whom I ever listened, and also one of the most successful revivalists said the time came in his early ministry when he had to take his Bible and seek the seclusion of a post oak thicket down in Texas and confess out to the Lord every carnal trait he saw remaining in his heart. The cleansing, crucifying power came into his soul through faith in the blood, in response to this definite, desperate seeking, and he received the blessing of entire sanctification. This preacher is still giving out the great gospel message with mighty power and fiery eloquence.

Instead of keeping on in the dangerous business of trying to suppress carnality in the heart let us do as that mighty evangelist, Rev. Ed. Fergerson, in his forceful, quaint way advised, by letting Adam's Exress Co., No. 2 (meaning Christ) express the old man of sin, and cease trying to hold down this dynamite of the devil which always parades himself in some form when least expected.

THE MIGHT OF SACRIFICIAL LOVE.

Rev. E. Stanley Jones, D.D.

CHAPTER IV.

IF we apply the principle of strict legal justice to our relationship with God we virtually say to him, "I give you so much in worship and service. Return to me so much in blessings." If our relationship with God be founded on that principle, then the principle of fellowship, friendship and love is done away with; and religion consists no longer in a relationship of friendship and love, but becomes a sordid bargain; and then real religion dies.

On the other hand we instinctively admire and praise the deeds of men when they rise above the level of bargaining and mere strict justice. We neither admire nor praise the banian who gives when he gets in return; but the hero, who gives his most precious possession, life, looking for nothing in return, is sung by poet and bard. Prof. Cairns gives this example of deliberate and heroic self-sacrifice. A theological student by the name of Maclean, a quiet unassuming, but promising young man, had gone out one morning from his home to do a forenoon's reading in a quiet spot on the links by the sea, when he saw a boy, a stranger to the place, going out into waters that he knew to be dangerous. He cried out to him and warned him, but the boy took no heed. After a while Maclean heard a cry far out at sea, and, looking up from his books, he saw that the boy was struggling with the current. He laid his books down, made straight for the water and swam out to him with a plank he had somehow got hold of by the way. He reached the lad in time and, as the current swept them both outward, tried in vain to get him on the plank. But the lad was exhausted, and again and again slipped off. Then he felt his own strength giving out, but up to the very end persisted, and at the last succeeded. But his own powers were exhausted, and he sank and was drowned; but he had saved the lad.

The saviour of the lad might have stood upon the shore and reasoned with himself, when he saw the boy struggling in the waters, "I warned him. That is sufficient. I have done my part. He must now take the penalty of his folly." How cold and callous that sounds; And how very far beneath the sublimity of the actual story! And yet there are those who would argue that God's love is shown sufficiently in making warning laws, and then leaving the transgressor to his fate. If this be true then the sublimity of sacrificial love dies out of the conception of God, and God is as cold as his warnings and as mechanical as his laws. Such a God could never produce men who would show sacrificial love. When we hear this story, why do we not say, "How unjust! Why should he have done it?" Because within us are the instincts of a higher justice—a justice that feels it right to save even at cost to self. If that higher justice dies, then life is not worth living, for life becomes a sordid bargain. If God is sacrificial, then life can be interpreted as love, otherwise not.

There is the story told of an Italian king, Seleucus, who made a law, that, if anyone in his realm committed the sin of adultery, his eyes were to be put out. The king was known for his strictness, and men trembled before that law. A culprit was brought before him—it was the king's own son. Then there began a struggle in his heart between justice and love. If one triumphed the other could not. How could he save justice and yet show merciful love; how could he put them together in one deed? How could he save his son yet punish him? There was only one way, and the king took it. He had one of his own eyes taken out, and then one of his son's. Justice and mercy met together in one deed, and the sightless socket of the king was a sign that he loved justice too well to forgive lightly, and loved his son too well to be indifferent. The thing we admire about the king was not the fact that he ruled over millions of subjects, nor his wealth or wisdom, but the fact of that ugly scar, the sightless socket, the sign of fatherly sacrificial love. That which impresses us about God our Father, is not his omniscience, for we cannot understand that, nor his omnipotence, for it would frighten us to know all he can do, but if God wears the signs of sacrifice for my sake I can understand that, for I can understand love. The God of mere omnipotence, of mere omniscience, of mere omnipresence, of mere justice, might gain the fear, but never the love of man.

To further illustrate: A minister was riding in a lonely place upon his horse, when he was suddenly held up by a highway robber. He got down from his horse, fell upon his knees, and prayed for the man to be regained to a better mode of life. Then he said, "Now go home with me and take the place I will give you in my family, never to be exposed, always to be cared for, there to win a character and to be known as a good man." He did so, entered the family and became a good man. He only told this story on the death of his benefactor. Was the minister unrighteous and unjust? No! There is something more just than political justice; it is to forgive, recover and save. There is a higher justice in which it is just for the strong to save the weak, the holy to recover the unholy. God would not be just in his own eyes were he unmerciful. Divine justice is redemptive; and we may say in passing that society, if it wishes to be Christian, and therefore Christ-like, must pay the heavy cost of making all its contacts with the imperfect redemptive and transforming.

The objection that it would be unjust for one to suffer for the sake of another could only be valid among men who have no love, whose life is built upon strict bargaining. The cross is intelligible to men who love, who would save others at cost to themselves.

But to return more definitely to the problem of evil. We saw that it separates and breaks harmony between man and God. How are man and God to be brought together again? How is that chasm between us to be bridged? I do not see how we can bridge it from our side, for God is holy, and we are unholy and guilty. If it were possible for us to repent and show an unbrokenly perfect life in the future, yet it would not touch the deeds already done—our guilty past. In our unholiness and guilt we cannot come to him and say, "Now let us be one." Our guilt forbids it, our unholiness makes it impossible. We cannot bridge the chasm from our side. If it is bridged at all it must be from God's side. How could he do it? I see only one way.

To illustrate: A father and son were great friends. They shared each other's joys and griefs. The greatest time of enjoyment was the time of the evening meal, when they talked over the happenings of the day. One day the boy disobeyed the father and did a thing very wrong. The father must punish him. He told the boy he could not eat with him that night and that he must go to a godown alone and without any supper. The boy went in tears. The father sat down to his own meal, but he could not eat. There was a lump in his throat. He thought of his boy, until he could stand it no longer. He pushed back his plate, arose, and rapped at the door of the godown. With a choking voice the boy replied "Come in, father." The boy threw his arms around the father's neck and wept. That night the father stayed with his son in the dark godown, gave up his own meal, and, as it were, entered into the punishment and sufferings of the boy. Father and son met again, after the estrangement occasioned by the boy's disobedience, at the place of the father's sacrifice. The boy could not come to his father—his sin forbade him. The father could not but come to the boy—his love impelled him.

No more can we, in our guilt, go to God. God must come to us. His love impells him to do it. If in some mysterious way he could enter into our sufferings occasioned by our sins: if he could become one with us in taking the consequences of our evil upon himself, then the chasm would be bridged. Man and God would be brought together. There would be At-One-Ment—atonement. And that atonement would be law's vindication, for it is not set aside; it would be love's manifestation, for no deeper love can be shown than this; and it would be man's salvation, for man would realize not only what sin costs himself, but what it costs God.

Drummond tells of two college men, one of whom was noble, of good habits and God-fearing; the other was brilliant, but dissolute and with bad habits. The upright man was so intent on saving the other that he decided to share the other's room. He patiently bore this man's sins, and with it he bore the shame of living with him, until he saved the other through the strength and share of that constant companionship. That story faintly illustrates what God, in the Incarnation and the bearing of our guilt and shame in Christ on the cross, does in order to save men. It was identification in order to redemption. It was at-one-ment, atonement.

Again, the problem of God is not merely to force men to obedience, but to turn the heart of the evildoer against his sin. God might try to force us to obedience through punishment inflicted by iron laws, but this would not solve the problem. Man might bow, but his heart would not be in the obedience. God must win the affections of man to himself, and turn the heart of the evildoer against his sin. How can this be done? Iron laws will not do it. Mere punishment is of no avail. Love must win them to the right; but in order to do so it must be a principled love. It cannot be mere indulgence. A schoolmaster loved his boys very devotedly. They recognized it, but in spite of this they disobeyed him, and broke his rules again and again, and they were as often punished. After this had gone on for some time he called his boys together and said, "Boys, you have disobeyed me and have broken my rules. I have punished you. After this when you do wrong I am going to take the punishment—you are to lay the rod on my hand." They smiled, not seeing the underlying principle. A few days later one of the boys, having done something wrong, was called to the front. The teacher, with a look of severity mingled with love, stretched out his hand and commanded the boy to strike the outstretched hand. The boy gave two or three strokes, and then looked into the face of his teacher and saw the suffering there—not merely physical, but mental and moral as well. Now he did not want to go on with the strokes, but the teacher commanded him to do so. After two or three more strokes, the boy broke down in tears, and most of the school with him. A new spirit went through the school. The boys began to feel that if this was what their disobedience was costing the master who loved them, they would stop it. It completely changed the spirit of the school and turned the hearts of the boys against their sin. Suffering love had done what mere punishment could not do. They saw that they not only broke law by evil-doing, but hurt love. A great Christian Japanese nationalist, Neesima, did the same in regard to his school. The broken cane is still kept in the great university as a memento by his grateful pupils and admirers.

MODERN APOSTLES OF FAITH.

service was held there March, 1861. At the age of twenty-seven, he was preaching to thousands, and on through a long life of over thirty years, he was without a peer, the world's greatest preacher. His voluminous writings were sermons, notes, and helps for preachers. He founded no great institution; he was preeminently a preacher. His career and reputation never waned. He died January 31, 1892; truly a great prophet of God.

LOPSIDED RELIGION.

REV. E. E. SHELHAMER.

WEVER since the fall, man is more or less lop-sided. They say one shoulder is a little higher than the other, one foot a little larger than the other, and one side of the brain a little heavier than the other; hence we wobble when we walk.

It is the same when it comes to seeing truth. We see and stress one phase of truth out of proportion to another truth of equal importance.

For instance: Brother A is a fine, liberal man. If others gave as freely as he, there would be no lack, or pull for finances. But his example is hurtful in that he and his family are so worldly in their dress and home furnishings.

Brother B is different. He is radical and straight on the dress, diet and Sunday street car question, but he is stingy and contrary around home and on the official board. These things hurt his good qualities.

Sister C is a power in prayer and exhortation, but would wield a much greater influence were she more careful about repeating what she hears, especially concerning ministers and their wives. Sometimes she prays at people publicly without having first spoken to the parties privately. This is unwise, unkind and unscriptural.

Sister D is more conscientious in speaking about absent people. She is a pattern in neatness and plainness; she is a fine solicitor and Sabbath school worker. But all this is forgotten when she gets one of those pouting spells, because she has been "hurt" or "slighted." Oh, that she could get saved from her touchiness and sensitiveness.

Brother E is a mighty man in the pulpit, but it is very unfortunate that when out of it he can stoop to do little, unbrotherly tricks; he is easily biased and is quick to pass sentence before he has heard both sides. This belittles him and greatly cripples his usefulness.

Brother F is not much of an orator, but is a good pastor, calling and praying with the people continually. However, there are things that hurt him. First, he is careless about keeping his word and paying little bills. Second, he has no family government; the children do about as they please. This is a great pity.

Sister G is a good singer and excellent altar worker, but is too masculine and lacks humility. If you doubt this, just cross her opinion and there will be either resentment, or a multitude of words explaining her position.

Sister H is a rebuke to many when it comes to enduring hardships and being self-forgetful for others. But unfortunately she is so changeable and full of impressions that she lacks poise and forcefulness. Hence, nothing abides.

We might go on to the end of the alphabet and notice the "little foxes that spoil the vines," but a hint to the wise is sufficient. God grant that we may all straighten up and walk uprightly so that others seeing our good works may be led to glorify our Father which is in heaven.

BELIEVERS IN JESUS.

REV. C. W. RUTH, Evangelist.

WE would insist that there is a difference between a mere intellectual faith, and mental assent to the truth, and believing to the saving of the soul. This writer never doubted one word in the Bible; and from infancy believed in the deity and messiahship of Jesus Christ; in his virgin birth; in his blood atonement; the miracles, and the resurrection; the inspiration of the Bible, and all the promises contained therein, but that did not save him; I still continued to live in the practice of sin, as a sinner, despite the fact that there was a mental acceptance, and belief of all these things. "The devils also believe, and tremble." Jas. 2:19.

Saving faith is conditional, affectional, and volitional.

First. No one can believe to the saving of the soul until he has complied with divine requirements by way of repentance—in confessing and forsaking his sins—and thus meeting the conditions upon which the promises become operative. He may try to believe, but faith will not function until there has been thorough, genuine, scriptural repentance. Jesus said, "Except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish." Luke 13:3, 5. It is by repentance we reach believing ground. The very first requirement is, "Let the wicked forsake his way." "If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins." Isa. 55:7; 1 John 1:9. It is useless and dangerous to exhort men to believe when they have not yet fully met these requirements. We have seen Christian workers place an open Bible on the altar in front of a seeker, and call their attention to a certain passage of Scripture,—a promise,—and then saying, "Do you believe that?" and when the seeker assented, and said he believed the promise, he was told to arise, and confess his faith—when God had not yet touched him, nor spoken to his heart. And the seeker went away from the altar looking sad and disappointed,—and was made to rest in a false hope. In my most sinful days I could have truthfully said, "I believe those promises," for I never doubted any of them. The promises were true all right, but the seeker had not yet reached believing ground; the conditions upon which the promises are made effective had not yet been fully complied with, hence the seeker could not claim the fulfillment of the promises.

Instead of telling the seeker to "take it by faith," we think it better to urge the penitent to pray through, and "seek in faith," until the heart is divinely assured and satisfied. We have experienced, and observed that when conditions have been fully met it is never difficult to believe; faith seems then to be spontaneous, and operates almost automatically. When a person cannot believe, there is usually a reason, and the soul should inquire of the Lord, "What is in the way"; and the Spirit will reveal what the hindrance is. I know when I was a penitent the Holy Spirit revealed some things to me that he wanted me to do, which no man could have possibly told me. We think it not best to hurry seekers through; for we have observed that when people have simply been talked into religion, they can usually be talked out again.

Second. True, saving faith is affectional. "With the heart man believeth unto righteousness," Rom. 10:10. The "heart" certainly includes the affections. And Webster defines "affection" as "A settled good will; love; zealous or tender attachment." True faith is grounded in love, and love dispels doubt and fear. Indeed, love and faith are inseparable. "Faith which worketh by love." Gal. 5:6. To have faith in Jesus is to love Jesus; and to love Jesus is to have faith in Jesus. "Unto you therefore which believe, he is precious." 1 Pet. 2:7. To believe in Jesus is at once to give him the foremost place, and the pre-eminence in our affections. Self must be dethroned, and Jesus enthroned. He said, "How can ye believe which receive honor one of another, and seek not the honor that cometh from God only." John 5:44. Even those relationships which are legitimate, and sacred, must be subordinated and become secondary; for Jesus said, "He that loveth father or mother more than me is not worthy of me: and he that loveth son or daughter more than me is not worthy of me" Matt. 10:37. Hence, to believe with the heart unto righteousness, is to have a "zealous, or tender attachment" to Jesus in our affections; to relinquish all that would be displeasing to him, and give him first place in our hearts and lives. And no one can scripturally believe on Jesus until he does this.

Third. Saving faith is volitional. Believing in Jesus includes the will. "Said I not unto thee, that, if thou wouldest believe thou shouldst see the glory of God?" John 11:40. But before a person can will to believe there must be the consciousness that the will is in accord with the will of God. In other words, there must be the surrender of the human will to the divine will. Until there has been the surrender of the will, it is impossible to believe, to the saving of the soul; in fact, faith is the assent of the will to the plan and purpose of God, and the acceptance of his will. When the human will is fully yielded, so that the heart says "Yes" to the whole will of God, faith becomes easy, and natural—if not spontaneous. But not only must the will be passive: it must become active. There must be an act of the will in accepting an appropriating the promises and provisions of the gospel before the fact of salvation takes place. A person can will to believe when conditions have been fully met, or they may refuse to believe—will not to believe. The very fact that God requires faith implies the possibility; seeing God never requires the impossible. Hence it is needless for a person to say, "I cannot believe." Everyone can believe, if they will, when the divine requirements have been fully complied with.

Thus we see that believing in Christ is more than a mere mental assent to truth. It implies a full compliance with every divine requirement, a complete and unconditional surrender of the will, and an affectionate and "tender attachment" to Jesus, which gives him the first place in your heart, and the preeminence in all things. He that thus "believeth that Jesus is the Christ is born of God." 1 John 5:1.

Rev. William G. Nixon, D. D.
WILLIAM B. WEAVER.

WILLIAM G. Nixon was born near Ovid, Mich., Sept. 8, 1865. Here he attended school, and for a time taught school. On May 23, 1888, he was united in marriage to Miss Jeannette Elizabeth Sherman, with whom he had been acquainted from childhood. A more felicitous union would have been impossible. He was a most loving and devoted husband, and she a most affectionate and devoted wife. To them were born seven children—Floyd, of the editorial staff of The Detroit Free Press; Rev. Lloyd H. Nixon of Lowell, Mich.; Mrs. Glenadine Stricker, wife of Rev. Edwin W. Stricker, of Tucson, Arizona; Mrs. Floyd Church, William Joyce, Bernadine and Ruth, all of Detroit. His devotion to his family was beautiful to see, and their love for him unsurpassed.

REPORTS FROM SOUL WINNERS

CLAY CITY, ILLINOIS.

In our last report to The Herald we were in a good meeting at Flora, Ill., a blessed meeting in which souls prayed through for pardon and purity. We closed with fine interest. We went next to Zion Chapel on the Patoka Charge. God was with us and helped us preach the full gospel. It was indeed a blessed privilege to preach to these dear people. The church was wonderfully revived. We closed with shouts of victory. We then went into the battle at Patoka. This was our third meeting with the pastor. God bless Bro. Wilis and his people. We did have a battle, but we had some real fruit for our labors. God has blessed the little town of Patoka and the church has been strengthened.

We are now in a battle for souls at Clay City, Ill. This is our seventh meeting for this pastor, and we are expecting a good meeting.

Evangelist Mrs. Stella Gasaway.

INGALLS, INDIANA.

To all The Herald family Happy New Year. I want to say I am praising God for the victory. In my last year's work I have traveled through five states and have preached to thousands during this time. The altars were lined with hungry hearts. Our last meeting was at Augustaville, Pa., with Rev. W. F. Bubb. This meeting was a hard battle, but God gave us the victory. Bro. Bubb is a fine man to work with and there are many fine folks in Pennsylvania. This finds me fully settled to go all the way with Jesus. I have some time I would like to give some place, and will go anywhere God leads. Your brother in Christian love,

J. C. Cassidy.

WACO, TEXAS.

Evangelist T. T. Martin, one of the Baptists' clearest Gospel preachers, is leading Tabernacle Baptist Church revival which is nothing less than a moral earthquake under the mighty messages of this powerful evangel. Prominent unconverted deacons, Sunday school workers and many others have been clearly saved and baptized. Strong, blanching faces reel and stagger like drunken men and cry out in service and elsewhere, "What must I do to be saved?" Bro. Martin will preach in Burleson College revival (Greenville, Tex.,) Jan. 23-30. He begins his nation wide series of debates with the leader of the Atheistic Society of America in Lexington, Ky., Feb. 1.

A. Reilly Copeland, Pastor.

MURPHYSBORO, ILLINOIS.

We are just swinging out into the general field of vocational evangelism and God has given us signal victories the past year, which partly led us to undertake this step which had been anticipated for some years. It seemed that God has led us according to his design and will and we are submitted to his plans.

We closed just before the holidays a glorious revival in the Tigert Memorial Church at Cairo and there were about ninety converted or rededicated, and some thirty-five united with the church, a half hundred tithers added to the list and about twenty new family altars established. We are now in the first week of a revival here in Murphysboro with dear Brother T. H. Ballarby. There is talk of making it a city-wide campaign and extending it four or five weeks. Pray for us, brethren.

Yours in the fight,

Moody B. Cunningham.

DANA, INDIANA.

Just closed a gracious revival meeting at Dana, Ind. This is what I call an unusual meeting. The services were held on the second floor in a hall over a blacksmith shop, and it was wonderful how the crowds did come: God sure did have a hand in it. We reached many new people, and won new friends to the Nazarene Church. We had some wonderful altar services, with a number of happy finders. Rev. Carter and his good people from St. Bernice came over a number of times and gave us a boost which helped us very much. May God bless the St. Bernice folks. The Dana church has been wanting to build a new tabernacle, so we raised four hundred dollars to buy a lot so they can put up their tabernacle. The good pastors of this church are Revs. G. D. and A. Urschel, they are wonderful workers and know how to make things move. Sister Urschel did the singing and she played her part well.

From here we went to Olivet College where our daughter is attending. This is the first time we have seen her since September. We were invited to spend the Christmas holidays with some good friends in Chicago, Ill., which we accepted. After the holidays our daughter went back to Olivet, and we went on to Georgetown, Ky., in a meeting. Things are starting off well, good crowds, and we are expecting a great time in the Lord.

This past year 1926 has been the best year of my life. God has been very precious to us; he has given us good health, blessed us in our ministry, and we have seen hundreds of precious souls find God. In our last ten meetings we have had eight recalls. God has kept us busy in his vineyard, and our determination is to push the battle against sin and the devil, win souls to God, and make heaven our home. Pray for us that God will keep us humble, low, and filled with the Holy Ghost, and busy in the service of the King.

Yours for Christ and souls,

Lewis J. and Edythe Rice, Evangelists.

REV. WILLIAM G. NIXON, D.D.

He was converted early in life, and soon felt a very definite call to the Christian ministry. His call was so clear and positive that he never for a moment swerved from his task. He "was not disobedient to the heavenly vision."

In the fall of 1892 he was received on trial into the Detroit Annual Conference. And at the Conference of 1894 into full membership. His pastorates have been:—Corunna Avenue, Owosso, five years; Chesanning, five years; Grand River Avenue, Detroit, seven years; Mary Palmer, Detroit, one year; First Church, Pontiac, six years; First Church, Saginaw, two years; East Grand Boulevard, Detroit, five years; and Ninde Church, Detroit, three years and three months.

In every pastorate he had great revivals, and saw the church built up in all its interests. Outside the immediate domestic circle there is no tie so sweet and lasting as that between "a Father in Christ", and his "sons and daughters in Christ." Hence this man had thousands of the warmest friends.

During his pastorate at Grand River the first unit of that splendid edifice was built.

When he went to Ninde Church he found that church in an unfinished and unattractive condition, with an indebtedness of $85,000. The situation was critical and staggering, but the people responded to his courageous leadership, and the outlook is at present very encouraging. About $22,000 have been raised and paid on indebtedness and improvements. The present property has been sold, a much more desirable site on West Chicago Boulevard, facing Nardin Park, purchased, the old indebtedness paid, leaving $100,000 with which to begin a splendid new temple of worship. This church will be slow to forget the fine leadership that has made this possible.

He was possessed of a personality that would have made him a leader in any field of endeavor. An intellect so keen that he seemed to penetrate to the very bottom of every question. A debater with whom very few wished to "measure swords." And yet Christian and kind in debate, never moved by selfish motives, but with a zeal for truth and right.

These qualities together with absolute sincerity of purpose and fidelity to God-given conviction made his counsel invaluable. No member of our Conference would have been more keenly missed.

The same is true of his relationship to other ministerial bodies—the Detroit Methodist Ministers' Association, The Pastors' Union, The Council of Churches, The Deacons Board (of which he had been chairman for six years), the Conference Board of Stewards, of which he was treasurer.

During his twenty years as President of Simpson Park Camp Meeting Association he saw that institution grow from a camp limited to a district, to one with a constituency drawn from several states and from Canada. He saw it grow from one with a very limited equipment to one with as fine an equipment as is to be found anywhere.

For about five years he had also been the successful President of the great Eaton Rapids Camp Meeting.

The schools have likewise sought his counsel. For a number of years he had been a trustee of Chicago Evangelistic Institute, also a trustee of Asbury College at Wilmore, Ky., of John Fletcher College at University Park, Iowa, and of Taylor University at Upland, Indiana, until the trustee board of that institution was merged into The Legal One Hundred, of which he was president until he resigned a few months ago. He was first vice-president of The National Association for the Promotion of Holiness. His going has left many vacancies. His mantle will need to fall not on one, but upon many.

In recognition of his intellectual attainments, his outstanding characteristics as a preacher and religious leader, both Asbury College and Taylor University conferred upon him the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity. Not many could wear such an honor more worthily.

As a preacher he was tremendously convincing. His every utterance carried conviction.

But he was more than a preacher. He was "a good minister of Jesus Christ." And above all he was in the truest sense "a fisher of men." He was dominated by an all-consuming passion for the glory of God, and the exaltation of Jesus Christ. He saw God's highest glory, and Jesus' greatest exaltation in redeemed souls. This gave him such a passion for souls as to utterly destroy in him any thought of rest or self-preservation. Hence he literally burned out for Christ and souls.

To him sin was an awful reality. And every sinner a lost soul, with no possible hope except in the atoning blood of Jesus. He must bring this message of salvation to as many as possible. And this is why he was such a flaming evangelist.

He preached that every Christian who would yield in an uttermost dedication to God and believe in the all-sufficient blood of Jesus could receive the baptism with the Holy Ghost, and be sanctified wholly. And as a result of his ministry a multitude have entered into the experience of perfect love and rest.

This great good man closed his splendid ministry just as he had many times expressed the desire to do. He had more than once said, "I want to die in the harness." And he surely did. No year of his ministry was more overflowing full of labors, nor of fruitage than the last. In addition to the consuming responsibilities of a very heavy pastorate he carried out a camp meeting itinerary that took him from the Pacific to the Atlantic. On Sunday, Dec. 12, he preached with great unction and power. On Monday, Dec. 13, and on Tuesday, he attended important meetings. On Wednesday night he held a very gracious prayer meeting, and spent the time after the prayer meeting in Christmas preparations for the family. Made ready to retire about twelve o'clock. Had a severe heart attack, and after about twenty minutes of intense suffering he went to be with God.

A very tender funeral service was held at Ninde Church at 2:00 P. M., Saturday, Dec. 18. Dr. Howard A. Field, district superintendent, had charge. Dr. Field read a brief sketch of his life. Rev. James Chapman led in prayer. Dr. E. M. Moore spoke of him "As a Member of the Conference." Dr. C. E. Wakefield spoke of him "As a Pastor and Minister." Dr. J. E. Jeffery spoke of him "As a Neighbor and Friend." Rev. W. B. Weaver spoke of him "As a Preacher and Evangelist." Bishop Nicholson preached a most fitting sermon, and paid tribute to the fine type of ministry Dr. Nixon had given to the Church. Two very appropriate solo selections, "The Pearly White City" and "The Last Mile of the Way," were sung by Prof. Protheroe.

About one hundred members of the Conference and ministers of other denominations were in attendance. The church was filled with sorrowing friends. Six intimate friends, members of the Conference, acted as pall bearers. We laid that which was mortal in beautiful Grand Lawn Cemetery. But such a ministry can never end. THEOLOGICAL DISCUSSION. (Continued from page 1) essential Bible truth, must burn and glow with that belief, must proclaim it with absolute faith in its truthfulness and its power to save; and he must be ready to meet all comers with a fearless, earnest defense of that truth. To accuse him of being disloyal, or losing interest in missions, and of diverting the church from a great program of salvation, is begging the question and so contemptible that one can but feel a sense of disgust with all such accusers.

Children cannot inherit their religion, their knowledge of truth, or salvation from sin. Every generation must be taught the saving truths of the Bible. This is one of the first duties and most sacred tasks of the church; it is one of the highest obligations of the ministry. We are living in times when we are compelled to engage in theological controversies, or surrender to the most dangerous, bold, aggressive skepticism that has ever made an assault upon the Bible and our Lord Jesus Christ.

Dry up the fountain and you dry up the stream. If true missionary work goes on abroad we shall have to keep a spiritual church at home; and if the church at home is spiritual, it must be a regenerated church. It must be taught the Bible doctrine of sin, repentance, the new birth, and a power for service which is imparted by the baptism with the Holy Ghost.

On with the controversy! Let God's people stand firmly for the Bible and its great doctrines, and never cease to oppose, contradict, reason and contend against the false teachers who are swarming the homeland and the foreign field. We must "let God be true, though every man's a liar." This does not mean that we are to cease holding revivals of religion, preaching the gospel, making liberal contributions for the support of missions, and carrying forward an aggressive work for the salvation of souls in the homeland and in all lands.

It is a bit amusing that the modern liberals is so eager to get the Lord's people to do their duty in giving money for the propaganda of his notion, that they will have no time to preach the old-time gospel, or condemn modern heresies. If a man dare to open his mouth in the defense of the inspiration of the Scriptures, the virgin birth of our Lord, his sacrificial death, and his resurrection, he is ridiculed as a heresy hunter.

No doubt some men can be scolded and laughed into silence, but others will not be so easily controlled. If the modernists will turn their guns on Satan and sin, or on the man in the moon, we can give less attention to their false teaching and more time to the spread of the gospel—a New Testament gospel—mark you, in all the world.

An Honest Confession.

One of the most hurtful hindrances to our holiness camp meetings, as regards the fruitfulness in the number of sinners converted and believers sanctified, is the wearing-out length of the services.

The song service of half an hour, then the long, drawn-out announcements of the platform manager, with his speeches, exhortations, stale jokes and explanations, an awful bore that the people thoroughly dislike, and that tire the patience of the waiting crowd that becomes indignant and wishes he would shut up, get out of the way, sit down and let the meeting go forward. Then the sermon follows, one hour and a quarter, and one hour and a half, sometimes two hours long. Have mercy on us!

Then the intense heat, hard, improvised benches, dinner waiting, the food cold, the cook is righteously indignant, and the whole machinery of the camp is thrown out of order. On the preacher goes; he has preached his sermon long ago, now he is ranting and rambling, the people become disgusted, and some who need the meeting most vow they will never come back again. Conviction wears off, the suffering of the tired body on the rough seats draws attention from the needs of the soul.

I have been one of the chief offenders in this wearing out business, but I am resolving to do better by preaching shorter sermons. I realize it is hard for an old man to change his ways and break up bad habits of long standing, but here goes. I will report to our readers later the progress I have made.

Special Notice!

I am now in the south trying to find a little rest and recuperation, and putting the finishing touches on my new book, "The Optimism of Premillennialism." A flood of correspondence makes the needed rest almost impossible. Let me beg my friends who desire information about THE HERALD, or any feature of the business at that office, to write J. H. Pritchard, Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky. Those who want information about Asbury College write to the President, Rev. L. R. Akers, D.D., Wilmore, Ky. With your prayers and the blessing of the Lord, I am hoping to begin my campaign of revivals in the spring and make the circuit of the holiness camp meetings next summer.

Faithfully yours,

H. C. MORRISON.

David's Lament For Absalom. MRS. H. C. MORRISON.

IN all the pages of sacred writ, there is no more pathetic picture than that of David as he was brought face to face with the sin of a debased and ungrateful son. If ever the words of the "wise man" applied fittingly to a case, it would apply here. "A foolish son is a grief to his father." Some have accused David of being responsible for Absalom's conduct; in one instance especially he displayed childish weakness, when on his return from Geshur, whither he had fled after killing his half-brother Ammon, David allowed him to come to his house but would not see him, neither punished him for the awful crime, thus compromising with him and at the same time aggravating the offender by excluding him from the court.

One of the saddest things in this world, is for a parent and child to be uncongenial; that fond, confiding spirit which is one of the sweetest joys of a child's life, Absalom crowded out by the unholy ambition to be greater than his parent. We have a picture of what sin may drive one to in the case of Absalom, also the consequence of an unrestrained son.

The Mosaic law was, as it may seem to some, unreasonably strict in the matter of training children. If a son was stubborn or rebellious and would not heed the voice of the parents, they would bring him before the elders and confess his sin and then suffer him to be stoned to death. While this seems severe, it doubtless saved many other sons from wreck and ruin. In no age of the world's history has there been such laxity and unconcern on the part of parents in training their children as the present; this being true it makes it doubly hard for the mother who does covet the best for her children, to train them in the paths of right and uprightness.

We do not think the fathers of the present day take as much interest in the rearing of their sons and daughters as they should. This leaves the poor, overtaxed mother to draw the lines of parental authority alone, when she is not equal to the task, consequently, many things are let go by which should be arrested, in their incipency. Some one has said that "The parent who does not secure the allegiance and obedience of his child, is as really violating the fifth commandment as is the child who disobeys and dishonors him."

What a tender, anxious inquiry was that of the broken-hearted old father, "Is the young man Absalom safe?" The father-heart forgot the rebellion, ingratitude and sin of the prodigal boy, in the great love he bore for his son. David forgot his kingship in the father love he felt for his child, and longed for his safety, just as every true father would have done. How many anxious mothers and fathers there are over this land today who are secretly asking in their hearts, as they think of their loved ones far away, "Is our boy or girl safe?" The suffering, anxiety, and longing solicitude which the true father and mother feel for the safety of their children, will never be known by the ones who occasion this suffering; this is the unwritten page in their life's history, which is too sacred for the casual and unsympathetic eye to gaze upon.

Sometimes the blame for the wanderings of the prodigal may rest with the home-makers, or rather the nonhome-makers. Often the influence we attribute to bad books or companions, could be more properly traced to the peril of homelessness. We do not mean by this that he has no room, bed or the temporal comforts that go to make up a home, but there is a feeling of isolation, the lack of sympathy and taking pleasure in those things which interest him. The boy must have something around which the tendrils of his soul may fasten themselves, otherwise he will seek the street wanderers for his associates, which means a wrecked life and eternal doom hereafter.

Allow us to quote from Francis G. Peabody: "If there is a thing that a boy cannot bear, it is himself. He is, by nature, a gregarious animal, and if the group which nature gives him is denied, then he gives himself to any group that may select him. A boy, like all things, in nature, abhors a vacuum, and if his home is a vacuum of loneliness and homelessness, then he abhors his home."

To look at Absalom's environment one would think that his life was an assured success, for he was the only one of David's sons whose mother was a princess, his personal appearance was noted for its beauty, but there slumbered in his soul that which turns position into ridicule and beauty into contempt. The very things that others would covet, led to Absalom's downfall. Yet amid all his failure, there was one who loved him still and sat over the gate with anxious heart breathlessly awaiting the tidings from an ungrateful and rebellious son, and when told the sad story of a ruined life gone out to meet its God, the grief of the poor, old father broke out in a cry of lamentation: "O my son, Absalom, my son, my son Absalom! Would I had died for thee, O Absalom, my son, my son!" No doubt David felt there was no sorrow like his, but the mistakes of a ruined life could not be recalled and the result was that an old father had to weep his life away in inexpressible grief and sorrow. The anguish of the father-heart at this time may well be expressed in the language of the poet:

"So the struck eagle stretched upon the plain,
No more through rolling clouds to soar again,
Viewed his own feather on the fatal dart,
That winged the shaft that quivered in his heart;

Keen were his pangs, but keener far to feel
He nursed the pinion which impelled the steel;

While the same plumage that had warmed his breast,

Drank the last life-drop of his bleeding breast."

Asbury Theological Seminary. Z. T. JOHNSON, A.M.

One question that is met on every hand is "Well, is it a real Seminary, and does it give full Seminary work and credit?" To properly answer that question we should compare it with other schools.

For the B.D. degree the average seminary requires three years of work after the A.B. is taken. This is the requirement at Asbury. The seminaries in this country are very small today. The writer knows one far-famed institution that has only 21 students. He knows of two or three others who think they are doing well if they can get 25 to attend. Asbury Seminary has been open only about three years. This year it has 380 students in the college who are taking Bible work in the seminary. There are fourteen students who will receive Theological Diplomas next June. There are fifteen students who have their A.B. work done and are now taking post-graduate work in the seminary. Next commencement five of these will receive the B.D. degree. How does that compare with other places of similar learning?

To graduate ten or twelve B.D. students the first four years is a great work, yet when this year is closed that will be the record of this seminary. And this has been done with no endowment. Most seminaries have enough money to grant their students scholarships and allowances to come there. One gives each applicant twelve dollars a month to apply on his board. Another allows married students so much per month to apply on their house rent. Many make attractive offers to young ministers. But in the face of all this there are fifteen full time seminary students in Asbury this year who come on their own initiative, with no help from the school. Is not that wonderful?

To have the seminary so closely allied with the college also means much to the students who do not expect to go beyond the A.B. degree in their preparation. They can take a prescribed course that applies on their college credits, and when they receive their college degree they also get the Theological Diploma. This gives the advantage of getting some fine theological training to the men. Thus their training is not altogether secular and literary. It is a great thing.

People all over the world are looking to Asbury to supply the fearful lack that is evident in so many preachers. Asbury students are in great demand. They nearly always succeed. It would be a great thing if some one should feel it in his heart to respond to the crying need and give a liberal donation to the Loan Fund for young preachers there. It would fill a great gap if some one should give a hundred thousand dollars for an endowment fund for the Seminary. The gift of a fine collection for the library would be very helpful. If you want to do a monumental work for God, do something big for the Asbury Theological Seminary.

RADIANT LIVING.

REV. C. M. GRIFFETH.

The highest experience attained by the soul is this—to know that you are fully yielded to God and to his will.

This was the highest aim in the life of Christ. "Not my will but Thine be done," was the greatest prayer of his life.

What more can a man give to his God than to give his complete self which includes his will? In giving to God his will, does not a man give to God all that his will controls?

Men whose only yielding to God is the tossing of a nickle or a quarter into the offering at church know nothing of the wonderful sense of restful satisfaction that sweeps over the heart when, in closing his eyes for sleep, a man can say unto the Deity with the fullest confidence: "Lord, I am thine!"

To be God's own through the deliberate offering without any qualifications of one's whole being, including money, possessions, reputation, and future success—can a man make a greater gift to his God?

Such a presentation of the self and will to God is in reality a marriage of the soul to its Creator, out of which union springs a unity of life and service in which Deity and humanity mingled together in this consecrated personality becomes a blessing and an uplift to all within reach.

Whether you are working in the shop or in the office, in the kitchen or in the store, to pause long enough to express confidently from the heart such a fullness of surrender and consecration is to lift your whole being, mind and heart, temper and atmosphere into a high realm—into the realm of the Divine.

The expression of this confidence will not engender spiritual pride. On the contrary it will bring a sense of humility to the spirit, a sense of deep gratitude to the heart and a keen satisfaction and blessed tranquility to the soul.

Thank God for the privilege of being fully the Lord's!

Amazing Grace.

By Rev. G. W. Ridout.

"Amazing Grace" is one of Dr. Ridout's latest and best books. It contains the cream of his writings and study of twenty-five years. For the Holiness people it is a book to instruct, inspire and set the soul on fire. Some have read a chapter or two and have shouted over it. Such chapters as "The Beauty of Holiness," "Deeper Yet," "The Wonders of Faith and Prayer," "Double Portion of the Spirit," "Sin and Salvation," "Wonders of Converting Grace," "Perfect Love," "Spiritual Experiences," etc., contain messages full of soul food for God's people. Price $1.00. Pentecostal Publishing Company, Louisville, Kentucky.

A Great Get-Together Holiness Meeting.

Rev. J. T. Upchurch, of Arlington, Texas, is arranging for a great get-together interdenominational holiness convention to be held at Arlington, Texas, May 10-15. Rev. Bud Robinson, C. W. Ruth, J. E. Bates and H. C. Morrison have been engaged to preach at this convention. The indications are that a multitude of holiness people and hungry souls will meet at this convention. Let those who are interested take note of the date and save this time for this convention. Conventions of this character should be held all about the nation. Such gatherings would go a long way toward reviving the holiness revival. For information, write to Rev. J. T. Upchurch, Arlington, Tex.

Keep On Keeping On.

If you would reach the Plane of Worth,
Ambition's highest aim on earth,

Then keep on keeping on.

That goal is fixed by Merit's hand
And by the same is made to stand;

Then keep on keeping on.

The price: Do right and do your best—
Pay that and Merit does the rest,

Then keep on keeping on.

And when that Plane, so high, is won,
Life's work, O man, is just begun;

Then keep on keeping on.

You Will Say The Same Thing

When you have read it. A customer in New Jersey writes: "I have read the book which I have just received, 'Beautiful Girlhood,' and have truly been benefited by it. In fact, I like it so well that I am enclosing $2.00 for two more copies to give to friends."

We do not know of another book along this line that is so full of guidance and encouragement to girls from opening flower of girlhood to the full blown rose of womanhood.

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS

MOTHER!

The little feet grow weary,
And tired of much play;
The little hands stretch longingly,
When comes the close of day;
Towards one, whose ever loving heart,
Is truly a haven of rest;
Who daily strives to do her part,
For the innocent one, so blessed,
My Mother!

The little head so sweetly lies,
The childish eyes are closed;
The loving watcher gently sighs,
For but too well she knows;
How precious is the little one,
Who loves her every word;
Realizing not there was never one,
So true, or sweeter name heard,
Than Mother!

The golden days of school appear,
With lessons hard to learn;
Words of comfort and of cheer;
Come from one but seldom stern;
Sweet and winning, in every way,
This friendly counsellor and guide,
Who is giving and helping day by day,
With love from a heart open wide,
Is Mother!

The world so full of work and care,
Brings much of joy and sorrow;
But the prayers of one so sweet and fair,
Keeps bright each new tomorrow;
As heavy burdens come our way,
And we life's battles fight;
Who is it leads us day by day?
Or teaches us the right,
But Mother!

Olinda Knudsen.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Here comes a girl from the good old state of South Carolina. Please may I have a seat by you? Thanks, you are very nice. I have been a silent reader of The Pentecostal Herald for quite a long time. I certainly do think it is a nice paper to have in a home. I am the first one who gets it, for I go for the mail. I think Dr. Morrison's letters are just grand, and also every letter on page ten. A dear friend of ours, Rev. Ernest Dugan, our pastor of the South Side Church, gave us a copy of The Pentecostal Herald and was telling us about it. Rev. Ernest Dugan is a nice pastor to have around, for he comes to see us most every week, and sometimes twice a week. He came and spent a day with us during Thanksgiving. I cannot express myself as to how I did enjoy having him and his family. This makes his fifth year that he has been at Bamberg. I hope he will continue to stay here, and never leave us. Corlett W. Burrus, your letter from North Carolina was just fine. You must write again. South Carolina is a grand old state to live in. We can grow most anything, and flowers on top of flowers. If you do not believe this just come over and pay us a visit. Boys and girls of South Carolina, wake up. You must be all frozen stiff. I will tell you what I look like in my next letter.

Mary Louise Hayden.
Rt. 4, Box 124, Bamberg, S. C.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Have the cousins to move down just a little and give me a seat beside you. I am a blonde, 5 feet, ten inches tall, weigh 85 pounds. Who has my birthday, May 5? I am twelve years old. Am in the fifth grade at school. Wake up, North Carolina cousins and let's get ahead of the other states. I don't want to read letters very much that it says in them that they want to learn to dance. I sure don't.

Pearl Hodges.
Rt. 1, Box 25, Osborne, N. C.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I want you to print my letter so that Indiana will have a place in your column. We want Indiana to have as many as Florida. I am seventeen years old and am five feet, seven inches tall, and have brown hair and eyes. My birthday is June 6. Have I a twin brother or sister? Will every boy and girl from every state that is interested in The Pentecostal Herald write? I love to write and receive letters. I play the piano for the Pentecostal Church here and we sure have been having a revival now. Bro. Snyder is with us. Well, I'll ring off this time hoping to see this in print. Don't want to take up all the room. Cousins, be sure and write.

Agnes Miller.
Rt. 8, Martinsville, Ind.

To the Cousins of The Pentecostal Herald:
To the cousins far and near, greetings in Jesus' dear Name,
May we spread abroad His glorious fame,
Then His blessings shall fall like showers of rain,
And we'll have no need to ever complain.
If we follow Jesus along this pilgrim way,
And are determined His voice to obey,
We'll get strong and stronger as we journey along,
And with our voice we'll raise a melodious song.
May Christ be our pattern while in this world we stay,
Then we can use every night and day, in winning precious souls for Jesus our great King.
May we always keep close to Jesus' bleeding side,
Then He'll cause us to sail above the worldly tide,
Which Satan has sent to capsize our boat,
But Jesus our Pilot can keep our barque afloat
Till we sail into that Harbor so bright,
Where wonderful things shall break upon our sight,
How happy we shall be when we reach that golden strand,
And join in the singing with the angelic band.
So at this time I'll say farewell to one and all,
Sick and healthy, both short and tall,
I hope W. B. won't get this letter,
But will be caught out in stormy weather.

Composed by Charley H. Faulk.
Lisbon, O.

Dear Aunt Bettie: As my first visit was in print I will come again if you will allow me room. Oh, I must come in. I have to thank so many of the cousins for sending me such nice quilt scraps. I am thanking page ten cousins for what I have received, and hoping to hear from some more. May the Lord keep and bless you always.

Maude I. V. Cave.
Rt. 2, Stanley, Va.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I am a girl eighteen years old and I have been reading the Boys and Girls' Page, and I sure enjoy it. I go to the M. E. Church nearly every Sunday. Our pastor's initials are G. T. He lives at Wilmore, Ky. My teacher's name is Mrs. Kate Campbell. Who can guess my name; it begins with G. and ends with A. The one who guesses my name, please write me.

G. A. Clive.
Rt. 1, Midway, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: How are you and all the cousins? May I join the happy band of children? I am staying with my great-grandma and going to school in Burlington. Grandma takes The Pentecostal Herald and I enjoy reading page ten. I was nine years old Nov. 22. Who is my twin? I go to the Lutheran Church. I love Jesus. My Sunday school teacher's name is Miss Evelyn Snow. Our preacher's name is Rev. Swanson. If any of the cousins will write to me I will answer their letters.

Jessie Byerstedt.
Burlington, Wash.

Dear Aunt Bettie: This is my first letter to The Herald. Have I a twin, March 20? I am between twelve and fifteen. Who ever guesses my age I will write to them. I am saved and sanctified, praise the Lord. I have brown hair (long), brown eyes, and light complexion. I go to the Bowery Street Mission. We have very good preachers. I play the piano. My father is the song leader. We have good times with the Lord. I hope Mr. W. B. is picking potatoes, for I want to surprise my father and mother.

Mary McAlarney.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I will write for the first time. I am a poor boy. I go to school and am in the fourth grade. I am fourteen years old. My birthday comes on Jan. 28. My father takes The Herald and I enjoy hearing my mother read page ten. I will answer all the letters any of our cousins will write. I hope Mr. W. B. is picking up chips when this letter arrives.

Francis Cooper.
Star Rt., Box X, Mansfield, La.

Dear Aunt Bettie: How are you and all the cousins? This is only my second letter, and I am ashamed of it, for we get The Pentecostal Herald every week. I go to Sunday school every Sunday. We have a beautiful little church right on our farm and my father is superintendent of it. I am glad to say that I am saved and sanctified and try to do his blessed will. Lula Bell Knowland, I guess I am your twin as I was born June 6. I will answer all letters I receive. Who will be the first to write?

Mary Louise Hampshire.
Rt. 3, Salesbury, Md.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Here comes a Mississippi girl. Come on, don't let them beat us. Come on, boys and girls. Well, have you ever thought what Christmas is for? It is for Christ's birthday. How many believe in whiskey, beer, wine and other things such as these? I don't. Well, I am not a pretty girl, so here goes. Wait a minute, I want to see if Mr. W. B. has got out of bed. No, he has not got up yet. All right, I am a blonde, have boyish bob. I'm about four feet high, and am ten years old.

Sara Wooten.
Horn Lake, Miss.

P. S. I want to see this in print as it is the first one, so do not disappoint me. I will not bother you any more if I see this in print. I want all boys and girls to write me.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you please let another little girl join your happy band? I take The Herald and sure do enjoy reading the letters. I live in a little town called Elm City. I stay in the country. Well I guess you all are wondering what I look like. I have gray eyes, light brown hair and dark skin. I am thirteen years of age. My birthday is July 4. Have I a twin? I am five feet and four inches tall and weigh 99 pounds. I sure do enjoy going to church. There is a revival meeting going on here and I go almost every night hoping to see some one give their heart to God. I am a member of the Baptist Church. Hope Mr. W. B. is sweeping yards when this letter reaches the office. Well, I must close now hoping to see this letter in print next week. If any of you boys and girls would like to write I would be glad to hear from any of you.

Gladys Robards.
Rt. 4, Elm City, N. C.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let me in for a little chat with the cousins? Anice M. Horton, I guess your middle name to be Marie. Edith Barker, I can answer your question. The reason Moses could not enter Canaan land was because he failed to do God's command. I am eleven years old. My birthday is January 17. Have I a twin? If I have let me know and I will answer all letters I receive. I would like to hear from some of the cousins. Well as my letter is getting long I will close.

Ora Lee Porter.
Ellesburg, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you please let a little Kentucky girl join your happy band of boys and girls? This is my second time to write to The Herald. I live on the farm and enjoy farm life fine. I like to ride horses. My father has been sick for six months; has had heart trouble and was at the point of death. I am ten years old. I have five sisters and two brothers. Aunt Bettie, will you please put this in print.

Eva R. Cundiff.
Rineyville, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I am a little boy. I am four feet tall. I will be seven years old next June. I go to kindergarten school. This is my first letter to you. I have light hair and blue eyes. I read Anice M. Horton's letter where she said her middle name began with M and ends in E,

Dear Aunt Bettie. Here comes another Alabama girl to join your happy band of boys and girls. Come on all of you Alabama boys and girls, don't let the rest of the states get ahead of us. And let us make The Herald more interesting. My grandfather and me think it a grand paper. Also, I think it should be in each and every home, because it will do you so much good to read letters from different Christian people. I was sixteen years old April 10, and am five feet and three inches tall; weigh one hundred and two pounds, have light blue eyes, medium brown hair and fair complexion. Have I a twin? If so, please write to me. Mary Standiford, I guess your birthday to be Dec. 20. Am I right? If so don't forget your promise. As this is my first letter, I hope Mr. W. B. is full. Love to Aunt Bettie and cousins.

Kate Waddell.
Rt. 3, Rogersville, Ala.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I thought it would be nice to write again to your page. I wrote about a year ago, received some good letters from the young people. My heart goes out for the young people. After having been in the ministry for one year I was a teacher in the Primary Department, and assistant Young People's leader. I have come more in contact with young people, and they appeal to me very much. I know that young people have a great deal of discouragements to face, but on the other hand I believe we have a God that is equal to the occasion if we place our confidence in him. If Aunt Bettie will give me a little space I will try to encourage you a little. When trials and tests come don't give up so easily. God loves you, my dear readers. I presume that the most of our readers are saved, or I hope so at least. If you are not saved you ought to get saved while the door of opportunity is open. Another thing then I will close, I believe in a strictly saved group of young people who want their lives to count for Jesus. Young people, let us make page ten a strictly religious page, what do you say? I have been a silent reader and I think how careless some folks are getting in writing to the Boys and Girls' Page. Let us make it a page of interest. Let us make it more than a page where we just tell how old we are, what color our hair is, etc. However, I am not criticizing that, but let us make it more spiritual, more enthusiastic, and more good, sound, encouraging letters to those who might be down-hearted and discouraged. Well, I have taken up quite a little space, but these things thrill my very soul. So good-bye for this time.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Rejoice with me for the Lord has heard our prayers and sent a man of God to Buffalo, preaching his Word in the beauty of holiness and won my husband and many others for Jesus. I am so happy I have a Christian home now. We are serving a God that answers prayer. Praise be unto him forever and ever. It pays to obey the Lord. I forgot to say the ones the Lord sent here were Rev. and Mrs. Floyd N. Bradley and Mrs. Bradley's father, a Mr. Scott. May the Lord open doors for them to be busy in the vineyard all the time. No one will make a mistake in calling them if they want a revival of old-time religion. If the Lord leads they aim to come back next year. Pray with us for another good meeting and may dozens of others be saved and sanctified. I wish to thank every one that sent me the song, "Get a Transfer." I think it is a good song. All that have good papers and tracts to be circulated to the unsaved, send me a few and I will scatter them around to my unsaved friends with a prayer. I will close with a scripture verse, Matt. 21:22.

WHAT IS THE MATTER?

J. S. Hughes.

Has modern education become a national menace? Is intellectuality making a fool of itself? Is fancy scholarship, that is Germanized, rationalistic scholarship, modern scholarship, proving itself ignorant, vicious and criminal beyond redemption? Are our so-called scholars, our men of letters, the brainy bunch they are reputed to be, and are not many of the scholars, who think they are solving the problems of the world, themselves the greatest problems to be solved? Is not the faith of 75 percent of the young people being destroyed by the present modernistic, "evelo-spoof-us," jazz-up, flap-doodle, whoop-la system of education? Is not a four year joy ride through a present day university, in a majority of the cases, four years of a total loss? Is a young man sent to a state university, to be equipped for life's work, returned to his home four years later all jazz-up, an authority on foot ball, and an expert crap-shooter with a bootleg breath? Is it a fact that there is not a single state university in the land today but what is a place of commercialized sport and gambling, vice, waste, dissipation and disease; also that every one of them is saturated with the rankest kind of infidelity, modernism and evolution, and packed tight, honeycombed with Bolshevism?

Many years ago, an old Scotchman found himself lonesome because he did not see the Scotch thistle in the United States or Canada, so he sent over for thistle seed, he planted it on Canadian soil, it sprouted and spread until today there is not a northern state in the union or a province in Canada but what is compelled to fight to the extent of millions of dollars annually to keep the Scotch thistle from destroying every farm. So, some thirty-odd years ago, one William Rainy Harper, with the aid of John

D. Rockefeller's millions, imported into this country the seed of German rationalism, that thing now known in this country as "modern liberalism" and "destructive criticism," the subject of which was to standardize education and Germanize the schools and colleges of this land. That seed was planted in the Chicago University, it has sprouted and spread, until today Christianity is compelled to fight for its existence, while modernism, evolution and jazmania have a strangle hold on the educational institutions—it does not take a Solomon or a son of a Solomon to see this.

Some folks get red-headed when these things are told, but it's facts, not rhetoric, hot-air or bunk that we need—let's get at the facts.

Teach the masses to have contempt for the Word of God and the backwash of the thing is contempt for all law and authority, not only Divine, but home and civil as well. Brush aside the divine authority of the Bible and constitutional government will be the next to go. If the Virgin Birth is in doubt the resurrection must be under suspicion; if the Garden of Eden is a myth heaven may be next to go to the scrap-pile.

It takes more than great buildings and campus, large endowments and stadiums, pep-meetings and shimmy dances, flap-doodle and whoop-la stuff, it takes more than these to make an education. Then, too, when real education, the genuine article, is obtained, along with culture and refinement, why, these do not make for righteousness. Germany had the best educational system in all the world. That's the record on the thing. Yet, the recent European war, which was simply the bloody introduction to the next war, the world war, brought out the fact that Germany's marvelous educational system produced only educated devils and scientific savages, and an educated, scientific savage is a thousandfold more dangerous than an ignorant one. Don't forget that. It is nothing short of criminal to send an eighteen-year-old child off to some institution of so-called higher learning, have that child come under the influence of some slim-headed, fifteen-hundred-dollar-a-year professor, who has read too much Kant, Huxley, Darwin and Nietzsche before his brain jellied, who points with pride to the fact that his great grand-daddy was a louse-eating ape, and who has more nutty ideas to the square inch than a germ has grandchildren, and have that monkey professor, that intellectual monstrosity, that spiritual miscarriage, stab that child's faith to death, and have him plant in the heart and mind of that child the seed of Bolshevism.

Can we afford to longer maintain, by taxation, a system of education that produces educated devils, scientific savages, infidels, Bolshevics and jazz hounds? Is it not time to turn the modernists, evolutionists, rationalists and Bolshevics out of our tax-supported schools and universities, fumigate the place, and put men in charge who know how to, and are not afraid, to use the whip?

Modernism, which is none other than German Rationalism, is skimmed milk, 95 percent water, while Christianity is top cream; and Evolution, well, Evolution had its origin in two sources—a hardening heart and a softening brain.

The word of God is sure and steadfast and will never fail, and every prophecy in his word will be fulfilled. There is scarcely a scientific book that is ten years old that is not already out of date, while the Bible, after all of these thousands of years, through all the assaults of the ages, is still doing business at the old stand, the same yesterday, today and forever. The Bible is not primarily a scientific book, yet it is scientifically correct and makes no mistakes. The Bible gives evidence of a knowledge of facts which were handed out as discoveries of scientists hundreds of years after they had been recorded in the Bible.

"Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things."

FINDING REST.

Related by E. G. A.

"There was a poor old woman, nearly eighty years of age, who had been brought to feel her sinfulness and her great need of a Saviour, but seemed as if she could never get beyond that point. I visited her a great many times, explained to her as simply as I could the nature of the Saviour's work, and his ability and willingness to save everyone who looked to him, however great his sinfulness and need; but it all seemed to no purpose. She could do nothing but bemoan her lost condition.

"One day, as I sat down beside her bed, I said, 'Now, Mary, let us read just one verse, and see what God's own book says about sin and the putting away of sin.' I then read the words, so well known, 'All we like sheep have gone astray.' Looking up, I said, 'You know that's true of you, don't you, just as I know it's true of me?' 'Yes, yes,' she replied; 'the Lord knows I have done nothing else but go astray all my life.' 'Then it goes on to say,' I remarked, 'We have turned every one to his own way.' That is, we have not all sinned alike, in the same way, but have all disregarded God's way, and God's will, and have lived to ourselves, shutting God out of our heart and out of our life.' 'That's just the truth about me, master, and now I'm nearly eighty years old. That's just bin my life. God has bin shut out, and now he's shutting me out, I tell you it's no use to talk to me about mercy. Mercy ain't for such as me.'

"I waited a few moments, then I said, 'But we have only read two parts of the verse; let us read the other part. Two parts we know are true; surely the other part must also be true! Now this is the other part: 'And the Lord hath laid on him the iniquity of us all.' I read the words slowly, and the poor old woman lay perfectly still for a minute or more, and then, raising herself, and with a look of eager interest, she said, 'Master, read that again.' I read the words again. There were some gleams of brightness quite perceptible on her features, and after a little pause, she begged me to read the words again. Then she inquired, 'Does it say, 'of us all'? 'Yes,' I replied; 'and that must mean you and me.' 'Sitting up, and lifting her thin hand, she said with emphasis, and with intense joy, 'Oh, I see it, I see it! The blessed Saviour has borne it all—he is my Saviour then! Oh, what mercy! what mercy!'

"Old Mary lived many months, rejoicing in Christ, and died in perfect peace."

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

REV. O. G. MINGLEDORFF, D.D.

Lesson VI.—February 6, 1927.

Subject.—The Practice of Christian Stewardship. Matt. 25:14-30.

Golden Text.—Thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things; enter thou into the joy of thy Lord. Matt. 25:21.

Time.—A. D. 30.

Place.—Jerusalem.

Our study calls for some definitions: The man going to a far country is Jesus Christ; the far country is heaven; the servants are human beings—all human beings; talents are all God-given things for which we shall have to render an account; the reckoning is the final day of judgment. We must not confine this stewardship to dollars and cents, as some do; for in so doing we shall destroy the broad teaching of the parable.

I suppose that it is perfectly natural for us to think of money whenever stewardship is mentioned in the Bible, since money, or its equivalent, is spoken of something like a thousand times therein; and no sin is hit harder than covetousness. All this is true; but one's stewardship is far greater than his wealth; and he must give account for it all.

How happy we should be to know that the Master who has committed to us his treasures is not a tyrant. He desires good stewards, and his purpose is that they shall be well cared for. Of course, he owns everything in all worlds. Not one of us can in truth claim a single dollar as our own. We are to take charge of his affairs in this world, live off his bounty here, and receive a just reward in the world to come. We must not waste our Lord's goods. You may have an automobile to be used for his glory and the good of you and your family, but not to run to hell in. You may live in a good house, well furnished; but it must all be for his glory and the advancement of his kingdom, and not to satisfy your personal vanity. You may wear good clothes, but not for pride's sake. Let your dress honor your Master. Eat good food, but be careful not to squander your Lord's estate to satisfy an abnormal appetite. Educate your children for the service of the Master, and not for the foolish vanities of society.

No doubt something more needs to be said just here about getting and using wealth. God's steward must be very careful how he invests his Lord's money. As his servant, it certainly will not do for you to enter into a partnership with an ungodly man or woman. If you do, it may not be long before some deal will be "pulled off" that will compromise your Christian character; and his name will be dishonored. I am not sure that any parent has a right to pile up God's wealth to be inherited by wicked children who will use it in the service of the devil. No Christian is at liberty to put money into the treasury of a so-called church that will use that money for the propagation of false doctrine and the promotion of worldliness. We are stewards, and as such we must be careful how we handle that which has been entrusted to us.

May I say something about the much mooted question of tithing, when I believe in it and do not believe in it? It was all right for an ancient Jew—although God required of him two other tenths to be handed in at stated times; but it will not do for us. It is far too small for the needs of our day. I think there are times when God wants half, and sometimes more than half. If you will notice, the man in the parable who received five talents brought them and the five talents gained through trading, and laid the whole at the feet of his master. How should the man give who clears a million dollars a year? I fear he cannot give a hundred thousand and keep nine hundred thousand, and keep out of hell when life is over. I wonder if it would scare him to realize that God wishes the matter reversed? "How hardly shall they that have riches enter into the kingdom of heaven." "It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of heaven"; nor am I going to try to ease men's guilty consciences by adding, as many preachers do: "But there is no harm in riches, but in their abuse." Christ did not modify it. There is great danger in riches, and untold harm, unless one is a good and faithful steward of God Almighty. The possession of a few hundred thousand dollars worth of property will damn almost any soul, from pulpit to sexton.

Comments on the Lesson.

14. The kingdom of heaven is as a man travelling into a far country. It is possible that Jesus is using the case of Archelaus who went to Rome after his father Herod's death to make sure of his succession; but no matter to whom he may refer as an illustration, he himself is the real traveller. Called his servants, and delivered unto them his goods.—This is strictly an oriental picture. Abraham's steward had charge of all his master's goods. Joseph managed all that belonged to his Egyptian owner. I suspect that our heavenly Master has entrusted more to us than we are wont to think.

15. Five, two and one.—Talents, what were they? That is a term for money, and maybe that was exactly what the Master meant to say in the parable concerning those three men; but its application to us is far broader. I think it includes ourselves—body, soul and spirit, all our powers, together with time, opportunity and all our wealth. We are to labor for him, and not for ourselves. To every man according to his several ability.—That is good. No injustice will be required of any one. It would be terrible to hand over five talents to a little weakling who could barely handle one; and it would be folly to entrust the strong business man with but one talent. God's plan is the correct one for us all.

19. After a long time the Lord of those servants cometh, and reckoneth with them.—Here we have a reference to the day of final judgment when Jesus Christ will sit in judgment upon all of us.

20. He that had received five talents came and brought other five talents.—This was a faithful steward. He had been doing business for his master, and not for himself. Nothing is said about what had been used for the support of himself and family. That was all right. The good servant must live; but something was due the master.

21. Well done, thou good and faithful servant.—Words like those falling upon our ears from the lips of Jesus at the judgment bar will be sweeter than honey and the honey-comb. I will make thee ruler over many things.—I wonder if we shall be very busy in heaven? This seems to indicate that we shall have much to do, and no small responsibility. But we are to share in the joys of our Lord. That will be sufficient.

22 and 23. Note that he who received the two talents received the same sort of commendation that was accorded his companion who received five. God's justice is absolute in all worlds.

24-28. These verses are concerned with the servant who had received but one talent. It is not stated that he was a great sinner. He is not accused of drinking, nor of cursing and swearing. He is not even charged with cheating, or stealing. His master does call him wicked and slothful. Perhaps his greatest sin was that he had no confidence in his master, and that he accuses him of being a hard man, and rather intimates that he was a bit dishonest. It is a sad case, because there are so many thousands like it. Multitudes are doing nothing for the kingdom of heaven simply because they do not possess five talents. This poor fellow put himself to a deal of trouble. I suppose that he went out into some secluded spot, and stretched his cords among the tree; then he dug a deep hole just where they cross, looking ever and anon to see if any one was watching him, wrapped the talent carefully in a napkin and buried it. Of course the ground had to be packed and levelled; then leaves must be scattered over the place to hide all his tracks. The end of it all was a bed in hell. The easiest thing one can do in this world is to sit down and lose his soul. Just do nothing, and the reward is certain.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

Evangelist W. B. Yates, of Marion, Ky., has been in Walker Hospital at Evansville, Ind., for some days, and while there his physician, Dr. Barclay, advised him to notify the papers to cancel all engagements until warm weather. He is now at home with special nurse and seems to be improving. He wishes all of his friends to pray for a speedy recovery.

PIANIST AND PERSONAL WORKER COMMENDED.

Russell K. Mawson, of Wilmore, Ky., a graduate of Asbury College, who has taken a special course in Piano work under a gifted and trained teacher of the Institution, who has played in a large Tabernacle meeting in Cleveland, Ohio, and in tent meetings and mission revivals and who sings and does personal work is now available for the evangelistic field. Mr. Mawson has read the New Testament through twice in Greek and has a good religious experience. He is a young married man, his wife, who travels with him where the meetings are large enough to justify two workers, is the daughter of Rev. W. S. Maxwell, presiding elder of the Danville District of the Kentucky Conference.

We recommend these consecrated young people to evangelists who need a pianist and personal workers.

The Christ of

The Indian Road

"The greatest book I have read in twenty-five years."—Dr. G. Campbell Morgan.

Such words were uttered in a Cincinnati book store by one of the greatest Bible scholars and preachers of this age in connection with E. Stanley Jones' famous book "The Christ of the Indian Road." Dr. Stanley Jones went out from Asbury College to India. He has made the profoundest impression upon India. His book is one of the most remarkable books of the century. Have you got your copy yet? Suggestions to Singers.

Always see that the song-book used in your meeting has a supply of good invitations and good altar songs. Our "Gladness and Praise" has a fine selection of both; and there are thirty of them.

Also see that the doctrines of the Bible, especially those touching salvation and sanctification are in the book. The songs should back up and support the sermons preached. Many song-books contain no searching gospel truths on full salvation lines. But they are in Gladness and Praise. See Nos. 2, 5, 10, 15, 25, 70, 76. Also see 103, 130, 138, 143, 146, 174, 176, 179, 208, 211. One evangelist says: "I have sold thousands of song-books in meetings, but it's best yet." Another says, "The more I use it the better I like it. It is a gem." Price, 25c. Special rates to evangelists. Round notes or shaped. Always state choice. PENTECOSTAL PUBLISHING CO., Louisville, Ky.

MUST WE SIN

Have you friends or acquaintances, who say that it is impossible to live in this world without sin? Do you find stubborn opposition to the cause of Christian Holiness in your community, due to the fact that "there are none righteous, no not one"? Are there those in your neighborhood who champion the cause of a sinning religion? Do you want to know the truth of the matter from a standpoint of reason and revelation? Read that book of Howard W. Sweeten's entitled "Must We Sin?"

EVANGELISTIC AND PERSONAL.

Mr. John Landrum, pianist, is now open for engagements in evangelistic meetings. He has had years of experience in this work and has been very successful. Best of references can be furnished. Anyone desiring his services can write him at Epworth, S. C.

Rev. E. B. White: "I am a local preacher in the Virginia Conference with a deep and abiding concern for the salvation of the lost. Before receiving my license I witnessed for the Master as a lay-evangelist and the dear Lord wonderfully blessed my ministry. I recently closed a most successful revival at Fife's Memorial Church at Charlottesville, Va. I am willing to help any one who wants a genuine revival of old-time religion. I go anywhere, do the work, and trust God and the people for the money. All I ask is entertainment and free-will offering. Yours for an old-fashioned revival against sin, the flesh and the devil. My address is 6-D North Dooley Ave., Richmond, Va."

Rev. J. M. Glenn: "If you are looking for a safe, sane, strong man to assist you in your meeting, Rev. G. M. Spivey, one of our Conference Evangelists, is the man. He is deeply religious without religious cant; intensely earnest without fanaticism; a strong preacher, a great soul winner, and a thorough Christian gentleman. You will be pleased in every vital particular. I have been with him in meetings and know him to be one of our best pastor-evangelists. I have been his presiding elder and know him well, and it affords me pleasure to send out this unsolicited letter to the pastors of the Conference."

After having been detained at home for some weeks with sick and aged loved ones, I am expecting to get out again in my evangelistic work about March 1st. Will be glad to serve those who may wish my services. I am now making my slate for spring, summer and fall.

W. W. McCord.

TO MY FRIENDS AT LARGE.

In 1925 I preached in nineteen states, beginning in New York City and taking in California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho and other western and central states. I do not wish to cover so wide a range of territory this season, but beginning about Jan. 22 at or near Washington City, I will answer pastors' calls for a series of Bible messages, from two to ten in number, on Fundamental and prophetic lines. Such subjects as "The Battle for Bible," "Our Lord's Near Coming," "Modernism a Menace to the Church," "Evolution Unscientific and Untrue," "Why I am a Premillennialist," "The Kingdom of the Nobleman," "The Antichrist Located and Identified," and kindred subjects. Would prefer present calls from District of Columbia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia, and later from the Carolinas. While I did some evangelistic work in 1926, much of my time was spent at my desk. I issued a new song book, "Gladness and Praise," a book on Evolution, "God or the Guessers," and one entitled "Why I am a Premillennialist." Support is not difficult, entertainment and free-will offerings are satisfactory. Address care Deets Pickett, Methodist Building, Washington, D. C., till Feb. 10. Afterwards, Wilmore, Ky.

L. L. Pickett, Evangelist.

Evangelist Roy L. Hollenback.

Do you not suppose that this is what God often hears when he calls us up for communion? May not his inability to ever find us at home account for his not calling us more often? Who among us cannot sadly remember times when the inward call to "the secret place of the Most High" was unheeded, or obeyed only after hesitation; and on this account our souls lost the blessing which they would have received if we had made haste to pray? Our delay cost us a blessing, an anointing, and an open reward.

Busy in Conversation.

Percance some neighbors came just at the expected hour of prayer, and of course out of courtesy to them we omitted our season of prayer. Or while we were praying they came, and we overheard them in an adjoining room talking of some subject upon which we were well informed, and our desire to join in the conversation caused us to say, "Amen," before we had hardly started to pray. We came out and joined in the conversation—to feel no more that day the "pull" to pray. Sometimes courtesy to friends who are not common visitors in the home might demand an abrupt closing of our prayer hour, and in this case the spirit of prayer will abide; but if we sacrifice communion with God simply out of curiosity to "talk" with every-day friends God (who is jealous, you know) may hang up the receiver.

Busy Pampering the Flesh.

On awakening in the morning the Spirit strongly calls the soul to prayer. But we were a little later getting to bed than usual, and so we turn over for a little longer nap. Then when we do get up our minds are dull, the day is partly gone, breakfast is now ready to sit down to, and we "pass up" the hour of prayer. Truly, in spiritual things as well as financial, "A little more slumber, a little sleep, a little folding of the hands again to sleep: so shall thy poverty come!" A little needless indulgence, a little pampering of the flesh when the air is cold, loses for the soul the victory of a whole day. Sacrifice the morning watch, with its freshness and vigor, and the loss cannot be repaired the whole day long.

Busy Worshipping Mammon.

Ah, how cruel is the god Mammon! No tyrant is like unto him. All of the best things of life will be crowded out by him if we allow him sway. He will squeeze out all the juice of life and leave us only the pulp. He would work us long hours, allowing us no time to be spiritual or holy. He would run us from four in the morning until eight at night, permitting no time to pray or read; and would so crowd us with work that the very momentum of the week's toil carries us over the Sabbath without permitting us to rest or worship. Thus by degrees, but most surely, he will rob the last atom of our grace.

Do not think that because work is honest and honorable it is right for you to thus crowd out God. Nothing is, in the truest sense legitimate which forbids us communing with God as much as we should to keep spiritual. You can better afford to hire help than to sell your soul's best interest to lust for gold.

Busy With Religious Matters.

It is not at all impossible that religious things can crowd out prayer. A preacher may lose the spirit of prayer in the making of sermons.

The Whole Bible for the Whole World

Often the impulse to pray comes to us when we are in the midst of an interesting chapter in a book. Or perchance we are just ready to steal away with Jesus when the carrier brings The Pentecostal Herald, so we hesitate just to read the telegrams; but we become absorbed and spend an hour looking into its news, only to find the spirit of prayer fled away. How truly has one said in verse:

"I was working in the temple
With the Savior by my side,
Where the multitudes assemble
In their misery and pride;
Glancing upward from my labors
I just caught his distant smile:
'You have placed your work between us,
Come and talk to me awhile.'"

If we would pray more our testimonies, prayers, sermons, and in fact our whole lives would be more unctious.

If we would pray more our hearts would be more tender, our spirits more mellow, our joys more deep and abiding.

If we would pray more we would have more commonly the "open reward" which Jesus promised. God would bless us publicly, and our works would not be mechanical. We would not run into ruts and grooves of religious habit, our religion would not be always the same size, our profession would not be so stereotyped, and our lives would not be a monotonous "hum-drum."

If we would pray more we would know more of the Lord's "present help" and not do so much feeding upon past experiences. We could do our works in the confidence that God was anointing us. There would be more of the operations of faith and less of planning—less human manipulation.

Paul's expression, "Continuing instant in prayer," is appropriate. Keep the line to heaven open. Never be too busy, too overcharged, to pray whenever God calls. One great secret of a victorious inner life is instant attention to the call of God to pray. Never let it be answered in God's ears.—"The Line's Busy!"

THE BURDEN BEARER.

By Virgil Gould.

Weary years by anxious care
I was loaded
With a burden hard to bear;
And was goaded
Oft, and vexed, and hedged about
By the bramble fields of doubt.
When along the narrow way,
I would stumble,
And with mournful voice would say
In a grumble,
That the old celestial road
Was too rough for such a load.
When I sought to do my best,
Present ever
Was a force that sore oppressed,
And would never
For a moment let me be
From its galling shackles free.
Yet a voice forever near,
Sweetly calling,
On my soul's unheeding ear
Gently falling,
Plead: Ye weary, come to me;
From your burdens be set free.
Sore defeated, weak, oppressed,
And despairing,
Never hoping now for rest,
Little caring,
Once again I heard the plea,
Heavy laden, come to me.
Then in heaviness I cried:
Burden bearer,
If my load thou wilt divide,
Be a sharer
Of my labor and my strife;
I surrender thee my life.
In an instant from my soul
Rolled the burden,
Not a portion but the whole;
Not a guerdon
Earned by rite or strange device:
It was given without price.
Now along the narrow way,
Shouting, singing,
I can travel day by day,
Ever bringing
Some poor burdened, sinsick soul
To my Lord to be made whole.

DIVINE VINDICATION.

By The Editor.

THE man who is afraid to preach a great Bible truth for any reason, whatsoever, is unfit for the pulpit. The man in the pulpit must fear God so much that he has no fear of men, and he must love men so devotedly that he will proclaim God's truth to them whether they will hear or whether they will forbear.

That wholesome fear of God which would suffer anything and all things rather than offend him lifts a man above the fear of men, of all mere human powers and circumstances, and gives him rest of soul, a joyful confidence in the power of God's Word and a holy courage to proclaim the truths of the Bible and take the consequences.

There is power in the gospel. We are taught that "the Word of God is quick and powerful." It will produce results. It will compel men to think. There are those in every congregation and community who will say to the preacher filled with the fear of God and the love of men, "Preacher, thou hast said the truth." There is something about the truth of God that justifies it, that so illuminates the mind of man that he recognizes it and though he may be depraved and sinful he admires it.

There is no greater man than the true preacher of the gospel, who is not seeking applause or office or money, but is seeking the glory of Christ, in the salvation of human souls, who feels the call of God within him and the power of God upon him, who believes Bible truth with all his heart, who feeds upon it and who would rather break it as the Bread of Life to his fellowbeings than to have all the honors and all the wealth of all the world.

Blessed is that preacher of the Gospel who has found the Christ in his power to destroy sin, to sanctify, to fill with the Holy Ghost, to gird with divine strength, who moves among his fellowmen conscious that he, in a peculiar way, is hidden away in the secret place, that God's hand is over him, that a door for his ministry has been opened which no man can shut. He has experienced the power of the gospel he preaches. He knows that the Christ he offers is able to save to the uttermost. He would not exchange the humblest pulpit for the greatest throne. He glories in the Cross. He worships his Lord. He feels the power of the Holy Spirit within him. He feeds upon the truth he proclaims to his fellowbeings. He is full of love; he has no fear; he is hidden away in the cleft of the Rock of Ages. He is girded with divine power, can suffer, be persecuted, misunderstood, ridiculed and wait for the vindication God will give him in the bye and bye.

Just as certain as God gave his prophet vindication in the presence of Baal's prophets, sending down fire from heaven, so will

God vindicate his earnest preachers of a full gospel today, convicting for sin, regenerating and sanctifying the people with such tokens of his supernatural presence that the people will be convinced that God is in the midst and the enemies of the truth will be put to confusion. Let those who would contend against the many phases of skepticism and unbelief which we find about us everywhere get close to God, be filled with the Spirit, endued with power from on high. Let them become more and more Christlike that, wherever they go preaching and witnessing, God will show signs and wonders in the salvation of the people. The power of God on a community will put the babblers to silence. God will send power to save or to destroy. His resources are inexhaustible. He can scatter his enemies and vindicate his people.

It is a blessed thing if one may be privileged to suffer for the truth's sake; to know the sweetness of the blessing that the Lord bestows upon those who taste something of the fellowship of the sufferings of our glorious Christ, who knows something of the agony of Gethsemane, who carry a burdened heart for the lost, who are willing to be poor and be counted, as the Apostle Paul tells us, the off-scouring of the earth if they may but be filled with the Holy Spirit and bring the full gospel of the Lord Jesus to a lost world. Vindication will come. It may be that some of God's faithful ministers must wait until the Day of Judgment, but that will be soon enough. All eternity awaits for the tranquil rest and unutterable joy of the faithful.

THE REMEDY.

PART I.

THERE is a balm in Gilead. There is a remedy for the evils in the land. We cannot expect an ideal state of things in the world. We have not yet come to the Golden Age, and the setting up of the kingdom of the Lord Jesus; but we can have a spiritual church, revivals of religion, the lifting up of moral standards, the powerful influences of God's Spirit among men rebuking sin, and advancing spiritual life in the world.

Jesus Christ said of his disciples, "Ye are the salt of the earth. Ye are the light of the world." These sayings of our Lord were not confined to the disciples to whom he spake; they apply to all of his disciples everywhere in all ages. There is penetrating, purging, illuminating and saving power in God's people. The true disciple of the Lord can, and does, let a light shine that makes men to glorify God, to repent of their sins, and come to Christ for salvation. Give us enough of the salt and light of living, consecrated, believing, true disciples, and we shall have a holy salt permeating society, and a divine light illuminating the pathways of multitudes of prodigals back to the Father's house.

The remedy for the evils of any time, and all times, is to be found in the Word of God. There is power in the Word of God to destroy evil, to produce life, to dispel darkness, to shake the dry bones in the valley of moral disease and death. But the Word must be preached. Give us preachers! That's what I want to say. Give us God-called, blood-cleansed, Spirit-filled preachers of the gospel; men consumed with a passion to glorify the Lord Jesus, to save the lost. Give us preachers who cannot be intimidated, starved, stopped, or hindered from the one great thing of getting the message that is burning them up to the people, hot from the heart of God.

We hear much complaint that there is false teaching in the pulpits; office seeking, an uncertain sound, lack of fidelity, of evangelistic fire, of the message that makes the hearts of men tremble, that produces conviction. We hear that there is much of modern liberalism in pulpits that destroys the faith of the people in the inspiration of the Scriptures, in the deity and blood atonement of Christ. No doubt, there is much of this, but the preachers of today will soon be dead; whether they are preaching truth or falsehood, directly they will be silent. What about the preachers of tomorrow? Who will preach the gospel to the next generation? Shall it be liberal skeptics who destroy the faith, or Spirit-filled evangelists who will stir the world, bring on a great revival, and build a mighty bulwark of faith against all the powers of evil?

The holiness people of these United States have it within their power, by the blessing of God, to go a long way toward furnishing the preachers for the next generation. This may sound like an extravagant statement to some, but it is absolutely true. Who are the holiness people? Without going into a detailed definition or explanation, we will say they are those people who believe in and accept John Wesley's interpretation of the Bible doctrine of sanctification, which embraces the Nazarene Church, the Pilgrim Church, the Free Methodist Church, a large part of the Wesleyan Methodist Church, a good percent of the Protestant Methodist Church, and many thousands of members of the M. E. Church, and the M. E. Church, South. It also embraces a large number of people of other denominations who fully believe that Christ's blood can cleanse from the carnal nature, and the Holy Spirit can fill and keep God's children.

The holiness people have schools scattered about the nation. There are numbers of them doing excellent work along educational lines, but one of the main objects of these institutions is the education of preachers of the gospel, and missionaries to carry the message of salvation to the ends of the earth. In the holiness camp meetings, conventions

NOTES ON OLD-TIME METHODISM.

Rev. G. W. Ridout, D.D., Corresponding Editor.

It is strangely significant, if not entirely true, that remark of one, "That the earliest part of a religious movement is always the best—full of spontaneous Divine energy." A look backward into the beginnings of Methodism and its earlier periods may not be without learning some wholesome lessons, the stirring up of "pure minds by way of remembrance," and the looking unto the "rock whence ye are hewn and to the hole of the pit whence ye are digged" not without its compensations.

Methodism broke upon the world, as did the first Pentecost, in a flame of fire. It was Christianity once more with the fiery tongue. That fire kindled by a spark of grace which had been burning feebly in the "Holy Club," and in the personal experiences of the Wesleys and Whitefield and others, burst into a flame in that memorable Watch Night service January 1, 1739, "when about three in the morning as they were continuing instant in prayer the power of God came mightily upon them, insomuch that many cried out for exceeding joy and many fell to the ground." Whitefield testified "that it was a Pentecostal season indeed." Seven ministers met on the fifth of the same month at Islington and continued in fasting and prayer till three o'clock, and then parted "with a full conviction that God was about to do great things among us." The great things came to pass forthwith and Methodism became the means of bringing multitudes into the Kingdom and inaugurating the greatest revival movement of modern Christianity. We cannot question the truth of the statement made in the Wesleyan Tracts for the Times, published in 1842, that "Methodism is doubtless in itself the fruit of an extraordinary visitation and work of God."

We shall proceed now to note some of the dominant characteristics of old-time Methodism.

1. It was essentially spiritual in all its activities and operations, its teachings and purposes. John Wesley said: "God thrust them out to raise up a holy people." That was his understanding of the movement. Our Discipline in its historical statement says that "its chief stress has ever been laid, not upon forms, but upon the essentials of religion." For the furtherance of this idea rules were drawn up, class meetings established, board meetings and love feasts and select societies (the latter especially for believers seeking holiness or perfect love). The thought seemed foreign to old-time Methodists of building up a great denomination or developing ecclesiasticism. The whole dominating purpose was the calling sinners to repentance, getting them truly converted to God and urging believers to seek and obtain holiness of heart, and then growing up in Christ in all things. This great all-absorbing idea of early Methodism cannot be better viewed possibly than in Wesley's portrait of a Methodist. In this we have, as it were, the finished product of Methodist doctrine, faith and piety.

2. Old-time Methodism was conspicuously unworldly. Its language was, "Vain, delusive world, adieu." It asserted itself in open protest to worldliness in every shape and form. It had received from the world persecution, scoffings and hard usage of every kind, and had no reason to be friendly to anything that was not a friend to grace. Its converts came clean out from the world. "Be ye separate" was its message. They put the world under their feet, they were new creatures in Christ Jesus, and abjured all things worldly. Their new life was a repudiation of all their previous career. Their conversion cost them something—it was never cheap—they were often tried in the fire

PORTRAIT OF A METHODIST.

By John Wesley.

"A Methodist is one that has the love of God shed abroad in his heart by the Holy Ghost given unto him. One who loves the Lord his God with all his heart and soul and mind and strength. He rejoices evermore, prays without ceasing and in everything gives thanks. His heart is full of love to all mankind and is purified from envy, wrath, malice and every unkind affection. His one desire and the one design of his life is not to do his own will but the will of Him that sent him. He keeps all God's commandments from the least to the greatest. He follows not the customs of the world, for vice does not lose its nature though becoming fashionable. He fares not sumptuously every day. He cannot lay up treasures upon earth, nor can he adorn himself with gold, or costly apparel. He cannot join in any diversion that has the least tendency to vice. He cannot speak evil of his neighbor any more than he can lie. He cannot utter unkind or evil words. He does good unto all men, unto neighbors, strangers, friends and enemies. These are the principles and practices of our sect. These are the marks of a true Methodist. By these alone do Methodists desire to be distinguished from all other men."

and put to the severest tests. It was not uncommon for them to suffer persecution and degradation for their faith in Christ. Their religion was thorough, real and "through and through."

The early Church was kept singularly pure by regulations which enjoined upon all the absolute necessity of attending the class meeting, which then was made the basis of membership. Whoso neglected the class forfeited their fellowship. To attend class meant the pursuance of piety and godliness of life. The fact is, early Methodism meant vital godliness or nothing. In those days there was no compromise with the worldly or carnal. Entertainments were spiritual, and that only. Worldly amusements and entertainments or diversions other than those taken in the name of the Lord Jesus were unknown. Such things as church suppers and bazaars and fairs and festivals, with all their unholy and unspiritual propensities, had no place in its economy. A lively piety had kept all such out and a vigorous stand against all unrighteousness held the church firm. Where piety decays and holiness declines, questionable things are not long in breaking in, and we have today to behold many a Methodist church in the grip of worldliness. The "Amen corner" has gone, the pulpit and the prophet have disappeared, lectures take the place of sermons. No more is seen the fire of God glowing upon the altar, no more are heard the cries of penitents, no more the rejoicings of newborn souls nor the shoutings of the saints. Too often do we see a modern church in the hands of the uncircumcised, the members seeking their pleasures at theater and opera, not stopping even at the gambling table or the dance, and in these latter days of the "open door" many who cherish the sacred privileges and practices of old-time Methodism have to behold with jealous dread persons drawn into church relations who have never known sorrow over sin nor joy over converting grace; they are "deciders" and "joiners," but strangers to the power of God, and they come into the church through the zealous labors of a pastor, maybe, who has so far forgotten his high calling as to drop down to the unholy business of enlarging the church roll by taking such into membership. It is stated that the special privileges of Methodist Church membership are "peculiar incitement to holiness from the hearing God's Word and sharing in Christ's ordinances," and it is not unreasonable to ask what lot or part can the impenitent or the unregenerate have in such things? In the Bishops' Address of 1824 appears the following: "The original design of Methodism was to raise up and preserve a holy people. To this end all the doctrines believed and preached by the Methodists tend. Whoever supposed, or who that is acquainted with the case can suppose it was designed in any of its parts to secure the applause and popularity of the world or a numerical increase of worldly or impenitent men. Is there any provision made for the aggrandizement of our ministers or the worldly mindedness of our members None whatever!"

3. Old-time Methodism possessed a singularly powerful pulpit. The one thing above all else that made the pulpit so effective was the Word of the Lord proclaimed in "demonstration of the Spirit and of power." The preaching was more than that ordinarily designated as "gospel preaching." Wesley indeed had serious doubts about that kind of thing. Much that is called gospel preaching is a harmless mixture and accomplishes as much as blank cartridges. Said Wesley: "Who is a gospel minister in the full scriptural sense of the word? He, and he alone, of whatever denomination, that does declare the whole counsel of God, that does preach the whole gospel, even justification and sanctification preparatory to glory." Just a cursory glance at the old-time pulpit will show how much and how fully this standard of Wesley's was conformed to. The whole counsel of God was, indeed, declared. Sin was depicted in all its heinousness and guilt, judgment and hell in its awfulness. Justification, regeneration, witness of the Spirit were set forth in their essential and vast importance to the salvation of the soul and entire sanctification or holiness enjoined upon all believers. Concerning this latter doctrine Wesley regarded it as "the grand depositum which God had given to the people called Methodists, and chiefly to propagate this it appears God raised them up." In the Bishops' Address already referred to it was said: "Holiness is the main cord that binds us together. Relax this and you loosen the whole system. . . . If the Methodists lose sight of this doctrine they fall by their own weight."

The preaching of those early days of Methodism was definite, doctrinal, explicit, positive, objective and often was it awful, tremendous, overwhelming in its visible effects. The people would be stricken with the deepest distress of soul—they cried out, they sobbed, they fell from their seats to the floor, they would fly in terror out the door or rush to the mourner's bench.

Stevens said of the early preachers: "They expected to see men awakened and converted under their sermons, and their expectations led to an adaption of their discourses to that end. A sermon that had not some visible effects was never satisfactory."

Preaching was not considered in those days as "intellectual feasts." It was too grave an affair to be lowered to that level. There were giants in those days, men of mighty intellect, clear reason, great conviction, but what made their preaching mighty was the truth of God on fire of the Holy Ghost. They preached the sinner down into the lowest hell and they prayed him through to pardon and grace and joy in the Holy Ghost. The saint they preached up into the seventh heaven, until the preacher had to stop while the people shouted. Excitement! Yes, there was considerable excitement in those days! O that it might come back again! Joseph Parker spoke truly when he said: "The Church may possibly have lost much in losing a healthy excitement. . . . What is the Church without enthusiasm! It is a Vesuvius without fire, Niagara without water, a firmament without a sun!"

4. Old-time Methodism enjoyed most remarkable revivals of religion. Revivals were looked for, prayed for, worked for. Indeed, it may be said the Church was in a constant revival state. The revivals of those days were more than "religious booms." They were real works of grace and outpourings of the Spirit of God. Wesley and Whitefield, of course, witnessed them in all their marvelous power. Adam Clarke, Joseph Benson, among the writers, were great revivalists. Bramwell tells of revivals in his day and ministry, when hundreds, sometimes seven and eight hundred, would be converted and added to the churches. Crossing over into America we are told, in connection with the ministry of men like Abbott, Rankin, Watters, Bangs, Pitman and numerous others, of most extraordinary visitations of Divine power in turning multitudes to God. What a revival was that under Pitman in old Saint George's, Philadelphia, 1836, when from twelve to thirteen hundred conversions took place, seven hundred and fifty joining Saint George's and fifty-three entering the ministry! We note about those revivals, they were born of much prayer, they were the fruits of tremendous preaching of the old truths. The hot coals of eternal truth were poured upon sinning souls without respect of persons. Bible terms were not used for the purpose of gracing a sentence or to garnish rhetoric. No attempt was made to smooth down the stubborn text to ears polite and snugly keep damnation out of sight.

The Spirit-baptized preacher poured forth the gospel of God, and the Lord in heaven poured out his Spirit, and revivals became more than a name, a term, a fashion. They were affairs of power. The truth preached brought on a crisis and men and women wept, cried, lost their strength, agonized, repented and prayed through to a real conversion, a real experience of Divine grace! In those days of revival, if you please, there were no "card-sign" conversions. There were times when people did more than "decide" and "accept" with an intellectual assent joined to no measurable contrition or penitence. Rather in those days there was travail of soul, which resulted in souls being truly born of God. They knew beyond a doubt they had passed from death unto life. "Therefore, if any man be in Christ he is a new creature: old things are passed away: behold all things are become new."

CHAPTER V.

FRANCES E. WILLARD.

WHEN the United States Congress passed a law giving the States the right to ratify two new Amendments to our Constitution, there were given out by statesmen and political economists the causes that led up to such a radical departure viz, "Votes for Women," and "The Volstead Act," which meant, first, the enfranchisement of women, equally with men; and second, the elimination of the Liquor Traffic, as a lawful business. We shall not discuss the merits of either, but examine the personality of one human factor in putting those two Amendments into our Constitution. It was a voice rising above the ridicule and criticism, mouthed out by the plutocrats and henchmen of a rum-prostituted nation, and often by a subsidized press; it was a voice as clear and musical as a flute note, and as penetrating as the oratory of Gladstone or Bryan; a voice sanctified by the purest and holiest impulses—the voice of Frances E. Willard, than whom the centuries have produced no superior.

The Nineteenth Century produced a galaxy of famous women. Space forbids but a mention of the unusual service of Elizabeth Fry, Harriet Beecher Stowe, Julia Ward Howe, Mary Lyons, Florence Nightingale, Jane Addams, Clara Barton, and others great and near-great. But the purpose of these biographical studies is not to laud great characters as such; it is to study only those who have held up the simple evangelical faith as believed by the saints of all ages. Therefore, in addition to her matchless career as a peerless advocate of reform, Frances Willard was also a true Apostle of Faith. Wherever she went, and under whatever circumstances she appeared, Frances E. Willard rang true the dominant, unswerving loyalty and adherence to the Christ who pardoned her soul from sin, after she sought him at a Methodist altar of prayer for over a week. The conversion of Miss Willard was a genuine factor in her life.

She was born of fine old English stock at Churchville, N. Y., Sept. 28, 1839. When she was but a child, the family moved to Ohio, settling near Oberlin. When Frances was about seven years of age the family again moved to the wild forests near Jaynesville, Wis. Here the Willard children grew up with scarcely any uplifting environment except the beauties and solitude of the forest. The parents were devout Methodists of the old school; the children were taught the sanctity of the Sabbath. Once when Frances was first learning to use her slate and pencil, drawing crude pictures, she wanted them on Sunday afternoon. Her mother refused to grant her this innocent plaything; the child said: "Mayn't I have it mother, if I'll draw nothing but meetin' houses?"

There in the great open country, she lived on the farm until her early teens, and with no social life except the companionship of congenial brothers and sisters. Early in life she was taught the horrors of the rum traffic. Here is a bit of poetry the Willard children composed:

"To quench our thirst, we'll always bring Cold water from the well or spring;
So here we pledge perpetual hate
To that will intoxicate."

When Maine voted dry, it gave some encouragement to the temperance forces throughout the nation. Mr. Willard said to his family, one day: "Will our poor old rum-soaked Wisconsin ever go dry?" "Yes, Josiat," Mrs. Willard replied, "when the women have the right to vote." Thus we can see how the foundation was being laid in the heart of the future White Ribbon reformer.

The first book that fired the soul of young Miss Willard was "Pilgrim's Progress," and the one she greatly enjoyed, was "Don Quixote." Novels were not allowed to the children while young. Frances read "Ivanhoe" when she was eighteen, her first book of fiction.

Frances E. Willard received her preparatory training in a select school at Jaynesville, Wis. At the age of eighteen she entered North Western Female College, Evanston, Ill. From this institution she graduated with honors in 1858, and delivered the valedictory oration. Besides these honors, she was the editor of the college paper during the last years at the school. Shortly after her graduation, she was stricken with typhoid fever, lingering for weeks on the borderland of eternity. Between her periods of delirium, she promised God that if she recovered her first act would be to give her heart and life to him. This promise she faithfully kept, as we have before mentioned.

Miss Willard was a born leader, with high and noble ideals, as the following incident will illustrate. While a student at Evanston, the story is told, that she and the brilliant young pastor, who afterwards became a Methodist Bishop, became engaged to marry. The pastor thought to test her devotion by telling her that he felt a call to the mission field. To this she gave her full consent, and when he told her why he had put the test upon her, she resented it with scorn, saying such things were too sacred to trifle with, and broke her engagement, which surely was in the providence of God. Otherwise she would have been the wife of a Methodist bishop instead of a world renowned character.

She returned to her Wisconsin home and taught several terms of school among the rough inhabitants of the country. She secured, finally, a position as teacher in the Pittsburgh Female College. While employed as teacher at Pittsburgh, she was granted a leave of absence, and toured the world with Miss Jackson, a colleague. This gave her a new conception of the world's misery and degradation. She found in almost every country, that womanhood meant only chattels, to be used as a convenience, or the equivalent of slavery. Miss Willard resolved, because of woman's plight, to dedicate her life to her sisters' emancipation.

In the year 1871, she was chosen Dean of the Northwestern Woman's College, Evanston, Ill., and this position she held for three years. It was then that she entered the work of State Lecturer for the Ohio W. C. T. U. It was while in this position that her marvelous gifts of public speaking became nationally known. She put on a fifty-day speaking campaign; within a few months two hundred and fifty towns and villages voted dry. She was then offered the presidency of the Chicago W. C. T. U. Then she was president of the Illinois State Union. In 1879 Frances E. Willard was chosen president of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union. Then she said, "I became a stranger and a wanderer in the earth." Her annual tour in the country average thirty thousand miles. Miss Willard soon became recognized as one of the world's most brilliant and magnetic women. The prejudice and preconceived criticisms always gave way to an ovation, wherever her voice rang its musical, yet thrilling message, before her charmed audiences.

In the year 1883, she was unanimously chosen president of the World's W. C. T. U. This position gave her the opportunity of being heard throughout Christendom, and she was able to sustain herself with honor before royalty and crowned heads. She became an intimate friend of Lady Henry Somerset, who was the leader of temperance reform in England.

One of the most spectacular events in the life of Miss Willard was when she appeared before the National Republican Convention at Chicago, and was allowed ten minutes to speak before the Platform Committee; at which time she pleaded with them to put in a temperance plank. She also addressed the Convention, presenting the Polyglot Petition bearing over two million signatures, gathered from fifty nations and languages. The Convention showed her great courtesy, but rejected her proposition. The Platform Committee took her petition, which was beautifully written, and threw it on the floor, desecrating it with ambered saliva from their foul mouths. This relic of rum rule in politics was rescued from that Committee Room, and is framed—amber and all—and hangs yet in the National Headquarters of the W. C. T. U. in Chicago.

The HERALD PULPIT

THE GOD OF FIRE.

Rev. Z. T. Johnson, A. M.

Text: Luke 3:16. "He shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost and with fire."

SIN has played havoc in the world. It has wrenched mankind loose from the plan and will of God and thrown him into the maelstrom of life unprotected from the ravages of moral death and destruction. There is no place where its slimy trail may not be seen. We see it in the superstitious idolatry of a cringing heathen world that gropes its way in the darkness trying to find a balm for its aching breast. We find it in the slums of the large cities, eating its way like a raw cancer through the reeking filth of wretched despair. We look in relief to the great educated world and behold, are astounded to find it coiled like a serpent ready to strike among the so-called literati of earth's best. Social conditions today have become appalling because of its presence. The writer knows one large state school where an average of thirty-five young women are sent home every year to reap the dregs of their loose living. What a terrible state of affairs! Multiply that by hundreds and you will get some small idea of the true condition over the United States.

We know that in every age there has been a terrific pressure of immorality upon the nations. The glory of ancient Greece faded when she became licentious. Rome went down in inglorious defeat largely because of voluptuous living. Sin has rolled in on every nation of history like an incoming tide until it seems to have smothered it under the awful avalanche. America, the Christian nation, is today facing the crisis of her history. It was not the World War that brought the greatest problem to us; it is the moral laxity of our people that presents it. There never seemed a time in history when men, generally, were so indifferent to spiritual values. Church attendance everywhere has fallen to a shameful degree. There is no such thing as a sacred Sabbath any more. We have Sunday baseball, Sunday golf, Sunday races, Sunday movies and God only knows what all. I heard a man say the other day that he did not like a certain southern city because it had no movies on Sunday. God grant that that class of cities may increase. It seems that we are reaching the crest of sin. The dreadful question is, "What can be done about the situation?"

One thing is encouraging; God has a plan for every crisis in the lives of men. He has never failed to solve the problem in the past. The God who is the same yesterday, today and forever, will not fail to meet this situation. The question is, "How?" The only way to find an answer is to look back to events of the past and see how it was done then.

WE THINK FIRST OF ABRAHAM.

He lived in a time when men were traveling far and wide with their goods. The world was beginning to stir. But note the fact that men were moving about in selfish interests. When Abraham set out at the call of God, he was the only man we can find record of who went, "not knowing whither." He seemingly was the only one who was traveling to please God. After Lot had left him, and after the battle with the kings, the Lord came to reassure Abraham about the future. On being promised the land of Canaan he asked God, "Whereby shall I know that I shall inherit it?" He was told to prepare his sacrifice; which he did, and when the sun went down behold a smoking furnace and a burning lamp passed between the pieces. (Gen. 15:8-17). Note that smoking furnace and burning lamp. God was answering Abraham with FIRE! It was the token of the sealing of his covenant with his servant. And Abraham thereafter was content.

The next appearance of fire was to Moses at the burning bush. There was a nation down in Egypt that had cried unto God in their distress. It seemed that no help was to come. No believer ever prays but that God hears! When the shepherd drew near the bush a voice spoke to him and told him that he was standing on holy ground. Moses was afraid. God reassured him; told him what he was to do; gave him evidence of the power that was to be with him; and sent him down into Egypt to lead hundreds of thousands of slaves to liberty and freedom of worship. It was at a bush of FIRE that Moses received his command to go; it was by a pillar of cloud and FIRE that the children of Israel were led through the rough and dangerous wilderness.

Turn your thoughts to Elijah. There he stands in the midst of four hundred and fifty prophets of Baal, before the wicked king and thousands of people. Think of it, one to four hundred and fifty—one for God and all the others for Baal. Here he was, the "troubler of Israel." His life hung upon a thread. But he was willing to go the limit. He challenged the people to a test. Is the majority always right? He was fearfully in the minority here, but he was willing to stand or fall on his faith. What did he say? "Call ye upon the name of your gods, and I will call on the name of the Lord; and the God that answers by fire, let him be God." To this they agreed, and the prophets went to work. They prayed and leapt and cried from morning until noon—but the fire did not fall. Elijah mocked them and made fun of Baal. Then when they gave up he built an altar of twelve stones, put the sacrifice on, had them pour water on until it filled the trench, and stepped back in confidence to pray a simple prayer of faith. "Then the fire of the Lord fell" and consumed the whole thing, sacrifice, stones, wood and water. Then the people cried, "The Lord, he is God; the Lord, he is God." God had met that crisis in the life of a nation by the baptism of FIRE.

Yonder stood Isaiah in the temple. Israel was unclean; she was a backsliding, faithless, failing people. God appeared in such majesty and holiness that Isaiah cried out that he was unclean because he was a man of unclean lips and dwelt among a people of unclean lips. What happened? The angel took a live coal with the tongs from off the altar and said to him, "Lo, this hath touched thy lips; and thine iniquity is taken away, and thy sin purged." (Isa. 6:7). Then Isaiah was fitted for the service God wanted him to do and he was ready to go. It took FIRE to meet the situation.

We come now to the crucial test of history. Things had run their course and the hour had arrived for Christ to come. When he appeared John announced him with this text, "He shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost and with fire." (Luke 3:16). Jesus entered his ministry and went to work. For three long years he toiled. He did a great work. When he came down to the end of his life, however, he looked back upon three years of buffetings and criticism. Of all those who had felt the healing touch of his hand, or the kindly word of forgiveness of sin, there were only about one hundred and twenty who were willing to follow him. To these he gave instructions for the future. They were to tarry in Jerusalem until they were endued with power from on high. This power was to come when the Holy Ghost would come on them. After his death, resurrection and ascension they went to the upper room to await the promise of the Father. When they had been there ten days they were of one accord and "suddenly there came a sound from heaven as of a rushing mighty wind, and it filled all the house where they were sitting. And there appeared to them cloven tongues like as of FIRE, and it sat upon each of them. And they were all filled with the Holy Ghost." (Acts 2:2-4). Note the result. They went out under that anointing and in the face of ridicule and criticism won three thousand people to God that day! What did it? The FIRE of God was upon them.

This leads us to the point that God's plans are always given through human instrumentality. The crisis today must be met by Christians who are prepared to do God's work. No church or Christian is able to meet any moral or spiritual crisis without the baptism of the Holy Ghost and fire. God is calling the Christian people today to enter into the blessed baptism of the Holy Ghost and fire in order that he might do his work through them.

But why the FIRE? That is it. Sin must be destroyed in the human heart before God can abide therein. Fire cleanses. Fire purges.

THE MIGHT OF SACRIFICIAL LOVE.

Rev. E. Stanley Jones, D.D.

PART V.

At the close of one of my addresses a member of the Legislative Council told me this story of Mr. Gandhi. When he was in South Africa, looking after the interests of the indentured coolies, these coolies recognized his disinterested love. But very often they went against his will and did things that pained Mr. Gandhi exceedingly. He tried all the expedients that he knew to get them to see the right and to do it. He failed. Then he shut himself up for two days and neither ate nor drank. The news spread among the coolies that Mr. Gandhi was in his room fasting because of their evil doings. That changed matters. They sent a delegation to him and begged him not to fast any longer—they were ready to do anything he told them. It changed the whole spirit of those coolies. They began to see what their wrong-doing was costing one who cared for them. It turned their hearts against their sin.

In his school at Ahmadabad, one of the boys told Mr. Gandhi something which he implicitly believed. Later he found out it was a lie. Mr. Gandhi called the school together, and said with grief, "I am sorry to find out that one of you is a liar. As punishment I am going off to fast today." The boy returned to his work and to his play, but the knowledge that his well-wisher was suffering on account of his sin haunted him. It made his sin seem doubly hideous. It turned his heart against it. If Mr. Gandhi could do this for a boy and thus win him to a new life, is it not easy to think that One divine enough and great enough could do it for a world? If one could voluntarily take on himself suffering in order to win a boy back from a lie to the truth, if there were One Divine enough, he could voluntarily take on himself suffering in order to bring our human race to the right.

The soul of man must be conquered and won to the right. But that costs the one who would undertake to do it. To issue commands, make laws, and then arrangements for the punishment of the wrong-doer will not do it. It never has and it never will. "The true father does not say I will conquer that boy no matter what it cost him, but I will help that boy conquer himself no matter what it cost me." If God would win men to the right, instead of forcing them to do right, (which of course would not be right, for forced goodness is not goodness—goodness must be freely chosen) it will cost him. The cross of Calvary is the price that God paid to help us conquer ourselves. It was a terrible price, but it was worth it.

Like produces like. If God deals with us after the manner of hard unbending law, we respond to God with hardness; and our virtues, if any, become mechanical and lack spontaneous life—our attitude and our obedience is hard, mechanical, forced, bargaining. Prof. Seeley has shown us that there are three ways of dealing with evil, according to the degree that fellow-feeling or love is developed in society. In the savage, selfish state where fellow-feeling or love is undeveloped, evil is looked upon according to the "law of indifference." Moral evil is treated for the most part with indifference. Higher up in the scale of civilized life where this fellow-feeling or love is only imperfectly developed, and society is in "the legal stage", evil is treated according to "the law of strict justice." In the highest stage where it is fully developed, evil is treated according to "the law of mercy." But mercy does not mean mere pity, for pity is weak. Mercy is made up of two elements: resentment against the wrong and pity for the wrong-doer. These two put together constitute mercy.

Thus mercy had one element that the second stage contains—resentment against wrong—with the addition of an element which the second stage lacks—pity for the wrong-doer. We need not discuss the first stage—the savage, selfish stage; for society has, for the most part, progressed beyond it. Society is now largely in the legal stage. It deals with evil after the manner of strict justice, now and then descending to the first stage of indifference. Its justice relates to the deed, seldom to the person. Our laws think largely of the deed, almost nothing of the doer. So much evil deed calls for so much punishment. The man behind is largely forgotten. The consequence is that it is not redemptive—the wrong-doer is not won back to a new life. Most men are in the legal stage.

Sometime ago the writer visited a large jail. He was shown a large section of the jail, over the gate of which was written Habitual Offenders. About 70 per cent. of those who get into the jail once come in again. The man is hardened, because law has only dealt with him in one way: hardness. It has taken little or no account of the man, but only of his deed. As a consequence it is not redemptive. But here is another method. In the great Sing Sing Prison in New York were thousands of prisoners. A man by the name of Osborne was made warden. He believed in taking account of the man as well as his deed. So when a prisoner was brought in, he was told that he would be treated as a man and not merely as a prisoner with a number, that he would have to suffer the penalty of his wrong-doing; but the prison was to be run by them, they were to be trusted, and when they left the prison positions would be found for them, so that they might get back into society as respectable citizens. A friend of the writer was visiting in the prison one night, when all the electric lights of the institution went out. The several thousand prisoners were in a meeting at the time. How many men broke for the walls to escape? Not one! What held those men? Not the guard upon the walls, but the guard inside of every man there. Each man said, "Osborne is trusting me, I will respond to that trust." Like produced like. The consequence is that scarcely ten per cent of those prisoners ever return to that prison. But because most men are in the legal stage and cannot understand or bear the redemptive outlook, politicians rose against Osborne and misrepresented him, and he had to suffer calumny and blind opposition because of putting this plan into operation. The saviour of men must always suffer thus—Osborne for his prisoners, Jesus for his world.

That is the problem of life: to put the guard on the walls inside of every man. For as the great French thinker Sabatier said, "Authority can only become authority by placing itself within the man himself." Mere iron law cannot do that—the iron in the law may rive the flesh; it cannot touch the affections of the man, his soul. Only love goes that deep. We deal with crime by imprisoning the criminal, adding bondage of the body to the bondage of the soul. Jesus sets the prisoner inwardly free, delivering him from the law by substituting the law of love, which makes a man forsake evil because he desires to do good.

All our outlooks, personal, social and political, must be redemptive. "The more Christian our human society becomes, the more it will manifest the vicarious conscience of its Lord, and feel burdened with the guilt of every wrong-doer, and bound to make its law-courts, its prisons, its public opinion and international policies redemptive."

There are those who feel that if we were to deal with evil after the manner of mercy, society could not hold together—it would break to pieces. But those who are in the merely legal stage think the stage ahead is the stage behind, and that mercy means indifference to evil. No greater mistake could be made. Mercy means resentment or moral indignation against wrong plus pity for the man who does the wrong. Mercy is so indignant against wrong, that it would go to the furthest lengths of sacrifice to save the wrong-doer from doing it again. It thinks not merely of punishing one deed, as legalism does, but thinks of redeeming a whole life from wrong-doing.

That was Jesus' way. See how he deals with wrong. The Pharisees had their theories and methods of dealing with wrong. They were in the legal stage. They dealt with evil by the process of hardness and isolation. Under their regime the publicans, (who were notorious evil-doers), and other sinners remained publicans and sinners. They were not changed. But Jesus' method was different. For instance, one day as he moved slowly along the road with a great crowd about him, Zacchæus, a rich, close-fisted, greedy publican, ran ahead and climbed into a tree under which Jesus was to pass in order to see him. Jesus stopped beneath the tree, looked up and said to Zacchæus, "Zacchæus, come down, today I must abide in your house." He came down in haste. It was probably the only time anyone of respectability had treated him in this way. The Pharisees stood about and murmured, saying, "This man is associating with publicans and sinners." Zacchæus stood and said, "Lord, the half of my goods I give to the poor, and if I have taken anything from any man wrongfully I restore him four-fold." Jesus said, "Today has salvation come to this house." Now what had produced that change? A few moments before he was a close-fisted publican; now he was a generous penitent trying to right the wrongs of his life. What was it that made him disgorge? The method of the Pharisees could never have produced such an effect. Under the alchemy of Jesus' touch the publican becomes the philanthropist. How did he do it? He had mercy on him. As he stood looking at Zacchæus with solemn loving eyes, he silently judged Zacchæus—judged him so severely, without a word, that the man in a moment felt his whole life was wrong. Those solemn eyes became eyes of fire that searched the depths of Zacchæus' soul. Under that searching gaze life's values changed in a flash. He wanted to be good. He did not want money. He would part with it all if he could only be right. Jesus judged him. But in his judging he pitied the man. Mercy judged and pitied the man and won him to a new life.

This is the meaning of the cross of Christ. It means first of all that God fiercely resents sin—resents it so much that he will not lightly forgive it, nor merely punish it. This would, in either case, have been easier for him; but would, in the case of lightly forgiving, have produced carelessness and presumption in the sinner, and in the case of mere punishment have produced a sullen half-hearted obedience or callous indifference. He chose neither of these, but a more difficult path. He chose, not to set aside law by lightly forgiving, but to uphold law by taking on himself the sufferings and penalties of broken law; and he would not merely punish, but would suffer for man and thus win the heart of the sinner from his sin, and make him love the right.

Frances E. Willard literally burned out her life in service for the purity of her country and homes. The beautiful "White Ribbon" belted the earth. She lived almost in poverty, receiving scarcely enough to feed and clothe herself. Only on rare occasions was she allowed a little respite from her continuous labors, at "Rest Cottage," Evanston, Ill., where she called home. Frances E. Willard died Feb. 2, 1898—the "Uncrowned Queen" of the Nineteenth Century, and one of the most honored and loved among her world sisterhood.

The Preparation of the Preacher.

(An address at the Detroit Preachers' Meeting by Dr. William G. Nixon, just a few days before his death.)

take this subject to mean the preparation of the preacher in order to the proper presentation of a particular sermon.

1. There Must Be Preparation of Character.

This preparation precedes, often by years and decades, the delivery of the sermon. Sincerity is a vital attitude of the preacher toward his message and his audience. Character, sturdy, dependable, Christian character is fitting background for an impassioned sermon.

Jefferson, in "The Building of the Church," says: "Humanly speaking everything depends upon the minister. Music cannot save a church, nor the Bible, nor the Sacraments, nor pulpit discourses. Worship dies unless it is kept alive by a living man. . . . Sermons are bullets. How far they go does not depend upon the text or upon the structure of the sermon, but upon the texture of the manhood of the preacher."

You are familiar with the remark credited to Emerson, "What you are speaks so loudly that I cannot hear what you say." When a congregation loses faith in the moral integrity of the preacher, although he be eloquent as a Demosthenes, he can no longer hold his crowd.

To quote again from Jefferson: "A sermon is the life-blood of a Christian spirit." A preacher dies in the act of preaching. He lays down his life for his brethren. He saves others; himself he cannot save. The pulpit is a Golgotha in which the preacher gives his life for the life of the world. Preaching is a great work. To do it as God wants it done, the preacher must be a good man, full of the Holy Ghost and faith.

II. There Must Be Preparation in Meditation and Prayer.

The minister must read and meditate upon the Word of God. He must saturate his mind with Bible truth. As Bishop Simpson used to say: "Discipline yourselves to read personally, not professionally."

It is told of Dr. Chalmers that in his early ministry he wrote a friend, referring to a chair of mathematics, that a minister could discharge all his duties in his parish and have five days left out of every week for other pursuits. To his credit be it said, that later when he came to feel the greatness of his work and his great soul had fully entered into it, he publicly withdrew the statement, saying he had neglected to estimate two magnitudes. "The littleness of time and the greatness of eternity."

* Not only must the minister meditate on these "magnitudes," on the fact of sin and a sinner's hell and a great salvation from all sin through Jesus Christ, but he must also be a man of prayer. Prayer for the supply of his own soul's need. Prayer that he slip not into the marsh of professionalism. Prayer that he keep up to tone. Prayer for his Church that its members may be able to "comprehend with all saints what is the breadth and length, and depth and height; and to know the love of Christ which passeth knowledge that he might be filled with all the fullness of God."

Prayer for the unsaved, that they may turn to Jesus Christ. How little time we take for prayer, how great the possibilities in prayer. As in the days of the Prophet Joel, we need some voice to urge that "the ministers of the Lord weep between the porch and the altar, and let them say, spare thy people, O Lord, and give not thine heritage to reproach, that the heathen should rule over them: Wherefore should they say among the people, where is their God?" We weep too little and we pray not enough. The class-meeting has gone. Our prayer meetings are going. Our "Food, Faith, and Fun" substitute is a travesty on united, protracted, intercessory prayer for a revival of God's work in the midst of the years.

III. There Must Be Preparation in Sacrificial Courage.

The Christian ministry is no coward's castle. No other calling on earth has as long a list of martyr dead, as the Christian ministry. Many of the Old Testament prophets suffered violent deaths and the New Testament records outstanding loyalty to the truth that eventuated in martyrdom. Who of us today are in any danger of our lives for the truth's sake? Is it because we have daubed with untempered mortar or have taken the road of least resistance? We need to wait on God for courage to attack sin in its strongholds.

We need a John the Baptist and a Peter Cartwright to call a Christ rejecting age to account. Who has courage to attack the theater, the card party, the dance, the movie? What would happen if we had the courage of our convictions and thundered our anathemas against worldly church members? Probably the same bitter humiliating experience of Savonarola in his desperate fight for moral and social righteousness, to see his congregation diminish almost to the vanishing point and to be told that he did not cultivate the necessary arts and graces that can alone commend a minister to a congregation.

Charles Sylvester Horne says: "Always the preacher must be a man of his time. His business is to restate the eternal message of salvation in the terms of today." It takes courage to speak a message to fit the present need. It is quite easy to preach on the sins of the Antediluvians.

John Wesley spoke to his age and saved England from moral and spiritual death, but we have to remember that when John Wesley stood up to preach, the world knew that the hour of battle had arrived. Mobs assailed him. A house was torn to pieces over his head, but it was all a tribute to the power of his message. It will take much tarrying in this soft and easy age to give us courage to battle the wrong irrespective of the consequences to ourselves.

You have read how a little company in the early church had a taste of prison for the Gospel's sake and being let go they had a prayer meeting in which one petition ran like this: "And now, Lord, behold their threatenings: and grant unto thy servants that with all boldness they may speak thy Word" and the result of such praying was that the place was shaken where they were assembled together: and they were all filled with the Holy Ghost and they spake the Word of God with boldness."

IV. There Must Be the Preparation That Results From the Baptism of the Holy Spirit.

It is one thing to be born of the Spirit; it is quite another thing to be baptized of the Spirit. It is to be devoutly hoped that all ministers of the Gospel have been born of the Spirit. It is certain that not all ministers have been baptized of the Spirit. Natural birth precedes baptism in point of time even as the birth of soul precedes the baptism with the Holy Spirit. Both are crisis experiences.

Jesus laid great stress upon this equipment for the ministry. One would suppose that following the death of Jesus on the Cross when he rose triumphant over the grave he would have called the eleven theological students together and bade them speed with the news that he had risen from the dead—but no, the Word was to tarry. Tarry in Jerusalem for the fulfillment of the promise of the Father, the baptism of the Holy Ghost, which said Jesus would result in power to witness in Jerusalem and in all Judea and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth. Brothers, we need the girding of that power when we stand to preach. We must have the old-time unction if we would have the old-time power.

I know that the Church I love has dropped this emphasis; that some of our bishops explain away the question asked of young preachers joining the Conference, but the only thing that will save the church from the prevalent worldliness and save our mission fields from continued cuts is an out-poured Pentecost upon our ministry. When that happens, the day of sin-killing revival has arrived in the Church, and the minister will preach with new unction and power. Some years ago Dr. Alexander McKenzie spoke before our Boston preachers' meeting and among other things, said: "Methodists, stick to your peculiarities. They are the secret of your power, for their promotion the head of the Church raised you up. If you abandon them your conquering stride will cease."

I have said there must be preparation of character, preparation in meditation and prayer, preparation in sacrificial courage and, above all, the anointing, energizing, abiding power of the Holy Ghost as he ministers in prayer and sermon to needy congregations.

"Thou must be true thyself,
If thou the truth wouldst teach.
Thy soul must overflow, if thou
Another soul would reach.
It needs the overflowing soul
To give the lips full speech.

"Think truly, and thy thought
Shall the world's famine feed.
Speak truly, and thy word
Shall be a fruitful seed.
Live truly, and thy life shall be A great and noble deed."

—Michigan Christian Advocate.

The Resolution against Modernism adopted by the General Evangelists of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at their recent Annual Convention, Nashville, Tenn.

Whereas, Modernism during the past few years has made serious inroads upon the religious life of America; it has injected the poison of skepticism and infidelity into many of the leading Institutions of learning throughout the land.

Whereas, it has confused and unsettled the faith of multitudes of people; has hampered the work of true evangelism and has hindered the progress of the kingdom of God in the world.

Therefore, Be it resolved: That the General Evangelists of the M. E. Church, South, put themselves on record as being opposed to Modernism in its fourfold constituent elements of rationalism, liberalism, destructive higher criticism and evolutionism.

Further, Be it resolved: That we take this occasion to express and to emphasize our firm and unshaken faith in the fundamental doctrines of historical Christianity, such as the Divine Inspiration of the Holy Scriptures, the Genesis account of the Creation and Fall of man, the Virgin Birth, the Deity, the Sacrificial Atonement and the Bodily Resurrection of Jesus Christ.

The above resolution was offered by Rev. Andrew Johnson, President of the Fundamental Association, Wilmore, Ky.

REPORTS FROM SOUL WINNERS

REVERBERATIONS FROM BROOKLYN.

"No more lasting impression was made upon me," said Bro. Chase, speaking of the Convention, "than Bro. Tamblin's opening prayer." Others have told us how their souls were blessed by that prayer. Are we exalting man? God forbid! We are exalting the Holy Ghost, to whom Bro. Tamblin always gives right of way.

Why was it the best convention we have ever had? Because in a greater measure than ever before was answered the Master's prayer, "That they all may be one." Our own text for the convention was, "The Lion of the tribe of Judah . . . hath prevailed." He spread a great table before us, and to it sat down, Methodists, North and South, Free Methodists, Wesleyans, German and Swedish Methodists, Nazarenes, West Indian Nazarenes, Salvation Army, Christian and Missionary Alliance, Friends, Baptists, Presbyterians, and United Presbyterians, Hebrew-Christians, Congregationalists, Episcopalians, Holiness Missions and "Tuesday Meeting Folk." A little foretaste of what our beloved Bro. Hammill used to say Heaven would be, "God's great, never-ending Holiness Convention."

The only fault we have heard found with the convention this year was that it was too quickly over. In China, India, all over the British Isles, Canada and our own States, they prayed for us, to the prayer-answering God. To him be all the glory! Letters came to us every year, in answer to ours, from the Presidents of the different Holiness Colleges, assuring us that faculty and students are holding us before the Throne. Thus are we workers together with him. A little group of "interdenominationalists" have met for over twelve years, every Tuesday, "rain or shine," to pray for the advancement of God's Kingdom, and for "the Coming Convention."

Many Tuesday Meetings have grown out of ours; the last one since the Convention, is in Hudson, N. Y. A precious cousin of the writer, who was baptized with the Holy Ghost early in the convention, went home on Monday and started her Tuesday meeting the next day. Would that a 1000 more would "go and do likewise"! In prayer and fasting, our Sister Magee organized the first one after ours which, under her tears and prayers, has developed into a blessed Holiness Mission, where Bro. and Sister Thomas have held several ten-day meetings, and where Bros. Morrison, T. M. Anderson, Alvin Young, and E. E. Shelhamer have also held meetings. Sister Magee led our sunrise prayer meeting this year, and as usual had charge of the dining-room and kitchen, assisted by her splendid band of men and women from her Mission; this year she was reinforced by a faithful group of sisters from the Utica Avenue Nazarene Church. Sister MacLean was on hand to help every one, in every time of need, while Sister Miller was tireless, night and day, in her efforts to locate visitors comfortably in rooms near the church. Sister Magee told us that the spirit among the workers was sweet as heaven, a wholly sanctified family group, and to this Bro. Shelhamer will testify, for he held family prayers with them every morning. Surely, Sisters Magee, Miller and MacLean were ideal "Convention Hostesses." Bro. MacLean led the street meetings, and as usual was blessed of God in leading many souls to the altar. Sister Henderson from Danbury, took a little band of intercessors to pray for the evening service, to the upper room at 6:30 P. M. "The Bishop of the Highway," Bro. Armstrong, with the assistance of our dear Sister Kovalski, stood faithfully by the book stand. Brother and Sister Kidder threw wide the doors of their parsonage as well as the doors of their big hearts and with their good church people royally received us. God bless "Old Sand St. Memorial"! And all the people said Amen!

Our evangelists, as you know, were Brothers Morrison, John Thomas and E. E. Shelhamer, who each preached once daily, and Bro. Ruth who gave daily Bible readings, and preached the opening sermon. Brother Morrison seemed endowed with greater power than ever, and as Bro. Chase said, "How he did carry us up to the realms of glory"! On the last Sunday night, when a vast audience filled church and galleries to overflowing, just before he preached, Brother Morrison stood beside Sister Harris and Bro. Yates, and sang with them what has become the closing song of our convention, "Jesus, Lover of My Soul." Angels seemed hovering near, and the Shekinah glory resting down upon us. "Hide me, Oh my Savior hide." God heard the preacher's prayer in song, and manifested himself in the closing sermon, which brought many seeking souls to the altar.

Brother Thomas was with us for the first time. Hear again from Bro. Chase: "John Thomas is a man who is everlastingly admonishing men and women to pray and to believe God." Is there any better preaching than that? The healing meeting that Brother Thomas led the last Friday afternoon was one of the sweetest meetings I was ever in. He also testified to his own healing, as did several others. Can more be said of a man than that "God is with him"? That is what the Brooklyn people are all saying about Bro. Thomas, and the same testimony has come to us about him in letters from out of town folk.

This was Bro. Shelhamer's second year with us. Sister Brookshire, who with her husband, has charge of the Bethany Orphanage, in Virginia, stayed over after convention, and in a Tuesday meeting declared that Brother Shelhamer's broom sweeps so clean that it actually finds things on the carpet of the wholly sanctified. Oh, they might be scraps of perfectly clean paper, but the floor would look better if they were picked up. His sermons were truly "Soul Searching."

You all know our Brother Ruth, and that his Bible readings, both oral and written, have brought thousands into the experience of Holiness. This is the third year our Brother Yates has led the singing and there is no greater song leader in the land, and no brother with a sweeter, more helpful spirit. Ruth Harris brought us wonderful messages in song and stood faithfully by the altar until the last light was out, as did Sister Norberry, who has always presided so graciously at the organ, and who like Bro. Morrison, and some others, is "elected" to this work for life. We missed our beloved Sister Miller's presence and voice in song, she being detained at home by a serious accident to her husband. One evening we were delighted with singing by the Asbury Quartette. A loyal band from John Wesley Nazarene Church, led by Bro. Elsner, added instruments of praise; the violin of our little Sister Jerinigan, under her skillful fingers, made wondrously sweet accompaniment for the singers. Bro. Morrison spoke for Asbury College, Bro. Duryea for Taylor, and Bro. Gould for the Eastern Nazarene. Bro. Thomas, who graciously presided over the convention, frequently urged the people from the platform to subscribe for the holiness papers.

The People's Meeting at 7:00 P. M., was led by Rev. J. Dunster Thomas, of London and Canada. Our Brother came to us in the fullness of the blessing of God, and was a real blessing and help to the convention. The 9:00-10:30 A. M. "Fellowing Meeting" was led by our beloved Sister Emily Thomas, who won the hearts of the people when she led this meeting last year, and who again richly watered our souls from "the rivers of water" flowing from her own heart, "according to the Scriptures." There was mighty prevailing prayer in this meeting; those who missed it lost more than they know, for,

"Heaven came down our souls to greet, While glory crowned the Mercy Seat."

All the services were greatly enriched by the presence of our dear Canadian friends, Brother Gregg, Brother Wishart and his sister, and Brother and Sister Bowman, who all understand how to prevail with God, and to bring seekers into the experience of holiness. We quickly discovered that they were our "blood kin-folk." Colonel Brengle (now Commissioner of the S. A.), was with us all day the last Sunday, and gave us a little talk in one meeting. One always feels like breathing the prayer, "Lord, help me to follow this preacher in his spirit of meekness and gentleness as he follows Thee."

There was a great host of visiting preachers at this "Feast of Tabernacles." Bros. Norberry, C. M. Norris and Sister Reid, from New Jersey, Dr. Joseph Smith, Bro. Starbuck, pastor of the Friends Church in Rhode Island, Bro. Hogle, Brother and Sister Shoup, of Washington, D. C., Bro. Geiter from Ohio, Sister Schuman, wife of the new President of the C. and M. Alliance, Brother and Sister Trumbull, pastor of the Gospel Tabernacle, N. Y. City, Dr. and Mrs. Butterfield, Editor of "The Wesleyan," Bro. Eaton, and Bro. Raymond Browning, of Wilmore, Ky., Brother Ruth's Missionary daughter "Naomi," and her husband, Bros. VanNess and Kress, and Sisters Hayden and Bostwick, of Pennsylvania, Sister Cox, of "The Way of Holiness," Sister Kate Booth, of Florida, Sister Kunz, of Syracuse. Time would fail to mention all for they came from the North, South, East and West.

The Holiness Missions were well represented. Bro. and Sister Woodruff, Sister Gregory and friends from Binghamton, Bro. and Sister Ortlip, with their Mission folk from Fort Lee, Bro. Piguerton and his "Old Faith Mission," N. Y. City. Bro. Combs and the Beulah folk, the Manchester Mission, Bro. and Sister Unkles from Corps No. 2, S. A., Newark, N. J., Sister Nellie Reid of Massachusetts.

As Brother Morrison intimated to you, we have not always been "carried on flowery beds of ease," but in the very beginning God showed the "Tuesday folk" (under whose auspices the very first convention was held) that "we are building a wall" and must not "come down"; so when difficulties arise, we just try to follow the advice of Brother Chase—"Say nothing, and saw wood." The wood pile is growing! Our good Brother Mills, of the Utica Ave. Church, tells us that when he was a lad and the boys built bonfires out in the open, that if a boy came empty-handed, he quickly heard the cry, "Where is your license? Bring your license!" Which meant bring a good log to make the fire burn brighter. And so we are sure Brother Mills would exhort us all to "Saw Wood" (which being interpreted is, Pray Mightily) and "Bring our license" to the Brooklyn 1927 Holiness Convention.

FIELD NOTES.

This is our first report since the Nazarene Indiana Assembly; however we have not been idle by any means. The first two weeks after the Assembly we were in Chicago completing the Home Missionary meeting we had started some weeks before. This meeting resulted in another Nazarene Church to preach full salvation in this large, wicked city.

Our next battle against sin and the devil was at Richmond, Ind. We had a very good meeting at this place, but in our opinion we were just getting started when we were compelled to leave for the next place. The way I see it we are trying to make our meetings by far too short in these days, and I am sometimes tempted to announce, "Any one wanting a meeting from four to ten weeks send us word." Brother and Sister Cook are the good and efficient pastors of this people.

From here we went to Carlinville, Ill., where we found a young man by the name of Otis Harbour doing his best to build up a young organization. We discovered he had a real job on hand, but the Lord helped us and gave us a few souls and we believe some work was done that will tell throughout eternity.

Marion, Ind., was the next stop. At this place we were with the P. H. Church. Rev. Frank Edwards is pastor of this church. He was formerly a Quaker and came to this church some few years ago. The crowds were large and seekers quite a few. It made our heart rejoice when we looked into the faces of so many that we had helped in previous days. This is the city in which we were living when we were born the second time. We had the privilege of having our family with us the last few days at this place which was a blessing to one and all. I am glad the blood can fix a man up so he is neither afraid nor ashamed to go back to the place where he had lived when in the depths of sin and preach.

The night we closed here we left for Midland, Mich., to do our best by the help of the Lord for Rev. Chas. H. Hare and church. Brother Hare is now in his eighth year with this class, and he is doing a great work. They had just moved into a new Tabernacle which gave evidence of good taste and a lot of hard work. We preached almost a week here before making an altar call. But salvation came to many from this time on. We talked one day while here to the high school students which seemed to be very profitable and appreciated by all. After closing here we spent a week with Rev. C. A. Strait and his young church at Saginaw, Mich. The seekers here were few but all were finders according to their testimony and looks. This man Strait is not only straight in name but in living and preaching as well.

We stopped three days in Kalamazoo, Mich., and found them just closing a revival. The pastor, Rev. L. H. Bachelior, had been doing the preaching and they were glad for me to give them these last three nights. The Lord honored our efforts and gave us souls.

We are now at home with family for a few days. Please remember us at the throne when talking to the Father. Evangelist James Miller.

ANOTHER GOOD YEAR.

Nineteen Twenty-six has gone and the fruits of it will be revealed at this great day. I am deeply grateful to God for his mercies. He gave me health and strength to labor for him. He enabled me to hold seventeen revivals with over eleven hundred seekers at the altar, most of them finding the Lord.

The first meeting of the year was with Rev. O. L. Benedum and his church at East Liverpool, Ohio, then to Springfield, N. Y., New Philadelphia, O., Monongahela City, Pa., Tarentum, Pa., Baltimore, Md., New Castle, Pa., Washington, D. C., Youngstown, O., Rochester, N. Y., Syracuse, N. Y., Kenmore, O., Fort Dodge, Iowa, Barborton, O., Uhrichsville, O., Canastota, N. Y., Broom's Island, Md. In these meetings I have been permitted to labor with some choice pastors, and most excellent people.

The New Year dawns bright with hope. The Old year departed, and the New Year came finding me on my knees with an open Bible. God gave me a fresh baptism of love, tears and tenderness and I desire to walk softly before him, leading more souls into the fountain and being a greater blessing to those with whom I labor than ever before.

May God bless all the saints on earth, I extend love to all, and wish you a happy and prosperous New Year.

M. M. Bussey, Evangelist.

REPORT.

Rev. H. H. Ogles, of Epley, Ky., engaged us to hold him a meeting five miles West of Russellville, Ky., late in November. We found Bro. Ogles in a nice parsonage near the church at Epley Station. The people came out well and at times standing room was taken. I have never preached to as many women and children since I have been in the evangelistic work as at Epley. The young people came out in great numbers. Sorry to say there was not much response on the part of the unsaved. I think there were three converted and three joined the Methodist Church. Bro. Ogles is liked by his people. He has a wonderful class of young people in his church. I did not preach holiness but a few times and some enjoyed it, while some seemed to not enjoy it. I did my best for the people and can meet my messages at the Judgment with a clear conscience.

Since we have been in Louisville we preached for the Nazarenes one week and had three beautifully saved. Preached at the Union Gospel Mission; many asked for prayer. Preached once for Dr. Weldon at the Temple at 6th and Broadway; a fine gentleman came forward and said he had the courage to surrender himself to God and come into the church. I find the people want the old-time gospel and will hear it gladly. Anyone desiring my help, address me at 1019 South 4th St., Louisville, Ky.

and revivals God is calling hundreds of young people into the ministry. It is the business, the chief business, the highest duty and great privilege of God's sanctified people to educate and prepare these God-called young men and women for their life's work.

THIS IS THE REMEDY.

Let us rally to the support, the building up and the establishing of the holiness schools. Let us enlarge, equip and support the theological departments of these schools. Let us see to it that these theological seminaries are endowed, that they have ample loan funds. Let us erect buildings to take care of the students, to house the professors, to supply libraries, to meet the needs of the times by giving the people a ministry that believe the Bible and rejoice in a Christ able to save his people from their sins.

The people in these United States who profess sanctification have millions of money. Not a few of them die and leave it to be wasted in luxuries by unworthy sons-in-law and daughters-in-law, as well as extravagant and wasteful children of their own. Such people haven't a proper appreciation of their consecration.

The time has fully come for a great forward movement in the enlargement, rebuilding and support of our holiness schools, with special reference to the careful training of a few thousand consecrated, Spirit-filled young men and women to carry to the starving multitudes the glad news of full salvation here and now, by faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. A Chapter from My Autobiography

CHAPTER XVII.

LEAVING STANFORD FOR NASHVILLE.

THINKING over the two years of my pastorate in Stanford, Ky., so many memories rise before me that I am loath to quit the place in these chapters. I could write a book of memoirs of Stanford; it was a delightful little city. The people were good to me, and I loved them dearly. There was Brother Daugherty, the blacksmith, one time mayor of the town, a staunch Baptist, and one of my best friends. There was John Allen, a good Methodist, a carpenter, later a contractor and builder; a man of strong character and beautiful spirit. What a faithful, true soul! His confidence and friendship were a blessing and brace to my life. Adam Pence had the body of a giant, the mind of a Senator, and the heart of a little child. It was a blessing to have his friendship, and a means of grace to love and associate with him. There was Dr. Cook, the beloved physician, always inquiring into the deeper things of the spiritual life. While not a member of my church, he and his wife were among my best friends and often attended upon my ministry.

John Bruce, pastor of the Baptist Church, was a true and noble soul. We were brothers together in Christ. We boarded in the same home, and labored as true yokefellows in the service of the Lord. It was during my pastorate there that the Rev. Thomas Hale came to assist Brother Bruce in a meeting. Hale stayed with us at our boarding house. What a charming Christian gentleman he was. To me, he was very handsome, had a most pleasing manner; he preached the gospel with beautiful simplicity and spiritual power. The grace of God was upon him. I fell in love with him, and once I fall in love with a man I can never get over it. We have been friends through the years. He was a devout and beautiful Christian. I was greatly grieved when I learned that he was killed in that fearful wreck on the Southern Railway a few weeks ago. Dear, dear man! Faithful, humble, and devoted to his Lord. Dr. Hale had for many years, been associated with the Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville. John Bruce died many years ago; now Hale has gone to meet him. How happy I shall be to join them on the eternal shores and renew the delightful fellowship of the years gone by.

At the close of his labors with Brother Bruce, Hale went back to Danville where he was pastor of the Baptist Church, and wrote me a letter urging me to spend a while in some theological school. This letter, more than any other one thing, influenced me to take a year's leave of absence from my conference and go to Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn.

If memory serves me correctly, it was in the fall of 1884 that I went to Vanderbilt. At that time, Nashville was, as it is today, one of the most charming cities of all the southland. It is a center of churches and schools. At that time it was the Mecca of Southern Methodism. Vanderbilt was then the property of the M. E. Church, South, the delight and pride of all her people. The Publishing House of the church, the home of The Christian Advocate, the central organ of the church, and the headquarters of the Missionary Boards. The College of Bishops held many of their meetings there, and it was the center of the gathering of many Methodist Boards of Education, Missions, and Church Extension.

The theological students at Wesley Hall had an opportunity to visit headquarters and see the great men of the church at close range. At that time Bishop McTyeire was president of the University. I shall never forget the morning I went out to arrange for entering upon my studies. I was walking over the campus toward Wesley Hall and saw the Bishop standing near a pump which was being repaired under his direction. He looked as strong and majestic as the great oak trees spreading their vast shade in silence about him. I have never seen any other man that looked so large, strong, calm, and restful as Bishop McTyeire. I went over and spoke to him and he gave me a most kindly greeting, and made me feel quite comfortable and at home.

The next few days were very full of interest, meeting the students as they came in, arranging my room, getting acquainted with my teachers, selecting the books for my course of study, and forming new friendships. Among the men who stand out most clearly in my memory is Davis, one of the finest scholars in the Theological Department. I think he was from North Carolina. He has since died. Hardaway was a fine student, a Kentuckian, an example of piety, industry, and kindness to the entire student body. If living, he is in the far west at this time. Stafford was a tall, slender, black-haired, handsome young fellow from Texas, dignified as a bishop. He died many years ago. James Burrough was one of the very finest men in Wesley Hall. He had set type for several years on the Holston Methodist. He was accurate in Grammar, perfect in spelling and composition, and was in great demand among the students when they needed help along these lines. Burrough was devout, brave, industrious, ready to help any student in any way possible, and was a peace-maker, if trouble arose, and was a wise counsellor to any one in trouble. He has been a prominent pastor, a good presiding elder, and for many years, editor of the Midland Methodist. I have met him a number of times at General Conference. The friendship we formed in Wesley Hall has lasted through several decades.

Bob Selby was a very fine student, a delightfully clean, charming young man. He has been a leader in one of the Mississippi conferences, has represented his conference in the General Conference a number of times. Burrough's room-mate was Tilley, who went as a missionary somewhere in South America. He died some years ago. Burke was a fine fellow, little inclined to be worldly, but received a great blessing one night at our Saturday evening prayer meeting in Wesley Hall. He was a fine student; went many years ago as a missionary to China, and has been greatly used in that country, and is laboring there today. J. B. K. Spain was a very superior man, became a successful pastor, died some years ago. John Orr was a most excellent man. He taught us vocal music, was an influential student, much sought after to assist in singing. He is still alive and a very useful man, much beloved in one of the Virginia conferences. There was Gains, and Smith, and Smithy, and a host of them whom I knew and loved, some living, many of them have fallen on sleep, and I am hoping to join them on the other shore. (Continued)

The Preaching That Counts. MRS. H. C. MORRISON.

IT is said that Daniel Webster once described the preaching he liked best as that which made him feel as if the devil was after him. This may sound "old-timey" and rather commonplace for a man of Webster's make-up to say, but there is a lot of pure gospel and common sense in the utterance.

The trouble today is that men do not want to preach so as to disturb any one, lest they incur their displeasure, but this is the very least consideration in the matter. No sinner ought to feel comfortable as long as he is rejecting the offers of mercy and free grace.

If one is made to feel that the pains of hell have got hold upon him, he will flee to the bleeding arms of mercy and there find relief in the consciousness of sins forgiven.

Louis XIV. heard Massillon, the eloquent French prelate, preach a series of sermons and made this criticism of him: "When I hear other great preachers I feel satisfied with them; but when I hear Massillon I feel dissatisfied with myself." This is the art, if so it may be called, that every minister of the gospel should crave to possess. To be able to lay bare the hidden chambers of the human heart until men become dissatisfied with themselves and, viewing their own degradation and moral uncleanness, cry to God for deliverance that they may lead a better life.

The lawyer spoke the sentiment of many a true soul when he said, "I do not go to church to have my brains racked with difficult problems; I go there to be made a better man." How much is the Peter Cartwright style of preaching needed today. He rebuked sin in high and low places, hewed to the line and did not care where the truth hit.

The pamby kind of preaching was prevalent in Jeremiah's day for he pours this lamentation into the ears of the Lord: "They have healed also the hurt of the daughter of my people slightly, saying, Peace, peace! when there is no peace." It pays to be honest in dealing with one's own soul, for it is the most precious thing in our possession, the value of which Christ emphasized as being greater than the whole world, for he asked what it would profit a man if he should gain the whole world, and lose his own soul.

The minister is to be the watchman on the walls of Zion and is to warn the people; this fact is clearly brought out in Ezekiel 3:17, where the Lord spoke to the prophet thus: "Son of man, I have made thee a watchman unto the house of Israel: therefore hear the word at my mouth, and give them warning from me." He further says, "When I say unto the wicked, Thou shalt surely die; and thou givest not warning, nor speakest to warn the wicked from his wicked way, to save his life; the same wicked man shall die in his iniquity; but his blood will I require at thine hand." These words falling from the lips of inspiration, are enough to make any minister tremble in his place, and seek to live so close to the Lord that he can feel that his messages come from the Father and should be delivered in the power of the Spirit.

The low, moral plane upon which the world is living, is a mighty avalanche of power that has to be met, and unless the minister lives very close to the invisible One, from whom he alone can draw strength, the tide will not only paralyze him in the path of duty toward his fellow-men, but will engulf his own soul in spiritual darkness. We need to do as the Lord told the prophet. He told him to go shut himself within his house, in order for him to speak to him, then he was to give the message to the people.

If there was more tarrying before the throne there would be more preaching that would make people feel as if the devil was after them, and there would be more earnest seeking after God. It takes a message backed by a heaven-born conviction, to move the people toward Christ. Preaching the gospel with simplicity and intense earnestness of soul, will secure results. It is the only kind that will bear fruit in eternity.

Charles Wesley realized the need of this divine anointing when he breathed the following prayer:

"Jesus, the Truth and Power Divine,
Send forth these messengers of thine;
Their hands confirm, their hearts inspire,
And touch their lips with hallowed fire.

"Be thou their mouth and wisdom, Lord;
Thou, by the hammer of thy word,
The rocky hearts in pieces break,
And bid the sons of thunder speak.

"To those who would their Lord embrace,
Give them to preach the word of grace;
Sweetly their yielding bosoms move,
And melt them with the fire of love."

"Preach the preaching that I bid thee," was God's command to Jonah and when done a whole city repented in sackcloth and ashes. It is a sure sign of success, when a minister of the gospel gets his orders from headquarters. This will save many wrecks in the lives of those committed to his trust, as well as deliver his own soul. "Like priest like people," is a fact that ought to stir every preacher to be and do his very best for God. The congregation will never rise above its leader, thus it should behoove the pastor to live on the plane that he would have his flock walk upon." Follow me as I follow the Lord," should be safe advice to give his people. What a responsibility rests upon the man who is called to feed the church of God, and what an awful doom awaits the one who is untrue to his trust!

The Man on The Watchtower.

The idle rich are a menace to the morals of the country. In their idleness they go to shocking extremes hunting for entertainment, thrill and some method for their entertainment and use of the time they have, with nothing to do but something that ought not to be done.

The expenses and gate fees of football games are now amounting into the millions. At a great game recently in the East, it is estimated that between eighty and ninety thousand people entered the gates, and it is said that at least sixteen thousand of them were under the influence of strong drink; some were wallowing drunk. This waste of money and revelry of sport and drunkenness must be charged up to the great universities of the country.

If one half of the money now invested by farmers in automobiles had been invested in government bonds, the farmers would be in good condition from the clippings of their coupons. If the money invested in silk stockings had been invested in cotton stockings, the extra cotton crop would have been used up and the bank accounts of silk stocking buyers would justify the building of new homes, and there would perhaps, be less temptation to immodestly short skirts.

We hear of preachers saying "The day for revivals is passed." Such men confess themselves ignorant of God's power, human needs, and the great advantage of interesting and enthusing a large church membership in the one great work of bringing the lost to repentance and saving faith in Christ. The minister who believes that the day of revivals is past, is evidently not going to lay himself out with a soul longing for spiritual awakening, for the arousing of his church to special effort, and the combining of all the spiritual force of his congregation to bring salvation to the lost multitudes. The day of revivals is not past. The day of faith for revivals, the necessity of regeneration, and passion for souls, has passed with some preachers.

The popularity of the Bible continues to increase. Every year sees many great Bible presses busy every working day, and many hundreds of thousands of copies of the Holy Scriptures are circulated. Last year India, alone, took 850,000 copies of the Holy Scriptures. China broke all previous records by taking either in whole, or parts of the Scriptures, something over four millions of copies. The total number of languages into which the Bible is translated is 579. It is a good sign that the people should be eager to secure and read the Scriptures. It is a notable fact that while there has been quite an anti-Christian campaign in China, there has not been any general attacks against the Bible, or the Christ of the Bible.

A Book for the Times.

I have just finished reading "A Scientific Investigation of the Old Testament," written by that eminent and devout scholar, Robert D. Wilson, Ph.D., D.D., Professor of Semitic Philosophy in Princeton Theological Seminary.

The Sunday School Times sends the book forth with this statement: "This is the eagerly awaited volume from the pen of the great Princeton scholar, giving in detail his conclusions and the reasons for his belief in the accuracy and inspiration of the Old Testament Scriptures."

"With a background of more than thirty years of study and research, covering some forty-five languages and dialects, and including an exhaustive study of the text, grammar, and vocabulary of the Old Testament, Professor Wilson gives a conclusive and convincing argument for their plenary inspiration."

I have read the book with profound interest and great pleasure. It is a powerful defense of the Old Testament against the modern liberal destructive critic. It is written under the following heads:

- I. The Method of Investigation.
- II. The Evidence: Text.
- III. The Evidence: Grammar.
- IV. The Evidence: Vocabulary.
- V. The Evidence: History.
- VI. The Evidence: Religion.
- VII. Conclusion.

It is very complete and satisfactory. I commend it to all ministers and especially, to young ministers. It is a book for the people and ought to have a very wide reading. It is well bound, beautiful, clear print, contains 225 pages. It can be had of The Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky., for $2.00. It would prove a splendid investment.

THE GOD OF FIRE.

Fire destroys carnality. Fire is the emblem of purity. Brother, if you want the best that God has for you, get the baptism of the Holy Ghost and fire. If you want to be cut loose from the hindrances of inbred sin, be purged by the baptism of the Holy Ghost and fire. If you want the old man killed, carnality taken out of your heart, and to be free in the work of the Lord, get the baptism of the Holy Ghost and fire. If you sigh for inward purity; if your heart longs for holiness; if you would be filled with perfect love, get the baptism of the Holy Ghost and fire.

When God wanted to start a nation that would bring the Savior into the world he sealed his promise to Abraham with fire. When that nation was in bondage to a heathen king and cried for deliverance Jehovah appeared to Moses in fire, and led the people daily by the pillar of cloud and fire. When his people lost faith and turned to other gods, through the prayers of Elijah he answered by fire and restored Israel in their belief in his great power. When he wanted to send the golden-tongue prophet Isaiah out among the people to preach he touched his lips with fire. When he started the disciples on their dangerous mission of preaching the Gospel to save a dying world he gave them the baptism with the Holy Ghost and fire. Fire touched Augustine; fire thrilled Chrysostom; fire purged Luther; fire fell on Tyndall; fire flooded the soul of Wesley; fire swept through John Knox; and all down through the ages God has been answering by fire. Dear hearts, let us get the fiery baptism that sweeps the world before it.

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a Louisiana girl join your band of happy boys and girls? This is my first letter to The Herald. I have blue eyes, fair complexion, between light and dark hair, am five feet and two inches tall, weigh 110 pounds, and am sixteen years of age. My birthday is March 14. Who has my birthday? I go to school and study in the eighth grade. I have some good teachers. I have three sisters and three brothers. My oldest sister is married and has a mighty loving husband. Well, as my letter is getting long I will go. Hope Mr. W. B. will not get it as I want to surprise my married sister. I wish Aunt Bettie and cousins a Happy New Year.

Estelle Mivon.
Crowville, La.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a Colorado boy visit for a few minutes? I love to read the letters from the cousins. I have taken The Herald for several years and would not do without it. Now children, we are entering into another year. How many of us will try and do more this new year than we did the past one? Let us see how much good we can do, and make others happy by our lives. I have a verse I want you to read and follow.

Don't hunt for trouble, but look for success;
You'll find what you look for, don't look for distress.
If you see but your shadow, remember, I pray,
That the sun is still shining, but you're in the way.
Don't grumble, don't bluster, don't dream and don't shirk,
Don't think of your worries, but think of your work.
The worries will vanish, the work will be done;
No man sees his shadow who faces the sun.

A Happy New Year to all.
Your Colorado cousin,
F. W. Wathen.
Ft. Morgan, Colo.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Gee! but I am tired and cold. I came all the way from West Virginia. I like to read The Pentecostal Herald. I go to Sunday school every Sunday, and to school every day. Who can guess my age? It is between seven and ten. I have brown (bobbed) hair, brown eyes and fair complexion. Aunt Bettie, I hope Mr. W. B. is out eating his big, fat chicken when this letter arrives. I will close with love to Aunt Bettie and all the cousins. I will answer all letters I receive.

Cada James.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I have written twice before, so I thought I would write again. How are you and all the cousins getting along? Mother takes The Herald and I enjoy reading page ten. I couldn't do without it. I guess some of you have forgotten how I look so I will describe myself. I have blonde (bobbed) hair, black eyes, fair complexion. I am four feet, eight inches tall. If any of you will write to me I will send you a Valentine. I will have to go before Mr. W. B. comes. With love to Aunt Bettie and all the cousins,

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a little Mississippi girl join your band of boys and girls? My mother takes The Pentecostal Herald and I always read page ten. I have light hair, blue eyes and fair complexion, and am twelve years old. I am a member of the M. E. Church. I go to Sunday school every Sunday, and to prayer meeting every Sunday night. Gladys Rogers.
Reinzi, Miss.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Here I come all the way from West Virginia. No, thank you, I would rather sit here by the fire, as I am quite cold from my long journey. Your cousins will want to know how I look, so here goes. Black (bobbed) hair, black eyes, fair complexion, am five feet, six inches tall and weigh 108 pounds. My age is between sixteen and twenty. Cousins, when you have the blues read Psalm 91. Can any of you cousins tell me how many letters, verses and chapters there are in the Bible? Write and tell me, I'll answer all letters I receive. I will close as I have come all the way from West Virginia, and am quite tired.

Caroline McKinney.
Robson, W. Va.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Here comes your little Arkansas girl again. This is my second letter to The Herald. Who has my birthday, October 2? I am eleven years old. I go to Sunday school nearly every Sunday. I have a brother and father I want the boys and girls to pray for. I also have many friends I would like to have some of the boys and girls write to me. I would be more than glad to answer their letters. I hope Mr. W. B. will be out riding when this arrives. I sure hope to see this in print. My address is Cushman, Ark., Box 84.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a little Kentucky girl join your happy band of boys and girls? I go to Sunday school almost every Sunday. I am ten years old and am in the high fifth grade at school. Who has my birthday, April 18? My father takes The Herald and I like to read page ten. I have five brothers but haven't any sisters. Esther C. James, I guess your middle name to be either Catherine or Charlotte. If I am right don't forget your promise. I would like to have some of the cousins write to me. I hope Mr. W. B. does not get this because it is my first letter.

Marjorie Kays.
Beaumont Ave., Harrodsburg, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I've been aiming to write to The Herald for a long time. No, no, you needn't worry, I won't stay long. I'm a member of the Methodist Church and attend nearly every Sunday. Our pastor is Rev. B. M. DeWitt. We like him fine. Now for the task of describing myself. I have dark brown hair, blue eyes and am nearly five feet tall. I weigh about eighty-five pounds and am in the eighth grade. I'm going to have you all to guess my age; it's between ten and fourteen. Yes, Miss Gresham, of Nashville, you have a twin. As my letter is getting long I must close. Wake up, Kentucky, let people know the kind of boys and girls we are. Write to me. Best wishes.

Virginia Kessler.
Center, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Here comes another Kentucky friend to cheer you up if you will only give me a seat for a minute. I belong to the Christian Church and attend regularly. Now I will tell you what a beauty I am. I am five feet tall, have brown hair, blue eyes and fair complexion. My birthday is March 22. Have I a twin? I am thirteen years of age. Come on Kentucky, let's lead the states with the letters. Oh, I forgot to tell you I'm in the eighth grade. I will try to answer all letters received. Good-bye cousins, I'm fixing to leave you.

Edna Wood Scott.
Center, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Would you let a Mansfield girl join your happy band of girls and boys? I am eleven years old and in the fifth grade at school. I have brown eyes and brown hair. My father takes The Herald and I love to read page ten. I weigh 63 pounds. I love Jesus. Pray for me. I go to Sunday school every Sunday that I can at the Free Methodist Church. I would like for your happy band of boys and girls to write to me.

Opal Heimberger.
69 Johns Ave., Mansfield, Ohio.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I am asking if you will let me in your circle for a short while. I enjoy reading the letters very much. I have written once, and thanks for publishing it in your columns. I guess many of the cousins are attending the revival meetings, as most every church has one in winter time. The M. E. had theirs here in September. I would like if the cousins would write to me, especially the mothers, as my husband works on the railroad and I am alone a good deal, and don't have a chance to go away very often. I love to receive letters, so I promise I will answer every one I receive. I am a Christian, so please pray for me. Hoping Aunt Bettie will be kind enough to print my letter, will close, wishing you all a Happy New Year.

Mary E. Fruntz.
597 Carlisle St., Hanover, Pa.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Here comes a little Missouri girl to join your happy band. I am now living in Toledo, O. We moved here last June. I am in the sixth grade at school, and I also play the piano. I like music very much. I am a member of the Nazarene church. I have one little sister four years old. Her name is Mabel Faye. Mildred Fort, my birthday comes on August 31, too, but I am only eleven years old. Anice Horton, I guess your middle name is either Maude, Mamie, or Marie. Am I right? I enjoy reading page ten very much. As this is my first letter I will be glad to see it in print. I would appreciate hearing from any of The Herald family, and will answer any letters I receive.

Fern Ammons.
3536 Stickney Ave., Toledo, Ohio.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a Hoosier into your circle? My father has taken The Pentecostal Herald for some time. I lived in Indiana until I was eight years old and then we went to Idaho on account of my brother having asthma, and while we were out there he was healed in a meeting that was conducted by Mrs. Mattie Crawford in our town. We lived out west for five years and came back last fall in a Ford truck. We saw many beautiful things along the way. It took us three weeks to make the trip. I have three brothers and one sister all living. Please pray for our church that it may grow in number and also in faith, and that we may have a revival. I am fourteen years old, have long hair, and paint my cheeks from the inside and wear dresses that cover my knees. I will close hoping to hear from some of the cousins.

Irma Feller.
Rt. 2, Moores Hill, Ind.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a little Indiana boy join your happy band of boys and girls? I wrote once but did not see it in print. Deputy has between 300 and 450 people. We have electric lights. The electricity comes from Louisville, Ky. There are 1,189 chapters in the Bible, 31,093 verses, 773,692 words, 3,586,489 letters. The longest chapter is the 19th Psalm. The shortest chapter is the 117th Psalm. I would like to ask the cousins a question. How many times does the word Lord occur in the Old and New Testaments? I am four feet, four inches tall, I have gray eyes, fair complexion, light hair and am eleven years old. I am in the sixth grade. My birthday is April 3. Have I a twin? If so, write. I will answer all letters I receive. Hope Mr. W. B. is out milking the cows when this letter arrives. With love to Aunt Bettie and all the cousins.

Paul McNeely.
Deputy, Ind.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let another little Kentucky girl join your happy band of boys and girls? I am ten years old, have light hair. I go to school at Hegira. Verla Davidson is my teacher. I like her fine. I have a girl friend who lives near me named Willie Carter. We have a fine time playing. I have a big doll that will cry and go to sleep. I have two brothers. We have a car. My brother drives it. My father and mother are both living. Some of you cousins write to me.

Annie V. Burns.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I thank you for printing two of my letters and I hope you will print this one. I am a lover of The Pentecostal Herald. I always look forward for the coming of The Herald each week. I live on a farm and like farm life fine. I have three brothers and four sisters and a dear mother and father all living, for which I am thankful. I wonder if anybody has my birthday, Dec. 27? I am twenty-three years old. I wish I could see all of the cousins. I know they would be a crowd of us, but I'm sure we would have a good time. Cousins, if you want to live a happy life live for Jesus. I have long hair. Lots of girls cut their hair off, but I think if they would read the Bible they would let it grow out. The Bible says for a woman to have long hair is a glory unto her. The woman that wiped the feet of Jesus with her hair, do you think she could have wiped them if her hair had been short?

Dear Aunt Bettie: It has been some time since I wrote to page ten. The Lord has saved my brother and me and a number of my friends since I wrote. We have such a good preacher, Brother Dan Anderson. I will be twelve June 19. If I have a twin I would like to hear from you. My uncle is so kind. He sends us The Herald. We surely love him and The Herald too. Well, as my letter is getting long I will close. Hope W. B. will be out sleigh riding.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you please pardon me for writing again? I turn to the Boys and Girls' Page first. Bell Taylor, of Pleasant Shade, Tenn., I wonder what has become of you? I have long hair, gray eyes, medium complexion and weigh 129 pounds. Leah Feters, I wonder what has become of you? Mississippi boys and girls, the other states have gotten ahead of us. I am glad so many of the boys and girls are Christians. I am going to tell you about my trip to the Mississippi Delta. I went to see my sisters and had a real good time. We saw cotton in the fields that never had been picked out and some were still picking. I want the boys and girls to send me a picture of themselves. Hoping to hear from some of the boys and girls, I am,

FALLEN ASLEEP

LANCASTER.

Mrs. Amanda Lancaster died at her home at Sckle Ridge, Pa., Oct. 21, 1926, at 4:30 P. M., being 72 years, 3 months and 11 days of age. She has not been in good health for quite a number of years, but was not confined to her bed until Oct. 12, 1926. She was a daughter of Alexander and Rachel Hanna, was born July 9, 1854, at Harnedville, Pa. In December 1874, she married Noah Lancaster, who preceded her to the grave in 1900. To this marriage five children were born. She joined the Methodist Church at Addison, Pa., early in life; later she had her name transferred to the Methodist Church at Jockey Valley, Pa., and remained a member until death. On account of ill health she was unable to attend for some time, but loved to read the Christian papers. She was a loving mother and wife. She raised her own children up to be men and women, and in 1909, took two grandchildren to raise. She leaves to mourn her departure three brothers, three sons, two daughters, two daughters-in-law and ten grandchildren.

Funeral took place Oct. 24, 1926 at the Methodist Church at Johnson's Chapel. The pastor was Rev. L. H. Powell, from Confluence, Pa.

WRONG CONCEPTION OF DUTY.

Rev. Wm. Zimmerman.

The writer just returned from a nearby town where a murder took place a few months ago. The murderer is serving a fifteen-years' term in the Ohio penitentiary. He beat and choked his wife to death, then hid her body in an old well on his father's farm. "He beat her upon several occasions," said a neighbor. "Why don't you leave him?" she asked her. "Oh," she replied, "My people in Pennsylvania are very religious and think that it would be disgraceful to leave him." So she stayed and he murdered her. Her wrong conception of duty caused her death. People may be sincere and still have wrong conceptions of duty. A few grains of common sense would improve some folks a whole lot.

Dr. John F. Owen wrote something like this: "I do not want my children to be indoctrinated in holiness that would cause them to be unable to worship sanely through the channels of the church." These are not his exact words but I believe they give his thought.

Some people "knock" on the church and its ministry, then wonder why they do not want what they "profess" to have.

"The churches are all dead." "You know there is nothing in the churches any more." "You have to ask the Official Board if you are saved." "We have to have camp meetings because there are no prayer meetings to attend." These were some of the extreme things we heard at a camp meeting recently.

Dr. S. A. Keen spoke at sixty annual conferences of the M. E. Church. I do not think he was wild, extreme, and a knocker.

We believe the ministry, as a rule, are a sincere, sacrificing body of men. They want holy fire but not wild fire. If some evangelists could be a pastor where some well meaning but unwise folks live, they could get the pastor's viewpoint. What we need is pastors' helpers and church builders, and not cause them to be disloyal to the church and its ministry. If we lose confidence in the church, its ministry and its financial program, then we should withdraw and not be lukewarm, and at heart opposed to everything. Of course, we do not mean to follow blindly, but loyally uphold that which is good.

That the camp meetings do great good, there is no doubt. We pray that they may be a blessing to the churches and not cause many to be disloyal. May we be kept from enthusiasm (fanaticism) as Wesley called it and warned his people.

We would like to give a "right conception of duty" if anyone wants to use it. Arise a great while before day, as Jesus did, and pray for the church and its ministry, and then loyally support by your presence, money and sympathy and things will be different. Try it. Amen!

"Moses' hands were heavy....and Aaron and Hur stayed up his hands....And Joshua discomfited Amalek and his people with the edge of the sword." Ex. 17:12, 13.

DEEPER SPIRITUAL LIFE LIBRARY.

This is a set of nine booklets comprising nearly 400 pages which is full to the brim of things spiritual. "The Abiding Life," by Helm, treats of many phases of the subject. He shows the Christian's need and longing for it; shows that it is the only life of real victory; tells how to enter into the experience; shows some of the difficulties in the way; and how to maintain the experience. This little book of 106 pages is worthy of reading by any critic. If you want some real light on the subject do not fail to look through this book.

"Heart Purity," is a sermon by the inimitable Ed. Fergerson, dealing with the subject of Heart Purity from three angles: What is it? How may we obtain it? The results it brings. It has some heart-stirring matter in it. Read it!

"Perfect Love," by Samuel L. C. Coward, is a compilation of Scriptures on the topic. It is well arranged, and thus would be good for ministers who want a well-ordered treatment of the subject. It also has several testimonies of men who have experienced the blessing and gives their view both from the theological and experimental viewpoints.

"A Clinic in Holiness" is the personal testimony of Dr. Isaac E. Springer of how he obtained the blessing. For depth of presentation, clarity of expression and its personal appeal, this book cannot be surpassed. It is well worth reading, even by the person who has already entered the Land of Canaan. It will establish one in the faith and help him to accurately formulate his own experience.

Rev. B. A. Cundiff has given us a splendid exegesis on holiness in his little book called a "Catechism on the Second Blessing." Questions are asked and answered in an interesting manner.

One of the best little books that Rev. L. L. Pickett ever wrote is the one in this library called "St. Paul on Holiness." This is an able presentation of the doctrine as taught by Paul. It is full of sound argument that is well worth reading. He treats the following topics in a splendid manner: The Apostle's Commission, the Epistle to the Hebrew and Sanctification as an experience. He also gives the personal testimony of Mrs. Phoebe Palmer. This is a splendid book.

Rev. L. J. Miller has given us a classic on Holiness in his booklet called "Lest We Forget, or What Say the Fathers." This is a compilation of the church creeds, the church fathers and leaders, etc., on the doctrine of Sanctification. If you want something that gives you the facts here it is. If preachers want material for sermons on Holiness this is the book. If you want to know exactly what Wesley taught about sanctification get this book. It is one of the finest presentations of the subject that the writer ever read. It is worth the price of the whole set.

James M. Taylor has given us two splendid sermons on the "Baptism of the Holy Ghost and The Carnal Mind." These two pamphlets are worth reading. They give a simple, concise statement of the Scriptures on these two doctrines.

I do not know where one could better invest a dollar than in this set of nine books. They are worthy to be in every preacher's library. If they were put on the reading table of every Christian home in this country they would do untold good in building up the bulwark of our faith in God and his Holy Word.

AN INTERESTING LETTER FROM "MOTHER" FERGERSON.

Most of the readers of The Herald will remember the noted Evangelist Ed. Fergerson of Mt. Vernon, Ill., as one of the great and successful revivalists of his day. Thousands were won to Christ through his tremendous preaching. The other day we received a very interesting letter from his mother who is still living at the age of 85. She wrote me concerning the fund we are raising to secure a monument for the grave of the late Rev. E. K. Pike. Extracts of the letter are as follows:

"Dear Bro. Johnson: See by The Pentecostal Herald you are kindly giving the friends of Rev. E. K. Pike the privilege of donating something to help erect a monument to his memory. I gladly avail myself of this privilege; never met him but one time. A good many years ago he led our old Bonnie camp meeting and did it fine, so I want to send my mite to this worthy undertaking. May the dear Lord bless you for putting his ad. in The Herald.

"Bro. Johnson, I feel every time I read the good obituary you so kindly wrote for The Herald of my own dear Ed. Just feel like I wanted to thank you personally for it. It has blessed my poor soul every time I've read it. Brings back so plainly the day he was saved. I've got so much to praise God for, while my family is all gone but myself and our only daughter, (I live with her) have the best evidence each one is safe in heaven.

"You won't be bothered with many old folks or older than me, trying to write you. Am 85 years and 4 months old. May the dear Lord continue to bless you and use you in the feeble but earnest prayer of yours under the Blood.

"Mrs. J. N. Fergerson."

I know many of the friends of Ed. Fergerson will be glad to read the above lines from his dear old mother. Then if Mother Fergerson, who only heard Bro. E. K. Pike at Bonnie camp, could, at her extreme age, give something toward a small monument to mark his resting place how much more should the many who were converted or blessed under his ministry respond to this worthy cause. SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

REV. O. G. MINGLEDORFF, D.D.

Lesson VII.—February 13, 1927.

Subject.—Making Our Homes Christian. Eph. 5:25-33; 6:1-4.

Golden Text.—Let us love one another: for love is of God. 1 John 4:7.

Time.—During Paul's first Roman imprisonment, about A. D. 61 or 62.

Place.—Rome.

Introduction.—We need a few definitions here: (1) what do we mean when we speak of a Christian Home? I suppose we mean a home in which the inmates are Christlike; but possibly no two of us have the same conception of Christlikeness. Eddyites, New-Thoughtists, Modernists, Unitarians and other cults have so perverted the term, that to many modern ears it means almost nothing any more. What strange notions some people have of Christ. To them he was just a spineless, goody-goody sort of a being. With many of our people the word that covers their notion of being like Jesus Christ is "sweet." So live, so talk and so preach as never to ruffle the feelings of any one (not even the feelings of the devil), and they exclaim: "What a Christlike man." Bosh! Christ is love; but when he was in our world he had sufficient Godlike manliness to rebuke sin and sinners; and when it came to hypocritical Pharisees and Sadducees, he did it with fury. (2) The word Love needs some explanation. In our lesson it is a translation of the Greek word agapao, possibly the most powerful word in any language for love, since it has been adopted into the Christian message and filled with all that God can put into it. Of course, it carries all that one feels when love burns in his soul; but that is only the beginning of its import: It calls for action, and is never satisfied until it has done its very best. It was this that sent our Savior through Gethsemane and Pilate's hall and on to the cross to die for us. Maybe I can put my idea of a Christian home this way: On its negative side, it forbids all that is evil; on its positive side, it endorses all that is good. Maybe that would also be a good definition for Christlikeness. It looks good to me.

While no one can offer any excuse for a non-Christian home, every one must admit that at this present time there are many enemies to be conquered as we do battle for our homes. Paul, of course, is presuming that the Ephesians to whom he is writing are Christians; and I may add that no one who is not a Christian is fitted for parenthood. That being granted, we may call brief attention to some of the enemies of the home.

I. The children of your ungodly neighbors. Your children must have company; but the neighborhood children are frequently so naughty, not to say wicked, that association with them will ruin yours. You do not like to hurt the feelings of your neighbors. Now you need some wisdom. I am not going to tell you what to do; but this much I will say: You will fail unless you are filled with the Holy Spirit and walk with God daily.

II. What will you do with the "Movies"? They have been perverted and corrupted until no decent person should ever enter them at all. Can you be kind and keep your children out of them? If so, do it; but above all, stay away yourself. No use to try to stop Jack from doing what father and mother do. It will never work. But one thing is certain. You cannot run after the moving picture shows with your children, and have a Christian home around the corner.

III. To call attention to the automobile is sufficient. It is here to stay (at least as long as we can get gasoline); but all of us know that it has become very unsafe for the morals of our young people. Watch out for your home at this point. The auto is a great thing; but it has its dangers, as well as its blessings.

IV. The modern dance will ruin your home, if it ever gets a grip on it. It is too rotten for discussion. Shun it as you do a serpent.

V. I am not much for cards. The devil seems to have pre-empted the game. Gamblers nearly all get their start around the table in the home of their parents. Maybe it is a great place to start; but it will not make hell any cooler when "they go South." I am quoting Dr. H. C. M.

VI. Radio looks good; and it would be fine, if we could keep the devil out of the air. Our children may listen to some of the best music and speech-making on earth, and be edified thereby; but look out for Satan's dirt, for he will surely send it in for the delectation of the family.

You may find plenty more negatives, if you open your eyes. We have neither time nor space to discuss them; so we turn our attention to the positive side of the matter as it will be seen in our comments on the lesson. In verse 25 Paul puts up a standard for husbands that staggers one. They are to love their wives as Christ loved the Church; and mind you, he is using that powerful Greek word for love. This 25th verse, with the next two points for us one of the most beautiful pictures to be found in the Bible. Paul is portraying a high-type Jewish marriage. In our common speech, the young couple have become engaged, which in the apostle's mind typified regeneration, spoken of in the lesson as cleansing with washing of water by the Word—a type of regeneration. But before her marriage the young bride to be went through a process of cleansing that was supposed to sanctify her for her marriage. Here we find unmistakably the apostle's teaching concerning entire sanctification as a second work of divine grace. His illustration is bigger than the thing he is illustrating. But we must not lose sight of our own lesson while we contemplate the beautiful picture that Paul has seen fit to paint.

28. The apostle makes some strong statements. Referring back to Christ's love for the Church, he says: "So ought men to love their wives as their own bodies." There is nothing small about that standard; but it is not too high. I suppose that no one would pretend to gainsay his next sentence: "He that loveth his wife loveth himself."

29. No man ever yet hated his own flesh.—If there could be an exception to that statement, it would be a suicide; but it is not his flesh that leads one to commit suicide, but the torture of his mind. The statement will stand.

30. This verse brings us very close to Jesus Christ: "For we are members of his body, of his flesh, and of his bones." Here the apostle takes his stand against all divorces forever more. He says he is speaking of a great mystery, but adds: "I speak concerning Christ and his church." He adds one new thought to all that he has said: Let "the wife see that she reverence her husband."

Permit me to say that these great teachings are for Christians, and not for the ungodly; for they cannot live up to such a standard. The teaching is so full, and so clear, that no couple should fail in their effort to maintain a Christian home; for children will love and follow Christlike parents. I shall not modify the statement. "Train up a child in the way he should go; and when he is old he will not depart from it" will always be true. Mind you, I am banking on Christlike parents, not counterfeits. Children will detect the bogus, and will follow it no where, unless they follow it to ruin.

The latter part of the lesson has to do with obedience of children to parents. They must obey IN THE LORD. Parents will do well to watch those last three words. If wicked commands are given, the child is under no obligation to obey. Paul does not mean to say that the one who honors his parents will certainly live to be old; but he has God's promise which will be fulfilled, if he sees best. Otherwise God would do wrong to prolong his days.

The last verse in our study carries two tremendous lessons. I suppose that it will not do violence to the passage to let "fathers" stand for parents. For one to provoke a child to wrath is a terrible thing. It may warp his being till nothing can keep him out of hell. "But bring them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord" covers the entire ground.

THE LURE OF CANAAN.

By Virgil Gould.

Trav'ler in a desert land,
Leave thy plains of arid sand;
Leave thy valleys bare and sere,
Leave thy mountains rough and drear;
Land of hunger, thirst and pain;
Land of strivings all in vain.

Look across the vale and see
Thriving vine and fruitful tree;
Here the hills with verdure gleam,
Here the vales with richness teem,
Here is fatness and content
After years in hunger spent.

But there's fighting over here,
And they need not come who fear;
Here is many a bastion tall,
Towering battlement and wall—
Sin entrenched by law and might—
To be taken for the right.

List you! Hear our captain call!
Rouse ye, sluggards, one and all!
Make your weapons keen and bright!
Up, and arm you for the fight!
Cross the Jordan's turbid wave,
Glory calls the strong and brave!
Egypt forged the cruel gyves
Which e'en yet unnerve your lives,
But you've crossed the border sea,
Now arise, press on, be free!
Cease to hunger over there
On your meager desert fare!

When you cross, the muddy tide
Of the Jordan will divide,
Towering walls of Jericho
By your shouting be laid low,
And no foe throughout the land
Long you onsets can withstand!

Leave behind thy desert tent,
Dwell no more in banishment!
God himself is calling thee,
Cross the Jordan and be free!
Only keep the laws he gave,
And be true and strong and brave.

If thou wilt thy Lord obey
He will help thee day by day:
Soon the fighting will be done,
Soon the victory be won;
And thy soul shalt find sweet rest
In the promised land so blest.

CHRISTMAS IN YUGO-SLAVIA.

Today is Christmas and I want to drop a few lines of greetings to The Herald family. May the King of kings and Lord of lords bless every one of you, is my humble prayer.

Christmas doesn't mean much to the people in this country, because they don't know Jesus. No one can appreciate Christmas as they ought until they learn to love and serve him who was born in the city of Bethlehem. We look across the sea today and we see American people enjoying themselves, plenty to eat, fine homes to live in, great liberty to enjoy, but I wonder if we realize that that Jesus Christ and his gospel made America the greatest nation on earth today. I wonder if we are as thankful to him as we ought to be. While the people in America are having their big dinners there are thousands, yes and millions, of poor souls in this part of the world that are hungry; if they could only have enough bread they would be thankful to their Maker. Even your humble servant is not having much for Christmas this year. Yesterday morning I only had twenty-five cents to my name, but God answered our prayer and a good brother in Ohio sent us fifty dollars, for which we are very thankful. I wish that our people in America could see these lost souls; I am sure they would give their sons and daughters to God and they would be willing for God to send them as missionaries to these countries. I still believe that the hope of the world is Jesus Christ, and the world will never have peace till they accept Jesus Christ as their Lord and Savior.

I am spending Christmas this year in Yugo-Slavia telling the blessed story of Jesus and his power to save from sin. I am glad to report to all my friends who read The Herald that souls are getting saved and sanctified, and we are giving God all glory. Will you all remember us in your prayers that God may help us win many souls while we are over here, and that God may raise up some native preachers who will go out and preach full salvation. We would be glad to hear from some of our friends.

Yours in his service,

S. E. Polovina.

Deakova Ulica 47, Novi Sad, Yugo-Slavia.

PERSONAL NOTE.

We are continuing our evangelistic itinerary in the states of Washington and Oregon. We are now in our fourth campaign. God gave us a blessed meeting at Everett, Wash., and Eugene, Oregon. The Adna, Washington meeting was very fruitful. God opened the eyes of the people as never before. The pastor, Rev. F. F. McCann, is surely on the job. The meeting here at Vader starts in good. God is with us and the opportunities are wonderful. Kindly pray for us.

Rev. W. A. Vandersall.

WAYLAND, MISSOURI.

I was called to Wayland by telegram to assist Rev. J. O. Humphreys, pastor of the South Methodist Church in a revival meeting. On arriving I found that the M. E. Church had just closed a meeting with no visible results. We went into the fight and, for a number of nights, it looked like we were going to have defeat, but one night six men and women came to the altar, some seeking to be reclaimed and some to be sanctified. Sunday night following, we had a great crowd and a good service and a middle-aged man came to the altar and prayed through. I had a date at Auburn, Neb., and asked them to excuse me, but Bro. Humphrey felt he ought to continue the meeting and he got Bro. Breneman and wife to help him and God came in wonderful power and seventeen more were either converted, reclaimed or sanctified. Bro. Humphrey is well informed and a splendid speaker. He has a fine people at Wayland and some men who are not afraid to put their money into the cause of Christ. I admire and fully appreciate true Christian character wherever found, but my hat is off to the man who can handle a great business and at the same time be a Christian. But I not only feel thankful to Bro. Voss for his very liberal gift but also for every dollar that was contributed. I was entertained in many of the homes and was royally treated everywhere I went. I shall long remember the good people of Wayland.

Jerry Clevenger.

REV. G. B. F. HALLOCK, D.D.

The Manual for 1926 created an insistent demand for a new volume each year. The 1927 Manual is better than the first one. As before it furnishes material for a complete program for the regular Church services of the entire year. In addition there are prayer meeting discussions, Christian Endeavor topics, and services for baptisms, marriages and funerals. Thousands of ministers testify to the constructive value of the Manual.

"Preach the Preaching That I Bid Thee."

By The Editor.

THIS was God's command to Jonah and Jonah found that the road of obedience was the only road that can be traveled with peace. He also found that although his sermon was short and to the point it produced powerful results. It brought repentance and stayed the hand of punishment.

* * *

All true preachers are called of God. No man has a right to force himself upon God as his messenger without an inward consciousness of "Woe is me if I preach not the Gospel." The God-called man is highly honored, but he always carries a burden of responsibility. He feels as he ought and must feel that he is not called and sent out to proclaim his notions, to tell what men think and say on this and that important subject, but he is to deliver the message of the Lord. He must be able always to say, "Thus saith the Lord."

* * *

It is certainly a cowardly thing for the minister of the Gospel to dodge around, cover up and refuse to preach a great, inspired Bible truth or seek to trim down, smooth over and modify a profound Bible doctrine because some people are fanatics, others hypocrites, others worldly and perhaps rich and object to being disturbed with a call of God to the crucifixion of self, the forsaking of sin, the giving up of the world, the purifying of the heart and the living of a righteous life. The preacher of course must preach with love, but with holy fearlessness.

* * *

If we propose to give up any doctrine of the Bible because of the weakness, sinfulness and shortcomings of men, we will certainly give up all Gospel truth and have nothing left to preach. Some man may claim to be regenerated who knows nothing of regenerating power, but that does not justify the preacher in refusing to preach, "Ye must be born again." Some man may claim to be sanctified who has not been cleansed from the carnal mind, but that in no way proves that the blood of Jesus cannot cleanse from all sin. Let God be true though every man is a liar, and we are not to pull down the standards which God has set up. His commandments and promises stand sure though men violate his commandments and doubt his promises. The great need of the times in which we are living is sturdy, stalwart men who without fear, hesitation or apology, will preach the preaching which the Lord bids them, who will be true to the Bible whatever comes. We have the positive promise that, "My word shall not return unto me void."

When we go to the church on Sunday morning with a hungry heart, longing for a message from God, we do not like to hear the man in the pulpit saying, "I think," "It is my opinion," "I have come to the conclusion," "According to my views," "Modern scholarship has discovered," "We have found out through recent scientific discovery." Such talk might be all right for the lecture platform or the schoolroom, but we want the man in the pulpit to give us Bible truth, to make earnest, honest statements with reference to the danger of sin, the blessedness of salvation, Christian privileges and opportunities, and prove his statements true by the Word of God. We want to know what God has to say about this, that and the other thing that belongs to saving faith, Christian life and the performance of Christian duty.

We know of nothing quite so refreshing, encouraging, searching and strengthening as a good Gospel sermon, delivered in the spirit and power of the Gospel. Oh how blest the man in the pulpit if his Lord is with him there and he is illuminated and strengthened by the indwelling of the Holy Ghost. His mind is active. His face shines. His eyes sparkle. His very gesticulations are with power, giving emphasis to his message and the people feel that God is in the midst and that he is speaking to them. It is not an uncertain sound. It is the Word of the Lord. The preacher may send us away wounded, but if he does we can go to the Great Physician and find healing. He may send us away rebuked, but if he does we can go to the secret place and get on our knees, make our confession, worship our Lord and claim his mercy. How blessed to hear a preacher who drives us to our knees, who makes us to search ourselves and see if we be in the faith, who is not seeking merely to entertain us, but to save us and being saved to quicken us with wisdom and grace and direct our redeemed energies into holy services. If God does not speak to the man, let him not dare to preach and if God speaks to him, let him preach the preaching that God bids him to preach, and then the people, whether they will hear or whether they will forbear, the preacher has discharged his duty. He is guiltless of their blood.

THE REMEDY.

PART II.

THE doctrine and experience of holiness has a vast background. "Be ye holy; for I am holy" is a commandment of the highest order. St. Paul places great emphasis upon holiness in the beginning of his epistle to the Ephesians. Hear him: "Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who hath blessed us with all spiritual blessings in heavenly places in Christ; according as he hath chosen us in him before the foundation of the world, that we should be holy and without blame before him in love."

We see here that the holiness movement, or, a divine movement, to have a holy people on the earth, was in the mind of God before he laid the foundations of the globe upon which we live. We do not believe that men have ever given a better interpretation of the scriptural teaching of the doctrine and experience of holiness than that given by the Wesleys and the early Methodists.

This was, in fact, the secret of the marvelous power attending their ministry and testimony. To them, the word of God was of unquestioned and absolute authority. Jesus Christ's precious blood had power to cleanse from all sin. The abiding Holy Ghost was able to keep that which had been committed unto him. This was full salvation. It brought joy and power. Those who received this wondrous grace were glad witnesses. Ridicule and persecution only intensified their holy ardor and zeal. They made no compromise, but went forward "taking joyfully the spoiling of their goods." They were mobbed, stoned, cast into prison, conscripted into the army, but nothing could silence them. They would sing, shout and testify to the saving power of Jesus' blood. They preached full redemption in the church, on the green, by the wayside, at the mouth of the coal pit. They were irrepressible; the power of God was on them, the spirit of Christ was in them. Those early Methodists were salt and light, indeed.

We need just such a movement in these United States today. There should be no quieting down, no compromise, no sinful affiliation, but waiting for the sanctifying power, joyful witness, irrepressible energy and holy enthusiasm in spreading the good news of pardon for the sinful and purity for all the children of God, through faith in the Lord Jesus.

Let us have faith in God. He is not going into bankruptcy. His resources are inexhaustible. He has made vast investments for the redemption of the race; what he wants now is a well trained, Spirit-filled, self-sacrificing, heroic ministry. The holiness people are responsible to God and the lost world in a very large degree for such a ministry. We should increase our camp meetings, holiness conventions, tent revivals, many fold, redouble our diligence, pray the Lord to send more laborers into the vineyard, enlarge and endow our full salvation schools, so we can open our doors and prepare thousands of young men and women and send them forth into the wide world to preach full salvation.

The Holy Ghost is not sectarian. Full salvation cannot be cornered and dealt out by any ecclesiasticism, church, or other organizations. Wherever God's children in any church or religious organization, or where there is no church of any kind, hunger and thirst after righteousness, consecrate their all, trust in the full atonement made by the Lord Jesus, they will receive the Holy Ghost in his sin-consuming, abiding and keeping power.

Sanctification Discussed and Defended.

Rev. G. W. Ridout, D.D., Corresponding Editor.

HERE has recently come to my notice a booklet entitled "Sanctification as Taught in the Scriptures" by Philip Mauro. In this article I am going to disagree with Mr. Mauro. Let me at the outset say that I have read a great deal after Mr. Mauro, some of his writings are wonderfully illuminating and inspiring. Mr. Mauro is a Lawyer. He is a man of intellect, of soul vision, he has written upon many deep things of God, he has shown great powers of discernment, his logic upon many matters is unanswerable; he has borne a wonderful testimony to the saving and transforming power of the gospel, taking him an unsaved, unbelieving worldly lawyer and making him one of the stalwart defenders of the faith of this century. But Mr. Mauro is stronger in Polemics than he is in Theology.

On the subject of sanctification as Mr. Mauro discusses it in his booklet, I felt like saying at once as I read it, Mr. Mauro you are too late! You are a hundred years too late! This great truth and doctrine of sanctification was rediscovered and reproclaimed and reformulated by John Wesley and preached by the Methodists for one hundred years or more and experienced and testified to by multitudes as a real experience not of "setting apart" only, but also of cleansing from all sin and full salvation.

In fact, Methodism became the great spiritual force and power as an evangelistic and soul-saving church largely because of the great doctrine of entire sanctification. (Of course since the Modernists have gotten the upper hand in Methodism the great doctrine has been neglected and denied and the modernists as a whole, would be glad to accept Mr. Mauro's views on sanctification, because they dislike greatly all teaching and all preaching on entire sanctification as a definite "second blessing" experience).

Dr. George Peck said, "The doctrine of entire sanctification as a distinct work wrought in the soul by the Holy Ghost is the great distinguishing doctrine of Methodism. This given up and we have little left which we do not hold in common with other evangelical denominations."

"Just as far as our church has ceased to believe in sanctification and to seek after it as the only phase of religion revealed in the New Testament that saves us from all sin, just so far are we corrupted and God-forsaken church, and it is useless to try to sustain ourselves on what we have been," said Dr. Lovick Pierce, one of the greatest preachers of Southern Methodism.

We would respectfully urge Mr. Mauro and a group of other public men and preachers (Methodist preachers particularly) to read such books as "Plain Account of Christian Perfection," by Wesley; "Perfect Love," by John A. Wood; "Half Hours with St. Paul," by Dr. Daniel Steele; "Love Enthroned," by Dr. Daniel Steele; "Central Idea of Christianity," by Bishop Peck; "New Testament Standard of Piety," by William McDonald; "Theme of the Ages," by Heironimus; "Pauline Perfection," by Rev. J. H. Smith. (All these books may be ordered of Pentecostal Publishing Co.)

I feel confident that a diligent, conscientious perusal of those books would change Mr. Mauro's views on sanctification and change him from the Plymouth Brethren view of sanctification to that of a real believer in sanctification by faith.

Mr. Mauro is in error in several particulars. We shall note them:

(a) He holds that sanctification is primarily objective and not subjective.

(b) That it is a matter of "consecration," "devotion" "being set apart only."

CHRISTIAN HOLINESS.

Let us define what we mean by Christian Holiness. We mean that renewal of the heart by the Holy Ghost by which we are washed entirely clean of sin's pollution, freed from its power and are enabled through grace to love God with all our heart and mind and soul and strength. It is a state of moral purity; a state of perfect love; a state of conformity to the will of God—the fullness of the blessing of the gospel of Christ.

Some have vainly tried to prove that Wesley's views in regard to holiness were changed during the later years of his life. To disprove the assertion we quote from his Journal, under date of March 26, 1790:

"Friday, 26th—I finished my sermon on the Wedding Garment; perhaps the last that I shall write. My eyes are now waxed dim; my natural force is abated. However, while I can, I would fain do a little for God before I drop into the dust."

In the above-mentioned sermon he writes: "Does not that expression, 'The righteousness of the saints,' point out what is the 'wedding garment' in the parable? It is the 'holiness without which no man shall see the Lord.' The righteousness of Christ is, doubtless, necessary for any soul that enters into glory. But so is personal holiness, too, for every child of man. But it is highly needful to be observed, that they are necessary in different respects. The former is necessary to entitle us to heaven; the latter to qualify us for it. . . .

"What then is that holiness, which is the true wedding garment, the only qualification for glory? . . . In particular, lowliness, meekness, gentleness, temperance, and long-suffering on all the Christian ordinances,—nor uncircumcision,—the fulfilling of all heathen morality,—but 'the keeping the commandments of God,' particularly those—'Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and thy neighbor as thyself.' In a word, holiness is, the having 'the mind that was in Christ,' and the 'walking as Christ walked.'"

Bishop Hedding said, "The degree of original sin which remains in some believers, though not a transgression of a known law, is nevertheless sin and must be removed before one goes to heaven."

The Carnal Mind shows its enmity against God in the following ways:

It opposes God's will in sanctification. It carries on a constant fight against the new nature given in regeneration.

It blinds the "eyes of the understanding" to the deeper things of God.

It exhibits itself when not controlled by evil tempers and dispositions unworthy of a Christian.

It fights holiness.

William Law, the author of The Serious Call, puts into dialogue form the most terrible description of that self-life which is the main obstructive to a meek and lowly spirit: "Pray, sir," said Academicus, "tell me more plainly just what this self of ours actually is." "Self," replied Theophilus, "is hell, it is the devil, it is darkness, it is pain, and it is all disquiet. It is anti-christ, it is the fiery dragon, it is the old serpent." "You rather terrify me than instruct me," said Academicus. "It is indeed a thing to terrify all men," returned Theophilus, "for it contains everything that man has to dread in this world and in the next. Die to yourself, and all your enemies on earth and in hell will be forever overcome."

(c) That it is not a second work of grace or a second blessing.

That my readers may be sure that I quote him correctly let me insert his very words right here. Mr. Mauro says:

"Now we come to the word 'sanctification,' to which people have attached many hazy meanings. The Holy Spirit uses that word always to express one definite idea all through the Scriptures.

"Before showing this, let us state, briefly, some of the meanings which are now commonly attached to the word 'sanctification.' In the minds of many people that word refers to the character of the sanctified one (or saint), and signifies a subjective state or condition of great sanctity, a very pure and deeply spiritual life. This view of sanctification takes no note at all of its objective aspect, but regards it as a purely subjective experience of the individual, or as the result of some internal transformation of character."

"Another view of sanctification which often finds expression in meetings where 'holiness' is specially sought is that it is a special work of God in the believer, wrought at some time subsequent to his conversion. This special work is sometimes spoken of as a 'second work of grace,' or as the 'second blessing.'

"But, as we shall see, the Scripture lends no support whatever to either of these meanings. The word 'sanctify' means always to 'set apart for a distinct use or service,' and when sanctification is referred to in Scripture as God's word it is invariably the act of setting apart some person or thing for himself, or for his service. That which is 'sanctified,' whether it be a person, or an animal, or a day, or a mountain, or a city, or whatever it be, is something set apart for God, regardless of the intrinsic worth or character of the person or thing that is thus 'sanctified.' Whatever it may be, and whatever its character, when God takes hold of it, and says: 'It is Mine,' he separates it from other things, and it is by that act 'sanctified,' or 'set apart' for God."

In reply to this we beg to say that we do not dispute the fact that sanctification includes the idea of "being set apart," "separated," "consecrated" or "dedicated to God." Always when we preach sanctification we preach this characteristic of it, but we hold that sanctification is more than being set apart. It is subjective in its sphere and operative upon the soul of believers. It not only devotes, dedicates, consecrates, sanctifies as a definite act of grace just as distinct to a believer as the work of justification is to the sinner.

The proposition involved in Christian sanctification is stated as follows by Dr. C. J. Fowler:

"That all Christians may love God perfectly, and this God commands. 1 John 4:17, 18.

"That this is impossible while there is any pride, anger, self-will, unbelief, malice, fear, or any form of wrongness in the heart. Gal. 5:19-21.

"That God is both willing and able to remove all evil affections from the heart, and thus enable love to be unhindered. 1 John 1:7.

"That the cleansing of the heart from all indwelling evil is effected by the incoming of the Holy Ghost, in his fullness, who then abides. Acts 15:9.

"That the heart thus cleansed and possessed will grow in all Christian graces better than ever, since sin the greatest hindrance to growth, has been removed. 2 Pet. 3:18.

"That this is the great secret of Christian living. All Christians want to keep from sinning; this is the Divine plan." 1 Thess. 4:3.

Sanctification is explained by that fine Quaker scholar, Dr. Dougan Clarke, as follows:

"Entire sanctification has two sides or aspects. It has a positive side and a negative side. Its negative side is the removal of inbred sin and is therefore a matter of subtraction. (And therein, we may remark in passing, is a characteristic difference between entire sanctification and regeneration. The latter is a matter of addition because it implies the impartation of a new life to the soul). The positive side of entire sanctification is perfect love, and this is a relative expression. 'There never will be a time in earth nor in heaven,' says Dr. Upham, 'when there may not be an increase of holy love.'"

Rev. G. C. Finney the Presbyterian Theologian, sees sanctification as a real experience in 1 Thess. 5:23, 24. He says:

"(1) It is admitted that this is a prayer for, and a promise of, entire sanctification.

"(2) The very language shows that both the prayer and the promise refer to this life.

"(3) This is a prayer of inspiration, to which is annexed an express promise that God will do it.

"(4) Its fulfilment is from the nature of the case, conditional upon our faith, as sanctification without faith is naturally impossible.

"(5) If this promise does not, honestly interpreted, fully settle the question of the attainment of entire sanctification in this life, it is difficult to understand how anything can be settled by an appeal to Scripture."

Many there are who object to the doctrine of sanctification because they do not believe that believers can be saved from all sin in this life. They ask, Do not such passages as 1 Kings 9:46, 2 Chron. 6:26, and Eccles. 7:20, teach the impossibility of living without sin?

Dr. Adam Clarke on 1 Kings 8:46—"If they sin against thee"—says that the Hebrew has no mood to express words in the permissive or optative way, but to express this sense it uses the future tense of the conjugation Kal." Dr. Clarke further adds the following comment:

"This text has been a wonderful stronghold for all who believe that there is no redemption from sin in this life; that no man can live without committing sin; and that we cannot be entirely freed from it till we die."

1. "The text speaks no such doctrine; it only speaks of the possibility of every man's sinning; and this must be true of a state of probation."

2. "There is not another text in the divine records that is more to the purpose than this."

3. "The doctrine is flatly in opposition to the design of the gospel; for Jesus came to save his people from their sins, and to destroy the works of the devil."

4. "It is a dangerous and destructive doctrine and should be blotted out of every Christian's creed. There are too many who are seeking to excuse their crimes by all means in their power; and we need not embody their excuses in a creed, to complete their deception by stating that their sins are unavoidable."

Dr. Albert Barnes (Presbyterian) said in his Notes on the New Testament, "The unceasing and steady aim of every Christian should be perfection—perfection in all things and in his submission to the will of God. No man can be a Christian who does not sincerely desire it, and who does not constantly aim at it. No man is a friend of God who can acquiesce in a state of sin, and who is satisfied and contented that he is not as holy as God is holy. And any man who has no desire to be perfect and who does not make it his daily and constant aim to be perfect, may settle it down as demonstrably certain that he has no true religion."

In conclusion I believe Mr. Mauro is a firm believer in the Second Coming of Christ. He therefore cannot be forgetful of the important relation sanctification and holiness has to that great doctrine.

Dr. Dinsdale T. Young, of London, touching this subject, said:

"Nothing recovers evangelical fervor and rekindles missionary passion, and gives a yearning for entire sanctification like a realization of the great fact that 'he comes,' that he may come at any moment."

Robert E. Speer, a leader in the cause of missions testifies to this truth and its effect upon the heart and life. He speaks of an old friend of his who was a Presbyterian minister in a little town in New Jersey. "For years and years his ministry had been arid and dry, and at last those who were about him saw a great change come, and he told me not long before his death what had wrought that change. He said when at last he opened his New Testament and really believed the simple words there regarding the return of our Lord the whole truth of Christianity was transformed for him, and he went out into the world to preach a new gospel with a new joy, new strength, new power, a new passion for souls."

CHAPTER VI.

DWIGHT L. MOODY.

HAT the Gospel of Jesus Christ is circumscribed to ecclesiastical conventionalities—as to ordination to certain orders and ranks—is refuted absolutely in the life and ministry of Dwight L. Moody. That there is a universality, a democracy of the divine in the unction which the Spirit bestows, is without question. The church has made much of her ipsi dixits, saying who, and who shall not, minister in holy things. Certain functional services are withheld, and cannot be administered until the imposition of human hands, authorized by the laws and polity of the church. We do not question the wisdom, and we might say, the scriptural authority, for these customs, in a measure; but we do say, that God does not limit his ministry to the say-so of any human organization. "I will pour out my Spirit upon all flesh." And it specifies among others: "upon my handmaidens" which, being interpreted, means, that woman by divine authority, may preach—prophecy. For many centuries, this part of God's word was utterly ignored by the church. The church was wise above that which was written.

All this said in order to say one thing more, touching this idea in particular: Dwight L. Moody was never called by the church to service; or at least, he did not carry the stamp or credentials of any church. It was never in print: "Rev." D. L. Moody. No doubt any church in America that believed in salvation messages would gladly have placed ecclesiastical hands upon his head, and ordained him; but he remained an unordained servant of God—a layman; never claimed to be anything else. And yet, in all the Nineteenth Century, or any other century, will the records reveal any man who ranks above him or was in his class as a soul saver; a man in whom the Spirit of God wrought mightily and prevailed. D. L. Moody, the uneducated of world-wide renown.

The ancestors of D. L. Moody settled in Connecticut two hundred years before he was born. The earliest record is that John Moody came to Roxbury, Conn., a place near Hartford; then later, Isaiah Moody, the grandfather of Dwight L., located near Northfield, Conn. The father of this character sketch was a farmer in a small way, and between seasons was a stone mason. His mother's maiden name was Hilton; her ancestors also settled near Northfield. Dwight L. was the eldest son of three, and was born in the year 1837. At the age of four, the father died leaving the family almost penniless. So biting was their poverty, that at one time the mother was urged to give up her children, and cease struggling to keep them together. But this sturdy Puritan woman held on, and put her trust in God for food and clothing of her little family.

It was the example of a pious mother that taught her children the secret of trust. As soon as the boys were old enough to "hire out", they went to work with such employment as they were able to do. Once when going to their places of labor, they were crossing a stream, being rowed over by a drunken boatman. The wind was blowing a gale; the drunk man became crazed with fear, but young Dwight L., though only a lad of eight, exhorted him to trust in God. The simple life of confidence in his mother's God was a part of the boy's character; and it came to full fruition in his mature years, losing none of its simplicity, when he became the most renowned evangelist of his day.

At the age of seventeen, young Moody went to Boston where he became a shoe clerk in his uncle's store. Shortly after arriving in the city, he came in contact with a man by the name of Edward Kimball, and one day, in the rear end of his uncle's store, and through the Christian fact of this godly layman, Dwight L. Moody was genuinely converted to God. Just here, there is a little coincident which is worth passing on, touching the history of this man, and the conversion of the young man destined to be a world figure. Seventeen years afterwards, the son of Edward Kimball, also exactly seventeen years of age, came under the influence of Mr. Moody, then a zealous worker among young men in the city of Chicago, and was converted. Mr. Kimball "cast bread upon the waters," and it came back in the salvation of his own son. It was thought by many, that one reason why Mr. Moody preferred to remain a layman, was that it was a layman used of God in his own salvation.

At the age of nineteen, Mr. Moody went to Chicago, and very soon became interested in a Sunday school. His first great impulse as a soul saver came, when by personal effort and prayerful contact, he caused every member of a large class of boys to become Christians. In a few months he had built up a Sunday school of one thousand members, mostly children, and the place became a beehive of religious activity. It was this training received before the Civil War that gave him such ability for spiritual leadership.

During the war he worked under the auspices of the Christian Commission of Chicago City Mission; then followed some years of service in the Young Men's Christian Association, an organization just coming into existence. But his labors and his wide experience had grown to such an extent, that a church was built for him and he became the unordained pastor. This church was the evangelistic center for the great city of Chicago, but it was in the path of the fire in 1871 which almost laid the city in ashes. But another building was soon erected, much more commodious in every way, with a seating capacity of two thousand five hundred people. It was then that the evangelistic labors of D. L. Moody took on a national scope. Scarcely a night in the whole year, but that services were held, in which the down and outs, as well as the cultured and wealthy, heard the gospel of salvation. Multitudes found God at the famous "Moody Church." Over the door of the front entrance was placed a large electric sign—"God is Love," which became the very heart of Mr. Moody's messages for over thirty years.

Early in his ministry he came upon a statement like this: "It is yet to be seen what God can do with a fully consecrated man." Then he said: "By the grace of God, D. L. Moody shall be that man." It is doubtful if in our America there has appeared a man who more fully exemplified the consecrated life than he; he became the fruitful, God-sent man, and with fruit more abundant.

The HERALD PULPIT

"THE BENEDICTION OF JUDE."

(Sermon by W. G. Nixon, Detroit, written 1922.)

"Now unto him that is able to keep you from falling, and to present you faultless before the presence of his glory with exceeding joy, to the only wise God our Saviour, be glory and majesty, dominion and power both now and forever. Amen." Jude 24: 25.

HANDS raised in blessing, what a solemn, important moment! Hushed the music, bowed the heads while a pastor spreads his hands in blessing over a congregation. There are benedictions outside the meeting-house as when a mother places a trembling hand on the head of her son who goes forth today to try the big, bad, good world. Please God the pressure of that mother's hand will be felt on the lad's head for many a day.

An old man is dying. He hears a footfall outside his tent door. He sits bolt upright in bed and awaits the coming of his son. That day Jacob placed his death-moist hand on the head of Joseph and blessed him there,—a scene to hold in memory with the parting blessing your precious father bestowed on you ere he went away.

But I was speaking of a public benediction. A benediction is a token of love. We bless only those whom we love. No preacher has a right to pronounce a benediction until he can love his worst enemy who may be in the congregation today.

A benediction is a farewell. It is given at the close of a service, not at the beginning and never does a congregation reassemble as it disperses from under outstretched hands. Accident or distance or sickness or death will intervene. In such a solemn moment draw near me while we come together under the outstretched hands of Jude to receive this marvelous benediction.

I. A PICTURE OF FALSE TEACHERS.

It is not in the text, but in the context. The amazing picture of God given in the benediction is set over against the frowning picture of false teachers with which the major part of this short letter of twenty-five verses has to do.

One day Jude dipped his pen into ink and wrote the headline of a general letter to the church, viz.: "The Common Salvation." Just then the telephone rang (pardon my attempt to modernize the story) and a long distance call came from Podunk saying, "Jude, a man has just come to town and has started a revival meeting in the town hall and in his teaching denies 'the only Lord God, and our Lord Jesus Christ.' He came here from a nearby town where it is reported that he split the church and drew many away to his liberal tendencies. What are we to do?"

Jude tore up his headline, changed his subject and wrote a letter exhorting the church to "Earnestly contend for the faith once delivered unto the saints." Verse 3. The letter reads as though it were written for our day. Listen to Jude: "Woe unto them: for they have gone in the way of Cain, and ran greedily after the error of Balaam for reward, and perished in the gainsaying of Core."

We need you Jude, servant of Jesus Christ, to warn us now, for some have gone in the way of Cain. What was the offense of Cain? He killed his brother because he was a better man and was accepted of God. Now, sir, it is a comparatively small offense to club a man to death in the open field when he had an altar on which he offers blood sacrifices to God prefiguring Calvary, compared to taking away a man's altar and stabbing his soul to death with a Christless creed.

We need you Jude, brother of James, for many in our day, run "greedily after the error of Balaam for reward." What was the offense of Balaam? He tried to please Balak, who offered a reward for a blessing and tried to hold God at the same time. A compromiser, a time server, who was reproved by an ass on whose back he rode in quest of gain.

Today these compromising time-servers have come into places of power in the Protestant church. They are in secretarial tasks, in editorial chairs and theological seminaries, receiving fat salaries from the church, while they dip their pens in poison of hell, denying the virgin birth, the Deity of Jesus and the authority of the Scriptures, thus spreading desolation and death throughout the church. "Filthy dreamers," Jude calls them, "clouds without water," "trees whose fruit withereth," "wandering stars to whom is reserved the blackness of darkness forever."

I call on the church to purge herself of Christ denying leadership. The rank and file of the Protestant Church believe in her Divine Lord and in the Holy Scriptures.

We need you Jude, exhorter in the early church, for "some are perishing in the gainsaying of Core."

What was the offense of Core of Korak? This: he told Moses that a layman had as good a right to swing a censer before the altar as a minister.

So today worldly, profane men dressed in the regalias of fraternal orders, presume to exercise religious functions in disrespect of constituted spiritual leadership, for whom there awaits a hotter judgment than the fire that consumed the two hundred and fifty men who offered incense in the long ago.

Jude, we cannot have you back, but we can read again your hot words against false teachers of every age. "These are murmurers, complainers, walking after their own lusts; and mockers in the last time—their mouth speaking great swelling words—these be they who separate themselves, sensual, having not the Spirit."

II. A PICTURE OF THE TRUE GOD.

Jude introduces a personal God, attributing to him personal qualities. Jude's God is not a pantheistic God. It is not God in the trees and flowers and lakes and rivers as poets sometimes dream, but a personal God, creating worlds and making man to dwell on the earth. Some personal qualities of God are set forth here in couplets:

a. Glory and Majesty.

I am at once beyond my depth. Who can comprehend the glory of God? Moses saw it in Mt. Sinai and the radiance was reflected in his face, so that he had to use a veil to cover up the glory. The shepherds on that night of wonder, when angelic choirs sang over Judean hills, saw the glory of God shining all around them, lighting up bush and grass and landscape with a mellow wonder of glory. Peter and John and James saw it on the Mount of Transfiguration and were awed by the spell of glory that hovered over the mountain summit, making even the garments of Jesus "white and glistening." I have seen something of that glory on the congregations among camp meeting throngs. I have felt the rolling tides of glory in blessing so sweet over my soul that I have no language to explain.

Now add to the glory of God the majesty of God and you move into the realm of the awesomely spectacular. When man makes a display he rents a city block and stages "the last days of Pompeii." He throws a few Roman candles into the sky and exhausts himself and his pocketbook in a brief display of fireworks that soon die out against a midnight sky. But when God displays his glory and majesty he hangs a million tapers in the blue while the queenly moon sheds a soft effulgence over all the scene. Or on a glorious June day he hangs his arc light in the sky and sends the breezes cantering across the fields until every apple tree and cherry tree, fragrant with blossoms, swing their censers in the face of the sun: while "the heavens declare the glory of God": and if he would add a touch of wonder and awe to the scene he sends a storm cloud up in the western sky, form capped like billows of the seas, while distant thunders rumble like a thousand chariots moving along the dusty highway of the clouds. Then comes the awesome moment of stillness before the storm breaks that makes many a careless man think of God. Then the loosened winds and poured out showers drive men to shelter while lightnings shoot across a darkened sky and thunders roll like near-by guns of doom. Great God of Nature, stay thine hand. Speak not to me in sweep of cyclone or rush of flood, but in gentler manifestations of glory and majesty.

b. Dominion and Power.

God has authority. God has power. God has qualities of leadership. "Dominion," says Webster, "supreme authority, independent right of possession." This is God's world. The devil owns no acre of earth.

THE MIGHT OF SACRIFICIAL LOVE.

Rev. E. Stanley Jones, D.D.

PART VI.

BUT some one objects: "Is the sinner to get off scot free and receive no punishment whatever?" No, he is not. If the doctrine of the atonement does not provide for some restraining punishment of wrong, it is a real danger resulting in the enervation of the soul. "For history has a Nemesis for every sin and also for every injudicious generosity." As Hough suggests, "What if the peace he offers gives us a comfortable universe at the expense of a righteous universe? What if God turns out under this only an indulgent parent and not the guardian of the Moral Law?" If so, our conscience forbids us to take it. In a certain war, two children whose parents had been killed in a bombardment of the town where they lived, were in charge of a rough soldier. The little boy in an argument with another lad used an ugly word which was forbidden in the careful home where he had been brought up. He looked fearfully at the soldier to see if he had been overheard. The soldier laughed carelessly and said, "It doesn't matter. Say all of that sort of thing you like." In a sudden revulsion of feeling the boy burst into tears and said: "If you were my father you would not say that," and then he walked quietly away to play with the other children and to try to forget the sudden thrust of pain. We want to live in a kind universe, but we do not want to live in a universe which is too kind. We do not want to live in a universe which is so kind, that it is careless. But there is punishment in the redemption plan of Christ—severe, but cleansing; just, but redemptive. The type of punishment involved in the death of Christ is of a fine, soul-punishing, soul-refining kind. To make it clear. When one truly comes to Christ he begins to feel burdened on account of his sins; he begins to feel what sin has cost God. He is told that if he turns away from his sin he will be forgiven. And he will be and is. He is set free from his past. But is there no punishment whatever? There is, but the punishment is transferred. "The pain of penitence takes the place of the pain of outward punishment, and the outward punishment can be lifted from the soul without loss or degradation to the soul." He is punished by "the pain of penitence."

Sixteen years ago the writer came to Jesus Christ burdened with his sin. As in thought he stood before the cross and viewed what suffering Love did for him, the great depths of his soul were broken up. He surrendered to Christ and in that blessed hour, never-to-be-forgotten, he was forgiven—forgiven and yet punished. For sixteen years he has had the joy of forgiveness—a joy that has been deep and abiding, but he has borne in his heart "the pain of penitence": a pain that has been more severe than any outward punishment could ever be. It was burned into his soul that he had sinned, not merely against law, but against love. At one stroke he was forgiven and punished; raised to the highest heaven of rapturous joy, and put in the dust of deepest humiliation; set free and yet bound! In 2 Cor. 7:9-11 (Moffatt) we read of "this pain divine." "You were pained as God meant you to be pained . . . ; the pain God is allowed to guide ends in a saving repentance never to be regretted, whereas the world's pain ends in death. See what this pain divine has done for you, how serious it has made you, how keen to clear yourselves, how indignant, how alarmed, how determined, how relentless!" Here is truly "a pain divine." Was the boy who laid the rod upon the master's hand not punished? Outwardly, no; inwardly, yes. There were no marks of the stripes upon his hand, but there were stripes upon his heart —never to be forgotten. Long after the pain of physical punishment would have passed away, the pain of penitence persisted and punished him. But this type of punishment is cleansing: it purifies what it punishes.

There was a great religious and military leader in the Caucasus by the name Schamyl, who died in 1871. Bribery and corruption were so bad among his followers that, in order to stop it, he gave a command that whoever should be guilty would be punished with a hundred lashes. A culprit was brought before him. It was his own mother. Schamyl shut himself up in his tent for two days, fasting and praying. He came out pale and haggard. He called his followers together and had his mother brought before him, and told the soldier to lay on the lashes. Five cruel blows were laid on when Schamyl called "Halt!" He had his mother removed. In her place he knelt, and gave strict command to the soldier, under pain of penalty, not to diminish the blows, but to lay on the ninety-five remaining blows as severe as usual. Many in the crowd when they saw the bleeding back of their master, cried, "How merciful!" while some cried, "How just!" He was both. But what of that guilty mother? Was she punished? She did receive five cruel blows, but was it anything like as cruel as seeing her punishment laid on her son? Every one of the remaining ninety-five blows went across her heart, and she carried those heart wounds till her death. From this the followers of Schamyl caught a vision of how deeply just their master was. He would not change his laws and lightly forgive, but he did something better; he saved the integrity of his laws and yet saved the guilty. He could not lightly forgive—he was too inherently just for that; nor could he refuse to save his mother—he was too inherently loving for that. In the cross God is both just and merciful—so just that the penitent soul is punished with a punishment more severe than any other: the pain of having wounded love. But he is so merciful that the penitent soul is set free, he goes through life with a song, with an abiding joy; he is forgiven, saved. God's love is a principled love.

And now the most remarkable change of all takes place. In the hands of Jesus forgiveness does not become "a concession to human frailty, or an encouragement to evil, but an injunction against further sinning." Instead of this joyous forgiveness doing away with law, it binds the forgiven to obey law as the unforgiven are never bound. They hate sin as the unforgiven never do. God deals with man after the manner of the law of love and creates in man the love of law. And this is what God must do. He must create in the human heart a new compulsion, not merely to make man obey law, but to make him love law. Those who are forgiven feel inwardly pledged to forever obey the law, and feel a passion to get others to obey it. History and experience prove this to be true.

There is another blessed result of this cleansing forgiveness. It is the experience in which we truly become persons. In the words of a great thinker: "The forgiveness which God imparts to us in his sovereign love is a deliverance from the necessities and fatalities in which science and history seem to involve us. It is the experience by which we truly become persons—not things, nor links in a cosmic chain, but free men. The man to whom pardon has become real knows once for all that within and above cosmic law there is a Father." He also knows that he is a son of that Father, and from that moment Father and son meet in holy fellowship and communion. Out of that experience of restoration to the Father's favour and consequent communion we become truly persons—sons, not links in a cosmic chain.

This brings us to a further and very important question: What is the Christian doctrine of karma? Is there any place for forgiveness in a world of cosmic law? That deeds have good or bad consequences according as they are good or bad is a truth that we cannot escape. This has a large place in the teachings of Christ. "With what measure ye mete it shall be measured to you again." "Blessed are the merciful for they shall obtain mercy." And the important statement of Paul, "Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap." That is a law in the physical and in the moral and spiritual realm—we reap what we sow. There are two things in this law: we reap in kind, and we reap more than we sow. First, we reap in kind; wheat brings forth wheat, not thistles. We sow a moral act and we reap a moral condition—a moral character, and not a physical condition or rebirth, for that would be other than what we sowed. Second, we reap more than we sow. We give the seed, the labour of tilling the ground and sowing the seed, and God adds sunlight and rain; and the harvest is greater than what we sow. We believe then that we can sow repentance and rectification of life, which is a changed attitude toward evil, and God will add his grace, as he adds the sunshine and rain, and we will reap forgiveness, which is a changed attitude on the part of God. We sow a changed attitude on our part—repentance—and we reap a changed attitude on God's part—forgiveness. It is the same in kind. The determining factor in reaping this larger harvest than what we sowed is the grace that God added in the sacrificial sufferings of Christ.

Moreover, every law is restrained and softened by a counter law. The centrifugal force is restrained by the centripetal, otherwise our earth would fly into space, a runaway world. The law of gravity, if it were not restrained by higher laws, would pull everything to the earth and there would be a collapse of everything. I can raise my arm by introducing the law of muscular strength, and it overcomes the law of gravity. A bird flies and overcomes gravity by taking advantage of the law of the elasticity of air. In all life we can overcome one law by the introduction of a higher one. We do not do away with the lower law; we simply suspend its operation by the introduction of the higher. Gravity is still there when I take advantage of the law of muscular strength and raise my arm. The law of sowing and reaping underlies life, as gravitation underlies everything in the physical realm. God introduces man to a higher law in the cross—the law of love. If we take hold of that law and let it operate within our lives, we suspend the old law and are lifted above it. We do not do away with it; for as soon as we cease to take advantage of the higher, the lower comes into operation, as gravity operates as soon as we cease to take advantage of the law of muscular strength. "The law of the spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death," cries Paul the Apostle. The introduction of the higher law of life in Christ makes him free from the lower law of sin and its consequence, death.

The work of Mr. Moody as a great preacher and soul winner had attracted an international attention by this time; two years after he opened his ministry in the great Chicago church, he was invited to visit the British Isles, and at every city—London, Liverpool, Edinburgh, Glasgow, and in Ireland, the largest halls and theaters could not accommodate his audiences. He preached to a capacity house wherever he went. With him on this tour was the celebrated singer, Ira D. Sankey. This man of simple faith, and without college education or equipment from a human standpoint, stood before the throngs and held them with ease, delivering messages of love and power, devoid of all pretense of human wisdom. D. L. Moody was a great personality surcharged with the Holy Spirit, teaching the wisdom of God from his inspired Book.

This tour was a triumph for the Gospel; high and low, rich and poor alike, were brought to a saving knowledge of Christ, through his marvelous messages of love. On returning from this successful tour, Mr. Moody became a national figure, and little time, after that, could be devoted to his pastorate in Chicago; but the greatest gospel preachers of this country and England were secured by him to minister to the community church, for that was what it was. Such men as G. Campbell Morgan, W. J. Chapman, John McNeil, B. Fay Mills (before he lost his bearings) and others great, and near great, were the preachers of the Moody Church. It became a world renowned institution of evangelism. This church, standing for orthodox Christianity founded by the personal ministry of this mighty man of God, holds the same standards to this day. We doubt, that if in the great central metropolis, there is a place where the emphasis on the genuine gospel is more pronounced than in the Moody Church.

Not only has it been a great soul-saving station for more than fifty years, but the constructive genius of D. L. Moody did not stop with his church and evangelism; but there was built around the church the "Moody Bible School for Christian Workers," where hundreds of young men and women are being trained for efficient life service. This school continues with a student body running into hundreds annually, and they are being taught by the ablest Bible teachers in the land. The Moody Bible School is fundamental as to the divine revelation of the scriptures; at that place no question marks are raised touching the word of God. It has been charged, that the Moody Bible School is Calvinistic, and therefore dangerous for those who believe in the Wesleyan Arminian interpretation of the Bible. This scribe believes in Arminianism in toto; but Calvinism that believes the Bible to be God's inspired word, is a thousand times more preferable to an Arminianism that puts a question mark on any part of our precious Book.

In the year 1875 Mr. Moody and Sankey held revival meetings in the largest building in New York, Brooklyn, Philadelphia, and Buffalo, and other great cities. In the year 1882, he again toured England, Scotland, and France, holding a meeting in Paris. While on this campaign, he preached at Oxford and Cambridge, the elite scholastic centers of the British Empire, and in these places, Mr. Moody exalted his divine Lord as the Savior of men. Crowned heads, and the nobility heard him gladly.

We wish to make one or two side comments on the life and influence of Dwight L. Moody. First of all, he never in any way commercialized his gospel; no man ever paid an admission to hear this evangelist. There were no lecture engagements for him. He was a preacher of the Gospel, and a man of one Book—the Bible. It is said he was never without this Sword of the Spirit. On his morning drives about the grounds of his Northfield home, he was often seen with his Bible on his lap reading, while his gentle old family horse quietly walked about the driveways. Just here was the lasting influence and the abiding labors of the man. Money came; yes, by thousands—millions, but it was not collected at the box office. He touched men's hearts who gave liberally to his work.

In addition to his evangelistic labors, his church in Chicago, he established a Bible Conference at Northfield, Conn., where he brought to this platform, the world's greatest teachers and preachers. We have mentioned his Training School in Chicago; but he established a school for boys at Gill, a place near Northfield, and a seminary for young women at Northfield. All these institutions continue to abide, doing constructive work for the Kingdom of God. The school for boys is known as "Mt. Hermon School for Boys."

A second comment is this: we believe Mr. Moody over-estimated the "Gospel of Love." It was not over-estimated for him, and his messages; but for those who followed him as their model—lacking his personality and his spiritual power—no little harm has been done. It is a method which we fear has brought thousands into the church unconverted. This was an indirect influence—not objectionable as preached by him; but it produced a popular style of evangelism. Here it was: "Confess Christ," so easy, and so popular; but dangerous in the extreme. No man should be told to confess Christ until he has confessed his sins.

However, Dwight L. Moody was a God-sent man, and had no peers in his day, and in his line of gospel evangelism. He published something like a dozen books; among them was "The Second Coming of Christ." He was an ardent Premillennialist, and gave this note a prominent place in his gospel. He died Dec. 22, 1899, scarcely past his sixty-second year—comparatively a young man; but he wrought equivalent to a man one hundred years old.

"JESUS," OR "THE CHRIST."

REV. C. W. RUTH, EVANGELIST.

BOTH the above titles are scriptural, (Matt. 1:21; 16:16), and in common parlance are used interchangeably. "The angel of the Lord" said, at the time of the Annunciation, that his name should be called "Jesus: for he shall save his people from their sins." The marginal reference tells us that the Hebrew for Jesus, is "Savior." Thus we see that "Jesus" was his human name, designating his humanity, and all that pertained to his incarnation. "Christ," in the Greek, means "Messiah, the anointed." So that this title has more particular reference to his Deity, and Messiahship.

During Apostolic times men doubted and denied that he was the Messiah,—the Christ,—hence the Apostle Paul, at Thessalonica, "reasoned with them out of the scriptures, opening and alleging . . . that this Jesus, whom I preach unto you, is Christ." Also at Corinth, "Paul was pressed in the spirit, and testified to the Jews that Jesus was Christ." Acts 17:2, 3; 18:5. And in like manner, the preaching of that "eloquent man," Apollos, was to show "by the scriptures, that Jesus was Christ." Acts 18:28. The question of "Modernists" of that day was concerning his Messiahship, and Saviorhood. They might have admitted his humanity, but denied the facts which concerned his Deity.

Today we hear the "Modernist," (?) speak of him, (in pulpits of various denominations) as "The Christ," pretending to believe in him as the Messiah, but questioning and denying all the facts that have to do with his incarnation. They deny his miraculous conception, his virgin birth, the miracles he wrought while in the flesh, his blood atonement, and his bodily resurrection,—and yet they will speak of him as "The Christ." Apparently they would accept him as "Christ, the anointed," the Messiah,—but not as "Jesus" the Savior, having come "in the likeness of sinful flesh." (Rom. 8:3).

We would insist that if the scriptures are not true in their statements concerning him as "Jesus," in his incarnation, and humanity—concerning his miraculous conception, his virgin birth, his miracles, his blood atonement, and his bodily resurrection, then we shall refuse to believe that the scriptures are true in their statements concerning his Messiahship, and Saviorhood: and then he was not, and is not "The Christ" and we have no Savior, and are still in our sins. "They have taken away my Lord." But concerning such, John the beloved wrote, "Every spirit that confesseth not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh is not of God: and this is that spirit of antichrist, whereof ye have heard that it should come; and even now already is it in the world." 1 John 4:3. So these "Modernists" (?) are not as modern as was supposed, seeing their kind were already discovered, and were publishing their infidelity as early as the first century of the Christian era. Evidently, our Twentieth Century "Modernists" have simply been advancing backwards. And again we read in 2 John 1:7, "Many deceivers are entered into the world, who confess not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh. This is a deceiver and an antichrist." These are plain words, easily understood, and give us their correct title, as "Deceivers," and "Antichrist." According to this they were already numerous,—"many,"—in that early day, who denied the facts pertaining to his "flesh." Yes, we presume there have been infidel "Modernists" in every age of the world, who denied the testimony of John, when he said by inspiration, "The Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us, (and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father,) full of grace and truth." John 1:14. But we shall insist that if "Jesus" in his humanity was not "Christ," then "the Christ" these Modernists would preach is not The Christ of the Bible;—the "Jesus,—Savior,"—that I need.

And since I need a "Savior" I think I shall still believe "the angel of the Lord," who declared to the "shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flocks by night," when he said, "Behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people: for unto you is born this day in the city of David, A SAVIOR." (Luke 2:10, 11). Ah, yes! that is what I need,—"Savior." And it was of him that it was said, "Thou shalt call his name Jesus, for he shall save his people from their sins." And, thank God, I have found in that Jesus of the virgin birth, just such a Savior.

Before men can know him as "The Christ," they must accept him as "Jesus," who was born of the virgin Mary, and while in the flesh, made a blood atonement for sin, and in his death on Calvary's cross, bridged the chasm 'twixt God's holiness, and man's sin: 'twixt God's justice, and man's guilt. Thank God, he tasted death for every man, (Heb. 2:9); and "in the body of his flesh through death" has "reconciled" us to God, and thus made it possible "to present (us) you holy and unblameable and unreprouvable in his sight;" (Col. 1:21, 22) for "the blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin." 1 John 1:7. Yes, he is both "Jesus" and "The Christ;" human-divine; our Redeemer and Savior, and our risen Lord, and coming King.

REPORTS FROM SOUL WINNERS

SYCHAR'S COMING GENERATIONS.

Wm. R. Chase.

The young are looked after nowhere as at a holiness camp. Sychar this year built a commodious auditorium expressly for young people's meetings. There the young people, under the leadership of an evangelist, the boys and girls under the lead of another, and the little tots under the lead of another special worker, have their meetings. Annually they have a march from here down to the Ring Meeting ground by the gate, and have a service there. President Lewis makes an address to the ring formed by the marchers, and they sing and pray and testify. This year your scribe counted the number in line as they passed, and counted one hundred and fifty-six. Headed by their band and singing as they marched, it made an impressive sight. Sychar sees after her young folks. And it seems but a short yesterday ago when others who now are missionaries, preachers, and Christian workers here and there over the world were marching down the tented street in that line. Tomorrow these in this line whom your scribe counted will be scattered over the earth doing as these others whom he counted but such a short time ago. Many a Priscilla and Timothy of the tomorrow were in that line to whom we take off our hat, and pray for.

The special workers again this year for these holiness leaders of the soon coming tomorrows were Evangelists Miss Anna McGhie, Miss May Gorsuch, and Miss Ollie Tanner. The following is a sample of the kind of teaching the little tots have at the hands of Miss Tanner who is their special worker. I am sure you will agree with me that it is healthful teaching these little ones get at Sychar. She took a text from 1st John, "The blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin." This is what she said to them: "Satan tempts little children to be disobedient, untruthful, selfish, and quarrelsome. They do these sins and bring unhappiness to their hearts and homes and playmates. Jesus died on the cross to save little children from sin. He wants his little ones to be obedient. We please him by being loving and kind to father, mother, and brothers and sisters and playmates. We love to see boys and girls with clean hands and faces and clothes, but much more beautiful is a clean heart. Only God can see the heart, but every one knows by the things children say and do what kind of hearts they have. I heard this story which will, I think, illustrate to you little ones what sin does for us. A mother who was dying called her children to her bedside and wishing to give them a parting message said, 'Bring me a piece of white paper, please.' It was brought and then she said to them, 'This paper shows what the life is like that God gives us on which we, as life passes, are to write our life. Now bring me some ink, please.' The ink was brought and she took it and poured it on the white sheet of paper. Then she said to her children, 'Now erase the black.' But we cannot, Mother dear, they said to her. 'Of course you cannot' the mother replied, and, 'children,' said she, 'Watch your evil acts. They leave a stain for life, and look very black, and are black in the sight of God and angels, and to one who is where your mother now is, right at the edge of the grave. And remember, children, that Jesus only can wash the stains out, can take the black away.' Then putting her finger on the black spot the ink had made on the paper she first looked at it and then at her children and in a moment or so was gone to heaven. Her children never forgot that lesson which their mother had given them. Every time they were tempted to do wrong that black spot on the white paper with their mother's finger pointing to it would come before them. And they found that she had told them Jesus only could help them. Jesus wants to cleanse your hearts, and keep them clean, and he will do it if you will but let him. He has taught us to pray, 'Create in me a clean heart, O, God.'"

Children could understand that and did. And it is remarkable how young they may be and yet find an experience just like fathers and mothers do. Nor is it of any use to say to your scribe, "Oh, you can get children to do anything, and they don't understand and soon forget all about it." I know that many do follow the example of their elders and backslide, but there are those who do not. I have four in mind, two boys and two girls, saved and sanctified at the early age of eight or under, that are now grown, and one of them a mighty help to her preacher father in his work, one in college preparing for the mission field, and the other two in college preparing for the ministry. These did not backslide. I have followed them all through the years of their young life; there are Samuels yet on earth.

Evangelist Miss McGhie took for her text at one of her services those words of the Lord to Moses found in Exodus 25:40, "And look that thou make them after their pattern, which was showed thee in the mount." She introduced her sermon by saying that when a man wishes to build a house, bridge, or ship if he just goes by the eye and has no sketch and blue print he cannot succeed. His piece of work will be a failure. That mighty building in New York City, the Woolworth, a thing of beauty, stands as it does a marvel of harmony and strength that is able to bear its heavy weight and stand the storms and stress without the least sign of weakness because it was built according to the blue print. The Hosaeac Tunnel which bores through ten miles of solid mountain rock, work on which began at the two ends at the same time, had to follow the orders and blue print of the engineer. But by following it day after day they dug and blasted and when they came to the last blast, and the great tunnel finally pierced the mountain from side to side, the opposite ends from from which they worked met exactly. It was a perfect piece of work because the blue print had been followed. The great ocean steamship that plows the ocean racing with wind and storm was built like the pattern. So the Lord gave Moses a blue print by which he should build the tabernacle. And that tabernacle being a type of us, we are his tabernacle, he has given a blue print to us after which we are to build our lives. Nor was there a thing in the tabernacle of old but was to be fashioned after God's plan. And as all the furnishings of the tabernacle, the altar, the veil, the vessels all, must be made strictly after the pattern which God gave, so has he given us explicit directions, instructions, how to order our lives down to the least detail. That is why I love the Bible. It tells us what manner of persons we are and what we should be and what we should do under every circumstance. God is very serious in giving us his directions, and we should be very serious in receiving every word of instruction that he has given us. But what is a blue print and how is it made? In order to make a blue print first old rags are taken and ground up and by the aid of chemicals reduced to a pulp. This pulp is then rolled into thin sheets and more chemicals added. Then a paper containing a sketch, or perfect pattern of whatever is to be built is laid on this thin sheet of the soft pulp and put under a glass case where the direct light of the sun falls on it. If anything gets between it and the light of the sun it is marred. The Bible which is our blue print, and God-given, is that by which we must build. In the making of it he has allowed nothing to come in to mar it. It can be relied on. And there is a sense in which each of us is to be for God as blue prints for others. He would have us be a pattern, a sample. So God must grind us up and melt us down and put us through the fire of the Holy Ghost until everything between us and God is burned out. He would burn up everything that comes between us and his will, not always because it is wrong, but it hinders us from reflecting him to the world and from giving the world that which he wants to give it through us. God has an individual path for each of us to walk and a different place for each of us to fill. It is an easy road that leads away from God's path, but a hard pull to get back. It is a conflict that we are in and our business is to fight on and through until he becomes sole possessor of all our powers. He will help in the fight, but it is a fight. It is ours to be in subjection to the glorious will of God. The plan that Egypt's king, and Moses, too, had for himself was to be a great king of Egypt. But that was not God's plan. God had something harder, but better for him. And when at the burning bush where God revealed to him his will as to his life, and self was burned out, then Moses could say that he would rather suffer affliction with the people of God than have the riches of Egypt. He got the blue print for his life there. And this pattern he followed until God took him, and now the heavenly throng sings the song of Moses and the Lamb. David, the shepherd boy, heard the silent voice of God speak in his heart as he herded his father's flocks, and gladly accepted the pattern for his life which the hand of God had drawn. He became through it the sweet singer of Israel, and the great king of his people. Paul planned a great career for himself as leader of the Hebrews, but on that day when on the road to Damascus he was struck to the ground with the power of the great light that shone about him, it was there that he got the blue print of his life. He followed it and is the great apostle to the Gentiles for all time. Had he refused to follow God's blue print who would have known of Paul today? Not a soul. Jerry McAuley, Sam Hadley, Delia the Bluebird of Mulberry Bend in New York City, criminals, besotted outcasts, when they turned, were saved by power divine; these poor sin-cursed, useless and worse members of society, saw the blue print of God for them, accepted it and became flames of living fire for him, shining evangelists for him. They became patterns for all the world of useful, godly lives. God wants to make each of you a blue print for this old world. You are to be tabernacles of his. The holy Shekinah burned constantly in the old tabernacle in the most holy place, and your heart he wants for that holy of holies that he may dwell there within you. But every questionable thing must be out, burned out, before he will come in. Your friends may love the world, but the world must not only be crucified to you, but you must also in turn be crucified to the world. You are not to go in the ways of the world, no matter what your friends may do. Your hands and feet must be holy. Desires for the dance, card table and such he will burn out of you. All the things of the world will seem cheap to you when the love of God fills your soul. Your walk will be with God. Everything faded into insignificance after Jesus came in and filled my heart. Plans and pleasures that were so dear to me, dearer than life it seemed, and which I thought I could not live without instantly passed out of my horizon when Jesus came in in all his fullness. God's blue print for my life became my only desire and to follow it my one ambition. I let every other thing burn to ashes that I might have God's best gift. Does your life conform to God's blue print, your social life, your business life, and in every detail? He wants it to, yea his demand is that it shall. That is his will. What is your will in the matter?"

Miss McGhie told me that they never had a barren service, that conviction was deepest this year of any of the several years she had been in lead of the young people, and that the lowest number at the altar at any service was seven, and the largest twenty-one. The power of God surely was manifested in those meetings. Our young people, thank God, are in for being sanctified wholly, and in holding the standard up high in place of its scaring them off and driving them away, it draws them. They are accepting the truth in numbers such as the older people are not, and are going out to bless the world and the church. The young men and women who are going out from our holiness camps are the hope of this time of stress and distress. Neither the world nor the church can do without them. Zion must have them or her walls never will be built.

EVANGELIST JOHN FLEMING REPORTS.

Feel like reporting a few words to let my brothers know that I am still at the battle front. I can truly say that last year was a year of victory for me. Had some wonderful revivals in some of our best churches, and worked with some of our best singers and preachers. Had several thousand seeking God, and hundreds prayed through to victory; have taken great numbers into the Church.

At this writing, Jan. 6th, I have already had about eighty people at the altar, and traveled 1,400 miles. New Year's day was a great day in First M. E. Church, Collingswood, N. J. Seventy-nine different churches represented in the one day, and altar was lined all day with seekers and many happy finders. Had two great services in First Church of Nazarene in Washington, D. C., on Jan. 2. This church is moving on to victory. We have a fine building, and the new pastor, Bro. J. H. Parker, is leading them on. They gave me a call for a meeting and I will do my best to get to them in the near future. I am perfectly satisfied with the Lord's leadings. I feel better in both soul and body. Praying that this will be the greatest year of my life.

REVIVAL AT MT. OLIVET, KENTUCKY.

One of the best revivals ever held in Mt. Olivet, Ky., came to a close Sunday night. Rev. S. L. Moore, the pastor of Main St. Methodist Church, was assisted by Rev. J. W. Carter, evangelist, of Lexington, Ky. Dr. Carter is a man of pleasing personality, a fluent speaker, and one whose whole soul is absorbed with one purpose—the salvation of the lost. He preaches plain, hews to the line in exposing sin, but with such love and tenderness as to win men and women to God. He never uttered a harsh word about any sister church and there was the greatest and most perfect harmony ever known between the churches, especially the Baptist and Walnut St. Methodist. Brothers Harrington and Polley came in and prayed and worked as though in their own churches. About 150 people stood on last night of meeting, indicative of the fact that they had been blessed and helped during the meeting. Brother Carter will receive a royal welcome whenever he chances to come this way again. Safe, sane, sound and sensible, he is without a peer among the evangelists and we predict for him a greater future and recommend him to any and all.

S. L. Moore, Pastor.

tury who rejected "Jesus" as the Messiah, as the Modernist of the Twentieth Century who rejects "Jesus" as the "Savior." It is folly, and wicked, for ministers to speak adoringly of him as "the Christ," and yet cast aspersions upon him, and deny that "the Word was made flesh," and thus reject him in his humiliation, and incarnation, as "Savior." But it is by this method that they "deceive" and beguile the unwary, and hold some of the leading pulpits, and draw good, fat salaries. Hearing them preach and discourse so eloquently about "the Christ," many unsuspecting persons suppose they are still orthodox, and true, and swallow all they say, when in reality, according to God's word, they are "Deceivers," and "antichrist," and do not believe in "Jesus" in his miraculous conception, virgin birth, and blood atonement,—as "Savior,"—at all. God pity them.

"Jesus! the name high over all,

In hell, or earth, or sky;

Angels and men before it fall,

And devils fear and fly.

"Jesus! the name to sinners dear,

The name to sinners given;

It scatters all their guilty fear,

It turns their hell to heaven."

God's sanctified people must guard against sectarian prejudice. They must be full of holy love. They must put their desire for a revival and the salvation of souls far above any church or other human organization. One of the secrets of the marvelous growth, revival power, and rapid spread of Methodism was the fact that it was wonderfully free from sectarian prejudice or pride. Its first great aim and end was the salvation of the lost; the publishing of a full and free redemption in Christ.

In the nature of things, this spirit must characterize those who are saved from sin and filled with love. With such people the glory of the Christ and the salvation of men must be of first consideration, whether it contributes to the growth, strength, and financial advancement of their church organization or not. The early Methodists were great sticklers for the plainly written doctrines of the Bible. The fall of man, the depravity of the human race, the deep sinfulness of the human heart, the absolute need of regeneration, the witness of the Spirit, entire sanctification from indwelling sin, the possibility of apostasy were the doctrines emphasized all the time and everywhere by Methodism. Methodist preachers were bold and constant crusaders against every form of wicked worldliness. They traveled with a drawn sword. They were indeed soldiers of the cross. The advocates of all the liquor traffic, the dance, the theater, the card table, and the race course trembled before them, and they made captives everywhere. Revivals of religion blazed throughout the land, sinners of every description came trooping to their altars, and under the power of God became glad witnesses to the saving grace of Jesus.

There is a remedy for the evils of our time. We, so-called holiness people, under God, have the remedy. The same old Bible truths preached by the early Methodists, if faithfully preached, will produce the same results. God has not changed, neither has sin, and the gospel is still the power of God unto salvation. Let us take a fresh start. Let us go at it in earnest. Let's hold ten thousand revivals. Let all the forces of full salvation who hold steadfastly to the faith of our fathers, get close together, kindle revival fires everywhere, rally to the schools, enlarge the theological departments, train and send forth thousands of Spirit-filled young people, and rescue millions of souls from sin and hell.

The old-time Methodists did not fail to assure sinners that they were on their way to hell. They repeated the plain teachings of the Lord Jesus on this awful subject. They held tenaciously to all fundamental truth, and were remarkably liberal with regard to non-essentials. This is necessarily true with holy people. With them, the power must count; the mere forms of little consequence. The union that God desires is not ecclesiastical union. God finds it difficult to do anything with great ecclesiasticisms. The union he desires is that secured by the baptism by one Spirit into one body. The Lord's sanctified people in these United States have at their command, under God and the guidance of the Holy Ghost, inexhaustible resources of power, and the people are starving hungry by untold millions.

A GOOD FRIEND GONE.

WE were shocked and grieved a few days ago to hear of the sudden death of Mr. George Sebring, of Sebring, Fla. Mr. Sebring was born and raised in the state of Ohio; he was one of the famous group of Sebring Brothers who built the beautiful city of Sebring, Ohio. They were interested in the pottery business, bought a large tract of land, laid it off into a city, put into their charter the very strongest prohibition laws, built a number of potteries, and around those potteries grew up this prosperous and beautiful city. It is just out of the suburbs of this city that the famous Sebring Holiness Camp Meeting is held, in which Mr. George Sebring took a great interest.

Some fifteen or twenty years ago Mr. Sebring went to Florida and bought a large tract of land in a fine section of the state, surrounding Lake Jackson. He laid off a city, built roads, planted out great groves of citrus fruit, sold off lots, brought in tourists; the tropical sunshine, beautiful and healthful surroundings attracted attention, and the new city of Sebring, Fla., grew rapidly. Mr. Sebring built, at his own expense, a fine camp meeting ground in which a number of holiness camp meetings were held.

Later on, a section was cut out of one of the large counties of the state of Florida, a new county was formed, and Sebring became the county seat of this new county. The Seaboard Air Line built a railroad through the city and gave direct and rapid transit to the East, making Sebring one of the most convenient, beautiful and attractive inland towns in the entire state.

George Sebring was a man of remarkable intelligence, great will power, foresight, energy and magnetism. He was a born leader of men. He had the capacity to have made a great governor for his state, or an influential man in Congress. He had no political ambitions, but was a builder; he delighted to lay off streets, to erect houses, to encourage construction, to see life and prosperity all about him.

In the early history of the Holiness Movement Mr. Sebring championed the cause of full salvation preachers. He was a great admirer and supporter of Rev. B. S. Taylor back in the days when Brother Taylor was at the zenith of his evangelistic power. He was always ready to help with the camp meeting, rent a hall, and assist in any way in the promotion of religious revivals. When J. M. Harris and his wife, the great evangelistic singers, were holding revivals of marvelous success in Ohio, Pennsylvania, and Indiana, he gave them several months' rest, took them with him on a trip to Palestine, paying all of their expenses. Only the evangelists know something of how often he slipped a check into the hands of the hard-worked and poorly paid full salvation preacher.

Once when I was preaching at the Sebring Camp in Ohio he noticed that I had on an inferior pair of spectacles. At the close of the meeting he gave me a check and sent me to his oculist, one of the very best in Cleveland, Ohio, where I spent several days under his treatment, came away with the best of spectacles, and money sufficient out of his generous check to buy me a new suit of clothes.

A few years ago wife and I coming up from Southern Florida, stopped for a few days in a hotel in Sebring. When he found we were there he scolded us for not coming to his residence. When we prepared to leave the city, I went to his office to tell him good bye, he shoved a check into my hand to pay my bill at the hotel. He embarrassed me with his kindness. He never knew how much I admired and loved him. I kept away from him for fear he would think I sought his company in order to enjoy his liberality.

Many of the readers of THE HERALD know something of the remarkable colored woman evangelist, the famous Amanda Smith, who preached largely in the United States, in Europe, and around the world, a saintly woman. In her old age George Sebring sought her out, built her a neat cottage near his beautiful home in Sebring, Fla., furnished it comfortably, hired a colored woman to care for her, and kept the dear old saint until she died; then took the remains back north for burial, all at his own expense.

Mr. Sebring was a member of the Methodist Church, and a great believer in a pure, full salvation gospel. His enterprise and excellent business qualities had enabled him to accumulate a considerable fortune. He leaves behind him a devoted Christian wife, and a number of affectionate and loyal children. His sudden passing away will cause great grief in a large circle of devoted friends. Peace to his memory, and may the gracious blessing of God rest upon his bereaved wife and children.

H. C. MORRISON.

Good Word from a Friend.

A friend writes us that he is deeply interested in the tent work, and that he would like to give a tent to this work if it is not too expensive. If a tent costs more than he is able to contribute he would be glad to make a contribution toward getting an extra tent for the tent campaign the coming summer. This friend does not give his name, but simply signs himself "A Subscriber." We will say for his benefit that a good tent can be bought for $450. If he does not feel able to contribute this amount we shall be thankful for whatever he can give and will pledge him to raise the balance necessary in order to add another tent to the number that goes into the revival campaign next summer.

Faithfully your brother,

H. C. MORRISON.

Orphanage Destroyed by Fire.

Bethel Orphanage of the Pilgrim Holiness Church, located at Kingswood, Ky., was destroyed by fire recently. Fortunately no one of the twenty-four boys in the building was hurt. The loss is estimated at $8,000; the insurance was $3,500. Any one wishing to help rebuild this orphanage may address Rev. S. M. Stikeleather, Kingswood, Ky. These are devout and excellent people and are doing a most worthy work. Give them a helping hand. H. C. MORRISON.

The Man on The Watchtower.

It is an interesting and hopeful sign for better feeling in our own country, and other nations, that at an Armistice Day celebration in Columbus, Ohio, German people were asked to participate in the exercises. This is as it should be. Let all of the old wounds heal. Let us forget, forgive, and unite all of our forces for the betterment of conditions, everywhere. Hatred never brings happiness. Love of one's fellowmen is always a good investment; it brings and gives peace and good will. Let the horrible war be forgotten, and let the people cultivate the spirit of altruism and helpful, generous friendship.

Give Mexico a chance. She has set for herself a task of building a public school each day, and is running a little ahead of her schedule. Mexico has determined not to be governed in her civic or religious life from the outside. It may be that they have been a little extreme, but they have been long under an iron yoke. There is no question but men outside of the nation and not in sympathy with her best interests, made large purchases of valuable commodities, at shockingly low prices, during the reign of Diaz. The people of the United States ought to have the greatest patience and genuine sympathy for this struggling republic, that is really making progress toward larger and better things. It may be that the Mexican people have their faults; no doubt they have, but there are people with many faults living on this side of the Rio Grande.

Old Jerusalem is being modernized. Building is going on; the suburbs are being enlarged, new suburbs are being created surrounding the city. The streets of the city are being sprayed by water carts; the old streets are being widened and paved. The old postoffice has been enlarged and transformed; the business houses and residences are being numbered like in other cities, and there is evidence of development and progress on every hand. There is promise of a vast orange crop in Palestine. It is said that the gathering and shipping of these oranges will, for some time, give remunerative employment to not less than eighteen thousand people. Prophecy is being fulfilled. Palestine is developing in a marvelous way. Many thousands of Jews are returning to their homeland. God never makes any mistakes. He keeps his promises. He sees that his prophecies are fulfilled.

We find a strong word for prohibition from a distinguished "wet" professor. Yale University is situated in the State of Connecticut. This state did not ratify the Eighteenth Amendment. It seems that New Haven is a very wet city, but we have the Dean of the Scientific School of Yale saying: "I am not a prohibitionist, and never have been. I will admit to you, however, that the effect of prohibition at Yale University has been good. I know whereof I speak, for I have been a member of the Committee on Discipline for many years. The change has been simply revolutionary. In the old days our Committee was constantly busy with cases involving intoxication and the disorders arising from it. Now we have practically no business of the kind to transact, although, intoxication in itself is regarded as calling for the severest penalty." This is fine testimony coming from an anti-prohibitionist. We are quite unable to understand how, that any one, who has lived in the times when bar-rooms were open everywhere, and at the present time, can fail to see the great advantage and benefit of prohibition.

"THE BENEDICTION OF JUDE."

Did the devil say to Jesus in the wilderness "Bow down and I will give you Palestine?" No! He had no title of reality to offer. He offered what he owned, "The Kingdom of this world."

The politicians were his, the kings and rulers were his and all too many of them are his still, but God is owner of the universe and can do as he will with his possessions. Who dares to limit his authority or the power of God? I have seen his seas, storm driven, toss a mighty vessel as it would an egg shell. I have walked in the path of his cyclones, where trees were uprooted and houses demolished.

Have a care, false teachers. Have a care, profane swearers. Have a care, church hypocrites. God may send the plowshare of his earthquakes beneath your feet.

III. A PICTURE OF GOD COMING TO THE AID OF MAN.

"To the only wise God our Savior." God is a Savior. His wisdom grappled the sin question and found a way out. At infinite cost he found the way. Salvation is processed. Show me how one man got saved and I will show you how every other man gets saved. A millionaire bows at this end of the altar and a drunkard at the other end. I say to each, "Repent, restore, confess, believe, obey." I grant you, the approach to the conditions vary. To the millionaire I say, "come off the pedestal of your self-sufficiency." To the drunkard I say, "Come up out of your despair, there is a pierced hand thundering at your prison door." But the process is the same in each case. I can only take time here to outline the process. Jude, I wish you had taken time to write that general letter on "The Common Salvation," but you left us here a hint of your theology in the first verse and in the last verse. "To them that are sanctified by God the Father and preserved in Jesus Christ." "Now unto him that is able to present you faultless before . . . his glory." v. 25.

Ah, Jude, you write like a holiness preacher, giving full recognition of the process of salvation, viz.:

a. Life Imparted.

Jesus said, "Marvel not that I say unto you ye must be born again."

Cultural theology, processes of religious education, can never take the place of regeneration. God the Holy Ghost must make a dead soul to become alive.

b. Life Destroyed.

There is something in every saved soul that needs to die. It was there from the moment of natural birth. It cannot be forgiven, for I am not at fault for being born with a carnal nature. It cannot be converted. "The carnal mind is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be." But thank God, the carnal nature can be killed, destroyed, eradicated. Paul shouts deliverance from the old man, "I am crucified with Christ."

c. Life Empowered.

The blessed Holy Ghost not only kills sin but he empowers us. Jesus said, "Ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you." And the poet writes: "My strength is as the strength of ten men. Because my heart is pure."

d. Life Kept.

"Now unto him that is able to keep you from falling." There is here the suggestion that there is danger of falling. The shores of time are strewn with the wreckage of souls once saved. Beware of the teaching that if you are once truly saved you can never be lost. Jude says: "I will therefore put you in remembrance, though ye once knew this, how that the Lord, having saved the people out of the land of Egypt afterward destroyed them that believed not and the angels which kept not their first estate. . . he hath reserved in everlasting chains." And Jesus said: "What I say unto you I say unto all; Watch!"

Jude exhorts: "Keep yourselves in the love of God." Then a little later he says, "Now unto him that is able to keep you from falling." Contradiction, do you say? No, perfect harmony in statement. We keep ourselves by obedience and faith in the hand of God and he keeps us from falling. In spite of world currents, in spite of bad environment, in spite of false teachers, the great God whose power scooped out old ocean's bed and piled the mountains snow-capped against the sky can keep me. Hallelujah!

e. Life Presented.

"Now unto him that is able. . . to present you faultless before the presence of his glory with exceeding joy."

How can mortal man grasp now this glorious fact and get a hint of this ecstasy? God is willing to present the sanctified soul before the presence of his glory; the judgment glory that flashed 'mid darkened heavens on Sinai, the mercy glory that filled all the hill-sides that night when angel choirs sang over Judean hills; the resurrection glory that shone on Mount of Transfiguration and now lights all the space around the great white throne.

Die out in your socket, sun, master luminary of earth's day; pale and fade, moon and stars, for here "they need no candle, neither light of the sun, for the Lord God giveth them light and they shall reign forever and ever." What a day that will be for the saints, when God will introduce them in the presence of his glory. Fold your wings, ye angels, and cease your music.

Here comes a choir whose anthem of music you cannot sing—"The song of redemption," "The song of Moses and the Lamb." What a day for battle-scarred saints, when God will introduce them in the presence of his glory!

Bishop McIntyre tells of the time his father had an auction in Bonnie Scotland before coming to America. He was a lad of eight and was little concerned about the sale of furniture and possessions until he saw the auctioneer hold up his little red wheelbarrow, and presently saw a sturdy Scot going away with it. Then he ran after him weeping, for his wheelbarrow. The kind old Scotchman said, "Dinna cry, ye may hae it," but the stern old auctioneer forced it back into the purchaser's hand saying, "Take it; he will have many better things in the country where he is going."

So let it be with me. One by one take my toys, taking my possessions, if necessary take earthly friendships, but by all the help I get from two worlds do not let me miss the introduction to joys unspeakable and full of glory.

Heart Talks.

Rev. Lovick Pierce Law, one of the general evangelists of the Methodist Church, South, and a most excellent and lovable minister of the gospel, whose ministry has been greatly blessed of the Lord, has just brought out a book with the title, "Heart Talks." These are pithy, pointed sermons, full of punch and suggestion that Bro. Law has given in his morning messages in his revival meetings. The book is well bound, printed in clear type, on good paper and contains nearly 200 pages. We commend it to the people. It can be had of The Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky., for $1.50.

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS

Dear Cousins: What is your "Bent"? What do you expect to be, a doctor, writer, nurse, teacher, minister, inventor? A boy said, "I'm going to be an umbrella mender like the one I know." But he became a business man. Another insisted on being a well-digger,—"for I see one pass our home every day, and he never has to wash nor dress up"; but it wasn't his "bent," he became a minister. I knew a lad with musical genius; starting with a french harp, or mouth organ, he mastered one instrument after another. His father made him study medicine, but it wasn't his "bent." He invented a wonderful dummy orchestra of thirteen,—a director and twelve players, not one of them alive, but making good music. Later he learned to play 25 instruments at a time, alone. Some of you write good poetry; others recite or read well. Many boys and girls are reciting my poem "School Children." But whatever vocation, make it Christian; for "After a long time the Lord cometh and reckoneth with them." General Havlock was neither minister nor missionary, but England sent him on business trips to India. Seeing their idol worship, he went into their temples, placed lighted candles in the idols' hands, and told the heathen of Christ and his salvation. The General's statue stands in London a tribute to his memory. But a better tribute is seen in India's Christian converts. T. Richardson Gray.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you move over and let another Kentucky girl join your happy band of boys and girls? We take The Herald and I think it is a fine paper. How many of you cousins like to go to Sunday school? I go nearly every Sunday. I have three sisters at home. I am a girl of eighteen years, have light hair, fair complexion, weigh 107 pounds. I do not wear knickers nor use lip stick or rouge. Who has my birthday, May 8? Dorothea Berry, why didn't you answer my last letter? I would like to correspond with some of you cousins. With love to Aunt Bettie and the cousins.

Lula A. Carter.
Hegira, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Here comes a little Tennessee girl to join your happy band of boys and girls. I have blue eyes and fair complexion. I am ten years of age and in the third grade. I have light hair. I enjoy reading The Herald. My birthday is March 6. I have three brothers and one sister. This is my first letter to page ten. Love to all the cousins.
Gracie Phillips.
Granville, Tenn.

Dear Aunt Bettie: May I join your group of boys and girls? I like to write letters, especially to Christians, and would like to hear from any boy or girl. I was converted last August. I go to church and Sunday school every Sunday that I am able. I am twelve years old, and in the eighth grade. As this is my first letter I will stop. With love to all boys and girls and Aunt Bettie.
Minnie A. Howe.
Kingfield, Maine.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I read The Pentecostal Herald some and enjoy it very much. I am a boy of fifteen years old and have gray eyes and brown hair. My favorite verse is John 3:16. I would like to hear from every boy and girl, and will answer every letter. William E. Jenkins.
1511 5th St., New Brighton, Pa.

Dear Aunt Bettie: May I join your band? I hope I may, as it's been a long time since I wrote to Our Page. Well, I'm sure you are all wondering what I look like, so I'll try and tell you. I am a girl eighteen years old, have brown hair and brown eyes. I am five feet and six inches tall and weigh 120 pounds, so I guess you all can imagine how I look. I live on a farm way out in the country. I have two brothers and two sisters. Well, I will not make my letter too long as I know there are more that can write more interesting than I. All you cousins write to me 'cause I sure like to get letters and answer them too. Pearl Turner.

Inroad, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I am a Maine girl. My father takes The Herald. I am 66 inches tall, have dark brown hair and brown eyes. I go to the Evangelical Church. I was saved in the Salem camp meeting. I would like to have any of the boys and girls write to me. Beulah Blanchard.
Kingfield, Maine.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Is here any room for me, Aunt Bettie? Why, hello, cousins! Mary Standiford's letter is the first Colorado letter I've seen since I've read The Herald. Laird, Colo., is not far from where I live. Your birthday is Dec. 20. I live on the prairies 15 miles N. E. of Yuma. I am thirteen years old and am five feet, four inches tall, am in the eighth grade. I have a very nice saddle horse named Lady. Who can guess my middle name? It begins with M and ends with F, and has eight letters in it. I have a sister six years old named Evelyn. Our Aunt in Illinois sends The Herald to us and I like to read it very much. Our Sunday school is two and a half miles east of here. I go every Sunday. Martha M. Lockard.
Yuma, Colo.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let me rest within your happy circle? I am a little late for I have been traveling for 60 summers and the snowflakes of the winter are falling upon my head. I am glad I am late as it has given a chance for Mr. W. B. to go to bed. I enjoy page ten and delight in the Christian spirit shown in many of the letters. This is the hope of the country. Will the cousins tell their teachers or the presidents of the Missionary and Temperance Societies of their respective churches that there is an old Daddy in Salem, Va., who will make for them any map or chart or statistics they may want to illustrate some lecture at one conference or another. Make it U. S. wide, for the title on it goes towards spreading the Gospel through the Evangelical Methodist League. Who has my birthday, Jan. 24? As this is my first letter to The Herald I will cut it short by sending to all the expression of my brotherly love. Ch. Cotton.
Salem, Va.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let me join your happy band of boys and girls? This is my second letter to The Herald. I have light hair, brown eyes, fair complexion, am eleven years old and weigh 98 pounds. My birthday is March 10. If any of the cousins have my birthday and will write to me I will answer best I know how. I love to go to Sunday school and preaching. I belong to the Methodist Church. We have a fine pastor. I have a good Christian mother and father. We read and study the Bible at night. I love to do good work such as visiting sick and poor. Edith Barker, I will answer your question about Moses. Moses could not enter into Canaan land because he disobeyed God. He smote the rock instead of speaking to it as God told him to. I will close because I hear Mr. W. B. coming.

Elsie Granberry.
Wesson, Miss.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I am going to be so quiet that perhaps that hungry Mr. W. B. will not hear me. And as his eyesight isn't very good he might not see me. That is just fine to think I could be so sly as all this. Surely he wouldn't make me go out now since I have found a good warm place here with an old friend like Aunt Bettie. Well cousins, I am glad to be back again. Don't know if you remember my last letter to The Herald or not. It sure is a wonderful old Herald to me, especially page ten, where so many sociable cousins show their colors by corresponding. I am a little old-fashioned perhaps in the sight of some people, but God knows it isn't just an outside covering when it comes to sociable people, and that old-fashioned way of shaking hands. Cousins, never get too proud or too good to shake hands and talk to the poor. Remember they have a soul to save as well as the well-to-do people. I think if a few more of the professed Christians would give to the poor, it would be a greater treasure laid up in heaven than to give to those that do not need our gifts as much as the needy. How many of the cousins agree with me? Rose Lancaster.

Somerfield, Pa.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a little Kentucky girl join your happy band of boys and girls? I am thirteen years old, have brown hair, brown eyes, and fair complexion. I wrote to The Herald before and never saw it in print. Please do not let Mr. W. B. get this letter.

Maretta Rowland.
Wilmore, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I saw my other letter in print and so I'm going to write again. How many of you cousins are Christians? I am. The Asbury Gospel Trio were here in August. I was converted, joined the M. E. Church and was baptized then. I am eleven years old. I will be twelve May 9. Who can guess my middle name? It begins with R. It is the name of a girl in the Bible. The one who guesses it I will write to them. I have light hair, light complexion. I have freckles and blue eyes. I must close and give the other cousins room for their letters. God bless Aunt Bettie and the cousins.

R. Alice Thayer.
Meeteetse, Wyo.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I would like to have enough room to sit down. Cousins, have you forgotten me? This is my second visit to The Herald, but as it's been so long since I was here before I suppose you have forgotten my name. I've been a silent reader for a long time and as I saw so many interesting letters I thought I might join, if I could get permission from you cousins. I have gray eyes, light complexion, medium light hair, am five feet, one inch tall and weigh 103 pounds. My birthday is June 4. Have I a twin? If so, would you mind writing? Who can guess my middle name? It begins with A and ends with A and has six letters in it. Anice M. Horton, I guess your name to be Marie or Mamie. Wilmetta Berch and Edith Wingate, would you please tell what it says in Ezekiel 13:1, as I fail to find it in our Bible. Money is the root of all evil. You ask what it was. Is this correct?

Mary Lancaster.
Somerfield, Pa.

Dear Aunt Bettie: This is my first letter to The Herald. My uncle sent us The Herald and I enjoy reading page ten. I am a girl of eleven years. I am in the fifth grade in school. I live on a farm with my father and mother. I go to church and Sunday school at the Lutheran Church. As this is my first letter I hope to see it in print. With love to Aunt Bettie and the cousins.

Lois Irene Vance.
Millersburg, Ind.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I want to tell you how we appreciate the book, "Beautiful Girlhood." I have read the book and have truly been benefited by it; it is just the book girls ought to read. I hope every girl who reads it will abide by it. We have been taking The Herald for a number of years; it is the best paper that comes to our home. We feel like we can't do without it. I am a shut-in and have been for thirteen years, so the dear Herald preaches to me every week. Oh, how I do enjoy reading it! Mrs. W. R. Grice.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a little Maryland girl join the happy band of boys and girls? I am thirteen years old, have light hair and hazel eyes. I am in the seventh grade at school. This is my last year at school. When I stop school I would like to go to God's Bible School in Ohio. I go to the Pilgrim Holiness Church at Broomer Island. A revival just closed at our church.

Dear Aunt Bettie: My mother takes The Pentecostal Herald. I like to read the Boys and Girls' Page. I am eleven and am in the sixth grade in school. I take music and am in the fifth grade. Guess my middle name; it begins with M and ends with D. I hope to see my letter in print next time. I will close for this time as it is getting late.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I have been reading the little letters in The Herald on the Boys and Girls' Page. I like to read them very much. I thought I would write a letter too. I am a little girl nine years old and am in the fourth grade in school. I go to Sunday school every Sunday morning. I am in the second grade in music. I have one sister and one brother. Guess my middle name; it begins with E and ends with E. It has six letters in it. I hope to see my letter in print.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Happy New Year to all. Wish I could meet the readers of The Herald face to face and tell you how much I appreciate your co-operation in the linen shower for Mt. Carmel school at Lawson, Ky. As this is impossible I felt like Aunt Bettie would allow me space in The Herald for this purpose. May God bless each one abundantly for this deed of love. I received a total of $22.50, which I decided to forward to Miss McConnell and let her purchase material for sheets as she could get it cheaper than I could purchase it here. What a nice lot of sheets this will buy, and it will be such a blessing to the work at that place. She wrote me that she had also received other linen sent direct to the school in response to my appeal in Herald. I can't express to you how much I really appreciate your co-operation in the linen shower for this noble work. I want you to go with me for a little visit to Mt. Carmel and let us look upon one of the most pathetic scenes one could witness in this life. In order to do this I will give you a quotation from a letter I received recently from Miss McConnell, President of Mt. Carmel:

"I am sure you will be glad to hear of the gracious revival that broke out among our students recently. Our youngest girl, aged eleven, was praying in her room and some other girl joined her; the prayer meeting continued for some time and finally other girls began going in the room and falling at the bedside, earnestly seeking the Lord. Soon every girl in the dormitory except one, was seeking to be saved. Many of them got through with a definite heart change. The next day in chapel the Spirit of the Lord fell upon the service and some of these girls came to the altar to be sanctified; that night at prayer meeting all of the boys came to the altar but one. There were some very outstanding cases of real praying through to victory. It was marvelous to see how soon the new converts got burdened for their own folks at home, and began planning to try to get them to yield to the Lord when they went home for the Thanksgiving vacation. Some of them came back and reported conversions at home because of their prayers and testimony. We are so rejoiced that the Gospel is being carried into the homes in this effectual way; the best way to reach the parents is through their saved boys and girls. We praise God for answering prayer and sending us this revival. That is our first concern—to get the children saved and sanctified. Two of our boys are called to preach, one being called to foreign missionary work; one of the girls is called to foreign work. We are so happy that these results have come so quickly and so early in the history of Mt. Carmel. We want to be so true to Jesus and to souls that the Lord can trust us with many more such results."

Does this scene not fill your heart with joy and praise to Jesus to think you have helped this work? Although it might have seemed small to you, but when Jesus added his blessings upon it we can't tell what the results will be. No doubt it will reach to the uttermost parts of the earth. "Cast thy bread upon the waters and thou shalt find it after many days." I want to give you three reasons why I am peculiarly interested in Mt. Carmel:

1st. Their banner is "Holiness unto the Lord." Their first concern—to get the children saved and sanctified. In this day when evolution, and so many things contrary to the teaching of God's word, have entered our schools and universities do you not think the Christ'an people should consider it a blessed privilege to help such a school as Mt. Carmel?

2nd. Because this school was built in an isolated district in the mountains among the poor who had never had the opportunity of church and school. I believe there isn't any work greater that we could do for Jesus than among the poor and neglected.

3rd. Because the President of Mt. Carmel is a young lady. It is a great responsibility for a man to have the burden and care of such a work on his shoulders, but I believe it means a still greater responsibility for a young lady. When God laid it upon Miss McConnell's heart to build a church and school, and shoulder the responsibility of such a work I am sure it meant more than we can realize. As we look around us and see how our young ladies of this day are wrapped up in the things of the world it makes our heart rejoice to know there are some who gladly give their lives for the salvation of souls, and we consider it a blessed privilege to be able to do a little to help such a school as Mt. Carmel. Oh, the many ways we could help such a work as this when we begin to think about it. God has laid it upon my heart to have a linen shower for Mt. Carmel each year just before Christmas and in this way we can keep the school supplied with linen all the time. Let's not forget also the quilts during 1927. Perhaps there are those who have quilts they could spare or could make one and send as these will be needed. The address is, Miss Lela G. McConnell, Lawson, Ky., Breathitt Co. Yellville, Ark. Mrs. Alma Hurst.

FALLEN ASLEEP

GIBSON.

Mrs. J. A. Gibson departed this life Nov. 21, 1926. She was born Jan. 14, 1842, in Mississippi. When God called for her she was living eight miles north of Taylorsville, Miss. She had been married three times, first to my father, O. P. James; then to Thomas Lewis, who lived eight years and God called him home. We moved back to Mississippi, and in 1892 she married J. A. Gibson. They lived a happy life till God called him. She never had but one child. She was blessed with good men to live with; both of my step-fathers were good men and I loved them. She joined the M. P. Church in 1861. I was her only child and was licensed to preach in C. M. Church. She claimed sanctification thirty years ago. It is hard to give mother up but God's will be done. I know where to find her.

Rev. T. M. James.

SHANER.

Mary Kratzer Shaner was born February 28, 1848, and departed this life January 5, 1927, at Franklin, Pa. She was the mother of ten children, five going in infancy, and two preceding their father to the better world five or six years ago. Three are left to carry on her work: Mr. Wm. H. Shaner, Oil City, Pa.; Mrs. Ida B. Kribbs and Miss Mannie Elsie Shaner of Franklin, Pa.

Mrs. Shaner was gloriously converted at about twelve years of age, having sought the Lord earnestly at an old-fashioned altar until her child heart was fully satisfied. Later, she entered the Canaan of perfect love, experiencing the sanctifying baptism with the Holy Ghost.

During a convention conducted by Rev. Charles Hartley of Delaware, Ohio, she received her consecration and gave a daughter to the ministry of evangelism, Minnie Elsie Shaner. Her holy life, radiant with victory exemplified the doctrine and she faithfully witnessed to what the Lord had done. She was kind, courteous, faithful and ever ready to help others. She was an eager reader of The Pentecostal Herald and other holiness periodicals. She attended the conventions and camps whenever possible and found blessed fellowship with the saints.

She was a great sufferer for the past five years but always patient and thoughtful of others. She often spoke of the Lord's return and longed for his coming. Her last days were like heaven on earth and her bright smile lingers after death.

The funeral services were conducted by the pastor, Rev. Norris A. White, and Millie M. Lawhead, evangelist. Three special gospel singers, Miss Lillian Parker, of Denison, Ohio, Miss Lucy Evans, of Pittsburgh, Pa., and Miss Bessie Brady, of Franklin, Pa., gave comforting messages in song. The Lord was graciously present with his comforting power.

"Absent from the body she is present with the Lord"; which is "far better." Millie M. Lawhead.

BANKS.

Lura Mae Banks, nee Spurlock, was born near Chatham, La., March 22, 1905. She departed this life in her home near Chatham, Sept. 7, 1926, age 21 years, 5 months and 15 days. She was a consistent member of the Methodist Protestant Church. She was married to Henry Banks, Oct. 9, 1924. This seemed to be ordered of the Lord, for according to her own statement this change brought sunshine to her life. This union was blessed with a daughter, little Dorothy Loraine.

Sister Lura was laid to rest in the Concord Church cemetery near Chatham, La.; surviving are her husband and their little daughter, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Spurlock, eight brothers and one sister, all of Chatham, La. Her life was a blessing to those with whom she was associated; to know her was to love her. Her death, though a great loss to all the loved ones and the host of friends, was a benediction to the community in which she lived. During her illness she was patient and uncomplaining. After some days of suffering the end seemed to be near; all had been done that could be done. We asked her about her soul's condition, that being our greatest interest. The reply was, "There seems to be a little something in the way." She could not account for this trouble, but was not satisfied. Prayer was offered, yet she continued to plead so earnestly, but the way seemed not clear. In the night hours she began singing verses of different songs, in the meantime telling bits of her Christian experiences, making mention of her habit of secret prayer, at different paces, during each day. During these hours she seemed to almost conquer every foe. Still there was a cloud. Among the songs was, "Wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow." The struggle continued; the night hours wore away, the dawn was breaking over the Eastern hills, again she sang very clearly and strong, "Wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow." Then the question was asked, Does He wash you? She replied, "He does; I believe he does." Ah! then the glory fell, the shadow was dispelled by the blessed sunlight of the Ghost as he entered this troubled breast, and washed that soul whiter than snow. Oh, glorious moment, when the believing soul launches out into the boundless ocean of the fullness of God's love.

This occurred on Friday morning; her strength was renewed and for some days she lived in this new-found love, these days being a living testimony of her experience of entire cleansing. She continued calm and resigned to God's will. On Monday, she spoke to her companion to the effect that "Tomorrow she would be at rest," remaining calm through the remaining hours, then, according to her words, Tuesday morning as the day was young she fell asleep in Jesus. "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints." Psalms 116:15. "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth; yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors; and their works do follow them." Rev. 14:13.

BUILD HIGHER.

Will O. Scott.

The winds may rage in the murky skies

They never can reach red Mars;
The floods, to the mountain top may rise

They never can touch the stars.
The lightning that leaps from the black storm-cloud

And startles the King on his throne;

The thunder that sounds through the earth so loud

In Heaven are never known.
O, thou, whom the tempest, oft affrights,

And the flood with fear o'erwhelms,
Mount up with strong and rapid flights

Into calm and cloudless realms!

REQUEST FOR PRAYER.

Please to pray for a backslider who is about to enter into a union that would cause him to put a mortgage upon his soul forever.

WANTS TO GET TO THE FIELD.

Scott Maxwell, student in Asbury College, who feels a call to labor in the neglected field of Nigeria, Africa, is now ready to go to that needy work if funds can be secured to pay his passage and secure his equipment. The work for which he volunteers is a Faith Mission, and he only asks that God's people give him the means to buy his passage. If any one who reads this notice feels impressed to assist this worthy young man, if you will send your offering to me I will see that Brother Scott receives it.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

REV. O. G. MINGLEDORFF, D.D.

Lesson VIII.—February 20, 1927.

Subject.—Serving in and through the Church. Matt. 5:13-16; Acts 2:42-47.

Golden Text.—We are laborers together with God. 1 Cor. 3:9.

Time.—A. D. 27; A. D. 39.

Place.—Jerusalem.

Introduction.—The English word church is a fairly good translation of the Greek word ekklesia. In the New Testament the Greek word is used in several different senses. In its civil or political import it was applied to almost any sort of gathering of people, even to a tumultuous mob. In its Christian usage, it applies (1) to the entire body of converted people, no matter to what denomination they may belong, or to none; (2) to a particular group, as the church in Jerusalem or Ephesus. During the passing centuries the word has taken on new meanings. We speak of the Presbyterian Church, the Methodist Church, etc., and such use of the term is legitimate, provided the body so named is scriptural in faith. It cannot be applied to such groups as Mormons or Unitarians, Russellites or Eddyites. A body composed of Modernists cannot be called a church.

The Greek word as used in the New Testament is compounded of two words, and means "called out." In this scriptural sense it can be applied only to such as are saved from sin. Multitudes now belonging to our different denominations do not belong to the Church of God. When Jesus declared that the gates of hell should never prevail against his Church, he was using the word with reference to saved people, and not towards any man-made institution. Every human organization (whether it deserve the name of church or not), from Romanists to Mormons, may go to its funeral, but the true CHURCH of God will live on among men. He can push any of these denominations into its grave, and raise up a better one to take its place whenever he sees fit.

In the early days of Christianity the Church was almost completely minus all ecclesiastical machinery. There were some bishops, some elders and some deacons—the last word meaning servants of the churches to which they belonged. There were no connectional boards, nor connectional officers. They did not have even a secretary of missions. No missionary had a guaranteed salary. In fact, it does not appear that they had any salaries at all. Paul labored as a maker of tents to supply his wants, some of the churches which he had established being kind enough to send him a donation once in a while. To see our big Mission Boards begging for funds and then running into heavy debts, makes one feel sick when he thinks of Paul and J. Hudson Taylor in their missionary operations. The trouble is that the churches are living too far from the base of supply; I mean they need deeper spiritual life.

A false church (if I may so use the word) is a curse to any community or nation—Mexico is a fair sample; but a true church, full of spiritual life, is the biggest asset that any people can boast. Other institutions can live only as the Church of God prepares the ground for them. No organization can be any better than the people who compose its membership. A lodge of masons composed of pagans would disgrace the square and compass. Public schools can live only where the Protestant churches prepare the soil. Be sure that your church is scripturally orthodox, and then stand by it with all your soul. There is no place in which you can serve God and humanity so well as you can in and through an evangelical church. I am free to say that you can do nothing in and through an unorthodox church, nor can you accomplish anything worth while outside of church life. "Come-outers" amount to nothing. Your work must be conserved, or it will be lost in the run of the years.

Comments on the Lesson.

In the first portion of our lesson, taken from the fifth chapter of Matthew, Jesus gives us two simple, but powerful, lessons concerning human influence surcharged with divine influence. In the first lesson he calls us the salt of the earth, but informs us that if we lose our saving power over our fellowmen, we are fit for nothing. When I was a boy on the old farm we used to buy coarse salt in big sacks to cure our meat; and sometimes we found cakes of dead salt mixed in with the good salt. It was hard and worthless; but it is Christ's picture of a dead church-member. Sometimes we find whole congregations of dead salt; for a so-called church that has no conversions about her altars is dead while she boasts of being alive. That 13th verse is, or should be, enough to make any individual shudder as he thinks of the day of judgment. I am living in a community full of unsaved souls: what am I worth for their salvation? Suppose we take the question before God, and ask him to tell us our true standing. Can we risk it? We cannot do less, if we expect to stand on the right hand of the Judge.

In the next lesson we are termed the light of the world; but our personal influence is still the thing that the Master has in mind. It goes out from each one of us just as the light goes out from a lamp. We may cover up a lamp, and hide its light; but we cannot stop our influence. The lamp gives out what it is; and we do likewise. A good tree cannot bring forth evil fruit, neither can a bad tree bring forth good fruit. We either bless or curse those with whom we associate. It is a fearful thing; but I see no way of escape. If one is good, he helps other people; and if he is wicked, he injures them.

Let me call special attention to the Lord's command to all of us who profess his name: "Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your father which is in heaven." Comment can add nothing to that. Take it to your closet on your knees.

The last half of the lesson portrays a sort of Christian communism. Verse forty-two is glorious: "They continued steadfastly in the apostles' doctrine and in fellowship, and in breaking of bread, and in prayers." Breaking of bread possibly refers to the Lord's supper; although they seem to have eaten their food in common. The great lesson in the verse is to be found in their steadfastness to doctrine, and in their daily praying. Nothing on earth can stop such saints from winning men for Jesus Christ. They had spiritual power with God and with men.

43. That was a day of wonders and signs; and it was needed at that time to confirm the apostles' teachings and their profession. But that day has passed away; and we no longer need such things; albeit, they might be of service in heathen lands, if men had sense enough to keep humble and to use them solely for the glory of God. Jesus Christ, God in human flesh—was the greatest miracle this world has ever known; and the conversion of a soul is next to that. He who is born of the Holy Spirit needs no further evidence of the Deity of the God-man.

The Christian communism portrayed in verses 44-46 did not, and could not, continue. It was in some measure necessary at that time, in order that destitute Christians might not suffer; and it showed a blessed generosity on the part of those who were in possession of wealth; but I do not believe that it ever was God's purpose that such communism should continue among Christian people. That, however, is no excuse for stinginess. If we see our brothers have need of food and clothing, and other necessary things, we cannot, we dare not, shut up against them our bowels of compassion. Stingy people cannot be Christians at all.

47. This verse needs some special attention. They were "praising God." A praising church is a winning church. They "were in favor with all the people." I think we would not do violence to the passage, if we said, "all the common people." The rulers of the Jews and the Pharisees hardly felt very kindly towards them. "The Lord added to the church daily such as should be saved." The Greek says: "Such as were being saved," which is the correct rendering of the passage.

Rev. and Mrs. Jack Linn have been engaged for five weeks in a large tent revival in Miami, Fla., and will continue several more weeks. Bro. Linn writes that the people are hungry for the old-time Gospel and many are getting into the fountain. The tent is located at N. W. 17th Ave. and 38th Street. Any reader who may visit Miami is invited to the tent. The Linns ask for the prayers of The Pentecostal Herald readers.

Rev. and Mrs. E. L. Sanford closed a very successful revival in the M. E. Church, Crum, Ky., for Rev. P. S. Elam, pastor. Forty members were received into the church and one hundred were converted.

Rev. F. P. McCall: "Great year 1926, and I open up with fine prospects for 1927. I am now in a good meeting at Wellborn, Fla. I have been here twice before and find some real good people on the firing line. If any one wants my help in meetings I can go to them after April 6th."

Flossie Haines, 13517 Milan Ave., Cleveland, Ohio, a graduate of Cleveland Bible Institute, is now available for calls for Young People's Meetings, or for one to five day conventions, preaching two or three times on Sunday. She will go anywhere for freewill offering. For reference write to Rev. C. W. Butler, 3219 Cedar Ave., Cleveland, Ohio.

Miss Frances Holmes, McKamie, Ark., desires to get in touch with parties needing a pianist for revival meetings.

To Whom It May Concern:

I number Rev. G. M. Spivey, one of our evangelists, of Macon, Ga., among my intimate friends. I have watched his life and ministry for some years and have found him to be a true minister of Jesus Christ with a genuine passion for the redemption of mankind. His work is always deeply spiritual and on a sound constructive basis. I believe that he will do any church good and not harm.

Respectfully,
Arthur J. Moore.

The Fourth Annual New Year's Day Meeting, inaugurated by the writer, when pastor of Embury Church, Collingswood, was held in First Church, Collingswood, New Year's Day. Rev. John Fleming preached, morning, afternoon and night. About 60 seekers at the altar, 81 churches represented, the most distant being Pittsburgh. It was a day of gracious visitation and those attending voted it the best New Year's Day Meeting held thus far. Plans are already under way for Jan. 1, 1928.—W. B. Woodrow.

SPIRITUAL BOOKS.

Z. T. Johnson, A.M.

Library for Unconverted.

This series of booklets has at the head a little pamphlet called, "Your Friend." It is a strident appeal to the sinner to realize that Jesus is the best friend he can have, and urges him to test him to the fullest. It has a gripping power that is rarely found in a written work. It would be fine to distribute among your friends who need some real Gospel.

"Come to Jesus," by Hall, is likewise a book that shows Jesus as the best friend a sinner has. But it also shows why one should come to Jesus. It makes its appeal to every class of sinner and shows how that one may come to Christ and find the peace that his soul craves.

Every Christian, every preacher, every man who wants to be a soul winner should read the sermon by Jonathan Edwards called, "Sinners in the Hands of an Angry God." This is one of the most direct, emphatic, and powerful sermons on the lost condition of the man who knows not God, that we have seen. It shows that every unconverted person is LOST NOW, and that the only thing that keeps him out of hell is the tender mercy of a loving God. A few copies of this distributed around town would help awaken people to a sense of their need, and might win some souls to Christ. Order some today and help reach somebody for God.

In his sermon on "Sin," J. B. Culpepper shows that sin was born in Heaven, in an angel. He shows that it had its second birth in a woman's heart on earth. It was born the third time in man's will, and the fourth time in the hate of a fallen man. He gives a startling picture of the ravages of sin and the extent to which it works in human life. His illustration on "Who Burns" is worth the price of the book. Be sure to read this.

C. F. Wimberly gives 101 facts on the subject in his little book entitled, "Hell." This is clear, concise, Scriptural. It is full of suggestive material for preachers to use in sermon building. It also is a fine tract to give to some man or woman who needs a warning on the subject.

Dr. Morrison has caught a vision of the apostasy of the day in the pulpit that has hardly been seen by the average man. His booklet called, "Crossing the Deadline," gives a graphic picture of the situation today among the unbelieving modernists. He shows that by stealth many preachers are stealing away the faith of the Fathers in the Scriptures, and that as surely as God's Word is true the damnation of these false teachers slumbereth not. (Read 2 Peter 2:1-3). Buy some of these and give one to that preacher whose feet are beginning to slip. It may save him to be a real soul-winner.

James M. Taylor is a power when it comes to writing tracts. His sermon on "The Devil's Partners" is a stirring appeal to the man who gathers not with his Lord, but by his indifference to spiritual things scatters the seeds of sin. It reveals the fact that every person is a success—either for God or Satan. It takes one off the fence and shows that he is on either one side or the other of every moral question. This is one of the best tracts that Taylor has published. Do not fail to read it.

Now Christian friend, suffer a suggestion. Here is a set of seven little books that can be bought for a dollar. Have you ever thought about the fact that you can do a wonderful amount of preaching by distributing such books? One will read a little book like this who will probably not go to church. You know people who are unsaved. Get this set; read each one yourself; then pass them on to those in whom you are interested. They will read them and it might be will see their need. Would it be worth it to see even one person brought to a knowledge of salvation? Try it. The Pentecostal Publishing Company will be glad to send you the set on receipt of your order.

THE REJECTION OF CHRIST.

By The Editor.

THE Hebrew Church had often backslidden and been revived. They had been carried into captivity and been restored. There was a hope in them of a coming Messiah that made them strong in their weakness, gave them courage in their oppression and turned their faces toward Jerusalem in their prayers; but when they crucified the Lord, Jesus Christ, they reached the climax of crime. There was nothing left. Destruction was inevitable and it was fearful. The Jew has been a wanderer from the time he cried out, "Let his blood be on us and on our children."

What about the Gentile Church? We read from the lips of Jesus that Jerusalem shall be trodden under foot of the Gentiles until the time of the Gentiles be ended. Will the Gentile or Christian church, which is made up of the Gentile people, re-crucify our Lord? It is possible for the church of today to as completely reject and crucify the Lord Jesus as did the Jews; not contriving, to be sure, with physical death, but they can deny his Virgin Birth, his Godhead, the atoning merit of his death, the fact of his Resurrection, and his intercession at the Throne of Grace. This is the re-crucifixion of Jesus. This would be for the Gentile or Christian church to reject Jesus Christ just as genuinely as did the Jews. Then what would be left? Would not the time of the Gentiles be ended? Might we not then expect the wrath of God upon an apostate church made up of Gentiles even more fearful than that that came to the Jews? It occurs to us that the time has come for some serious thinking along these lines. We have men telling us that Jesus was not of Virgin Birth, that he was not the Son of God in any sense in which all men may not be the sons of God. And such men are elevated to high places in the church, while multitudes of religious professors follow after them, submit to their teachings, and, sad to say, endorse them. To oppose such men is to be accused of being intolerant, heresy-hunters, ignorant, entirely behind the times. May God have mercy and stay this tide of unbelief lest the whole church be polluted with it, Christ be re-crucified and God visit the church with a destruction even more fearful than that which fell upon the Hebrew people!

The greater the light the more wicked the sin. As the wheels of time roll on and we have better opportunities to understand the truth, the deeper the guilt for the rejection of the truth. Those ignorant of the truth, we are taught, are to be beaten with few stripes. Those who know the truth, or have ample opportunity to know the truth, and reject it, shall be beaten with many stripes. Could it be any greater sin for the ancient Hebrews to reject Jesus Christ than for the modern Christian to reject the Holy Ghost? He, too, is a person. He is in the world to guide, to teach, to regenerate, to cleanse, to fill, to abide, to give power. His rejection must prove fatal to all Christian experience. To grieve him away by sinning against him is no doubt to cross the deadline. It behooves us, in these days of reckless speech and irreverent actions, to watch ourselves and see to it that we keep the fear of God in our hearts, that we walk softly in his presence, that we cling tenaciously to his Word, that we yield ourselves to the guidance of the Holy Spirit, that we worship the Lord Jesus, that we trust in him with all our hearts for the cleansing power of his precious blood.

* * * *

Let those who will tear up the Bible, trample the blood of the Everlasting Covenant wherewith we are sanctified beneath their feet, join with the throng, boast of their learning, worship at the shrine of scholarship, so called, make light of all spiritual life, cast away the Word of God and the fear of God and the Son of God; but let us tremble before the Lord, worship him in spirit and in truth, hold fast the profession of our faith, keep our loins girded and our lights burning and always and everywhere watching, praying, witnessing, warning and biding our time. And, whether we go to him or he comes to us, oh joy unutterable, then we shall behold our King in his beauty! There can be no question that multitudes of people are rejecting Christ as the Virgin-born, eternal Son of God, who died for the sins of the world, giving himself a ransom for lost men, able to save to the uttermost all who come to God by him. It appears that we have a large class of people who very cheerfully compliment Jesus but they do not trust in him as a Savior. They will talk about him as a superior man, as giving us a beautiful example, but they will not accept him as the Son of God, to be sought as a Redeemer and worshipped as God manifest in the flesh. Such persons are falling far short of that saving faith which fixes and establishes the soul, which brings pardon, peace and full assurance. Let us see to it that we have no doubts about the Godhead, resurrection, and saving power of the Lord Jesus Christ, that we have no friendship with such doubts, excuse or apology for them. May our faith be unwavering, our courage unflinching and our love for our Lord made perfect until we no longer see through a glass darkly but face to face.

WAR WITH MEXICO.

There is quite a bit of comment in the daily papers over the straightened relationship between the United States and Mexico. In some quarters there is serious talk of war; such a war ought to be almost unthinkable. It would be difficult for us to believe that the administration at Washington could be provoked into war with our Sister Republic.

The Mexican people, for centuries, have been downtrodden under oppressive dictators and the iron yoke of a foreign ecclesiastical power. A true history of the sufferings of that people would be one of a succession of tragedy and oppression. For a number of years they have been passing through a succession of revolutions of blood and fire, struggling toward larger life and more progressive civilization.

Toward this Sister Republic the United States ought to exercise great patience, sympathy, and assistance. During the reign of Diaz, who was more of an emperor than a president, there was no question but monied men of the United States took advantage of the situation and got concessions in Mexico that were most unfortunate for the Mexican people. It is quite possible that some of these people, as well as certain ecclesiastics, would like to see trouble, even war, between the United States and Mexico; but the masses of this country ought to, and will, disapprove of anything of the sort. The Mexican people have suffered at our hands; our former war with them brought into our possession vast and rich territories, which they once possessed. They cannot forget this fact and, if they remember it with a bit of resentment, we ought to be very patient toward them.

Mexico is a great country; it has rich resources, a wonderful climate, marvelous possibilities of development and growth, and a most interesting people. Give them a chance; cultivate friendship, reach out a helping hand, have no sympathy with any one who would rob them of their property, or interfere with their rights. Let them fight out their difficulties among themselves, and let Uncle Sam be "hands off," except when he can give a helping hand.

If the United States, under any pretext, imaginary or real, went to war with our little Sister Republic, she would arouse, not only the indignation of all South America, but of Europe and the entire world. People are tired of war; they believe it to be unnecessary and a useless, godless, destruction of life and property. Civilized human beings ought to be able to come to peaceable understanding and intelligent adjustment of their differences.

We do not believe that the present Congress could possibly be dragged into a declaration of war with Mexico, but it would be well for the people, everywhere, to rise up and with no uncertain sound, give the administration to understand that we do not want, and will not have, war with our Sister Republic. May a compassionate God have mercy on struggling, confused, bleeding, impoverished Mexico, and lead those people into the broad daylight of an intelligent Christian civilization.

If you have kind words to say, say them now; Tomorrow may not come your way: Do a kindness while you may, Loved ones will not always stay.

OF ASBURY THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

A MAN AND HIS BOOKS.

Rev. G. W. Ridout, D.D., Corresponding Editor.

IN the Christian Advocate of January 20, there is an article on "Tell me a Few Books," in which a number of Methodist preachers,—Bagnell, of Harrisburg, Pa., Edwards of Denver, Colo., Brown of Grand Rapids, Mich., Cuthell of Iliff, Murdick of Cincinnati, Hillman of Indianapolis, Langdale of New York, Diefendorf of New Jersey, Ward of Union, Tucker of St. Louis, and Brown of Chattanooga, give a list of books for preachers to study.

A few things struck me particularly about this matter. Not a single conservative preacher of the old school was consulted—all these men are Modernists. The question arises again: Why does the Chief Editor in his symposiums always ignore totally ministers of the conservative branch of Methodism? Why in a matter like this did he not ask men like Faulkner, Sloan, Helms, Watkins, Barthols, etc. Does he think that there are no scholarly men, no men of books among the conservatives of Methodism?

Second thing that strikes me about this list of books is the kind of books recommended. Let me give the principal ones: "Landmarks in the Struggle Between Science and Religion," "The Roots of Religion in the Human Soul," "From Immigrant to Inventor," "The Man Nobody Knows," "The Story of Philosophy," "Recent Psychology and the Christian Religion," "The Dilemmas of Jesus," "Why we Believe Like Human Beings," "Sermons of a Chemist," "Jesus Christ and the Human Quest," "Religious Values," "The Contingency of the Laws of Nature," "Psychology of Human Society," "Religion and the Rise of Capitalism," "The Microbe Hunters," "From the Edge of the Crowd," "Jesus and our Generation." Two of the ministers name E. Stanley Jones' great book, "The Christ of the Indian Road."

Some years ago I was preaching in one of the large Methodist Churches of Chicago; before entering the pulpit I was taken to the preacher's study where a great many of his books were. I had a chance to look over many of the titles. They were largely books on Philosophy, Science, Sociology, Psychology, etc. Scarcely none on the preacher's chief business of bringing people to God. That minister had no record whatever for revivals and soul saving. We did not wonder when we saw the books he was reading. We preached that night an old-time salvation message and had thirteen souls seeking Jesus. The preacher was very happy at seeing such a thing happen, and gave us a most cordial invitation to come and preach for him again when we were in Chicago. He himself was not winning souls because he was reading the wrong books.

Judging from this list of books published in the Advocate it is clearly to be seen that our preachers today are reading the wrong books or, in other words, they are reading modern literature with a view of reconciling (if they can) modern tendencies of thought with religion and trying out that most abjectly hopeless of all tasks, that of making religion keep up to philosophy, sociology, etc., and the other ebullitions of modern intellectuality. The trouble today with the average minister he is giving more time to intellectuality than he is to spirituality; he is feeding his mind and starving his soul.

One has well said, speaking of the tendencies of present day preachers: "Instead of a fresh recourse to Christ we cry to the men of science in the other boat to help us. We are so incredulous of the knowledge contained in faith, we are so sure that real knowledge cannot come by the moral way of faith, but only by intellectual science of some kind that we look for corroboration—nay more, for verification—from the savants."

Let us look at the list of books again. A number of them are written by decided out-and-out Modernists. Some of them take in that most dangerous type of present day Psychology and Sociology known as "Behaviourship"—this kind of thing reduces man and his conduct down to will power with no recognition of divine grace, the Divine will, the supernatural, etc. Such a thing as the new birth is entirely wiped off the map and spiritual transformation by the power of God is not only ignored but too often repudiated. Conduct is put on the basis of the human will without any regard to the need of regenerating grace, which alone can make will and free will a matter of "good will" and righteousness.

Gibbon in his writings on the "Rise and Fall of the Roman Empire," indicated that one of the causes of the declension was this: "The minds of men were gradually reduced to the same level; the fire of genius was extinguished." It may be said of Methodism today that the reason we are declining spiritually is that the minds of our leaders are being reduced to the same level of modernistic teaching and that the fire of spiritual thinking and passion is extinguished.

It is to be noted also that the bulk of the books recommended are philosophical. We believe the one thing that is crippling the ministry today and stripping our ministers of soul passion, and soul saving power and efficiency, is the undue amount of time and attention they are giving to philosophical and speculative questions. It is a matter of grave question if the church is not drifting back into that state of mind which for centuries stifled its thinking and almost stopped its progress in the days of scholasticism. It really seems as though our scholars and the educated ministry are fast drifting towards another scholastic deadlock. Bismarck complained at one point in his career that his government, because of his anti-Austrian attitude, "put him on ice" by sending him as Ambassador to Russia. There is no question but that the scholastic trend of thinking and preaching in Methodism today is putting the church "on ice."

Bishop Jeremy Taylor once said, "As an ill diet makes an ill habit of mind so does frequent use of controversies baffle the understanding and make it crafty to deceive others, itself remaining instructed in nothing but useless notions and modes of contingent signification and distinctions without deference, which minister to pride and contention and teach men to be pertinacious, troublesome and uncharitable." Paul in Colossians 2:8 says, "Beware lest any man spoil you through philosophy."

Touching philosophy the question might be asked as Casaubon once asked as he was shown the Sorbonne where for four hundred years men had disputed about religion: "And what have they settled?" Philosophy is as much divided as anything on earth. There are many schools, many theories, there is absolutely nothing unanimous about it, philosophers are divided; the only one thing they seem to be unanimous in is the disposition to unsettle faith, destroy the authority of the Scriptures, and drive out the supernatural.

John Wesley had some splendid ideas and wise notions on books. In his advice to preachers he said, "You have nothing to do but to save souls; therefore spend and be spent in this work; and go always not only to those that want you, but to those that want you most. But it is objected: 'This will take up so much time that we shall not have leisure to follow our studies.' We answer, Gaining knowledge is a good thing, but saving souls is better. By this very thing you will gain the most excellent knowledge, that of God and eternity. . . . But if you can do but one let your studies alone. . . . We ought to throw by all the libraries in the world, rather than be guilty of the loss of one soul."

What are some of the principles which should guide a preacher in the selection of his books?

1. He should not select books which lessen his regard for the Bible and which reduce the Scriptures down to literature only. Fosdick's Yale Lectures entitled, "The Modern Use of the Bible" is a dangerous book because of this. Nobody can follow Dr. Fosdick and hold the Bible any longer in the sense our fathers did and the saints of the ages.

2. The preacher should select his books, not because they are modern and up-to-date. Some of the best books and the greatest are not the product of the shiftless and vacillating philosophy of the 20th Century. "Nor is it," says Forsyth of London, "the preacher's first duty to be up-to-date, to be in the van of tentative thought. He can do his work well without the very newest machinery." "The whole counsel of God, not the whole results of scholarship, is the preacher's burden."

3. The preacher should select his books in order that he might know and understand his Bible better and be the best and more efficient preacher of a Revealed Gospel.

Too many books are written which invite doubt upon things divine, which lower the tenor of God's word and which rob the preacher of a gospel passion. Well has it been said, "That the theologian should not be first a philosopher but a saved man with eternal life working in him. Christian theology is the theology not of illumination (or philosophy) but of conversion."

Let it be remembered that the newest books and those up-to-date are not the best—far from it! Said a famous painter to his pupils, "Why do I tell you incessantly to study the old masters? Because the great masters are nearest to nature!"

We have frequently found ourselves saying to students, study the old books—they are deeper, more profound, they are more eminently Christian and nearer truth and more faithful to the evangelical faith. Where can sermons be found like those of Chrysostom, Luther, Wesley, Spurgeon, Storrs, Liddon? Where can books be found in these days comparable to "Pilgrim's Progress," Butler's "Analogy," Paley's "Evidences," Hopkins' "Evidences," Fisher's "Theism," Orr's "Old Testament," Cook's "Lectures," etc., etc., etc.

It was said of Calvin that his special work was to replace the authority of the church and the Pope by the authority of the Bible. In all our reading in all our books let us see to it that we place the Bible ahead of all other books and literature—then will our souls grow, and our preaching grow, and our ministry be effectual.

MODERN APOSTLES OF FAITH.

Rev. C. F. Wimberly, D.D.

CHAPTER VII.

BISHOP E. M. MARVIN.

THE greatest honor that can be conferred upon a man or woman is that for a happy father and mother to name for them a child of their flesh and blood.

This is the peak of appreciation.

If this should be the criterion of honor as expressed by the fathers and mothers of Missouri, Enoch M. Marvin would undoubtedly outrank all the celebrities of that great state. Twenty-five years ago, Dr. W. B. Palmore, then the editor of the St. Louis Christian Advocate, sent out a questionnaire for the "Marvins" in the state, and more than fifteen hundred were reported.

Missouri has furnished her quota of great military and political leaders; but for one whose honored memory was, and is, so indelibly stamped on the domestic life of a great people, none can be compared with this humble, unassuming prince in the kingdom of God. He found favor with God and man, and prevailed.

The ancestors of Marvin came from England and settled at Hartford, Conn., as early as 1635. Little is known of them, except the parents came from the east and built their frontier home in Warren County, Mo. Enoch M. was born in the most obscure section of the primeval forests of that state, June 12, 1832. His early environments were barren of social or intellectual privileges. The gospel had scarcely touched the border land at that time, and was about as lacking as other advantages. The Methodist circuit riders had, however, pushed out into the wilds of the country. Here and there, widely separated, were log meeting houses; but the "church in the house," and the camp meeting furnished the gospel to the backwoodsmen of Missouri. At the age of sixteen, this crude, unsophisticated, awkward lad was converted. No sooner had the glorious light dawned upon him, than he "felt called to preach," the announcement of which caused no little astonishment among the leaders of that day.

Many are the stories of his early struggles and embarrassment, while seeking to enter and establish himself in the itineracy of the Methodist Church. He was tall, ungainly, and with about as much promise for the future as Abraham Lincoln in his youth. However, he secured license to preach one year after his conversion. He entered his life's career with absolutely no scholastic preparation. What a supreme blessing it was to the world, that Enoch M. Marvin lived before the days of intellectual deification and college equipment emphasis. He would not have gotten a "look-in" before a modern committee appointed by either a district or annual conference. The wisdom of the world is sometimes foolishness with God. By her standards of learning, Methodism lost G. Campbell Morgan, one of the world's greatest Bible expositors and preachers. Methodism would have lost one of her greatest preachers had Marvin—all things being equal—appeared upon the scene fifty or seventy-five years later.

We wish to present some "twice told tales," gathered from among the many stories of Bishop Marvin which, may be, like many of the "Lincoln stories," more myth than truth. But the truth of the following has been vouched for by men contemporaneous with him in Missouri Methodism. He was accompanying his presiding elder on horseback, going to a quarterly conference, whereupon the beloved gave him some fatherly advice: "Brother Marvin, we do not doubt your sincerity in seeking to become an itinerant Methodist preacher, but for your sake and the church's sake, go back home and chop stovewood for your mother. This will save you and the church much embarrassment."

Great fatherly advice; but the lad wearing a coon-skin cap would not consent to obey the wise admonition of those who were in authority over him. The voice and the mind of the church are not always the voice and mind of God. Enoch M. Marvin had heard another Voice louder than the machinery of the church. This diamond in the rough needed only the polishing touches of the Master Craftsman, to make it shine and blaze with glory.

Another story is apropos of his early efforts in becoming recognized as an approved messenger of God, and one destined to be reckoned with in higher altitudes of the church's activities. It happened at a camp meeting; the preaching was being done by brethren from the various charges of the district, or near-by circuits. A committee selected the preachers from day to day; they were in session, planning for the following day. The chairman said: "We ought to invite Marvin to preach; we hate for him to feel that he is being ignored." "No, it won't do," said another member. "We cannot afford to embarrass our people." After much discussion, it was decided to ask him to be the speaker at the morning hour the following day. "Of course, he will not accept; but we will ask him anyhow."

Marvin was sitting at the root of a tree, not far away, wearing his coon-skin cap, reading his Bible. The master of ceremonies approached and said: "Brother Marvin, we want you to preach tomorrow at eleven." "All right," he replied, not even raising his eyes from the page he was reading. The committee was dumbfounded when the chairman reported to them that he had accepted. "Now we are into it—what shall we do?" Then one of the brethren relieved the pressure by saying: "Well, let him go on and preach; I'll follow with a good warm exhortation, and get through the best we can."

With grave apprehension the committee waited for the preaching hour; they had not seen Marvin all afternoon. He had gone out into the woods alone with the One who had called him into service. A genuine surprise awaited, not only the camp meeting committee, but the great camping throng. When the ungainly, loosely-jointed preacher appeared before them, many were moved with pity and compassion. In a very short time their fears were forgotten, and their attention was gripped by the holy eloquence of the preacher; every moment his language gathered momentum and unction. The audience sat in amazement when the power began to sweep them like a tornado. Then the message was punctuated by amens and shouts, and a touch of Pentecost fell. Then in humility, the preacher thought to close, but they shouted for him to go on. Enoch M. Marvin was discovered at that service, and the people clamored to hear him daily. His reputation as a great, popular preacher was never again questioned; his ministry was eagerly sought for throughout the conference.

Still another story, and the most interesting one of all, touching his discouragement in early days of struggle. The truth of this story has also been vouched for by those living within the past generation; we pass it on as not at all unreasonable. It was during his first years as a junior preacher on a circuit. The pastor of a station near-by was called away, and the situation was such that Marvin was the only available substitute. The would-be fastidious congregation suffered through the service, while the tall, awkward young man blundered with his message. No doubt his fine sensitive soul suffered in such an atmosphere, which helped to cause the apparent failure.

At the close, the congregation filed out, no one stopping to even speak to the young preacher. He was left alone with the colored sexton; no one invited him to dinner. The negro took the humiliated preacher to his home and sat before him the best he had, which Marvin ate with thanksgiving. The years went by; the people of the station congregation thought so little of the young man who had ministered to them that they did not even remember his name. When next he preached for this station church, he was "Bishop Marvin," and every home was wide open to him, with eager invitations. But he then very quietly reminded them of the time, years before, when he was left in the church, and had to dine with the colored sexton. Whereupon, he told them he had promised to dine with his old colored brother who gave him hospitality when no one else would. Such a coincident today would cause reporters of big dailies to stampede for the "story."

During the intervening years before the war, E. M. Marvin became the outstanding preacher of the middle west, with but one man who could approach him in pulpit eloquence, G. W. Caples, who was killed by a stray shot at the battle of Lexington, Mo. At one time Marvin was stationed at Centenary Church, St. Louis, where he personally conducted a revival for many weeks, and about three hundred men and women were converted, and it was under his ministry, that the foundation of that great church was established.

In 1862 he entered the Confederate Army as chaplain to Texas and Arkansas regiments. When the war closed he gave himself to mission work among the Indians of the Northwest. In many ways, he regarded this as his greatest work. The south was so impoverished that it seemed impossible to carry on, and the leader of the church were ready to abandon the field. Marvin gave himself body and soul to financing this work, and through his labor, $5,000 was raised, and out from this struggling home mission enterprise a conference was established.

At the General Conference of 1866, Enoch M. Marvin was elected to the episcopacy, and he was not even present as a member, if the sources of information available are correct. When the news of his election reached him, he was both surprised and shocked. There was no doubt but that he was one of the greatest preachers of the south, and his election was a compliment bestowed through Christian appreciation for true merit. He was not chosen through the activities of the proverbial "organization."

He was appointed by the church to visit and study the mission work in China and Japan, and to ordain native workers. From this tour he returned by way of the Holy Land, and with data gathered, wrote his famous book: "To the East by Way of the West." He was working on the last chapter of this book when he was stricken; the book appeared the following year, 1878.

His first literary work published was "Lectures on Catholicism," which was a rejoinder to a book written by a Catholic priest. He published also, "The M. E. Church, and the M. E. Church, South." This book has been widely quoted in recent times and is considered as the last word touching the whys of all that great controversy and separation. He published a volume of sermons, which is regarded as meriting a place in the best sermonic literature of the country. However, only those who knew him in life, and from memory, can supply the magic of his per-

JESUS---THE SON OF GOD.

Rev. H. E. Copeland.

And I saw, and bare record that this is the Son of God. John 1:34.

JOHAN the Baptist is here, in this text, bearing witness to the Supreme Deity of Jesus. Who was Jesus? Do you know that there is not another question, except what shall I do with Jesus, in all the realm of human thought quite so important as this one?

To be sure there are mysteries connected with his person that no finite mind can fathom. The greatest minds of the ages have tried to delve into the mysteries of his Incarnation, and Person, his death and resurrection. They have brought us much to enlighten, inspire and help, but one and all, when they have been candid, have been forced to the confession of Sir Isaac Newton, who in his search after knowledge said, "I feel like a schoolboy walking along the shore picking a pebble here and there while the vast ocean depths roll unexplored before me."

Some say, "It is all a mystery, let it alone." But, you cannot let it alone. There are other mysteries that you may let alone, but this one, never! Man is instinctively a religious person; and he simply cannot shake off his religious instincts. He may get into wrong channels; he may miss the right path, and flounder in defeat and grope in failure, and end in despair and ruin, but he cannot get away from his religious instincts. And right at the center and heart of the Christian religion is Jesus Christ. His question today is the same that he asked his disciples, "Whom do men say that I am?" "Whom do ye say that I am?"

That is the challenge of Christ himself. A man may try to evade it; but an undefined Christ is no satisfaction, and no Christ at all. And, if there was ever a time when both the world, and the church, needed a clear, clean-cut interpretation of Jesus, and a heroic, manly proclamation of the facts, and a daily revelation and exhibition of Christ in the lives of his professed followers, that time is now. And, what is it to be a Christian but, having been born of the Spirit, to follow Christ, and to be Christ-like? A few days ago, in a town of more than three thousand people an old resident said to me, "I know of only one Christlike man in this town." Extreme? Yes. Overdrawn do you say? Perhaps! Yet, many Christians are not Christian. Our times need a proper interpretation of the Person of Christ, and a consistent exhibition of the Christ-life.

What can be done about the seething unrest of our day; the anarchist crying, "To hell with the government and society"; the criminal decrying responsibility for existence, and his defending attorney denying his responsibility for his crime; the toiling, struggling masses clamoring against what they believe to be the unfair and unjust inequalities of the present economic system; and modern society, which too often is little more than refined paganism, atheistic in head and paganistic in heart, seeking to relieve its sense of emptiness by horrible extremes of voluptuous and licentious indulgence? Is there any one who can help?

Is it not true after all that the world's ache is a heart-ache, the world's wound, a heart-wound; and that world's disease, a heart-disease? Then, the world's remedy must be a heart-remedy. The healing for the world must be a heart-healing. What kind of Christ have we to offer? Shall we give it merely the Christ of Theodore Parker, who said, "Jesus was the youth with God in him"; or the Christ of Pilate, who said, "I find no fault in him"; or of Lecky, who called him "the highest pattern of virtue; or of Renan, who called him the greatest among the sons of men?" Or, shall we offer Jesus—the Son of God, in the sense that no other man ever was, or can be, the Son of God—the Christ of the gospels?

The question concerning the Person of Christ can never be settled by debate, or in the realm of mere scholarship. Some of the scholars deny, and others affirm the Supreme Deity of Jesus. But, this question can be settled finally, and happily, by any individual who will turn to the sources of evidence—open to all.

When Jesus came he said in effect, "I am God manifest in the flesh, I am God foreshortened in human flesh." Because of the overwhelming evidence I cannot escape belief in the Godhood of Jesus.

I do not say as some do, "I believe in the Deity of Christ because of the miracles that he wrought." But, rather, I would say, "I believe in the miracles because of Christ, and who he is." Some are saying that the accounts of the miracles are hindrances to Christianity. Many refuse to believe the accounts of the miracles. To such the history of the miracles is no evidence of the Deity of Jesus. He does not need in our day this particular type of evidence. If you ask me if I believe in the miracles, I will answer that I do, and without any reservations. But, I believe in them because of Jesus himself. I would expect Jesus to do the miraculous. He is such an one that I could only expect him to do the supernatural. He does not need miracles to carry him. He carries the miracles. You ask me if I believe in the Virgin Birth and I will answer emphatically that I do, and with all my mind, just as I also believe in his bodily resurrection, and the empty grave. I would expect that such a person as Jesus would have a supernatural birth. And I could not believe that a tomb could hold him longer than for three days. I believe that Jesus is the Son of God, not because he arose from the dead; I believe he arose from the dead because he is the Son of God.

The teachings of Jesus evidence that he is the Son of God. The wise of his day marveled at his wisdom. The wisest teachers of all following ages have sat his feet, for "he spake as never man spake." The great apostle calls him "the Wisdom of God."

It is said of him, "The common people heard him gladly;" and the intelligentsia thronged him. Not only did he speak and teach so that all could understand (no one needed to carry a dictionary to church when Jesus preached) but he brought to them the satisfaction for every demand of life. The weak were strengthened, the discouraged found hope, the sorrowing were comforted, the bewildered were enlightened, and seekers after the truth found it in him, who said, "I am the truth."

Jesus wrote no book and published no tract. When the cloud caught him up and away from the sight of those who loved him the only record of what he had done and said was engraven in the hearts of his disciples. Under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit they wrote a mere vest pocket edition of his sayings and doings; but, it reveals the way to all the help that mortals need in any and every circumstance in life. And if all the books that have been written concerning Jesus and his teachings were gathered together they would doubtless fill a thousand congressional libraries. Matchless Teacher! No wonder that Daniel Webster said after reading the Sermon on the Mount, "No mere man uttered those words."

I am compelled to believe that Jesus was God manifest in the flesh because of his works—his influence—in the world. When Darwin said, "A man about to be shipwrecked on some unknown coast will devoutly pray that the lesson of the missionary will have reached that far," he was saying in effect that the gospel of Christ is an enlightening, civilizing, regenerating force. But Christ is at the center of his gospel. It was said of Mozart, "He brought angels down." It was said of Beethoven, "He lifted men up." Christ does both. Christ is God's way to man, and man's way to God. In Christ God and men meet in glad reconciliation, and happy reunion, and peace.

A group of keen Japanese university students sat in a semi-circle about a preacher of Christ's gospel asking questions about Jesus. They said Confucius teaches so and so, and Jesus teaches so and so; and drew many parallels in the teachings of Jesus and Confucius, and said, "Wherein does Christ and his teachings excel Confucius and his teachings?" The preacher, without pointing out the superior teachings of Jesus simply said, "It is true that Confucius taught so and so;

THE MIGHT OF SACRIFICIAL LOVE.

Rev. E. Stanley Jones, D.D.

PART VII.

BUT what of good works? Is the one who is forgiven under no obligation to do them? If the law of self-interest, as embodied in the ordinary interpretation of Karma, is taken away or replaced by a higher law will the soul not become careless? Where is the compulsion? The compulsion is in a new love. The forgiven man is taken hold of by a new force—the love of Christ. He begins to do good, not for return, but from love and gratitude. He does good not to earn salvation, but because he has it. Christ makes a man good by inducing him to repent and leave evil, pardons him, puts a new love in his heart. Out of that renewed moral nature good deeds flow as a fountain from a spring. Many try to reverse the process and make the man good by good acts. But good acts do not make a good man, but a good man does good acts; the good fruit is made by the tree, not the tree by the fruit. Christ begins at the right place—he makes the man good—saves him, renews him, lifts him out of his old past life, and thus a new heart of love brings forth new deeds.

Christ does this by personal attachment of the forgiven soul to himself. A great psychologist has said that, "the most conserving and inspiring of all influences is the love of a holy person." This new love for the world's holiest person, Christ, is "conserving" by creating a passion of love that eats up the lower passions and desires of a man's life. Sin and evil are cast out by "the expulsive power of a new affection." There is no room for the lower because we are possessed by the higher. Psychology tells us that "one impulse can only be replaced by another impulse." No negative, repressive methods will suffice. A positive impulse must take the place of the lower impulse; that impulse is the love of Christ. But it is more than "conserving," it is "inspiring." Christ's passion for service to others becomes our own. Like produces like. As Christ loved we love, as he served we serve. Good deeds to others spring from love, not from self-interest.

Pandita Ramabai saw this transforming power of the love of Christ, and as a Hindu it greatly impressed her. She went to England to see what she could apply to her work of uplifting Indian womanhood. She loved her country and her people intensely, and wanted to know what would be best for their uplift and redemption. In visiting some rescue homes in England, where fallen women were helped back to a new life, she says that she saw something she had never seen before. These women who had been living a low, degraded, sensual, and often drunken life, were not only saved from the former degradation but they were actually transformed. Their faces shone with a new light. Instead of having to be protected by artificial means from the old life, they turned back into the slums, and with radiant faces and loving hearts were rescuing those who were in the same degradation the rescuers had been in. She could scarcely credit the fact that some of these gentle, pure and devoted women had themselves been rescued. She found that the secret was in the love of Christ. The expulsive power of a new affection for the holy Jesus saved them and sent them with a passion of service to their fallen sisters. This transforming love "conserved" and "inspired." Pandita Ramabai said, "This is what India needs," and now, as a Christian, she has between fifteen hundred and two thousand of her Indian sisters in her Home at Kedgaon, many of whom were rescued from lives of shame. And the Home is filled with the love of Christ—a love that fills them, transforms them and sends them to pray and work for the fallen.

Let us look at this matter from a slightly different standpoint. If this sacrificial love, of which we spoke before, is the most beautiful and the noblest thing in the world, God must be intensely desirous of seeing it increased in the hearts of his children. How can this sacrificial spirit be implanted and developed? God cannot command it. It would not come from mere commanding. He could not merely teach it and make it effectual. He must show the way. For "character is caught, not taught." We catch it from the example of others, rather than from their teaching. So a God teaching sacrificial love and withholding himself from its practice would leave the hearts of men cold and indifferent. He must show the way. And he has shown the way! The cross is the way and the cross creates the sacrificial spirit in others. There men's hearts have been filled with a passion to serve—an unquenchable passion. To illustrate: during the Boxer uprising in China many missionaries were brutally murdered. The Chinese blindly thought they were the enemies of their civilization. (Incidentally, it may be said that they have since learned that China has no better friends, for they have stood by that infant Republic and have helped to keep it from going to pieces on the rocks of greed and inward dissension). Among those murdered in the uprising was a missionary by the name of Pitkin. He came to China without salary or remuneration of any kind. He gave his money to hospitals and educational institutions. He toiled at the language, but before he could tell the people of his love, the Boxer uprising took place. The mob was nearing his place when Pitkin called a Chinese friend and said, "They will kill you. You must escape. If they kill me, tell my loved ones at home that God was with me at the last and that his peace was my consolation. Tell them to send my son to Yale University for his education, and tell my son when he gets through the University to come to China and take up his father's work." The Chinese friend escaped. The mob broke through the gate, shot Pitkin, cut off his head and hung it on the city gate, and threw the body out, unburied, to the wolves and jackals. The son is now in Yale and is preparing to go to China upon completion of his course and give his life for the murderers of his father.

murderers, "Father forgive them for they know not what they do;" and the same spirit had caught fire in their own hearts, and they went forth gladly to serve and to die, if need be. Nor was this case unique. In another missionary family, father, mother, a son and daughter were all killed; and three out of the four remaining children went back to China to devote their lives to China's uplift. Bishop Hannington was murdered in Africa. His son went to that place later. The first convert of the son was the man who had murdered his father, the bishop. Another missionary and his wife were killed in Africa and today five of their children are working among their murderers. What could create that spirit? Nothing but the cross of Christ. There are those who think that Christian Missions are founded upon American dollars and British pounds. They are mistaken. They are founded upon the love of Christ and the sacrificial spirit of the cross. True, men are giving millions for the uplift of nations not their own. But what makes them do it? The love of Christ! It is the same spirit that has caused ten thousands of young men and women from our universities to give their lives to the service of foreign lands and to the delivering of this story of Redeeming Love. Seas are not too broad, nor mountains too high, nor loneliness too lonely, nor difficulties of language and racial difference too unsurmountable, nor discouragements too severe to hold back the passion of love created in their hearts by the suffering Son of God. They have been conquered by the love of the Crucified. The Christian Missions are founded upon the love of Christ.

What could make that father give his life, his fortune and his only son for a nation not his own? And what could make that son forgive, and make him look forward with joy to serve the ungrateful nation that murdered his father? Only one thing: both father and son had stood before the cross. They had heard Jesus pray for his tormentors and Self-denial is the Demand of Discipleship.

MRS. H. C. MORRISON.

"Whosoever will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross and follow me."

HE above scripture was spoken at a time of Jesus' greatest popularity, just after the feeding of the five thousand, and after he extracted from his disciples through their spokesman Peter, the great, confession of his Messiahship. Yet as the multitudes marched forward in their procession of exaltation, Jesus arrests the onmoving throng by throwing across their path the threefold barrier which is contained in the text: Self-denial, cross-bearing and following Jesus.

Jesus in his dealings with men, never tried to catch them by guile, nor lead them into the kingdom without making bare the heart of Christian discipleship, and clearly showing what it meant to be a follower of him. Jesus did not test things by material values, but he looked beyond the face of man into the face of God and saw things from an eternal standpoint. Over against the command to deny, bear the cross and follow him, is the ever blessed invitation accompanied by the promise, "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

How are we to deny ourselves? First, the sinner must deny his worldly self. All that pertains to the sinful life is to be laid aside, and all that pertains to the Christian life to be accepted. After we are converted there are propensities and natural appetites that sonality, can remotely appreciate his published sermons. The man was greater than his message. With many eminent men, they rise higher from the printed page. Not so with Bishop Marvin.

The subject of this sketch was married in 1845, to Miss Harriett Brotherton, and from this union were born one son and three daughters. The son is Rev. Fielding Marvin, an honored member of the Missouri Conference; the daughters are wives of Methodist preachers, except one—Marcia Marvin, who was a missionary to Cuba. One daughter is the wife of Rev. W. H. Winton, of the Southwest Missouri Conference, and the other, the wife of Rev. H. P. Bond of the Missouri Conference.

Bishop Marvin died in the city of St. Louis, November 26, 1877. In some ways the M. E. Church, South, has honored this major leader in God's army as she has not done to another. It is said in army circles that officers coming up from the ranks cannot take the place, all things being equal, with the academy graduates. But Bishop Marvin came from the ranks, and from the lowest stratum of ranks, and by almost superhuman application, took a first rank among scholars, educated ministers, and the nation's greatest pulpit orators.

CONSECRATION.

REV. GASTON R. COYNER.

PAUL said in the first two verses of the twelfth chapter of his epistle to the Romans, "I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service. And be not conformed to the world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect, will of God."

In our present social system it seems that we consider the greatest sacrifice that of laying down one's life for his country. Such is truly a great sacrifice, but if you want to know an even greater, read again these words of Paul. If we really want to do God service, we shall, without hesitancy, put into practice these wonderful words of advice. If we would be real, all round, everyday Christians, we shall come to the altar of consecration and say, "Here I am, Lord; I have been weak and sinful; I have done evil when I would not; I have found it too difficult to live a half-hearted Christian life; take me, O God, and all I have. Here I present myself with all I own in this world: here is myself, my money, my time, my talents, my prayer, and everything I possess in the world. Fill me, Lord, with thy Holy Spirit and help me to ever follow in the paths of righteousness."

Any Christian who will make such a consecration as this will find that God will send the Holy Spirit in power and a sunburst of peace will flood his soul, his face will shine with the light of glory, and he will understand more clearly the words of Charles Wesley in one of his hymns in which he speaks of the glorious hope of perfect love:

"Rejoicing now in earnest hope,
I stand, and from the mountain top
See all the land below:
Rivers of milk and honey rise,
And all the fruits of paradise
In endless plenty grow."

To whom is the great Apostle speaking? He said, "Brethren," and therefore meant Christians. He referred to you and to me; and if you and I have failed to make this sacrifice we are not living up to our God-given privileges but are only splashing along in the shallow water near the shore. Launch out into the deep! Then we shall take a great net full of fishes for the Master.

Paul said, "Be not conformed to this world." In other places he says, "Walk as children of light"; "Have no fellowship with the unfruitful workers of darkness, but rather reprove them." Then if we are to be Christians that amount to something we must tear ourselves apart from all sinfulness. This earth is a beautiful place to be. How thrilling to roam the hills and go through the forests, seeing the flowers in their beauty and hearing the birds send their songs up on the air. What a delight to gaze upon a golden sunset! Yes, the earth is good but on this earth are things evil. We are in the world but not of the world. God's Word says, "Come ye out from among them, and be ye separate." Are you willing to do it? You can't come into the church with the world under one arm and Christ under the other. It absolutely won't work. You'll have to unload, for the burden of the world is so big that it catches the gate-posts and keeps you out of the straight and narrow way. God help us all to be in the holy way that leads at last to Heaven; for without holiness no man shall see the Lord. This statement is made on the authority of God's Word.

We should remember that our chance for Heaven will be poor unless we work always, serving our fellowmen while here. It's fine for a person to shout the praises of God, but religion that makes one do that will also cause him, if he'll let it, to love his fellowmen and serve God three hundred and sixty-five and one-fourth days in the year.

Friend, if you have not yet consecrated your life fully to God, do it now. Fall down before your Maker and surrender wholly. Then you will have spiritual iron in your blood, the dynamite of God in your soul and Holy Ghost fire in your bones. Let the sunlight of God blaze in, and that which is feeble will become vigorous and unfold itself. May the Lord grant that we may all be illumined and warmed and each day feel the balmy breezes of the summer of holiness sweep across our souls to impart to us the sweet, sacred experience of Heaven.

Then some day when serving God and our fellowmen here is done, we shall be permitted to enter that better country where we shall see Jesus, and Paul, and sit down with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, in a place where the sun goeth not down, but eternally sheds its bright light over the blood-washed throngs in Glory; where the twilight breaks into eternal dawn, where God shall wipe all tears from our eyes, and there will be no more sorrow or pain or death; where the flowers fade not away but bloom forever for the redeemed of God. There we shall serve him about his throne and shall be growing into his fulness and likeness—praise his Holy Name!

Some Things to Think About.

WILLIAM R. CHASE.

Just how much did Judas make by betraying Jesus? Not a penny. He threw away all they gave him. Perfidy pays no more now than then.

It is possible to get ready too late. The five foolish virgins found that out. They got oil all right, but were too late to get in; they found the door shut.

If you want to be saved, or to help some other one to get salvation, it is now or never. Dives could not come back, and Lazarus did not want to.

The tower of Babel was simply an attempt to get to heaven some other way than God's way. Men still are attempting the same thing, not willing to take God's way, hoping to get there some other way. They will fail just as surely as did their Babel ancestors.

Saul was not turned into another man until the Spirit came upon him. But when the Spirit did come upon him he had the unfailing sign, the sign that comes in every case; he bore testimony.

Of the three who saw the poor fellow who needed help, the Priest, the Levite and the Samaritan, the Samaritan probably was the only one who had anything to give the poor fellow. It took wine and oil and the Samaritan had them both. You cannot share with others what you haven't yourself. An unsanctified man cannot help one who is seeking sanctification. It takes wine and oil, both of them.

"When I gave all trying over simply trusting I was blest." No one ever finds Jesus until he quits all trying, gets quiet, becomes quiescent, and lets the potter take him in hand. Nor does one who does this ever fail to find him.

Death by hunger is horrible. The Word says: "They that be slain with the sword are better than they that be slain with hunger." It is not the folks who are on the outside, but inside the church who suffer from hunger. One may be dead and yet be passing the collection plate every Sunday.

Wells, the historian, says of man that "The current idea among those who are qualified to form an opinion is that he was a ground ape." God says of man, "So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him." In this and all other matters God's word is the only word that goes with me when it is a choice between his word and the word of some man. Amen and amen.

RADIANT LIVING.

REV. C. M. GRIFFETH.

HOW DO THEY GET THAT WAY?

It was a case of deliberate suicide. She had made careful plans, left specific instructions and then turned on the gas.

When I heard of it—of the tragedy of her life I thought of her as of years ago when she was a small girl with her bright smile and head of curls, and then I thought of her when she was a charming young lady, beautiful, captivating, with all of life ahead and then to think it all came to this—suicide!

My thoughts carried me farther afield. I thought of the change that comes in life. I thought of those that I used to know years ago, but now how changed they are from what they used to be! So different! How delightful it would be to have known them only as they were!

But perhaps I am changing too. Surely I must be changing. Am I not a part of this world of change? Can it be that I, too, am so different from what I used to be? Can the change be for the worse?

And ten years from now, shall I then be yet more different? Shall the battle against discouragements, disappointments, rebuffs and losses leave upon me such an effect as to lower my aspirations, narrow my love, and incarcerate me into bitterness and selfishness?

Is there not some protection from this sort of change? Is there not some way to insure my confidence and fellowship in both God and man from deterioration? I believe there is. That insurance can be purchased, I believe, by the daily payment of a certain premium—the earnest, living effort to live better and bigger and more altruistic today than yesterday. If I can today improve over yesterday, I shall make all the more certain a beautiful tomorrow.

Today I shall, by his grace, live the very best for God and for others. Today I shall not ask others to do me favors. Today I shall endeavor to bestow favors. Today I shall endeavor to be a blessing to some one and then tomorrow I shall be different. I shall be less like myself and I shall be more like the Christ!

REPORTS FROM SOUL WINNERS

MY NATIVE VILLAGE; ASPEN HILL, TENN.

By Raymond Browning.

I used to read an old poem beginning,

"Be it a weakness, it deserves some praise,

We love the playplace of our early days." That poem has become a reality to me now and during the past few months there has come into my heart a great longing to go back to the old scenes of my boyhood. Perhaps that little village would not mean much to the people who pass hurriedly through it today, but, as I remember it, it stands out in my thoughts as beautifully as the scenes described in Goldsmith's poem, "The Deserted Village." In the center of Aspen Hill, as well as in the center of the affections of the people, stood the old Methodist Church that my grandfather helped to build. It has long since been torn down and another built, but that old church occupies the foremost place in my affection. It was there that my father, then a strong, ruddy young blacksmith, used to take his half a dozen children to Sunday school and preaching; and it was there that I went to the mourner's bench nearly forty years ago and old Brother Gibson laid his hands on my head and prayed for me that God might call me to preach. That old church was plain but commodious. The altar was just a long oak board with peg legs stuck into it, and during revival times the floor about it was covered with clean wheatstraw, but there were glory scenes around that place. When the sermon was over, and the little organ would strike up, and William Butler would begin to sing and beat time with his thumb, and all the folks would join in that grand old invitation, "Come to Jesus just now," and Dora Petty or Aunt Jane Marks would begin to shout and the penitents would come down to the altar, then heaven seemed very close to us all. I don't wonder that Jacob set up a stone on the place in the desert where he saw that wonderful ladder in the dream and said, "This is the gate of heaven." If that old church were still standing I should like to go back and kneel there at that old oak bench once more and thank God for all the dear friends of the past who helped me on the way to the Christian life. I would like once more to hear the old Sunday school superintendent, Tillman King, say as he used to, "Prayer meeting tonight at early candlelightin'."

Just across the garden from that old church stood our little home. The old house burned and later father built another one. It is old now and weather-beaten and the little maples we planted in the yard are now large trees and crowding into one another. What a wonderful place that used to be when mother was young and strong and never seemed to think it was anything unusual to prepare dinner for half a dozen visitors almost any day and never got nervous if a dozen or so children played in the yard all day long. Our pleasures were so simple then as compared with the things children have today. If we wanted candy we usually had to make it out of sorghum molasses, but we had such a good time pulling it. "Antney Over" and "Prisoner's Base" and "Hiding the Switch" and "Hot Ball" and "Crack the Whip" and "Bul Pen" were not such intricate games as basket ball and tennis, but neither were they expensive and we got plenty of exercise out of them. Our nerves and our emotions were not jaded by a routine of exciting motion pictures and our minds were not polluted by tawdry shows and lewd magazines. Our joys were real and our sorrows were real. When Rudd Petty, one of the largest and handsomest boys in school, was drowned in Richland Creek the sight of his dead body and the screams of his mother haunted me for weeks. The movies of today are fast deadening the tender and delicate sensibilities of childhood. Sorrow has become a bore to most of the children and they lose the beautiful lines of character that only suffering can put into human life. I can never forget that night in my early boyhood when my little brother, Terrell, lay sick with meningitis and my mother was so worn with watching that she came into the room and laid down on the couch to try to get just a little sleep. It was just a little while after that I was again awakened and heard Iva Butler as she bent over mother and said, "Miss Nina, your little boy is dead." I tried to imagine that it was all a dream, but next morning he was lying in a white casket in the front room. Forty years have not been able to erase that scene from my mind nor the question that I asked mother a few days later. I had been playing in the yard but suddenly I ran in the house and went up to her and said, "Mama, do you think Terrell is in heaven?" She stooped down and put her arms around me and kissed me and said, "Yes, son, God saves all the little children." I ran back to my play perfectly content. A few days later she took me and brother Guy to the old Abernathy place, and when we were going home through the bluegrass pasture I dropped behind and began looking at the sunset until the light hurt my eyes and then I would look into the sky above and the sunspots looked like wonderful windows in the blue. I seemed to be looking right through the windows into heaven and I could almost see Terrell. Directly I heard mother's voice calling me and asking me what I was doing. I never told her, but since that hour heaven has always been to me a glorious reality. Mother is seventy-two now and her step is slow and her hair white. I am wondering if she doesn't sometimes try to peek through those windows to where father and two of the boys are waiting. I hope that none of the children will fail to get home. When I think of those seven children there comes into my mind that beautiful poem we used to read when we attended the little schoolhouse around the hill. It was in McGuffey's Fourth Reader and began,

"Which shall it be? Which shall it be?

I looked at John. John looked at me.

Dear patient John, who loves me yet

As well as though my locks were jet."

You remember that story of the poor man and his wife and seven children, and how they had to struggle to keep the wolf from the door. Long they had toiled and dreamed of a little home of their own. That was the goal of their earthly ambition. One day came a letter from a wealthy brother and he told them he would give them a home and a farm if in return they would give him one of those seven children. The one thing they had always longed for was now within their grasp. After the children were asleep the father and mother took the candle and surveyed the little band from the golden-haired baby in the cradle to the tall manly elder son who was so like his father; then they sat down and wrote to the rich brother that they could not send one child away. After that toll did not seem so hard nor poverty so bitter.

Well, I loved that dear old Fourth Reader and I tried for years to get one and finally I wandered into a bookstore in Dalas, Texas, just two years ago and found an old worn copy. I asked the bookseller what he wanted for it. He said "Fifty cents." I just hope that fellow doesn't see this letter for he might feel disappointed to know that I would have given him five dollars for that dear old book rather than go away without it. In my mind there was a little plan like this: I wanted to go back to my little home in the North Carolina mountains and sit around the open fireplace with my wife and children and tell them about that schoolhouse at Aspen Hill and "Mister Bob," our teacher, and the Friday afternoon sessions when we used to recite pieces, and particularly I wanted to read this poem to them. I got home a few days later, and when the supper dishes were put away we all sat around the big open fireplace and I followed my program until I started to read that poem. I used to read it glibly in the old schoolhouse, but a change had come over me. When I thought of my own good wife and my four children and my solicitude for them I just choked up and couldn't read. After two or three failures I picked up McGuffey's Fifth Reader, for I had purchased the whole set, and tried to read "Bingen On The Rhine," and failed on that. It made me think of my own soldier brother who died in the government hospital near Asheville just a little while before. That mountain home burned last March and I moved my family to Wilmore, Ky. There were some things that fortunately fire couldn't destroy. The memories of the happy hours when friends and relatives were with us, of the family reunions, of the sweet children of God like Uncle Buddie Robinson who visited us and prayed with us, and also of that wonderful day when we prayed for the healing of my boy and the answer came. I'll tell you heaven has a wonderful attraction for a home-loving man.

It seems that I left my fishing pole in the bank and wandered up the creek a bit, but now I'm coming back to the subject again. The truth is, I'm homesick for a glimpse of Aspen Hill. I want to see "Miss Rabe" Butler, my Sunday school teacher, and thank her once more for the good influence she had over my young life. I want to see Logan Beasley again who led me to the altar when I was fifteen. I want to see my cousin, Oscar Gatlin, who gave me a quarter one time that looked as big as a silver shield to me and whose first wife said when she was dying, "There are angels in this room. They are all about my bed." I want to go out to Billy Strong's home once more and see his widow, "Miss Mindy," and eat some of her teacakes like those she used to give us children forty years ago. I want to climb the hills and go to old Indian camping grounds and pick up a few more arrowheads and throw a few more rocks into Richland Creek. It will be good to see somebody that heard my old grandfather preach, and to talk with some that used to sit around my father's blacksmith shop. Some have gone forever, but I want to see if the children are like their parents I used to know. The older people will call me by my first name and there will be a lot of colored people who haven't forgotten me. My return might not mean a great deal to the folks, but it would mean more to me than a month in New York. Yet, after all I have said, there is an underlying reason which I have reserved for the last. Paul said in Romans 1:11, "For I long to see you, that I may impart unto you some spiritual gift, to the end that ye may be established." That is my chief desire. Since I have come clearly into the light and experience of holiness naturally my mind turns back to the people that I knew best and loved most. We used to have good preachers and good revivals but somehow there never was any preaching of sanctification that I can remember. So far as I know there isn't a person in that community that professes this experience of perfect love which was in former years the crowning glory of the Methodist people. I believe that if the doctrine had been intelligently and insistently preached that many of those people would have received it gladly. I have preached in the community some years ago but at that time I was not as clear in the experience as it has been my privilege to become in more recent years. Now the Lord seems to be laying that community on my heart once more. A cousin of mine has furnished me a list of about fifty of the leading families and I am going to send each one The Pentecostal Herald for three months and in addition I am going to mail each one a copy of my religious experience. Later, if the Lord leads, I want to get a good holiness team to help me and I would like to go there and help start a full salvation revival that would sweep Middle Tennessee. If any of my good friends in Giles County, Tenn., should read this letter and be interested in this blessed enterprise please drop me a line and tell me that you are praying about it.

REPORT OF EVANGELIST JOHN E. HEWSON.

It has been a long time since I have sent in a report to The Herald family, so as I have a little leisure time on my hands this morning I will write a few lines to let you know that I am still on the firing line. I still love you and pray that God will wonderfully bless you and make you to sit together in heavenly places in Christ Jesus.

Since I last wrote, I have had two meetings, one at Flemington, Mo., in the Methodist Church, with the Rev. F. W. Denton, pastor. We found some real good people there, and a lot that needed salvation, and thank God, some few found Jesus in the pardon of their sins. Those who were already converted, when they came up to the light of entire sanctification, refused to walk therein, therefore they did not get anywhere and, in a way, blocked the meeting from reaching the outsider that we ought to have reached; however, there were some ten or twelve who seemed to get real victory.

My next meeting was with the First Evangelical Church, Owosso, Mich., Rev. H. W. Link, pastor. We found Brother Link a full salvation man, a brother beloved, a pastor who has the welfare of his people on his heart at all times, and is a tireless worker in his church. We were entertained in his home, and had delightful fellowship with him and his good wife and three fine children. God manifested himself in nearly every service, in saving and sanctifying grace; there were about thirty who professed some experience during the two weeks; most of the work was done in the hearts of the church people. This is the church where, just one year ago, Brother Joseph H. Smith, Brother J. F. Knapp and the writer held a National Convention, with Brother Smith as the leader. It was my privilege while there to preach one morning to the student body of the Pilgrim Holiness School. There were about one hundred students present. That school is doing good work under the leadership of Professor Gardner.

I am at present in the Methodist Episcopal Church at a small town out from Peru, Ind., on R. R. No. 11, by the name of Peoria. The prospects are good for a meeting. Rev. Clark W. Myers, an old Asbury boy, is the pastor of this people. The congregations are increasing and we feel that God is going to bless in the salvation of souls.

I have some open dates after February 1st; any one wishing my services may write me at 127 N. Chester Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.

John E. Hewson, Evangelist.

GOOD LETTER FROM A WORTHY EVANGELIST.

Paul says, "Whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth, and scourgeth every son whom he receiveth." Heb. 12:6. And Jesus said, "Every branch that beareth fruit he purgeth it that it may bring forth more fruit." John 15:2. For four weeks past I have been under the blessed chastening rod of my matchless Lord, with quite an illness. During the time while shut in he taught me so much I did not dream possible for one so unworthy, and revealed to me truths I little dreamed ever knowing, and in all bringing me to the place where the chastening "yieldeth the peaceable fruit of righteousness" and has brought me into a deeper sense of that "Rest" that is for the people of God. I have come to fuller understand the "rest" for those who cease from all their works and just lay all on God and let him have right of way. It seems to me I never loved his word and prayer better, and preaching the gospel will mean more to me and I feel that through this unworthy servant it will mean more to my hearers. I am a strong believer in Divine Healing but I am now thoroughly convinced that sometimes it pleases God to permit sickness to come for chastening purposes to bring his own into deeper experiences. So the devil's attack turns to God's glory and my good.

I am now so rapidly recuperating I will be ready to answer calls for meetings any time after Jan. 25th. I am making up my slate for spring and summer meetings and will be glad to hear from any pastor or church desiring meetings on full salvation lines.

R. F. Whitehurst, Box 14, Wilmore, Ky.

PARKER, INDIANA.

Our revival began Dec. 12, and closed Jan. 9, with Rev. J. W. Norris, of Columbia, Ky., as evangelist. He is a Spirit-filled man and is not afraid to preach the truth and uncover sin. Chas. W. Cox, of Winchester, Ind., had charge of the music. Bro. Cox is a man of God and was a great blessing to the meeting. This is the best meeting that has been held here for sometime. God was faithful, conviction was deeply felt. Twenty-five received definite blessings, some saved and some sanctified; four were taken into the church and we are expecting others to follow. God is still on the throne and is remembering Parker. We feel our revival is just beginning.

PART III.

NO doubt the gospel is the power of God unto salvation, but in order to save it must be preached, and it must be preached by those who have been saved by its power; who not only believe in its power, but experience and feel within themselves, its saving power.

St. Paul was called to be a preacher and a witness. The true preacher of the gospel must be a glad, faithful witness to the power of the gospel within himself. He not only preaches Jesus, but he knows Jesus. He preaches that Jesus is mighty to save, and he witnesses that Jesus has saved him. The people will always give attention to such a preacher; a large percent of them will believe his message and seek the Saviour he proclaims.

The greatest need of these times, of times past, and times to come, is a God-called, Spirit-filled ministry; men who believe the Bible, who have a personal knowledge of the saving power of Jesus Christ, and who, unashamed, with great joy of soul, go forth preaching mightily the salvation provided in the atonement the Lord Jesus has made for a lost race.

We do not believe that the holiness people of the United States in the various churches are accomplishing one tenth of the work possible. There are multitudes everywhere hungering for a great gospel, desiring a mighty Savior, longing for the full salvation; they would not only be saved from hell; they would be saved from sin. They would not only be saved in heaven; they would like to be saved in this world, delivered from the inward foe in order that the kingdom of God, which is joy and peace in the Holy Ghost, may be set up within them, that they may have a personal millennium within their breasts where Jesus reigns supreme.

A gospel of this character would be good news indeed. This is exactly the gospel the holiness people believe in, and propose to preach. This is the salvation that God has provided in Christ. This is what the world needs; it is our duty and high and holy privilege to bring this gospel to the multitudes. There is no power on earth or in hell that can prevent us doing it if we will fully awake to the need of it and the blessedness of giving it to the people.

Some one tells me that there are at this time in the schools of the Nazarene Church one thousand young men preparing for the ministry who claim the blessed experience of entire sanctification; who are the genuine sons of John Wesley, who are going out to preach mightily full salvation from sin through faith in Christ.

There is a large number of young men in the schools of the Pilgrim Holiness Church who are preparing for the ministry. They have a great hearing; they are preaching to multitudes; they are rapidly increasing their forces; they are faithful to the Wesleyan interpretation of the Bible doctrine of holiness; they are making converts by hundreds and thousands.

In John Fletcher College, Oskaloosa, Ia., Taylor University, Upland, Ind., and Asbury College, Wilmore, Ky., there are several hundred splendid young men fully saved, loyal Methodists, Wesleyan to the core, preparing for the ministry. They will be well educated, soundly instructed in theology, and on fire with holy zeal. They are true spiritual sons of Wesley, thoroughly instructed in the fundamental doctrines of the Bible, they believe in; and preach, full redemption in Jesus Christ, here and now, by consecration and faith.

The time has come for us to become fully awake to the responsibility and opportunity, rally to the enlargement and support of these schools, double and treble the number of theological students, and help to set the nation on fire with a great revival. We ought to increase our camp meetings, build up and revive the old ones, open up new ones, secure scores of tents and bring the gospel to the people everywhere.

It is said of the ministry of Jesus that, "The common people heard him gladly." This is true today. The great common people will gladly hear the pure gospel of the Lord Jesus. Your destructive critics have no message for this hungry multitude who are starving for the bread of life; but they will gladly hear a full salvation preacher. The disciples of our Lord were taken from among the common people, but by association with the blessed Christ, and receiving the baptism with the Holy Ghost, they became very uncommon people. What holy men! What wonderful preachers! What marvelous writers! However common a man, when God gets hold of him, drenches him with prayer, washes him in the atoning blood of Jesus, fills him with the Holy Ghost, and intoxicates him with divine love, he is no longer common. Take the back track of many of the greatest preachers and most convincing witnesses for our Lord Jesus, in all the history of the church, and you will find they came from among the common people. God found them in sin and ignorance; they fell under conviction, they were born again, they became in Christ new creatures, and went out to create a stir in the world for Christ and righteousness. They brought multitudes to repentance and saving faith.

Let the holiness people arouse themselves, form the closest possible fellowship and sympathy with one another, feel their responsibility, realize that God, the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, with the blessed Bible from lid to lid, stand for full salvation; awake to the fact that the day of revivals has not passed; that the greatest need of our times is a revival, that the skies are full of pentecosts, that the people are starving and ready to hear, that the world is our parish. Let there be days of fasting, nights of prayer, songs of joy, testimonies to full redemption, and a great forward movement, and God will show his power. It will not be necessary to go back into past history of other days to find evidences of the mighty displays of God in saving the desperately wicked, but we shall have certain evidences about us everywhere.

There isn't a question, nor a doubt, but the times are ripe for a tremendous forward movement in the Holiness Movement. The coming summer can be the greatest summer in the history of the Holiness Movement in these United States. We can have more camp meetings and larger crowds than we have ever had. We can have more tent meetings, with more people at the altar of prayer than we have ever known. We can have more revivals in the spring and fall in the churches, with a full salvation ministry, than were ever held before in the history of the Wesleyan movement. Let's pray for it, believe for it, stand together and work for it, and God will give it.

SELF-DENIAL IS THE DEMAND OF DISCIPLESHIP.

have to be conquered, and which have to be denied by making a complete consecration to him who can curb the unholy passion, cleanse the soul, and satisfy every craving of the human heart.

It is said the word "deny" in this passage means the same as it does in the scripture where Peter denied Jesus. So what Peter did when he denied the Master, is what we must do to ourselves. He said, "I know not the man." Peter did not want them to think Jesus was his Lord. So we have to come to the point where we will truly say, we have another master than ourself; where the claims of the Eternal One call so loudly to us that we fail to hear the feeble cry of our own selfish interests; in fact there are no divided interests, but Christ is all and all is Christ's.

How strange that we should shrink from the command to obey ourselves, when we consider the One who gives the command. Jesus is not limiting us nor asking us to be less than we are, but he wants to so crucify and bury the old self, with its infirmities and limitations, that he may lead us out into a larger and more glorious life. He asks that we give him our little self, that we may have his larger self.

In this connection we remember the passage which says: "Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone." It is said that a grain of wheat would lie in the granary thousands of years without manifesting any signs of life, when not allowed to come in contact with soil suitable to germinate it, but let it be planted in the rich soil of the earth and it begins to reach out after a larger life, multiplying itself an hundred-fold. But in order for this unfolding and multiplying, there has to be a death. So if our lives would amount to anything in the kingdom of righteousness, we must be content to be hidden away from the applause of the world, and die to all that clamors for supremacy from a human standpoint, that Christ may be magnified in us in a larger, richer life. This is what David Livingstone did, when he left all that life held dear, and with his hand in the hand of his unseen Guide, he penetrated the darkness of the African jungles in search of the lost black sheep who had never heard of the Father's love and the Savior who died for them.

But the self-denial is not all; this is to be followed by the cross-bearing. What was the cross to Jesus? It meant the pathway where his courage, devotion, love and sacrifice met the hostility of his enemies; but onward he moved until the summit of Calvary was reached when he laid down the cross and let the cross bear him up as the world's Redeemer. But would he have been the Redeemer if he had not borne the cross? The very thing which crushed him beneath its load, was the very instrument upon which he was to be exalted as the Lord of lords and King of kings. So the cross we bear, is the pedestal upon which our lesser selves are to be lifted into that larger and fuller life in Christ Jesus. The dead self will arise in the resurrection beauty of a mighty Christ who will live and move through us.

Yes, it is true, we do not know just where the cross may lead, but can we not trust our Guide? We may be assured of this: it will not lead us out of legitimate channels, but wherever our cross may cast its shadow, there will be the footsteps of an all-conquering Christ who will light up the labyrinthian ways with his glorious presence, until the bitterness of the way will be lost in the sweetness of Christ. Paul said, "Most gladly therefore, will I rather glory in my infirmities, that the power of Christ may rest upon me." When we are told to "Endure hardness as good soldiers," that means to take up our cross. We think the nearest Paul ever got to the Lord was when he prayed that he might know "the fellowship of his sufferings."

It may lead us through paths of light, where the rainbow of promise spans our earthly sky, but then too, it will wind its way along the dark and lonely places, where we have no companionship but that of Jesus; oftentimes the way will be so narrow that human friends dare not intrude upon its sacred precincts. There is no alternative for the Christian but to take up his cross; to refuse to do so, will mean failure and defeat from the very start, but the bearing of it, victory and everlasting triumph in the end.

Then we are to follow Jesus. Why should we shrink from following after such an infallible guide? He is the way, the truth and the life, and this being true, he can but lead into the way which will mean broader vision, clearer interpretation, and fuller comprehension of life. He who has trod the way before us, will lead us in green pastures and beside the still waters, though the road to these may be often through strange and hidden provinces which we cannot with our finite mind understand. The Holy Spirit has been sent to pilot us along the way, and if we keep an open ear to his voice, we shall find that "all his ways are pleasantness and all his paths are peace." We want the spirit of the great Apostle Paul, who when told that bonds and afflictions awaited him at Jerusalem, said, "None of these things move me, neither count I my life dear unto myself, so that I might finish my course with joy."

Let us each one resolve to deny ourselves, take up the cross and follow him, then after awhile, when we come to the end of the way, we shall have all eternity to praise our God for such an unerring Guide.

JESUS—THE SON OF GOD.

and Jesus taught so and so. The teachings of these two great leaders represent two trains, and Jesus Christ is the power that moves his train."

When Jesus ascended before the enraptured and bewildered fishermen that followed and loved him he left not a page of literature, no hospital or asylum, no school or church. Moreover there was no name on the tongues of men so hated and despised as was his own; the whole world, except an hundred and twenty men and women from the common walks of life, were his enemies. But in a single generation he had shaken the foundations of the Roman Empire to their base, and multiplied thousands had been morally transformed and spiritually quickened into new life. And like the silent power of springtime his transforming grace has continued until around the world men and women sing of his wondrous grace. And everywhere mercy and kindness and love have taken the place of savagery in human hearts. Who but the mighty God could do these things?

I cannot escape a confident faith in his Deity when I look at Jesus and consider his matchless character. If any man thinks that Jesus was no more than a man, let him stand before him in inward moral surrender, and obedience, and see if he can feel that he is standing before mere human nature. If he is merely and only human, we are far below human, for as the mountain peak stands high above the plains so he stands above both saints and sinners.

Every man has some moral virtue, and excellence. Jesus has them all, and in him they all reach their highest perfection. If I were looking for the highest pattern of patience, I would not go to Moses, who, because of the murmurings of the Israelites, smote the rock; I would go to Jesus who, when he was reviled, reviled not again. For the most splendid example of love I would not go to John the beloved disciple who leaned upon Jesus' breast; but to Jesus who had compassion on the multitudes, and loved us even unto death. If I were looking for the supreme example of fortitude I would not go to David who faced, and slew, the giant in the plains; I would go to Jesus, who went as a lamb to the slaughter, and as a sheep before her shearers is dumb, so he opened not his mouth. In looking for the greatest example of enthusiasm I would not go to the apostle Paul, who forsook all and counted not his life dear unto himself; I would go to Jesus of whom it was written, "The zeal of thine house hath eaten me up."

The character of Christ is the one flawless diamond of human history. All moral and spiritual elements are compressed and refined and reach their absolute perfection in him. Truth and trust, purity and patience and peace, righteousness and reverence, justice and generosity, meekness and manliness, gentleness and might, goodness and love, sympathy and service and sacrifice combine in him in faultless proportion and harmony, and shine out in purest splendor. He walked the paths of Galilee and Judea; the Friend of all classes and conditions of men and drew to himself the poor and the rich, the learned and the illiterate, the noble and the debased, the sinful and the suffering and the sorrowing; and all find in him the realization of their highest, noblest ideals, and the full satisfaction of the demands of their own hearts. He bore the mysterious burden of the sins of the whole world in his own body on the cross where his love for men paid its last full measure of devotion, and opened a fountain for sin and uncleanness. That Cross is the centre and summit of Earth's tragedy and is at once the deepest wound inflicted by human sin, and its cure. The character of Christ is incomparably the most precious possession of the human race.

"Forever God, forever man,

My Jesus shall endure,

And fixed on him my hope remains
Eternally secure."

The most important word, perhaps, is yet to be said: You can put Jesus Christ to the test of the laboratory. A man said to Mr. Coleridge, one day, "Can you prove that Christ is Divine?" "Yes," said Mr. Coleridge, "You can put him to the test." This is an age of experimentation. Everything must be tested in the laboratory. Thank God, it is in the laboratory of human experience that the Deity of Christ—his Godhood—shines forth in richest splendor.

I was conducting a meeting in a northern city when a young woman, a graduate of a great University, cultured and refined, said to me one evening at the close of the service, "Mr. Copeland, I enjoy hearing you preach, I believe you are sincere and earnest, but I do not believe what you preach. I do not believe the accounts of miracles, in the divinity of Christ, nor in his resurrection." I said to her, "What do you think of Jesus apart from these things?" She said, "I not only admire him, I adore him as a man, and find in him the realization of my own highest ideals of manhood." I asked, "Would you like to know whether he is more than a man, and if he arose from the grave?" She answered, "I certainly would." Again, I asked, "If God were to reveal to you that Christ was Divine and that he did arise from the grave, would you be willing to surrender to him your heart and life, and let him be your Savior?" She said, "I certainly would, and gladly." Then I said to her, "Go home, and go on your knees, and tell God that you are confused, and that you have doubts as to whether Christ arose, and that you want it made clear to you; and tell him that if Christ arose and if he is the Savior of men, that you want him as your Savior, and that you will follow him." She came back to the service the next evening, and said to me, "Mr. Copeland, I cannot prove that Christ rose from the grave; but I know that he lives for he lives in my heart."

While I was a pastor in Iowa my phone rang one day. When I answered a man asked, "Would you go into a home where there is 'flu' to pray?" I said, "Yes, my brother; I would go anywhere I might be desired to pray." I went immediately to that home (it was during the first awful epidemic of influenza) the man met me at the door, and said, "Our little girl is very low; if she dies I am afraid it will about kill my wife." His wife had been an invalid from the birth of her child. I said to him, "George, your wife is a Christian, and God will comfort her." Quickly we came into the room where the child was dying, we looked a moment into her face, he turned to me and said, "Mr. Copeland, is my child not dying?" "Yes," I said softly, "she is dying." He ran from the room in agony. In a moment the child was gone. His wife sat in her wheel chair weeping, yet with a look of peace and of victory. She asked me, "Where is my husband?" I said, "I will bring him to you." I found him in another room in awful agony of soul, and said to him, "George, your wife is calling for you." A dagger thrust into his heart could not have caused greater pain. He cried, "It will kill my poor wife." I told him, "No, God is comforting your wife, and you must be brave and manly for her sake." We walked together into the room where the dead child lay upon its bed, and the invalid mother sat in her chair. She was calm and reposed and peaceful, though sorrowful. He dropped on his knees at the side of her chair, weeping his heart most out. She put one arm about his shoulders, and brushed backward his hair with the other hand, and said, "I am so sorry for you, husband. I know it must be awfully hard without Christ. He means so much to me now." He turned to me and said, "Mr. Copeland, if Christ can do this for my wife, I want to live for him, I want him to be my Savior, and I want you to pray that he will save me now." As I knelt at his side praying, his wife was praying, and Christ came to his heart in forgiving, healing, comforting grace. He looked up through his tears to thank and praise him, who bore our sorrows for us, and with whose stripes we are healed. He is the Wonderful Counsellor, Mighty God, Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace. Will you make him your Savior? Will you follow him, and follow him in his way?

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS

WHAT CHILDREN MOST NEED.

The question is not what you want the most, but what you need the most. For sometimes people want things they do not really need and that would not be good for them.

But all of us need the salvation of our souls; or, I may say, a new heart, and God says, "A new heart will I give you." And he wants to give it to children as well as to anyone else.

A little boy told his Sunday school teacher that his baby sister had died. The teacher asked him if he would like to die. He replied, "Not until I get a new heart." No doubt he got a new heart early in life.

Years ago I asked each one of a group of children, "What would you like most to have?" Each one had a different answer. But a little girl answered, "A clean heart." What an excellent answer that was! With such a sense of need, no doubt she got it before becoming a woman.

Now, dear children, after we become Christians, there is usually something within us, in which we were born, that sometimes gives us trouble. We are not always fully dead to everything wrong, such as impatience and sinful pleasures. But God wants to cleanse us from all these things. Such a full salvation is for children as well as for older persons. I hope you are interested in the subject, and will seek until you find a thoroughly clean heart. God gives it to those who hunger and thirst for it.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a little South Carolina girl join your happy band of girls and boys? I am twelve years old. I go to school and am in the sixth grade. How many of the cousins go to Sunday school every Sunday? I go and like it very much. My Sunday school teacher's name is Mrs. Dick Kirkwood; she is a good teacher. Mama and papa gave the book, "Beautiful Girlhood," to me for a Christmas present and I read it through and liked it fine. I think every girl in the teens should have one of them. I think it is the best book I ever read.

Inez Grice.
Bennettsville, S. C.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Please admit a sixteen-year-old girl from the dear old state of Tennessee to join your happy band of boys and girls? I am a member of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church and I want all of the Christian cousins to pray that I may do the things the Lord would have me do. I have two brothers, both of them being older than myself. My father has been dead about five years, but I have a good mother living. Since my father's death I have been out of school some, but I am going to school now and am in the second year of high school. I hope to graduate two years from now. I will be glad to hear from all the cousins that care to write, and will answer all letters received. Hope Mr. W. B. has gone out for pleasure.

Maggie Lee Taylor.
Pleasant Shade, Tenn.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you allow a little West Virginian to join your happy band of girls and boys? I am between fourteen and eighteen years of age, five feet and four inches short, have light brown hair and gray eyes. I live on a farm but am at the city of Spencer going to school. I am a freshman in High School. I have read the boys and girls' letters in The Herald and I like them fine. I hope to see this in print. Please tell some of the cousins to write to me. I surely get lonesome up here and a letter once in a while would be very welcome. I will answer every letter I receive. Oh, I hear old W. B. coming.

Pauline Straley.
Spencer, W. Va.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you please let a little "Orleans" girl have a seat? Oh, dear, move along, don't crowd me so. I have never written to The Herald so I hope Mr. W. B. is eating pills. I am eleven years old. I weigh one hundred and three. I am five feet, eleven inches tall. I have dark brown hair. I have a light complexion. I am in the sixth grade. My teacher's name is Miss Helen Decker. I like her fine. I live in the country which I enjoy. How many of you girls and boys live in the country? I like to go to church. I can't go very often because I live almost ten miles from the church we belong to. We tune in on the radio and hear the sermons. I don't want to take up all of the room for I am sure it would not be polite. Do you think so? I would like to correspond with anyone who would care to correspond with me. I will answer all letters I receive.

Thelma E. Reeves.
Rt. 1, Orleans, Mich.

Dear Aunt Bettie: May I join the happy band of boys and girls? How are you and the cousins? I have blue eyes, light curly hair, and a fair complexion. You can guess my age. Has anybody got my birthday, Nov. 4? This is my first letter and would like to see it in print. I will gladly write to any one who writes to me.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I would like to join your happy band of girls and boys. I am a little girl nine years old. I have dark complexion, dark brown hair and dark brown eyes. My mother takes The Herald. I enjoy reading page ten. I have three brothers and two sisters; the oldest sister is named Augusta. She is thirteen. She has written two letters to the cousins. My other sister is named Ruth, thirteen months old. She is just starting to walk. My oldest brother is named Herman. Herman is staying with my uncle in North Dakota. My next brother is Walter, six years, and Joseph is four years old. I go to the Congregational Church. I go to school as much as I can. My teacher's name is Miss Gilbertson. Who has my birthday, Sept. 6? If any one has it write to me.

Mildred Bivins.
Lock Box 31, Barneveld, Wis.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Here I come again to The Herald. I saw my other letters I wrote before in print and hope to see this one. My grandfather is a Christian; he takes The Herald. He saw my other letters in print and I wish him to see this one. I've received two letters from The Herald cousins, both from Arkansas, and was very glad. Hope to receive more. As this is my third letter I will close with love to Aunt Bettie and the cousins. I will answer all letters I receive.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you allow a Missouri boy to join your happy band of boys and girls? I am twelve years old and weigh 76 pounds. I am four feet, seven inches tall. I have light brown hair and blue eyes. I have a sister Myrtle, who has written to The Herald. There were a good many letters written to her, so I want every one to write to me, and I will try to answer them. I was converted in a revival meeting a few weeks ago. I read the Bible every day.

Everett E. McGee.
R. 4, Smithville, Mo.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Here I come again to worry you all. But friends, I love you all and Aunt Bettie: I feel I must write you again, if Aunt Bettie will permit. I wish to say to Mrs. J. W. Cooper, I received your letter, but couldn't answer it as the name of the town was so dim I couldn't tell what it was, so please write again. I try to answer every letter I receive but if the name and address isn't plain I can't answer. After my last letter appeared in the paper there was a young man wrote me about the dances. I do not believe in dances. I don't believe any true Christian will dance. This young man told me he knew several preachers personally who danced and didn't see any harm in it. I don't believe any preacher who will dance is a God-called minister. I wish to say to the cousin who wanted to know where to find the Ten Commandments, you will find them in Exodus 20. Cousin "Sunshine," I received your card, but wish you had signed your name and address. I enjoyed your letter in The Herald very much, and wish you would let us know who you are. The revival meeting just closed a few weeks ago at the Methodist Church. Didn't have very large crowds but several were converted and joined the church, one of which was my youngest brother. We were so thankful.

Myrtle H. McGee.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Please let me join your happy band of boys and girls. I am thirteen years of age, and have black hair, brown eyes, medium complexion. I go to the Free Methodist Church, and I am a Christian. My birthday is May 21; have I a twin? Who can guess my middle name; it begins with E and ends with N, and has six letters in it. Lora Lee Thompson, I guess your weight to be 94 pounds. If I am right don't forget your promise. Esther C. James, I guess your name to be Catherine. Virginia Cannon, I guess your name to be Crystal. I hope this will be in print as this is my first letter. Love to Aunt Bettie and the cousins.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you please let me join your happy band of boys and girls? I am thirteen years of age and in the eighth grade. My birthday is Oct. 2. Have I a twin? I go to the Free Methodist Church and am a Christian. Who can guess my name? It begins with B and ends with E, and has five letters in it. Lora Lee Thompson, I guess your weight to be 93 pounds. Dear Aunt Bettie: May I join your happy band of boys and girls? I live in Canada and am twelve years old. Who has my birthday, Dec. 23? I have four brothers and four sisters. We had great holiness meetings last June. Bro. Miller and Brother Sufield were leaders. That is where we first heard of The Pentecostal Herald, and was glad to have it come into our home. We have great prayer meetings every Friday night and many souls have been saved. I am a Christian and it is the only way to live. We live by a great summer resort. Many U. S. A. people come here to camp and fish. I would be glad to hear from any of the cousins, and will try and answer all their letters. I must leave room for the rest of the cousins' letters.

Alice Myers.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I am just a new reader of The Herald. My grandmother sent it to me as a Christmas gift. I sure do enjoy reading it, especially page ten. I especially enjoyed reading the letter from Fern Longshire, of Bellville, Ohio. I am so glad there are so many Christian cousins who read The Herald. I am fifteen years old. I do not go to school as I was ill for more than three years, which time I was in bed 29 months, but am well and strong, thanks be to Jesus. I go to the M. E. Church, of which I am a member. I sure did hate to miss Sunday school and church while I was in bed, but I had a radio right by my bed and listened every Sunday to the preaching of the Gospel all day long. I would be very glad to hear from any of the cousins.

FALLEN ASLEEP

OUR LOVED ONE.

Our loved one is not dead, but living
In that bright eternal day,
Where heaven's joys are all unending,
And her last tears are wiped away.

She lives because our Jesus died,
That we might live forever more;
To his bright eternal dwelling,
She has hastened on before.

Broken every earthly fetter,
Swiftly through the starry sky,
Borne on snowy wings of angels,
To our Father's house on high.

There the trees of life are bearing,
By the river's crystal tide,
Brightest flowers are ever blooming,
Inside the gates of pearl so wide.

O'er that city cometh never,
Shadow chill, or shade of night,
Bright the rays of glory beaming,
Jesus the unchanging light.

Face to face she sees our dear ones,
As they walk the streets of gold,
And the King in all his beauty,
Their enraptured eyes behold.

She with them so soon will greet us
On that bright and radiant shore,
At Jesus' coming they will meet us,
To be with him forever more.

Jesus knows our heart's deep sorrow,
And the loneliness we feel,
He will give us joy in sadness,
And his love our spirits heal.

Let us cast ourselves upon him,
As we never have before,
Jesus our eternal refuge,
Thine, wholly Thine forever more.
I. B. Staples.

McCLOSKEY.

The death of Mrs. Arletta L. McCloskey occurred at the home of Dr. and Mrs. W. O. Wilson, 210 North Second street, at 3 o'clock yesterday morning. She had not been in her usual health for the past three or four months but was not seriously ill until within the past ten days.

She was a daughter of Abraham and Margaret Mellot, long since deceased, and was born in Nashville, Holmes county, Ohio, September 27, 1849, being aged 77 years, 2 months, and 22 days. In 1873 she was united in marriage to Abner E. McCloskey whose death occurred in 1905. This union was blessed with four children who survive: Mrs. W. O. Wilson, Clearfield, Pa.; Mrs. William Hess, Portage, Pa.; Mrs. Josephine A. Bardin, Altoona; Merritt McCloskey, Lock Haven. There are also four grandsons and two granddaughters.

Since her husband's death, Mrs. McCloskey has spent the winters in Clearfield with her daughter, Mrs. Wilson. She traveled much through the summer, always including in her places visited the camp meeting at Sychar, Ohio. Here she feasted on the sermons and the singing. She was a thoroughly good woman and made no small contribution to the advancement of his kingdom through her talent for singing and her willingness to testify to her religious experience.

Funeral services were held December 21, at the home of Dr. Wilson, in charge of the family's pastor, Dr. E. R. Heckman, assisted by her friend and former pastor of Trinity, Dr. H. L. Jacobs. At high noon on Wednesday, her body was laid to rest in the family plot at Lock Haven.

DAWSON.

Edith Loraine, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Dawson, of Goldsboro, N. C., left us to live with Jesus. Our hearts are crushed with grief, still we are saying, "Thy will be done."

God knew all about how lovely, how gentle she was, and how brave, how brilliant her possible future, yet we put her to sleep in her grave. God knows all about those that loved her,

How bitter their trial must be, And right through it all he is loving And knows so much better than we.

Little Loraine slipped away from this life Dec. 6, 1926, at 7:40 A. M. Just as the sun was coming forth in its beauty, she was entering the land where darkness and gloom never come. Her father and mother and six-year-old brother Robert, as well as grandfather, grandmother, uncles and aunts will miss the sunshine of her precious life of a little less than five years. Yet there will always linger a bright spot in their hearts to cheer and help.

ZOOK.

Rev. Daniel F. Zook was born in Pennsylvania, June 6, 1859. He was joined in wedlock to Minnie Bryan, daughter of Dr. Wm. Bryan, of Kentucky, on Nov. 29, 1899. Unto them were born four children. He departed this life on Dec. 22, 1926. He was reared by very strict parents. He became converted Feb. 15, 1898, and was sanctified in 1899. Afterwards he and his wife joined the Union M. E. Church, also was an associate member with Union Mission Association. He was ordained in the Association by Rev. M. B. Gott. He was an evangelist for 27 years. Many have been brought to Christ through his efforts. While leaving his dear family and sister, Mrs. Lavina Zook Karns, and a brother, John Zook, and many relatives and friends to mourn their loss, it is his gain.

"God holds the key of all unknown,
And I'm so glad,
If other hands should hold the key,
Or if he trusted it to me,
I must be sad.

"I cannot read his future plans,
But this I know—
I have the smiling of his face
And all the refuge of his grace
While here below."

"Then let us be patient, we who mourn, with weeping,
His vanished face—
The Lord has taken but to add more beauty

And a diviner grace,
And we shall find once more beyond earth's sorrows,
Beyond those skies,
In fair city of the sure foundation—
These heavenly eyes."

By his wife,
Mrs. D. F. Zook.

MILLRY, ALABAMA.

We reached home last night at 12:30 o'clock from Millry, Ala., where we closed a union meeting. The meeting ran from Dec. 15 to Jan. 2. In spite of the bad weather and the Christmas holidays we had fine crowds and real good meeting. God was with us. We were the guest of Dr. W. S. Knight at the Famous Healing Springs which is only one and one-half miles from Millry. My little family was with me and we had a nice cottage to ourselves. The hotel where we ate our meals is under the management of Mr. S. H. Page, who is an expert hotel man. Healing Springs is perhaps the greatest water today known for the cure of the ills of the body. Should any one who sees this have rheumatism this is a great place for such to be treated. I am praying that we may have an annual camp meeting at this place.

On Sunday, Dr. J. M. Glenn, of South Georgia, and myself opened a meeting at Calvert, Ala. Pray for us.

STILL IN THE BATTLE.

It has been quite awhile since I have written a report to The Herald, nevertheless, I am still in the battle, endeavoring to preach Bible holiness. It is my favorite theme because it did so much for me.

We can say to the glory of God that 1926 was the most fruitful year we have ever seen. The Lord indeed sent showers of blessings. I was in school at Asbury part of the year, the remainder of which was spent in Evangelical work. During the entire year we saw near 1,000 seekers for pardon, reclamation or sanctification.

Mrs. Hysell (a new member of our party since August 25 last, who sings, plays and prays) and I are at present in a meeting at the Wesleyan Methodist Church, Waycross, Ga. The tide is running high. Twenty at the altar last night. Things are looking favorable for an old-time revival. Our next meeting is to be in Waynesville, Ga. Brethren, pray for us that we might be used as instruments in the hands of the Lord to "Turn them from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto God, that they might receive forgiveness of sins and inheritance among them that are sanctified by faith."

Harvey B. Hysell, Evangelist.

KENNEWICK, WASHINGTON.

On January 12, the Nazarene Church at Kennewick, Wash., closed the most far-reaching meeting ever held by this young church. Although less than three years old and with a membership of less than thirty, at least two hundred people found their way into the services, the above number being present on the last Sunday night. We secured the use of a beautiful stone church owned by the Congregational people who have been without a pastor for some time. We now have a chance to buy the church which is very much needed by our people as thus far we have worshipped in a small rented chapel. Rev. Fred L. Canaday, of Portland, was the successful evangelist in charge. We often hear it said of some one that he preached without fear or favor. However much it may be the tendency to courteously speak thus of the evangelist, in the case of Fred L. Canaday it is true! But withal he has a personality which, under the blessing of God, simply does win. About twenty-five people prayed through during the two weeks. From among those who found the Lord we have reason to expect some new members who will prove very helpful in the work here.

Nathan D. Swabb, Pastor.

RIISING SUN, MARYLAND.

Have just had a very successful evangelistic campaign in the Methodist Church at Rising Sun, Md. There were eighty conversions and renewals, and a large number of consecrations. The pastor, Rev. J. C. McCoy, received fifty-six members into the church on the closing day of the meetings, with more to follow. The congregations were large throughout the entire series. A fine group of personal workers was trained and sent out into the homes to win people to Christ and the church.

Next Sunday we begin a fifteen-day campaign in St. James Methodist Episcopal Church at Lynbrook, Long Island, N. Y. I now have an open date beginning February 20. My address in Lynbrook will be 191 Walnut Street. Shall be very glad to hear from you. With best wishes for a good year, I remain, Yours in his glad service,

S. B. Goff.

MIDDLETOWN, OHIO.

Recently God gave us a good meeting with Rev. R. P. Dittmer and his good church at Springfield, Ohio, with about sixty souls in the fountain. At Verona, Ohio, God gave us another good meeting in the mission and we witnessed some real old-fashioned repenting and prayer through. Have had to cancel some meetings on account of illness of my wife, but will be afield again soon.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

REV. O. G. MINGLEDORFF, D.D.

Lesson IX.—February 27, 1927.

Subject.—Making the Community Christian. Gal. 5:13-25.

Golden Text.—Have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them. Eph. 5:11.

Time.—About A. D. 57.

Place.—Corinth.

Introduction.—I am not sure who names these International Lessons, but I am puzzled when I try to get the caption and the lesson to own kinship. Maybe it is my dull head, but I simply cannot get community evangelism out of the passage assigned for our study. It seems more like a contrast between sin and holiness.

It is a bit strange that we cannot find out exactly what territory constituted Galatia; but we cannot. We know that it was some part of the central portion of Asia Minor; but its boundaries we shall never know. Suffice it to say that there were several churches addressed in St. Paul's epistle, and that they were scattered about the cities in the region known at that time as Galatia.

No one seems to be able to learn exactly when Paul wrote the epistle; nor do we know where he was at the time of writing. The foot note at the end of the letter states that it was written from Rome. Smith's dictionary of the Bible says that it was probably written from Ephesus in the early part of Paul's stay in that city, about A. D. 58. In the opinion of Dr. Adam Clarke the epistle "was written at Corinth near the end of A. D. 52. And so it goes; and we know nothing definite about either the place or the date of its writing. One thing is certain: we have the epistle, and we know that it was written by St. Paul.

The purpose of the epistle, as well as the reason back of the purpose are both clear. The apostle had evangelized the region, and had given the inhabitants the pure Gospel of the Son of God; but while he was at work in other regions Judaizing teachers crept in, and perverted the faith of his converts. They had also made some headway in turning them against Paul himself, telling them that he was not an apostle, and therefore not worthy of their confidence. Paul wrote (1) to re-establish their hearts in the faith that saves from sin. They were not to seek perfection through the ceremonial law of Moses, but through faith in Jesus Christ. He puts to them the straight question: "Having begun in the Spirit, are ye now made perfect by the flesh?" He wrote the epistle (2) to defend his apostleship. Under ordinary circumstances he would not have been justified in thus defending himself; but he was God's servant, and his cause was at stake; so the apostle, an inspired man, moved by the Holy Spirit, wrote this defense of himself, in order that God's cause might not suffer. There is a strong temptation to defend ourselves when people defame us; but when the charge is false, it is far better to keep our tongues still, and let a lie run itself to death.

Comments on the Lesson.

13. Brethren, ye have been called unto liberty.—In the preceding context the apostle has been endeavoring to show his Galatian converts the contrast between the slavery of law and the freedom of faith. The allegory in chapter four concerning Hagar and her son Ishmael and Sarah and her son Isaac is beautiful and powerful. In the first verse of the chapter from which our lesson is taken he begs the converts to "Stand fast therefore in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free, and be not entangled again with the yoke of bondage," by which he means the ceremonial law which had been nailed to the cross of Christ.

14. Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.—Paul's conception of pure Christianity is LOVE. It fulfills the entire law. It includes duty to God and man. It supersedes duty. A Christian cannot live on the plain of duty. He must forget duty, and live for love's sake. Duty will cramp the soul, and make it narrow. Love heightens, deepens, broadens the soul, and draws all its powers out to their fullest capacity.

15. If ye bite and devour one another.—That is a picture of fighting beasts; but how often we see it in social life, in business affairs, and even among the churches. It is pretty dirty no matter where found.

16. Walk in the Spirit.—Let the Holy Spirit lead you. That is clear. And ye shall not fulfil the lusts of the flesh.—Of the carnal nature. Of course not: the Spirit leads one clear away from that sort of conduct.

17. For the flesh lusteth against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh.—The contrast is painful. The Divine Spirit had not left them, but was trying to hold them in check, and to teach them the way of salvation. They would not accept the help of the Spirit; so that Paul tells them plainly: "Ye cannot do the things that ye would." Some would have us believe that the meaning is, "may not do"; but I am not sure but the translation is correct; for without the Spirit's help they could not live up to the high standard of the Gospel.

18. If ye be led of the Spirit, ye are not under the law.—Be careful that you are not misled here to your own ruin. Paul is not teaching us that we are free from the moral law. The obligation to obey the ten commandments is just as binding now as in the days of Moses.

19. The works of the flesh are manifest, which are these.—Flesh does not mean our bodies in this place, but the carnal nature that is born in us. I shall not number all these verses, but take up such terms as may call for explanation. Uncleanliness and lasciviousness, both mean moral lewdness, the latter word being, perhaps, somewhat the stronger term. Idolatry has reference to the worship of anything but God. Witchcraft includes all trickery, slight-of-hand, etc. Hatred is anger gone to seed. Variance.—One pulling one way and the other another way. Emulation bears big fruit when one tries to ruin another in order to outstrip him in some undertaking. It is rather bad. Wrath.—The Greek word is thumoi, and means spurts of anger; some people are given to them. They make a pet of a mean temper. Strife is just common fussing, quarrelling. It is nasty. Seditions.—Pulling out of the church to satisfy some foolish notion. Jesus stayed in till they crucified him. I guess this must refer to the "Come-outers." It is a fearful thing to teach heresies in the Church of God. Look out. Envyings will never be respectable. They come out of bad hearts. We all know what murder means; but maybe some of us have yet to learn that God calls hatred murder. Drunkenness, thank God, is passing away in America. The afternoon before Christmas I spent much of the time in the business part of the town I live in studying the drink question. I did not see a single person under the influence of alcohol. Calling an old gentleman's attention to the fact, he said that the case was very different in the days of barrooms. We will fight till all the nation is dry as a bone. I am not sure as to how large a meaning Paul intended to put into his term revellings; but I think that it covers all such things as feasting to gluttony either at home or a public banquet. And such like.—My! He does not leave a fellow any room whatever for devilment. Now we come to the apostle's conclusion: "They which do such things shall not inherit the kingdom of God." It is time to pray. People do these things without any smarting of conscience, and then speak of going to heaven when they die. What! A man cannot have spurts of anger, and go to heaven? Why certainly not. I suppose that the Bible is authority on this matter. Read it carefully, and take your measure before it is too late.

The last three verses are all pure, sweet cream. The fruit of the Spirit.—I am glad Paul put it in the singular number. It is just a big heartfelt of the good things that the Spirit of God plants and cultivates in Christian men and women. Love, the strong word agape. Joy, the artesian well variety. Peace, a Mississippi River of it. Longsuffering, patience that endures without complaining, although the collar hurts the shoulder. Gentleness, a rare quality; now and then we meet a gentleman or a gentle woman. Goodness, that needs no comment. Faith, faithfulness is mean, trustworthiness will cover the case. Meekness, humility. Better not speak of that lovely maiden, or she will blush and hide herself. Humble souls never suspect themselves of possessing the virtue. Temperance, self-control. It has no special reference to drinking alcohol, but refers to all our deportment. Well may Paul say that there is no law against such things; for they are in perfect harmony with every good law in earth or in heaven.

24. They that are Christ's have crucified the flesh with the affections and lusts.—That is a tremendously high standard of Christianity; but I am afraid to tamper with it, lest I damn my own soul. In my judgment we would better do our very best to meet its requirements.

25. If we live in the Spirit, let us also walk in the Spirit.—Twin brothers are these. If one live in the Spirit, he will also follow the leadings of the Spirit; and if he follow the leadings of the Spirit, he will certainly have to live in the Spirit.

Rev. W. A. Vandersall is now in a meeting with the Methodist Church, South, at Junction City, Ore. He will soon make an evangelistic itinerary into the state of California. The Christ of

The Indian Road

"The greatest book I have read in twenty-five years."—Dr. G. Campbell Morgan.

Such words were uttered in a Cincinnati book store by one of the greatest Bible scholars and preachers of this age in connection with E. Stanley Jones' famous book "The Christ of the Indian Road." Dr. Stanley Jones went out from Asbury College to India. He has made the profoundest impression upon India. His book is one of the most remarkable books of the century. Have you got your copy yet? EVANGELISTIC AND PERSONAL.

Rev. Horace Booker, the blind evangelist and singer, has just graduated from Asbury College, and is ready for meetings. Brother Booker is well equipped to lead singing and play the piano and guitar in revival meetings. He also is a splendid evangelistic preacher. Having used him in three revivals, I can heartily recommend him. His wife travels with him, and is very helpful to him in his services. I shall be glad to answer any inquiries anyone might wish to make about him or his work.—Z. T. Johnson, 523 S. First St., Louisville, Ky.

Pearl Wilcox, song evangelist, who has been associated with Edna Beougher, "Ohio Girl Evangelist," has canceled all her winter engagements on account of death in the family. Miss Wilcox' address in the future will be Stockport, Ohio.

Thos. F. Eden and sister, evangelistic singers, have two open dates, one in May and one in July. Those desiring their services should communicate with them immediately at 116 Creston Ave., Audubon, N. J.

Will Hill: "We are now at Carvary Tabernacle, on a line between Winter Park and Orlando, Fla. The church-life is thoroughly stirred, and a number have been brightly saved. This is the tenth day. There are three other meetings in Orlando: Dr. Johnson, at the First Methodist; Dr. John Thomas, at the Christian Alliance, and the Four Meade Brothers of Canada under a large, down-town tent. We are trying to do something. Charlie Dunaway is to come with a tent in February."

To The Herald Family, Greetings:

I wish to thank those few people who have responded to our appeal for our Sale City Camp Ground debt. I have mailed pecans to all. If any failed to receive same, please let me know at once. I am sure dozens of people thought they would send ten, five or even one dollar, and receive as many pounds of Extra Fancy Paper Shell Pecans, but just neglected to do so. Well, it is never too late to do good. I am to be at home through February, D. V. So far we have received just about half enough to pay the interest on $500 for the past year, so you may see that people have been slow to respond.

Thanking The Herald forces and all, I am, Yours and his,

W. W. McCord.

Pres. Sale City Camp Meeting Association, Sale City, Ga.

WATERVLIET, NEW YORK.

At the close of the annual session of Troy Conference Bishop Locke sent to Third Ave. M. E. Church, this city, Rev. Fred W. Vogell, formerly of Asbury College, to succeed Rev. Chas. P. Hogle as pastor. The writer well remembers the first Sabbath morning as the people gathered to hear the first sermon and receive first impressions. There stood in our midst a young man who, from the first, has declared the whole gospel with all the earnestness that we could desire. No one left the church that morning with any uncertain knowledge of where he stood as a minister of the Gospel. Summer passed and we find him as leader of the Men's Brotherhood, active in the Epworth League, an untiring worker with the boys, and every ability of the church. Due to his efforts and the co-operation of his Official Board, Third Ave. Church was wide open all through vacation time, and was the home of many of the people of other denominations who found churches closed at this time.

On October 17th there was started visitation Sunday with about twenty teams visiting all our people; following this two weeks of Cottage Prayer Meetings, four being held in different sections of the city twice a week. A three-weeks' Evangelistic Campaign with our pastor as the preacher of the series ably assisted by the Misses George and Lewis of New Castle, Pa., started. With a united people, Bro. Vogell has given all there was of him to these meetings with the result that at least fifty people have voluntarily knelt at God's altar for salvation and the deeper work of grace. Bro. Vogell has been backed to the limit by his people at this time who see in the young preacher from Asbury one who dares to declare the whole gospel and leave results with him who alone can give the increase. To say we like him is to put it mildly. As Secretary of the Men's Brotherhood I believe the writer speaks for the entire church when we say if Asbury College gives to the ministry such as Bro. Vogell, God's richest blessing on Asbury College. We are better for his coming with us and the church has been blessed by his ministry.

Allin Depew,
Sec'y. Men's Brotherhood.

CAMP MEETING AT KITTANNING, PENNSYLVANIA.

The Armstrong County Interdenominational Holiness Association held their second annual camp Aug. 26-Sept. 5, 1926. This camp is held in the Armstrong grove three miles west of Kittanning on the improved road between Butler and Kittanning, and is a fine location for a camp, high and dry with plenty of shade and good water. It was the writer's privilege to spend three days at this camp and it was a great inspiration and blessing. When we arrived we could feel that the Spirit of God was in the midst of the camp.

Brother George Bennard was the evangelist in charge. He is a strong preacher of the word of God. While he preaches the saints weep and shout and the unsaved get hungry for God.

Brother Hampe, of Pittsburgh, conducted a School of the Prophets and these Bible studies were a blessing to all. The Missionary meetings on Wednesday afforded a feast of good things. Mrs. M. W. Knapp of God's Bible School, Cincinnati, Ohio, and Miss Pearson of the West Indies gave the missionary addresses. The morning prayer services under the big tent were a blessing to all. How the Lord will bless his people when they are in one accord! The family worship at 9 o'clock was also a time of refreshing.

Rev. C. W. Ruth was also present for two days and his visit and good messages were much appreciated. Another good feature of this camp was the excellent dining-room service. They had good food and well cooked. Rev. and Mrs. McFadden had charge of cooking and serving of the meals. They also had good sleeping accommodations.

The date for this camp this year is July 14-24, with Rev. and Mrs. John Thomas as evangelists and Mrs. Etta Foiles as soloist and song leader. Plan now to attend.

Suggestions to Singers.

Always see that the song-book used in your meeting has a supply of good invitations and good altar songs. Our "Gladness and Praise" has a fine selection of both; and there are thirty of them.

Also see that the doctrines of the Bible, especially those touching salvation and sanctification are in the book. The songs should back up and support the sermons preached. Many song-books contain no searching gospel truths on full salvation lines. But they are in Gladness and Praise. See Nos. 2, 5, 10, 15, 25, 70, 76. Also see 103, 130, 138, 143, 146, 174, 176, 179, 208, 211. One evangelist says: "I have sold thousands of song-books in meetings, but it's best yet." Another says, "The more I use it the better I like it. It is a gem." Price, 25c. Special rates to evangelists. Round notes or shaped. Always state choice.

"READING MAKETH A FULL MAN."

By The Editor.

READING maketh a full man" is the observation of a wise philosopher. The importance of good literature in the home cannot be overestimated. It is better to give your young people such interesting books that they will be kept at home reading them, than to scold them for going out into the streets at night.

We can think of few things more important than that parents should be on the alert searching after attractive readable books with good moral tone that will entertain and, at the same time, leave a deposit of useful knowledge as well as spiritual influence. However much of tainted literature may be published and scattered abroad today, it is a fact that our bookstores abound with excellent books. They are neatly bound, well printed and attractively illustrated. Their contents will fascinate, fix the attention, and leave an excellent impression.

Young people are almost sure to read; their minds are like a climbing vine. If you go into your garden and fix a good stake by a beanvine and train it up the stake it will climb in the direction it is trained; if you neglect it it will run along the ground and climb up a ragweed. It can but run; it must climb and entwine itself about something, if only a weed. Just so with the child. How blest little children whose parents read to them the best of books before they can read and create within them a hunger for things that are good. How carefully parents should select good literature for their children free from profanity, from vulgarity, from irreverence, from skepticism, clean, pure and elevating.

Three great hungers of the human being must be recognized and given attention in early life. The body naturally hungers for food; the mind for knowledge; the soul for God. The baby feels the pangs of hunger, but has no knowledge in the matter of selecting proper food. It would take a lump of coal into its mouth just as quickly as it would a piece of bread. It would drink a solution of concentrated lye just as readily as it would a preparation of condensed milk. This being true, the babe must be carefully watched and tenderly cared for by those who love it until it grows and has experience and knowledge in selecting food for itself. This is as true with regard to its intellectual as its physical life. Little folks are constantly asking questions. Why so? They have intellectual hunger. They want to know. Do not scold them. Answer kindly, wisely and truthfully. If there is no answer to their query, explain the situation, but encourage the curiosity of the child and feed its hunger for knowledge. Directly, place in its hand the best books, give it a good start on the road of mental hunger and the satisfaction of learning the history of the world, the secrets of nature and the thousands of things all about it that give it entertainment and delight and store the mind with useful information.

The man who is so ignorant or stingy or indifferent that he fails to buy good, attractive books for his children is almost unfit for fatherhood. The home that hasn't an accumulation of good, attractive books suitable to the various ages of the children of the family is by no means properly furnished. Note what enthusiasm it creates among the children when a good book comes into the home, with what gladness they examine it and how soon they are sitting down reading its stories, and how cheerfully they talk to each other of what the book contains, its characters, the adventures contained in it, the travel, the disappointments, the defeat of the wicked, the success of the virtuous.

What a vast difference there is between those people who are indifferent to reading and those who improve every opportunity to read the best of books. The reading man or woman has an illuminated face. There is a certain culture in their tone of voice; their manner and conversation all show their acquaintance with great, good books. To entertain, enlarge, enlighten and improve yourself, read good books, histories, biographies, travel. Read of bees, birds, beasts, insects, minerals, trees, plants and flowers. Read of mountains, oceans and rivers. Read of the great wars, of the great leaders of men, commanders, statesmen, authors and artists. Read the Bible. Read of the saints of the martyrs, of the great revivals of religion, of the missionary movements. Read the biographies of the devout men and women who have counted large in the religious life of the world. Keep good books and periodicals about you and do not let the spare time go to waste, but store up in your mind useful information that will make you wise and strong and happy in every relation of life and helpful to your fellowbeings about you.

The Gospel Is The Power of God Unto Salvation.

THE Apostle Paul tells us that the gospel is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth. When God provided the gospel, as we have it in the New Testament Scriptures, he fully understood human nature and its needs, and he provided a gospel perfectly adapted to men and their needs. It is a gospel that can be believed and offers a Christ who can save those who believe the "good news" of his power to save.

It must be borne in mind that the people we call "heathen" are human beings; that they are intelligent; that they can reason; that they believe in a supreme power; that they have capacity to listen to the messengers of God; that they are the objects of God's love; that the Lord Jesus Christ died for them as much as any one else, and that the Holy Ghost is present to bless and aid the speaker in the delivery of the message, and the hearer in the reception of the message. When the people called "heathen" believe the gospel, and trust in the Christ of the gospel, they are as instantly and genuinely saved as sinners in a civilized country.

In my tour of evangelism around the world I had ample opportunity in various heathen countries to see this fact demonstrated. The great need of China, India, and all heathen lands, is Spirit-filled missionaries with implicit, whole-hearted faith in the Bible and in the Lord Jesus Christ, as he is set forth in the Scriptures, Old Testament and New, the Son of God, the only and all-sufficient Savior of men. Preaching Jesus, offering Christ as a Savior, explaining the law of God, the will of God, the love of God, and the power of God in Christ to save.

If the missionaries in foreign fields would give up their doubt and throw away their false notions of inspiration, their false views of Christ,—of course, we are referring here to those unfortunate missionaries who have had instilled into them the modern liberalistic views—go into an upper room and receive the baptism of the Holy Ghost, revivals would break out everywhere under their labors, the effect would be electric, the home church would feel the thrill and money would pour into the treasury. If church leaders, secretaries, missionaries and church people should receive a mighty baptism with the Holy Ghost, the problem of missions would be solved, and the lost millions would be brought to Christ.

It was my great privilege to be associated with the Oriental Mission people in Japan. They are consecrated, Spirit-filled people. They preach the Wesleyan doctrine of sanctification, enjoy the experience and live the life. It is wonderful how they have been used of God in bringing sinners to Jesus. We want THE HERALD readers to read the following by E. L. Kilbourne, of China:

"Shanghai, we believe, is very near the top in the list of the world's wicked cities. It seems that along with the trade of all nations have come the dregs of sin of every country on earth; and added to this is the fact that Shanghai is one of the places where desperate and sin-dyed characters come from every province in this great land.

"Even in such a wicked city there are its 'worst' districts, and perhaps the worst of all is that called Chapei, and Chapei is where God sent us to open our first mission in China. Practically no Gospel work had been done there and certainly none after the type of evangelism which we stand for. This was what challenged us as we cast about for the spot from which to start our warfare in China.

A Great Preacher Preaches on Holiness.

Rev. G. W. Ridout, D.D., Corresponding Editor.

IN a recent number of the New York Christian Advocate, Bishop Berry wrote a strong editorial on Holiness strongly advocating the doctrine and expressing his disappointment and surprise why this great cardinal doctrine of Holiness was not preached more by Methodist preachers. He expressed the opinion that the doctrine had got injured greatly by fanaticism and radicalism and because of this our preachers were refusing to get mixed up with it. He believed that the doctrine ought not be left to any one class of people to promulgate, but that Methodists ought to take hold of it and preach and push it.

Aside from Bishop Berry's reasons, there are quite a number of other reasons why Methodist preachers have given up the preaching of Holiness. We will name a few:

1. Because the New Theology has taken the place of the Old-time Religion.
2. Because many preachers have lost their first love and backslidden from the experience of holiness they once experienced and testified to.
3. Because holiness is not popular in this age of worldly churches.
4. Because the "powers that be"—bishops, district superintendents, etc., do everything they can to discourage holiness preaching and send faithful holiness preachers to the woods and obscure appointments. The best appointments generally go to popular preachers who preach Unitarianism more than they preach Methodism. Men who preach holiness seldom get much support or sympathy from the appointing powers.

Let us now return to our subject and introduce to our readers a great Methodist Bishop who experienced Entire Sanctification, preached it, and wrote one of the greatest books on the subject entitled: "The Central Idea of Christianity," Bishop Jesse O. Peck. The sermon was on Heb. 6:1, "Therefore leaving the principles of the doctrine of Christ, let us go on unto Perfection."

We shall give an outline of this great sermon:

I. Terms and human philosophy have darkened counsel and discouraged many Christians who would gladly go on unto perfection. The Bible points out the fact that we may be "holy," "sanctified," "perfect," but avoids all metaphysics and philosophy of the processes in the soul. Men "wise above what is written" have ambitiously obtruded their little philosophies upon the few to the great confusion of many. Passing by these small philosophers, we proclaim simply the whole counsel of God. Because the terms "sanctification," "holiness," "perfection," have been unwisely and flippantly used by many of high profession, others shrink from the Scriptural terms. And because many advocates of "holiness" have been hot-headed and censorious and controversial, others have avoided the subject. It must be confessed that controversial advocacy and Pharisaical professions have prejudiced the precious truth. Controversy about the soul's perfect love of God is as out of place as about a mother's love for her babe. I will have no discussion with any one over a matter which is the most intimate and sacred experience of the soul. It is as distasteful as discussion with others of my love for my wife. I hope to show the fact in my life, and testify of the truth when proper. But what shall I name this state? The Bible covers the fact in many terms. Many of the distinguished persons enjoying it gave no name to their holy experience, while all agreed in the fact, and lived, enjoyed, and praised God in the fact. Be sure you seek and find completeness in Christ and you are all right. When you are

If people can join the church by signing cards, watch them closely and you'll soon find them playing cards.

The less love we have the more we pile up law and machinery.

In 2 Cor. 9:8, we have three awls. God puts a half sole on every soul he converts, heels every backslider and put a whole sole on the sanctified.

When a man gets sanctified his heart travels on the lightning express and his head comes along on the freight.

If you are a New Testament Christian you ought to have the face of a Saint, the heart of the sanctified, the courage of a martyr, the endurance of a soldier, the music of a David, the wisdom of a Daniel, the tears of a Jeremiah, the fire of Isaiah, the patience of a Job, the purity of a white dove, the fragrance of flowers and the unselfishness of sunshine.

If you walk too close to the devil he will be awful close to you when you breathe your last.

God converts a soul and makes him a conqueror, he sanctifies him and makes him more than conqueror.

Great wheat crops and money in the bank never added to spirituality of people in the known world.

The Methodist discipline is such a tremendous bundle of law that it takes a lawyer to understand it.

The matter with the American church is she needs to be unworldly.

They say fortune knocks at every man's door once. I was at home when she called and made a deal. I gave nothing and got everything.

My bees swarm every week. I'm not running a vinegar factory.

You can't think of a single thing that is good, but Jesus says "I am that!"

groaning after a deeper work of grace, you are on the road to holiness. When you love God with all your heart, you have attained sanctification. When hungering and thirsting after righteousness, you are going on unto perfection. When striving in all things to say, "Thy will be done," you are going on unto perfection. When striving in everything to please God, you are going on unto perfection. When striving to have the mind of Christ in you, in all things, you are going on unto perfection. When seeking to be filled with all the fulness of God, you are going on unto perfection. When seeking to be dead unto sin and alive unto God, you are going on unto perfection. When striving earnestly to be just right in heart and life, you are going on unto perfection. In the honest soul, these generally all mean one and the same with "sanctification." It is the reaching of the soul to that rich completing grace. Let us never rest until we have this glorious satisfying experience of the grace of God to save unto the uttermost.

II. By what means is this state attained? The answer is clear from our previous positions. By the same means by which we attained regeneration. Since it is not a different religion, but simply more of the same kind, we obtain it in the same way we reach all religious experience. It is the same sun rising higher that gives us the noon-day splendor, and gives us the morning dawn. The conditions are entire consecration to God, and explicit faith in Christ to save us from all sin. Upon these conditions, which are our free-acts, the Holy Spirit, who initiated the work of our salvation in the hour of regeneration, perfects that work in our entire sanctification. Prayer and the truth of God's Word are the chief means to be used, the same as in conversion. Of course the means—prayer, and the truth, and the conditions—consecration and faith—have larger meaning and fuller grasp in sanctification. Meditation and experience have given us larger and more correct views of our depravity and need of purity, of God's holiness and his will concerning us, of Christ as our complete Savior, and of the power of the gospel and its ample provisions to save us from sin. Therefore our consecration and prayer grasp these larger truths, and consequently introduce us into this higher life. The time when we shall reach this higher life, then, depends on ourselves. The provisions are ready and God is ready. God is ready now to save every sinner in the world if they will come to him in the appointed manner; and just so God is ready to sanctify every Christian now, if by consecration and faith they are ready to receive it now. There is no time when sincere Christians may not and ought not to seek and pray, and trust for God to sanctify them and fill them with his ineffable peace. The sooner you see this as a privilege and duty the sooner you will reach the goal.

III. What are the evidences of this state? One word covers all evidences—Love.

Jesus erected this simple test, when he said that our whole duty is to love God with all our hearts and our neighbors as ourselves. "On these two hang all the law and the prophets." When these two commandments are fulfilled in you, you are as perfect as anybody ever was or will be in this world. The Spirit witnesseth with our spirits to the fact, when this perfect love fills our hearts. So that we have the witness of the Holy Spirit as one evidence. But then we have the fruit of the Spirit, also, as an evidence. Love is the atmosphere of heaven and of the holy heart. It is the master passion, the beatific grace that crowns the sanctified soul. Let me read the portraiture of love, and if you exemplify this heavenly grace you have the complete evidence that your heart is just right.

"Charity (love) suffereth long and is kind; charity envieth not; charity vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up, doth not behave itself unseemly, seeketh not her own, is not easily provoked, thinketh no evil, rejoiceth not in iniquity, but rejoiceth in the truth, beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things. Charity never faileth." You can have no more complete evidence (as fruit) than this Love. But I may as well insert here as elsewhere certain negatives, or facts, which should not discourage your heart in the desire for evidences of full acceptance. While it is true that the sanctified man will be more correct in conduct, more likely to be constant in holy living, more safe from sin and apostasy, and thus is a great gainer, yet no man entirely sanctified will ever reach (1) Perfection in action. As Mr. Wesley says, he may make "a thousand mistakes." He will be imperfect in knowledge and err in judgment. He never will be faultless here. (2) He never will get beyond temptation to sin. He will never reach a point beyond his Master, who though sinlessly pure, was tempted. He must ever "watch and pray that he enter not into temptation." (3) He will never get beyond the possibility of sinning. He may be kept from sinning, but will never reach a state where he cannot sin. I never hear one assert that he is sinlessly perfect without a shudder! None but Jesus ever lived sinless.

The greatest humility and silence on this point are wisest. Though no sin of overt act is done, who may say that every thought and emotion and volition is sinless and pure in the eyes of a holy God? Rather let us say—

“Every moment, Lord, I need
The merits of Thy death.”

“Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall.” No man is beyond the possibility of apostasy while probation lasts. Watch! (4) No one gets to a state where he does not need all the means of grace to enable him to stand and maintain a holy life. (5) No one reaches a state where he does not need to exert every power and use every means to grow in grace. The more grace the more he will grow in grace. Not grow into grace, but grow in it. (6) No one reaches a state where he is excused from the hard, plodding work of the church. Any disposition to rest on the enchanted ground of a happy experience, to luxuriate in the banqueting house, to drift into a dreamy, quiescent, sentimental ease, to unknot the muscular contractions of vigorous work for dying men, to indulge in the rhapsodic companionship of kindred spirits more than to deny self of this pleasure to go out in the dark places for the lost, is dangerous ground and injures the cause of holiness. The more grace we have, the more Christlike we shall be, self-denying, laborious, resting at night in the pleasant society of Bethany, but off the next morning, “going about doing good.”

In conclusion, I beseech you in Christ's name that you leave the first principles of religion—babehood—and go on unto perfection—manhood. “This is the will of God—even your sanctification.” I have tried to present this sublime truth in gospel simplicity, stripped of human speculation and conceit. I have sought to divest the central idea of our holy religion of its manufactured formidableness, and present it as a sweet privilege that you should go on to experience. I have sought most to comfort the timid and fearful ones, by showing them that the richest treasures of grace are not beyond their reach. Heaven is a holy place; we must be holy to enter there, God's grace can make us holy here. This life is the only place to perfect holiness for heaven. “Without holiness no man shall see the Lord.”

CHAPTER VIII.

THOMAS DEWITT TALMAGE.

ONE of the most spectacular figures on the American platform and pulpit, for over a quarter of a century, was the Brooklyn Tabernacle preacher—Thomas DeWitt Talmage. As a man who pushed into the limelight, and whose name was literally known in every highway and byway in the land, he has never been surpassed. The great Henry Ward Beecher, than whom our country has produced no superior as a mighty pulpit orator, did not approach Talmage as a nationally advertised preacher. This was not accomplished because of his superior use of English as a picturesque word-painter; it was not because of his tremendous voice, guttural and roaring, as he raged up and down the pulpit or platform—with gestures so ungraceful, that they were almost a charm of gracefulness; nor was it his consuming earnestness, which no one who heard him could doubt for a moment—it was something else, or all combined with something else. It was the name “T. DeWitt Talmage,” more familiar in secular and religious literature than “Castoria,” or “Lydia E. Pinkam's Compound;” he was the best advertised man in the world.

But his long, conspicuous prominence was not predicated alone of newspaper advertisements; there was a man extraordinary backing up these advanced agencies—and their name was legion. Talmage had a message—a big burning message, which he succeeded in “putting across,” using the modern vernacular of the street. Let us observe this fact—while considering the man's publicity: there were three thousand secular periodicals—dailies, weeklies, and monthlies—carrying the messages and sermons of Dr. T. DeWitt Talmage. And this went on for more than twenty-five years. As a syndicate proposition, he was in the lead, and far in the lead. The substantial feature of it was, that those messages were anything but trashy stuff, just to make copy; they were powerful appeals for the highest ideals, and terrific denunciations of social and political evils. His arraignment of what was then known as the “Four Hundred,” was the last word on the subject. And he seemed always to speak from first-hand knowledge; he knew his ground, whether it was the castigation of some social function high-up, or tearing the mask from the plutocracy of the Stock Exchange. Nothing escaped him. When the multitudes flocked to his great Tabernacle Sunday after Sunday, they were not served with commonplace, insipid pabulum; but always with something virile and courageous.

No little criticism circulated about concerning the sincerity of the man. They said he was a “four-flusher” religious, and played to the galleries; flourishing his gospel scalpel, not because of his righteous indignation against them, but because of its appeal to the crowd. It was mob psychology put into practical use for gain. We heard of him as an avaricious money lover; that he was a Shylock after his pound of flesh, when money was involved. We once heard this story: Dr. Talmage was secured to lecture for the benefit of a struggling church, and was promised $500 for the engagement. The night was stormy, and the box office failed to reach this amount. When asked by the committee, if he were willing to take what they had, he replied: “I am not responsible for the small crowd; I cannot change the contract.” The church folks had to borrow the deficit. Such a story is a serious indictment against a preacher of the gospel, and we hope it never happened.

It was reported that when he made his world tour, with a contract for large remuneration, by sending a weekly letter of his travels: that the manuscripts were prepared, delivered, and paid for, before the good doctor sailed from New York harbor. We are not in a position to affirm, or deny these allegations; we are trying to write a brief biography, and tell the story of his life, as it can be gathered from records and memory. Of them all, we prefer to give them the benefit of the doubt. We do know, however, it is the same old law of cause and effect in operation: “clubs under fruit-bearing trees.” The little competitor—the mediocre, must always explain how it was done, and produce an alibi for his own failure, and his inability to get big results.

Oh, yes, Dr. Talmage was criticised; but it did not destroy his popularity with the great constituency he continued to serve. Perhaps he made a fortune; but if he did, it was done by extolling the highest religious ideals and moral standards. There were no flaws in his books and sermons; the needle always pointed to the pole. Dr. Talmage stood for the authenticity of the Bible; for the Deity of Jesus Christ, the certainty of a judgment day, followed by heaven and hell, as the weal or woe awaiting the earth's millions.

Thomas DeWitt Talmage was born at Bound Brook, N. J., Jan. 7, 1832. There is not much available data concerning his people; we learn that his early education was about that of any other child of well-to-do parents. His higher education began at the University of New York City, but he left this institution without graduating in 1853. He next entered the New Brunswick Seminary, from which school he did graduate in 1856. Shortly after this, he was elected to orders, and ordained a minister in the Dutch Reformed Church, at Belleville, N. J., and was called to his first pastorate at Syracuse, N. Y. At this place he served as minister from the year 1859 to 1862. At a very early period in his ministry, his pulpit powers became widely recognized, and because of this, he was called to a larger field in Philadelphia.

The War between the States was at full blast at this time; whereupon, he gave up his work as pastor and entered the Union Army as chaplain, serving at different times, a Pennsylvania, and a New York regiment.

In 1869, his real career began, when he was called to the Central Presbyterian Church of Brooklyn, N. Y. When he had served there just one year, it was evident that the building was inadequate to accommodate the crowds that waited upon his ministry. Plans were at once set in motion to construct a big semi-circular building made of wood with a steel frame; this building had a seating capacity of three thousand four hundred. One year later this church was enlarged for the accommodation of over five hundred more. This institution became known as “The Brooklyn Tabernacle,” and was America's biggest religious forum. The name of T. DeWitt Talmage was broadcasted, as it were, nation-wide and world-wide.

A strange fatality seemed to follow this great aggregation of worshippers. Only about one year after the first new circular building was erected, it was laid in ashes, December 22, 1872; but a new structure sprang up like magic, and was the largest Protestant Church building and congregation in America. Two years later, this magnificent structure was also laid in ashes; it occurred on Sunday morning, May 13, 1874, just as the throngs began to gather for service. The people undaunted by these calamities, set about to erect the third tabernacle, and it was larger and more commodious than the last one.

In some way, those big fires, coming so near together, the press comments at the time, added to the notoriety and popularity of Dr. Talmage; although some were unkind enough to hint at things sinister touching these destructive conflagrations. About this time the largest syndicate company in America used his sermons and addresses weekly—not only in America, but in Europe; this syndicate service placed translations of these sermons for papers of other languages and foreign lands. The compass of this man's influence cannot be computed, for his messages touched more firesides, perhaps, than any other minister that ever lived since the Apostles. The many small weekly papers in small towns carried Dr. Talmage's sermons, and people who saw no other literature got them.

Asbury College Makes an Important Announcement.

President L. R. Akers.

THIRTY-FIVE years ago, the second day of last September, Asbury College was born. From that humble beginning in the two upstairs rooms of a little four-room cottage with two teachers and eleven students, its growth and development have been little short of phenomenal. It is the story of acorn and oak. When one considers this venture of faith, the founding of a school without money or any tangible resources, and then beholds, in the brief period intervening between its inception and its present wide place of influence, the question naturally arises,—why?

In the slogan of a much advertised commodity,—“There’s a Reason.”

Asbury College has consistently majored in religious education. The claims of the Kingdom upon life and service have ever been emphasized. The school is as true today to the Wesleyan standards of Full Salvation as when it was founded, and from these principles it has never departed, and we firmly believe, it never shall.

Because of its fidelity to the time-tested truths of the Scriptures, God has honored the school and its development has been so marked as to command the interest and attention of religious and educational circles throughout the entire world.

In addition to keeping unimpaired the unusually fine spiritual atmosphere of the school, its educational standards have been advanced until they are now recognized by practically all the states and leading universities of our nation.

One of the most difficult problems in all life is to secure the education of our youth so that a thoroughly trained mind and well rounded scholarship may at the same time be so permeated with vital godliness that the life may be complete and entire, wanting nothing. How frequently our schools turn out trained minds and starved souls,—men who have had impressed upon them the necessity of preparing for a business career, but have no thought of the importance of the King’s business.

Never was there such an era of more general, widespread education than at present, but the fact is clearly obvious that, with the emphasis upon the three “R’s,” the fourth and most important “R,” Religion, has been well-nigh forgotten. As a result, our nation is suffering from a terrific moral sag. Science, and often pseudo-science, has become a god instead of Jehovah of old. The test tube has supplanted the New Testament. The senior class of the average university often consists of youth more or less trained in mind, but absolutely undisciplined and ignorant in heart of the eternal verities of life without which no nation can endure.

It is no pessimist’s jeremiad to state that the paganization of America is imminent. With the continuous gravity pull of our irreverent and irreligious national life, a great host of Christian fathers and mothers throughout our nation are inquiring anxiously, “Where is there a school in which my son or daughter will be safe? Where is there an institution which shall not only provide a splendid “A” grade intellectual development, but shall also be “A” grade in the enlargement of the spiritual life as well.”

We firmly believe the answer to this well-nigh universal query may be found in the two words,—Asbury College. This institution has thirty-five years of unbroken fidelity to the highest New Testament standards of life and experience behind it. Today, its faculty is the most scholarly and, we believe, the most devout in its history. The personnel of its student body is a finer, all-round type than we have ever known. The standards, not only educational, but in material comforts and provisions for the student’s largest development, are superior to any hitherto. We are now coming to the conclusion of the whole matter.

Never was there a time in the history of America when the need for such a school as Asbury College was more keenly felt. Not only hundreds but thousands are looking toward this institution to solve the crucial problem of a real Christian training for Young America, which, seemingly, is unsettled, often distracted, and having not found as yet the solid rock of experiential certainty.

With this increasing call comes also Asbury’s increasing problem of adequate finances to meet present day needs and accommodate the hundreds who knock for admittance. We see no hope for the Christian America of tomorrow unless the Christian people of today are willing to invest their money in the really Christian institutions that are valiantly endeavoring to stem the tide of worldliness and sin. To invest in a school like Asbury College is to take out a life insurance policy for the youth of tomorrow and, in a sense, also an insurance policy for our nation as well. For without the lesson of vital godliness, America is doomed to follow the forgotten peoples of the past.

Asbury College is struggling mightily to provide everything worth while in the Christian education of its youth. Its influence and its possibilities would be tremendously enlarged if the holiness people throughout this nation and other devout, God-fearing men and women would get back of it with their tithes and their prayers.

What greater investment could be made in this world than in the lives of our splendid youth who would go out sanctified and filled with a burning zeal to proclaim the regnant truths of the Kingdom and the Gospel of a Full and Free Salvation? This investment would pay tremendous dividends throughout eternity.

It is our profound conviction that unless the Spirit-filled people of our nation get back of the schools that are remaining true to the faith of our fathers and enable them to do successfully the work which is at hand, they will be held responsible for much of our nation’s delinquency that otherwise could be checked and perhaps ultimately an account will have to be rendered for a failure of preventive methods, which, after all, is the failure to give unto God a proper accounting of the stewardship of our possessions.

Just as our eminent Asbury Alumni, Bishop Frederick B. Fisher and Dr. E. Stanley Jones, bewail the lack of support for our missionary enterprises in India, so does the present administration of Asbury College bemoan the lack of support from the Christian people of America in this hour of tremendous moral and spiritual crisis. Our prayer to God is that he may lay upon the minds and hearts of his children, who deplore the widespread spiritual apostasy throughout our nation, their own responsibility in this matter, and that he mightily stir and stimulate their hearts with a desire to check this death-stupor, and bring back to a new fullness of life those who are dead in trespasses and sins.

This opportunity is found in the support of Asbury College which stands like a bulwark against the encroachments of both intellectual and moral evils. This institution is today sending forth more consecrated and Spirit-filled preachers, evangelists, missionaries, and special workers than any other college on our planet. But if it is to go forward, if it is to meet the crying needs of the present moment, it must have more gifts, more prayers, a more continued and faithful support, than it has ever known before.

At the annual meeting of its Board of Trustees on June 1st, it was voted that the President of the institution prepare a financial program for the school which would provide for the liquidation of its indebtedness, incurred by the disastrous fire which destroyed the two dormitories for girls, and the expenses of the enforced building program which necessarily followed; also to plan for the minimum required endowment which would assure the universal accrediting of its educational standards.

On December 20th, the Board of Trustees again met to consider the programs outlined by President L. R. Akers. It was, in brief, as follows:

That there be launched at once a movement to be known as “The Endowment and Expansion Campaign of Asbury College.” That it be on a five year basis and that the amount required be raised in units of $250,000, the first monies to be applied on the liquidation of the present indebtedness. That being done, the required amount for Endowment coming next. Then the buildings that are imperatively needed to provide for student accommodations being third in order. The latter need, being first of all the erection of a new and larger Chapel; a Science Hall being next in order, which would furnish additional class-rooms and laboratory equipment; and last a dormitory for boys which would duplicate Morrison Hall and complete the buildings on the semi-circle.

The President’s suggestions, as outlined above, were unanimously approved by the Board of Trustees; and this campaign, which will not be spectacular but we trust none the less effective, will begin about February first.

The management of Asbury College would greatly appreciate from all who read this article a carefully selected list of names of people who believe in the type of work which this school seeks to do and who fear the Lord and acknowledge their stewardship. This list should be highly selective and the names given will be written to in behalf of the institution in an effort to apprise them of its work, its development, and its need of support.

A new Executive Secretary, Rev. H. C. Burkholder, of the Central Pennsylvania Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, has been engaged to assist in the supervision of the campaign and this notice will introduce him to the readers of THE HERALD. He is a man of splendid character and in heartiest accord with the work and ideals of Asbury College. It is the wish of the Board of Trustees that every agency, alumnus, student, friend and patron of the institution unite as one to make this campaign a success.

We earnestly request the prayers, lists of selected names, and financial gifts from our faithful friends and loyal constituency. Further reports of this most important program will be announced through the columns of THE HERALD from time to time. May the Lord add his blessing and continually direct us in all of our ways.

Dr. Morrison’s New Book.

I have just finished reading “The Christ of the Gospels,” by Rev. Henry Clay Morrison, D.D. This book is filled with good things. If you love oratory, here you will find it. If you love theology, here you have a defense of the faith of our fathers. If you love the practical side of Christianity, it is here presented in a convincing way; and best of all, if you love Christ, in this book he is held up as the only panacea for all ages. Purchase it, give it to your friends. It will do you good. I bespeak for it a large sale. W. L. CLARK.

THE MIGHT OF SACRIFICIAL LOVE.

Rev. E. Stanley Jones, D.D.

PART VIII.

HE GOES FORTH TO DIE.

HOW shall we describe the way to the cross? It was night. In the garden of Gethsemane a tragedy is about to take place. The Son of God, with his bewildered disciples, who were only half-consciously grasping the significance of what was taking place, had gone to the garden, weighted and oppressed with the sense of the coming storm of hate and rage, that was to break upon him on the morrow. That which oppressed this Sinless Sufferer more than anything else was the fact that, although he came to save men from sin and evil, yet it seemed that, as he entered that tomorrow of sorrow, he was arousing men to greater evil. He knew, as he entered that coming day, that men would be at their worst, and he seemed to be the occasion of that greater evil. This crushed his sinless soul to such suffering that he prays that this cup of sorrow might pass from him. He prays in such an agony of soul, that blood oozes through his pores and falls in drops from his upturned face. He prays his way through that dark cloud, and when the mob and the band of soldiers headed by his faithless disciple Judas come, they find him calm and composed. They rush forth to take him, but fall back to the ground overcome by the majesty of this Sufferer. Then Judas, bolder than the rest, comes forward and kisses his cheek, as if in welcome. The Sufferer knowing full well the black perfidy of the act asks, "Friend, why have you come?" as if, even then, by an endearing term, to win back that faithless one. Then he advances between the now-emboldened crowd and his disciples, and says, "If you desire me, take me. But let these go their way." That act was an epitome of what he was doing in a larger way—saving others, himself he would not save. As they take hold of him, Simon Peter rushes forward with drawn sword and smites the servant of the high priest, cutting off his ear. Jesus rebukes Peter for his blindness, for he was to pierce deep into the hearts of men with the strange new sword of suffering love, and this smiting by Peter with a physical sword was spoiling that. So he with exquisite gentleness and majesty, touches the smitten ear and heals his enemy saying, "Let me do this at least." (Moffatt Translation). This shows that in his hour of suffering he retained his power, but he refused to use it for himself, choosing rather to use it in dedicating himself to deeper suffering. Now he stands in the Governor's judgment hall, with a crowd surging about him crying for his death, the only calm one in that hate-maddened crowd. They had crushed a crown of thorns upon his brow in mockery, and here and there tiny rivulets of blood trickled down his face, where the thorns had pierced. They had flogged him upon his bared back until, under those cruel Roman thongs, the blood and riven flesh had fallen together upon the ground. And now they had covered that bleeding back with a purple robe of mock royalty. Then they thrust into his hand a reed as a sceptre. They had struck him with the palms of their hands, and had spat in his face, and had bowed the knee before him in mockery crying, "Hail king of the Jews;" but, in spite of the dishonor and degradation to which they had subjected him, in spite of the stinging phrases, the spittle, the suffering, the cruel flogging, the purple robe, the crown of thorns and the reed in his hand, a royal dignity shone through the mock royalty and Pilate was awed at the Silent Sufferer. He sentenced him to death, but he felt instinctively that the Prisoner was judging him, the judge; and he trembled before him.

With only the travesty of a trial they sentenced him to die, and for reasons which the world has now judged to be virtues. He goes forth to die with never a complaint. They lay the heavy beams upon his bleeding shoulders and back; with a surging mob about him he goes the way of sorrow out of the city and on to Golgotha's summit. He placed his hand upon the beam, and allows them without a struggle to drive the long spikes into the palms of his hands—those hands that had been on the heads of little children in blessing, that had touched sightless eyes and made them see, that had been placed upon the heads of poor unclean lepers and they were cleansed and cured. And the feet they nailed—the feet that had walked the ways of God in perfect obedience and had sought out the sorrowing and the sinful to cheer and heal them. The bearer of the love of God to man was crucified by the men to whom he came. Having securely nailed him they raise the cross. There was the tearing of the flesh through the weight of the body upon the nails, and the loosing of joint from joint. For three hours he hung in that terrible agony—terrible enough in respect to physical agony and suffering, but added to that was the overbearing grief and exquisite pain of mind and heart on account of the sin of men, that would crucify their own Savior. It broke his heart. He did not die through the physical pain of the cross, he died of a broken heart. When they thrust the spear point into his side, water and blood gushed out—the sign, the doctors tell us, of heart-break. And no wonder! Think what it must have been for the Guiltless One to be crucified between guilty thieves, to be treated as a common criminal. Jesus sacrificed not merely property, home and loved ones, and not merely himself, but he sacrificed the most precious thing in that self, that which a good man values most, namely, his reputation—he died as an evil-doer. While he hung there before the gaze of all, they laughed with hellish mockery upon him. No wonder Nature draws the veil of darkness over the face of the scene. At noon-day it became dark. So deeply did he enter into our experiences and identify himself with our pains, that there comes out of that darkness a strange cry of desolation, "My God, why hast Thou forsaken me."

Yea, once Emmanuel's orphaned cry his universe hath shaken,—
It went up single, echoless, "My God, I am forsaken,"
It went up from the Holy's lips, amid the lost creation,
That of the lost, no son should use those words of desolation.

But out of that darkness I hear a voice cry: "Father, forgive them for they know not what they do." His love triumphed even amid the agony. He prayed for his mocking enemies. And in his last gasp he offered his soil unembittered to God saying, "Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit." Thus he died. What infinite sadness was in his death, and yet there is the note of conquering, triumphant love through it all. Looking at him upon the cross we say, "This love deserves to conquer," and looking into our own hearts we say, "And it has conquered!"

A recent dramatist makes the centurion, who superintended the crucifying of Christ, say to Mary: "I tell you, woman, this dead Son of yours, disfigured, shamed, spat upon, has built a kingdom this day that can never die. The living glory of him rules it. The earth is his and he made it. He and his brothers have been moulding and making it through the long ages; they are the only ones who ever did really possess it; not the proud, not the idle, not the vaunting empires of the world. Something has happened up here on this hill-top today to shake all the kingdoms of blood and fear to the dust. The earth is his, the earth is theirs and they made it. The meek, the terrible meek, the fierce agonizing meek are about to enter into their inheritance." And it is true.

An old African chief sat amid his followers and listened for the first time to this story of the Redeeming God. The missionary described the sinless Christ and then told the story of his sufferings upon the cross for our sakes. The old chief could stand it no longer; with tears rolling down his cheeks, he jumped to his feet and cried as he waved his hand: "O Jesus, away from there. That cross is not your place. It is mine." The old chief was right. The cross was not Jesus' place, it was yours and mine. We have sinned, he did not sin; but the Holy One is there in our place. He was saving us, himself he could not save. He lived and died as One in whom were
The desperate tides of the great World's anguish, Forced through the channel of a single heart.

The Duty of The Watchman.

MRS. H. C. MORRISON.

THE most solemn and awful charge ever committed to mortal, is that which is entrusted to the minister of the gospel. Yet, we fear, it, like many other sacred responsibilities, has become ordinary simply from the fact that it has been the common medium through which the Lord has designed that the world should know of its atonement that was made for it on Calvary. In speaking of the watchman on the walls of Zion, the Lord said to Ezekiel, "O son of man, I have set thee a watchman unto the house of Israel; therefore thou shalt hear the word at my mouth, and warn them from me." We see from this passage that the minister should be in such vital touch with God that his messages would come direct from headquarters; receiving "the word at my mouth," said the Lord; then he is to be the go-between, the mouthpiece of the Lord, warning them for him.

Oh that the minister of the gospel would always feel this vital connection, this divine responsibility, the issues that are at stake when he stands before the congregation of never-dying souls and claims to be the messenger of the Lord. It has been said that every man who calls himself a preacher of the gospel of the Son of God ought to hold his ministry as the first thing in all of his life and service, otherwise he not only cannot be true to his mission, but he cannot win men to Christ. Here all the ambassadors of Christ may well afford to bare their heads and remove their shoes, remembering they are standing upon holy ground.

Dr. Joseph Parker, of London, looking at what men should be and do under the power of his presence, said: "No power but the Holy Ghost could take a man through those regions—Jerusalem, Judea, and to the uttermost parts of the earth. The man who has been baptized with water only, will choose his own parish and sphere of labor and circle of operation, but the man in whom is the burning of the Holy Ghost, will say with Wesley, 'My parish is the world,' and will be constrained by the love of Christ to go out anywhere." Then he adds, "Lord, help us to receive the Holy Ghost that we may do our best."

MODERN APOSTLES OF FAITH.

It has been stated that Dr. Talmage retained some expert librarians, who gathered for him detailed data, and scientific treatment of any particular subject he wished to know about. This ingenious method carried the general information to the million readers, that his knowledge was unlimited. If in his message he wished to use the bee, the ant, or a wasp, as an illustration, he set forth facts concerning them, which was nothing less than astounding. The professor of zoology could not have excelled him. If he had an occasion to touch on the subject of materia medica, he would give an array of facts concerning the nature, formulas, and effect upon the human body which would do credit to a medical college lecturer. Dr. Talmage was not an original scholar; but he could assemble more scientific data than any other writer or speaker living. The genius of the man was revealed in that he could so assimilate the facts dug up by others, and run them through his intellectual grist mill in such a manner, as to come forth stamped with "T. DeWitt Talmage."

In connection with the Brooklyn Tabernacle, he established what was known as a "Lay College" for Christian workers; it was a training school of religious and social service workers. Once a week, in addition to his regular Sunday services, he lectured to the general public on every variety of themes which were at the time attracting the interest of the community. Every Sunday the great Tabernacle was thronged with people—rain or shine, cold or hot, they came. Just what C. H. Spurgeon used to London, Dr. Talmage was to New York City and Brooklyn. Dr. Talmage was given honors by many institutions; the New York University, from which he failed to graduate, gave him the degree of M.A., as early as 1862. The University of Tennessee conferred upon him the degree of D.D., in 1874. In addition to his syndicate sermons, Dr. Talmage contributed to many religious journals and magazines; he lectured all over America as a head-liner on the Chautauqua platform. During the seventies, he edited "The Christian at Work"; two years, 1876-78, he edited the "Advance of Chicago," and for ten years was at the head of the editorial staff of Frank Leslie's Sunday Magazine, and was also connected with the Christian Herald for many years. Besides all this preaching, lecturing, and editorial labors, he published a number of books, which were widely read. We mention some of them: "Crumbs Swept Up," "Abomination of Modern Society," "Old Wells Dug Out," "Sports that Kill," "Everyday Religion," "The Mask Torn Off," "The Pathway of Life," "From the Manger to the Throne," "The Earth Girded," and "Trumpet Blasts." He also published a volume of sermons entitled: "The Brooklyn Tabernacle." Truly, Dr. T. DeWitt Talmage was a beacon light which shown with super-brilliance around the world.

WHEN A HOME IS A HOME.

W. Brandt Hughes, Dean of Asbury College.

HE one word in the language of any people that brings to mind the tenderest memories and dearest associations is the word "home", because it stands for and includes those other words so full of loving meaning for us all, "father," "mother," "brother," "sister." One person expressed it this way, "It seems to me as I come up the street after a long hard day at the store that the lights in our home are just a little brighter than those in the other homes." And is not the grass a little greener, the shade a little cooler and the song a bit sweeter at home than elsewhere?

Nestled in a quiet valley among the beautiful hills of eastern Ohio stands a homestead that in its associations typifies all that is pure and peaceful and true. Just back of the house a little stream winds gracefully down through the meadow affording the children a place for wading, swimming, and fishing in the summer and a smooth surface for skating in winter. On all other sides lie broad fields of the bright green of growing oats or corn and the golden wheat that billows on the summer breezes. The house faces the west where at evening time the great life-giving sun descends in a blaze of glory behind a wide expanse of dense forest that crowns the ridge.

HOME.

A place to sleep, a place to eat,
A refuge from the busy street,
A place to hang my coat and hat.
Home is something more than that.
A fireplace and an easy chair,
A quiet nook removed from care,
A scene of happiness and bliss.
Home is something more than this.
A spot where weary hearts may rest.
Of all the world, this is the best.
Where there's healing balm in mother's kiss.
Home is all the rest—and this.

—W. B. H.

In this peaceful home two little boys and one little girl were awakened on summer mornings by the birds with their glad chorus of cheer and they went off to sleep at night listening to the mournful call of the whip-poor-will, a call that made them snuggle deeper under the covers or hold tighter on to mother's hand.

In that home was a real father and perfect mother. Together they had built this love-nest and together they cared for and loved and lived for the nestlings that had come to bless the home.

The father was a man over six feet in height, erect and broad shouldered, and was quiet and reserved in manner. When he spoke, he wasted no words in idle jest, but spoke with authority. When he said, "No," that ended it. No child of his ever sat arguing with him to change his mind. In fact, the children rarely asked him directly for any favor. The mother was the go-between. She represented the children before the supreme lord of the home. Yet he was not austere nor unkind. He was simply just and his decisions were final. Whatever he promised was always given, be it a dime, a fishing trip, or a whipping. Yet his heart was as tender as that of a little child and he was loved by all his children. No child of his ever saw him angry nor heard him speak a word of profane language, nor stoop to vile talk or jest of any kind. He never spoke an unkind word about anyone. He had an abhorrence for evil of every kind. He never used tobacco nor strong drink although he grew up in a time when drink was not considered the evil it is today. When he passed to his reward a few years ago he bequeathed his children the greatest legacy one can inherit, a good name and a Christian example.

The mother in this home was a model of Christian chastity. Her one ambition in life was to instill into the hearts of her children the supreme worth of true Christian manhood and womanhood. Day after day about the home and night after night around the evening lamp she taught, by word and example, the great truths of Christian living. Her eyes never closed in sleep at night until every child was at home and in bed. Her constant prayer was that her children might grow up unsullied by sin and be workers in the Master's vineyard.

Into this home came no cards, no tobacco, no strong drink, no unclean or profane language, no immoral literature, no dancing.

Family worship was conducted twice every day. In the morning before beginning the work of the day the father got down the family Bible and, after reading a chapter would lead the family in prayer to the Heavenly Father for strength for the day's duties. In the evening the mother led in the worship. The family was regular in attendance at the village church over a mile away. No night was dark or cold enough to prevent their attending the services. Upon one occasion, a rainy Sunday morning, one of the boys said to his mother, "Let us stay at home today; not many will be there." She quietly replied, "That is the reason I am going." What a lesson! It was one that was never forgotten by that lad.

When one thinks of the evils that surround the tender lives of innocent little children in so many homes one's heart is ready to break with the tragedy of it all. What chance has the child to grow up morally right or even physically strong in an atmosphere beclouded with filth and sin? When the mother cares more for her bridge party and the father more for his side-steppings than for the moral welfare of the little lives entrusted to their care for a few short years there is no escaping the consequences. Children will no more grow up into true, strong men and women in a weed patch of sin and neglect than will choice roses grow in a neglected, uncultivated field. One young girl whose mother turned her absolutely loose in her tender years to make her own decisions was heard to remark to her grandmother, "I am glad my mother did not raise me under the strict rules you made her obey." Yet the grandmother's so-called strict rules succeeded. Young life does not know the dangers that beset the pathway of every boy and girl. They need to be taught daily that whoever sows wild oats will reap wild oats. They need to be guarded and tended like tender plants and early led to Christ.

The very first years of a child's life are the ones most important as they are the most impressionable. The course of the whole after life depends upon the first four or five years. And practically all of this period is spent in the home under the direct influence of the parents. The Sunday school can do but little for the children of a home until the help of the parents is enlisted. Even then it has the children but one hour out of every hundred or so of the part of the week the child is awake.

The greatest responsibility given to the human race is parenthood. The old saying that the hand that rocks the cradle is the hand that rules the world, is as true today as it ever was. Perhaps it is more so as the influence of parents upon children in their teen-age is weakening in these latter years.

A father and mother had one little boy. Their whole life interest centered in making money, so together they labored, neglecting the child, only to find out when they became wealthy in the world's goods they had lost their boy. While they were working with minds intent on business the lad wandered about seeking the companionship denied him at home and gradually strayed beyond the influence of home. A child is the greatest

HOLINESS IN THE GREAT SOUTHWEST.

A cluster of states, bordering the Gulf of Mexico and the Land of the Montezumas, forms the great Southwest. Each of these states is rich in historical events but possibly none of them stands out in as bold relief as does the Lone Star State. These five states are New Mexico, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana and Texas.

Texas, the State that has lived under seven flags, has a history replete with adventure, and a future that challenges the world to the development of her untold resources. The Texas cowboy, with his rollicking good humor and wild, reckless, dare-devil disposition, wrote much of the history of this wonderful State. He had to contend with the elements, with wild beasts, with savages, and with the most desperate of desperadoes. He created much of the romance wafted on the zephyrs from down by the Rio Grande. Whether in the bunk house on the ranch, or riding the range, he was the same wild, weird, generous, fearless, romantic character that brought comfort to the settlers and struck terror to the heart of evil doers. His was a life of hardships, endured with the courage and fortitude that won the admiration of civilization. He paved the way for civilization and made possible churches and schools that brought peace and prosperity to this Great Southwest.

Texas has not been the battleground for physical development alone, but has been and is a great moral battleground. Texas is an empire, so vast and so resourceful that she could close her borders to the entire world and produce everything she needed to exist as a nation; from the mighty forest of long leaf pine on the east, skirted with immense orchards and gardens that produce by the train load, down through the sugar cane belt, into the rice fields, and along the wave-washed shores of the South where shipping interests are investing multiplied millions in terminal facilities, and fisheries are supplying choicest delicacies of the ocean for food and commerce, on to the irrigated citrus lands of the Valley, where the finest grape fruit and oranges are grown in abundance, out into the vast ranches where millions of cattle are grown for the market, up through the sheep and goat lands that produce as fine wool and food-stuffs as can be found on earth. Journey through the cotton and corn belt, the immensity of which makes one dizzy, tarry in the oil fields where liquid gold is flowing from the bowels of the earth, then prepare for hundreds of miles of travel through the extensive wheat fields of the northwest. Spend a few days in the manufacturing centers where raw material is being converted into the necessities of life, and you will gasp with astonishment at the progress of this wonderful empire.

Back of this, and upon the foundation which it is built, is the honor of womanhood and the sanctity of the home. The home is preserved by the Church and the school. The school and the Church is perpetuated by the home.

Into this wonderful State many years ago came a man by the name of W. B. Colt. He did not come seeking lands, or gold, or cattle. He came to tell men of a better way, of a deeper religious experience. He was a Methodist preacher from the North. In a meeting he conducted in Waco, a number of Methodist people heard the glad news, accepted the wondrous truths, then sought and obtained the glorious experience of entire sanctification. Among the number was a Methodist preacher, Rev. B. F. Gassaway, who became so thoroughly convinced that Holiness was not only a Methodist doctrine but was a Bible truth around which all other Bible truths clustered, he began spreading the glad news. During an annual conference of the Southern Methodist Church in Waco, he invited all who were truly interested in "Spreading Scriptural Holiness over these lands" to meet with him in a conference. The meeting was held in a Presbyterian Church on Washington Street, which is now a fire station. There the first holiness association in the State was organized. Out of that meeting grew camp meetings. Some Methodist pioneers established the Scottsville Holiness Camp Meeting in Eastern Texas. Camp meetings were held at Bosqueville and Evergreen near Waco, also at Ennis, Corsicana, and other places; then the great Waco Holiness Camp was established, with Rev. B. F. Gassaway, president. A group of staunch laymen supported the movement, among whom were such men as John H. Appell, who later became a preacher, Messrs. Barrett, Wright, Linville, Andersen, Hickey, Hogan and numerous others whose names slip my mind at this time. Preachers came to the Waco camp from Kentucky, Georgia, Tennessee, and other States, among whom were W. B. Godbey, B. A. Cundiff, W. A. Dodge, H. C. Morrison, Beverly Carradine, and others.

The Waco Camp became a storm center from which other storms broke out. Rev. H. C. Morrison was illegally tried at Dublin and expelled from the ministry and Church. The opposition used the famous 120th Paragraph in the Methodist Discipline. The people at Dublin had no jurisdiction over Brother Morrison, so the case was taken to his own Conference in Kentucky where he was upheld and retained in the Conference. The only accusation they made against him in Dublin was, that he was holding a meeting near the town without their consent. Their consent was not necessary.

From the Waco Camp came the Greenville Camp, which resulted in the establishment of the Peniel University, from which has gone forth preachers, teachers, singers, and missionaries all over the world. The Texas Holiness Association was organized and made history. Then the Nazarene Church came into being. The Free Methodist, the Wesleyan Methodist, the Methodist Protestant, and the Southern Methodist furnished the greater percent of the workers and campers at these camp meetings. The holiness people proclaimed a whole gospel to all men of full salvation from all sin. Into the prisons, slums, highways and byways, the workers went with happy songs and stirring messages.

The first holiness institution to be established in the State that has lived through the years was a home for the redemption of unfortunate girls. This work was begun in Waco after its founders, J. T. Upchurch and wife, were sanctified at the Waco camp meeting under the preaching of Rev. H. C. Morrison. This institution is known as the Berachah Home, and through its portals hundreds of girls and children, the world called driftwood, have been redeemed to useful lives and reclaimed to honorable citizenship and to an inheritance incorruptible and undefiled reserved in Heaven for them.

Each year this Home celebrates its opening with an anniversary which is held in May. Recently, during an all-day meeting at this Home, a group of people with membership in a number of different denominations, voted unanimously to have a Holiness Reunion in connection with the Berachah Anniversary this year, as this is the only interdenominational Holiness Institution in the Great Southwest.

This Home is located in the edge of Arlington, a lovely town of about five thousand population nearly midway between two of the largest cities in Texas, Fort Worth and Dallas. A large closed-in Auditorium on the grounds will provide comfortable accommodations for the crowds who will attend this year, and a lovely grove will provide ample camping ground for those who wish to camp. The date is May 10th to the 15th inclusive.

Dr. H. C. Morrison is to be present for the entire time. Also Revs. Bud Robinson, C. W. Ruth, J. E. Bates, J. D. Scott, Mrs. Mary Lee Cagle, Mrs. Lillian Poole Burnett, as preachers, missionaries and workers. Mr. John J. Douglas will be director of singing.

Come, let us worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness, and have a reunion of the holiness people that will re-ignite revival fires in many communities.

J. T. Upchurch.

REPORT OF MEETINGS.

I assisted in revival meetings in November in the Wesleyan Methodist Church at Wallace, N. Y. Rev. Geo. C. Heslop is pastor of this good people. Bro. Heslop is a most congenial work-fellow. My labors with him were very refreshing from the presence of the Lord. Mrs. Early, of Woodland, Mich., conducted the singing and sang some special messages in the Spirit, to the delight of us all. It was easy to preach to those blessed people. Some were saved and some sanctified wholly.

In December I held meetings at Diamond Springs, Mich., with the Wesleyan Methodist Church. Rev. Minard Lewis is the faithful undershepherd. His people love him, and God is helping him to do them good. When the weather was favorable we had excellent attendance. We were not always able to take care of all who tried to get into the church. The Lord gave us some blessed cases of free and full salvation.

We are now in our third and last week of revival services in our Wesleyan Methodist Church of this city. The Lord is saving and sanctifying souls. Rev. G. Visser is the well-beloved pastor, and a good pastor he is. Holland was the home city of the late Rev. Fred DeWeerd. This was his birthplace. He was reared here. It was here that he gave himself up to God. Here God gave him the call to preach. Twenty-four years ago we met as students in God's Bible School and Missionary Training Home, Cincinnati, Ohio. Twenty-three years ago as boy preachers we held six weeks of meetings here. Three weeks in the Wesleyan Methodist Church and three weeks in the First M. E. Church. When Bro. DeWeerd gave himself to the Savior there were those who said, "Fred will be all right now if he will only hold out." Two years later when we were holding the meetings I have mentioned, some said: "Fred will be all right now if we can get him to hold in a little." You see, in the meantime he had been sanctified wholly by the baptism with the Holy Ghost and fire. In recent years the Wesleyan Methodists have erected in the name of the Lord a very comfortable house of worship, and have bought a nine-room parsonage—all paid for, and they are in the salvation business. Hallelujah!

TEXARKANA, TEXAS.

I have been busy the past year but have failed to report very often. My home address now is Conway, Ark., and mail addressed to me there will be forwarded to me.

I am now engaged in a revival at Texarkana, Tex. The Salvation Army and the Nazarenes are working together fine and souls praying through every night. About twenty souls have prayed through in the meeting up to date, and the meeting still goes on, and we expect many more to find their way to Jesus.

This past year I have conducted meetings in Wichita Falls, Tex., Dallas, Tex., and Mexia, Tex., and several other places in the Lone Star State. At Mexia, we had a real old-time revival and more than fifty saved or sanctified. The Lord also gave real revivals at several other points and also several places in Arkansas. The new year has opened up with souls praying through. I am giving my whole time to evangelism.

OKLAHOMA REVIVALS.

Evangelists Allie and Emma Irick.

After serving as District Superintendent of the Hamlin District for six years, we have moved to Bethany, Okla., to put our children in our Nazarene College, and swing out into the work of Holy Evangelism and win souls to Jesus and to build his Church among men.

Our first engagement was with that splendid pastor, Rev. G. S. Harmon and his wide-awake church at Henryetta, Okla. He has a most wonderful church, spiritual and aggressive. The Lord gave us a great revival here. Many found the "Double Cure" and a good class came into the church. The evangelists were well remunerated and cared for. This was one of the greatest revivals of years for us.

Next we went to Yukon, Okla., and had a blessed little meeting with Pastor Lewis and his happy class of noble people.

Then to Shawnee, Okla. This proved to be a fine revival campaign, and many found God and some salt of the earth united with the church, among them one of our brothers in the flesh, W. B. Irick and his wife. Large crowds came and the circle of this meeting reached far and wide. It was a joy to labor with Pastor Bishop and his devout people; they love God and Bible holiness.

The first revival in Oklahoma after our moving to Bethany was with the Church and College at Bethany, Okla. This is a great church, with about seven hundred members and wide-awake pastors and deeply spiritual people. This was one of the greatest revivals in many years of our ministry. At present we are storming the forts of sin, world, the devil and carnality at El Reno, Okla. It is simply wonderful to witness the power of God and sinners weep their way to Jesus and believers sweep out into holiness. Large attendance greets the evangelists and hear the word gladly. The interest is excellent and the results are gratifying to pastor and church.

Our slate for spring and summer and into fall is full, and calls coming for our humble labors for camp meetings and revivals down into 1928. Was sorry to be compelled to turn down a call to good old Scottsville Holiness Camp Meeting of far-famed East Texas, but had no time in 1927, but hope to go there in 1928. You will see our slate for this year in The Herald.

We love God, enjoy the wondrous experience of holiness of heart, appreciate the church and value holy fellowship and hallowed associations more than ever. Any time we can serve camp meeting committees, churches and our brethren for revivals and camps please address us, Box 918, Bethany, Okla.

REVIVALS.

Soon after conference we held a revival with Rev. B. H. Spurrier on the Smithland circuit at Chestnut Hill. The Methodists and Campbellites aroused the house, and many of their members gainsayed the operation of the Holy Spirit. But the Spirit was poured out on the people and the saints shouted aloud the praises of God; about thirty people were blessed. The Baptists united with us and worked throughout the meeting. Sister Crause came out from Smithland and rendered valuable service. Bro. J. J. Smith, who lived a few miles away, came a few times; we were always glad to have him.

Our next meeting was with Bro. C. E. Perkins, at Mill Springs. Over one hundred were blessed and sixty-six joined the church. It was indeed a great revival. Sometimes twenty-five or thirty people would be shouting the praises of God.

We then went to Tuttle's Chapel for eleven days; about twenty-five or thirty were saved, reclaimed or sanctified. We give God all the glory.

We go to the poorest church as well as the stronger. We always keep the pastor in front, endeavor to help the church in all ways we can. We do the work and trust God and the people for the pay. We have gone where only our expenses were paid at some poor, struggling church that needed a revival.

We have some open dates in February, March and April. If anyone needs an old-time revival, and want us, write or phone us at Vine Grove, Ky.

Yours in him,
Robert Johnson and Wife.

Are we as parents realizing and meeting the great responsibility given into our keeping by a divine and loving Father? Will our sons and daughters be able to say that we were real fathers and mothers and be proud to say that we left them an inheritance of a godly example and an unsullied name?

THE GOSPEL IS THE POWER OF GOD UNTO SALVATION.

"Hallelujah, what a Savior we have! We are finding the Christ of the gospel just the same in Chapei, one of earth's darkest spots, mighty to save and strong to deliver. Less than two months have passed since we opened the doors of the mission, and thousands have gladly heard the Word and scores have bowed at the altars seeking the One who can make the vilest clean and who loves the one deepest in sin. One of our Chinese brothers in his report said, in his quaint English, 'We have shocked the whole of Chapei!' Praise God, that is really what is taking place! The meanest lanes and dirtiest alleys are no draw-back to the enthusiastic workers, and places where Jesus was never dreamed of have heard the sweet story and marvelled and come to his feet.

"Like a race-horse eager for the race, our precious Chinese brothers and sisters who have been with us in training in our Japan and Korea Bible Institutes have longed to be in our own premises and feel that our real work was started, and a more happy, enthusiastic and fervent band would be hard to find anywhere. The young men have been taught by Brother Fitch to play on different brass instruments, and the Chinese liking for noise is amply satisfied when our crowd comes along, with instruments and banners, down the dirty, narrow streets of Chapei!

"Being in such a district we could hardly expect Christians from other churches to come out to our meetings, but nevertheless our being in Shanghai has been 'noised abroad' and hungry souls have sought us out and not a few from other congregations have bowed at our altar seeking the baptism of the Holy Ghost.

"We have just closed a week's special evangelistic meetings in the mission, as it was the Chinese Autumn Festival and the streets were more thronged than ever. The mornings were taken up in wonderful open-air meetings and afternoons and evening crowds heard the 'Good News' in the mission. The results have been wonderful and we have again realized that the Chinese respond to the old-fashioned Gospel just like the Japanese and Koreans do, and as hungry, sin-laden souls do anywhere. We are earnestly praying, and in faith expecting, that from among these 'first fruits' God will call young men and women to preach and bring them into the Bible Institute for training.

"The young converts are being encouraged right from the beginning to testify and some blessed testimonies are heard from the lips of those who only so recently were in such awful darkness. One old man testified that he had for many years belonged to a secret guild for the prohibition of gambling, smoking, drinking and other such evils, but he had never had peace in his own conscience. Now since he confessed all his sins and accepted Jesus as his Savior he has experienced heavenly peace for the first time in his life. Praise God!

"Another man who was saved testified that he had been under the control of an evil spirit which caused him to draw evil pictures, and even though he opposed him he was compelled to obey. When he heard the gospel preached and learned about the sinful nature of man and how dangerous it is, he was under deep conviction and determined not to obey the evil spirit. That very night the evil spirit came to him again and told him to draw bad pictures, but he answered that it was sin, which would not escape the wrath of God, and refused to do so. Then the fight began in his heart, but the Lord Jesus Christ who had shed his own blood to redeem from sin, was victorious. Praise his precious Name! This man is no longer under the control of the evil spirit and his heart is full of peace and joy.

"Another young man told me the Lord had delivered him from a life of lust. He had no interest in his work or in his daily life and thought only of sin, but he heard our workers telling of the One who could deliver him from the power of sin, and he believed and was saved. He now has supernatural power and joyfully testified that he no longer loves his evil companions and they hate and persecute him. Many other such testimonies are given of the saving power of God.

"In our vision of the future, if the Lord tarries, we can see hundreds of these soul-saving stations all over this dark but ripe land. Thousands of native workers are needed and a chain of Bible Schools to train them—a great vision, a costly vision, but we trust in him who delighteth to do great things. Praise his Name!

"Brother Lyu, one of our workers in Shanghai, writes as follows: 'Last Friday evening we held our regular evangelistic meeting, going out for the street meeting at 6:30 and beginning in doors at 7 o'clock. Mrs. S. H. Wang was the preacher and Brother Zhen was leading the meeting. The atmosphere was heavy with prayer and getting 'thicker' as the meeting proceeded. I was sitting in the front row half listening to the heart searching sermon and half in prayer in my heart. About 9:30 o'clock the meeting was going to close but Brother Zhen announced 'Everybody be free to testify. We want to see a revival this evening,' then he cried out 'How long, oh dear friends, how long will you harden your hearts?' Immediately the meeting changed and the altar was filled with seekers who began to cry to God for mercy, sobbing out their confessions of sin. One old man confessed his terrible sins of the past which he would never have given utterance to unless the Holy Ghost had touched his heart. What a time of confession we had and then afterward the shouts of praise and singing. Thirty of us continued until one o'clock in the morning. Truly when a revival comes every problem is solved."

Ho! for the Orlando Holiness Camp Meeting.

The Orlando Holiness Camp Meeting opens March 10, near the beautiful city of Orlando, Fla. Rev. John Paul, D.D., C. W. Ruth, and H. C. Morrison have been engaged to do the preaching. This is a beautiful place situated on Long Lake. Last year the opening of this new camp was most successful. For information, write to Mr. F. H. Trimble, Orlando, Florida.

We hope to see many of our ministerial brethren there for a time of spiritual refreshing. Our friends coming from the north will please take notice and keep this date for the camp, March 10-20. We hope to see HERALD readers at this encampment from all over the State of Florida. We shall be glad if THE HERALD family will pray the blessing of God to rest upon us.

Faithfully yours,
H. C. MORRISON.

Monthly Sermon.

THE CLEANSING BLOOD OF CHRIST.

"God is light, and in him is no darkness at all. If we say that we have fellowship with him, and walk in darkness, we lie, and do not the truth: But if we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin. If we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us. If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive our sins, and to cleanse from all unrighteousness. If we say that we have not sinned, we make him a liar, and his word is not in us." John 1:5-10.

Sin is as universal as the human race. The apostle tells us that to deny that we have sinned, would be to charge God with falsehood. The whole tenor of the Bible teaches that the human race is fallen; that the heart is depraved, that men are, by nature, sinners. The plan of redemption recognizes this fact. In redemption, God deals with the individual. The Lord Jesus plainly declares that a new spiritual birth is necessary for one and all.

The atonement which Christ has made in his death on the cross provides all that God requires, and all that men need. By the grace of God, the Lord Jesus has tasted death for every one. The gospel is distinctly a "whosoever will" gospel. The Lord Jesus took the place and died in the stead of lost and sinful humanity. He paid the debt to its utmost extent and opened the way for the return to God of all who will believe and trust in the merit of the atonement made by Christ.

John tells us that God is faithful and just to forgive our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness. We are not to understand that apart from Christ we have any claims on God; that in the forgiveness of our sins that he is paying any debt which he owes us, but he is discharging the covenant he made with his Son. It was understood between the Father and the Son, that if the Son would come, take our place, suffer and die in our stead, that the Father would grant to us salvation, and God, the eternal Father, is faithful and just to this covenant he entered into with his Son. He is also faithful and just to the promise and pledge he has made with sinful men that, when they repent and accept by faith the atonement that Christ made upon the cross, he will grant them forgiveness and cleansing.

Let us now begin with the beginning of our text. "God is light, and in him is no darkness at all." We are to understand that the word "light" stands for holiness, and the word "darkness" stands for sin. God is holy, and in him is no sin at all. To claim fellowship with him and, at the same time, to refuse to be holy and walk in righteousness, love and commit sin, the apostle tells us plainly, is to lie; to contradict the truth.

This is a very important teaching, and should claim our attention. There is quite a strong tendency among men to make a profession of faith, to receive baptism, to unite with some church and accept and practice the mere forms of godliness, but at the same time, to continue in their sins; in fact there is quite a disposition in our times among religious teachers to excuse and apologize for sinning, among professed Christians. Some go so far as to insist that, as long as we live in the body, we are compelled to sin; that a clean heart and a holy life are impossible; that sin inheres in matter; that is, in the body, and that to get rid of sin we must die.

There is much false and dangerous teaching abroad in the land today. Eddyism is spreading rapidly and deceiving numbers of souls. It seems almost impossible to rescue and bring back to a belief in the plainly written truths of the Bible, those who have been ensnared by the delusions of Christian Science. The same is true of Russellism, which is a persistent propaganda deluding and drawing away from the fundamental truths of Bible Christianity, multitudes of people. We might call attention to Theosophy and many forms of modern skepticism denying the inspiration of the Scriptures, the virgin birth and atonement of our Lord. Wolves in sheep's clothing are rending the flock of God everywhere.

There is no doubt in our mind but the most dangerous delusion of our times is the very general and widespread teaching in thousands of Protestant pulpits that all Christians do, and must, sin. This seems to have become very generally accepted among Protestant Christians as a fundamental truth of the Bible. Of course, if the people are taught that a clean heart and holy life are an impossibility, they will not, and cannot, aspire to purity of heart, neither will they hunger and thirst after righteousness.

If we are constituted so that it is impossible for us to be holy, if all the merits of our Lord Jesus may be exhausted, and yet leave us in spiritual defilement and moral and mental condition that we must live in sin against God, we had as well surrender to the inevitable and go on in our sins. This is very generally believed by professing Christians; in fact, is taught from thousands of pulpits. In a very large percent of the Protestant churches of today, if the preacher should insist that Christ is able to save us from our sins, here and now, that our natures may be cleansed, our hearts made pure, and our daily living brought into consistent and beautiful harmony with the word of God, that to be Christians in the highest and best sense, we must not only repent, be regenerated, but be sanctified from the inward principle of evil, and so filled with the Holy Spirit that we are able to joyfully walk with God in the light, there would be quite a disturbance in the church and, in the large majority of cases, the pastor would be ousted, and some one brought to take his place who would "prophecy smooth things," comfort the people in their disobedience to God, and apologize for, and excuse their sinning, rather than condemn and exhort them to lives of holiness.

In our text the inspired apostle declares most positively that, "If we walk in darkness," that is, in disobedience and sin, and claim to have fellowship with God, we lie and do not the truth. Said to say, we have many professors of religion who do not claim to have fellowship with God; they do not desire such fellowship. You would offend them if you insisted that they must deny themselves, separate themselves from worldliness, and take up their cross daily, and follow Jesus.

We not only are assured that if we "walk in the light, as God is in the light, that we have fellowship with him," but we have the additional promise that, "the blood of Jesus Christ cleanseth us from all sin." God will speak the "second time, be clean," and "take away our inbred sin." In order to come into the light that we may walk with God, having fellowship with him, we must be regenerated. Walking with God and having fellowship with him, we will hunger and thirst after righteousness; we will long for purity of heart. We will grieve and protest against any of the movings of our carnal nature, any of the uprisings of the old man, and will long for deliverance, and we are assured here that we shall have deliverance. Let men say what they may, we have the eternal promise that "the blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth from all sin." The atonement is full and complete. "Where sin abounded, grace did much more abound." Our Christ is more powerful than all the combined devils and power of evil. The Annunciation Angel told Mary, "Thou shalt call his name JESUS for he shall save his people from their sins."

In studying the text please to note that the inspired apostle rivets upon our attention the fact that we stand in need of the cleansing. He assures us that "if we say we have no sin," and therefore need no cleansing, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us. Wicked deeds, sinful actions, rebellious conduct against God, call for forgiveness. This pardon comes with regeneration; but the sinful nature, the moral inherent taint and bent to evil, calls for cleansing. The getting rid of it, involves the cleansing power of the precious blood of Christ.

Observe here that the apostle does not contradict himself; he does not tell you in the 7th verse that the blood of Jesus cleanseth from all sin, and then tell you in the 8th verse that you cannot be cleansed from sin, and then hasten to tell you in the 9th verse that you may be cleansed from all unrighteousness. This would indeed be a strange mixture of contradictions. In the 7th verse he tells you of the cleansing; in the 8th verse he assures you of the need of the cleansing; in the 9th verse he reiterates the blessed promise that you shall be cleansed from all unrighteousness.

Let us take our stand firmly on the eternal promise of God that, "The blood of Jesus Christ cleanseth from all sin." He has a full atonement made. There is nothing necessary to our salvation here, and now, and forever, that is not provided in the blood of the everlasting covenant. It is our blessed privilege to come to Jesus with the understanding that his cleansing blood is all we need. To come, declaring "In my hand no price I bring; simply to thy cross I cling." Satan has not been able to introduce any evil that Jesus cannot expel, to place any stain upon the human soul that Jesus' blood cannot wash away. Come to Jesus. Come, trusting in his cleansing blood. Come, insisting that he died for you, that his promise is made, that his word is sure, that his blood cleans-eth. Trust in him, receive the cleansing, sanctifying power of his precious blood; stand firmly there, rejoicing, and singing, as you rejoice,

"Rock of Ages, cleft for me;
Let me hide myself in Thee."

THE DUTY OF THE WATCHMAN.

In speaking of ministerial supply, Bishop Candler said, "You get an indefinite gospel with more qualifications than substance, and a real man does not care to go forth to preach it. It may be that we are developing a sort of system of scribism, that is everlastingly concerning itself with little minute matters of secondary importance and losing the grip on essential things. I am inclined to think that in Paul's time there was division existing with regard to the gospel which he felt was the power of God unto salvation. And now you find a good many men qualifying and limiting in various directions until it does not grip old men or young men. They become largely the announcers of the numbers of the musical program on Sundays. That will not call men or hold them. In Protestant worship the central thing is the proclamation of definite body of truth. When we get the idea that everything may be true, we bring forward by implication that everything may be false. For my own part, I will not undertake the burdens and responsibilities of the ministry, if I have to go forth with a gospel that is uncertain as to what it means, or whether men need it or not. The world needs it, and it is absolutely indispensable to this world; and that being true, God lays his hand on men who must go and tell it. Two things have come out of revivals, hymns and preaching. And when you do not have those great movements of grace that lift men up to heights where they will rejoice in God and feel confident by reason of their relation to him, you do not have preachers. The man must, like the prophet, see Jehovah in his temple, high and lifted up, before he answers, 'Here am I; send me.'"

Oh that we might have an army of preachers like our great founder, John Wesley, who went everywhere, and all the time preaching a full gospel to those in the open air, in halls, in the byways, and even from his father's tombstone. His open-air work was the foundation of our great Methodist Church, yet we find very few of our modern ministers who have faith enough in this method of work to even hold occasional meetings.

Who will be the Wesleys, Whitefield, and Finney, who will make the pages of the twentieth century Methodism glow with the gospel torch of a full and free salvation? Moody and Spurgeon are gone, but who is at this time in the real heat of battle winning souls to such an extent that their names will go down in history as the greatest soul-winners of their day? Why do we have to look back to what has been done to encourage our faith? Why may we not look at what is being done now, that the army of the Lord may be quickened to a pace that will mean the speedy evangelization of this prodigal world. Let us, as preacher and people, follow the Captain of our salvation back to the upper room, and there get on the gospel harness, and in touch with the divine current that will make us mighty to the pulling down of the strongholds of Satan. Then shall we go forth "fair as the moon, clear as the sun, and terrible as an army with banners."

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let an Ohio boy join your happy boys and girls? I enjoy reading The Herald, especially page ten. There is a question that is puzzling me as to whether Christ had any brothers or sisters. Can you answer this? We have a new high school here at Tronto, O. Esther James, I guess your middle name to be Catherine. As this is my first letter to The Herald I hope to see it in print. Harvey L. Huff.
Rt. 2, Toronto, Ohio.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you admit a poor shut-in to your happy circle? I am glad to see letters from some who are no longer boys and girls, so I hope to see my letter in print as I want to ask all of you who are Christians to pray that I may be healed of tuberculosis. I have been an invalid many long months and twice last year was very near death, but the Lord spared me and I am still here, though confined to my bed and unable to stand alone. I know that God can heal me for he has done such marvelous things for me. I have a boy twelve years old and two girls, one eleven, the other 8, and a dear companion. I have been a subscriber to The Pentecostal Herald for thirty-one years, and it is the best soul food I have, except the Bible. Each copy is worth its weight in gold. I live in Barren county, Ky., about six miles from Mammoth Cave. I have been to Pentecostal Park Camp Ground several times some years ago and heard Bro. Morrison preach. I think he is a wonderful preacher. God bless him and spare him to defend the Bible. Pray for a revival in our community, that I may be a channel of blessing to any who may come into my humble little home. I long so much to do something for Jesus who has done so much for me. Who has my birthday, February 2? I was forty-eight years old. I wish all of the cousins would send me a card or some message of cheer and comfort. I will appreciate them very much and feel that the Lord will bless you for he has promised to reward those who give even a cup of cold water in his name. Those who have never been shut in from the outside world by affliction don't know what a word of sympathy or a loving message is worth to the poor suffering ones. God bless Aunt Bettie and all the cousins. Don't forget to pray for me. I cannot live long without divine healing.
Mrs. J. W. Poynter.
Rt. 4, Cave City, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Would you be kind enough to let a small girl from Oregon join your happy band of boys and girls? It seems you receive very few letters from Oregon, or maybe Mr. W. B. gets all of them. I am nine years of age and in the fourth grade. I go to Sunday school every Sunday; but they don't have any children's meetings here; but as we take The Herald that helps to make up for it. We never tear up a Herald but give or send them away to some one else. As this is my first letter I hope to see it in print.

Dorothy Moore.
Flora, Ore.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I have seen letters printed from the states of Maryland, Kentucky, Kansas, Missouri, Louisiana, Indiana, Florida, North Carolina, Tennessee, and many other states but none from New York, and here they call us the "Empire State." Isn't that terrible? I will write and at least try to have it printed just this once. It is cold up here and the snow is blowing. I have not missed a day of school until today and the roads were drifted so bad that it was impossible to get there. What are you boys and girls' chief sports? Mine is skiing and skating in winter, and climbing mountains and bathing in summer. Skating is the chief sport at present. I have skated nearly twenty miles in one day. I have tubular racer skates. They are the only kind to have if you make a practice of skating. Well, how many are wondering how I look? I am five feet, six inches tall, weigh one hundred and ten pounds, have dark brown hair, blue eyes and fair complexion.

I expect to graduate from high school next year. I am fifteen years old and my birthday is May 8. Anyone who has a birthday in the month of May I will send them some pictures of the beautiful scenery such as the Ansable Chasm and Adirondack Mountains, if they will write to me. I will close now hoping to hear from a large number of "Mayflowers." I remain a friend to all boys and girls and Aunt Bettie.

Martha E. Haselton.
Essex Co., "Adirondack Mountains, Wilmington, N. Y.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Yes, I believe I will come in as Mr. W. B. has gone fishing. Oh dear, you don't hear very much from our beautiful Evergreen state, do you, but I know that you will hear more after this as we don't want the other states to beat us. I am 54 inches short, have dark brown hair, hazel eyes, dark complexion, I am eight years old and in the third grade. I go to Sunday school but have not been able to go for a while as we have been having scarlet fever. I have two sisters and two brothers, the baby is just learning to stand alone. I must be going.

Wilma L. Mosher.
Sedro Woolley, Wash.

Dear Aunt Bettie: No, I can't stay very long, so I won't come in. I am 48 inches tall, have light complexion, blue eyes and light hair. I am six years old and in the first grade. My birthday is June 25. I go to the M. E. Sunday school every Sunday. My teacher's name is Elsie Jury. I like to go to my grandma's. She lives about one mile from us. My Daddy works in camp but comes home at night. Well I must be going as Mr. W. B. is getting anxious for his dinner and I don't want him to eat me.

Eleanor May Mosher.
Sedro Woolley, Wash.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I have never written to page ten. At last I've picked up enough courage to write. I always like to read page ten. I am a boy four feet, nine inches tall. I have brown hair and fair complexion. My age is between ten and fourteen. Can anyone guess it? How many of you cousins are Christians? I am, and am not one bit sorry of it. I like to go to school. Herbert Helton is my chum. We have some fine times together. Auntie, what's that I hear? Oh, that's Mr. W. B. coming after me. Let me out the door, quick!

Arnold Campbell.
Rt. 2, Box 99, Rockholds, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Have you any room for a West Virginia girl to join your happy band of boys and girls? I am eleven years old, have black hair and brown eyes. I weigh about 83 pounds. I go to Sunday school every Sunday. Our minister's name is Rev. H. K. Riffe. My Sunday school teacher is Mrs. Hudkins. I like her very much. I enjoy reading page ten. Who has my birthday, July 11? I have no brothers nor sisters and would be glad to hear from some of the cousins. I hope Mr. W. B. is looking the other way when this arrives. I am hoping to see this letter in print as this is my first one to The Herald.
Virginia Whitehare.
1319 Lubeck Ave., Parkersburg, W. Va.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I wonder if you will admit another Mississippi girl to join your band of writers? We do not take The Pentecostal Herald, but I read the letters every chance I have, and enjoy them very much. I belong to the M. E. Church, though unfortunately, do not live near enough to attend Sunday school and prayer meeting as regularly as I would like. I think every one should go to Sunday school and prayer meeting who has the opportunity. I go every chance I have and enjoy it very much. How many of you made your New Year resolutions? I have made a few and am going to do my best to live up to them throughout the year. I enjoy going to school more than anything I do. I go to an Agricultural High School and think it is one of the best high schools in the state. I am seventeen years old, have blue eyes, brown hair, am five feet and three inches tall, and weigh 126 pounds. My birthday was Feb. 14. Who is my twin? Please write me for I am anxious to find some one my age. I am a Junior in high school and enjoy my work very much. How many of you girls like basket ball? It is my favorite hobby. We have a good team, although we haven't played very many match games yet. I enjoy reading and writing letters very much, so all you cousins write me. I shall try to answer all letters I receive. I am hoping for a letter from every state in the Union, so all you girls and boys write me.

Ethel McCutchen.
Rt. 3, Rienzi, Miss.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I have long been a silent reader of The Herald. I feel that I cannot afford to be without it. I certainly do enjoy yours and Bro. Morrison's writings, together with the many other good writers. Aunt Bettie, I never saw you or Bro. Morrison, but I think I would know you if I should have the privilege of meeting you. When I opened The Herald yesterday and saw the group of tent workers and Bro. Morrison in front, I said, "There is a faithful soldier of the Cross." I wish we had more like him. Bro. C. R. Marrett, if you will please send me your address I will send you some *Pentecostal Herald*s. Cousins, keep close to Jesus. If you have not given your heart to Jesus, oh do it now.
Ida M. Howard.
Rt. 3, Hartford, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I should like to chat with the cousins a few minutes through the columns of page ten. I am a boy fourteen years old, have brown hair and fair complexion. I always enjoy reading The Herald, especially page ten. I like to go to school very much. Miss Ruby Campbell is my teacher. Can any one guess my middle name? It begins with C and contains four letters. I'll write the one who guesses it. Some of you cousins write me, and I'll gladly answer.

Herbert Helton.
Rt. 2, Box 98, Rockholds, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: How are all my cousins today? Hope they all feel as good as I do. If they do they will feel fine. I live in a large two-story building and it is a very delightful place to live. I will soon be fourteen. I am a very tall girl. My hair is a very light red, have blue eyes, and weigh 92 pounds. I go to the M. E. Church; our pastor is T. J. Holliday. I like him fine. I go to Sunday school and church every Sunday. My Sunday school teacher's name is Mrs. Huggins. I like her very much. I am in the seventh grade and like all my work fine. We have five high school teachers. My teacher's name is Mrs. Branton and the Principal's name is Mr. Branton. My grandpa is a minister but he is so old he can't preach, but he used to be a dandy.

Marguerite Cook.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a little Tennessee girl join your happy band of boys and girls? My father takes The Herald and I enjoy reading page ten. I am sixteen years old. My birthday is Sept. 21. I have brown, curly hair, brown eyes and fair complexion. I go to school at Charlotte, Tenn. I am in the ninth grade. My teachers' names are Miss Benkley, Mr. Bryan, Mr. Roschell and Miss Stevens. I like them fine. I go to Sunday school nearly every Sunday. My teacher's name is Mrs. Dotson. She is a fine teacher. I have two brothers and four sisters living, and two sisters dead. The babies are twins. Little Bessie died Jan. 1, 1927.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you move over and let a little Nebraska girl join your happy band of girls and boys? My mother takes The Herald and I enjoy reading page ten. Esther C. James, I guess your middle name to be Catherine. If I am right do not forget your promise. I am in the seventh grade at school. I am eleven years old. Whoever guesses my middle name I will send a card. It begins with A and ends with H. It has six letters. Myrtle Louise Saunders, I guess your birthday to be June 28. Am I right? I like to go to Sunday school. Rev. Good is our minister's Dear Aunt Bettie: How are you and all the cousins? I am a little Minnesota boy eleven years old. My birthday is March 16. I have dark brown eyes and hair. I go to school every day with my little pony. We go to the M. E. Church and Sunday school. I read The Herald, especially page ten. We have lots of snow here and it is very cold. I would like to see my letter in print.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I don't want to take up too much of your valuable space in The Herald, but as you were so kind to print my last letter I decided to write once more. I enjoyed the many letters that were rushed to me by cousins from different states, and I should have answered them by mail, but some of the addresses I could not read. I received good letters from Evelyn Tipton, Allene Lockard, Pearl Waldrep, and Naomi R. Dixon. I received some good reading from William C. McGinnis and Mabel Lee Brooks. Three other letters I wish to mention were from Evelyn Rogers, Edna Smith, and Carrie Canter. Cousins, what could we do to make page ten more interesting this year? My suggestion is that we ask some good Bible questions. I have two in mind. Why were the children of Israel kept wandering in the wilderness for forty years? Why is the larger portion of the Bible written to Christians?

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you allow a West Virginia girl to join your happy band of boys and girls? I have brown hair and brown eyes, am five feet and four inches tall, and weigh about 108 pounds. My age is between fifteen and eighteen. I live on a farm but am going to school at Spencer. I am a Sophomore, and like school fine. I go to church and Sunday school almost every Sunday. I hope Mr. W. B. doesn't get this. Please, won't some of you cousins write? I would like to hear from every one of you; I'll answer every letter I receive. I'll ring off, hoping I hear from all of you cousins.

FALLEN ASLEEP

ALLEN.

James Allen, son of Jacob and Mary Tope Allen, died at his home in Union, Ohio, Jan. 4, 1927, aged 74 years, 5 months and 7 days. He lived his entire life in this community and had built his home on a portion of his father's farm which he bought upon his marriage to Rena Scott, of Delroy, Ohio, 41 years ago. To this union were born three children, Clyde E., who died in 1880, Mrs. Earl Boyd, of Leavittsville, Ohio, and Morris F., president of the Allen Auto Supply Co., of Galion, Ohio. Mr. Allen was one of a family of eleven children, but all have passed on except Jackson W. Allen, of Great Falls, Montana, and Jacob G., of Pittsburgh. This family were well known for their musical ability, there being seven boys who each played and owned a violin, also one girl played the violin and organ. He would often tell of the days when they were all at home together, how the father and mother would pull their chairs over in a corner and be the audience while they would play the violins, organ, harp and guitar for hours. Mr. Allen was a member of the Palermo M. P. Church, but after Dick and Tillie Albright came to Carrollton and began holding evangelistic services the Bible was revealed to him in an altogether different light and he received great blessings and help through the holiness people. Their home was always a shelter for preachers, evangelists and singers, and many an evangelist who reads these lines will remember being there. He always spoke of Bush and Schmeltzenbauch, missionaries in Africa, as "his boys" and his home was their home. He died a triumphant death as all do who "have finished their course and kept the faith." Those left to mourn their loss are his wife, son, and daughter and five grandchildren, and the two brothers mentioned. He was laid to rest in the Carrollton Mausoleum, the services being held in the Carrollton M. E. Church, Rev. Longworth, his pastor, and Rev. Shaffer, of Carrollton, officiating.

Mrs. Earl Boyd.

MICHAEL.

Sister Maud Ellis Michael, wife of Rev. J. F. Michael, of Abernathy, Texas, was born in Bollinger Co., Mo., September 28, 1892, and passed to her reward in the Lubbock Sanatorium on January 14, 1927.

She received her education in the public schools of Southeast Missouri and in Will Mayfield, Marvin, and Asbury Colleges. After leaving college, she taught for several years in the public schools and in the Presbyterian Institute, Heidelberg, Ky.

She was married to Rev. J. F. Michael, June 25, 1919, in St. Louis, Mo., by Dr. L. E. Todd. This union was blessed with five children—Juanita, Joyce, Joseph Frederick, Jr., Marie Louise and Euna Belle—may God bless them in their motherless childhood—her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Ellis, Sedgewickville, Mo., her four brothers, W. F. Ellis, St. Louis, Mo., L. K. Ellis, Poplar Bluff, Mo., Rev. J. W. Ellis, Melcher, Iowa, and Edd Ellis, Sedgewickville, Mo., and four sisters, Mrs. Ethel Bollinger, Mrs. Mary Bollinger and Miss Blanche Ellis, Sedgewickville, Mo., and Mrs. Kate Ball, Crystal Springs, Miss., and a host of friends join the husband and children in mourning her untimely going.

Sister Michael was a humble, quiet and modest little woman, who always met you with a smile. She was thoroughly consecrated to her Lord, devoted to her husband, and loved and labored for her children with the tenderest care. For six years in the Denver Conference and one in the Northwest Texas Conference, she served the great Church to which she belonged as queen of the parsonage home.

She had been a sufferer for more than two years, but for twenty-six days just preceding her going the suffering was intense, yet she faced it bravely. She committed her husband and children to her Christ and prayed him to release her from suffering and take her home. She had Bro. Michael to read the Bible and pray. Then she asked him to sing, "On Jordan's Stormy Banks." He choked and could not sing; she took up the refrain and sang; her prayer was answered; she passed over Jordan and entered her possession.

No greater funeral procession was ever seen in Abernathy. Preachers and laymen of Lubbock District came as far as forty to fifty miles to stand by good Brother Michael, whom all have learned to love,—what a fellowship! The funeral was conducted by the writer assisted by Rev. E. E. White and Rev. L. W. Walker, pastors of Lubbock, and Rev. Z. B. Pirtle, pastor at Levelland. Her body sleeps beneath the sod and flowers, but her influence still lives in the heart of her family and friends, while the modest, refined and happy spirit has passed from the shadows of mortality into the eternal light of immortality "where her possession lies." HOW A REVIVAL CAME TO A.

During the two years of my first pastorate, God gave us a gracious revival. My second charge was A, in Illinois. There were two churches in the town, a Methodist and a Universalist. The latter was much the stronger, numerically, financially and socially; thus it dominated the entire community. I believed in revivals, and they soon began to say to me, "You can't have a revival in this town." I answered, "Why? Is God dead over here?" They would reply, "No, but you can't have a revival in this Universalist town." Universalism and revivals don't go together. I was still a student pastor, so the only time to hold a revival was in the holidays. We continued services from the Sunday preceding Christmas. It was very cold and stormy, however we had a good turn-out every night. The church would seat 300, and averaged at least half full. The interest increased and there was deep conviction. I preached, as I believed, the old-fashioned Methodist truths; however, at the end of two weeks there had not been a move. Sunday morning after the two weeks I had been expecting to hear came, "I told you so." But how it hurt! How like a dagger in my very heart! "You can't have a revival in this Universalist town." "Better close tonight." "You have washed your hands." That is what I heard from a number of the members, but I was not there just to "wash my hands." Pilate's experience along that line did not appeal to me. I went from the morning service to my boarding place with a burdened soul. I could eat but little. I tried to rest, but could not. I attempted to study my evening sermon; it was no use. I walked the floor in agony. Must my Christ suffer such reproach. "Can't have a revival!" "Oh God," I cried aloud, "what shall I do?" Quick as a flash came the answer to my soul. "Go and see Brother and Sister B." I went. Brother and Sister B. were an old local preacher and his wife, both past seventy. I stated the case and how I had been sent to them, and said, "God has sent me here for you to tell me what to do." Sister B. said, "Let's pray." Brother B. said "Amen." So we went to prayer, and for three hours we three wrestled with God in agony and tears. Then peace came to my soul. I looked around me in surprise. Brother B. was standing at one side of the old coal grate fireplace laughing; Sister B. sat in a rocker on the other side, smiling through her tears. She said, "Brother, how do you feel?" I said, "My burden is all gone." Brother B. said, "The revival is here." And it was. During the next week nearly fifty souls were gloriously saved and some of them out of Universalist homes.

Brethren and Sisters, let's pray.

J. J. Hunter.

MOST WONDERFUL ART THOU.

Ernest G. W. Wesley.

Jesus Christ, the Mystery of God:

Most Wonderful art Thou.

God, yet man, who paths of earth once trod:

Most Wonderful art Thou.

Vainly seek we Thee to understand,
Far beyond our utmost thought art Thou.

Power Divine abides in Thy right hand,

Heavenly hosts before Thy glory bow:

Most Wonderful art Thou.

Jesus Christ, the Mystery of God:

Most Wonderful art Thou.

God, yet man, Who path of sorrow trod:

Most Wonderful art Thou.

Mighty God and yet the Virgin's child;

Lord of all, yet choosing path of pain.

Son of Man, most true and undefiled:
Lamb of God that Thou the world might gain:

Most Wonderful art Thou.

Jesus Christ, the Mystery of God:

Most Wonderful art Thou.

God, yet man, who darkest pathways trod:

Most Wonderful art Thou.

Seen by Thee our sin, our guilt, our shame:

Sought by Thee and brought back to Thy fold.

Virgin born, Immanuel is Thy Name:
God Thou art, whose goings are of old:

Most Wonderful art Thou.

Jesus Christ, the Mystery of God:

Most Wonderful art Thou.

God, yet man, who path to Calv'ry trod:

Most Wonderful art Thou.

Love encircled is Thy radiant throne;
Countless millions hail Thee Lord of all.

Love like Thine no sinner will disown;
Thou dost welcome all who on Thee call:

Most Wonderful art Thou.

Preachers and evangelists often talk about the weeping saints; but many of them are not the best examples of what they preach. We need more weeping prophets. If Christians are ever united, they must have more divine love for each other. Their hearts must be melted together.

Adieu, ye proud, ye rich and gay—

I'll seek the broken-hearted;

Who weep when they say of Zion,
Her glory has departed.

We find weeping Christians that are crying day and night, here, there and yonder, scattered through the different churches and missions, that have a great burden of prayer, and are crying to God day and night for an old-fashioned revival to spread over the land. We believe a great revival is coming soon. Let us pray day and night until God pours out his Spirit as he did on the day of Pentecost.

Yours in Christian love,

S. B. Shaw.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

REV O. G. MINGLEDORFF, D.D.

Lesson X.—March 6, 1927.

Subject.—Sharing the Good News. Acts 8:1-8; 2 Cor. 5:14-20.

Golden Text.—Ye shall be witnesses unto me. Acts 1:8.

Time.—Doubtful. Dr. A. Clarke makes it A. D. 32. Some put it as late as 37. The time of the writing of 2 Cor. was somewhere between A. D. 54 and 57.

Places.—Samaria for the first part of the lesson. We are in some doubt as to the place of the writing of the second part; some claim Philippi, others Macedonia.

Introduction.—We must read the seventh chapter of Acts and the first three verses of the eighth chapter, in order to get the connection. In the sixth chapter it is stated that Stephen, one of the deacons chosen to administer the charities of the Church at Jerusalem, had been doing 'great wonders and miracles among the people,' and that certain members of the synagogue of the Libertines, Cyrenians, Alexandrians and of Cilicia and of Asia entered into a dispute with Stephen, but could not answer his statements and his arguments; whereupon they accused him of blasphemy, and suborned men to swear falsely against him. They testified that they had "heard him speak blasphemous words against Moses, and against God," and that he had also blasphemed the temple and the law, all of which was a blasphemous lie, for he had done no such thing. They went still further, and stated that Stephen had said that Jesus of Nazareth would destroy the temple, and change the customs received from Moses. This stirred up the people and their rulers to a dangerous pitch; and they immediately demanded that Stephen tell them if these things were so.

Stephen's address in reply to their demand is a masterly statement of the salient points in Jewish history from the call of Abraham to the coming of Jesus Christ, their promised Messiah. Their wrath became so hot that they rushed upon and stoned him to death before he could finish his speech. One wonders what more Stephen would have said; but when he charged them with being stiff-necked and uncircumcised in heart and ears, and always resisting the Holy Ghost, and with persecuting and murdering the prophets whom God had sent unto them and their fathers, they gnashed on him with their teeth like wild beasts.

Stephen was an imprudent man, thank God. Paul was another imprudent man. Jesus was very imprudent. Prudent men have saved their own hides and their own lives; but they have seldom done much for the rest of humanity. "He who fights, and runs away will live to fight another day"; but he will not be likely to do so, if he can find a thicket in which to hide. The imprudent man who dies rather than suffer a righteous cause to fail, is the real blessing of the world. It is better to lose your life than to suffer a sinking man to drown.

They stoned Stephen to death while his face shone like an angel's and while he was looking into the very face of Jesus as he saw him standing on the right hand of God in heaven. We usually give him credit for praying for his murderers; but we are not absolutely correct. That prayer was inspired of the Holy Spirit. "He knelt down, and cried with a loud voice, Lord, lay not this sin to their charge." No one can pray such a prayer under such circumstances without the inspiring help of the Divine Spirit. And that prayer was answered. St. Augustine used to say: "Si Stephanus non orasset, ecclesia Paulum non haberet"—If Stephen had not prayed, the Church would not have Paul. But the martyr's prayer still lives to bless the hearts of men by its influence; and maybe in some way God is yet answering it for multitudes who persecute his saints.

Awful persecution broke out in Jerusalem against the Church; and all the brethren, except the apostles were scattered abroad; (we do not know why the apostles were allowed to remain in the city). No doubt Saul of Tarsus was a ringleader in the persecutions. During the time that Jesus was teaching and preaching in Jerusalem, Saul was possibly back at his native home in Cilicia; but soon after the crucifixion he made his way back to the Holy City, as it was called. He had become a member of the Sanhedrin, helped to condemn Stephen to death, and took charge of the robes of the young men who stoned him. We get a good picture of him in chapter 8:3: "As for Saul, he made havoc of the church, entering into every house, and haling men and women committed them to prison."

Comments on the Lesson.

4. They that were scattered abroad went everywhere preaching the word.—I suppose that the devil instigated this persecution; but God used it for his glory in the advancement of his work. It was natural for these disciples to preach as they went; for they were alive from the dead, and were full of the Holy Ghost. Such men cannot be stopped.

5. Then Philip went down to the city of Samaria.—From Jerusalem all was down. The people went up to that city. Christ probably referred to Jerusalem when he spoke of a city set on a hill. Preached Christ unto them.—Poor fellow, he knew nothing about philosophy and literature and Eddyism and New Thought and Modernism, and therefore had to preach Christ or nothing. O, he had the only theme that is worth preaching: Jesus Christ and him crucified. If we preach anything else, we give men stones when they ask us for bread.

6. Philip had found a fine place for a meeting; "For the people with one accord gave heed unto the things which he spake"; but his preaching had good backing; for the people were "hearing and seeing the miracles which he did." Such things were needed then, but not now; and we do not have signs and wonders now to enforce our preaching.

7. Unclean spirits.—In those days people were possessed of devils whom the apostles and other disciples cast out in the name of Jesus of Nazareth. If some folk are not demon-possessed nowadays, I would like to find out what is the matter with them; for they do not act as human beings are supposed to act. Philip was likewise used of the Lord to heal the palsied and the lame in the city.

8. And there was great joy in that city.—No wonder. Salvation and healing had come to the people; and it was time to rejoice. Only the dead could be quiet under such circumstances.

Now we come to the second part of our lesson, 2 Cor. 5:14-20.

14. The love of Christ constraineth us.—Nothing else can make a preacher or a Christian worker. When inspired by that love human sympathy is a good thing, social work is good; but unless these be the outgrowth of the love of Christ shed abroad in the heart by the Holy Ghost, they are worse than worthless; for they deceive the soul into a false estimate of its standing before God, and may result in damnation. If one died for all, then were all dead.—Paul includes all under sin, that all may be included under grace. Blessed doctrine.

15. Since Christ "died for all," we are not our own; wherefore we must live unto him Who died for us. No place for self here, but all for him.

16. Henceforth know we no man after the flesh.—Paul is rising above our fleshly natures, and is pleading for spiritual companionship. We cannot know even Christ otherwise than through the Spirit. But that is a higher knowledge, and a stronger companionship than the fleshly sort.

My space is about all used up; but much of the lesson lies before me untouched. A converted man is a new creature. Wonderful statement. He is the same man; but old things have passed away, all things have become new. God has reconciled him unto himself by Jesus Christ; and has committed unto him the ministry of reconciliation. God was in Christ, reconciling the world unto himself; but wonder of wonders, he has now committed unto us this ministry of reconciliation. We cannot save men from sin; but we can plead with them to be reconciled to God through the death of the Son of his Love. The apostle declares that we "are ambassadors for Christ, as though God did beseech you by us: we pray you in Christ's stead, be ye reconciled to God." There never can be a higher plea, nor holier ground on which to make it.

CREDO.

Clyde Edwin Tuck.

With modern or with ancient sect or creed

In closest harmony I may not be,
I only ask for faith and light to lead
Me through mind's trackless wilderness to Thee,

That I may glory in man's brotherhood,
And know that Good is God and God is Good.

The man-made systems under which we live

Are intertwined with evil, selfish greed;

I ask for grace wrongs to forget, forgive,

From error's chafing fetters to be freed,

And for new courage for the bitter strife.

I know that Life is Good and God is Life.

Amid the clash of science I am calm,
Though sophists scoff and atheists may doubt;

A voice from out the silence, like a psalm,

Comes, bidding me rejoice, puts fear to rout,

Proclaiming all is well below, above,
I know that Love is God and God is Love.

"CAST YOUR BREAD UPON THE WATERS."

There are many subscribers to The Pentecostal Herald who take the paper at a sacrifice to themselves. At times some of these reach the point where it is impossible to renew. In past years money has been sent to us at times with instructions to use to the best advantage. Part of this has been used to establish a fund whereby those who are really worthy might still receive the paper in their extreme need. This has been a gracious blessing to them.

This past month two old ladies of "the Lord's own", were not able to renew. We sent them The Herald through this fund. We quote from two letters received from them. One is now in a home for the poor. "I cannot tell you how much I thank you for sending me the paper. It certainly will be a great blessing to myself and the old lady, who is in her 96th year. She was just delighted. We both read it and get so much spiritual food out of it." The other said: "Pen cannot express how much I appreciate this gift of The Pentecostal Herald. I have taken it for years and looked forward with such anxiety for the paper. Last year I persuaded one of our members to share with me—she put in 75c. She refused to do that much to renew our subscription. I told her 'I will have to drop it entirely.' I am resolved as fast as I can save 5c, I shall send for a copy to read and pass around." We sent her the paper free.

Would you like to help us help some others like that? If so, send us a little and say, "This is for the needy fund."

THE BOOK OF BOOKS.

By The Editor.

IF we abide by the principles taught in the Bible, our country will go on and prosper; but if we and our posterity neglect its instruction and authority, no man can tell how suddenly a catastrophe may overwhelm us and bury all our glory in profound obscurity.—Daniel Webster.

* * * * *

The Word of God will stand a thousand readings; and he who has gone over it most frequently is the surest of finding new wonders there.—J. Hamilton.

* * * * *

The Bible is a window in this prison-world, through which we may look into eternity.—Timothy Dwight.

* * * * *

A loving trust in the Author of the Bible is the best preparation for a wise study of the Bible.—H. Clay Trumbell.

* * * * *

The Bible is the most thought-suggesting book in the world. No other deals with such grand themes.—Herrick Johnson.

* * * * *

If we read the Bible aright, we read a book that teaches us to go forth and do the work of the Lord.—Theodore Roosevelt.

* * * * *

The best evidence of the Bible's being the word of God is to be found between its covers. It proves itself.—Charles Hodge.

* * * * *

The sacred Scriptures teach us the best way of living, the noblest way of suffering, and the most comfortable way of dying.—Flavel.

* * * * *

Take all of this book upon reason that you can and the balance on faith, and you will live and die a better man.—Abraham Lincoln.

* * * * *

Only a slight acquaintance with the Bible shows that nothing is there revealed to us which cannot be transmuted into life.—H. G. Weston.

* * * * *

What other book beside the Bible could be heard in public assemblies from year to year, with an attention that never tires, and an interest that never cloy?—Robert Hall.

* * * * *

The English Bible—a book which, if everything else in our language should perish, would alone suffice to show the whole extent of its beauty and power.—T. B. Macaulay.

* * * * *

People often say that they cannot speak or say much in meeting. No wonder they have nothing to say who daily read twenty columns of newspaper to one square inch of Bible.—H. L. Hastings.

* * * * *

Whatever I have done in my life has simply been due to the fact that when I was a child my mother daily read with me a part of the Bible, and daily made me learn a part of it by heart.—Ruskin.

The Bible is God's chart for you to steer by, to keep you from the bottom of the sea, and to show you where the harbor is, and how to reach it without running on rocks or bars.—H. W. Beecher.

* * * * *

I am heartily glad to witness your veneration for a book which, to say nothing of its holiness or authority, contains more specimens of genius and taste than any other book in existence.—W. S. Landor.

* * * * *

Do you know a book that you are willing to put under your head for a pillow when you lie dying? Very well; that is the book you want to study while you are living. There is but one such book in the world.—Joseph Cook.

* * * * *

Many books in my library are now behind and beneath me. They were good in their way once, and so are the clothes that I wore when I was ten years old; but I have outgrown them. Nobody ever outgrows Scripture; the book widens and deepens with our years.—C. H. Spurgeon.

* * * * *

In the Bible there is more that finds me than I have experienced in all other books put together; the words of the Bible find me at great depth of my being; and whatever finds me brings with it an irresistible evidence of its having proceeded from the Holy Spirit.—S. T. Coleridge.

* * * * *

What crisis, what trouble, what perplexity of life has failed, or can fail, to draw from this inexhaustible treasure-house its proper supply? Amid the crowds of the court, or forum or the street, or the market place, where every thought of every soul seems to be set on the excitements of ambition, or of business, or of pleasure, there, too, even there, the still small voice of the Holy Bible will be heard, and the soul, aided by some blessed word, may find its wings like a dove, may flee away and be at rest.—William E. Gladstone.

DOWN IN THE SOUTHLAND.

WITH severe cold, and rising fever, I fled from the ice and snow with my wife, from Louisville, January 5, going direct to New Orleans. My good friend, Dr. Schroeder, secured for us a quiet room in the excellent boarding house of Mr. and Mrs. Heroy. Here we met with Mrs. Beard, a sister of Mrs. Heroy, the widow of my beloved friend, the great full salvation preacher, Dr. Beard, a prominent member of the Louisiana Conference, and for sometime, editor of The Pentecostal Age. I assisted Dr. Beard in meetings in New Orleans some thirty-three or four years ago. I held meetings about that time in a number of churches in New Orleans; since then, a generation has passed away and a new generation has come. The growth and development of the city have been remarkable, it now claiming to be the second port in the United States. It is located on the Mississippi River one hundred miles from its mouth, and offers one of the great harbors in the world, ships coming there from all nations.

It was a real pleasure to preach for Dr. Cain, pastor of Parker Memorial Church, one Sunday morning. He is a most delightful, warm-hearted Christian gentleman. His people gave me a very hearty reception. Dr. Peters, pastor of First Methodist Church, a brilliant and progressive man, is awaking great interest in the church of which he is pastor, and is having especially large evening congregations Sunday. I preached one Sunday evening to a great audience, very receptive. It was also my very great pleasure to hear Dr. Nicoll, of the Presbyterian Church, recently from Canada. He is a great gospel preacher and is making a fine impression on the city. Wife and I had evening dinner with him and mutual friends, and we found his faith and fellowship as refreshing as a good gospel meeting. Through the courtesy of Mr. Edwin Morgan, a Kentucky gentleman, we had evening dinner at St. Charles Hotel, with Dr. Harper, presiding elder of the New Orleans District, and Dr. Carley, editor of The New Orleans Christian Advocate. We found them most delightful and brotherly men.

From New Orleans, we went to Hattiesburg, Miss., where we had three very restful days in the home of our good friends, Mr. V. M. Scanlan and wife. While there I preached on prayer meeting night in the First Church, for Rev. Joe Smith, pastor. We heard many good words of approval of Brother Smith's ministry in this, one of the great churches of Southern Methodism.

From here, we went to Clarksdale, Miss., where I had an engagement with my friend and brother, Rev. Henry F. Brooks, D.D., for a week's meeting. Dr. Brooks was appointed to this church only a few months ago and is entering upon a most encouraging and successful pastorate. Clarksdale is a city of some fifteen or twenty thousand, situated in the heart of the Mississippi Delta and surrounded by the greatest cotton plantations in all the south. We were told that about 80 percent of the people in surrounding country are colored people, employees on these great plantations. One of Dr. Brooks' stewards owns some twelve thousand acres of this land and has in his employ, living on his estate, some 1700 colored people.

Dr. Brooks has a magnificent church building and a wonderfully intelligent and growing membership. We found his people very fond of him, and notwithstanding the financial pressure because of the low price of cotton, they are going forward courageously.

We commenced the meetings on Sabbath and closed the following Sabbath. During this time we caught a glimpse of the sun twice; the rain poured almost every day, Modern Abominations and Shocking Fashions---A Protest.

Rev. G. W. Ridout, D.D., Corresponding Editor.

IT was a pertinent remark of Mr. Begbie, the vital English writer, that we are in the age of the Beast and that the age "seems to be delivered over to the sway of infamous passions," to "the promptings of a mind abandoned to itself," and "set ablaze with lustful passions and abandoned to the perpetration of hideous sins."

"The spirit of the age," says the same writer, "is a spirit of liberty without restraint, egotism without conscience, life without God." The tendency of the age with regard to sin and wickedness is to "clap a purple patch of rhetoric on the running sores of humanity, hiding with their deadly arts the leprosy of our nature."

Despite the New Theology which repudiates depravity and ignores sin and which whitewashes carnal nature

"Ten thousand lusts remain
To vex the soul and stir up sin,
Still rebel nature strives to reign
And the Spirit cries Unclean! Unclean!"

In Ezekiel 8:7-12, we read "And he brought me to the door of the court; and when I looked, behold a hole in the wall. Then said he unto the Son of man, dig now in the wall; and when I had digged in the walls, behold a door. And he said unto me, Go in and behold the wicked abominations that they do here. So I went in and saw and behold every form of creeping things and abominable beasts, and all the idols of the house of Israel portrayed upon the wall round about."

IDOLS! ABOMINATIONS!! FASHIONS!!!

Turn now to Isaiah 3:17-26.

17. Therefore the Lord will smite with a scab the crown of the head of the daughters of Zion, and the Lord will discover their secret parts.

18. In that day the Lord will take away the bravery of their tinkling ornaments about their feet, and their cauls, and their round tires like the moon,

19. The chains, and the bracelets, and the mufflers,

20. The bonnets, and the ornaments of the legs, and the headbands, and the tablets, and the earrings,

21. The rings, and nose jewels,

22. The changeable suits of apparel, and the mantles, and the wimples, and the crisping pins,

23. The glasses, and the fine linen, and the hoods, and the veils.

24. And it shall come to pass, that instead of sweet smell there shall be stink; and instead of a girdle a rent; and instead of well set hair baldness; and instead of a stomacher a girding of sackcloth; and burning instead of beauty.

25. Thy men shall fall by the sword, and thy mighty in the war.

26. And her gates shall lament and mourn; and she being desolate shall sit upon the ground.

Here we have both an ancient and modern fashion plate which shows up the depravity and pride and haughtiness of the women of Isaiah's age and of the twentieth century.

Modern abominations take the form of

(1) The Craze for Pleasure.

(2) The Craze for Sensual Attire and Conformity to Fashions.

(3) The Discard of the Virtuous and devotion to the Vice.

Bishop Candler, in his article on "The Mad Pursuit of Pleasure," says some pertinent things as follows:

"The disposition to pursue pleasure relaxes all the normal fibers of character, and destroys the capacity of self-sacrifice. This fact explains the demoralization of men and the death of nations by luxury. Their self-indulgence suffocates every heroic element in

FINNEY ON DRESS.

Every Christian makes an impression by his conduct, and witnesses either for one side or the other. His looks, dress, whole demeanor, make a constant impression on one side or the other. He cannot help testifying for or against religion. He is either gathering with Christ or scattering abroad. Every step you take, you tread on cords that will vibrate to all eternity. Every time you move, you touch keys whose sound will re-echo over all the hills and dales of heaven and through all the dark caverns and vaults of hell.

Every movement of your lives you are exerting a tremendous influence that will tell on the immortal interests of souls all around you. Are you asleep while all your conduct is exerting such an influence?

Are you going to walk in the street? Take care how you dress. What is that on your head? What does that gaudy ribbon and those ornaments upon your dress say to every one that meets you? It makes the impression that you wish to be thought pretty. Take care! You might just as well write on your clothes, "No truth in religion." It says, "Give me dress, give me fashion, give me flattery, and I am happy." The world understands this testimony as you walk the streets. You are "living epistles; known and read of all men."

If you show pride, levity, bad temper and the like, it is like tearing open the wounds of the Savior. How Christ might weep to see professors of religion going about hanging up his cause to contempt at the corners of streets! Only "let the women adorn themselves in modest apparel, with shamefacedness and sobriety, not with broidered hair, or gold, or pearls, or costly array, but (which becometh women professing godliness) with good works;" only let them act consistently, and their conduct will tell on the world, heaven will rejoice, and hell groan at their influence.

But, oh, let them display vanity, try to be pretty, bow down to the goddess of fashion, fill their ears with ornaments and their fingers with rings. Let them put feathers in their hats and clasps upon their arms. . . . Let them put on their "round tires and walk mincing as they go," and their influence is reversed. Heaven puts on the robes of mourning, and hell may hold a jubilee.

Your spirit and deportment produce an influence on the world against religion. How shall the world believe religion when the witnesses are not agreed among themselves, and the sum of their whole testimony is, There is no need of being pious?

Oh, how guilty! Perhaps hundreds of souls will meet you in the judgment, and curse you (if they are allowed to speak) for leading them to hell by practically denying the truth of the gospel.

their natures and makes them unable to resist any formidable evil or support any imperiled good. They become utterly incapacitated for doing or suffering anything which gives them discomfort or interferes with their self-gratifications.

THE FALL OF THE STATE AND FOLLY OF THE PEOPLE.

"Such was the case with the Roman Commonwealth of ancient times. The people became pleasure mad, so that they were incapable of resisting the assaults of the hardy barbarians from the north. Amid all the suffering around them and in sight of the impending ruin before them they could not forsake their destructive diversions and absorbing amusements. Hence, the bitter epigram, 'The empire laughs while it is dying,' ('ridet et moritur.') There was a direct connection of the fall of the state with the folly of the people. The pampered populace was prepared for their subjection to tyrannical rulers by their consuming interest in sports. The unscrupulous men in power found it to be greatly to their interest to keep the people diverted. 'Bread and Fun' was the cry, and so long as Rome had enough to eat and was amused, the Emperor might, without fear, do what he pleased. The more political life decayed, the greater the place occupied by sports.

"Are not the American people moving in the same down-grade over which the Roman Commonwealth ran to its ruin? Let no one dismiss the question with a sneering nega-tion, and go off into an irrelevant denunciation of pessimism. Facts are not matters of pessimism or optimism; they are hard realities, which must be faced honestly and handled according to their nature.

AMERICANS OBSESSED WITH MANIA FOR PLEASURE.

"And this is a fact! The American people are obsessed with a mania prevalent among the Romans in the period immediately preceding the decline and fall of the Roman government. The vast sums expended by our people on cheap, shoddy, and demoralizing spectacles are as great as the amounts which Roman rulers squandered on similar exhibitions in their day."

FASHIONS!

Shocking Fashion! What spectacles are to be met with today upon the streets, in the trains, in the homes and in the churches! Our young women (and, alas, great crowds of mature women of age and experience) are conforming to the Goddess of Fashion to a degree never known before in the history of America.

Fashion has always had a terrific influence upon women. Many years ago it made them hideous with over-dress, today the other extreme is to be met with, and our women—young and old—furnish in public and at home the vilest exhibitions of depravity and the gravest want of modesty, chastity and virtue we have ever witnessed in the last half century. The average young woman of today is only half clad. The abbreviated skirt, the silk hosiery, the tiny slippers, the painted face, the bobbed hair, is making of our young women (and older ones, too) the most ridiculous, nonsensical, absurd, outrageous, unreasonable, unlovely, unhappy, immodest creature that fashion ever played tricks upon and that the god of this world ever perpetrated upon any age.

And the pity of it is that these vile exhibitions are everywhere—in the churches, in the choirs, in the Sunday school classes, in the prayer and social meetings, in the official meetings, and in the leadership.

Not so long since we attended an evangelistic meeting addressed by a very distinguished evangelical preacher. A great crowd was present, because he always drew a crowd. Before preaching, his daughter was called upon to sing a solo. Alas! alas!! It put a serious damper upon the great man's message, because she was attired on that Sunday night in opera dress. She was a sight to make angels weep and good people to hang their heads in shame. She was dressed not for church, but for the place of play and fashion and the world. It was a grave reflection on the father to have put her up to sing that night. She ought first to have gone home and put on modest attire as becometh the house of God, and attired herself for worship instead of opera. Is it any wonder that the church is no longer a place of worship? Is it to be wondered at that the Spirit does not fall on the singing as in other days when painted, half-clad dolls occupy the choirs or lead in the special singing?

The average church choir of today is an exhibition of hosiery, millinery and sensuality, and if we were pastor and had to endure a choir sitting in front of the congregation and in the rear of the pulpit for the sake of pure decency we would insist on having the young women gowned. Time was when a gowned choir looked a trifle formal and ritualistic to us, but we no longer think so; we now view a gowned choir as a safeguard and protection and a positive offset to the atrociously carnal exhibition which the average group of young women furnish in public today by their abbreviated dress and attire.

Then think how this abomination has invaded the holiness ranks! Time was when this vile thing fashion did not impose itself upon deeply religious circles as it does now. But now we see the most sorry exhibitions in our holiness meetings and camps, and too often some of our women leaders are to blame. We have frequently witnessed in our holiness women workers a falling down to worldly standards of style and fashion!

Then our Holiness Schools are seriously at fault. Things are permitted along fashion's line which very seriously reflect upon our leaders. Too often when anything is said the question is dismissed by the remark: "What are you going to do about it?" Are there not regulations concerning dress in our holiness schools? Have not the Matron's instructions on these matters? Have our presidents and Discipline Committees no power to act? Quite recently an evangelist told us of a young married woman who had been sanctified in his meetings, and as a result she changed her manner of dress and lengthened her skirts. She afterwards went with her husband to a holiness school. After some months the evangelist met her again.

She had returned to the abbreviated skirt, and gave as her reason that at the holiness school the short skirt was prevalent and the daughter of one of the officials was one of the chief offenders. Of course dress is a vital question, it is a hard question, it is an exceedingly difficult question, but is a question which must be handled, and there is no better place to handle it than in our holiness schools.

Bishop Berry writing recently in the New York Christian Advocate, analyzing the present day tendencies (particularly regarding divorce which has a harvest now of 133,000 families each year. Every eleven days we have more divorces than England has in a year) says: "What are the causes? 1. The frivolous temper of our times. 2. The dissemination of loose views upon almost every subject. 3. Impatience of restraint. 4. Ridicule of the old-fashioned virtues. 5. The quickened pace which keeps the nerves forever on edge. 6. The passion for luxury, immodesty in dress, pernicious incitements of modern fiction, the unwholesome familiar-ities of the modern dance and the false pictures of life displayed in the modern playhouse. 7. The passing of the sacred home life of yesterday. 8. Above all, the loss of the sense of God and of moral responsibility."

In conclusion, what shall we say? We cannot do better than to give way to the word of God?

"Wherefore come out from among them—(the worldly, the sensual, the fashion devotees) and be ye separate saith the Lord, and Touch not the unclean thing (the unclean in dress, movies, theaters, the filthy magazines, the vile dance, etc.) and I will receive you, and will be a Father unto you, and ye shall be my sons and daughters saith the Lord Almighty. ("King's daughters are all beautiful within"). Having, therefore, these promises dearly beloved, let us cleanse ourselves from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit (avoid everything carnal and fleshly, and sensual in dress, attire and behavior). Perfecting holiness in the fear of the Lord." 2 Cor. 6:17, 18; 7, 1.

MODERN APOSTLES OF FAITH.

Rev. C. F. Wimberly, D.D.

CHAPTER IX.

ALEXANDER McLAREN.

SCOTLAND has produced more than her quota of great preachers. There is a something in the blood and brawn of that sturdy race of clansmen to give out in manhood the strongest fiber of character. We cannot appreciate the Scotchman until we get a long perspective of her history; we must know the acid tests of her bloody battlefields; we must get a close-up of her Bruces, and her Wallaces—her Covenanters—signing the pact of fidelity in their own blood. These are the settings which give color to her people.

Then when we know the heroism of Christian character and courage—such as John Knox and his successors in the realm of truth and sacrifice, we can only expect, as the law of Cause and Effect operates in blood-streams of men, as well as in the physical world about us, the long line of preachers bearing the stamp of which martyrs are made.

We are studying Modern Apostles of Faith, and our investigations surely teach that the office of Apostles has not been withdrawn in the schedule of provisions authorized by the great Head of the Church, when he ascended on high and led captivity captive, and gave gifts unto men. In this one of our studies we can only touch the mountain peaks—although we should enjoy the majestic foothills, and even the valleys, as it were. Our aim is to show how that God in all ages has committed his oracles to the few super-candle power souls who could guide those lesser lights through the quagmires of sin and doubt, up through the mazes to the eternal hills, where the light, please God, will never grow dim.

We shall now give a brief setting to the picture being drawn of one of "Bonnie Scotland's" ten-talented men. David McLaren, the father of this sketch, was born in 1785. He was a most promising lad, and early in life prepared and entered Glasgow College, now the University of Scotland. In infancy he was dedicated by his parents to the ministry of the Scotch Church. While in college he came in contact with an evangelistic movement which swept over Scotland at that time. It was full of fervor and zeal, and so touched his heart that it forever destroyed the aims of young McLaren touching the dignified parish pastorate which had been his aim.

The parents were greatly troubled, and actually visited Glasgow to convince their son of the error of his way, but failed. He left school and entered business, but continued his religious labors. He joined a Congregational church, whose pastor was Doctor Wardlaw. About this time several members of this congregation became unsettled touching the ordinance of Infant Baptism; whereupon, the pastor announced and preached a sermon on "Household Baptism," as taught in the Bible. Evidently, the preacher failed to sustain his objective, as David McLaren became convinced that Baptism should not be administered to any except upon profession of faith. Forty members withdrew from the church, among them, David McLaren, who was shortly afterwards chosen pastor of the dissenting group. This will explain why Alexander McLaren was a Baptist preacher, after a long line ancestry of orthodox Scotchmen. His father, David McLaren, became a lay pastor, never giving up his business or his gospel ministry. Alexander was the youngest child of this family, and was born in Glasgow, Feb. 11, 1826.

The boyhood of this sketch had little in it out of the ordinary, and not until the long struggle with sin and doubt, did his life take on color for a sphere of usefulness. However, he at last came into the assurance of salvation. "Since that day," he writes, "I have found that peace ever increasing, and I have in reading the Bible and prayer, a joy and peace I never knew before." On the 17th day of May, 1840, Alexander McLaren was baptized in Hope Street Baptist Church, Glasgow, by Rev. James Patterson, the pastor.

Speaking of his call to the ministry, he says: "I cannot ever recall having any hesitation as to being a minister. It seems to me it must have been taken for granted by my parents and myself—it just had to be." In childhood and youth he breathed the atmosphere of true religion and genuine piety. His home training taught him one big lesson, and from it he never swerved that, "man's chief duty is to glorify God."

Alexander McLaren entered the University of Scotland, but owing to the removal of his people to London, never finished his studies there. Cambridge and Oxford were then closed to Nonconformists, and by passing the examination, was admitted to the Baptist College of Stepney, which was finally incorporated in the University of London. He was considered too young for the ministry; but he appeared before the Committee, and passed such an approved examination, that he was granted license, notwithstanding his very youthful appearance. Very little is known of his record in college, except letters which he wrote to his cousins, telling them of his examinations, and prizes won for scholarship, as well as honors before the theological tutors.

There was in 1845 a struggling church at Southampton, that had been organized but a few years, and two pastors had resigned because of the difficulties of the field. On November 14, Alexander McLaren, not yet twenty years of age, was sent there by the college authorities to preach for them. This was the beginning of his remarkable career; he was invited to preach for three months following his first visit. Writing about the venture at the time, he says: "If the worst comes to the worst, I shall at all events not have the regrets of killing a flourishing plant; but only assisted in the funeral of a withered one."

He remained in that pastorate more than a dozen years, building up a strong congregation. His genius as a preacher was evident from the beginning. We have extant, some of his unique sermon arrangements: Morning: "Necessity of Companionship," not good for man to be alone. Evening: "Advantages of Solitude." Then: "Nature's Co-operation with Man." Evening: "Nature's Antagonisms to Man." Morning: "The Wonders of Creation." Evening: "The Miracles of Grace."

While in his early thirties, Alexander McLaren became one of the foremost preachers of England. During his pastorate at Southampton, he was happily married; here we must write something a bit strange: his wife was Marian McLaren—his cousin, who had been his sweetheart since childhood—playing in the nursery. He was married by Rev. James Russell, the husband of his wife's sister, and under whose ministry he was converted. The ceremony was performed at her home in Edinburgh, on George's Square, a place made classic by Sir Walter Scott having spent his boyhood there.

In 1858, Dr. McLaren came to Manchester as pastor of Union Chapel, Oxford Road. This union was significant, as the only stipulations of the deed were, that the pastor must be a Baptist, and baptism must be by immersion. Conditions of admission into membership were broad, and it became a community church, and the congregation was made up of all peoples and creeds. In

The HERALD PULPIT

THE GREAT COMPANION.

Rev. B. F. Durling.

"For he dwelleth with you, and shall be in you." St. John 14:17.

HE greatest promises ever given to the human race have been those relating to Redemption and the recovery of mankind from sin, and the renewal in the likeness of God. The first of these was made at the very time of man's fall and of course related to our Redeemer who should accomplish the work of our Redemption.

The Agent in the second part of this work was to be the Holy Spirit. The great promises concerning the latter were given by Christ. Their supreme importance is suggested by Christ in the words spoken to his disciples: "Nevertheless, it is expedient for you that I go away; for if I go not away, the Comforter will not come unto you; but if I depart, I will send him unto you."

In one place he spoke of it as being peculiarly the promise of the Father: "Behold I send the promise of my Father upon you; but tarry ye in the city of Jerusalem until ye be endued with power from on high." There was, perhaps, no promise which Jesus emphasized more strongly, nor was this strange when we consider the purpose of his coming which was to complete the work of man's salvation which had been inaugurated by Christ in his work of Redemption. His regenerating and sanctifying work are just as indispensable to the work of man's salvation as was the redeeming work of Christ. To reject him is to turn away from all his transforming work, without which salvation is impossible. This must be just as displeasing to God, and as fatal to the soul's welfare as to reject the work wrought by Christ himself. Indeed, the one unpardonable sin referred to by him was the sin against the Holy Spirit. From all this we may see how very perilous it is to trifle with him who is the great Agent in working out the salvation of the soul.

In considering the nature of this work, we find that Christ himself has stated very largely in what that work consists. He said, "When he is come he will reprove the world of sin, of righteousness, and of judgment." He will reprove the world; that is, he will convict or convince the world of sin. The real conviction of sin is very positive in its nature, although there are varying degrees of conviction. In a cold, inactive church, where there has been very little prayer and little concern for souls, there may not be very much deep conviction. But where conditions have been the reverse of these, and where the nature of sin has been emphasized, its awful character set forth, and if the perfect and unailing cure for sin has been pressed upon the minds and hearts of the people, then the Holy Spirit may be depended upon to do the necessary work of conviction.

It is interesting to notice the marked progress of a soul as the Spirit leads it gradually through the stages from its beginning conviction on through the dark valley of repentance until it passes to the vision of the redeeming Christ; to note the changing expression of countenance, from that denoting dread and apprehension to the coming in of light as the word of pardon is spoken. Now indeed, is the Spirit with them. It has now become their privilege to walk in a new companionship. With him. Then as they continue faithfully thus to walk day by day, he speaks to them by that still small voice teaching them spiritual lessons. Many rich promises are sealed upon their hearts; promises which invite them on into richer fields of experience. While their pardon is assured, still they find that their heart-condition is not yet what they find set forth in the word as the privilege of the child of God. They are yet living in the seventh chapter of Romans, but they hunger to get over into the eighth chapter. They are walking with the Spirit but they find in that great chapter that it is their privilege to have the Spirit within them. Now has come the conviction of righteousness. They long for a life in which the conduct and the thoughts flow from a heart made pure by the abiding of the Spirit within. Soon they are led into the fullness of consecration, and to the exercise of faith in the blood which cleanses from all sin. The Spirit enters, and the assurance is given. The promise has indeed been fulfilled to them, "For he dwelleth with you, and shall be in you." In a certain sense there has been an incarnation. God has taken up his abode within the human temple. He has come not as a transient guest, soon to withdraw, but as a permanent, indwelling intelligence. That which has taken up an abode within that being is not a mere influence, however powerful, but the infinite Personality, the "I Am." He whose knowledge comprehends all existence; his love so great that were the love of all human hearts breathed into one glowing heart, even that would not equal the love of him who has taken up his abode within that human heart. Oh what power is his to save from sin! What ability to cause all things to work together for good in the life of that one! What power to deepen the experience of a trusting heart! In such a fellowship how should the heart be enlarged and the intellect quickened.

Yet, great as may be considered this experience we should consider it but the beginning of a career which would be enlarging forever. Jesus said, "I have many things to say unto you, but ye cannot bear them now." But he added, "Howbeit, when he the Spirit of truth is come, he will lead you into all truth." How often have we realized in the study of the word, some new light shining upon the sacred page. As we are faithful in the study of the inspired truth, how do we gradually pass deeper into its meaning. And Jesus said "He shall take of mine and shall show it unto you." How often does this prove true. As we read, the very life of the word is wrought into our spiritual being. This is more easily felt than expressed. He who is living in this experience, knows the fellowship of the Spirit.

Jesus also said, "And he will show you things to come." As one meditates upon this language, what visions of the future rise before him. How anticipation is quickened by considering the words, "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him. But God hath revealed them unto us by his Spirit." Of such rare and exquisite beauty are they that they lie beyond the power of gross physical senses to detect. No beauty of earthly landscape or sublimity of mountain or ocean can compare with the wonders of the future life. No voice in earthly concert or harmony of symphony can afford a hint of the melody of heavenly voices, or the harmony of celestial choirs. But there is a deep sense in which God has revealed even this unto us. He who has heard within the chambers of his soul the music of that still small voice, and has felt the breathings of the divine Spirit concerning the future, does have the very "substance of the things hoped for." He who has God within his soul has revelations concerning the future and a spiritual outlook upon it, which cannot be set forth in words. Just as in another connection it is said that "the Spirit maketh intercession with groanings which cannot be uttered," so in this case the revelations of the Spirit in their deepest sense, are unutterable.

The deep satisfaction which results from this companionship of the Spirit is also beyond the power of words to fully describe. Its fruit in the life has been realized by countless souls. What a marvelous list of these results has been given by Paul in Galatians, the fifth chapter. But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance. These can be the fruit of the Spirit alone. There can be no real grace wrought in the heart by human effort. Should one attempt by his own efforts to bring forth in his character any grace, as that of love or goodness, however that might appear to human judgment, to the eye of infinite purity it would be seen with the stain of selfishness or other sinful taint upon it. Education or other form of human effort will be unavailing.

But oh, the beauty of those graces wrought by the Holy Spirit as he abides within the heart. The Love how pure and self-sacrificing. How all-comprehending, gathering within its embrace all for whom Christ died.

THE MIGHT OF SACRIFICIAL LOVE.

Rev. E. Stanley Jones, D.D.

PART IX.

OW we know that back of things in the universe stands Love—Redeeming Love. Amid our perplexities we can lay hold of one sure thing—God loves us and would save us. As a great thinker puts it: "Jesus Christ did not try to satisfy our minds with mere arguments; He did not solve objections or show why pain and sacrifice are necessary throughout creation; nay he did not even declare God's love as a dogma and prove it by miracles. The gospel lies in his Person. He took upon himself all that tells against divine love, all that ever wrung from men's hearts the bitter words of unbelief or the more chastened cry of agonizing enquiry, 'My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?' He took all this upon himself, and as the Man of Sorrows, made it, in his bitter passion and death upon the cross, the very occasion for expressing the depths of divine self-sacrifice. Thus the satisfaction that he gives lies in his proving to us, out of the very heart of all that might speak against such a conclusion, that behind all the groaning and travailing of creation lies the love of God, and beyond it all the victory of God; and the demonstration consists in the fact that Jesus as essential Son of the Father reveals no other love than God's, and by his resurrection from the dead manifests that love triumphant through all the seeming failure." We look up through nature to God and we say God is Law; we look up through Jesus Christ to God and we say God is Love. Redeeming Love. For, in the words of Shelly:

He was a Nerve, o'er which do creep
The else unfelt oppressions of the earth.

And now what does this mean for you and me today? Is there anything available from his sufferings for us now? There ought to be and there is! Since God has been so just that he would suffer rather than do away with his law, now having satisfied his own law he can be merciful—he can forgive. But there can be no forgiveness without expiation, without suffering. God forgives at cost to himself. But what good news is this! All that has been against us, all the sins that have tormented us, all our past record blotted out! No wonder Jesus called it the Gospel—the good news. But forgiveness means more than cancellation; it means the turning of our hearts against that which we have loved, our sin. But it means more than that; it means power over sin. To cancel sin and to give no power against sin would degrade the soul. "Sin shall no longer have dominion over you," cries the transformed Apostle Paul. Christ brings us out of our sins and hence out of their penalties.

It has been said that the "inner strength of another life is directly transmissible." If this be true then the inner strength, the purity, the holy sacrificial love of Christ's life is directly transmissible—transmissible to our tempted, sin-defeated, habit-ridden lives. During this late war a soldier was brought into the hospital frightfully wounded. He had lost so much blood that life was almost gone. The doctor looked at him, shook his head and said, "Nothing can be done for him. He is too far gone." Then he added, "It might be that, if we could transfuse sufficient blood into him, he could be saved." An orderly standing by came round in front, saluted the doctor and said, "Sir, did I hear you say that you needed blood for this man? If so, I am ready. You may open my veins and take my blood." The doctor replied, "You do not understand, if you give this man as much blood as he needs to bring him back to life, you will probably be ill for some time and there is a chance that you may die." Again the orderly saluted and said, "Sir I am ready." But the doctor said, "What is this man to you? Is he a friend or a relative?" "No, Sir," replied the orderly, "I have never seen him before. But, please Sir, I am ready." The doctor opened his veins and transfused the warm, rich blood of the orderly into the withered veins of the dying man. He lived. The orderly, as it were, poured out his life that the other might live. In a richer, deeper way Jesus did that for us. He pours his rich, full, holy life into the withered moral and spiritual veins of a sin-wounded race. That inner strength of his life—so pure, so holy, so divine—is now available for you and me. And "how can the impurity of sin be better expelled than by a draught of sacred life?" My dear brother, tempted, fighting a losing battle with evil, struggling with passion that you cannot control, having "the pain of not being righteous," take the inner strength of Christ's strong life. He can give you power over sin. The writer of this knows this to be true. For sixteen years it has been his joyous experience.

There are three things necessary to understand fully the cross, and we must understand them in relationship with each other—the greatest thing in God which is his love; the strongest thing in the Universe which is law; and the darkest thing in man which is sin—love, law, sin. In the suffering and death of Christ we see the love of God marvellously manifested, law is upheld and sin is thoroughly and radically dealt with. It is dealt with so thoroughly that the problem of evil mentioned in the beginning of this discussion is solved: the soul, taking hold of the Saviour, finds himself at one with his higher nature, at one with his fellowman and at one with God. He is reconciled in a threefold way. The problem of life is no longer the problem of evil. It is the problem of the Person. We are faced not with a mere question of religion or of a doctrine, or of this sect or of that civilization, but we are faced with a Person—a Person who inescapably confronts us and convicts us of our moral ruin, and yet offers to us the saving love of God. He who died for us has claims upon us—claims as deep as the sacrifice he made for us.

Prof. James, the famous psychologist, has said that every proposal to act comes before us in the form of an hypothesis. First, is it a living or a dead issue? Second, is it momentous or trivial? Third, is it forced or avoidable? This saving Person, filled with the authority of love, confronts us. First, is he a living or a dead issue? It would seem that, living and suffering two thousand years ago, he would be a dead issue, but he is not. He seems to be, and is, bound up with our own moral and spiritual life. Our moral and spiritual problem is life's liveliest issue. It is with us always. It colors every relationship of life. Our moral and spiritual condition determines whether we see life sad or glad; whether we face it with gloomy forebodings or with radiant hue; whether we ultimately fail or succeed in life; and as we feel with the sceptic Strauss that "no perfect piety is possible without his presence in the heart," so we feel that he becomes a decidedly live issue. He, who is so supreme in the moral and spiritual realm and able to turn our moral defeats into victories and change spiritual depression into radiant joy, is as live an issue as our spiritual needs. Second, he is not a trivial, but a momentous issue. Jesus, who himself knew reality, who distinguished the momentous from the trivial, was never misled by a subordinate issue, never got off the essential and the vital. He who knew values, asked this pulsating question, "What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" If in gaining the world of honor, of possessions, of influence and power and authority, we lose the highest part—the soul, we have lost all. All the questions of life fade into the trivial before this one question: Is my soul saved? Have I found peace—peace of conscience and that peace that comes from rightness of relationship and communion with God? Do I have deliverance from my past sin and power over my present sin? Is MY SOUL SAVED? My brother, into whose hands God, your FATHER, may have guided this pamphlet, have you found this glorious deliverance? You have prayed your prayers, you have made your offerings, you have read your sacred books, you have longed for God, you have worshipped for years—but have you found? You have been searching for God earnestly and eagerly—now hearken—God has been searching for you through the Incarnation, and in his sufferings he has lifted a sign to you and to me. To us, who are so sunk in the senses. He has lifted the outward sign of physical suffering, that we might understand what God eternally feels, and how he eternally desires and longs to save us. Through all this suffering and tragedy he comes to us and stands ready to heal our sin-tragedy and lift us to himself. I say "that God thus comes to us", for "Jesus is a Mediator, but only in the sense that he mediates God to us—when we take hold upon him we take hold upon God himself. He who has found him has found God."

So here is the position: Here we are in deep, dire spiritual need; while here stands God in the majesty of Almighty, Redeeming Love, ready to heal and to save. I refuse his offer. I sink back into the sway of my lower nature and into the fatalities of the physical universe about me—I sink back into the dark. On the other hand, if I take the help of his nail-pierced hand I rise—rise out of confusion into certainty, out of sin into holiness, out of loneliness of soul into sweet and strengthening communion with himself, out of the world into God. Blessed deliverance! Is the issue that presents this alternative to me a momentous one? Let the moral judgment answer.

And somehow one feels instinctively that this issue that Jesus presents is forced and not avoidable. "We may view him with intellectual impartiality, but not with moral neutrality." He forces us to take sides: "He that is not with me is against me," he says. Whether he is an issue that is forced or avoidable let conscience decide.

Henry Ward Beecher, one of the most eloquent and one of the best men that America ever produced, gives this as his personal testimony: "That blessed morning in May when I found out it was God's nature to love man in his sin to help him out of it, as my mother loved me when I was in trouble that she might help me out of it, then I found God." The cross of the Lord Jesus is the expression in Time of God loving man in his sin, in order to help him out of it. It is Eternal Love translated from the speech of Eternity into the speech of Time. It reminds us, as Bushness says, that "there is a cross in God before the wood is seen on Calvary. The bodily pains of Christ on the cross are a condescension to our coarseness. He raises the outward flag of distress for our dull sensuous nature to look upon, in order that we might understand that God's very nature is sacrificial love. Let us come then not to the wood of the cross alone, not to the nails, not to the vinegar and the gall, not alone to the writhing body of Jesus, but to the very feelings of our God and there take shelter." The cross says that God loves us in our sins in order to help us out of them.

As you grasp that thought and surrender to the Person who is the embodiment of it, this new and wider field his reputation grew steadily with the years; his influence wielded in force for righteousness in an ever widening circle. A contemporary of his has this to say of him as a preacher: "Dr. McLaren cannot be described as a preacher. We may speak of the spare figure quivering with life and feeling; the firm set mouth, the unmistakable sign of a tremendous will; of eyes that pierce and shine and seem to compass everybody and everything in their quick lightning glances, of the strange magnetic voice, but in vain. We may describe his preaching as logic on fire, or that his words thrill like electricity." He was known the world over, as "Dr. McLaren of Manchester."

It was soon evident that Union Chapel must be replaced by a much larger building, and this was built and dedicated in 1869. In 1879 he was chosen president of the Baptist Union of England, and his services were in demand from every part of Christendom. In 1877 the University conferred upon him the honorary degree, and in 1907, the University of Glasgow did likewise. He traveled extensively on the Continent, in America, and in Australia.

During all these years, his pen was busy; religious journals and publishing houses everywhere eagerly sought the messages from his versatile mind. He was modest in the extreme, and throughout life shrank from the limelight of publicity. He did not seek, but rather shunned, honors, holding that the work of a minister was to efface himself, and exalt his message.

A volume of his prayers has been published, and in them, one scarcely ever sees the usual, trite phrases so often used in prayers; they are fresh and free from repetition, and breathe the very aroma of worship. From the compilation of his sermonic literature, the church has been enriched by seventeen large volumes of commentaries, sermons, and homiletical material. It was said of him: "For years he held so high a place, and exercised so wide an influence, and passed so completely into the thinking life of his day, that it is hard to estimate his power in the world." At the time of his death, the London Times had this to say of him: "If some reverend hand should compile the testimonies to his influence, which might be gathered from every part of the world, a book would be produced of abiding spiritual value."

Dr. McLaren was a man's man; he detested the professionalism in the clergy. "In his dress he sought to escape notice. Clerical dress he never wore, for he did not think of a minister as a class apart from other men. In the very early days at Southampton he scandalized some of the older ministers by his total disregard for established rules."

In the year 1886 Dr. McLaren secured a summer house at Carr Bridge in the Highlands, and it was here he spent his last months. He came to the sunset in great peace, May 10, 1910. His body lay in state in Union Chapel where he held such a conspicuous position for so many years. His family knowing his wishes, had the body cremated; the ashes were taken to the Brookland Cemetery, where his wife and daughters were buried. He had a cross placed there many years before, on which were these words: "In Christo, In Pace, In Spe." In Christ, in Peace, in Hope.

The Prayer of an Evangelist.

Lord Jesus, I thank thee for every measure of success which has come from thee in the year just gone. I thank thee for every lesson learned; for every sorrow, heartache, disappointment, test and trial which has drawn me closer to thee. I thank thee for larger vision of life.

Send me, I pray, into the New Year with undaunted courage and unyielding determination. Keep me self-possessed and calm to meet emergencies which call for clear thought and accurate decision. Keep me sweet of spirit; strong of soul; uncompromising with evil; fearless in rebuking sin; but never guilty of wounding another heart.

Father, in this age of skepticism, doubt, clouded philosophies and perverting theories, keep me from any mental entanglements which would weaken my faith in childhood's teachings, which would chill the convictions of my heart, which would retard the motives of my life for doing the work of thy Kingdom.

Confronted on every hand with superficial, sensational evangelism and hollow, shallow formalities of the churches, keep me from pessimistic ponderings or morbid meditations; endow me with clearer vision and understanding of thy path for me and the proper interpretation of events in an era of such uncertainties.

Lord, give me a larger conception of real faith. Thou hast given us thy Word, the anchorage for human hearts; thou wouldst not have promised thy help and blessing to long-ing, searching humanity except thou didst expect to make it good when we take thee at thy word.

Preserve me in the hour of temptation, that my life may be kept above reproach, transparent before the eyes of the world, my soul spotless through the blood of Jesus Christ, and my vision of Heaven undimmed.

Help me to be concerned about serious matters and unmoved by trifles. Fortify me continually against weakening forces; let me be uncowed by seeming failure, or the flaring success of others who pass me on the road; unshaken in faith by disappointment or sorrow; victorious in heart and mind over the rasping annoyances inflicted by others.

And keep me ever watchful for Thy coming, while earnestly striving to win others to readiness for Thy glorious appearing.

For Thy glory. Amen!

Christianity and Labor.

REV. WM. ZIMMERMAN.

"And the shepherds returned, glorifying and praising God for all things that they had heard and seen, as it was told unto them."—Luke 2:20.

We know not the number of shepherds; the years they had watched their flocks before the angel announced the Savior's birth; nor are their names left to posterity, but we know of their fear, their resolution to investigate, their joy and their making known abroad the saying which was told them concerning this child and all that heard it wondered at those things which were told them by the shepherds. One thing we wish particularly to notice; that is, they "returned" to their flocks. Witnesses they were, but shepherds still. They did not all leave their labor and think they had to preach. We could tell of sincere farmers, blacksmiths and others who made the mistake of not going back to their labor and joyfully witnessing for the Savior.

Notice the shepherds "returned" to their flock. Not all are called to preach. If all were to be preachers that were saved or sanctified, where would the lay witnesses be in evidence? Don't think this is a man of straw we are aiming at! Satan has prevented good men from "returning" to honest labor like the shepherds did, and homes have been broken up, the mistaken ones disappointed and perhaps discouraged forever. A happy sheep herder, farmer, teacher, merchant, etc., is what God wants. Can't you see them returning to their labor? True labor was pleasure from that great day to them. We believe there is a very practical lesson here for many.

If God wants and calls one to preach, he will make it known and the one who is called will be successful if he is faithful. For one to go back to the flock when God calls would be as great a mistake as it would have been for the shepherds not to have returned.

RADIANT LIVING.

REV. C. M. GRIFFETH.

JUST A COMMON WEED.

It was a hot, sultry day. A middle-aged woman carrying a heavy bundle was trudging along the dusty road. She was tired and thirsty.

Still she kept plodding along until she came to a cool place where there was a small stand of timber running parallel with the road. There was a watering trough there, fed by a spring a short distance away.

The tired woman threw her bundle to the ground and began cooling her face and hands with the spring water and then she sat down to rest a moment in the shade by the roadside.

While sitting there in a listless manner her eyes roamed about in the most casual way until by chance she saw a daisy growing close to the roadway. It was but a single daisy. It looked so lonely there. She glanced here and there but there was no other one to be seen.

"I wonder if that daisy feels as lonely as I do," she mused.

Somehow she felt drawn to the weed. She felt a kinship in its loneliness. Slowly getting up she went over and plucked the flower, and came back to her bundle, and throwing herself on the ground, she gave herself over to the contemplation of the daisy. As she continued to gaze at it the features of her face began to relax. A suggestion of a smile played on them.

"I never knew a daisy could be so pretty!" she exclaimed aloud. She had a habit of talking aloud for company. "It's just a weed, yet it really is pretty. I never knew there was such beauty in such a common weed!"

Her thoughts drifted off into wondering about God who made the flower. Why did he expend so much thought on the design and color scheme of such an insignificant weed? She could not answer her own question.

But she thought of herself. "I, too, am but a weed, and perhaps—" she exclaimed aloud as the inspired thought came into her mind, "perhaps God has intended my life to be beautiful!"

Overhead a bird chirped. She looked up and smiled. Picking up her bundle, she walked briskly up the road.

GOOD MEETING IN WASHINGTON, ILLINOIS.

We have just closed a good meeting in the Calvary Mennonite Church, Washington, Ill., with pastors Rev. Val Streuber, and Rev. Esch. Two feet of snow cut in on the attendance somewhat, but nevertheless enough came to hear the gospel and assure success in the meeting.

The last day of the meeting on Sunday afternoon we delivered a lecture on Man or Monkey, or Evolution Outlawed by Science, to a large and appreciative audience. The people are interested in the origin as well as the nature and destiny of man.

The good old Kentucky friend who was instrumental in getting us to come to Washington, Mr. J. S. Deatherage, formerly of Somerset, Ky., did fine work in boosting the meeting. We are always glad to meet up with Kentuckians in our evangelistic rounds.

We are now in a revival in Harrisburg, Pa. Pray for the salvation and sanctification of souls.

Yours in Christ,

Andrew Johnson.

PRESIDENT JOS. H. SMITH HOLDS NATIONAL CONVENTIONS IN NEW ENGLAND AND MICHIGAN.

The First National Holiness Convention of the season opened in the Nazarene Church at Providence, R. I., Rev. Geo. D. Riley, pastor, Tuesday evening, Jan. 4th. The workers included Brother Smith, Brother Arthur Gould, singer, and Rev. J. F. Knapp, of Cincinnati, Ohio. Bro. Smith's first address was an exposition of Second Peter 3:1, "I stir up your pure minds." He reminded his audience that great revivals do not discover truth but the fall of the race making it easier to remember wrong than right. The Holiness Movement has a special duty to keep before the people the blood of Jesus Christ and to remind the whole church of God's truth concerning full salvation, in other words to recover it to the church of the present day. We have no more obligation to carry a free gospel to all heathendom than to carry a full gospel to all Christendom. This freakish memory of ours causes us to forget the points of holiness in various details before we have forgotten the truth. Whatever it costs us to get holiness, it will cost us to keep it. Brother Knapp spoke for a little while upon the words, "I have yet many words to say unto you." John 16:12.

The program of this convention was essentially the same as other recent conventions. In the morning from ten to eleven, Brother Smith conducted his well known and much sought after, "School of the Prophets." In the afternoon and evening, he and Bro. Knapp alternated in the preaching. There was a steady increase in attendance throughout the meeting and though the attendance was not large as compared with some other conventions, people came from far and near. Some of the subjects of the addresses and sermons were as follows: "The Holy Ghost, The Supreme Need of The Church," "The Best Contribution we can make to the Next Generation," "The Ministry of Comfort," "The Deep Things of God," "The House of Jesus Christ," "The Lovely Will of God," etc., etc. All expenses were met including the local budget and the allowances for the National Workers and some pledges were received for the general work of the National Association. Special credit should be given to the splendid and loyal support of Brother and Sister Robinson, sanctified Baptists who not only attended the meetings regularly but took care to see to it that there was no deficit in the expenses or offerings.

The next convention convened in the First Nazarene Church of Grand Rapids, Mich., Tuesday afternoon, Jan. 11. Rev. E. J. Miller, the pastor, had a praise and testimony service. In the evening Bro. Smith spoke from the words, "What I say unto you, I say unto all, watch." He reminded his audience that the withholdings of God are as imperative as the revealings of God. The expectations of Christian Holiness is animated by the hope of his coming and guarded and warned by the withholding of the exact knowledge concerning its time. Holiness is the only thing that can enable us to watch, as we must watch, to be ready for that coming. The reason that God has not told us the day of his coming is because holiness is good for every day. Vigilance is as imperative as diligence. The old, old gospel is strong enough for any new invention of the devil.

The singing of this convention was under the leadership of Brother Miller, the pastor of the Church. He was not only splendidly proficient as a song leader, but was equally splendid in playing the piano, saw, violin and trombone. A great storm and blizzard struck Grand Rapids the third day of the meeting. It was reported that the temperature on Friday morning was the lowest recorded in 36 years. This resulted in cutting the normal attendance on Friday and Saturday about 75 percent, but on Sunday the church was comfortably filled three times. None who was present at the Sunday morning service will ever be able to forget it. The unusual sweetness and unction that characterizes Bro. Smith's sermons so affected the congregation that for more than an hour there was scarcely a dry eye or unmoved heart in the whole auditorium. In his own unique way and with an unusual portion of the Spirit, Brother Smith expounded Romans 8:28, "For we know that to them that love God, all things work together for good." The convention closed in the evening with a good altar service.

It was the testimony of both Brother Riley and Brother Miller that these conventions were especially beneficial, not only in bringing the cause of Holiness to the attention of the church and people, but in indoctrinating and establishing the people of God in the truth and especially of full salvation. Brother Smith has now gone to California for a number of engagements but will return East early in April for meetings in some of our holiness schools and for the annual meeting of the National Association for the Promotion of Holiness. It is now planned to meet in Chicago at the Chicago Evangelistic Institute about the second week in May; definite announcements will be made later. Brother Knapp is to assist Rev. Frank E. Arthur in an evangelistic meeting at the Austin Tabernacle in Chicago from the 8th to 27th of February. He asks the prayers of God's people for this meeting.

JACKSON, OHIO.

I have just closed a most blessed revival here with Rev. H. E. Uhrig, pastor of The Pilgrim Holiness Church. He is one of the most blessed ministers I have ever assisted in the work of the Lord. It made my second meeting with him and his sainted wife. She carries the burden for lost souls.

From almost nothing, in several years, and in a most neglected section of Jackson, he has built up a fine holiness church. He has some of the very best men and women to stand by him, that you will ever find on earth. The crowds that constantly attended were about all we could handle. They came some nights one or two hours before opening time, and filled the church, the vestibule and some extra chairs. They stayed sometimes until midnight.

The meeting was under the supervision of the Holy Ghost. He worked upon hearts at home and in the church. The conviction was deep, and the work clear. People were saved, sanctified, reclaimed and healed without any doubt. People went around confessing, asking forgiveness, giving up tobacco, and cigarettes. Some backsliders came home, and I trust, "Never more to roam." God did surely "Open wide his arms of love" to receive them. Praise his name! One man worked nights, and in order to be saved he stayed at home for one meeting, and was gloriously saved at midnight. The barber and his wife were gloriously sanctified. Old Jackson has surely had a shake-up. One young fellow said he hardly thought he could give up cigarettes, but when he got saved, he shouted all around the room, and said, "Praise God, I don't want any cigarettes now." Some of the industries were idle, and men were out of work; for this reason it was impossible to secure very many new subscriptions to the various holiness papers.

This is my second night in the Church of Christ in Christian Union in London, Ohio, with Rev. Frank Sollars, pastor. The meeting has opened up good, but much rain is keeping some away. God is with us, and we expect victory.

Yours in perfect love.

F. W. Cox.

PEORIA, INDIANA.

Peoria has just passed through a very successful revival. While the weather was bad most of the time and the crowds not large, yet the Spirit came down our souls to bless. Bro. John E. Hewson, from Indianapolis, helped us. He preached us the Word with the power of the Holy Ghost. Several were reclaimed, several came forward for cleansing. We held one service at the school. The professor gave us full sway, as he always does. We had a wonderful time, and five or six came forward for prayer. To be in the school here is like being in Asbury. We are grateful for the opportunity of associating with this professor, and with the school. We feel that our revival has been a great spiritual uplift to the church. If you want a man that preaches the Bible with power, get Hewson.

Clark W. Myers.

EAST COLUMBUS, INDIANA.

Tuesday night, Jan. 25, we closed a very excellent meeting in the Pilgrim Holiness Church, in East Columbus, Ohio. East Columbus and Columbus are two cities separated by a small stream of water, and the two have a population of some 8,000. Many special meetings were held in a number of the churches at the time of our meeting, but they seemed not to affect the attendance at our meeting.

We have scarcely ever held a meeting when the weather was more unfavorable to the work than in this one. Heavy rains, which made high waters, a temperature below zero, much snow, ice, and sleet, which made the travel very difficult and dangerous, all seriously militated against the attendance. But the people were faithful in their attendance, so that, in the main, we had good congregations, considering the unfavorable weather conditions, and a number of times the house was well nigh filled.

After the second service of the meeting, there was not a single service in which people were not converted, reclaimed, or sanctified, up to the closing service, between thirty and forty in all. The opinion was expressed by pastor and people that if the weather had been favorable, we would have had a widespread work of salvation. The pastor and his people stood nobly by us in the meeting, and expressed themselves highly pleased with our work and ministry.

A number of people were saved who were heads of families, as well as a goodly number of fine young people, together with a lot of promising boys and girls. A talented young married man who was sanctified will likely give up his business and enter the ministry. A prominent young woman who was backslidden from holiness, by resisting the call to mission work, had that blessing restored to her, and will heed her call to do mission work. One most remarkable case of salvation was that of a young woman whose conduct seriously disturbed the services. She left her seat in the back of the church, of her own accord, and walked to the altar and knelt. Some thought she came to make a mock of salvation, but at once she began to pray at the top of her voice for the pardon of her sins. This she continued to do till she prayed through. Then she did some old-fashioned shouting that an adept at shouting could not surpass. The next night she came to the altar and prayed through into the experience of purity, and had another shouting spell. Her experience set other folks to shouting, but that was characteristic of that people all through the meeting.

Other cases might be cited that are unusual in these times of spiritual dearth, but time and space forbid the cataloguing of them. Suffice it to say we had an excellent meeting despite the serious drawbacks. To God alone be all the praise and glory.

At this writing we are at home for a little rest, but expect soon to be afield again. We have some time not yet engaged. Persons desiring to correspond with us relative to dates should address us, 1350 Grace Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio.

J. L. Glascock.

LONDON, OHIO.

We are in the midst of a most glorious revival here. God led me clearly to send for Rev. F. W. Cox, of Lisbon, Ohio, to conduct a revival for us. How glad I now am that I sent for him. The Holy Ghost has honored his ministry from the very first day until now. Up to date 82 persons have sought the Lord. The crowds have been as much as we could well handle most all the time. The altar services have lasted long. Many have been saved, sanctified or reclaimed. Brother Cox lives a life of prayer, and gives the word out in an unctuous manner. He compares well with any of the well known camp meeting preachers, and is skilled in handling his Bible, and has a simple, and attractive way in expounding it. Our people love him. God's people will be wise in sending for this godly, happy, and spiritual man to conduct revivals for them. His ministry has wonderfully helped us.

In connection with his meetings he conducted several divine healing services. These were wonderful "Times of refreshing from the presence of the Lord." One woman who had not stood on her feet for ten years, was anointed. She testified last night, that on last Sabbath she walked in the house, and she and her daughter had a happy time over it. One man, after being anointed, jumped, shouted, and left his stick in the church, and it has been there ever since. This meeting has helped my own faith leaps and bounds. This meeting has brought scores of new faces into the services. Eternity alone will ever be able to tell all the good this meeting has done. Have Rev. F. W. Cox come and hold a meeting for you. I can heartily recommend him as an all-round man.

Yours in perfect love and for souls,

Frank Sollars, Pastor.

REPORT.

The first weeks of the new year have gone with such rapidity as to almost take my breath. It is said that it is a sign of approaching old age when time flies swiftly, but I am consoling myself with the fact that it is because I am too busy to count days. I am just at the forty mark and expect to stay eternally young in the perpetual springtime of God's grace. It is an unceasing marvel to me when I remember that I have been in the evangelistic field for nineteen years and God has graciously kept me busy at some task, playing, singing or preaching the gospel. I am always wondering why God literally shoved me into this field which has carried me throughout the United States and some republics of Central and South America, when the most natural trend of my temperament has been to shrink from crowds. But so long as he leads I will be glad to go another nineteen years.

I hope God will some day lay it upon the hearts of some of his prosperous saints to send me back into the needy fields of South America on other evangelistic trips to have some part in presenting the stabilizing gospel to those awakening countries. I am keeping my ear to the ground.

My first meeting of this year was in Galloway Memorial Methodist Church, Jackson, Miss., with my old friend, Dr. Arthur J. Moore, of Birmingham, Ala., doing the preaching. It was a great meeting in every respect. There were many professions and many church members brought to a new conception of holy living. We had a splendid hearing from the high school and Millsaps College students. And it was a rich privilege to enjoy the fellowship with Bro. Moore once again.

The outlook upon the new year is bright, and I hope I may be able to make it the greatest year of service of my life.

day and night. The sun came out for a little while Saturday and Sunday, but notwithstanding the water and mud, we had great congregations. I have not preached to as large day congregations in years as we had in Clarksdale; the Lord was very gracious. A number of visiting preachers came in, held up our hands with their sympathy and prayers. A large number were at the altar during the meeting. We are under lasting obligations to Dr. Brooks and his people for their many kindnesses during our short stay among them. May God graciously bless him, and the flock to whom he ministers.

From Clarksdale, we came to Miami, arriving here on the evening of Feb. 2, where we met the greatest surprise of our lives. We had heard much of the storm and were looking to see the city badly blown to pieces. No doubt, they were severely hit, but they have worked like Trojans, and so cleared away the debris, repaired, painted, and put everything in good order that, had you not learned through the papers of the storm, you would not know Miami had passed through a tempest. Only one of the great buildings in the business part of the city suffered severe damage. It was a steel structure, and the steel framing was about half as heavy as it should have been; the building was intended for about seven stories and had run up to seventeen stories. It was so severely damaged that much of it had to be torn down. The other skyscrapers faced the storm splendidly and are standing in their magnificence without a present scar of the battle through which they passed.

During the ten months of our absence there has been remarkable improvement, and Miami never looked so beautiful as at the present time. Thousands are coming here by train and ship from the icy regions of the north to bask in the wonderful sunshine of Miami; improvement on the climate would seem impossible.

One of the very interesting features is the vast amount of vegetables being shipped out of the State. I looked over a cabbage patch in full head yesterday, where the farmer told me there were not less than ten tons of cabbage. They are shipping tomatoes, celery, carrots, cucumbers, and other vegetables to the north, and will continue to do so for some four or five months.

Rev. S. H. C. Burgin, D.D., who was recently stationed at Trinity M. E. Church, South, located in the heart of the city, has made a profound impression upon the people. The large auditorium of his church, including the gallery, was crowded to its capacity, and many chairs brought in and people turned away at both morning and evening services on the Sabbath. In the last few months he has received about four hundred members into his church. Wife and I heard him twice last Sunday. He delivered powerful messages of a pure, saving gospel, and took in quite a number of members at both services. His people are greatly encouraged, and the church indicates growth and progress in every way.

Miami is blessed with several great gospel preachers, outstanding among them is Dr.

White, pastor of the First Baptist Church, a mighty man of God, tender, fearless and true. We always attend his church some during our sojourn in Miami, and greatly enjoy his ministry.

There is no place where you will find larger congregations and more hearty Christian welcome in the churches, than here in Miami. I have no doubt that the storm, in the long run, will have a most beneficial effect. It blew away some of the exaggerated notions of values, and the people have settled down on a reasonable and sound basis for true and abiding progress. May God grant a great spiritual awakening and gracious revival of pure religion, that will make this city, not only one of the most beautiful and delightful winter resorts in all the world, but a place of high moral standards and deep spiritual life.

Ho, for the Great Tent Meeting Campaign.

We are now making up the slates for the tent workers of The Evangelical Methodist League for the coming summer. We are believing and praying for a great campaign of soul winning. We have a wonderful force of devout, Spirit-filled young men eager to win souls for Christ. They are ready to enter open doors anywhere. They will be especially glad to go into villages and towns that have not had revivals in a long while. They are ready to work under the direction of district superintendents, pastors, or committees of lay people who desire to win souls. Let those desiring these tent meetings, write to our Secretary, Rev. Z. T. Johnson, care PENTECOSTAL HERALD, Louisville, Ky. All that our workers ask for, is a place for entertainment during their meetings, and a freewill offering at the close. They very much desire to be under the direction of, and work in sympathy with the pastors, of the places where they are carrying on their tent work. Last year was a time of great harvest; several thousand souls were saved, and we are expecting greater things the coming year.

Faithfully,
H. C. MORRISON, President.

A Generous Offer.

Rev. W. W. McCord, Sale City, Ga., who founded and is deeply interested in the Sale City Holiness Camp Meeting, is trying to raise money to sustain and carry forward his work. He is making the following offer: To anyone who sends him a donation of as much as one dollar, for his camp meeting enterprise, he will send a nice box of pecans. We received a box of his pecans and regard them as fine as we have seen.

H. C. MORRISON.

Dr. Ridout in Newark, New Jersey.

Sunday, March 13th, Rev. G. W. Ridout will spend in Newark, N. J., preaching at the Independent Methodist Church, Steuben St., Newark, Rev. Charles F. Nettleship, pastor. This church was organized many years ago on old-time Methodist lines and stands for pure Bible doctrines and experiences. Readers of THE HERALD in Newark and vicinity are invited to hear Dr. Ridout at 10:30 A. M. and 7:30 P. M. preaching services.

you too, as Beecher did, "on that blessed morning in May"—you too, will find God.

In the midst of the preparation of this manuscript a letter came from an earnest Hindu friend in which were contained these sentences: "I have deep faith in my own religion. I believe it to be entirely true, but need I be ashamed to tell that it exacts unflinching duty and knows no grace. Philosophically it is all right. You may not believe in God. You may believe that the Power above us is supremely just and indifferent, but we err we know not why, we are led on as it were on the waves of sin and mistakes. There are powers too strong for our frail being, and I wish then, there was a God who would be kind to me, who would feel my weakness, and who would extricate me from the meshes of evil and temptations." The heart cry of this earnest brother is answered in the Cross of Christ. Thanks be unto God for his unspeakable gift!

END.

The Joy inspired by the Spirit, how free from sinful taint. The words of the old colored lady were indeed true, "The sinner has fun, but the Christian has joy." It is the joy of the Lord giving strength. They who have such joy do not hunger for the pleasures of sin. And then that Peace of God which passes understanding; deep and serene as the sky. If there is night, it is filled with the stars of Hope. Or if it be day and there is an apparent cloud, the Sun of Righteousness turns its blackness to gold. The Longsuffering comes from the abiding of him who endured the contradiction of sinners against himself, of him who prayed, "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do." The Gentleness is from the abiding of him who is infinite in strength and perfect in love. In this grace there shines the Spirit of him who said, "Come unto me, all ye that labor, and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." And that Goodness is from him who alone is excellence and kindness without flaw. From him this goodness flows in unstinted beneficence into every life. To him we owe every mark of goodness which we possess. Without him how degraded would every one of us be. And Faith, that potent form of fruit is in its fullness from his abiding. And the strength of Meekness is from the abiding of him who said, "For I am meek and lowly in heart." And Temperance, that grace so needed in these days and in all ranks of life, from some who are high in office and others more lowly, this, too, is a grace divinely bestowed. If the world would enter into this fellowship of the Spirit universally, those questions which are now agitating the world sorely would soon find their settlement. With every heart filled with divine love, wars would cease; good laws would not appear so oppressive; offices would not be filled so often with men who are the enemies of righteousness; the kingdom of Heaven would have become mighty in its achievements upon the earth.

Abiding Spirit, inspire thy people to earnest prayer and effort until the army of those in whose hearts there is the abiding Spirit, will be very greatly enlarged. May those who have his presence, realize that this should be a life of eternal progression; that having received this fruit of his abiding, one should be ever maturing in the divine grace. Not having grown into this grace, there yet should be endless growth in it. How strikingly has Paul set forth in 2 Cor. 3:18, "But we all, with open face beholding as in a glass the glory of the Lord, are changed into the same image from glory to glory even as by the Spirit of the Lord." Wonderful is our inheritance in this promise, "For he dwelleth with you, and shall be in you." Herein begins the eternal ascent.

Special Notice.

A preacher in Wisconsin wrote me that he sent for "Amazing Grace" and another book was sent him instead. I have lost his card and address. Will gladly adjust the matter if he will write me again.

God's Wonders of Fifty Years.

The above is the title of a most interesting book from the facile and charming pen of Rev. George H. Means, D.D. The book contains 302 pages, good print, on excellent paper, and covers a wide range of subjects. Dr. Means, in this book, gives experiences, observations and incidents covering fifty years of his ministry. It will be read with great interest, especially to those who know something of the history and men of the Kentucky and Louisville Conferences. The book may be purchased of The Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky. Price, $1.00, postage 10c extra.

Crossing the Deadline.

This booklet is one of the most interesting and suggestive of present day conditions of anything written by our editor, Dr. Morrison. It sounds the note of warning that ought to be heeded by a reckless multitude who are losing their faith in the Bible, and at the same time, their reverence for God, their respect for law, and a disregard of all things sacred. Send for this book; get a number of copies and scatter them about over your town and community. Make the people think, and then you may be able to lead them to repentance and salvation. The price is only 25 cents and may be had of The Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky.

Heart Talks.

Rev. Lovick Pierce Law, one of the general evangelists of the Methodist Church, South, and a most excellent and lovable minister of the gospel, whose ministry has been greatly blessed of the Lord, has just brought out a book with the title, "Heart Talks." These are pithy, pointed sermons, full of punch and suggestion that Bro. Law has given in his morning messages in his revival meetings. The book is well bound, printed in clear type, on good paper and contains nearly 200 pages. We commend it to the people. It can be had of The Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky., for $1.50.

A Memorial for One---A Memorial for Many.

THE HENRY CLAY MORRISON MEMORIAL LIBRARY.

We are coming to THE HERALD readers with a bit of good news, so we may rejoice together in the near completion of the Henry Clay Morrison Memorial. Two years ago this coming March 10, we launched this Memorial enterprise through the columns of THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD and by writing to several of Dr. Morrison's friends.

Two outstanding factors had entered into the success of this undertaking: first, as a token of appreciation to Dr. Morrison for his heroic stand in behalf of the tenets of Christian orthodoxy, as college president, as editor and writer, and as platform peer, his friends espoused our cause. Another outstanding factor is that Asbury always has been in spirit, and is in fact by constitution, uncompromisingly committed to the doctrine and experience of entire sanctification. So a contribution to this urgent need at Asbury challenged the heroic in our friends, as it was to help in spreading Scriptural Holiness over these lands.

of friendship which has made the present Asbury possible. The Holiness people over the nation have prayed for and have believed in the all importance of training a Spirit-called ministry. You and Dr. Morrison, with others, were united by the Holy Spirit to do this piece of work. Therefore, in a very appropriate manner, we are grouping with Dr. Morrison's name the names of the friends who have made the Memorial possible. Such a grouping of friends will lend a mighty influence in behalf of Holiness in the midst of this great school: as the school itself is a tower of strength and truth in our country today. We believe there are many friends who have not yet taken part, but who now would like to be added to this memorial bond of friendship. Remember, it is not the size of the gift, but the sentiment back of it that spells the quality we need in this proposition.

Crossing the campus recently we took a snap-shot of the new library which we are presenting to THE HERALD readers in con-

INTERIOR VIEW OF PRESIDENT'S ROOM.

There have been some dark days, but never once since the contract was let for the building have we had to cease work. We are now nearing the goal, and if the friends who have subscribed, and those who are contributing, will stand by us two or three weeks longer we will be able to complete the enterprise without debt. This will be an achievement most gratifying to all who are interested.

It has seemed all the way through that this undertaking is more than merely erecting a Memorial building to Dr. Morrison; rather the grouping of warm and loyal friends who wish to express appreciation for him and his ministry. This seems to be the place for that finer sentiment to express itself: "a memorial for one—a memorial for many." The love you have expressed for Dr. Morrison is mutual. Throughout the years you have been drawn together by common interests. You have stood together for Holiness and have suffered for it. This has forged a bond of friendship immortal. It is this bond nection with this article. On the extreme left in the foreground stands the Theological Seminary building. Back of it, in light brick is Wesley Hall, housing about seventy-five of our young men. Still farther in the background, rising over Wesley Hall, is the new water plant, a gift of the Class of 1925. In the foreground, at the extreme right, we get a partial view of our Administration building. Then in the far background on this side is Fletcher Hall, another men's dormitory. Now in the center stands the library, a piece of architectural symmetry of art brick and Bedford stone. This Library Building, no doubt, is the best one on our campus, easily accessible from all other buildings, and in the very heart of the campus. We hope to receive a hearty response from our friends among THE HERALD readers.

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS

A LITTLE GIRL SINGS ON A STREET CAR.

A little girl, four years of age, sang something about Jesus, and everybody smiled at her joyful act. Doubtless it lifted burdens from some hearts and may have led others to think of seeking the "Jesus" of whom she sweetly sang. Dear reader, are you savingly acquainted with Him?—A. W. O.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I am going to write once more for page ten and see if my letter will be published. I wrote two letters but never saw them in print. I hope to see this one in print. I have dark brown eyes and hair. I am fourteen years old. I was fifteen years old Feb. 14. Have any other Herald cousins my birthday? If so, write and I will send you my picture. I live on a farm about one and a half miles from town. I have one sister twelve, and one brother seven years of age. I go to a school in the woods on a large hill; thirty-one boys and girls go there besides me. I belong to the Methodist Church and attend Sunday school and church. Is the world growing better or worse? I heard a minister say it was growing better each day. I would be glad to receive a letter from any of the boys and girls. I will answer all letters I receive.

Udene Parsons.
Bloom City, Wis.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I wish to tell about God's answering my importunate prayer. With youthful ambition my older brother had run away from home, was absent two weeks and we knew not his whereabouts. One warm, pleasant evening a man from our county seat came and informed us that early that morning he had been found, lying on his back apparently dead, in the drizzling rain in a culvert under a railroad, by two women going for their cows. Supposedly he had fallen or been knocked from a passing train early in the night, had fallen over twenty feet and on the solid rock. He was taken to a nearby house and the doctors found in him a faint spark of life. Suddenly hearing this we all were so greatly grieved. My good mother, weeping bitterly, while preparing to go there early in the morning, said if she only knew he was saved! Seeing her grieving so, I went out into the silent night under the stars and poured out my soul unto my heavenly Father. Vividly do I remember the place with the occasion. To whom should I go? I knew that he alone has the words of eternal life, that he surely was able and willing to give life for my entreaties. O, how I prayed, forgetting all but my urgent petitions, the saving of body and soul and the comforting of my greatly sorrowing mother. No loud or lengthy words, great earnestness of spirit. In the twinkling of an eye the answer came! I absolutely knew that all would be well. All earthly news pointed to the death of his body, but I heard from the highest and truest source. The effectual, fervent prayer prevailed. The prayer of faith did save him and the Lord did raise him up. No good news from man came to us, rather the contrary, for weeks there he hovered between life and death, but I was praising God through my tears, because I had the greatest assurance from the gracious Supreme Ruler. So let us pray for bodies, above all pray for souls, pray for our loved ones and others. Surely, this is very acceptable to God our Savior, always very wise in us. It must be God's great desire to save immortal souls, and he saves bodies for the sake of souls, for which bodies were made, souls capable of great joy or misery. God our Savior "will have a man to be saved and to come unto the knowledge of the truth." Please pray for my soul and body, pray that I shall be "steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord," and be very well and live long to do this, and also write to this lonely bachelor who needs all your good cheer and prayer.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you please give me a chair a minute? I am a girl of the age of 12. Have brown hair and weigh 63 pounds. I am four feet, eight inches high. My birthday is August 29. Has any one my birthday? I am glad to see the cousins living for Jesus. My teacher boards with us. She takes The Herald and I love to read it. Will gladly answer any letters received. With love and best wishes to Aunt Bettie and cousins.

Ethel Newman.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Please let a little Alabama girl have a place in your circle. I am seven years young and am going to school and like it fine. I sure do love my teacher. Who has my birthday, August 29? I have a little brother who was two years old Christmas day. I think he was a good Christmas gift. I hope Mr. Waste Basket is milking when this arrives.

Inez Bynum.
Rt. 1, Oneonta, Ala.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a little Kentucky girl join your happy band of boys and girls? It has been sometime since I wrote. I guess you all have forgotten me. I have brown hair, gray eyes, am four feet, five inches. I live on a farm. My father owns a store. I would like to see my letter in print. My mother takes The Herald.

Edith Miller.
Crocus, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: This is my second letter to The Herald. I enjoy reading page ten. I go to Sunday school every Sunday I can. I have two sisters; one of them is thirteen years old and the other one is ten. I am nine years old and in the third grade. I am four feet, six inches tall, and I weigh 59 pounds. I wrote to The Herald once before.

Lovell Wallace.
Folsomville, Ind.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I come again the same unprofitable, unworthy, dependent one. I am a Christian seventeen years old; was saved four or five years ago and sanctified a few months ago. Let all of us try to live better in the future than we have in the past. I will close for this time.

James Cain.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Can a boy from Minnesota join your happy band of boys and girls? I like to read page ten. My grandma takes the paper. Do not let W. B. get this letter.

Donald Hably.
Hector, Minn.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a little girl from Irvine, Ky., join your happy band of boys and girls? I am nine years old and am in the fourth grade. My teacher is Miss Katherine Huguey. I like her very much. My aunt takes The Pentecostal Herald. This is my first letter and I hope it is in print. I am 52 inches in height.

Lucy Elizabeth Wallace.
Irvine, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a Virginia girl join your happy band of boys and girls? It is very unusual to see a letter from Virginia. I have dark hair, blue eyes and medium complexion. Who has my birthday, July 20? I am fourteen years of age and am in the second year of high school. I have two sisters and three brothers. Both of my sisters are married and two of my brothers. I go to Sunday school most every Sunday.

We do not take The Pentecostal Herald, but I read it sometimes, and enjoy reading page ten. This is my first letter to The Herald, so I hope to see it in print.

Lueray Edwards.
Elberon, Va.

Dear Aunt Bettie: This is my third or fourth letter to The Herald. My grandpa takes The Herald and I enjoy reading page ten. I thought maybe you would have enough room for a little Iowa girl to take a seat. Does anybody have my birthday, July 27? I am eleven years of age, and in the fifth grade at school. My teacher's name is Miss Shoemaker. I hope Mr. W. B. doesn't come around with the mailman today. Who can guess my middle name? It begins with E and ends with A, and has six letters in it. I will send my picture to the one who guesses it. Well, I do think I see Mr. W. B. coming with the mailman, but I hope not. Write to us once, Aunt Bettie. I will close in Jesus' name. Alta Clevenger, I think your name is Gertrude.

Ruth E. Richardson.
Rt. 2, Mondamin, Ia.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I want to thank you for printing my letter in The Herald. I am sixteen years of age. I have been reading The Herald for about two years and think there is no paper better. I certainly enjoy reading the good sermons and also page ten. How many of you cousins are living for Jesus? It pays to serve Jesus. I was saved and sanctified at a holiness camp meeting last August a year ago. Rev. L. E. Williams, of Wilmore, Ky., was holding the meeting at that time. I hope he will visit our camp ground again. I belong to the M. E. Church. Mr. J. E. Johnson, I certainly enjoyed your letter to The Herald. I also enjoy the other letters of the cousins. I think it is just wonderful that the Christians can get acquainted with each other through this paper. I am just delighted to have the privilege of corresponding with God's children. I wrote to one of the Cousins at Shawsville, Va., and she answered my letter. But I have lost her letter and forgotten her name. You cousins who have time, write to me. I will try to answer all letters received.

Lucinda Middleton.
Dyer, Tenn.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I am a little girl ten years old. I have blue eyes and light hair. I live with my grandparents; my mama died when I was two years old. I go to school and am in the fifth grade. I go to Sunday school when I can get there. I have two brothers and my papa. If I see my letter in print I will write again.

Maxine A. Lisher.
Rt. 3, Cuba, Kan.

Dear Aunt Bettie: It has not been so very long since I wrote you, but I have had a greater desire to write again. The girls took me to be a single girl. I am married and am the mother of eleven children. There are only six alive, though. When I wrote before two of my children were unsaved, now they are both saved and are active Christians. My children are all married except one boy. I have received some very sweet letters from some of the cousins. I see lots of the cousins who write are Christians and I do hope and pray that those who are not will accept offered mercies soon. A Christian life is the only life worth while. I forgot to tell you my age. I was sixty-four last August. I sure do enjoy reading the old Herald. I hope this doesn't find its way to the waste basket, but that I shall see it in print soon.

Nannie Hurt.
Bridgeport, Ala.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Move over and make room for me. I decided to write again after three years' absence. We still take the grand old Herald, and I always turn to page ten first. I have medium complexion, brown eyes, and dark brown hair. I am five feet, five inches low, and weigh 118 pounds. I go to school at Helton, Va. I am a sophomore in high school. I like to go to school very well. Who has my birthday, May 18? I am leaving my age for the cousins to guess. It is between fourteen and eighteen. The first one that guesses it, I will write to Dear Aunt Bettie: Here I come again after several year's absence. This is my third or fourth letter to The Herald. What are all the cousins doing? I go to school and am a Senior. I am both sorry and glad that it is my last year in school. I am planning to be a Linotype operator when I finish school. There is lots of beautiful scenery near here. The famous Natural Tunnel is about twenty-four miles from Mace Springs, and the Hanging Rock is only a mile from here. It hangs over the other side of Clinch Mountain. Dear Aunt Bettie: This is my first letter I have written to The Herald. I enjoy reading The Herald very much, especially page ten. Hurry up, Virginia girls and boys, don't let the other states get ahead of us. I have fair complexion, blue eyes, light curly bobbed brown hair. I am five feet, four inches tall and weigh 120 pounds. It begins with an L and ends with an N, and it has seven letters in it. The first one that guesses it I will write to them. I will close as this is my first letter to The Herald. I don't know anything interesting to write. I hope Mr. W. B. has gone fishing when this arrives.

FALLEN ASLEEP

WATERSTON.

Christina Steele Waterston was born June 20, 1839, in Scotland. She came to America with her parents in 1856, locating in Wisconsin. In 1861 she was united in marriage to John Waterston, also a native of Scotland. He preceded her twenty years having died in 1907.

To this union five children were born. Agnes E., who survives; Robert, who died in October, 1922; Nellie, who passed away October, 1908; and James and Willie, who died in childhood.

They came to Kansas in early seventies and lived at Clyde, enduring the hardships of early settlers. They came to Atchison in 1874, where she lived until the death of her daughter, Nellie (Mrs. Fred Hartman) when she moved to Kansas City to live with her daughter, Mrs. C. W. Jones, in whose home she passed away. For the past four years they have lived in San Diego, Calif.

She was brought up in the Presbyterian Church but was affiliated with the Methodist Episcopal Church since living in Atchison where she was a devout member, her life an example for any one to follow, being careful in what she did that she would not cause another to stumble. She was never happier than when talking to people of the Word of God, ending with, "All I can say is, Be ready when he comes."

Besides the daughter, she leaves one brother, John Steel, of Oconomowoc, Wis.; a niece, Mrs. Edwin Jones, of St. Joseph, Mo., several nieces and nephews and their families in Wisconsin and a host of friends to mourn her loss. To know her was to love her.

LEWIS.

George Bennard Lewis, son of Edwin W. and Ann E. Lewis, was born July 24, 1855, and was killed by an automobile on the streets of Petersburg, Va., Jan. 22, 1927, in his 72nd year.

He was converted early in life, and was an active member of the church until the time of his death. At the time of his death he was a member of the Board of Stewards of his charge, Chairman of the Board of Stewards of Smith's Grove Church, and assistant teacher of the Bible Class of the Sunday school. He had been connected with this church and Sunday school about thirty-five years.

He received the purifying, empowering baptism of the Holy Ghost, a second definite work of grace subsequent to regeneration, and testified to it with his lips as well as with his life. With him religion was a creed and also a life: a creed because creed is the basis of conduct, and a life, because a "new creature in Christ Jesus" has, and of necessity must live, the "life more abundant." "From him shall flow rivers of living water" was spoken by our Lord of those who should believe on him, and was fulfilled in this man who "lived his religion" as few men do.

He believed "in God the Father Almighty, Maker of heaven and earth, and in Jesus Christ, his only Son, our Lord, who was conceived by the Holy Ghost, born of the Virgin Mary, suffered under Pontius Pilate, was crucified, dead and buried. The third day he arose again from the dead. He ascended into heaven, and sitteth at the right hand of God the Father Almighty, from thence he shall come to judge the quick and the dead." And he believed every other part of the Apostles' Creed. He regarded the Bible as fully, completely, and entirely God's Word as the Tables of Stone written by his own fingers on thundering, flaming, smoking Sinai.

On February 3, 1875, he was married to Miss Nannie T. Wilkerson. To this union there were born four sons and eight daughters, all of whom reached manhood and womanhood, and all of whom came to know Jesus Christ as their personal Saviour. Two of his sons became preachers of the Gospel of Jesus Christ. His wife, one son, and one daughter preceded him to the place Christ said he was going to prepare for them, and there are now living three sons and seven daughters. He married the second time, October 29, 1924, Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Crank, who also survives him.

Hundreds gathered at his funeral to pay tribute to him, and the church, with standing room taken, overflowed with those who loved him. A veritable wilderness of flowers covers the mound where they laid him.

He was a man who loved deeply, and lived and sacrificed that others might enjoy. E. K. Hall.

SERMON LIBRARY.

This sermon library consists of nine booklets by some of the leading preachers of the nation. They are so arranged that they cover a wide range of subjects, thus making an interesting set.

Nearly everyone knows Bud Robinson and how his unique philosophy commands interest. He has written two pamphlets for this set. "Two Sermons" and "Walking With God or the Devil, Which?" will not disappoint you. In these he deals with "God's Ability," with "The Blood of Jesus" and with the proposition of living for God or Satan. They not only make interesting reading, but are valuable for distribution to those whom you desire to reach.

John Paul gives us two fine sermons in "Another Man" and "Sermon on Sin." E. A. Fergerson completes the cycle of this discussion with "Heart Purity."

In this collection is found "Two Sermons" by M. P. Hunt already mentioned in a previous article, and "Sinners in the Hands of an Angry God," by Jonathan Edwards.

Dr. Morrison completes the list with two of his fine booklets. "The Pearl of Greatest Price" is a sermon on the thirteenth chapter of First Corinthians. Those who have heard him preach on this chapter know what a fine thing this little book is. The other booklet is larger. It is a discussion on the tragic effects of modernism today. "Crossing the Deadline" shows that the preacher who denies the Blood Atonement, the Virgin Birth, the Authenticity of the Bible and such themes is "denying the blood that bought him" and that such preaching can be nothing but fearful apostasy. This is a striking polemic on a vital issue of the day. Every preacher ought to read it.

The writer of these reviews is a minister of the Gospel. He has read these booklets and has gotten good from them. In them he has found much material for thought and illustration. Any minister or layman can do the same thing, and while he is reading them can think of some brother or sister who would get a real blessing from reading some particular one. After they have read them you can pass them on to others and thus preach the Gospel to people in their quiet home—at a time when they are most receptive of the truth. Will you not try it out on this or some of the other sets and see if it will not bring a great blessing to you? It will cost only one dollar to try the plan and it might mean salvation or sanctification to some one you love. Write The Pentecostal Publishing Company about it at once. Cast your bread upon the waters and see if they will not return to you. Just this week a friend of mine received a letter from one to whom she had sent a pamphlet thirteen years ago, who said that he wanted to thank her for that bit of Christian service—it had been a great blessing to him. Go thou and do likewise.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

REV. O. G. MINGLEDORFF, D.D.

Lesson XI.—March 13, 1927.

Subject.—Making the world Christian. Matt. 28:16-30; Acts 16:6-15.

Golden Text.—Go ye therefore, and teach all nations. Matt. 28:19.

Time.—A. D. 30.

Places.—Galilee, Asia Minor, Macedonia.

Introduction.—Far be it from me to be guilty of levity; but this lesson reminds me of a beautiful pie with fine top and bottom crusts, but in some way the cook forgot to put the fruit between them. In the first part of the lesson we find Jesus and his disciples, according to his own orders, on a mountain in Galilee. He commanded them to go to that spot for an interview with him after his resurrection. How many obeyed orders we know not. It may be that this was the time when he was "seen by more than five hundred brethren at once."

The latter part of the lesson deals with some of the work of St. Paul and his missionary companions in the regions north of the Mediterranean Sea. These two parts of the lesson fit together beautifully; but something is lacking. Jesus commanded his disciples to tarry at Jerusalem until they were endued with power from on high. Pentecost must come between the two passages of Scripture in the lesson of today, or the lesson will be a total failure. The fullness of the Holy Spirit was an absolute necessity for missionaries in Paul's day; nor is he any the less needed in our day, whether it be in the homeland or in the foreign field. Put the baptism with the Holy Ghost between the two parts of our lesson, and the whole becomes luminous. Leave that out, and all is dark.

Jesus was the world's first missionary. The word missionary means, sent. God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life. He frequently speaks of being sent of the Father. If God so loved us as to send his only Son to die for us, we should count it a great privilege to have him call our boys and girls to go to the ends of the earth as co-workers together with his Son for the salvation of our fellowmen. Our responsibility is measured only by our ability and our opportunity. Some things we can be indifferent about; but we must take the Gospel to the world, or suffer spiritual death ourselves. Just as no church can live and refuse to be missionary, so can no individual Christian live without missionary fire in his soul.

Comments on the Lesson.

16. The eleven disciples went away into Galilee.—Judas Iscariot had committed suicide soon after betraying Christ, leaving but eleven apostles. Into a mountain where Jesus had appointed them.—This appointment was made before the crucifixion; and the angel guard at the tomb immediately after his resurrection reminded some of the disciples of the Lord's command; and in obedience thereto they met him on the mountain top.

17. They worshipped him; but some doubted.—They worshipped him; therefore he is God. Some one suggests that the doubts of some may have been due to the distance between them and him; but that their doubts were dispelled when they drew nearer to him. Maybe so.

18. All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth.—Power here means authority. In earth should be upon earth; the prepositions are different in the Greek Testament. The Deity of our Lord is here portrayed. No one but God could wield all authority in heaven above and upon the earth beneath. Those who deny the Deity of Jesus Christ must be possessed of marvelous credulity. They are wonderful believers.

19. Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost.—I have transcribed the entire verse, because it is what we commonly term The Great Commission. Notice that the three persons of the Godhead are here associated on co-equal ground; so that The Great Commission is not only set forth by the Son, but is backed up by all the persons of the Godhead. The Church must obey orders, or suffer direful consequences.

20. Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you.—Christianity does not call upon men to believe in Jesus, and then go out and live in sin. Our Lord makes perfect obedience to the commands of God the basis of remaining in his love. St. John says: "He that saith, I know him, and keepeth not his commandments, is a liar, and the truth is not in him." Very strong words, but very true words. Lo, I am with you.—Gracious words. In the person of the Holy Spirit he will dwell in us "always, even unto the end of the world." End refers to time, and not to place. These precious words have consoled many a wayworn preacher in the homeland; and they have been the support and stay of many a lone missionary among the dark tribes of earth amid persecution and danger.

6. Were forbidden of the Holy Ghost to preach the word in Asia.—We are now dealing with the second part of our lesson. It is a fine thing for us to mind the checks of the Spirit. Why did he forbid Paul and his group to preach the word in Asia? Maybe the prospects for doing something over in Macedonia were better than those in Asia. Maybe the precious sowing must be done early for the coming harvest. It is all guess-work here.

7. Again we find the Spirit stopping them when they assayed to go into Bithynia. For some great reason, not here revealed, he was evidently pushing them down to Troas.

9. A vision appeared to Paul in the night.—It is not said whether the apostle was awake or asleep; but that matters little. God was calling them into Macedonia to preach his Gospel, and used this means to accomplish his purpose. We call this the "Macedonian Cry." It is ringing in the ears of the Church now from many shores. Help us.—What a cry that is; and the heathen need help far more than they believe, and far more than we believe. In helping them we shall help ourselves.

10. Assuredly gathering that the Lord had called us to preach the Gospel unto them.—They were obedient unto the heavenly vision. The Church today needs some missionary visions, and she needs to obey them.

11. A straight course to Samothracia.—They made a fine run from Troas that first day. The distance was about sixty miles; but to run that in one day was fine sailing for their little boats; although a modern steamer would make it easily in a couple of hours. The next day to Neapolis.—Night sailing was not very easy with their sort of lights, especially in such a sea as they were in.

12. Thence to Philippi.—Paul was looking for a favorable place to preach, and he was right; for God wishes his workers to use time and strength as wisely as possible. Philippi was the chief city of all that part of Macedonia, and being a Roman colony, it was a strategic point for a good beginning; and its Roman character might give Paul some protection, as he was born a Roman citizen.

13. This verse is full of interest. It is not here stated whether or not there was a synagogue in the city; but Paul and his party learned that there was a place of prayer outside the city on the river bank, so they went thither, and found a group of devout women gathered for their devotions. Paul preached Jesus unto them, and had one convert, a woman from the city of Thyatira, as we learn from the fourteenth verse, her name being Lydia. She must have been fairly well to do for that day; for she seems to have had a business of her own, being a seller of purple goods, and having her own home. Following on into the fifteenth verse, we find that after she had been baptized she manifested a fine spirit of hospitality by inviting the missionaries to come into her home, and to abide there, if they adjudged her worthy. Nor was her invitation a tame affair. Luke says: "She constrained us." She pleaded with them, told them that she and her household—all of whom had received baptism—wanted them to come in, and that they would be disappointed if they did not come. So she constrained them. It is always fine to be constrained to visit such splendid folk as Lydia and her family. And it is a great thing to entertain the Lord's prophets. They are likely to leave some blessing behind that will tell for years on the children.

EVANGELISTIC AND PERSONAL.

Rev. T. B. Bandy, pastor of Hill Street Methodist Church, Louisville, Kentucky, informs us that he will be open during this spring for some revival meeting work. Brother Bandy is a man of fourteen years' pastoral experience, and has preached quite a bit in revivals. He can furnish recommendations upon request. If you are interested in getting a safe, sane, God-fearing man to help you in your revival this spring write to him at 911 West Hill Street, Louisville, Ky.

Rev. E. W. Leach, pastor of the United Brethren Church, Monroe and Franklin Sts., Baltimore, Md., is holding a good meeting, assisted by Rev. Baker, and a number of splendid singers. Brother Leach always preaches a full gospel and is building the work up most wonderfully.

Rev. F. G. Whitlock, New Brookland, N. C., is a man of many years' experience and is available for meetings. He gives special attention to young people in helping them to become Christians. He solicits correspondence with any who may desire an evangelist.

The Pilgrim Holiness Church, Cynthia, Ky., began a meeting Feb. 15, continuing until Feb. 27. Rev. W. R. Cox and H. B. Waddell were the workers. Mrs. Waddell was the pianist for the revival services.

DORAN'S Ministers Manual

A Study and Pulpit Guide for 1927

Edited by
REV. G. B. F. HALLOCK, D.D.

The Manual for 1926 created an insistent demand for a new volume each year. The 1927 Manual is better than the first one. As before it furnishes material for a complete program for the regular Church services of the entire year. In addition there are prayer meeting discussions, Christian Endeavor topics and services for baptisms, marriages and funerals. Thousands of ministers testify to the constructive value of the Manual.

Rev. P. P. Belew: "Following up the Cleveland, Ohio, meeting which closed Feb. 27, I have some time I would like to give to interested persons in Pennsylvania, or Ohio, but will go anywhere. Those concerned may communicate with me at 3608 Denison St., Cleveland, Ohio, or my home address, 1529 W. Nelson St., Marion, Ind."

Rev. Curwen Henley, Waverly, Ill., desires to get in touch with parties who may wish assistance in revival meetings. Bro. He also can direct music for a meeting.

Miss Gertrude Patrick desires to engage in revival work. She is an accomplished musician, has a sweet voice, and considerable experience in directing church choirs. She can furnish recommendations if desired. Address her, 487 West St., Paintsville, Ky.

his part in bringing to pass a great revival. He has held some marvelous meetings, but just at this time has some dates open, owing to a protracted spell of sickness.

A revival will begin at Monroe, La., Feb. 17 and continue for some time. Services will be held daily at 7:30 P. M. Dr. C. A. Beale will conduct the services, assisted by Robert Courtney, well known soloist and leader. We trust The Herald family will pray for this meeting.

TO THE CHRISTIAN READER.

Dear Friend: Through the kindness of the editor, I am addressing you in a heart to heart talk. What is known today as "Modernism" is abroad in the land. It is undermining the Bible as the word of God, and the old-time faith of our fathers. It is denying everything supernatural in the Christian religion. It is rejecting the Genesis account of creation and is ruling out God from his word and his work. Of course, it is a subtle type of infidelity. It is worse than the teachings of Bob Ingersoll, because it is in the Church, and is given out to the people as the Gospel. The "Gospel" means good news, and there is certainly no good news in eviscerating the Bible. We have been taught to love "the Old Book" as a message from the skies, as a true account of creation, man's fall into sin, and a glorious supernatural redemption through our crucified Lord. We did not come from monkeys or from tadpoles, or from invisible animalculae. The Bible says, and it is true, that God made man of the dust of the ground, and when man sinned the sentence pronounced upon him was, "Dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return." Man then was not an improvement on insects or animals, but a direct creation of the all wise and Almighty God. We were made in his image, and will meet our life record at his judgment bar.

The Fundamentalist Association is pleading with the church and ministry for a return to the "old paths." We want to hear from every lover of "the Old Book and the Old Faith." Write us if you are in sympathy with the work we are doing. Send us the names of a few friends who would like as yourself to know about our work, and our literature will be sent to you and them.

Yours for "the Old-Time Gospel."

The Fundamentalist Association,

Vice Pres., and Campaign Mgr.

A VITAL CAUSE.

Experience has taught us that what a preacher reads during the week largely determines the character of his sermons on the Sabbath. There is a fearful need just now that the ministry of this country speak with no uncertain sound concerning spiritual verities. There is danger that the people become confused in the thousands of clamorous voices they hear. We are anxious that the "man of God" be so thoroughly saturated with the "strong meat" of spiritual things that from Sunday to Sunday he will proclaim the whole counsel of God.

During 1927 The Pentecostal Herald will offer some unusual features. Every preacher ought to read some of the articles that will be printed within the next few weeks. We have a great number of pastors and evangelists on our subscription lists. But for the sake of the congregations to whom they minister, and for the sake of their own ministry, we greatly desire to add not less than 5,000 preachers to our lists during the month of March. Think what that might mean! It might kindle a flame of evangelism that would sweep this country from coast to coast! One preacher ordered seventy-five subscriptions the other day, saying, "I want to sow down that town with Heralds for three months, and then go there for a revival." We believe he will have a revival there.

Now you can help us get that list of 5,000 preachers! How? First, during March we shall make a special offer for preachers only, to send The Herald for a year for $1.00. Send us the name of your preacher, and a number of others, enclosing $1.00 for each one, and we shall send them The Herald for twelve months. Second, tell your preacher of this offer and solicit his subscription at the reduced rate. Third, get someone who has money to send the paper to several preachers. What better way could a little tithe money be used than this? A little work on this by you would be of incalculable service for the kingdom of God. Help us in this vital cause, and let's see what the harvest will be.

Deadly Fallacies

BY DR. G. W. RIDOUT
of Asbury College.

Dr. Ridout has made a special study of these heresies and tells plainly, frankly, convincingly the facts about these modern delusions.

Plain Facts About Christian Science

It denies the Trinity. Calls the Holy Spirit "divine science." Denies the Atonement. Says "In reality there is no evil." Denies Christ's Resurrection, etc.

Spiritualism

Its Perils Exposed. Its Deceptions Denounced. Its Denials of the Truth. Its Three Black Lies—Infidelity, Insanity, Immorality. Its Deadly Allurements.

Russellism

A Counterfeit of Christianity. Its "No Hellism" is a cloak for outrageous doctrines. Perversion of Scriptures. Hideous Perversion of New Testament. Claims Christ came 1874.

Spiritual Gifts and Spurious Tongues

Various Kinds of Gifts. Tongues not Essential to Salvation. Tongues and Visions in John Wesley's Day. Tongues Compared to Revelation. Tongues and Misinterpretation. Tongues and Confusion. Tongues and Fanaticism.

Mormonism Under the X-Ray

Joe Smith and his Fake Bible. His Pretended Revelations. Mormonism and Its Fallacious Teachings. Its Peepstone. Its False Teachings—About Sufficiency and Authority of the Bible. About Jesus Christ. About the Holy Spirit. About Salvation.

Seventh Day Adventism

The absurd things it teaches aside from the Sabbath question. Do you know that it teaches—Annihilation of the wicked? Atonement is unfinished? Soul sleeping? Devil is the scapegoat to bear away our sins? Second Coming (first phase of it) was 1844?

Fanaticism

What Harm It Has Done. Puts the Most Fanciful and Absurd Construction on Scripture. Fanaticism is Religion Caricatured. Fanaticism is a Child of False Zeal. Fanaticism is Loveless Light and Malign Emotions.

POWER AND NOISE.

By The Editor.

LET it be remembered that there is a wide difference between mere human excitement worked up by singing jig songs, jumping about and clapping the hands, and the joy and gladness which comes with the outpouring of the Holy Ghost.

* * * *

It is most unfortunate for the people of a community, church, mission or camp meeting to get into the habit of working themselves up into religious excitement and imagining that that excitement is produced by the outpouring of the Holy Spirit and attributing to him any unseemly capers they cut or gymnastics they may perform. When such excitement dies down there is heaviness of heart and a disappointment. The soul is still hungry. It has been cheated. There has been a rattling of plates, a clatter of knives, forks and spoons, but no food.

* * * *

No doubt when the Holy Spirit fell upon the disciples at Pentecost, there was great joy and much demonstration. I intentionally avoid the word, "excitement." People may be excited without any salvation or real manifestation of the gracious power of the Spirit. On the other hand, they may be graciously baptized with the Spirit and have great joy that manifests itself in weeping, laughing and handshaking and not be excited at all. Reading of the coming of the Holy Spirit at Pentecost, we learn that the bystanders thought that the disciples were full of new wine. No doubt they were rejoicing, praising God and perhaps embracing each other and moving about in the room with uplifted hands speaking to each other in the raptures of the marvelous blessing they had received. Those who had experienced nothing of the great blessing that had come to them could not account for it, but believed them to be drunk.

* * * *

We have come upon times that if the Lord's people rejoice and give him praise, they are sneered at as "holy rollers," and we are told with wise and solemn looks that "still water runs deep." The fact is still water does not run at all. It's the habitation of frogs and moccasins. It breeds mosquitoes and malaria. We have a good many "still water" churches today that breed dancers, card players, movie trotters and all sorts of worldlings. They can whoop and yell with tremendous enthusiasm at a football game, but they become indignant if any one should shout the praises of Jesus in the quiet of the services of the sanctuary.

* * * *

We believe that it is the will of God to give his people a salvation that will make them so joyful, that will give them such freedom, such shouts of praise and gladness in testimony, that other people will long to have what these joyful witnesses possess. We have found this true in many years of varied experience. When the church is revived, when the people are happy in the love of their Lord, when their testimonies ring clear; when the old saints lift up their voices in shouts of praise, conviction settles down, sinners begin to weep and ask, "Is there hope for us?" "What must we do to be saved?" It was David who said, "Restore unto me the joy of thy salvation. Then will I teach transgressors thy way, and sinners shall be converted unto thee." This statement of David is quite up to date. It will hold good everywhere. Let the church overflow with the joy of the Lord and sinners will come, will listen to testimony, will be teachable and will seek the salvation of the Lord Jesus.

* * * *

Nothing is much more unpleasant and really offensive to devout people than mere noise, a whoop and hurrah entirely mechanical, when it is evident that the Spirit is not moving the demonstrators, but they are trying to move the Spirit with their exaggerated and mechanical demonstrations. This sort of thing is repellent and hurtful. I have had many a revival crippled and service hurt by people who were loud and noisy and would yell out their "amens" at the wrong place, give their approval at the wrong time and in the wrong spirit. They were not only offensive to the people, but I think they grieved the Holy Ghost. They seemed to undertake to take his place and produce some sort of emotion entirely apart from the work of the Spirit, thus substituting his work and hindering him in his gracious movements upon the congregation. Let us distinguish between the gracious power of the Holy Ghost among the people, and the mere noise of people who think they can bring down power by making a noise.

An Open Letter to My Dear Bishop

No. I.

My Dear Bishop:—

NOT long since I heard a prominent Methodist minister, while talking to a group of Methodist preachers, say, "We have our Sunday school system remarkably well organized. We take the little tots and pass them up from grade to grade, going from room to room, until they finish the regular course and enter the adult Bible classes. It is all very fine." He said, "We bring many of them into the church on Decision Day, and with a large percent of them it means little or nothing more than passing from one grade to another grade in the Sunday school. They come into the church quite like moving from one room to another in the Sabbath school."

The remarks of this preacher led to very serious conversation in which there seemed to be unanimous agreement in this group of ministers, and the fact was brought out very clearly that the children of the church are hearing but little preaching of the gospel. They attend the Sunday school and then go home. When they grow older they join the Epworth League and attend the League meetings and leave the church in large numbers before the preaching service. Thus the young people of the church grow up without hearing the gospel. They come into the church on Decision Day without a series of sermons on repentance, the forsaking of sin, the confession of it, without being powerfully impressed with the necessity of regeneration, without any comprehension or appreciation of the meaning of redemption, or experimental knowledge of Christ as a Savior, or obligation to him for their personal salvation, a life of faith and loving service.

This conversation took place at a Monday morning preachers' meeting in a prominent city where, I judge, the spiritual life of the churches is easily up to the average. There was no debate about the matter, but there was agreement and regret that, notwithstanding, the excellent organization of the Sunday school system, the children were not hearing the gospel preached, and no doubt large numbers of them were coming into the church without any conviction for sin, or regenerating power.

The question arises, What sort of a church shall we have as the years go by, the old Methodists die off, and the church is filled up with an unregenerated people? An unregenerated congregation furnishes a fine field for the sowing of the seed of false doctrine; the teachings of the destructive critics will be received by those who have no experimental knowledge of personal salvation.

It would be well not to forget that there is a God; that he has something to do with world affairs. What will God do about a situation of this kind? The Lord Jesus Christ has said, "Ye must be born again." He has also said, "God is a spirit, and they that worship him, must worship him in spirit and in truth." Those who have not been born of the Spirit have no spiritual life. They do not know God; they cannot worship him. They may entertain themselves with pageants, amusements, magnificent church buildings, great organs, fine choirs, and fascinating preachers, but what about salvation?

My dear Bishop, there can be no question but in many places large numbers of people are being brought into the church without regenerating power, and they are growing up under very liberal teaching with reference to the inspiration of the Scriptures and the whole matter of the supernatural in religion. I am well aware that if a man raise any objection, or even call attention to these conditions, he is accused of disloyalty; that he is interfering with the program of the church, but it seems to us that loyalty to the word of God, to the Lord Jesus Christ and his teachings, should have first consideration.

Sometime ago a friend sent me a postal card with the following printed on it:

OF ASBURY THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

A BUNDLE OF GOOD BOOKS.

Rev. G. W. Ridout, D.D., Corresponding Editor.

LORD Morley once said that literature alone will not by any means arrest and dissolve all the travelling acids of the human system; of itself it will not make a good man, but the right books awaken within us the diviner mind; they rouse us to a consciousness of what is best in others and ourselves. Thackeray thought that no man could sit down in the library of the British Museum without a heart full of grateful remembrance. "I own," he writes, "to have said grace at the table and to have thanked Heaven for this my highest birth-right, freely to partake of the bountiful books and speak the truth I found there."

A great man whose books and writings in the British Weekly I have enjoyed for years was Sir W. Robertson Nicoll, M.A., LL.D. He was England's greatest writer. He was a Scotchman, educated at Aberdeen and at the Cross of Calvary. No man influenced the thought of the English speaking world more than he, and he was always on the right side of religion when he wrote and spoke. He was no Modernist, no Unitarian. He was an Evangelical through and through, and when he preached and when he wrote he always preached soul-saving truth, and often struck hard, telling blows at the minister and church that failed to preach the whole counsel of God. Writing one time to Professor Peake the leading Methodist (?), Modernist and higher critic of England, he said:

"It always impresses me that with you every question is open. Now I cannot think that they should be so. Some questions are closed, else how can we be set for the defence of the Gospel? We are not set for the provisional acceptance of certain views and the candid consideration of everything urged against them.... I went lately to a meeting of your students in Whitechapel. I noticed particularly the opening prayer delivered by a comparatively young minister.... It was curious to see that he never prayed for the conversion of souls. He made no allusion to the death of Christ or to the work of the Holy Spirit—in fact it was a prayer which a Unitarian might have offered.... I feel very deeply that if Primitive Methodists lose their evangelistic power they will lose their Savior." "I am also extremely impressed by the heathenish manner in which certain settlements are carried on. There is a certain pretence of Christian teaching but what is taught is not Christianity. No heart is thrown into it and no interest taken.... people are got through socialism, waxworks, magic lanterns and the like."

I want in this article to invite my readers—preachers friends especially and educators—to read the following books by Sir W. Robertson Nicoll.

Life and Letters of William Robertson Nicoll by Darlow, published by Doran, $3.50, and the two latest books put out by Doran: "The Seen and the Unseen" by Nicoll, $2.00, and "People and Books" by Nicoll, $2.00.

The book, "The Seen and the Unseen," contains the cream of Nicoll's writings on religious subjects. These subjects are many. The Bible, Sin and Salvation, Coming to Christ, In the Pulpit, Eminent Preachers, Prayer, Hymns, Kept in the Faith, etc., etc.

Here is a little bit from some books which he calls:

Gethsemane Books.

There are a few books peculiarly dear to the heart of the Church, which I may call Gethsemane books. The chief are the lives of Brainerd, Martyn, and McCheyne. All of these died young, not without signs of the Divine blessing—but prematurely—rich and fervid natures exhausted and burnt out. I do not overlook physical causes and reasons, but in each case there was a Gethsemane.

Read the memoir of Brainerd, which Wesley published in an abridged form. It was written by Jonathan Edwards, the greatest intellect of America. Mark its reserved passion, its austere tenderness. Read the story of young Jerusha Edwards, who followed her betrothed so soon, and you feel that you have done business in great waters. Read Brainerd's aspirations—"Oh! that I might be a flaming fire in the service of my God. Here I am; Lord, send me; send me to the ends of the earth; send me to the rough, the savage pagans of the wilderness!"

Regeneration.

"Christianity begins with the regeneration of the individual and has no belief in any regeneration of society apart from that. Christianity is either a religion of redemption or a dead and powerless nothing."

Prayer.

We complain of the decline in candidates for the ministry, and remedies are suggested. But I have not seen it stated that Christ faced the same difficulty, and met it in his own way. Said he, "The harvest truly is plenteous, but the laborers are few." There is a decline of candidates for the ministry. What then? "Pray ye, therefore, the Lord of the harvest that he will send forth laborers into his harvest." What would be thought if you had a week of prayer-meetings to plead with God on this subject? Would anyone attend? More than you think would attend. More will be done in that way than by giving better salaries and better education. But prayer is no easy thing; prevailing prayer. We must waken the Lord. For this he will be inquired of. He says, "Awake, awake, put on strength, O arm of the Lord; awake as in the ancient days." Nor will he awake at once. He will refuse till we ask him more earnestly. He says, "Let me go," that we may answer, "I will not let Thee go except Thou bless me." We must waken God before we waken the dim sunken masses. Savonarola used to cry: "Wake Christ! Wake Christ!"

Conversion.

One man is able to remember the way of his definite conversion at eight years of age. He was born in a deeply Christian home, and subject to all its influences. When the revival swept the country, the child attended the meetings, and learned the hymns. One evening there came home to him distinctly the words of one hymn:

"He is my Prophet, Priest, and King,

Who did to me salvation bring,

And while I live I'll always sing,

Christ for me."

At that moment Christ suddenly seemed alive, ready to take the young life into his keeping, and it was given. What could the child know of the offices of the Redeemer? He could not tell how Christ executes his offices as a Prophet, a Priest, and a King. He simply knew in the divine way that Christ was his Lord and Friend. There was no excitement, no keen feeling, but the quiet and peaceful recognition of a fact.

His book, "People and Books," is a charming volume of 300 pages just brimful of the most entertaining, suggestive, illuminating, stimulating sayings and conversations on books. Get this book and your appetite for books and reading will increase a hundred-fold—book lovers, writers and authors will find here the cream of the best things in literature old and new.

Here is a bit he writes of Stanley: "Stanley's powerful face impressed me as the most melancholy I had ever gazed on. At a small literary club in London where jests were in the air and the atmosphere was easy and joyous, Stanley sat a man apart, as if brooding on some wrong that never in time or eternity could be set right."

Of W. J. Bryan he writes: "The lower part of his face strongly reminds one of the late Dr. Parker. The oratorical lines are very plainly marked. He impresses one as a man conversant with great affairs, accustomed to handle crowds, strong, reposeful, and tenacious, but I may say that what struck me most was the gentleness with which Mr. Bryan spoke of everyone. There is not a particle in him of the soured and baffled leader."

Books Nicoll wrote:

You ought to have three kinds of books. There is a verse in one of the Psalms: "Lover and friend hast Thou put far from me, and mine acquaintance into the darkness." Lover, friend, acquaintance. Your individuality is the center, round it and near it is the little circle of love—those who are your nearest and dearest. Round that is a larger concentric circle of friends, and then round that is a very large circle of acquaintances. All the people you know are lovers, friends, and acquaintances. I say the same thing about books. Certain books you love, and they are the special books, the books you want to read every year, the books you would not be without, the books which you bind in morocco, the books you would keep at all costs. Find the books that you love, and then find your friends among books. By friends I mean excellent books, though not the books that appeal most immediately and sharply.

Your mental life will be determined by your lovers and your friends; but if you have lovers and friends, there is no reason why you should not have a great number of acquaintances. A public man said recently that he had 4,000 acquaintances, and one may certainly know 4,000 books. In the world of books, it is essential to have acquaintances, if it were only for this—that the acquaintanceships help us to appreciate our lovers and our friends.

Let me name a book now by Dr. Broadus, "Sermons and Addresses" by Rev. J. A. Broadus, D.D. (Doran, $1.00).

Dr. Broadus was a notable scholar, preacher, and teacher of preachers—a worthy representative of the American pulpit, with an international reputation. His work on the Preparation and Delivery of Sermons is widely used in this country and England, and has been translated into Chinese, Japanese and Portuguese. In this volume of selected sermons one is deeply impressed with the great preacher's skill in interpreting Scripture, his knowledge of human nature, and his marvelous clearness and charm of expression. These discourses reveal why Dr. Broadus was such a powerful factor in raising the pulpit standards of our day.

"Pulpit Germs" by W. W. Wythe. This is an old book newly published and furnishes to the preacher the greatest array of sermon outlines that it is possible to pack into a dollar and a quarter book.

"Ministerial Life and Work." This book just published by the Moody School, (The Bible Institute of Chicago Association, Chicago) by the late Dr. W. H. Griffith Thomas, as its title suggests, deals with "Ministerial Life and Work," and is one of Dr. Thomas' best books. I am thinking seriously of using this book as a Text Book next year in my Pastoral Theology classes.

Into this book have gone the knowledge and experience gained in a long and fruitful ministry, an intensive study of the Scriptures dealing with the subject, and a wide reading of the literature about it. The result is a thorough, systematic study of great value—even to the experienced minister. Gives substantial help and inspiration to the younger clergyman—a boon to the ministerial student and to the isolated Christian worker who ministers as a prophet of God.

Contents: 1. The Man: The Ministry of the Prophet, The Ministry of the Twelve, The Ministry of St. Paul, The Ministry in the Pastoral Epistles, The Call and Its Responsibilities, Some Aspects of the Ministry. 2. The Work: The Public Worship of Almighty God, Preaching, The Reception of Church Members, Visitation, Sunday schools and Bible Class Work, Foreign Missions, The Prayer Meeting, Personal Work, etc.

Touching the ministry of Dr. Thomas, on page 91 is given the following:

From these four watchwords we readily recognize four things in connection with the ministry: a Supreme Necessity; a Supreme Danger; a Supreme Problem, and a Supreme Secret.

1. The Supreme Necessity. This is spiritual life, and life in abundance. Without it there is, and can be, no ministry.

2. The Supreme Danger. This is spiritual death. By this I mean soul-death, what some one has called a lost soul in the pulpit. Not sinfulness, but uselessness; not badness, but soullessness. Sermons well prepared but without the electric spark of fellowship with God.

3. The Supreme Problem. This is to keep the soul alive. Not our sermon, nor our work, nor our organization, but ourselves; to keep our spiritual life keen in the face of professionalism. And to this end we must guard the fire and keep it burning. One of the foremost dangers of the ministerial life is intellectual indolence, and it is far more common than is generally supposed. Mental activity is not natural, but acquired; not congenital, but achieved. It requires and demands mental toil. A man may be "fussy" and busy and yet be an intellectual "dawdler." He may engage in work of all sorts, and yet not compel his mind to work. Intellectual interest must ever be strong; we must feed the fire of the mind; reading, thinking, storing.

And the spiritual enthusiasm must be maintained by a closer walk with God. As some one has acutely said, ninety-nine may tolerate our sermons, but the hundredth will find us out. Some men may be able to hide intellectual sloth, but the clergyman cannot. Some men may hide spiritual weakness, but the clergyman cannot.

4. The Supreme Secret. This is perpetual freshness of soul, due to the "continual dew" of the Divine blessing, and through prayer, the Bible and the Holy Spirit.

In conclusion, let me advise my readers that they may order any one or all of these books from The Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky.

How Shall I Know That I Am Saved?

Commissioner Samuel L. Brenkle, D.D.

HOW shall I know that I am accepted of God?—that I am saved, or sanctified? The Bible declares God's love and pity for sinners, including me, and reveals his offer of mercy to me in Jesus Christ on condition that I fully repent of my sins, and, yielding myself to him, believe on Jesus Christ, and, taking up my cross, follow him. But how shall I know that I have met these conditions in a way to satisfy him, and that I am myself saved?

The Bible cannot tell me this. It tells me what to do, but it does not tell me when I have done it, any more than the sign-board at the country cross-roads, pointing out the road leading to the city, tells me when I have got to the city.

My religious teachers and friends cannot tell me, for they cannot read my heart, nor the mind of God toward me.

My own heart, owing to its darkness and deceitfulness and liability to error, is not a safe witness previous to the assurance God himself gives. If my neighbor is justly offended with me it is not my own heart, but his testimony that first assures me of his favor once more.

How, then, shall I know that I am justified, or wholly sanctified? There is but one way and that is by the witness of the Holy Spirit. God must notify me and make me to know it.

When the Holy Spirit witnesses to me that I am saved and adopted into God's family as his child, the other evidences begin to abound also.

A NEW CREATURE.

My own spirit witnesses that I am a new creature. I know that old things have passed away and all things have become new. My very thoughts and desires have been changed. Love and joy and peace reign within me. My heart no longer condemns me. Pride and selfishness, and lust and temper, no longer control my thoughts, nor lead captive my will. I am a new creature and I know it, and I infer without doubt that this is the work of God in me.

My conscience bears witness that I am honest and true in all my purposes and intentions; that I am without guile; that my eye is single to the glory of God, and that with simplicity and sincerity of heart I serve him; and, since by nature I am only sinful, I again infer that this sincerity of heart is his blessed work in my soul, and is a fruit of Salvation.

The Bible becomes a witness to my Salvation. In it are accurately portrayed the true characteristics of the children of God; and as I study it prayerfully, and find these characteristics in my heart and life, I again infer

WHEN OUGHT I TO BE SAVED?

It is as foolish to ask this as to question when one ought to eat or drink. Salvation ought to be sought when it is needed. If you are not saved, the greatest blessing you could have is the realization of how urgently you are in need of Salvation, not only in the future, but in the immediate present.

You need Salvation now because of the effect it will have upon your own heart and life.

You need Salvation now because of the difference it will make in your influence upon other people—in your own home, when about your daily work, and in all your relationships.

You need Salvation now because without Salvation you will be eternally lost, and the only way you can be sure of finding it is by seeking it at once.

The way of Salvation is by repentance, confession and faith. Seek God now and he will pardon and receive you.

that I am saved. This is true self-examination, and is most useful.

These evidences are most important to guard us against mistake as to the witness of the Holy Spirit.

The witness of the Spirit is not likely to be mistaken for something else, just as the sun is not likely to be mistaken for a lesser light, a glow-worm, or a moon. But one who has not seen the sun might mistake some lesser light for the sun. So an unsaved man may mistake some flash of fancy, some pleasant emotion, for the witness of the Spirit. But if he is honest, the absence of these secondary evidences and witnesses will correct him.

The witness of the Spirit is far more comprehensive than many suppose. Multitudes do not believe that there is any such thing, while others confine it to the forgiveness of sins and adoption into the family of God. But the truth is that the Holy Spirit witnesses to much more than even this.

WITNESS TO TRUE CONDITION.

He witnesses to the sinner that he is guilty, condemned before God, and lost. This we call conviction; but it is none other than the witness of the Spirit to the sinner's true condition; and when a man realizes it nothing can convince him to the contrary.

Again, the Holy Spirit not only witnesses to the forgiveness of sins and acceptance with God, but he also witnesses to sanctification.

Paul seems to teach that the Holy Spirit witnesses to every good thing God works in us, for he says: "We have received, not the spirit of the world, but the Spirit which is of God; that we might know the things that are freely given to us of God." It is for our comfort and encouragement to know our acceptance with God and our rights, privileges and possessions in Jesus Christ, and the Holy Spirit is given for this purpose that we may know.

But it is important to bear in mind God's plan of work in this matter.

The witness of the Spirit is dependent upon our faith. God does not give it to those who do not believe in Jesus; and if our faith wavers the witness will become intermittent; and if faith fails it will be withdrawn. Owing to the unsteadiness of their faith many young converts get into uncertainty. Happy are they at such times if someone is at hand to instruct and encourage them to look steadfastly to Jesus. But, alas! many old Christians, through unsteady faith, walk in gloom and uncertainty, and instead of encouraging the young they discourage them. Steadfast faith will keep the inward witness bright.

We must not get our attention off Jesus, and the promises of God in him, and fix it upon the witness of the Spirit. The witness continues only while we look to Jesus, and trust and obey him. When we take our eyes off him, the witness is gone. Many people fail here. Instead of quietly and confidently looking unto Jesus, and trusting him, they are vainly looking for the witness; which is as though a man should try to realize the sweetness of honey without receiving it in his mouth. Jesus saves. Look to him, and he will send the Spirit to witness to his work.

The witness may be dulled by neglect of duty, to sloth in prayer, by inattention to the Bible, by indefinite, hesitating testimony, and by carelessness, when we should be careful to walk steadfastly with the Lord.

There may be seasons of fierce temptation when the witness is not clearly discerned; but we may rest assured that if our hearts cleave to Jesus Christ and duty he will never leave or forsake us. Blessed be God!

The witness will be lost if we wilfully sin, or persistently neglect to follow where he leads.

If lost, it may be found again by prayer and faith and a dutiful taking up of the cross where it has been laid down. Thousands who have lost it have found it again, and often they have found it with increased brightness and glory.

If you have it not, my brother or sister, seek it now by faith in Jesus. Go to him, and do not let him go till he notifies you that you are his.

The HERALD PULPIT

"Who Is He That Cometh From Edom?"

Rev. Seth C. Rees.

"Who is this that cometh from Edom, with dyed garments from Bozrah? This that is glorious in his apparel, travelling in the greatness of his strength?"—Isa. 63:1.

NO more profound question has ever engaged human thought. It was propounded throughout the then known world during the first century. Philosophers and critics have considered and settled this question for twenty centuries. The wisdom of our modern halls of learning, as well as our most stately pulpits, have discussed and disposed of this question. But since no question is ever settled until it is settled right, there is almost universal unrest, and endless debate resulting in many strong delusions.

Every possible phase, or shade of Unitarianism, Christian Science, Russellism and Universalism is the product of a wrong conclusion. "Who is this that cometh from Edom?" Is he the Christ, or look we for another? Is he mere man or is he very God? The masses have answered, "He is the son of Joseph." But there have always been a few who have crowned him Lord of all.

I. I notice that the deepfelt need of the human race calls for more than human resources. There is a need as high as heaven, as deep as hell, and as universal as humanity. All have felt this empty aching void in the soul. There is a great unbridged gulf, a dark, deep, unspanned chasm, between man and God. Men long for something they know not what; they have looked restlessly 'round the world, but have found no relief.

Philosophers have groped about in the dim light of natural religion and they have sometimes found fragments of truth which have only increased their sense of need but satisfaction they have never found. Job's cry in the long ago, "How shall a man be just with God?" is answered only in my text. At Sinai the people called for a middle man, a daysman. The unfathomable need of the human soul calls for a Divine Christ. Enoch was good enough to walk with God for three hundred years, but he could not bridge the gulf. Abraham was good enough and great enough to be called the "Father of the Faithful," the "Friend of God," the "Rich man of the Plain," but he was not good enough to span the chasm.

The glorious heaven-born doctrine of the Deity of Christ is predicated upon certain other doctrines which prove it to be a necessity. For instance the immortality of the soul, the total depravity of man, future rewards and punishments and the immutable justice of God. These all call for an atonement which requires and proclaims the Deity of Christ.

From the archives of Greece and Rome and other nations of antiquity, we learn that in the darkest ages of idolatry and superstition, the doctrine of a future life was held.

Virgil, Homer and others speak of the dead as "consigned to the shades below," or, "sent to the realms of Pluto." Pythagoras, an ancient and eminent philosopher, taught that man in some sense was immortal. The great and virtuous Socrates, at the hour of his death, expressed to his sorrowing friends the cheering hope that man would have a being after death better than the present state.

The untutored foresters of America held that the good Indian, after death, would go to a warm country where game was fat and plentiful and the bad Indian to a cold country, where game was scarce and lean.

II. Characters are known and judged, not by what they seem to be but by what they are and do. The marvelous achievements of Christ establish and proclaim his Deity. He hath wrought the impossible. This world had lost its course and was speeding toward hell and eternal ruin; Christ arrested, lassoed and brought it back to the realm of mercy and hope, with one hand on the race at Calvary and the other on the great White Throne. Like a golden chain he has made the connection and brought us back to God. Like a bridge of infinite strength, he has spanned the gulf so wide and has established a wireless communication, and heaven is no longer far away.

We are not only brought nigh by the blood of Christ, but heaven is lowered so that mercy and truth meet together, and heaven and earth kiss each other. The gulf is bridged. Oh! hallelujah, the gulf is bridged. Christ built a reinforced concrete buttress on Calvary and swung a span across to one already built on the highest throne of heaven and opened communication and transportation between earth and the world on high. His stupendous accomplishment establishes and proclaims his Deity.

III. His resurrection from the dead proves his Deity. One of the subtle errors of the times is the teaching that only humanity suffered and that Divinity slipped away. But the angel said to the elect ladies, "Come and see where the Lord lay." He did not say, "Come and see where his remains lay." The word of God says, "They crucified the Lord of glory." Christ himself said "No man taketh my life from me. I lay it down of myself and I have power to take it again." The opening of that borrowed tomb is a divine guarantee that all the dead, small and great, shall get up out of their graves. They will come from the pyramids of Egypt, from the Mosque of Omar, from Westminster Abbey, from Bunhill Fields; every mountain will bare its brow and open its seamy sides. Every valley will belch forth its dead; every coral coffin and cavern of the deep sea will surrender its dead. Every monument will topple and every country graveyard will open wide. The saints will come forth a thousand years before the wicked dead; but with God a thousand years is as one day.

IV. All the miracle-working power of all the centuries, is by the Deity of Christ and the Divinity of the cross. It was Christ who secured for us the Holy Ghost. No one but a god could do that. The Holy Ghost never came until Christ said, "It is finished," and further said, "If I go not away the Comforter will not come; but if I depart I will send him unto you." The work of the Holy Ghost in staying judgment, limiting Satan, restraining hell, reproving sin, in conviction, conversion, sanctification, transformation and preparing the Bride for the coming Bridegroom, all establish and proclaim the Deity of Christ.

V. The cross is all the more wonderful because its effects reach back to the gates of Eden, as well as forward to the setting of the Great White Throne. All the wonders of the long ago were by the power of the Christ and the cross.

(1). Stand and witness the Jordan's swollen stream cut off, that Israel's millions may cross to Gilgal's happy shore. Already the Red Sea had opened and stood in walls, mountain high on either side, that Israel might march dry-shod from the brick-fields of Egypt, to liberty and freedom.

(2). See Jericho's massive walls crumble and lie prostrate in answer to the thundering shout of a living faith. When we were preaching on Mount Ramalah our eyes rested on Gideon and Ajalon. We were reminded of Joshua's battle when the day was too short. Joshua lifted his hand to heaven and cried, "Sun, stand thou still upon Gideon and thou moon in the valley of Ajalon. And the sun stood still and the moon staid, until the people had avenged themselves upon their enemies."

(3). Witness that thrilling scene on Carmel's brow, when fire from heaven consumed the Tishbite's sacrifice.

(4). Think of old nature's course being reversed without a jar and the shadow of King Ahaz's dial, went back ten degrees in answer to Isaiah's thundering appeal.

(5). See the hero of the desert, who was cradled on the bosom of the Nile, as he, barefoot, stood at Horeb, saw the coming King of kings and rejoiced. He saw him "traveling in the greatness of his strength." It was his strength that buried Pharaoh in the sea. It was his strength that split the rocky summit of Horeb, that rivers might gush forth. And we have all drunk of "that spiritual rock, for that rock was Christ."

A New Book.

Dr. Ridout is now at work on a new book which will be entitled "The Beauty of Holiness." It will be a dollar book and will be in readiness for the camp meeting trade. The object of the book is to show up the real beauty of Bible Holiness as against the "un-beautiful" and distorted forms so often given through fanaticism, etc.

Wanted: Fearless Preachers of A Full Gospel.

L. R. Akers, President of Asbury College

WANTED: A cure for cancer! Needed even more—a cure for sin-soiled souls. Society is sin-sick and because it is sin-sick it is heart-sick, and everywhere in this land of ours soul-hungry men are asking, "Is there any balm in Gilead?" They are disappointed when they go to the sanctuary seeking bread for their hungry souls, comfort for their troubled hearts, and solace for their disquieted souls, to find there oftentimes a message which touches not their need nor satisfies the spiritual yearnings within.

This is the day of the preacherette, and of the sermonette served up a la omelette with a dash of ethical spice, with a bit of pepper of modern day events, with a flavor of sentimental philosophy, but without a remedy for the sin that paralyzes the faith, blinds the vision, and cuts the nerve of moral endeavor.

The paramount need now is a commanding, compelling, tremendously earnest emphasis upon the one remedy for discouragement and sin, for there is a remedy—only one. There is none other name under Heaven given among men whereby we must be saved. The message of the Annunciation Angel to Mary was, "Thou shalt call his name Jesus for he shall save his people from their sins." John the Baptist, the forerunner, speaking of the Christ said, "Behold the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world." It was sin that separated man from God. It was the Atonement that bridged the gulf between sinful man and a sinless God. This Atonement is unlimited in its scope and efficacy. It is a sin against God and a slander against Jesus for any man to proclaim a limited salvation. He is indeed a false shepherd who dares to stand at the sacred desk claiming to be ordained of God and yet offering the people a Redeemer who cannot redeem, and a Savior who can offer at best only a partial salvation.

The only message that can possibly meet the needs of men today, that can solve the problems and uncertainties, that can give confidence and holy boldness, is that of a full and complete redemption from the power of, and a deliverance from, the guilt of sin. It has been the preaching of a flabby, enervated, and compromising Gospel that has filled our schools with skepticism, our churches with worldliness, robbed Heaven of those who were blood-purchased by Christ, and has crowded the broad way whose end is darkness eternal. God's Word is shot through and through with warning against the deadliness of sin and the need of its remedy. Its supreme message is the need of cleansing from sin, and the privilege, yea, the duty, of possessing victory over sin. It is the height of presumption and folly for men who are called to proclaim God's truth to ignore this claimant trumpet blast that, "Without holiness no man shall see the Lord."

There is only one way to successfully meet the challenge of this great material age, and that is by proclaiming earnestly and fearlessly the great truths of entire sanctification from sin and deliverance from its bondage. This preaching will be opposed by those who are unwilling to surrender their vices, to cease from their habits of evil, to relinquish their pride, and walk in the ways of humility and lowly service, yet we must deliver our souls. The watchman on the walls of Zion must not be silent. He must cry aloud. He must cease not to proclaim deliverance to those who are in bondage and the way of escape for the captive. In this period of jaded emotions, when men's appetites have been stimulated by mental thrills and bodily excitement, when our land is inundated by floods of salacious, lewd and lustful literature, when the raucous voice of the seaxophone is continually dinned into the ears of our youth, when every sort of address must be flavored with red pepper sauce and garnished with firecrackers,—only a gripping, compelling, heart-stirring, soul-probing message of full salvation can avail to meet the trenchant needs of this hour of moral crisis. This is no time for those who claim to believe in full redemption to be indefinite in their preaching and so careful of their terminology that they suffer no reproach and see little or no fruit. This tremendous age in which we live calls for stalwart men who have rock-ribbed convictions, and who will not hesitate to suffer for those convictions,—men who are always courteous, but who also are unfailingly candid, men who will speak the truth plainly, who will strike with the sword which divides joint and marrow, soul and spirit.

The only preaching today that will avail and prevail is that of full redemption. No limitations must be placed upon the Holy Spirit. He must be honored. He must be given continually the power to cleanse, to fill and to empower. Sin must not remain in the heart. Carnality can have no fellowship with purity. While the Holy Spirit brings the fullness of life, yet before this fullness of life there must be a complete death; before the filling time, there must be a killing time. Opposition to the gospel of Entire Sanctification is unscriptural, unreasonable and God-dishonoring. Let the trumpet sound no uncertain blast. Proclaim the full and complete message of God's Word,—the message of entire sanctification from sin, the eradication of entailed and inherited depravity, the omnipotent power of Jesus Christ to save to the uttermost and to keep by the indwelling of the Holy Spirit.

We have no apologies for our faith in the unlimited love and the omnipotent power of our Christ. Sin has wrecked and ruined God's divine plan for his beloved children. Heaven has declared unrelenting and ceaseless war against sin and will fight on to the victorious finish. No quarters will be offered, no terms made, no stipulations accepted, but that of full surrender and absolute death to sin. Those of us who believe in these eternal truths must look the whole world in the face without fear, and speak the truth of God without hesitation. Those who seek worldly applause, who would evade the vital issues of life, who would save themselves from derision and reproach, will do so at their own risk; those who will ascend the mount of worldly approbation will meet their own souls coming down. Let those who have found the Lord in the fullness of his salvation, who have been cleansed with the precious blood of Jesus Christ and who have a commission from God to preach a full redemption, proclaim this message lovingly, fearlessly, faithfully, fight for, suffering with, and carrying on the battle to the end. Then cometh the crown of life!

Let us reinforce and make our holiness more compelling by lives that illustrate the crystal purity, resplendent beauty, and dynamic power of him who was humanity's one perfect example. Let it be said of each one of us as was spoken of one of Asbury College's missionaries in India, "There goes Jesus Christ's man." There are some men who claim to have grace without being gracious. Some who profess holiness without possessing the beauty of it; some who claim to have experienced Christ's power over sin without giving evidences of its deliverance. Too many of our believers in full salvation remain warped, censorious and one-sided. "Christian perfection," says Fletcher, "is a constellation of the following gracious stars: perfect repentance, perfect faith, perfect humility, perfect meekness, perfect self-denial, perfect resignation, perfect hope, perfect charity and, above all, perfect love to God." Surely this garden of soul flowers should appeal to all who love the good and the true and the beautiful.

Back then to the cleansing fountain. Back to the preaching of power. Back to the day when men shall cry mightily for mercy in true repentance and contrition, when believers shall tarry until they be endued with power from on high. Back to the main line of God's power in a free and a full salvation. Back to a prayerful and expectant church, a church that is not satisfied to live beneath her privileges. Back to a fearless, compelling ministry, one not weakened by doubts nor palsied by fear, but a bold, mighty, aggressive, conquering band of crusaders.

More than silver and gold, more than eloquence and oratory, more than programs and cathedrals, do we need the living, cleansing, empowering Christ in our midst.

Dr. Osborn and Evolution.

REV. A. S. HUNTER.

I have read Dr. Henry Fairfield Osborn's book, "Evolution and Religion in Education." The chief effect which it leaves is disappointment. From what I had read of the man and of the book, I anticipated something solid and informing, something which would add to my stock of knowledge of the general subject of evolution and science, even if I could not agree with him. There is not a new thing in the book from lid to lid.

Instead, I find only speculation and assumption, colossal and arrogant assumption. He assumes everything in sight for evolution, and leaves nothing for those who do not accept evolution. It is so much easier to assume than to prove. He assumes organic evolution for all plants and animals, including the physical body of men; and also evolution for our spiritual and intellectual natures. He assumes evolution for the Bible and for religion; for the Bible from human experience, and for religion from nature—of course from evolutionary nature. He professes reverence for God and respect for the Bible; and yet repudiates God's revealed account of creation, as given in the Bible, for the unsupported hypothesis of evolution. He treats the Bible in the jaunty way which is characteristic of evolutionists in general, brushing aside as lighter than chaff, what cannot be revamped to fit the evolutionary theory.

He declares that the theory of evolution is as firmly established as is the law of gravitation, which law no one questions; only he calls evolution a "fact." He would incorporate the entire universe of knowledge under evolution. All his assumptions, and there is nothing more to be said.

Calling himself a scientist, he is not scientific in the book. He does not deal in demonstrated facts, but in affirmations. He declares that one tooth, the size of a pinhead, fixes historic data reaching back 3,000,000 years. Another tooth, probably larger, demonstrated that certain animals arrived in Nebraska 30,000 years ago. He can take bits of bone, a fragment of skull the size of a saucer, or a piece of jaw, and from it reconstruct an entire head, showing brows, cheek bones, facial features, etc.; and use them to demonstrate our gradual evolution from beast to modern man. He can read the entire history of now extinct (?) races of men,

WHY BETHEL ACADEMY?

BETHEL Academy previous to 1925, was catalogued as Asbury College Academy and so recognized by the state of Kentucky. In its past history the academy was very closely associated with the college. Its faculty met on the same chapel platform. Many of its students took part work in the college, and college students who lacked the foundation in some subjects enrolled in some academy subjects. Thus the college and the academy were linked together with one common aim—to give a chance for young people who desired, to receive an education in a school where stress is laid on the culture of the heart as well as the head. It was an institution where young people could begin at the bottom and secure a good high school training and continue their college course; a school where young people were trained to do service in the many callings of life—trained to be honest, upright, cultured, and have reverence for God and things sacred; a school where students were not only led to a saving knowledge of Christ but were established in the doctrine and experience of holiness. The object of Bethel Academy as set forth in her latest bulletin is as follows: "The object of Bethel Academy is to give an opportunity to young people in their formative period to complete a fully accredited high school course under Christian instruction in a definite holiness school. This school believes that the best intellectual attainment can be obtained where students are led to know the Lord in the forgiveness of their sins and have the indwelling of the Holy Ghost."

The enrollment kept increasing and the standards for recognition in the state and Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools raised so that it was necessary to separate the two departments and make the Academy a distinct unit operating in a separate building with no crossing of classes or enrolling in both college and academy at the same time, as formerly. Instead of dropping the academy, as many church schools have done, and let their young people depend wholly upon the secular public schools, the board of trustees of Asbury College decided that the department for high school training should be retained as a valuable asset in character building and foundation for true scholarship.

It may be asked, "Why retain Bethel Academy when there are so many well equipped city high schools and rural consolidated schools in nearly all sections of our country?" If we could print many of the letters we receive from parents as well as from young people themselves, they would answer the question and explain why there is a demand for an institution of this character.

The Bible has been taken out of most of the public schools and even the chapel or devotional exercises have been abandoned or substituted by exercises that make very little appeal to real character building; and in many places the students in their formative period are led to doubt the Bible as the inspired word of God.

After twenty-five years of teaching in the public schools as principal or superintendent, we have keenly felt the gradual drift toward worldliness, disrespect for law and order, and shameful conduct, which, we believe, has increased and has been encouraged by the lack of the chapel devotionals and spiritual instruction. The young people of high school age are easily led in the direction of true Christian character if the daily atmosphere of the school-room is permeated with confidence in the Bible stories, characters, and precepts.

There are many fine men and women devoting their lives and energies to the public schools, but they are more or less hindered in their efforts to maintain or reach their ideal moral standard because they are not at liberty or are not permitted to conduct devotional services effectively, or are unable to have co-workers in full sympathy with such a program. As a result, the moral standard is lowered in the public schools in many places and the young people are drifting away from the standard of piety and rectitude of their fathers.

The parents who have a vision of the spiritual condition of their children and many young people themselves feel the need of a school where Christ is exalted and prayer is heard in chapel as well as in classroom.

Bethel Academy exists to offer to young people a full four-years' high school course, that is taught by Christian men and women who are college graduates of high standing. Music, art, expression, and Bible courses are also offered. And with the daily devotional services in which the young people take an active part, Bethel Academy is giving to nearly 200 young people from different denominations over the country a healthy, wide-awake school that trains body, mind, and soul. The shining, happy faces, attested by many quickening testimonies in the chapel exercises, give the answer to "Why does Bethel Academy exist?" She has A(SA) rating in Kentucky and is a member of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

The Virtue of Complaisance.

REV. E. L. EATON.

"Be subject unto the higher powers."—Paul.

Alexander Morel, in his studies of butterfly-life, tells how he searched for cocoons of a magnificent and rare butterfly in Haut Valois, hoping to raise some of the purple and silver beauties. He finally succeeded in finding five chrysalides in perfect health on a certain Alpine plant that attracted them. But when the time for hatching came, out of the first crawled an ichneumon, out of the second another, and out of the third still another. Only the fifth at last produced a butterfly.

What had happened? The ichneumon fly had deposited its egg in each of the living caterpillars. The ichneumonized caterpillars lived on as though nothing had happened, ate, grew, constructed its cocoon. The unfortunate creature did not realize that under its skin it carried a perfidious enemy which, while letting it live, slowly transformed its destiny altogether. In fact this mysterious something which should have been a beautiful butterfly, gave birth to a larva, and became an ichneumon.

We make the following observations: the Chrysalides of this magnificent butterfly are to be commended for their noncombativeness if such be a virtue. Again, the ichneumonized caterpillar no doubt realized very little what was involved as to its destiny; and may have had very little to do with it anyhow. But alas, what was once to give birth to a lovely butterfly, passed completely into another creature and became a very common parasite.

There was one exception: one of the chrysalides was immune to the virus of the fly. It had enough resistance to say "No," whatever that means. It was in the minority too, and must have felt strangely different to see all of his companions crawling off ahead of time, if crawl they must. But history places the premium on the exception; and we are still looking for the beautiful. There are too many grubs always, be they few or many.

If non-combativeness be a virtue, where is

Paul, or Moses, or Samuel, or Elijah; and no less Huss, and Knox, and Luther; and who was sainted John Wesley anyway! So too, Joan of Arc, and Frances Ridley Havergal, and Madame Guyon, and Frances Willard. We cannot say how much these changed the destiny of their own generation, but we will say that they had much to do about their own destiny. There were certain marks upon them so one could tell them from the crowd; and so they were never lost, and never will be. They kept their particular stripe and color, and dream, and wings.

UNCTION.

MRS. MARGARET BOTTOME.

I have often thought of an "attachment," as they call it, to an instrument a friend of mine always used in a dear old library every morning at family prayers. The piano was an old one; but there was an Eolian attachment, and I used to listen to the attachment. So I have often listened to sermons that were by no means brilliant, but they moved me, or something moved me. And the "something" was in the man, or perhaps was the man, more than what he said. Another might have used the same words and I should have been unmoved. In other words, the preacher that moved me had the unction. There was an attachment.

Undoubtedly that was what the minister was waiting for when a messenger was sent to him to tell him the congregation was waiting for him. The messenger returned to those that sent him, saying, "There is some one in the room with him, and I heard him say, 'I will not go without you.'"

The minister soon appeared, and the other One was with him. O believe me, it is the "other One" we need to see and hear!

A legend is told of two emissaries from the Evil One who were sent out by his Satanic majesty to preach if they could get a chance. They were disguised as men. One Sunday they went to church as usual. A sudden illness prevented the minister from getting to his pulpit. The congregation had gathered, so one of the deacons arose and asked if there was any clergyman present who would take the pulpit, as they did not like to dismiss the congregation immediately. One of the messengers from Satan stepped forward and offered to preach. He took for his subject, "The redemption of the world through the blood of Jesus Christ." When he rejoined his companion he was asked how he dared to preach on that subject; nothing could do more injury to their kingdom than that truth. His reply was, "No harm has been done; there was no unction."

O brethren, can it be possible that his professed messengers can utter truth and there be no unction? I am sure there is an awful possibility, and so the people come and go from our churches unchanged.

I have never forgotten the young minister who went to his presiding elder with such satisfaction and told him that the church was so crowded he could hardly get through to his pulpit. The old man looked at him and asked him in his blunt way, "Was anybody converted?" "No, but the crowd was a sight." "Did anybody get mad?" said the elder. "No, no," said the young man, "they seemed delighted." The old minister shook his head. "No one converted, no one mad. There's something wrong here," he murmured.

Peter had an unction from the Holy One, and "they gnashed on him with their teeth."

No one awakened! No one converted; no one saying, "I must be holy!" And they come in and they go out. As I heard a

REPORTS FROM SOUL WINNERS

FAIRMOUNT, INDIANA.

We have just closed a revival meeting for the Friends' Church near Fairmount, Ind. The spirit of the Lord was on the meeting from the first service. The pastor, Rev. Stanley Carey, of Jonesboro, Ind., took charge of the singing and we the preaching service. The services were without any form or program, relying entirely upon the leadership of the Holy Spirit. The heavy snow hindered the meeting for about a week, but they were resumed again at the end of that time and the same spirit of victory rested upon the services until the close. Several sought and obtained the experience of justification and sanctification during the meetings.

A REPORT.

A splendid revival meeting closed January 30, with Stella B. Crooks, of Chicago, as the evangelist. The crowds were excellent, with the church being filled to its capacity more than one night during the campaign. Between fifty and sixty were at the altar, counting them just as they came, and many of these found definite experiences. Rev. F. F. Freese, pastor of the Church of the Nazarene, Newell, W. Va., had charge of the singing, and did his part well. The male quartet of his church rendered several special selections during the campaign. Also Rev. Benedum, pastor of East Liverpool church, came over, and his good people came several nights to the revival. They dismissed two of their week-night services for the meetings. This was very thoughtful of the Liverpool folks. The Newell church had fine representations of their co-operation. Also, we were glad to welcome our old friend and brother, Rev. I. N. Toole, who has held great revivals in Chester in years gone by, and who is now in the evangelistic field in our meetings. He was with us in two or three services. His prayers were thoughtful and brought the glory down upon our hearts. God bless him.

This meeting greatly blessed our church. Many new faces were seen in the congregation from night to night. Methodists, Free Methodists, Presbyterians, Nazarenes, and others were in attendance. Sister Crooks is a great preacher, and on the closing night raised $100 in cash and pledges, which was to be applied on our budget. To God be all the glory.

B. H. Pocock, Pastor.

REPORT FROM THE FIELD OF BATTLE.

The meeting at Windor, Indiana, began Jan. 2, and lasted for three weeks through some of the worst weather they have had in this state for years; but the weather did not seem to affect the attendance a great deal. We started with splendid crowds and good interest which continued until the close. It was made very plain in the meeting that Satan was still alive and in the business of blinding eyes and stopping ears to the truth of the Bible.

Knowing that if we were to be true to the Bible, to Methodism, and to our own experience, we must preach sanctification as a second definite work of grace to be sought and obtained in this life. This we tried to do as the Lord directed and the word had the desired effect; quite a number sought and obtained the experience. While some were seeking others were standing by saying there is no such thing to be had. But the delight of all was the very fact that while some were staying away from services and others objecting and showing off the carnal mind some of the very best people were praying through to wonderful victory. I find the truth presented earnestly will always bring results. The revival was practically altogether within the church. There are hungry hearts everywhere starving for the truth of God. Bro. McKee and his wife stood nobly by us. He is the pastor here. They are Asburians of a very high type. The people think a great deal of their pastor. The work is making some notable strides under his very efficient leadership. Success awaits a consecrated heart and an educated head. The Lord be praised who giveth us the victory. Mrs. Parker was with me in this meeting. We are in another battle now; will report later.

J. R. Parker.

FROM THE FIELD.

The Lord is doing business in North Carolina. Since conference in October, we have been in five meetings; first in Pilgrim Holiness Church in Thomasville, Brother J. F. Nonce, pastor. He is much loved by the people. A very good meeting, there being 12 professions.

Next, we were 12 days in the Methodist Church, Sparta. Good attendance, but not a victory; not a soul prayed through, so far as we know definitely.

We went next to Dicks Creek, near Asheville, where the Lord gave a very blessed victory. Twenty-four prayed through, eighteen joined the church and the church was wonderfully revived.

Jan. 2, at Proximity Church in Greensboro, N. C., we began what proved to be one of the greatest winter time revivals we have seen in years. The night before it began the beautiful new $38,000 Methodist Church in which the meeting was expected to be held, went up in flames before our eyes. Sad indeed, but by 11 A. M. next morning a beautiful thing was seen; a delegate from the Missionary Baptist Church appeared, to offer us the free use of their beautiful new church for the entire revival. Their offer was readily accepted, and for three weeks this Methodist holiness evangelist preached to great congregations. The Methodist pastor, Rev. W. L. Dawson, one of the strongest sanest holiness preachers of our conference for twenty-five years, and Rev. C. F. Rogers, the Baptist pastor, a sweetly sanctified, cultured brother, without a hitch or jar stood prayerfully, actively, wholeheartedly with us. Shall we ever forget that delightful fellowship? God bless them and theirs.

The revival broke upon us one night when we had preached on the Holy Ghost from Acts 1:8, and called believers to the altar to be "filled." Some prayed through with a powerful shout. More than two hundred prayed through; about a hundred came into the churches there. God be praised forever.

We are now in a good meeting in a country church near Mooresville, S. C. Been here one week and 36 have been converted. Today one faithful woman entered into the rest of Canaan and has a blessed testimony; others were renewed, and others are seeking. The people of this generation are needy; many are hungry. Time is passing, eternity is approaching and we should do our best to get them to Jesus.

FROM CHARLIE TILLMAN.

Last Monday night, Feb. 7, we closed one of the best meetings the Lord has ever given us. It was in South Jacksonville, Fla., Hendricks Memorial Methodist, of which my friend C. J. Tyler, is pastor. He has done a marvelous work since he was sent there in June by the Florida Conference. The Sunday school has grown to where they were compelled to secure the use of one of the public school buildings near by to house the increased attendance. The meeting we just closed will give him something over forty new accessions to his church as well as fifty-three new tithers, and fifteen new family altars.

We began there—daughter and I—Jan. 16. The attendance and interest grew from the very start and I never had such liberty in preaching, for the blessed spirit of unity and sympathy was very manifest. We had many interferences, among them the failure of the principal bank in which all of Tyler's people had their money, as well as his month's salary, and from a financial remuneration standpoint it looked discouraging, but they gave us the largest offering we have had in years.

Another unexpected distraction was the death of my older brother in Jacksonville. This necessitated my absence from the meeting for several services, but God did not allow this or anything else to seriously interfere with the success of the meeting.

We had the hearty co-operation of the other denominations and the Baptist pastor and his people liked my work so well that they engaged us to return and conduct their meeting for them this next month. In this meeting we will have the Presbyterian pastor and Brother Tyler to assist us in the singing. Reader, if ever you prayed for a little fellow with limited capacity you must do so for me, for this man will need help.

Charlie D. Tillman.

SPENCERVILLE, OHIO.

We have just closed a splendid revival at Olive Chapel on the Spencerville Circuit with Rev. Joseph H. Lewis as the evangelist. The meeting ran for four weeks; in spite of the fact that we had much snow and ice and some very cold weather the attendance was good and the results gratifying. There were some conversions, reclamations and sanctifications. Bro. Lewis, who is from Wilmore, endeared himself to the people and was unanimously called back for the next revival a year hence. I can, without reserve, recommend Bro. Lewis to any pastor who has a vision of the needs of his people and who desires a spiritual revival. He prays through and gets his messages from God. He is an elder in the Kentucky M. E. Conference and is appointed by Bishop Henderson to do the work of an evangelist. It is my hope that our preachers will keep him busy.

Fred Andrews, Pastor.

MITCHELL, NEBRASKA.

We are glad to report a real Holy Ghost revival which started January 21. We called Evangelist C. P. Ellis, of Mason City, Neb. He came, and from the first night on to the end God blessed the messages. Twelve year old snags were uprooted, seventy earnest seekers bowed at our altar; others found victory in their homes, one thousand chapters were read by the people between meetings. And we are delighted with results. We will have Bro. Ellis again, with his messages, banjo, and original songs.

Rev. E. D. Gideon, Pastor.

KENOVA, WEST VIRGINIA.

The special evangelistic services at the First Methodist Episcopal Church, Kenova, W. Va., which closed Jan. 30, proved to be an old-fashioned Holy Ghost revival. The pastor, J. S. Thornburg, was very ably assisted by Conference Evangelist, Rev. W. A. Grogg, of Roncove, W. Va., and Rev. W. Raymond Wilder, of Macon, Ga., who is a student at Asbury College, Wilmore, Ky.

The preaching and singing the gospel by these men of God, together with the earnest prayers and hearty co-operation of the Christian people, brought real Holy Ghost conviction and many yielded to the workings of the convicting Spirit, and found way to an altar of prayer and prayed through to a definite experience of conversion, reclamation or sanctification, until more than sixty persons realized in their own hearts that the Lord could supply all their needs according to his riches in glory by Christ Jesus. Forty names have already been received for membership in this church and some will join other churches. The people came in such crowds that the capacity of the church was not sufficient to take care of them.

The following was the action of the Official Board: We, the Official Members of the Kenova Methodist Episcopal Church hereby express our appreciation of the most excellent service rendered by Rev. W. A. Grogg in his clear and effective preaching of the Gospel, and to Rev. W. Raymond Wilder, for his very impressive and inspiring gospel messages in song. We therefore give them our hearty commendation and extend to them our unanimous invitation to be with us in our revival campaign next year.

J. S. Thornburg, President.

Mrs. B. D. Garrett, Secretary.

ORANGEVILLE, ILLINOIS.

The union meeting at Orangeville, Ill., closed Jan. 30. A spirit of union and good fellowship prevailed, and God was honored. A full salvation was preached throughout the campaign. Several were saved and the churches took on new life. Rev. R. A. Doss, of Everly, Iowa, directed the singing and we can heartily recommend him to any church requiring a song leader's service.

GOOD MEETING.

The revival just closed at the Abbyville Methodist Church with Evangelist J. B. McBride was a profitable one and resulted in the salvation to a number of souls. People came in for miles around to attend the meeting as the Evangelist is known in Reno County. Rev. Ernest Bartlett located at Arlington, six miles distant, was with us most of the time. He gave his services to the meeting and was fine help in the singing and praying. Mrs. Bartlett conducted three children's meetings the last week which resulted in much good. Brother Bartlett's church was closed up over two Sabbath days on account of sickness in the town. He and some of his people were with us over the last two Sundays of the meeting.

Brother McBride was at his best and did very fine work here. He preaches the Gospel in all its fullness and with the power of the Holy Ghost. He is free from any frivolity in the pulpit which would tend to amuse people rather than draw them to Christ. Brother McBride lives the gospel he preaches, at all times.

Ruben Bridgewater, a student at the Bible School in Hutchinson, was with us and led the singing. This was his first meeting and the people were delighted with his work. He brought other singers out from the school and their singing was greatly appreciated. The offerings taken for the singer and the evangelist were ample and satisfactory, nearly three hundred dollars in all.

The Reno County Holiness Association recently organized, met with us during the revival in its first meeting. The day is the last Tuesday of each month. The next meeting will be with the President, Rev. V. L. Darby, at Langdon.

H. G. Grosdidier, pastor.

UNCTION.

Scotchman in a pulpit in London say as he leaned over the pulpit and looked at a fashionable audience, "Ye look very fine in your gray clothes, but I fear in the sight of the angels ye are not fit to be seen."

I wish more ministers had the courage of the young man who received a call immediately after he left the theological seminary. He had graduated from his college with honors and then prepared for the ministry. He was very much elated at his call to fill a pulpit so soon. He started on Sunday morning with his manuscript to preach his first sermon. As he approached the pulpit he saw the words, made with scarlet pinks on a bank of white pinks behind the pulpit, "Sir, we would see Jesus!" The Holy Ghost did his work on the conscience of the young preacher. The preacher gave out the hymn and the congregation sang, and then before kneeling he said, "I answered your call. I am your minister. I came to your church this morning with my sermon, but I cannot read it. All that I can see are the burning words you have placed for me to look at—'Sir, we would see Jesus.' O, my people," he exclaimed, "how can I show him to you when I have not seen him myself? But bear with me. I will seek him. I will see him, and then I will show him to you." And then he prayed, and the people wept, and they all prayed, "Show me Thyself! I beseech Thee, show me Thy glory."

OPEN LETTER TO MY DEAR BISHOP.

INFORMATION FOR THE PASTOR.

"I believe in the Christian Church of today, and acknowledge it as the greatest institution in the world for the moulding of character, the upbuilding of mankind, and the development of good fellowship, and in order to become identified with so essential an organization, I desire to be enrolled as a member of Trinity Methodist Church." I shall leave out the name of the city which is also printed on the card.

It does seem to me that this is a most slipshod method of bringing people into the Methodist Church. Something very close akin to this method is being practiced and in many places people are being urged to join the church, and are welcomed into its membership without any indication of true repentance, saving faith, and the regenerating power of the Holy Ghost. Such people will become the easy victims of the modern liberalist preacher, and can be led into all kinds of false doctrines denying the inspiration of the Scriptures, virgin birth, sacrificial death, and triumphant resurrection of our Lord.

Methodism is better organized for a great revival than ever before in her history, and far better prepared to take care of the fruits of a revival than ever before. However great a revival may be, a very important item is the careful husbanding and developing of the results. Spiritual babes are as much in need of protection, care and feeding as physical babes are. The church is better provided with buildings than ever before. She is better organized. The Sunday school system is excellent. The Adult Bible classes count large in the church life of today. It is an interesting and encouraging fact that hundreds of thousands of men and women are gathering every Sabbath morning for the studying of the Holy Scriptures. The Brotherhoods and various organizations of business men are rendering practical service as never before. There is more intelligence, system and liberality in giving than has ever been known in the church. The Epworth League has enlisted a vast army of bright young Methodists who are capable of incalculable service for the Master and humanity.

If we could now turn our attention to the great need of a deep, powerful, widespread revival, and God should pour out his Spirit in gracious power, there is every reason to believe that the forces of the church would be prepared to carry it forward into all the ramifications of life, to bring it into personal touch of every class of society, to carry its gracious influence and saving power into the alleys, slums, mountains, and neglected social highways and hedges; and then, to gather in, house, organize, care for, educate, develop and harness into active and joyful service, the results of such a spiritual awakening.

We do not think anything could be more unfortunate at this time than an organized effort to bring large numbers of unregenerated people into the church, or to increase mere machinery and organizations, of one kind and another. The great need of the times is more power, deeper piety, a revival that will quicken and thrill the entire membership of the church with the Spirit and power of the Lord Jesus.

There is no question but the bishops, the editors, the secretaries, and the educators of the church could tremendously contribute to such a spiritual awakening. Will they do it? That's the question. Some one answers that, revivals of religion do not begin at the top; that God generally has to go outside of the church and raise up humble, simple, men and means to awaken the people, and stir the dry bones in the ecclesiastical valley, but it would seem it need not be so. The leaders in Methodism have a powerful influence. Methodism is not dead; there is much of life, energy, and capacity throughout the church.

Preaching, prayer, fasting, visitation, exhortation, and crying to God day and night can bring on a revival. Why not neglect other things, forget other things, and give ourselves to this one thing—a great, widespread, deep, powerful revival of pure religion? Such a revival would save millions of souls from sin and hell and bring mighty throngs into heaven.

A Chapter from My Autobiography

CHAPTER XVIII.

LIFE AT VANDERBILT, CONTINUED.

I had four professors at Vanderbilt: Dr. Baskerville in the literary department was a brilliant scholar; married a daughter of Bishop McTyeire, and was making a fine record as a scholar and instructor in English. He died many years ago. Dr. Shipp was the dean of the Biblical Department and teacher of exegetical theology. Dr. T. J. Dodd was professor of practical theology, one of the finest scholars and most cultured gentlemen of all the southland. Dr. W. F. Tillett was professor of systematic theology. Drs. Shipp and Dodd died many years ago. They were a fine group of men, all of them. I remember them with gratitude and admiration.

I had gotten an incorrect idea of what a theological school was. I thought the instructors would somehow, help me to make sermons and tell me just how to preach. I was impatient to be preaching. There was a cry in my heart and I longed for words, arguments, and wisdom to let the message out. I wanted my teachers to give me texts; show me how to divide, expound, illustrate, and drive home the truths contained in them, so the sinner who heard me preach would fall from their seats in an agony of conviction, and come running to the altar of prayer in tears.

I longed to win souls, and was deeply conscious of the paucity of my resources, and expected these professors to put the sharpened sword into my hand and teach me how to use it to best advantage, and with most powerful effect. But my instructors put me to work on great volumes of history, deep and difficult theology. Their method was to fill me with knowledge from these various sources, and let me do my own thinking and sermonizing, the best method, no doubt.

Dean Shipp was quite an aged man, with hair and beard as white as snow, prophetic-like in appearance, full of concern and kindness for the boys. Dr. Dodd was a most fascinating gentleman. He was as refined and pure in feeling, thought, language and manner as the most superior woman. It was a delight to go to his room. He was a Kentuckian, had once been the pastor of many of my relatives in Perryville. I spent many social hours with him, with pleasure and profit. It was a delight to go to his lecture room. Dr. Tillett was thoughtful, serious and exacting. He got far more hard work out of us than any other of our professors. He made us feel, as no other man did, the responsibility of our life work and the importance of careful and thorough preparation for it. He frequently called us to prayer before our recitations, and often reminded us that no preacher would be able to guide his people into a spiritual life higher than that which he himself enjoyed. We always went out of his lecture room feeling that we carried something for future use.

Rev. Gross Alexander, D.D., was the Chaplain of the University, was also pastor of West End church. He was on fire with a great hatred of sin and love for souls, and created no small stir among us. Under his ministry a revival broke out at West End church which reached the University and had a most gracious effect upon the theological students at Wesley Hall. Dr. Alexander was in poor health and frequently invited me to preach for him at West End. On such occasions my fraternity men and other students came out in large numbers to hear me.

Dr. John J. Tigert was then in the morning of his splendid young manhood. He and Dr. Alexander were both Kentuckians, members of the Louisville Conference and devoted friends. Dr. Tigert was professor of philosophy in the University. I loved those men passionately; to walk at their heels and hear them talk was far more interesting to me than all books and lectures.

I shall never forget walking home with them one night from West End church to the University campus. Dr. Alexander had preached a great and searching sermon. I do not think I have ever heard a man search the people out more closely than he was doing in those days. On this evening he had tarried in the church until the people were all out. Dr. Tigert waited for him at the door; I walked along in silence with them. It was a beautiful moonlit night and a deep silence had fallen on the city. As we walked to the campus the brethren talked to each other with great earnestness. Dr. Tigert was suggesting to the Chaplain that he be a bit more patient with the people, while the Chaplain insisted that it would take desperate means to awaken them. We came over the steps, walked slowly up under the elms, and stopped close to a clump of magnolia trees in front of the main building, with Commodore Vanderbilt's bronze statue looking down upon us.

In subdued and earnest tone the strong men reasoned with each other. They were not disputing, but communing and suggesting. After standing thus for some time,

Dr. Tigert said, "Well, Gross, you know how I love you. I acknowledge your scholarship, I believe in your spirituality, I admire your courage and zeal, but my brother, you have been using the currycomb quite severely since you came to us, and I think it is time for you to give us some corn."

With that, each man turned in silence to his home. I had not uttered a word in the tramp from the church, but had listened closely to all they had said. When they separated I walked over to Wesley Hall, to lie quietly upon my bed, wide-awake and thinking seriously until deep in the night. How great and grand those men were to me! How devotedly I loved them! In the years that followed, after I started the publication of THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD, with an earnest defense of some of the great old doctrines of Methodism, they gave me many good words of comfort and encouragement.

Some years after I left the University, while stationed in Frankfort, I invited Dr. Tigert to come during vacation and preach for me. He gave our people a great series of sermons. The weather was warm; we had no day services, but during the days we walked along the river bank, climbed the cliffs, and roamed through the woods. After his great sermons at night we would have prayer; my family would retire, and Dr. Tigert and I would sit and talk until after midnight. I believe it was Garfield who said, that to sit upon a log in the woods and converse with Mark Hopkins would be like attending a university. Those were two great university weeks with me, while Dr. Tigert was with us at Frankfort.

Tigert and Alexander, great souls, have passed on to the other world. In fact, I believe all of the older professors at Vanderbilt when I was there, have gone, except Dr. Tillett, who is still living, in excellent health, and apparently as vigorous in mind as ever. A few days ago I received from him a Christmas poem. For a number of years he has been writing a poem each Christmas and sending out to his old students. Four decades have passed since those eventful days at Vanderbilt; a generation of human beings has passed away and a new generation has come upon the stage of action.

DOCTOR OSBORN AND EVOLUTION.

without even so much as a bit of bone, just from flint implements; how they walked, their brain capacity, grade of intelligence, etc. And he calls this sort of thing "the missing link."

Some human skeletons he spaces off at intervals in the past from 40,000 to 500,000 years; and does it with absolute cock-sureness, and then knows that there were hundreds of millions of years of evolution before that, to reach the human stage at all. He gets there on the basis of the old "onion coat" theory of geology, serenely ignoring the fact that the assumed uniform "order" of stratas and fossils is violated in "nature" many fold oftener than it is observed; and that the rocks and fossils have absolutely no chronological value.

The material collected into this book was evolved by Dr. Osborn when the late W. J. Bryan got his goat, and that of his fellow evolutionists, on the monkey-ancestry of man, and at the time of the Scopes trial in Tennessee. It is really amusing how he reacts to and rejects our monkey-descent now, though not so long ago it was a "scientific fact," as well established as evolution now is; that is, as certain as gravitation. But these articles were written to bolster up weak-kneed evolutionists in that crisis, and perhaps we should not make fun of them. They are a repetitious rehash of old stuff, without a new thing in them.

However, one would not expect a "scientist" to disown his own progeny, as Dr. Osborn does the monkey-ancestry, so quickly. He just pushes the "primates" back some hundreds of millions of years into oblivion, where no one can possibly prove or disprove anything; and now says that we come of an independent line of descent, not through the simian. How long will it be till "scientists" will abandon the whole evolutionary scheme? Real scientists have done that now.

Dr. Osborn is not wholly sincere. He speaks of Mr. Bryan and the Fundamentalists generally, as pirates endeavoring to board and scuttle the good ship Evolution; and he, as a loyal defender, would run the Commoner through with his pen. Dr. Osborn knows full well that he there perverts the truth. He knows that what the Fundamentalists stand for has been the faith of all Christendom for centuries, that it was universally believed by Christians when he was a boy. It is evolution that is new, and on the rampage to drive out the old faith of the Bible. Yes, there has been and is an attempt at piracy, but it is not the Fundamentalists who are the pirates.

If Dr. Osborn's other books, of which eight are listed, are no more trustworthy than this one, they belong in the catalog of light fiction.

DEEPER LESSONS IN GIVING.

MRS. H. C. MORRISON.

WE have a strange way of looking at things these days, especially in the matter of rendering unto the Lord that which is due him. Of recent years the question of tithing has been agitated, as if it were a long hidden command which was recently brought to our attention, and to be a tither places one in the rank of a very exemplary Christian. But does not the Apostle admonish us to "Lay by as the Lord hath prospered us?" Our liberality is gauged by what we have left and not by what we give. This is why the jingle of the "widow's mite" has sounded throughout the whole world; it was all she had.

No, we have to learn deeper lessons in this matter of giving, than we have ever known if we would win the divine approval to that extent that our Lord, who sits over against the treasury, can say, "She hath done what she could." We are persuaded that this is the unused talent which many of us have buried, and for which we shall have to answer with shamefacedness when the Master calls for our final account. He not only wants what was intrusted to us, but with usury. We give below some paragraphs which we trust will stir every reader's heart to new action in the matter of rendering unto God the things which are God's.

"Our Lord charged his disciples to give, in the assurance that they should receive yet greater blessings in return. Riches were not to be selfishly hoarded up, but were to be freely spent in the service of the kingdom. Some disciples were called to make complete and final surrender of wealth and enter on public work for God. The very poorest were to give, and might thus yield more in essential value than the rich.

"St. Paul in his second letter to the Corinthian Church lays down the principles of giving. The members of the church in every age are reminded that while giving regularly and cheerfully to the cause of Christ, they are to see to it especially that they give in due proportion to their means, or, as the Apostle puts it, 'as God hath prospered them.' This is a feature on which the Lord Jesus laid particular stress. The contributions of the rich men whom he saw casting their gifts into the box for the temple revenue, were estimated in relation to the abundance that was left untouched, and not in their comparative amount. In this respect they were surpassed by the poor widow that followed them. When men give to foreign missions they should set their offering at least in fair proportion to what is retained for personal use. The giving of Christian disciples who have embraced the world-wide cause of missions, would require to be always bountiful up to the point of sharp self-denial. Only thus can they expect to get into partnership with the giving of Christ the Lord. In these days there is need for gifts to missions that shall bear the crimson tint of the life's heart-blood. It is only through the narrow portals of Jesus' own poverty, thick-set as it was with the keen thorns of endurance, that Christian men and women can have their souls enriched with the fullest revenues of spiritual blessing and success.

"In this connection it can be seen that within the wide range of the church's membership there may be an inner circle of men and women to whom the Lord may address the call to abandon utterly the resources they possess, in order that they may fulfil the service and destiny to which they are divinely called. Think of the poor widow, giving her last mite; of Barnabas, surrendering his all; of Raymond Lull, cheerfully embracing a life of poverty; of William Carey, using only £38 a year and giving away thousands; of Livingstone, content with the plainest subsistence; and of William Burns, yielding up all his salary to missions in China, with the exception of an annual love token to his aged mother, and leaving a trunk whose meager contents stirred a little child to say, 'Surely he must have been very poor.' Who that recalls these givers can help being convinced that they are specimens of what one has called 'the individual moral instance,' which deserve a fuller consideration at the hands of rich members of the Evangelical Church than has ever yet been given. In the words of the great evangelist of South Africa, 'Do we not need—as much as when he and his apostles were upon the earth—men and women to give concrete and practical evidence that the man who literally gives up all of earthly possessions, because he sets his heart upon the treasure in heaven, can count upon God to provide for the things of earth? Amid the universal confession of worldliness in the church and in Christian life, is not just this the protest that is needed against the subtle but mighty claim that the world makes upon us?'"

Dr. O. G. Mingleddorf is to give a special series of lectures at Trevecca College, Nashville, Tenn., from February 28th to March 13th. He will preach at nights in the First Nazarene Church. He will be open for dates in that vicinity immediately after March 13. If anyone should desire the services of Dr. Mingleddorf write to him at once in care of Trevecca College at Nashville.

Another Book by Dr. Morrison.

There cannot be too many. His latest one, "The Christ of the Gospels," has reached me and been read with pleasure and profit. Of course, all who have heard him preach will want this small volume, which is small only in size, a beautiful size, neatly bound, clear type, and Morrisonian in style. All the friends of this our premier preacher rejoice that he still brings out these treasures new and old, and that God is verifying his word in renewing his youth and giving him fruit as he approaches the evening. Simple, clear and direct in style, dealing with themes that are imperishable, the book is a fine addition to the already long list of good books from the author. Price $1.00. Pentecostal Pub. Co., Louisville, Ky.

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS

Dear Aunt Bettie: Please move over and let me sit by Doris Hilton. The reason I want to sit by her is because I am of the same given name. I have written once before to page ten. I just read page ten and was reading the rest of The Pentecostal Herald and discovered a picture of the tent work helpers and lo, I found Rev. Lamp's picture; of course, he looked the best to us. He held a great tent meeting for the Oblong M. E. Circuit last July and we are expecting him again. I go to Sunday school and church most all of the time. I want to tell you and all of the readers something that will make you all smile, the Dogwood S. S. has been having an average of forty in attendance, and now we have jumped a cog and are having seventy. Aunt Bettie, do you know Bonita Lamp? What is the shortest verse in the Bible? What is the longest verse in the Bible? Wake up, Illinois girls and boys, don't let the other states get ahead of us. The first one that writes me and guesses my middle name I will send a picture. It begins with L, and has five letters in it, it ends with E. I'd like to receive a letter from at least one-half of the cousins, and if you have an extra photograph I'd like to have you send it too.

Doris Whetstone.
Rt. 3, Oblong, Ill.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I was surprised when I saw my little letter in print. I live in Washington, not in Virginia. When my letter was in print you put Virginia instead of Washington, that is why the cousins did not write to me. But just the same God knows all about us; we shall meet by and by. I am in the fifth grade public school.

Esther Bergstrom.
Rt 5, Box 166, Mt. Vernon, Wash.

Dear Aunt Bettie: This is my first letter. I am a girl from Kentucky, seventeen years of age. My birthday is Dec. 10. I am writing this letter to tell you I make artificial flowers to sell, all colors, and they are very pretty. The prices are from 25c up. They are nice for your dining table, and especially for decorating. I would like to get some orders for them, and I will be glad to fill the orders soon as possible. I make them to help Daddy out, as he is old and not able to work very much. I am a good Christian girl. I would like to exchange letters with some good Christians. I have three sisters and two brothers. May the Lord's blessings rest upon all of you.

Nellie Mae Fitzgerald.
Balls Landing, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a little Cairo girl join your happy band of boys and girls? I have two brothers and three sisters, beside myself. My birthday is Dec. 14. I wonder who can guess my middle name? It begins with G and ends with an A, has eight letters in it. I go to the Nazarene Church. I enjoy reading page ten. I am in the fourth grade.

Edna G. Wilson.

Dear Aunt Bettie: May I join your happy band of boys and girls? This is my first letter to The Herald and hope to see it in print. I go to school every day and am in the seventh grade. My teacher's name is Mr. F. E. Webb, and I like him fine. I go to Sunday school every Sunday. I am thirteen years old, five feet and five inches tall, and weigh 105 pounds. I have dark brown hair, blue eyes, and fair complexion. My father and mother are dead and I live with my Aunt. I have one sister eleven years old. Any of you cousins that wish to write I will answer your letters.

Emma Rogers Feese.
Columbia, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Hello, folks, one and all. May I have the pleasure of joining your jolly band? I will be glad indeed, if you all will allow me to become one of your cousins. I am from Kentucky, my native state. I have dark brown hair, blue eyes, rosy cheeks and fair complexion. I am sixteen years of age, five feet, two inches tall and weigh 106 pounds. I have been reading The Herald for only a few months. My uncle had it sent to mother for a Christmas gift. We find it very interesting. I especially like page ten. I live on a farm at Pleasant View. I like the country very much indeed. I have a brother seven years old, and a sister nine years old who go to the Pleasant View school. They are in the third and fifth grades. I am a Freshman in high school. I took one half years' work of the first year. It was impossible for me to continue because it wasn't an accredited high school and so far to go to school I had to stop. I love school and it was the end of my happiest days. Mother and I are members of the Methodist E. S. Church. The Pleasant View church is in walking distance of my home. We go to prayer meeting every Friday night and Sunday school every Sunday, unless it is too bad weather for us to go. Our pastor is Marvin Richardson. We are very fond of him and I am very, very sorry to say that he is seriously ill and will not be able to fill his appointment this third Sunday, which is our meeting day here. He is in the King's Daughters' Hospital at Frankfort, about to undergo an operation for appendicitis. We do not know when he will be able to preach for us again, maybe never, but we are trusting in the Lord and praying that he will soon recover and we can have the pleasure of listening to his sermons again. I will be very, very glad to write to any one who wishes to be my friend and writes to me. I will answer all letters received. I just must close as this is my first letter to The Herald.

Evelyn Hellice Cox.
Rt. 4, Box 77, Frankfort, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a little West Virginia girl join your happy band of boys and girls? Mother takes The Herald and I enjoy reading page ten. I go to Sunday school every Sunday. I am in the third grade. I have brown eyes and brown bobbed hair and light complexion. The one who guesses my name I will write to them. It starts with E and ends with L and has five letters.

Ruth E. James.
Box 25, Robson, W. Va.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I am a little girl eleven years old. I go to Sunday school almost every Sunday. My mother teaches my class. I like her fine. She has been my teacher about five years. I know the books of the Bible and the Lord's Prayer. I have gone to school every day this year. I weigh 80 pounds. My birthday is April 26. I have one brother and one sister. My sister goes to high school. I would like to hear from any of the cousins.

Edna Kittinger.
Dale, Ill.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I am a little girl from Ohio, with brown eyes and chestnut brown hair. I am fifteen years old, and fifty-seven inches high. I am a Methodist. I go to Sunday school and church at Wesley Chapel, every Sunday that I possibly can. I am the pianist for the church and almost all of its organizations. I am assistant teacher trying to teach the scholars all I can about the love of Jesus. I am saved and sanctified by the Lord Jesus Christ; he has washed all my sins as white as snow. I am just one year old in God's kingdom. We just closed the revival meetings at our church, and I want to say God was there. Oh my, cousins, don't slip away from your Jesus, for he is needing many reapers to reap his harvest. There are many sheep and only one dear, kind Shepherd to go and stand by. I do love to read the dear old Pentecostal Herald, especially page ten. I have learned to know and love Dr. Morrison. I had the privilege last May of hearing him address the Senior Class of B. A. at their commencement exercises. I am glad that I've learned to know and love true-hearted Christian boys and girls from dear Asbury College. We had a wonderful trip seeing Kentucky, but we did long to get back to dear old Ohio. Dear cousins, I want to tell you if you ever want to see and be in Heaven on earth just go to dear old Camp Sychar, near Mt. Vernon, for there you hear the glories, amens, shouts and hallelujahs. There's where you meet true saints of the Lord Jesus Christ. I have preached two sermons in my church at Wesley Chapel. My dear good pastor has led me much farther in the Christian work than I would have gone, but the dear God led me out. I enjoy the Christian life more each day, and I never feel like turning back. I just feel like pressing onward.

Rosannah Heister.
Canal, Winchester, Ohio.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I am a little girl ten years old and am in the fifth grade. I go to Sunday school every Sunday I can. Esther C. James, I guess your middle name to be Catherine. Am I right? If I am don't forget your promise. Fern Longshire, I thought your letter was sweet. I try my best to live a Christian life. Aunt Bettie, I have a pretty little brother named Charles Wesley, and we want him to go to Asbury College and make a preacher. Well, I hope Mr. W. B. will be gone to town when this letter arrives.

Monda Stewart.
Dyer, Tenn.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I would like to join the happy line which leads closer to our Savior. My mother used to take The Herald, but the year is up now, but we get it from another lady next door. My parents are both Christians, working for Jesus. I have one sister and two brothers. I am thirteen years old. I am a Christian and would like to receive letters from the other cousins.

Anna Houston.
Turtle Lake, N. Dak.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you move over a little, cousins, and let me sit down? I am a little boy four years old, blue eyes, yellow hair and rosy cheeks. Who has my birthday, April 7th? I help daddy get in wood and help mother carry water. I love to go to Sunday school and I like to hear the letters read on page ten. I have one sister and no brother. Please print my letter.

Frank Terry.
Rt. 4, Harrison, Ark.

Dear Aunt Bettie: May a Wyoming boy join your happy band of boys and girls. I go to Sunday school every Sunday at the Methodist Church. After Sunday school we have Junior church which all the children enjoy. A deaconess, Miss Boobar, is our leader. I am eleven years old, have light hair and gray eyes. I like it out here but I don't like to meet with Mr. Rattler. Casper is a nice city of 25,000 people. There are lovely homes and school buildings here. Casper is in a valley with a beautiful range of mountains on the south. Prairies stretch to the north. I would be glad to write to the cousins who want to write to me.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I hope you will let a little Alabama boy join your happy band of boys and girls. We take The Herald. I like to read page ten. This is my first time to write. I hope to see my letter in the paper. I belong to the Baptist Church. I am eleven years old. I am in the fifth grade. If some of you cousins will answer my letter I will be glad to answer.

Wherever I work I try to win my little folks with love and kindness and try to teach them to be kind and lovable and it is very seldom that I have to use serious punishment. I try to let my pupils see Jesus in me. I shall enjoy getting letters from the cousins, as I enjoy reading and writing letters.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let me join your happy band of boys and girls? This is my first letter to The Herald and wish to see it in print. Wake up, Georgia boys and girls, I never do see a letter from Georgia. I go to the M. E. Church, and Sunday school, at Sylvania, Ga. Our pastor's name is Rev. Paul Muse. We sure do like him. I am ten years of age and in the sixth grade at school. My teacher's name is Mrs. H. L. Reddick. I sure do like her. She is the best teacher I ever had. We have 48 pupils in my class. I am going to tell you a very pretty little prayer sent me from the Little Bible Book League in Chico, Calif.

"I thank thee, dear Father, for Jesus thy Son,
Who came down from heaven to save us each one.
I thank Thee for all the good gifts thou dost give,
For food and for clothing and home where I live.
I pray Thee that all of the children so dear
May know Thee and love Thee no matter where.
Help me to do my part the good news to send,
And show by my life I love Jesus my friend."

FALLEN ASLEEP

ROBINSON.

Clarence H. Robinson, son of Allen and Sarah E. Robinson, was born June 3, 1877, at Little York, Indiana, and departed this life December 30, 1926, age 49 years, 6 months and 27 days. He was the fourth in a family of five children, two sisters, Cynthia and Jennie, and one brother, Thomas Victor, having preceded him in death. One brother, Joseph, survives him. He was left an orphan when only three years old, too young to remember anything about his parents. He and his brother Joseph made their home with an aunt, Mrs. Mary Criswell, who preceded him to the heavenly home six weeks ago.

He enlisted as a volunteer in the Army in 1898, and served in the Spanish-American War.

In 1903 he was united in marriage to Almeda Borden; to this union eight children were born, six girls and two boys, two girls, Alice Marie and Constance Beatrice, having gone on before.

He was a most devoted husband and father, a good neighbor, kind and accommodating to all, doing all his strength would permit. He had been in poor health for sometime, and on Dec. 22 he was stricken down with double pneumonia. All that loving hands and hearts could do was done, but to no avail, as Jesus saw best to take him home.

He joined the Methodist Church at this place sometime ago, and on the night of Dec. 27th, he was converted and confessed his faith in Christ, claiming his promises, and leaning on "The Everlasting Arms," until at 2:00 A. M., Dec. 30, the death angel called and beckoned him to come up higher.

He leaves to mourn their loss, a wife, six children, Howard, who is in the U. S. N. Radio Service, now stationed on Long Island, New York, Olive, Mary, Inez, Mabel, and Harold, one brother, Joseph T., and a host of other relatives and friends.

The stream of life flows on,

But still the vacant chair

Recalls the love, the voice, the smile,
Of the one who once sat there.

The flowers we lay upon the grave
Soon wither and decay,
But the love we bear for him
Will never fade away.

The golden gates were opened,
A gentle voice said come,
And with farewells unspoken
He calmly entered home.

Another guest for the promised land
Another robe of white,
Another crown of life brought forth
With fadefless jewels bright.

Funeral services were held at the M. E. Church, Sunday afternoon, conducted by Rev. S. S. Spaulding, the remains were interred in New Hope Cemetery.

STRICKER.

Frederick D. Stricker was born in Detroit in the year 1848. The entire 78 years of his life, with the exception of a brief time, when he lived just out of Detroit, were spent in his native city.

He was united in marriage to Loida Wegner in 1874. Two years ago they very happily celebrated their golden anniversary.

He was a man of remarkable energy and untiring activity. Early in life he engaged in the milk business in a small way. His unusual energy, and strict honesty won for him not only business success, but an enviable reputation and a host of friends. At one time when many creamery men of Detroit were under severe official criticism, his product was found several points above standard requirements.

His early religious training was in the German Lutheran Church. Forty-five years ago Mrs. Stricker entered into a very clear and definite experience of conversion, and united with the German Methodist Church. This gave our brother great distress and much fear for her spiritual wellbeing. On various occasions we have heard him relate the soul struggles he experienced for about a year before he finally surrendered to God and entered into the same glorious experience of sins forgiven and a soul set free.

and followed Mrs. Stricker into the fellowship of the same communion. About ten years later, in the loft of a barn under the ministrations of The Salvation Army, he entered into the perfect soul rest known by Methodists and others as "entire sanctification." And ever since he has been an unfailing witness to God's sanctifying power.

Later he united with the East Grand Boulevard Methodist Episcopal Church, and has been an honored member of the Official Board to the end of the race. He was a charter member of The Detroit Holiness Association, and as trustee and treasurer of the same he guarded carefully its financial interests. For a long term of years he has been a very active and honored member of The Board of Management of Simpson Park Camp Meeting Association.

The genuineness of his Christian experience was attested by his love for the things of God. How he did love God's word! It could be truthfully said of him, "His delight is in the law of the Lord, and in his law doth meditate day and night." He loved God's house. He was always "glad when they said unto him, let us go unto the house of the Lord." He loved God's people. No other fraternity attracted him but the Brotherhood of The Disciples of Jesus. But his greatest joy was when he heard the cry of the penitent seeking for mercy, and the shout of victory when a seeking soul touched the "mercy seat" and the shackles of sin broke, and a soul was born into the household of God. These are the unfailing characteristics of a true Christian.

But I think the things that speak most loudly of the sterling qualities of this good man and his faithful companion are the fruits of their union, and of their Christian family life. It is no small thing to have given to the world a minister of the Gospel and a missionary to carry the lamp of life to benighted souls, but out from this home have gone Rev. Edwin W. Stricker, of Tucson, Ariz., and Miss Annie E. Stricker, of Sao Paulo, Brazil. Then this same home has given two sons who are physicians are ministering to the physical needs of the sick and suffering, Dr. F. D. Stricker, of Portland, Oregon, and Dr. Henry D. Stricker, of Detroit. Then Miss Helen Stricker a Christian teacher in the public schools of Detroit has for a number of years been making her contribution to the intellectual development of the young. And last, but by no means least, there are the two daughters, Mrs. Ida Weber of Detroit, and Mrs. Louise Lindow of Cleveland, Ohio, Christian mothers seeking to train their children for Christian life and service. This family has surely been left a glorious heritage—far above gold and silver or vast estates. How much of Divine grace they will need to enable them to live up to such a standard.

It surely has been good for us who have known Bro. Stricker to have had the privilege of service and fellowship with him. His last days were greatly cheered by visits with all his children except Miss Annie in South America. He was able to be about the house till the very last, when about ten P. M. Saturday, Jan. 8, he heard the call to come up higher. He did not resist the messenger who came for him. There was no struggle at the last. He had just taken his bath and was partly dressed when the family heard a fall in the bath room and all was over.

Funeral services were held at the residence, 3468 Field Ave., Detroit, on Tuesday, Jan. 11. The service was in charge of his pastor, Rev. W. C. S. Pellowe, who brought a fitting message and paid fine tribute to the splendid Christian character of Bro. Stricker. Other ministers who took part were Rev. James Chapman, pastor of Woodmere Methodist Church, Rev. C. W. Butler, of Cleveland, Ohio, and Rev. W. B. Weaver, pastor of Bethlehem Church. All expressed great appreciation of the excellent worth of this worthy servant of God.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

REV. O. G. MINGLEDORFF, D.D.

Lesson VII.—March 20, 1927.

Subject.—The Christian's hope.
John 15:1-3; 2 Cor. 5:1-10; 1 John 3:2, 3.

Golden Text.—In my Father's house are many mansions: if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you. John 14:2.

Times.—Part one, A. D. 30; part two, about A. D. 57; part three, near the end of the first century.

Places.—Part one, Jerusalem; part two, Philippi; part three, probably Ephesus.

Introduction.—Our lesson centers in the Christian's hope; but a multiplicity of things in the different parts of the lesson point to that hope; so that one finds it no easy task to gather all these flowers, and form them into a tasty bouquet. We shall have to gather some from John's garden and some from Paul's; but they transplanted them all from the paradise of God; wherefore they are not only beautiful, but rich in heavenly fragrance; and there is something in their odors, that is very healing to troubled hearts. Breathe freely and deeply, and they will do you good.

Jesus spoke the words quoted from John 15:1-3, the night before his crucifixion, which makes them doubly tender and sweet to us. They were among the last things spoken to his troubled disciples on that dark and trying night. Had a mere man been going to a cross the next day, such words would have sounded superhuman when falling from his lips; but they are perfectly natural from the lips of the God-man. They were spoken not only for the comfort of the eleven apostles with whom he was conversing, but for all his saints in all the ages.

Paul's part of the lesson is rich in consolation for the troubled, persecuted Christians down at Corinth, and for us who are coming on in these latter years. He makes death look small by bringing it into the light of heaven; and verily it does look small in the midst of such supernatural light. Ask some dear old saint who has tarried about the door-way that leads out of this world into that which is beyond, while the ineffable glory of the brightness of the face of Jesus Christ was shining all about him and all over him and all through him, what he thinks about Paul's words: maybe he can tell you something of their meaning to a soul down in the valley of death among blooming flowers and luscious fruits transplanted on this side of the river from the gardens of God on the other side, just to give passing saints an earnest of things on the other shore, so that they will not be overjoyed when they get there. But the apostle does not stop without a word of warning: The final Judgment is coming for all of us; wherefore be ready in that hour; for there is no escape.

Dear old John was nearly a hundred years old when he wrote the blessed words that close our lesson. God had pulled back the veil that hides the eternal world from ours; and John had seen the imperishable things that await the faithful. Just commit his immortal words to memory till we come to our comments on the lesson.

Comments on the Lesson.

1. Let not your heart be troubled. —Those were strange words in such an hour. They would have been meaningless, had he not added: "Ye believe in God, believe also in me." Real living faith in God settles all our troubles.

2. In my Father's house are many mansions.—House here must stand for place of abode; for mansions themselves are houses. The language seems to be figurative. Christ is emphatic in his statement, and declares: "If it were not so, I would have told you." It is blessed to know that he is preparing a place for us in his Father's house.

3. But we have his promise in this verse that when he has finished preparing the place, he will come again, and receive us to himself, that we may be with him in his glory. What a blessed promise to troubled hearts.

Suppose now that we take up the third part of the lesson, and finish with John before taking up the selection from Paul.

2. Beloved, now are we the sons of God.—I see no reason why this should have been translated "sons of God." The word used in the Greek text is tekna, plural of teknon, and means children of both sexes. To be a child of God is to have high standing among intelligent beings. It doth not yet appear what we shall be.—Were our heavenly standing to be revealed now, we could not comprehend it any more than a first grade pupil could understand geometry. God is withholding the revelation till we are able to understand it. When he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is.—Perhaps no two of us have the same understanding of this statement, because no two of us have the same conception of Jesus. "We shall be like him" is the big part of it. Seeing him as he is, is simply the result of being like him.

3. Every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as he is pure.—Hope in him, in Jesus Christ. The standard is so high that it almost makes one dizzy to think about it; but it is not too high, since it is the only standard that will admit a soul into heaven. HOLINESS!!

Now we shall go back and see what Paul has to say to the Corinthians.

1. For we know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, an house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens.—We shall not quote the three following verses, but shall use this one as a sort of introduction to them. The four verses are full of mystery. If you have Clarke's commentary, read in full what he has to say in commenting on them. He regards them from a Jewish standpoint, supposing that the apostle is referring to the old wilderness tabernacle which could be dissolved, or taken to pieces at will, and then could be rebuilt again. This he would have to represent our bodies. The ark of covenant, however, remained intact and was covered by its own veil, representing the soul after the dissolution of the body in death. The Jews believed that the soul had some sort of veil or covering between the death of the body and its resurrection. The passage has been the ground of much controversy, and some have made shipwreck of themselves in their exegesis of it. Maybe it will all be clear some day. Till then we can wait, spending our time on things that are not above us.

5. Hath given unto us the earnest of his Spirit.—Old time real estate dealers understood that. When they sold a man a piece of land they gave him a bagful of the soil as a warrant that when he paid the balance of the stipulated price, he should have his good things to come.

Take now verses 6 to 9 inclusive. Paul is drawing a contrast between the two states of the soul. In the one we are at home in the body: in the other, we are out of the body, but present with the Lord. Paul's conclusion is that the latter state is preferable. What joy, what rest, what glory there is in being safely housed in heaven. "A religion that does not make one homesick for heaven is hardly worth having." The true Christian is willing to remain in this world and labor as long as God sees best; but the home-going day should be the happiest day of all his life. Then he will see the King in his beauty, and be safe forever.

10. We must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ.—No matter what may be our own notions, or our own wishes, in that regard, we must be there. There will be no chance to hide or to dodge. But some one may say: "I am not ready." No matter about that; when the hour arrives we shall all be there. That every one may receive the things done in his body, according to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad.—It will not be the purpose of the final judgment to find out where any one must spend eternity. That matter will be settled forever when we breathe our last breath. Belief or unbelief in Christ settles it. God will not take the responsibility; but we must. The judgment will fix rewards for saints and punishment for the wicked. We fix both our rewards and our punishments, whichever is to be given to us, as well as our everlasting destiny.

NOTICE.

To any one desiring a singing evangelist I would unhesitatingly recommend Prof. R. S. Adams, who has just assisted me. He is well equipped for choir directing and solo work. He goes into all the business houses, visiting and making friends, which helps the meetings. He has a pleasant personality, a good mixer and religious, which makes a good combination.

H. R. Tate.

CHAUNCEY, ILLINOIS.

As the weather has been so bad that I could not hold my meetings this winter, I would like to get in touch with some single man that can preach, sing, pray and run a Ford to help me in my meetings this spring and summer. I have several revivals to hold, and to keep my other work going is too much for one man. Let me hear from some one right away.

Chas. H. Campbell.

NOTICE!

Evangelist Roy L. Hollenback, of Cambridge City Ind., is conducting a series of revivals on Prince Edward Island from Feb. 20th to March 27th. Between April 1st and the middle of May, he could hold two or three meetings for pastors in the East, preferably Eastern Canada, New England, or New York. Pastors interested may address him at O'Leary, P. E. I., Canada.

Ministers Manual

A Study and Pulpit Guide for 1927

Edited by
REV. G. B. F. HALLOCK, D.D.

The Manual for 1926 created an insistent demand for a new volume each year. The 1927 Manual is better than the first one. As before it furnishes material for a complete program for the regular Church services of the entire year. In addition there are prayer meeting discussions, Christian Endeavor topics, and services for baptisms, marriages and funerals. Thousands of ministers testify to the constructive value of the Manual.

JESUS MY LORD IS THERE.

John W. Jasper.

When steep is the precipice that I must scale,
When howling the wind, and when rough is the gale,
Jesus my Lord is there.

When wild is the wave and tempestuous the deep,
His words will soon charm the wild billows to sleep—
Jesus my Lord is there.

When death's icy clutch on my heart I shall feel,
To waft my redeemed soul to infinite weal
Jesus my Lord is there!

OUR FATHER'S HAND IN DANGERS SEEN AND UNSEEN.

A company of students was going on a trip to play basket ball with students of three other schools; they were to be gone several days, the last day to be spent seeing the sights of Boston. They were to leave Boston by boat Saturday evening, arrive home on Sunday.

One of these boys did not believe in traveling on the Lord's day; he was leaving Friday evening intending to go from Boston to New York by bus. He phoned for his reservation, his seat was engaged and he was to be there at 9:45. He was there a few minutes ahead of time, but his seat had been sold. Of course, he was disappointed, had to go back and take the train, which was much more expensive; but after the bus had traveled a few miles there was an accident, a collision; one killed and eleven seriously injured. Don't you think that boy is praising his heavenly Father for his protective care in dangers seen and unseen? Does it not pay to be true to the Lord?

Mrs. C. C. Shipp.

BURLINGTON, NEW JERSEY.

If you have room in The Herald I hope you will give it to these few words. I want to say that nobody knows what they are missing until they read The Herald; it is just like breakfast, dinner and supper to me. I am one preacher that is not afraid to tell the unsaved where they will go if they fail to serve King Jesus. We need more preachers that will do as Jesus told everybody to do, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." Let us not fail to preach the gospel. My family and I travel together and the Lord has given us 2,899 souls and we expect more, for it pays to preach the gospel and not try to have entertainments Sunday nights instead of the gospel, as lots of the churches are doing. Rev. William P. Young.

SERIOUS REFLECTIONS.

To an observing, thoughtful mind conditions at the present time are grave indeed. We are living in an age of turmoil. This old world seems to be shaken from center to circumference; not only a new year but a new world, seemingly, has been ushered in also. Why this reckless, seething mass of humanity seeking something to satisfy? Is it possible that Christian people are asleep at the switch while countless thousands are plunging over that unfathomable abyss into the blackness of darkness. Something must be done to stay this slaughter of human souls. Dr. Morrison said, "Is there a remedy for these conditions? Is there balm in Gilead? The remedy will not be found in the election of a President or by a change of administration at the Capital of our Nation. The only power that can turn the tide of wickedness, bring salvation power back to the church, faith back to the schools, purity and happiness back to the home is infinitely higher than anything human. We must have God in his divine authority, we must have Jesus in his compassionate love, we must have the Holy Ghost in his cleansing and empowering for service."

No truer words ever fell from the lips of mortal man. Oh, for more ministers of the gospel like Bro. Morrison, who is not afraid to thunder forth from the pulpit and the press in words that cannot be misunderstood—"Ye must be born again."

Christian men and women everywhere, let us put on the whole armor of God. The night is far spent, the day is at hand. I can hear a voice in the distance coming nearer, and nearer. "Oh Jerusalem, Jerusalem, how often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not."

"Time is now fleeting, the moments are passing, Passing from you and from me; Shadows are gathering, Jesus is coming, Coming for you and for me."

Mrs. Florilla Pinney.

HOME MISSIONARY OUTLOOK OF THE CHICAGO CENTRAL DISTRICT.

We are now planning to put on the most aggressive Home Missionary Campaign in the history of the Chicago Central District. In the last three years, we have organized about sixty churches. We have a net increase in church property of $250,000.00, and are paying approximately $30,000 more for pastors' salaries than three years ago, and last year we raised on the District more than $100,000 for all purposes than we did four years ago. We take courage in the battle. We have only just touched the edges of the 11,000,000 people in our great territory of the state of Illinois and the city of Chicago.

We are hoping to put on Campaigns in many of the following cities: Metropolis, Harrisburg, Olney, Mattoon, Robinson, Kankakee, Gibson City, Herrin, Marion, Jacksonville, Centralia, Hillsboro, Kampsville, Rushville, Lewiston, Monmouth, Princeton, Dixon, DeKalb, Woodstock, Waukagen, Elmhurst, and Newton. Also in Wisconsin, we have the following places slated to enter: Beloit, Milwaukee, Portage, Fondulac, Oshkosh, Neenah, Wausan, Wisconsin Rapids, Green Bay, Rhinelander, Phillips, Ladysmith, Hurley, Superior, Eau Claire, Chippewa, Flasco, LaCross.

Anyone who may live in these cities and have friends living in them will you please address me at Danville, Ill. Will you help me to get in touch with these cities in Wisconsin?

We are contemplating buying seven new tents this year. We have between ten and fifteen of all grades and kinds already. We have an army of workers begging us to go to work. We believe that God is calling the Church of the Nazarene to give the saving gospel to the masses in the twentieth century and so far as I am personally concerned I am going to work at the job.

Anyone interested in going out and pouring out their lives and sacrificing to preach old-fashioned holiness that will cause people to go the straight and narrow way, may write us at Danville, Ill., general delivery.

E. O. Chalfant.

DO YOU THINK SO?

A short time ago a prominent evangelist said to me, "Johnson, we ought to have The Pentecostal Herald put in the libraries of the various cities of this country." "Yes," I said, "but we cannot afford to send them." "But you make an appeal in The Herald, and ask the people of different cities to send in subscriptions for their libraries," he said.

He thinks, and I think, that The Herald ought to be in every public library in the U. S. Do you think so? I'll tell you what we shall do. If you would like for this good holiness paper to be where the public can read it, if you will send us $1.00 with the address of your library, we shall send it there for a year. This is a reduction of fifty cents on the yearly subscription.

But you say, "We cannot afford to do that." Well, let me remind you that the Russellites do; and the Christian Scientists and Mormons do; yea, more than that, they put their literature in the railroad stations. What do ye more than they? The Herald ought to be more widely read. I think so; you think so; let's get together and make it so. Z. T. Johnson.

Deadly Fallacies

BY DR. G. W. RIDOUT

of Asbury College.

Dr. Ridout has made a special study of these heresies and tells plainly, frankly, convincingly the facts about these modern delusions.

Spiritualism

Its Perils Exposed. Its Deceptions Denounced. Its Denials of the Truth. Its Three Black Is's—Infidelity, Insanity, Immorality. Its Deadly Allurements.

Russellism

A Counterfeit of Christianity. Its "No Hellism" is a cloak for outrageous doctrines. Perversion of Scriptures. Hideous Perversion of New Testament. Claims Christ came 1874.

Spiritual Gifts and Spurious Tongues

Various Kinds of Gifts. Tongues not Essential to Salvation. Tongues and Visions in John Wesley's Day. Tongues Compared to Revelation. Tongues and Misinterpretation. Tongues and Confusion. Tongues and Fanaticism.

Mormonism Under the X-Ray

Joe Smith and his Fake Bible. His Pretended Revelations. Mormonism and Its Fallacious Teachings. Its Peepstone. Its False Teachings—About Sufficiency and Authority of the Bible. About Jesus Christ. About the Holy Spirit. About Salvation.

Seventh Day Adventism

The absurd things it teaches aside from the Sabbath question. Do you know that it teaches—Annihilation of the wicked? Atonement is unfinished? Soul sleeping? Devil is the scapegoat to bear away our sins? Second Coming (first phase of it) was 1844?

Fanaticism

What Harm It Has Done. Puts the Most Fanciful and Absurd Construction on Scripture. Fanaticism is Religion Caricatured. Fanaticism is a Child of False Zeal. Fanaticism is Loveless Light and Malign Emotions.

THE POWER OF TESTIMONY.

By The Editor.

IT should be remembered that the Apostle Paul was called to preach and witness. He was not only to set forth the deity of Christ, the atonement he had made for sin, and the plan of salvation offered in the Gospels, but he was to witness that he personally had demonstrated the power of this Gospel to save and the glorious fact that Jesus Christ had arisen from the dead and had appeared unto him.

* * * *

Every true witness for the Lord Jesus, and what he can do for a lost sinner, is a good preacher. He may not have made an exhaustive study of theology. He may not have been ordained with the laying on of hands. He may not be in a pulpit, nevertheless, his witness is good, saving Gospel. This preacher may be down deep in a mine, lying on his side under the rocks digging out coal and, while he eats his lunch, he may talk to his fellow laborers of what the Lord has done for him and bring his fellows to repentance and saving faith. He may be a soldier on the march alongside his comrade or waiting in the trench for the command to go over the top; he may meekly tell of the assurance of salvation in his soul and, in the telling, he may have preached a sermon that proves the power of God unto salvation to his fellow soldier. He is working in the foundry, at the forge, at the cabinet-maker's bench. He is on a train shoveling coal into the engine or punching tickets for the passengers. He has within himself the blessed consciousness of sins forgiven and sweet communion with his Lord. He speaks to his fellows; his voice is gentle, his face is shining. There is compassion and solicitude beaming in his eyes. He wins a soul. He is a preacher of the Gospel.

* * * *

"Ye are my witnesses," said Jesus to his disciples, and he says the same to all of his disciples in all ages. Blessed are they who can tell their fellowbeings of the Christ who is mighty to save, of the salvation they have found, and of his readiness to receive all those who come to him in answer to that gracious promise that none who come will be cast out, but that they shall find rest to their souls. Sabbath days are too few and preachers are not enough to carry on the work of the Kingdom. God wants every Christian to be a preacher. Not necessarily a carefully prepared message, not a "firstly, secondly and thirdly," not a long-drawn-out discourse, but a testimony: "I have found Jesus. I am the lost sheep that you read about in the parable. I had wandered far away. The wild beasts of sin had torn and mangled me. There was no power left me to go or come. I was dead in trespasses and in sin. Jesus sought and found me; he bore me back to the fold of God upon the omnipotent shoulders of his power. He brought me into the folds of peace and rest. He had to suffer. He spilt his blood, but he rescued me from the lions of sin that would have rent me to

SPEAKING OF GOOD NEWS.

We frequently receive letters of this character: "The Pentecostal Herald has been coming to me for several months. I suppose some friend of mine subscribed for the paper for me. I greatly appreciate the kindness of this friend; the paper has proven a real blessing to me. I thoroughly approve of the stand you take in defense of the Bible and a genuine religious experience and life of true consecration. I would not be willing to do without the paper, and I want you to let me know when my time expires so I can renew my subscription. If you know who sent me the paper, please extend to them my thanks.

"Faithfully yours,

"A. B. Blank."

We have received enough letters of this character to make a good-sized booklet. Many ministers are now constant readers of The Herald and renew their subscriptions promptly to whom the paper was sent by some friend. You have a young pastor, or perhaps an elder one, or you know of some young minister in whom you are interested; send him The Pentecostal Herald for one year at the reduced price of one dollar. No doubt it will be a good investment.

death." Such testimony is inspiring. Men will listen to it. They will think about it. The Holy Ghost will bless it. The inspired writer tells us, "The entrance of thy Word giveth light," and so it is with the testimony of a good witness.

* * * *

Once there stood up in a meeting a broad-shouldered, strong man and with clear voice and emotional emphasis, he said, "I was a great sinner. I was far out on the ocean of rebellion against God. The tempest was sweeping me to doom. I was like a ship with her masts splintered by the lightnings, her sides beaten in by the icebergs, her rudder broken, her sails torn to rags by the wind. It took a master hand to bring me into port, but a Master came to me. He turned the prow of my sinking ship toward the ports of peace. He brought me safely past the reefs and into the haven of rest. Jesus was the Pilot who rescued me. I stand here with my sins all washed away through the atoning merit of his blood to say to all sinners, however far you have gone, or deeply you may have fallen, that Jesus is more than equal to the situation. It's easy for him to lift the mountains of your guilt off of your prostrated and crushed souls. It's easy for him to heal your wounds and bring you peace and rest. I would that you all might find in him what I have found. Repent, believe and learn for yourselves that Jesus is mighty to save." The testimony thrilled the audience. The people wept and sinners hastened up the aisle, fell at the altar, prayed through to victory and went out rejoicing in Jesus. There must be a life back of the testimony. The life to the testimony is like the bow to the arrow that speeds it to its mark. The Psalmist tells us that praise is comely in the upright. Those who would witness for the Master must be filled with the love and salvation of the Master.

Some of The Reasons Why The Doctrine of Entire Sanctification is Unpopular.

THE doctrine of entire sanctification, as taught by the Wesleys, the early Methodists, and down through the century and a half of Methodist history by many prominent and devout Methodists, and by what is known as the modern Holiness Movement, has always been an unpopular doctrine both with the unregenerated world and those ecclesiastical bodies that teach that sin must remain in God's children until death.

Sin is so tenacious, so persistent and so common, that a very large per cent of the population of any community is prone to believe that it is impossible to live without sinning, and the idea of holiness of heart and life appears to them to be abhorrent fanaticism.

I suppose it will be reasonable to say that at bottom of all this is the fact that the carnal mind is, in the very nature of things, at enmity against God. The Apostle Paul tells us, "The natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God: for they are foolishness unto him: neither can he know them because they are spiritually discerned." Depraved human nature could hardly be expected to be friendly to the doctrine of holiness. The unregenerated will not be found hungering and thirsting after righteousness. Those in rebellion against God will certainly have no desire to be cleansed from sin and enjoy the blessedness that Jesus Christ says belongs to the pure in heart.

No one will deny but that there has been a very general departure from the doctrinal teaching of entire sanctification in Methodism, and we now have a spirit and propaganda that is radically opposed to the fundamental truths underlying this great Bible doctrine and gracious Christian experience.

In the first place, the preacher of entire sanctification insists that all human beings are naturally depraved, carnally minded, that man is fallen, that he has a corrupt and sinful nature. This teaching is quite repulsive to a large element of religious teachers, who are very boldly and aggressively teaching that there is no such thing as natural depravity. They tell you that children are born in a state of moral purity; that they do not need to experience regeneration, much less sanctification; that being born pure they should have good environment and careful training; by and by they should be brought into the church and introduced into service, having been taught and established in the belief that they are Christians.

The teacher of the old Bible, Methodist doctrine of entire sanctification insists that Asbury Theological Seminary---School of the Prophets.

Rev. G. W. Ridout, D.D., Corresponding Editor.

PERHAPS one of the most important decisions Dr. Morrison ever made in his remarkable career as preacher-educator, was when in 1923 he finally resolved to put in connection with Asbury College, a definite, clear-cut, conservative Evangelical School of Theology, known now as "Asbury Theological Seminary."

We remember the things which led up to this decision. When Dr. Morrison invited the writer to a place on the faculty of Asbury College to take the chair of Systematic Theology we were face to face with the fact that our students in Theology after graduating from college had to go elsewhere for their B.D. work. The modernistic theological seminaries were offering attractive inducements to our students, and we knew if we did not do something to give our Divinity students their complete theological course under our own roof they would be going to schools where they would be subjected to the most perilous dangers to their faith and to their after ministry.

The whole matter was thoroughly gone into and finally Dr. Morrison called together in his office, Dr. Larabee, Dr. Harrison, Professor Maxey, Professor Hawkins, Professor Reynolds and the writer, and a plan and prospectus for a Theological School was fully discussed until a decision was reached and Dr. Morrison said with emphasis, "Let us have it and begin with the Fall opening." Thus, in 1923, the Asbury Theological Seminary opened its doors and started upon its history with Dr. H. C. Morrison, Pres.; Rev. F. H. Larabee, Dean and Professor of Greek; Rev. F. P. Morris, Systematic Theology; Rev. W. E. Harrison, Biblical Theology, Rev. G. W. Ridout, Practical Theology and Evangelism; Rev. W. R. Reynolds, Church History.

PURPOSES OF THE THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY.

Asbury Theological Seminary regards it fundamental to maintain in all its teachings, the doctrines of the faith which have come down to us from the Apostles and the Fathers, the faith that has been tested through the ages, the faith that gave birth to the Reformation and that in the latter days brought on that great evangelical revival in the days of John Wesley. All our teachings range around the Bible as the inspired word of God; around the Cross as the great center of redemption's plan; around Jesus Christ as the incarnate Son of God who died, the just for the unjust, that he might bring us unto God. In these days of tragic unbelief we must build a School of Theology at Asbury where divinity students will grow in faith and grace as well as in intellectual attainments, and where they can acquire an adequate theological training consistent with a sound gospel faith.

Asbury Seminary stands among the theological seminaries of our country as a school distinctly aggressive, but at the same time without an apology for the faith of our fathers—the faith held by Paul the Apostle, John the Divine, Augustine and Athanasius, Luther the reformer, Wesley the Methodist.

Asbury stands for the Arminian-Wesleyan faith, which believes in the Trinity, in divine revelation, in the inspired Scriptures, the fall of man, the divine incarnation, the divine Christ, the atonement for sin, pardon, regeneration and sanctification by faith, the second coming of Christ, the judgment, heaven and hell.

The purpose of the founders of this Theological Seminary is to have associated with Asbury College a theological seminary where students for the ministry and Christian work generally, may secure their preparation in divinity in strict accord with Bible orthodoxy and the historic faith of the Christian

Stands for

The Historic Christian Faith.
The whole Bible for the whole World.
The Faith once for all delivered to the saints.
The Bible as a Special Divine Revelation.
The Evangelical Faith as against Modernism.

For Christian Education consistent with sound Orthodox Theology and the "Old Paths." Jer. 6:16.

The Divine Afflatus.

"Let the warm and living spirit of Christianity shed its magic breath upon the youthful minds that crowd those halls of learning; then shall hope beam over them in the light of hallowed prophecy, and the revolution of Time's wheels shall evolve the destiny of each in the brightness of knowledge and virtue. Be it our labor to plant this school in the shadows of the Eternal Throne, draw over it the shield of Omnipotence and protect its interests with the thunder that issues from the thick darkness in which Jehovah dwells.

"Talk ye of Pierian springs and Castalian founts and Arcadian groves; give me the Testament of Jesus, the Inspiration of the Spirit, the Baptism of the Holy Spirit! Let others seek the accomplishment of classic lore, wander amid the ruins of antiquity, learn the lessons of wisdom from grey chronicles of departed times, sit wrapt in poetic mood as the evening looks down upon the lone and mighty wild over whose bosom, wide and waste, lie scattered the molding relics of cities that have crumbled into tombs; be it ours to lead our students amid the gardens of God, and point them to the glories of the great hereafter. Let others spend their millions to rear marble monuments within whose capacious dimensions the fearful experiment is to be made of raising men without religion; but on this Institution may there rest forever the dew of Zion, and the smile of God."

church. Never was there a louder call for a school of theology which will hold uncompromisingly true to the faith of the fathers and the fundamental doctrines of historic Christianity. Our Seminary will have as its constant and unwavering purpose to cultivate both scholarship and piety, and to provide a place where Christian students may pursue their studies in such a way as to increase their faith in God, in his Word, and in the supernatural, and where they shall become so rooted and grounded in the "Most Holy Faith" that when they leave us they will ever stand firm as faithful preachers of a whole gospel, courageous defenders of the faith, and workers that need not be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth.

It has been well said "That the aim of all theological investigation is to give knowledge of God, and man's origin and destiny. Such knowledge comes in part by reason—natural theology, but these are inadequate—they must be augmented by Revelation." The perils which have invaded the theological realm in the past several decades and which are becoming more and more acute in our age are due almost entirely to the tendency to make intellect the sole arbiter in things theological. It was a wise saying of Luther, "Pectus facit theologum"—the heart makes the theologian. Too much theological training is done today in schools where there is no heart passion and no soul culture—everything runs to brain, and the next thing we know is brass. A lot of graduates from the Modernistic Theological Seminary have no gospel message and their preaching is as lifeless and powerless as sounding brass! Then on the other hand we have theological professors who become so arrogant and intoxicated with intellectualism that they have brass enough to assert the most monstrous and the most skeptical things in the name of Religion so called. Such a thing as reverence they are destitute of. Dr. Thomas, of England, has well said: "The processes of intellect have their sphere, but logic is very fallible and should be correspondingly humble. When it presumes to modify the message of God to men according to its own little measurements; when it dares to limit the manner of God's working, whether in ages past or present; when it demands that the limits of its own comprehension shall be the limits of our faith; why then we say: "In the name of Christ, cease your folly, and return to your appointed tasks. This is the Kingdom of the Spirit; and except ye become as little children ye cannot enter here!"

When Robertson Smith, that great Hebrew scholar, of Aberdeen, met his students in the class-room he generally put into all his prayers this petition: "May we be mighty in the Scriptures." To be mighty in the Scriptures means reverence, faith, humbleness, devoutness, having the Spirit as well as the letter. This is the province of the Theological School—to produce scholarly men and saintly who will be mighty in the Scriptures through the power of the Spirit of the Lord.

Asbury Theological Seminary came into existence in answer to the urgent call for a modern return to orthodoxy.

The Reformation was a Rediscovery of orthodoxy. Luther originated no new doctrine but he exposed the atrocious errors of Catholicism and cleansed away the rubbish of sacerdotalism and ecclesiasticism which had hid the precious truths of Redemption and brought forth again the great and glorious doctrine of justification by faith.

The Wesleyan Revival was a return of orthodoxy. Such a great man as Mr. Gladstone said of the Evangelical Revival under the Wesleys that "It aimed at bringing back on a large scale and by an aggressive movement, the cross, and all that the cross essentially implies." John Wesley swept away the accumulated rubbish of centuries which had hidden in the established church the great doctrines of grace and he brought forth to the multitude the great truth of the witness of the Spirit and the yet more glorious truth of Christian Perfection.

Asbury Theological Seminary is guarded in its theology and teachings by the fact that it is identified with, and is a part of, one of the outstanding Holiness Schools of the Nation. Holiness and Orthodoxy always go together. Dr. Buckley, writing in the early theological schools in Methodism, said:

"So strong were the fears of the fathers that theological seminaries would breed heresy and undermine the vitals of Methodism, knowing how faculties in Europe and America had persuaded trustees and had radically changed the doctrines taught, and how difficult it was to silence such teachers, they would not give their consent to their establishment without special guarantees against heresy being devised. Hence in the 1856 General Conference, the Report on Biblical Institutes had this to say:

"The Committee on Education have had under consideration the subject of biblical institutes and beg leave to report in relation thereto the following resolutions:

"1. That this General Conference rejects all institutional means for ministerial education which assume the sufficiency of merely educational qualifications for the sacred office, and most strenuously require that no candidate for that office be admitted to our biblical institutes and departments for ministerial training without a certificate from the Quarterly or Annual Conference of its belief that he is divinely called to the ministry.

"2. That the General Conference looks with approval on those biblical departments which are in connection with our colleges, and which may hereafter be established in such connection and upon our biblical institutes which now do, and hereafter may, exist separately for the education of such candidates: provided always that both these classes of ministerial institutions be encompassed with guards sufficient to protect them from heresy in doctrine and error in discipline."

They then provided that all instruction shall harmonize with the doctrines and discipline of Methodism.

Let it be remembered that Asbury Theological Seminary must accord in its teachings with the standards of a distinctly out-and-out holiness school. Its President, Dr. Morrison, is known not only Nation wide but world-wide for his stalwart unswerving devotion to holiness as a doctrine and a cause, and all its Professors are men whose lives have been devoted to holiness doctrines and promotion.

And now what shall be our appeal to the Holiness people?

1. Give us your support and sympathy. Send us your sons and daughters that we may train them for the Lord's work and send them back to you not only educated but on fire for God. We believe in revivals and pentecosts in our Theological Seminary.

2. Give us your Prayers. Our earnest request is that you pray for us. Our task is a great one, our work hard, our responsibilities to the hundreds of young men and women who come to us are tremendous. We need the prayers of the godly that we may be true to the heavenly vision.

3. Give us your financial support. If we could secure $50,000 endowments for a Chair of Systematic Theology, a Chair of Practical Theology and Evangelism, a Chair in Bible, a Chair in Christian Missions, what a blessing it would be to us! I believe there will be several reading this article who could endow one of those chairs very easily. What a splendid place to put $50,000 that would be yielding interest year by year by some man of God pouring out from that chair Theology, Bible, Evangelism, Missions, etc., for years to come!

This is written with the hope and prayer that the holiness people of America will stand by this the only distinctively out-and-out Theological Seminary in the Movement. Stand by Dr. Morrison, stand by the men of God who teach in its halls!

THE GIFT OF SUFFERING.

Rev. B. F. Knapp, M. A., B. D.

THAT is what Paul calls it. He is writing to his best beloved church—the one at Philippi. It is of these converts that he exults, "I thank my God upon every remembrance of you, always in every prayer of mine for you all making request with joy." The key word of the whole letter, used in some form fourteen times, is "joy!" And yet, strangely enough, he is himself speaking from a prison, "My bonds in Christ are manifest in all Cæsar's Court," and he is speaking to those "having the same conflict which ye saw in me," and his epistle is to be delivered into the hands of the believers by Epaphroditus who has just been sick "nigh unto death not regarding his life to supply your lack of service toward me." Having these facts in mind, listen now as he speaks of this strange "gift," "For unto you it is given on behalf of Christ...to suffer for his sake."

"Covet earnestly the best gifts," is a Divine command. These in order are listed (1 Cor. 12) as first, apostles, secondarily prophets, thirdly teachers, etc., etc. But at the background of each such outstanding personality is this somber gift of suffering. Sacred history records in unmistakable narratives that have thrilled and inspired records in all ages the fact that the apostles and the prophets have been the greatest sufferers of all time starting with "Consider Jesus Christ the Apostle...of our profession." "For I think," says Paul, "God hath set forth us the apostles last, as it were appointed to death...even unto this present hour we both hunger and thirst and are naked, and are buffeted, and have no certain dwelling-place...we are made as the filth of the world, and are the offscouring of all things." We have only to remember the burning of Savonarola and John Huss, the trials of Martin Luther, the imprisonment in filthy jails of George Fox, the mob-attacks upon John Wesley, to know that to be first in leadership means to be first in suffering.

Since suffering is the gift of God it might seem strange that modern Christians would avoid it. But we are here at odds with an age that is decidedly averse to the least feeling of pain or annoyance. Dr. Bernard J. Bell writes in the January Atlantic:

"As for comfort, our twentieth century people are soothingly immersed in it. Ours is a steam-heated, well-lighted, cunningly upholstered, warm-bathed era. With almost incredible ingenuity we ward off the bumps, plane the sharp corners, escalate the heights. From twilight-sleep birth, to narcotized death, we insist upon ease."

Accentuating the same facts, Reinhold Niebuhr thus addressed a recent Conference in Milwaukee:

"We worship our bodies; we sublimate, we feed them; we pillow them in luxury. Human ingenuity is exhausting every resource to provide new physical comforts."

If men who make no pretensions to full salvation thus accurately gauge the present world trend, certainly those whose eyes are enlightened by the Holy Spirit must be increasingly cautious of compromise, especially at this point, of our joy in suffering for Christ's sake. God's gifts are never to be despised or omitted from the believer's treasures. They are always in some points at variance with the present world order. God uses no static and programed method of producing Christian character. His grace is the same, but every soul has a different story to tell of Divine guidance and Divine glory. The gift of suffering is as much a part of his plan as the gift of an uttermost salvation.

The gift of suffering is the gift of vision. Our natural eyes are like unground lenses for a telescope. We can only see a little way with them. But when we are put on the wheel of adverse circumstances or a grinding trial bears down heavily upon us, the vision of our own need, of unlimited grace and of human possibility, is increased to an infinite perspective. A Christian man had an only boy, who was of an unusually charming and loyal disposition and a beautiful follower of Jesus. The lad was compelled to undergo an operation which seemed to be successful. The father felt compelled to leave a few days later on an important though not lengthy journey. The boy was perfectly satisfied for his father to go and kissed him goodbye with a light heart. Four days later the elder man returned and at once telephoned to the hospital for news about his son. Like a bolt from the blue came back the answer, "He is dead." "A spasm of pain swept over the father's face as he uttered these words, and uncovered the agony of his soul after a lapse of six years. But a new light was in his eyes, and a new joy in his voice as he told how he had found the blessed will of God for his life and what unspeakable joy he had found in doing that precious will."

The gift of suffering is the gift of value. With God there is no waste. "Conservation of energy," is a spiritual as well as a physical law. Destructive as well as negative forces are made to work in his plan. Not only the "foolish" and the "weak" things of the world hath God chosen, but the "base things" and "things which are despised to bring to naught the things that are." One of the most famous and successful of our evangelists was recently heard to say, "For many years now I have been thanking God for one permanent and continual though heart-breaking trial that has been my lot for more than a generation; and I say to him, 'I do not ask Thee to remove this trial on my account for it has been and now is the greatest blessing that Thou hast ever given me.'" To a few who know the actual facts, it is no less than a miracle of divine grace that this man has not long ago broken under the burden that has been his to carry all through the years. Yet merely not to break under it is one thing while to mount upon it, not as some past event in retrospect, but as the living daily tragedy which it is—such a victory makes us understand the content of Paul's repeated "joy" in Philippians as no dictionary or lexicon could possibly give it to us.

The gift of suffering puts a new valuation upon many things and gives peculiar and otherwise unattainable sympathy and understanding for those in distress so that to comfort others becomes a source of rejoicing rather than an irksome duty. "And whether we be afflicted, it is for your consolation and salvation...Blessed be...the God of all comfort who comforteth us in all our tribulations that we may be able to comfort them which are in any trouble by the comfort wherewith we ourselves are comforted of God." The uncut diamond is little more than any other piece of quartz save in its possibilities. If it is genuine and without flaw, the diamond cutter will take almost unlimited pains to grind and polish until every one of its facets flashes back the glory of the sun and will shine through the darkest night. The glory of the diamond is in giving back what it has gained. Uncut and unpolished it might be good enough for gravel in the streets, but when it has been tried, it becomes fit to add lustre and renown to the grandest courts of earth. Its value depends directly upon the way it has stood the test. And our value to God and the world is to be measured in terms of suffering and of the joy that was produced from it.

The gift of suffering is "for his sake." That alone would make it bearable. If nothing of permanent perfection or Christ-like character were to be thus gained, if no increase of influence and power to heal other broken hearts could be thus achieved, the gift of suffering would still be gladly acceptable to the Bride of Christ "for His sake." It is told of a young Englishman that he went out to the Australian gold fields to seek for a fortune, first plighting his troth with a lovely girl in his native village. His labors were successful and soon he was able to send his beloved a real gold nugget as a souvenir of his findings. But later he invested in an ill-fated enterprise that swallowed up all his savings. In a moment of discouragement he wrote releasing the young lady from her engagement. Months passed by and already he regretted his hasty letter, for once more fortune smiled upon him. What was his joy one day to receive an enclosure of a solid gold ring made from the very nugget that he had sent his sweetheart for a present. On the inside was engraved these words, few but how precious: "Entreat me not to leave thee."

"IT IS FINISHED."

Rev. G. E. Shaffer.

"He said it is finished and gave up the ghost."—John 19:30.

THESE are days when more dependence is being placed in the arm of flesh than ever before. Many are they who are being deluded through false doctrine and false teaching. Schools of modern thought are sending out into the world atheists, false teachers, false prophets and ungodly men, who are creeping into the pulpit, and from behind the sacred desk are "turning the grace of our God into lasciviousness"; perverting the word of truth to their own damnation. We have in this day and age, organizations with large memberships that are blinded to the real vital truths of the Scriptures concerning spiritual things, and "by whom the way of truth is being evil spoken of." In many instances, the house of God has been made a "house of merchandise," through competition with the business world in serving meals in the churches, having contests on bowling alleys that have been installed on the pretext that they will "attract the young folks and hold them in the church." The angel Gabriel could not hold the majority of church members of the present day church organization, because they have had no change of heart. Talk to them about the "new birth," "witness of the Spirit," etc., and they will look at you in astonishment. Get the young folk thoroughly saved and sanctified and our leaders will not have to resort to the things of the world to hold their flock together and conserve their membership.

The sin question is winked at, the second coming of our Lord is being ridiculed, and holiness and divine healing are outlawed in many a pulpit today; but, beloved, Satan is still the same; he has not changed; he is still as persistent in his efforts to deceive as he was in the Garden of Eden; death is just as real now as the day when God spoke to Adam and Eve the words: "In the day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die." Sin has all the sting it ever had since the fall of Adam; yet men and women play with it in these last days to their own peril.

The words of our text: "It is finished," were spoken by our Lord while hanging on the Cross, and through these words Jesus proclaimed to a lost and dying world that he had paid the debt and satisfied the law and that his work was "finished," as mentioned in his memorable prayer to the Father in the 17th chapter of John and the 4th verse, "I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do." Our eternal salvation was made complete in the death, burial and resurrection of Jesus Christ; he suffered death on the tree for every man. His precious blood was shed for our justification, "Much more then being now justified by his blood, we shall be saved from wrath through him." Romans 5:9. His precious blood was shed for our sanctification; "Wherefore Jesus also, that he might sanctify the people with his own blood, suffered without the gate. Let us go forth, therefore, unto him without the camp, bearing his reproach." Heb. 13:12, 13.

St. Luke tells us in the 23rd chapter of his gospel and the 46th verse, that Jesus cried with a loud voice and said, "Father into thy hands I commend my spirit: and having said thus, he gave up the ghost." Reader, you will notice that it was when the cross held Jesus that he was fully yielded to the Father, so it is with every man and woman that lives the Christian life today; they are fully yielded to Jesus when self has been crucified and they can say with Paul, "I am crucified with Christ: nevertheless I live; yet not I, but Christ liveth in me: and the life which I now live in the flesh, I live by the faith of the Son of God, who loved me, and gave himself for me." Gal. 2:20. Many a person has rejected sanctification (or holiness) because they are not willing to bear the reproach of the name of Christ. Any believer who has not been sanctified is like a man who owns a house but does not possess it. To fully possess a house, one must occupy it. If I own a house without occupying it, the same may be a home of all that is sinful and evil.

As Christ finished the work which the Father gave him to do, and that work was the giving of his life's blood to obtain a full and complete salvation for a lost world, then every man and woman who would be worthy of the name Christian, must measure up to God's standard of holy living. No person can truly say he is saved unless he is completely saved, and full salvation consists of one being justified, sanctified and glorified. The Word plainly teaches us to "Follow peace with all men" and holiness, "without which no man shall see the Lord." That this holiness is obtainable in this life is clear from the exhortation for us to "follow peace with all men" now; also in the 1st Epistle of John 1:7, "But if we walk in the light as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin." You will note that the word "cleanseth" is in the present tense, which means Now, in this present life, this side of the grave. The two works of grace, justification and sanctification, must be experienced in this life, but as to glorification we know very little about, only we are to "hope to the end, for the grace that is to be brought unto you at the revelation of Jesus Christ." However, as in a building we have the foundation, superstructure and the roof, so in the spiritual life we have the spiritual house consisting of justification, the foundation, sanctification the superstructure, and glorification, the crowning glory; but glorification is not experienced until our fleshly bodies have been changed and "fashioned like unto his glorious body" at the second advent of our Lord. (See 1st Cor. 15:51, also Phil. 3:21).

Well! one says, "I do not believe we can be holy until death separates soul and body." Salvation is to live by, beloved. Death is spoken of in the Word of God as an enemy, and the last enemy that shall be destroyed, 1st Cor. 15:26; we are also told that the "wages of sin is death," Rom. 6:23, and "to be carnally minded is death." Rom. 9:6. Nothing is purified in death, nothing in the grave, nothing in heaven. Adam Clarke, the great Commentator said: "The living stones of the temple like those of the temple at Jerusalem are hewn, spared, and cut here in the church militant to prepare them to enter into the composition of the church triumphant." It is the work of the blessed Holy Spirit to prepare you and me in this present life for the glories of Heaven, and why under high heaven, would any person want to charge him with unfaithfulness in his duty. "God hath from the beginning chosen you to salvation through sanctification of the Spirit and belief of the truth." (See also John 14:16).

How often we have been asked the question, "Does not the first Epistle of John 1:8, tell us that 'If we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us.' Thousands of 'church sinners' are scanning the dear old book from cover to cover these days to find an excuse for their sins, and they are probably more familiar with some of the more isolated scriptures on sin than they are the Ten Commandments, or the Beatitudes. The words quoted above mean exactly just what they say. If an unconverted person says he has no sin to be cleansed from, or that he has never sinned, indeed he is a liar, and the truth is not in him, for all "have sinned and come short of the glory of God," and the Psalmist says "In sin did my mother conceive me." To be sure, all are born in sin BUT "If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins (that is, the sins we have committed) and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness" (that is, he will cleanse us from the sin principle, or inbred sin). The 8th verse of this epistle speaks of one who says he has no sins to confess while the 9th verse speaks of one who willingly acknowledges and confesses his sins and receives forgiveness.

Well, another says: "I believe we have to sin as long as we are in this body." We should like to ask such a one this question: "Is it the body or the soul that commits sin?" The Scriptures say "The soul that sinneth, it shall die." Indeed, the body is only a temple that houses the soul of man, and after it has served its purpose, will go back to dust, but the soul lives on and on forever. If it is the body, flesh and bones that sinneth, would not the giant wish himself a dwarf? as the more flesh a man has, the more capacity he would have for sinning. How ridiculous to think that the body of man sinneth, except as its members are used as instruments of the soul. Sin is a disease, and if not rooted up and purged out of the soul, will grow until it eats out the very vitals of its victim. Who can expect to be saved from his sin in the next world, but they who cling to the doctrine of purgatory. Leprosy, the disease of old, is typical of inbred sin in the believer, and we read in the gospel according to Matt. 8:2-3, "And, behold, there came a leper and worshipped him, saying, Lord, if thou wilt, thou canst make me clean. And Jesus put forth his hand, and touched him, saying, I will; be thou clean, and immediately his leprosy was cleansed." Notice, dear reader, this leper was a worshipper; but he needed cleansing, so he came; he prayed; he believed, and Jesus touched him and made him every whit whole. Bless God forever, for a salvation that saves and keeps. Amen.

Every believer must be sanctified in exactly the same way as this leper was, there is no other way. The disease of sin is in every believer until he has been cleansed with the Baptism of the Holy Ghost. You may keep the "old man" suppressed and quieted for a time, but in some unguarded moment he will spring up and become a conquerer. The old fellow must be crucified: he must die the death that Paul tells us about in Gal. 6:24: "And they that are Christ's, have crucified the flesh (old man) with the affections and lusts." Also in Romans 6:6 "Knowing this, that our old man is crucified with him, that the body of sin might be destroyed; that henceforth we should not serve sin." That is to say that the "old man" or sin principle in man, was crucified potentially when Christ was crucified on the cross, but actually in faith and baptism with the Holy Ghost. Christ does not regulate sin but casts it out and purges the soul from its evil effects. That the old man is crucified is evident from Eph. 4:24, where Paul speaks of the "new man" created in righteousness and true holiness.

Well, another says: "I hope I'm saved, I have been a member of church for a good many years." That is fine, my brother, but church membership will never save you. The Pharisees were wonderful church members, and no doubt, would put many of the present day church members to shame, but what does the Master say to them in Matt. 23:23: "Woe unto you Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites, for ye pay tithes of mint, and anise, and cummin, and have omitted the weightier matters of the law, judgment, mercy and faith." Read the whole chapter. Yes, you may have been baptized with water, but this will not save you. Simon the sorcerer, was baptized and yet he was in the gall of bitterness, and in the bond of iniquity after he was baptized. Acts 8:23. You may be able to prophesy as Saul, the King, you may hear preaching gladly as Herod; you may make long prayers as the Pharisees did; you may find no fault with Christ as Pilate; you may be as near the Kingdom as the man spoken of in Matthew 19:22, and yet perish. If you are counting on anything short of full Bible salvation, the experience of being made a new creature through the pardoning grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, and the removal root and branch, of the old Adamic nature, through the pentecostal Baptism with the Holy Ghost, you are on very dangerous ground, and will not be able to stand in the day of judgment, but may be among those that are "left" when Jesus comes to catch away his Bride, the true church. (See Luke 17:34-37).

Reader, if you do not know your sins forgiven, seek Christ now for forgiveness of your sins. If you are already a believer but have not experienced the Baptism with the Holy Ghost, seek it now, this minute, so that Christ can do a "finished" work in your heart and cause you to "stand and rejoice in the hope of the glory of God."

These few simple words are written with an earnest prayer on my heart that this message may fall into the hands of men and women who are unprepared to meet God, and that they will take heed; for truly I believe the time is very short and that Christ will soon appear in the cloud to steal away his people and then it will be too late to repent.

"Tis finished! so the Saviour cried,
And meekly bowed his head and died:
"Tis finished"! yes, the race is run;
The battle fought; the victory won.
"Tis finished," Son of God, thy power
Hath triumphed in this awful hour;
And yet our eyes with sorrow see
That life to us was death to thee."

An Attempt to Strike Christ From Christianity

REV. J. D. WILLIAMS.

HE•passing centuries have witnessed many a human institution laid away in time's great cemetery. The dynasties of Pharaoh and Nebuchadnezzar, of Cyrus and Alexander the Great, of Cæsar and Charlemagne, have passed into oblivion. These empires, which one time seemed as fixed as the stars of heaven, have long ago crumbled to atoms. Their proud capitals and palaces and temples have been buried beneath the drifting sands of the ages. Many iron-clad customs too, which held men as mighty chains for long decades, have been utterly broken, and, today, are known only by the pages of history. Institution after institution has been destroyed by the ravages of time. But amid the wreckage and ruin of the centuries, there stands one institution erect and unmoved. That institution is the church of Jesus Christ.

The colossal monument of time towers heavenward, not because it has been left unmolested or unattacked for since it was first launched, it has been called upon to withstand the most malignant storms of earth. And many times during the raging of these storms of opposition, it has appeared to man that the Christian church must succumb to the terrific attacks of its relentless foes. It seems that every power has besieged it, every science has assailed it, every blasphemy has cursed it—yet the sacred institution stands. Proud kings and haughty peoples, skeptical philosophers and presumptuous latitudinarians, have conspired for its destruction. Students have ransacked dusty files, archeologists have sought amid the remains of antiquity, geologists have dug deep into the bowels of the earth, and astronomers have pierced the starry heavens, to secure evidence to marshal against this divine institution. But all have labored in vain; they have spent their strength for naught. "Like foolish birds, they have assailed the old lighthouse, with clanging wings, only to fall stunned and wounded into the dark waters which roll at its base."

Our present hour is witnessing the most subtle and malignant attack upon the Christian church of any preceding century. Its strategy has never been equalled. The Paines and Voltaires and Ingersols of our day are no longer on the outside of its walls. Today, they are found within its breastworks. And after having entrenched themselves within its sacred borders, these betrayers are attacking the central citadel of Christianity—its Author and Life.

Under the banner of Jesus Christ, these modern apostates are making an avowed effort to strike Christ from Christianity. They are denying his virgin birth, his divine Sonship, his teachings, his fulfilment of prophecy, his miracles, his substitutionary death, his resurrection, his ascension, his intercession, and his second coming. Their design is to rob him of everything supernatural.

If these men permit Jesus Christ to stand forth merely upon the pages of history, as one of earth's greatest ethical and religious teachers, but succeed in disrobing him of his supernatural character in the belief of men, the great institution of Christianity will fall with a crash. If these avowed enemies of the gospel of the New Testament succeed in their attempts to convince men that the virgin birth of our Lord is but a myth, they rob the human family of their God-man. If these twentieth century high-brows succeed in their efforts to teach that our Redeemer died merely a martyr's death, Adam's race is destined to experience the retribution of a broken law throughout the unfolding cycles of eternity. Again, if these modern critics can delude men into believing that our Master became an everlasting victim to the pale monarch of death's domain, they strike the sun immediately from the moral heavens, and eternal darkness settles down upon the Christian church. For that empty tomb, as one man has said, was the cradle of Christianity. Yea, if the infidels of our present hour succeed, in the minds of men, in robbing Jesus Christ, in any particular, of his supernatural nature and divine character, the sacred institution of the Christian church will soon be buried alongside the other countless institutions in time's great cemetery.

No one today, not even the most pronounced apostate, denies the fact of the birth and life and death of our Lord. He is granted a place in history, as much as are Buddha and Confucius and Mohammed. But this acknowledgment, alone, is not sufficient to explain the existence of the Christian church. For Christ holds an infinitely different relationship to his church than does Buddha to Buddhism, or Mohammed to Mohammedism. Deny Jesus Christ's supernatural nature, and Christianity has no more meaning than has the English word "Christianity," after the first six letters have been erased from it. For Christianity is Christ; and Christ is Christianity.

Redemption's most renowned human champion, the Apostle Paul, clinched the basic fact of the vital relationship between Christ and his church, when he said that his life, as a disciple of Christianity, was not lived by his own strength and wisdom, but by Christ living in him. He maintained that Christianity was more than a code of laws, more than a set of doctrines, yes, more than a religious system. He declared that the life of Jesus Christ pulsated through the intellect and passions and will and affections of every true disciple of the church which bore the name of his Master. How different is the institution of Christianity, then, from the other world religions. In no proper sense, can the Brahmin be said to be in Brahma. The Buddhist never speaks of himself as being in Buddha, nor of Buddha being in him. The devout Moslem never speaks of himself as being in Mohammed. There is not interfusion of life, no felt presence of the Master in the soul of the disciple, as the secret of his strength, and the foundation of his hope and joy. But such is the relation, mysterious as it may be, between Christ and his disciples. Other faiths have no transforming power in them; but as Paul states, "If any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold all things are become new." The great institution of Christianity is mysteriously bound up in its Author.

The mysterious history of the Christian church defies every attempt on the part of the modern apostates to deny the supernatural nature of our risen Lord. If men affirmed the mythical character of Michael Angelo, they would still have to account for St. Peter's Cathedral, with its great pillars pressing Rome's soil and its mighty dome which towers heavenward. And likewise, those who assert that Jesus Christ was only human, have still to account for earth's greatest moral phenomenon—the Christian

THE GIFT OF SUFFERING.

This is the part of the gift that squeezes the joy from the presses of pain. This is the secret of the fact that Philipians is the epistle of joy among all the writings of the whole Bible. Paul had learned that his biggest victories came out of his worst defeats. It was this lesson that enabled him to say, "I thank my God upon every remembrance of you." Yet one would not think that the town of Philippi would hold many pleasant recollections for the Apostle. There he had come after "assuredly gathering that the Lord had called us to preach the Gospel unto them." But there he had found no hospitable home except in the house of Lydia, perhaps despised as a tradeswoman and thus beyond the social pale. There he had, with Silas, both of them brave Roman citizens, been dragged into the police court, where their garments were ruthlessly torn from their backs on which was plied the terrible lash, not once or twice but "many" times. Following this they had been delivered to the inhuman jailer who instead of attending to their sufferings thrust them lacerated and gouged as they were into the dungeon, where they lay on the filth-soaked ground, their feet in such a position that to sit still was agony and to move was torture. But among the converts in Philippi was the very jailer who had so mistreated them who is included in Paul's, "I thank God upon every remembrance of you!" Nearly two thousand years have passed by, yet this "joy" is still in the world. Witness the following incident from far away Java:

"There is a Dutch leper settlement with 340 patients, of whom 200 are baptized Christians. A traveler recently visited the place, and though himself a man of the world, with no settled religious faith, he was very much impressed by the lives of these converted lepers. There is only a line scratched on the soft earth round their colony, yet none ever go beyond it. They are industrious, unselfish, orderly, and most responsive in every way. 'The joy of the Lord' is indeed their strength, and it touches all who see them so happy and content with their lot. 'Their abode,' says the traveler, 'could only be called a village of joy.'"

It is always best for us to see things in the light of a spiritual vision and to have a fair valuation for spiritual entities, but it is of fundamental importance that we "know him." Anything that will help us to "know him" is of eternal worth; anything that will make us more like him is the supreme gift from his hand. The gift of suffering does all this only when it is accepted as a "gift." So long as it is regarded as a bitter calamity, or an unjust visitation, or an object of stoical indifference, it fails to accomplish God's purpose, but when we learn with Paul at Philippi that the suffering is "for his sake," and that it is as Christ's own engagement ring to his loved bride, then we can sing as a present experience.

"Pain's furnace heat within me quivers,
God's breath upon the flame doth blow,
And all my frame in anguish shivers,
And trembles 'neath the fiery glow.
"He kindles for my profit purely Afflictions 'growing fiery brand
And all his heaviest blows are surely Inflicted by a Master hand."
"And so I whisper 'As God will'
And in his hottest fire hold still."

A Church Choir Smitten by the Holy Spirit.

A. W. ORWIG.

I learned of the strange and solemn fact about a dozen years ago. It occurred in a certain church of a large city, perhaps what might be said to be a "fashionable" church. Often its services were of a painfully routine and perfunctory nature. In the absence of the pastor for several weeks, a man filled with the Holy Spirit was invited to conduct a special series of meetings. He knew something about the coldness and worldliness of the church, and in advance of holding the meetings gave himself to mighty and unceasing prayer, expecting God to effect a spiritual revolution, and he did.

When this truly man of God stood up to preach the first sermon he was deeply grieved at the formality he witnessed, and inwardly groaned and prayed that God would break it up. The levity of the choir was especially distressing to him. Soon the Lord said, "Go on with the services, and I will take care of the choir."

After the sermon the Spirit of God fell on him in wonderful intercession, and he heard a noise proceeding from the direction of the choir, as though people were falling, chairs being upset, and the like. When he ceased praying and opened his eyes he noticed that there was a penitential commotion in the audience, and that the members of the choir were stretched out in rows under deep conviction, calling on God for mercy. The next night scores of prostrate people, professors and non-professors of religion, wept and confessed their sin. And again God saved sinners, backsliders were restored, and others were baptized with the Holy Ghost.

But there are other churches where considerable lightness characterizes the choir. How very important that persons composing a church choir realize that their part of the service be as devoutly engaged in as the sermon by the preacher. Instead of their singing being a mere performance (as well as that by the congregation), it should always be a "making melody" in the "heart to the Lord," and always with an eye single to his glory.

Oh that the sin and self-slaying Holy Spirit would mightily fall upon all churches where a heartless service prevails, and smite with overwhelming conviction all such members of the choir as merely execute a human program! Yea, Lord, let it come in veritable earthquake power!

Sanctification: What Is It?

J. N. DRAKE.

SANCTIFICATION is the work of the Holy Spirit, whereby that which is carnal in the nature of man is destroyed, and his nature spiritualized. The work of salvation begins in the inner man and works outwardly. This being true it must be a progressive work. Man is a trinity, the component parts of which are spirit, soul and body. The Holy Spirit begins his work in the salvation of man by convicting him of sin; endeavoring to subdue his spirit and bring him to repentance and confession of faith in Jesus Christ; whereupon God forgives his sins and puts a new spirit within him.

Let the reader note he has received a new spirit, not the Spirit. "That which is born of the Spirit is spirit. (Jesus plainly said, the world cannot receive The Spirit of Truth). This new spirit is not of the world but of God. That which is born of God doth not commit sin; a new man is born in him, who after God, is created in righteousness and true holiness. He is a new creature in Christ Jesus; he vows he will serve the Lord as long as he lives; he may run well for a time, but sooner or later makes the appalling discovery that the carnal mind still crops out; that the old man is not dead yet. This brings him into a seventh chapter of Romans experience (which is the picture of a man under the new covenant of grace, under which, according to Jeremiah, God puts his law in his inward parts). This is a crisis in his life, in which his soul is engaged in one of the greatest struggles ever waged between the powers of light and darkness. Will he win the victory? Does he know what ails him? Has he heard the gospel of full salvation? He delights in the law of God after the inward man; but he sees another law in his members, warring against the law of his mind (which is born of God) and bringing him into captivity to the law of sin, or in other words, bringing him into condemnation. He is filled with doubts and fears, and is most wretched. Will he be able to put off the old man, and put on the new man? Will he be able to keep the vows of his first love? The world has an awful pull on him; he wonders if he was ever converted? Yes, he knows the time; he wonders if he is backslidden? He knows he still loves the Lord, and he wants the joy of his salvation restored. With the old man, the world, and Satan arrayed on the one hand, and the new man and the Holy Spirit on the other, the conflict wages. His own will must be the determining factor; he prays; he is in agony of soul; he makes his choice, and cries for deliverance; and the Holy Spirit falls upon him in power; the old man is crucified; the love of God is shed abroad in his heart, and he shouts the victory; his doubts are gone. "The Spirit himself beareth witness with his spirit, that he is a child of God."

He has now received a second work of the Spirit, whereby his soul is purified, and he is made a vessel unto honor, sanctified and meet for the Master's use. Now so long as he walks in the Spirit, he will have fellowship with the saints, and truly their fellowship is with the Father, and his Son Jesus Christ. He will do well to follow the example of that greatest of all exponents of Christian living, the Apostle Paul, who "Forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, pressed toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." This he can do if he will. If he is faithful he will pray without ceasing, in everything give thanks, rejoice evermore, and abstain from all appearance of evil. His whole spirit, soul and body will be preserved blameless unto the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, who will change his corruptible body and fashion it like unto his glorious body. And then will be brought to pass the saying, "The very God of peace himself, sanctify you wholly," and he will be presented faultless at "The Great White Throne, before the Father, and the holy angels. Faithful is he that calleth us, who also will do it. Wherefore the rather, brethren, give diligence to make your calling and election sure: for if you do these things, ye shall never fall: for so an entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ."

Somebody—You.

Somebody needs a helping hand,
Somebody finds it hard to stand;
Somebody's slipping in the night,
Somebody's losing grip on right.

Somebody's calling for a hand,
Somebody's trying hard to stand;
Somebody fears the shades of night,
Somebody wants to do the right.

Somebody must extend a hand,
Somebody help the weak to stand;
Somebody must help through the night,
Somebody help to do the right.

Somebody will reach out a hand,
Somebody will help the weak to stand;
Somebody will help through the night,
Somebody will help in the right.

Somebody? Yes, but who, O, who?
Somebody, quick! Will that be You?
Somebody, now! It must be done!
Somebody, YOU! A soul is won!

REPORTS FROM SOUL WINNERS

A REPORT.

It was my privilege and pleasure to attend, for a time, services of a revival campaign recently held in Brooksbury, Ind., in the Methodist Episcopal Church. Rev. Stambush, the pastor-evangelist, preached unusual sermons. His earnest messages were blessed of the Lord in the salvation of souls. He was ably assisted by M. V. Lewis, Song Evangelist, of Wilmore, Ky., who displayed unusual ability as a song leader and soloist, and through his untiring efforts and co-operation with the pastor, his ministry proved a blessing to many souls.

On the last Sunday afternoon, children's service was conducted by Mrs. M. V. Lewis. The service was inspiring and resulted in the conversion of a number of children. The people of Brooksbury were loyal in their support of the meeting. May this spirit of loyalty continue among them!

A Visitor.

OLIVESBURG, OHIO.

We are glad to report a very successful revival in the Olivesburg Methodist Church, Olivesburg, Ohio, which came to a close Jan. 30. This church is on the Pavia charge, in the Mansfield District of the North-east Ohio Conference, and is about six miles from Ashland, Ohio. The meeting which continued for two weeks, was in charge of Brother and Sister D. W. Cox, of Mansfield, Ohio.

Sister Cox brought most of the sermon messages which rang true to the old-time gospel truth and carried conviction to the hearts of the hearers. Brother Cox's leadership in song, and the special numbers by Bro. and Sister Cox contributed much to the success of the meeting, as did the work of Sister Cox with the young people with whom she met for a special half-hour service each even'g.

During the two weeks about twenty people bowed at the altar as definite seekers and nearly all, if not all, were definitely blessed. At the regular service on the last Sunday morning fourteen persons ranging in age from ten to seventy, all of whom had been definitely blessed in these meetings, presented themselves as candidates for membership in the church and more are coming. Truly it was a time of refreshing for the church at Olivesburg, and we thank God for answers to prayer and take courage to press the battle for the salvation of precious souls with more determination than ever. Just now we are engaged in another revival at the Franklin Church, another point on this charge with Sister Annie McGhie, of Akron, as the evangelist.

In the closing weeks of November Sister McGhie was with us in a very gracious revival at the home point, Pavia, during which about fifty souls were either saved or sanctified and about twenty united with the church. Truly it has been a great year thus far on this charge, and we look forward to great victories in the revival in which we are now engaged. We earnestly request the prayers of The Herald family for the work here.

Rev. H. W. Middleton, Pastor.

TWO GOOD MEETINGS.

Since last reporting, we have conducted two meetings, one was with the Church of the Nazarene at Adrian, Mich.; the tide was well on and souls getting into the fountain when we were called away by the death of wife's mother. District Superintendent Cox finished the meeting. Rev. Earl J. Stevens is the pastor of this church, and he has accomplished wonders during the short time that he has been there. This was the third meeting that we have held for him, and we never enjoyed working with him more than we did in this meeting. This was our first engagement with the Adrian Church, but we can say that we never preached to people that appreciated the truth more than this church seemed to appreciate it. God blessed them. Numerous requests were made for us to return for another campaign.

The other meeting was with the M. E. Church at New Burlington, Ind. We endeavored to preach holiness "constantly, strongly, and explicitly," but did not see the results that we had hoped for. Along with other difficulties, the great sheet of ice that covered that part of Indiana greatly curtailed the attendance and made it impossible to have service at all for two nights; however, the church was helped spiritually and some sought the "second blessing properly so-called." The church was very kind to me. Rev. H. V. Cummins, the pastor, is a good man and stood by the meeting. He is a former student of God's Bible School. He and the writer held two meetings together when boy preachers, and were glad to be again associated in the battle.

At this writing we are in a campaign with the Second Church of the Nazarene at Cleveland, Ohio. The fire is falling, and souls are being saved. Remember to pray for us.

REPORT OF EVANGELIST W. W. LOVELESS.

I have had two meetings since I last reported; both in Nazarene churches. The first one was at Findlay, Ohio, running from Dec. 31st to Jan. 16th. This revival was just ordinary, hardly that. It is true that our picture was in the daily paper, and the revival duly announced and advertised; but for some reason or other the public did not crowd the church to get to hear us. If the little city got stirred or excited over our preaching we failed to hear about it. Empty pews were very plentiful during the entire meeting. I believe 36 was the largest crowd we had. However, we believe there was some good done. We had a few seekers, and we believe some of them got a good experience; also the church was blessed and edified to some extent. We found the pastor, Rev. Roy Klingler, and his good wife, very congenial folks to work with. This was our third meeting with Brother Klingler in different churches in the last few years. He is a fine pastor and stands by the evangelist in every way.

Our last meeting was at Monticello, a mountain town in southern Kentucky, where we closed February 7th. Here the first night we were greeted by a full house, and I would judge that the church will seat over 200. After the third night seekers began to come to the altar, and from then on we never had a barren altar service. There were 89 seekers, counting them as they come, and the most of them did some real digging and praying, and of course were happy finders. The crowds increased until night after night standing room was at a premium; in fact, the crowds were too big to obtain the best results. On the last day we baptized 8 by immersion in Elk Creek, and at night we received 27 fine members into the church. Among those who joined were three preachers; one a Baptist; one a Methodist, and the other a Christian Union. This church had no pastor, but Rev. L. T. Wells, the District Superintendent, is sending Rev. J. W. Norris on the field to take charge of this church as pastor. We are expecting to hear of the Monticello Church forging in the front.

I am now with The Pilgrim Holiness Church at Arcanum, Ohio. We are just getting started but the outlook is good for an old-fashioned revival. "I feel like traveling on."

W. W. Loveless.

REVIVAL AT HUBBARD, IOWA.

The pastor of the Methodist Church of Hubbard on the Fort Dodge District, Rev. Clifford Liming, secured the help of J. M. Howdeshell, pastor at Williams, and began a series of evangelistic meetings on the evening of Jan. 24th. The attendance and interest both were very fine from the start, but not until well into the second week did the break come, however, when hungry souls began to seek the Lord many plunged in while the waters were being troubled. The Spirit of God was gloriously manifested, the crowds increased, conviction deepened until folk would get saved at home between services. Over thirty adults and young people knelt at the altar and wept their way to Jesus Christ. The writer is not the judge as to the genuineness of these conversions, but after experience in many such revivals he believes that a complete change was wrought in most if not all of the hearts seeking. The closing day of the effort was so full that the pastor thought it unwise to receive the new converts into the church, but it is possible that he will not only receive most of these but many others as well for the entire community was aroused in an unusual manner.

The results were so determined that the young people of the church began to ask for an Epworth League, (a thing this church had not had in years) and we proceeded to organize a very fine cabinet on Sunday afternoon. There are twenty or more of these young people with fine talent, splendid characters, and energy enough to develop one of the finest leagues in the district. The meeting closed on the evening of Feb. 6th, in a halo of divine glory with thirteen kneeling at the altar for salvation and many others saying, "The revival is just getting started."

EVERETT, MASSACHUSETTS.

Dear Friends of The Pentecostal Herald:

I have read his great messenger of holiness for many years, and felt that I would like to write this report as it will reach so many of God's people that I know. Many of my people are readers of The Herald, and I pray that it may ever stand strong for holy living.

We are holding the fort here in Everett, Mass., against sin and carnality and a growing population of godless immigrants from Southern Europe that threaten to drive Protestantism from New England unless God intervenes.

We had a most wonderful revival in our church with Rev. Preston Kennedy, of Middleburgh, N. Y., last fall, in which God graciously opened the "windows of heaven" and gave us such a blessing that we could not contain it. How God did manifest his glory among us! At least a dozen other churches have reported that our blessing reached them; believers were baptized with the Holy Ghost, and sinners saved.

We are having Bro. Kennedy with us again in March, and we are looking again for another great meeting. Pray for us here in conservative New England, that old-time revivals shall again break forth.

L. E. Darling, Pastor.

JUST A LITTLE REPORT.

Our meeting at Toronto, Ohio, closed Feb. 6 with very good results. The pastor, Rev. George E. Johnson, is an excellent Christian gentleman. He believes, teaches and preaches that God can save all men from all sin and his people have implicit faith in him; many of his people take some good holiness paper. All of the official board profess the experience of full salvation.

The above made it easy for us to get the truth to the people. The little opposition we had to contend with was soon overcome and the truth began to settle down and souls brought under conviction and to the altar. The fire of God was on the place for days and the shouts of happy souls stirred the city. I suppose at least one hundred were at the altar during the seventeen days and a goodly number found the Lord in pardon or purity. The Lord's people of different denominations came up to the feast of good things and returned home rejoicing. Brother Householder, of Hollow Rock fame, was with us for several days and did much to help us in his prayers and testimony. He is a beautiful, Christian character. Our singer, Bro. Cox, of East Liverpool, was not well and dropped out on account of sickness. Cox is a fine Christian man, with a limited experience as song leader, but with good possibilities. We were invited to return next year.

On leaving Toronto, we came on to Olive Branch, Ill., and began our meeting. The prospects are encouraging. The pastor, Rev. Shaffer, is a young man and wants to see a real revival. We are trusting God for great results. I have all of March and a date in April open. All who read this report please breathe a prayer for us. I have some camp meeting dates open.

Conf. Evangelist, Ky. Conf., Wilmore, Ky.

CAMBRIDGE, MASSACHUSETTS.

The Evangelical Church of Cambridge, Mass., recently experienced a real Holy Ghost revival. Here, in a land where for over three centuries men have been demonstrating that, "the world by wisdom knew not God," and where ancient heresy and modern error are enthroned, the Holy Ghost again wrought a definite work. This church is the "Old Evangelistic and Holiness center" for Boston and vicinity. Here the ministries of Joshua Gill, C. J. Fowler, Godbey, Carradine and many of the other holiness evangelists still live in precious memory. Sad fact it was that evil times had dimmed the manifestations of God here, where once his glory dwelled. But God, in his good providence caused Preston E. Kennedy, of Middleburgh, N. Y., to come to us as our evangelist. He was true to his calling and discharged his office as evangelist fearlessly. We did not "number Israel," yet some obtained the experience of holiness, some were reclaimed and some saved. The church was much helped and has taken a definite step forward, while the wholesome effect of the revival meetings is still being felt in Cambridge and neighboring cities.

We rejoiced in the wholesome, fervent, unctuous ministry of Bro. Kennedy. This was his second meeting in New England, and there are promising indications that God is going to continue to use him in this section of the country to his glory.

Rev. Henry E. Chase, Pastor.

IN ILLINOIS.

This has been a very busy winter with me. God has wonderfully blessed my labors in the salvation of many souls. My last meeting was at Carmi, Ill., First M. E. Church, where I had the pleasure of assisting Rev. W. J. Fahnestock, a man of God who preaches the full gospel in its sincerity. This was my first time to visit Carmi, but the third time to sing for Brother Fahnestock, and the 70th revival meeting in this one conference, where God had permitted me to sing his praises. Not only did the church get on a higher plane of living, but many strong men and women were saved from sin and united with the church; more than 30 persons united with the M. E. Church and other churches will receive strength also.

I am now in a meeting here at Bridgeport, Ill., where we are expecting to see God work wonders.

C. E. Edwards.

HOLINESS CONVENTION IN CAMDEN.

God still moves where he is honored, is the thought of the holiness folks in and near Camden, N. J.: this was evidenced by the outpouring of the Spirit in a recent holiness convention held at Wesley Chapel, Jan. 20 to 23. It was a local affair, and the pastor, Rev. Preston Kennedy, did the preaching; some of the folks from the First M. E. Church of Collingswood, and the Alliance work at Pitman, helped with the music.

The Convention started Thursday night with the service in charge of the Unity Bible Class Colored Singers of Philadelphia. Thanks be to God, whether black or white skinned he has made provision for every heart to be made "whiter than snow"; filled with the power of God and faces aglow, they sang the old-fashioned Gospel in the old-fashioned way until such waves of glory struck the place that it reminded us of an old-time Methodist class meeting.

Friday, Saturday and Sunday there were three meetings a day and lunch was served to those who cared to stay. The attendance was fine and, best of all, "God was with us." The services on Saturday and Sunday were especially blessed; God manifested himself in a real way until a number were slain by the Spirit and lay prostrate under the power of God. We are confident that God is waiting to bless if folk will humble themselves and be willing for him to move in his own way "His wonders do perform."

Pray with us that in these last days God will keep his saints "in perfect peace" and continue to add his blessing to this work.

Rev. F. N. Bradley, Asst. Pastor.

while the child, of course, is born in a state of innocence, nevertheless that it is in a fallen state; that "in Adam all die"; that the Atonement provides for the redemption of the child, and if it should die before coming to years of responsibility its salvation is secured. But if the child lives, it manifests an inward sinful nature while very young, showing anger, and selfishness, and that it does many naughty and ugly things before it is old enough to understand any nice distinction between right and wrong; that passing over the line of responsibility, because of this inward evil tendency it commits sin, becomes guilty, must needs repent and be pardoned and receive the regenerating power of the Spirit imparting a new life; that in addition to this there needs to be the gracious work of cleansing or entire sanctification in order to the eradication of the old sinful nature.

These teachers of Christian Holiness insist that the Holy Spirit uses two very different figures in order to convey correct conceptions of the great work of God in dealing with the sinner and the believer; the figure of birth is used by our Lord to convey to us a conception of what takes place in bringing the sinner into a state of salvation; the figure of crucifixion is used to indicate what takes place in our sanctification. In the first place, a birth brings in a new life, and a death eradicates or destroys the old life; not physical death, you understand, but, as the inspired Apostle puts it, the "crucifixion of our old man", the sin nature.

It will be understood that these two schools of religious teaching are wide apart, and can hardly hope to be reconciled. It perhaps should not be called intolerance, but honest conviction, belief of certain facts that each separate group of teachers believe to be fundamental.

Those who insist that the race is a fallen and sinful race, that the human heart is naturally depraved and prone to wickedness, and that in the program of redemption two distinct works of grace are necessary,—one, regeneration, bringing in the new man; the other, sanctification, or the crucifixion, destroying the old man, have tremendous advantage over the other school which insists that neither regeneration or sanctification is necessary for those who have had a proper environment and teaching. The advantage lies in this fact: that the older school, holding to the doctrine of human depravity and the need of a supernatural power in salvation, have the entire Scriptures on their side of the discussion. This other school has only the notions and unscriptural philosophies of men.

Not only has this older school the Scriptures on their side of the discussion; they have all human history, and human nature as we find it in ourselves, in our children and fellowbeings about us everywhere. The doctrine of human depravity, of the corruption and sinfulness of the human heart is not only written in the Bible, but it is written deep in human nature. The experiences of life bear witness to the truthfulness of the Scriptures when they declare that "the heart is desperately wicked."

By all means, give us the best possible environment. Surround the child with all the protection possible to prevent the learning of evil habits, teach and train him to fear God and keep his commandments. After all this is done, we are face to face with the fact that the very highest authority possible has said, "Ye must be born again." Not only so, but we soon discover that notwithstanding good environment and careful teaching there is an utter lack of something in the life of the individual that must be imparted by the Holy Spirit. In the program of salvation, we must rise into the realm of the supernatural; the human heart must come under the direct and gracious power of the Holy Spirit.

The man who licensed this writer to preach was raised in one of the best of families. The environment was good; the teaching was excellent. He grew up with faith in the Bible and fully believed all that the inspired writers had to say about Jesus Christ. He had a tender conscience and very high moral standards. He joined the church while quite young, grew up in the services of the church, came to young manhood and entered the ministry, preached several years, always with hopes and fears, never with any glad assurance in his heart of personal salvation and finally while he was engaged in a revival meeting he came to Christ with his burden and was gloriously converted, born again, and gave glad and powerful witness that regeneration was a necessity, that environment, catechism and good moral training cannot take the place of the inward working of the Spirit of God, changing the heart and producing what our Lord Jesus calls being "born again."

The doctrine of entire sanctification, in the nature of things, finds itself confronted with the whole tide of human depravity. Pride does not want to admit a state of lostness, wickedness, helplessness, the utter impossibility of salvation apart from divine help, that one must confess sin, forsake sin and come humbly, trusting only in the merit of Jesus Christ. To the proud human heart such preaching, the Apostle admits, is "foolishness."

A very large per cent of church members of all denominations have set up a very low standard of Christian living. They do not believe that they can be saved from sinning in this life. They have been taught from their pulpits and in their church literature that they must remain corrupt and that this corruption will break out in actual sin. This corruption and sinning is not condemned, but condoned, excused and apologized for. Not only so, but they are taught that for any one to claim to be cleansed from all sin is an unscriptural and boastful fanaticism; that it is an almost infallible evidence of blatant hypocrisy or mental weakness. Thus, through the years, the great mass of church members are taught to oppose the doctrine of entire sanctification, and to look askance at and ridicule any one who claims an experience of full deliverance from the carnal mind, cleansing from all sin.

It must not be understood that this teaching is confined to those churches under the influence of Calvinistic teaching. It is spread abroad in Methodism and great numbers of Methodists, prominent in authority, have become quite antagonistic to the old Wesleyan doctrine of entire sanctification as a second work of grace, and the sanctified preacher often finds himself handicapped and opposed not only by prominent members of his church who are not hungering and thirsting after righteousness, who have no desire or intention of having the "old man" of sin and selfishness crucified and who do not want to be annoyed with preachings, warnings and exhortations on the subject of an entire consecration, a death to sin and a holy life, but he also finds himself, in many instances, at great disadvantage with those in authority over him.

In these days, when the positive note is left out of much of preaching and religious teaching, when men boast of their liberality, when it is supposed to be an evidence of great piety to be so generous that we can give the right hand of fellowship to Jews, Unitarians, Roman Catholics and prominent heathen teachers, it is unpopular for the preacher to be what is called "dogmatic", i. e., clear-cut and positive with reference to the essentials of salvation.

In the very nature of things, the preacher of entire sanctification covers the whole ground of fundamental truth. He takes in the entire Bible. He believes it to be a direct revelation from God. He insists that "all Scripture is given by revelation and is profitable for doctrine." He is dogmatic in his declaration that the human race is fallen, that the human heart is corrupt, that out of the corrupt heart issues a sinful life. He insists on repentance and trust in Christ for forgiveness. He rings clear on the new birth. He points out the clear Scriptural teaching with reference to indwelling sin, the carnal nature and the necessity of the baptism and fiery purging of the heart, the crucifixion of the old man of sin. He insists that without holiness no man shall see the Lord. These great truths are fundamental with him; they are urgent; they are from God; they are at the very foundation of true, pure Christianity. He claims to have passed through these processes. He insists that necessity is laid upon him, he cries out, "Woe is me if I preach not the Gospel!" and to him the Gospel is the good news of full redemption here and now by simple faith in Jesus Christ.

This full salvation preacher makes much of the blood of Christ. The Cross, with its dying victim, its sinless Savior, is the very heart and glory of his message. Against all questions and oppositions and doubts, he runs away to 1 John 1:7, "But if we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ, his Son, cleanseth us from all sin."

All of this is unpopular. In the nature of things, it must meet with opposition, strong opposition. To the slipshod, easy-going, world-loving church member, it is utterly hateful. To the proud, over-bearing, ecclesiastic, it is thoroughly annoying. To the bitter sectarian, religionist it is cant and hypocrisy. To those, who are the willing captives of sin, who are under the dominion of the flesh, and follow greedily after the things of the world, it is contemptible and laugh-

ble. But to all of this the faithful preacher of full salvation stands unmoved and unabashed. He has heard the voice of God. He has experienced the cleansing power of Jesus' blood. He has felt the inward movings of a power given by the Holy Ghost and faithfully he stands, calling all men to repentance, warning all men of judgment, declaring that all men are sinful, that all must forsake their sins, that all must come to Christ, that all must be born again, that all must wait in the upper room of consecration and believing prayer, that all may receive the Holy Ghost, cleansing the heart and abiding to keep the temple consecrated to Christ and he sees gracious results. The power of God attends his work, sinners are smitten, penitents are pardoned, believers fall under a powerful urge of the Spirit. There is hungering and thirsting after righteousness, consecration and faith, the divine fire consumes sin and God's children move out into a Canaan of perfect love, shouting the praises of the Christ who is able to save to the uttermost.

THE LORDSHIP OF CHRIST

MRS. H. C. MORRISON.

HE enemies of Jesus sought to ensnare and tantalize him by asking him if he were a king, to which he answered, "To this end was I born." Eternal resources were worked out in his consciousness. He not only affirmed lordship, but made it manifest in his realm of being; he is the very soul of nature and the consummation of all forces is his personality. Combinations do not make the universe, but oneness with Christ. He is the only being at home with nature; the winds may howl, the waves dash and the storm rage, there is no disturbance in him; the billows rock their Lord and lay like a cowed cur at his feet. Who ever dared to talk to a thunderstorm as did he? There is no law in nature that did not yield plastic at his touch; no disease dared to hold on to its victim when he spoke; death knew him and the grave gave up its dead when he said, "Come forth." He had no argument with death but burst its bands and came forth more than conqueror. The rocks knew him and dissolved at his feet; there is not a star whose orbit he did not fix, not a sun whose light he did not kindle, a channel he did not carve, nor a mountain over which he is not Lord and Master.

He exercises lordship not only in matter, but in all realms. "Ye have heard," but I say runs against it all. When the critics rebuked him for letting his disciples pluck corn on the Sabbath, he reminded them that he was Lord of the Sabbath and his interpretation was final. One touch of his finger throws us into intellectual insanity.

The lordship of Christ is shown in his marvelous authority over the human will. When he wanted followers he had but to say, "Follow me," and the fishermen responded without asking any questions. There was something that went with his words that caused men to act. He alone can make men bend the knee in confession; this was evidenced when Saul was stricken down and he cried, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" Thomas sought material proof, but when shown the nail-pierced hands, he saw the Eternal God revealed in his Master, and he cried out, "My Lord and my God."

Christ occupies a place peculiarly his own; he is in a class to himself. He is what we ought to be, not what we would like to be. There is in Christ a quality that modern skepticism would like to get rid of; they deny his divinity in order to get rid of his authority and the pain he brings with him; back of the person who trims the divinity of Christ, there is a smitten conscience.

The philosophy of all history is Jesus Christ; history travels in but one direction and toward a definite goal, while the evolutionist is dumb about the future. His word has stood amid the ruins of Greece, Rome and Spain; he is the Master of centuries. The story of Paul's imprisonment is written in the wreckage of the Roman Empire and America will sell peanuts in Africa if she does not yield to Christ. We must lower the flag of conceit or we will be rejected as "worked out mines" as is Egypt and the Jewish countries.

Christ declared that all power in heaven and earth was given unto him and then said, "Go ye, therefore." We must preach the gospel from his throne and obey God rather than men. The men of old preached with power because they preached with God-given authority. The devil is not afraid of most preachers, but trouble came to town with Paul; he was accused of turning the world upside down. The devil did not come up and eat salt out of the hand of Paul, but like Agrippa, men trembled under his words of truth. He made trouble because God's chariots came with him.

There are many ways in which we can compromise the truth; to deny that religion rests upon any other grounds than the Scriptures. They are the end of all argument. We can pauperize Christ before the world, limit him to ecclesiastical circles, but he is Lord of everything or nothing. He must be in the parlor as well as the church; people have an idea that they can be right on Sunday and follow all kinds of meanness the other six days.

In the midst of the restlessness and confusion that are apparent on every hand, what is the destiny of this old world? What is to be the end? If it were not for the fact that we believe in the ruling of Providence, our hearts would grow faint, but he steadies our nerve and makes us willing to labor on. Jesus anchored and held Paul, and the church is not going to ruin, for Jesus is living and holds the key.

The man who would make a stepping-stone out of the mangled body of our Christ by sacrificing his principles is a traitor. No, God is not dead. When birds sing no more, and flowers do not bloom, then will I say God is dead. He will care for his own, even if the ravens have to minister to their necessities. It were better to risk crowds with religion, than a Board of stewards without religion. The man who dares to believe God, press forward in the face of difficulties, preach the unsearchable riches of Christ to a dying and hungry world, while he may go forth weeping, will doubtless come again rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him.

AN ATTEMPT TO STRIKE CHRIST FROM CHRISTIANITY.

church. Never, since time began to unfold, has history presented such a supernatural spectacle as that of the beginning of the early church. A few unlettered fishermen and publicans, all members of the most despised nation of earth, and followers of a crucified man, launched a system of truth, with a blood-stained cross as its outstanding theme, which has girdled the globe, breaking the power of sin and making saints out of sinners, wherever its demands have been met. That religion of weakness and ignominy was destined to triumph over every opposing power. No wonder Dante once declared, as he studied this supernatural institution, that if the idea of the miraculous were eliminated, the achievement of Christianity would become only the more miraculous.

The church of Christ has presented a power that its enemies have not been able to explain. And the strangest thing about this power is that it has lost none of its potency during the ravages of nineteen long centuries.

Whenever or wherever its demands have been met, it has completely conquered the most malignant and subtle opposition. This mysterious power has changed enemies into life-long friends; it has linked into closest bonds persons of different nationality and disposition and customs and tastes and habits and culture. It has caused men and women to forego native land, comfortable homes, kindred ties; and to cross seas, traverse deserts and waste places, to make their dwelling among savages, in order to tell benighted peoples of its peace and power and promise. Yea, thousands of individuals, through the centuries have gladly endured hardship and poverty and hunger and reproach and imprisonment and death, that they might spread the glorious truths of redemption.

None of these left their homes because of adventure, nor for personal gain, nor because they were followers of one of earth's great military conquerors. The secret of their sojourn can be traced back through the centuries to a seemingly insignificant scene, where he, whom our present-day critics declare was but a human creature, stood on the slope of the Mount of Olives and gave to a few humble disciples this short command: "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost: Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you." And he dismissed them by saying, "Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world." These two short sentences have become the warrant and marching orders for every future disciple of Christianity.

We, now, pointedly ask these modern apostates, what manner of man was he, whose very whisper stretches across twice a thousand years of human history; whose quiet command, spoken to a group of humble men, rolls through the decades and centuries to the close of time, penetrating the hearts of men, controlling the minds of men, and ruling the lives of vast multitudes, such as earth's greatest military leaders have never dreamed? There is only one answer—such a man was more than human. He was supernatural. He was the incarnate Son of God.

The astounding fact, that men and women today are denying the deity of Jesus Christ with such vehemence, indicates only that the hand of the great clock of time is nearing the zero point for this dispensation. It appears that he who stepped across the threshold of eternity onto the shores of time, so quietly and unpretentiously at his first advent, is soon to return to earth the second time. This time, not to work out a great redemptive program for a lost race, but as the Judge of each human creature's eternal destiny. The fact that men are attempting to rob Jesus Christ of his deity will in no sense retard the chariot wheels of the avenging King of Zion. For he moves steadily forward to the accomplishment of his far-flung designs. His redemptive scheme has been converging for twenty long centuries upon his great judgment day, when he will judge the world in truth and righteousness. The outstanding issue of that court-room will pivot upon the question whether or not we have believed on the name of Jesus Christ and enthroned him in our lives.

Would that every man would join with Edward Perronet, in his immortal words:

"All hail the power of Jesus' name!
Let angels prostrate fall;
Bring forth the royal diadem,
And crown Him Lord of all.

"Let every kindred, every tribe,
On this terrestrial ball,
To Him all majesty ascribe,
And crown Him Lord of all.

"O that with yonder sacred throng
We at His feet may fall;
We'll join the everlasting song,
And crown Him Lord of all."

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS

THE SATISFACTION OF THE SOUL.

Oh, is there nowhere on this earth
Where peace and happiness have birth,

Where man can find respite from care
And rest his soul in quiet there?
Or shall he be like the fabled stone,
Rolled up the hill with many a moan,
Only adown the hill to roll.

And give the greater pain of soul.
The toiling world though sick and sore,

Go, like the brook, forever more,
They find no peace, no joy, no rest
Forever hoping, never blest.
And thus they live from day to day
And never seek a better way.

Although the Christ who knoweth best
Says, Come to me, I'll give you rest;
I'll take the burden from your soul
And you shall reach the long sought goal,

And find in me a friend indeed,
Who can supply your every need.
O, weary soul, so long oppressed,
Come, find in me that longed-for rest;
Give me your heart, and you shall find

The remedy for all mankind.
The waves of trouble ne'er shall roll
In billows o'er your troubled soul,
But tranquil as the glassy sea,
The mind shall be, that trusts in me.
Give me your life, and earth shall change

Its aspect, it will seem so strange
That what before absorbed your life
With toil and pain and endless strife,
Has lost its charm, and then you'll see

That all of that was vanity.
'Twas wasted strength, and time misspent,

And failed to give the mind content.
The more of earthly pleasures gained
The greater void within remained.
But now the clouds shall roll away
And sunshine brighten every day.
The Christian life will be a joy,
With pleasures pure, without alloy.
The rugged way, the Lord will smoothe,

And fill your heart with perfect love,
While I will walk along the road
And carry all your heavy load.
O, man of sorrow, man of grief,
Come unto me and find relief,
I'll make the road a joyful way,
And take you home to endless day,
There you shall lay your burdens down,

And find a scepter and a crown.
Carrie Canter.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I have been a silent reader of page ten for almost a year. I enjoy the letters very much. I have not seen a letter from any of the cousins in Toledo since I have been taking The Herald. Wake up, cousins in Toledo. I am five feet, four and one-half inches tall and weigh 120 pounds. I have dark brown hair. I go to High School. My age is between fourteen and eighteen. Who ever guesses my age I will write to them. Dear cousins, how many of you have a testimony for Jesus? I praise Jesus for saving a poor lost sinner like me. After Jesus saved me I served him for months until I wandered away into sin. Praise God, last August he called me back to the fold and since then I've been living a victorious, happy life. This day I can say from the depth of my heart I love my Savior better than my life. I could not live without him. I am determined to serve him all the days of my life. Dear cousins, remember me in your prayers. If there is any one who reads this and does not know Christ as his personal Savior, Jesus is willing to save you any time you are sorry for your sins and come to him for forgiveness. There is no need in life that God has not provided for: light for the eye, sound for the ear, food and clothing for the body, problems for the mind; redemption for the sinners. He has handled the sin-problem in absolute completeness. The man who continues to live in sin, does it because he is ignorant of the Gospel, or stubbornly refuses to accept its provisions. God will provide for your need of salvation. He has a cure for sin which is your most important need. If you wish to know how you may become a Christian look up in your Bible Isa. 1:18; John 1:11, 12; John 3:16; John 5:24; Rom. 10:9, 10. I shall write to all of the cousins who will write to me, so boys and girls don't forget to write to me. Eunice Helm, you owe me a letter. God bless you dear cousins and Aunt Bettie. Marguerite Hess.

Rt. 1, Box 2, Woodville Rd., East Toledo, Ohio.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a little Arkansas girl join your happy band of boys and girls? I am ten years old. I have dark bobbed hair, gray eyes and fair complexion. I go to school every day, and am in the fourth grade. I go two miles and a half to school. Who has my birthday, April 17? I will answer all the letters I receive. I am five feet tall, and weigh 95 pounds. Hazel L. Laughlin, I guess your age to be fifteen. Am I right? I had better get my hat and go before Mr. W. B. gets me and eats me up, as he sometimes does.

Juanita H. Gentry.
Rt. 2, Searcy, Ark.

Dear Aunt Bettie: How are you and the rest of the boys and girls? I have not received any letters from the cousins. My grandfather takes The Herald and I enjoy page ten. I was sanctified at the last revival we had. I go to Sunday school every Sunday if I am not sick. Well I guess I must close as some one else will want to write. With lots of love. Mary Louise Hampshire.
Rt. 3, Salesbury, Md.

Dear Aunt Bettie: This is my first letter to The Herald. I hope I can write again. My mother takes The Herald. Who is my twin? I was born July 20. My age is between nine and thirteen. To anyone who guesses my age I will gladly write. I go to school. My teacher's name is Bertha Coomes. I like her fine. I weigh 138 pounds. I have three sisters. I have brown hair, blue eyes and fair complexion. My height is five feet, four inches. My mother is dead. Lizzie A. Bragg.
Sparksville, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I am a little Georgia girl. Will you please let me join your happy band of girls and boys? I have medium complexion, brown eyes and light brown hair. Who has my birthday, May 17? I am nine years of age. My mother is dead, but I stay with my grandmother, and I enjoy her reading page ten. I am a Christian and so is my grandmother. I hope very much to see my letter in print. My teacher's name is Miss Martin. I had better close for this time. With love to Aunt Bettie and all of her cousins. Velma Elben.
Lebanon, Ga.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Here comes a little girl from Missouri. I haven't seen but a few letters from the good old state of Missouri. I will be twelve this coming June. I have black hair and dark gray eyes. Mama says to include the freckles on my nose. My teacher's name is Blanche Wiggins, and the preacher's name is J. W. Ridley. I go to the M. E. Church. I have been saved. I have three sisters and three brothers. I like to read The Herald. We live on the farm. Eliza J. K. Egley.
Alexandria, Mo.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Here goes my first letter to The Herald. I guess you will let me join, won't you? I am the youngest in the family, but have three sisters and one brother. My oldest sister is married and has a baby girl, but I have never seen my niece, although she is two years old. My married sister, Mrs. Olga Sells, got acquainted with her husband at Asbury College. I am nine years old and in the fourth grade. There are six in our class at school counting myself. My teacher's name is Miss Marvel. I like her very well. I broke my arm coming home from school Jan. 12, 1927; it hurt quite a bit. I missed two days of school, but went again yesterday. Miss Marvel has to help me put on my wraps. I must close and let my other cousins write. Elda Pearl Eberle.

Deek Creek, Okla.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Mother is sending in her renewal to The Herald, so thought I would write to you and the cousins. Why do I not see any more letters from the North Dakota cousins? I think we should wake up or the cousins from the other states will get ahead of us. If Miss Cave will write to me I will send her a few pieces for her Mission quilt. I have mislaid The Herald with her letter in and therefore cannot send them until I get her address again. Who has my birthday, June 26? Would like to hear from some of the cousins. Helen S. Dressler.
Perth, N. D.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a little Indiana boy join your happy band of boys and girls? I am ten years old and my birthday is on the 17th of November. I have blue eyes, brown hair. I weigh 63 pounds. I am in the fifth grade at school. I am four and one-half feet tall. The ground is covered with a thin sheet of ice, and I can't go to school. I go to Sunday school every Sunday I can. At school the children are always talking about going to a dance or a show. I am the only one at my school who does not go to places like that. Mayme Mullin.
Rushville, Ind.

Dear Aunt Bettie: How are you and the cousins getting along? This is my first letter to The Herald. My father takes The Herald and I enjoy reading page ten. I live on a farm. I like to go to school. I am eight years old. My birthday is April 29. Who has my birthday? Would like to see this in print. Ina Cummins.
Rt. 4, Box 54, Falmouth, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I've never seen a letter from North Dakota from page ten, so I guess I will write. My neighbor gets The Pentecostal Herald and gives it to us. I enjoy reading page ten. My sister surely enjoys all of it because when she gets it I can't make her do anything else until she finishes it. I go to the M. E. Sunday school, church, and Junior League. We have a good preacher who looks just, or nearly like, Abraham Lincoln. I am starting from the beginning of the Bible and am going to read a chapter every day. I was converted two years ago and am trying to live a Christian life. I am thirteen years old and go to school. I am in the seventh grade. I live about one-half a mile from town on the creek. I have brown hair and gray eyes and am four and one-half feet tall. I just learned to skate a few days ago. Mary Seeman.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Here I come for the first time. I am nine years old. My school teacher's name is Miss Conaughty. I have two sisters, Harriett and Margaret. Harriett is six years old and Margaret is three. I go to the M. E. Church. When The Herald comes I always turn to page ten. I love Jesus and I want to do what he wants me to do. Bernard E. Dickinson.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Would you let a little Iowa girl join your happy band of cousins? I am eight years old. I would like to have one of your cousins guess my first name. It has seven letters in it; also a name of a town. Starts with M and ends with A. What is it? M. A. Goings.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let me join your happy band of boys and girls? I am fourteen years old, have dark hair, dark complexion, and gray eyes. I go to school every day I can get there. My teacher's name is Mr. Robert Winfrey. I like him fine for a teacher. How many of the cousins like history? As for myself, I don't like it much. I like geography. I have a finger cut off; my forefinger on my left hand. I weigh about 103 pounds. My birthday is August 23. I was born in 1912. FALLEN ASLEEP

STOUT.

Mary E. Stout, one of eleven children born to Joseph and Emily Stout, was born March 1, 1861, and departed this life on November 21, 1926, at 3:00 A. M., being 65 years, 8 months, and 21 days of age.

She was married to Adrian V. Criswell on April 7, 1886; to this union seven girls were born, Emma, Dela, Jennie, Rose, Laura, Blanche and Edith, Jennie and Edith having preceded her to their heavenly home some years ago. Besides her own children she reared two nephews, Joseph T. Robinson and Clarence H. Robinson and for a number of years Thos. J. Stout, her youngest brother, made his home with her.

Early in life she gave her heart to God and united with the Methodist Episcopal Church at Little York, Ind., and has since that time lived a life of devotion and loyalty to Christ and his Church and has in a very large measure reflected the life of the Master, in that she has given herself freely in service to her neighbors. Unmindful of self or pleasure she sought diligently to relieve suffering wherever she found it, ministering to the needs of her family and friends. She has endeared herself to the hearts of all who knew her.

Truly can it be said of her, "She has fought a good fight" and "kept the faith," and we know she is occupying the mansion prepared for her by the Master, as a few hours before she went away, she called the family and friends who were there and told them she was not going to die, but just going home to Heaven, and called the nephews to ask them to meet her in heaven; seeing she wouldn't be able to talk when one of them arrived, she just left her message with the family for him.

She has been a sufferer of rheumatism for many years. A little more than three weeks ago, she fell, and from that time had kept her bed. All that loving hands and hearts could do was done but Jesus saw best and took her to her reward and thus relieved her of her suffering. She leaves to mourn their loss the husband, five daughters, one brother, one sister, six grandchildren and many other relatives and friends.

On November 23rd, at 1:30 P. M., a short service was held at the home conducted by Rev. J. O. Scott, of Scotsburg, one song, "No Burdens Yonder," was furnished by the Rev. Walter Mosley and wife of Uniontown. The funeral services were held at the Methodist Episcopal Church, conducted by Rev. S. S. Spaulding, her pastor, assisted by Rev. H. W. Woodbridge, of Marengo, a former pastor. Music was furnished by the choir of both the M. E. and Christian Churches, who sang some of her favorite hymns. The remains were laid to rest in the Mounts Cemetery, besides the two daughters gone on before.

Mother's form we lay beneath the sod,
'Tis all that is a-soiling;
She is now enjoying her rich reward,
For all these years of toiling.

Dear father and sisters, let us strive,
To love and serve each other;
And do God's will while here on earth,
In memory of our mother.

Each of us must leave our abode,
And go from this world to another;
We'll strive to live that all may say,
That we've lived in honor of mother.

Death has today taken mother away,
All we possess is her treasures;
The life God gave her she gave to us children,
Heaping and full were the measures.

SHADER.

The following tribute to the late Tom Shader, is paid by Rev. C. F. Wimberly, former pastor of the Glasgow Methodist Church of which Mr. Shader was a devout member:

The writer first became acquainted with Tom Shader in 1912, when I assisted Rev. R. T. Brown in a revivifying meeting at Glasgow. Then in 1918 I went to Glasgow as pastor of the Methodist Church; our Christian friendship and brotherly love ripened with the years. The news of his serious illness and approaching end, caused me a sadness as genuine as if some loved one by ties of blood had been afflicted in the same manner. The truth is, there are ties stronger than those of blood. I loved Tom Shader devotedly, and as I have loved few men. To me he was so truly guileless and sincere, that there was never a fear entertained that I might do something for which he would criticize me, and place on it a wrong construction. Others did misunderstand, and no doubt found cause for just criticism of some things I have said or done; but not so with Tom. He seemed to see deeper into my heart, and to understand me to a greater degree than others who were close to my life. I mention these things to give my estimate and analysis of this precious man of God.

We wish to say further, concerning this brother's spiritual discernment. We have had the privilege through a long stretch of years to have among congregations the rich and the poor; learned and unlearned, captains of industry and men of all professions; but Tom Shader had as much religious intelligence as any man that ever sat under my ministry. The sounding brass and the tinkling cymbal never deceived him for a moment. As we once heard Dr. Morrison say, in another matter, as an illustration: "Ye can no more fool him as to the calibre of preaching, than you can fool a Kentucky thoroughbred as to the difference between bluegrass and dog-fennel."

I can say this truthfully in regard to Tom Shader. He belonged to the class who knew. The number of people whose knowledge of God and his word enables them to appreciate the difference between the genuine and the spurious message, is few; but he belonged to those who knew.

His superior religious intellect was not an accident; but it was founded first of all on a deep, conscious religious experience; and second, he was a close, careful student of the Bible and religious literature. He found great pleasure in corresponding with cripples and shut-ins all over the country, and kept a large collection of pictures of his many friends whom he had never seen. This was unique ministry, and the many little girls and afflicted over the country will verify these words.

Tom Shader was modest and unassuming; a man of few words, and for this reason he would not bring twenty-five cents on the dollar of his real worth in the big world markets among men; one had to really know Tom Shader to appreciate him. His going away was a serious personal loss to me.

Should I ever return to Glasgow, there will be a distinct void, even among the many fine men and religious characters who remain—men and women that I know and love for their true worth; but two faces will be missed that cannot be duplicated: Tom Shader and Armstrong Hill. I loved Brother Hill as truly as I loved Brother Shader, but the men were different. From my viewpoint, the loss of those two men is irreparable; loss to the community, loss to the domestic life of each, loss to the highest ideals of society and church life. When I think of Glasgow without these two men, there is an ache in my heart that brings a sense of deep loneliness. I shall always thank God that it was my privilege to know and love two such men. And may God bless to the good of their memory which is like sweet incense in the temple of God.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

REV. O. G. MINGLEDORFF, D.D.

LESSON XII.—March 27, 1927.

Subject.—Review: Studies in the Christian Life. Matt. 5:1-10.

Golden Text:—If ye love me, keep my commandments. John 14:15.

Dr. E. Stanley Jones has written a little book that he calls The Christ of the Indian Road. It is a thrilling volume for almost any one, but especially for him who can read between the lines; for the book suggests a thousand times more than it tells. Two things rush squarely to the front in this book: (1) The missionaries by the distribution of Bibles and their own personal message, have in large measure impressed upon the people of India their own conception of Jesus Christ; (2) the natives as they listen to the preaching of the missionaries and read the Bible, are forming for themselves an Indian conception of Christ. The latter must take place, there being no alternative; and it is best that they should form their own conception of him. If we could give them ours, it would not fit their innate style of thinking, their peculiar psychology. That does not mean that their Christ will be inferior to ours. He may be superior. No two of us have the same conception of Christ; and yet the aggregate of all our conceptions forms the American conception of him; and ours is different from that entertained concerning him by any other nation on the earth. We are anxious to know what the Indian conception of him will be, but the beginning will not portray the finish. Maybe we shall never be able to see him as India will see him.

For three months we have been studying Jesus Christ; and if we have been faithful to our task, our convictions concerning him have changed a good bit during our study. One thing is certain, as we have contemplated him and his manner of life, and as we have listened to him as he has been telling us how to live, our own characters have undergone no little change. As we with open face have been beholding as in a glass the glory of the Lord, we have either been changed into the same image from glory to glory by the Spirit of the Lord, because we have yielded ourselves to him; or else we have stiffened our necks and hardened our hearts against him, and are worse beings now than we were at the beginning of the year. What shall we say for ourselves?

To follow Jesus is to live as he lived, not in the letter, but in the spirit. "He that saith he abideth in him ought himself also so to walk, even as he walked." But that calls for Christlikeness; but now I am in trouble, for my idea of him is not yours, and yours is not mine. When I think of him, three thoughts rush into my mind: (1) I think of God in all the perfection of all his infinite attributes; (2) I think of perfect man, without the taint of sin, or the debilitating touch of disease; (3) I am lost in the contemplation of the infinite mystery of the everlasting union of the two, resulting in a single personality that bridges forever the deep, sin-blasted chasm that once separated between us and the Godhead. I cannot understand it; but glory to God, I know it is true; for I have tried the bridge. Form your best conception of Jesus, and then by God's grace live up to it; and your sun will never set. This is our standard of Christian living set forth in the second lesson.

But this standard calls for the Bible, that wonderful book of sixty-six books, a library in itself, written by thirty-five different authors over a period of sixteen hundred years, with a blood-red line running through it from Genesis to Revelation, that spells the saving blood of the Lamb of God on the cross of Calvary. It tells us all we really know about God, tells us whence men came and whither they are bound. It is full of history, song, poetry, philosophy and religion. It tells us how to live here below so as to shun hell and to reach heaven at last. It comforts and strengthens us while we live, and soothes us in the dying hour, pulls back the curtain of eternity and fills our souls with a hope that is worth more than ten thousand worlds. This book we must study, and pattern our lives after its teachings, if we would walk as Jesus walked.

But the Bible would soon become dry and tasteless if we could not commune with him who inspired its writing. I am not sure that the saying that God shines upon the pages of the Book is correct; but while in faith we worship and pray, he shines into our hearts and opens our understandings, that we may understand the Scriptures. "Prayer is the Christian's native breath." As Jesus is continuing to pray since his ascension to heaven, the inference is that we shall forever have that privilege ourselves. There is no reason why we should ever have to cease our devotions. We shall never "bid farewell to Thee, Sweet Hour of Prayer."

In this life we are overcomers through much prayer. We conquer sin and Satan in proportion as we tarry at the mercy seat. As we worship and adore and continue with the Triune God, our souls expand and grow into the divine likeness. Our association with great and noble human souls is glorious. Their companionship makes us wiser and better. Little souls could not remain little and follow along with St. Paul in his missionary journeys. John Wesley's lay-preachers grew great because they feasted upon Wesley's soul and brains. So when we feast upon God in our worship, we find ourselves filled with new and better motives; and our thoughts and purposes taken up with better things in life. "Prayer changes things"; and most of all, it changes us, so that we become "more than conquerors through him that loved us and gave himself for us."

In some way, as we walk and talk with Jesus, and read the blessed Bible, our purse-strings come untied; and we grow liberal as we realize that we are his stewards, entrusted with his goods to occupy till he shall come to reckon with us. As we renounce personal ownership in ourselves, wealth, life and time all become very sacred. "Ye are not your own: ye are bought with a price, even the precious blood of Jesus." Therefore we cannot live for ourselves, but for him.

In view of all these things, how strange it would be if the saints did not strive to have Christian homes. When Joshua was growing old, he said to straying Israel: "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord." A sinful home is a dark place in which to bring up children. They have a right to be brought up in the "nurture and admonition of the Lord"; and we are cheats when we deny them this God-given right. But it must be forever remembered that there can be no such thing as a Christian home without Bible study and much earnest praying.

From our homes we must go into our churches for worship and service. Our homes cannot be religious when our churches are neglected. The Christianity of our homes should make the Christianity of our churches. Only as our homes are filled with divine life and warmth will we be able to keep our churches alive. Not only must the Christian support the Church with his sympathy and his prayers; but his finances must be as liberal as possible. There are no stingy Christians among us.

The Church, through all her members, is charged with responsibility for the salvation of the lost. Our light must shine, that others may see our good works, and glorify our Father Who is in heaven. We are the salt of the earth, put here to save lost souls; but if we lose our saving power, we are good for nothing. A church that has no conversions about her altars is no better than a club. She is dead.

A real church will share the good news of salvation with all the world. It will have a care for the lost in its neighborhood, and it will be a missionary church, sending the Gospel to the ends of the earth. Nothing less can suffice. Living thus in touch with the Lord, such a church lives and rejoices in an eternal hope that is as pure and bright as heaven itself.

WHAT GOD IS DOING IN CAMDEN, NEW JERSEY.

A few people in Camden believe that the time of revivals has not passed and that his promise, "Jesus Christ the same yesterday, and today and forever" is for his children today. Not only is it believed, but has also been proven in the case of the holiness work at Wesley Chapel, which has been recently organized in Camden. Some ten years ago the building which now stands as a beacon light for the Old Faith, and which was originally a motion picture house, was opened as a mission, and was supported by a few Christian business men. Like every work of its kind it passed through some trials and was overshadowed by many a cloud; yet through it all Bros. John Pidgeon and Pew stood true in prayer and loyal in support, hoping that some day it would prove a blessing to Camden.

In the fall of 1925 God raised up a preacher of the old John Wesley doctrine whom he has used as an instrument in the establishing of this work. In September of the above year and also the spring of 1926, Rev. Preston E. Kennedy, a preacher of the Old Faith who has evangelized through the east for more than twenty-five years, held two blessed and successful revival meetings. With many new spiritual babes as the result of the meetings, and many who entered into the sanctified experience, and no place in the city proper to receive full gospel teaching, it seemed very necessary that something be done. After prayerful consideration the board decided that a holiness work in that particular part of the city would be more beneficial than a mission. Learning that the evangelist was heavily burdened for South Jersey, he was asked to pastor the proposed new work. Rev. Kennedy accepted the appointment with the understanding that he would spend part of his time in the evangelistic field. In September the building was renovated and many improvements were made, including the enlarging of the down-stairs, new flooring, metal ceiling, stain glass windows and many minor adjustments. On October 10, the building was reopened and dedicated; the place was crowded with hungry souls and the blessing of God was on all of the services of the day. In the afternoon service $1,700 was raised for the improvements and many pledges were made for the support of the work. Every service since has brought blessing to those present and a spirit of revival is prevalent. God is providing every need and the work is growing in spiritual depth; all praise to the Giver of every good gift.

Recently Rev. Floyd N. Bradley, who is also an evangelist, has been appointed as assistant pastor. The pastors and congregation extend a hearty invitation to all preachers and evangelists to visit the Chapel when in or near Camden, the address being 823-825 Elm St. Our doors are opened for holiness conventions and Bible conferences.

Pray with us that God will continue to bless and add to the work daily such as shall be saved.

F. N. Bradley.

"Human life is crowded with possibilities, but the best and highest of them all is that we may be delivered out of all sin and guilt, and made like unto God himself in time and for eternity," so says James McClure in his book, "Possibilities." It is packed full of illustrations; interesting and helpful. The regular price is $1.00. Our special price is 50c.

SHEPHERDSTOWN, W. VA.

I was converted at Gilboa, Ohio, forty-nine years ago tonight at ten o'clock; all is well. Being older one would naturally suppose that I would know and enjoy more if opportunities had been rightly improved. I found myself rushing, or rather being rushed on to the time and place where I would be required to give a strict account of my kind of faith and knowledge to the Judge Eternal. If my coronation depended upon the kind and quality of my faith and knowledge rather than the quantity and variety, plainly there seemed but one thing to do. I put my own faith and knowledge of the Christian doctrine and the creed of Methodism to a prolonged examination, and also denominational and other religions. Of these there were so many with endless shades of meaning that it seemed difficult to know what to believe. I made the Incarnation and Atonement, the requirements of the Scriptures, my dependent nature, and the judgment the standard. What else could I do? When I found Christ Jesus, the "Chief Corner Stone," I had only one starting point and not any one of a hundred or more, thus removing many of my difficulties at one stroke. If Methodism had the essential truth, why not find it out; if some other creed contained the profound secret why not know? As an ambassador of Christ Jesus I should be able to speak with authority which I could not do if the creed of Methodism did not measure up to the standard.

From a child I have heard those holding a creed sharply criticised and denounced. I looked about, and to this day I have not found a creedless sinner, moralist, church member, denomination, organization, society, infidel, Modernist, Pagan or Christian, and how could I be creedless? I have found folks, even some Methodists, with a number of conflicting creeds, unable to tell one from the other and did not know of a certainty whether they were coming or going. They could not tell the vital and workable difference between Modernism and Christianity. Perhaps this is what is meant by a creedless believer, one who is inefficient and powerless for good. If there are creedless bodies, members, Modernists or moralists there are no creedless Christians. I do not say that the rank and file are responsible for this defective understanding, for they are not, and I would not put myself where I would be responsible for their ignorance of vital truth.

Therefore I have proclaimed the necessity of repentance and pardon for all transgressors, for the sins of omission as well as the sins of commission, and to one and all, young and old the necessity of the regeneration and sanctification of the soul here and now, and that no one cometh unto the Father but through faith in Christ Jesus the only begotten Son of God, and the peace of God that passeth all understanding, and the joy that is abiding, fills all my soul tonight.

L. I. McDougle.

I HAVE MINE—HAVE YOU YOURS?

"The Christ of the Indian Road," by E. Stanley Jones. I have read it through once; am reading it the second time. It will bear a third reading. It is in a class of its own. I bespeak for it an immortal name; on a parallel with Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress." Young preachers should get it, read it, study it. I never read its equal. Get it.—M. L. Custer.

YOUR DISLIKE AND MINE.

Rev. Walter E. Isenhour.

I may not say just what you like,
Nor like just what you say;
But let us love each other, dear,
And for each other pray.

I need your love and you need mine;—
We neither one need hate;—
We need to bless each other's lives
Before it is too late.

I need your hand of helpfulness,
And so do you need mine;
We need each other's sympathy,
Each other's treatment kind.

I may not like just what you do,
Nor do what you think best;
But let's forgive each other's faults,
And die and go to rest.

I may not like just all your ways,
And neither you like mine;
But let us look for nobler things,
Which make our lives sublime.

Our Lord will give us eyes to see
The good our lives contain,
If we but trust Him as we should,
And from the wrong refrain.

He has the grace we all need most,
The grace to make us good,
And freely gives to everyone
Who'll use it as he should.

EXAMINE THYSELF.

By The Editor.

THE inspired Apostle exhorts us to examine ourselves and see whether or not we be in the faith. Merchants at the close of the year make an inventory of their stock. They must know what they have on hand, something of its value, whether or not they must reduce the price in order to get rid of old goods and secure cash with which to buy new goods. We suppose that no merchant could hope to be successful who did not occasionally make an inventory of his stock on hand. Why may not this be true with reference to the spiritual life? Ought we not occasionally to make a careful invoice of our spiritual stock, see what we have on hand, what growth, what development, what sinking out of self into Christ?

* * * *

We are not to be content if we are not producing fruit. It will be remembered that Jesus once blasted with his Word a barren fig tree, root and branch. The record does not tell us that this fig tree was exuding poison, that it produced snakes which grew long and slimy, ripened, dropped off and ran about the country biting people to death. No, the tree was not doing the community great harm. It was failing to produce fruit. We are all trees planted in the vineyard of the Lord and the parable of this fig tree teaches us that we are under divine inspection and that notwithstanding the gracious patience of the Lord by and by he will say of the barren tree, "Cut it down. Why cumbereth it the ground?"

* * * *

So, my dear reader, let's ask ourselves. "Have I truly repented of my sins, sorrowed for them, forsaken them, exercised faith in Christ, experienced forgiveness and regenerating power? Am I hungering and thirsting after righteousness and pressing on with eager heart for the enjoyment of the fullness of the blessing of the Gospel of Christ? Am I honest in my dealings with my fellowmen, am I truthful in all my conversation? Is dishonesty and falsehood abhorrent to me? Am I chaste in my thinking or my imagination, free from vanity and self-exaltation? Can I bear opposition and suffer wrong without resentment or any desire for retaliation? Can I suffer long and be kind? Am I entirely free from the censorious spirit? Can I be neglected, contradicted, or even persecuted and preserve a spirit of sweetness and compassion toward those who misuse me? What about me? Am I orthodox? Is my faith in the Bible and the Christ of the Bible unhesitating? Do I go still further than a mere belief of the truth and trust the Lord Jesus whole-heartedly for my salvation? And have I the abiding witness of the Spirit? Am I striving for holiness of heart and righteous living? These are searching questions and no doubt they are practical. Let's not fear to ask them of ourselves, face them frankly and give positive answers.

* * * *

My dear reader, are you doing this? Is GOOD SEED PRODUCE GOOD HARVEST.

There is nothing more important than the sowing of good spiritual literature among the people. We receive letters from a host of preachers who thank us for what The Pentecostal Herald means to them, and the inspiration they get out of it in the preparation of their messages for the future. Often they tell us that some friend sent them the paper, and that from that time they have been constant readers of the paper.

We want, in the next sixty days, to donate The Herald to FIVE THOUSAND preachers, many of them among men who are entering upon their ministerial career. At $1.50, the price of the paper, that would amount to $7,500. The Pentecostal Publishing Co., will donate $2,500 of this amount. Will the great Herald family donate the remaining $5,000? This will mean the sowing of good seed in the very best of soil. There are thousands of godly women and devout men who will gladly give one dollar to put The Herald into some young preacher's home for twelve months. Send in the name and address, with the dollar; if you have no one especially in mind, send the dollar and we shall find the preacher. This is a great, good work. Help us to sow the seed.

your life an active service? Are you a witness for Christ? Are you a worker in the church? Do you visit the poor, the sick and the imprisoned? Have you a word of fellowship and encouragement for the ignorant? Are you kind and patient toward the vicious? Are you reaching out the helping hand toward the downtrodden and the outcast so dear to the heart of Christ? Are you helping to make your home a little more comfortable? Are you bringing some happiness to your fireside, some good cheer to your table? Are you improving your opportunities for mental culture? Are you curbing your physical appetite? Are you careful to preserve your health? Are you planting a young tree that will produce shade and fruit for others when you have gone? Are you pulling up some noxious weed by the roots before its seeds ripen to scatter and produce a great family of weeds? Are you picking up a nail off the highway now and then that might puncture a tire of your neighbor's car? Are you making your life felt for good? Are you rising up into broader and deeper things and striving to bring others with you? Very well, have a talk with yourself and be sure that whatever the past may have been the future shall be a life of earnest endeavor to do good and get good by the help of God.

THE REMEDY.

PART IV.

REACHING of the truth is one of the most powerful remedies in the world for all evil. Mighty preachers of the gospel of Jesus Christ are indeed the salt of the earth, and the light of the world. Give us preachers, cleansed with the atoning blood of Christ, filled with the Holy Ghost, called of God, with a mighty passion for the salvation of souls, and through them God can bring things to pass.

It was by preaching that Paul stirred the Pagan world, and started going the powerful influence that spread the gospel and built up the Church of Christ. It was by preaching that Martin Luther drove back the tides of ignorance and superstition, stirred the dry bones in the valley of a dead ecclesiasticism, and thrilled the hearts of men with the great truth of salvation by faith. It was by preaching that John Wesley awakened the sleeping multitudes of England, aroused Ireland, stirred Wales, and sent a torch of evangelistic fire across the oceans and around the world, bringing in the greatest revival since the days of the apostles. It was by preaching that Charles G. Finney broke the power of infidelity and universalism in the New England and Middle States, turned back the tides of unbelief, and did much to save this nation for vital Protestantism. It was by preaching that Dwight L. Moody brought on one of the most gracious revivals in the history of the American people, and led untold thousands of prodigal sons and daughters back to the Father's house. It was by preaching that Sam Jones and Billy Sunday sowed broadcast in this nation the truths that counted tremendously in putting out the fires of the distilleries and the breweries, closed the saloons and saved millions of human beings from the curse of drunkenness.

The great need of the nation and the world today is a well trained, powerfully saved, Spirit-filled ministry. Give us preachers of the right kind and we need have no doubt or question but God will be glorified, men will be saved, politics and commerce will be purified, there will be social betterment everywhere, and a spiritual church will permeate, with its gracious influence, every class of society, crime will be stayed, and there will be prosperity and progress along every line for the uplift and blessing of humanity. These facts have burned in my soul for years. They stimulated and stirred me in meeting a thousand difficulties in the upbuilding of Asbury College. A holy passion to send out into the world a well trained, Spirit-filled ministry, puts youth and vigor into my old age. Oh, how I wish fifty-thousand earnest, honest children of God could see and feel this tremendous need as I see and feel it, for one year's time. What wonderful things we could do toward remedying the evils in the world, toward the evangelization of these United States, the turning back of the tides of skepticism, immodesty, lawlessness and sin of every kind.

I suppose it is well known to THE HERALD readers that I am now president of the Theological Seminary, Asbury College, Wilmore, Ky. We have an excellent faculty of highly educated, well trained, godly men, absolutely loyal to the Bible, to the vital truths emphasized by John Wesley and his co-workers. They have no sympathy with any of the

The Religion of the Narrow Way vs. The Religion of Main Street

Rev. G. W. Ridout, D.D., Corresponding Editor.

A few years ago Rev. Percy S. Grant, the noted liberal preacher of New York City—the man who, though occupying a Protestant pulpit, preached in it pure infidelity and modernism of the rankest sort—put out a book entitled “The Religion of Main Street.” In this book he said such things as:

“Most of the clergymen I talk with agree with me in the points just mentioned.”

“The time has come for plain speaking in the pulpit. Today we need to know enough of economics to save civilization. Our minds are stuffed out with religious fables and we are not disposed to study the facts of life nor have our minds made ready for them.”

“We don’t need outworn religious authority because the laws of the soul are laws that can enforce themselves.”

“Very few clergymen today who have been educated in the large universities accept the idea that Jesus had the power of God.”

“Consecration of churches is a custom inherited from the age of witchcraft, magic and taboo.”

The papers announced last week the death of Dr. Grant. We once heard him at the Methodist Preachers’ Meeting in New York. He got off the most blatant infidelity that morning in which he said that he did not go into the Baptist Church where he belonged because they required him to get converted. He further said that preachers need to bring their theology up to the new psychology, etc., etc., etc. At the close one prominent Methodist preached moved a vote of thanks to Dr. Grant and bade him God-speed!! Shades of Wesley!!! What has Methodism dropped down into?

My title suggests a contrast. The Religion of Main Street is the religion of unbelief, skepticism, irreverence, unitarianism, modernism. But let us wake up to the fact that this kind of religion is spreading all over the land.

On the other hand, let us note some things about the religion of the narrow way.

1. The Religion of the Narrow Way is that which honors Jesus Christ.

The following incident illustrates this point:

The Emperor Theodosius was a pervert to Arianism, that doctrine which denied that Jesus Christ was the Son of God and equal with the Father. After reigning for several years, Theodosius decided to make his son Arcadius, a lad of sixteen, a partner with himself in the government of the empire. When the royal will was made known, the nobles and great men of the day assembled to pour congratulations upon the new and youthful wearer of the imperial purple. Among the gay company was a bishop named Amphilocus. He made a well-worded and loyal address to the emperor, and was about to take his leave when Theodosius exclaimed: “What! do you take no notice of my son? Do you not know that I have made him my partner in the empire?”

Upon this the good old man placed his hands upon the head of young Arcadius and said: “The Lord bless thee, my son!”

The emperor, irritated to the point of fury, exclaimed: “What! is this all the respect you pay to the prince that I have made equal in dignity with myself?”

Amphilocus, looking the emperor full in the face, replied: “Sire, you do so highly resent my apparent neglect of your son, because I do not give him equal honor with yourself. Then what must the Eternal God think of you when you degrade his co-equal and co-eternal Son to the level of one of his creatures?”

2. The Religion of the Narrow Way is Reverential.

THE SALVATION OF THE SOUL.

This is a present salvation, already received by all believers in the Lord Jesus Christ. “In whom, though now ye see Him not, yet believing, ye rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory, receiving the end of your faith, the salvation of your souls” (1 Pet. 1:8, 9).

1. It is a great salvation (Heb. 2:3).
2. It is an eternal salvation (Heb. 5:9).
3. It is a wonder to angels and prophets (1 Peter 1:10-12).
4. It is a personal salvation (Isa. 12:2).
5. It is obtained by faith (Rom. 10:4-10).
6. It is brought to all men (Titus 2:11).
7. It is found only in Christ (Acts 4:12).

Future Salvation.

This refers to the redemption of the body at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ. “Who are kept by the power of God through faith unto salvation ready to be revealed in the last time” (1 Peter 1:5).

1. It will be revealed at His coming (Heb. 9:28).
2. It is drawing near continually (Rom. 13:11).
3. It is the hope of the Christian (1 Thess. 5:8, 9).

The Prayer of Asa.

2 Chron. 14:11.

1. It was earnest—“Asa cried unto the Lord.”
2. It was personal—“Unto the Lord his God.”
3. It was definite—“Help us, O Lord our God.”
4. It was a prayer of faith—“We rest on Thee.”
5. It recognized the power of God—“It is nothing with Thee to help.”
6. It had a powerful plea—“In Thy name we go.”
7. It put God on His honour—“Let not man prevail against Thee.”

The following story is told of Daniel Webster: When on one occasion he was asked the question, “Can you comprehend how Jesus Christ could be both God and man?”

With one of those looks, which his contemporaries said none could imitate, the great lawyer and statesman fixed his eyes upon the interrogator and replied: “No, sir, I cannot comprehend it, and I would be ashamed to acknowledge him as my Saviour if I could. Could I comprehend him, he would be no greater than myself, and such is my conviction of accountability to God, my sense of sinfulness before him, and my knowledge of my own incapacity to recover myself, that I feel I need a supernatural Saviour.”

3. The Religion of the Narrow Way is the Religion of the ages.

John Wesley declared at one time when criticised for his doctrinal preaching, “My doctrines are simply the common, fundamental principles of Christianity; they are the plain old religion of the Church of England.”

4. The Religion of the Narrow Way is the Religion that goes in for the soul’s salvation at all costs.

The following story of a great preacher and a great conversion is worth repeating here.

“How much am I offered for this human soul? How much for a soul?” With such words, Rowland Hill won back the crowd which had come to hear him preach in the fields. While he was preaching, Lady Ann Erskine was drawn near in her carriage, and, wishing to hear the famous preacher, she had ordered her coachman to draw up as near to the rude stand he used as a pulpit as possible. Seeing a vacant place behind the stand the driver urged his horses thither. The splendor of the carriage and the fine dress of the occupant, of course, drew the eyes of the crowd from the preacher, and he soon discovered the cause of the diversion. Then came to him the inspiration for one of those eccentric deeds of holy daring for which he was so famous. Turning his back on the crowd that surged about the carriage of the opulent lover of pleasure, he lifted his voice and cried:

“Hear, ye! I summon you to the public auction of a soul. I have here a lady and her equipage to expose for public sale. Her carriage I count as worth not much; the lady is the principal object of this vendue, and she is precious because she has a soul, and it is that soul I now desire to dispose of at public auction. Come, now, what will ye bid for a soul?”

“Do you hear? What am I offered for this human soul? Does not one bid? ‘Yes, I am a bidder.’ It is the world. Well, what will you give? Do you hear the bid? The world says he will give her riches and honor and pleasure. Is that all I am bid for a human soul? It is not enough. She is worth far more, for when the riches are corrupted and the honor mildewed, and the pleasures of this world melted like the snow, she will yet live and pine for greater things. Stand back, O world, I reject thy bid.

“Ha! Here is another bidder. I know thee! Thou art the devil. Well, what dost thou offer? What! You have no more to offer than that? Why, thou outcast of Heaven, that is an old bid, and a rejected bid, and will not serve thee now. ‘The kingdom of the world and the glory of them.’ Bah! The passing centuries should have made thee wiser. She is worth far more than that, for she will continue to exist when the kingdoms of earth and the glory of them shall have long passed away. Go back to thy pit and heat it for those who have sold themselves to thee, but this soul thou canst not have.

“Glory! Listen! Do you hear His voice? I knew he would bid. Do you know who this latest bidder is? Why, he is the Lord Jesus Christ! Let me dare to ask Thee what Thou dost bid, my Lord? He says He will give grace here, and glory hereafter, an inheritance incorruptible and undefiled, and that fadeth not away. Lord, it was just as I expected. I knew that Thou wouldst outbid all the rest. Thy bid I receive for her. I place her at Thy disposal. She is Thine, Lord, sold to Thee at public auction. Do with her what seemeth good unto Thee.”

And then the strange preacher looked into the face of the pale woman, and said: “My lady, do you object to this bargain? Remember, you are not your own; I have sold you this day to Jesus Christ. You are his property from this time henceforth and forevermore. Heaven and earth here attest this sale of yourself to God; dare you withdraw from this solemn, glorious purchase?”

5. The Religion of the Narrow Way brings great Relief to the Sinner and full Redemption to the Believer.

President Mahan testified that “Forty-seven years ago, when my desire for the open vision had become almost insupportably intense, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, I stood face to face with the Sun of Righteousness, feeling his divine healings through every department of my being.”

The grace of entire sanctification glorifies the God of all grace and works a work in the believer’s heart whereby he can attain to complete victory over sin, the world, the flesh and the devil, and serve God “acceptably with reverence and Godly fear.” Heb. 12:28.

It is a grace in which the soul is carried over into a state of Godliness and the joy of the Lord becomes our strength. Those who enter this state can sing:

I have entered the valley of blessing so sweet,
And Jesus abides with me there;
And his spirit and blood makes my cleansing complete,
And his perfect love casteth out fear.

6. The Religion of the Narrow Way is one of Real heart Experience. Dr. H. Bonor expresses it thus:

"I heard the voice of Jesus say,
'Come unto Me and rest':
Lay down, thou weary one, lay down
Thy head upon my breast;
I came to Jesus as I was,
Weary and worn and sad;

I found in Him a resting place,
And He hath made me glad."

"I heard the voice of Jesus say,
'I am this dark world's light;
Look unto Me, thy morn shall rise

And all thy day be bright';
I looked to Jesus, and I found
In Him my Star, my Sun,
And in that light of life I'll walk
Till traveling days are done."

MODERN APOSTLES OF FAITH.

CHAPTER X.

JOSEPH PARKER.

NO country was so well blest during the last half of the Nineteenth Century, in having an unusual number of great preachers, as that of England.

It is the consensus of opinion, that the preacher, par-excellent, however, was C. H. Spurgeon; as a fine type of scholarly and popular preacher, wielding a powerful influence in the higher social and religious circles. Alexander McLaren was outstanding in every particular. There were others nationally known—Mark Guy Pearse, Hugh Price Hughes, might be named. But the religious history of England during the last decades of the century would be incomplete without a summary of Joseph Parker, the great Non-Conformist preacher of London. He could not be compared with Spurgeon and others in certain particulars; but in the realm of stentorian pulpit oratory, with convictions as consuming as ever fired the heart of Peter the Hermit, none were greater than he.

He could not be compared or classified with any other great preacher of his day, any more than Sam Jones could be compared with D. L. Moody or Bishop Marvin. Dr. Parker was original and eccentric; the throngs who waited upon his ministry were often shocked and even dumbfounded by his startling statements, often couched in terms of near-blasphemy. But when they caught their breath, and digested his words, they would see and appreciate the scathing truth conveyed. Dr. Parker was great in physique and brain, and his tremendous physical energy was backed and enhanced by dramatic force, which when aroused by some social outrage or political wrong—was a veritable human dynamo. All London gasped when the preacher of the City Temple trained his guns on the Sultan of Turkey, and with eyes blazing with holy frenzy, called upon God to "damn the Sultan." It was at the time when the Turks were butchering the Armenians by the hundreds with the silent approval of the Sultan. Certainly if ever a statement, invoking the wrath of God was justified, it was in this case. But right or wrong, Dr. Parker could say it, and with the parlanche of the street, "got by with it." This was just one case of many similar ones, and we doubt if any one else except Dr. Parker and Sam Jones, could have done it. Other wielded a keen Damascus blade in the defense of the truth; Dr. Parker mauled with a bludgeon, and pulverized whatever he mauled.

Joseph Parker was born at Hexham on the Tyne, England, May 9, 1830, of humble origin, in that his father was a day laborer, working at the trade of stone mason. This meant that young Parker had no educational or social advantages whatever. His early years were spent as an assistant bread winner for the family. Early in life he acquired a thirst for learning, and became an earnest student, gathering information from every possible source while laboring daily as a wage earner. At the age of fifteen, he enlisted in the National Guards, which were the reserves called out in the time of revolution or strikes; he remained in this service until he was twenty years old.

Wherever he was, as a lad at home toiling ten and twelve hours a day, or in the service of his country, he sought the company, or association, when it was only as a listener of great men—preachers and statesmen. It was a rule of his life to get in close contact with the leading preachers and members of Parliament, whereby he might, in every way possible, catch inspiration from great leaders. He allowed no opportunity to pass without siezing on some principle or data, learned in such a manner. He literally redeemed the time. Not a day passed that did not in some way add to his store of information gleaned in this manner. He formed early in life, the Liberalistic viewpoint on all social, political, and religious questions. All of which, when it came to maturity, headed up in one of the most outstanding Non-Conformist leaders of this country. The problem of the poor, ignorant, and underprivileged held a strong appeal for him. He became the champion of the common people and their needs; having sprung from the stratum of the struggling masses, he knew the meaning of their heart-throbs from personal experience.

When about twenty years of age, young Parker wrote Dr. John Campbell, pastor of the Whitefield Tabernacle, London, for religious advice, touching life service in general, and the ministry in particular. This friendly communication resulted in Joseph Parker finally entering the ministry of the Congregational Church on probation. He served for some time in the capacity of local preacher; this initial ordination opened the door through which he entered boldly, once he got his mental and religious bearings. His first public service as a public speaker was lecturing on the evils of the liquor traffic. His fiery denunciations, his crude but thundering oratory, very soon gained for him an ever-widening reputation. His vigorous utterances, and drastic treatment of those who fattened on the rum business, though often in language immature, was almost startling. The foundation was being laid for him, who became a terror to evil doers, when he reached a place where he spoke with authority. After a reasonable probation, he was given the position of assistant to Dr. Campbell. This gave him the opportunity he had long sought for—a chance to better equip himself for service in the work of the ministry. In connection with his labors in this large pastorate, he attended lectures at the College of London, an institution which afterwards became the University of London.

In 1853, he received a call to the pastorate of the Banbury Congregational Church, and he accepted it, entering upon his new duties just one year from the time he was chosen assistant of Dr. Campbell. He served in this field for five years, and at the end of which, he was beginning to be a recognized leader of the Non-Conformist forces of England, though only twenty-eight years of age. He was then called to the Cavandish Street Church, Manchester, where he then was accorded the leader of the Congregational denomination. His pulpit was a veritable throne of thunder against all wrongs, frauds, and shame, in whatever sphere they operated—political, commercial, or religious. He was the perfect antithesis of Dr. McLaren, then in the same city, and enjoying the zenith of his popularity. Both men were moulders of public opinion; but in a very different manner. Dr. Parker was not only the leader of English Non-Conformity, but he was the head.

While in Manchester, he published his first book: "Ecce Deus," which was a rejoinder to a book which had just appeared, bearing the title of "Ecce Homo." The book was a strong argument, that too much stress must not be given to the humanity of Jesus Christ, so as to overshadow his Deity. We need some more books on Ecce Deus these days. Dr. Parker was a stalwart defender of the authenticity of the Bible and the Godhead of Jesus Christ. All England began to recognize Dr. Parker as her greatest champion of righteousness, and revelation, touching the tenets of faith.

In 1869, he was called to the pastorate of Poultry Church, London; a congregation which was first organized by Dr. Godwin. One of the first things discovered by those people was that their building was inadequate to accommodate those who sought to hear Dr. Parker.

He was one of London's great voices "Crying in the wilderness," as it were, and the multitudes from all London flocked to hear him. In a few weeks a movement was inaugurated for the erection of the City Temple, which was in Halburn Viaduct, and this enterprise was carried to a successful ending. The first service was held in it, May 19, 1874. The cost of this gigantic structure was above $350,000, and if given a modern estimate, would be far above a million dollars. A marvelous proposition for that early period of Protestant church building.

Dr. Parker, on entering this great temple of worship, began a career of unusual power and usefulness. City Temple was his throne, and from it he wielded an influence second to no man in England, although a contemporary of England's three greatest men: William E. Gladstone, Chas. H. Spurgeon, and Alexander McLaren.

Evidently in all walks of life feared him, and he knew his position was secure, as he was backed by a great congregation; he could not be reached by those who sought ratification. When the public was aroused over some great question of moral or political interest, it knew that the Voice in City Temple would pay its respects to it, and it was never disappointed. Dr. Parker feared neither king, nor the nobility. All alike were made to feel the terrific onslaught of his tremendous messages. He was never dull, but always racy, and often his sermons were accentuated with the vernacular of the street. Whatever he chose to say or do, he was big enough to say and do it, without fear or favor. Like our own Sam Jones, his greatest strength seemed to be in his ower of denunciation; his personality was such as to be without comparison or classification. Viewed from any angle, he was unique and original, and for over a quarter of a century he was one of England's ten-talented, high-powered characters, and always standing foursquare for the truest and best in life and godliness.

The University of Chicago gave him the degree of D.D., even before he was honored by institutions of his own country; he was chairman of the Congregational Union of England for many years. Dr. Parker was pre-eminently a preacher; but no man perhaps has given more printed messages in sermons and books than he. He published

Is The Natural Man Sinful?

Rev. Earl B. Parker.

"But the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God: for they are foolishness to him: neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned."—1 Cor. 2:14.

THE verse quoted is found toward the end of the same chapter in which we find that wonderful promise. "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love Him. But God hath revealed them unto us by his Spirit: for the Spirit searcheth all things, yea, the deep things of God." The apostle has been giving in this and the preceding chapter a discourse on the vision of God and the wisdom of men. He has made it clear that, though the wisdom of God is foolishness with men, yet the reverse also is true, and that God has chosen the things which seem to the world weak and foolish that with them he might confound the strength and wisdom of men. Many instances are seen in the history of the Jewish nation, notable among them being the story of Gideon's band, of the blinded and taunted Samson, and of Ahab's army of servants against the Syrian host. It is clear that the chosen people of God were continually a puzzle to the nations about them. There was presented one explanation after another of their victories, as in the case of Benhadad's army when the enemy said that surely Israel's God was a god of the hills, and, if they could fight them in the valley, they would prevail. They found to their sorrow that this was not true. There was no natural explanation of Israel's strength. They could not know the secret, because it was spiritually discerned.

But the sinful nations that opposed Israel in their early history were not the only people to whom the dealings of God were foolishness. The Israelites themselves found it difficult to distinguish carefully between the things which are naturally discerned and those which are spiritually discerned. When they came to the Red Sea, Moses had spiritual discernment to see that they were in the path where God was leading, and that a way would be opened if it took a miracle. The people were not thus in touch with God, and with their natural vision did not discern this at all, but only the barriers ahead and at the side, and the danger approaching behind. If God had not empowered his servant Moses to control the people, no doubt the calamity which seemed inevitable to the natural man would have caused them to turn and surrender, to be led back to a life of slavery more miserable, if possible, than that from which they had escaped.

Another outstanding instance is that of the twelve spies who went from Kadesh to see the promised land. Two of them had a mind to discern spiritual things, else they would never have said, "We are well able to overcome it." The ten, in the littleness of their own perception, said, "We be not able to go up against the people; for they are stronger than we." Oh, the blindness of those whose vision is limited to things which they see with their natural eyes, and understand with their natural minds. Caleb and Joshua saw all that the ten saw, but they saw also what God revealed to them by his Spirit. As did the servant of Elisha when the Lord opened his eyes (2 Kings 6:17), they saw the chariots of God which would make Israel more powerful than a whole nation of giants.

The Scriptures clearly indicate that, while those who have never received the Spirit of God in any degree are eminently "the natural man," yet those who become Christians are still natural, and only let the spiritual man replace the natural in those things which pertain to the Christian life. There is a distinct difference between the natural or psychic man, and the carnal or fleshly man. It is the natural man in us that desires to nourish and preserve our bodies, and we would be loath to dispense with it. The natural man is not sinful in itself, but it is the point of approach which Satan uses to lead the sinner into countless sins by the perversions and excesses of natural appetites, and to cheat the Christian out of countless blessings by making them seem beyond his reach. If spiritual discernment were truly allowed to replace the natural in all things which pertain to the Christian life, all would be well. But this is the point at issue, to distinguish clearly between the realm for which God has given us, and in which he expects us to use, our common sense, and on the other hand the realm in which he expects us to obtain from him, and to use, a wisdom which is not of men, and may be foolishness to the natural man, but is truly the wisdom of God.

Moses failed to distinguish clearly between these two when he complained that he was "slow of speech and of a slow tongue" (Exodus 4:10). This was the discernment of the natural man, and the anger of the Lord was kindled against him when he accepted its verdict instead of the word of the Lord, "I will be with thy mouth, and teach thee what thou shalt say." Saul failed to make a clear distinction when he was commanded utterly to destroy the Amalekites (1 Sam. 15). The spiritual man within him counselled him to obey the command of God by his prophet Samuel, but his natural man discerned the fitness of the animals for sacrifice, and prevailed. The natural man in the prophet Jeremiah said, "I cannot speak: for I am a child" (Jeremiah 1), but his spiritual man understood the revelation of God, "I have put words in thy mouth," and accepted the seemingly impossible. The lives and testimonies of many eminent saints reveal the fact that the greater their progress in spiritual things and the deeper their knowledge of God and of his word, the smaller the realm in which they feel free to decide things for themselves, and the larger that in which they realize the need of divine illumination.

There are many phases of our lives as Christians which seem to us to be purely in the natural realm, but which pertain very definitely to our spiritual lives. In fact there are few of the smallest details of our lives for which God does not desire to give us divine wisdom. The natural man in many Christians says, "I cannot afford to tithe." When their spiritual vision is increased, the difficulties seem just as real, but their spiritual man, able to discern supernatural things, says, "I will prove God" (Mal. 3:10). Many a college student who is a Christian, as he contemplates his chosen work in business, the professions, or even in the Lord's work, will discern with the natural mind the need of overwork until he produces in himself a condition of physical weakness and spiritual leanness. If he would enlarge his vision to include the things discerned by his spiritual man, and not let it be clouded by the hard realities of life, he would say, "Let me, with all my getting, get wisdom; let me have time for prayer and the word if I accomplish nothing else." If every such student would look to the Lord at the beginning of the semester and let him choose his load, he would not be overtaxed physically, mentally, or spiritually. Let us not claim to desire God's will above everything else, and then choose our own load, one which crushes and oppresses us. The natural man, on contemplating a day of difficult tasks, demands an extra amount of rest; his spiritual man seizes extra time for prayer. The spiritual man discerns the voice of the Spirit calling to the foreign field: too often the natural man says, "I am unfitted for such a life," or, "I can make money and send others," and stays at home. Some have made similar excuses not to enter the ministry, and have lived to gain great wealth, but they look back with such great regret to the time when they disregarded their call that they would give all their possessions to be able to retrace their steps. The natural man says, "Let us shorten the revival, lest we overtax our strength": his spiritual man says, "Let God conduct the revival, and let us have souls at any cost." The natural man says, "My companion is beautiful and accomplished; she will make me a splendid wife": his spiritual man says, "Let me know God's will, lest I fall into a snare." When Samuel looked upon the son of Jesse, the natural man noted his merits and said, "Surely the Lord's anointed is before him": the spiritual man discerned the voice of God, which said, "I have refused him: for the Lord seeth not as man seeth" (1 Sam. 16).

There is a yet more intimate realm in which spiritual discernment is by far the better. The natural man in temporal need says, "I am in distress, and there is none to help me": his spiritual man, if he is heard, will say, "My God will supply all your need." The natural man says, "My disease cannot be cured. I must die": his spiritual man says, "With God all things are possible." The natural man says, "There are depths of joy in the Christian life which I desire to experience, but I cannot attain them": the spiritual man grasps the promise, "Delight thyself also in the Lord; and he shall give thee the desires of thy heart." Oh, the joys and blessings we miss because our vision is limited. They have not entered into our hearts because not yet has the Spirit been able to reveal them to us.

The ministry, above all others, should give the true place to spiritual discernment, for they are God's under shepherds, and can lead the flock no farther than they themselves go. The failure to do so is the cause of many an unctious sermon and fruitless call. The spiritual man may say, "I must have a quiet time alone before the evening sermon": the natural man may argue, "This is a pleasant company; let me remain just a little longer." The natural man may say, "This is the best dinner I have had in a long while": may the spiritual man always answer, "Restrain thyself, lest a full stomach give thee a dull brain and a lean soul." The natural man might say, "It would be out of place to end such a visit as this with prayer": his better spiritual self would answer, "To what end do I call, if not to bring the spirit of prayer and to give spiritual help?" Some follow the natural bent, and call where they expect a good time. Others deny themselves this privilege and go where they realize the presence of a need. The natural man often says, "I must search my library for a subject for next Sunday's sermon": his spiritual man says, "God only knows the need of the people; let me live where I can receive his messages and deliver them in the power of his Spirit." The natural man says, "I must graduate from an approved seminary, that my standing may be high among the ecclesiastics, and I may have the place of greatest service": the spiritual man says, "Let me get the training that will make me a greater winner of souls, be my place high or low." The natural man says, "I must find some way to entertain the people, lest they stay at home or go to the place of amusement": his spiritual man gives better advice when he says, "Souls are hungry; if I give them spiritual food they will not wander." The natural man says, "I must preach against the sins of the people, that they may reform": the spiritual man says, "Let me warn my people, but above all let me lead them close to Jesus, so that they will forsake all their sins." In the place of decision above these two is the power of choice, and the course that is taken will depend on the Christian's conception as to which is the wiser of the voices.

Is the natural man sinful, or is it wrong to use common sense? Only so far as it is allowed to replace that better thing God has provided for us, the sensing of the mind of the Lord. The story is told of a man in a northern state who arose one morning to find a blizzard raging. His natural sense told him that it would be foolish to venture out at all. But he had learned that "the foolishness of God is wiser than men," and discerned the voice of the Spirit calling him to go to a town twenty miles away. He made the journey with his team in the face of great difficulties, and arrived in time for a prayer meeting. He was asked to speak, and the power of God came upon him so wonderfully that a far-reaching revival was begun then and there. In the tenth chapter of 2 Corinthians, Paul speaks of himself as "Casting down reasonings (marginal reading), and every high thing that exalteth itself against the knowledge of God." It is well to have sense, and to use it, but it is better always to seek to know the mind of the Lord, lest unconsciously we miss the better way. Reasonings bring all our worries and fears. Spiritual discernment brings such a confidence in God's love and power as takes them all away. The natural man finds the path of duty by the study of conditions and circumstances, and the application of logic, and then steps forward with uncertainty and fear. The spiritual man finds it in the still small voice of the Spirit, and proceeds with a calmness and certainty born of heaven. But only he can understand the voice of the Spirit who gladly follows the path laid out for him. To step aside means to lose the guiding voice.

The question might arise, "What is the good of an education, if so many of the details of life may be spiritually discerned?" It is answered immediately by the manifest blessing of God upon some institutions and the testimony of many students that he sent them there. But the scarcity of such institutions impresses upon us another great fact, that those who strive after the wisdom of this world to the neglect of the wisdom of God are soon in great spiritual darkness. Some years ago it was a common expression that "education without salvation is damnation." Knowledge is not a toy to be lightly handled by those unlearned in the ways of life. Knowledge is power, and its use should by all means be under the control of him who is allwise. If we could always know every fact connected with our problem, and could know with certainty the outcome of every course of action, then our judgment would be much more reliable. God, in his all-wisdom, does know these things, and our affairs are safe in his hands. The ignorant are often led into excesses by the reasoning of their own minds. It is said that a man in the mountains presumptuously allowed a poisonous snake to bite him, through an extreme interpretation of some passage of Scripture. He died physically. Some learned people are led by their reasonings to declare the supernatural impossible. They die spiritually. Every man in his place, whether learned or unlearned, may, like Enoch, walk with God while he walks the earth, and have revealed to him continually the things that God hath prepared for them that love him.

"FOLLOW ME."

Rev. J. F. Knapp, M. A., B. D.

THESE words were often on the lips of our Lord. In the Greek, the Gospels have given us the equivalent of a word meaning "follow" that has a very tender association from the Old Testament. It was Ruth who used this expression when she said to Naomi, "Entreat me not to leave thee or to return from following after thee." There is another common word translated "follow" in the New Testament, but it means to "pursue." We are to "follow", "pursue", "peace", "charity", "righteousness", "holiness," to catch up with these graces and to go on with them. But Jesus never told his disciples to "pursue" him. They were to follow him as sheep follow a shepherd, as men follow one whom they are to serve, to protect, to love, whose burdens they are to lighten and whom they "reach after so they may be joined" to him. It is a humble term that found its use directly in the early Christian name for the servitor in the House of God, the acolyte, who was a steward of lamps and sacramental elements. Later the Captain of the Greek Emperor's bodyguard was given the name Acolouthia or The Follower.

What did Jesus mean when he said, "Follow me?" Let us hear him lay down the life of a follower in his own words. It meant, to forsake all other leaders, "a stranger will they not follow," and to leave all hindering impediments behind, "go sell that thou hast," and to say good bye to dearest friends who might come between, even to the death service for one's own near relatives—"He that loveth father or mother more than me is not worthy of me." "Follow me and let the dead bury their dead." And last of all these preliminary tests, never to turn back, or even to "look" back. "No man having put his hand to the plow, and looking back, is fit for the Kingdom of God." Most of those thus tried never went further. With him who is known as the rich young ruler they turned away sorrowful but secure in their own smug, economic and ecclesiastical position, or like the company of the earliest disciples they were "offended" and "went back, and walked no more with him." To the active experience of following him men had to bring empty hands and hearts that were attached by no material or physical interests, "Ye cannot serve God and mammon."

Then, to "follow" him was (1) to walk "after" him; and to "walk" in God's Word usually means the whole life and conversation; (2) To say "no" to the demands of Self, "let him deny himself" for "Even Christ pleased not himself;" (3) to carry a burden like he carried, "let him take up his cross;" not the glorious jewel encrusted cross of triumphant Christendom, but the cross that meant ignominious death between two thieves; (4) to "be among you as one that serveth," "that where I am there may my servant be;" (5) "to preach the kingdom of God"—at once this was an immediate test and service for that new disciple who would "first go and bury" his father; (6) to find other "followers" and to be "fishers of men" as were Andrew, who "first findeth his own brother Simon, and Philip," who "findeth Nathanael." Finally to "follow him" was to go on into the "afterwards" which was such an enigma to the disciple, who rebelled from the delay saying, "Lord, why cannot I follow thee now? I will lay down my life for thy sake."

The characteristics of these followers are also brought out in Christ's own words: "They follow me," "hear my voice," "I know them," "I give unto them eternal life, and they shall never perish, neither shall any pluck them out of my hand....and none is able to pluck them out of my Father's hand"—salvation, sustenance, security—these all belong to those who are willing just to "Follow me."

See how Jesus disposed of would-be followers. A professional man, attracted no doubt by the singular simplicity of his character and the Divine wisdom of his doctrine, said, "Master, I will follow thee." But Jesus was not flattered: He was not to be patronized. This man of office and emolument could only shrug his shoulders and go away as the Lord told him of holes for foxes and nests for birds that were better than anything he pos-

"City Temple Sermons," and "Parker's People's Bible," in twenty-five large volumes. We wish to mention in this connection, that with every published sermon or address, there was a printed prayer. Those prayers are classics, both in spirit and language, breathing the very essence of reverence and worship. Nothing in religious literature superior to the hundreds of prayers, viewed from the standpoint of language, scope, appeal, and brevity.

In his People's Bible he does not give the extent of his own creations, but opens windows, so that preachers and Bible students may look out upon the same glorious landscape of vision and eternal Truth as he saw it. Besides the above mentioned works, he published the following books: "Autobiography," "Springdale Abbey," "The Inner Life of Christ," "Tyne Clide—My Life Teaching," "A Preacher's Life," "The Evils of Rum," "The Sultan of Turkey," and "Corrupt Politics." One of the most illuminating volumes from the pen of this gifted man, was "Dr. Parker and His Friends."

In the year 1899, his second wife died, which so grieved and depressed him, that his great spirit never recovered from the loss, and in November 28, 1902, he died. Truly a great man in God's Israel had fallen.

The Motion Picture Business.

ANDREW JOHNSON.

RECENTLY the Chicago Daily News carried an article by the Secretary of the Motion Picture Producers' and Distributors' Association in which the author lauded the "movies" to the sky for their power to build character. He stated, according to the Associated Press, that "the movie is building character by making 'the pursuit of happiness' guaranteed under the American constitution, easier."

Among the things which the Secretary said in support of the proposition that the moving picture industry is contributing to character development are:

1. "That good is triumphant and that evil is defeated; preaching over and over the moral, you can't get away with it."

2. "Self-sacrifice, loyalty to purpose, staunchness to an ideal are themes about which motion pictures revolve."

3. "Filmdom's heroes have character, and those who see imitate to their improvement."

4. "The cinema teaches patriotism; sanctity of the home; the dignity of parenthood and respect for law and order."

5. "Love, of course, plays a part. Love, in spite of the efforts of cheap sentimentalists and the vicious-minded, still is the most beautiful thing in life, the foundation stone upon which every happy life is laid."

6. "The motion picture is bringing understanding to the world, because it is teaching nations the life customs, habits and environments of all others. The motion picture speaks a universal language, and it is teaching all men they are alike. When nations learn the truth of this teaching war will be forgotten, for men do not fight when they do not hate."

Thus the Secretary of Motion Picture Industry puts up a strong argument and a powerful plea for the movies. In his opinion they furnish happiness, build character, instruct the mind, honor the home, teach patriotism, respect for law and order, set forth love in its purity and beauty and promote peace and good will among the nations of earth. If the movies accomplish all these things they ought to be approved and patronized by all; they ought to be sealed and sanctified as a great blessing to mankind. But do they really accomplish all these wonderful things that the honorable secretary of the Industry claims for them? We are compelled to dissent from the views of the secretary and take issue with him in regard to the manifold benefits which the movies bestow upon the world. We will take up his points one by one and discuss them in fair but frank manner and show where he has missed the mark.

1. The "pursuit of happiness." The secretary or the newspaper reporter speaks of the "pursuit of happiness" guaranteed under the American Constitution. There is nothing said in the Constitution about the "pursuit of happiness." The preamble to the Constitution reads thus: "We, the people of the United States, in order to form a perfect union, to establish justice, to insure domestic tranquillity, to promote the general welfare, to provide for the common defense and to secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution of the United States." The clause—blessings of liberty—refers primarily to civic liberty, freedom, the tyranny of European oppression.

The familiar expression, "the pursuit of happiness", occurs in the Declaration of Independence instead of the Constitution. It is mentioned by Thos. Jefferson. Among the inalienable rights—Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness—worldly, sinful pleasure is far from being happiness. The momentary pleasure derived from seeing a moving picture show is one thing, and real permanent happiness is another. Health, morality, prosperity, philanthropy, altruism, humanity, a pure noble purpose, a lofty ideal, are among the elements that go to constitute happiness and not the thrill of sinful pleasure in witnessing some carnal scene in a moving picture show.

So, the secretary has confused sentimental gush with genuine happiness. The moving picture has been the means of producing misery instead of happiness in lives of multitudes. It has taken many valuable moments from the people, created false ideals and caused numbers to attempt to imitate the evil which, in all of its attractiveness, is thrown upon the screens.

2. "You can't get away with it." The secretary thinks the movies preach a great moral by showing that good is triumphant and that evil is defeated. In that case why did Uncle Sam make the movies quit putting the counterfeiter of money on the screens? They always taught the moral that the counterfeiter was punished. But this did not satisfy Uncle Sam. He protested that the dishonest fellow would "catch on" and learn how to make counterfeit money and take his chances on the punishment part of the program. So the United States made the movies "cut out" all pictures on counterfeiting, even though they did teach that "You can't get away with it." The secretary's theory, therefore, will not hold good. The evil is so attractive to the eye that the punishment attached is overlooked.

3. Instead of the motion picture revolving around "self-sacrifice, loyalty to purpose, staunchness to an ideal" as the secretary claims, it revolves around the divorce case and sex plays. If the pictures only represented loyalty to purpose and sacrifice the whole motion picture industry would go into bankruptcy in a very short time.

4. "Filmdom's heroes have character and those who see, imitate to their improvement." It is true the heroes have character, but what kind of character. The crowd that gathers at movies is not looking so much at the character of the hero, but rather to the capers of the shero. The hero of Filmdom is rarely ever a moral hero. He is more often a desperado. Herein is the trouble. The youth of America take the desperado of the screens as their ideal hero. The secretary is correct for once when he says that those who see imitate the "heroes." If movies keep on moving they will turn out a grand army of "heroes" for the next generation.

5. The secretary highly commends the "cinema" for teaching patriotism, sanctity of the home, dignity of parenthood and respect for law and order. That is certainly some "movie-ma" if it can inculcate and cultivate all these noble ideas. It is strange that we have so many divorces nowadays if this marvelous "cinema" can accomplish such magical wonders in behalf of the sanctity of the home. It is likewise very strange, indeed, that there is so much lawlessness throughout the land in the face of this "cinema's" teaching on law and order.

6. The secretary finally comes to the crux of the whole question. He says that "love, of course, plays a part." Is it love or lust that plays the great role among the "heroes" and "sheroes" of movie-land? We would like for the paid secretary to tell us. We dare say that about ninety percent of the "love" represented upon the screens of the modern movie is lust instead of the "most beautiful thing in life," "the foundation stone upon which every happy life is laid." Most of the "love" exhibited by the movies is a stumbling-stone instead of a foundation stone. The honorable secretary, however, is paid to boost the business, and he, of course, must have something good to say about the Institution. Nevertheless, and notwithstanding, the motion picture industry destroys more character than it builds. Yet in spite of all these facts multitudes of worldly-minded church members flock to the movies and say they see no harm in the beautiful pictures which are really so educational in character.

"There is a generation that is pure in their own eyes, yet is not washed from their filthiness." (Prov. 30:12).

Personal Word to Methodist Preachers About a Great Book.

In these days when Methodist doctrine is being attacked within our own household every Methodist preacher both North and South, who believes in Methodist doctrine, should get a copy of the greatest book in print on this subject entitled, "Doctrinal Standards of Methodism," by Bishop Neely. I understand Mr. Pritchard purchased a job-lot of these books so that he can sell them at one dollar. (Regular price, $2.00). Here is a chance, preachers, to get the greatest book on this subject at bargain price. I knew Bishop Neely intimately. He is as straight as an arrow on good old Methodist doctrine. It is a big book of 350 pages and can be had at half price. Get out your dollar bill and send for a copy before they are all gone.

If You Want Something

Convincing on the tithe, something that tells you what God says about it, send 10c and get a copy of "Will A Man Rob God." It is a splendid little book to hand out to members of your church who do not believe in tithing. We will send one dozen for $1.00.

REPORTS FROM SOUL WINNERS

NIXON AT SYCHAR.

William R. Chase.

Rev. Nixon was to have been at Sychar last year, but sickness prevented. This season he was able to be with us for the first half of the meeting. He preached for us the first time on Friday, Aug. 6, at 10 A. M. Rev. W. D. Akers, of Wilmore, Ky., prayed. Bro. Yates sang a special after the people had sung three selections, and then Bro. Nixon preached. He took for his text, Psalm 51:10: "Create in me a clean heart, O God, and renew a right spirit within me." He announced his theme, "The key to soul-saving power." The modern church, said he, has largely lost the key to soul-saving power. I have a tormenting fear that this is true. We have hundreds and hundreds of churches that make no effort to have revivals; we have "decision day" in place. I have a fear that the average church has lost this key. They will do a whole lot of this and that kind of work, but there are very few who will do the real work which is soul saving. Very little soul saving work is being done in America; very little do we talk about Jesus and his power to save.

This Psalm teaches us of a man who once had had the power, but who had lost out through lust. He went awful wrong. It tells of a man who had lost power with God and got back, got back in the good old-fashioned gospel way. God sends his prophets to uncover sin. This is the first way God has of bringing us back. The task of the prophet is not an easy one, but a needful one. The prophet is different from the politician in that he has his ear attuned only to know what God would have him say. The politician has his ear to the ground to know what his folks want. We have too many in our pulpits who pussy-foot. It takes a prophet to make a man feel his sin. It is a solemn time when we face our sins, but better face them here than hereafter. It takes a prophet to bring us face to face with our sin and that is the reason you have this camp meeting. Put under conviction by the prophet of the awful sin that he had committed, David at once humbled himself. That is the only way one can get back after having committed sin. We must humble ourselves. The only way to be heard of God is to go down, down, down. It takes humility to do this, but David did it. Then David began to take stock of himself, to diagnose his case. "I acknowledge my transgressions; and my sin is ever before me." David knew he had to have forgiveness to get back. The second part of David's diagnosis was that he must have heart cleansing and he shows his need of it by his plea to be purged with hyssop, to be cleansed, washed again, made whiter than snow. David had had this experience before and fell. He knew of the washing of regeneration and the renewing of the Holy Ghost. He knew that his mother had conceived him in sin, and he was shapen in iniquity. Conceived in sin did not mean that he was born in adultery, but that there was a stain, a blemish, a thing which cannot be converted, but God can kill it, take it out, make us clean, just as David prayed to be made. There is something in us that is running towards hell. It is a result of sin that has made all graveyards. Sin came and then death. David applied the remedy and so must we. "Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within me. Cast me not away from thy presence; and take not thy Holy Spirit from me. Restore unto me the joy of thy salvation; and uphold me with thy free spirit."

He prayed for two things: forgiveness and cleansing. What David was after was to have the want to taken out of him, so that these hell-born tendencies would be taken out. Some of the results that came to David was: he prayed through. The joy of the Lord was restored to him. Joy is the cutting edge of your experience. Like a scythe your experience must have this to accomplish for God. The joy of the Lord is your strength. You get no sweep until you get the joy of the Lord. Forty years ago the people made as much noise when converted as we now make and hear at a holiness camp like Sychar. Uphold me. The Holy Spirit is able to do this. If we keep ourselves in his hands he will keep us, and this makes us of use to others. "Then will I teach transgressors their ways and sinners shall be converted unto thee."

The only way any nation can stand is to stand on this word of God. Proud as I am of my country, you hear me, if we forget this word and read it out of our schools, home, life, it will come under the awful judgments written in this prophecy.

Sin left us stuck in the bog, but God has flung his corduroy road across the mire and at the end is his helping hand to help us out.

I have no sympathy with those who think the way is a shut-up way. It is not. It is along here that we have the most beautiful of scenery. It leads up into the hill country where your horizon is lifted and you can see the beauties of the mountain country. You never do see the beauties until you journey up into the hill country.

God has put a toll-gate between the way and the highway, and just as you used to pay toll at certain places, you pay the toll and God lifts the gate and lets you through on to the way where advantages are that you did not have before. It is a prepared way, provided at great cost.

It took the blood of Jesus to prepare this new and living way that Paul tells about in Hebrews, and he is very careful about this way being kept up. He puts it into the hearts of men to do this, and every time you stand up in your church at home and testify to full salvation, every time you lift up the standard you are helping to keep the way prepared.

It is an accessible way and as easily found, if you want it, as is your mother's door-step. To say you don't understand it is not so. The truth is you don't want it for it is a plain way and easily found.

It is a safe way where no ravenous beasts are and where only the redeemed are. You keep on the trail and God will keep off all and any who would harm or hurt you.

Holiness is the normal life; any other is below normal. Nor does God intend that we shall go all the time over the bumpy, corduroy road.

What a hell heaven would be to an unregenerate soul! He could have no worse.

The way of holiness is the only one that enters heaven's gate. Without holiness no man shall see the Lord.

Your new year resolution cannot be kept. Lift up one foot from the bog and the other foot goes down deeper. Jesus alone can lift you out, and he will, and will lead you to the toll-gate. Pay the toll and God will lift the gate and you will enter the highway of holiness. Get up into the hill country. Get holiness which is wholeness, savedness.

REVIVAL IN EAST LIVERPOOL, OHIO.

Boyce M. E. Church, on February 7, closed one of the greatest revivals ever held in the history of the church. It is reported by some that the days of revivals are past. This is only true where the people fail to meet the conditions necessary to bring about a revival. Thank God, the Holy Ghost is still able to work mightily in the hearts of men and he will work now, as always, if the saints will pray and believe for the victory.

In this meeting of three weeks' duration more than 150 precious souls found the Lord in saving or sanctifying power. These souls prayer through in the good old-fashioned way and came up from the altar with their hearts on fire and their faces shining. The influence of this awakening has spread far and we shall only know of the final results when Jesus returns to earth again. Three young men and one young woman have felt God's call into special services and will begin their preparation in some school as the Lord leads. A class of thirty-three members has already been taken into the church and another class will be taken in at an early date.

Rev. Gene Phillips, of Sidney, O., delivered the gospel messages and John Guy, Dellroy, O., had charge of the singing. These two young men are wholly lost in their love for Christ and precious souls. Their Spirit-filled lives were a great blessing and uplift to the people of this community; their faith in God brought things to pass. It is the prayer of this pastor that God, in his good time, will send these two men out together into the evangelistic field. However, God leads, we prophesy a glorious future for them in the service of the Master.

Rev. Paul S. Rees is coming to us in April for another meeting. Pray for us as we stand for holiness and fight sin. The precious blood of the loving Christ sweetly saves and sanctifies the heart of this unworthy pastor just now.

J. Lloyd McQueen, Pastor.

ZELLERSVILLE, PENNSYLVANIA.

We have just closed a good meeting in the M. E. Church at Zellersville, Pa., with Rev. C. B. Pugh, as pastor. This has been a much neglected field. On the last night of the revival services I asked the audience how long it had been since they had had a prayer meeting in the church; one member of the church stated that he had been there for twenty-nine years and he had never known of a prayer meeting having been held in the church. I have just received word from the pastor that Thursday night they had a glorious prayer meeting.

It was wonderful to see the Lord work, when we could witness, at the altar grandfathers and mothers praying through to victory with their children and grandchildren, at the same time it made us feel well repaid for our labors. Rev. Pugh is a young minister and carries a burden for the lost. He stands by the evangelist and is well loved by the people. They showed their appreciation of Rev. and Mrs. Pugh on Monday night following the close of the revival, came in with a nice donation of cash to Mrs. Pugh and other needful articles amounting to about one hundred dollars.
