HERE AND HEREAFTER.

By The Editor.

FOR the present we are here. It will soon be hereafter with the writer and the reader. Our stay here is very uncertain. Our going into the hereafter is quite certain. Are we ready for the change?

The big business of this life is to make careful preparation for the life to come. Those who have an inward assurance that they are ready for the future life are best prepared to enjoy the present life.

Those persons who make sport of death and the future may imagine themselves humorous, but they are not; they are silly. No one of intelligence, and any thought on the subject, can afford to be other than serious in contemplation of their future state. It certainly is a sad lack of wisdom for any one to act as if there was no future life.

Others may think and say as they may, as for us, we believe the Bible, and believing the Bible we accept the teachings of Jesus—"There is one thing needful." That one thing is the salvation of the soul. What a peaceful and, I may say, happy life here to those who have met the scriptural requirements, exercised faith in the divine promises, and have found in Jesus a Saviour. They have become possessed of that perfect love which casts out all fear with reference to death, the judgment and the future state.

We have known people who treated the matter of salvation from sin with apparent indifference; even made it a subject of banter and mirth, but when death knocked at their door, and they realized that their time had come, and there was no postponement, they were horrified; it was too late, and they bewailed their condition. They were amazed at the stupid indifference that had characterized their conduct when opportunities for their personal salvation had been offered them.

Death is not a matter for ridicule, amusement, bravado and sport. It is a serious thing to die. It is a sudden end of probation, of opportunity to prepare for so tremendous a change. It is a serious business to meet one's God who is perfectly acquainted with all the inner motives, desires, secret thoughts, emotions, words and actions. The inspired apostle says, "It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God." This must be true of those who have trampled upon his laws, rejected his mercy, spurned his offers of pardon, and now must meet him face to face. The immortal spirit strung with marvelous power for suffering, for remorse, for an eternity of darkness, regret and self-condemnation, now suddenly realizes the folly of a misspent life.

It is strange that any intelligent being, with any degree of Christian training,

Dear Dr. Morrison:

I see from The Literary Digest that the majority of lawyers are voting against prohibition. Why is this? If you have an answer, and do not object, give it in the columns of The Herald. A Reader.

My Dear Herald Reader:

With regard to your question concerning lawyers opposing prohibition, the answer is easy.

Lawyers make their living largely out of the crimes, disagreements and follies of the people. One drunken brawl between erstwhile good friends, leading to combat and murder, may easily give a group of lawyers employment for months, and thousands of dollars in fees. An acquaintance of mine some years ago got drunk on a half pint of whiskey and while thus intoxicated shot and killed a man. He told me that half pint of whiskey cost him thirty thousand dollars, most all of it going to the lawyers. They saved his neck, but took his property.

That is one instance in untold thousands. The lawyers know if they could bring back the saloon, with its bar-room downstairs and its bawdy rooms upstairs, it would mean a harvest of crime, murder and fat fees. Give us a sober nation and lawyers and doctors would feel the financial pressure keenly. There you are! H. C. Morrison.

P. S. You understand that there are many good lawyers, excellent men, in the practice of law, who are whole-heartedly in favor of prohibition. M.

should spend their life, not only neglecting to make preparation for the future, but in wilful, daring sins, heaping up wrath against the day of judgment. And it seems a bit stranger that those who profess a state of salvation, even men who claim to have been called to preach, should manifest so little concern for the salvation of human souls. It would seem, believing what we Christians believe, especially preachers, that we would be full of earnestness to warn and rescue the lost from their sins, and bring them to Christ. What if some ten or twenty thousand preachers in these United States should become tremendously interested in the lost; should begin to burn with a passion to win sinners to Christ; should rally about them all the spiritual forces possible, in their churches and communities, and go in wholeheartedly for revivals of religion without fixing dates, only for the beginning, but determined to have revivals regardless of calendar, but to go on and on until a multitude of lost souls have been led to Christ. Under such circumstances the results would be tremendous, and the benefit could not be estimated with our system of mathematics. Would God such a passion would lay hold upon the ministry of this nation!

Who can understand the dreadful darkness in heathen realms of sin and death? E'en the very air is scorched and tainted With the Dragon's putrid breath. But across the widest, sildest billows, Love can reach to distant lands. And beneath the deepest, darkest, surges Prayer can hold a brother's hands.

Fight of Millionaires Against The Sobriety of the People.

NOTHING more selfish and godless has occurred in the history of our country than the uniting of a body of millionaires to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment, and turn the demon of the liquor traffic loose upon the people. One of the motives that prompts their lavish expenditure of money to corrupt the ballot-box and put unworthy and selfish men into office who will, as their hired and well paid servants, try to bring back the saloon, is to bring revenues from the liquor traffic to the government and save themselves from paying income tax. No men have ever engaged in a more selfish and, we may truly say, devilish, enterprise, than these men. Many of us are unable to understand how it is possible for the Democratic senators and congressmen of the southern states to submit to this man Raskob, the chief agitator and contributor in this millionaire combine in their efforts to do away with the Eighteenth Amendment. This powerful bunch of the enemies of God and humanity will tell you that they do not want the saloon back. Is there any truth in them? They wish to do away with the amendment preventing the manufacture, sale, transportation and distribution of intoxicating drink. Why?

There is one man in these United States that has not one particle of faith in the truthfulness of the statements of any of the wet gang when they say they are opposed to the opening of the saloon. What they are opposed to is the prohibition of the liquor traffic. They want the liquor, and the money they get out of it, regardless of God and humanity.

We hope that every reader of this paper is a sworn, eternal enemy of the liquor traffic in every form, and will remain so and become more and more aggressive against this vile murderer and destroyer of all that is good in this world, and the world to come, and the devil's chief allies of the liquor traffic. Read the following clipping:

THE PRICE OF REPEAL.

From a circular, issued by the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, January 14, and signed by Henry H. Curran, it is learned that: "In 1930 the Association raised $675,000, which is over $190,000 more than in any previous year. But so vitally important was the 1930 campaign that in order to carry it to the successful conclusion so splendidly attained, the executive committee ordered expenditures of about $120,000 in excess of the Association's income." The purpose of the circular was to obtain increased contributions in 1931.

These figures are interesting. Only recently official reports of the Democratic national committee showed that it had received last year $619,000 less by almost $60,000 than did the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, and almost $200,000 less than that Association apparently spent. This comparison between the finances of a great national

TRAVEL NOTES AND LESSONS.

Rev. G. W. Ridout D.D., Corresponding Editor.

Some years ago I read the following incident which very aptly illustrates things in Egypt, the land of the Nile.

"When Sir Samuel Baker was making explorations in the region of the Nile, he chanced to pitch his tent one evening upon the dry sands of a dry bed of a large river. The heat was stifling, and the surrounding hills and valleys looked as if no drop of water had fallen for years. About midnight, Sir Samuel was aroused from sleep by his Arab guard calling out in great alarm, 'The river! the river!' He sprang from his cot, and hearing the rush and roar of an approaching flood, knew that the rains had suddenly burst upon the mountains, and that the dry sands would soon be swept by a rushing torrent. He had barely time to escape before the flood was upon him. Having gained a safe place on the bank of the stream, he again lay down to sleep, and when he awoke next morning, he found that the whole scene had been transformed. The birds were singing in the trees overhead, the people were rejoicing in their huts and fields, and a broad river twelve or fifteen feet deep was flowing quietly in its banks. The Arab peasants began at once to take advantage of the coming of the river, by opening channels along which the water might flow into their little fields. No one among them seemed depressed by the thought that the river might not stay. It had come for the whole season. They trusted the ordinary course of nature without a moment's hesitation. They rejoiced in the presence of the river, and yet each one knew that to make its waters available for his own little field, it would be necessary for him to open a channel in which the water might flow from the river to the field for which it was needed."

This reminds us of Isaiah 44:3: "I will pour water upon him that is thirsty, and floods upon the dry ground."

When the Spirit of God is poured out dry river beds become the channels of torrents and floods which come to bless the dry land. Let us pray that this year of Pentecost may bring floods of blessing upon the dry ground.

We recently passed through Italy and have been engaged in evangelism in Roman Catholic territory. Time was when Central Europe, ruled over by Austria, was held down by the iron hand and rule of Rome, but after the great war and Austria got broken to bits million of people escaped from the yoke of Rome.

How small and contemptible is the little kingdom which the Pope has recently come into possession by the grace of Mussolini. The Pope now has his little toy kingdom and he is now building a railroad and issuing his own postage stamps and coining his own money, etc., hoping, I presume, that the day is not far distant when his kingdom will extend much farther.

What an awful burlesque is popery upon the religion of Jesus Christ! What a ridiculous claim the Pope makes as the Vice Regent of Christ.

Someone has put the comparisons between Christ and the Pope in the following manner. I do not know who the author is, but I pass it on:

Christ was gracious to the lowliest. The Popes would humiliate rulers, e. g., his treatment of King John, and more recently the attempted humiliation of Ex-Vice President Fairbanks and President Roosevelt.

Christ's kingdom was not of this world; the Pope wants to rule all the kingdoms of the world. Christ renounced temporal power; the Pope covets it.

Christ was crowned with a crown of thorns; the Pope has a crown of gold.

Christ washed the disciples' feet; the Pope has his feet kissed.

Christ and his followers paid tribute; the Pope and his followers exact it.

Christ and his disciples fed sheep; the Pope and his priests shear sheep.

Christ was poor; the Pope is rich.

Christ died leaving no earthly possessions; the Popes die worth millions.

Christ had not where to lay his head; the Pope lives in the most costly residence in the world.

Christ carried his cross; the Pope is carried in a canopy.

Christ despised riches; the Pope loves riches.

Christ drove the merchants out of the temple; the Pope welcomes them.

Christ preached peace; the Pope is for war if that will bring back his lost domains and power.

Christ was meek and lowly; the Pope is proud and has himself called HOLY.

Christ spoke from the hillside; the Pope from a costly throne.

Christ laid up no earthly treasure; the Pope stores millions.

Christ loved his enemies; history proves the Popes killed theirs.

Christ received the lowly; the Pope would humble rulers.

Christ was truly Catholic in spirit, seeking to bless all; the Pope is narrow, limiting his love to his own and those he can proselyte.

Christ wants to free men from sin and ignorance; the Pope seeks to rule men by keeping them in ignorance.

Of Renan it was said: "He very skillfully undermines Christianity while profuse in its praise; he buries it in flowers. He comes to the tomb of the Savior, not to weep and worship like the women of the Gospel, but to stifle with perfumes and spices any lingering spark of life in the religion of Jesus. He does not deal a blow with a sharp sword; no he embalms. But the result is the same as though he made a violent attack."

I am writing this on Good Friday and as I sit beneath the shadow of the Cross in my thinking I think of what I witnessed in Jerusalem at the supposed place called Calvary. I went to the church called the "Church of the Holy Sepulchre" and there they had the place of the cross buried under their flowers and millinery and ornaments and pictures and pageantry and glitter and gilt and mockery. The message of the cross is not heard in such an atmosphere as that. I watched the priests as they went through their mockeries and incense swinging and chanting and praying, so-called, and 'midst it all there was no more gospel and no more saving efficacy than some of the things I witnessed in heathen temples.

How true it is today, as in the days of Renan, Christianity is covered over and stifled with the perfume and flowers of cold, dead ecclesiasticism, and how true it is that in America we have the Unitarian curse by which with flowers of oratory and eloquence of false praise the real life of Christianity is stifled out.

Shelley, the Poet, some years ago penned the following lines:

... "Two vast and trunkless legs of stone Stand in the desert. Near them, on the sand, Half sunk, a shattered visage lies. . . . And on the pedestal these words appear: 'My name is Ozymandias, King of Kings. Look on my works, ye mighty, and despair! Nothing beside remains!'"

The press has the following:

"A German expedition has begun exploration of the ruins of the ancient city of Her-mopolis in Middle Egypt. It is proposed to ascertain the levels of occupation of the various periods, and to collect evidences of the life of those periods."

"A hill extending over an area of more than a square mile where the colossal statue of Rameses II. of 3,200 years ago was visible on the surface was chosen for the purpose."

"As expected, a similar statue was found near, and behind the two statues a temple."

"The second colossus was brought to light on the afternoon of the first working day."

"Some days afterwards work was extended to the site of the ancient city by means of a trench, a furlong in length."

"Some historians have thought Rameses II. to be the famous Pharaoh of Exodus."

We stood one day at Memphis beside one of those Colossal statues of Rameses's. All is in the past. Centuries have buried these Pharaohs out of sight but what a mighty present confronts us. I do not know who the author is of the following lines, but they are somewhat striking:

"Troy is only a name,—Cæsar is deaf to praise—
Back of me spreads the past in numberless yesterdays!
Under my feet, the world; over my head, the sky,
Here at the center of things, in the living present am I."

"Out in the far beyond, waiting for God's good time,
Splendid cities may rise, heroes may be sublime;
The past may measure against the future that is to be,
As the fleeting day compares with the storied century.
Prophets unborn may see with a vision that shall be clear,
But the future is dumb, and I dowered with speech am here."

"I stand at the end of the past; where the future begins I stand,
Emperors lie in the dust, men may live to command,
But greater than rulers unborn, and greater than kings who have reigned Am I, that have hope in my breast, and victories still to be gained!
Under my feet, the world, over my head, the sky,—
Here at the center of things, in the living present am I!"

On our way to Ireland where we were engaged for Convention we had to come via London. Great city is London—one of the greatest of the world. The other Sunday they celebrated Dr. Joseph Parker's anniversary. One hundred years ago, April 9th, he was born. I was in London once when Parker preached at City Temple, but, unfortunately the Sunday we attended he was away on a vacation.

Joseph Parker was one of England's greatest preachers. A writer in the "British Weekly" describes one of Parker's sermons in the following manner:

There are some half-dozen sermons of Parker's which after an interval of twenty years I can still recall almost word for word.

One in particular recurs to me at the moment. His text was, "I will see you again." The season was probably Easter.

Now, Parker's method was an example to all preachers. He did not exhaust the first few moments of anticipation (they are often no more) with which even the dullest and most easily predictable of preacher's opening words are awaited. He struck in with an idea which was in fact the germ or substance of everything that followed.

So it was on that occasion. Having announced his text, he repeated the words as though he himself were seeing them for the first time, as it were by a sort of second-sight. "I will see you again." A pause! Then, raising the angle of his face, and speaking as though the idea had just come to him, he said, "That is Christianity!" He proceeded immediately. "If that is not true, then what are all our acts of worship, what our prayers, what our monuments and memorials what our books, our arguments, our patience? What is—anything deep and human, but some makeshift by which we deceive ourselves, some poor shelter from the intolerable fact! But, if that be true, 'I will see you again,' then—'bless the Lord, O my soul, and all that is within me bless His Holy Name!' If that be true, surely we may rejoice."

CHAPTER XX.

THE YEARS BRING CHANGES.

WE pass over a period of ten years. While those years have brought changes, to many, they have dealt kindly with the most of our friends.

Ralph Upright has finished his studies in college; has added a course in a theological seminary. He and Bessie Queerman were married on his return to his home, and he at once began his work as city missionary at Glenview, which position he still fills with great acceptability.

Deacon Upright finished his work for the uplift of humanity by providing a home for the City Missionary Society having every convenience and accommodation for its activities. It is at once an Ark of Refuge, an Employment Bureau, and Asylum for the Worthy Destitute, and a place where the "down and out" may obtain encouragement and assistance.

Mr. and Mrs. Dalton are doing a great work in Albuquerque, New Mexico, where Mr. Dalton regularly supplies one of the leading Protestant pulpits. Mrs. Dalton has lost none of her enthusiasm for the rescue of her unfortunate sisters, and is wonderfully successful in her chosen field.

Mrs. Upright passed to her reward three years since. Half of her estate was devoted to the work among the people who were the direct charge of her daughter Jessie in New Mexico, and her daughter-in-law, Bessie in Glenview.

Mr. and Mrs. Queerman have been a power for good in the city, in the line of work which they have selected, providing a safe retreat for the children of those mothers who find themselves obliged to go out to service during the day, in order to support themselves and their children.

Rev. Jones of the First Church laid down his earthly burdens to take up the heavenly duties of the redeemed.

Rev. Dr. Paxton still ministers to the Euclid Avenue Church with increasing popularity and success.

James Upright, Jr., is a student in a Medical College, with a view of fitting himself for the work in a foreign field.

Lucy Upright is married to a rising young lawyer, who, being a devout Christian may be very helpful to the cause of righteousness in his official capacity—that of "States Attorney" for the county.

We will now pass over a period of twenty years, and our story is to close with an account of the funeral exercises held, by his request in the chapel of the City Mission, with sermon by Dr. Paxton and addresses by other distinguished speakers.

For five years the deacon's health had been poor, and his strength gradually failing. There had also developed an abscess near the eye, which, the reader will remember, was destroyed when he and Dr. Paxton had been assaulted by thugs some years previously. In spite of every effort on the part of his physicians and friends, he quietly passed away at the home of his daughter Lucy, at 6 o'clock on the morning of January 20, 1905, in his 81st year.

His body was prepared for burial and lay for thirty-six hours in the chapel of the City Mission, where the people paid their last tribute of respect to his memory. A steady stream of humanity poured into the building and lingered to drop tears of affection and regret for their benefactor and friend. To the last moment of life, he had retained consciousness and was sweetly at rest and peace with the will of God. The years of his life had been full of effort, as he had realized his opportunities and responsibilities, and he had sought to embrace the one and discharge the other in his best manner.

We shall close this chapter with a few extracts from the sermon and addresses delivered on the day of his burial:

"The Funeral of Deacon Upright" From the Glenview Herald of Jan. 22, 1905.

"Never in the history of this city, or of the state, has been seen such a throng of deeply sympathetic people as assembled to honor the memory of Deacon James Upright, in the chapel of the City Mission, at 2 P. M. today. The large auditorium was literally packed to its capacity and thousands were unable to obtain admittance. A mass of people, extending from the outer door of the chapel to the opposite side of the street, and extending nearly a block up and down the street, waited patiently during the services for a glimpse of the casket which contained all that was mortal of Deacon Upright.

"Dr. Paxton took for his text 'Mark the perfect man and behold the upright, for the end of that man is peace.' It is not our purpose to give even a brief outline of the sermon. So many of our readers heard the discourse that we do not think it necessary to put it in print, as it will, undoubtedly, long live in the hearts of the people. In his reference to his own intercourse with the deceased, Dr. Paxton grew feelingly eloquent.

"No man could have known the soul of Deacon Upright more intimately than I have known it. Since the day of our first meeting, we have been on terms of closest intimacy and fellowship. When we have differed, as we sometimes did, I have always had a profound regard for his integrity and his high sense of honor. Often misunderstood and maligned, he was always ready to let his position be subjected to the test of its results. When he found that deeper religious experience which has marked the last years of his life, he has been the most beneficent being I have ever met. Of him it can be said most truthfully that he was 'full of love and good works.' His time and his means could always be depended upon for the advancement of any enterprise which contemplated the advancement of the cause of righteousness, or the uplift of humanity. Of him it could be said 'He gave himself' and there is an 'innumerable company' who will cherish his memory with tenderness as long as they live."

Mayor Goodrich said: "I am sure that whatever I might be able to say in appreciation of the character of Deacon Upright, would fall far short of expressing the emotions that have moved those present to assemble here today to honor the memory of our most well beloved citizen.

"Not one present at this hour but has, in some sense, been helped to do his or her best for the improvement of the intellectual, social, and moral condition of the people of this city, by the example of the deceased. He has always stood for what was best in social, religious, and municipal life. Thousands of the unemployed in this city have been enabled to weather the storms of the winters and look hopefully to the future by the timely help which the deacon was always ready to extend to them. Nor has his interest been confined to his home city. The 'Home Missionary Society' of his own denomination has felt the glow of enthusiasm which his liberal contributions have kindled, while the 'Foreign Mission' work has equal cause to bless God for such added strength as his resources gave to its organization. There could be no more fitting close to the services of this hour, nor any epitaph more appropriate to mark his rest than the text of Dr. Paxton: 'Mark the perfect man and behold the upright, for the end of that man is peace.'"

The following resolution voicing the feeling of the people of the city was adopted by a unanimous vote:

"Resolved, that while we bow in submission to the will of God, we hereby express our heartfelt sorrow for the loss of our beloved brother, and our appreciation of his godly example and his unflagging zeal for the right.

"In behalf of the people:

WILLIAM OSGOOD,
JOHN JONES,
AMOS WARE.

(Committee)."

The Work of Entire Sanctification The Work of Deity; the Outcome of Which is the Reincarnation and Revelation of Deity.

REV. P. WISEMAN, D. D.

WE have heard the remark that the work of entire sanctification is all of the blood of Christ without the Spirit. On the other hand, we have heard the remark that the work of entire sanctification is wholly of the Spirit without the blood. Neither statement contains the whole truth.

We are very pronounced against the theory that we are entirely sanctified by growth, by discarding the body of the flesh (physical flesh), by physical death, by works, by education merely; and, of course, we have a right to be pronounced against such theories: yet in our presentation of the positive aspect of this great work of God we are in danger of misplacing emphasis.

The great and glorious work of entire sanctification is the work of the Persons in the Godhead, as the following will reveal:—

We are sanctified wholly by God the Father: "Himself the God of peace sanctify you wholly" (1 Thess. 5:23); "Sanctified by God the Father" (Jude 1).

We are sanctified by Jesus Christ: "Sanctified through the offering of the body of Jesus Christ once for all" (Heb. 10:10); "Jesus that he might sanctify the people with his own blood suffered without the gate" (Heb. 13:2). In these verses we note a two-fold aspect, namely, the sacrificial, "offering of his body"; and the meritorious, "with his own blood."

SEVEN DEFINITIONS OF SIN.

Rev. E. E. Shelhamer.

"For sin shall not have dominion over you." Romans 6:14.

If we can get God's definition of sin it will help us to understand what is meant by this tyrant from which we are to be free. I am convinced of one of two things: If sin in any shape or form has dominion over us, it is because we choose and prefer that kind of bondage; or is it because we are ignorant of the mighty Remedy God has provided? For here the apostle declares plainly that "sin shall not have dominion over you."

Instead of speaking of sin in an abstract manner, I am going to specify and speak of its seven types or phases. What are they?

FIRST: THE SIN OF COMMISSION

Proof text: 1 John 3:4. "Whosoever committeth sin transgresseth also the law: for sin is the transgression of the law." Here we have the grossest form of sin. Sin in its defiant attitude. Sin, or the sinner ruthlessly trampling under foot the commandments of God; the sinner with an uplifted fist declaring "I will do it anyway, regardless of whether it is right or wrong; I will have my own way; I will gratify my desires, regardless of the laws of God or the laws of the land." Sin is a transgression "transgreccio"—crossing over the boundary line set for my happiness.

Take for instance just one of the Ten Commandments—"Remember the Sabbath day and keep it holy." The outbreking sinner declares he will trample under foot and cross over this limitation. He says, "I will make this day a day of recreation, a day of pleasure, a day of profit. In short, I will nullify it" as many of our politicians wish to do with the Eighteenth Amendment. Poor blind soul! If he were only in harmony with God and his laws he would see clearly that in the end he would live happier and healthier and holier by regarding this simple, fourth commandment. When God wrote this with his own finger, he could look down through the ages and see that it would never be necessary for any man to disregard this commandment in order to be happy, healthy, and wise. It is not necessary for any man to set it aside in order to provide for his family, and when any one does so, he proves that in at least one respect he is out of harmony with the all-wise Creator.

SECOND: THE SIN OF OMISSION.

Proof text: James 4:17. "Therefore to him that knoweth to do good and doeth it not, to him it is sin." Here we have another type of a sinner; one not quite so defiant as the first. He is a little more refined. He does not step out and shake his fist in the face of God, but he does say, "God demands too much of me, I am too weak to obey; he wants me to have family prayers; he wants me to pray with my neighbor; he wants me to give out tracts on the street;" or perhaps, "he wants me to go as a missionary, I simply cannot do it."

So, friend, can you not see the wickedness of such an attitude? You are virtually spitting into the face of God and saying, "You are unreasonable in your demands. I know my ability better than Thou." Oh, precious soul, though you are not an outbreking sinner, yet when you know your duty and do it not, you insult the wisdom and grace of the Most High. Let me illustrate: Suppose you go home and say to your little child five years of age, "Son, clean up this yard and carry off this large ten-foot log." The boy looks at it and says, "Papa, I simply cannot do it, that log weighs two hundred pounds." Now a tyrant might threaten that child, but a loving father would say, "Son, I will help you; if you can lift ten pounds I can lift one hundred and ninety pounds, and both of us together will remove the log."

In like manner when a loving God requires something of his child, he "knoweth our frame, he remembereth that we are dust;" and if we but put forth an effort as an obedient child, he will lift the greater part of the load. Praise his Name!

THIRD: THE SIN OF DOUBT.

Proof text: Romans 14:23. "He that doubteth is damned if he eat, because he eateth not of faith: for whatsoever is not of faith is sin." Here is another type of sin. There are a lot of things we must meet every day; a lot of things that could hardly be termed sinful, and yet the doing of the same is doubtful. God does not want us to presume on his goodness and see how near we can get to the border edges of sin, but rather he is pleased when we abstain from "all appearance of evil." Yea, abstain not only from what is generally recognized to be wrong, but what is the least departure from that which is exemplary.

Listen to what Mr. Finney says: "There may be equal doubts concerning a certain course of action. When this is the case, all that can be said is that a man must act up to the best light he can get. But when a man doubts a certain course of action, but has no reason to doubt the omission of that course of action, and yet goes ahead and does it, he proves to high heaven that he wants to do it whether it is right or wrong; and he who does this sins against Almighty God and his own conscience and must repent or be damned." This is pretty strong, but it comes from one of the greatest preachers the world ever heard.

Let me illustrate: Here is a ball game. A free ticket from a special friend is given me. Now I like, to this day to see a ball fly, but if I went to that ball game I fear my influence would be in the wrong direction. Some one might stumble over me if he saw me there; but he cannot stumble over me if I am not there; hence it would be a sin to me to hurt my influence for good.

In like manner, a dozen and one things may come up to a conscientious Christian; such as the belonging to a secret fraternity, such as traveling on the Lord's day; the following of fashions and wearing of jewelry; or attending so-called innocent amusements. Oh, that every person were as conscientious as Frances Willard, the uncrowned queen of the world, when she sought and obtained the second blessing she felt led to lay aside what she called, "little bits of plain jewelry."

FOURTH: THE SIN OF PREJUDICE.

Proof text: James 2:9. "But if ye have respect of persons ye commit sin, and are convinced of the law as transgressors." Here we have a finer grade of sin. Friends, I am convinced that a lot of people, yea, good people in various holiness churches are guilty right here. Do you know that it is possible to be saved from open wickedness, from failing to do your duty, yea, from doing many doubtful things, and yet be guilty of prejudice and sectarianism? If you are not careful you will listen and respond more freely to the singing or preaching of one of your own sect than to that of another; and think of it! He who belongs to a different crowd than yours may have a message calculated to do you more real, lasting good than the one for whom you vociferate. God pity your poor, narrow, bigoted soul. Thank God in some camps it is hard to tell who are Nazarenes, Pilgrim Holiness, Wesleyan Methodists, or Free Methodists. A man in poor clothing who has the blessing of God upon him is given a place on the platform as readily or more so than he who has a gold ring and a square and compass. God grant that it may always be so.

FIFTH: THE SIN OF FOOLISHNESS.

Proof text: Proverbs 24:9. "The thought of foolishness is sin." Jesus said, "for every idle word," that means every unnecessary word, every word that does not glorify God, "for every idle word that men shall speak they shall give an account thereof in the day of judgment." This is a light and foolish age. We joke about the sacred institution of marriage; we joke about other things. And, if you are not careful, in order to be recognized as a good conversationalist you will disregard the fine, tender checks of the Spirit and say things that provoke laughter rather than edification. I am not advocating that you should be long-faced and unsociable. But rather that you should be pleasant and winsome without stooping to the common level of jazz and "foolish talking or jestings which are not convenient." I submit to you that if you cultivate the mind of Christ you will not have very much taste for Mark Twain's nonsense or the comic pages of our rotten newspapers.

SIXTH: THE SIN OF GRIEVING OTHERS.

Proof text: 1 Corinthians 8:12. "But when ye sin so against the brethren, and wound their weak conscience, ye sin against Christ." Our time is so limited that I will pass over this with but little comment. Here the mighty apostle Paul has been talking about eating meats that have been offered to idols; and infers that while one brother can eat some things with a good conscience, yet if it causes a weaker brother to stumble, the stronger one should be considerate, and not wipe his mouth and say, "If you want to stumble over such a little thing go ahead and stumble." No! No! The magnanimous apostle would rather deny himself. He said, "If meat make my brother to offend, I will eat no meat while the world standeth." So, instead of branding a conscientious saint, yea, one who may be a little lop-sided, instead of abusing him and calling him a fanatic, God grant that we may be so conscientious ourselves, that we will strengthen rather than "wound and weaken" his weak conscience.

SEVENTH: THE SIN OF CEASING TO PRAY FOR THOSE WHO ARE OBSTINATE OR STUBBORN.

Proof text: 1 Samuel 12:23. "Moreover as for me, God forbid that I should sin against the Lord in ceasing to pray for you; but I will teach you the good and the right way." Here is the true and tried Samuel. He is now rejected by the children of Israel, who cried, "Give us a King, you have been a good prophet, but we want to be like the other nations." He answered, "Is not God your King? I am your judge but God is your King. An earthly king will take your fine, young men to be soldiers, the best vineyards to be his own, and later will rule over you with a rod of iron." But they replied, "We want him anyway." Does the aged prophet abuse them? Does he walk off in a pouting mood and say, "I turn you over to your own evil ways, you will have to learn the lesson for yourselves?" "No! But hear his magnanimous reply,—"God forbid that I should sin against the Lord in ceasing to pray for you."

Say, dear parent or pastor, please do not get discouraged with that stubborn and obstinate child. Do not in a hasty manner say, "Go your own way and reap your harvest." Remember that sometimes those who are right on the very verge of seeking God act ugly and ungrateful, and by showing tenderness and pity we win them to God.

It was said of John B. Gough that he had signed the temperance pledge so many times that everybody became discouraged and disgusted with him. But his good wife declared she had faith in his sincerity. On one occasion to prove to others that he meant it, he opened a vein in his wrist and signed the pledge with his own life's blood, saying, "I will keep it this time, so help me God." But in twenty-four hours he was dead drunk again. The faithful wife kept on praying, weeping and loving. Finally he got drunk for the last time and henceforth became, perhaps the greatest temperance lecturer the world ever heard.

Coming closer home, my own son at the age of fifteen became so unruly that we about despaired of him, but the noble mother and myself began to fast and pray. The boy was wonderfully saved and later on sanctified and now at the age of twenty my heart is overjoyed in reading a letter from him saying, "I am in a great meeting in West Virginia; over one hundred have been saved, and Jesus gets all the glory."

Let us pray, asking and believing for special grace that will enable us to say, "Sin in any of these seven forms and phases shall not have dominion over me."

"Jesus the sinner's fetters breaks
And bruises satan's head;
Power unto strengthless souls he speaks
And life into the dead.

"He breaks the power of cancelled sin
He sets the prisoner free;
His Blood can make the foulest clean
His Blood avails for me.

"Oh that the world might taste and see
The riches of his grace;
The arms of love that compass me
Would all mankind embrace.

"Happy, if with my latest breath,
I may but lisp his name;
Preach him to all and cry in death,
Behold, behold the Lamb."

You preached that the sinner "was on his way to hell." The bachelor went home mad. He died in the night. Mr. Preacher, is your conscience fully at ease?

THE HERALD FOR THE PREACHERS.

We have a proposition to make to the Lord's zealous people for the spread of scriptural holiness. We propose to bear one-third of the expense of sending The Herald for one year to ministers of the gospel. We especially like to send The Herald to young preachers.

If some friend of the Lord and The Herald and the preachers will send us one dollar with the name and address of the preacher to whom you wish The Herald sent, we shall assume the responsibility for the extra 50 cents, and the paper will go to the preacher free of any charge to him.

I met a fine preacher in California the past winter who came up and gave me a very warm, brotherly hand-grasp at the close of the sermon, and said, "Some one sent me The Pentecostal Herald. I do not know who sent it but it made me mad every time it came, but I read it. I saw and felt the truth it contained, and as I read it from week to week, my prejudices were conquered and my heart got very hungry. I sought entire sanctification and received the blessing. I am very grateful to you and to whoever sent me The Herald."

There are many ministers who might give a testimony like this. Send in the dollar and the name of the minister to whom you wish the paper sent. If you should like to send the paper to more than one enclose the money and addresses. In these perilous times let us do all we can to spread the gospel of a full salvation. Faithfully, your brother,
H. C. Morrison.

We Have Fallen Upon Strange Times.

MRS. H. C. MORRISON.

HERE is in the atmosphere of social and religious conditions a feeling that we are on the eve of a great crisis in the history of the world. There are secret, invisible powers at work which cause one to fear the unfolding of the coming years.

Efforts have been made to define the spirit of unrest; books have been written to explain our world conditions; preachers whose spiritual discernment is not keen, have been trying to give the people a gospel "adapted to the times," while a thousand anxious hearts are wondering what the outcome shall be.

Philip Mauro, author of "The Number of Man," has in his book tried to locate our trouble, and perhaps has thrown some light upon existing conditions, but have we found the remedy and, if so, have we applied it? Mauro emphasizes the fact that "human society is stirred the world over, as it never has been before." The simultaneous activity is but the rumbling of human machinery trying to solve its social, political, and religious problems by human energy and ingenuity. In other words, there is a growing disposition in the present generation to save itself, socially, politically, and religiously.

The writer expresses his conviction that "the affairs of humanity are approaching a crisis of the first magnitude," or what another has designated "a world crisis." What is the cause of the conditions which invite this impending doom? We have but to note the drift of the educational and ecclesiastical teachings of today to ascertain, somewhat, the source of our restlessness, for when a nation finds anchorage in any other than the Rock of Ages, her anchorage is insecure.

We were amazed, grieved and excited with jealousy for our Christ, when we read the class poem of Harvard University quoted in the book above referred to. The last verse is a sample of outright blasphemy:

"O holy spirit—O heart of man!
Will you not listen, turn and bow
To that clear voice, since time began
Loud in your ears, and louder now!
Mankind, the Christ, retired—
Recrowned, recrucified;
No god for a gift, God gave us,
Mankind alone must save us."

Note that the "heart of man" is substituted for the Holy Spirit, and instead of the only begotten Son, we have "No god for a gift, God gave us;" Christ, the world's Redeemer is discarded and "Mankind alone must save."

Let us give you another quotation to show the trend of thought in high places, and for which man in his blindness and stupidity is grasping as a drowning man catches at a straw.

"O world, grown, pitiless and grim!
O world of men, had you but known
Your brother is your Christ, through him
You must be saved and him alone.
Love for his sorrows—love—
Love alone can lift you above
The pain of your misgiving,
The doom and horror of living.

"Within ourselves we find the light
And in ourselves our Gods to be,
Not throned beyond the stars of night;
Here in America we must see
The love of man for man,
The new republican—
A heaven, not superman,
Reborn in man and woman."

We have written the most startling declarations in italics in order to draw your attention to the glaring thoughts of man-contrived redemption. You will observe man is all while the One whose blood alone can save, is not mentioned save as we are reminded that man is our Christ.

It seems to us that such advocates of human redemption are bordering perilously near the precipice of the blasphemy against the Holy Ghost; perhaps, nearer than they think. If, as they contend, the heart of man is the "holy spirit," then the avenue of salvation through faith in the Crucified of Calvary is cut off, and they are without God and without hope in the world.

Our hearts are stirred when we see the drift of things in educational, social and ecclesiastical circles. "Preach the Word" is the message that should sound long and loud to our ministers. Christ is the world's magnet to draw men unto himself, and if the ministers of the gospel do not hold him up as the one mighty to save to the uttermost, the blood of earth's deceived and deluded multitudes will appear in judgment against them. This prodigal world still has the heart-cry of the Greeks, "We would see Jesus," and will not be satisfied with the husks of man-contrived salvation, nor the superficialities of social service. The body can get along with temporalities, but the heart needs God. This world has made no provision for the heart; it was made for God, and he alone can fill it.

While the adverse winds whistle their stinging blasts around us, may they but drive us closer to the heart of him who has said, "Come unto me, all ye that labor, and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart, and ye shall find rest unto your souls." Let us magnify and exalt him who has thrown out this world-wide invitation to a restless, hungry world, and prove to them that he is the panacea for all life's ills. He is the strength of our life, of whom shall we be afraid?

Let those who may choose to sail over life's tempestuous and uncertain sea in the little man-made canoes of self-righteousness, do so, but those of us who have the Captain of our salvation as our pilot, will stick to the old Ship of Zion, and drown the siren voices of a God-forgetting world by singing,

"Jesus, the name high over all
In hell, or earth, or sky!
Angels and men before it fall,
And devils fear and fly."

A shrieking penitent would throw most any preacher and congregation into a panic now days.

We are sanctified by the Holy Ghost: "Sanctified by the Holy Ghost" (Rom. 15: 16); "Through sanctification of the Spirit" (1 Thess. 2:13).

We are sanctified through the Truth: "Sanctify them through Thy Truth, Thy Word is Truth" (John 17:17). The Word reveals God's plan, our need, the wonderful provision through Christ, the way to true soul rest. It may be called the Revealing Agent. "Seeing ye have purified your souls in obeying the truth."

Conditionally, we are sanctified by faith: "Inheritance among them which are sanctified by faith" (Acts 26:18); "Purifying their hearts by faith" (Acts 15:9).

Faith is the great condition of our sanctification. The grace of repentance, which must of necessity precede any saving application of the atonement of Christ to the soul, has its place here, for it enables the seeker after full salvation to hate the sin of his heart, the sin that dwelleth in him. Thus a ground work is effected for sanctifying faith. It is not enough to say that we consecrate. This, of course, we must do up to the light we have; but we must hate sin in principle as well as in act. We must hate sin in act—in transgression—before we can exercise saving faith, and so it is in sanctification. We must hate sin in principle, the remains of our fallen, corrupt nature, in order to be able to trust God to cleanse it away. In this respect we believe in the doctrine of "repentance of believers," as taught by Mr. Wesley, called by him, "a self knowledge," a knowledge of a hidden foe, a heart condition, and a hatred for it. Without the grace of repentance, we can neither receive salvation in pardon or purity nor retain it.

Upon this ground work in the soul by the Holy Ghost who convicts of sin, through the atonement or the work of Christ for the world and his church, through the revealing agent, the Word, faith appropriates the promise, and God through his Spirit, the Holy Ghost, accomplishes the most wonderful miracle in the whole realm of the application of the atoning work of Christ for humanity, namely, an end of sin, freedom from sin, and a perfect restoration of his glorious image again, in righteousness and true holiness; a state of fitness for life, death and heaven: a prepared-for life, "For me to live is Christ," for me Christ is life; a preparedness to serve, "If a man therefore purge himself from these, he shall be a vessel unto honor, sanctified and meat for the Master's use, and prepared unto every good work"; a preparation for death, "I am. . . ready to die," "now ready to be offered"; a preparedness for heaven, "Without holiness no man shall see the Lord." Wonderful! a readiness for the presence of God in the glory world.

This blessed work of God in the soul is the great goal of Scripture, especially the New Testament. "Let us go on unto perfection." "Above all these things put on charity (divine love) which is the bond of perfectness." "And holiness without which no man shall see the Lord." Blessed finishing, blessed readiness, blessed preparedness!

This glorious accomplishment of the Trinity in the human soul, expressed in the word "holiness" implies wholeness, the absence of sin disease from the soul. It means perfect cleansing, present cleansing, present filling, present fulness; nothing lacking from a standpoint of satisfaction for holiness is perfect satisfaction. Deity in his blessed fulness dwells within, and lives out through us his blessed life and character. It is thus the accomplishment of Deity, the incarnation and revelation of Deity to man through man. The blessed Trinity living in very deed among men.

May God help us as holiness people, and make us "a holy people." "I in them and Thou in me, that they may be made perfect in one, that the world may know." The true holiness experience lived out will convince the world, and nothing else will.

ONE MINUTE SERMON.

BETHEL COOK.

"OUR NEED FOR CHRIST."

Text.—"Without me ye can do nothing." John 15:5.

The needs of men are so great and numerous that it is impossible to catalogue them. There is, however, one supreme need, and that is the Christ.

This secular world has come to the conclusion that Christ is unnecessary for the happiness and well being of life in a world so well equipped to care for the needs of life as they see it.

But the secular world is wrong because it leaves out the inevitable truth that our greatest need is not material but spiritual and Christ is the only source of help for our spiritual life.

FACTS FROM THE FIRING LINE.

"My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge."—Hos. 4:6.

Prohibition has wrought miracles of moral, social and economic redemption, but thousands of dregs do not know it. Every pastor is urged to reprint the following Fact in the Church Calendar, or read it from the pulpit to offset the destructive wet propaganda which appears in many of the secular newspapers. A new Fact appears in this place in each issue.

Theodore Roosevelt, when Police Commissioner of New York said in an official Message: "The worst possible lesson to teach any citizen is contempt for law. * * * To teach him that he has the right to break the law to get beer prepares him to break the law to get bread."

Prayer.

REV. H. E. WILLIAMSON.

"Men ought always to pray and not to faint," said Jesus. He reinforced his admonitions by his own example and thus drew his disciples to ask him to be taught to pray. The Bible is our first great help in the experience of prayer. Inspired examples of prayers that brought an answer are to be found from Genesis to Revelation. Human need impels men to call upon God for help.

Present day answers to prayer are not wanting. The range of our petitions is as wide as human need. St. Paul wrote, "In everything by prayer and supplication let your requests be made known unto God." No problem, no temptation, no trial, no sorrow or pain is too small or too great to bring before our "heavenly Father who knoweth what things we have need of before we ask him." Prayer brings God into the lives of men.

"Prayer does change things." All this we admit but how little we do pray. For the lack of much prayer our churches in many instances are living at a "poor dying rate." God's cause goes limping when it might be marching with the tread of a conqueror if we would use the prayer power at our command. But no, we multiply organizations and try methods and human programs and skimp our praying and results are not forthcoming as we desire. Nothing will atone for the lack of mighty prayer. Our age is not helpful to a deep prayer life. Too busy. Too many meetings. Too many programs. Too many conventions. Too much running here and there and so little time for our secret closets. This is true of us preachers as well as members. We don't pray enough. Not long enough. Not earnestly enough. Not with obstacle-overcoming faith enough. Not with Jacob-like wrestlings enough. Not with enough strong crying and tears. Not enough Gethsemane agony and desire. Oh, God of the Bible, when wilt thou see thy Church awaken to mighty prayer that will not let go until the answer comes.

What could be accomplished if preachers and people took to their knees in more earnest prayer to God in Jesus' name. We are face to face with the powers of darkness and of hell and of sin. The devil is making tremendous drives in these "last days" for he sees his doom approaching. Oh, let us pray until the Spirit be poured out from on high, sweeping the worldliness, sin and indifference from the Church and clearing the decks of the gospel ship for action and inaugurating a tremendous drive on the enemy and taking spoil for God in the conversion of souls and the upbuilding of the kingdom. Let us pray until God comes down in Pentecostal power.

Permit me also to call attention to some books that have greatly stirred my own soul to prayer. I refer to Rev. E. M. Bounds' books. His first, "Preacher and Prayer," is a classic. Then, his "Possibilities of Prayer" and his "Purpose in Prayer," both of which have been published since his death, will stir any one to prayer who gives them a careful reading. Few men can write three books on this subject as well as he has. It is to be doubted if our age has had a man of greater prayer than he. They are simply written, so that all can understand. His words are loaded with a power that pulls you to prayer and then more prayer as no others that the writer has read. If all of our preachers and some of our officers and members would get and read these books carefully and get at the business of praying as God would have us we would see a sweep of revival power and salvation that would eclipse any period of our history as a church. God grant that we may be stirred to pray, pray, pray.

Pentecostal Publishing Co., can supply these books at $1.00 each.

GLEANINGS FROM THE EVANGELISTIC FIELD

SITAPUR, INDIA.

Dear Friends: How rich we felt in friends at Christmas time? We were overwhelmed with lovely letters and greetings and we appreciated every one.

The boys asked to have the money that came from them pooled so that no one would be unhappy because he was not as fortunate as some one else. So each boy got a bright warm muffler, a cake of perfumed soap and a few other longed-for articles, besides an orange and candy and a dinner that made their eyes shine—Rice cooked with plenty of salt and spices. Meat with a curry gravy, pancakes fried in clarified butter, and guavas and peanuts for dessert.

Our first caller Christmas morning was a widow from a village a mile away who came bringing us a pint of milk from her buffalo. The sun had not yet warmed the air and I shivered in my woolen clothing. But she wore one thin piece of cotton cloth draped about her and her feet and arms were bare. The four-year-old little boy who was with her wore only a shirt and that was in tatters. He trembled so with the cold that he could not hold the bit of money that I gave him.

We gave out small, warm blankets to those who were in greatest need and to some gave cloth for their shivering children.

Christmas afternoon, over two hundred Christians gathered on the lawn in front of our house and after three happy hours departed with peanuts, guavas, Indian sweets and a picture card to make them happier still.

Mr. Jones spoke at a six o'clock Christmas service in the city which was attended by Hindus and Mohammedans and then at 8 P. M. we had dinner with the Moffatts. He is our District Superintendent and lives near us.

Two days after Christmas, Mr. Jones and I left for Cawnpore to attend Central Conference where later the first Indian Bishop in Methodism was elected. Dr. Chitambar was elected on the second ballot.

We feel that at last the Indian church is passing its infancy. It will need guidance for some years to come, but as the Christian Indian assumes responsibility, it will free us for more work among the non-Christians, to whom we are called.

Nearly every letter from home asks if I found that snake! You remember that I hastily closed my last letter to hunt for it. Well, we did not find it that day but that night about eleven o'clock our night watchman in making the rounds and testing the doors, nearly stepped on one at the threshold of the office door. It may or may not have been the one who left his skin for a calling card.

This karat is most deadly. I read the other day that no one had ever been known to survive its bite.

Our Eunice had a narrow escape. She dropped down on the couch one afternoon and then decided that her head was too high. She sat up and lifted the top cushion and coiled on the pillow beneath, was one of these small brown vipers. We once found one on the stairway as we went up to bed. Another dropped from a window curtain. Another slid from the cushion of an easy chair, and still another hid in the top drawer of my desk. Surely God keeps watch over us!

My table is overflowing with letters of thanks that the boys have sent in. One of my teachers who knows English is working long hours after school translating them. Then they must be sorted and put into envelopes which another teacher is addressing. If yours is not inclosed, it is because we have not yet got to it.

Not all of my boys are in the Sitapur school. Some have finished the course here and are studying farther; others I have put into Mission schools nearer their parents. But I keep in close touch with them all. Will those of you who have boys in other schools please address them in my care? Otherwise the letters may be lost as the school may be closed for holidays or the boy may have been transferred to another school. Because of my orphans I never really close. When I am gone I leave some one in charge to attend to mail, etc.

We are very grateful for the way you are standing by us. May you have the joy of knowing that the work you are doing for India in letting these boys get a Christian education, will endure long after we have all gone.

Mr. Jones is home for a week and is busy writing and studying. Eunice is at home, too, and keeps herself amused with her music, cooking, sewing, reading and playing tennis.

With our best wishes for a year full of joy and peace because of his constant presence,

Yours in His service,
Mabel L. Jones.

TROUP, TEXAS.

I have just recently assisted in a wonderful revival at Wesley Methodist Church, Parkersburg, W. Va. The presence of the Holy Spirit was felt at every service. There were eighty-five souls saved at the altar and several more were saved between services. There were fourteen senior young people who volunteered for special life service. Thank the Lord for his marvelous saving power, and the leadership of his Holy Spirit. He is blessing us now in a good meeting here at Troup, Texas. May God continue to bless you in giving us The Herald. It is the greatest church paper I know of.

H. L. Cochran.

HANNIBAL, MISSOURI.

We closed a very gracious revival meeting at Hannibal, Mo., Sunday night with the Hannibal Holiness Mission.

Rev. Edwin P. Phillips, the pastor, with his zealous people had been praying for the meeting for weeks, and in such an atmosphere of grace it was a privilege to labor for souls. God answered prayer in a definite way and numbers were converted and brought into the grace their hearts desired. Rev. Phillips and his wife with their corps of efficient workers are taking their stand for the old faith "once delivered to the saints," and God is setting his seal on the work in a blessed way.

L. Anderson and his wife have for years been known as leaders in this interdenominational holiness work. Bro. Anderson has for years been treasurer of the National Holiness Association.

We greatly enjoyed our stay with these beautifully saved people. May the intercessory spirit continue upon them as they labor in the kingdom interests at home and in the foreign fields.

REVIVAL AT WILMORE, KENTUCKY.

On Sunday morning, Jan. 25, our mid-winter annual revival effort opened at the Wilmore Methodist Church. Bro. Warren C. McIntire was with us for the first service as our engaged evangelist. Much prayer had gone up to God both from the church and the college, for weeks before the revival began. There seemed to be a general feeling among the people that God was going to answer prayer.

Bro. McIntire, our evangelist, came to Wilmore nearly three years ago to put his boys in school here at Asbury. He is a member of the California Conference of the M. E. Church, but at present is engaged in evangelistic work, making his home here at Wilmore. Very early he gained the confidence of the people in his ability for leadership in the meeting. His preaching, especially for the first week, was of the John the Baptist type, on such subjects as "Restitution," "Reconciliation," "Retaliation," etc.

The first altar call was made the second Sunday morning service, which proved to be a time of general melting and breaking up among the members of the College faculty and the official members of the church. After this service, there was not a single invitation where there was not definite response at the altar, and time after time the altars and the front were lined and packed with deeply convicted seekers. More times than once, so powerfully was God's presence felt in convicting power, that no sermon was necessary. The invitation was given and the altar filled.

It was clearly demonstrated that God's power was ruling and directing the meeting, in that neither the evangelist nor personal workers did much urging to get seekers to the altar,—they were moved by the power of the Spirit and the sense of their own need. Old-time confessions and restitutions were made, and souls ploughed to rock-bottom and got genuine experiences of reclamation, regeneration and entire sanctification.

The meeting was scheduled to close on Sunday, Feb. 8, but so great was the interest it was deemed advisable to run over to Friday, Feb. 13. The day services for the most part of the meeting were held in the auditorium of Asbury College at the regular chapel hour. Dr. L. R. Akers, President of the College, and his faculty, stood nobly by the meeting with their presence and prayers, and scores of the students were definitely blessed.

Our evangelist, Bro. McIntire, is a man of prayer. His messages were very plain and simple, but were freighted with unction and power. He preaches under the anointing of the Spirit. Very frankly and courageously, he exposes sin in all forms, in high places and low. We feel that he was God's man for this particular hour at Wilmore.

We praise God that the day of old-time Holy Ghost revivals are not over, for certainly the Lord has done great things for the church, town and Asbury College, for which we are grateful. To him be honor, glory and praise forevermore.

Warner P. Davis, Pastor.

GENERAL REPORT OF CHINA WORK AND NANKING MISSION.

The beginning of a New Year brings to us the remembrance of many dear ones in the homelands who are laboring together with us for the advancement of holiness in China.

Rev. and Mrs. L. O. Stanton, our representatives from Australia and New Zealand are now with us for a few days, on their return trip after having spent some time in America, and their messages are blessing our hearts. God is speaking not only through them, but also to them, enlarging their vision for the possession of these heathen lands by Christ, and we believe God is preparing them for a greater and more effective ministry than they have yet known. Please add them to your prayer list, holding on with us that many effectual doors may be opened unto them for the Gospel's sake.

Mr. Shelhamer and his son, prominent American evangelists, are also with us at this time, having already witnessed gracious demonstrations of the Spirit and his power in Korea and Japan, and they are to have special meetings here for a few days. We praise God for such men of faith, Holy Ghost fire and missionary fervor, and their ministry is always welcome among us.

A special cause for rejoicing at this time, is the wonderful revival of our work in Canton, South China, which has come as a direct answer to faithful and fervent prayer. Our God still hears and answers prayer in the same old-fashioned way. Bless his Name! Crowded missions, full altars, more than 350 children in the Sunday school on the compound, praise meetings taken over by the Holy Spirit; students, native workers and missionaries alike filled with new fire, and renewed interest in every part of the work all testify to the mighty, wonder-working power of our God. These reports will surely encourage your hearts, and help you make further requests "with thanksgiving."

Brother Zhen, who is pastor of our work in Nanking, sends a report thanking the Lord for the work that was done in Nanking during the summer by the students from the Bible Institute who were sent to carry on evangelistic and personal work. 40,000 tracts were distributed and over 1000 Gospel portions were sold. About 7000 heard the Gospel through direct ministry, and many souls were definitely born again and are attending the Mission regularly. Meetings were held in a number of other churches and schools in the city, so many were brought into contact with the teaching of holiness, and Brother Zhen is praying much that many of these precious souls will definitely come into the experience.

The Lord is blessing the work of his servants, and many definite conversions are taking place in the evangelistic meetings. One night when the altar call was given, sixteen souls sought the Lord at the altar. Among them was one man who loaned money at a very high interest for his living. If others borrowed money from him and could not pay it back, he cursed and beat them. The Lord wonderfully saved him, and with a face shining with joy from heaven, he said that those days were over and that from henceforth he was going to serve the Lord Jesus. He has been attending the Mission regularly since his conversion.

The Lord has wonderfully answered prayer in Nanking and given us the building we have been praying for, for several years. Ever since the work opened in Nanking we have been using a rented building. This month we have had the joy of moving into a large building which has just been renovated and slightly changed to suit our needs. Brother Zhen and Sister Dzou, the Bible woman, have moved into the second story with their families, and the first story is being used for a chapel. The location is splendid, and in a central part of the city. The building was formerly used for an orphanage. With this splendid new place in which to worship, Brother Zhen realizes that God gives a greater responsibility, and so he requests prayer that the work might be such that many precious souls will find Jesus, the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world.

Sister Dzou thanks the Lord for the opportunities she has had in leading women to Christ. She has visited the prison a number of times, and reports that the last meeting held there was one of special victory. After she had given the message, she asked those who wanted to accept the Lord to raise their hand, and three of the women responded. They sought the Lord very earnestly. Sister Dzou said her heart was truly filled with thanks and praise to God as she saw the fruits of her labors and the answer to her prayers.

Progress is being marked in all three fields; God is working and we plead with you to earnestly contend by way of the Throne for a year of unparalleled victories, the setting free of poor captives, and the hastening of the kingdom of God.

WILMORE, KENTUCKY.

Since reporting through The Pentecostal Herald we have held two revival meetings with some real soul-saving work accomplished.

Our meeting in Richmond, Ky., was held under very difficult surroundings. One of our difficulties was the lack of harmony among the church people, but we had some real results.

Our next meeting was in The People's Tabernacle, Lima, Ohio, in which a goodly number found the Lord. At the close of this meeting we were invited to stay over one night and preach for the Salvation Army, which we did and six souls came to the altar and as far as we know, all prayed through to victory.

At this time we have several open dates through spring and summer months—a few camp meeting dates open. I am ready to go any place, city or country, valley or mountains, church, tent, or camp, for a freewill offering. This is my tenth year in the evangelistic field. Let us pray.

party and of a private organization, made up largely of millionaires, and pledged to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment to the constitution of the United States, is somewhat suggestive.

The Republican party during 1930, according to its formal accounting filed with the clerk of the house of representatives, collected $700,891. The two political parties are charged with the duty of electing senators and representatives throughout the United States. Between them they represent easily 90 per cent of the voters of the United States. Upon the outcome of their efforts hinges the policy of the government on all great financial industrial and political problems. Yet neither spent as much in its political activities as the organization which declares its sole purpose to be the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. It refuses to offer any plan for the control of the liquor traffic after repeal, though its leaders set up the usual cry about being opposed to the return of the saloon. But the fact is that in its increasingly vigorous and costly campaign this organization has cast aside all pretense of any desire for future regulation of the liquor traffic, but declares its one purpose to be the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. Such repeal, without coincident legislation for the protection of society against the liquor power, would restore the intolerable conditions done away with in 1917.

In April of 1930, at a hearing before the subcommittee of the judiciary committee of the United States senate, Mr. Curran testified that at that time 60 per cent of the moneys thus far received by his association had been contributed by seven men. It would be interesting to know whether this ratio has been maintained, and whether today, as then, it was the four or five wet states of the east to which the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment looked for its support. The Democrats, who are latterly showing much restiveness over the financing of their party by a comparatively few wealthy New Yorkers, might also be interested to learn the extent to which the same group is financing the assault upon the constitution.—The American Issue.

The Second Coming of Christ.

The Second Coming of Christ to our globe is always an interesting subject. That he will come again, visibly, is plainly taught in the Scriptures. We judge that no man claims to know everything on this interesting subject; in fact, there is great disagreement among men with reference to the second coming of our Lord, but very general agreement that, at some time, unknown to any human being, the Lord will appear.

We are taught that the time is unknown; that he will appear suddenly; that he will come in great glory; that his coming will bring great joy to those who are prepared to receive him, and a most fearful condition of things to those who are not prepared.

In a few weeks we shall begin a discussion

A MOST ABUSIVE LETTER.

I received, a few days ago, one of the most delightfully abusive letters from a very rank modernist, I have received since beginning the publication of The Herald. The brother did not sign his name, but I can hardly conceive of such a letter being written by any sane person, except a modernistic preacher in a fury of righteous indignation.

He told me that some one was sending him The Herald; had been receiving it for some time. One interesting feature of his long letter was, that he read it every week. I was pleased to learn that fact. I do not believe the brother is as mad as he thinks he is; I believe he is under conviction for sin without religious knowledge to understand what is the matter with him.

The letter was not in the least offensive to me; it was really a compliment. I am thankful some one is sending him The Herald, and that he is reading it. I am glad he did not order the paper stopped. He is by no means the first brother I have known who became very angry at the truth, but afterward received it gladly.

It is impossible to calculate the benefits that would accrue if a host of The Herald family would send in one or more dollars with the names of one or more preachers, to whom they wish The Herald sent the coming year. Let us hear from you at once, and start them a weekly visitor with a message of salvation.

Sometime ago, one of the greatest Bishops of Methodism said to me, "Morrison, I read your paper and it gives me, not only spiritual comfort, but suggestions for sermon matter." Let's put The Herald into the hands of a host of young preachers.

Faithfully your brother,
H. C. MORRISON.

of this subject, The Second Coming of Christ, under the head,

IF CHRIST SHOULD COME TO JERUSALEM.

In the first chapters of this discussion we shall not undertake any sort of theological discussion, but simply contemplating what would occur or, what we might expect to occur, if Christ should come to Jerusalem. We want our readers to become interested, search the Scriptures, and think on this subject. It can but be a means of grace. Many devout people believe that we are rapidly approaching the end of the present dispensation, and the dawn of the most glorious day in the history of the human race. Evidently, there will be some stormy and tremendous events at the close of the present age, and the incoming of the Golden Age of the Reign of Christ.

HISTORIC CANDLESTICKS

RS. Smith T. Powell, of Hustonville, has in her possession the old-fashioned candlesticks used in Durham's Chapel, the first Methodist house of worship ever established in Kentucky. The founders of Durham's Chapel were the Rev. Francis Clark and John Durham. Rev. Clark was the first Methodist preacher to invade the wilderness of Kentucky at the close of the Revolutionary War. Dr. J. J. Polk in his History of Boyle County published in 1867, says that the entire membership was moved to Perryville and consolidated with the Methodist Church there in 1864. Durham's Chapel, sometimes called White's Chapel, was founded probably in 1783, about the time the First Presbyterian Church was established in Danville. Both Rev. Francis Clark and John Durham, who planted Methodism in the wilderness, have many descendants in Boyle County.—The Interior Journal, Stanford, Ky.

The John Durham mentioned in the above clipping from The Interior Journal was my great-grandfather. My mother, Emily Durham, the daughter of Thomas Durham, was born and reared near White's Chapel Church. She was a member of that church, which was located on the pike leading from Perryville to Danville, about two miles out from Perryville. As stated in the above clipping, the congregation at White's Chapel was consolidated with the Methodist Church in Perryville. I was licensed to preach by the quarterly conference of this same Methodist Church in Perryville in 1878. My mother's family, the Durhams, were of good old Methodist stock. It was in the days of White Chapel that a brilliant young preacher by the name of Bascom, afterward Bishop Bascom, boarded with my grandfather, while he rode the circuit.

Some years ago I met with a woman at a camp meeting who told me that her mother went over to my mother's house and took care of me while my mother went to quarterly meeting at eleven o'clock Saturday morning. I was then three weeks old, the first time my mother left the premises after my birth. This good woman told me that her mother said when my mother returned from quarterly meeting she picked me up from the bed, held me in her arms, walked the floor, laughed, wept for joy, praising God, and said, "While I was at church today, I gave my little Henry Clay to God to preach the gospel, and I feel in my heart that God accepted the gift, and I believe when I am dead and gone my baby boy will be preaching Jesus to the people." My mother died two years later, but blessing on her memory; she gave me a good start. The memory of this dedication has been a comfort and stimulation to my soul. I am fully expecting to meet her, by and by, at the feet of our blessed Redeemer and Lord. I thank God that my mother was a shouting Methodist.

My father died four years after I was born, in Mississippi, not far from Vicksburg. He had driven mules and horses south, had sold them, and was arranging to return to Kentucky when he was taken ill and died. Some years ago I met with a woman in Mississippi who knew my father well and visited him a few days before his death. She told me he was praising God and that he went away in peace. At a very trying period in my young life, a memory of my parents, their religious lives as they were related to me by those who knew them, and the fact that they believed in Jesus Christ, died in peace and went to heaven, had a powerful influence over me for good.

The calendar tells me that I am an old man; but for that fact, a long illness, and a very gray head, I would hardly realize that I am old. But I have a very restful faith and a joyful anticipation of meeting my parents and many others who have gone before, in the not distant future. This faith and hope stir and thrill my heart with a great praise to the Lord Jesus Christ. Glory and honor, praise and adoration to his name forever and ever. Amen!

A Serious Situation.

One of the very serious features of the long drouth in Kentucky is the water conditions. The low tide of water in the river is menacing the health of the people who get their water supply from the Ohio and Kentucky rivers. There has been a good deal said about praying for rain; some express faith while others ridicule. I believe the time has come for the people openly and humbly to go to God in earnest prayer for rain. They ought to make public announcements in the papers, from the pulpits and gather in the churches and the people who believe the Bible, and believe that God answers prayer, to go to humble confession and prayer to God in this time of real distress. Why not? Let those ridicule who may. God does answer prayer. Why not, preachers and people, who have had answers to prayer, who believe in prayer, without any shame or apology, make public announcement and gather in prayer groups, with humble confession of their sins and the sins of the people, cry to God for his mercy and abundant rain to cleanse and refresh the earth, wash out collection of debris and disease breeding matter that has accumulated in the rivers. The situation is distressing, the need is great. All the circumstances are such that praying people ought to go to God and pray to him day and night for an abundant rain. H. C. MORRISON.

A Letter to a Young Preacher.

My Dear Young Brother:

I note from your letter that you feel a bit disappointed about your assignment. I can understand how a man of your energy feels cramped and hemmed in, somewhat, stationed in a small village with two other churches so near you, and with little material to work on.

I trust you may find some comfort in the thought that your present situation gives you an excellent opportunity for study, far better than you could have had on a larger circuit, or in an important city station. You, perhaps, will never have another such opportunity. You are now at the best period of your life for study, for the mental vigor of youth stimulates your mind to hunger and retentiveness.

In your village pulpit you can use the truths and suggestions which come to you from many excellent, thought-provoking books which are in easy reach. You can sow the seeds of thought which will be producing good sermon matter the rest of your life.

I suggest that you keep a large note-book on your study table, and when a good thought is flashed into your mind from the pages you read, put it down and from them build up clear, strong, forceful, evangelistic messages that will edify your congregations. Put your very life into your preaching, and expect good results.

See that you learn to speak well, pronouncing your words plainly and distinctly, not far apart, but connected; not jumbled together, but clear and forceful. Any man of good ordinary commonsense ought to learn directly to be a good speaker. Do not yell, or growl, but speak to be heard. Place the emphasis where it belongs.

Proper gesticulation is of real value, but do not keep your hands flying about in the air, with no meaning; such demonstration is offensive and largely destroys the effect of a good sermon. If you get into the habit of thrusting your hands into your pockets while preaching have a pair of Sunday trousers made without pockets.

Guard against excitement while preaching, but get and keep good control of yourself while in the pulpit; know what you are doing and saying. This will greatly help your thinking and utterance and will save you from nervous strain. It will conduce much to your ministry every way. Some preachers never get over stage fright in their pulpit ministrations, and suffer greatly as the result of it.

The best remedy for that sort of thing is to be in gracious harmony with your Saviour and Lord; to feel that you are his messenger and that you are not seeking the applause of men, or their money, but their souls and, in a sense, you are master of the situation. Be honest, deeply sincere, and feel the power of the truth you preach, while you rejoice in the privilege of delivering it to the people; in this, you will have liberty and unction which the Holy Spirit gives to those who preach the gospel.

You may be sure that in and about you there are neglected, lost people and, situated as you are, there are responsibilities resting upon you for their souls. Search for and find them and bring them to Christ. Who can tell the outcome of a real revival of religion in your village. Be sure to plan for it, pray for it, and go in for it. Have a revival in spite of men and devils.

Above all else, study your Bible, always with a definite object in view, seeking to know the law, the will and the love of God. Fill your mind with divine truth. Saturate your mental and spiritual being with the truths of Holy Writ, remembering that the paramount business of the preacher is to know and proclaim the Word of God, as he has said, "My word shall not return unto me void." The word of God is quick and powerful. Preach the word. Think carefully and prayerfully over the subject that you contemplate bringing before the people, depend upon the Holy Spirit to speak through you to the people, and your message will not have been delivered in vain.

Faithfully your brother,
H. C. MORRISON.

How are we Made Holy?

I recently clipped the following from that very excellent magazine, The Record of Christian Work. Read it:

"Holiness comes to no man as the complete and immediate result of some act of surrender, however great. No, the power of holiness is given him, but his growth in it will be gradual and will be wrought out in tears and much striving against sin. . . . Not until we behold the king in his beauty, and receive the new body of glory shall we be finally delivered from this process,—growth of holiness through renewed discovery of our need of holiness.—Temple Gairdner."

I do not know the writer of the above statement. He is evidently a Calvinistic thinker. Calvinism clings tenaciously to a limited salvation. The reader will notice that in Brother Gairdner's process toward holiness, there are "tears," "strivings" and "growth." He postpones the possibility of holiness until we see the King in his beauty and receive a new body.

It is singular that a man should write on the subject of holiness and forget to mention the Holy Ghost. There is promised us a baptism with the Holy Ghost, which baptism is a fiery, purging work which surpasses all human "tears," "strivings" and "growth." The simple fact is, sin cannot be grown out of the soul.

Paul speaks of our carnal nature as if it were a person—an old man. The Apostle says this old man is to be crucified; not on the cross throughout life in a lingering death. He, this old man, dies, that the body of sin might be destroyed, that henceforth we should not serve sin. This is the way into holiness—the destruction of the "body of sin."

Reading further in the same chapter, we find the great Apostle saying: "But now being made free from sin, and become servants of God, ye have your fruit unto holiness, and the end everlasting life." All of this comes through the sacrifice of the blessed Christ made upon the cross. John tells us that "the blood of Jesus Christ his (God's) Son cleanseth us from all sin."

Dr. Luke tells us that when John the Baptist was born, Zacharias, his father, was filled with the Holy Ghost, and that he prophesied, saying among other things, "That he, (God) would grant unto us, that we being delivered out of the hands of our enemies, might serve him without fear, in holiness and righteousness before him, all the days of our lives."

The way of holiness is through the blood of the Lamb of God who taketh away the sins of the world. No man should undertake to write on holiness and leave out the cleansing blood of Christ, and the fiery baptism with the Holy Ghost.

The Whole Family For Jesus.

A. W. ORWIG.

One of the most beautiful earthly sights conceivable is a whole family living and laboring for Jesus. It might perhaps more properly be called a heavenly sight on earth. Blessed family! What a paradise this earth would be, even amid the pain and suffering consequent upon the fall of man, were every household consecrated to God! But ah, how painful the very thought that so few out of the hundreds of thousands of families even in our own land have not one representative of the religion of Jesus Christ! Surely it is enough to start tears of sorrow from the eyes of every earnest Christian. But it ought to do more than this. Where is the Christian parent, who, in contemplating the sad fact of so many Christless homes, will not offer up a fervent prayer for his unsaved neighbor's family? A prayerless father! a prayerless mother! prayerless children! Oh, how mournful! No prayer around the hearthstone, none around the table, none at the bedside, none in the closet—none from one end of the week to the other—none during the whole year, oh how sad!

But may it not be otherwise? Can not such a state of things be checked? Surely it need not be so, and would not were all Christian parents duly to consider the solemn and weighty responsibilities resting upon them in reference to the religious training of their children. How many come far short of their duties in this respect! Were all to adopt the wise course of the God-fearing Joshua, who declared, "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord!" how few children, if any, would ever leave the parental roof unconverted! Few, indeed, would even outgrow their childhood without giving their hearts to Jesus. Parents should by no means be content simply to send their children to Sabbath school, and occasionally to church, and still less frequently to impart unto them religious instruction at home. The worth of the soul requires a great deal more; and that parent who does not pray with and for his children, and make it his first and highest duty to his family to provide for their spiritual well-being, cannot be wholly guiltless in the sight of God.

Not Easter Eggs, But the Bible.

Many children look upon Easter as a time to get Easter eggs, but we want to suggest that along with the eggs you place in their hands a beautiful little child's Bible.

We have a beautiful little edition, just the right size, bound in leather with the overlapping edges, stamped in gold on the back and backbone, red under the gold edges, and with about 20 most excellent Bible helps suitable for children. The size, 3½x5½x1 in. thick, and weighs 11 ozs.

Instead of having a dozen different kinds of child's Bibles, we make a specialty of this one, and by having them made up in very large quantities we are enabled to sell a $2.50 value for $1.50, postpaid.

Believing that a Divinely-called, wholly-sanctified, well-equipped, Spirit-filled ministry is one of the greatest needs of our times, and for all time to come, I am glad to make a donation for the upbuilding of the Asbury Theological Seminary at Wilmore, Ky.

For this great work, I promise to give $..... per year for five years, first installment due September 1, 1931. I will join all who are helping in this good work in prayer for the blessing of the Lord to rest upon it.

A SWEET SINGER.

Mrs. Geneva Mendenhall.

After Saul had been king of Israel for some time, he grew proud of his greatness and forgot that his strength and power came from God. When Saul turned away from the Lord, the Lord rejected him as king, and spoke to Samuel, saying, "Go to Bethlehem in Judah for there I have chosen a king among the sons of Jesse."

So Samuel went down to Bethlehem leading a cow, and telling the people to gather together with him since he would make a sacrifice. In the crowd Samuel watched the seven sons of Jesse very closely, but God failed to show him which one to choose so Samuel asked, "Are these all your children?" To which the father replied that the youngest was not called from his care of the sheep.

When this youth was brought, Samuel arose at once and anointed him for he was sure that this boy with his fresh cheeks and bright eyes was God's choice.

While David, who was still very young, did not understand why Samuel anointed him with oil, when he returned to his flocks on the hillside, God went with him so that he thought of God, talked to him and prayed to him while alone. As time passed he grew more strong and brave, sometimes killing with his own young strength the wild animals that tried to steal his flock. Sometimes he practiced for hours, throwing stones with his sling until he could strike exactly the spot at which he aimed.

Since the Spirit of the Lord left Saul he became very unhappy so that at times he seemed to lose his mind. One of the young princes of the court, thinking that the music might cheer him, suggested that they bring more music into the court. Saul approved, so David came to the king's court with his harp where he played and sang until Saul's gloom passed away. Saul soon loved David as did everyone who knew him. This young Jew whose music brought peace to a distressed king, wrote many beautiful songs later on which we call the Psalms.

Questions.

1. Why did Samuel take a sacrifice down to Bethlehem with him?
2. Why was King Saul gloomy and sad?
3. With what well-known song or psalm of David are you familiar?

Dear Aunt Bettie: I am a Carolina boy ten years old. I would like to join your happy band of boys and girls. As this is my first letter I hope to see it in print. I am in the fifth grade. Mrs. L. L. Shaver is my teacher. I hope Mr. W. B. has gone out for a walk when this letter arrives.

Hugh Ferguson.
Rt. 1, Whittier, N. C.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a Marshall county girl join your happy band of boys and girls? Mother takes The Herald. I weigh 61 pounds, have black hair, dark complexion. My birthday is December 31. I am seven years old. I do hope Mr. and Mrs. W. B. are out walking as I want to see this in print. I go to school. I went to M. E. Church today.

Rosa Brisco.
Red Banks, Miss.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Would you let a thirteen-year-old girl from West Virginia join the happy circle of cousins? I am studying to be a preacher. My text is Matt. 4:19, "And he saith unto them, follow me, and I will make you fishers of men." Jesus told Peter and Andrew that if they would follow him he would make them fishers of men. And if we follow him he will also make us fishers of men. If we cannot sing but can preach we are fishing by preaching, or if we can sing but cannot preach we are fishing for souls that are staggering around in darkness, blind and deceived. We are fishing for souls that are running around into every public swimming pool, red-light district, and where they can get liquor or any other intoxicants or drugs. Christ's fishers are always on the lookout with their nets ready to catch any soul that goes down the stream of life unmindful of the judgment that is awaiting them. They are ready to throw their net of gospel truth and entwine them so that they can't get out. Let us all be fishers of men.

Rose Perry.

Rt. 4, Milton, W. Va.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Here I come to give you a call, I have just been reading page ten, And laid down my paper And picked up my pen, To write you a letter, I hope you don't mind, I hope you'll read it and some pleasure find.

I guess you're wondering who this could be. I'll endeavor to tell you, so listen to me. I'm a junior in high school. I like school fine; My studies employ the most of my time. I weigh one hundred twenty-four, I'm five feet, six, not any more.

My eyes are brown, my hair is too, Now does that description appeal to you? I'm just eighteen years old, Now enough about me I guess I've told.

What are your hobbies, cousins dear? Mine are too many to tell, I fear. I like horseback riding and music, too, I'm fond of all kinds of sports, aren't you? I like to travel and have a good time Then come back home and tell it in rhyme.

Now cousins, I'm leaving, but before I go I must tell you I want you to write me, you know. Boys and girls, great and small, I'd like to hear from one and all. I'll answer your letter if it takes a year. (It won't take half that long, I fear.) Poetically yours, Georgia Pennycuff.
Decide, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I wonder if you will let a Mississippi girl join your band of boys and girls? I am seventeen and a senior in high school. I am a Christian and belong to the M. E. Church. I believe we would find it better if we left off the description of ourselves and tell of what God has done for us. Some people never stop to think about God at all, but God is wonderful to let us go on in our sins, but sooner or later we suffer. I will answer all letters received. So all of the cousins write.

Lucille Swales.
Edinburg, Miss.

May God bless you for your good works in helping the young Christians. I'm so glad that many of the cousins are following Jesus, who is the best friend of all. There's not a friend like the blessed Jesus, no, not one. How glad I am to have such a friend as Jesus, I want to share this friend with all for he loves us all. Oh, how much it cost Christ for us to be good. Let us oft remember the cross and the One who died there for us. He healed my limbs which were paralyzed over three years. I can walk today. It has been about three years now since Christ came into my life. I can truly say Jesus is just the same today as in the days of old. I would like to hear from you cousins who live near Lee Valley, Tenn., and Morristown, Tenn. I am a girl in my early twenties. I teach the beginners' Sunday school class in the M. E. Church. Dear Aunt Bettie: May I join your happy band of boys and girls? Grandma takes The Herald and I enjoy reading page ten. My grandma is eighty-one years old. She is a member of Mt. Bulah Church. My birthday is March 10. I am in the sixth grade. I go to school at Chrisman Mill. I haven't been tardy nor absent. I have a sister whose name begins with H, and ends with R. Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a ten year old boy join your happy band of girls and boys? I am in the fourth grade. I have one brother and one sister. I have been saved and I love God. I would like to see my letter in The Herald. I hope every one will get The Herald and read it.

Simon Bradley.
Gonzalez, Fla.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I have read so many nice letters in The Herald I took a notion in my head to write. Myrtle M. Beal, Mr. W. B. is Mr. Waste Basket. I don't like him a little bit; he's so greedy he gobbles our letters. Aunt Bettie, why don't you do something to cure him of his bad habit. I think movies are all right if you hit a good one, but most of them are harmful to grown-ups as well as children. I live on an eighty-acre farm with my dear grandparents. Mother died October 16, 1929. I have a nice home with grandmother. Mother may scold, cousins, and fret, but when she's gone you will certainly say there's nobody like mother. My mother left three girls. I'm the biggest; I'm five feet, lacking one inch. The Lord has done a lot for me. I knew a woman, or rather grandma did, who was Anna Clark; she married and moved to Ohio. I thought she might be a reader of The Herald and read this.

FALLEN ASLEEP

HODGDON.

The life of Orrin Hodgdon came to a peaceful end Feb. 9, at 7 P. M. Had he lived four days more he would have been eighty-one years old. He was born Feb. 13, 1850 at Ossipee Center, Carroll county, New Hampshire, son of James and Sarah Hodgdon. The family moved west when he was quite young. He was converted at the age of twenty-seven. On Dec. 21, 1871, he was united in marriage to Miss Louisa Potter, and they settled down on a homestead in Boon Lake Township, Renville Co., Minn., which has ever since been their home, passing through all the hardships of frontier life. He leaves to mourn their loss his aged wife, two sons and four daughters; all of them were with him in his last illness. He was ready and anxious to go, and the afternoon before his going he asked for his cap, saying he wanted it, for he was going home. Just at twilight, after the sun was set, he said to mother, who was by his bedside, "Stand back there is a light shining in my face as bright as the sun."

He saw the light from heaven which no mortal eye could see. His last words were, "I want to go to sleep," and he passed over, without a murmur or struggle. Just went to sleep in Jesus. He loved to read The Pentecostal Herald which has been in his home for many years.

It was father's request that Rev. J. Parrish of Princeton, an old family friend, preach the sermon. He was assisted by Rev. Haggens of the M. E. Church of Hector. The text was taken from Isaiah 40th chapter, 8th verse. The funeral was held at the old home, Feb. 12 at 2 o'clock. A large crowd of relatives and friends gathered there. The floral offerings were many and beautiful, and we laid him to rest in the Boon Lake cemetery.

By a Daughter.

PRIDGEN.

Alter Pridgen, the only child of the home has left this world and gone to live with Jesus. He said before he went that he was ready to go. He was born Sept. 4, 1914, and departed this life Oct. 27, 1929. His body was placed in Lime Springs cemetery to await the resurrection. He was loved by all who knew him and was a member of the M. E. Church and a subscriber to The Pentecostal Herald. He enjoyed reading The Herald for the last two years of his life. He was the flower of our home, but Jesus took him home and placed the flower in our mansion, which is a beacon light to us. His sweet voice is heard no more, but talking and singing for the angels in glory. He said that the 36th verse of the 12th chapter of Matthew was his favorite verse.

We have the sweet assurance that if we prove faithful until the end we will meet to never part again, for he told his father that he saw his mansion. The Rev. J. B. Spivey, his pastor, preached his funeral which was attended by a host of friends. His father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. N. O. Pridgen, are left to mourn his departure and ask the prayers of all The Herald family to hold them up to the throne of grace that the dear Lord will comfort their sad hearts. Pray that we may all meet around the throne some sweet day.

J. B. Spivey.

KEEP UP THE FIGHT.

Dear Brother Morrison:

I want to congratulate and thank you for the fight for the right you have been making to uphold the Eighteenth Amendment. There must be no let-up on this. The next two years will be the crucial time for all lovers of decency to stand four-square for the prohibition law. The liquor people are, as far as money and false representation can avail, moving earth and hell (not heaven) to tear down our constitution. They claim they are for true temperance, but no saloons. No saloons, Bah! A skunk would smell just as bad nesting under the kitchen as he would under the parlor. Liquor in the stomach of an auto driver will cause a collision just as quickly if bought from the state as it would if bought from a bar-keeper or a bootlegger. They say they want to stop bootlegging.

I was in Missouri one time when the Kansas City Liquor Dealers' Association met in that city, and among the resolutions passed by that very important body (?) was one asking the city authorities to use greater efforts to suppress the illegal sale of liquor in that city. The resolution claimed there were more blind pigs in Kansas City than legally licensed saloons, and if I remember there were about 700 saloons in that city at that time.

One phase of the situation has not been stressed strongly enough, and that is this: If congress should at any time repeal the enforcement act, and by legislation legalize the sale of beer and light wines, as non-intoxicants, and this should get by the supreme court, then any soft drink stand could sell the stuff and any boy or girl could buy it and no law would prevent it. This situation would be worse than was the saloon situation at its worst.

As at present constituted no such law would get by the supreme court, for more than once has it placed its O. K. on the one-half of one per cent limit. This same one-half of one per cent limit was made at the request of the liquor people before prohibition in order to shut off the sale by soft drink dealers; but now they would give their right arms to get rid of that law.

The boozers know they cannot possibly get the amendment out of the constitution, and hence most of the moves in congress have been toward beer and wines, yet they know that three-fourths of the drunkenness in saloon times was caused by this same frothy beer. Imagine a condition in which every schoolboy or girl could stop at any soft drink stand and fill up on beer or wine. God forbid it! And God will forbid it. Millions of church people seem passive and indifferent, but other millions are on their knees every day pleading that right may triumph with an earnestness that the God of nations will not deny. Pray on brethren, but fight as well as pray. God bless you, Dr. Morrison, for your stand, politically, on this. I, too, took that stand long ago and am standing firmer than ever now.

J. W. McKean.

As I was with Moses, so will I be with thee; I will not fail thee, nor forsake thee. Be strong and of good courage. Joshua 1:5, 6.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.

H. T.: "Please pray that God will open up a way and send a holiness evangelist to our town to hold a revival. Pray that loved ones may be saved and sanctified. That I may be filled more with the Holy Spirit. That God will direct our ways, open up a way, supply what is needed and bring us all back to our home town again."

O. K. S.: "I have been sick for some weeks and would very much appreciate the prayers of The Herald family for my recovery, and that the sweet peace that passeth all understanding may abide with me always."

Rev. C. E. H.: "I have paralysis; I am asking for the prayers of the saints."

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

REV. O. G. MINGLEDORFF, D. D.

Lesson XIII.—March 29, 1931.

Subject.—Review: Jesus the World's Savior.

Scripture Lesson.—Acts 10:34-43.

Golden Text.—Jesus of Nazareth . . . who went about doing good, and healing all that were oppressed of the devil; for God was with him. Acts 10:38.

Jesus Christ stated the purpose of his coming when he announced that he had come to seek and to save that which was lost. He confirmed that purpose when he died for man on the cross and rose from the dead. Leave out of the count the fact that he by the grace of God tasted death for every man and that we are saved through the merit of his shed blood, and little is left to make his coming worth while for our race. "Oh," say some, "don't forget his beautiful example and his noble teaching." We shall not forget either; but they have no value without his saving blood, and can do nothing but tantalize and disappoint sinful men. A flowing spring is beautiful and almost beyond price, but worthless to a sick man who is famishing for water in the middle of the big desert, while the spring is miles away and beyond his reach. No one can obey the teachings of Jesus of Nazareth, or follow his example, until he is born from above.

This world needs a Savior. In our day many seem to forget that ours is a fallen race. They even deny that awful fact; although they see the proof of it at every turn in life. But there is no hope for any man, unless he can realize his lost condition. Turn to the first chapter of Paul's letter to the Romans, and read from the 18th to the 32nd verse. Verses eighteen to twenty-seven will give you the origin of heathenism, and verses twenty-eight to thirty-two will give you the origin of modern doubt. When one turns away from the light and walks into the blackness of night, he forfeits all opportunity. There are pitfalls and everlasting ruin in that direction.

When Jesus came into the world, men had many minor ills, but just one great need that outclassed all others combined: A revival of saving religion through a Divine Savior; and that is the world's one need today. All other remedies for human woes are only palliative. They relieve the pain a bit, but do not heal the sore. They, in some measure, hide the gangrene, but do not cleanse away the poison. Man needs a radical cure. If the race were purified from all sin, all its ills would amount to nothing. The difference between Chicago and heaven is the difference between sin and righteousness.

America has no need today commensurate with her need of a revival of saving power. But that has been said so much that it no longer makes any impression, not even upon church people. I sometimes wonder if we have forgotten what such a revival really means. One reads in the papers of the church glowing accounts of gracious revivals here and there; but in many cases results have gone the way of the earth in less than six months time. It seems to an old foggy such as I am, that we are trying to "go further without going deeper." Surely we have tested our human organizations and our fine educational schemes sufficiently long to learn that they cannot save the lost. Call me a crank, a pessimist, or anything else you please; but in the name of my God, whose I am and whom I serve, I declare to the Church that it is high time for us to change our methods. We have waited all too long for lost men to come to our fine churches to listen to our dry sermons. They are not coming; and they never will come. Jesus Christ never told us to wait for them. He said "GO" after them. Gen. Booth had the right idea when he went to the slums after lost men and women. Dr. H. C. Morrison is right when he exhorts three thousand idle preachers to go into the highways and hedges and preach to the people, even though they may have but one man for an audience.

It is time to quit fussing and quibbling about entire sanctification. If we have any spiritual life at all, we know that we must have the Holy Ghost energizing within us in order to reach lost men and bring them to Jesus Christ for salvation. We are too much afraid of fanaticism, of which we are in no manner of danger just now. As Bishop Beachamp of the M. E. Church, South, says: "We are afraid to remain on our knees at the mercy-seat until we are baptized with the Holy Ghost." If Jesus Christ needed the anointing with the Divine Spirit for the fullness of his ministry, how dare we undertake ours without that equipment. The Church made a mockery of the celebration of the nineteen-hundredth anniversary of the outpouring of the Holy Ghost on the day of Pentecost; but it is not too late now for her to put in a month or two praying for a new Pentecost. Let us quit preaching, and pray until the Holy Ghost comes afresh upon us. Then, and not till then, can we do the task before us.

It seems to me that we need a bit of John-the-Baptist work to prepare for the coming of the Spirit. And don't forget that when he comes to the Church he will "reprove the world of sin, of righteousness, and of judgment." There is almost no conviction for sin now, because the Church is in need of the Spirit. But how about preparing the way for his coming? If the Church is to have a revival that will really save the people, she must forever have done with all compromising with the world. And first of all things, the ministry must be cleaned up. Just now a large part of it is nicotine poisoned and "lodged" to its death. It runs after the "movies" and nearly everything else that the world and the devil have to show. Thank God, the majority of preachers live above such rot; but so many are guilty that the entire church is crippled. Brethren, in the name of our God, let's clean up and save the world for which Jesus Christ poured out his life's blood.

O, you laymen of the Church, I plead with you as an ambassador of God. If the Son of man needed a harbinger to prepare the way before him, in order that his ministry might succeed, the Holy Ghost needs you as his forerunners. Where are you? What are you doing? Forget about the church finances for at least a few minutes. Lose sight of all your fine organizations sufficiently long to see yourselves. The Church needs money, and must have it; but if the last obligation were met to the last cent, that would not bring a revival. Don't be deceived: revivals do not come that way; but a genuine revival after the Pentecostal fashion would make the Church meet her financial obligations just as far as God would have them met. What business have you and your children to attend the dirty "movies" that are cursing the land? Did you not promise to forsake all the uncleanness of the world? Have done with it, if you hope to go to heaven when you die. Parents come to me begging me to do something to stop their children from smoking cigarettes, when they themselves are growing and selling tobacco. This is nothing uncommon. In the name of common sense, let's not be a gang of hypocrites. There is but one way to stop children from smoking cigarettes: Their parents must quit the entire dirty business, and thereby set the children an example.

I am begging God for a revival, if one can come without compromising the Godhead. My town had a big dance sometime ago; and the church-members and the world and the devil were so thoroughly mixed up in it, that one could not be told from another. A little "sissie," but not of this town, said to me: "I can dance till two in the morning, and then go home and pray as well as at any other time." I told her that I had not a shadow of doubt about that. If I may lay aside my ministerial garb for a minute, I will say as an M. D. that I know of few nastier things this side of the pit than the modern dance. We need a revival; we must have it, or speedy ruin awaits us; but it cannot come unless our church people will cut loose from the world and the devil. Our Christ who died for us must be honored, or he will not send the Holy Ghost upon us.

Maybe you think I am desperate. If so you are thinking correctly; for so I am. These years are growing short to me now; and I have much to do. Oh, you dear church people! Clean up, and clean out your spiritual premises. Sanctify yourselves, that God may sanctify you from all sin. Get down the Good Book, and have family prayers at your house. Be hard on yourselves: tell God how you have failed to measure up to his standard, and cry mightily for pardon and restoration. We must honor the Christ, if we expect him to honor us with the incoming Spirit. "Them that honor me I will honor; but they that despise me shall be lightly esteemed," saith Jehovah; and his Word must stand forever.

Brethren, I am jealous for my Lord. He came to "seek and to save that which was lost," to be the Savior of the world; and he has called us out of the world to be his co-workers in winning men. Shall we fail him? As one reads the record of the work of the Church in America for 1930, he feels like crying and hiding his face for very shame. O, thou God of infinite goodness, have mercy upon us, and forgive us for our worthlessness in thy harvest field, and help us to do something this year that will honor our Lord.

Maybe I am mistaken, but I see no chance for a revival in those places where Modernism, like a creeping paralysis, has sapped the spiritual life of the Church. When men deny the Deity of our Lord and his blood atonement, they crucify him afresh and put him to an open shame. This

BACK TO THE HOME.

Daisy H. Phipps.

Back to the home, the home of our fathers

Where peace and affection so sweetly did dwell.

Where mother was honored as queen of the household

And fond thoughts do linger that no tongue can tell.

Back to the home where the hearth-stone was sacred,

Where dear ones could meet 'neath its sheltering fold,

Where each one around felt its charmed circle

And love was the spell that never grew old.

Back to the home, let the slogan be sounded

From pulpit and pew, from the editor's chair.

Back to the spot where there's no rush and hurry,

Where there's time for the Bible and family prayer.

Back to the home, 'tis the need of the nation,

From the highest to the humblest of all.

Back to the God whose name we once worshipped.

Heed it, fathers, mothers, O, heed the call.

COUNSEL TO YOUNG CONVERTS.

Dear Young Converts of Jesus Christ:

God has done great things for you. Those evil spirits of temper, pride, fear, malice, hate, envy and selfishness have been cast out as you confessed them and gave them up. Ye have been clothed spiritually, "if so be that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you." Ye are in your right mind, for ye have the mind of Christ. What great things hath God wrought in your life. "But with God all things are possible."

Ye are now filled with the joy of his salvation. Your faces shine with joy and are radiant with the gladness of his Spirit. How exultantly you shout his praise, and sing of his love and grace. How eagerly you tell what this new-found Savior means to you. With what enthusiasm you would follow in his steps. You see that "Love so amazing, so divine Demands my strength, my life, my all."

Some of you are prayerfully asking, "Where shall I serve your Lord?" Some of you are impulsively saying, "I will do this for you." For each of you Christ has a great commission. Harken! "Return to thy own house, and show how great things God hath done unto thee." (Luke 8:39). Where would he have thee? "Return to thy own house." Go home to parents, relatives, friends, and guardians. Let God demonstrate his great love through your life in your own home, and community. Go back to those who know you best, that God's glory may be the greater. 'Tis a command, "Return to thy own house."

"But Lord, I want to serve thee. What can I do there?" you cry. And Christ commands, "Show how great things God hath done unto you." That is enough. No greater work could be given you. Those who know you best may know a sullen boy, a selfish girl. They are well acquainted with your tempers, fears, envy, and selfishness. Show to them a face bright with "the joy of the Lord." Live before them a life filled with the power of God over all these old things. "For old things have passed away, behold all things have become new." Your motto, "Not slothful in business, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord."

"Back to the boon friends of former days,

Still walking on in their old sinful ways.

Back with a message of hope and cheer,

I've had a glimpse of Jesus."

"I've found a life that is sweeter to me,

Fuller of peace, from unhappiness free;

Fuller of joy than the old life could be. I've had a glimpse of Jesus."

"Return to thy own house, and show how great things God hath done unto thee." Elizabeth Spickler.

THE GOOD THINGS OF GOD.

1. Temptations. "Count it all joy when you fall into divers temptations; knowing this, that the trying of your faith worketh patience." James 1:2-3.

2. "The trial of your faith, being more precious than of gold that perisheth, though it be tried with fire, might be found unto praise and honor and glory at the appearing of Jesus Christ." 1 Peter 1:7.

3. Suffering. "For unto you it is given in the behalf of Christ, not only to believe on him, but also to suffer for his sake." Phil. 1:29.

"And when they had called the apostles, and beaten them, they commanded that they should not speak in the name of Jesus, . . . and they departed, . . . rejoicing that they were counted worthy to suffer shame for His name." Acts 5:40, 41. "If we suffer, we shall also reign with him." 2 Tim. 2:12.

4. Weakness. "My strength is made perfect in weakness." Most gladly therefore will I rather glory in my infirmities, that the power of Christ may rest upon me." Therefore I take pleasure in infirmities in reproaches, in necessities, in persecutions, in distresses for Christ's sake: for when I am weak then am I strong. 2 Cor. 12:9, 10.

"No good thing will he withhold from them that walk uprightly." Ps. 84:11.

From the human standpoint temptations, trials, sufferings, and weaknesses are not considered very good things. But we know our God makes no mistakes and "We know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are called according to his purpose." Rom. 8:28.

Many times it does not look good, and it does not feel good to the flesh, but in the end it is glorious. Hallelujah. I am so glad I am in the Lord's school and I want him to be glorified by my life here on this earth. I can say with Paul, "For me to live is Christ and to die is gain." Phil. 1:21.

Lula Hutcherson Ferguson.

Hours With the Bible—Geikie. New Testament Series.—Four Volumes.

Here are four handy books covering the whole New Testament, beginning with the story of Christ and running to the end of Revelation, each carefully indexed, both as to subjects and also Scripture texts referred to, so that the student can turn to any theme or discussion of any passage of Scripture on the instant. We could not offer anything else so comprehensive, scholarly, useful, and at the same time so plainly and interestingly written. The contents of the four volumes are as follows:

Vol. 1.—Covering the story of the four gospels.

Vol. 2.—From the Ascension and Pentecost on through the story of the early church, the work and letters of the apostles, down to Paul's letters to the Thessalonians.

Vol. 3.—Begins with Antioch, the Galatian letter, and Paul's third missionary journey, and concludes with the closing scenes of Paul's life.

Vol. 4.—Takes up the work of the apostle Peter and his epistles; the letter to the Hebrews, the Revelation, and the epistles of John.

The first volume supplies new and interesting sidelights on the life of Christ, helping us to realize it more vividly than would be possible without this background of local coloring. "I have desired," says the author, "to surround the gospel incidents with all that can illustrate and fill them out, as to climate, landscape, people, and nature in all its manifestations." And in the last volume he writes, "The easy narrative of the historical surroundings of the Sacred Books, and the brief elucidations of the text, will save readers the painful labor of consulting disjointed commentaries. In these volumes they get the marrow of the best, condensed in few words, in an attractive and simple form pleasant to the ordinary reader, while even professional students will not find the same amount of reliable information in any single work. This is not boasting but literal truth."

The set sells regular at $10.00. Our price $2.00 postpaid.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

After reading sophisticated novels, sex stories, and tales of pagan glory, one comes with a great deal of delight and satisfaction upon this splendid story of C. F. Wimberly, "The Mills of the Gods." As its title implies it is a story of justice and recompense and reveals in no uncertain manner how God, and not Chance, is ruling the Universe. The story moves with sure and certain stride, is gripping, worth reading and the book deserves a wide circulation in this day of lost faith and of false values.

The Days of His Flesh:

*The Earthly Life of Our Lord and Saviour
Jesus Christ*

By Rev. David Smith

Fifteen large editions in a comparatively short period, together with words of highest appreciation from the leading Bible scholars, ministers, and editors throughout the English-speaking world proclaim this great work as the one outstanding Life of Christ for every man today. It offers a biography of the Master, elaborate in detail and extending through fifty masterful chapters and more than 500 pages, tracing every phase of our Saviour's earthly career. The author rests his case solidly upon the evangelical records. He adduces abundant evidence to show the historicity of Jesus and to confute those theories which would make Him a mere myth arising out of a haze of reverence and superstition. He is equally sound on the deity of Jesus and he shows conclusively that the acceptance of Christ as the Lord of Heaven must be regarded as the corner-stone of the Church.

He begins with the Wondrous Birth and then proceeds step by step, to the Resurrection, discussing with particular vividness "the silent years" and the part they played in the Messianic consciousness of Jesus. Even after he has completed the body of his remarkable work, the author does not lay down his pen until eight appendices have been written, each throwing light upon some important aspect of the record of Jesus' life and ministry. These appendices include such interesting subjects as, "Objections to the Miraculous Conception," "St. John's Method of Reckoning Time," "The Chronology of Passion Week," etc.

LOSING CHRIST.

By The Editor.

WE have but little of the record of the life of our Lord Jesus from the time of his birth until the time of his baptism. St. Luke gives us a glimpse into his childhood life in the second chapter of his gospel, running from the fortieth to the fifty-second verse. This is especially interesting because it is almost all we have of the childhood of Jesus.

We have in the verse referred to the account of Joseph and Mary leaving Jesus behind in Jerusalem at the close of the feast of the Passover, and traveling for an entire day on the supposition that the young child was with the kinsfolk, and in the homeward-bound company. When night came on they were startled to find that they were mistaken. Jesus was not found in the company.

* * *

Let us say here that it was the least of Mary's intention to leave Jesus behind. Nothing was farther from her thought than to have said to Joseph, "He has wandered off somewhere, and we will teach him a lesson by slipping off and leaving him." Mary knew that Jesus was of miraculous birth; that he had no earthly father. She had learned from the Annunciation Angel that he was a fulfillment of a long line of inspired prophecy. She not only loved him as a Son, but she loved and revered him as the Saviour of Israel, sent of God into the world on a mission of salvation.

* * *

Mary would not intentionally have gone out of Jerusalem on her homeward journey leaving Jesus behind, under any consideration; but she believed he was with the kinsfolk, and took the risk of traveling on a supposition. In other words, in her hurry to keep up with the crowd and relatives she was not as careful as she should have been to make sure that Jesus was with her. For this hurry, she suffered deep anxiety and self-reproach. When evening came on and they found that he was not in the company they at once, in eager haste retraced their steps back to Jerusalem.

The record tells us that for three days they sought for Jesus. It is easy for us to picture in our imagination their distress, the eagerness with which they hastened to those places where they felt they would be most likely to find him. With quickened pace and searching eyes they walked the streets, looking into the bazaars, hastened to the market places, searched among groups of playing children. We suspect that Mary ate but little, and slept but little, searching late at night and in the early morning dawn with hasty feet and with aching heart reproached herself that she should have been so eager to keep up with the kinsfolk, and so careless as to go off and leave her beloved child behind. No doubt she determined that never again would she travel on a mere supposition that Jesus was in the company, but would know positively that he was with her.

An interesting line of thought is suggested here. Is it not true that many of us who have found Jesus as a Saviour, or rather we have been found of Jesus as a good shepherd seeking his lost sheep, we have believed in him, we have found in him a wonderful Saviour; we have loved him; we have journeyed with him along the road of life, but is it not true that sometimes we have gone off with the crowd and left Jesus behind. Have there not been times when we wanted to keep up with the kinsfolk, or run with the crowd, or keep in the fashion? Maybe we sought to dress beyond our means; robbed God of his tenth, spent it on self, strutted around with a coat or dress that we stole from God. Possibly we bought a Packard when we could have gotten to the places where we ought to have gone, with a Ford. We cut down what ought to have gone for missions to carry the gospel of our Christ to those for whom he died, in order to keep up with the crowd who are running away from Christ, rather than seeking or journeying with him. What about us anyway? Who are we? Where are we? How are we living? What are we doing? Is Jesus with us? Do we know that we have in him a present, personal Saviour? Have we the assurance that he saves us from sin? That if death should call us to him, or he should appear in his glory, would we be ready to meet him with praise?

Periods of careful examination are very important. Suppose we pause a moment; wait a while upon our knees, perhaps; look into our own hearts. Have we the Christ, or have we hurried off after something and left him behind? Have we loitered while he has gone forward? Time will not be wasted in serious thought on this subject. If, for any reason, we should discover his absence, let us make haste, as did his mother, to find him, to search everywhere, and never to be content until again we behold the Master in his love and mercy, and feel within our hearts we are fully restored to the loving embrace of his redeeming power.

THE MISSION OF METHODISM

HERE was a saying that Methodism was raised up of God to "spread scriptural holiness over these lands." It should be understood that "these lands" embrace the nations of the earth.

It might have been added that Methodism was raised up of God to carry a saving gospel to the poor, to the neglected masses. That word "masses" has been in frequent use for decades. It may have a different meaning to various users of the expression. To many, the expression "masses" means the multitudes of the common people, the uneducated, the poorer elements of society; not the leaders, but the led, if any one should care enough for them to undertake to lead them.

There were wise men a century ago who would tell you that the great Wesleyan revival in the British Isles saved those Isles from a repetition of a Reign of Terror which took place in France. They tell you that moral conditions in England, along with the economic and political situation of those Islands, were such that without a powerful spiritual awakening and movement among the masses of the common people, the British Isles would have had a fearful baptism of blood and fire.

The thoughtful student of English history at the period under consideration, is quite ready to believe that the Wesleys with their co-workers and their dynamic message, appeared in England at a most opportune time, and that their message and influence had a gracious and far-reaching effect, not only upon the individuals brought to Christ, but upon the British Empire.

It is well to remember that when John the Baptist in prison sent some of his followers to inquire of Jesus if he were the Christ, that in answer to John's query, among other things that Jesus gave as a proof that he was the Christ, said, "the poor have the gospel preached unto them." Any country or nation that neglects the poor masses, neglects that part of its population at its own peril. There is such a thing as decay at the top. Wealth, luxury and idleness do not produce the best characters. The saints of the past who have been "the beacon lights of Church history" have rarely come from the wealthy, luxurious classes of people. They have often been born and reared in huts of poverty. They have come up from among the illiterate, laboring people. If I may use the word "soil," in referring to humanity, it is safe to say that the multitudes of the illiterate poor afford a rich soil out of which much of the best life of a nation has sprung. Poverty, toil, hardship, difficulties to be met and overcome, is an excellent school for the training of great souls who forge their way into the front ranks of useful leadership becoming the guides of humanity, the worthy, far-seeing pilots of the ships of State and Church. Early Methodism was neither ashamed nor afraid to go out of doors to search and find the masses of neglected people, and among them she found men and women who, after broken-hearted repentance, saving faith and the baptism with the Holy Ghost in sanctifying power, became marvels of grace and evangelistic force among their fellowbeings.

One of the inspired writers tells us that the "common people heard Jesus gladly." It is an interesting fact that, under the power of the gospel common people may become, in a short time, very uncommon people. It was the mission of Methodism in Great Britain and the United States in a very special way, to carry the gospel to the common people. It had not only a tremendous saving power that was easily equal to all their spiritual

ZION'S HELPS TO ZION'S TRAVELERS.

Rev. G. W. Ridout D.D., Corresponding Editor.

In the Library of the Bristol College there is an old worm-eaten book bearing the above title. It came from India from among the books of William Carey that pioneer missionary to India. I shall use this title to put into my article for this issue a few thoughts, suggestions and meditations to help those who are traveling up Zion's Hill. Wesley in one of his hymns cries out:

Come Savior Jesus from above!
Assist me with thy heavenly grace;
Empty my heart of earthly love,
And for thyself prepare the place.

Oh let thy sacred presence fill,
And set my longing spirit free;
Which pants to have no other will,
But day and night to feast on Thee.

The true believer yearns after deeper experiences of grace. In justification the believer enjoys peace with God; in Initial Sanctification which begins at Regeneration he enjoys great strivings after cleansing; in Entire Sanctification he enters into the deeper cleansing of heart purity and into a state of perfect peace. Miss Havergal, eleven months after her sanctification wrote of perfect peace thus:

"Perfect, yet it floweth
Fuller every day,
Perfect, yet it groweth
Deeper all the way,
Like a river glorious
Is God's perfect peace,
Over all victorious
In its bright increase."

A famous professor in Andover Theological Seminary is reported to have said: "If there were somewhere a hospital in which souls could be made whole I would go there as a patient." Thank God we have a mighty Saviour who is the soul's Physician as he made sick people ever whit whole. John 7:23. It is the privilege of the gospel preacher to preach not only the disease of sin but also its perfect cure. The story is told of one of Methodism's Irish preachers, Gideon Ouseley, that when he was called to preach a voice said to him.

"Gideon, go preach my gospel."

"How can I go O Lord God, I cannot speak for I am a child."

The Voice said, "Do you know the disease?"

"Oh, yes, Lord, I do," says I.

"And do you know the cure?"

"Indeed I do, glory be to Thy Name."

"Go then," said the Voice "and tell the things the disease and the Cure. All the rest is nothing but talk."

Wesley in one of his hymns sings:

"Though eighteen hundred years are past
Since thou didst in the flesh appear,
Thy tender mercies ever last;
And still thy healing power is here!

"Wouldst Thou the body's health restore
And not regard the sin-sick soul?
The sin-sick soul thou lovest much more
And surely thou shalt make it whole.

"All my disease, my every sin,
To Thee O Jesus, I confess;
In pardon, Lord, my cure begin,
And perfect it in holiness."

To maintain a spiritual life and an effective Christian life the believer must live a healthy prayer life. I have just read again that wonderful little book by Andrew Murray entitled: "The Prayer Life." This is the

THE WESTERN WINDOW.

"I sit by my western window,
At the passing of the day,
As the evening shadows lengthen,
And the daylight fades away;
But the hills are draped in purple,
And the sky is steeped in gold,
For the sun his crowning glories
Keeps till the day is old.

"I sit by my western window,
And think of the long ago,
When the eastern hills were lighted
In the morning's rosy glow;
Bright were the hours of the morning,
And brighter the hour of noon,
But better still is the gloaming,
And the best is coming soon.

"I sit by my western window,
As the white-winged memories throng
Into the silent chancel,
To chant their evensong;
And the hills are steeped in gold,
And the skies are steeped in gold,
For life her crowning mercies
Keeps till the day is old."

—Exchange.

most stirring book on prayer that can be read. In the book he deals with

- (a) The Sin of Prayerlessness.
- (b) The Cause of Prayerlessness.
- (c) The Fight Against Prayerlessness.
- (d) How to be Delivered from Prayerlessness.

Now let these four points be considered and the result will be most marked, I am sure. Mr. Murray tells of a preacher's meeting where the leader fresh from Northfield (this was 1898 when Northfield stood more true to Moody's teachings) led a meeting on the prayer life. He said to the ministers present, "Brethren, let us make confession before God and each other, it will do us good. Will every one who spends half an hour every day with God in connection with his work, hold up a hand." One hand went up. "All who spend fifteen minutes hold up a hand." Not half of the hands were held up. Then he said: "All who spend five minutes hold up hands." All hands went up. At the close of the meeting a minister said to the leader that he was not sure that he spent five minutes in prayer every day. "It is a terrible revelation of how little time I spend with God."

The morning is the gate of day,

But ere you enter there
See that you set, to guard it well,
The sentinel of prayer.

So shall God's grace your steps attend,
But nothing else pass through
Save what can give the countersign:
The Father's will for you.

When you have reached the end of day
Where night and sleep await,
Set there the sentinel again
To bar the evening's gate.

So shall no fear disturb your rest,
No danger and no care;
For only peace and pardon pass
The watchful guard of prayer.

Adam Clarke spoke of thoughtless prayer as "low religious phraseology more fit for the nursery than for the noble service of religion."

George Whitefield once said, "Everything I meet with seems to carry this voice with it, Go then and preach the gospel; be a pilgrim on earth; have no party or dwelling place." My heart echoes back, "Lord Jesus, help me to do or suffer thy will, when thou seest me in danger of nestling—in pity—in tender pity—put a thorn in my nest to prevent me from it."

Truly this is an age when "nestling" is a great temptation—especially in the ministry when ease and comfort and luxury can be gotten at a small price. Many a good minister and evangelist has lost his power by nestling—going in for an easy time, for softness and self-indulgence. Prayer—mighty prayer is needed to save us from succumbing to the spirit of the age.

IV.

John Wesley was a wonderful example of consecration. Once when he was maligned by a certain newspaper and a terrific lying scandal was printed about him his brother Charles begged him to remain in London to defend himself. He tried to show his brother John the evil consequences which might result from his indifference to this published scandal. John's reply to Charles is noteworthy; he said: "Brother, when I devoted to God my ease, my time, my life, did I expect my reputation? No."

The sanctification of the believer is a matter of Faith in the sanctifying power of God. A great preacher when seeking the blessing said, "I created no mental difficulties, I never went near Sir William Hamilton, nor any like him. I knew the word was above him and all other human intellects. I went not to Books. . . . I went to God. I simply believed God—I took him at his word."

Dr. A. M. Hills said, "I have known ministers not so willing to open their minds to the heavenly light. When this blessing was brought to their attention they immediately went to their book shelves and took down some volume of hostile philosophy and braced their minds against the truth."

"To the law and to the testimony." Isa. 8:20. He wrote in his old age these words: "After having sought the truth with some diligence for half a century, I am, at this day, hardly sure of anything but what I learn from the Bible. Nay, I positively affirm that I know nothing else so certainly that I would dare to stake my salvation upon it."

Wesley's belief in his Bible was one of the elements which helped make him England's great Revivalist and Arouser. Writing about this matter he said: "What marvel the devil does not love field preaching! Neither do I. I love a commodious room, a soft cushion and a handsome pulpit. But where is my zeal, if I do not trample all these under foot in order to save one more soul."

In the believer's life consecration holds a conspicuous place. Those whose life has contributed much to the kingdom of God have entered into a full and complete consecration. The language of consecration is well put in the following lines:

"Take my soul and body's powers;
Take my memory, mind and will;
All my goods and all my hours;
All I know and all I feel;
All I think or speak or do;
Take my heart and make it new."

When Alexander Duff, a young missionary in India, visited William Carey just before the aged missionary died they conferred a good deal and then Carey whispered to Duff, Pray. Duff went down and prayed and said goodbye. As he passed from the room he thought he heard a feeble voice calling him back. Carey said, "Mr. Duff, you have been speaking about Dr. Carey, Dr. Carey; when I am gone say nothing about Dr. Carey, speak about Dr. Carey's Savior."

The true believer's life centers in Jesus and him crucified. "None of self and all of Christ" "Hid with Christ in God." Colossians 3:3.

Jesus thy boundless love to me,
No thought can reach, no tongue declare;
O knit my thankful heart to Thee,
And reign without a rival there;
Thine, wholly thine alone I am,
Be thou alone my constant Flame.

THE PRICE OF PENTECOST.

Frances McKinnon Morton.

have thought a good deal about this church-wide movement for Pentecostal power, as it refers to the descent or return of the Holy Ghost. I have wondered why after all these years of living in a Christian dispensation we should be in such dire need of pentecostal power. How is it that we can lose Christ out of our organized Christianity just as the ancient Jews lost God out of their religion? There seem to be so many opportunities for us to crucify Christ and put him out of our lives that we do indeed have need for watchfulness and prayer all along the way; and the danger seems to be greatest to those of us who try to teach or preach the Christian religion.

It is a significant fact that it was the priests and the doctors of the law who first seemed to lose God out of the Jewish religion; and there is always grave danger of this same disaster befalling any one who makes a vocation of religious work. There is a great temptation to a preacher to assume an air of superior knowledge of God and of spiritual things, when this very attitude of mind most quickly destroys spiritual perception. The fine things of the Spirit cannot be learned from books on doctrine or religious interpretation. A knowledge of God comes only from direct association with God; and it may come to the lowly, the uneducated, and those untaught of man's doctrines and creeds. God is a Spirit and he is apprehended in no other way than by a spiritual perception, a spiritual perception that has been quickened by prayer and by consecrated living.

So much has been written in the interpretation of Christ's messages to the world that the world is in danger of losing him in all this whirl of words and doctrines; and any widespread attempt to standardize religious beliefs tends to destroy the life and vitality of religion. We are realizing that today when the whole world seems to be caught in a great quickening of religious desire, a desire for something so divine that it transcends formality and standardization. It is easy for all of us to see that a person may know a great deal about religion and yet entirely miss a religious experience. A religious experience includes a direct and personal relationship with God, as well as right relationships with our fellow-men; and the purity and vitality of our relation to God is going to determine the rightness of our human relations. The soul of a man calls for God, and any attempt to leave out this individual relation so cheapens religion that it has no longer any strong human appeal. We may be intelligently interested in the social application of the Gospel of Christ, in fact we must be if we are truly Christian, but the dynamic force and vigor of religion will always be intensely personal.

If we want the life and vitality taken out of our religion we have only to leave out man's personal relationship with God, and all of our well-constructed moral philosophy will begin to die on our hands. Kipling says this strikingly in his poem Tomlinson. When Tomlinson is brought to judgment and asked of his belief, he could only say, "Oh, this I read in a book, and that was told to me, and this I have thought that another man thought . . . and this I have guessed, and this I have heard men say, and this they wrote that another man wrote, etc." until the Angel of Judgment lost patience and cried in anger, "Oh, none may reach by hired speech, of neighbor, priest and kin, through borrowed deed to God's good need that lies so fair within; get hence, get hence to the Lord of wrong, for doom has yet to run, and the faith that ye share with Berkeley Square, uphold you, Tomlinson." Then when Tomlinson had floundered through a great many more meaningless words that left all personality out of his religion, the Angel of the Judgment finished dramatically, "And the God that you took from a printed book be with you, Tomlinson."

Any effort to gather together a body of teaching material about religion always carries a grave danger with it. We never had so many books about religion as we have now, and yet our spiritual poverty cries out for a return of the power of Pentecost. Just now a great many people are seriously questioning the need for God in the human life; and much of our religious teaching and preaching seems to overlook the necessity for the individual, personal relationship to God. We cannot leave that out and live, religiously. No matter how fine an organization any church may have the organization is doomed when the personal relation to God is left out of its appeal. When we leave God out of our religious life he does not argue with us, but he quickly rewards us for our folly by withdrawing his presence from us. God does not intrude himself where he is not wanted. If he sees that we want man-made creeds and choose to lose ourselves in a maze of theological interpretations he leaves us desolate in our own spiritual poverty, a poverty we can never turn into riches by many words or much learning.

If we could only realize that in order to get our endowment from on high we must tarry somewhere on our knees, if not literally in Jerusalem at least as near as we can get to the Cross of Christ and the Throne of God, we would get our Pentecost; and we would know again what it is to listen to men who speak with the cloven tongues of fire. No matter how meticulous may be our theological education nor how much we may value our little gift of brains or store of knowledge it is valueless in God's service except we maintain an open channel between the power of God and our own spirits. Christ understood this when he said, "I am the vine, ye are the branches; he that abideth in me and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit; for without me ye can do nothing. If a man abide not in me he is cast forth as a branch, and is withered; and men gather them and cast them into the fire and they are burned." This fundamental relationship of God and the human soul has not changed since these words were spoken.

In my reading lately I have come upon an old story published in the latter part of the past century. The story is called "The Face of Christ;" and tells in a graphic fashion the old legend of a dissolute artist, who in return for signing away his own soul to the powers of evil, was granted the privilege of making one perfect picture before fulfilling his ghastly contract with Satan. This artist chose for the subject of his perfect picture The Face of Christ, not the suffering and sorrowing Christ, but the loving Christ of everyday; and so perfect was his work that he himself was lying stricken and unconscious before his picture when the evil one came to claim him. Thus he escaped the penalty of his own contract and lived to work out his soul's salvation through a close contact with his perfect picture of The Face of Christ.

When his picture was finished, and following a custom of the country, he held a banquet for the unveiling of his picture; but when the veil was drawn back and the eyes of Christ looked out upon the group assembled there they saw themselves through his eyes of love, as the wretched sinners that they were, so that some of them fled from the room while others lingered to seal their vows of repentance and expiation.

Perhaps the most interesting phase of the story is the redeeming power which the pictured Face of Christ had in the life of the artist himself. Again and again the artist repented, made expiation and sought absolution for his own soul; but each time the old priest sent the man back to live again in the presence of the pictured Face of Christ. And each time he went back to live with the Face of Christ unveiled in his own house he found the tangled threads of old sins which he could root out of his life; and in this way work good and not harm to the many human relationships he had marred in the past. It was a painful process and each time he would conquer some evil he would wonder that the old priest would still refuse him absolution; but the old man said, "When you have had absolution of him you will not ask it of me." At last living so close to the benign influence of the Face of Christ the artist righted as far as he could every wrong act of his life, and smoothed out every tangled human relation which his own evil doing had marred. Then he had absolution from the eyes of Christ and he did not ask it of the old priest but passed out of the world with a smile upon his lips.

There is power in the story. What might we not do to right wrong, to conquer evil and to untangle unhappy human relations if we lived always in the presence of Christ; and measured ourselves, not "among ourselves" but always by Christ's perfect measure of a man?

If we leave God and the personal relationship with God out of our lives and out of our religion we have only ourselves to blame if all divine power is withdrawn from us, and our lives become useless and purposeless. The thought of God is the very greatest thought that has ever stretched the human mind, or stimulated the emotions of the human spirit. We can't afford to leave the human intimacy with God out of our religion no matter how rational and practical a social gospel we may seek to teach and preach. This need for God is as everlasting as the breath we draw and humanity will never get away from it. We cannot find a substitute for the majesty and mystery of God, in religion or in life. Most of us have only a transitory interest in human systems of ethics or interpretations of life. We know they came from God at the beginning, but the personal touch has been so smeared out that it is often hard to find. What we do love is to listen to a man who has seen God, "high and lifted up," who has lived so intimately with God that all unconsciously he opens windows in our own souls and brings us something of the majesty and dignity of his own visions. Such a man never lacks for power and influence. Such men have always been listened to and followed after and always will be. If we make no impression on the world around us it is not because we live in a careless and indifferent age; it is because our religion lacks the power and vitality that compel respect. We will have Pentecostal power when we are willing to pay the price of living daily with Christ, and measuring our values through his eyes.

A NEW CREATURE.

Rev. H. J. Felter.

Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature; old things are passed away: Behold all things are become new.—2 Cor. 5:17.

IN the text, we have a very positive statement of truth from the word of God. In these days, when many sermons seem to lack definite statements of truth, it seems refreshing to note the clear teaching of the text. We find the fact emphasized here that the truly converted man is a new creature, not a mended, or reformed man, merely. He is a changed man, a new man. He is not only face to face with knowledge of his duty as a Christian, but is so marvelously changed in his very heart life, that he is able, by God's grace, to do that which God requires of him.

It is said of Gautama Buddha, the great Indian teacher of the sixth century, that he saw the middle, eight-fold path which led to peace by way of Right Views, Right Aspirations, Right Speech, Right Conduct, Right Mode of Living, Right Effort, Right-mindedness and Right Rapture. His teaching denied the basic element of sacrificial atonement, and had for its goal utter unconsciousness of emotion, mind and will—Nirvana. He saw a nobler life than he or his contemporaries lived, but because of his ignorance, stumbled on in the darkness.

551 B. C. marks the rise of Confucius, a Chinese religious teacher, who had many sayings such as, "Do not do to others what you would not have them do to you," and "Do justice to thy neighbor," etc., etc. He, too, held up quite a standard, considering the awful darkness of his day, but listen to his sad cry of utter despair. He says, "The failure to cultivate virtue, the inability to move toward righteousness, after being shown the way: the inability to correct my faults—these are the causes of my grief." He said his teaching came down from heaven, but he taught that all mankind was, at heart, naturally good, and would have expressed impatience with the theory that the heart was essentially evil, full of deceit, and wicked above all things. Jer. 17:9. In his ignorance and blindness he made the fatal mistake of every heathen philosopher and teacher; he sought to correct the outward conduct, all the while failing to take account of the inward corruption of the natural heart, the source of the outward evil stream. Buddha died 543 B. C., and Confucius died 479 B. C., but the sad fact is, that their teaching still grips millions of India and China.

How blind is man without a divine revelation, such as we have in the Bible. How refreshing to hear Jesus say, "I am the way, the truth, and the life, and then read the stirring truth of our text. Oh, glorious truth! Oh wonderful Saviour!

GOD'S STANDARD—A NEW CREATURE.

First, he is new in his relations to God. He is new in his relation to the law of God. The very law that condemned him and would sentence him to eternal death, because his works were evil, his life was wicked, and he was a rebel against the government of God, now has no condemnation for him. Not that he has, of his own ability, satisfied the demands of a broken law, for that he could never do of himself. The glorious fact is that he has accepted Jesus, who did keep all the law, and then gave himself a ransom for all. Ransom means, "in place of." When, by true repentance, he came to God with all his heart, there were among others, two things which happened: First, he was justified in the mind of God and his government, no longer looked upon as a sinner and a rebel. Second, he was gloriously regenerated in his soul; "old things passed away and, behold, all things became new." As an old Irishman said, when converted and asked to testify, "God has given me a new inside." When this glorious change takes place we will know it as to time and place. Listen to the testimony of a converted sailor: "I don't know how I was converted, but I've got the place down in my log-book. I got it while reading Spurgeon's sermon: latitude 34 and longitude 53." Reader, have you a like record in the log-book of your life?

Second, he is new in his relations to the family of God. In Eph. 2nd chapter, we read about being strangers and foreigners, aliens, dead in trespasses and sins, having no hope and without God in the world. This is a dark picture, but let us read further: "But now in Christ Jesus, ye who sometimes were far off, are made nigh by the blood of Christ." Jesus said, "Ye must be born again," and the born-again ones belong to the real family of God, and enjoy the privileges of such relationship.

Third, he is new in his relation to the church. Though he may have had little inclination to attend church before conversion, he will be there afterward with his presence, his influence, pocketbook, and family. What a change it would make in many families if father and mother were to get soundly converted. A Bradford, England, schoolteacher asked her scholars to name on their slates the most wonderful thing that had happened during the last month. One little girl wrote, "Father has been to Eastbrook and got converted, and now I have a new papa." That child saw the difference as well as the early Christians saw the change in Saul of Tarsus, to Paul the apostle. A so-called conversion that doesn't change the life is spurious and unreal. Even as this man's conversion gave to this little girl a changed papa, so did it give to the church a new man. When William Wilberforce was converted he had spent his twenty-fifth birthday taking in all the world could give him by way of the race course, ball-room, etc., but it had failed to satisfy him. After his conversion he went to William Pitt, the great statesman, and told him of the wonderful change in his life, who warned him of becoming visionary, fanatical, and going crazy, but he was steadfast and immovable and laid his wealth, wit, eloquence and influence at the Saviour's feet. He certainly stood in a new relation to the church, as will all who truly come to Christ.

Fourth, he is new in his relation to the world. He will not run to the same excess of riot as he used to, will not go to many places he used to go, or do many things he used to do. The world may wonder why he has lost his love for the card table, theaters, the races, his old habits, etc., but still they expect him to live differently now that he has professed conversion. Listen to a weeping wife begging her husband to go with her to church, and become a Christian. Hear him say, "Wife, do you play cards?" "Yes." "So do I." "Do you go to the pictures, dances, etc.?" "Well, so do I." "Do you go for Sunday auto trips and do many things in general you ought not to do?" "Yes, husband, I am afraid I do." "Well, so do I." The husband doesn't mean to hurt his wife's feelings, but he feels he is as good as she is, for she is doing the same things that he does. If conversion doesn't put you in a new relation with the world you will never win anyone for Jesus; for you are not right with God.

Fifth, he is new in his responsibility, as an ambassador for Jesus. We may not all be preachers, but we can all be soul winners, and can testify to others of what Christ has done for us. This, God demands, and the world expects of us. Is he the unconfessed Christ here, you will be unconfessed at the throne at last. If you refuse to testify you do so at the peril of your soul and loss of your experience.

Sixth, he now has his opportunity to do good. As a sinner, he had no influence for good, but for evil; but now he can point to his changed life in his exhortation to others. If the world can see Jesus in us, they will be attracted, not turned away. This converted man can now give to his home a Christian father and husband; to the church a representative Christian, and to the world a glorious example of what converting grace can do. With victory over sin in his life a man's influence for good is hard to measure.

Seventh, he is new in his experience. He enjoys freedom from the enslaving power of the old habits, such as tobacco, liquor, cursing and many other things. It is not hard for him to keep away from the world, for he has no desire in his heart for the old life. He will, under no circumstances curse God, tell a filthy story or engage in immorality of any kind. He has no desire for smoke-filled, oath-filled, filthy-story-filled atmosphere of ungodly gatherings, where Christ is not wanted, whether they be lodge rooms, the country store, moving picture theater, or somewhere else. He hunts the society of the best Christian people, and would rather be in a good spiritual religious service than anywhere else, except, perhaps, in secret prayer, to which he now betakes himself. He has an appetite for the spiritual. He is very unlike the man who, after conversion, continued to tie his horse to the same old hitching post, about fifteen feet from the old bar over which he had purchased liquor. He soon backslid, as might be expected. God wants us to forsake all the old life.

Eighth, he is new in his hope of heaven and the fact that he now enjoys the witness of the Spirit; that he is right with God. In his communion with God there are two things that mightily bless him, the word of God and prayer. A dying man said, "Bring me the Book." They asked, "What book?" He answered, "There is only one book, the Bible." It is the only book that would interest a dying man; a converted man will love and read the Bible. By the witness of The Spirit this man is as sure of his standing with God as if an angel came and so informed him. He is walking in all the light shed on his pathway, and is on the stretch for all the fulness of the blessing of the gospel of Christ. If you ever find him fighting holiness, you will know he is backslidden.

Finally, let us note five outstanding thoughts in our text.

First, its universal application. "If any man." "Whosoever will may come and take of the water of life freely." Here is an invitation and supply as wide as the need. Jesus is God's answer to humanity's S.O.S.

"I was bound in sin, but Jesus took me in; He's a wonderful Saviour to me."

Second, the Christian life is a supernatural, hidden life—"In Christ." It is life from Christ, life in Christ, which is regeneration. It is life like Christ, which is holiness. It is life for Christ, which is service. It is life with Christ enjoying his glory in the world to come. "I am come that they might have life." Go speak to all the people all the words of this life.

Third, sure, inward evidence of Christian experience to the individual—"A new creature." The bosom is stirred with a new impulse, a new determination, new desires, gracious ambitions. The born-again ones are conscious of a regenerated soul-life; there is no desire or willingness to commit sin. It is a changed life to which the Spirit bears witness.

Fourth, the outward evidence to others of our conversion, "Old things have passed away." True Christian experience always carries with it the outward credentials of its inward reality. The word says, "Let your light shine, that men may see." They do see, they will see; you are to show them by your outward conduct the reality of your profession. This you may do when you answer Evan Roberts' call as given during the Welch revival: 1. "Are you right with God? 2. Are you right about the past? 3. Are you right with your fellow-man?"

Fifth, Christ set forth in the converted man's life. God is not ashamed of his handiwork. He asks you to see the truth of the text exemplified in the life of the saved. Jesus would be lifted up in your life and thus draw sinners to himself. With Christ in our hearts, we may teach transgressors his ways and sinners will be converted. Thank God, for the glorious reality of a scriptural, supernatural conversion, such as our text describes.

New Paths in Old Pastures.

The above is the title of a 40-page, well-printed, neatly bound pamphlet recently published by Rev. Albert G. Stone of Shelbyville, Ky. Brother Stone has given us a sort of general index for Bible study which shows very careful study on his part and, if followed with care, will prove very helpful to Bible students. He has, for instance, a division of favorite Psalms. There is the heading of an interesting series of Bible readings found on "Mistakes in the New Testament," which starts off as follows: "Eve's Mistake—listening to the devil instead of God. Cain's mistake—trying to deceive God. The mistake before the Flood—thinking God did not mean to punish sin. The Babel Tower mistake—trying to escape God. Lot's mistake—choosing rich land at the risk of moral safety." And thus it goes on in a suggestive and interesting way. The booklet may be had of The Pentecostal Publishing Co., for 25 cents. H. C. ## THE ABIDING THREE.

JAMES V. REID.

"And now abideth Faith, Hope, Love, these three; . . . ."

FAITH is the pole-star, the lode-stone, the compass, the anchorage of all life. It is that mysterious force which springs from the deep recesses of the human heart and makes contact with the Redemptive Stream of Calvary.

Faith is that vehicle upon which the soul rides to majestic heights and unlocks the splendors of the heavenlies, wherein it may bathe to the complete satiation of its inborn desires.

The staggering mind asks, "What is Faith?" and the keenest intellect tries in vain to analyze it in the laboratory of human reasoning. But the humblest hearts may feel its power and rise from poverty of spirit to become kings and priests in a super-world unknown to the standards of common clay.

Faith penetrates the infinite; unlocks the gates of heaven's storehouse for the soul that seeks treasures of spiritual values. From the desert wastes of weary wanderings, when one must tread his way through scorching scorn or skeptic scowlings, Faith is the guide which leads to the oasis where waters break out in the wilderness and streams in the desert.

When the soul's course lays across haunted fields of doubt, where the skeleton forms of disappointment, material loss, shattered dreams and physical suffering rattle their bones with chilling effect, Faith brushes back the curtains to the realm of light and breathes the air of unshaken confidence in the plan of an all-wise Father.

Faith stands at a mountain of seeming impossibility and from its granite obstacles carves forms of marvelous achievement.

"Faith is the fulness of hope; 'Tis the spirit That rises o'er sorrow and loss;

'Tis a dream come true in the dreaming,

'Tis a world looking back at a Cross."

Shine on, Thou Beacon Star of Faith, and light mankind to complete redemption through him who gave thee birth and is the end of thy fullest power!

Hope is another beautiful star in the constellation of Human Desire which sheds its light upon the heart. It is so close akin to Faith and yet so different. Unexplainable, undefinable, it is an urge which carries us forward through life's most perplexing experiences.

We suffer in hours of discouragement; we grow faint in times of affliction, we grieve over the disillusionments and disappointments that beset life's journey, and yet mingled with every heartache there is a peculiar quality of satisfaction in the suffering because the unfailing finger of Hope points to the dawn of deliverance.

After the vigil of the long, lonely night, the candle may have burned low and the darkness become stifling, but in that darkest hour we find a trace of satisfaction, because we know immediately following there comes the dawn. And Hope becomes the light that penetrates the darkness above the flickering rays of the dying candle.

Were you ever under a dense cloud from which the rain was pouring hard, but beyond the fringe of the cloud you could see the sun shining on the tops of distant hills? In the beauty of the sunshine yonder the clouds and rain lost their dispiriting depression, for there was the cheering evidence that the sun would shine again upon you. From under life's clouds let your heart look up and out beyond the rim of present circumstances, for the Hope of a brighter day alleviates the pang of present darkness.

"Oh joy, that seekest me through pain,
I cannot close my heart to thee;
I trace the rainbow through the rain,
And feel the promise is not vain
That morn shall tearless be."

Thank God for Hope's unfailing ray which draws the heart ever toward eternal Day.

Love, Majestic Queen and Royal Mother of all beautiful Emotions, what a heritage for human hearts! What a beautiful personality has this queenly character who would make every heart her throne. A stern disciplinarian is she in her royal demands, but behold the qualities which make her the richest possession of every life.

She suffers long and is kind. Without her the human heart is impatient and cruel. And in blind folly human puppets flaunt themselves in pretense and sham, each grasping for himself the foolish foibles of a deceived world, until individuals and nations alike seethe in their greed. But, oh thou sublime, conquering Love, thou dost not vaunt thyself and art not puffed up. And yet thou reignest in regal splendor above all monarchs of earth. Thou seest reality and rejoicest in truth, so that thou dost not behave thyself unseemly in vain attempt to grasp envied possessions for thyself.

How truly a mother's life and character are reflected in her offspring. Royal Queen, Mother of Virtues, who are thy children? Let us enter the Castle of a Human Heart where dwells this Queen in stately splendor and know her family. Here they are, eight sons and daughters of royal birth:

Joy; the musician of the heart, who keeps the castle halls ringing with melody.

Peace; that quiet one who guards the door against the attacks of jangling discord and strife.

Longsuffering; that wise counsellor who meets all chafing, rasping intruders and searches them for hidden virtues.

Gentleness; sweet maiden of ministry, tenderly soothing the wounds left by gross injustice and anger's acrid arrows.

Goodness; the swift messenger who carries the benevolences of the household out to other lives.

Faith; the armed defender of the castle who holds in check attacking armies of discouragement, doubts and fears; he, too, is the artificer who skillfully builds new designs into the ever-enlarging castle.

Temperance; strong and firm, who has authority over every servant of the castle and keeps each committed in loyal submission to his proper task.

Royal Mother, with thy glory-crowned family! how blest is that heart that has exalted thee to its throne and submitted the ruling of its domain to thy never-failing authority!

. . . . and the greatest of these is Love."

The Angelus Hotel.

For many years, when stopping in Los Angeles, Calif., I have stayed at the Angelus Hotel, on the corner of Fourth and Spring Streets. It is well located, and a very comfortable place, every way. During my recent visit to Los Angeles I made it headquarters. The rates are remarkably reasonable; in fact, I find more comfort and accommodation there for the same amount of money, than at most any other place in my knowledge. During my stay in California I left my heavy baggage at that place and was in and out many times. At one time I was quite ill there. The attention given me by the proprietor, bookkeeper and cashier, the bell-boys, and all of the employees was so very courteous that I feel under lasting obligations to them. It became a real home to me. I suggest to my friends when in Los Angeles to stop at The Angelus and I am sure you will appreciate the courtesies of the proprietor and his employees.

Faithfully,

A Love and Passion for Souls.

A. W. ORWIG.

IT ought to be taken for granted that all Christians have a real love for souls. Why should they not also have a passion for the salvation of souls? That is, something more than an ordinary desire for their salvation. It ought to be so absorbing that they will feel more or less distressed if souls are not won for God. Not all persons know that the very root word of passion is suffering. And that is why our Saviour's suffering is called his passion.

It is very evident that some Christians do not have a deep love for souls, much less a passion. Nor do they seem to be troubled because of this lack of love and vehement desire. I once asked a professor of religion if he ever led any one to God. He replied, "I don't know how." That seems to be the condition of not a few who claim to be Christians. If we truly love God it will manifest itself more or less in behalf of the salvation of the unsaved. Some one wrote

"Oh for a passionate passion for souls,
Oh for a pity that yearns!
Oh for the love that loves unto death!
Oh for the fire that burns!"

Such a love and passion for souls is not natural, and cannot be manufactured. It is a gift of God. And while it is a divine bestowment, we need to co-operate with God for its acquirement.

BELIEVING PRAYER.

This is one great feature of such co-operation. Yes, a deep, yearning, quenchless, Christlike compassion and passion for souls comes largely through prayer and its concomitant exercises. Several times it is recorded that Jesus was "moved with compassion" for the people. How much of this spirit have we? An eminent preacher of the Gospel said, "I have long ceased to pray, Lord Jesus have compassion on a lost world! I remember the day and the hour when I seemed to hear the Lord rebuking me for making such a prayer. He seemed to say to me, 'I have had compassion upon a lost world, and now it is for you to have compassion.'"

When praying for a passion for souls the answer is sometimes received in a way we did not expect. I refer to the fact that it often comes through suffering, like many other blessings. We are informed that Jesus himself, with a combined human and divine nature, was made "perfect" through suffering. And dare we look for exemption from a similar experience? The highest Christian graces usually come through seasons of suffering,—sometimes through bodily afflictions, the loss of very dear ones, or of worldly goods. Not infrequently it is the result of sore conflicts with the powers of darkness.

That princely preacher and winner of many souls, George Whitefield, once prayed with such great fervency that his heart might be melted into still greater tenderness and love for the perishing, and to his great surprise and sorrow he was assaulted with the most awful and vile temptations that almost distracted him for several days. He cried mightily to God for succor. When he had been deeply humbled by the impure temptations the Holy Spirit led him into such an ocean of gentle love as he had never known. Some years ago I read of an old Indian who was possessed of a remarkable passion for soul-winning. He prayed in stores, barber shops, railroad stations,—anywhere, everywhere. At the altar of prayer he went from one penitent to another, placed his hands upon their heads, and cried out, "Oh Jesus, my heart is breaking for these people."

Another thing that we need to do in order to have a deep love and passion for souls is to meditate on their lost condition. That will increase the fervency and faith of our petitions, and promote a real wrestling spirit in behalf of the unsaved. Actual and mighty soul travail for the perishing is a rare thing. Coming into actual contact with their wretchedness is likely to move and melt the heart of the real Christian, and to stimulate to holy action. The Salvation Army people set us a good example in mingling among the low and criminal classes,—with the poorly clad, and coarse and vicious and filthy. Of a certain man it is said that he literally loves the most degraded people into the kingdom of grace. "Love suffereth long and is kind." It will make real sacrifices in order to win souls.

"Oh, 'twas love, 'twas wondrous love
That brought me to the fold."

FACTS FROM THE FIRING LINE.

"My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge."—Hos. 4:6.

Prohibition has wrought miracles of moral, social and economic redemption, but thousands of dries do not know it. Every pastor is urged to reprint the following Fact in the Church Calendar, or read it from the pulpit to offset the destructive wet propaganda which appears in many of the secular newspapers. A new Fact appears in this place in each issue.

Judge Mary Bartelme, of the Chicago Juvenile Court testifies: "In 1913 when I began to hear girls' cases eight or ten girls per week were brought to me on the charge of intoxication. I do not now have one in three months. They have almost disappeared."

GOOD NEWS FROM CHINA,

THE following letter from Miss Jennie Hughes, of Shanghai, China, will be of interest to our readers. It shows how marvelously God has undertaken for Miss Hughes and Dr. Stone, as they seek to bring the full gospel to Christ's lost sheep in China. God be praised for his mercy and providential care of these, his faithful workers. MRS. H. C. MORRISON.

"I am sure you will be interested in a bit of news which I have to give you today, and I will ask if you will take from this letter which I am writing you the information to be given in a brief statement in THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD, if you will, that our many friends and readers of your paper may understand clearly just what has taken place, and unite with us in prayer for God's blessing upon the launching out of our Mission into what we believe is God's will for wider influence to the glory of his Own Name.

"You are, of course, closely in touch with the work of the National Holiness Mission of the North. For many years Brother Woodford Taylor and Brother Cecil Troxel, and the splendid band of men and women working with them, a large number of whom are from your own Asbury College, have been spreading Scriptural Holiness among the Chinese of Chihli and Shantung Provinces. Recently it has seemed to be the order of God that they should move out for their Headquarters to Tientsin, making that city and Peking centers for holiness teachings. We have greatly rejoiced as we have heard of Brother Troxel, with his splendid command of the Chinese language, being set free from the work in the interior for nationwide evangelistic work. We did not dream that their move was going to so very closely involve ourselves.

"Some weeks ago correspondence sprang up between us, the initiative entirely on their side, regarding the property just outside of Tamingfu in Chihli, that for many years was known as the Holding Mission. After Mr. Holding's death that property was turned over to the National Holiness Mission, but due to the fact that in that interior country there has not been the opportunity for the development of outstanding Chinese leaders, it has not been possible in this new era, when the cry is "China for the Chinese" for the missionaries to carry on that work as is possible in seacoast towns.

"The long and the short of it is that as Bethel has been used of God to produce such a large Staff of Chinese doctors, nurses, teachers and evangelists, the request came from the National Holiness Mission that we should permit them to deed over to us that entire property—a perfectly free gift.

"Dr. Stone and I have just returned from Tientsin where this has taken place. The work was done, I might almost say, on our knees, and was an experience of wonderful oneness of heart and blessed fellowship that we shall never forget.

"Dr. Stone and I are the most amazed of any individuals as we find ourselves facing the proposition of developing a Chihli Bethel Mission. We are just plunging into a three-day's Conference here with all of our leaders and that we may wait upon God until the Spirit definitely speaks to those whom he would have undertake this new task of spreading Scriptural Holiness and evangelizing that northern part of China.

"I write asking you to be in much earnest prayer for us, for we want a fresh anointing of the Holy Spirit for Mary Stone and Jennie Hughes that these days, which may prove to be among the last before our blessed Lord shall come again, shall find us gathered in multitudes in his Name. We shall need to look to the Lord as never before for larger faith that the school buildings shall be filled, the residences occupied with sanctified men and women, the church seating nearly seven hundred be crowded with those asking, "What shall I do to be saved?" A group of nurses and evangelists will be starting shortly for that new field.

"The first use that we shall make of the property will be to gather in, as the Lord supplies funds, hundreds of the dying children from the famine district just North of Chihli. We praise God that in acquiring this beautiful piece of property, with its spreading shade trees we shall be able to answer the call that has been coming to us for several years from the churches of the North for a second Summer Bible Conference.

"Yours with love,

"JENNIE V. HUGHES."

GLEANINGS FROM THE EVANGELISTIC FIELD

TRAVEL LETTER.

Tilden H. Gaddis.

After three months of blessed victory in Scotland preaching and singing in from one to four services a day, eight profitable days were spent in the grand old city of London, which is too much for one lifetime no one having seen it all. One writer says, "I have seen the greatest wonder in the world and am more astonished than ever." Men and women come from the ends of the earth to see London as men of the ancient world traveled to see Rome, for this is the magic city where kings and queens rode the way of ambition, where Shakespeare came a pauper in search of fortune, that in Elizabethan times ransacked the known world for treasure and laid the foundation of the wealth that today pours from the seven seas into the ports of the greatest city on earth.

Who can describe Westminster Abbey? One weeps at Livingstone's grave, is fired at Wesley's tablet, breaks into singing at the memory of Isaac Watts and is inspired in the poet's corner and should feel like a king at the coronation chair with its stone of scone beneath believed to be the one on which Jacob pillowed his head at Bethel; some prophetic students believe it will have to do with the throne of Jesus as it did that of Solomon.

Over Livingstone's grave is carved, "Brought by faithful hands over land and sea, here rests David Livingstone, Missionary, Traveller, Philanthropist, born March 19, 1813, at Blantyre, Lanarkshire, Died May 12, 1873; at Chitambo's village, Ulla. For thirty years his life was spent in an unwearying effort to evangelize the native races, to explore the undiscovered secrets, to abolish the desolating slave trade of central Africa where with his last words he quoted, "All I can add in my solitude is, may Heaven's rich blessings come down on everyone, American, English or Turk, who will help to heal this open sore of the world."

On top of Wesley's tablet is carved the face outline of John and Charles and below John preaching to a mixed audience gathered close around; between the familiar phrase, "The best of all is God is with us." Wesley's house is open as a museum containing many valuable and interesting relics of his life and work. Adjoining is the chapel which he erected, and in which he preached the closing years of his life. Today this church has some four hundred members and two missions nearby reaching over a thousand of the people of the neighborhood. John Wesley's grave is in a small cemetery behind the church; across the street in Bunhill Fields Cemetery is the gravestone of Susannah Wesley, the mother; near this a grave upon which John stood to preach. John Bunyan, together with other noted characters, is buried here. In the Friends' burying ground near by is the grave of George Fox, the fiery founder of Quakerism. He has a lonely, little plain slab over what appears to be the only grave left, a significant memorial to a plain leader of a plain people.

St. Paul's Cathedral, Wren's architectural masterpiece, is a marvel of genius having the largest bell in England and second only to Westminster in the number of monuments. The Tower of London, with its instruments of torture, its armies of armed men and horses silently standing as in past ages, the axe and block from which human heads fell, the prison from which Ridley and Latimer went forth to die as martyrs. The crown jewels are exhibited here; the imperial state crown containing over 6000 diamonds, many crowns, staffs, scepters, bracelets, rings, rods, maces, swords and other possessions of royalty represent great value.

The Parliament buildings are works of art. In the tower above them is Big Ben, the largest striking, most powerful and most accurate clock in the world. The chimes are set to these lines:

"All through this hour Lord be my guide,
And by thy power no foot shall slide."

The changing of the horse guards is stately and interesting. At the Buckingham Palace stables we beheld the King's golden carriage used at the opening of Parliament, the finest royal coach in the world, and the King's horses with rubber heels on their shoes, also the beautiful gold and silver-plated harness.

In the London Museum are costumes and royal dresses displaying the styles of past centuries. At the United Service Museum the marvels of modern war machines, guns, aircraft, cruisers and battle-ship models, shells and torpedoes, devices of destruction never yet used, that stagger the imagination. Another war would begin in advance of where the last one ended. One soldier said, "There must not be another war; it is too terrible to think of." But it is coming and it will be a time of scientific destruction. An officer of the Black Watch, writing to a friend here at New Year's time, said, "Knowing conditions as I do, I will not be surprised if we are engaged in a great war before this year ends."

The Victoria and Albert Museums are the center of a group including Natural History, Science and others which afford information equal to years in the schools, had one time to study there. England has a permanent exhibit of all her colonies which, with mechanical devices and uniquely constructed and lighted models of most every industry in the world, is the next best information to a world tour. A list of the places visited and things seen in London would fill many pages.

Our evangelistic labors in this great city were in the Home Mission with Brother and Sister Marley, the sanctified leather merchant. What a welcome reception they gave us, both into their home and to the work. They did everything possible to make the effort a success. We mentioned a piano and they had one on the way in a few moments. They use organs mostly in Britain, but pianos were placed for most of our campaigns. Though the time was short the building filled to capacity and the altar filled with people who had never been saved before. A backslidden preacher from the U. S. A. was reclaimed and other miracles of grace.

We leave the British Isles, grateful to God for his leadings and blessings, and hundreds of souls redeemed by Christ; expecting to return in 1932 for four months' work.

JACKSONVILLE, FLORIDA.

Well here we are; have driven our stakes, and opened our artillery against the forces of sin in this city. We are in the third week of revival effort. The first week the influenza struck the city. The authorities reported ten thousand cases, besides rain about every third day, then it turned cold, and southern people are very tender when it gets cold, but in spite of all this the Lord saved and sanctified a number.

A holiness revival in this city is a great problem. We have the Holiness of the Covenant, The Pentecostal Tongues, The Church of God, with about nine divisions, The Apostolic Faith, besides one hundred and eighty churches of different denominations, and when estimated, require between nine and ten thousand dollars each Sunday for local expense. We wonder how many will come out of these churches and the following Monday morning give testimony of having been converted and erect a family altar in the home. In comparison we note that the public school system of our country cost the tax payers six billion, five hundred million dollars per year. They take the untrained mind, and turn out men and women who are moving the commercial world. What are the churches doing? Paul says, "Whom we preach, warning every man, and teaching every man in all wisdom, that we may present every man perfect in Christ Jesus." A person seeking salvation today gets very little more than the opportunity to join the church by the Confession of Faith—pay your dues—sleep on in an unregenerated state and go to the judgment without hope and without God.

I come across noted evangelists these days who tell me that if they have a call where they don't believe in holiness, they don't preach it, unless it is in an inoffensive way. No wonder our papers are full of such adds as "I have an open date; anyone wanting my services call," while sixty thousand churches in our land stand empty every Sunday morning.

"And they went everywhere preaching the Word," regardless of camp meeting committees. Brethren, things are spoiling. Has the salt lost its savor? God expects the holiness people to bring the heart-broken world to him. Let us get busy in Jesus' name.

REPORT OF J. B. KENDALL'S WORK.

The meeting at Salem, Ill., was conducted in the Methodist Church, South, and the Rev. C. F. Carzine is the pastor. The meeting had been well advertised, organized and cottage prayer meetings had been held for weeks before the meeting begun and of course success was assured. The crowds were large and interest deep from the very beginning. The outstanding meetings of the campaign were the special meetings for women and girls only and for men and boys only; the church was packed and scores were blessed. There were, I think, at least one hundred converts, many renewals and about forty-seven went into the church with others to follow.

We addressed the high schools, grades, and addressed a number of club meetings while in the city. The pastor and family are among the finest people we have ever assisted. Rev. W. D. Humphrey, P. E., of the Dist., was with us much of the time and rendered great service in prayer and song, and is a very fine man and loved by all.

Salem, Ill., is the birthplace of the late William J. Bryan, and one of the nicest little cities in Illinois. I have never met a more loyal and finer lot of people in all my work. Blessing on the pastor, his fine family and the good people.

We ate at present at Hamburg, Ill., in the Methodist Church. Our next campaign will be in the First Methodist Church, Independence, Kan.

J. B. Kendall.

THE CRESTON REVIVAL.

The good people of Creston, Ohio, have just gone through a very splendid revival in the Methodist Church. After several days of earnest prayer, a preliminary meeting was held at which twenty-one outstanding church folks were present. Every one of them expressed their personal desire and need of a revival.

Beginning Dec. 23rd, two weeks were spent in cottage prayer meetings in many homes. Also many calls were made and prayers with the people brought on a very hopeful spirit. Sunday night, Jan. 4, the service began in the church and continued at 2:00 and 7:30 P. M. for the next five weeks. It has really been a very great time. The town and community were thoroughly aroused and the results were good. Some spent whole nights in prayer and many real sacrifices were made. A general conviction came on the people and more than fifty prayed through at the altar. Penitential tears as well as tears of joy flowed quite freely. Several were sanctified, others were reclaimed and quite a number were converted. Like all real salvation revivals these days, it was a real battle with the devil himself, but we are fully convinced that Jesus and his uncompromising gospel of full salvation can get results on any field and the people are always glad.

The Holy Spirit brought new light on life and living to many honest souls, for which we thank him. The spirit of meekness and humility is quite noticeable everywhere. The attendance in the Sunday school, Epworth League, prayer meeting and public worship is much larger. Many new homes are open to the pastor and the church and the field is truly ripened for the harvest. Ninety-two have started to read the Bible through in 1931. More of our Advocates are taken, and a good number for the first time have become subscribers to the Christian Witness and The Pentecostal Herald. All of our church offerings are voluntarily better, and a real missionary spirit prevails.

J. J. Adams, M. E. Pastor.

GRACIOUS REVIVAL AT MIDDLESBORO, KENTUCKY.

Nineteen afternoon prayer meetings, besides much prayer at other times, paved the way for a gracious revival at First Methodist Church, Feb. 4-22.

After the third night of the meeting crowds were our embarrassment. Five minutes before a meeting of the official board a special delivery letter came from Miss Edna Franklin, of Maysville, Ky. After prayer as to who to call for our evangelist all the Board voted for Miss Franklin. The Lord gave her favor with the people. All who heard her messages realized that she was a God-called young woman. Fourteen people found peace with God. Twelve found it at an altar of prayer, the others in their homes. Jack Atha of Wilmore, Ky., did not know a meeting was to be held. He came by the pastor's home for an hour's visit one day before the meeting began. After he sung for us one night the people realized that God had sent him our way. A free-will offering took care of the expenses. The people of this city will not be satisfied until this Spirit-anointed young evangelist comes to us again. God spoke in an unusual way. On the last Sunday morning the pastor and wife, Jack Atha and Miss Franklin sang, "God is still on the throne." On the last night of the meeting 350 people crowded into the auditorium, forty of these stood during all the service. A number were turned away. A few will unite with the church.

W. F. Cochran, Pastor.

WOODLAND HOLINESS ASSOCIATION HAS SPLENDID CONVENTION.

The Woodland Interdenominational Holiness Association met at the Esmond, So. Dak., Methodist Church on Saturday, Feb. 14, with Brother and Sister W. M. Redfield, pastors. At ten o'clock Brother Redfield opened the sessions with the reading of John 17. Then a most profitable season of prayer was enjoyed in which many took part and hearts were encouraged. Then S. S. Redfield led the praise service. By eleven o'clock there were nearly two hundred present of different denominations. Some of these came from as far as a hundred miles. The billows of glory rolled as men and women, boys and girls told of the power of God which had transformed their lives, taken them out of sin and formalism, cleaned them up inside and out, and given them joy and peace in their hearts. The tide was rolling so high that it was impossible to stop for lunch until nearly one o'clock.

In the short business session the Association was invited by Brother E. R. Eling to the Wesleyan Methodist Church in Redfield for a convention in April. The Cavour Church also asked for a convention at Pearl during the first part of June. The invitations were accepted.

The afternoon message was brought by Rev. Arthur Calhoun, pastor of the Wesleyan Methodist Church of Artesian. He used as a basis the last chapters of John and the first two chapters of Acts. His theme was "Jesus and the Spirit's Baptism." The blessing present was evidenced by the fact that nearly a score sought "the Second Blessing" at the close of the message. Most of these prayed through to victory.

A feature of the convention which added to the blessing was the presence of the John Fletcher College Male Quartet. These young men were present throughout the day and delighted all hearts with their splendid singing.

Yours for full salvation,

needs, but it had a wonderful lifting power; it possessed an elevating influence. It lifted multitudes of men and women out of idleness into industry, out of rags into comfortable and decent clothing, out of the dregs of poverty into thrift and comfortable living, out of profanity into praise, out of illiteracy into education; out of the bottom strata of the social life of the country into respectability, good social position and, in countless instances, powerful moral leadership. Early Methodism, cleansed with the blood of Christ and empowered by the baptism and indwelling of the Holy Spirit, was one of the most powerful, revolutionizing forces upward that the world has known for a century and a half.

The early history of Methodism in these United States might rightly be called "religion in earnest." The Methodist circuit rider was the finest type of heaven-born crusader. He was the friend of all men and the unafraid enemy of all sin. He had little of this world's goods; he needed but little; his treasures were in heaven. He was in eager pursuit of human souls that had strayed far into the land of sin, and he turned untold thousands of prodigals back to the Father's house. It was well known in the church and in the world, that he would cry aloud and would not spare. He smote all of those worldly pleasures which drew the people away from devotion, private and public, which deluded the soul and gave to sin an alluring charm. Those who were engaged in forms of wickedness that destroyed the souls of men, that was calculated to draw young people away into the devious paths of sinfulness, dreaded the coming of the Methodist preacher. He waded in among them with a drawn sword; he thundered the truth of Sinai. With unsparing spirit he smote wickedness on every hand, always offering a compassionate and mighty Christ to save the penitent; and he got results. His message not only brought men to Christ, but it brought industrial, social and intellectual awakening and advancement. He was a powerful, God-sent influence in the progressive civilization of this new world.

The conditions in this country, which led to the Civil War, the war itself, with its aftermath, gave a deep wound to Methodism. Division came; in the midst of the confusion and strife perfect love was not nurtured.

In countless instances it disappeared entirely. The doctrine of entire sanctification, the fruitful soil out of which perfect love grows, blooms, and bears its gracious fruit, was rudely trampled upon and largely forgotten. The doctrine of sanctification, one of the most distinctive doctrines of Methodism, was largely lost sight of. It disappeared from the church papers, it became almost unknown in Methodist literature; a generation grew up which "knew not" this beautiful Joseph of original Methodism.

Somewhere in the Scriptures there is a statement to the effect that "When the enemy shall come in like a flood, the Spirit of the Lord shall lift up a standard against him." Isa. 59:19.

God looks far into the future. He understands the end from the beginning. He always knows what is coming next, and prepares to meet the enemies of his people to their advantage and victory. It must be remembered, however, that God is dealing with free agents; he cannot force men to be wise, or to do what they should do against their will. Of course, in the end, when probation is past, then force begins. God can warn men of coming events and seek to prepare them for them, but men can refuse to see and blunder on into darkness and over the abyss, in spite of the divine warning.

Looking into the future, God saw the tremendous effect of the teachings of Darwin and his associates. He knew the fearful havoc that the teachings of evolution in the schools and general literature, would have upon evangelical faith. He foresaw the coming of the moving picture, with all of its debasing influence, and he lifted up again the standards of Christian experience of the sanctifying power of the Holy Ghost which accomplished such gracious influences in the British Isles and in the early history of this country. Unfortunately, the churches were blind and deaf to God's warning, and the preparation he offered for these perilous times. If the churches had laid hold of divine truth, had have welcomed the holiness revival, had have opened their hearts and, under the Holy Ghost, had been guided and protected from skeptical teaching on the one hand, and extremes and fanaticism on the other hand, this country would have been wonderfully prepared for these tremendous onslaughts of the enemy which have done so much to destroy evangelical faith, to draw the people away from public worship to places of amusements which are tainted with immorality and mental debauchery.

Some time ago I heard a minister in the course of his sermon, say, that the soldiers and the mob rose against Christ, harrassed him, followed him, and were not satisfied until he was nailed to the cross. The minister was mistaken. It was the ecclesiastic leaders who hated Christ, employed the soldiers, and aroused the mob spirit against him. The common people have not rebelled against the doctrine of entire consecration, the cleansing blood of Christ and the baptism and abiding of the Holy Spirit. That has been the work of ecclesiastical leaders, and has filtered down among their servants and brought about tragic conditions. To get some conception of the damage done to mankind through the opposition to the holiness revival, to the efforts of the Holy Spirit to bring men to realize that they must and, through the cleansing blood of Christ, they may be holy, one must take into consideration many movements that have sprung up among the common people who were hungering and thirsting after righteousness, and have been drawn away under dangerous false and fanatical teachers of numerous sects and cults that would have never existed had Methodism in her original power and purpose continued to preach the vital experience of conviction for sin, regeneration, consecration, entire sanctification, and all of the graces of the Spirit so abundantly taught in the Holy Scriptures.

The very fact that Methodism so largely departed from her original calling and power to rescue the millions of the common people, save them from sin and lead them into heart purity, industry, thrift, good social conditions, education, and the largest life of dominating and influential citizenship in the kingdom of God, and the life of the republic, has given opportunity to false and fanatical teaching to lead the people into all sorts of false and destructive teaching.

What does the immediate or distant future hold? What promise, if any, have we of a return of the old-time purpose, power, and enthusiasm of Methodism? Who is going under the love of God, the power and guidance of the Holy Spirit, to gather up those tremendous human forces among the common people that must rise into a great saving salt of spiritual, scriptural, economical and political life, or sink into the underworld? Since Methodism has so largely lost the fire that illuminates and warms the hearts of the masses, what is going to be done about it?

At the present, we have lawlessness, lewdness, dissipation, murder, indecency, ravaging society from the underworld, up to, or down, if you choose, to the most wealthy and highly educated classes. Will the church be content to drift along farther away from God, deeper into sin, become more modernistic and skeptical, or will she awaken, arouse herself from her lukewarmness and address herself to the tremendous task she must perform, or stand guilty at the judgment bar of God.

There are gracious possibilities. God is on the throne. There is spiritual hunger in the world. The cleansing blood of Jesus, cannot, will not, lose its power. The Holy Ghost is here. This, in a peculiar way, is his dispensation. God will answer prayer. The preachers of the two Methodisms, on the circuits and smaller stations, in villages and county seats—I shall not mention the big rich churches, and high salaried ministers, but am thinking of these five-talented men—if they could fully awaken; if they should storm heaven with their prayers; if they should get a tremendous baptism with the Holy Ghost; if they should foster and pour out themselves for the promotion of revivals among the common people; if there should be a spiritual conflagration among the middle classes, reaching down to the neglected masses and sending streams of life and power into the underworld, some of the gracious effects would reach into the higher altitudes; but there is a region up there we shall not now discuss. We do remember that Jesus said, "How hardly shall a rich man enter into the kingdom of heaven." We cannot forget that it was the leaders of an apostate church that cried for the blood of Christ until they had the satisfaction of wagging their heads while they mocked him in his agony on the cross. But shall we of the smaller brethren, of that powerful sea of humanity, give up hope? Shall we cringe like dogs under the lash of cruel masters? Shall we sit still and let the multitudes be damned in the depths of hell without one tremendous effort in prayer at the throne of grace, and in preaching to the hearts of the multitudes?

Enough to Make a Book.

I have received enough letters from people who have had THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD come to them, which was subscribed for by some friend, who have written me telling of how they had been blessed by reading THE HERALD, and expressing their gratitude to some unknown friend for the paper, to make a good-sized booklet.

Just now our business manager is offering the paper for a year for one dollar to people who desire to send it to preachers, especially young ministers. It would be a fine thing to send THE HERALD for a year to superannuated preachers. Here is your opportunity at small expense of two cents per week, to send a full salvation paper to some minister for twelve months. Send in a name and address for THE HERALD to some preacher for a dollar a year, and let the paper start right away. It is the desire of the company to start these subscriptions during the month of March.

"ABRAHAM BELIEVED GOD."

MRS. H. C. MORRISON.

QUINLY three words! And it does not seem a hard thing to do—believe God! Yet is it not a fact that, with many of us, this is a weak point. To verify this fact we have only to look about us and see the poverty of soul, even among those who rank as "leading members" of the church.

To believe God is to be rich for time and eternity. God put down Abraham's faith on the account of his righteousness, and what is a greater commodity for time and eternity than right-ness? To believe God is to have the weakness of humanity reinforced by the strength of Divinity. It is to lay hold upon the invisible, the intangible, the unreal, so to speak, and make them minister to our present necessities. Yes, it is to have access to all things necessary for our well being in this life and that which is to come, for hath not the Lord declared, "All things are possible to him that believeth."

From such statements from the pen of inspiration, is it any wonder that, believing God, we are rich in two worlds—not necessarily rich in this world's goods, but rich in faith, the leverage which lifts one out of the realm of things earthly into the realm of things eternal.

What did it mean for Abraham to believe God? We have only to begin with him as he was called out of his own country into a land that he knew not, and to see how he met the tests of obedience, faith and consecration, then to see the glorious closing of a life that had walked so close to God that he was called "the friend of God." Abraham gave his all and received God's all. He laid down everything he counted dear at the feet of his Lord and took away with him the divine furnishing that enabled him to walk through this vale of tears a conqueror over sin and its consequences. What a wonderful passport was that of Abraham from earth to heaven, because he believed God!

There are depths to God's storehouse of supplies that we have never dreamed of; heights of privilege to which our faith has not ascended; lengths and breadths to the wideness of his mercy that would stagger us could we but get a glimpse of them. Paul calls these limitless resources "The unsearchable riches of Christ," or as Rendell Harris has translated it, "The unexplorable wealth of Christ."

The late J. H. Jowett relates an incident of Mr. Spurgeon when he was going to preach on Joseph. He had drawn a picture of the colossal stores of corn in Egypt, every granary bursting with the abundance. There was a supply for seven years. And there, in the midst of his vivid conception, Spurgeon saw a little mouse in one corner of a granary, worrying itself to skin and bone, in the fear that there wasn't enough to live on!

Dr. Jowett goes on to make the application, saying, "But I am afraid that believers in the Lord Jesus Christ, who have obtained access by faith into the granaries of grace, are often found worrying in the uncertainty as to whether the resources of grace are adequate to carry them through. 'Shall I be able to stand?' they ask themselves in fear. 'Can my sinful inclination be really conquered?' 'Shall I be perfect at last?' It is the fear of the mouse. Yes, there's corn enough in the granary! 'Where sin abounds grace doth much more abound"; and there is enough for all eternity. "Having loved his own he loved them unto the end." We shall never outlive a Saviour's love! It is a world which will never give up its last secret; it is the "unexplorable wealth of Christ."

Reader, let's resolve in our hearts that, come what may, be the clouds ever so lowering, be the hosts of Pharaoh behind and the Red Sea before us, we shall trust and not be afraid. Let us have the faith that laughs at impossibilities, and cries, It shall be done! Let us always remember what a rich heritage was Abraham's because he dared to believe God.

Help the Boys!

One of our problems at Asbury College, and a very serious one, has been the matter of rendering assistance to worthy young men of small means who desire an education in a Christian institution, free from those influences that destroy evangelical faith, that so often blights the souls of those who are brought under such influences.

Some time ago, under a very efficient and skillful workman, the Asbury boys were able to open up a factory for the manufacture of very excellent spring mattresses. For some time they reconstructed and made mattresses needed for the college. This has been an excellent work that has brought assistance for worthy students. They have now undertaken to put these mattresses on the market. They are well built, with the best of springs and in every way are claimed to be equal to the best. These mattresses can be manufactured and shipped to all parts of the United States. Some of them have gone to the western coast, and the purchasers have pronounced them as good as can be found on the market.

We shall be grateful if the readers of THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD desiring mattresses will correspond with H. R. Barnes, sales-manager, Wilmore, Ky. Remember that you do not only get an excellent mattress, but help worthy young men whom God has saved, sanctified and called into the ministry. So you not only help yourself but worthy young men, and a great and good cause. It would seem the host of people who are interested in a well educated, Spirit-filled ministry, could easily keep a large body of students busy during their spare hours for work. Let Mr. Barnes hear from you.

Faithfully yours,
H. C. MORRISON.

Watchman, What of the Night?

J. L. O'BRYEN.

If there ever was a time when this question was in order, surely that time is now.

A brief historical reference to the subject will refresh the reader's mind. Ancient Babylon was the place and the Jews were in captivity. Great walls surrounded the city, and the watchman was upon the walls. A belated traveler could call to the watchman and receive his answer.

It would seem that with all of these precautions, the inhabitants of the city would be entirely safe. But the storm that was to leave destruction and death in its wake, was already gathering in the north and ere long it would sweep down upon the city and Babylon, proud, cruel and heathen, would be no more.

Believing that a Divinely-called, wholly-sanctified, well-equipped, Spirit-filled ministry is one of the greatest needs of our times, and for all time to come, I am glad to make a donation for the upbuilding of the Asbury Theological Seminary at Wilmore, Ky.

For this great work, I promise to give $..... per year for five years, first installment due September 1, 1931. I will join all who are helping in this good work in prayer for the blessing of the Lord to rest upon it.

NAME .....

ADDRESS .....

Set the stage for the final drama. Belshazzar, the King, and a thousand of his lords, had a feast and drank from golden vessels, some of which came from the first temple at Jerusalem, vessels which had been dedicated to God and were to be used only in his worship. The party would no doubt have been a great social success but a hand wrote on the wall and the kingdom was ended. Cyrus, the Persian, with his army, opened the dikes that were made to confine the Euphrates River to one channel and suffered them to overflow the country so that he could enter Babylon by the channel of the river and that night was Belshazzar slain.

The ancient city of Rome is another illustration; its boasted glory belonged to time, and at its final destruction the smoke that curled from St. Jude's Cathedral, was a warning in the sky that a nation that forgets God is doomed to pass away.

What about our own nation, where so many agencies are at work to leave God out of our national and home life? What about our institutions of learning, built with consecrated funds, which seemingly are leading the youth of this land astray? What about so-called preachers, who deny the divinity of the wonderful Christ, his atonement, his death and resurrection? What about the attitude of these men towards the Holy Bible, the Book upon which our entire civilization rests?

Would it not be a good time for all of our people to pause in this age of pleasure-seeking, dollar-chasing and worldly ease, and to earnestly and honestly inquire, "Watchman, what of the night?" Our own wonderful country ought to be the most God-fearing and God-serving nation in the world. We talk about the great progress and development of science, but there was very little science developed when some strange Power guided the frail bark of Columbus over the ocean and enabled him to discover this great land. It may be a little old-fashioned to say it, but nevertheless we steadfastly believe it, that the same Providence which guided the Jews in the wilderness, hovered over the Mayflower and brought her safe into harbor at Plymouth.

It was not science and philosophy that led the little handful of patriots at Valley Forge and Bunker Hill. It was not any of these modern equipments which enabled men to pen documents like the Declaration of Independence or that other production, Our Constitution, which is and has been, the bulwark of human faith and liberty.

The strength of America is not in her armies and navies—nor yet in her material wealth, "the cattle that graze upon a thousand hills," nor yet in the unmined gold which flows as a golden stream beneath the Rockies. Her true strength is in her altars, from which the morning and evening sacrifice ascends to him "Who is the same yesterday, today and forever." Watchman, what of the night, the day cometh, and then the night?

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS

A SHEPHERD BOY AND A GIANT.

Mrs. Geneva Mendenhall.

David was too young to fight in the armies of king Saul, but three of his brothers were in the camp of the king's army. Their old enemies, the Philistines, were drawn up on the far side of the valley of Elah, ready for battle.

The shepherd boy was called from his flocks one day, by his father, and sent up to camp with a gift of food for the brothers. He found the men in camp very much afraid of a great giant who came out before his army daily and mocked the Israelites because they were frightened by the very sight of him. Even king Saul would not dare to do battle with so great a giant.

When David discovered how matters stood he went to King Saul and told him that because he trusted God to protect him, he was not afraid to fight the giant. Saul did not recognize the little shepherd boy who used to play the harp for him, in this strong, sturdy young man, but he was more than glad to find some one who was willing to fight the giant, and offered David his own royal sword and helmet. But they were much too large for David who much preferred to fight with his own weapons, anyway.

When David stepped out in the valley between those two great armies he seemed to carry only his long staff in his hand, but dangling by his side was his trusty sling with which he had often defended his sheep back in the hills of Bethlehem. But more than these, David carried a brave heart, a clear head, and a quick eye.

The big Philistine, Goliath, was very angry when he saw such a young soldier coming out to meet him. He cursed and raved and laughed as David walked steadily toward him. Finally, David stopped, dropped the staff, and quick as a flash swung his sling about his head and sent a smooth stone flying at the head of the proud Philistine.

Old Goliath suddenly stopped his loud mockery, a great shudder passed through him and then, turning, he fell with an awful thud into the sand of the valley. Then, almost before anyone knew what had made the giant fall, David ran to him and cut his throat with his own sword. So David, the young shepherd of Bethlehem, saved Israel from her enemies.

1. Why was David so brave, while yet so young?

2. Why did David carry his staff out with him?

3. What was the principle city of the Philistines? (This is not told in the story printed here).

Dear Aunt Bettie: This is my first letter to The Herald. Father takes The Herald. I like it, especially page ten. I'm eleven years old and in the sixth grade. I go to Sunday school. My father is the superintendent and my mother teaches the Ladies' Bible Class. I will close with my favorite Bible verse. "Honor thy father and mother that thy days may be long upon the earth." Esther M. Heath.
Rt. 1, Attica, Kan.

Dear Aunt Bettie: May a lonely girl join your happy band of boys and girls? I have brown hair and eyes. I am five feet, six. I am also seventeen years old. My birthday is November 30. I would like to hear from all the boys and girls. I will promise to answer all the letters that I get. Here's hoping Mr. W. B. doesn't get this. Bessie Lou White.
Rt. 2, Box 55, Metcalfe, Ga.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I take The Herald and enjoy reading page ten. I go to Indian Springs camp meeting every summer, with my grandmother Osborne. We were all so disappointed that you did not come Dr. Morrison last summer, and hope you can both come next summer. I am ten years old July 3rd, and take piano lessons. I enjoy my music. Some day I hope to play the piano and pipe organ like my mother. I am sending you a copy of a poem I have just written, the subject is "Things I am thankful for." This is my second letter to The Herald and I hope to see it in print. I hope Mr. W. B. will be taking a bath when this arrives. Betty Osborne Withers.

Atlanta, Ga.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I want to join your band of boys and girls that love Jesus. I am a member of the Methodist Church and like to read the Bible, and also the tenth page of The Herald. My birthday is Sept. 16. I am thirteen years old. My mother is a member of the Methodist Church. She takes The Herald. I hope to see this letter in print as it is the first I have written to you. Please be sure to write to me. Bertha Chamberlin.
Rt. 2, Mt. Olivet, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: May I have a little extra space for a fireside or roundtable chat with the cousins? I wrote you all some weeks ago, and thank you for publishing my letter. I gave my height six feet, four and one-half inches; one of the Canadian cousins said, "Geel you must be a skyscraper?" Guess I am; there is not a hair between the top of my head and Heaven. I am bald headed. I am glad the cousins live in so many states; the readers of The Herald do not live in a small corner. We are far separated by distance but in heart we can form a circle around The Herald hearthstone for a friendly chat. Several of the cousins have complained of being lonesome. If they will get the "Nightingale of the Psalms" and read how Bro. Aycock, when lonesome or blue, went to prayer. The devil was right there and said, "You are about the biggest fool I ever saw." But Bro. Aycock went right on praying and soon realized that God was with him. This is the best man-made book I ever read. Get it, read it, for it will be a blessing to you. Charles M. Sheldon, in his book, "In His Steps," gave us the question, "What would Jesus do?" Jesus said, "Search the Scriptures for in them ye think ye have eternal life, and they testify of me." Do all the cousins love sacred songs? Do you have a special favorite? I do, "I know that Jesus loves me," is my favorite. Wife and I, in thinking out our resolutions and plans for 1931, decided to get the beautiful mottoes sent out by The Pentecostal Publishing Co., and decorate our rooms with them. What a comfort and consolation they are and such wonderful reminders. Do beautiful pictures appeal to all of my cousins? I am a photographer and in my photographic journal I found this verse: "Teach thou thy brain to photograph each scene,
Each thought, each word, each act;
Of beauty, good and grace,
Till thou shalt own a gallery so clean and high,
That love shall rule thy life and light thy face."

This verse has done me much good and I hope it will be a help to you. With much love to Aunt Bettie and all the cousins, I am yours,
W. C. Boy.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I haven't seen a letter from Beverly, Mass., for sometime so thought I'd see if I could come in for a little visit. I am a girl twenty-one years old and a member of the Nazarene Church. It certainly is a joy to be on the Lord's side fighting against sin and the Devil. The Lord is blessing in our little church and souls are praying through to victory. I have a class of twelve girls. Some are Christians and some are not. "Prayer changes things," and we are praying and living the life trusting that soon the class will be 100 per cent on the Lord's side. Boys and girls, the only way to be happy is to accept the Lord and work for him. If ye have not tried this way, "taste and see that the Lord is good." Jesus said, "He that cometh unto me I will not cast out." Though your sins be as scarlet they shall be as white as snow." It pays to serve Jesus. I will correspond with anyone who will write to me.

Ruth Grant.
475 Cabot St., Beverly, Mass.

Dear Aunt Bettie: My name is Dorothy Culverwell. Grandmother lives with me and she takes The Herald, and I enjoy it, especially page ten. I am a new member, rather, I want to be. If any children would like to write me my address is 2317 A-12th St., Sacramento, Calif. Dorothy Culverwell.

Dear Aunt Bettie: May I join your happy band of boys and girls? My name is Mary Dale. I am eight years old. I like to go to church and Sunday school every Sunday. I live in Atlanta, Ga. How is Dr. Morrison? I have been praying for him. I go to Indian Springs every summer and look forward to seeing you and Dr. Morrison. Mary Dale.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Would you let a little Kentucky girl join your happy band of boys and girls? I am twelve years old. My birthday is May 27. I go to Beech Valley school. I am in the seventh grade. My teacher is Miss Emma Wright. I have three brothers and two sisters. Have I a twin? Can you guess my middle name? It begins with V and ends with A, has eight letters in it. I hope to see my letter in print. Ruby V. Johnson.
Narrows, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you permit a Georgia girl to join your happy band of boys and girls? I have written to The Herald once before and my letter was printed. I thank Aunt Bettie for printing my letter. I am a senior of Lone Star Consolidated School. Who can guess my middle name? It begins with W and ends in E, and has six letters in it. The one who guesses it I will write them. Jewell W. Logan.
Rt. 2, Box 125, Adel, Ga.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you permit a Georgia girl to enter your jolly band of boys and girls? I have written once before and my letter was printed, and I thank Aunt Bettie for printing it, for I won some wonderful pen pals through the dear old Herald. I am a senior of the Lone Star Consolidated School. Who can guess my middle name? It begins with F and ends with an E, and has seven letters in it. All those guessing it, will write them a letter. Will try to answer all letters received, so let your letters fly to Myra F. Lynn.
Rt. 2, Adel, Ga.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a little mountain girl join your happy band of boys and girls? We don't take The Herald but grandmother does. I have dark red hair, bobbed, blue eyes and fair complexion. I have one little brother and one little sister younger than I am. My birthday is September 15. Have I a twin? I go to preaching and Sunday school whenever I can and love to go. I would like to correspond with any of the cousins. Everybody write to lonely little me. I will answer all that send stamps. Ethel M. Breeden.
Rt. 2, Stanley Va.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Won't you admit a North Carolina girl into your happy circle? I do so enjoy the letters in The Herald. I have brown hair, blue eyes, medium complexion, weigh ninety-two pounds and am twelve years old. My birthday is Aug. 5. Have I a twin? If so, won't you please write. I am glad so many of the cousins are Christians and hope they will all be soon. I am a Christian and think it the only life to live. I sometimes wonder how people can enjoy going to dances, card parties and things of that sort. Who can guess my middle name? It begins with E and ends with H, and has nine letters in it. Any one who guesses it please write and I'll answer with a picture of myself. Please, Aunt Bettie, won't you print my letter as it is my first; and cousins, please do write to me for I do so love pen friends and hope I'll make lots of them in The Herald. Ruth E. Williams.

Dear Aunt Bettie: The more I read the dear old Herald the better I like it. I have been reading The Herald ever since I can remember. I enjoy reading your and Dr. Morrison's wonderful pieces for they are food for my soul. I gave my heart to Jesus and joined the M. E. Church when I was eleven years old and I have found him a wonderful Savior to me. Dear cousins, let's give our lives to Jesus before it is too late. The Bible says that "Now is the accepted time." It makes my heart sad to see so many poor souls who will be lost if they don't give their hearts to God. I am trying to live closer to God each day of my life. I trust that I may be a great worker in the vineyard of the Lord. I don't read love stories, and never went to a party, dance, picture show or anything that is wrong. I was seventeen years old Jan. 4. Would like to hear from some of the Christian cousins. Elva T. Green.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Would you let a North Carolina girl join your happy band of boys and girls? I certainly do enjoy reading The Herald, especially page ten. I have blue eyes, dark brown hair, have medium complexion and weigh 100 pounds. I am glad to know that most of the cousins are Christians and I wish everyone will be soon. I enjoy going to church to hear the Word of God. Who can guess my middle name? It begins with J and ends with N, and has four letters in it. The one who guesses it I will write a long letter. I certainly do hope Mr. W. B. is on a visit to Florida when my letter arrives. Virginia Hall.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I have been reading The Herald and am very much interested in it. I believe it helps us to learn about our Christian friends, also about the Lord and his works. Would you let a boy from Kentucky join your wonderful band of Christian soldiers who are holding the standard of Christianity high? I am saved and sanctified. I am glad to hear of so many trying to live the life for Jesus. Mother and father are Christians. We have prayer meeting at home and the Lord blesses us. Please to print this if you have room. ## FALLEN ASLEEP

HAYES.

On December 25, 1930, The Nebraska Avenue Methodist Church of Tampa, Fla., was made sad by the death of Bro. Wallace N. Hayes, one of the oldest and most faithful and loyal members. Bro. Hayes was born at Key West, Fla., Feb. 17, 1852. He lived all his life in Florida, always representing the best interest of both church and state.

He was a member of the Methodist Church for more than fifty years, doing much personal work; he made it a habit to speak to others about their soul's welfare. He loved the gospel and would give demonstration to the fact of his reception; he was a great help to the pastor as a good listener. We miss him, but we know where he is. He often talked of Heaven and the willingness to go.

He married Miss Georgina Howell, Dec. 4, 1879. They celebrated their Golden Wedding very happily with a great number of relatives and friends on Dec. 4, 1929. Bro. Hayes is survived by his widow and four children, Mrs. Leroy Delamater, of Hudson, N. Y., Mrs. C. P. Loyd, Bradenton, Fla., Mrs. F. T. Blount and L. V. Hayes, of Tampa, Fla. Bro. Hayes spent most of his life in the cattle business in Manatee county. He retired from business and lived in Tampa for the last seven years, spending most of his time in church work and religious interests. If he was not at Sunday school and church, something was wrong. A good man has gone from among us. J. S. Purcell.

STEWART.

Mrs. D. S. Stewart (nee Belinda Lee Anderson) was born April 24, 1856, near Nacogdoches, Tex. When she was fourteen years old her parents moved to Alto, Tex. Sept. 21, 1876, she married D. S. Stewart, also of Alto, Texas. They moved to Hamilton county in the early 80's, where they endured the hardships of the then West Texas. They spent the greater part of their lives in this section of the state. To this union were born four children, two of whom, H. L. Stewart, and Mary Viola Scott, preceded their parents in death, the two living children are T. D. Stewart and Mrs. G. O. Strong, both of Ranger, Tex. The writer was reared by his grandparents. Her husband preceded her in death by one year. Mrs. Stewart was stricken with paralysis, and died July 19, 1930. Mrs. Stewart was a faithful companion for almost fifty-three years, and a devoted mother. She was converted to Christ at an early age and lived a beautiful Christian life throughout her life.

We miss her but there will come a glad reunion in the House of our Father, and by his grace we shall meet her over there.

Her grandson,
T. E. Scott.

CHIPLEY, FLORIDA.

Dear Brother Morrison:

While reading The Pentecostal Herald, I was made to think deeply of you and your good wife, how you had toiled these many years, singing on your way,

"O sometimes how long seems the day,

And sometimes how weary my feet;
But toiling in life's dusty way,

The Rock's blessed shadow, how sweet!"

Then, again, you are constrained to say from the depth of your souls, "Jesus calls us, o'er the tumult of our life's wild, restless sea; day by day his sweet voice soundeth, saying, (Son Morrison, Sister Morrison) "follow me." Then of course you, with the rest of us who love and trust him, are made to rejoice, as we more fully realize how God the Father is for us. Yes, God the Father, God the Son, God the Holy Ghost is indeed for us. Isn't it wonderful to know Christ the Son died for us, arose for us, lives for us, not only loves us, who love him, but he loves the sinner and is now pleading in glory for all to come unto him for peace and rest.

Brother and Sister Morrison, I'm so glad we learned long ago that true repentance and belief in our Saviour brings one into a converted state, that is, into him "Who was delivered for our offenses, and was raised again for our justification." Rom. 4:25. "By whom also we have access by faith into this grace (sanctification) wherein we stand and rejoice in hope of the glory of God." Rom. 5:2. With a firm hope of a final redemption in its fullest meaning—dead raised, living changed—what a day of rejoicing that will be when Jesus comes with ten thousand of his saints, at the same time the sea and land shall give up the dead. I love to sing the precious old song—and Mr. Q. and I do sing it often—

"See the patriarchs and prophets,

Coming forth from bursting tombs;

They are coming to this meeting,

And they are coming very soon."

Well, as that day is not yet we must press on in the great battlefield, crying aloud and sparing not. "Ho, everyone that thirsteth, come ye to the waters, and he that hath no money; come ye, buy, and eat; yea come, buy wine and milk without money and without price." I'm quite sure if God calls one to preach the glad tidings of great joy he will also baptize with the Holy Spirit his chosen ones as he did his only begotten Son for his mission. Long ago I found out for myself the blessedness of the baptism with the Holy Spirit that has indeed been the grace wherein I've been able to stand—first, enlightenment, conviction, repentance, conversion, consecration, which always brings sanctification, the grace wherein we stand.

"Yea, only as this heart is clean,

May larger visions yet be mine;

For mirrored (looking glass) in its depths are seen,

The things Divine."

Bro. Morrison, husband and I have taken special notice to the two poems by you in recent issues of the paper. God bless your great heart in a special way is my prayer to the King of kings. You will never realize the help you have been in God's great university, teaching, preaching in so many ways as you have these fifty years of field work. The stars that will be in your crown will be as the sands of the sea.

Your true Christian friends now, and have been for many, many years.
Mrs. W. R. Quinton, and W. R.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

REV. O. G. MINGLEDORFF, D. D.

Lesson 1.—April 5, 1931.

Subject.—Jesus Teaches Humility.
Luke 14:7-14; Luke 18:15-17.

Golden Text.—Whosoever exalteth himself shall be abased: but he that humbleth himself shall be exalted.—Luke 14:11.

Time.—January 30, A. D.

Place.—Perea.

Introduction.—Humility is a lovely Miss. She is so modest that if one speaks to her she will blush and hide her face. She is constantly seeking clean hearts in which she may make her home; but if she becomes your guest, you will never know it. Your neighbors and the angels may discover the fact, but you never will; although she will beautify the premises of your being, and make you graciously attractive to your friends—and maybe to your enemies. But if you tell anyone, even secretly, that she lives in your heart, she will depart immediately, and may never return.

I am afraid to say much about this shy little Miss, lest I should embarrass her, and hurt her tender feelings. She has one bitter enemy by the name of Pride who is always busy trying to drive her out of human hearts. Jesus found him at the feast where he was rushing for the best seat at the table. He found him among his chosen apostles making them quarrel as to who should have the most honorable position in the coming kingdom. The ugly rascal even visited Salome and induced her to request the Master to give her two boys, James and John, the two best places. The fellow went to church, and had the Jews scrambling for the highest seats in the synagogue. You will note that Pride is not a relative of Humility. Her genealogy runs back into the heart of God, while his made its start in the heart of Satan.

I fear that Pride is still alive in the hearts of men. Have you noticed what a struggle they are having at Washington City for high places at public functions? I wonder if this fellow, Mr. Pride, is not busy in the nation's capital city. He went to see a woman some little while ago, who had been President of the church society for twenty years, but for some reason was not re-elected at the twenty-first annual meeting. He made her so pouting mad that she would not even attend future meetings of the society; nor would she pay her annual dues. It was understood that Miss Humility took her departure the moment Mr. Pride entered the premises; but no one blamed her for leaving.

Mr. Pride is a great one to superintend the building of churches. He is an adept at persuading people to erect very costly structures for the glory(?) of God, when in reality he is only inducing them to satisfy their own vanity. How he does make the Methodists suffer shame if the Baptists have the finest church edifice in town! Then it is very painful to the Baptists if the Presbyterian pastor is a D. D., and their pastor is just plain Mr. preacher. This Mr. Pride helps some colleges to do big things by following his advice. He can even make Mr. XYZ spend $1,000 a year on his daughter's education when he could get better results from a school that would cost him only $500; but the gentleman is looking for the boost of prestige. If Mr. Pride still lives, and the papers have printed no news of his death, you can find him busy at large church gatherings boasting for fine appointments. His one business in this world is to murder Miss Humility.

Jesus had great contempt for Mr. Pride, and rebuked him wherever he met him. He was hitting him hard when he set a little child in the midst of his apostles to teach them the meaning of this blessed grace. The world of proud men had thought little of being taught great lessons by infants; but Jesus took the little one and taught men one of the profoundest lessons of all the ages.

Comments on the Lesson.

The teaching in the first section of today's lesson was given by the Lord at a feast in the house of one of the chief Pharisees, and on a sabbath day. He was about to heal a man of dropsy in the presence of certain lawyers and Pharisees who, no doubt, were eager for an opportunity to condemn him for working on the Sabbath. After healing the sick man he propounded to them this tremendous question: "Which of you shall have an ass or an ox fallen into a pit, and will not straightway pull him out on the sabbath day?" Of course, "they could not answer him again to these things."

7. To those which were bidden.—This must have been rather a select company. The Pharisee may have been friendly toward Jesus; but more likely, he was invited out of curiosity. They wished to hear him talk. How they chose the chief rooms.—The most honorable seats, or reclining, places at the feast. They were eager for the highest places; and such is still the case.

8. Sit not down in the highest room.—That might be dangerous to one's pride; for a more honorable man, one of higher social or political standing, might arrive, and there would be trouble. In civil circles such matters are usually settled by law, either written or unwritten.

9. Give this man place.—That would be a shamefully embarrassing situation for a proud man or woman; but the master of the feast must place all guests properly. Our Lord paints the scene with but few words: "And thou begin with shame to take the lowest room." It would be an insult to one's host to leave the house; but one would feel better in some other place.

10. Sit down in the lowest room.—This would be galling to pride, but perfectly natural to humility. In fact, the humble man is never looking for the upper seats, but prefers the lower ones. If you will keep your eyes open, this thing will give you the measure of certain men at public functions. Friend go up higher.—This would be high compliment. Thou shalt have worship.—Praise is the meaning of the word. I recollect seeing a master of ceremonies at a public function invite an old saint to a more honorable seat; but the dear old man persisted in keeping the lower seat, and thereby won greater esteem than he would have received if he had taken that which was higher. He did not so desire; but it came uninvited. Stanley Jones won tremendous praise by refusing the office of a bishop in his church.

11. Whosoever.—Any one in any sphere. Exalteth himself.—Human nature meets few harder lessons than this. A lady said to her friend: "When I go into a new community, I always put my best foot forward, for I believe that first impressions are lasting." Why not be one's true self by refusing to lie? As sure as we live, the truth will come out some day; and then one may be measured for less than his real worth because of his deception. "Let another man praise thee, and not thine own mouth; a stranger, and not thine lips."

12. When thou makest a dinner or a supper, call not thy friends, nor thy brethren, neither thy kinsmen, nor thy rich neighbors.—Dr. Adam Clarke's comment on this passage is as good as any that I have seen; so I give it: "Our Lord certainly does not mean that a man should not entertain at particular times, his friends, etc., but what he inculcates here is charity to the poor; and what he condemns is those entertainments which are given to the rich, either to flatter them, or to procure a similar return; because the money that is thus criminally laid out properly belongs to the poor."

13. Poor . . . maimed . . . lame . . . blind.—Who ever heard of rich society folk doing such a thing? But it would be a blessed way for them to spend their rich gains in these hard days through which our nation is now passing. Our Lord claims for such people a recompense at the "resurrection of the just." I suppose he was fully aware of the fact that sinners would never do such things with sincere hearts.

Luke 18:15-17. The International S. S. Committee has added this little section to the body of our lesson, one may suppose, as a sort of clincher. The people were bringing their little ones to him that he might bless them; but his disciples rebuked the parents. Maybe they did not wish them to disturb their Master, or maybe they cared little for the babies. But Jesus turns the rebuke back upon the disciples. Those were blessed words that came from his sacred lips that day: "Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not." Thank you, Master, for those precious words. They need no comment. For of such is the kingdom of heaven.—I do not think, as some have supposed, that the Master meant to teach that babies are born regenerated. The lesson he is teaching is that of humility. Pride must die before a soul can enter into the kingdom of God. But the lesson does teach that all children dying before they arrive at the time of accountability are saved. The little ones are born under a covenant of grace; and if death should overtake them in early years, our loving Lord will do for them all that may be needed to prepare them for heaven. I am aware that some are teaching that regeneration puts an adult soul back to the spiritual status of a newly-born babe; but that will not do. The baby is not born regenerated.

17. Whosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child shall in no wise enter therein.—Taking this verse in connection with all other teachings of the Master on this subject, I suppose that he meant to inculcate the humbleness of a little child as a prerequisite to entrance into the kingdom of heaven. It is certainly true that no one can enter otherwise.

PENTECOSTAL PUBLISHING CO.,
Louisville, Kentucky.

Hours With the Bible—Geikie. New Testament Series.—Four Volumes.

Here are four handy books covering the whole New Testament, beginning with the story of Christ and running to the end of Revelation, each carefully indexed, both as to subjects and also Scripture texts referred to, so that the student can turn to any theme or discussion of any passage of Scripture on the instant. We could not offer anything else so comprehensive, scholarly, useful, and at the same time so plainly and interestingly written. The contents of the four volumes are as follows:

Vol. 1.—Covering the story of the four gospels.

Vol. 2.—From the Ascension and Pentecost on through the story of the early church, the work and letters of the apostles, down to Paul's letters to the Thessalonians.

Vol. 3.—Begins with Antioch, the Galatian letter, and Paul's third missionary journey, and concludes with the closing scenes of Paul's life.

Vol. 4.—Takes up the work of the apostle Peter and his epistles; the letter to the Hebrews, the Revelation, and the epistles of John.

The first volume supplies new and interesting sidelights on the life of Christ, helping us to realize it more vividly than would be possible without this background of local coloring. "I have desired," says the author, "to surround the gospel incidents with all that can illustrate and fill them out, as to climate, landscape, people, and nature in all its manifestations." And in the last volume he writes, "The easy narrative of the historical surroundings of the Sacred Books, and the brief elucidations of the text, will save readers the painful labor of consulting disjointed commentaries. In these volumes they get the marrow of the best, condensed in few words, in an attractive and simple form pleasant to the ordinary reader, while even professional students will not find the same amount of reliable information in any single work. This is not boasting but literal truth."

The set sells regular at $10.00. Our price $2.00 postpaid.

PROHIBITION SITUATION.

I have just read the booklet entitled "A Survey of the Prohibition Situation," written by Dr. M. P. Hunt, pastor, Eighteenth St. Baptist Church, Louisville, Ky. It is a veritable storehouse of information on this important and timely subject, and should have a very wide reading. In this booklet, Dr. Hunt has brought together in a concise way valuable facts gathered from a broad field of information. It will be of great assistance to pastors and others who are called upon to make addresses on the subject of temperance. Best of all, it will create enthusiasm for the cause of prohibition in the hearts of hosts of people who shall read it. Dr. Hunt has done a real service in getting out this booklet and it deserves to be read throughout the nation.—T. J. Barksdale, Pastor Calvary Baptist Church, Louisville, Ky.

Can be had at Pentecostal Publishing Co., at 5c per copy, or 25 for $1.00.

"INSPIRATION OF THE BIBLE." By B. H. Carroll, D.D., LL.D. Compiled and edited by Dr. J. B. Cranfill, M.D., LL.D.

Dr. B. H. Carroll, the author, was for many years the outstanding man among Texas Baptists and a recognized leader among Southern Baptists. His last and perhaps his greatest work was the founding of Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary at Fort Worth, Tex. His last years were given to the Presidency and teaching in this institution.

He was a great man from any and every angle. As a sermonizer and preacher he was in his glory. As a teacher the Bible was his text book. As to his prodigious labors along this line his thirteen large volumes, "An Interpretation of the English Bible testify."

One time an unbeliever that gloried in his infidelity, how natural after a deep religious experience that he should give emphasis to the inspiration of the Scriptures. This volume of eight chapters is made up of his lectures to his students on the inspiration of the Bible.

Prepared for students he was at pains to make his message so plain that they could get it and thus it is within the reach of all who would buttress themselves or prepare themselves to buttress others in the assurance that the Bible is the veritable Word of God.

Dr. G. W. Truett who studied under Dr. Carroll, voices his "earnest hope that this volume will speedily find a place in the library of preachers, and other Bible students everywhere." M. P. Hunt.

PAUL'S SUPERLATIVE, and Other Sermons, by M. P. Hunt. Published by Pentecostal Publishing Co., 164 pages. Price $1.00.

Dr. M. P. Hunt has long been known as a fearless and courageous man of God, who, without being sensational, must easily be taken for some present-day John Baptist, going about shaking his finger in the face of the high and the low telling them that "It is not lawful." He has fought, often single-handedly, the baser elements of society. He has pointed his accusing finger at the bootlegger, the gambler, the hi-jacker, the corrupt politician, the pandarer, and all the rest, and uttered the categorical imperative, "Thou shalt not—." In this book of sermons Dr. Hunt makes Scripture expositions on various subjects. Of much value are his personal experiences which have been woven into the fabric of his material. His printed sermons have much of the same pungent, fighting spirit which characterized the author. Every blow is directed toward its mark, and the author does not depend upon the reader's imagination and guesswork to find the meaning between the lines. It is tersely set forth in plain, understandable English, declaring the truth of the Word of God and calling sinners to repentance. You will enjoy reading after a preacher who still believes the Book and pronounces its denunciations with uncompromising declamation. "Paul's Superlative" is the title of one sermon, and the book is named for that. Other chapters deal with God, Faith, Hell, Courtship, Love, Marriage, Dancing, Missions, and kindred subjects.—Western Recorder.

"Arnold's Practical Sunday School Lesson Commentary for 1931." Rev. Burton J. Vincent, A. B., Editor. Pentecostal Publishing Co. Price $1.00.

This is the thirty-first year of this practical Commentary's appearance. In the past we have frequently used it and always with profit and delight. We could have reviewed any one of several of these annual lesson publications but out of acquaintance with the most of them we deliberately chose "Arnold's."

After going into it we feel we have made no mistake. It is scholarly, pointed, suggestive, spiritual and keenly evangelical. Its lesson plan appeals to us. First there is the introductory, the commentary, questions, topics for discussion, illustration, one missionary minute, sidelight from science and practical application. How is that for a weekly menu? Nor is that all, there is a black-board talk, and special paragraphs for the Senior and Adult classes, the Intermediate class, the Junior class and the Primary class. Then too, the work is multum in parvo, much is crowded into small space and last but not least in these stressful times, it costs about half what most of the others do. M. P. Hunt.

OUR LORD ENDURES.

When raging storms and dashing waves
Break high upon thy soul;

When darkening night dispels the light,
And sorrows o'er thee roll,

Fear not, dear child of God, be true,
And keep thy faith secure,
For God is nigh, his love for thee
Forever doth endure.

No storm so wild, nor sorrow deep,
No anguish of the soul
Can come into thy daily life,
But his power can control,
No sin can make the soul so ill,
That his blood cannot cure;
And thou canst never go beyond
His love which doth endure.

Then weary child mid sorrows great,
Beset by pain and woe;
Who in life's furious conflict
Must meet with angry foe,
Go forth to valiant warfare
With faith steadfast and sure,
Assured that thou canst conquer
Through him who doth endure.

Then when life's toils are over,
And time shall pass away,
When God shall call his children
Into Eternal day.

There, free from sin and sorrow,
With soul serene and pure;
Thy praise shall be forever
To him who doth endure.

PERSONALS.

Rev. Richard W. Lewis is returning to evangelistic work after being associated for several years with the John Brown College as Dean of Bible, etc., and has associated with him a dear Methodist brother and his good wife, namely, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gale, pianists and singers. The Lewis-Gale Evangelistic Party will make much of spiritual music and in a way that is drawing to the services more people than the auditoriums will hold. Only a sane, spiritual, scriptural, soul-winning work will be done by these evangelists. They go to any field, however weak, and however poor financially. A new system of finances whereby no public pulling (or private, for that matter) is allowed to get money. The party may be addressed at Siloam Springs, Ark., or Miami, Okla., P. O. Box 936.

Rev. George Bennard reports a very successful meeting at the Oak St., Methodist Church at Binghamton, N. Y. The house was often crowded and the altars were more than filled many times. Pastor and people expressed their great joy over the fine results. God be praised.

Rev. L. E. Williams, Wilmore, Ky., has several open dates and will go anywhere.

Rev. William J. Murphy closed a two-weeks' Song Revival on March 8, at the Northeast Tacoma Friends Church, Tacoma, Washington. With his sweet toned tenor voice he interspersed his message with songs that attracted an increasing attendance. The old-time demonstration of the Spirit to draw men unto Christ and the power to change lives was prevalent. There was a remarkable leading of the Spirit in giving the messages to individual conditions. Deep conviction settled on the community so that men and women sought God day and night. There was a great ingathering of souls through the saving and sanctifying power of God and believers were given new determination to go forward.—Wendell Votaw, Pastor.

LOOKING FOR THE COMING OF OUR LORD.

My Dodge sedan pulled off of the pavement and stopped in front of a garage in a small desert town in California. The busy man of toil looked up from his work and read a neat sign in the window of my car, "Bibles for Sale." The tools fell from his hands, a broad grin spread over his face, and he walked toward my car. "Putting out the word of God, eh?" "Yes, sir!" "Got any Bibles cheap?" "Yes, sir, I feel sure I can fix you up with just what you want." "We aint got no Bible around this joint, nuthin' like a Bible round here." "Well, it is good to have a Bible." "I aint no good man, but I love to read the Bible. My father was a circuit rider in the Southern Methodist Church, just a poor circuit rider, but I was raised up to read the Book." Then I sold him a good Bible for one dollar and twenty-five cents, and the conversation continued. He said, "I think we are living in the last days. What do you think about it?" I replied, "I feel sure we are." Then I took the Bible I had sold him and opened it at the third chapter of 2nd Timothy and remarked, "Yes, here is the proof." Then he took the Bible, his hands trembling in trying to turn the leaves, they were clumsy and soiled with the grease and grime of garage work, and he said, "My hands are so rough with toil I can hardly turn the leaves." Then he turned to Naham, chapter two, verses three and four, and said, "These verses prove the Lord is coming soon." "Yes, sir, they certainly do," I replied. Then he said, "I aint got much time, and got to go back to work. Good luck to you and good bye," and he was gone. God bless him! I loved him as he walked back to that garage with the Bible in his hand, and breathed a prayer after him, and thought, "that man knows more about the signs of the times than every skeptical university professor and higher critic on earth; I believe I will meet that man in the skies when Jesus descends with a shout." O, Lord Jesus, let it be so.

M. M. Bussey.

THE ARKANSAS RIVER.

The Arkansas River is a proud, dangerous stream. One day I stood at the head of this great river, where I could step across it with little effort, but a few miles below I could not even jump it. The farther down you went the harder the crossing and the greater the fear.

I am thinking of the stream of life; how easy it is to cross in the beginning of life. There are millions who crossed it early in life when it required only a step. Others stumble down the stream to difficult crossing and never make an effort to cross. Some never try until they are forty or fifty years old. How wide is the stream! The other side is in the dim distance, and the barque is tossed through nights of repentance, but the will is paralyzed and refuses to come to the rescue. Only by the help of others do they ever cross, and only a few years of service are left for the Lord.

But what about those who crossed early, when it was only a step? A life and a soul are saved, while with the older ones, a life is lost, and the soul saved as by fire. "Except ye be converted and become as little children, ye cannot enter the kingdom of heaven." T. J. Adams.

"THE OLD RUGGED CROSS" stands out at this season of the year like a mighty mountain peak. What could be more appropriate to place in the hands of a friend than a copy of The Story of The Old Rugged Cross? It is by the author of this world famed gospel song and contains data on how it came to be written. Also, fifteen GREAT SERMONETTES on various phases of the CROSS by outstanding American gospel preachers. In two bindings, 75c and $1.00. The Pentecostal Publishing Company.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

After reading sophisticated novels, sex stories, and tales of pagan glory, one comes with a great deal of delight and satisfaction upon this splendid story of C. F. Wimberly, "The Mills of the Gods." As its title implies it is a story of justice and recompense and reveals in no uncertain manner how God, and not Chance, is ruling the Universe. The story moves with sure and certain stride, is gripping, worth reading and the book deserves a wide circulation in this day of lost faith and of false values.

Poet and Critic.

The Days of His Flesh:

The Earthly Life of Our Lord and Saviour
Jesus Christ

By Rev. David Smith

Fifteen large editions in a comparatively short period, together with words of highest appreciation from the leading Bible scholars, ministers, and editors throughout the English-speaking world proclaim this great work as the one outstanding Life of Christ for every man today. It offers a biography of the Master, elaborate in detail and extending through fifty masterful chapters and more than 500 pages, tracing every phase of our Saviour's earthly career. The author rests his case solidly upon the evangelical records. He adduces abundant evidence to show the historicity of Jesus and to confute those theories which would make Him a mere myth arising out of a haze of reverence and superstition. He is equally sound on the deity of Jesus and he shows conclusively that the acceptance of Christ as the Lord of Heaven must be regarded as the corner-stone of the Church.

He begins with the Wondrous Birth and then proceeds step by step, to the Resurrection, discussing with particular vividness "the silent years" and the part they played in the Messianic consciousness of Jesus. Even after he has completed the body of his remarkable work, the author does not lay down his pen until eight appendices have been written, each throwing light upon some important aspect of the record of Jesus' life and ministry. These appendices include such interesting subjects as, "Objections to the Miraculous Conception," "St. John's Method of Reckoning Time," "The Chronology of Passion Week," etc.

THE RESURRECTION OF CHRIST.

By The Editor.

HE resurrection of our Lord Jesus Christ was the glorious triumph of his coming, ministry and suffering in the world. It was a positive proof of his Godhead, and his power over sin, Satan and death.

* * * *

His disciples had had great difficulty in understanding him. They could not grasp the truth of his Deity. They did not understand what he had said to them about his approaching death and reappearance. They were often mystified and had doubts, but when he arose from the dead and revealed his identity by nail-pierced hands and wounded side, all their doubts were swept away. From that moment their faith was established and unmovable.

* * * *

It is safe to say that no one can be, in a true sense, a disciple of the Lord Jesus, and saved from sin through the merit of his death, who does not fully, unwaveringly believe in his resurrection. Unquestioning faith in the resurrection of our Lord Jesus is one of the fundamental truths of our Christian religion. Those who have found him as a personal Saviour are fully convinced that he arose from the dead.

* * * *

St. Paul puts the subject of the resurrection very forcibly when he says, "If Christ be not risen, then is our preaching vain, and your faith is also vain." Without a risen Christ, his life, teaching and promises fall to the ground, so far as salvation by faith in him is concerned. A dead Christ cannot save the souls of men from sin. No man can truly worship a Christ who was crucified, laid in the tomb, and moulded away to dust.

* * * *

One of the most blessed things about the Christian religion is the fact that its truth can be verified, proven beyond all doubt. It is not simply belief in biblical statements, or a theory of salvation; it is trust in the Lord Jesus Christ as a personal Saviour that brings to the believer an inward experience of gracious assurance that enables any, and all, who exercise this faith, to say in the language of the apostle, "I know whom I have believed, and am persuaded that he is able to keep that which I have committed unto him against that day."

The resurrection of the Lord Jesus Christ swept all doubt from the minds of the disciples. It established and fixed their faith beyond question or fear. When he ascended and the two beings appeared to them and assured them that, in like manner as he had ascended he would come again, their faith and love and hopes became confirmed and established. He had assured them that the separation was temporary. With these assurances they tarried in the upper room until the Holy Ghost came upon them and into them, with a wonderful cleansing, witnessing and empowering. They were now equipped for the greatest task ever assigned to men. They went out entirely given up to the one thing of letting the whole world know of the Christ who had come, taught, forgiven sins, raised the dead, been crucified for the redemption of men, had arisen triumphant over death, had ascended into heaven, and would come again in great power and glory.

This gospel ministry of these plain, rugged men bold with an inward consciousness of a divine presence and the truth of their message has been going forward through the centuries; along with it, has gone the demonstration of the Spirit witnessing to all who, by repentance and faith, have accepted the Lord Jesus as their personal Redeemer from sin. Through the ages multitudes have found him all that the gospel claimed him to be; they have gone through trials, suffering, sorrow, persecution, multitudes of them to death for their faith, and gone up to worship at his feet. The thought of his coming, of his glorious appearing, fills the hearts of untold thousands of faithful disciples today. We work, and watch while we wait. In these perilous times let us be careful to keep the witness of the Spirit; to keep our garments unspotted from the world; to keep our hearts filled with holy love; to keep busy in seeking to save the lost. Christ will appear in his glory. His resurrection fully convinced those who believed in him and loved him, of his Godhead. His appearing will convince and confound his enemies. What a tremendous event that will be when the opening heavens reveal the Son of God with the holy angels descending with shouts. God grant that the readers of these paragraphs may be so cleansed from sin, and so robed in righteousness, that one and all may be able to meet him in peace, with glad hallelujahs of praise.

Florida Holiness Camp Meeting.

HE Florida Holiness camp meeting was held in the great tabernacle, recently purchased for that purpose, in the outskirts of the beautiful city of Lakeland. The attendance was large, and I have never known a meeting to run more smoothly, with good order and holy fellowship. There were many visiting ministers of the gospel and representatives from at least twelve or fifteen states.

It was my privilege to meet people to whom I had preached in other years in a number of camp meetings and revivals in Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Pennsylvania, New York, and many parts of the south. The Carolinas, Georgia, Alabama, Texas, and other southern states were represented. The region in which the camp is located is very favorable for the attendance of Florida tourists. Lakeland is a beautiful city. The camp is some thirty miles from Tampa and is surrounded by fifteen towns, county seats, villages, with excellent roads, easy of access.

This part of Florida is beautiful indeed. The vast groves of grapefruit, oranges and lemons spread out in thousands of acres; the trees were laden with ripe fruit, and we were actually pained to see much fruit rotting on the ground while many are suffering for lack of it. It does look like some sort of arrangement should be made in this nation to prevent this waste, especially at this time when so many are hungry this nourishing fruit would be invaluable to them.

Rev. C. H. Babcock, of Los Angeles, Calif., and Rev. Warner P. Davis, pastor of the Methodist Church, Wilmore, Ky., and this writer, were the preachers for the camp meeting. Our readers are well acquainted with Brother Babcock. He is one of the greatest camp meeting preachers on the continent. He is full of holy love and zeal, and a powerful man before a great audience. His ministry was wonderfully fruitful, large altar services resulting from almost every message he delivered.

Warner Davis, a graduate of Asbury College, and known to all the students who were with him at Asbury as a man of prayer and beautiful, consistent life, is a remarkable preacher. He has served several charges in the Kentucky Conference since his graduation, with great success. He has been a soul winner; everywhere he has gone churches have prospered under his ministry. He preached at the afternoon services and his ministry was blessed and fruitful in the salvation of souls. He is a camp meeting preacher, holds the crowd and wins souls for Christ. The brethren favored me with the morning services. I only attended one service a day and got along fairly well.

The song services were conducted by Rev. Charles Grant, pastor at Whitesburg, Ky. He, too, is an Asbury graduate and a young man of great promise and power. As a song leader in such campaigns he is most excellent; no time wasted, right to the work, does it fine and in a beautiful spirit, wins the confidence and love of the people, and is an excellent altar worker when not busy leading the singing. His wife, an Asburian, presided at the piano most acceptably. Mrs. Lilly, who is very efficient in the Indian Spring choir, was present with her horn, and a number of other excellent musicians who greatly assisted in the music. Brother and Sister Hoffman, of Miami, were in attendance and Mrs. Hoffman favored us with a number of fine solos, sometimes singing her own compositions to the delight of the people. Rev. J. E. Redmon and wife were present, and he preached one afternoon. They stirred the people with their songs, and their shining faces and jubilant spirits were an inspiration.

THE BIBLE IN A GREAT CITY.

Rev. G. W. Ridout D.D., Corresponding Editor.

We happened to be in London during the Annual Bible Day at Crystal Palace. It was a great affair and demonstrated to what a degree the old Bible still holds as the Book of the multitude.

Bible Day was organized by the Bible Testimony Fellowship of London. The following is the basis of membership:

1. The acceptance of the Holy Scriptures as the fully inspired and wholly trustworthy Revelation of God to men, and the Final Authority in all matters of Faith and Practice.
2. The maintenance of the right and duty of private judgment in the interpretation of the Scriptures.
3. The Unity of the Godhead and the Trinity of Persons therein.
4. The essential Deity of the Lord Jesus Christ; His Incarnation through a Virgin Birth, and his True but absolutely Sinless Humanity; his Infallibility as Teacher, Whose every word is authoritative; his Death upon the Cross as a Propitiatory and Substitutionary Sacrifice for Sin; his Bodily Resurrection, Ascension, and Intercession as the High Priest of his People; his future Personal and Glorious Second Advent.
5. The Fall of Man, the need of the New Birth by the Holy Spirit and Justification by Faith alone.
6. The Resurrection of the Body, the Judgment of the World by the Lord Jesus Christ; the Eternal Blessedness of the Righteous, and the Eternal punishment of the Wicked.

The above summary is not intended to be regarded as a complete statement, nor as an authoritative definition of the limits of Christian fellowship, but simply as an indication of the class of persons whom the Fellowship welcomes as members.

I presume ten thousand people were gathered at Crystal Palace during the day—all in the interest of the Word of God. I am wondering why we do not have an annual event of this kind in America! People and preachers of all denominations come to this great gathering. One of the songs sung at the meeting where Rev. John McNeil preached was as follows:

"We stand for the Bible, for God's Holy Word, Inspir'd and authentic, the Spirit's own sword.
We'll herald its triumphs at home and abroad,
The Bible, 'the Word of our God'!"

CHORUS.

"Then we'll stand for the Bible so true,
'God's Word from beginning all thro'.
From its pages we trace
All the Gospel of Grace,
Free salvation for Gentile and Jew."

"All pure its commandments, 'enlightening the eyes';
God's Word when it enters the heart 'maketh wise';
Its judgments are true, more than gold do we prize
The Bible, 'the Word of our God'!"

"'Tis 'quick' and 'tis 'powerful,' a sharp two-edged sword;
By wicked men hated, by good ones adored.
And we read all the story of Jesus our Lord,
In the Bible, 'the Word of our God'!"

"Then we'll trust in the Bible—'gainst laughter or lure;

THE SUFFICING BIBLE.

When I am tired, the Bible is my bed;
Or in the dark the Bible is my light;
When I am hungry, it is vital bread;
Or fearful, it is armour for the fight.
When I am sick, 'tis healing medicine;
Or lonely, thronging friends I find therein.

If I would work, the Bible is my tool;
Or play, it is a harp of happy sound.
If I am ignorant, it is my school;
If I am sinking, it is solid ground,
If I am cold, the Bible is my fire;
And it is wings, if boldly I aspire.

Should I be lost, the Bible is my guide;
Or naked, it is raiment rich and warm.
Am I imprisoned, it is ranges wide;
Or tempest-tossed, a shelter from the storm.
Would I adventure, 'tis a gallant sea;
Or would I rest, it is a flowery lea.

Does gloom oppress? The Bible is the sun.
Or ugliness? It is a garden fair.
Am I athirst? How cool its currents run!
Or stifled? What a vivifying air!
Since thus thou givest of thyself to me,
How should I give myself, great Book, to thee?
—(Amos R. Wells.)

Men's teachings will perish—this Book will 'endure'

'For ever and ever'—the promise is sure!
The Bible—"the Word of our God!"

It was quite a privilege to hear the famous Rev. John McNeil as he preached on the Twenty-third Psalm. He said: "It was a harp with six strings to it. It is the philosophy of a life set to music. Life is full of wants, but in this blessing we shall not want. Science and philosophy cannot tell us what comes after this life but we who have the Bible know what there is after life: 'I will dwell in the courts of the Lord forever.'"

As we witnessed this wonderful demonstration of faith in the Bible by the Christian people of London we thanked God afresh for the grand old Bible. A most remarkable address has been published which was delivered by Lord Brentford at a recent anniversary. I will quote a little from this great speech.

First, let me say that the Bible Testimony Fellowship is to be heartily congratulated in organizing a successful demonstration in the Albert Hall for seven years in succession. On December 3, 1929, when Lord Brentford's speech was delivered, nearly ten thousand people gathered from all parts of London and the suburbs to affirm their belief in, and love for, the Bible as the inspired Word of God.

Lord Brentford said:—In the old days we used to think about the Word of God more than we do now. There was one thing in the life of our parents and grandparents that we might well teach our children and grandchildren,—familiarity with the Bible; to learn the Bible, not merely to read it, but to know parts of it by heart, until it shall become part of their life, thought, and speech.

This Book has exercised more influence upon the literature of England and the language of England than any other book. I remember reading in my younger days the "Life of John Bright,"—I suppose the greatest orator we have ever had in this land,—and John Bright said that he founded all his knowledge of oratory, and all his choice of language, on two books,—the Bible and Milton. And Milton is founded on the Bible, too! If you want to speak, if you want to get at the hearts of men and women, make your language as plain, as simple, and as direct as the Bible does. You cannot go wrong if you keep to the Bible. For three centuries, up to the middle of the last century, the Bible was the Book of England, the literature, the poem, almost the newspaper,—the one Book which was read in the understanding of the people. It enriched our language, enriched the outlook of our people; and yet our Bible, the Authorized Version, is only about three hundred years old. It is a marvel how that Version came,—how just over three hundred years ago forty-seven men divided themselves into committees and met at Oxford, at Cambridge, and at Westminster, to translate the Word of God from the Greek and Hebrew into the common tongue of the people of Great Britain. It was a great undertaking, and it was a great period of time in which that undertaking took place. The world was bursting with new ideas in philosophy, science and literature, and the New World had just been discovered.

A hundred years ago, both in England and France, Huxley and Voltaire cried, "Down with the Bible! Within a hundred years it will no longer be alive!" But He that sitteth in the heavens laughed them to scorn. His Book remains. Their scorn had no more effect than the cackling of fools. They are dead and gone, but the Bible lives. It lives for you and for me. It lives that we may believe in it, that we may live it out in our lives; not merely to read it, but to preach it, and to take it to the uttermost parts of the earth. "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature." It is not for us to argue on the question of missionary effort. Those are our marching orders; that is our Lord's command. The Christian religion is in no danger from its opponents, its only danger lies in the slackness and indifference of those who profess and call themselves Christians. Stand up for the Bible! We believe it to be the Word of God; we argue not, we discuss not; we say, "These are our Lord's commands, and, God helping us, we will carry them out."

Recently I was in Westminster Abbey and saw the new window known as the John Bunyan Window. It is a most remarkable thing that in such a high church they should do honor to such a nonconformist as Bunyan, the Baptist; but then on the other hand it is just as it ought to be. Bunyan belongs to all England and his pure English has become a model for the schools. Bunyan had this to say about the Bible: "The Bible was precious to me in those days, and now methought I began to look into the Bible with new eyes and read as I never read before, and indeed then I was never out of the Bible."

I am writing this, not far from that section of London where Carlyle lived and where he wrote those wonderful books which have had a powerful effect on both England and America. Carlyle was a great believer in the Bible. During the early discussions of Evolution brought on by Darwin in England over fifty years ago, Carlyle wrote the following:

"'Tis a sad, a terrible thing, to see nigh a whole generation of men and women, professing to be cultivated, looking round in a purblind fashion, and finding no God in this universe. I suppose it is a reaction from the reign of cant and hollow pretence—men professing to believe what in fact they do not believe. And this is what we have got to—all things from frogs' spawn; the gospel of dirt is the order of the day. The older I grow—and now I stand upon the brink of eternity—the more comes back to me the sentence in the Catechism which I learned when a child, and the fuller and deeper its meaning becomes, 'What is the chief end of man?' 'To glorify God, and enjoy him for ever.' No gospel of dirt, teaching that men have descended from frogs through monkeys, can ever set that aside."

Unless the Holy Spirit is at the steering wheel, the preacher had better not start on the trip.

Many Thanks.

Many thanks to members of THE HERALD family who have been sending in their dollar, with the name and address of a minister to whom they wish THE HERALD sent for a year. We know that this kind of missionary work for the spread of holiness and a revival spirit has been wonderfully blessed. We wish that at least five hundred more of the great HERALD family would think of some minister to whom they would like for THE HERALD to go for the next twelve months, and get his name and address, with the dollar, to us as soon as possible. It is alright to wish for the spread of holiness, and to pray for it, but we must put in our work with our prayers. Faithfully your brother for the spread of scriptural holiness over these lands.

H. C. MORRISON.

It isn't a reign of righteousness that frightens your people from coming to services, is it?

THE UNDYING BELIEVER.

W. M. Young, Ph.D., D.D.

"I am the resurrection, and the life; he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet he live; And whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die, Believest thou this?" John 11:25, 26.

ETERNAL life, with all that it implies, is for us the theme of greatest interest in the program of our own and other worlds. It implies the death of Christ and his glorious resurrection, "who hath abolished death, and brought life and immortality to light through the gospel." 2 Tim. 1:10. We believe in the resurrection and life eternal, and if we did not, the light would go out in our heavens, and crepe would be forever hung on the front door of our souls. We would cry out to Death, like Edgar Allen Poe, in his fanciful Raven:—

"Take thy beak from out my heart, take thy form from off my door!

Get thee back into the tempest and the Night's Plutonian shore!"

Desolate by terror haunted, on this desert land enchanted,

In this home of horror haunted, writhing hearts would still implore,

Is there—is there balm in Gilead? is there life forevermore?

And the voice of Death and darkness, like a fiend of ghastly starkness, Preying still upon our vitals, would repeat her—Nevermore!"

"Let us eat, drink, and be merry, for tomorrow we die!" Such was the creed of a people without hope of eternal life. Without this hope, life loses its sacredness, murders and suicides increase, and the graveyards grow fat. Without this hope mothers would weep in vain for lovely shadows that have passed. Husbands would lay away lovely forms, feeling that their life-star had fled. Without this hope Martha could not say of her brother: "I know that he shall rise again in the resurrection at the last day." John 11:24. Without this hope the price of real estate would go down, and all human values would become less. Earth and heaven would never again echo the glad strains of Easter music.

"THE RESURRECTION, AND THE LIFE."

Jesus did not simply say that he would be resurrected and have life; he claimed to be the author of the resurrection and the source of life. You believe in the resurrection and eternal life. But why do you believe? You say, "Springtime is a symbol of it. Trees, and bulbs, and seeds, lie dormant all winter, and spring into newness of life." But in their case there is no cessation of life, no interregnum, life was simply dormant; the body was not disintegrated; it was sleeping. You refer to the seventeen-year locust; you say that it burrowed ten feet deep into the ground, and came out alive at the end of seventeen years. But that is no proof; for there was no cessation of life. Jesus Christ is the proof. He brought life and immortality to light through the gospel. Christ rose from the dead; that settles it. De Wette, the great German theologian, who has been called the "Universal Doubter," said in his last work, "the fact of the resurrection, although a darkness which cannot be dissipated rests on the way and manner of it, cannot itself be called into doubt."

WITNESSES OF THE RESURRECTION.

The historical certainty of the resurrection of Christ is no more to be doubted than the historical certainty of the assassination of Cæsar. Almost all the facts that we know, we receive on the testimony of competent witnesses; this is especially true of historical facts. People saw him after his resurrection and felt him and ate with him.

He was seen of Mary. He was seen by Simon Peter. He was seen by the twelve. He was seen by five hundred brethren at once. He was seen by the Apostle Paul, as one born out of due time. His followers went out and preached Jesus and the resurrection within sixty days of the crucifixion. Every sermon recorded testifies of the resurrection except that of Stephen, and the Jews stoned him before he had finished. Why did not his enemies produce his body and kill the Christian Church at its inception?

THE RESURRECTION COMMENSURATE WITH THE GOSPEL.

Certain things must stand or fall together. The doctrine of the resurrection is commensurate with the gospel. I have been told that at Chillicothe, Ohio, is a tree with branches forty feet long and three feet in circumference, and a trunk seven feet in diameter, and the roots are commensurate with the size of the trunk and the branches. I stood under a great old tree at Annapolis, Maryland, under which it is said that George Washington and his officers stood and planned for the independence of this nation. Seven or eight men who were with me tried to touch hands around the trunk of that tree. Its roots were commensurate with its wide branches. Jesus Christ planted his grain of mustard seed nineteen hundred years ago, and it has grown till its branches have filled the earth and the heavens, and the birds of the air shelter themselves under its umbrage. Five hundred and sixty-seven millions of people have placed themselves under its protection. Can you imagine such a tree, with such fruitage as it has borne without being rooted in the eternity of God? "And if Christ be not risen, then our preaching is vain, and your faith is also vain." The resurrection of Christ is a fitting climax of all that he began to do and to teach.

THE NIAGARA HAS ADEQUATE SOURCE.

Go listen to the thunder of the mighty Niagara! You see those great turbines and ponderous dynamos producing hundreds of thousands of horsepower in electricity, and you say that such a river must have adequate sources. There must be a great continent in the background. Small islands do not produce great rivers. Back of the Niagara are the Great Lakes. Back of the resurrection of Christ is the River of the Water of Life and its source is in the throne of God and the continent of his love. The fruit of the tree witnesses to the roots of the tree, and the power of the Niagara tells of its mighty sources.

"HE THAT BELIEVETH ON ME."

Eternal life is a quality of life as well as a continued existence. Jesus says, "This is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent." It is through faith in Christ that we come to know God. It is by the new birth that we come into this great inheritance. By the natural birth the eyes are opened, the ears unstopped; touch, taste, and smell become active. Jesus transfers the figure to the spiritual realm, and says, "Ye must be born again." By faith in Christ man comes through this great change and is ushered into this larger, higher environment. The believer may say in the truest sense: "In God we live, and move, and have our being." This new kind of life is so high that death cannot touch it.

Surely this is the summum bonum of human existence! Surely eternal life with all that it implies in the sacrificial death and glorious resurrection and the eternal reign of our Lord, with the power in him to be born again and become partakers of the divine nature and temples of the Holy Ghost—surely, this is the greatest good we know!

Not a Reaction, But a Rebellion.

JOSEPH H. SMITH.

THE pride of puffed up reason may be but pampered if in our desire to be conciliatory we allow that the present reaction from the faith of the fathers is but psychological and will ultimately readjust itself. It is a revolution rather than a reaction. It is a rebellion rather than a rightful assertion of reason's freedom. It's animus in anti-christ, it's motions are sensual and devilish; and its outcome worldly, licentious and hateful.

In proof hereof, note its usurpation of the prerogative of the Holy Spirit; its despite of the inspired Scripture; its desecration of God's Sabbath; its disordering of the institution of the home, its discredit of marriage bond, and its manifold decrees of divorce; its deification of impersonal energy and of man's brains; and its denial of accountability and disregard of law.

God's word has taken account of all these as moral wrongs; and we concede too much if we agree they are but mental aberration rather than wicked degeneration. What would camouflage as Modernism has the semblance of ancient Cain, Achan, Kora, Judas, and "the man of sin," setting in the temple of God, showing himself that he is God. Their only real value to the church is as a direct and manifest fulfillment of prophecy in our times and as a predicted precursor of the early coming of our Lord.

It may be noted that none of Israel's generations ever reached or ever recovered to as high a place as they had held before. And we are not sure that any backslidden church, or church school has ever been wholly recovered or revived—though goodly independencies in some such have maintained the true faith. And we think it is vain to hope for a world-wide, or a church wide restoration of the faith once delivered unto the saints. Jerusalem, instead has to hear Christ's "Woes" and its own doom near the end of its history. And what is called "Progress" now by some seems but apostasy hurrying to answer the question of our Lord as to whether "when the Son of Man cometh shall he find faith in the earth." But as there was a Noah's household saved and safe at the time of the flood, and a Lot delivered from fire-doomed Sodom; and seven thousand that had not bowed the knee to Baal in the time of Elijah, so in these times there are some, everywhere, in all churches who are sealed by the Holy Spirit. And by this mark, rather than by the university degree, or church office, the angels will identify them when they come to gather from the four winds those who have kept the faith.

"Evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving and being deceived." And while individuals from among them may be granted repentance, through our ministering "in meekness instructing those that oppose the truth;" the rank and file of them will doubtless go their own way. The Truth will not be destroyed but those who having had pleasure in unrighteousness refused to let the love of the Truth into their hearts, will be first deceived, then defiled and at length destroyed. John says that they (the Unitarians, the Evolutionists and the Antinomians all of which he indicated in his first and second epistle) "went out from us," but he never holds out any hope of their return. Already in his day, Antichrists were in the world; and he seems to assert or assume that they will augment if not, indeed, eventuate in a great (personal) antichrist

SUNRISE AT MIDNIGHT.

Dr. W. B. Hinson.

"What I do thou knowest not now, but thou shalt understand hereafter." John 13:7.

JESUS was nearing the end. His mind was full of his approaching death. He was washing his disciples' feet, and when he came to Peter and stood before him with the basin of water and the towel that he had twisted about himself, Peter pulled in his feet and said, "Lord, dost Thou wash my feet?", and Jesus said, "What I do thou knowest not now, but thou shalt understand hereafter."

There are two things in that text that I shall notice: The first is the asserted ignorance of the present, "What I do thou knowest not now," and the second is the assured revelation of the future, "Thou shalt understand hereafter."

The ignorance of the present! How mysterious surrounds this life we are living. The whole horizon is banked with fog; and on it there are question marks as innumerable as flakes of snow in a storm. And each one of us appears to be like a separate island surrounded by a sea of mystery. And if we cry out, we get nothing back but the echo of the cry. And if we push our little boat out on this sea, we sail fearfully and uncertainly and wonderingly. For as I have intimated, we seem to be living in a silent land. We ask the meaning of this and of that, and we listen and there comes no reply. And there are some among us who have been asking the same question over and over with every sunrise and every noontide and every twilight for twenty years. And when we ask that question there is no more indication of an answer coming to us than when we asked the question first. There comes to me some lines I wrote down many a year ago—

Waking one morning in a pleasant land,

By a river flowing over a golden sand,

'Whence come ye waters, o'er your golden sand?'

'We come flowing from a silent land.'

'And whither go ye waters o'er your golden sand?'

'We go flowing to a silent land.'

'And what is that fair world?' 'A grain of golden sand,

In the great darkness of the silent land.'

The land of the great silence is the land in which we live and move and work. And in this land no one of us understands the life that each one of us is living.

"Life I know not what thou art,

But know that thou and I must part;

And where, or when, or how we met,

I own to me's a secret yet."

This is what we say when we are thoughtful of that life we are living, and with which one would imagine we ought to be well acquainted. But we are not acquainted with it, for the larger the diameter of the light of knowledge that we possess, the wider is the encompassing circumference of the darkness that conceals things from us. And if life is a pilgrimage, then we are treading a winding road. And what is around the next corner no man knoweth. And we approach those corners very diffidently, and we hold our breath as we turn around them, because we do not know whether there will be a landscape of unspeakable glory, or a fire belching volcano; whether when we get around that corner we shall see the little crib, or whether we shall see the narrow coffin. And if life is a voyage, then we sail under sealed orders, and no one knows the course we have to take; but just hour by hour we open those sealed orders and find out what we must do at the present moment and under the existing circumstances.

And you know there are people who have pondered the mystery of this life until they have gone to drink, narcotics and suicide; and stronger, wiser men have studied this mystery until they have evolved philosophies of fatalism suggesting that we are like driftwood on the wave, and that we have no choice; philosophies of agnosticism, that we can know nothing at all; philosophies of atheism, that there is nothing in the world that is real or that can be known. And did you ever ponder the significant fact that the largest of all the false religions of the world has been so impressed with the mystery that environs human life, that its highest utmost longing is for Nirvana, to go out of existence and know nothing at all, be lost as is a dew-drop sliding into the sea. "What I do thou knowest not now."

In my earlier ministry I perpetrated many a blunder because I thought I knew some things that I never have known; and I used to be versatile in explaining things to people, for you see I had never read and understood the book of Job. When his friends went to see him in his overwhelming trouble they sat there silent day after day like wise men. But when they opened their mouths and began to explain things, then they became fools. Oh but I have said to many of you people, "I do not know, and I cannot tell." Why the life was cut off in the bubbling waters the other day, I do not know. Why deprivations starve the mind and the heart and the soul, I cannot tell. And in the presence of a hundred questions I am silent and for them have no reply. "What I do thou knowest not now."

Ah, does not that sound good? The coming years will bring revelation that explains very much. I remember Saul-like I kicked against the pricks when I was trying to acquire an education and was in such grinding poverty that I was cold and hungry three-fourths of the time. And I wanted to know why other men had got money and why I lacked it, why they were warmly clad and I shivered, why they were well fed and I was hungry. But I understand that now. We cannot go to school today unless we have a guarantee of money and a trunk full of clothes. No! I sometimes wish we had to do the things as some of us did it in the bygone days. We might not be quite so sporty, but we would be a hundred times more sensible! We might not have little badges and medals that told of our prowess on the campus, but we would not be quite so empty headed! The coming years reveal the meaning of a great deal.

I planted some pansy seed and I talked to those seeds—as I always do. And I said, "This looks bad, does it not; throwing you down in the earth, and then covering you over as if I had no care for you at all. And pretty soon Seed the pelting rain will come upon you and you will think it is Noah's flood. And then the cold nights will come and you will think you are having a lot of trouble. But do not worry and do not lose heart, for next March you will come up in the sunlight, and next April you will bud and blossom, and then people will look at your varied beautiful color and praise God, and they will inhale your perfume and feel thankful, and your little face-like blossoms will remind them of their children who went to heaven in the by-gone days. You will know hereafter."

And then I buried another kind of seed—for I buried a body. And I put the body down under the ground and I said, "Do not be frightened. It looks strange—it does not look right—I grant it. But there is a day coming when a great noise will go rumbling over all the earth, and every sleeping Christian will hear that noise and recognize it, and come out in incorruptibility, in immortality, in power, in glory. Thou shalt know hereafter."

But this is the only way we can know very many things, even by the passing of time and the progress of the years. I do not know what put a strange fancy in my head yesterday, but I caught myself thinking about my mother's wedding ring. It is down under four feet of earth in an English graveyard. I think it occupies a very honorable position. For it is still on the finger of my mother. It is down there the pledge of a vow kept, in spite of circumstances strenuous and difficult. But how did that gold get there? Well there was the shock of the blast, and out it went into the sunlight. And then it was pulverized in the mill and separated from the quartz, and then burned in the fire, and hammered into shape; and thus it came into its honorable position on my mother's finger; but it did not know of this glory at the time. "Thou shalt know hereafter."

"We'll know why clouds instead of sun

Hung over many a cherished plan;

Why song has ceased ere scare begun,"

Not now, but then we'll understand."

Sometimes after I have climbed a hill and looked back on the road traveled I have seen the reason for all the turning and twisting of that road. It turned this way to avoid a pitfall, and then it turned a little farther on to reveal a beautiful landscape. I did not know why the thing was so crooked as I progressed upon it; but when I reached the hilltop and looked back, I could see the meaning of all that devious traveling I had to do. I guess Abel now knows why Cain was permitted to slay him! And then I thought of Joseph who had the flashy coat that excited the envy and hostility of his brethren so that they wanted to kill him. But one brother persuaded them to put him in a pit where he might die of starvation, but from thence, he was sold into slavery and through Potiphar's house passed into jail. And that must have looked very strange to Joseph because he was a good man. But we know the pit, the slavery, Potiphar's house, and the jail, were all necessary to his becoming the third ruler of the kingdom and sitting on a golden throne. And when Joseph got upon the throne he would understand the meaning of that which had been so mysterious before.

Are you getting any comfort out of this, my people? I am. For I have been God's oak, I have not been his orchid, and I have felt the swish of the hail, been drenched with the rain, stung by the frost, burned by the heat, and sometimes I have said, "God do you know what you are about?" But I have come to see that you cannot have an oak without exposure in the open. For you never saw an oak tree grown under glass. And who would not prefer to be an oak to being an orchid? I recall how in my old church I was asked to go and see a sick woman. And when I entered the room on that Sunday afternoon, she suddenly had a spasm of pain. And never but once in my life have I seen a human countenance so contorted with agony. And I stood there silent like a fool, for I could not think of a word to say. And that woman was twisting in the convulsions of pain. But when after a while it subsided a little and I found my tongue, I said, "My sister, I do not know why you suffer so; and you do not know; and nobody knows. But God knows; and some day God will explain it to you, and then you also will know and be quite content." And I walked out. And when I came to myself on the street, I said, "You are a pretty preacher, are you not? You went there to see a woman who is going to die. You read her no Scripture, prayed no prayer, and here you are going home. The best thing you can do is to go farming and quit preaching." But three days after when that same member came to me and said, "Would you bury the woman you visited last Sunday?" I answered, "Yes." And she said, "I want to tell you something before you go down to the undertaking room. After you left, that woman looked up and said, 'Thank God for that man, for he told me I did not know, and I have been trying to find out the reason; and he told me God knows, and God will some day tell me why I had that cancer and why I am dying in this awful pain.' And she said, 'I can trust God now, and I can die in peace, for I am going to heaven.'" "What I do thou knowest not now, but thou shalt know hereafter."

Oh I do not know, and I never will say I do when I do not. And I do not understand, and I cannot see why God has let some things happen to me, and I do not know that there was any reason why they should happen. They did not happen to me because I was worse than other people, for I was not; and I would so say if I saw the judgment throne in front of me. And I did not bring them down upon myself, but they came, and I do not know why. I know the meaning of a good many things that have happened to me, but I do not know the meaning of all the things that have happened. And I have got where I do not want to know. For if I had known in January what would come into my life during this year I should have died of shock. But I did not know. I am glad I did not, and I do not know what will come into my life next week, and if God said, "There is the scroll of your life, do you want to read it?", I would say, "God I would rather go blind than read it. I do not want to see it." But I am glad Jesus Christ knows. I should be a very sad man this morning if I thought Christ was as ignorant of my future as am I. For he knows where in the darkness I shall go up against the big boulder, and just before I get up to it he will say, "Better turn to the right," and so I shall miss it. And he knows where the venomous snake is in my pathway, and just before I put my foot upon it and might receive the poisonous fang, he will say, "Stop a minute," and the snake will get out of my way! Nothing is going to surprise him. He knows, and he is going to tell me some day.

But I am not so glad of that as I used to be. For I used to get a tremendous lot of comfort out of God saying, You sit on that chair and I will tell you why you were disappointed, lonely, and so miserable. Yes, I used to get so much comfort out of that. But now I do not want to sit down on any chair and have God explain himself to me, for I am willing for him to do as he likes with me, and give no explanation at all. And therefore I am the more sure he will give me the explanation. Oh I am not going up to God to say, "Now you explain yourself," but I am going up to God to say, "Any revelation you have to make to me will be very acceptable, because it is a revelation from God to man, and from my Father to me; but you need not say a single word unless you want to." I have got there now. I like however to think that those who have gone ahead of me know such a lot they did not know before: though I do not think God takes them one by one and explains things to them, but I think they walk into a larger light and in that larger light they see the meaning of their tears, and the reason for their pain. "Thou shalt know hereafter."

"Not now but in the coming years,

It may be in the better land,

We'll read the meaning of our tears

Sometime, up there, we'll understand."

Shall I now tell you what I know? I know the attributes of God. I know God is infinite in power, and I know if God liked he could make as many mountains like Mount Hood before I finish this sentence as there are stars in the sky; and I know if God saw fit he could dry up the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans before I draw another breath. He has infinite power. And I know he has infinite wisdom. I know he can never make a mistake, I know he never did, and never will. And so my life is being shaped by infinite power and infinite wisdom. I know that.

But I know a better thing yet. For I know God's character. I should be afraid of a God who had nothing but infinite power and infinite wisdom, but I know the character of God and I know he is love. And the God who is love, and who possesses infinite power and infinite wisdom, is taking care of me. If he sees fit to lead me down into the dark places, that is the very best thing that can happen to me. If he sees fit to have me make my bed in graveyards of lost hopes and lost illusions, that is the best thing he can do for me.

But I know the best thing of all, for I know God in Jesus Christ; and I can trust Jesus Christ with my soul; and I can look up off the operating table at Christ and say, "I have not a doubt, or a fear, or a tremor, for I know it is all right because I know you. Ah yes, I do know him, for I know Christ, and I know God in Christ; and I know no evil can ever come to me from Christ who is God and the God who is Christ, on ocean or on shore. "Thou shalt know hereafter."

So I come to you with this message that is seething hot out of my heart in order that you may learn to trust. Do not speculate too much. There has nothing good come of it so far as my experience goes. Do not try to understand before God gives the explanation. It is a waste of time and labor. Just learn to trust. That is why religion is so difficult to some people. For it is not natural to us. I remember when my children were small and I was away from home, I used to think that if I could only get home, they could be saved by me if the house got on fire, or if a burglar entered, or if a deadly disease struck them. And it took me a long time before I could trust in God. Oh, this great fog bank of mystery surrounds us. And God help us if we are depending on the answers we get from the world to our poor questions. But you know if, as we sail over this mysterious sea with all this impinging darkness, we had just learned to say—

"One who has known in storms to sail,

I have on board,

I hear the Lord!"—

we should not care a bit about the mist; we should not care about the depth of the sea, or about the fury of the hurricane. Yes, I do not know what is around that next turn in this winding trail of life; but I know this, whatever there is around that corner, I shall have my hand in another hand when I go and face it. And if I feel a little bit disturbed, I shall move my finger around in the palm of that hand till I find the scar, and then I shall know that Jesus Christ, who on the cross was wounded for my sins, is not going to leave me, no matter what corner I go around on the winding road of life.

Now this is not philosophy. For the philosophies of the world would laugh at it. And this is not poetry. But this is prose done up in a drab color. Yet this is faith, trust, belief. It is saying the Breton prayer with a little addition—

"God, have pity on me,

Thy sea is so big,

And my boat is so small."

What is the addition to this? Ah, this—"But I have got Christ on board this little boat, and I shall not drown till he does; and so whatever wreckage comes to me will come to him."

"Safe to the land, safe to the land,

The end is this,

And then with Him go hand in hand

Far into bliss."

"THE RISEN KING."

DR. A. HAMILTON.

As pall like the midnight gloom had settled over a world of sin. The trembling earth had vied with the heavens in its demonstration of grief over the death of the Christ. Like a sorrowing heart bursting with grief great rocks had split asunder. A mantle of midnight darkness had enveloped the cross while God's beautiful sun hid its shining face behind a friendly cloud that it might not see the terrible tragedy of old Calvary. Unseen hands had rent the veil of the temple from "top to bottom" while Jesus soaked the old cross with his blood. He had bathed the world in his tears of pity over a lost humanity. A mother, heart breaking from grief, had staggered away from the cross on which her darling boy's dear body was hanging, limp, bloody, ghastly, after the demons of hell had finished their murderous work. The devils in hell were shouting in hellish glee—the holy angels in heaven were weeping bitter tears.—"JESUS WAS DEAD."

But oh say, eternity bound soul, look to a rock-bound tomb which was guarded by mighty soldiers. . . . The dead body of the Savior of men is sleeping there. Listen, you soul whose mind is filled with the clouds of doubt. . . . Hear the rustling of angel's wings. Look, and see the great stone which had been placed against the door of that tomb being pushed aside by angel hands. And then, thank the great Spirit of creation, see the hand of God reach down into that tomb and with a finger of divine love touch the sleeping heart of the Christ and whisper into death deafened ears,—"arise"—and Jesus the Savior of men, the Redeemer of sin-pawned souls, gently pushes open the door of that tomb, and the "Man of Wonders, the Prince of Peace," walks out. Easter Morning has dawned, and God shouts to the world: domination. The old fatalistic theme of God's surely following us wherever we stray may be carried far enough to ensnare some in the false hope of the whole church's ultimate return to the faith, and the whole world's coming at length to Christ, as it does to the error of every backslider's (even a Saul of old and a Judas) sure and absolute recovery. But the truth is, beloved, as Swedenborgianism, Eddyism, Spiritualism, Russellism have all come to stay, so also have Destructive Criticism, and Darwinism, and Liberalism with its false philosophy, its sensualism and its pride and arrogance and vice. And our calling is not to recover these cults, but to save ourselves, and our loved ones, and as many more as we can from their power and influence.

Nor will this be an easy task. The world is with them—its money, its schools, its self-indulgence and its high places. In consequence of this:

The church, is palsied by its catering to the rich and it's cowering to the learned.

The carnal mind is ally to it all, and unless confessed and destroyed will benumb the soul to the seriousness and the danger of the situation, or to open alignment with their reasonings of the flesh.

Satan doubtless, is more than an onlooker in this fray. The fact is "we wrestle not against flesh and blood; but against . . . the rulers of the darkness of this world."

If Christ had not provided us with an armor adequate to cope with powers greater than the human—socially, intellectually, or officially we would have been hopeless now. There is nothing we have—of pleasure, of possession, of position, or of prospect, that is too dear for the modernist to smear or sear or stab if we cross his path or attack his stronghold. The hatred of God and of man which formulates all the devil's policies, lurks in all the progress of "later day infidelity."

Evangelism is harder now than it was before Modernism asserted itself. (This very fact is proof that it is inimical to the salvation of men's souls, and indicates its origin. It is manifestly not Christian). And this is why ministers and churches have abandoned Evangelism for time-serving substitutes and are decrying revivals as things of the past. Spiritual lethargy, disqualifies for the work of an evangelist. Eternal life which is the chief consideration of the Gospel is dropped out of most appeals for joining the churches, and figures little in the "up-to-date" messages of the pulpit.

This is our challenge. To be an earnest, fiery, sin-rebeking, repentance calling, soul-saving evangelistic pastor is becoming as rare, as a doctrinal preacher of the truths of sacred Scripture. Its cost is criticism calumny or "change" of appointment. The actual saving of souls is a discredit upon the policy of popular preachers, and the platform upon which much church membership now rests. The greater the church the smaller the Gospel and the less salvation the people are getting. Hence, Evangelism is harder because not only the devil and the world and the flesh are as ever, averse to it; but the church and the ministry have crowded it out and propose various substitutes in its stead. Insofar as the church is stopping short of the saving of souls it is failing of its main mission, and is scarcely excusable for its existence and maintenance. And in proportion as church members are short of the New Birth (however active and respectable they may be) they are still, as Nicodemus was, ineligible to and inadequate for the Kingdom of Heaven.

Evangelism, the lost art of the church and the only safeguard against Modernism, is the chief calling of the Holiness ministry. And this too in all its degrees and branches, to the precipitation of conviction, the ministry of forgiveness, the pressing and the pushing of perfection and the ministering of perseverance and preservation until at length, the presentation blameless at the appearing of Jesus Christ of those committed unto us as faithful stewards of the waiting God.

Resurrection and Eden—Pleasures.

HENRY OSTROM.

AMAZING riches! How portions of Scripture feed us and gladden us, and then later we search them out only to find that they were crammed with riches we had formerly missed. One might have read Psalm 36:8, 9 scores of times with great profit but all the while have missed the Eden there.

Thus it reads, "They shall be abundantly satisfied with the fatness of thy house and thou shalt make them drink of the river of thy pleasures. For with thee is the fountain of life: in thy light shall we see light."

FACTS FROM THE FIRING LINE.

"My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge."—Hos. 4:6.

Prohibition has wrought miracles of moral, social and economic redemption, but thousands of dregs do not know it. Every pastor is urged to reprint the following Fact in the Church Calendar, or read it from the pulpit to offset the destructive wet propaganda which appears in many of the secular newspapers. A new Fact appears in this place in each issue.

In the Survey-Graphic, Jane Addams, world famed social worker draws this contrast—in Chicago before Prohibition thousands of boys and girls, a large portion of them drunk, frequented dance halls where the chief business was liquor selling. Since Prohibition drinking and drunkenness in dance halls has practically disappeared.

But, is Resurrection there? Does this Scripture tell beforehand of our Lord Jesus who was to become victor over death on earth? We are to consider that a treasure-house opens to us right in the midst of this thirty-sixth Psalm. The former verses of this Psalm have told of the guilty ways of the wicked and now we have come to those who have been raised into newness of life. And, lo, here we have "fatness," "river," "Edens." If we analyze a little we see that:

1. The fatness reminds us of the mention of it in connection with the burnt-offering when the fire came from the presence of the Lord and consumed the Offering—and the fat. (Lev. 9:24).

2. In Psalm 105, verse 41 we read, "He opened the Rock and the waters gushed out: they ran in the dry places like a river"—such was the provision following drought and murmuring!

3. But, what of the Edens? The word in view is generally translated "pleasures" but it is the plural of the word "Eden," used even when we read of the placing of Adam in the Garden of Eden. To be sure, Eden does mean pleasure.

So, as we consider the eighth and ninth verses of this precious Psalm we see first the fatness of the House of the Lord: and, the HOUSE is the same as that of which Moses' faithfulness was mentioned. It is the special house. While Israel journeyed it was the Tabernacle, when they had settled in the Land it was the Temple. It was the place where our God did specially manifest forth his presence. Our Lord Jesus calls attention to the fact that now, the place is not in view but that it is wholly a matter of spirit when he says that neither in Jerusalem nor in a mountain of Samaria would men be obligated to appear but the worshipper must worship the Father in spirit and in truth. So now, the HOUSE is wherever faith is. The House is where the sanctified reader is today. No journey is needed excepting as the upward rise of faith tells that it has reached the Throne.

Here and now is the FATNESS. Fat suggests the extra, the special; there is the body but there is now added the fat. It tells of good pasture and extra care. In the incident mentioned about the Burnt Offering, it was specialized as being burnt with it. That Offering, we know was the Offering of sweet savor. It was the type of the perfect acceptability of our Lord's offering to the Father. The fat was included: telling us that, not only was the sacrifice perfect and therefore perfectly acceptable, but we have to speak of it as "His UNSPEAKABLE gift." No wonder then that the verse says "they shall be abundantly satisfied." What abundance!

We follow on to find "the river," then "Eden," and lo, "THE FOUNTAIN OF LIFE" and "LIGHT" giving us light. We know that this river is Christ sending by the promised Holy Spirit the abundant waters (1 Cor. 10:4) and it was in the first Eden that man came forth from "the fountain of life" but death ensued. The question arises, would the Smitten Rock reveal the Fountain of Life? Yes, for, when later in Numbers 20:11 Moses was told to speak (not to smite) the Rock, here it was an elevated mass of rock (quite in contrast with the boulder in Exodus 17:6). Thus the type shows plainly that the once smitten Lord Jesus is now on high to be spoken to but never to be smitten again.

Instead of a smitten Saviour remaining dead, our Lord Jesus, with whom is the fountain of life is on high. Death could not hold him. Easter opens another Eden.

May we drink deeply at that word "fountain." So many seem to think, as if to half apologize to atheists that they should speak of our Lord's Resurrection as so wonderful, making out a defense for it. Well, it is wonderful if compared to the silences following humanity's death on earth; but when thought of concerning our Deity—Saviour, it is just the fountain overflowing. There is positively no call for the pump and ply of arguments here. A fountain does not call for machinery to make it flow. The wonder is that Christ should love us so as to die for us. But as for his Resurrection—Make way, the fountain is flowing. For a little while Love wrought the miracle to arrest it; and then, out it flowed—Life, Life, Life!

This new Eden is characterized by "Light." Is it not written, "In him was light and the light was the life"? Grace, only grace can dispel the darkness from death. Without it death is all night, all gloom, all humiliation. It is our Risen Lord who has brought this Eden-light and he did it by rising again. The very light of our justification is in it. The light of his own glory is in it too. It is "the light of life" shining over all our death. It is day within us while night around us. Surely we must say that "the night is far spent."

Eden-Pleasure! But instead we have thorns and thistles and droughts and deaths? What can they all combined do to us when Eden-Pleasures are more to us than mortal life itself? Can we not see why it is written, "If ye then be risen with Christ seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God." The Eden-Pleasure has found us and gripped us. The best title that can be given of our brief stay here is that we are pilgrims. But everlasting life is pleasureable.

It may be that we have seen the tomb in

GLEANINGS FROM THE EVANGELISTIC FIELD

CALIFORNIA LETTER.

Andrew Johnson.

We left Kentucky the last of October and Westward like the course of empire took our way. We stopped over a few hours at St. Louis and visited our good friend, Rev. W. L. Clark, who had just transferred from the Kentucky Conference to one of the churches in St. Louis. He was well pleased with the welcome accorded to him by the people and with the prospects for a great conference year in his new field of labor.

As we passed through Pueblo, Colorado Springs, and Denver we were delighted to gaze once more upon the lofty summit of Pike's Peak rising in majesty from the rugged range of the Rocky Mountains. The weather conditions, however, were not favorable and the Peak did not show up as fine as we have seen it on former occasions. Years ago we ascended to the top of the Peak on the cog railway and later made the trip in a Packard car. It was claimed at that time to be the most noted auto drive in the nation, if not in the world.

We realized that greater scenes awaited us as we wended our way to the distant northwest and the sun-bound coast of the continent.

Our next lay-over was at Nampa, Idaho. Here we remained over the Sabbath and spoke twice to large and enthusiastic audiences in the Nazarene College. The great student choir rendered some of the finest music we have ever heard. Rev. Russell V. Delong, president of the Institution, made us feel at home during our brief visit in the School. Rev. Martin, pastor of the church, likewise gave us a warm welcome. As he had just returned from a thrilling hunt for game in the near-by mountains we gave him the title of the noted Nazarene Nimrod of the Northwest.

Up to this time there were only two states in the Union which we had not visited in our evangelistic peregrinations. These respective states were Oregon and Washington. As we left Nampa on the midnight train we realized that it would soon be our privilege to gaze upon the fertile fields and extended plains of the great industrial state of Oregon. Some of the rare opportunities of a life-time are those which come to a tourist as he sits at the open window of a swiftly-moving passenger train and looks out upon the varied scenery of brand new territory that rises to greet his enraptured vision.

For years we had heard much of the state of Oregon—its agricultural advantages, its unexcelled timber, its noted rivers stocked with the finest fish and its garden vegetables of prodigious size. So now for the first time we found ourselves gliding through this great state. We passed through the city of Pendleton where the notorious "Red Fox" Hickman was captured by the vigilant police. We were soon moving along the banks of the famous Columbia River. The auto road on the other side of this river is said to be one of the most picturesque drives in the world. We passed Hood River near Billy Sunday's ranch. On and on we went witnessing new and interesting scenery every mile of the delightful journey. As we came nearer the city of Portland we noticed the luxuriant growth of all kinds of vegetation and trees.

Portland is a great city. It is located on the Willamette River only a few miles from where it empties into the Columbia River which flows on to the sea.

We conducted a two-weeks' meeting for Rev. Gordon A. Crockett. It was difficult to draw crowds in a big city like Portland during election week. Yet we had a number of fine services and met some splendid people. The pastor and the writer visited Mt. Hood which is some forty miles from Portland. We climbed about ten thousand feet up the sides of the mountain and reached beyond the timber line where we gained a most wonderful view of the surrounding country. The air was pure and bracing and the sky was clear and blue as its canopied dome arched the snowy crags of the towering mountain. As we stood ten thousand feet above the level of the sea and gazed first far off into dim distance and then turned our eyes and looked up to the top of Mt. Hood in all its solemn grandeur rising to such dizzy heights and resting its rocky brow against the heavens, we were awed into reverence and prayed to the Creator who flung the stars from his finger tips, tinted the rose, spread out the plains and piled up the mountains. The sun hung low in the western sky and the shadows of evening were creeping among the foothills. We deemed prudence the better part of valor and beat a hasty retreat back to the car and reached home in safety. A man must be very stupid who cannot gain some inspiration from the lofty mountains that the Almighty has piled up in all their splendor. The Bible says: "Praise the Lord from the earth, ye dragons, and all deeps; fire and hail, snow and vapours; stormy winds fulfilling his word; mountains and hills; fruitful trees and all cedars." (Psa. 147:7-9).

We visited Tillamook, Oregon, the town noted for trees, cheese and ocean breeze. Tillamook is an Indian name which means many waters. It is well named. The waters are all there.

The meeting was held in the Nazarene Church of which Rev. W. O. Godfrey is pastor. We had a fairly good meeting and met some fine Christian people. Bro. Godfrey and his wife are fine workers and are building up the church and the cause of holiness in the town. We were royally entertained in the hospitable home of Bro. and Sister King.

Mr. W. L. Taylor, a splendid Christian gentleman, took us to visit the famous Hammond Tillamook Lumber Co., at Garabaldi, Ore. Mr. E. J. St. Onge kindly showed us through the mill. The plant covers eighty acres. The company is estimated at seventy-five millions and is the second largest Company in the state. It saws 373,532 feet of lumber every nine hours, or 41,503 feet every hour. It saws logs from any size up to eleven feet in diameter. We were told that there were thirty-five million feet of lumber in the logs they had gathered in a lake at the mill. Oregon certainly grows big trees and plenty of them.

We went from Portland to San Francisco, Calif. This is a wonderful trip. The train runs by the famous old Mt. Shasta, the crowned and sceptered king of Northern California. On our first trip from Portland to San Francisco we awoke in the morning just about the time the train was opposite Mt. Shasta. We looked out through the window to the East; there only a few miles away loomed a snow-capped crystal-crowned mountain several hundred feet higher and by far more beautiful than Mt. Hood. "Like some tall cliff that lifts its awful form, Swells from the vail and midway leaves the storm, Tho round its breast the rolling clouds are spread, Eternal sunshine settles on its head."

Bathed in the bright morning light of a beautiful autumn day its snowy peak pierced the blue sky of heaven. There it stood in all its grandeur and glory, clear in its gigantic outline as it loomed against the morning sky, an immortal monument to the Divine creative genius of the Almighty! We gazed with rapture upon its beauty and sublimity as it towered nearly fifteen hundred feet in altitude. It really beggars description and defies the poet's pen, the orator's tongue and the painter's brush.

We went on to San Francisco and reached there in time to preach at the evening service. Bro. Young met us at the station and drove us to the church. Rev. J. W. Henry, who was our cheerful co-partner in a camp meeting in Ohio years ago, is pastor of the church. We had a good meeting for San Francisco. The city is largely under the control of the Roman Catholic Church. Bro. Henry stood by us from first to last and did everything in his power to make our stay pleasant. He drove us around the Golden Gate and showed us the beauty of the great city.

We visited the historical town of Santa Rosa about sixty miles from Frisco. Santa Rosa is the home town of the late Luther Burbank, the famous plant wizard of the world. We visited his home and garden. He was buried in the yard under what is known as the "unnamed tree." There is no marble slab, marker or monument over his grave. We stood against the tree and offered prayer in which we thanked God that we did not make science our Saviour, as did Burbank, but our servant and that Jesus Christ was our only and all-sufficient Saviour.

The Burbank home showed evidences of neglect. The noted Shasta Daisies in the garden looked droopy and frazzled. They missed the tender cultivating touch from the hand of the absent master.

We spent two or three days at Corning, Calif., the middle part of the state, with our good friend, who was once pastor at Mt. Sterling, Ky., Rev. J. L. Logston. We preached one Sunday morning for him and gave three lectures in the town—Prohibition, Evolution and the Book Supreme, or Twelve Reasons Why the Bible is Inspired. Corning is one hundred miles from Mt. Shasta, yet one can see the old snow-covered mountain rising in the distance as though it were only a few miles away. In Corning we saw olives on the trees and also visited the plant where they take the olives through a long process of treatment in order to prepare them for the market. The olives on the trees, while they look ripe and tempting are sour as green persimmons back East.

Just before the holidays we left San Francisco for Southern California. The distance down the coast is over four hundred miles. We took the train known as the "Daylight." It leaves San Francisco at seven in the morning and arrives in Los Angeles at seven that evening. It is the greatest one-day trip we ever made. We have compared it to a journey years ago from Talfurias, Texas, down the valley to Brownsville, Texas, in a car that carried through the center of the famous King ranch containing over a million acres. That was a glorious day, but it could not equal the recent journey on the Daylight of the Southern Pacific from Frisco to Los Angeles. We went by Palo Alto, the home of President Hoover and Leland Stanford University and on through seven successive valleys, one of which has eight millions of fruit trees.

ENROUTE TO HONGKONG.

Dear Friends of The Herald Family:

While in Peking we conducted a series of six services in the new chapel of the Oriental Missionary Society there. This work had only been opened last November, but the first night the hall was packed. We learned that already a group of twenty earnest Christians had been gathered together, and almost a hundred had sought Christ at the various services. We also noticed that some of these were of the better or more educated class. Though these results do not seem outstanding, still they are very unusual for a new work in North China, and especially a holiness work. In this old capital city the masses are hard to influence for Christ, while on the other hand, fanatical religious demonstration and injudicious practices, sponsored by the "Tongues" people, have made the propagation of Scriptural Holiness most difficult.

Everywhere we have fellowshipped with Oriental Missionary Society groups, we have found them on fire for God; ever zealous for souls. In Japan they have developed into a self-supporting organization of more than four hundred churches, in a remarkably short time. In Korea their two hundred churches and out-stations are constantly sending in reports of revivals. Many times, while in Korea, these Spirit-filled men and women proved to be a source of great strength and blessing to our meetings. In China the work is of only five years' duration, over a period of extreme political distress and anti-religious influence, but already they have a strong foothold in at least four widely separated sections, with a most promising outlook for the future. What is the key to their phenomenal success?

As we have worked hand in hand with them, shared their burdens, prayed with their members, and watched their lives as we enjoyed their hospitality, we have made some observations which answer at least a part of this question.

1. Their Work is a Work of Faith. With no board or church organization behind them they must look to God for their subsistence; for means to meet the financial outlay of their rapidly expanding program. This drives them constantly to their knees, and in drawing close to the heart of the Master they are enabled to better understand his will for their activities. We shall never forget the sense of precious nearness to God which permeated the atmosphere of some of these prayer hours, during times of testing.

2. A Spiritual Emphasis. Missionary institutional and social work are considered as impractical evangelical measures. Thus their whole attention is centered upon preaching "The gospel of Christ—the power of God unto salvation." "Christ will forgive your sins and regenerate your soul NOW, if you will repent and believe," is their message.

3. True to the Doctrine of Scriptural Holiness. "Go on to perfection," rings from all their pulpits. Every Christian needs the sanctifying power of the Holy Spirit filling his soul in order to meet the requirements of God in this life as well as the next.

4. Trained Native Leadership. Since the native can understand the heart problems of his own people better than the missionary, native leaders are put in charge of the evangelistic work rather than foreign. These workers are first trained in Bible Schools where they come in contact with Spirit-filled lives, who lead them to seek God until their hearts become fired with a consuming passion to see lost men and women saved. They are brought to realize that all about them are God-hungry souls, sinking into hell, whose only hope is in Christ, and God is depending upon them to bring these benighted ones to salvation. First their own lives must be filled with the Spirit until through them the Spirit will overflow into other lives.

5. Emphasis upon Personal Work. They know how to lead and pray a seeker through to definite victory. Many of them deal with each case as though it were their last opportunity. Two by two we see them; seeker and personal worker, praying, exhorting, expounding Scriptures. Almost invariably the seeker is brought to realize the seriousness of his condition and seeks with utmost sincerity, so earnest is the appeal of his helper. Thus this great work goes on throughout the Orient, bearing rich fruit for God. Praise his name.

This God-sent organization is well worthy of your missionary interest. Its missionaries and native workers covet your prayers. Drop a line to the Oriental Missionary Society, Box 1489, Shanghai, China, and let them know that you are lifting them up to the throne of grace.

the hill-side, first occupied by the precious body of our crucified Lord, it may be that we have thought of the spices and the tears, and a peculiar cloud may seem to have rested over the Garden as we have considered his death for us sinners: but may we now celebrate with much joy the New Eden and the Flowing Fountain of LIFE. "It was impossible that HE should be holden of death." And, now "in him" we are to drink the water of LIFE forever. "O, death where is thy sting?" "He hath abolished (annulled) death." For us, it now is Life, Life, Life.

The dining-room and kitchen were under the supervision of Mrs. Murphy, who for a number of years has had charge of the dining-room at Indian Springs. Among the faithful ones present were Brother Benson and wife who, for years have been standbys at Indian Springs camp meeting. They were faithful workers.

A group of Asbury students came down and were very helpful with their instruments, songs and testimonies. They brought with them a fine spiritual atmosphere from the great revival recently closed at Wilmore.

Rev. H. H. McAfee, President of the camp meeting, was busy working diligently on every hand in carrying forward the good work. He is much beloved by the people. His wife, a most devout woman, made a fine contribution to the spiritual life of the camp. Rev. S. L. C. Coward and wife were present and had charge of the bookstand. His genial spirit, steadfast faith and brotherly love are a blessing wherever he goes.

One very encouraging feature of the camp was the good offering. The brethren had looked forward with some concern to taking the offering, as it is a well known fact that the hard times and money stringency are in Florida as well as everywhere else in the nation. The collection was better than we had hoped, for which the people were profoundly grateful. This new camp has great promise of usefulness in the salvation of souls. Sinners were converted, backsliders reclaimed and a goodly number sanctified. The meetings for next winter are announced for the same date on which they were held this year. Let the friends not only keep the date in mind, but ask the blessing of God to rest strictly upon this effort to win sinners to Christ and lead believers into entire sanctification.

At the invitation of President Spivey, of Southern College located in Lakeland, I went up one morning with a group of our singers and held a chapel service at which I spoke to the students. They were a remarkably fine looking body of young people. I understand that, notwithstanding the financial pressure, the school is having a prosperous year with a large body of students. We greatly enjoyed our visit with them.

We found in Lakeland something quite new to us—A Carpenter's Home. There is a beautiful park of some hundreds of acres, besides a grove of 1000 acres of citrus fruits. In the center of this park is a very handsome building which belongs to a union of carpenters and is a home for old carpenters who are unable to continue work. It is a splendid institution where men who have given their lives to toil may live in quietness and comfort. We were delighted to look over these beautiful premises where the toilers of other years are spending the quiet evening of their lives. May God bless and bring them home to Paradise.

Things We Ought to Think About.

IS HER STATEMENT TRUE?

At a meeting of the committee of the Democratic Party in Washington City a short time ago, there was quite a bit of excitement, and the beginning of serious controversy, over prohibition. Raskob, chairman of the committee, and the enthusiastic opposer of prohibition, and one of the most devoted advocates of the liquor traffic, started something when he suggested a wet plank in the platform of the Democratic Party in the coming presidential campaign two years hence.

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, leader of the Democratic members of the United States Senate, did himself credit in speaking out with tremendous emphasis against the Raskob proposition, and accused him of "bringing to the front a controversy that will divide the party." One of the most interesting incidents which followed, was a speech made by Mrs. Norton, one of the strong liquor advocates in the committee. She rebuked Senator Robinson and, turning to Raskob, chairman of the committee, said, "I have never felt so proud of being a democrat, or so proud of you, as I am today." She said, "What would have become of the party in 1928 if he"—referring to Raskob—"had not put himself and money into this work." (We had not noticed that Raskob saved the party at the election in 1928). "Senator Robinson, I want to say to you," Mrs. Norton shouted, "that the womanhood of America will be the strongest factor in bringing about the repealing of the Eighteenth Amendment." Following this statement of Mrs. Norton, the daily press reporter says: "There was 'prolonged applause', with whoops and whistles, and clapping, greeting Mrs. Norton's statements."

It is quite startling that at a meeting of a committee which represents the great body of the Christian people of the south there should be raised such an enthusiastic demonstration over a statement made by a woman, "That the womanhood of America will be the strongest factor in bringing about the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment." It is to be hoped that this statement will arouse the indignation of the womanhood of these United States.

This whiskey, open-saloon bunch of people who have attached themselves to the Democratic Party, and imagine themselves to be democrats, who are so eager to bring back the liquor traffic, with all the blight and curse, disease and murder that have always followed in its trail, are seeking to chain to their bloody chariot, and drag the Christian people of the southland, their helpless captives, to the polls to vote the saloon back on us.

Of course, the liquorites are continually telling us that they do not desire the open saloon again, but their statements on this subject are entirely untrustworthy. The people who are fighting the Eighteenth Amendment, and all that it means, want to turn a flood of liquor loose on our people, destroy the Eighteenth Amendment, overthrow prohibition laws, which means the flow of liquor, and that means a place to sell it, buy and drink it, and that means THE SALOON! No one ought to be deceived by these false statements of the enemies of God and humanity.

It is interesting that Al Smith was present and made a speech almost immediately after this explosion of Mrs. Norton, in which he rebuked Senator Robinson; among other things he said, "No one has said anything about repeal. In fact, something was said against repeal." It seems that Mr. Smith failed to hear Mrs. Norton's eloquent declaration that "the womanhood of America will be the strongest factor in bringing about the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment," and the cheering which followed.

Many of the humbler people are surprised that the senators and congressmen of the southland do not turn Raskob out of the chairmanship of the Democratic Committee. There are some features of the situation they fail to understand. Raskob is a millionaire, and as a member of an organization to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment and bring back the saloon, is pouring out of his pockets tens of thousands of dollars. There is another feature. Raskob is a dyed-in-the-wool Roman Catholic. He carries in his vest-pocket millions of Roman Catholic votes. He is a close friend of the Pope—Emperor in Rome, and this Romish Emperor with the hierarchy of Romanism are the bitter antagonists of prohibition.

One can but wonder if the statesmen, the intelligent men of our southland, and in many of the middle states, like Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, who belong to the Democratic Party, will undertake to bind up the intelligent people of said party with Romanism, the underworld, the criminal class in order to overthrow prohibition and bring back the saloon, with its diabolism and blight. Such an organization will have the hearty approval of the devil and any power that hell may be able to render on earth for the destruction of mankind. May God in his compassionate mercy save us from such a blast of destruction.

Many thinking men believe that, well organized and well led, with high moral standards, and an intelligent outlook, and an appeal to high ideals for the uplift and betterment of the masses of the people, the Democratic Party may stand a fair chance to dominate the political interests of the nation in the near future. The last presidential election ought to tell all statesmen and, even a low grade of politicians, that there is a mighty host of free people in this country who do not intend to be dominated and degraded by Romanish advocates of the open saloon.

THE WAR IS ON.

THE war is on, and the battle is going to be long and severe. The enemies of God and humanity are strong, united and determined. We are living in perilous times, and one of the perplexing features about it all is the mystery of it. What prophet, preacher, statesman or philosopher can explain present conditions, or tell us what the immediate and more distant future holds for us. One thing is certain: It is a time for prayer and for service. We must be up and doing.

It is most encouraging to notice accounts of many revivals. They are not all that any of us would like to see, but they certainly witness that God is merciful, and that the people can be brought to repentance. The revivals being held by some of the preachers is positive proof that the days of revivals are not passed. The Word of God yet has power, and there is cleansing in the blood of Jesus.

The preachers who go to their knees and cry to God, and go to their feet and seek the people, and go to their pulpits and preach the gospel are proving what other preachers might be doing if they would. After all, the great spiritual decadence and the remarkably few people, comparatively, who are being saved, is no evidence that the arm of the Lord is shortened, and that sinners are so hardened that they will not repent. It is proof, however, that many preachers and churches are not doing their duty. They are not calling on God in earnest prayer for the salvation of the lost, and they are not calling on the people with the gospel which has power to save. We are living in times when Sunday talk about poets, philosophers, great men of the past, economic conditions and social uplift will not bring men to repentance and to Christ. The real gospel has power in it to produce repentance and to lead to saving faith.

I felt as much called of God to start this paper almost forty-three years ago, as I felt called to preach. I have not, for a moment, doubted the divine impression to start and continue the publication of THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD, and I am now earnestly appealing to the people to stand by and help us carry on the great work in which it is engaged. Several persons have written to us that they love the paper, but they are not able to pay the subscription. Is it really true that they cannot afford the price of one two cent stamp, and one one cent stamp a week for the visits of THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD? We must have some spiritual food, and we should like to suggest the curtailment of some other items, rather than stopping a good spiritual paper. If it is necessary to cut out something, why not cut out a joyride? or something else that is not essential, rather than discontinue a religious paper.

The war is on. It is going to be a battle royal. All the emissaries of the devil are organizing for a victory of the liquor traffic over prohibition, for the destruction of the faith of the people in the inspiration of the Bible. Many of the schools, from the university down to the public schools, even in the primary departments, are busy undermining saving faith in Christ. It is a time for the union of all spiritual forces and a regirding, with firm resolve to stand for the Word of God, its commandments, promises and claims upon mankind.

Do not stop your HERALD, but join with us in an effort to double its subscription list. No true soldier will blow up the ammunition dump of his own army when the foe is advancing, well equipped with loud and profane cheers to attack the hosts of the Lord. Let's give ourselves to prayer, to testimony, to the circulation of good literature. Let's become real soldiers of the cross. Let's get some of the benefits of self-sacrifice. Let's kindle real revival fire and press the battle with a vigor unknown in the past.

The simple truth is, all the past of the Holiness Movement, and in fact, of all real Bible religious effort in this country, has been skirmishing, marching the battalions, forming the lines, digging the trenches, bringing up the artillery and getting ready for the battle that is now breaking out along the whole front of the conflict between truth and falsehood, God and the Devil, the ranks of holiness and the hosts of sin.

"JESUS LIVES."

"Easter Morn," the day of all days when the sweet perfume of every lilly and rose whispers a wonderful message of a Savior's love. Floating on the sweet perfume of every flowery messenger of love, the name of Jesus is wafted around the earth. Every beautiful petal has hidden within its beauty a loving Savior's providential care, as they whisper to us: "God cares for you."

When Jesus broke the bonds of death and threw open wide the door of his tomb, he unlocked the door of every tomb of earth, robbed death of its sting and the grave of its victory.

With sweet messages of song, the carolling birds help to fill the world with wondrous messages from the Christ. The babbling brook murmurs an eternal poem of heavenly joy. The fern-clad hills, the green grass of springtime, the ripening grain, the cooling breezes of summer time, demonstrate the love of the lowly Nazarene. The grass, the flowers, and all the green things of spring, with their awakening from the sleep of winter time, just whisper to us as they begin a new life. "As God awakens us from the sleep of winter time, so will he also awake you some day."

On that glorious morn when the Savior arose, the darkness of sin which had enveloped the world in gloom for thousands of years was banished by a wondrous light of redemption which shone bright and clear from the top of old Calvary.

Three days before that old mount was robbed in the gloom of the world's greatest tragedy. But on the first Eastern morn, it was robbed in glorious robes of divine purity. In sunbeams of divine peace; in the sweet perfume of a Savior's love. In cold sweat and agony, and heart hunger mixed with the gall of despair, Jesus died in the darkness and horror of crucifixion, but today, on a new Eastern morn, we can look through eyes of faith toward that old mount and see a glorious sun of God shining bright and clear, its wonderful beams of light penetrating the gloom and darkness of sin which envelops the world, and can see it entering the souls of men and guiding them like a great star of Bethlehem toward his throne of love.

We are told there are over seven hundred religions in this old world, but there is only one Christianity. It was born of blood and agony mixed with despair. Mohammed created a religion; Mohammed is dead. Confucius created a religion; Confucius is dead. Buddha created a religion; Buddha is dead. Jesus created Christianity and Jesus still lives. Jesus created a redeeming religion; Jesus still lives. Satan tried to destroy him on the temple wall; Jesus still lives. Satan tried to starve the Savior; Jesus still lives. Pilate allowed him to be crucified; Jesus still lives. They locked his body in a rock-bound tomb; Jesus still lives.

The old cross of Calvary is disintegrated into dust, but the wonderful beams of light which were generated there are still shining bright and clear and are great beacon lights of glory which are focussed on the Pearly Gates, and are illuminating the golden streets of the New Jerusalem.

"AND JESUS STILL LIVES."

On Easter morn we once again concentrate our eyes upon the old cross. Then we look to the old tomb and through eyes of faith we see the Savior, the Christ of Calvary, step forth, and by that action he unlocks every tomb of earth, and instills within us the glorious hope of a great resurrection morn when Jesus will come in clouds, with power and great glory, and he will whisper to our sleeping dust and we will answer him and go to meet him in the skies.

Job asked the question: "If a man die, shall he live again?" And in the next breath he answered his own question by saying: "Thou shalt call and I will answer thee."

How dark the grave would be if Jesus had not been raised from the dead. But today, on a new Easter morn, with thankful hearts we can say with some poet, these beautiful words:

"Up from the grave he rose,
With a mighty triumph o'er his foes.
He arose a victor o'er the dark domain,
And he lives forever with his saints to reign,

He arose! He arose! Hallelujah, Christ arose!"

"And Today, Jesus Lives."

THE HOPE ETERNAL.

MRS. H. C. MORRISON.

THE doctrine of the Resurrection is the Hope Eternal that fills the human breast as men travel through this vale of tears and disappointments to the land beyond. Life, at best, is made up of sunshine and shadow, trials and disappointments, success and failure, the loss of loved ones for a while, and if it were not for the fact that beyond this mundane sphere there was a land of unclouded day many of us would faint by the wayside, give up in despair and lose the fight.

There is nothing more plainly taught in Holy Writ than that there shall be a resurrection of the dead. Christ, after lying in the cold embrace of the tomb for three days and nights, arose Victor over death, hell and the grave, becoming the firstfruits of them that sleep. Paul assures us by Christ's resurrection that, we too, shall one day leave the tomb and arise to meet our Lord in the air. We are comforted with the promise that they who sleep in Jesus shall rise all glorious in that day when death shall give up its sleeping ones and they shall be raised triumphant as trophies of our risen Lord and Christ.

There were in the early days of the Christian Church those who said there was no resurrection of the dead, to whom Paul replied that, "If there be no resurrection of the dead, then is Christ not risen; and if Christ be not risen, then is our preaching vain, and your faith is also vain." Why should the gospel be preached if, in this life only, we have hope? This brief span of existence matters little compared with that eternity that lies ahead of each and every human being. We can bear most anything during this transitory existence, but when we contemplate that stretch of eternity that shall never end, we are made to realize that a preparation should be made that will insure us an existence of bliss and unalloyed happiness.

Paul was a firm believer in the resurrection from the dead, and made his argument on the fact of Christ's resurrection. In this day we hear much contention about the fact of the resurrection; people are doubting because the miracle of resurrection is beyond human ken; but to us who believe in Christ as a Saviour from sin, it is not only easy, but a source of great joy and happy anticipation of what we may look forward to in the by and by.

Paul shows that it is not the material, or corruptible body, that shall be raised, but this vile body shall be changed into a glorious spiritual body. There is nothing too hard for God. He who made the body can raise the body, no matter how long it may have lain in the grave. Death is the curse of sin, and Christ was manifested to destroy the works of the Devil, which includes the curse of death. There has not anything befallen the human race that cannot be overcome by our all-conquering Christ. With Paul, we can say, "Thanks be unto God which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ."

Believing that a Divinely-called, wholly-sanctified, well-equipped, Spirit-filled ministry is one of the greatest needs of our times, and for all time to come, I am glad to make a donation for the upbuilding of the Asbury Theological Seminary at Wilmore, Ky.

For this great work, I promise to give $..... per year for five years, first installment due September 1, 1931. I will join all who are helping in this good work in prayer for the blessing of the Lord to rest upon it.

THE SIGN OF THE ARROW.

Mrs. Geneva Mendenhall.

After David killed the great Philistine giant he was taken to live at the King's palace and made an officer in the army. Everyone about the court and the men in camp soon knew him and grew to love him. All that is, except Saul. He kept thinking of how Samuel had told him that God was going to give the kingdom to a better man, and he feared and distrusted all those about him. He raved and talked so foolishly that those about him in the court asked David to play on his harp and sing for the king. But David was the very one who made him so uneasy, so that as David sang for him, Saul tried to kill him with his spear. When he failed to catch David he sent him to fight the Philistines in the hope that they would kill this young man whom everyone seemed to love.

But Saul's son, Jonathan, saw David's courage and sweetness and nobleness, and loved him with all his heart. Jonathan persuaded his father to let David come back to the palace and live among the princes, but again Saul's jealous anger rose and he threw his spear at David, but David leaped aside so that the spear stuck in the wall. Then Saul sent men to David's house to take him, but his wife, Michal, helped him escape through a window. He went to Samuel at Ramah where he lived for some time among the prophets worshipping there.

After this, although Saul was friendly to David for some time, David knew that the bitterness was apt to come back at any time, so he stayed away from the king's table and met Jonathan in a field near the palace. Jonathan planned to let David know by a sign three days later if the king were angry with David.

One day at the table Saul asked Jonathan where David was, and when told that he'd gone to Bethlehem, the king became so angry that he threw his spear at his own son. This made Jonathan very sad for David. So on the day agreed upon Jonathan took a small boy into the field with him and as the boy ran ahead of him, he shot some arrows, saying, "See, the arrows are way beyond you." As soon as the boy found the arrows, Jonathan sent him back and David came from his hiding place. He and Jonathan kissed each other and wept together, vowing that they and their children after them should be friends forever.

After that Jonathan returned to his father's palace and David went to seek a hiding-place.

1. How was David related to Saul?

2. Why was Saul afraid of David?

3. How did David's wife fool the king's soldiers? (This is not answered in this story.)

Dear Aunt Bettie: From time to time I have thought I would write a letter for page ten. Not that I'm a gifted writer, but as I enjoy reading the many good letters from various states. I especially enjoy reading those telling of their Christian experiences, as it is an inspiration to me to read such letters. My Aunt and Uncle take The Herald and I count it an opportunity to get to read the wonderful messages in it, especially those from Dr. Morrison and Aunt Bettie. I have had the privilege to hear Dr. Morrison at the camp meeting in Wilmore for three summers. I will always remember his sermons and what they have meant to me. If the readers of The Herald could hear Dr. Morrison I'm sure they would feel toward him as I do—that there is none other better than he. As this is my first letter I hope to see it in print.

FALLEN ASLEEP

LEWIS.

Brother T. J. Lewis who has been a subscriber to The Pentecostal Herald for about forty years, died rather suddenly, Feb. 5, 1931. He had been ill for a few days but those closest to him did not realize that the end was near until he was going. His heart gave away and he died without a struggle. Brother Lewis had wished to go just that way and the good Lord regarded his wishes in the matter.

Brother Lewis was a member of the Methodist Church at Kelley, near Dodsonville, Texas. He had been Sunday school superintendent for twenty-five years and a steward in his church for about forty years. A more consecrated, faithful man never lived than Brother T. J. Lewis. All mourn for him. He was the main stay of his community. All the young men as well as many of the older ones sought his advice in temporal as well as spiritual matters. He loved the Lord and is a living testimony of God's power to save and to keep. He leaves behind a good wife who has ever walked by his side and helped him in his great work, and several fine boys and girls, all of whom are good Christian workers. One daughter is a preacher in the Nazarene Church. He fought a good fight, he kept the faith, he finished the course and now is wearing the crown of life. A. J. Jones, P. C.

WALCOTT.

Sunday morning, Feb. 15, 1931, Mrs. A. W. Walcott, 87 years old, left us to be with Christ, whom she loved with all her heart. She was indeed a mother in Israel, always abounding in the work of the Lord. She was converted at the age of twelve years, but for a long time she was "Hindered in her journey by the ghost of doubts and fears," until she by faith entered into the fullness of the blessing of the gospel of Christ, about fifty years ago, and from that time she was a soul winner, and stood firmly for the spiritual life as taught by the Wesleys, The Pentecostal Herald and Asbury College.

She bequeathed to Asbury College a house and lot in Huntington, W. Va., as a memorial to her grandson, Theo. Cavendish, who was killed by an automobile last June, 1930. She also made provision in her will for the education of a young man for the ministry at the school of the Oriental Missionary Society, in Seoul, Korea, through the Oriental Missionary Society, at Los Angeles, Calif.

She will be greatly missed in the activities of the First M. E. Church here (Huntington, W. Va.) especially the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, the prayer meeting and the public worship. She was mighty in prayer.

CRUCIFIXION DAY.

Mary C. Gray.

"For as Jonas was three days and three nights in the whale's belly, so shall the Son of man be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth." Read Matt. 12:39, 40. Jewish days were from sunset to sunset. The full explanation of the cause for the passover is given in the eleventh and twelfth chapters of Exodus. In the third to sixth verses of twelfth chapter, the description is given of the selection, fattening, slaying and time of eating the paschal lamb. As stated in this chapter, the fourteenth day of Abib was the passover day, followed by seven days of unleavened bread. The passover day and the last day were each called a Sabbath. Other Sabbaths were ordered according to the twenty-third chapter of Leviticus.

John tells us in first verse of chapter twelve, that Jesus dined with Martha, Mary and Lazarus six days before the passover. The next day was the triumphal entry into Jerusalem, and the cleansing of the temple. Sunday, Monday and Tuesday he taught daily in the temple and spent the nights in the Mount of Olives. Luke 21:37. Tuesday evening he ate the passover with his disciples; Judas went to betray him; Jesus then institutes the Lord's Supper after which he comforts his disciples according to John, fourteenth to seventeenth chapters inclusive. At midnight he is betrayed, arrested, and in early morning of Wednesday suffered three illegal or mock trials. At nine o'clock (Mark 15:25), the hour of the morning sacrifice, he was nailed to the cross, and expired at three o'clock. (Matt. 27:45, 50), the hour of the evening sacrifice, for he is our sacrifice.

As he was the Creator of the passover observance and Lord of all Sabbaths, he had a perfect right to eat the passover lamb with his disciples on Tuesday instead of Thursday, the legal day, knowing that on that day he would be in the grave, for he was our Paschal Lamb, and the observance was turned to the Lord's Supper. The veil of the temple was rent.

Passover day, Abib fourteenth, that year occurred on our Thursday, making Wednesday the day of preparation. John 19:31. Jesus was placed in the tomb Wednesday, just before sunset, and arose sometime after sunset of Saturday, for he was gone before the women arrived. Matt. 28:1.

In Mark 16:1 we read, "And when the Sabbath (passover), was past, Mary Magdalene and Mary the mother of James, and Salome had bought spices, that they might come and anoint him." Evidently, it took time to buy and prepare these spices, which they did after passover day, and they came to the sepulchre as soon as the law would permit which was the first day of the week or Sunday. Read John 20:1.

This easily explains how he was in the grave three days and three nights, for the Sabbath mentioned in these lessons is the passover Sabbath, or highday, (John 19:31) and not the weekly Sabbath.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

REV. O. G. MINGLEDORFF, D. D.

Lesson II.—April 12, 1931.

Subject.—The Prodigal Son. Luke 15:11-24.

Golden Text.—There is joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner that repenteth. Luke 15:10.

Time.—January A. D. 30.

Place.—Perea.

Introduction.—As many have taken the liberty to express their personal opinions concerning this parable, I suppose I can take the same liberty. It is, possibly, the greatest parable that ever fell from the lips of Jesus Christ, unless we count as its equal that of the sower who went forth to sow; but personally I give first place to the one now before us. Even as a literary masterpiece it cannot be surpassed in the literature of men. But when studied from the viewpoint of religion, there is nothing in all the recorded thought of mere men, that can for one moment be compared with it. The thought and purpose of the parable is so chaste and so exalted, that it must appeal to all men with tremendous force, unless they have brutalized themselves down to common beastliness. But its special appeal is to a penitent, sin-sick soul.

We term this the parable of the prodigal son; but it seems to be more properly the parable of the prodigal son's Father. In fact, I am not so much impressed with this wayward boy. One can meet his sort on almost any street corner. There are so many of them that they become common. One may be wearing your shoes and sleeping in your bed. But that old father charms me. He may have been a bit too lenient with the younger son when he divided his living; but he was a full-grown Christian gentleman when he welcomed him back to his home and his heart. Jesus was using him to represent the Father-God, and made him as much like Deity as possible. Our heavenly Father is like that old earthly father.

The elder son in the parable represents the Jews who did not wish to have the Gentiles brought to salvation. They were the good people (in their own thinking), and the Gentiles were dogs who were unfit for the society of decent men and women. They were God's chosen people, and wanted no one else in the family. The younger son stands for the Gentiles who had strayed away from God. I suppose in its fuller sense it takes in all lost souls in all ages. You will find the true interpretation of this parable in the prayers of the Pharisee and the Publican in the temple. It is recorded in Luke 18:9-14.

Some are making a very faulty interpretation of this parable by trying to make it teach that God will forgive sin without any atonement. Such is not the case. The blood of Jesus Christ must never be forgotten. It was in the plan of God before the world was, and must forever be the basis of all pardon from God for a sinner. Some one says that we cannot make all parables walk on four legs. If so, the return of Jesus Christ to our earth would turn him into a thief. The parable of the hour teaches us how willing God is to save repenting sinners. He has foreordained that such shall find pardon; nor does it change his nature to forgive them. It would do violence to the Godhead were he to refuse to pardon such souls. "If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness."

The Pharisees said in contempt: "This man receiveth sinners." That was true, and Jesus enforced the truth by uttering three parables, the Lost Sheep, the Lost Coin, and the Prodigal Son. They were all intended to show God's concern for lost men. I do not suppose that the Lord intended them in any special sense as a rebuke to the sneering of his enemies. His purpose was rather to lead them to salvation, if that were possible.

Comments on the Lesson.

11. A certain man had two sons.—You will note that this form of expression occurs several times in the New Testament; and yet it refers to no particular person. The sense would be about the same, if the word certain were omitted.

12. The younger.—This one types the Gentiles, and sinners in general. Father, give me the portion of goods that falleth to me.—This is somewhat strange to us under United States laws; but there was a law among the Jews that enabled a son to force his father to deliver to him his portion of the estate while the parent was yet alive. In this case, there being but two sons, the younger would inherit one-third of his father's estate and the elder brother two-thirds. The word living has the sense of substance, or property.

13. Not many days, after.—This verse implies haste, as though the young man was in a hurry to get away from his father's house. Gathered all together.—All his portion of the estate. A far country.—One does not wish to misjudge the motives of this lad; but my conviction is, that he had decided to have a "rousing time" before he demanded his portion of the estate. This far country represents SIN in the life of a wayward young man. He would conceal his wickedness. His motive comes into full view in the rough expression: "And there wasted his substance in riotous living!" His exterior may have looked well, but at heart he was what we would call "a tough case."

14. When he had spent all.—If the lesson means that he soon spent all his moral character, he did not need much time in which to do that. It takes sometime to build a good moral character; but one may debase it in an hour. The parable speaks of material goods; but the real lesson concerns morals. A famine.—Nothing very unusual in the Orient. He began to be in want. Don't put too much sympathy upon his bodily wants, lest you may lose sight of his soul-want. He is hungry; but he has a deeper need that bread cannot feed.

15. To feed swine.—How that must have galled the Jews who were listening to him. Few things were so repulsive as feeding hogs; but the Master is driving the lesson of sin home straight.

16. Husks.—The pods, or beans, from the carob tree. They were too rough and coarse to be used as food for human beings; but the poor fellow was so hungry that he tried to eat them. What stuff a hungry sinner will sometimes use to satisfy his hungry soul. Peter's picture of a backslider covers the case: "The dog is turned to his own vomit again; and the sow that was washed to her wallowing in the mire." That was all they had before conversion; and in backsliding they had nothing else to which they could return. Poor boy! as bad as was his plight, "no man gave unto him." What a picture of a poor man-forsaken sinner; but still there is hope in God.

17. When he came to himself.—Paint the picture for yourself. A starving, ragged, bare-footed young spendthrift in a hog pen trying to steal carob beans from the swine. But, thank God, he came to himself—the lost sinner sees himself and his sins. Conviction is a terrible thing; but it is very blessed. The lad was beneath a slave or a hired man; for such in his father's house had bread to spare, but he was perishing with hunger. Any other condition is better than that of a sinner.

18. I will arise and go to my father.—Fine; you can't beat that in a thousand years. Conviction for sin is glorious; but when a sinner rises from the pigsty and starts for home and father, it sets the angels in heaven to shouting. Father, I have sinned against heaven, and before thee.—I like that. He is making a clean breast of the whole business. I remember an altar scene with a back-slidden preacher who had fallen into drunkenness and adultery. A special friend of his kept telling him how much God needed him; and I was telling him to run the last rattlesnake out of the hollow, if he wanted to find God. After a long struggle he turned away from his friend, and cleaned up the entire case, and found a loving Father ready to receive him.

19. No more worthy to be called thy son.—All right. He is coming to his sense now. One can make no sort of compromise with God. Go down on your face in the dust and run up the white flag, and he will have mercy upon you and save you. No one ever is saved until he is willing to take the meanest place in the kingdom of God.

20. He arose, and came to his father.—Not long ago I heard a woman praying tremendously. She was telling God that she was willing to accept Jesus Christ as her personal Savior. When I had listened to her for sometime, I said: "Sister, hush up! Quit telling the Lord 'I am willing, and tell him I do.'" That settled it, she saw the point, and was shouting in a minute. There is a big difference between being willing to do and doing. I think the old father must have spent much time looking for the return of his boy. Anyway, he was watching that day when the lad came back, and saw him away down the road. It was glorious to see the broken-hearted father hugging and kissing the wayward son. It was just like our Father.

21. Father, I have sinned.—He did manage to make his confession between his father's kisses; but the father seemed not to pay any attention to what he was saying. He was too glad for that.

22. Bring forth the best robe, and put it on him.—The Greek says: "the first robe." It was a long, beautiful garment, reserved for highly honored guests. A ring on his hand.—There was a sacredness about this similar to the sacredness of a wedding ring. It signified love for him that received it. Shoes on his feet.—Servants and slaves wore no shoes or sandals in those days. This marked him as a son in his father's house.

23. The fattened calf.—Nothing was too good for that returning boy. They would eat and be merry. That was so much like God treated me when I came back to his heart, that I am bubbling over all inside of myself; and every time I hit the keys of this typewriter it goes to laughing and singing "Glory, Hallelujah!"

24. This my son was dead.—I think the old father never expected to see the boy again; but he could not keep from looking down the long avenue that led up to the front gate. "Glory! I thought he was dead; but he is alive. He was lost; but he is found again." It is time to sing "Amazing Grace."

We shall not bother with the elder son. Just let him pout it out. We can proceed with the feasting.

FARRAR'S LIFE OF CHRIST.

The best "Life of Christ" is that which is recorded by the Holy Spirit in the four gospels, Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John. But if anyone should desire for a side-light the story of the four combined in one narrative, with due notice of times, places, circumstances, customs—all woven together in scholarly manner, and told in a beautiful and impressive way—get Farrar's Life of Christ. It is a fine old standard work, interesting and instructive and soul-stirring, and good for preachers young and old and all the rest of folks. It is fine reading from cover to cover; but those who have not time to read it all the way through can refer to any part or place in which they are interested by means of the careful index in the back. It is indeed a helpful and useful book.

A LETTER FROM A CULTURED PHYSICIAN NOW A MISSION- ARY AT DURBAN IN SOUTH AFRICA.

This letter was received by relatives living in Dr. Taylor's native town, Mooers, N. Y., and was sent in the form of a testimony to be read before his home church. This was read Sunday, Jan. 4, 1931 and was a great blessing to all present. Dr. Alan B. Taylor is the son of the late William U. Taylor, M.D., who for forty years was the leading and beloved physician for Mooers and surrounding communities. The Rev. B. S. Taylor, well known holiness evangelist, is a brother of Dr. William Taylor and uncle to the writer of this letter. Dr. Alan B. Taylor is a graduate from the University of Vermont and has some four or five degrees received at home and abroad. He is a highly educated young man of marked ability both in the practice of medicine and in surgery. With this brief explanation we proceed at once to the letter.

Clyde R. Sumner,

Pastor M. E. Church, Mooers, N. Y.
Mission Nursing Home.

"I have asked Uncle Jim to read my testimony. It comes from a heart that is very full these days. Filled with thankfulness, praise, love, faith and hope. Naturally I want the church in Mooers to know about it for you are all a great part of my religious background. It was in Mooers among you I first began the quest after Christ. It is to them that I hasten to report what I have found. It is the Christ in a newer and fuller experience than I have ever had before. In getting this experience there was involved an absolute surrender of everything, family, money, pride, self-esteem; confidence in my education as a guide for conduct, amusements, friends, etc. These things came up very definitely as I prayed and God found my willingness to let all these things go in order to make way for the Holy Spirit's entrance and so could answer my prayer. It took some deep digging to get down to the very bottom and honestly say, 'Yes, Lord, all these things can go if you say the word!' It is easy to say such a thing and I expect I have often said it. But this time there was meaning with the saying.

"To go back a bit.—It is hard for me at this distance to properly locate myself spiritually during some of the periods of my life. Prior to leaving Mooers for college things seemed very definite because of the explicitness of the teaching we got in the meetings of the week. God seemed near and there was no confusion in my mind as to what was right and wrong. . . After leaving home for school things began to change. One gets a different view point as one gets away from the simplicity of life in a country village. One finds that in being honest with himself he has to revise his opinions. As I made these changes in my outlook on things I found that I was growing farther and farther away from the church at home. However there was nothing else to do but on with it. So the years have passed with the glorious certainties of Christ and the life he can make possible for us, growing dimmer and dimmer. Undoubtedly the call to the Mission Field early heard and heeded has been the means of my holding on during all these years. Otherwise I might have fallen or gradually grown colder and colder spiritually until at last the light went out altogether. The glory of the church in Mooers has been its changing the lives of so many young men, sending them out with a Christian faith into the world. . .

"So little by little my faith leaked away. . . I think I was even beginning to doubt whether things really did happen as I once believed. God changing men's lives entirely, keeping them from day to day, etc. Of course these doubts always disappeared when I recollected some of the conversions of the folks at home. But they returned again and again. I became frankly sceptical of many things and critical of still others. It seemed to me that I was growing broader in my thinking. Now I realize that I was simply becoming worldly-minded. Needless to say long since I had lost the power to change lives for Christ. And this after all, is the real test of one's experience. 'How long since you have definitely changed a person's life spiritually?' When one answers that honestly one begins to locate himself spiritually. Again and again that question was asked and the answer partially faced. But only partially for my attitude was, 'Well, I'm living decently and giving my life to God, what more can I be expected to do?'

Again and again came times when it seemed as though I was absolutely starving for spiritual food and for periods I sought and sought. At such times there always came the answer in the form of a question, 'Are you willing to face up to a complete and full surrender?' Always I side-stepped. It is not to be wondered at for I had never seen any one with a real vital experience moving as a man among men in the new world that I knew. Christians? Yes, a plenty. But none with power-filled lives. Then I began to see friends changed through their coming in contact with the 'Oxford Group Movement' which is Wesleyanism brought up to date. From then on my hunger was definite for I began to see a way out of it all.

About that time I was brought face to face with things. It happened in this way: Miss Bell, one of our nurses and acting matron at the time, was going through very bad times. Mentally depressed she used to feel that life did not have anything worth living for. Things got so bad that one day I told her that she should really get to know Christ, that he could straighten things out for her. The answer which came startled me, 'I have come to work in a Mission Hospital just for that reason, thinking that I could find him here if anywhere.' Well, I ended up by prescribing a few days at an Oxford Group house party down at Umkoomaas on the sea. A house party is only a small camp meeting in which there is more personal work done. She came back in two days all broken up but still no where spiritually. 'I have seen people and heard people claiming a Spirit-filled life but I have come back here to see you live it. If you live such a life then I will seek it for myself.' That was a poser for me, and finally I confessed frankly that I did not have the experience that she required. Her reply was characteristic, 'Then go down to the house party and get the Spirit.' As I thought and prayed about it the assurance came very clearly that if I went to Umkoomaas and made my surrender I could find Christ there waiting for me.

"It was a glorious experience. Since then things have been very different though I still realize that I have a long way to go ere I am right. But the main thing is that my direction, my aim is right now. I can wait God's time to complete the path which lies ahead. Since that night Miss Bell has seen the light and several others in the hospital, especially the native nurses have come through definitely to a richer experience. It is really wonderful to feel that one is being used of God, really has power. Will you all pray that my life may continue to be used of God and I will continue to remember you all.

"Alan B. Taylor."

FREE TO BOYS AND GIRLS

Egermeier's Bible Story Book

First of all—Here is what Christian people have asked for—an up-to-date book of Bible stories written according to modern methods of story telling. Your children will eagerly await "story hour" when you get your copy of Egermeier's Bible Story Book. They will always clamor for "just one more."

THERE ARE 233 STORIES—FINE FOR TEACHERS PICTURES ARE FOR CHILDREN FROM 1 TO 99

Quite frequently teachers tell how much they appreciate the Bible Story Book in helping teach and explain the Bible to others. The arrangement of the stories makes the book very usable. The Bible stories are divided into periods of Bible history and arranged chronologically. There are 233 stories, each complete, yet linked in such a way as to make one continuous, beautiful narrative of the Bible.

That is why so much attention has been given to pictures in this book. There are three kinds—drawings, actual photographs, and beautiful color reproductions, nearly 200 of them. They tell stories in themselves. Children will study them by the hour. The little tots who are too young to read will get the story so well impressed by the pictures that they can retell the story almost in detail from seeing the pictures. The colored pictures are exceptional pieces of art.

There Are 64 Pages of Helps Especially Adapted for Home Study

48 Pages of These Contain Questions on the Stories

In the back of the book are 48 pages of interesting and thought-provoking questions. There are five or six questions covering each story in the book. These have been carefully and studiously prepared. The test questions will be found valuable to teachers.

16 Pages of These Give Outstanding Facts About the Bible

1. How We Got Our Bible. Tells the story in a few words.
2. The Books of the Bible. A few concise, illuminating words about each Book of the Bible and the authors. Very helpful.
3. Interesting Facts About the Bible.
4. Great Prayers of the Bible.

The Days of His Flesh:

The Earthly Life of Our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ

By Rev. David Smith

Fifteen large editions in a comparatively short period, together with words of highest appreciation from the leading Bible scholars, ministers, and editors throughout the English-speaking world proclaim this great work as the one outstanding Life of Christ for every man today. It offers a biography of the Master, elaborate in detail and extending through fifty masterful chapters and more than 500 pages, tracing every phase of our Saviour's earthly career. The author rests his case solidly upon the evangelical records. He adduces abundant evidence to show the historicity of Jesus and to confute those theories which would make Him a mere myth arising out of a haze of reverence and superstition. He is equally sound on the deity of Jesus and he shows conclusively that the acceptance of Christ as the Lord of Heaven must be regarded as the corner-stone of the Church.

He begins with the Wondrous Birth and then proceeds step by step, to the Resurrection, discussing with particular vividness "the silent years" and the part they played in the Messianic consciousness of Jesus. Even after he has completed the body of his remarkable work, the author does not lay down his pen until eight appendices have been written, each throwing light upon some important aspect of the record of Jesus' life and ministry. These appendices include such interesting subjects as, "Objections to the Miraculous Conception," "St. John's Method of Reckoning Time," "The Chronology of Passion Week," etc.

BE STRONG, OH MAN OF GOD!

By The Editor.

BE strong, oh man of God, who hath been called to preach the everlasting Word. Be fearless, but be kind. Remember always that you must stand before the final Judge and render a strict account to him for how you lived, and how you spoke in his great name to fellowmen.

The sacred desk is a high and holy place. The man who stands up there to speak must, by no means, seek his own advantage, the praise or flattery, or promotion, much less the cash of those to whom he brings the message of his God.

One shudders at the thought of selfishness in the sacred desk; of a man called of God to preach, who fails to warn his fellowmen, but flatters and comforts them in their sins, and hungers, rather, for their praise, than the salvation of their immortal souls. The preacher must be filled with holy awe, with truth divine, and passion for the souls of men.

God hath highly honored those taken from their fellowmen, and set on high in holy orders of the prophet, to whom he will reveal his own law, his will, his love for all who have gone afar from the Father's house. But God himself can find no way to save men in their sins; to give peace to those who are in rebellion and at war with him.

If the preacher fails, if he cowers before the face of man, if he will not bring the truth, which like a sword, doth smite and slay the sins of men, if he does not lift up a mighty Christ who is able to save to the uttermost; if he is afraid to speak God's word, to proclaim the divine requirement of those who would be at peace with their Maker, and enter into eternal rest, then the word of God declares those souls he loved, and for whom Jesus died, will be lost, and the preacher who failed because of fear, or love of self, will be held responsible. The blood of those whose souls are lost because of his failure will be required of him.

What an awful doom awaits the preacher who fails to set up and proclaim God's true standard of measurement of men. God's call to them is to forsake all sin, to come with repentance, deep and true, bowing down in earnest prayer in Jesus' name, with the assurance that for all who shall come there is pardon, love and mercy; there is forgiveness of every sin, and wondrous peace with God. But if the God-called man fails to preach the truth, the souls are lost; and with their lost souls he is doomed to slink away to the deep caverns of an eternal prison-house, ever trying to hide himself from those he betrayed, and failed to bring to Christ; but always under their accusing gaze and the frightful curses they will heap upon the man who feared to preach the truth.

Be strong, oh man of God. Remember that Christ has died in agony on the cross, that he hath all power in heaven and in earth, and has, for some reason unknown to you, called you to this sacred task. Do not shun to proclaim full redemption in the cleansing blood of Christ. It is sin, and sin alone, that separates men from God. God has loved, Christ has died, and you are called to go out and with his mighty word, like a sword, to separate men from sin. There is power in the precious blood to wash all sin away, to make men holy, and present them to the Father without spot or wrinkle. No man can be true to God, his fellowmen, and himself, who does not offer to those to whom he ministers holiness of heart, and righteousness of life, freedom from every stain of sin. When you preach, do not think so much of the weakness and sinfulness of men; but think of the mighty power of the Christ who died to save them from all sin. Be strong. Be free from fear. Be a manly, mighty man of God. Be humble, be full of pity; be warm with love, but preach the truth; fear not the face of man, and in the end, lay your armor down and go to meet your God in peace. No doubt you will bring many sheaves. Be strong; be tender, but be a fearless, earnest, love-impelled soldier of the cross.

Monthly Sermon.

A PICTURE OF THE CARNAL NATURE.

"And even as they did not like to retain God in their knowledge, God gave them over to a reprobate mind, to do those things which are not convenient." Rom. 1:28.

The Apostle Paul, in this first chapter of the Epistle to the Romans, is describing conditions of wickedness among a pagan people that reaches to a depth of degradation horrible to contemplate. They had "changed the glory of the uncorruptible God into an image made like to corruptible man, and to birds, and to fourfooted beasts, and creeping things." Because of this they had been given up "to uncleanness through the lust of their own heart, to dishonor their own bodies between themselves." They had gone so far as to have "changed the truth of God into a lie." Because of all this, they had been given over to vile affection, which had led to the most unnatural and degrading vices of which human beings are capable. All of this had finally headed up in the words of our text; "Even as they did not like to retain God in their knowledge, God gave them over to a reprobate mind, to do those things which are not convenient." Then follows a description of the outcome and fruitage of their refusing to retain God in their thought, and God giving them up to the control of their own reprobate minds.

The result was, that they were "filled with all unrighteousness, fornication, wickedness, covetousness, maliciousness, full of envying, murder, debate, deceit, malignity, whisperers, backbiters, haters of God, spiteful, proud, boasters, inventors of evil things, disobedient to parents, without understanding, covenant breakers, without natural affection, implacable, unmerciful."

The apostle is here giving us a picture of the carnal nature of humanity when it has gone into open rebellion against God, and from whom God has withdrawn his preventive mercies, and left to riot in wilful wickedness, in its downward plunge into utter beastliness, until men and women, instead of rising in obedience and faith into sainthood and heaven, degenerate step by step in rapid succession into human demons, and fall headlong into hell, the only place of abode for which they have fitted themselves as the result of choosing to forget God and put him out of their thought and knowledge.

One of the greatest and most important duties of the church in its ministry, its teaching in the schools, in its periodicals and literature of every kind, is to keep the fact of God and his presence in the minds of the people. To forget God is to lift the floodgates of sin. It has been well said, "The memory of the presence of God is the best preventive against sin." One of the secrets of the remarkable success of the ministry of that great God-sent evangelist, Charles G. Finney, was the fact that he preached to the people about God. His omnipresence, which meant his presence everywhere. His holiness; his right to rule in the universe he created; man's obligation to keep his laws, to live and act in harmony with his will, the danger and fearful consequences of disobedience, the certainty of coming judgment and eternal punishment upon those who violated his commandments and rejected his mercy.

Finney's preaching made the people conscious of the fact that the eye of an almighty God was upon them, that they were in his presence, that he knew their every thought, desire and act, and that those who failed to seek his pardoning mercy would be brought into judgment and sentence would be pronounced upon them. Finney's preaching was so scriptural, his arguments so logical, and his conclusions so forceful that they compelled men to believe that what he preached was awful truth, that surrender and obedience to God, with saving faith in Christ, was the only possible way to escape impending and certain doom.

The results of this preaching were wonderful indeed. A wholesome fear of God fell upon a community, strong men surrendered, worldly-minded women were confounded, repentance was widespread; people were saved by scores, hundreds and thousands. Apart from the immediate and gracious salvation

LIGHTS FROM VARIOUS LAMPS.

Rev. G. W. Ridout D.D., Corresponding Editor.

I was just looking over the Biography of Mark Guy Pearse that wonderful minister of the Gospel, writer on holiness and other themes, and evangelist of hope and love. When he saw the end approaching and he spoke of his funeral service, he said, "Please understand, no mourning, no grief, no gloom, no dead march, start the service with 'Praise God from whom all blessings flow,' and let the stops be out on the organ, and ask the people to thunder it out when they sing it in triumph." "Remember," he said, "I shall be with you and shall join in the singing." He was a unique preacher, very quaint, plain and powerful. In one of his sermons he said, "Whom cares for hallelujah raptures on the Sunday night if you can't keep your temper on Monday." "We shut God in and we shut him out. We shut him into the churches and out of the homes."

II.

It was a saying of Martineau that "God has arranged the chronometry of our spirits that there shall be thousands of silent moments between the striking hours."

We have to thank God for the Mystics "who have raised the moods of the soul to the highest and always to live in the very Holy of holies."

The tides of the spirit are variable yet certain. Twice in twenty-four hours there are high and low tides in nature. The working of the Spirit of God is in every case tidal movement. If we place ourselves where the tides will reach us we will be bound to be carried on their bosom.

For while the tired waves, vainly breaking
Seem here no painful inch to gain,
Far back, through creeks and inlets making
Comes silent, flooding in, the main.

III.

Let me give here a few quotations from a book I have been reading recently on the "Indwelling Spirit."

"Nothing great is possible in this life without that white heat of enthusiasm which makes the world consider the saints mad." "It was for their enthusiasm that Methodists were mocked and persecuted at first and if the lack of scoffs and persecutions in later days be due to the loss of enthusiastic devotion the exchange is a poor one."

Come then my God, mark out thine heir
Of heaven a larger earnest give;
With clearer light Thy witness bear,
More sensibly within me live;
Let all my powers Thine entrance feel
And deeper stamp Thyself the seal.

"Some Christians lower the spiritual temperature of every society they enter while others instinctively kindle the decaying embers of religious life wherever they go, as when a dying match is plunged into a jar of oxygen."

"In all generations it has been the voice of the solitary inspired prophet that has aroused a slumbering church and quickened a dying world."

IV.

John Wesley was a great lover of music and art. The beautiful in architecture appealed to him, beauty of shape, color and sound ministered to his finely constructed nature; he delighted in good music and singing. In his Journal, 1751, he writes, "While the organist was playing a voluntary I found an uncommon blessing." At St. Paul's Cathedral he says: "I could taste the good word of God in the anthem which began, 'My song shall be always of the lovingkindness of the Lord.'" Wesley was a man of many parts, he had the most eminent self control. He was mobbed frequently. At one of them he said: "In the midst of the mob I called for a chair; the winds were hushed and all was calm and still; my heart was filled with love, my eyes with tears and my mouth with arguments—they were amazed, they were ashamed, they were melted down, they devoured every word."

In 1788 at Horsefair the slave owners and shippers of Africans brought on a riot, breaking up benches, etc. In six minutes Wesley subdued the mob, he said: "All being calm I went on."

V.

Wesley commenting on the saying of Jesus, "I am come to throw fire upon the earth" says, "To spread the fire of heavenly love over all the earth." Concerning the divine quality of heavenly fire Charles Wesley sang:

"O Thou who comest from above,
The pure celestial flame to impart
Kindle a flame of sacred love
On the mean altar of my heart.

"There let it for thy glory burn
With inextinguishable blaze,
And trembling to its source return,
In humble prayer and fervent praise.

"Jesus confirm my heart's desire
To work and speak and think for Thee;
Still let me guard the holy fire
And still stir up thy gift in me."

VI.

A writer on early Methodism in the days of Wesley states four principles which characterized its establishment.

1. The supreme importance of spiritual intuition and moral consciousness.
  2. Divine guidance received through the Holy Scriptures.
  3. The verdict of the common sense of Christians.
  4. Practical value as discovered by use.
- By the third principle Wesley meant the consent of the community of the faithful and Christian fellowship through the class meeting, love feast, conference, etc.

By the fourth principle Wesley recognized Pragmatism or practical utility. Wesley believed in putting everything to the test of experience.

VII.

The Eighteenth Century has been described as an age characterized by Decay of religion.
Licentiousness of morals.
Public corruption.
Profaneness of language.

An age whose "Poetry was without romance, philosophy without light, public men without character. An age of light without love, whose very merits were of the earth earthy."

This was the age of the great revival under Wesley and Whitefield. So there is hope for the Twentieth Century. Wesley wrote amid all that he saw and endured, "By the grace of God I never fret. I see God sitting upon his throne and ruling all things well."

Writing to some Methodists in Carlisle, Wesley wrote, "There are twelve of you and all are professing to have your hearts on fire with the love of God. If you are faithful you are enough to set this city on fire."

VIII.

Wesley was both practical and philosophical, he saw God in everything. "Man alone," he wrote, "soars to God the Principle, and prostrate at the foot of the throne of the Almighty, adores with the profoundest veneration and with the most lively gratitude, the ineffable goodness that created him." Looking upon nature Wesley could say with Milton:

"These are Thy glorious works, Parent of Good,
Almighty! Thine this universal Frame,
Thus wondrous fair! Thyself how wondrous then!"

Wesley writing on the great question, so often distressing, as to what becomes of the heathen millions without the gospel said that he believed that the Roman Emperor Marcus Aurelius "a strange heathen, would, with the Old Testament saints, enter the heavenly Kingdom of God. "I have no authority," he wrote in 1790, a year before he died, "from the Word of God to sentence all the heathen and Mohammedan world to damnation. It is far better to leave them to him that made them and who is the Father of all the spirits of all flesh. . . . I believe the merciful God regards the lives and tempers of men far more than their ideas."

It has been said that the Christian phrase "In Christ" occurs 164 times in St. Paul's writings. Wesley sang about it thus:

"All things are possible to God,
To Christ, the power of God in man;
To me, when I am all renewed,
When I in Christ am formed again."

And in these days of terrific unbelief it is well for us to share Wesley's conviction when he sang:

"Should all the forms that men devise Assault my faith with treacherous art,
I'd call them vanity and lies,
And bind the Gospel to my heart."

THE TRIUMPH OF THE HOLY.

Rev. L. S. Hoover, Evangelist.

"Many shall be purified." Dan. 12:10.

HOLINESS is the very essence of God's nature. It is the blazing white light purity of him who is a consuming fire. It is the life power of the moral world. It is the eternal moral power invincible.

If there were any other power in the universe that could for a moment endanger it, confusion would reign and the race would be in despair. But holiness is supreme; it sits enthroned in majestic glory and beauty, impregnable and eternal; therefore the race has hope.

It was the original nature of all created beings. It is not merely the atmosphere of heaven, but the essential of heaven. It is the absolute authority and ruling power in a universe of free wills. It is the moral order of the universe from everlasting to everlasting. Before time was, it was; the same yesterday, today, and forever.

It is essential to the good of all created intelligences that this order prevail. As the power supreme, equal to all emergencies, it shall prevail. It goes forth conquering and to conquer. History proclaims its triumph in the past; experience proclaims its triumph in the present; prophecy proclaims its triumph in the future. Let us note:

THE NATURE OF THIS TRIUMPH.

In history it is not merely the victory of Omnipotence over all opposing forces. If it were Omnipotence conquering just because it could, we might think that "might made right." But here the order is reversed. Right is might. God is Omnipotent because he is holy.

The triumph of the Holy in history is then the triumph of virtue over vice, of holiness over sin, of moral law over spiritual anarchy.

The first record we have of this is Lucifer's rebellion. An archangel aspired to rule and dared to challenge the authority of Infinite Holiness. Jesus was an eyewitness of this first clash between virtue and vice. He declares that quick as a flash of lightning, holiness triumphed, moral order was restored, and the archangel and his cohorts cast down and ruined in defeat. Jesus says, "I beheld Satan as lightning fall from heaven." Luke 10:18.

It is the nature of holiness to overflow in love and spread until it fills the universe. This was the purpose of creation. God did not create man because he was lonely, but rather because life has holy worth and the possibility of spreading holiness. So man was created; holiness spread from heaven to earth and reigned supreme. All was harmonious, beautiful, glorious.

Satan disturbed this order and sin entered the world. It seemed that holiness was defeated. But not so. He who gave us our freedom of will did not do so without holding in reserve enough power to save us from any abuse of it. Immediately holiness triumphed again and "The Masterpiece of Omniscience" came forth in a plan of salvation.

We have also the record of Noah. Jehovah had threatened to blot out the race for their wickedness. This holy man found grace in the sight of the Lord, saved the day for humanity and God saved the holy few. Then the flood came and destroyed the wicked. Once more God made known that his earth was to be peopled with holy people.

Elijah's victory on Mt. Carmel was another glorious triumph for holiness. This holy prophet challenged four hundred false prophets and the God that answered by fire was declared by the people as supreme.

However the greatest moral battle of the ages was fought out at Calvary. Jesus was victor. Holiness was made a possibility of grace, and the atoning cross exalted as the sign of the conqueror. Ever since then the forces of Satan have been in retreat. Though stubbornly counter attacking at times, they are being steadily driven back toward the pit.

God's chief concern is the restoration of holiness to the conscience of his church. Therefore holiness must be the ruling idea of a ruling religion. It is so in Christianity. Holiness as a second work of grace is its central idea.

Jesus taught moral purification by faith alone in his atoning blood. He taught it as a second work of grace. John 17:17. He considered this so important that he left the world out of his thought in his last prayer, while he prayed for the sanctification of the regenerated, chosen eleven. So we come next to notice:

THE CERTAINTY OF THIS TRIUMPH.

Daniel saw it in the vision. Pentecost made it real as an experience for the church and started the movement for its continued propagation. Moral purification is an experience possible only in Christianity. Because of this all other religions must be relegated to the moral scrap-heap as outworn superstitions. Christianity alone survives as the moral absolute, as the only religion worthy of the name, and the only one able to furnish this experience to believers.

But in Christianity this experience is the believers' inheritance. "The blood of Jesus cleanseth from all sin." 1 John 1:7. This is a cleansing act of the Holy Spirit whereby the consecrated believer is purified; it is also an endowment of spiritual power. The Holy Spirit comes into the heart as a burning, cleansing flame and the soul is purified by his incoming presence that fills the heart with power. It is a great experience, a triumph of the Holy in experience once it is ours. It is a triumph of the Holy by faith. Daniel encourages us to believe that many will exercise this faith and thus be purified.

This prophecy will come true. The great Holiness Movement is but in its morn. It is but on the threshold of its greatest victories. Sometimes it seems quite the contrary. That is because we only see the battle-line from our narrow little sector. We do not have the world vision and a report from the whole battle-line. In the great World War many of the soldiers only saw the battle from their little sectors. Viewing it from that angle, they were sometimes discouraged because driven back. But viewing the whole line at once, General Pershing could see a steady advance toward victory all along the line.

The need of the hour is a kingdom vision that will help us to see that our church (no matter what its denominational title is among the clean holiness churches) is but a very small sector of this world battle-line. Holiness is steadily girdling the globe. The holiness forces are sweeping on to certain victory, on a world scale.

If we could have daily reports from the whole world battle-line, a great shout of victory would go up as we realized the constant progress of this movement. Let us remember that hourly this prophecy is being fulfilled. Thousands join the ranks of the conquering holiness host every day. This brings us to a consideration of

THE MAGNITUDE OF THIS TRIUMPH IN THE FUTURE.

When the clock on the walls of time strikes the prophetic hour, holiness shall be honored in the earth. At the coming of Jesus, the kingdoms of this world become the property of Christ. Under the severest tests of human experience, a new humanity shall come forth, a blood-washed, regenerated, sanctified and resplendent in the glory of holiness. The whole world will be compelled to acknowledge that they are the "Holy People of The Lord." When holiness has been thus honored in the earth, the Lord will say, "It is enough. Come up higher." Then for the first time we shall catch a glimpse of the magnitude of this victory. They shall come from the east and the west, the north and the south, and from the uttermost parts of the earth. Behold this gathering of saints, precious soul, and revel in the glory of the vision, and rejoice.

Marching up the highway of holiness the greatest crowd ever seen by human eyes approaches. The marching column of these soldiers of the cross extends far down the highway, stretching even beyond the range of faith's telescope. What a host of saints. A great company which no man can number. Abraham and Isaac, Moses and Elias, Daniel and Job, Paul and Silas, Patriarchs and Apostles, saints and martyrs, behold them marching into the eternal city. The banner of the cross floats in the breeze as they march through the gates, accompanied by angel escorts and led by the Captain of our salvation. They have reached their goal. They halt before the great white throne. Shadows have fled away. The perfect day has dawned in all its splendor. The saints are in their genial native land. Environment is perfect. Prophecy is fulfilled at last in all its magnitude. It is coronation day. The blood-washed millions stand around the throne. Silence is tense with expectation. The archangel crowns Christ King of kings. Holy love sits enthroned as a governing power forever. Sin is vanquished and Satan is destroyed. All heaven is in jubilee. The shouting breaks out louder than thunder. The holy war is won. The triumph of the holy is complete. The saints possess the kingdom. The shouting shall never cease. Holiness is supreme forever, and time is no more.

That "Great Conspiracy."

REV. A. S. HUNTER.

I read that Ernest Gordon has written a booklet in which he gives the inside facts of a great conspiracy between the brewers and the billionaires to break down and destroy the Eighteenth Amendment, and bring back the reign of liquor, especially beer. His facts are undeniable, and constitute a most serious situation; and there is plenty of evidence all about us, official and otherwise, to fully corroborate them. However, the head partner in the conspiracy is not mentioned. His name is Satan, alias the devil! He is "the prince of the power of the air, . . . the ruler of the darkness of this world;" against whose invisible principality Christ and his forces contend. The devil is "the prince of this world," and has an ally in every carnal heart, especially every unregenerate heart. That helps to explain why so many church members, who are apparently good citizens, are apathetic about prohibition, or critical of enforcement.

A quotation from Shakespeare is something like this: "O, thou invisible spirit of wine! If there is no other name to call thee by, let me call thee devil!" Shakespeare was a keen observer, and recognized the devilish character of alcohol when in the human system. Inspiration says, "Be not drunk with wine, wherein is excess (riot), but be filled with the Spirit." There God sets forth the deadly antagonism between alcohol as a beverage, and the Holy Spirit. Alcohol is the devil's material agent by which to get control of the brain, with its thinking and reasoning capacity, and of the will; and dethrone reason, judgment and conscience. One

THIS, THAT AND THE OTHER.

Thomas Clark Henderson.

DISSATISFACTION and restlessness characterize many preachers now-a-days. Preachers who are morally in earnest, called of God, clearly sensing that their first obligation is to him who called them into the ministry of the Gospel, are aware that somehow the church in which they are investing their lives is binding them. Instead of being set free to build the Kingdom of God, they feel that they are being used as a horse is used in the harness of a master. They are struggling for heart freedom. They are gasping for breath. Sensing that they are functioning more as parts of a religious system, or as units in an institution, than as prophets of God, they are restless and longing. Such men have an inner protest against having to spend the better part of their time and energy in doing the things which promote their denomination, but do not seem to express the divine urge and passion of their deepest selves. Here are some tragic words from the heart of a friend of mine, a Methodist minister and son of a widely known Methodist leader, who is now pastor of a church of no little size and prominence: "I have not lost the sense of personal, Divine commission, but here I am serving a church that needs to be disorganized and started all over again. I know that this church needs to be smashed all to pieces. The choir and the worldly officials hold the whip over all the life of the church. I have all but sold my soul for the sake of peace. I dare not do what I know should be done to this church because this church and its pastor are part of a well-oiled system which must not be disturbed. If I dealt with my church official as Jesus Christ dealt with the seven churches mentioned in the early chapters of Revelation, I know that it would not be long before I would be secretly tried by my local officials and those who are above me in the church, and at the next annual conference I would be thoroughly punished. My mouth is not locked, and every one who knows me knows that I am not a moral coward, but surely there is something better than this sort of thing. Do all pastors have to feel that if they obey God they will be no longer the mouth-piece of their own congregation? Must a man get into the smaller churches in order to preach the Gospel without fear or favor? I have hours of well-nigh consummate discouragement." Just today a pastor-friend of another denomination, pastor of a church with about one thousand members, a man of signal evangelistic passion and ministry, said to me, "The missionary work of our denomination is now in the hands of the most definite Modernists. When I let it be known that I would not ask my church to give money to support missionaries who are not loyal to the crucified Savior, I was informed that influence would be used to separate me from the pulpit in which I am preaching. My church is loyal to me and my message, though there are some persons in our Sunday school and church membership who are very liberal and are only enduring me. What may be the outcome, I do not know, of course, but I long for a place to labor for God and souls where I know that the religious group with whom I am identified is with me. I hate to think that, because I am conscientiously loyal to Christ, I am a disturbing factor in the life of my denomination." It seems abundantly evident that the older and larger denominations are less and less sympathetic to the thorough evangelical person and to the passionate evangelist. It is sad to observe that some preachers are consenting to cramp their souls and drift with their churches.

Here are two things which struck me as being especially incongruous. The newspapers today report the story of a certain minister, pastor of a "holiness" church, suing the officials of the church for back salary. The current edition of the Christian Herald presents William Lyon Phelps as a great Christian man and thinker, while the current edition of a popular secular magazine displays a full-page picture of him smoking a cigarette!

As we walked about the business section of an Indiana county-seat town, where Mrs. Henderson and I were resting in quiet seclusion for three days between our engagements, we spied the advertisements of a revival meeting. After supper on Monday night we sought the hall in which the meetings were being held. Two earnest evangelists from another city had rented a second-story room large enough to seat two hundred or more persons, and had furnished it with chairs, lights, piano, etc. The advertising of the meeting was thorough and effective. The larger churches in the down-town section were definitely disinterested in the crusade. The two evangelists were independent, but not antagonistic to other religious groups and organizations. Being Monday night, and rain falling copiously, we did not expect to find a large congregation. There were easily one hundred persons in the service. The singing was lively and without artificial stimulants. The preaching was true and earnest and winsome. The audience was evidently made up of the poorer classes of citizens, though certainly it was not what is sometimes contemptuously called a "mission crowd." The people were enjoying the meeting, and the preachers were blessed. Mrs. Henderson and I were refreshed as we shared in this rainy-night service where the Gospel was sung and preached and where the Holy Ghost had a chance to work unhindered. These two brethren were doing a bit of faith-work, with no church funds back of them, earnestly, simply, wisely; and their venture was being owned of God, and the common people were attending the meetings and giving sufficient support to the evangelists so that the effort could be continued indefinitely. This very thing must be done in many of our cities and towns. If some of our rich and proud churches do not get reconverted and go into the soul-saving business, it is my confidence that many independent and unfettered evangelistic centers like this one will be promoted by holy evangelists and devoted laymen. May God grant it!

I noticed in the monthly report of a small Salvation Army corps, in a county-seat city in which we were laboring recently, that during the month of January, 1931, that particular corps had conducted 12 open-air meetings with a total attendance of 1,109. They also conducted 23 indoor meetings with a total attendance of 521 persons. If I figure it correctly, the average attendance in their open-air meetings was 92, while their in-door services attracted an average attendance of less than 23. This record was for the month of January. One might expect such a difference in attendance between outdoor and in-door meetings in the summer time, but when 92 persons stand and listen to a Gospel service in the open air in January, while only 22 or 23 will go into a hall or chapel, it is a significant thing. If our business is to get the Gospel to the masses, then it must be clear that the open air, the street, the park and the fields or forest is the place to reach them. Who dares to seriously try it?

The newspapers say that they select for publication the news which will interest the largest number of their readers. While news is news, regardless of the nature of it, their space is so valuable that they must use it only for the telling of that which will attract the thought of the majority of people. Could it be that this was the reason why front-page and editorial-page space was given to the death of Lillian Leitzel, a star circus performer, which took place recently in Copenhagen? Three of the strongest newspapers in the central states gave two-column space to the report of her death, and one of them gave four inches of editorial comment on the event. Lillian Leitzel could do a thrilling trapeze stunt, aside from that her life was quite colorless. Why shove really important things off the pages of the papers and give this quite unimportant event such publicity? Well, I do not understand the editorial mind, of course, but my guess is that the reason for this is that so many readers of the newspapers go to the circus. The reason why a prayer meeting is of so little news value to the newspaper is because so few persons go to it. Maybe the salvation of a sinner is not newsy enough to get on the front page of a newspaper because so many, even church folk, care so little about such an event. Publicity comes to that person, event or thing which excites the curiosity of the largest number of persons, and not to that which is of the most importance to the largest number of persons. So, if the church would have great publicity it needs but to bring the circus into the church. This matter of getting crowds is more a matter of showmanship than it is of the downright worth of the ministry offered to the public. It is not the truth that great crowds wait on the ministry of Aimee McPherson, or of Mr. Fosdick, because they are true prophets of God, but it may be because they use better showmanship than the unpopular Jeremiahs and Isaiahs. However, let it be remembered that the Gospel of Christ is not seeking mere publicity, but is simply asking that its saving message be published by devotees who are morally in earnest.

Holy people are not only evangelical in their faith, they are evangelistic in their service to God and men. Their passion for genuine salvation work tends to lift them above merely sectarian loyalties. While not impossible, it is not easy to pull a truly holy soul down to where he gives his major investments of time, passion and possessions into denominational treasuries regardless of how such investments are used by the denominational leadership. The holy man wants his influence, his prayers, his energy, his time and his money to go towards the saving of the world from sin to holiness. Evangelism is not peculiar to those who profess heart holiness, but it is a significant fact that during one-quarter of a century of observation I have never seen one professor of entire sanctification who was out of sympathy with aggressive soul-saving work. Be it said, though, that one of the subtle perils of the holy man is that of failure to maintain this paramount passion for the salvation of others, and of turning his highest enthusiasm into lesser quests. Many have done this.

In the current edition of THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD I have just counted up the number of different revivals which are announced by the evangelists for the late winter and spring months of this year. It thrills me to see announced exactly one hundred and twenty places where the evangelistic brethren and sisters are to pour their best efforts to bring the lost to Christ and the church to holiness. All the evangelists are not idle, and all the churches are not shutting their doors to the rugged message of the Gospel. Here is a shouting point!

THE REMOVED SHOULDER.

COLINE CAMPBELL COAD.

HE Holy Spirit, speaking through David's lips in the 81st Psalm, refers to Israel's deliverance from bondage. The 6th verse says, "I removed his shoulder from the burden."

How wonderfully God speaks in his Word. He is exact in every statement. He says just what he means and he means just what he says. Men speak lightly and thoughtlessly. God weighs his every word. Men do not mean half they say and they say only half they mean.

We cannot always be sure what men mean. We can always and forever be sure what God means. We cannot always believe what men say. We can always and forever believe what God says. Only a flesh and blood man is back of man's word. The Almighty Jehovah God, the Eternal One is back of God's word.

Man's ways are so different from God's ways. God says his ways are not our ways. When we have a way, we can be sure it is not God's way. We as mere men, looking at the situation, would have said, "All that the Israelites needed was to be relieved of their burden."

Had some men been able to free these slaves, it would have been a great achievement, great in the eyes of men, for men judge as men. Even without the burden they would still be despised and in danger of being again enslaved. They would still live in Egypt. God always does the exceedingly great thing. God did far more than remove the burden from their shoulder. God removed their shoulders from the burden. How like God! No matter what happened, the burden could no more be laid upon them. God had removed them far from the land of their taskmasters.

Are you, dear reader-friend, burdened and oppressed? Do not ask God to remove the burden. God is a great God, his ways are higher than our ways. Ask God to remove you from the place of burdens and trouble. Your need is not just relief from the present burdensome trial, your need is a change of country.

Egypt, without a burden would still be Egypt, the land of slavery and taskmasters, of garlic and flesh-pots. You need Canaan, the land of freedom, wine, oil, honey and milk.

Our ways are so small, our vision so limited. We think only of the present. God's plans and thoughts have to do with eternities. He sees the end from the beginning. We are oppressed not because of the burden, but because of the country we are in. The Israelites were oppressed because they were in Egypt.

Dear troubled heart, dear burdened soul, let the Holy Spirit speak to your heart; you are not a helpless slave; that burden does not belong on your shoulder and you are out of place in Egypt. Were it not for the burden you would forget you were in Egypt. The burden is not to crush you; it is to make you homesick, to make you long for another country even an heavenly country.

Look up, rejoice, lift up your eyes toward Canaan. God will not remove the burden, but he will do far better. He will remove your shoulder from the burden so far that it can never touch you again. O, yes, it is true; there were burdens in Canaan, but they were so light, they never seemed like burdens. They were God's burdens and his burdens are light. God has made the truth of this very real to me, again and again.

Last year I had to do all the work in this big house and mornings when I went downstairs to the kitchen, I would sigh and say, "Oh, how can I ever do this work today. It is too much for me." My heart was very heavy as I thought of it. Then a flood of questions would follow, "Was it God's will for me?" "How long would he leave me to do it alone?" "How God heard my prayers for money?" and so on.

Such questions did not bring peace or joy, neither did they produce any praise. There are no questions in God; there are only certainties in him. One morning as I came down feeling unusually sick and weak I said with what courage I could gather, "Oh, this is so easy and I am well able to do it." This I said by faith, believing God's word and not my feelings. In place of the complaining questions I found to my delight, faith-producing promises. "My strength is made perfect in weakness," and "When I am weak then am I strong," and "I am the Lord that healeth thee," and "Be strong and of good courage," "For I the Lord thy God will hold thy right hand saying unto thee, 'Fear not, I will help thee.'"

What a change! Assured help, strength, comfort, and certainty, my eyes turned to him. My thoughts turned from my work to him. My heart no longer bowed down but lifted by his love. What a wonderful God is our God, Jehovah, Jesus, Creator, Watchman, Care-taker, Keeper.

Truly, the kitchen was still there and there was as much work as ever, but I had been removed from the burden. Yes, I was living, by his grace, above the burden. Before, it weighed me down; now I walked on it. If this was not an account of an actual occurrence, I would say that money and help came the next day, but this is not a made-up story. This is something I have lived and so I must write just what occurred. It was months before help came, I still did the work in the kitchen but its power over me was broken, I was free.

God had removed my shoulder from the burden. I praise him for his tender, considerate love for me, for his faithful watchful care. The kitchen was filled with songs of praise and thanksgiving. The Holy Spirit has put within my heart a real longing to help others who are burdened. God commands us to praise. It is not a question of feeling; it is a question of obedience. It is not, "Do you feel like praising?" but "Will you obey?" As you obey and "rejoice at all times and in everything give thanks," God will remove your shoulder from the burden. Wonderful Saviour and God.

A Great Book at a Small Price.

I wish to call attention to a very remarkable offer of one of the greatest books I ever read—Farrar's Life of Christ. Our business manager, Mr. Pritchard, has been able to secure a number of these books at reduced price, and is offering to send a copy to any one who will send us a new yearly subscriber to THE HERALD at the regular subscription price of $1.50, with an additional 20 cents for postage. This is one of the finest offers ever made by THE HERALD. The book is well bound in cloth, good print, excellent paper, and contains 744 pages. No preacher should be without Farrar's Life of Christ in his library. It is fine for Sunday school teachers, in fact, any one who likes good reading. The money cost to you is only 20c in money. Look around among your friends, secure a subscriber and send in at once before the supply is exhausted. If you cannot get some one to subscribe you would make an excellent investment by donating the paper to some one, adding the 20 cents for postage and sending the name with money. I can hardly remember reading a book since I entered the ministry which I found more helpful, every way, than Farrar's Life of Christ. H. C. MORRISON.

The Eighteenth Amendment.

REV. D. RAND PIERCE.

To the Eighteenth Amendment—"All hail, thee!" we say;
In the Old Constitution you're written to stay;
If the offspring of Pilgrims and patriots bold,
Will arise in this day, like their grandsires of old,
And will battle with faith in their forefather's God,
You will live till your foes are all under the sod!
You have cost blood of martyrs, the prayers and the tears
Of our mothers, God bless them, through long, bitter years!
And the Christians and statesmen, your champions brave,
Fought the deadly drink traffic, their country to save,
Till the word "Prohibition" was written one day
In the Old Constitution, God grant there to stay!
But the demons of hell, now it seems, and bad men,
Are conspiring to curse our fair country again;
They are sweeping all barriers to passion aside,
And are lifting the flood-gates for damnation's tide;
While the rose-water millions, in church and without,
Have no conscience in voting the devil to rout!
'Tis a Gettysburg, now, and a real Waterloo
That we face, but the same God can carry us through,
Till the criminal bosses and gang leaders all,
In the face of an old-time revival will fall!
'Tis the need of America! God help us pray,
Till the Eighteenth Amendment shall bring a new day!

The Life of the Holy Spirit.

The above is the title of one of the most interesting books that has fallen into my hands for some time. The writer, Rev. James Robert McIntire, has studied the subject with great care. He goes into the Old Testament and New and gives a most interesting account of the work of the Holy Spirit among the people of God from the early religious history of mankind to the close of New Testament revelation. The book is quite unlike any other book I have read on the subject. It is very informing on a most important and sadly neglected subject.

It is hardly to be supposed that every reader of the book will agree with everything the author has to say, but it is certainly very instructive. I would be glad if hundreds, yes, thousands of ministers would give this book a thorough study. It is by no means intended for preachers only, but for the thoughtful readers of all classes. The book is well bound, good print, excellent paper and contains 267 pages. The price is $2.00, and may be had of The Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky.

If You Want Something

Convincing on the tithe, something that tells you what God says about it, send 10c and get a copy of "Will A Man Rob God." It is a splendid little book to hand out to members of your church who do not believe in tithing. We will send one dozen for $1.00.

whose blood is fired and his nerves tingling with alcohol, feels, thinks, talks and acts as the devil directs; and is wholly outside the influence of the Holy Spirit. One who is filled with the Spirit feels, thinks, talks and acts as God directs; and is wholly outside the influence of the devil.

It is easy to see why the devil has marshalled all his cohorts to break down and destroy our national prohibition, as embodied in the Eighteenth Amendment. Prohibition is aimed directly against his chief means of controlling mankind! The brewers have a vast pecuniary interest at stake. Their spokesman says they will willingly pay a billion and a quarter dollars tax on their product, annually, if they may operate freely, as before prohibition. They can do that, and have billions of profit. The ungodly, worldly-minded millionaires are willing to pour many millions into the campaign to accomplish this, and escape their business tax, as they hope. One firm estimates that its saving in tax would be ten millions a year.

But, back of it all is the devil himself, working through the carnal hearts of wicked men. The dollars involved, but constitute a fulcrum for him. It is Antichrist (not yet personified) against Christ! It will take more than the Eighteenth Amendment and the supporting laws, and the justice department of the government, to defeat the devil and his hosts! Two years ago, the nation voted overwhelmingly dry, and yet the wets have been gaining ground steadily ever since! All the dry propaganda, prohibition education, church organizations for prohibition, etc., will fail to stop the advance of the devil, as long as we fail to get people individually saved from sin in the Bible way!

The thousands of Methodist preachers have it within their grasp to turn the tide within the next two years! They must first get right with God themselves. A preacher who can go a year, and have no salvation revival, no souls born of the Spirit; is not himself right with God, he does not have the mind of Christ. Then, each must have his own personal pentecost, being cleansed from all sin and filled with the Holy Spirit; not talking about pentecost, but getting it for himself. Such a band of Spirit-filled men will make a change in things before the next presidential election rolls around. Let the hundred thousand preachers of all churches do this, and millions of souls will be saved and prohibition will be safe. Otherwise, the millions will be eternally lost and prohibition will be overthrown! And, the preachers! What if they do not get right with God, and have their pentecost?

ONE MINUTE SERMON.

BETHEL COOK:

LOVE YOUR ENEMY.

Texts—"Love your enemies." Matt. 5:44.

"If ye love them which love you what reward have you?" Matt. 5:45.

It is impossible for a man to be an aggressive Christian and not have enemies.

It is no compliment to a Christian to say, "He does not have an enemy in the world." It is not having enemies but what we do with them that counts.

The world hates its enemies and tries to destroy and kill them.

What shall a Christian do with his enemies?

If we love those who love us there is no mark of distinction between us and the world.

The Bible way is to "Love your enemy." In this we save ourselves and possibly our enemy.

The Christian's Ultimatum to the Devil.

REV. W. EVANS BURNETT.

"But if not." Dan. 3:18.

HE highly dramatic incident, or occasion, that caused the utterance of the three immortal words above is altogether familiar to every Bible student as well as to thousands who do not claim to be students of the inspired Word of God. As we attempt to visualize, through the eyes of our imagination, the scene that called forth the words of our text we are made to realize that the entire situation from beginning to end was most marvelous in every detail, and impregnated with an electrifying tenseness that would fill with ecstasy the heart of the modern moving picture producer. Indeed the scene was the culmination of a succession of events that permitted the great God of heaven to stage one of the greatest panoramas of all times, and one which ultimately brought into plain view of the astonished gaze of thousands of pagans the greatest of all future world characters—the only begotten Son of God himself.

FACTS FROM THE FIRING LINE.

"My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge."—Hos. 4:6.

Prohibition has wrought miracles of moral, social and economic redemption, but thousands of dries do not know it. Every pastor is urged to reprint the following Fact in the Church Calendar, or read it from the pulpit to offset the destructive wet propaganda which appears in many of the secular newspapers. A new Fact appears in this place in each issue.

Under regulation the consumption of alcoholic liquors rose from 4 gallons per capita in 1850 to 23 in 1911, and dropped to 3 gallons in 1920, under Prohibition according to the U. S. Statistical Abstract. Loyal observance and reasonable enforcement will reduce it even further.

There on the plain of Dura, in the province of Babylon, that mighty monarch of the Chaldeans had caused to be set up a magnificent image of gold that was evidently a very massive affair, for the dimensions as given in the Bible account is that of sixty cubits high and six cubits broad, and in fact everything connected with the physical setting of this dedicatory, or unavailing, service was done on a massive scale. As we study this recital of events the vastness of the whole thing from beginning to end grows on us more and more.

Not only was one of the greatest monarchs of the world at any time the master of ceremonies, but he had all the notables of his realm in grand array before him. The princes, governors, captains, judges, treasurers, counsellors, sheriffs, and all rulers of the provinces were there together with the multiplied thousands of the inhabitants. No man-made arena, or auditorium, was large enough to accommodate that great crowd of people, and the newspapers of this day and time would doubtless say that the pomp and splendor represented made it indeed a striking and "colorful" scene. It was all very grand and inspiring, and was intended to be so, but the greatest and grandest attraction in evidence that day was the great Jehovah God himself, as represented by the three quiet, unassuming, Hebrew young men, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, whose names were given them by the prince of the king's eunuchs on a former occasion of another crisis in the lives of these young men, but one which was not near so acute and spectacular as the crisis that now confronted them.

The age-old drama of life was on with these young men, and that was the issue of righteousness versus iniquity; the world, the flesh, and the devil (as represented by the pagan king) against the true God and Bible religion. A crash of worlds would have been small in comparison to the failure of these young men to stand true, but, thank the Lord, they did stand true, most emphatically revealing to us that the Christian man or woman, boy or girl, can be delivered from the fear of man that bringeth a snare. This writer once heard an evangelist of international reputation say, in the presence of six or eight thousand people, that every Christian had a "yellow streak" in them, meaning that every one at some time (in their fight against the devil and sin) would manifest a spirit of cowardice and compromise. We are glad this evangelist did not know what he was talking about as evidenced by the lives of more men and women than we could tell about in this article.

Not only does the ultimatum (or last word) of these young men reveal that they had been freed from all slavish fear of man that causes the believer to compromise, but that they were also delivered from the tendency to complain because of this severe, and apparently fatal, trial that had overtaken them. Not one word of complaint, discouragement, or unbelief fell from their lips while looking death in the face on this momentous occasion. Certainly the fruits of perfect love and complete consecration were manifested here by these three Hebrews. The testimony of a certain man in Atlanta, Ga., after being reclaimed from a backslidden condition, and sanctified wholly, was that he never got discouraged any more, no difference how things went with him in business or otherwise.

Just at this point we wish to quote what Rev. John Wesley has written as to the attitude of the unsanctified believer. "Some who have much love, peace, and joy, yet have not the direct witness (of being perfected in love); and others who think they have, are, nevertheless, manifestly wanting in fruit. Some are undeniably wanting in long-suffering, Christian resignation. They do not see the hand of God in whatever occurs, and cheerfully embrace it. They do not in everything give thanks and rejoice evermore. Sometimes they complain. They say, 'This or that is hard.'"

Another very important thing was revealed by the attitude of these young men, and that is that they were not self-seeking, politicians, or "wire pullers." They had splendid positions of prominence and power already which they evidently considered as dross as compared with the Divine approval. There is now one of the highest officers in the Salvation Army who started years and years ago in the lowest position the Army could give him then, and yet he was a Doctor of Divinity. This man might have thought the Army should have considered him "one of their biggest catches," but he did not feel that way, and the Army never did so advertise this new recruit even though he was a D. D. from another organization. How much "wire pulling" there is these days to obtain and retain certain positions ecclesiastically! We were very much impressed by something the editor of this paper said sometime ago about the bishops of a certain denomination being elected for only four or six years, thus giving many other deserving and competent ministers an opportunity of being promoted without the same ones holding the office for many years.

GLEANINGS FROM THE EVANGELISTIC FIELD

ASBURY COLLEGE MISSIONARY TEAM.

Dear Friends of The Herald Family:

Among the gratifying experiences on this trip have been the contacts we have had with the Asbury Alumni here in China. A goodly number have gone forth from our Alma Mater into this needy field where the darkness is so tense and the witnesses so few. We have found them successfully working out in the laboratory of experience those principles and truths which Asbury College has so faithfully stood for during the passing years. As missionaries of spiritual vision, and dynamic power they are standing firm for the faith once delivered to the saints. While many other missionaries have lost sight of the true aim and motive of Christian missions we were pleased to find our Asbury friends pressing forward a strong evangelistic program and carrying a real burden for the lost.

In northern China working with the National Holiness Mission there are eleven former Asburians. In Tientsin we met Brother and Sister Troxel who both attended Asbury some years ago. Brother Troxel is one of the founders of the National Holiness work. With his splendid grip of the language, together with his strong personality and deep spiritual life he is being greatly used of God in the spreading of scriptural holiness in northern China. We were greatly privileged to have Mr. Troxel interpret for us during our meetings in their territory.

Rev. George Warner and his wife who was formerly Miss Bertha Bartlett, are also in Tientsin. Bro. Warner told us of some of the interesting as well as serious encounters he and Mr. Troxel had with some of the bandit groups which caused such great havoc in the Shantung province last spring. God wonderfully protected them and brought them through in safety.

In Nankwantao, Shantung we met Dr. Wesche and Rev. A. Richards. After graduating from Asbury Dr. Wesche took his medical work at Northwestern University and then came to the field as a medical missionary. He has a medical car with which he travels to the villages in his district and holds dispensaries administering to the needs of the body, but using this only as a means to reach their souls. In this manner he is able to reach many who would never be reached in any other way. Brother Richards is district superintendent of the National Holiness mission in Nankwantao and is being greatly used of God in this work.

We visited three more Asburians in Tungchang, Shantung in the National Holiness Station. Earl Newton who is a classmate of ours is living here and at present is giving his time to studying the language which is essential before a missionary can do effective work. Rev. and Mrs. L. E. Supernois are also at this station and are both doing very successful service.

Rev. and Mrs. Kenneth Wesche who both attended Asbury when we were there, are now living at Teiming, Shantung. They are in charge of the National Holiness work there. Mr. Wesche is giving considerable time to translating and writing some Chinese Bible study books.

We are convinced that the mission fields of the world today need more missionaries of the Asbury type. Too many go to the field without a real deep spiritual experience and with a faith that is loaded with question marks. No burden for the tremendous need they encounter and no passion for the souls of men. The result: a fruitless ministry and a life that has failed to carry out God's purpose on the mission field.

Asbury College has been called to a great task. She needs to send more graduates to the field. We pray that in the coming years scores shall hear the call and with the preparation received under her godly teachers shall let God thrust them out into this ripe field of labor.

Pray for the Asbury graduates in China.

Yours in his service,

Asbury College Foreign Missionary Team.

TORONTO, OHIO.

Am glad to report that God has given us some very gracious revivals in the Northwest since the holidays. After closing a successful revival in Bakersfield, Calif., on Jan. 18, we came on to Kennewick, Wash., where the Lord gave us something over a hundred clear professions. Not card-signers or handshakers, but people who came to the altar and wept their way through to God, and gave glad testimony of what God had done for them in saving, reclaiming or sanctifying them. This was a real Holy Ghost revival where the people really prayed through to God in the old-fashioned way. The young pastor, Rev. E. H. Edwards, is a wide-awake young man full of the Holy Ghost and power.

We gave a few days to Union Gap with Rev. J. W. Henry and his loyal band of people. We had excellent crowds and some in the altar, but could only remain a few days, but expect to go back soon and give them a real revival.

Our next meeting was at Grandview, Wash., where my good brother Rev. Jos. N. Speaks is the pastor. Here again God gave us an gracious revival. The last Sunday there were over fifty in the altar, and many of them were new people and happy finders. God blessed in a wonderful way.

Our last campaign was with Rev. J. N. Tinsley and his excellent people at Moscow, Idaho. While some of the other churches had on revivals and other doings, and many people were sick with colds, yet we had an excellent meeting. From the very first God was there and gave us souls in the altar from the first to the last. The finances came easy and the people gave their pastor a good pounding, showing how much they really loved him. He is doing an excellent work. All these meetings were in Nazarene churches, where the people and pastors are banded together to push Bible Holiness.

There is a marked spirit of revival among the people these days and we believe that God is using the hard times to awaken the people to their need of spiritual things. This scribe believes we are on the verge of a glorious heaven-sent revival if the preachers and people will only pray as they should, and pay the price. These churches all had several nights of prayer, and that brought the blessings of God in the services. Try it and see. God still answers prayer.

A. O. Henricks.

HENRIETTA, MISSOURI.

Rev. J. A. Collier, evangelist, of Nashville, Tenn., and Prof. O. M. Womack, of Henderson, Ky., conducted a successful revival meeting at Henrietta, Mo., Jan. 18 to Feb. 1. The meeting, held in Trinity Methodist Church, was attended by large crowds.

This is the first time for several years that a meeting of this kind has been held in Henrietta. It was gladly attended by members of the church and the people of the town. Rev. Collier preached to good audiences every afternoon and to large and increasing crowds each evening, till at the closing service on Sunday evening the house was packed. Prof. Womack conducted the song service. The choir responded ably to his leadership. He sang a special number at each service. He also developed a good junior choir during the course of the meeting.

On Sunday morning, Feb. 1, fourteen persons were baptized and twenty-one were received into the church.

Rev. Collier and Professor Womack rendered an effective and helpful service to the church of Henrietta. An offering taken toward the close of the meeting was given them in consideration of their service to the church. Any pastor who has need for an evangelist and singer can make no mistake in calling these men.

R. L. Oliver, Pastor.

REVIVAL AT BROWN CITY, MICHIGAN.

Brown City Methodist Episcopal Church has been blessed with a gracious revival under the leadership of Rev. Charles A. Jacobs. The Spirit of God was certainly manifest in the conversion of sinners and the sanctification of believers. Seventy-nine seekers came to the altar and went away with a new song in their hearts. Brother Jacobs has made a life-long study of the Scriptures and uses his knowledge with wonderful effectiveness in the preaching of full salvation. This community has been greatly blessed by the presentation of Bible truth along lines of Scriptural holiness for six weeks. The meetings early took on the nature of a community revival for the doctrine of holiness is popular among church folks in this town and people from the several churches came in to unite their efforts with ours for the welfare of all. Arrangements are being made for a return engagement at a future date.

W. L. Card, Pastor.

REPORT.

The year 1930 was a very happy year in the service of the King; my heart was made glad time and again by the many manifestations of God's presence, guidance and approval. While comparatively busy throughout the year, yet like many other evangelists, I felt the stress of the financial depression and the reaction against revivals which seems to have swept perilously across Methodism. Both of these factors curtailed the activities of many a faithful evangelist the past eighteen months.

Through January and February it was my privilege to assist the pastors of the Ft. Worth District in the promotion of missionary interests. From First Church to the smallest outlying circuit church we went night after night with sermons and stereopticon programs endeavoring to awaken hearts to respond to the calls for help from the General Mission Board. God knows the church of the homeland needs a new missionary conscience.

From the beginning of my Christian experience missionary work has been the predominating interest of my heart. This was intensified early in my evangelistic career by two trips through Central and South America. Two years ago I finished my third tour, traveling through the Caribbean countries. After having seen human need in other lands and heard the cries of heart hungry humanity the indifference of the church at home all but crushes my heart. While Mission Boards are unable to meet the demands for lack of financial support, church people continue to support the movies, ride in luxurious cars and indulge in useless extravagances.

While the doors of modernistic churches are being closed to evangelism in the U. S. A., God's true saints who have the means ought to pick out a few scores of Spirit-filled evangelists and send them evangelizing into the churches of other countries. After they have seen the physical suffering, heard the heart cries and witnessed the mighty power of God in breaking the shackles of heathen darkness, they will come again with a new message which will help to create a missionary conscience and kindle new fires on the altars of the churches in the homeland.

God willing, I expect to depart early in May for another evangelistic journey through South America. Will my Herald friends please pray the Lord of the harvest to prepare the way and provide the necessary finances. Order a copy of "Missionary Heart Throbs" from The Pentecostal Publishing Co., (price 50c) and read of the mighty works of God being wrought through missionary evangelism.

James V. Reid, Ft. Worth, Tex.

REPORT.

During recent months the blessings of God have been upon us. Soon after Conference we began praying and planning for a revival. The work was making good gains along all lines notwithstanding the economic depression. The Sunday school was averaging over 200, the Junior and Senior Epworth Leagues with about 43 members each, and a W. F. M. S. were doing good work, but we felt a growing need for a spiritual deepening and an old-fashioned revival. Rev. J. Thos. Johnson, pastor First Pilgrim Holiness Church, Covington, Ky., was called as the evangelist. He was with us over two weeks. Rev. W. W. Hanks, City Assessor, Ashland, Ky., and the C. C. Childer's family quartette came and continued the meeting from Friday over Sunday with wonderful victory. Brother Johnson's beautiful singing, piano playing, effective praying and strong sermons captured the crowds. He is a rare combination of an all-round evangelistic worker. His sermons are scholarly, fresh and applicable—they are clothed in sanctified oratory. Hundreds of people heard the old rugged truth night after night and 135 persons knelt at the altar for prayer. 105 of that number were saved, sanctified or reclaimed. 25 were baptized, and 31 received into the church. Finances came easy and without a single public pull the evangelist was well paid. This is the fourth revival the writer has had Brother Johnson for and every time he has left the church in a beautiful condition. Some are still praying through in houses and cottage prayer meetings. Around 50 people in prayer meeting on inclement nights. Increased morning worship attendance and all evidences of a genuine revival prevail. Remember us when you pray.

Rev. Chas. F. Pegram, Th.B.

APOLLO, PENNSYLVANIA.

During February we assisted Rev. L. A. Stahl and the people of the M. E. Church, of Apollo, Pa., in a revival. From the start the revival was on and continued throughout the four weeks. Rev. Stahl had the ground well prepared before the meetings started and his people worked valiantly in our efforts to reach the lost.

Great throngs of people crowded the church to the doors to hear the Gospel message in sermon and song. There were fine responses to the special services conducted for the men, women, young people and boys and girls. The altar was never barren. One night in particular I recall when a little lad of seven years was at one end of the altar for salvation and an old man of eighty-one years at the other end and all ages in between. Some of the notorious characters of the town were saved. Homes were re-united, habits were broken, cards were destroyed; family altars were established and many lives brought into harmony with the Lord.

There were 200 at the altar for either pardon or purity. Eighty joined the church. A fine group of boys and girls from our Happy Helpers Club was organized to take the work of the Catechetical Class to be conducted by the pastor.

Through the courtesy of Rev. Luther Horn, Field Secretary of Bob Jones College, we broadcast a series of Gospel Programs over KQV, Pittsburgh, which met with the approval of many listeners.

These are great days for revivals. Men's hearts are turned to God as never before. The things of the world have slipped away and men are ready for the Gospel. The churches have a wonderful opportunity to reap a great harvest of souls if they will take the opportunity.

Paul White.

THE CHRISTIAN'S ULTIMATUM

In conclusion, we wish to call your attention to the very majesty of heaven in the simplicity and resignation of these young men as they delivered their ultimatum (in person, if you please) to the king. No temporizing, no diplomacy, no arrogance. We fear it will be impossible for us to tell you just how we feel about this life drama, but their final word was given, and they faced the firing squad undaunted. And you know what happened; it paid to speak those three immortal words that memorable day on the plain of Dura. Paganism was thrown violently from its pedestal, and Jehovah worship was enthroned, or elevated to its true position.

of souls, there was a moral and social benefit produced by his ministry that is beyond human estimation. It was the salt that penetrated society with gracious saving qualities and light which illuminated the minds of men to distinguish between wickedness and righteousness. Those who were not saved were restrained and less wicked and therefore, less hurtful to society than they otherwise would have been.

Before the World War there were many great union evangelistic meetings held in practically every part of these United States. Mr. Moody's great city revivals were of spiritual and moral value beyond computation. Sam Jones' vigorous attack upon wickedness of every kind, especially the liquor traffic, was of national benefit. Mr. Torrey's meetings were of such character as to awaken the national conscience. He was a scholar, a devout Christian, a champion of Bible truth. He could answer all the enemies of the Word of God and the Son of God with a courage and clearness that was most satisfactory. He lifted up a Christ mighty to save. Chapman and Alexander held meetings in many of our great cities that were of value beyond figures to calculate. Gipsy Smith was a blessing to any city he entered. The spirit of the man seemed to impart itself to the people to whom he preached. He was full of the love of Christ and humanity. He drew the people together and drew them to God. His messages poured forth like the oil of good will, gladness and consolation.

The great city revivals held by Billy Sunday and Rodeheaver were tremendous in their influence. No tabernacle could be builded large enough to contain the thousands who crowded to hear this champion of the inspired Bible and a virgin-born Christ. Our nation has never had the service of any man who has wielded more powerful influence against the liquor traffic than Billy Sunday. He smote against sin of every kind with an enthusiasm and vindictiveness that made men to think, that drew upon him much adverse criticism, nevertheless, when he preached five or six weeks in a community people were made to think about God, Christ and his offering himself upon the cross to save men, sin, judgment day, and hell. Billy Sunday made people think. How important that people be made to think of God, of his presence among them, and the fact that they must meet him in judgment and render an account for the deeds done while they lived in the body.

The great revivals held under these national leaders stirred the conscience of the city. People went to talking about the things of religion. It was a subject of conversation in hotels, boarding houses, stores and shops. Noonday services were held in the great manufacturing plants. The daily papers wrote extensive reports of the meetings, often publishing the entire sermons of the evangelist. The city pastors, with their churches of various denominations, united in these campaigns and were drawn into close fellowship, lost sight of their differences and united in an earnest effort to save the souls of the people.

These great city revivals drew upon the towns, villages and country districts. Special trains were made up, the people came to hear the great evangelists and went home to talk to their families, friends and neighbors about what they had seen and heard in the union meeting. The people bought Bibles, read and marked them; bought religious books, studied and talked about the truths they contained.

It may be that in some of these meetings there was a larger financial feature than necessary, but just now we are not thinking about finance but about the fact that there were spiritual awakenings and men were made to think seriously about the presence of God, their obligations to him, and the fact that there was coming a time when they must render account.

Meanwhile, evangelistic services were going on in county seats, towns, villages and country churches throughout the nation. Many evangelists with less reputation and drawing power than the men mentioned above, were holding union, or denominational meetings, mightily preaching the word of God to packed churches in hundreds, I may say, thousands, of places throughout our republic. The gracious effect was far beyond the possibility of computation.

I would not undertake to indorse all the men who were holding revivals, some of their methods, or the stress laid upon the financial feature of some, perhaps many, of these meetings; but this unfortunate feature is not for the present claiming our attention. The thought which we would impress upon the reader's mind is the fact that God, his word, his law, his love, his Son, his Holy Spirit, was preached to the masses of the people. The effect was gracious in the salvation of many souls.

Great holiness conventions and revivals were held far and near and multitudes were awakened to pray for the baptism with the Holy Ghost, purifying the heart by faith, and many received this gracious blessing—a Pentecost indeed! Not the mere celebration of an ancient Jewish feast, but the same blessed Spirit who came upon the upper room company in that Pentecostal Day long ago, came graciously with the fullness of salvation upon thousands of devout, consecrated, seeking Christians.

It was this revival work throughout the nation that gave the church and the country the conscience and the courage to overthrow the legalized liquor traffic. When people are brought to a consciousness of the presence of God and a desire for fellowship with him, they are also brought to love their fellow-beings; to love God and humanity is to hate the liquor traffic with a holy indignation that cannot be silenced or appeased.

Had this great revival movement been kept going the victory over the liquor traffic would have been a splendid success. In order to moral legislation, the uplift of the social life of the people, and the proper adjustment of human relationships, there must be a God consciousness that produces the spirit of reverence and obedience to our Maker, an altruistic spirit toward all men. This state of mind, in the nature of things, is destructive, not only to the liquor traffic, but to the spirit of selfishness. It awakens men everywhere to the fact that they are their brother's keeper.

Nothing can be found to take the place of intense evangelistic revival preaching. God has appointed the preaching of his word with fearless zeal, with intense earnestness, for the awakening of sinners and the salvation of the lost. This mere visiting around from house to house, and pleasantly inducing people to unite with the church may result in building up the church membership, but it is an utter farce and failure compared with a revival of religion brought on by the powerful preaching of the word of God. During revival meetings the church members ought to visit the homes of the people and induce them, not to give their names for church membership, but to attend the revival, to come under the gracious influence of gospel singing, or earnest prayers, and the powerful preaching of the word of God; to sit in an atmosphere of faith and Christian love; to see the shining faces and hear the glad testimonies of young converts; to be made to feel their own spiritual nakedness and emptiness, to be brought to broken-hearted repentance and earnest prayer to God for forgiveness; to be regenerated by the power of the Holy Ghost; to feel and know that the Lord Jesus is a personal Saviour; to go out as glad witnesses of the saving power of Christ, and with loving solicitude, to invite and bring their friends and relatives to the revival meeting, and to help them to Christ.

One of the great crimes against humanity and God at the present time, is the appointing of a day to bring children into the church, thousands of them, without the instruction that comes from protracted meeting preaching, without any proper conception of their own sinfulness, of repentance, of the atonement by Christ, of the regenerating power of the Holy Spirit. I repeat that this process of deception is a crime against God and humanity.

Of course, children ought to be brought into the church, but first of all, they ought to be brought to repentance and saving faith in Christ. How any Methodist preacher who knows the bitterness of repentance before God, and the joy of conscious pardon, regenerating grace, and the witness of the Holy Spirit to his personal salvation, can get his consent to thus trifle with the souls of the children of his church, I am unable to understand, unless he is backslidden and lost the joy of salvation out of his heart.

I am quite sure that my position will be criticised. I care nothing for such criticism. Before God, I defy it, I detest it, I stick to my proposition that to trifle with the souls of the young is an awful sin. It is to turn them out in this wicked world without having been born again, the easy victims of the many snares set by the enemy for their unregenerated souls. Having nothing of a consciousness or joy of personal salvation, they are easily led away from the plain teachings of the Bible to all sorts of modern liberalistic views that destroy their faith in the Holy Scriptures, and turn them loose to drift upon the uncertain, dark sea of sin and doubt.

Revivals where men preach with unusual emphasis and a holy enthusiasm on sin and its danger, the presence of God and our responsibility to him, are absolutely necessary to keep the thought of God, as the Scriptures reveal him, in the minds of the people, to cultivate in them a reverential fear and a spirit of obedience. The enemies of revivals of religion are the enemies of God and humanity.

This going around from house to house and speaking to persons about uniting with the church is one thing, and awakening a community with the powerful preaching of the gospel in revival meetings is another thing. If, during the past ten years we had been having great union revivals in our cities by men who could draw the multitudes, and in our county seats, villages and country churches, there would be a God consciousness that would be of inestimable value in this crisis of the life of our beloved nation. It would be easy to rally the forces and sweep away the cohorts of Satan and hell who are trying to bring the liquor traffic back upon us. In the name and fear of God, and the love of humanity, I declare if the liquor interests succeed the preachers and the church are responsible for it; the men who have opposed revivals of religion are responsible for it. I cry to our preachers and people to take a tremendous stand for righteousness, to refuse to be controlled and browbeaten by ecclesiastics who oppose revivals of religion, and in the fear of God, the love of human souls and our country, to determine to have revivals of religion, determine to be heard, to awaken the people, to make them think of God, his laws, his judgments and the gracious provisions he has made for the salvation of souls. The time has come for action, and if we fail to act, it can soon be written of their generation, "They did not like to retain God in their knowledge, God gave over to a reprobate mind to do those things which are not convenient."

Help Some One Else Into Canaan.

The sanctified life is not a stagnant pool; it is a flowing stream. It receives life from Christ and gives out life to those with whom it comes in touch. God only knows, and will know, in that great day when he distributes the stars of rejoicing to whom they shall be given. There is many a minister of the gospel, of courage, strength and aggressiveness who has gathered precious sheaves for the Master, back of that minister has been a devout man, a consecrated woman, unseen and unknown, who brought him to Christ, or rendered him invaluable service, that no one understands and knows except the great final Judge.

In these forty-three years, and more, in which I have been editor of THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD, encouragement and assistance that has come to me from, I may safely say, thousands of humble men and women, without whose help the publication of THE HERALD would have been impossible. In the final assessment of things, whatever good this paper may have accomplished, they will receive due consideration. Just now we are calling upon those faithful souls to give a helping hand to send THE HERALD to a host of preachers.

After all, much depends upon the inner life of the preacher. I have been a minister of the gospel long enough to know that the soul of the preacher needs the refreshings of the Holy Spirit. There is all the difference between the man going into the pulpit on Sunday morning to say something to the people because that is his regular task, and a man going into the pulpit with a heart all aglow, refreshed by the blessed Spirit to give a thrilling message of the Word of God to the congregation. Help us to help a host of preachers, in order that they may help the people to carry forward the work of the Lord. Send one dollar, with the name and address of some preacher to THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD for the paper and it will be sent free of charge to him. Help us in the great work. Faithfully your brother,

H. C. MORRISON.

Available for Meetings.

Dr. Andrew Johnson, who has just closed a successful campaign on the Pacific Coast, is now available for meetings. His address is Wilmore, Ky. He is ready for camp meetings during the summer, or assisting pastors, or wherever needed in the great work of soul winning. Dr. Johnson is well known to the readers of THE HERALD, and should be kept busy.

What Shall I Render Unto the Lord?

MRS. H. C. MORRISON.

LIVING the Christian life is not child's play; it is the greatest undertaking a human being ever assumed. There is but one standard of right living, and that is found in the Sermon on the Mount where Christ is laying down certain principles by which the disciples and we are to measure our lives.

Our duty toward God and man is laid down in this Sermon, and there is not allowed any shoving to suit this or that one, but all must stand by the divine standard and be judged accordingly. We are also given the steps we must take in order to get into the kingdom. First, by having poverty of spirit, the mourner who shall be comforted, the meek who shall inherit the earth, the hungry and thirsty who shall be filled, and finally, the pure in heart, who alone shall see God.

The matter of our relation to our neighbor, our responsibility to a world in sin, and of husband and wife, with many other details of living, is clearly brought out, also the way in which a true follower of Christ is expected to meet these tests and responsibilities. To read this wonderful sermon on Christian living one almost shrinks from its demands, but we must remember that when the first part of the Sermon has been complied with, the latter part will come naturally. The secret of right living is to have the indwelling of the Spirit of him who knew no sin, neither was guile found in his mouth.

It is a token of God's love that he asks us for our highest and deepest affection. It is no more than the husband asks of his wife, or the wife of the husband, for the reason that true love is jealous in the right sense of the word. God loves us, hence he wants all of our heart's affection; indeed he wants the best of our talent, our labor, our love and all that makes up a true and devoted service. And if we neglect to render unto him that which is his by right of creation and redemption, the talent will be taken from us and given unto one more worthy. If we have reserves in our heart, the liberty in prayer and testimony will be taken from us and we shall be as the barren fig-tree, only to be cut down when Mercy can no longer prevail. But if we improve our talents, keeping nothing from our Lord and Master, we shall find the springs of our spiritual life flowing copiously in blessing upon our own souls and those of others. Let us remember that, "For he that hath, to him shall be given; and he that hath not, from him shall be taken even that which he hath." With such an irrevocable spiritual law staring us in the face may we not with the poet sing in a deeper, more meaningful way,

"O may it all my powers engage
To do my Master's will."

Then we should give God our best because he gave us his best. Jesus, the only begotten of the Father, sacrificed himself and the Father gave him to save us from the curse that rested upon us from the fall. God gave his almighty ALL for us, should we not give our little all for him? We have nothing to offer but hearts redeemed from sin and filled with love divine, and it were base ingratitude to withhold that which our Father yearns to have—our heart's devotion.

I can do no better in closing this meditation than to give you the thought couched in a poem I recently came across. Read it, and ask yourself if you have met the conditions.

"Christ wants the best. He in the far-off ages
Once claimed the firstling of the flock, the finest of the wheat,
And still he asks his own with gentlest pleading
To lay their highest hopes and brightest talents at his feet.
He'll not forget the feeblest service, humblest love;
He only asks that of our store we give to him
The best we have.

"Christ gives the best. He takes the hearts we offer,
And fills them with his glorious beauty, joy and peace,
And in his service, as we're growing stronger,
The calls to grand achievements still increase.
The richest gifts for us on earth, or in the heaven above,
Are hid in Christ. In Jesus we receive
The best we have.

"And is our best too much? O friends, let us remember
How once our Lord poured out his soul for us.
And in the prime of his mysterious manhood
Gave up his precious life upon the cross.
The Lord of lords, by whom the worlds were made,
Through bitter grief and tears gave us
The best he had."

A Pertinent Question.

I should like a definite answer to this question: Has the Methodist Church a fixed system of Bible doctrine? Is there any system of doctrine supposed to be essential to salvation, and the highest development of Christian character which Methodist people, North and South, East and West, are required, or expected to believe?

Is it not a fact that professors in theological schools, and preachers in Methodist pulpits can teach and preach almost anything they please, without any probability of a trial for heresy?

Is it not a fact that the Methodist preacher who is entirely friendly to modernism, and is opposed to certain doctrines of Methodism, and decidedly opposed to revivals; in fact, who lays but little emphasis on the doctrine and experience of the new birth, is a more acceptable man as pastor in all of the more important churches in Methodism, than the real Methodist preacher who is free from the taint of modernism, who insists on the original doctrines and experiences of early Methodism?

I do not believe an organization claiming to be a church of Jesus Christ has a right to exist and ask for the exemption of taxation upon its property, without a clearly stated system of doctrine resting upon a firm scriptural foundation to which the teachers in its institutions of learning, the pastors in its pulpits, and the members in its pews firmly hold.

Something more on this subject later.

Believing that a Divinely-called, wholly-sanctified, well-equipped, Spirit-filled ministry is one of the greatest needs of our times, and for all time to come, I am glad to make a donation for the upbuilding of the Asbury Theological Seminary at Wilmore, Ky.

For this great work, I promise to give $..... per year for five years, first installment due September 1, 1931. I will join all who are helping in this good work in prayer for the blessing of the Lord to rest upon it.

DAVID RAISES AN ARMY.

Mrs. Geneva Mendenhall.

David left Saul's Court so suddenly that he had neither food nor weapons, nor did he know where to find refuge from the king's hatred. One day he came upon the little city of Nod, and wandering into the Tabernacle he asked the chief priest, Ahimelech, to feed him, saying that Saul had sent him that way on an important secret mission.

The priest not only fed him with the sacred bread of the Tabernacle but offered him the sword which had once belonged to the great old Philistine giant, Goliath. So David took several loaves of bread and the big sword and went away into the land of the Philistines where even among his old enemies he felt safer than in the country of King Saul.

But the Philistines soon remembered who he was and would have seized and punished him, but he pretended to be crazy so that he was able to escape, returning to his own hills of Judah. Here he hid in a large cave. In a little while men began to gather about David as their leader, so that before long he had an army of some four hundred men, all brave, good fighters, and loyal to him.

One day as Saul sat out of doors with all his nobles about him, an Edomite by the name of Doeg told Saul of how he had been in the Tabernacle on the day when Ahimelech gave David the priests' bread and the giant's sword. Saul became very angry and ordered that Ahimelech and all the other priests be taken and brought before him. When he asked them why they rebelled against him and befriended his enemy, Ahimelech spoke up and reproved King Saul. This made Saul more furious than ever and he ordered the guard to kill the priests, eighty-five men in all. But the soldiers refused to commit such a dreadful deed.

But Doeg, the Edomite, obeyed the king, and killed not only the priests but all their families, except one man, a son of Ahimelech who escaped and fled to the camp of David, taking the robes of the chief priest with him. Then David mourned because his visit to the Tabernacle had brought such an awful fate upon these men. And when all the people heard of this dreadful deed, many of them left Saul and turned to David.

Questions.

1. How were David and Saul related?
2. What other member of Saul's family loved David dearly?
3. Why did the chief priest help David?

Dear Aunt Bettie: I am a young man of thirty years. I gave my heart and life to Jesus last August. I have felt the call to preach very definitely. The devil tells me that I am too old, but thank God I know it isn't so. The good Book tells us that John the Baptist was thirty years old when he was called to preach. John became a great worker for God. He preached sinners to repentance. If we had a few hundred preachers in old America like John was it would be more for God. The most of preachers will get up and read a text from the Bible and go to preaching money and it multiplied, and never get back to their text. The thing they should mention is God and his wonderful power to save. I am sorry to say the people have become tired of such preaching, and have taken to cars and picture shows. These things are damning millions of souls. I read Mr. Henry Ford's letter about olden times and the present days of the car. Look back before the cars came in America. What great times the people had going to church in buggies and wagons and how the Lord poured out his fire from heaven on the people. Since we have the car multitudes get in their cars and go by the churches on pleasure trips. Cars have robbed the people of their souls and bodies' welfare and have sent thousands of poor souls into eternity unprepared to meet God. These hard times that the people are experiencing is only the word of God being fulfilled. God says, that there will be famines, pestilences and earthquakes in divers places. By the signs we know that the end of time is at the door. God says to lay up treasures in heaven, not on earth. Money is most people's god these days. God says the merchants will throw their money into the streets and their gold and silver will canker and will be a witness against them in that great day. And what a sad day that will be if you are not ready. God says to give to the poor and needy. We must obey his will or die and go to hell. God has put it in my heart to go to Asbury College. I have a wife and four small children, and I am not able to go to school. I am a poor boy, but thank God I was brought up in a Christian home and I know that God will open the way for me to go to school. I have surrendered all to him and God being my helper I am determined to do his will.

I will have to work my way through school if it is God's will, but anything for Jesus let me do.

Haynes Moody.

Waynesboro, Miss.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a South Carolina boy join your happy band of boys and girls? I am nine years of age and in the fourth grade. A boy and girl and I are the smartest ones in the room. I get on the honor roll every month. My teacher is Miss Burgess. I like her, too. Daddy takes The Herald. He gave me and sister a Bible for a birthday present. He had already given my other sister a Bible. He got them from The Herald. I go to the M. E. Church every Sunday. I like to go to Sunday school. My first name is Herbert, my second name begins with A, and ends in N. The middle letter is E. It has eight letters in it. If any one guesses my middle name please write me and I will be sure to write you. My pet is a little dog named Teddy. I have a sweetheart; if you write me I will tell you her name. I have brown eyes, dark hair, and am about 56 inches tall. Be sure to write to me.

Herbert A. Sturkey.

Box 142, McCormick, S. C.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I thought after so long I would come in just to see what you and all the cousins were doing. I think The Herald is a fine paper. My dear mother is sick. I haven't missed a day in school this winter. Grandma and grandpa got their house burned last Tuesday and everything they had. I got a letter from a girl after I wrote to The Herald. I would love to receive several more letters. Who can guess my middle name? It begins with M and ends with N and has six letters in it.

Henry M. Hess.

Galax, Va.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Have you room in your happy band of boys and girls for an Arizona girl to join you? This is the first time I have written. I was fourteen years old Jan. 26, 1931. Have I a twin? If so, please write me. Who can guess my middle name? It begins with M and ends with E. It has five letters in it. Whoever can guess it I will write to them. I hope Mr. W. B. is out gathering eggs when this arrives, so will close before he gets in.

Jessie M. Jacobs.

Williams, Arizona.

Dear Aunt Bettie: This is my first letter to The Herald. I am in the second grade, and am eight years old. My birthday is Nov. 8. If I have a twin please write. My father is the Methodist preacher. I like to go to church. I go to Church and Sunday school every Sunday that I can. Can you guess my middle name? It begins with V and ends with A. It has eight letters in it. I hope Mr. W. B. doesn't get my letter before it is in print.

Marjie Pro.

Lenora, Kan.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you please move over a wee bit and admit a Nebraska girl to your happy band? I am seventeen years old, have brown wavy hair, blue eyes and am about five feet, three inches tall. Say boys, what's the matter, you're getting way behind? Better hurry up. I often wonder why so many young folks would rather be at a movie than to church on Sunday nights. I think there are a lot of boys and girls whose parents have taught them right from wrong; and not to go to such places, but still they go. I cannot enjoy myself at a place I know is wrong, and where my parents would not want to find me. Here is a poem I like very much.

"My Telephone."

I've a telephone to glory,

Yes, an individual 'phone,

With a golden wire suspended,

Twixt my heart and Father's throne.

Oh, the wires are never crossed and Never out of order there;

They are managed by my Father,

And he keeps them in repair.

When my heart cries "Abba Father,"

He attends my fervent prayer,

I am never disappointed

For my Father's always there.

Oh, how patiently he listens,

Never coldly turns away,

Never bangs up the receiver,

Though I call him night and day.

Off I hear my 'phone bell ringing,

'Tis my Father calling me,

He has some important message

To his child across the sea.

As I listen, I am strengthened,

For his voice is full of love,

And I praise him for the union,

'Twixt my heart and his above.

Blue Eyes.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you move over and let a little Kentucky girl join your happy band of boys and girls? I am eleven years old Feb. 21. I am four feet, seven inches and one-half. I have brown hair, blue eyes and light complexion. I want all the girls and boys to write to me. I hope Mr. W. B. is sweeping the floor when my letter comes. I will answer every letter I receive.

Nona Lee Thomason.

Rt. 3, Box 113, Leitchfield, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a little Jerome girl join your happy band of girls and boys? I am nine years old, have fair complexion, brown eyes and blond hair. My birthday was March 23. If I have a twin, let me know. If you can guess my name I will send you my picture. It starts with D and ends with S, and has five letters in it.

D. Lynell Haven.

Box 145, Jerome, Ark.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I will write a few lines. I hope you are real well. I am going to school at Carmel. I'm in the sixth grade at school. I'm eleven years of age. I go to Sunday school. I enjoy reading page ten. I enjoy reading the letters. I know lots of poetry. I would like for you to put one poem in The Herald. The name of the poem is

Our Father.

Our Father, thou almighty one, whose glory far outshines, America is giving thee deep gratitude for liberty. We thank thee for the good Mayflower that was protected by thy power and brought brave souls across the sea, so they could freely worship thee.

I have one sister but no brothers. I am four feet tall and my birthday is Oct. 30. I have brown eyes and black hair.

Hazel Pauline Hamilton.

Rt. 1, Milton, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a little Ohio girl join your band of happy girls and boys? I am eight years old and in the fourth grade. I go to school at Oak Valley. My birthday is June 10. Mama takes The Herald. I go to church every Sunday. My little brother and I have a pet rabbit apiece; also a little bantam hen. This is my first letter and I hope to see it in print, as I want to surprise papa. With best wishes to Aunt Bettie and all the cousins, I will close.

Dorothy Moore.

Gospel Tents

Smith Manufacturing Company
DALTON, GA.
34 Years in Business

Dear Aunt Bettie: As this is my first letter I would like to see it in print: I am twelve years old. I go to Henry's School. I am in the seventh grade. My teacher's name is Miss Gladys Vance. I have read the Bible through once. I have three brothers and three sisters. My father takes The Herald and I enjoy reading page ten.

Noami Ruth Sumney.

Rt. 3, Eighty-Four, Pa.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a Louisiana girl join your happy band of boys and girls? Can you guess my middle name? It starts with F and ends with S. It has seven letters in it. My mother takes The Herald and I read page ten and it is very good. My birthday is April 27. Have I a twin? If so write me a card. I am in the fourth grade at the Lida Benton School. Miss Culpepper is my teacher. I go to the Nazarene Sunday school.

Betty Gochenour.

Dear Aunt Bettie: It is so much pleasure for me to read The Pentecostal Herald. Will write some to the cousins' page. I get so much help in studying the Bible from that paper. I thank God for all his people. I am praying that Dr. Morrison may be spared many years for in these times we don't have any holiness preachers to spare. I am going to testify as we have testimony meetings in our church every service, which I enjoy so much. I am glad God saved me when a little girl and on July 21, 1926, Rev. C. H. Capps preached from this text, "Have you received the Holy Ghost since you believed?" and I felt that meant me, and God sanctified me. Praise his holy name for ever. I am a Wesleyan Methodist. My pastor is Rev. P. J. Parker, a real man of God. The world is so opposed to holiness but it just suits me. As the worldly folks will say we can't live a life above sin, I just read St. John 17, the prayer that Jesus prayed just before he left this world.

Some get offended at what the world says but I don't feel like God's children have any time to get insulted at anything. We must just press on for we will soon be home. Five minutes in heaven will pay us for all we have stood in this world. I am glad I ever got acquainted with the holiness people for the Bible teaches that without holiness we cannot see the Lord. I mean to see the one that died for me.

I get to go to conference and camp meeting sometimes and that is like heaven to me. Everybody looks so good and clean, no smoke, no snuff, and no tobacco, just praise God. Our conference is at Colfax, N. C., in August and the camp meeting is just after the conference is over. We have large crowds of Wesleyans, Pilgrims, Nazarenes and Southern Methodists that believe in a full gospel. I would love to have the privilege of hearing Dr. Morrison preach one time as I love his sermons so much in the paper, but if I never have this privilege I have told my folks I will know him when we meet on the golden streets in Glory.

I had the privilege of hearing Uncle Bud Robinson at Camp Free near Conley Springs, N. C., for which I praise God. And I read his books, they are real food to my soul. I will close and give room for others. Dear cousins, let's try and make the Cousins' Page better; it doesn't differ how we look, let's tell how we behave, for pretty is as pretty does. Please pray for our home; with best wishes to all.

Mrs. Horace Dagenhart.

FALLEN ASLEEP

COBB.

Funeral services for Henry C. Cobb, 82, who died at the Fred Roberts Memorial Hospital, Thursday, were held this afternoon at 3 o'clock from the First Methodist Church. The Rev. Gaston Hartfield officiated, assisted by Dr. H. E. Draper and Rev. C. W. Perkins.

He had been a resident of Corpus Christi for the last twelve years. He was a member of the First Methodist Church and the founder of the Henry Cobb Bible class.

He is survived by two brothers, W. F. Cobb, of Leavenworth, Kan., and J. D. Cobb, of Mullin, Texas, and one nephew, H. J. Cobb, of Corpus Christi. Pallbearers were J. B. Brown, J. W. Horton, J. M. Graves, J. Ivel McClain and J. E. Douglass.

Burial was in Rose Hill cemetery under the direction of David T. Peel.

JORDAN.

Bro. J. J. Jordan, after an illness of a few days, went to be with Jesus. He died Feb. 13, 1931. Bro. Jordan was born in Mississippi, January 13, 1847, but lived in Natchitoches Parish near Shamrock, La., for forty-one years.

He was a Christian for seventy-five years and a member of the M. E. Church; also he was licensed to exhort in that church forty-two years ago. Bro. Jordan lived in a Christian home for seventy-eight years, then the Lord called his wife to that better land, and he lived with his children until God called him home.

He leaves to mourn him three sons and one daughter, and a host of relatives and friends. One son, Rev. Wilson Jordan, is a Methodist preacher. His daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Cornline, was the wife of a Methodist preacher. Bro. Jordan was a loving father, a sincere, humble Christian. He has fought the good fight and finished his work. Peace be to his ashes.

The funeral was conducted by Rev. W. P. Prothro at Shamrock, La.

A WONDERFUL CONVERSION—A GLIMPSE OF GOD.

I had been to the great revival conducted by Rev. W. E. Thomas at Highland Park Methodist Church, and the Spirit of God touched my heart. I had just finished reading a story of God's Spirit and laid the book down when it came on me. I was busy shaving a man, when this Spirit so gloriously engulfed me and carried me away and I had a vision of the real thing that all human beings are connected to the living God by his love and the Comforter. To me, this man appeared as dead as I shaved him, but God showed me that everyone without his grace is as a dead body. As I stood in that great light, my heart went out in pity to that man if he had not the living spirit. Then it was that I realized that all men are brothers and sisters, and how badly we need to know this.

I got busy and thought how could I keep this wonderful feeling and experience. Then I thought, how can I be a child of God and remain in a barber shop? How could I avoid vulgar talk, bad company, drunkards, who would kid me about my religion.

Just as I finished shaving this man, God sent a man in as an example for my doubts; one whom I always detested, as he was always saying something silly and foolish, and this time was no exception, but I saw him in a different light. I was sorry for him and realized that maybe this was all that he was capable of doing, and that I loved him instead of ridiculing him and being disgusted. The Lord sent Brother Thomas to instruct me and now I am praising him for deliverance.

While I look back, I see myself tied to the image of darkness lying there in weights and doubts and dissatisfaction. Then I see a light that illuminates, that displays a clearer reality. Faith in God puts you into the light. Then in your mind's eye you span heights and depths; there is a clearness that will suddenly make you shiver. I see it, I comprehend it fully, Peace. The weight that nothing erased before is lifted at last. Something unknown and new takes wings. Peace, sweet peace, trembling, tremulous expectancy. First a glimpse, presentiment, hope, exaltation, Peace. I tremble for joy and am not ashamed.

Chester Polston.

A MOTHER'S SOLILOQUY.

Tobacco? Let me see. What good thing can I say for you? Well, the best that I can say for you is that you are a tyrant—a tyrant, do you hear? You've held my loved ones in your grasp. Time and time again they have said, "I'm done with you." But time and time again I've seen them fall prey to your wiles and come home with the secret written on their faces that you had conquered again.

I've seen that bright-eyed boy of mine, whom I held in my arms as a tiny babe and dreamed and planned over, fall to the charms of Lady Nicotine who ruined him body and soul! Ruined him, O yes, my God, ruined him, so that I have determined by God's help to fight you to the end.

And yet you were not satisfied. I had a daughter—a lovely fragile girl, given to me by God above. She often came to me with her confidences, her hopes, her ideals, her plans for the future. But alas! in order to be a good sport she fell prey to the cigarette habit and now I watch her with sinking heart, as she goes about with lagging steps and lusterless eyes. Then I whisper, "O God have mercy upon us all and save our boys and girls through Jesus Christ. Amen."

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

REV. O. G. MINGLEDORFF, D. D.

Lesson III.—April 19, 1931.

Subject.—The rich man and Lazarus. Luke 16:19-31.

Golden Text.—Lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal. Matt. 6:20.

Time.—January A. D. 30.

Place.—Perea.

Introduction.—In the lesson of last Sunday we studied the parable of the Prodigal Son. Passing into the sixteenth chapter, we find the Master still in Perea, and in what seems to have been a private talk with his disciples concerning stewardship. As a sort of clincher to what he was saying we have a passage from the Sermon on the Mount: "No servant can serve two masters: for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon."

While this teaching seems to have been intended for the ears of the disciples, the fourteenth verse of this sixteenth chapter tells us that the covetous Pharisees heard all these things. They must have been a sort of side audience. The Master took time to give them a short lesson concerning hypocrisy, divorce and adultery, and passed on to the subject of our today's lesson.

Perhaps Jesus Christ was the only preacher in all the ages with sufficient courage to face the money question squarely. We quibble, and try to tone down his severe teaching, lest the rich should get offended and withhold their contributions. We compromise with wealth, fearing that it may not see fit to support our pet plans; but Jesus had no more respect for a millionaire than he had for a pauper. We get dollars so close to our eyes that we cannot see men; but he was never blinded by the love of money. To put it in plain terms: We value dollars; he values men. We need money; he needs men. We think our need is money; but his need is ours. The church is not lagging for want of finances, but for want of Spirit-filled men and women: What a blessing she could be to the world, if she had the courage to face men and issues with the honesty of Jesus Christ.

Comments on the Lesson.

19. There was a certain rich man.—This may be history, or it may be but a parable. The difference does not affect the lesson. Is it a sin to be in possession of great wealth? If not, it certainly is very dangerous. Dr. Adam Clarke says of this man: "His being rich is, in Christ's account, the first part of his sin. To this circumstance our Lord adds nothing: he does not say that he was born to a large estate; or that he acquired one by improper methods; or that he was haughty or insolent in the possession of it. Yet here is the first degree of his reprobation—he got all he could, and kept all to himself." I fear the good commentator has made an accusation in this last clause which the text does not warrant. Maybe he was not so stingy. But there is a charge against him: he "was clothed in purple and fine linen, and fared sumptuously every day."

20. There was a certain beggar named Lazarus.—We are not told who he was. Such characters were common in Palestine at that time. We are told that this beggar was laid at the rich man's gate, and that he was "full of sores." He was an object of pity—possibly not able to stand upon his feet at all.

21. Desiring to be fed with the crumbs which fell from the rich man's table.—He did not ask for much; nor does the record say that he received even that. Certainly the rich man gave him no protection; for had he done so, the prowling dogs would not have been permitted to punish him in his helplessness by licking his sores. That was no kindness on their part, as some have taught. They tore away protecting scabs, and exposed the raw wounds.

22. The beggar died.—We know not how long he lay in his helpless condition at the rich man's gate. Perhaps he was placed there every morning and taken away every evening for sometime; but I am only guessing. The little time was not important; but it was something tremendous that he "was carried by the angels into Abraham's bosom"—into heaven, for that was what Abraham's bosom meant to a Jew. The sufferings of this present world are not worthy to be compared with the glory that awaits us in the coming kingdom. The rich man also died.—Yes; money cannot stop death. And was buried.—He is sometimes called Dives; but that simply means rich. I suppose they gave his dead body a great funeral. If things then were anything like they are today, all his rich neighbors were in the funeral procession, and flowers were abundant. It was in keeping for the minister to pronounce a eulogy upon him. Sympathizing friends visited the widow, and wept with her. How sorry they were that this great man had to die when he was so much needed in the community. We are not told what was done with the dead body of Lazarus. Maybe it was thrown out to the dogs. That mattered little: the real man was in glory.

23. In hell he lifted up his eyes. Some modern wiseacres are telling us that there is no such place as hell; but Jesus Christ says there is; and those chaps will not be in it ten minutes before they will be, like the rich man, crying for a drop of water. Being in torments.—Hell is an awful reality. If, as many suppose, Jesus used figurative language to describe it, what must the reality be? The word used here for hell is the Greek word Hades, which properly signifies the abode of departed spirits. It was supposed to be divided into two sections, one for the good and one for the bad. Our lesson says that the rich man saw "Abraham afar off, and Lazarus in his bosom." That expression was purely Jewish for heaven itself.

24. Father Abraham.—I judge from this expression that the rich man must have been a Jew. Have mercy on me.—What a pitiful cry; but it was too late for mercy. Send Lazarus.—When Lazarus lay at his gate begging for crumbs would have been a good time to communicate with him. Why send Lazarus? "That he may dip the tip of his finger in water, and cool my tongue, for I am tormented in this flame." This is no make-believe. Jesus knew what he was saying. There is a hell; and may God save us from it. It is a terribly real place and condition. It is the penitentiary of the universe. It was prepared for the devil and his angels; but there is no other place to confine and punish bad people. Only one drop of water; but not even that much could be had.

25. Abraham said, Son.—That was almost enough to break the heart of a demon—no rebuke or condemnation, but Son. Remember.—Fearful! In hell, and memory still living and active. Yes; we shall never forget. I think there was an unutterable kindness in the words of Abraham when he said: "Thou in thy lifetime receivest thy good things, and likewise Lazarus evil things; but now he is comforted, and thou art tormented." This was not the reason why Lazarus was in heaven and the rich man in hell. Heart conditions had determined destiny, as it always does.

26. A great gulf fixed.—I am not sure that any one knows exactly what this means. Whether real or figurative, it is a barrier between heaven and hell, that renders it impossible that any one should be able to pass from one place to the other. Death settles our future destiny, and settles it eternally. There is no such thing taught in the Bible as a second chance.

27. Send him to my father's house.—Strange how pitifully he prays. Did he still have some feeling for former loved ones, or was he afraid that their coming would increase his misery? Note how he clings to the word father in addressing Abraham. There is no question as to Abraham's future: he is in heaven.

28. I have five brethren.—The inference is that they were of his own sort—none of them prepared for eternity. This he knew, and for some reason wished to warn them against hell. No matter how dreadful hell may be in itself, I am satisfied that its horrors will be increased if one's family should join him there.

29. They have Moses and the prophets.—God has given us all the teaching and all the warning that we can possibly need. If we will not believe the Bible, and live by it, there is nothing left to us but hell forevermore.

30. If one went unto them from the dead, they will repent.—No. The last verse settles that matter. "If they hear not Moses and the prophets, neither will they be persuaded, though one rose from the dead." If one will not yield to the Holy Spirit, there is no semblance of hope for him; he must perish.

If words mean anything, and they do, Jesus Christ is here giving an unanswerable endorsement to Moses and the Hebrew prophets. The only answer that can be made to him would be to impeach his Deity; and that no man, save a knave or a fool, would dare to do. As sure as Jesus is God, Moses lived, and wrote the Pentateuch; and just as certain is it that there is a hell and a heaven.

NOTICE!

I will be glad to come and hold a revival meeting for any small group of holiness folks (two or more families) that can secure a school house, abandoned church or store building to hold the meeting in. I am an evangelist in good standing in my church. I am a converted Hebrew. I can give references and will gladly do so if requested. I want to help in the great white harvest fields, in the communities where the work is most needed. All I ask is entertainment and whatever the folks give me as an offering will be satisfactory. I just closed a very gracious meeting in the Holiness Christian Church in West Conshohocken, Pa., with Rev. Mrs. Ella J. Nace, as the pastor. God met with us in an unusual way and the results were splendid considering conditions. Several saved and sanctified and a nice class of twelve taken into the church with others to follow.

We will be glad to hear from any one wanting a holiness meeting, where the Gospel is preached in a way that it rebukes sin and wins folks to Christ. My slate is in The Pentecostal Herald. I have served several different denominations.

OCEOLA, OHIO.

We are in need of a revival in our town and would like to hear from some one who has faith, who is not afraid of work; one who knows how to get hold of God in prayer and pray the power down. Entertainment and board will be furnished and God alone will give the other. The pastor is making this request. This is a country place of a couple of hundred people, an average farming country to draw on, but not much help in the church. Would like some one in June, if possible. If you are looking for a hard field, where souls are to be saved, address Rev. F. T. Nichols, Oceola, Ohio, pastor United Brethren Church.

NOTICE.

The next annual meeting of the National Association for the Promotion of Holiness will be held at University Park, Iowa, June 9 to 15. A splendid corps of workers is engaged and a fine program is in preparation.

RISE.

Rise! equipped for lofty flight;
Soar above with tireless wing;
With the Spirit's wondrous might Seek the palace of your King.

'Bove earth's highest mountain climb,
Seek the bright celestial shore;
Leave the transient things of time
And your heritage explore.

Leave God's footstool just one day,
View Jehovah's rich Bequest;
By his Spirit borne away
Enter your abiding rest.

Grasp the glory held in store
And the life unending see;
With the saints of God adore
Him who died on Calvary.

On faith's lofty summit stand;
Upward lift your longing eyes,
And behold the Holy Land,
Your own Home in Paradise.

THE EVANGELISTIC HOLINESS ASSOCIATION, INC.

"Holiness Becometh Thine House."

Statement of its Organization and its Purposes.

The Evangelistic Holiness Association is organized under a Board of Trustees constituted by a Charter issued under the laws of the State of Florida, granted Nov. 10, 1930. The Board met on January 10, 1931, completed its organization, electing permanent officers, forming its financial Budget and duly empowering its Executive Committee to attend to the details of the work before the Board.

This Association is not organized to compete with existing evangelical denominations in their Christian work or camp meetings, but proposes to confine itself to elemental gospel work which may be of value to all fellow-Christians who love holiness and are true to the Word of God and the great essentials of the Gospel. It prefers to co-operate to make the success of Evangelism paramount. Its outstanding objects are as follows:

1. Intense Evangelism: The Carrying of the Full Gospel, according to the original doctrines of Methodism and the Holy Word of God, into the highways and hedges in these last days. Particularly are we interested in tent campaigns in the smaller and out-of-the-way, unreached places, conducted by tried and true men and women, Spirit-filled, who have a passion for souls akin to that which mastered the Lord Jesus Christ while here on earth.

2. A Bible Training School of Evangelism: A school of practical training for God-called men and women, to fit them for the very practical things of spiritual evangelism, in order that the efforts put forth might count to the maximum as they go out to win souls for God.

3. Camp Meetings: To conduct two camp meetings each year when practical and make them the period from which will be launched our semi-annual evangelistic campaigns; these to cover Florida in the winter and spring months and other states in the summer months, over as wide field as possible under the strict supervision and direction of the Association.

4. A Year Round Program: Proposing to carry on twelve months in the year, Evangelistic Campaigns through our workers in tents and tabernacles, rather than simply a ten-day campaign once a year, and to build up a strong spiritual community of real holiness people who meet the standard requirements of the Association and who are tired of spending their time in the winter in Florida in large, wicked cities, but would like a genuine, spiritual atmosphere; who will lease lots for a nominal sum and build thereon a suitable cottage under the regulations of the Association with Warranty Deed in lease, in-operative unless grounds are abandoned as a camp ground site, in which case the deed will become fully operative, thereby securing to the leaseholder, the lot and all improvements thereon.

Headquarters and Officers.

The headquarters of the Association is at Orlando, Florida. Its officers are: Rev. E. H. Crowson, Pres.; Rev. E. C. Wills, Sec.-Treas.; Mr. A. P. Whitman, 1st V-Pres.; and Mrs. L. M. Crouch, 2nd V-Pres. All communications concerning camp ground site, applications for membership, donations to the work, contracts for evangelistic work and other matter should be addressed to Rev. E. C. Wills, P. O. Box 1944, Orlando, Fla. The spiritual famine of the times is great but so is the power of our God. We ask the true friends of real Bible holiness to join with us in prayer that the blessing and guidance of God may be upon this great work and mighty revival blessings come to many immortal souls to the glory of his Precious Name.

The Executive Committee.

PERSONALS.

E. E. Watts: "I have been in the field of General Evangelism for seven years and the Lord has blessed my work by giving me hundreds of souls. For a long time I have been feeling a burden that we as holiness churches ought to push out and do more to spread Scriptural Holiness over these lands. My plan is to purchase a good tent and take with me a first-class men's quartette, with good music and enter the towns and cities and put on extensive campaigns to get people saved and sanctified. I am giving God's people everywhere a chance to reap some of the reward from this great work by helping us along in a substantial way. If any of the Lord's people who read this feel led to help us please send your gift, whether large or small, to Evangelist E. E. Watts, 1106 Liberty St., Allentown, Pa. I am sure the Lord will bless you."

Rev. A. C. Searcy and wife are holding a meeting in Socoro, N. M. They are having success and the hungry people are finding the Lord. The churches are dead but when the gospel is preached the people respond and are saved. God is crowning the efforts of Brother Searcy with victory.

Guy W. Green, layman of Kansas City, Mo., conducted special services for the Ministerial Alliance of Kankakee, Ill., seven churches co-operating, March 11-22. The music was in charge of E. L. Frizen of Chicago. Although the meeting was held in the auditorium of the First M. E. Church, the largest in Kankakee, the place was filled nightly, even on Saturday, and on both Sunday nights large numbers of persons were turned away. The officers of the Kankakee Ministerial Alliance say the results in every way exceeded their expectations.

Rev. Andrew Johnson: "The revival campaign in the big Gospel Tabernacle of this city (Franklin, Pa.) is starting off fine. Sunday was a great day. Billy Sunday was here a week before we came. He is still hitting on all cylinders and fighting the devil for all he is worth. We will be here till April 12. Let prayers ascend for the success of the campaign, that many souls may be saved. Rev. L. P. Lehman, pastor of the Tabernacle, is a fine worker. He has accomplished much the past two years in Franklin."

Rev. J. B. McBride: "On account of constant changes made in my slate, caused by financial depression, and other things, I have not been able to keep my slate in the papers, but have been busy, the Lord opening the doors for me, and we have seen a goodly number of souls saved. On account of unsettled conditions I have some open dates from April 15, on through the months which I shall be glad to give any place, or people, wanting my service. I make no specific demands, but am willing to do my best for God and souls, and will be satisfied with the best that can be done for me. We must keep up the revival effort, and get the people saved, we must sacrifice with the pastors, and churches, and do our best. I can be reached through my home address by letter or wire, 1234 N. Mentor Ave., Pasadena, Calif.

Roy L. Hollenback: "Some months ago, I became acquainted with Brother Nyles H. Eaton, of North Billerica, Mass., while conducting a meeting in that place. In fact he was gloriously sanctified in those meetings. He had been for some years the leading spirit in the Baptist Church there, being superintendent of the Sunday school, and holding other offices of prominence, besides leading their choir. I have never seen anyone whose experience of sanctification was more glorious, and who developed more rapidly in the things of God than this precious young man. His ability as a song leader and soloist so impressed the congregation of the First Church of the Nazarene, at Lowell, Mass., that we engaged him for the singing in a revival held by Brother A. B. Carey. He not only answered to all our expectations but far exceeded them—so much so that Evangelist Carey has been advertising him elsewhere, and has opened up for him considerable work among other pastors in New England. As Brother Eaton feels definitely led to devote his time to evangelism, I do not hesitate to say that, new as he is in the way of holiness, I know of no man in this line who will add more fire to a meeting through the singing than Brother Eaton. He lives in prayer, he sings with real glory, he is there when the altar service is on, and he is not spoiled by professionalism in the least. He will be glad to serve pastors or camp meetings anywhere; and those in the New England section should by all means use this man."

THERE ARE 233 STORIES—FINE FOR TEACHERS

Quite frequently teachers tell how much they appreciate the Bible Story Book in helping teach and explain the Bible to others. The arrangement of the stories makes the book very usable. The Bible stories are divided into periods of Bible history and arranged chronologically. There are 233 stories, each complete, yet linked in such a way as to make one continuous, beautiful narrative of the Bible.

PICTURES ARE FOR CHILDREN FROM 1 TO 99

That is why so much attention has been given to pictures in this book. There are three kinds—drawings, actual photographs, and beautiful color reproductions, nearly 200 of them. They tell stories in themselves. Children will study them by the hour. The little tots who are too young to read will get the story so well impressed by the pictures that they can retell the story almost in detail from seeing the pictures. The colored pictures are exceptional pieces of art.

There Are 64 Pages of Helps Especially Adapted for Home Study

48 Pages of These Contain Questions on the Stories
In the back of the book are 48 pages of interesting and thought-provoking questions. There are five or six questions covering each story in the book. These have been carefully and studiously prepared. The test questions will be found valuable to teachers.

16 Pages of These Give Outstanding Facts About the Bible

1. How We Got Our Bible. Tells the story in a few words.
2. The Books of the Bible. A few concise, illuminating words about each Book of the Bible and the authors. Very helpful.
3. Interesting Facts About the Bible.
4. Great Prayers of the Bible.
5. Our Lord's Parables.

Most of these features are not contained in any other Bible-story book.

The Days of His Flesh:

The Earthly Life of Our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

By REV. DAVID SMITH

The leading Bible scholars, ministers, and editors throughout the English-speaking world proclaim this great work as the one outstanding Life of Christ for every man today. It offers a biography of the Master, elaborate in detail and extending through fifty masterful chapters and more than 800 pages, tracing every phase of our Saviour's earthly career. The author rests his case solidly upon the evangelical records. He adduces abundant evidence to show the historicity of Jesus and to confute those theories which would make Him a mere myth arising out of a haze of reverence and superstition. He is equally sound on the deity of Jesus and he shows conclusively that the acceptance of Christ as the Lord of Heaven must be regarded as the cornerstone of the Church.

LET ME DIE.

W. R. Livingston.

Lord, to all unworthy, low ambitions,
Let me die.
Thou, the Source of strength and power,
Art always nigh.
In hours of trial and deepest need,
God to his table, my soul will lead;
There on Heavenly Manna I will feed,
To Thee I fly.
If I would have Christ reign and live within,
Then I must die.
If I would have all selfishness and sin,
Die out in me.
If his follower I would truly be,
I must look in faith to Calvary,
For Christ's blood shed on the Tree,
Was shed for me.
Yes, I must die to this old world,
If I would live.
If I would ask God's richest gift,
Then I must give.
To him, all my talents, strength and time,
That the Holy Spirit might be mine,
Come into my heart, Oh! Christ Divine:
I now am Thine.
From the bonds and snares of Satan,
Lord, keep me free.
In the shelter of the Rock of Ages,
I safe will be.
God fills my soul this very hour,
With the Holy Ghost, and power;
I am Thine and Thine alone;
All praise to Thee.
In the loving arms of Jesus,
Let me hide.
In the shadow of his wings
I will abide.
When my work on earth is done,
And the crown of Victory's won,
I shall dwell forever more
With God's dear Son.

A MIRACLE IN MODERN LIFE.

A Review of "God in the Slums"

By Commander Evangeline Booth.
(Copyright, 1931, Fleming H. Revell Co.)

As rats in a trap, men, women and children were drowned in the slums of London when the high winds from the storm-lashed North Sea swept up the river Thames and in the very heart of the teeming city made a sea of destruction of the waters that overflowed its banks. But let the author of this rare book tell the story.

A Salvation Army lassie approached a young man sitting at the back of a large meeting addressed by my father, William Booth. He looked disconsolate and unhappy. With gentle, winning courtesy she asked, "Can I help you in any way? Are you saved?" "Saved!" he retorted fiercely, "Why should I be saved? I am a reporter."

The author of this fascinating book is one who by his abilities rose from the rank of reporter to be the night editor of a London daily paper with a million or more circulation. One day he discovered that he was meant to be more than an editor. He was promoted to be himself.

We seek God in churches. We seek God in music. We seek God in art, in science, in the flowers of the field, the clouds of the sky, the waves of the sea, the trees of the forest, the song of the birds, and the glories of the mountains, the sun and the stars. We never seek God in the slums, but it was here Hugh Redwood found God, and God in the slums meant to him God in his soul.

The all-powerful gospel of God's boundless and irresistible love to all men however degraded, however impoverished, however desperate, broke upon him, not as a dogma, not as a sentiment, not as a sermon, but as the most astounding, absorbing, original and exclusive piece of "news" that had ever come under his trained observation.

This gospel was a fact that made the difference between unmentionable squalor and reasonable comfort, between indescribable dirt and habitual cleanliness, between unquotable blasphemy and humble reverence, between maddening remorse and the splendid sanity of an inspiring hope, between misery in the most tragic expression and happiness in the most glorious triumph over environment and heredity, between hell, here and hereafter, and heaven, here and hereafter. Never had it occurred to him that, as a newspaper man, it would be his fortune to come across such "a story" as this, and compared with it, the achievements of aviation, the sensations of sport, the rise and fall of governments, the wars and rumors of war, the revolutions and crimes and scandals that hitherto had provided his paper with headlines, faded into the normalcies of a back page. War? Here was the real war on which the future of mankind depends. Revolution? Here was the real emancipation from a cruel and oppressive autocracy of evil. Battle? Hugh Redwood found himself in the very foremost of the front trenches, fighting with the shock troops of the Lord of Hosts.

I am not surprised that already Great Britain has bought 120,000 copies of this book, and that from the royal family in the King's palace, to the high Churchman, the intelligent, and the man in the street, it is being read as the book of the hour. If ever there were a human document, genuine, and vivid and moving, we have it here. In these compelling pages, we can distinguish all the mingling melodies of the mighty symphony called life. There is the agony of tears. There is the ripple of laughter. There is the curse of hatred. There is the grace of blessing. Dickens never envisaged a degradation more appalling, nor St. Augustine or Wesley a redemption of the degraded more completely effective or more divinely lovely. We have the opposing ultimates—one hundred percent sin and one hundred percent salvation.

It is with a heart aroused to ineffaceable memories of arduous yet ennobling campaigns, fought to a finish in other days, that I have read these latest dispatches by a war correspondent on the battlefield that I know so well. The slums in the English cities, here described in such intimate, such graphic language, are the slums into the very depths of which as a girl, I voluntarily plunged. It was amid these people, so fearfully tempted, that I spent my youth, and, knowing the inside of these saloons, having taken my stand on these chill and loveless pavements, having stood in their rags at the wickets of the pawn shops and been the only mourner by their side in the Potter's Field, I can testify that in these pages there is not a syllable of exaggeration. The "Darkest England" for which my father appealed has seen the dawn, but still awaits the day.

MY LIFE'S STORY

The Autobiography of Bud Robinson

This is the book for which thousands have been waiting. It is years since "Uncle Buddy" has written a book dealing with his life and experiences. Now we have this volume, his autobiography, giving an intimate recital of his experiences from early childhood to the present time. Pathos, humor, optimism, scathing rebuke, with an amazing memory of detail unite to give this volume the peculiar charm that characterizes all of Bud Robinson's writings. Just as there is only one Bud Robinson so this is the only volume giving the complete story of his life up to the present.

Adam Clarke---Great Commentary

Dr. Clarke was one of a long succession of men who, in every age of the Christian Church, have applied the best energies of their intellect and heart to the study and interpretation of the Scriptures. The seven gifts which, according to Augustine, the true expositor of Scripture must possess—reverence, piety, science, fortitude, prudence, cleanness of heart, and heavenly wisdom—were his portions.

The studies of his earlier years always had a bearing on this great work. From the beginning he felt the need of being taught by God to understand his own word. Referring to this, he says: "No man ever taught me the doctrine I embrace; I received it singly by reading the Bible."

Sufficiently critical to aid the inquiries of the more serious student, and yet sufficiently popular to serve the purpose of general edification. He gives a lucid view of the several books of Scripture, as to their dates and authors, their scope and connection; he expounds the original text in a manner adapted to the deficiencies of the reader; he elucidates difficulties in chronology, history, and oriental manners; he develops the grand doctrines of revelation, and applies the whole to the great concerns of human salvation and duty.

One leading feature in its character is independence in thinking. While he availed himself of the labors of others, the great number of his expositions are emphatically his own.

DR. ADAM CLARKE'S COMMENTARY ON THE BIBLE

is one of the noblest works of the class in the entire domain of sacred literature. It is a thesaurus of general learning.

Its luminous expositions of the Law and the Gospel; its earnest and forceful appeals to the conscience of the sinner and the unbeliever; its rich counsels for the well-understood wants of the Christian's inner life; its endless exhibitions of general knowledge; and its valuable aids to the students of those holy tongues in which revelation took its first recorded forms—all will render this book the companion and the counselor of multitudes as long as the English language may endure. The man who accomplished it achieved immortality, his name having become identified with an indestructible monument of learning and religion.

We commend it as the most spiritual commentary published. Six large volumes, good paper, good binding, new type.

The story of victorious consecration tells itself. No need to point to a moral. But if the Salvation Army stands for Prohibition, can you be surprised after reading in these pages an English journalist's account of what ravages liquor inflicts on England? If, moreover, we of the Blood-and-Fire Flag are not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ, what wonder? It is power, and we cling to power. We are jealous of power, we claim power. We will have power. We wield power. For the power of God is unto salvation, and it is salvation of which the world today stands in unutterable and universal need.

HOLINESS OF HEART AND RIGHTEOUSNESS OF LIFE.

By The Editor.

IF the heart is pure the life will be clean. A holy heart means a righteous life. Out of the heart are the issues of life. If the fountain is purified by the power of God, the stream will be a pure stream.

* * * *

In religious teaching and Christian living we should not lose sight of the fact that in the whole scheme of the atonement, from the first sacrifice that was ever offered by a consecrated priest for the sins of the people, God's objective for the individual is a complete separation from sin. From first to last of divine revelation God has been seeking to separate us from sin and perfect us in holiness.

* * * *

It should be remembered that, apart from Christ and his atoning death, there is no salvation. We must come to Christ. We must reckon all things up to, and out from, the cross. We must have in our hearts the thought of the poet from first to last,

"In my hand no price I bring;

Simply to thy cross I cling."

To depart from the cross is to fail. To cling to the Christ of the cross, and to trust in the merit of his crucifixion and cleansing blood means victory here and hereafter.

* * * *

With holiness of heart and righteousness of life as our objective, as teacher and liver, we embrace the whole of redemption. Christian holiness involves recognition of the fact that I am a sinner. It involves repentance, true repentance, a broken heart and a contrite spirit. It involves, not only belief that Jesus is the Christ, and the Saviour of men, but it involves trust in him to save me, and a persevering trust until I have the witness of the Spirit, the blessed inward assurance that my sins are forgiven. It involves the discovery of the remains of sin; that I yet have carnal inclinations and uprisings. The discovery of the old man involves his crucifixion, a baptism with the Holy Ghost, a fiery purging of my nature, a cleansing out of carnality, the incoming, abiding, keeping and empowering of the Holy Ghost.

We grant the reader that what we have said in the above paragraph is much; it covers much ground, but we as sinners are in need of much, and God in his divine mercy has provided much. The fact is, God makes large requirements, but praise to his name, he makes provision to meet every requirement. In Christ we may find everything we need in order to become to be, and to do, all that God requires. Godliness hath the promise of the life here, and that which is to come. Without doubt the happy people are the people who have peace and joy and rest of soul, and a blessed assurance that they are prepared for whatever may come and, most of all, prepared for death and judgment. They, in the nature of things, must be best prepared for this life because they are prepared for the life to come. They have a peace and a joy that cannot be found by any other means in all the world. They indeed have the very best of this life, with the abiding assurance that the future is safe; that they are going forward into eternal life, with all the blessing and the glory that eternity holds, and God gives to those who embrace the salvation he so abundantly offers, at the tremendous price of the gift and sufferings of his Son, our glorified Lord and Saviour.

*****

Without Holiness No Man Shall See the Lord.

*****

PEOPLE BELIEVE WHAT THEY ARE TAUGHT.

WHEN people are born into the world they have no knowledge or learning; they are remarkably helpless, ignorant and dependent. They must be nursed, nurtured and taught. They have capacity to receive instruction. It is remarkable how hungry, receptive and retentive the young mind is. We could not hope to find more fertile, intellectual soil than the mind of a child. It comes into this new, big world full of so many things it never saw or heard of, or knows anything about. Its curiosity is aroused; it wants to know, hence its many questions. We cannot think of a finer or more delightful task or opportunity than to answer as cheerfully and intelligently as possible the questions of a child.

The child that is born in a heathen land is taught to worship idols and grows up believing that images carved out of wood, and hewn out of stone have some power to minister to its wants and to protect it from evil. These teachings, belief and convictions become so ingrained into it that it will fight to the death for its idol.

Roman Catholic children grow up believing what they are taught; and you may be sure they are carefully taught to believe what their parents believe. They believe in the mother church, in the priests, the bishops; they believe in the infallibility of the Pope. Their beliefs are ground into them; they carry them into their daily lives, into trade, into social life, into married relationships, and into politics. They believe what they are taught.

The great body of the Methodist Church is made up of the children of Methodist parents. They used to be taught a system of very clear scriptural doctrine with reference to the inspiration of the Bible, the Deity of the Lord Jesus, his teaching, his miracles, his sacrificial death, the fall of man, the sinfulness of the race, the great facts of judgment day, heaven and hell. They were taught that they must repent; that they must be regenerated by the power of the Holy Ghost—born again; that they might and must have the witness of the Spirit; that they must go on to perfect love. That they could, and should make an entire consecration, be wholly sanctified, live righteous lives and be living witnesses to the power of Christ to save from sin, by word and deed. These teachings made a peculiar people and a tremendous evangelistic force in the world.

The majority of the membership of the Baptist, Presbyterian, in fact, all of the Protestant churches, is made up of children born in the homes of the members of the churches who teach and guide the thinking of their children. We have come to a period in the history of our country when the children of the rising generation are, perhaps, more powerfully influenced by the instruction they receive in the schools than what they receive in their homes, and from the pulpits of their churches.

The fact is, many parents who thought they had their children well taught and established in the evangelical faith, have been startled to find that in the schools of today, practically everything they have taught their children with reference to spiritual and moral life has not only had no nurture but has met with opposition and ridicule, been uprooted and destroyed, has become the object of contempt on the part of the children. They have also made the sad discovery that the destruction of this faith has by no means ministered to the deepening of the spiritual life of the children, or the lifting up of high moral standards but, on the other hand, spiritual life has disappeared, skepticism, and often atheism of the worst type, has taken the place of faith, moral standards have been lowered and practically disregarded. There has come an arrogant attitude toward God, parents, church, ministry, purity of womanhood and everything that is highest and best in mankind.

THE PREACHERS.

It has always been true, and will be true, that the preachers wield a powerful influence over those who come under their ministry. If the preacher is a man of God he not only has the intellect, the influence, experiences and prestige of his manhood, social position and the weight of his office, but he is reinforced by an invisible Person. He has the Holy Spirit dwelling within, guiding and giving him power which enables him to bring to bear upon the community in which he lives, and the people to whom he ministers, supernatural influences far beyond anything possessed by the mere man. It was this power that enabled Moses to lead Israel out of Egyptian bondage into the desert, and through it to the land of promise; that enabled Joshua to conquer the inhabitants of Canaan; that enabled Paul to plant the church; that enabled Martin Luther to bring on the Reformation; that strangely equipped John Wesley to bring the great revival at a critical period of modern history; that enabled Dwight L. Moody to bear a simple gospel message which brought untold thousands to repentance and saving faith in Christ. This same indwelling Spirit has been the force and power in the lives of tens

TRAVEL NOTES FROM SOUTH AMERICA.

Rev. G. W. Ridout D.D., Corresponding Editor.

We are writing this article in Ecuador. Mr. Jordan of the American Bible Society in his splendid little book on Ecuador puts things very strikingly in the following words which we transfer to this page:

"Ecuador, why, y-e-s, the name is familiar; we had it in our geographies, didn't we? It is one of those little Central American republics whose principal product is revolutions."

"I beg your pardon; Ecuador is not in Central America."

"E-c-u-a-d-o-r, oh, yes, I remember, now; the Equator passes through and gives its name to the country, therefore, it must be in South America."

"My, but is it not sizzling hot?"

"Can you move about in the heat without danger of sunstroke?"

"Is it safe to travel in the country?"

"Are not the people prejudiced against foreigners?"

These and similar questions greet the traveler returning from Ecuador, and cause him to realize how much the country has suffered from isolation.

I am writing from Guayaquil the Sea Port of Ecuador. This is a great city and constantly growing. It has a population of 80,000 people, perhaps nearly 100,000. For years it was shunned and avoided because of yellow fever. It was a pest hole.

Guayaquil owes its deliverance from yellow fever, isolation and its importance now as a Port to American enterprise, to American money (Rockefeller) and to our American sanitation specialist, Dr. M. E. Connor. This man came down to this yellow fever pest hole of a Port and cleaned it up and there has not been a case of yellow fever since 1919. In 1910 U. S. S. Yorktown anchored in the river opposite Guayaquil. The captain alone went ashore, he died of yellow fever. Eight sailors sleeping on deck took yellow fever and most of them died. A German ship came in and left eighteen of its crew in the cemetery; at last the wife of the scholarly American Consul General, Dr. F. W. Godding died. Her death stirred up things. Dr. Gorgas of Panama fame came, then Dr. Connor, and yellow fever was no more, thank God. Now Guayaquil is a healthy and busy port; vessels from all parts of the world come here and the Grace Line ships make it one of their regular ports of call.

Ecuador is a country that cannot tell how big or small it is. Its boundaries are in dispute. It is wedged in between Colombia and Peru on the Pacific Coast of South America, her sovereignty extends over 116,000 square miles and the population is about two millions. For natural beauty, mountain scenery and startling contrasts, Ecuador is great. Mountain peaks from fifteen to twenty-one thousand feet high are among the attractions.

The man who possibly more than any other man opened up Ecuador for Christian Missions is Rev. W. E. Reed. He is now the veteran missionary of this country and lives in Guayaquil. Mr. Reed is a Dartmouth graduate, Mrs. Reed is of Oberlin. They came to Ecuador in 1897. Imagine how they came and what they came to over 30 years ago.

Until recent years few cities furnished a more undesirable residence than Guayaquil, Ecuador. There was no drainage system. The streets, a succession of mud holes in the rainy season, were worked up into fine dust during the dry. Vermin of many kinds abounded. The city was looked upon as the pest hole of the Pacific Coast. A large percentage of outsiders visiting it died of yellow fever. The destination of the missionaries, however, was Quito, the capital, and although they returned some years later to Guayaquil, their first stay there was not long.

A newspaper of Quito reporting the arrival of Protestant missionaries on the sacred soil of Ecuador said that the people of Guayaquil might allow them to remain if they desired but "If the heretics come to the Interior they will find that our clubs are not made of corn stalks nor our stones of pumice."

Ecuador had never had such a thing as a Christian Protestant missionary before and it meant a desperate faith and purpose and courage to break in on Roman Catholic soil and 'mid the blackness hold up the standard of the Cross. Their coming stirred up the very powers of hell and the government, persecution, mobs, storms were all on the program. They would rent a house then get turned out at the orders of the priest, even merchants were forbidden to sell them food. Let me cite this instance from Jordan's book: They were about to be turned out from their house which they had rented. They were given notice to leave. The little band engaged in prayer asking for a place in which to live. While they were praying they were interrupted by a knock at the door. An Ecuadorian gentleman, Sir Manuel A. Vascones, entered and said to Mr. Reed:

"Sir, I have been watching you. I note that you do not get angry when people fail to treat you decently and even abuse you. I see you have nothing but good will for those who are persecuting you. I believe the religion you teach is good for our country. It would be a shame to allow you to be driven from it by four fanatical old women and a parcel of priests. I have a little farm out in the country. I will move there with my family. Do me the favor to come and occupy my house."

Mr. Reed went with Senor Vascones to look at his dwelling and found it to be a large one with several unfinished and unoccupied rooms.

"There is no need," said he, "for you to move into the country. These rooms can be so arranged that they will do very well for us."

The missionaries moved into the house and Mr. Vascones remained. Thus a home had been provided in direct answer to prayer and they lived in it until they were able to go on to Quito.

Senor Vascones suffered great persecution because of his friendliness and hospitality to the heretics, but he stood faithful to his principles and has been a staunch friend of Mr. Reed through the years that have followed.

II.

Well it takes a real pioneer to start Christian Missions in a Catholic country. God called W. E. Reed to lay the foundations of the work and to open the way; he has lived to see Ecuador open to the gospel everywhere, churches and schools and a Bible Training School are now operating and the Christian and Missionary Alliance has this field almost to themselves. Thank God here is one Republic where modernism has not yet got an entering wedge. The Alliance is committed absolutely to the old gospel and thus far none of the big societies who send out modernistic missionaries have any work in Ecuador. Let God's people pray for this clean work in Ecuador, pray for the missionaries who are praying and toiling and teaching and preaching and pushing the work of salvation. Rev. Paul Young is Bro. Reed's chief helper now at Guayaquil, while Rev. D. Stuart Clark holds forth in the capital city Quito, where the work is growing and extending through the mountains. A number of other Alliance missionaries are at work in various parts of the Republic.

III.

Missionaries preach by their lives as well as by their preaching. Once when Reed was preaching in the open air a Priest came along and began to talk against the missionary insinuating that he was, maybe, a runaway American, etc. Now it happens that for eight years Mr. Reed taught English in the college at Guayaquil and business men, doctors, lawyers, all know and honor him. One of them hearing the priest berate Reed stepped out and told that Mr. Reed was his old professor and he had known him for years as a good man. This stopped the priest's lying lips.

IV.

In open air meetings in Latin American countries they do a lot of testifying. Here's some samples.

One old woman told of having been very devoted to the worship of images, but she was a great drunkard. The habit had complete control of her. She could not resist the thirst as long as she had any money with which to purchase rum. One day she was handed a leaflet and given an invitation to the meeting. She came out of curiosity and was told of a Christ who saved from sin in this life. The Good News gripped her and she left the hall entirely forgetting to take with her the half bottle of rum she had brought. But she had taken her last drink. Jesus had delivered her. She was now happy and wanted to tell about it.

Another, a young woman with strong features, the wife of one of the active church members, told how she had hated her husband after he became a Christian, how she hated life and was disgusted with herself for ever having been persuaded to marry such a man. Before his conversion they had lived together without the ceremonial sanction. One could see that her hatred had been real and bitter, for the signs were still on her face, and the firmly set lower jaw showed how strong the emotion could become in such a character.

"My hatred," she declared, "extended even to the children and I began to wish I might kill both him and them. Then," she continued, "one day a short time ago, as I was working in the kitchen, God spoke to me. I saw what a sinner I was and asked him to save me. I have been happy ever since; my soul is filled with peace and rest."

V.

The power of the priest in these Latin American countries is beyond telling. They live the most corrupt lives. In this city there died an old priest who left behind him five families, and before he died he bought five houses for his five women and their children. Missionaries were happily fixed in a house which they had hired upon reaching a certain city; the landlady came to them one day with tears in her eyes and said: "I am sorry, but the priest has ordered me to put you out, and I must ask you to leave, since he has power to do me great injury. I realize that you are true Christians, and that our religion is only on the surface; but I am helpless."

The missionaries decided when looking for another house to tell the people at once who they were. After a suitable place had been found and they had told the owner they were Protestant missionaries she said: "That makes no difference. I am not a Romanist but a Spiritualist."

This explains the fact that while Quito is a fanatical Roman Catholic city Protestant missionaries have always been able to secure a dwelling. There are a number of Spiritualists in the city and the superstitious inhabitants are afraid to live in a house where they think spirits have been seen. They think that, having visited a dwelling once, disembodied spirits are likely to return and trouble the occupants.

VI.
PERSONAL NOTE.

At this writing we are in a ten days' meeting at Guayaquil. Fine crowds every night and souls are seeking and finding God in every service. Last night a man confessed Christ who said it was his first time hearing the gospel.

We go from here to Riobamba, then to Ambato and then to Quito the capital city, where we shall hold seven days' meeting. April 1 we sail for Lima, Peru, and our address for April will be P. O. Box 2178, Lima, Peru; our address for May will be P. O. Box 133, Santiago, Chili.

RELIGIOUS INSECTS.

Rev. Tilden H. Gaddis.

PESTS and parasites abound even in the radiant sphere of religion. A pest is defined as anything mischievous, annoying or injurious, and a parasite as a hanger-on, or that which is nourished by another to which it attaches itself.

A faultfinder is a pest in that he or she is annoying, and injurious. Most of the faultfinders are not as far up the road as the one they are criticising. It seems that most churches have a liberal supply of those who have become efficient as watchdogs and if a sheep happens to get over the fence they bark so loud that the whole sheep-pen is notified. Like the dogs who licked the sores of Lazarus, they seem to derive a special delight in mistakes and blemishes and spots and wrinkles. They seem to lose sight of their own faults or else are trying to cover them by parading before us the faults of others. This habit can grow on one until purity appears impurity and holiness looks to them like carnality. The idea will come to them that no one is right. They are like the cow in Aesop's fable on whom they put green glasses and she ate straw and thought it was grass. So with the green glasses of carnality; an angel looks like a devil. Let us pray God to help us not to make such fools of ourselves.

The Disputer comes in line as a pest as he will invariably cause a cross spirit in churches and camps and revival meetings and between Christians, in general. If you have him on the official board he is always the opposite side and, no matter how good an improvement is suggested for the church, he can argue against it, and if it finally does go through he will add enough vinegar to it that it never tastes as good as it should. He will dispute over doctrine and take the evangelist to task for some thought he may have dropped which is not to his way of thinking. Anything you mention to him he takes the opposite view and is never satisfied till he can prove to you that he is right.

The man who will not forgive and forget is a pest. Of course forgiveness is never complete unless it is applied for by the offending party, but at the least sign of true repentance we are exhorted to forgive our erring brother, even to seven times a day. The man I mean is the one who keeps the fuss in eminence. Quarrels are started by vanity and many times ignorance and lack of tact. They are childish. They start with a difference of opinion. If neither will listen to the other or weigh the reason for the difference and both talk at once, it is proof they are pig-headed. All continued quarreling can be traced to selfishness, jealousy or self-conceit. You will hear them talk about the principle of the thing but it is mostly the vanity and bluster and a bit of carnality that fans the flame. This so-called principle seems to be very noble and impressive but they lose sight of the real issue and instead of seeking justice seek revenge.

The Advice Hunter is a pest or a parasite we hardly know which, as he is both a nuisance and a hanger-on. He will come to the preacher, especially the evangelist, for advice but you will soon find he is not after it, but wants to give it. He wants to hear himself talk and tell you what he knows. Sometimes it is an excuse for one to be near somebody they like, and in such case are more concerned about the company than the advice. Of course, there are honest hearts who need help and it is proper for them to have it, and we are exhorted to help them, on the other hand there is a host of professional advice hunters that are such for various reasons not in keeping with holiness.

The Church Tramp who goes from revival to revival and camp to camp and never settles down anywhere to be a real help to any people is a parasite. No one can depend on them for you do not know where you will find them next. He assumes no obligations anywhere and helps mostly himself. He feeds and feeds and feeds and seldom pays any board. By so doing he loses the spirit of sacrifice and lets others pay the price of the victory which he shares as he attends. The struggling church may pray and weep and sacrifice with time and money to bring a revival to its fruition, but he comes in too late for that. He loves to be entertained and becomes a sermon idolater. You will find him where the big preacher is. He seems to lose all thought of whether God has a will for him and a place to work where his talent might be put on interest. It is surprising how wonderful some folks can appear in a revival and then you never hear of them until the next.

The Lazy preacher is a pest and we suppose also a parasite. He sits around and talks when prayer would help him. He is out running around when if he were studying it would be more appreciated when he mounts the platform. He may even visit where he can enjoy himself rather than where he is needed most. His preaching has a sameness that is monotonous and is mostly his testimony and a bit of exhortation with probably some licks at the habits and dress of his hearers. His preparation was so limited that he must draw preaching material from his audience. So he takes a shot at everything that bobs up in front of him and does it so regularly, and in such a manner that his hearers, unless they think and read themselves, will begin to think, that is about all there is to holiness. John Wesley told his preachers, "If you have no taste for books get out of the ministry." He wonders why he does not advance and usually feels he could do better somewhere else. It is not the location but the application that makes you move. Finally they try evangelism, for that looks easy, but open dates, hard places, and unappreciative audiences soon convince them that even that is a man's job. Too many preachers are taking it easy and like preacher-like people. The vision of the audience will never rise above the vision of the preacher. At the peril of being criticised I am going to say that this age needs some men who will burn the midnight oil and wear an aching heart and a tired brain and a driven mind much of the time. Men who will have grit and grace enough to stay at it until they can intelligently present the scheme of Redemption, the Law of the Bible, the ethics of Holiness, the Blood, the Divinity, the Incarnation of Jesus, Repentance and the New Birth, and other fundamentals so that this age will see something in religion except emotionalism. Men like Lincoln and Washington went past their fellows by hard work and study. Lincoln with one year of school borrowed books and read them by the light of a log fire and worked problems in the ashes with a sharpened stick on the dirt floor of his humble home, while others were lying in feather beds. When the world needed a man it found him in the woods, and we have read that if you build a better house, or write a better book, or preach a better sermon or make a better mousetrap than your neighbor even if you build your home in the woods, the world will beat a path to your door. We will not succeed joking and talking and laughing with the crowd and visiting with even good folks, but alone with God like Moses and Paul in the Sinai wilderness of Arabia you can so learn the secret of prayer and meditation and study that you will not get lonely, you won't have to pray so much to keep the victory, and money and popularity will not be such a temptation; for your vision and ambition and objective will be so big and the burden of your heart so heavy that worldly, devilish trash will look small. You can get a "Sent of God" consciousness that your hearers will feel; you will have the stamp of authority and your messages will thrill and burn into the hearts of your hearers.

You can add hypocrites and fanatics and others to our list of pests, but let us all seek the remedy for these evils in the cleansing blood which makes us holy, and I pray God your whole spirit and soul and body be preserved blameless unto the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Christ As "Food of Conduct."

H. H. SMITH.

SOMETIMES an expressive phrase is more forcible in emphasizing a truth than a whole paragraph. In his interesting book, "If I Had Not Come," Bishop Hendrix says: "The supreme claim of Christ is as 'Lord of conduct,' and the ideal of life must be sought in conduct to meet his approval." Here is a subject for profitable meditation at this season, for, above everything else, Jesus Christ is "Lord of conduct." Five times in succession in the Sermon on the Mount he makes this assertion: "Ye have heard that it was said . . . but I say unto you, . . ." The Cambridge Bible notes that the phrase, "I say unto you," is a "most emphatic formula, which implies the authority of a law-giver." After hearing this wonderful discourse concerning righteousness (right conduct) and the kingdom of God, no wonder his hearers were astonished at his teaching and declared that he taught as one having authority and not as the scribes. He is Lord of conduct because he is the Son of God and speaks with authority.

Christ is Lord of conduct in another sense: He is the inspirer of God-like conduct. His influence upon all his followers, from the disciples to the humblest follower of today, is ample evidence of this. What a miracle of transformed conduct is shown in Pliny's letter to the Emperor Trajan, when Christianity was in its infancy. The only fault to be

SANCTIFICATION--GOD'S SPECIFIC FOR SIN.

Dr. L. R. Akers, President of Asbury College.

Text: "This is the will of God, even your sanctification." 1 Thess. 4:3.

THOUGHTFUL men on every side are viewing with the utmost apprehension the continued tidal wave of sin and depravity which well nigh threatens to inundate our nation. The daily press brings to us continuously an unbroken stream of sinful happenings and heart-breaking tragedies. The arrogance of organized iniquity has never been more evident nor its power more manifest than at present writing. Well did John Stuart Mill say, "If there is one fact, the reality of which is certain, it is the fact of sin."

Any of us who is at all familiar with the pages of Holy Writ knows God's abhorrence of sin. The red lamps of danger are hung out all along the way of humanity warning against sin's insidious approach and crying loudly and insistently against its defilement. As we behold the sin-chequered story of humanity and realize that down through the ages its darkening blight has hung continually over succeeding generations of mankind with its inevitable train of misery, hopelessness, and despair, we cannot but ask the question, Is there a remedy for this soul disease? Is there for the sinner any hope? Is there any balm in Gilead?

Let us thank God that this question may be answered in the affirmative. Sin is mighty, but Christ is almighty; sin is powerful, but Christ is all-powerful. To the despairing one comes the message, "Sin shall not have dominion over you"; "Behold the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world"; "The blood of Jesus Christ, his Son, cleanses us from all sin." For the faint of heart there is the valedictory prayer of Christ for his disciples: "Sanctify them through thy truth: thy word is truth. . . I sanctify myself, that they also might be sanctified through the truth." "Wherefore Jesus also, that he might sanctify the people with his own blood, suffered without the gate. Let us go forth therefore unto him without the camp, bearing his reproach."

So from divine revelation, we behold Entire Sanctification as the cure for sin. Let us seek to have an understanding of this much-neglected, much misunderstood, and much-opposed doctrine. In 1 Cor. 1:30, we read, "But of him are ye in Christ Jesus, who of God is made unto us wisdom, and righteousness, and sanctification, and redemption." Here the word, righteousness, should be translated, justification. Let us understand then that sanctification is not regeneration but an entirely new experience. If regeneration and sanctification were the same, the passage quoted above would become senseless. Regeneration is a perfect work in itself. It needs no improvement and is distinctly sufficient in its particular function. Sanctification has no quarrel with regeneration either in the Bible or in Christian experience. It accomplishes another work distinct from that of regeneration. It removes from the soul of the justified or regenerated man that which has been a constant trouble and hindrance to him. In other words, it takes away what Dr. Whedon calls the "sinwardness" in us or the "prone-to-wander" feeling about which the sweet singer has written. The young convert early recognizes that while his sins are forgiven and he finds joy in the saving grace of Jesus Christ, he must contend continually with the presence of wayward tendencies of the flesh which our theologians have called original sin and which come to us from Adam and have been interwoven in our very natures. It is here that we become conscious of the carnal mind, which "is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be." It is hopelessly cursed of God now and forever and has to be removed or destroyed. God wished Agag to be destroyed, not that he should become an Israelite. So the spiritual Agag must be hewn to pieces and not conformed to the likeness of another. Regeneration renews the soul, imparts power to resist and conquer sin, but it does not rid one of the presence of depravity in the heart. The death of the "old Adam" comes by another and distinct work of the Holy Spirit and that is the work of Entire Sanctification.

Justification evidently does not deal with original sin. In regeneration, the soul is born again, is made new, and enters upon a spiritual life, but inherent depravity remains untouched. Paul, in writing to Christians, did not say, "Make the old man a new man," but "Put off the old man which is corrupt," and put on the "new man." It is idle for us to say that this is done in regeneration. Sound reason is against it and also universal Christian experience. The only conclusion to which we can come is that the regenerated soul still retains the presence of depravity. Let us sum it up by saying that regeneration alters the personal, sinful life and nature for which we are accountable, while entire sanctification removes the inherited sinful nature for which we are not accountable but with which we are harassed and afflicted none the less.

In our further study of sanctification, let us remember that it is something more than a blessing. It is a second work of grace wrought in the soul by the Holy Spirit. How many people have jocularly referred to the "second blessing." They say they have gone much further along in the spiritual numerals, that they have had hundreds of blessings. That may be quite true, but the blessings mentioned were those of any regenerated life arising at moments of spiritual uplift in prayer through submission to God's will, or in the joy of Christian service, but none of these have touched the life of which we speak. There is an experience so peculiar, so distinct, that when a man experiences it, although he may have felt thousands of blessings before, ever afterwards he calls this one "the second blessing." Those who laugh at this experience might profitably go back to John Wesley who was the mighty exponent of "the second blessing properly so called," or listen with open minds to the testimony of innumerable others of later day who with joyous hearts and shining faces testify to the exact date when this new and complete work of grace was accomplished in their souls. If God's people, instead of doubting and denying, would humbly and prayerfully seek for sanctification as they did for regeneration then our testimony and prayer meetings would be cheered by the relation of these experiences of the higher life just as they now are with those which tell of justification and the new birth.

Entire Sanctification is one of the cardinal doctrines of Methodism, as much so as repentance, faith, and regeneration. Its position in our hymnology and theological standards, as well as the clear way in which it is urged in the Scriptures, sets it apart as a doctrine recognized and taught as such by God. It would be well that no mistake be made here in thinking that repentance is a distinct thing, that regeneration is a distinct thing, but that sanctification is a hazy, indefinable, indifferent, never-to-be-realized state, and thereby lose sight of its individuality as a blessing and thus remove from the Bible one of its cardinal doctrines.

Let us remember that Christians are urged to go on to perfection and to possess it. The Word tells us that the blood cleanses, that the altar makes holy. The prayer of the apostle is that "the God of peace sanctify you wholly," while Christ himself entreats the Father "to sanctify" his disciples. In other places the expressions used in description of the experience are "the baptism of the Holy Ghost," "the anointing and sealing of the Holy Ghost," "the renewing of the Holy Ghost," "purity of heart," etc. By the constant recognition of God in the Bible as the sanctifier, we are shown that sanctification is not man's work, that it cannot be growth in grace, which is always incumbent as a duty upon man, but that sanctification or holiness is the work of God in the soul of a Christian believer. Paul in speaking to the church, which is made up of believers, says, "But of him are ye in Christ Jesus, who of God is made unto us wisdom, and righteousness (justification), and sanctification, and redemption." Christ's command to his disciples to tarry until they be endued with the Holy Spirit was not that they might have simply a blessing that might disappear in a day or a week, but a work that would transform them into totally different men. Luke 24:49, Acts 1:8. Let us keep in mind very distinctly the fact that the disciples were regenerated men. The proof of this is indubitable. He had said to them, "Ye are the light of the world." Had they been sinners, they could not have been the light of the world. In his prayer to his Father, referring to his disciples, our Lord stated, "They are thine." His command to them was that they go and teach men everywhere the truths which he had imparted to them. None of these things could have been said or would have been said to a body of men who were not already regenerated followers of our Lord. However, one of the clearest proofs of the disciples' regeneration is found in that instance when they came to him exultant that they were able to cast out demons, and he replied unto them, "Rejoice not that demons are subject unto you, but that your names are written in heaven."

Since then the power of Christ for his disciples was that they might be sanctified, let us note what this work does in the soul for his believing children. First, it is the utter destruction of inbred sin or inherited depravity in the human heart. Various terms are used to describe this dark heritage of humanity: "the law of sin and death"; "the carnal mind"; "the flesh"; "the old man"; "prone to sin"; and other like terms. This principle of evil rules in an unconverted life and struggles for mastery in the heart of the regenerated Christian. Call it by whatsoever name you will, the fact remains that this thing is destroyed in sanctification and is not destroyed in regeneration. Regeneration gives one power over sin. Sanctification kills the sin principle.

Second, entire sanctification is cleansing and purification. The symbol is fire. Baptism of water accompanies regeneration; baptism of fire, sanctification. The cleansing blood is a vital reality. The frequent testimonies of joyous believers that the blood cleanses and makes pure attest the heart's consciousness of this divine work of grace.

Third, entire sanctification means the fullness of the Spirit such as was never realized before. The Scripture, referring to this event, says, "Then were the disciples filled with the Holy Ghost." Paul, in writing to the Romans, calls it, "the fullness of the blessing." We see then in this work of grace: first, the destruction of sin; then the purification of the believer; with the coming of the Holy Spirit to take complete and final possession.

Oftentimes there is confusion in the minds of believers in thinking that sanctification is a gradual process or that we grow into it by degrees. There is no verse in Holy Writ to substantiate this view. Oftentimes are quoted the verses: "Grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ"; "The path of the just is as a shining light that shineth more and more unto the perfect day." Neither of these passages refers to sanctification. The expression, "perfect day," Dr. Adam Clarke says, means "the endless felicity of heaven," while the words, "grow in grace," bear not the slightest allusion to sanctification. Consecration and growth in grace are man's work; sanctification is the work of God. Men consecrate gradually and grow in grace gradually, but when God regenerates or sanctifies the soul he does it instantaneously. Let us consider the necessity of the immediate work to be done in the human heart. The very uncertainty of life shows to us that the work should not be a gradual process for we know neither the day nor the hour when we will be summoned from life to death. Second, our knowledge of the power of God prepares us for such an immediate work. If he can convert a soul in a second, can he not also sanctify a soul in a second? If God can take a man of sin and make him a babe in Christ in a moment, can he not take a babe in Christ and make him a man in Christ Jesus in a moment? If God can instantaneously make a spiritual man out of a sinner, he can with even greater ease make a holy man out of a Christian. Again, the Scripture tells us, "This is the will of God even your sanctification." Would any one dare to say that God wills our sanctification or holiness sometime in the future and not today? Is it not to God's honor that the hearts of his people should be holy as soon as possible? Is there any reason why sin should linger or for a certain period continue to have its lair in the human heart? "Be ye holy," is an unmistakable injunction for a present state in life.

The question may then be asked, how is this work obtained? and the answer is, in the same way that conversion is obtained: by faith in God, as in Acts 15:9, "purifying their hearts by faith"; and again in Acts 26:18; "that they may receive forgiveness of sins and inheritance among them which are sanctified by faith."

Let us note that this work of sanctification is clearly attested to by the Holy Spirit. In fact, the Holy Spirit witnesses to every state in the spiritual life. Every sinner has the witness of condemnation. The Holy Spirit bears witness to the new birth; to a call to preach; to the fact of one's consciousness of inbred sin, convicting one afresh, as he did Isaiah, to inward uncleanness. Finally, when there was the full and complete consecration to God and trust in him for sanctification, the Holy Spirit bore witness to the blessed work done in the soul.

Since this work is the remedy for sin with all its attendant woes, since this experience gives perfect joy and freedom in the Holy Ghost, why should we not hear continually the message of full salvation? Who can estimate the result, the spiritual revolution that would take place if preachers, evangelists, missionaries, Christian workers everywhere would begin to preach with a flaming passion on "sin and its cure"? If from tens of thousands of pulpits men heard thundered the changeless truth that "the wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life?" What if the text, "Behold the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world!" should be preached for only thirty days by the prophets of today? Is it too much to say that we would behold our modern Ninevehs, our twentieth century Babylons, in sackcloth and ashes, that the glory of our God would shine in our midst, that Christ would indeed be acclaimed as King of heart and life? Sublimely daring was the quiet statement of the blessed Christ suffered on the cross, "And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me." Dare the church of the living God accept the challenge? May God make us flaming heralds of his sin-curing, energizing truth, crusaders of a new day proclaiming the sanctifying power of Jesus' blood until the righteousness of Jehovah shall cover the earth as the waters cover the sea!

~~~~~ "I Do Set My Bow In The Cloud." ~~~~~

MRS. H. C. MORRISON.

HAD you ever thought, my reader, that the rainbow of promise was equally dependent upon the cloud and the sunshine? And that it spans the vault of the sky and becomes a link between earth and heaven? Some one has said that, "The bow is a type of mercy following upon judgment, a sign of connection between man's necting gloomy recollections of the past with bright expectations of the future."

How kind of our heavenly Father to cover the sad past occasioned by man's transgression, with the rainbow of his unfailing promise. The Lord is doing his best to make atonement for the failures and sins of the human race, yet how stupidly slow we are to understand his providences and love. There are promises in the Word that we have read time and again, but we have received no more benefit from them than if they had never been read. There is one alone, "My grace is sufficient for thee," which, if believed and trusted, would line the galling yoke of service from a sense of duty, with a love that would count it a privilege to do the most humble service for the Master who bears the heavier end of the yoke.

A man was riding home after a heavy day's work; he felt weary and depressed, when swiftly, suddenly, as a lightning flash came: "My grace is sufficient for thee." He said, "I should think it is, Lord," and burst out laughing. He said he never fully understood what the laughter of Abraham was until then. It seemed to make unbelief, absurd. It was as if some little fish, being thirsty, was troubled about drinking the river dry; and Father Thames said: "Drink away, little fish, my stream is sufficient for thee." "Or," said he, "it seemed like a little mouse in the granaries of Egypt after seven years of plenty fearing it might die of famine, and Joseph might say, "Cheer up, little mouse, my granaries are sufficient for thee." Or imagine a man away up on yonder mountain saying to himself: "I fear I shall exhaust all the oxygen in the atmosphere." But the earth would say: "Breathe away, O man, and fill thy lungs ever; my atmosphere is sufficient for thee." Then he exhorts us to be great believers, saying, "Little faith would bring us to heaven, but great faith would bring heaven to us."

It seems to be one of the enemy's chief tactics, when he cannot get a soul to commit overt sin, to play upon their spirits causing them to grow despondent, and inject the feeling that, after all the Christian life is one beset with things hard to bear. Just at the time when Jacob thought the last ray of hope had vanished and he exclaimed, "All these things are against me," the Lord was working through Joseph to give the old man one of the happiest surprises of his life. Joseph told his brothers to tell his father of all his glory in Egypt and to hasten and bring his father down to him. When they broke the glad news that Joseph still lived and had sent for him, it is said the old man's heart fainted, but after a convincing recital of the facts, he said, "It is enough."

Can we not get a lesson from this mysterious providential dealing with Jacob? Have there not been times in your life when it seemed that the cogs in your wheel of daily duties were clogged; when nothing seemed to go right and your strength was tested to the utmost? You really felt like Jacob, that, "All these things are against me," and the devil would suggest that you had as well give up the fight and cease the struggle. But then we may ask, what would be gained if we were to surrender to the enemy of our souls? Does he promise anything better? Nay, but at this juncture, we may put him to flight by reminding him of Romans 8:28: "And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose." This, if believed thoroughly, will put the enemy to flight and leave you on shouting ground every time.

It is a comforting thought that we have a Father who loves us, and who seeks our highest and best good in everything, and if it is necessary to use the chisel to trim us down and polish the rough places, we must have the confidence in him to hold still, even in the hottest fire, until his purpose has been fulfilled in us. And be assured of one thing: he will not keep you in the furnace one moment too long, but will remove you when the dross is all consumed and the image of your Master is clearly reflected in you. Then, like Jacob, you will say, when you fully understand, "It is enough." The following little poem brings out the thought that is in our mind, so will pass it on praying that some soul whom "Satan has been sifting as wheat" may read and find hope and comfort that will gird him for the conflict that is yet ahead:

GOD UNDERSTANDS.

It is so sweet to know,
When we are tired, and when the hand of pain
Lies on our hearts, and when we look in vain
For human comfort, that the Heart Divine
Still understands these cares of yours and mine.
Not only understands, but day by day
Lives with us while we tread the earthly way,
Bears with us all our weariness, and feels
The shadow of the faintest cloud that steals
Across our sunshine, ever learns again
The depth and bitterness of human pain.
There is no sorrow that he will not share,
No cross, no burden, for our hearts to bear
Without his help, no care of ours too small
To cast on Jesus: Let us tell him all—
Lay at his feet the story of our woes,
And in his sympathy find sweet repose.

CHRIST AS "LORD OF CONDUCT."

found with these early Christians just emerged from paganism was that "they had been accustomed on a stated day to meet before light and recite among themselves in turn a hymn to Christ as God, and to bind themselves by an oath, not to any crime, but to not commit thefts, robberies, or adulteries; not to break their word," etc. With this picture before us, how appropriate the phrase, "Christ, the Lord of conduct."

The principles of conduct which Jesus taught are being acknowledged, more and more, as the highest code of ethics in existence; but unless his teachings find expression in daily conduct, they are valueless. Some years ago a little book appeared with the title: "In His Steps, or, What Would Jesus Do?" It gained almost instant popularity, and a million copies were soon in circulation. Why? It was a simple little story without pretension to originality of thought or literary excellence, but it forcibly conveyed a great truth; that the world would be transformed if every professing Christian would take the teachings of Jesus Christ seriously, and make it a matter of conscience so to conduct himself as to win his approval. No man ever goes astray who conscientiously seeks to conform his life to the teachings of the Man of Galilee.

Conduct is the acid test of the Christian, and the Master was ever applying this test. "By their fruits ye shall know them." "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven, but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven." "If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them." We often think of Christ as our Saviour, but it will avail us nothing to call him, Lord, Lord, if we do not the things which he commands. If we would be assured that he is our Saviour, we must see that he is the Lord of our conduct. The much-needed revival will come when we turn to him with all our hearts and let him be, indeed and in truth, "the Lord of our conduct."

The Blessedness of Ignorance.

REV. E. E. SHELHAMER.

"Brethren be not children in understanding; howbeit in malice be ye children, but in understanding be men." 1 Cor. 14:20.

This is an advanced age in inventions, machinery and knowledge. In many respects ignorance should be deplored, but on the other hand it should be cherished.

First, be ignorant in malice. A child may be stubborn and unruly for the time being but as a rule, he soon forgives and forgets. It requires an older person to cherish and pack away in the memory a real or fancied injury. What is more pitiable than to see an old, tottering, decrepit person so sour and revengeful that no one enjoys being in his company. Instead of his children and others bowing down to do him reverence, they are sorry when he comes and glad when he goes.

Second, be ignorant in the art of deception. It is wonderful to find a person who is incapable of trickery and duplicity. I had rather have it said of me, that shrewd business men had taken advantage and cheated me, than that I was so "keen" and "slick" that I came out on top. They say if you want to know how much religion a man has, have a little business transaction with him. If he has the real article, the more dealings you have with him the bigger he will become in your estimation.

Third, be ignorant in knowing the latest jazz or jokes. It only requires a thimble full of brains and not an ounce of grace to understand and enjoy silly songs and sayings. This is one reason why the movies have become so popular; it requires so little gray matter to understand them. It is certainly sad to note the emptiness, shallowness and looseness of our modern young people. Even our revivals seem to be short lived and need to be worked over in a few weeks or months. Lord give us depth, rather than breadth! Give us quality, rather than quantity! Give us solidity, rather than sentimentality!

Fourth, be ignorant in bestiality. This is not only a loose and licentious, but also, a cruel age. Men and women think nothing of destroying human life. They say France has become a decaying nation and the birth rate is waning. This can also be said of rich Americans. Why? Because they have become wise in lewdness and wickedness. Were it not for the poor and ignorant people—those who do not know the art of killing—it would only be a little while before the human family would become extinct. Even children in their teens, know too much about each other. Yea, they show by their bold countenances that they are well advanced in dishonesty and uncleanness.

My brethren, in these respects let us be content to be looked upon as back numbers, as being "slow," as being ignorant and not up to date! In these respects, it might be well to quote the old saying: "When ignorance is bliss 'tis folly to be wise."

FACTS FROM THE FIRING LINE.

"My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge."—Hos. 4:6.

Prohibition has wrought miracles of moral, social and economic redemption, but thousands of dregs do not know it. Every pastor is urged to reprint the following Fact in the Church Calendar, or read it from the pulpit to offset the destructive wet propaganda which appears in many of the secular newspapers. A new Fact appears in this place in each issue.

Wets demand the repeal of Prohibition because (they claim) it has crowded our jails. Official figures show twice as many commitments for burglary and three times as many for other thefts. Less than 8% of prisoners are liquor law violators.

Love and Passion for Souls.

A. W. ORWIG.

It ought to be taken for granted that all Christians have a real love for souls. Why should they not also have a passion for the salvation of souls? That is, something more than an ordinary desire for their salvation. It ought to be so absorbing that they will feel more or less distressed if souls are not won for God. Not all persons know that the very root word of passion is suffering. And that is why our Saviour's suffering is called his passion.

It is very evident that some Christians do not have a deep love for souls, much less a passion. Nor do they seem to be troubled because of this lack of love and vehement desire. I once asked a professor of religion if he ever led any one to God. He replied, "I don't know how." That seems to be the condition of not a few who claim to be Christians. If we truly love God it will manifest itself more or less in behalf of the salvation of the unsaved. Some one wrote

"Oh for a passionate passion for souls,
Oh for a pity that yearns!
Oh for the love that loves unto death!
Oh for the fire that burns!"

Such a love and passion for souls is not natural, and cannot be manufactured. It is a gift of God. And while it is a divine bestowment, we need to co-operate with God for its acquirement.

BELIEVING PRAYER.

This is one great feature of such co-operation. Yes, a deep, yearning, quenchless, Christlike compassion and passion for souls comes largely through prayer and its concomitant exercises. Several times it is recorded that Jesus was "moved with compassion" for the people. How much of this spirit have we? An eminent preacher of the Gospel said, "I have long ceased to pray, 'Lord Jesus have compassion on a lost world!' I remember the day and the hour when I seemed to hear the Lord rebuking me for making such a prayer. He seemed to say to me, 'I have had compassion upon a lost world, and now it is for you to have compassion.'"

When praying for a passion for souls the answer is sometimes received in a way that we did not expect. I refer to the fact that it often comes through suffering like many other blessings. We are informed that Jesus himself, with a combined human and divine nature, was made "perfect through suffering." And dare we look for exemption from a similar experience? The highest Christian graces usually come through seasons of suffering,—sometimes through bodily afflictions, the loss of very dear ones, or of worldly goods. Not infrequently it is the result of sore conflicts with the powers of darkness.

That princely preacher and winner of many souls, George Whitefield, once prayed with such fervency that his heart might be melted into still greater tenderness and love for the perishing, and to his great surprise and sorrow he was assaulted with the most awful and vile temptations that almost distracted him for several days. He cried mightily to the Lord for succor. When he had been deeply humbled by the impure temptations the Holy Spirit led him into such an ocean of gentle love as he had never known.

Some years ago I read of an old Indian who was possessed of a remarkable passion for soul-winning. He prayed in stores, barber shops, railroad stations,—everywhere. At the altar of prayer he went from one penitent to another, placed his hands upon their heads, and cried out, "Oh Jesus, my heart is breaking for these people."

Another thing that we need to do in order to have a deep love and passion for souls is to meditate on their lost condition. That will increase the fervency and faith of our petitions, and promote a real wrestling spirit in behalf of the unsaved. Actual and mighty soul travail for the perishing is a rare thing. Coming into actual contact with their wretchedness is likely to move and melt the heart of the real Christian, and to stimulate to holy action. The Salvation Army people set us a good example in mingling among the low and criminal classes,—with the poorly clad, and coarse and vicious and filthy. Of a certain man, it is said that he literally loves the most degraded people into the kingdom of grace. "Love suffereth long and is kind." It will make real sacrifices in order to win souls.

"Oh 'twas love, 'twas wondrous love
That brought me to the fold."

IT IS UNFAIR

for a Sunday school teacher or pupil to go to Sunday school with an unprepared lesson. In this busy age both the teacher and pupil need something brief and to the point,—something that stresses and brings out the richest spiritual thoughts on the lesson.

All this may be had in Arnold's Commentary. In this book will be found the very best helps for the Adult Class, the Young People, the Primary and the Beginner.

We have a few copies left and are closing them out at 75c per copy, postpaid. Don't fail to avail yourself of this opportunity to secure a book that will give you spiritual help every week in the year, and then when the year is finished, it is an attractive volume to place in your library for future reference. # GLEANINGS FROM THE EVANGELISTIC FIELD

MISSIONARY TOUR.

Dear Friends in America: Our last report was Shanghai, just as we began the Convention there. Rev. E. L. Kilbourne and his band of missionaries are very aggressive. They had rented a large church in the heart of the city at $10.00 per day, "Mex" or American money. Here we had a new experience preaching to Christians, semi-heathen and vicious "reds." Russia has certainly succeeded in sowing the seeds of discord. The ignorant Chinese play into the hands of the Reds to hate and even kill the "Foreign devils." However, there is a better feeling toward Americans than any other nation because we have not exploited them.

We held three services a day. At 10:00 A. M. we preached on the compound (five miles out) to the missionaries, students and native workers. These were very instructive services, so they said. At 4:00 and 7:30 P. M. we held evangelistic services in the large church down town. Here we saw many earnest seekers rush to the altar and prostrate themselves at Jesus' feet. The Reds showed their contempt by keeping their hats on and talking out loud. We did not know what moment there would be an outbreak. Though many of these and their sympathizers have been put to death, yet there is great unrest, especially among the students. Police patrol the streets in front of colleges and search autos for fire arms and propaganda. We were stopped one night, but let pass when found to be missionaries.

Our next stop was at Hong Kong after a three-days' voyage. We were with Rev. A. K. Reiton and his noble band in the Peniel Mission. They likewise have a school and are doing a grand work. Here we saw something seldom seen in China—most of the congregation in tears. They are taught from infancy to suppress all emotion. But when the Holy Ghost falls upon them they act like Americans. Son Everette ran up to Canton (100 miles) and preached in their Bible School for Bro. Monroe, who has recently turned over his work to the Oriental Missionary Society. When we said good-bye to dark, bleeding, superstitious China, a number of choice native workers and students, along with their teachers and missionaries followed us to the large ship, "Andre Lebon," where they sang and we wept. It seems that each place, especially the last place we visit gets a new grip upon our hearts. O, how we would like to return and open up a red-hot holiness mission in the city of Hong Kong proper. Think of this city of over 300,000 without a single Holiness church, or mission! There are many Americans and Europeans there after the dollar, but no one to hunt souls.

And now we are off for Port Said, Egypt—a month on the water. After holding a Convention up the Nile about 400 miles, we go to Jerusalem for meeting, then to Rome. But I fear we shall not succeed in getting the Pope or Mussolini on his knees. Write us there, care Thos. Cook and Son, up till May the 1st.

Our last meeting is to be in London, May 1-15, then "home sweet home." Pray for us that we may be clean channels through which God can convey his thought to the children of men.

E. E. Shelhamer.

REV. J. L. GLASCOCK REPORTS.

Since last reporting our evangelistic work, we have held three meetings. The first one was held in the Nazarene Church in Anderson, Ind., Rev. C. H. Strong, pastor.

This was an especially successful meeting. The attendance was large, the interest continued until the very close of the meeting and a goodly number were converted, reclaimed and sanctified, and a number of the Sunday school pupils were reached in a service held especially under the auspices of that organization.

The members of the church were greatly blessed, some of the officials stating that that meeting was the most profitable one to them that had been held in the church in a long time. Some remarkable cases could be mentioned if space would permit.

The second meeting that we held was with an interdenominational society in Mt. Clemens, Mich., the Rev. Wm. B. Dunn being the pastor who, with his people, stood nobly by the work. There was not a barren service in the whole series, and many times the altar was filled with seekers. The work seemed to be thorough, the seekers praying through to a satisfactory experience. The real break came in the first Sunday service and this was climaxed the next night by a number of young men getting converted who afterward professed to be sanctified. Many other victories could be reported if the space would permit.

The third meeting that we held was with Everybody's Mission in Detroit, Mich., which has all the functions of a church organization and much better promoted than many church organizations.

The efficient pastor is Rev. Robert Ramsey, whose efforts are supplemented by a competent corps of workers. The attendance was large throughout the whole meeting, extra chairs had to be put in and the platform was seated to accommodate the people. The altar was crowded many times with seekers, and extra chairs were necessary to accommodate all that came as seekers.

In visible results this was the most successful meeting of the three, about sixty people have testified that they were converted, reclaimed or purified, making more than 100 in the three meetings we are reporting. To God be all the praise and glory.

We have some vacant dates for spring and summer meetings not yet taken. Persons desiring to correspond with us regarding dates should address us 1350 Grace Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio.

J. L. Glascock.

A WORD FROM REV. ANDREW JOHNSON.

I am back from the Pacific Coast after five months' campaign. Much good was accomplished in many different ways. The prolonged absence from the Eastern and Central sections of the country has somewhat put me out of touch with the evangelistic movement in this part of the moral vineyard. But I am now on the firing line and ready for marching orders, and open for calls for revival and camp meeting work.

Andrew Johnson, Wilmore, Ky.

BOWLING GREEN, KENTUCKY.

We went to Bowling Green on business, and after attending to same, rented a discarded Baptist Church for $5.00 a week, rented a piano; a young lawyer who owned the chairs in the building consented for us to use them. We bought the wood for the stove, started the meeting and the crowds began to come. Owing to a siege of scarlet fever, the young people under eighteen years of age were forbidden to attend, and some of the schools were dismissed. Many who had not attended church for years became interested and asked for prayer. Men fifty and sixty years old said they attended church more in three weeks than for many years.

The last service will long be remembered. Some twenty asked for prayer, and others prayed through at the altar. One man who had been a drunkard said, "Brother Beck, never another drop of whiskey goes down my throat."

We paid all the bills. The collections at the night services met all the expenses of the meeting. We announced that we were going to preach and pay all bills. God helped us in our business and we came out in good shape. The Devil wants to scare me out, but I am going to preach to hungry souls, and the people come and want to be saved. I could hold a church meeting in April or first of May, should any one desire my services.

A. S. Beck.

LETTERS OF TRAVEL.

Tilden H. Gaddis.

A few hours between trains in Paris gave us opportunity to revisit Notre Dame, with its great organ of 6200 pipes, its most wonderful windows, one of Old Testament characters and one of New Testament notables, and the front one of blue and red glass which, through reflection, multiplies to many colors, and is the most wonderful and beautiful in the world. The treasures here include Napoleon's coronation robe and scepter, gifts of emperors, kings and popes, woven gold cloth and a great cross of precious stones. The cardinals buried in the crypt have their hats suspended from the ceiling by cords. It is supposed that when age weakens the cord and the hat falls, the Cardinals' souls are out of Purgatory. They say one old fellow's hat has been up there for over a hundred years. Be it more or less he must be having a time of it; if it takes a Cardinal that long, Heaven would be a long way off for common mortals like myself.

More of the gray city, with its sidewalk book-stalls, flower stands, and markets where you buy everything from birds to beetles, we leave Paris. Passing through Pisa we find the famous tower still leaning, and trusting it shall not fall, speed on to the Italian Riviera where, in January, between the mountains and the Mediterranean, a balmy southern California with palms and orange groves surrounding palatial homes. The sun shining, flowers blooming and progress everywhere. Powerful electric trains running on the minute into beautiful stations, great power lines crossing the land. Then Rome. Sunday, our first day, we attended three services. At Santa Maria Maggiora, the largest of 80 churches dedicated to the virgin out of Rome's 400 churches, we attended mass. A little girl throws kisses to the virgin while her mother says prayers. Many confessing to the priests, then standing in the front, the father opens a little door in the confessional, hits them on the head with a rod and sends them off with a blessing to a side chapel for communion. Mass is conducted at several altars at the same time and the crowds too large to be seated, stand. The Priest mumbles, crosses self, bows, wipes basins, reads in Latin, drinks wine, and occasionally turns to bless us, but I was not conscious of any extra joy unless it was that I was happy to know that I had been brought into grace by the blood of the Lamb and not depending on pots and pans, cups, basins, robes, candles, beads, bells, forms, ceremonies, and statues which can never take away sin. I had such a blessed time in prayer that morning I did not care to kiss the priest's hand as so many did. This church is ceiled with American gold and is a very wonderful building.

Our second service was at the American Methodist Episcopal Church, where we felt a warm welcome and soon had Christian friends about us speaking in terms of the Kingdom. Dr. Maynard invited us to take the service following, and moreover, sent his auto with two brethren to take us about the city and to the M. E. College for boys, a most remarkable institution on the slope of one of Rome's seven hills, a magnificent view of the Alban and Sabine mountains snowcapped in the distance, the Appian Way, over which Paul trod outlined up the slope, the great city outlined clear and white below us, directly overlooking the Vatican and St. Peters. We viewed the building where Martin Luther was imprisoned. After a pleasant afternoon we worshipped in the evening with the Italian M. E. congregation in their beautiful and commodious chapel. A number of soldiers were present and the audience seemed interested as the preacher put his heart into the message. While we could not understand his words we shared his spirit. Singing with them, pronouncing as best we could, and recognizing good old hymns by the music, and praying for them, as well as with them, the God of all peoples blessed us there together.

Sunday in Rome is promenade time. Shows, bars, markets and many stores are open and all Italy seems on parade. Priests with funny hats, nuns, students of both sexes from catholic schools garbed and guarded, old women in dirty clothes, young fellows in sporty attire, soldiers, military bands with great black-feathered hats and green uniforms, Fascist boys in groups, blackshirted and keeping step, tourists with guide books and maps, red-wheeled carriages, honk-horned autos, organ grinders, but no beggars; the Dictator has eliminated them. Militarism is seen everywhere. These fatalistic Italians see war coming and prepare for it while we idealistic Americans say it must not come and hope it will not, when we are most sure it will.

The old guidebooks tell you how to see Rome in two weeks; the new ones have a three-day program. I suppose this indicates the advance of the age. The Pope says you can see a little of Rome in three years, much of it in three weeks and all of it in three days. And while it can be looked over quickly it needs time; one man spent 45 days in St. Peters, alone.

Vatican City four miles in circumference, now an independent state, is erecting a great railway station, mint to make its own money which we suppose will be holy money and the love of it will not be the root of any evil. The Vatican, the largest palace in the world, contains 20 courts and 1100 rooms and is the home of Pious, the present of a line of 265 popes (St. Peter the first of course) 2000 priests ministering to his Holiness, while 72 cardinals and 500 bishops carry out his designs over the world. They wanted me to kiss St. Peter's toe, bow and kiss the Pope's ring, also wanted me to buy a cameo or a rosary or a something, then take it around to some other place to some other body to have it blessed for a lire or two and I would have good luck, for I forget how many years, but I said, "No thank you. I intend to keep my trust in the Lord."

The Sistine Chapel is where the Popes are elected by cardinals who gather from all parts and are kept in separate apartments, cast ballots at the altar; the ballots counted are burned, and smoke going out a pipe in the roof notifies the people that the election is over. Some of Angelo's best work is on the walls. A purgatory with Paradise above and Hades below on which he spent six years. An archbishop criticising the nude figures of angels caused Angelo to paint the archbishop in Hades with mule ears and a snake about him. Complaining to the Pope he received this answer, "You criticised the painting, now you complain about the painter, but as I have no power in Hades I can't help you." The Bible characters on the ceiling occupied five years. Michael Angelo a painter at 24 died at 91; a sculptor, artist, designer and architect of St. Peter's.

The Vatican library contains 300,000 books and 34,000 manuscripts; among them they show a letter from Martin Luther to the pope telling of his conversion and a roll of names and amounts of subscriptions to the Pope from St. Patrick's Church, New York, 2000 feet long. One amount of five hundred dollars heads the list.

The Vatican museum contains some of the world's finest statuary dating back to 2000 B. C. The alabaster bath of Nero, Model of an old Roman gallery, priceless gold woven tapestry, an old Roman passage up which horses could be ridden to the top of the building and out the window one beholds the gardens of the pope as well as the tower where they once fled for protection in battle.

St. Peter's, the largest church in the world so massive that it heats itself naturally, in the front four columns from the Appian Way. The Jubilee door in the vestibule opened once in 25 years by the pope; two million people from all parts of the world passed through it the last year it was opened. On the front balustrade Christ and the twelve apostles stand in statues 19 feet high; at the foot of the vestibule stand St. Peter and St. Paul, and the celebrated mosaic, "Peter walking on the sea." On entering one is thrilled at the size. 613 by 446 feet, and the dome 440 feet high; 80,000 people have been crowded into it. In the central nave is the slab on which Charlemagne was crowned: at the right St. Peter in bronze with the keys to the kingdom in his hand and the right foot worn by the kisses of pilgrims. It cost sixty million dollars 500 years ago, required 176 years to build it, and could not be duplicated, and is never finished, millions being spent on it each year. Every head is covered, and all statuary is covered with marble clothes.

One feels that great changes are taking place in Rome and the power of a new Rome may yet be felt over the earth.

of thousands of humbler ministers of the gospel and lay Christians in homeland and mission fields who have brought multitudes of lost souls to salvation in Christ.

A large percent of the unbelief that is undermining and destroying the spiritual life in this country has been brought about by modernistic preachers in our pulpits. When men in the sacred desk attack the authority of the Bible and the Deity of Christ they undermine the foundations of Christian faith, and their false teaching finds a ready response and receptive attitude in the carnal nature of the people. Man's fallen carnal nature is unfriendly to the laws of God. The apostle tells us that the carnal nature is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed, can be. A carnal-minded preacher pleases a carnal-minded people. It builds up for himself a large following and ample support.

The spiritual dearth which is very generally recognized in this country, with the evil results of crime and lawlessness of every kind, is largely due to the false teachings received by the people from their preachers, who have led them away from the Word of God, and the Son of God, rather than leading them to repentance and saving faith.

THE HOLINESS MOVEMENT.

There has been going on in this nation, in fact, throughout many nations, and in the mission fields, a spiritual awakening and soul-saving evangelism for several decades generally known as the Holiness Movement. It has been brought about by an awakened interest, and the preaching of the original doctrines of Methodism. The vital Bible truths preached by John Wesley calling the people to the experience of entire sanctification from sin and holy living have had a tremendous effect in this nation and many other countries, especially in the mission fields. As a result of this movement many camp meetings have been established, a number of schools have been organized, and several new church organizations have come into existence. This movement has been very bitterly opposed, grossly misrepresented with reference to its teachings and experiences, and not infrequently hurt and hindered by some of its advocates; but in spite of all these opposing forces it has gone forward bringing a host of people to Christ and a full cleansing in his precious blood, and has seen them shouting his praises on their deathbeds, and with radiant joy going out and up to eternal blessedness.

Shall this good work continue to move forward, be enlarged and spread abroad with its absolute loyalty to the Word of God, and the virgin-born Christ, mighty to save to the uttermost? In a word, do those of us who claim to have received this blessing, intend to give ourselves, our time and our means to the spread of scriptural holiness over all lands? One of the marked features of a baptism with the Holy Ghost sanctifying from all sin, is that it creates within the recipient a desire for the salvation of others; a longing to spread the good news; an irrepensible determination to witness, to pray, to give, to do something to bring sinners to Christ and believers into the kingdom of perfect love.

I believe every one professing the blessing of sanctification will agree with us that the imperative need, in fact the most urgent need now, is a well educated, wholly sanctified ministry; men and women for the homeland and mission fields who are possessed with a supreme desire to win the lost to salvation in Christ. Along with this doctrine that covers the entire system of Bible teaching with reference to personal salvation, come all the good fruits of Christian civilization.

It would take a small library of books to tell the interesting stories of how tobacco-chewing, liquor-drinking, poor, illiterate, godless families have been reached by earnest holiness preachers in camp meetings, tent revivals, brush arbors, old sheds, downtown missions, in bad-smelling halls, have been converted and gloriously sanctified. They quit their tobacco, their liquor, their idleness and became industrious, worthy citizens. They moved into better homes, dressed better, lived clean lives, subscribed for holiness papers, bought holiness books, educated their children in holiness schools. But for this gracious revival they would have remained human dregs, and their children would have grown up in ignorance and sin. This is true! Let those deny it who will. I have been in this movement for forty years and I know whereof I speak.

A HOLINESS SEMINARY.

We have organized at Asbury College, Wilmore, Ky., a Theological Seminary resting upon a firm Bible foundation, and giving special emphasis to the doctrines faithfully preached by John Wesley and his coadjutors. Special emphasis is laid upon the doctrine and experience of entire sanctification. Every professor in this Seminary believes this doctrine and witnesses to this experience. There is no fanaticism connected with it. The teachings of the Bible on salvation from sin are intelligent; it's God's appeal to men to forsake their sins and come into harmony with himself and his laws and his offer of a Christ who died for our redemption, rose for our justification and whose blood cleanseth from all sin. The doctrines of salvation embracing the crowning experience of Christian Perfection, appeal to the intellect and heart. Our professors in this Seminary are highly educated, sober, strong, clear, forceful men with a wide range of knowledge and intellectual equipment. They can be trusted.

This Seminary is the only one of its kind in the United States. It carries an excellent course of study. The men who graduate can measure arms with the graduates of any seminary. We have one large, substantial building. Every brick and plank and pound of cement in it is the gift of God's sanctified people. It is a monument to their faith and devotion.

IF THE HOLINESS PEOPLE.

If the holiness people of this nation, men and women who have been sanctified as a second, definite work of grace, who believe in the doctrine, rejoice in the experience, and desire its spread, will help us—hold a minute—will help the blessed Trinity. Mark you, this is God's work! We are helping God who gave his Son to save men from all sin, to spread the good news of a full redemption. The Lamb of God came, lived, taught, suffered, died and rose again to save the people from all sin. He wants them to know it. He wants his sanctified people to help him spread this good news throughout the earth. It is possible for God's sanctified people to build up an institution here that will accomplish results beyond the power of the multiplication table to figure out.

MY SANCTIFIED FRIENDS,

Will we do it! Here is a glorious opportunity. We have a proposition so simple and easy that most anyone who has this blessing and loves this full gospel can assist in this work. There are sanctified people who could give thousands of money for this work. May the Holy Spirit move them to help educate a ministry that will preach a full gospel all over this nation, and carry it over every sea. There are others who can give hundreds, others fifty, others twenty-five; but there is a host of loving hearts who cannot give large sums so we are making a proposition to enable them to have a part in this work. It is this: Send us your pledge to give ten, five, or one dollar per year for five years for this Theological Seminary. Look at the bottom of page 9, in this issue of THE HERALD. Clip out the pledge printed there, sign it as you feel God would have you, and send it to Mrs. H. C. Morrison, Box 592, Louisville, Ky. This work is so important, it means so much for the salvation of souls, for the preservation of vital godliness in the world, for spiritual salt and light in society, that I cannot, and must not, keep quiet on the subject.

Your brother in Christ,

H. C. MORRISON.

P. S. Please to let us hear from you by May 20. Make your first payment September 1. M.

A TURNING OF THE TIDE.

HE liquor forces of the nation have not been wanting in the spirit of conceit, aggressiveness and boasting. In their desperation to save their dear old friend, the liquor traffic, the enemy of God and man, they have used the daily press, the magazines, the cheap, hungry politicians, the lawless element among those so rich they do not fear, up in the millionaire world, where it is almost impossible to punish offenders, and down into the realm of the lower world of racketeers, where it is dangerous to interfere. They have walked roughshod over decency, truth, honor, sobriety, the homes and hearts of the people; they have been boastful in their confidence of ultimate and complete victory over the forces of righteousness and sobriety, but just now they are finding some trouble in their own camp.

A little more than two years ago a group of Tammany leaders, in their finest tailored suits, went down to Houston, Texas, and, horrible to think of, dominated and controlled a great body of excellent southern people, and put Al Smith over on them, one of the most popular products of Tammany Hall, for president of the United States.

In spite of Raskob, with his millions, the Romish Church, the liquor interests, a group of godless millionaires, and the underworld, something occurred that ought to teach politicians a lesson. A number of states that had gone strongly Democratic for almost three quarters of a century, spoke in no uncertain sound to Tammany Hall, and that corrupt bunch of loud-mouthed, cheap politicians. Al Smith's state gave an immense Republican majority. His defeat seemed to madden his supporters, and they leaped like hungry, angry wolves upon Bishop Cannon. Such a spirit of persecution and effort at terrorism has not been known in this country within a century. These mad men, somewhat gratified their rage by defeating a few candidates for office who had the courage and manhood to refuse to bow to Romanism and the liquor traffic.

There is no question but the unceasing war made upon Bishop Cannon has had some effect on timid souls, but there are indications that these political cannibals, in their hunger for human flesh, have gone a bit too far. There is a general belief that free speech is more important in this country than free liquor. It now turns out that Tammany is having troubles of its own. Her darling Jimmie Walker, whom she made Mayor of New York City, is up against a serious proposition; and Governor Roosevelt, who boasts of being dripping wet, has a problem on his hands. It seems that he will be almost compelled to break with Tammany.

We shall never vouch for the truthfulness, or assume any responsibility for what appears in the daily press. The corruption of the political and moral life of New York City is well known throughout the nation, and it seems that, finally, a committee has determined to act with real zeal against the Tammany darling, Mayor Jimmie Walker.

We clip the following from the daily press, and although it occupies quite a bit of space, we feel that its contents will be of interest to our readers.

(By the Associated Press)

ALBANY, N. Y., March 18.—Removal of Mayor Walker of New York on charges that he had "condoned incompetence" and "encouraged corruption" in 10 specific instances was asked of Governor Roosevelt by the City Affairs Committee in a letter made public by the executive today.

The charges, appearing over the signatures of Dr. John Haynes Holmes, clergyman, and Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, chairman and vice chairman of the committee, were vigorous in their denunciation of the mayor's administration of government.

They spoke of the mayor's "easy procrastination," "gross betrayal of public duty," his failure to speak "one clear and earnest word of disapproval and denunciation of this orgy of corruption in one department," and alleged he not only declined to help the inquiry into magistrates' courts, "but actually sought in every way to obstruct and even block its progress."

"Legally as well as morally," the letter said, "the mayor of New York is culpable for the corruption of his subordinates, the breakdown of his departments of government, the collapse of law and order, and the prevalence of low standards of public life under his administration."

The mayor, the letter charged, had brought the city's administration "into disrepute by daily neglect of the affairs of his office, by careless standards of public life and by complete indifference to the inefficiency and dishonesty of appointed subordinates."

The following summary of the charges was made public:

Failure to act on allegations that the board of standards and appeals had been used in the interest of real estate speculators.

Appointment of James F. Geraghty as commissioner of licenses constituted "not only a grave but a patently wilful neglect of public duty."

Tardiness in acting on alleged disproportionate awards in condemnation cases which the committee estimated to be resulting in an annual loss to the city of $33,000,000.

Failure to act on corruption in the health department which the committee said had been revealed by investigation.

Retention in the office of director of the budget by the mayor of a man whose "knowledge of corruption" in the health department disqualified him from office.

Failure to fulfill a promise that he would correct "indecent conditions" in the department of hospitals and in "permitting if not actually compelling" the appointment of untrained deputy commissioners who held high places in Tammany Hall.

Failure to speak "one clear and earnest word of disapproval and denunciation of this orgy of corruption" in the dock department and sinking fund commission.

Failure to remove from office officials who refused to testify before a grand jury investigating charges of corruption.

An attempt "in every way to obstruct and even block" the progress of the inquiry into magistrates' courts.

Failure to give initial impulse and "ardent support" into an investigation of charges of corruption in the police department.

It is high time that Democratic statesmen who are deeply interested in their party, and the welfare of the country, learn that Tammany Hall, with its products, is no more fit to govern the nation than they are to govern the city of New York. Of course, it is understood that the prominent politician in the south is not responsible for the delinquencies of the mayor of New York City; but is it not about time for them to go into one tremendous and everlasting rebellion against the liquor oligarchy and its eastern representatives. Such men as Al Smith and Jimmie Walker do not represent in one single item, the ideals and spirit of the people of the south. How would it do, by the way, to call the dogs off of Bishop Cannon and put them on the trail of Jimmie-Tammany Walker?

We were delighted with the tremendous words of Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, and some of his colleagues, to that conceited and impudent millionaire, Raskob, who undertakes to ride two horses going in opposite directions. It is to be hoped that both of these horses will run away. Raskob proposes to be chairman of the Democratic Committee and, at the same time, to be one of the most aggressive and liberal members of the liquor group that are seeking, at the expenditure of hundreds of thousands of dollars, a corruption fund, to do away with the Eighteenth Amendment of the Constitution against the liquor traffic.

The good people of this country have been in a doze on this subject; it is time for a tremendous awakening. We thank God that THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD family stands firmly and absolutely against the liquor traffic. May God increase the family, and save our country from the blight and curse that a powerful combination of men and women seek to bring back upon us in the form of the liquor traffic. Let us pray and talk, agitate, speak out and vote.

Jealousy.

JULIA A. SHELHAMER.

Would you like to see the home of Jealousy? Come with me into yon subterranean vault and let us explore her haunts.

Here we are. It is dark and damp. The air is putrid, for lying about are unburied corpses of ruined lives and maligned characters—people who have been hen-pecked to death by Jealousy's cruel tongue. There is nothing cheerful, for specters and ghosts seem to flit about accusing their murderers.

Here are persons of note and usefulness who have been slaughtered by Jealousy's ruthless hand. No one is too good for her sword—nothing too white and ethereal for her to besmirch with mud.

Her tongue poisons the victim as the spider poisons the fly which he quickly drags into his storehouse.

The damage she has caused may be recalled by the many skulls of victims now hanging upon her walls. History abounds in them.

Jealousy threw a javelin at David and drove him nearly wild with fear and distraction until his white spirit curled before her rage like a worm before the fire.

Jealousy murdered the noble husband of Semaramis that she might reign in his place.

Jealousy impelled Queen Mary to cruelly imprison her sister Elizabeth lest she should reign.

Jealousy caused Aaron Burr to murder Hamilton.

She prompted Peter the Great to behead a good man because he, out of mere politeness, picked up the queen's handkerchief which she had dropped and handed it to her.

"Jealousy is the rage of a man; neither will he deliver any in his great wrath."—Proverbs. Her tongue is a drawn sword.

Jealousy usually speaks in a whisper. Her tones are confidential. Few suspicion her. She insidiously thrusts her long tongue through the heart of her victim in such a sanctimonious manner that even some saints deem her to be but valiant for the cause of Right.

Mrs. Catharine Booth says of her:

"Jealousy makes a target of the highest and best. Its shafts are ever aimed upwards, at whatever happens to be superior to itself. Unable to rise above the waters of quagmire in which it lies, it seeks to bring all others down to its level of accomplishment, or mars what it cannot make and pulls down what it cannot rebuild. It first caricatures a good cause, then burns its effigy.

"It only remains for those whose wounded spirits have rankled beneath such cruel thrusts to take courage in the consciousness of the integrity of their hearts and to learn that the ultimate triumph of right is assured to those who will but persevere.

"It seems strange," continues Mrs. Booth, "that the more one tries to do right, the more one is fated to be misunderstood. But it is a comfort to remember that righteousness brings its own reward."

The Best Offer We've Ever Made.

Among the many splendid offers we have made to our HERALD readers there has been none that equals the one The Pentecostal Publishing Company is making at this time when it offers Farrar's Life of Christ to any one sending in one new subscription for THE HERALD, enclosing $1.50, plus postage of 20 cents. This book contains 710 pages, and is a standard work on the Life of Christ. It is beautifully bound in cloth, has good print, and is a most valuable asset to one's library. I suggest that any minister or Sunday school teacher, Christian worker or student who does not possess this wonderful Life of Christ get busy, and by soliciting one new subscriber to THE HERALD, secure this excellent book. Your library is incomplete without it. The regular price of this book is $3.00, but our offer makes it a real bargain for a little effort plus 20 cents.

MRS. H. C. MORRISON.

Paul's Superlative.

Dr. M. P. Hunt has just published a book of sermons. Rev. M. P. Hunt, a Baptist minister, pastor of one of the Baptist churches in Louisville, is well known throughout Kentucky as one of the most devout, honest, earnest, fearful and fruitful men in the state. He has been preaching for almost a half century. In every question involving right and wrong you will always know where to find M. P. Hunt. He is not only on the right side, but a courageous and aggressive soldier for righteousness. I have known him intimately for more than thirty years and count him among my best friends. His new book contains eleven sermons and are quite interesting. The book is bound in very attractive style, good paper, clear print and strong meat, served with plain earnestness. The price of the book is $1.00, and can be had of The Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky.

H. C. MORRISON.

Believing that a Divinely-called, wholly-sanctified, well-equipped, Spirit-filled ministry is one of the greatest needs of our times, and for all time to come, I am glad to make a donation for the upbuilding of the Asbury Theological Seminary at Wilmore, Ky. For this great work, I promise to give $..... per year for five years, first installment due September 1, 1931. I will join all who are helping in this good work in prayer for the blessing of the Lord to rest upon it.

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS

A SINGLE SOUL.

"Ruth, I have tickets for the concert of the Bell-Ringers on Wednesday night, can you go?" Alice said to a friend, as she stopped at her gate.

"It is prayer meeting night."

"I know; but they sail for Europe Friday night, and this is their last concert."

"But I never stay away from prayer meeting for anything."

"But this is a sacred concert—and only once. We can worship just as well there."

So, reluctantly, against her convictions, Ruth consented.

That night the girl dreamed that an angel in shining raiment stood beside her, and asked gently, "Where are you going tomorrow night?"

And she answered, "I thought I would go to the concert."

Then the angel said sadly, "Have you so little appreciation of the value of a single soul?"

Vividly the vision came back to Ruth the next morning, as she lay, saying softly to herself wondering what it could mean—"So little appreciation of the value of a single soul."

She decided that she must take back her promise to attend the concert, and go to the prayer meeting.

Ruth sat in the house of prayer with a strange joy in her soul, saying:

"Plenteous grace with Thee is found,
grace to cover all my sin;

Let the healing streams abound, make and keep me pure within.

Thou of life the fountain art, freely
let me take of Thee;

Spring Thou up within my heart, rise to all eternity."

As the music ceased, the girl sprang impulsively to her feet.

"I meant to hear the Bell-Ringers tonight," she said, "but I decided that I would rather come to prayer meeting; and I am happier here than I should have been at the concert; and I am sure no music could be sweeter to me than the hymn we have just sung."

As the hour for closing drew near, the pastor arose, and invited any who would give themselves to Christ to come forward.

As he waited, in silence, a lady in mourning walked slowly up the aisle, and kneeling, was shown the way of salvation.

When the service was ended, a friend came to Ruth, and said:

"The lady who went forward wishes to be introduced to you."

Much astonished, the girl went to receive the introduction to Mrs. Walters.

"I wanted to tell you," the lady said, "that I owe the fact of my being a Christian tonight to your testimony. I have not been inside of a church for ten years. I came here to please a friend, and when you said you would give up a concert for a prayer meeting, and that no music could be sweeter to you than the hymn."

"Jesus, lover of my soul," I thought to myself, "There must be something in religion, and I am going to have it." So, I wish to thank you that it is because of your testimony that I shall go home tonight a servant of the Lord Jesus Christ."

Ruth held out her hand, and pressed gratefully that of her new friend.

She knew now the meaning of the angel's message.

She could not tell Mrs. Walters how nearly she had come to proving recreant to her trust, nor of the dream that had influenced her in the true direction, so she answered simply:

"I thank you for telling me this. I shall never forget it."

Yet she little guessed what cause she would always have to remember it.

Ruth's home was close beside the railroad track. About midnight she was awakened by a horrible crashing sound.

Looking from the window she could see where the midnight express and the 11:30 freight had collided.

The frantic cries of the frightened, and the piercing shrieks of the wounded made her shudder. But she bravely put away all thoughts of self, and calling her father, was soon ready to go with him to the rescue.

And the first face that looked into hers, as she stood beside the burning train, was that of Mrs. Walters.

Pale and peaceful it was, though showing how intensely she suffered.

She was extricated and borne to Ruth's home.

The power of speech was almost gone.

She rallied a little as they laid her on Ruth's couch.

Taking her hand, and pressing it to her lips, she whispered feebly:

"Child, I'm going away—it was my last chance—what if you had not spoken—what if I had not taken it?"

And kneeling there beside the dead, the tears raining down her face, Ruth promised her Father always to do her duty; always to give her testimony; always to appreciate the value of

SAUL HUNTS DAVID.

Mrs. Geneva Mendenhall.

David and his men lived in the hills and caves of Judah for a long time, hiding from Saul who came out with his army to seek them.

One time when David and his men were hiding far back in a cave, Saul came into the entrance of it alone and lay down to sleep. While he slept David crept up near enough to cut a piece from his royal robe but he would not harm Saul because he felt that it would displease the Lord. After Saul awakened and left the cave, David went out and called to him showing him the scrap of cloth as proof that he had refused to harm the king when the chance was given him.

When Saul saw and heard all that had happened his old love for David returned and he wept, saying, "You are a better man than I, David, and may God reward you for your kindness." And he invited David to return to the palace but when he was gone, David returned to his hiding-place.

Sure enough, it was not very long until Saul took Abner in command of an army of three thousand men to hunt David out and kill him. But while Saul's army lay encamped on the plain David and one of his men came quietly down at night and walked into the middle of Saul's camp. Saul lay asleep in the midst of his guards. The man with David wished to strike Saul dead but David would not let him, saying that God would strike Saul down in his own good time. So they only took Saul's spear and a bottle of water from beside him and stole silently away.

When morning came David stood off a little way and called out to Abner mocking him because he slept while the king was in danger. Again, at the sound of David's voice Saul forgot all his anger toward him, begging his forgiveness and asking him to return to his old place in the palace.

But because of the wicked men whom Saul kept about him David did not trust him, but sent the spear and jug back by a young man, and with a final farewell, turned and went his way.

By this time David was leading a large and powerful army. He made a treaty with the king of the Philistines who gave him to rule the city of Ziklag in the south of the land of Judah.

Questions:

1. Why did Saul fear David so much?

2. Why did David spare Saul's life?

3. Why would David not return to the palace to live?

You may answer the questions in your letters to the page.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you please move over and let a Virginia boy join your happy band of boys and girls? I am fourteen years old; my birthday is September 2. Have I a twin? If so please write to me. I will answer all letters I receive. I am in the sixth grade at school. My father takes The Herald and I enjoy reading page ten. Aunt Bettie, I am not a Christian but hope to be some day. All the cousins that know the worth of prayer pray for me that I may become a Christian. I hope W. B. is getting in wood when this letter arrives.

Reuben Cave.
Rt. 2, Stanley, Va.

Dear Aunt Bettie: As this is my first letter to The Herald I hope to see it in print. I am glad I can say that seven years ago I opened the door and let Jesus come in and take possession of my life. My favorite hobbies are riding horseback, playing the piano, writing poetry, and reading. I am a girl fourteen years of age, have hazel brown eyes, am five feet, six inches tall, weigh about 103 pounds and I am a freshman at Bloomfield High School. I am a Methodist and also pianist at the Sunday school. Our pastor is Rev. H. C. Martin. We like him, also his wife. I would like to correspond with anyone who cares to; old or young. Love to Aunt Bettie and all the cousins.

Mary Willie Cheser.
Bloomfield, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Would you please let me say a few words for my first time to the happy band of boys and girls? Am renewing my subscription for the dear old Herald. We could not do without it in our home. My grandmother (Mrs. S. C. Hunt) took the paper for years, and loved to read it so well, and after she passed away, we have continued to take it. We enjoy every word it contains, and always long for the day of its arrival in our home. I am thirteen years old, in first year high school, go to Sunday school and church every Sunday. My birthday is August 12. Who has the same? I have one brother eleven years old. His name is Lucian Hunt Ward. I play the piano, he plays the mandolin, papa plays the guitar, so if you should hear our names called over WFIW, Hopkinsville, Ky., sometimes, do not be surprised. (Ha, Ha!) Love to Aunt Bettie.

Eva Nell Ward.
Lewisburg, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Greetings with this Bible verse, "All things work together for good to them that love God." I do praise the dear Lord for victory in my soul. He saves, sanctifies and keeps me by his everlasting hand. I was saved at the age of ten years. It was ten years ago last summer, August 15, since Jesus saved me, and what a joyful birthday I had. It was about two years ago at this time when I wrote you. I received a number of letters from the cousins of the different states. If I remember correctly there were twenty-five different cousins who wrote to me. These letters have been a great blessing to me, and I am still corresponding with some of them. Many things have occurred since I wrote last. We went as a family on a trip to California. On our trip we visited many places of interest, one being the beautiful Grand Canyon. We went a few feet into the Canyon and sang some Gospel songs there. We also visited Denver and The Carlsbad Cavern. On Mt. Wilson we looked through the 60 inch telescope viewing the wonders of the heavens. At Yosemite Valley we saw many, many beautiful scenes hard to describe. God protected us on our trip and blessed us as we stopped and sang and told people of Jesus. It was a trip to be remembered not only for educational benefits, but spiritual ones also. That was the summer of 1929.

Last summer, we made two trips to Oklahoma where we were in the direct evangelistic work. It is a great work. God blessed so many times in such unusual ways. To him be all the glory. How glad I am I ever chose this way. It is a joy to give our all to Jesus. It pays to leave this world with all its follies, powder, paint, fashions, short, thin dresses and flesh stockings, jewelry and all the rest of the world's attractions. It has lost all its attractions for me, and I am fully satisfied to go the plain way with Christ. Some laugh at me, but young folk, let me tell you, there are such who admire a girl who dresses both ways, up and down. I have found that it pays to take this holy, plain and narrow way. I would never sell it for this world's foolishness. There are so many young folks and even among those no doubt who may read this letter, who are trying to serve both God and Mammon, but that is impossible. Oh, let us not try to walk on the fence, young people, but let us be out and out for God. I do not associate with unsaved young people. I try to win them but if they reject, I leave them and seek the companionship of those who do serve Jesus.

This last week has been a blessed one for me. Friday evening as we were having our regular prayer meeting I again had my Junior meeting in a separate room. I felt led to give an altar call in the beginning of our meeting instead of going on as usual. I began to sing "Just as I am," and one after another knelt down at our altar until I sang and cried and every one came forward. I called for help and we prayed all evening until one after the other got Jesus in his and her heart. Oh, if you could have all seen how these children cried and prayed and asked forgiveness of one another and of their parents. It was a wonderful evening. To God be all the glory. It pays to obey God when he leads. We must follow, and if we do then we are happy. May this incident encourage Sunday school teachers and Christian workers. The time of revivals is not passed yet. Jesus is the same yesterday, today and forever.

I am attending school this year here at our Sunnyside Bible Graded and High School. I am a Junior and like my work fine. My father is the superintendent of this little Holiness School. We have four teachers this year, nine high school and Bible students and fifteen graded pupils. Jesus is blessing our little school and we are so thankful that we can stand here as a lighthouse for Jesus. Any one who wishes to hear about our work here write to my father, J. J. Engbrecht, or to me and I will try and tell you of our work. Our teachers come here and teach without salary and trust God for their daily needs. This school is run by faith, for both students and teachers and so far Jesus has never failed but always supplies our needs. We also have a girls' choir and God blesses us as we go out on week-end trips rendering programs in different places. I will be glad to hear from those who need help in a spiritual way or those who are traveling the same narrow road to heaven. My letter is long and I must close, wishing all the cousins God's richest blessings. I am yours in him,

Rosa Maria Engbrecht.

"HUMAN ENGINEERING."

T. Richardson Gray.

This headline is borrowed from the "Pathfinders of America," an organization whose aim is to build moral character in children and youth in public schools. A special attempt is being made in Detroit schools. It is hoped to thus change the destiny of America for the better. Rightly sensing a growing tendency to out-of-control and lawlessness, that menaces the future peace and safety of the world, they would forestall a possible chaos, by instilling in children and youth higher moral standards of self-government. This is commendable, for the insistent need is morals, character, spiritual ideals and living. They would link learning with life; to quote them, "We deary emphasis on grades and diplomas: Education is not to know what we do not know, but how to live, to behave, to conduct ourselves." With their plan we agree, and in part disagree. For years I have advocated with both tongue and pen, the absolute necessity of moral training in schools, by religious teachers, but backed by Divine Authority. For years I have addressed schools, and in written articles have urged other ministers to do likewise. My claim has been that an educational system that trains the head to outstrip the heart, is faulty-dangerously so. The school slogan "More Pep" has been at the expense of restraints. Organized crime has amazed authorities by the brains put into it by high school and college men who lack character, but show cunning of highly developed mental acumen. I heartily approve of morals being taught in public schools; but we shy at "Human Engineering." We are afraid of too much Humanism; that this worthy society may unwittingly commit the error of so many other well-meaning ones, who in effect—bowed God out of his world.—This is foreshadowed in the "Pathfinder's" attempt to bar morals from their moral source. To quote, "No religious reference enters into any lesson: 'twould not only be unconstitutional, but fatal to mention the Bible. We draw the line between religious doctrine and conduct."

Personally, we shrink from any suspicion of complainer or faultfinder, but we fear that the "Pathfinders's" plan, like so many others, is weakened by ignoring, or by not giving prominence to, Divine authority. And we wonder if Protestantism, in her boasted freedom, did not blunder in sacrificing all authority. We further quote, "The art of living can fall back on no final authority: science alone can form a basis for the conduct of life." But in dealing with the age-old problem of sin and its results, from the very first, it called for more than human power. In the following quotation, we deplore their failure to reckon with the inborn religious soul instinct, "In the conduct of life we cannot trust religion, for the sentiment of fear, awe, reverence, is sadly mangled by superstition." Knowing the tendency of children to take the line of least resistance, we feel they will welcome the following as an encouragement to do so;—"We use no commands or rules; children are asked to follow their own reason, based on facts we give them." Far be it from me to throw a straw in the way of any good movement, and we trust the "Pathfinders" will have a great measure of success. However, many organizations, setting forth on the worthy purpose of redeeming the nation from an intolerable condition, make up a long list of partial failures, by attempting to accomplish a superhuman task, through purely human agencies, when the cure, once for all provided in the mission of Christ and his gospel, as the one panacea for the ills of earth, is at hand, but which the world still refuses to take seriously.

Conversion of the Heart:—The world knows better than it does. True education must reckon with character: the heart must keep pace with the head. We are often made to wonder at the intelligence displayed by young folk on biblical and religious subjects, but whose hearts are often far a field. Mid the absorbing economic strain, the world's greatest need, that of righteousness, remains the same. The future will affect most seriously children and youth, for they must need it. Yet students themselves confess to a growing disinterest in religion, and are not, as a rule, under church influences; hence the "Pathfinders" wisely seek the schools in order to reach them. Should the present "hard times" duplicate that of 1857, which brought the nation to its knees, and turned on the greatest revival of religion in history, then it will not have proved an unmixed evil. Meanwhile, to cope with the most critical conditions now upon us, we would encourage the teaching of Bible religion and laws of God in all public schools: the selection of Christian teachers only; and a special provision made, other than now exists, whereby students would be under church and gospel restraints.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

REV. O. G. MINGLEDORFF, D. D.

Lesson IV.—April 26, 1931.

Subject.—Prayer. Luke 18:1-14.

Golden Text.—Lord, teach us to pray. Luke 11:1.

Time.—March A. D. 30.

Place.—Perea.

Introduction.—“If ye then, being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children: how much more shall your heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to them that ask him.”—Jesus Christ in Luke 11:13.

“There is a manifest want of spiritual influence in the ministry of the present day. I feel it in my own case and I see it in that of others. I am afraid there is too much of a low, managing contriving, maneuvering temper of mind among us. We are laying ourselves out more than is expedient to meet one man's taste and another man's prejudices. The ministry is a grand and holy affair, and it should find in us a simple habit of spirit and a holy but humble indifference to all consequences. The leading defect in Christian ministers is want of a devotional habit.”—Richard Cecil.

“Give me one hundred preachers who fear nothing but sin and desire nothing but God, and I care not a straw whether they be clergymen or laymen; such alone will shake the gates of hell and set up the kingdom of heaven on earth. God does nothing but in answer to prayer.”—John Wesley.

“Prayer is the first thing, the second thing, the third thing necessary to a minister. Pray, then, my dear brother; pray, pray, pray.”—Edward Payson.

From my reading I have culled out the foregoing quotations. Although they apply primarily to ministers of the gospel, they are equally applicable to all Christians who desire to be useful in the church of God. Communion with God is the source of all spiritual life and power; and without it our spirits wither and die.

“Worship God.” These are the words of the angel whom John was about to worship. He was giving John some vision of the coming glory of the post-graduate world; and the radiant beauty of the heavenly visitant was so entrancing that the apostle was about to fall down in adoration. If any one ever had an excuse for worshipping any being, except God, he had it that day.

Nothing so expands the soul as the worship of God. To worship anything else shrinks and belittles the soul; but all communion with truly great companions, as long as it is not worship, enlarges and exalts one. No one could be the companion of Frances Willard, and remain little and trashy. If communion with great and good human beings so deepens and broadens one, how much more will communion with the infinite God? No one can worship and commune daily with him, and remain little in soul. “Worship God,” and grow into his “image from glory to glory.”

In the physical realm no force is ever lost; and the same is true in the realm of spirit. Prayer is a spiritual force; faith is a spiritual force. In prayer we throw out into the spiritual universe living, vitalizing currents of spiritual power, that God uses for the accomplishment of great ends. He has so ordained; and when men fail to furnish prayer power, they thwart the purposes of God. Jesus had two great purposes in prayer: (1) Communion with the Father, which refreshed and strengthened his spiritual Being; (2) He was helping to furnish the spiritual force needed for the salvation of men. He is still engaged in this glorious office, and invites us to be co-prayers with him. The honor thus conferred upon us is verily beyond measure. Like our Lord, I trust we shall be able to continue the blessed work in glory.

Comments on the Lesson.

1. He spake a parable.—It would be interesting to know whether or not these parables were taken from real history; but our curiosity cannot be gratified. This one reads like history; but I am inclined to believe that Jesus manufactured his parables out of multitudes of similar things that were constantly happening. The parable of the sower was being enacted before the eyes of his hearers every passing year. No doubt there are many court cases that parallel the parable in today's study. Jesus may have formed it out of material with which the people were familiar. Men ought always to pray, and not to faint.—Men should have a regular habit of prayer, and never neglect it for any cause. I have never known any one who prayed too much.

2. A judge.—Such officers are under tremendous responsibility. They should always be intelligent and morally clean. No immoral man is fit for the bench. It is not a place for a dishonest man, or a coward. A judge should fear God and respect his fellowmen. He should be a leader of men in all good things. Which feared not God.—Therefore, his conscience was dead; and he was unworthy of being entrusted with any moral responsibility. Neither regarded man.—He was little better than a common beast. One of the noblest marks of genuine manhood is profound respect for other men.

3. A widow.—If any one has a right to appeal to a judge for protection, that one is a helpless widow. Avenge me of mine adversary.—Some one was endeavoring to swindle her; and she was begging the judge to see that she got justice. Woe betide the court that fails to live up to the demands of his oath under such circumstances. Better were it for him, had he never been born.

4. He would not for a while.—Jesus is endeavoring to paint a strong picture, because he is looking forward to a strong contrast. The judge's hesitancy portrays his meanness. Then he begins to soliloquize: “Though I fear not God, nor regard man.”—One has to sink very low in manhood to boast of his filthy littleness; yet, such is this judge's condition. There is hope for one as long as he is ashamed of his sins, but none when he is proud of them.

5. Because this widow troubleth me, I will avenge her.—Such a judge would have accepted a bribe. He needed stripes and a penitentiary sentence for about three decades. Lest by her continual coming she weary me.—One has no right to hate such a judge, but it is tremendously religious to have a profound contempt for him; and to regard him as one's friend would make a decent man despise himself. This judge's demeanor marks him as entirely base. There is not a high-toned symptom in him.

6. Hear what the unjust judge saith.—Here the contrast between the unjust judge and our heavenly Father begins. Size up the judge fully; and be not afraid to contrast him with God.

7. Shall not God avenge his own elect?—Men act out what is in them; and so does God. It is natural for him to answer our prayers. That has been in his plans from all eternity. To do otherwise would be to violate the Divine Nature. God cannot do contrary to his own Being: he cannot lie. Though he hear long with them.—I think we shall be coming nearer the meaning of this clause if we say: “And he is very patient with them.” He knows us altogether, and pities us as do our earthly fathers.

8. I tell you that he will avenge them speedily.—An answer from God is like touching an electric button. If the machinery is in good order, the current comes when the connection is made. “What things soever ye desire, when ye pray, believe that ye receive them, and ye shall have them.” When the Son of man cometh, shall he find faith on the earth.—Dr. Clarke makes this question refer especially to Palestine, and answers: “No! And therefore he destroyed that land.” No doubt his exegesis is true as far as the land of the Jews was concerned, but I feel certain that in its fuller import the question applies to the entire human family. No more terrible question ever fell from the lips of the Master. When he comes again the race will have fallen away in the Great Apostasy; and that seems to have begun already.

Our space is nearly all filled; and we have just reached the second section of the lesson. Maybe a general more particular one. Note to whom comment will suit here as well as a more particular one. Note to whom the parable was spoken: “Certain which trusted in themselves that they were righteous, and despised others.” There were just such characters in James' audience. His speech was what we would call personal. The Pharisee did not pray to God, but “stood and prayed thus with himself.” His prayer is locked up in that word thus. He brags on what he believes to be his own goodness, but condemns the poor publican who is standing afar off simply begging for mercy. The contrast is complete. God seems to pay no attention whatever to the Pharisee; but is all attentive mercy towards the penitent publican. Jesus says that “he went down to his house justified rather than the other. In other words, his prayer was answered, and that of the Pharisee was not.

The lessons taught in both these parables are as fresh today as they were in the long ago. We are to be importunate in our prayers, remembering that our Father will answer when it is best for us. The second parable gives us a great lesson: namely, it is the humble, penitent soul that reaches the heart of God. Both lessons will last for all time.

LOUISA, KENTUCKY.

We have just closed a very successful meeting here. The pastor was assisted in the services by Rev. H. L. Cochran, young people's evangelist and singer, of Sherman, Texas. Bro. Cochran is a consecrated man, a hard worker, and an exceptionally efficient worker with the young people and children. Bro. Cochran preached at the morning services, conducted children's meetings and young people's services, led the singing and did personal work. Our official board has unanimously requested him to return next year.

Our meeting continued for two weeks with the following results: 160 conversions and nine volunteers for life service. All of the churches of the town will receive members as the result of the meeting. We received 32 members last Sunday and the total will probably exceed 50. Our church is in a better condition than it has been for quite a while. I heartily recommend Bro. Cochran to any pastor needing evangelistic help.

H. W. Ware.

WEST CONSHOHOCKEN, PA.

Thank God he still answers prayer. We opened fire on March 1. Rev. and Mrs. Samuel Thomas were the engaged evangelists. From the beginning God's blessing was upon the meeting. Thirty-two were gloriously saved and about fourteen were sanctified wholly. The church edified and built up, and the devil is as mad as he can be. A church member said that the little Jew is the only one going to heaven. But John beheld great multitudes which no man could number of all nations and kindreds, and people. Twelve joined the church. They were nearly all young people. We thank God for these young people. God grant that they may be true unto the end. Amen.

Brother and Sister Thomas are fearless second blessing holiness preachers. They surely gave sin and the devil a black eye in West Conshohocken. They preach the word with no uncertain sound. God bless them wherever they may go, and give them many souls for hire. Please pray for us that the revival may continue. There is much conviction upon the people. Ella J. Nace, Pastor.

"THE OLD RUGGED CROSS" stands out at this season of the year like a mighty mountain peak. What could be more appropriate to place in the hands of a friend than a copy of The Story of The Old Rugged Cross? It is by the author of this world famed gospel song and contains data on how it came to be written. Also, fifteen GREAT SERMONETTES on various phases of the CROSS by outstanding American gospel preachers. In two bindings, 75c and $1.00.

HANNAH, NORTH DAKOTA.

This report of our special revival effort on Hannah charge is sent to you with the hope that it may inspire other pastors in their efforts to win souls.

Special prayer meetings were held many weeks preceding the meeting. Prayer was made for guidance in choosing an outside helper and for a God-sent revival. Our meeting opened March 1st. Rev. H. J. Empie, of Crystal, N. D., came to do the preaching and assist us. The Word of God was faithfully and earnestly proclaimed at afternoon and evening services, with separate meetings for the children at the close of school and Saturday and Sunday P. M. This effort for the children resulted in a Junior Church being started for the children.

In general we have seen registered a mighty protest against sin and worldliness in this community. Besides, several misunderstandings were straightened up and cooled off church members returned to the Lord. One or two were definitely sanctified. Ten of the young people were graciously converted. The church has taken on new life and work here is much more enjoyable. The promise given us in Isaiah 45:2-3, has begun to be fulfilled and we are pressing on for greater victory.

B. T. Osborne, Minister.

HATTIESBURG, MISSISSIPPI.

Since I last reported I have held two fine meetings, one in the city of Hattiesburg, where I spoke every night at 7:45 and was to have spoken every day at noon over the radio, but some days they did not broadcast so we did not use the radio every day but we reached several thousand people when we did speak. Amen. God gave us quite a few who were saved from sin. We went from there to Bessemer, Ala., where God gave us a very precious meeting. Many times the house was full and God helped us to reach some of the fine folks of the city. I am at home for a few days with my family, and I hope to be out again in the battle for God and holiness. I was called to go with the pastor of one of the big Baptist churches of Jackson the other day to anoint a dear girl who had cancer of the stomach. The doctors had given her up to die; we prayed for her and anointed her in Jesus' name and God has touched her, and we are believing for her complete recovery. God is the same today and will heal in response to faith.

I am making out my slate for the spring and summer and the calls are coming in. I have several important dates open and would like to hear from any camp meeting board or church needing a revival. I have spent twenty years in the ministry and fifteen years of these have been in the city pastoral work. Pray for me. R. A. Thornton, D. D. Evangelist.

REPORT OF EVANGELISTS T. C. AND R. E. GRIGSBY.

Since the Missouri district assembly of the Church of the Nazarene, we have held the following meetings: Our first meeting being at Lodi, Mo., with Brother McElrath. God gave us a good meeting; folk sure prayed through in the old-fashioned way.

Our next meeting was at Rogers, Ark., with Prof. Hardy as pastor. This was sure a hard battle. The Pentecost had a revival in swing when we arrived; the Christian Church also started their meeting during this time, but God heard and answered prayer; a few people were saved, and the church was helped and greatly encouraged.

From there we went to Sabulah, Mo., with Brother Brawley, as pastor. Among the number saved was an old man around seventy years who prayed through in his home. We then helped at Iberia, Mo., Brother S. C. Hendly, pastor. We found a fine class of young people who knew how to pray and get blessed. A number were saved, reclaimed or sanctified.

From there we went to Wheatland, Ind., with the M. E. folk. Rev. Crider is pastor. There was great interest shown among this people. Several were saved, reclaimed or sanctified. One lady who had been a school-teacher was at altar praying for the Holy Ghost and was struck down to the floor twice, then came up praising God for the blessing of holiness.

We are now in a meeting at Mt. Pisgah near Iberia, Mo., with Rev. Ezra Hendly as pastor, a recent graduate of Trevecca College. Conviction is on the people and restitutions are being made.

We go from here to Eldin, Mo., for our next meeting. Any one desiring our labors write us at our home address, Piedmont, Mo.

A BOOK FOR THE Mother's Day Season

The quiet but powerful influence of a mother is the acknowledged source of the success of many great men. Here we have true and intimate stories of the working of this power—stories which describe beautiful relationships, recall many happy incidents, and show the wisdom as well as the affection of real motherhood. The range of the book runs from the delicate, sensitive mother of Goethe to the slave-mother of Booker T. Washington. Not only will the book give boys a new appreciation of life and success; it will grip the attention of readers of all ages. Among the sixteen mothers in the books are those of Augustine, Wesley, Washington, Edward VII, Goethe, Benjamin West, John Quincy Adams, Lincoln, Lord Haldane, Sir James Barrie, and Booker T. ## The Days of His Flesh:

The Earthly Life of Our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

By REV. DAVID SMITH

The leading Bible scholars, ministers, and editors throughout the English-speaking world proclaim this great work as the one outstanding Life of Christ for every man today. It offers a biography of the Master, elaborate in detail and extending through fifty masterful chapters and more than 500 pages, tracing every phase of our Saviour's earthly career. The author rests his case solidly upon the evangelical records. He adduces abundant evidence to show the historicity of Jesus and to confute those theories which would make Him a mere myth arising out of a haze of reverence and superstition. He is equally sound on the deity of Jesus and he shows conclusively that the acceptance of Christ as the Lord of Heaven must be regarded as the cornerstone of the Church.

FROM THE NATIONAL WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION.

"There is no place in America for a traffic which refuses to obey the law or even a group of people who refuse to obey the laws of the country."

This ringing declaration was the high point in the speech of Mrs. Ella A. Boole, president of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union, to the Committee on Judiciary of the House of Representatives at Washington during the recent exciting Wet and Dry Hearings on the resolutions to repeal the 18th amendment, or modify national prohibition.

Mrs. Boole appeared not only as the leader of the white ribbon women, but as Chairman of the Conference of National Organizations Supporting the Prohibition Amendment and in charge of the program of testimony on the dry side. Her speech was listened to attentively by the members of the Judiciary Committee and made an impression in the press of the country.

After listing the steps of the temperance forces in arriving at national prohibition, Mrs. Boole reminded the committee that the wet charge that "prohibition was put over while the boys were overseas," and then asked if they remembered what the brewers and distillers were doing "while the boys were overseas?" She recalled the dog-in-the-manger attitude of the liquor interests, their refusal to co-operate with the government in the food and fuel conservation programs so necessary for a victory, and the famous exposure of the brewing interests as the chief financiers for enemy propaganda in this country.

Continuing, she said: "Much has been said about personal liberty. Women and children are people and they too are guaranteed life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. The intutions of women, confirmed by the logic of events, indict the drink habit and drink traffic for loss of life, for interference with their liberty and the destruction of their happiness."

"The women now enrolled in the movement for the repeal of prohibition have no idea of the conditions which prevailed when the women's crusade of 1873-4 resulted in a woman's organization committed to finding a solution of the problem of protecting the home from the liquor traffic. They have no idea that in the effort to find a solution of this problem education, agitation and organization employed many methods, but after forty years of activity it was the conclusion that prohibition was the best method."

Mrs. Boole reminded the committee of the several great petitions of women which were presented to congress for war time prohibition and national prohibition.

Mrs. Boole said the W. C. T. U. is made up largely of women in the churches and outlined why they believe national prohibition is the best method of handling the liquor traffic:

First: It establishes a uniform method; second it prohibits the entire traffic in every branch; third, because the definition of intoxicating liquor is uniform throughout all the states, the definition accepted by the Internal Revenue Bureau for forty years and sustained by the Supreme Court; and fourth, because the only way to deal with a law-defying evil is to prohibit.

"Prohibition," she said, "has disclosed no new attitude on the part of its opponents, for the liquor traffic has always been a law violator."

Adam Clarke---Great Commentary

Dr. Clarke was one of a long succession of men who, in every age of the Christian Church, have applied the best energies of their intellect and heart to the study and interpretation of the Scriptures. The seven gifts which, according to Augustine, the true expositor of Scripture must possess—reverence, piety, science, fortitude, prudence, cleanness of heart, and heavenly wisdom—were his portions.

The studies of his earlier years always had a bearing on this great work. From the beginning he felt the need of being taught by God to understand his own word. Referring to this, he says: "No man ever taught me the doctrine I embrace; I received it singly by reading the Bible."

Sufficiently critical to aid the inquiries of the more serious student, and yet sufficiently popular to serve the purpose of general edification. He gives a lucid view of the several books of Scripture, as to their dates and authors, their scope and connection; he expounds the original text in a manner adapted to the deficiencies of the reader; he elucidates difficulties in chronology, history, and oriental manners; he develops the grand doctrines of revelation, and applies the whole to the great concerns of human salvation and duty.

One leading feature in its character is independence in thinking. While he availed himself of the labors of others, the great number of his expositions are emphatically his own.

DR. ADAM CLARKE'S COMMENTARY ON THE BIBLE

is one of the noblest works of the class in the entire domain of sacred literature. It is a thesaurus of general learning.

Its luminous expositions of the Law and the Gospel; its earnest and forceful appeals to the conscience of the sinner and the unbeliever; its rich counsels for the well-understood wants of the Christian's inner life; its endless exhibitions of general knowledge; and its valuable aids to the students of those holy tongues in which revelation took its first recorded forms—all will render this book the companion and the counselor of multitudes as long as the English language may endure. The man who accomplished it achieved immortality, his name having become identified with an indestructible monument of learning and religion.

We commend it as the most spiritual commentary published. Six large volumes, good paper, good binding, new type.

"Restore the legal sale of intoxicating liquor," she said, "even under state control, every restriction will be violated. It was so before prohibition; it is so now; it was even stated by one witness at this hearing that under no circumstances would he obey the prohibition law."

"There is no place in America for a traffic which refuses or even a group of people who refuse to obey the laws of the country. The prohibition of the liquor traffic is incorporated in the Constitution and is binding on all the people. Neither greed nor appetite is an excuse for violating it."

THE HUMAN RACE IS A PROCESSION.

By The Editor.

THE human race is a procession marching to the cemetery. It cannot stop and mark time. Every movement in the life of every human being is a forward movement toward the inevitable—death! And death does not end the existence of a human being.

That incident in the history of an individual which we call death is simply a change of place of residence. We cease to live here and go to live in the hereafter. It is the height of madness to be indifferent with reference to that hereafter residence. We live here but a short time and, as a rule, we undertake to make our abode here as comfortable and attractive as we can. We certainly ought to seek to make our place of eternal abode a place of comfort.

Philosophers have striven in vain to penetrate the future. They have not been able to lift the curtain and look into that world, or place of abode, where the spirits of those who have departed this life have gone to take up their residence. They all realize that we are going, that soon we must be gone. They believe that we are going somewhere; practically all grades of human beings in all parts of the earth, and all the history of the world, have believed in the immortality of the soul, and a future state of existence, and most people have believed that something must be done while the spirit abides in the body to prepare it for a better state in that life beyond.

The Bible is THE BOOK, and the only Book that pours a flood of light on this all-important question. The Bible claims to be of divine authority, and it carries within itself positive proof of the justice of its claims. It teaches that the body is a mere place of residence; that it is mortal; that its decay and death are certain. Human history has proven that statement in the Bible—"It is appointed unto men once to die." Men have died; they continue to die. It is not at all probable that any one of the many thousands of the readers of these paragraphs will be alive ninety years from now. A very large per cent of them will be gone ten years from now. The majority of them will be gone twenty-five years from now. Three-fourths, yes, a larger percent, will be gone fifty years from now. Very few, if any, of the readers now holding THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD in his or her hand, will be living seventy-five years from today. A century from this date the earth, if populated, will be populated with a new people. Now and then, but rarely, you will find persons a hundred years of age; but the readers of today have already gotten a good start in life, and they will have departed and a new generation will have taken their place. The big, important question is, Are we who are living today prepared for a better state of existence? Are we waiting with full assurance for entrance upon that better state?

The Bible proposes to tell us exactly how to make preparation for a peaceful death and a safe passage and a full assurance of an eternity of blessedness. All that the Bible proposes on this subject is reasonable. Sin of any kind and every kind is a disadvantage to the present life, if there were no future life. Take sin out of the world and this life would be quite worth living if there were no future. But sin is here. It always has, and always will be destructive of peace, of happiness, of life itself. The Bible's offer of a better state of existence for our spirit after our bodies have fallen victims of death, begins with a powerful appeal to forsake sin. This very appeal to forsake sin, and to live righteously is a proof of its divine origin and inspiration. One of the remarkable things about the offer of a preparation for a better state in the future is the fact that the Bible offers the forgiveness of all past sins. It proposes to create within us a new nature, with different desires, attitudes, dispositions and propensities. ~~It claims a power that will make us new creatures, that will adjust us to the will and law of the great Being who gave us existence.~~

One of the interesting things about the Bible is the fact that those who have accepted its offers and fallen into harmony with its requirements, have experience, have found a peace, a new joyful life. They have been marvelously changed; hatred has gone out of them and love has taken its place. Profanity has gone out of them and praise has taken its place. The vilest of heathen people have been transformed into beautiful saints. I shall say no more just now, only this: My dear Reader, what about your immortal spirit? That physical temple in which you now dwell will soon decay; that spirit, which is the real YOU, must find a dwellingplace elsewhere. Is it ready? If not, I commend you to the Bible, the God of the Bible, the Christ of the Bible, the Holy Spirit of the Bible. Make haste! Get ready!

Without Holiness No Man Shall See the Lord.
No. 2.

PEOPLE BELIEVE WHAT THEY ARE TAUGHT.

IT is hardly probable that any one will question the truthfulness of the above statement. Somehow, somewhere, we must be holy before we can enter heaven. It is generally conceded that people believe what they are taught. Unfortunately, a large percent of the church members in Protestantism have been taught that they cannot be saved from all sin in this life; that in the nature of their being they must have sin within themselves and commit more or less sin so long as they live. To us, this seems to magnify the power of sin and Satan above

Christ. This certainly teaches that Jesus is not able to save to the uttermost. It contradicts the statement made by the beloved John that, "the blood of Jesus Christ cleanseth us from all sin."

It is because of much false teaching that the centuries have passed and left the world unevangelized; large portions of it entirely without the gospel; and this false teaching has prepared the way for the fearful conditions that we find in the church today. Teach the people that they cannot be saved from their sins, and they certainly feel safe in the practice of it. The people need to be taught that Jesus Christ did not come into the world so much to save them from hell, or to save them in heaven, but to save them from sin. Salvation from sin settles all questions with reference to the future. If a soul is saved from sin hell is impossible and heaven is certain.

What the people need is a ministry that lays tremendous emphasis upon the importance of salvation from sin, here and now, meanwhile, exalting Jesus Christ as the mighty Master of all devils and the all-powerful Son of God able to save from all sin; to baptize with the Holy Spirit, who is to abide, inhabit and keep the children of God with their lives hid with Christ in God.

ASBURY THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY.

The greatest need of our times, and of all time to come, is a God-called, well-trained, wholly sanctified, Spirit-filled ministry. Whatever natural ability or scholarship a man may possess he is not fully equipped to preach the Gospel until he has received the baptism with the Holy Ghost. We have much discussion with regard to the need of a widespread, genuine revival of religion. We appoint committees, have various gatherings and discussions, which unfortunately produce meager, if any visible results. If the Protestant preachers should betake themselves to upper rooms, consecrate themselves wholly to God, and wait in faith and prayer until the Holy Ghost fell upon them, cleansing and enduing them with power, the revival would be on; nothing could prevent it. The fire would spread, the nation would be stirred, a tremendous purging influence and cleansing power would enter into business, politics, the schools, the whole social and economic life of the nation would be graciously affected. Such a revival would do more to bring about enforcement and respect for law, than any and everything that can be thought of.

It is a startling fact that we see no indication of such consecration and Spirit-outpouring upon the ministry. In a large per cent of our Theological Seminaries there is a line of teaching that beclouds the mind, destroys evangelical faith, and sends out from the schools year by year an army of apostles of doubt, with no passion for souls. They oppose and ridicule revival methods that once combined the churches in earnest prayer and effort to win the lost, brought countless multitudes to Christ and have sent them on to Glory.

SOME MISSIONARIES I HAVE KNOWN.

Rev. G. W. Ridout D.D., Corresponding Editor.

Missionaries are not made, they are born—born of the Spirit. They are twice-born men and women. I would as soon think of a pilot taking charge of a ship who knew nothing of the channels and tides, or of a doctor going forth to minister to sick and dying who never studied anatomy and medicine, as to conceive of a person going to the mission fields who was never born again and who never knew what it was to be called of God.

The true missionary is a person of impulse and vision—holy, God-given vision and impulse. Like Joan of Arc, he hears voices and, like her, he can say: "I have heard my voices again." Thus did Carey hear voices call him to India, Hudson Taylor to China, Cowman to Japan, Hunt to the Hebrides, Bishop Taylor to South America and South Africa.

I have met missionaries in all parts of the world, and the more I have met them, the more I have believed in Christian missions, and the more I have praised God for the triumphs of the Gospel in heathen lands.

My first missionary I met in Japan came on board the steamer to greet us and take us home with him. He came to be a missionary through fire and water, through hardships, and tears and prayers, through disappointments and sacrifices. No big society sent him out; no salary was promised, out of his own earnings he paid his passage to the field, and through conflicts, many, he was now connected up with a live evangelical and evangelistic society. He had the language and whatever he did, wherever he went, he was always a missionary. He was an expert in personal work, and travelling in the trains, gave him a great field. He always travelled third class so as to be near the natives. He was an expert in visitation and had travelled on foot hundreds, perhaps thousands, of miles visiting from village to village and house to house. Missions, to him, was a life work, a passion, a truly.

Missionary number two I met in Shanghai. She had spent twenty-eight years in China. She received her baptism of fire the first year of her arrival. Going up river her boat was attacked by pirates; one or two missionaries lost their lives but she, in some way, managed to escape. She was a born leader—daughter of a leading Methodist preacher and thoroughly indoctrinated in the good old doctrines of grace, as taught by the Methodist Church. She knew all the ins and outs of Chinese travel—by boat, by wheelbarrow, by chair, by rickshaw. She was a born evangelist, and as she traveled her district she set things on fire; schools were opened up, and churches. She left a trail of missions behind her; in fact, she went too fast for the brethren, and they tried to put a resolution through stopping all work that they could not keep up with. The good bishop laughingly advised them not to, but suggested that the brethren get a move on and try to "keep up with Lizzie." She had a Bible school and that became crowded to capacity, and she was turning out Bible women, and preachers' wives and evangelists, and whatever she touched had to go. She never could stand failure nor could she abide the "status quo."

If she hadn't been a woman she would have been a District Superintendent, quite surely; and now they are electing their own bishops. If she had been a man she would have surely gotten some votes for that office but—and what a story could be written at this point—modernistic influences always bring on many changes for the worse. She could not stand modernistic books in her school. She could not abide modernism in her mission, and she felt the parting of the ways had come and she must say good bye to the work of years and go out, not knowing whither, but trusting God to lead and he did lead, truly. He led till she saw a new work growing up including Tabernacle, Bible School, Hospital, Orphanages, etc., etc., and out from that center go evangelists touching China to the very center. The Lord very often has to smash up our plans and our nests to get us ready for a greater work and a vaster field.

In one of the British Schools stands a beautiful crucifix bearing underneath it this inscription: "Dedicated to minds that can soar, that will rise and not be discouraged by obstacles or difficulties, that will chance and dare for what they know is right."

Missionary number three I met in Korea. He was truly a called missionary and took to the language almost like a native born. He had the sweetness of St. John, the theology of Wesley, the steadfastness of a Daniel, the passion of a Moody. He was tall and straight but he was the kind of man who could bend; he bent in prayer; he was a man of prayer. He could bend to the people—the poor, the ignorant, the needy. He makes me think of those words of John the Scott, an ancient mystic who said, "There are as many unveilings of God as there are saintly souls." And again, I think of him in connection with that statement, "A saintly life makes a man an auditory nerve of the eternal." The Koreans loved him. Everywhere he went he was greeted as a man of God and gospel messenger. He was my interpreter at the early morning meeting at 5:30 A. M. He chose that hour because it was easier to get interpreters for the other meetings; he was used to these early meetings. He knew just how to deal with souls, and in the after meetings, I always felt the seekers were in good hands when he had charge of things. He believed in getting sinners soundly converted to God and believers sanctified. He preached the second work of grace and believed in pressing believers on to full salvation.

Missionary number four had spent twenty years away over in far-away Yunnan, China. She had literally buried her life in that part of China. Her sacrifice knew no bounds. She loved the Chinese people and if it were possible for her to be naturalized she would willingly apply for it and be known absolutely as a Chinese woman. When war came on she did everything possible for wounded and sick soldiers. She cared for and nursed them till she caught the dread eye disease and went blind. She had to be taken by her Chinese worker down to Shanghai; fortunately, she was thrown in with a sanctified doctor. An operation on her eyes was performed and sight restored in one eye; then she attended a holiness Bible Conference where she heard sanctification preached as an attainable experience for the first time. At first, she revolted; her Calvinistic teaching asserted itself and she fought the truth, then conviction settled on her; she saw her real condition; she came to see that first she needed to be converted all over, because in carrying on her missionary work she had deceived; she flew into violent tempers, she falsified sometimes—Jesuit fashion—in order, as she thought, that good might come, and as her heart was shown up to her with the white light of Holy Spirit conviction she saw her need of restoring grace. The blessing came to her and the sanctification. One day at the altar she was definitely and powerfully sanctified. God gave her a clean heart and filled her with the Holy Spirit and with joy unspeakable. She became transformed. She hardly knew herself. She was full of testimony. She would visit the missionaries in Shanghai and take real delight in telling of her sanctification. She would say, "God took from me, not only a diseased eye in my operation, but an evil and unclean heart." She was a wonder unto many, and when the time came to return to Yunnan she went back with five other Chinese workers with her and since that her work has grown by leaps and bounds. The blind, backslidden missionary has become the Spirit-baptized missionary to all that region round about. Marvelous the change in her! Marvelous God's work through her!

Missionary number five I met up the Yangste River. He was in China by the grace of God, and kept there by grace divine. He had the root of the matter in him, he loved the Chinese and bore to them a great message of salvation to the uttermost. He was a thorough Methodist and enjoyed a real vital experience of sanctifying grace. He was a man of prayer, of faith, of vision. He loved souls and his influence with the other missionaries was always vital. He was a manly fellow, well educated, well trained, well saved and knew how to get along with his fellow workers. He was keen in vision; he could see when there was sin and deception, and he mourned over it when he saw the native preachers double in their dealings and carnal. In our revival in his town there was considerable opposition to our preaching but he stood solid without compromise; he knew what the conference needed and he did not want us to use any soft pedals, nor did we, and the results were beautiful; conversions took place and reclamations, and the Spirit moved many and some were sanctified and there was a precious in-gathering.

Missionary number six we met in South China. She was a medical woman. She had a fine woman's hospital in that city which did untold good. She was a noble Christian living the life of real consecration to God; no preaching and teaching on the sanctified life was too deep for her. She believed her Bible from cover to cover. She was a woman of strong characteristics—a real leader. She could rejoice, and did, in the precious revival God was giving in Mrs. Ridout's women's meetings. She managed to get most of her hospital patients to these afternoon meetings. It was truly a case of the halt, the lame, the bandaged, the blind when they began to hobble into the meetings. Never shall I forget this medical woman for her kindness to us when we stayed at her home. It was here I was taken sick—oh, so sick! I never had any suffering like it before. Bishop Birney told me later it sure must have been a case of Chinese bug. I don't know—the good Doctor herself did not know. To this day I have been unable to find out what my trouble was but the suffering sent me to my bed and there I lay a terribly sick man. The good Doctor did everything to help me. The meetings were on and I was expected to preach twice a day and I could not; the need was great. The second afternoon wife came from her meeting filled with the Spirit and she said, "George, I believe this is a trick of the devil to defeat this meeting. You are needed here and something must be done. Let us pray God for deliverance." I got out of bed and we prayed together in the violence of prayer. At the close I said: "I shall not take any more medicine but trust God to give me the victory." I told the Doctor later when she came in and she readily assented to my act of faith. I went out the next day and preached. I was weak, of course, desperately weak, but I preached on twice a day and the Lord strengthened me. I would preach and go back to my room and could hardly taste a bit of food, but gradually strength returned. As we were to leave for our next appointment I was seized again with the most violent pains, but they subsided soon and I was enabled to take the car and go to the next place. The good Doctor put a few things in a suitcase, brought a little medicine with her and came along with us. We had a very important meeting on our hands—one of the largest in the series. The good Doctor seemed to take it as part of her mission to watch over me and direct my food and nourishment; gradually appetite came back and strength, and though I felt the effects for months after, yet I was able to carry on from one revival to another till I got back to Shanghai.

Missionary number seven I met in South China—in the interior. He was a District Superintendent and a good one. He was a man of prayer, a sanctified man, a second-coming preacher and a revivalist. He believed in having his district on fire of the Holy Ghost. He was in China because it was the will of God for him and the call was clear, and he was happy; he had a great way of overcoming difficulties and meeting opposition. He was a man of holy vision and soul passion. Missions was his life work; he could not be happy in any other calling.

When we arrived at the place of meeting we found that he had prepared the way by weeks of prayer. He had called in his preachers from the district, his Bible women and leading members of the churches and at the very beginning the fire began to fall. Day after day the schools and preachers, Bible women and members filled the church and over all the presence and power of the Holy Ghost was felt. Between the preaching services he had prayer meetings going so that the revival was literally baptized with prayer all through. He told me one day that during the trouble of 1927, when so many missionaries had to leave their stations and they just had to wait around, he spent nearly six months in prayer. The ministry of prayer was very real to him and he felt he could not spend his time more effectually than in prayer; then again, he was one of the Methodist missionaries who believed in the second coming. He loved to teach it and preach it. This missionary had a wife devoted to God and the salvation of souls just as much as her husband, and they had a little boy who came to the meetings and his face was as the face of an angel. You have looked at some of those beautiful pictures of Jesus when a boy—well this little son of the missionary had a face like that.

I could, if time and space permitted, write of many other missionaries whom I have met on mission fields throughout the world—devoted men and women, whole-souled, consecrated; they could not be happy in any other field than the mission field. They were there to live or die.

As we travelled through these mission fields and met the missionaries of today we were constantly reminded of pioneer days; of those who laid the foundations of the work through tears and, maybe, through blood.

IF CHRIST SHOULD COME TODAY!

Rev. W. S. Bowden.

HE word "if" is really one of the biggest of words. We sometimes think of if as a small word, because of the fact that it is a monosyllable. But it is a word laden with great possibilities.

"For the want of a nail the shoe was lost,
For the want of the shoe the horse was lost,
For the want of the horse the rider was lost,
For the want of the rider the kingdom was lost;

And all for the want of a horseshoe nail."

If there had been a nail! How often we must say, If so and so had happened! Sometimes it is hard to say what would have been if something else had not been. At other times the would-be result is quite evident. If he had received an education, if he had not made that great blunder, if he had called in medical aid, if he had given his life to Jesus Christ.

"Of all sad words of tongue or pen,
The saddest are these, It might have been!"

If Christ should come today! He is surely coming. Upon that coming hangs tremendous realities. What if he should come now! To get the force of this if meditate for a few moments on some of the passages where the word is used.

"But if the spirit of him that raised up Jesus from the dead dwell in you, he that raised up Christ from the dead shall also quicken your mortal bodies by his spirit that dwelleth in you." Rom. 8:11.

"For if ye live after the flesh, ye shall die; but if ye through the Spirit do mortify the deeds of the body, ye shall live" Rom. 8:13.

"For if we have been planted together in the likeness of his death, we shall be also in the likeness of his resurrection." Rom. 6:5.

"If a son, then an heir of God through Christ." Gal. 4:7.

"If children, then heirs. If so be that we suffer with him, that we may be also glorified together." Rom. 8:17.

"For if the dead rise not, then is not Christ raised; and if Christ be not raised, your faith is vain; ye are yet in your sins. Then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished. If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men most miserable." 1 Cor. 15:16-19.

If Christ came to our city, how would he be treated? I dare say you would not need to go outside the city limits to find people who would vote to crucify him. "He came unto his own, and his own received him not." If he should now appear, some who profess his name would not welcome him. His preaching would not be tolerated in some of the churches of the land. Whether or not you would be glad to welcome him would be an invariable index to your character. He is always welcome where his law is the great law of life.

"And when Herod the king heard it, he was troubled." Men possessed by the Herod spirit are always troubled at the presence of Jesus. Men living in sin do not want to see Jesus. The way Jesus was treated by Chorazin, Bethsaida, Capernaum, and other cities throughout his public career, with the exception of a brief period of popularity, is the way he would be treated by many a city in Christendom were he to honor such cities with his presence today. He is welcome only where the principles of his kingdom control.

What would he do were he here? One of the first books written by Charles M. Sheldon—"In His Steps," has had a wide circulation. The gifted author imagines how Jesus would act in various relations of life; the same author has further developed the thought in a later book—"Jesus is Here." Both books are unsatisfactory. We are not left to our own imaginations in such matters. More important and more practical than speculations as to what Jesus would do in various imaginary relations of life is to find out what he actually did under various conditions. I was much disgusted with an article I read some time ago discussing the question of what Jesus would do if he were in Washington. The article showed such a lack of knowledge of the teachings of the great Teacher.

If Christ came today, where would I want him to find me? Where would he find me? He would find you, but where? At the dance hall? Among the gamblers? Would you be found shirking duty? Would you be engaged in soul-winning? Would you be found strictly honest in business dealings? the booster for every good thing controlled by the spirit of Christ, the uncompromising foe of every evil? Would you be found in the right kind of company, exerting the right kind of influence, with the right kind of books on the shelf, and the right kind of pictures on the wall? Would you be thinking right thoughts and planning on doing good deeds?

If you knew Jesus were coming today could you join in the sentiment of the eminent statesman, who, when he was asked what he would do if he knew he were to die before night, replied, "I would just go on and do my duty as on every other day!"

Would you desire to change any plans, if you knew he were coming? Would you want to cut out any appointments? destroy any letters? apologize to any one? pay any debt? dust the Bible? speak to any soul about eternal interests? Would you refrain from doing the deed contemplated?

A wealthy family returned home late one night to find that their silver chest had been rifled of all its contents. The house was in general disorder. The contents of the dresser were scattered about. The family noticed especially that the marble head of the Christ, which was so situated that its eyes fell directly on the silver chest, had been turned with its face to the wall. The burglar was unable to commit the theft with even a marble Christ looking at him. We forget that nothing is hid from infinity. We forget that our Lord is coming quickly. We need to be reminded of the fact. We should let the hope of his coming affect our lives.

If he should come today would he find us filled with holy zeal? Would he find our hearts aflame with divine love? Would he find us ready? "Watch therefore: for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come." (Matt. 24:42).

"Hark! dear heart, and make thou ready,
For thou knowest not the time.

Should he come at noon or midnight,
Canst thou meet the Christ divine?"

"Keep thy lamp well trimmed and burning;
Be thou watchful, faithful, true;
So that at thy Lord's returning,
He may say, 'Well done,' to you."

WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH THE CHURCHES?

J. W. BEESON.

*****

HAT question is often asked of the Christian church and the query often comes from various sources. It ought to make church people take inventory and see if anything is really wrong with the church.

Never in the history of protestantism has there been so many fine church buildings and they are increasing in numbers and in cost every year. Never has there been such excellently equipped Sunday school buildings and so well organized Sunday schools, and so many trained Sunday school teachers. Never were there so many highly educated ministers, and such excellent church machinery. Surely the "program" of the church was never so extensive and so well planned. In face of all this wonderful equipment and expenditure of money for church work, and the array of intellect and talent enlisted in the program of the Christian churches, many seem

THE CREDIBILITY OF THE RESURRECTION.

W. M. Young, Ph.D., D.D.

"Why should it be thought an incredible thing with you, that God should raise the dead?" Acts 26:8.

HE importance of the fact of the resurrection of the dead can hardly be overestimated. Without the resurrection, our Christ would be a dead Christ, and our gospel would perish in the shadow of the tomb. "But if there be no resurrection of the dead, then is Christ not risen: and if Christ be not risen, then is our preaching vain, and your faith is also vain." 1 Cor. 15:13, 14. But, we have a living, resurrected Christ, to whom all power in heaven and in earth is given. With him we go forth conquering and to conquer. In the darkest hours of life we can feel the grip of his allmighty power and the thrill of his ineffable love.

"A THING INCREDIBLE."

There are many things in nature which would seem to us incredible if we were not so much accustomed to seeing them, yet by the evidences of all our senses we are forced to admit their truth.

By the simple processes of nature the grass of the field is changed into a tooth in the jaw of an ox, fat under his hide, and hair on his back. The same grass becomes feathers on the back of the goose, wool on the back of the sheep, red blood in the veins of the cow, and white milk streaming into the milkman's pail.

Blue violets, yellow carnations, red roses, and white poppies, take their colors from the same air and earth and sunshine. The wholesome, nourishing wheat, and the deadly poison plant grow out of the same soil.

THE HUMAN MECHANISM.

The human body is a strange mechanism. The auditory nerves catch the slightest strains of music and interpret them to the mind through the sense of hearing; but those same wonderfully sensitive nerves are blind to all the beauties of nature and art, and have no power to interpret light to the mind.

The optic nerves convey to the mind the wonderful pictures of mountain, valley, and plain, but a noise loud enough to shake the earth would have no appeal to them.

The olfactory nerves can catch the slightest odors and interpret them to the mind, but they are both blind and deaf.

The sense of touch and the sense of taste are also very useful and very wonderful. But all these senses are simple compared with the powers of the mind, by which we receive these sounds and sights and smells and tastes and impressions and interpret them in thought and describe them in words so that other intelligent minds can understand.

COMPLEX PROCESSES OF LIFE.

It is a very strange but charming process by which God changes the little larva during its stay in the cocoon and it is born again in the form of a beautiful butterfly, which spreads its rainbow-colored wings and flies away over fields of living green, to glint in the sunshine and suck nectar from the flowers.

God puts together a little calcium in the form of a shell, some albumen in the white of an egg, and some yolk for the food of the little life which is to be. Then, through the influence of a little heat, the egg becomes a bird; the shell drops off, and the bird takes wings and flies away toward heaven. And why should it be thought an incredible thing if God put together a shell of clay, and some bones made of substances like those of the shell of the egg, and put into it some soul and spirit, and one day when the life work is finished, the earth and bones are dropped, and the soul takes flight to the heavens?

II. "THAT GOD SHOULD RAISE THE DEAD."

When God is taken into account all processes become easy. There is a class of so-called scientists and theologians which would belittle the power of God; these people would put God into a straight-jacket and make him subject to the powers of the natural world, but God is not straitened, and is not put under the power of any. There is no theory of evolution which can get along without God, and there is no theory of creationism that can get along without God. Dr. George Thomas White Patrick aptly says that if we could explain everything by evolution, then we would have to explain evolution.

An old classic writer has represented Jupiter as saying to the lesser gods that if they all combined together against his throne, he could overthrow them all. Posit God, the Almighty, All-wise God, and everything else becomes possible. "With God all things are possible." It is God who transforms clay into beryls, and soot into diamonds, and barnyard manure into wheat, and the filth of the swamp into the beauty of the lilies. Matter is changed into refined forms. There are substances which, by sight or hearing, we cannot apprehend. Magnetism and ether are so refined as to pass almost beyond the physical. Water is changed into invisible steam, and by the transformation its power is increased—and what if the invisible man be stronger than the visible man! A man has been known to stand on a ladder and hold his position in spite of the strength of two horses pulling to drag him off. Physical power, say you: Soul power, say I. Tie a dead man there by hands and feet, and a single horse would shred his body like flax in the hands of the hatcheler. What if we cannot hear or see soul! What if we cannot discover it with the microscope or the crucible! We have not seen magnetism or electricity, but we have felt their power: we have not seen the soul, but we have felt its power. The physical body has no power of itself; it is made of the same kind of stuff that the rocks and trees are made of.

THE SOUL A THING OF POWER.

See that man dragging his feet along the pavement; his arms are swinging like wet ropes; his jaw is fallen, and his tongue is lying on his slobbering lips. What is the matter with him? He has air enough. He has food enough. He has body enough. But he has not soul enough; he is an idiot.

Here is another man. His brow is like the front of Jove. His face beams with intelligence; light, courage, decision, love, beam in his countenance. His step is firm and every movement of his body is regal. He is a great soul, made in the image of God. "The body without the soul is dead." It is a poor helpless thing. We know not to what extent soul-power can be developed. Abraham Lincoln developed a soul large enough to throw his arms around a divided nation and bring it together in loving embrace. Mrs. Herbert Hoover has a soul large enough to entertain a colored woman with her white sisters in the White House. The soul is akin to God, and can become like God through the power of God in Christ Jesus. It may also become degraded and hideous in its debasement.

BEAUTY OF SOUL.

In the story of "Quo Vadis" there is a description of a beautiful Christian maiden loved by a Roman. "Vinicius looked at her profile, at her drooping lashes, at her hands lying on her knees; and in his Pagan head the idea began to hatch with difficulty, that besides the physical beauty, confident and proud Greek and Roman symmetry, there is another beauty in the world, new, immensely pure, in which the soul resides." And some of us have seen that soul-beauty. We have known men and women who were born of the Spirit, led by the Spirit, and filled with the Spirit, and they had walked with God until they had taken on some of his beauty.

A SPIRITUAL BODY.

In the Apostles' Creed we say: "I believe in the resurrection of the body." The body that thou sowest is not that body that shall be. "It is sown a natural body; it is raised a spiritual body." We do not understand the natural body very well (1 Cor. 15:37); we do not understand the spiritual body very well. The psalmist said: "I will praise Thee; for I am fearfully and wonderfully made." And it is written concerning the Son of God that "The Word was made flesh and dwelt among us."

I went into the National Art Museum at Washington, D. C., and there I saw an old Egyptian mummy. It had been well dried and wrapped in linen, and was in a good state of preservation. It may have been worth a thousand dollars for museum purposes, but it was worth nothing for resurrection purposes.

"For we know that if the earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, an house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens." 2 Cor. 5:1. It is a body. It is not to be thought of as a formless thing, something that floats away into the universe like an unworded idea or music from the strings of a harp. It is a body with parts, a spiritual entity. The Bible calls the physical body ptoma; and the spiritual body soma pneumatikon.

CREDIBILITY OF CHRIST'S RESURRECTION.

Jesus Christ was raised from the dead and became the first fruits of them that slept. His resurrection became the type of our resurrection; we shall be like him. The fact of his resurrection is well verified. The record has the ear-marks of having been made by eye-witnesses.

Christ was crucified for our sins; he was dead. To make sure that he was dead, the Roman soldier drove a spear-point into his heart. He was buried in a rock-hewn tomb. A great stone was rolled to the door of the tomb; upon it was placed the Roman seal. Every Roman and every Jew knew that to break that seal bore the penalty of death. Soldiers were sent to watch the tomb. They knew that the penalty for sleeping on duty was death. The soldiers ran into the city terrified and afraid; they said they had seen angels. The angels said: "He is not here; he is risen." He was seen of Mary. He was seen by two disciples as they traveled to Emmaus. Paul tells us that he was seen of five hundred brethren at once, most of whom were alive at the time of his writing.

The disciples began right there in Jerusalem where these things took place, and they preached Jesus and the resurrection. They testified of these things within sixty days after they took place. Why did not the Jews produce the body of Jesus? If they had produced the body of Jesus, they would have destroyed Christianity at its very inception. Three thousand people believed the very first time Peter made a full presentation of these facts. Soon there were five thousand believers, and a little while after that there were thirty-five thousand believers in and around Jerusalem. The number of the believers increased until there are five hundred and sixty-seven millions of believers in the world today. Abraham Lincoln said, "You cannot fool all the people all the time."

The men who told the story of the resurrection were reputable men; they were not fools, nor hypocrites, nor liars. The apostle Peter was the great preacher of the resurrection, and liars fell down dead in his presence. The same Peter tells of hearing the voice of God on the holy mountain proclaiming Jesus the Son of God, and he says: "We have the more sure word of prophecy; whereunto ye do well that ye take heed, as unto a light that shineth in a dark place. 2 Pet. 1:19.

A Departure From the Faith.

REV. W. E. LYTLE.

Timothy 4:1-2. Now the Spirit speaketh expressly, that in the latter times some shall depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits, and doctrines of devils; speaking lies in hypocrisy.

IN the last Sunday of the old year, we were unable to attend public worship, so we turned on the radio that we might "listen in" on some religious service. Not knowing the "combination" of the radio, we struck at random. We very soon found ourselves listening to a preacher who was endeavoring to enlighten his congregation concerning Paul, the apostle. We were soon listening to things that were new to us, and our listening was with astonishment. We heard about Paul's early education among the Greeks and the influence of that early training on his later life; we were also told of Paul's physical and mental makeup. From a very ancient painting the preacher had learned that Paul was small of stature, had a long nose, crooked limbs, and that his personal appearance was anything but prepossessing.

This learned gentleman also informed us of the true nature of the age-long discussed "thorn" in Paul's flesh. He told us that after a long and careful study of Paul, his mental and physical constitution, he had arrived at the conclusion that this "thorn in the flesh" was not imperfect vision nor an explosive temper, as many had supposed, but that Paul was an epileptic, was subject to epileptic falls. We were also the recipients of the additional information that the apostle to the gentiles was also subjected very frequently to dreams and hallucinations, and that the incident that occurred on the road to Damascus was the combined results of an epileptic fall and of the dreams and hallucinations aforesaid. We were further informed that the Jews of Paul's time would not, could not, accept Paul's doctrine of the Trinity, and had Paul been less obstinate and more tolerant towards the Jews, that Judaism and Christianity, of which latter Paul was the founder, might have walked hand in hand these past two thousand years to the very great and glorious blessing to humanity. In closing, he told us that Paul was wholly ignorant of the glorious doctrine of the universal brotherhood of man and the common fatherhood of God.

Incredible as it may seem, the gentleman is pastor of one of the greatest Protestant denominations in the world. The radio not permitting us to "talk back" or ask questions, we turned off, and as we did so, the following words of Whittier occurred to us:—

"How long, O Lord, how long,

Shall such a priesthood barter truth away,
And, in thy name, for robbery and wrong,

At thine own altars pray."

And thus it goes on. The professed followers of Christ are "carried away with every wind of doctrine, by the sleight of men, and cunning craftiness, whereby they lie in wait to deceive." Is it any wonder that church attendance is falling off everywhere, and at such a rate that the ministry has become alarmed? The emasculators of the Bible are not a few. They are legion. They occupy, in many instances, places of great honor, power, influence and trust in the church of today. They receive high salaries. They are found in all denominations.

In no other business, profession or calling in this world is there such confusion, mixup and babble; such diversity of belief, opinion, practice, and teaching as is found among the professed followers of the lowly Nazarene. Surely we are in Babylon. The unregenerated, unsanctified, uncalled, and unanointed preacher holds forth in multitudes of pulpits, with a doctrine and message alike uncertain, and generally faces a congregation with a spiritual complexion resembling Joseph's coat. Many members of these congregations will return to their homes to read the books and literature of the isms and cults of the day.

How long would our fathers of fifty years or more ago have tolerated a teacher of a Bible class, who did not believe in the divinity of Jesus Christ? Or a teacher who would have attempted to describe the "glories" of evolution, or was a believer in any of the isms and cults of the day? And we wonder what these old fathers and mothers, now dead and gone, would say, should they return to earth and take a view of the schools and colleges they founded and fostered during their lives here, and for which they sacrificed, for the teaching of "the faith once delivered to the saints," if they could examine the output of these same schools and the professors in the chairs, and were permitted to listen to the strange noises and doctrines that emanate from them both.

"Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God." "Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God." "Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature." And again, "If any man have not the spirit of Christ, he is none of his." In view of these plain statements of both Jesus Christ and of Paul, it would seem that among professing Christians, the way of salvation would be so plain there would be no grounds for either division or argument. But we all know that this is very far from the situation as it is today. "Yea, hath God said, . . . ?" the question propounded by a higher critic, the first of his kind, to our foreparents in the Garden of Eden, and many have continued to pass judgment upon the expediency of God's commands ("construe," if you please) ever since.

Numerous other statements just as clearly, just as plainly, pointing the way of the "strait gate" and "the narrow way," "the way of salvation," found in God's word, but they are seldom heard of today. These great truths are very disquieting, unpleasant and very unpopular to the modern church, and the modern church would leave out disquieting and unpalatable truth. Man has enough sorrow and trouble, and repentance is out of date. Give man pleasure, and reason not of such disquieting things as "temperance, righteousness and judgment to come," lest "Felix trembles," and Felix should not be disquieted. Make Christianity attractive to the natural man. Cool his sinful heart with pleasant things, with clubs, with feasting, with cantatas, with fine music, with pulpit eloquence. Provide amusement and entertainment for the mournful, the sad and the sorrowing. Small wonder the world turns away, turns away in disgust. It is the height of absurdity to think that the church can be built up by offering men some cheap substitute for the pleasures of the world.

Gladstone once said: "Talk about the questions of the day: there is only one question, and that is the gospel. It can and will correct everything needing correction." Gladstone meant the gospel preached by Paul, who was "not ashamed of the gospel of Jesus Christ, for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth," and not the gospel of human plans and schemes and substitutes for God's way, nor the gospel of the natural man, nor the gospel of spiritual ignorance in high places.

The professing church has tried every way known to it to enter the gate of the "sheep-fold," but by "the straight gait," and "the narrow way," "the way of the cross," but these ways have all proved to be failures. Modern "personal evangelism," a species of camouflage to increase church membership, and by which great things were to be accomplished, is barely mentioned today. "Decision Day," an easy and imposing method by which unregenerated people have been herded into the church, has failed to bring the desired results. "Come forward and give your hand to the preacher, and be received into the church," "confirmation," the "catechism," yea, even the telephone, and so on ad infinitum, have all proved failures, and power and influence and attendance continue to wane.

However, we now have something comparatively new, and we are confidently informed that "there are potential possibilities of boundless achievement" in "religious education of the youth" of our land. Now we are not going on record as opposed to Christian education. Nay, verily, we are very, very much in favor of it. But religious education that does not have as its object the bringing of the child into the proper personal relation to God, in other words, that has not as its object Bible regeneration, will fail to solve our troubles. Oh, the innumerable multitudes that have walked these ways "that seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof are the ways of death."

We are now hearing much of "church federation," "church merger" and "unification." It is purposed to show to mankind that the followers of Christ are not divided, and the church will present a solid front to a lost world, and great things are predicted. That some things will happen, we are very confident, but we are yet to be convinced that a live Baptist Church will be in any way spiritually improved by uniting with a Methodist Church that is spiritually dead; nor are we convinced that a spiritual Methodist Church will be spiritually improved by uniting with any other church from which the Holy Spirit has withdrawn. The average church member does not concern himself very much about these "movements"; he leaves these things to the preachers, as he does the preaching and praying. Of his kind who beto think there is something lacking. It has been over 1900 years since Christ left the spread of his Kingdom to his followers, and yet not one-half of the human race ever heard the name of Jesus.

The late, Dr. Plato Durham, of Emory University, before leaving us, stated publicly that more people in the world had heard the name of Henry Ford than had heard the name of Jesus Christ. A former editor of the Christian Advocate, a few years ago stated that more children had been born into Methodist homes in Georgia that year than there were new members taken into the Methodist church, and we believe Georgia is as good as the best.

The Methodist Episcopal Church, South, reports that it now has 2,669,786 members, including preachers. In 1930 it reported its operating expenses as approximately $43,000,000. During 1930 the report shows its increase in membership was 14,953, which is greater than in any time in recent years. That is, it took 2,669,786 members including ministers, missionaries and all kinds of officials, salaried and without salary, a whole year, at an expense of 43 millions of dollars to gain 14,953 members. That dose not take into account the multiplied millions of original investment in church property, or the interest on that investment in gaining this 14,953 members. What would one think of any secular business with that much outlay of capital and running expenses and that great array of intellectual power enlisted that showed the same results in the same length of time? Surely a discerning public would decide that something was lacking.

In the reports we learn that 90% of the forty-three millions dollars our church spent in 1930 was spent on the local church. That is, 90% contributed is spent on SELF, and only 10% on others. That fact would indicate that all is not well with Christianity that spends 90% on the local church and only 10% for all other purposes.

We note also that during the last ten years while there has been such an increase in building enterprises and expansion programs at home, yet there has been a proportionate decrease in extension of the Kingdom in other lands. As we grow more cultured, become better educated, increase in wealth and prosperity, have a better educated ministry, better equipped facilities for local work, the extension of the kingdom abroad has decreased. What is the cause of it all? That is a question that should concern every protestant Christian of the present generation.

From a layman's standpoint, it seems to me that one serious trouble with the Christian church of today is that we are losing sight of the need of experimental religion, or a religious experience. The strength of the early Methodism lay in the fact that John Wesley and the early Methodists insisted upon a church member having a vital Christian experience. It was not merely that he accept Jesus Christ as a Savior and join the church and do the best he can and everything will be all right. Certainly he must accept Jesus as his Savior, but then the Holy Spirit must perform a work of grace in his heart. He "must be born again." He must be regenerated. He must have a vital experience and must know of a fact that the work was really done in the heart. Generally he could recall a day and an hour and often the very minute the work was done. Even if he could not remember a time and place he knew of a fact, that he was converted and had a new experience. "The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God." (Rom. 8:16). He had an inner consciousness that he had been born again and that he is now a child of God. Little children could and did know that they had been born from above.

That was the experience of all the early Christians. They knew they had "passed from death unto life" and were delighted to bear witness to that fact on every possible occasion. Others were led to seek, and attain a similar experience because they wanted what others witnessed to. They could see the change in their lives. It made people hungry for a religious experience that would do for them what this experience had done for others. Their lives and their testimonies created a longing for salvation through Jesus the Savior. Therefore, the Christian religion grew faster the first 300 years than in any period of its history. Later Martin Luther insisted on a real experience of salvation through faith, that wrought a definite change in the heart, a transformation of lives from spiritual death unto spiritual life.

In later years people have drifted into the idea that children are naturally good and all they need is to join the church, be as good as they can and they are all right. We hear little about a change of heart or being born again, the transforming power of Jesus working a real change of heart. I have heard only one sermon on "Ye must be born again" in over ten years. Yet I have heard the idea ridiculed by young preachers. Little is being said about a religious experience these days.

FACTS FROM THE FIRING LINE.

"My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge."—Hos. 4:6.

Prohibition has wrought miracles of moral, social and economic redemption, but thousands of dries do not know it. Every pastor is urged to reprint the following Fact in the Church Calendar, or read it from the pulpit to offset the destructive wet propaganda which appears in many of the secular newspapers. A new Fact appears in this place in each issue.

Perhaps alcoholic insanity is the most accurate measure of drunkenness. New York and New Jersey are among the wettest states. Official reports comparing 1910 (wet) with 1920 (dry) show a decline of 80% or more in this disorder in these two states.

A book entitled "The Beliefs of 700 Ministers" was published several months ago by a professor of religious education in a leading institution in the north. He sent a questionnaire to over 1300 preachers most of whom were in the north, and received 700 answers, 500 from active ministers and 200 from theological students. More than one fourth of the Methodist ministers who answered did not believe in the Trinity; that is, one-fourth of the Methodist ministers are really Unitarians and yet serving Methodist churches and supported by Methodist money. Only one in four of the Congregational ministers, and about half the Methodists believe in the Virgin Birth of Jesus. Only one-fifth of the Congregationalists and three-fifths of the Methodists believe that Jesus' death on the cross was the one act which made the remission of sin possible. Only 53% of the Methodists, 40% of the Congregationalists and 70% of the Baptist and 66% of the Presbyterians believe in the "Inspiration of the Scriptures."

One of the most alarming discoveries revealed by this questionnaire is that a large percentage of the theological students are practical infidels. It is bad enough to have revealed to us that about half the active ministers, including 20 denominations, that answered that questionnaire are practical infidels, more dangerous than were Bob Ingersoll or Tom Paine, because they are pastors, professors in Theological Seminaries, church schools, high officials of churches, etc. Yet more alarming is the fact revealed that the theological students, the future pastors and church leaders are almost all practical infidels. Not one-fourth of the theological students believe in the fundamental teachings of the Bible.

We are glad to believe that it is not as bad in the South as in the North. Yet, this insidious infidelity is growing to an alarming extent in our Southern churches, theological seminaries and Church Schools. Revivals of religion are taboo in many quarters. If a preacher insists that "ye must be born again" he is a back number. It passes as a sign of scholarship and culture to condemn the fundamentals of religion. "Religious Education" is substituted for a religious experience in the new "program" of the modern church. The term "religious education" is all right if we are careful to define its proper meaning. Too often it carries with it the idea that no religious experience is necessary, no change of heart is required, that Christ only meant it for Nicodemus and hardened sinners when he said "ye must be born again."

One trouble with the church of today is that it has in its membership too many unregenerated, unconverted men and women, those who have been taken into the church on "decision day" without any change of heart or any experimental knowledge of Jesus as a personal Saviour, or else they have joined the church as they join the high class civic or social club that will give them prestige; or maybe it will furnish an opportunity to do some social service work, assist in some good philanthropic enterprise, all of which is good in its place, as a fruit of Christianity.

Does membership in protestant churches of today, as a rule, satisfy the longings of the human soul? Does the life of the average church member create a hunger in other human beings for the kind of religious experience and life they seem to have?

Does not the average church member sometimes wonder if what he has is all there is in religion? Does he ever wonder if it is really worthwhile to try to spread the kind of religion that the average church member has? If the work of the church is to educate, refine, and civilize the "heathen" is it worthwhile? When the "heathen" come to Christian America and attend the average Christian church, deal in a business and social and civic way with the average member of a Christian Church, does it make them want to carry that type of Christianity back to his people? Does he want them to be Christians such as the average Christian he sees and with whom he mingles?

Yet this is what our great investment in churches and the large "overhead expenses" is producing. These are the ministers, educated, trained and sent out by our church schools and theological seminaries.

Of course much good is being done, but is it all we have a right to expect of our great investment? There is room for much improvement somewhere. Many more people are being born in America every year than are taken into all churches combined. We seem to be drawing in our stakes and shortening our cords in foreign fields rather than extending them. There's a reason.

The great need of the Christian church is the baptism of the Holy Spirit on preacher and laymen. The machinery of the church is excellent, but power is lacking. "And ye shall receive power when the Holy Ghost is come upon you."

If You Want Something

Convincing on the tithe, something that tells you what God says about it, send 10c and get a copy of "Will A Man Rob God." It is a splendid little book to hand out to members of your church who do not believe in tithing. We will send one dozen for $1.00.

GLEANINGS FROM THE EVANGELISTIC FIELD

TRAVEL LETTER.

Tilden H. Gaddis.

"See Naples and die" an early traveller has said. I have seen it and see no particular reason for dying unless it would be that Heaven is far ahead in grandeur. However, this the largest city in Italy, is beautifully situated with Vesuvius the active volcano belching smoke and fire as a background. Since A. D. 79 when this black mountain finished the destruction of Pompeii it has burst out in 59 eruptions, the latest in 1904. A visit to the ruins of the cities buried under ashes and pumice stone and now excavated enables one to walk streets 2000 years old, past temples, shops, theaters and homes. The relics from the early excavations were taken to museums including one at the entrance which displays, in addition to bronzes and statuary, the figures of human bodies formed by filling the cavity left by the decaying body of the hardened ashes with plaster. The postures and struggles of these bodies are fully reproduced, and even the features. One can imagine the agony of being buried in fire. In the new excavations everything found is left in its place and the ruins roofed over so that it is more original and very interesting.

There are parts of these buried cities for "Men only," and only by application and a tip can the doors be unlocked. In these special places one sees sights that freeze your blood and are unimaginable and reveal such horrible sins that it is easy to believe that the destruction was a judgment from God. Paintings on the walls of homes reveal an indescribable immorality; altogether, it is an uncovered picture of depravity without restraint. This region gives a new vision of the blackness of the natural heart and makes one more determined to cry against sin.

A profitable visit to a coral factory informed us of the wonders and possibilities of this strange undersea formation.

The Aquarium at Naples is the most important establishment for the study of marine biology in the world, supported by the various nations including the United States. 2000 students have studied there. We view most every known species of small sea life. Surely the Creator has put life in strange forms and shapes. The feeding of an octopus is a most unusual sight, as well as the many strange and delicate plants which change shape at the touch. Fish are of every color and combination, horrible looking and beautiful.

The National Museum, one of the finest in Europe, contains 120,000 art treasures mostly Roman antiquities.

Again we go to sea. Our good French vessel soon brings us to the port of Athens, and soon the little train brings us into the center of this ancient city where Paul preached repentance. Climbing to the acropolis, a great rock now in ruins, we are not only thrilled at the great Parthenon, Erechtheum and other massive remains, but survey the city from this commanding height. Climbing down and over to the Areopagus we stand on the lower hill where Paul declared his faith to the court; a good place to read Acts 17, pray, meditate and imagine the old warrior facing that array of architecture on the hill and the idolaters and philosophers around him, with boldness, crying out against their sin and false gods.

We walked through the old market place where Socrates had his school; the most unique remains here is the water clock; fortunately an American archaeologist explained its workings which, by a continuous flow of water, kept accurate time, and recorded it on a great dial above the city.

Athens is a city of temples, and they are building them yet today, great modern works of art for modern idolaters. They need Paul again.

Lazy old Athens full of singing Greeks, milkmen on donkeys, bootblacks, little and big, young and old, male and female, cameramen, boys flying kites, gamblers on every open space and, as in the first century, godless, and reeking in filth.

BROTHER TILLMAN'S LETTER.

Dear Herald Family, which is increasing all the time, for which I am thankful. When I go into a home and find a Herald on the center table I feel free and easy for I see that some of our sort of folk live there. I do not mean by that that we are quair and curious. It just shows good religious common sense to have such a periodical in the home. Wish I was able to put it in a thousand homes. But isn't it a sight what we folks who have no money would do if we had it?

On Friday the 13th of February, daughter and I headed for St. Augustine, Fla., in response to an invitation by the pastor, Rev. C. P. Tyler, to come and hold a meeting for him in his church there, the First Methodist. We continued two weeks with him. (This was the fourth time he has had us). The Lord gave us a wonderful meeting in many respects.

Evangelists who have worked in Florida know that it is no child's play to have a successful revival in Florida. But in all my experience in the forty-seven places I have conducted meetings in Florida, this one in St. Augustine proved to be as good, or even better, than most of them. Not more than fifteen or twenty were added to the church but a goodly number were saved at the old-fashioned mourner's bench, which Tyler believes in.

At the preachers' meeting the day after the close of this engagement they passed resolutions commending the kind of work we did, saying that to their knowledge, this was by far the best revival ever held in the city.

When we closed out at St. Augustine, we responded to a call, for a meeting at Baldwin, Fla., where F. R. Seaborn is pastor. This is quite a small place but not a small people by any manner of means and they are very fond of their pastor. The Methodist Church was not large enough to accommodate the crowds, so the Baptists threw open their doors to us and denominational lines were lost. Quite a number were saved and joined the different churches.

At this writing we are closing up a meeting in our own church, Park Street Methodist, Atlanta, Ga., with our pastor. After this engagement we have some open dates, in fact they are all open till camp meetings at Mt. Gilead, near Atlanta, and Indian Springs. Of course I never did like to ask for anything but just about now I could be prevailed upon to help some pastor who has a job for a man who does both the preaching and the singing. Soliciting an interest in your prayers, I am,

Charlie D. Tillman.

OUR FIRST VISIT TO THE ORIENT.

Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Rice.

"Cast thy bread upon the water and thou shalt find it after many days."

For years Mrs. Rice and I have been praying and giving to missions. In fact years ago the writer made a statement to a group of Christians in the city of Detroit that some day he was going to take a trip across the ocean in the interest of the Gospel. This statement was verified Friday, Feb. 20, 1931 as my wife and I stepped off of the Canadian Pacific liner, The Empress of Russia, on to China soil.

The day that we left Los Angeles for Vancouver, B. C., was a very remarkable one, as an unusual providence happened in the following manner. Early Friday morning (we were to take the train that evening) the well known holiness evangelist, Rev. Joseph H. Smith, telephoned the office and said that he had come in from Redlands, Calif., to say good-bye to us, so the pastors of the O. M. S. Missionary Tabernacle, Rev. Emory W. Petticord and Rev. Jas. E. Campbell and I drove down town to meet Brother Smith at his hotel. After a short visit Brother Smith prayed for the safety of our trip. My, how our dear brother was led out in such intercessory prayer for God's blessing upon us as we sailed for the Orient. I told Brother Smith that I felt God was surely sending Mrs. Rice and me to the Orient at this time in order to visit our fields of labor in China, Korea and Japan. As quick as a flash Brother Smith said, "No, Brother Rice, God is taking you." Thank the Lord this has come true and he has brought us safely across the ocean.

In the afternoon of that same day Rev. Robert Young and Rev. H. C. Morrison (editor of The Pentecostal Herald) came to the Los Angeles O. M. S. office to bid us good-bye, and before leaving Brother Morrison prayed a fervent prayer in our behalf, not only that we might have a safe voyage but that we might prove to be a blessing to the missionaries and to the hundreds of native students and Christian workers.

About one hour later Rev. Paul Thomas, the general missionary secretary of the Pilgrim Holiness Church, and his wife came to wish us God speed and also to offer prayer for our missionary journey. What a splendid and helpful prayer our dear Brother Thomas made in our behalf at the throne of grace. We felt our hearts strangely warmed and had an unusual sense of God's presence and that he was sending us away with the prayers of these saints to back us up throughout our trip in the Orient. Thank God for these faithful men of the cross! They will never know the real ministry they rendered that memorable day to this unworthy servant. Since that day thousands of miles have been traveled and as I pen these lines my heart swells up in gratitude not only to them but also to others who have stood by us with their prayers down through the years.

That evening the president of our Society, Mrs. Chas. E. Cowman, together with our other co-workers and friends, were at the depot at Glendale (a suburb of Los Angeles) to say good-bye, and as the train glided out of the station they sang, "God be with you till we meet again."

On February 6 we arrived in Honolulu about eight o'clock in the morning. We were met at the dock by a number of our O. M. S. friends and after a most delightful luncheon a missionary meeting was arranged at the Y. W. C. A., where Mrs. Rice and I spoke and the Lord graciously blessed the service. Our stay on this beautiful island can best be expressed by a verse of poetry which Mrs. Rice wrote for the occasion:

"And our day at Honolulu
That we never shall forget,
For our kind friends did their utmost
And fond memories linger yet."

En route to Shanghai we stopped off for a day at Yokohama and Tokyo and were met at the dock by Rev. Juji Nakada and Rev. Obara, and were taken to the O. M. S. compound in Tokyo. We visited the Japanese Holiness Church of which Brother Obara is pastor. This is a very thriving and strong holiness church located near the Bible Training School, and Brother Obara has a membership in his church of over six hundred members. We were very glad to be able to see the first Bible Training Institute of the O. M. S. in Tokyo where there are now 140 students attending and diligently studying the Bible and preparing themselves to go out to win more natives for their Saviour who has done so much for them. In the front of the auditorium the picture of the founder, Rev. Charles E. Cowman, was hanging and we were delighted to see his picture in the assembly room. What God hath wrought through the faithfulness of his servants!

We were taken to Brother and Sister Nakada's home, where we were served our first Japanese dinner. The writer had not been able to eat for seven or eight meals on the boat and the Japanese dishes such as "sukiyaki" and "chawannushai" were very appetizing, as we certainly had our appetite. We had a most delightful time in Brother Nakada's home, he being a co-founder with Brother Cowman of our great work in Japan.

Just as an excellent group of God's children said good-bye to us in Los Angeles so also a very select group of God's chosen ones met us at the dock in Shanghai. The Chinese students had a big banner with the words, "Welcome to Brother and Sister Rice," printed on it. We drew on our imagination and saw behind the word "welcome" many years of hard, faithful work on the part of our missionaries to make this possible. As these Chinese students stood there with shining faces we could see plainly that they gave us a real warm welcome from their hearts. Then again at the evening welcome service which was held in the chapel through the remarks that were made we were so greatly impressed with Brother Yang's genuine welcome to us, which came direct from his heart. It made us feel right at home. Brother Yang in representing the Chinese students and workers stated that in olden times the Shumane woman had fixed up a room with a bed, a table, a stool and a candle and that they too had in their hearts to do this for us but as we were already comfortably housed in Brother Kilbourne's home that all they could say was that they would like to have done it for us themselves. Mrs. Rice and I were both wonderfully impressed with the fine Chinese student body and the excellent work of our missionaries.

Our splendid group of workers here at the Cowman Memorial Bible Institute are as follows: Rev. and Mrs. Edwin L. Kilbourne, Rev. and Mrs. Fred Briggs, Rev. and Mrs. Roy Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Jeffries, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Grant and Misses Clara Nelson, Esther Helsby and Rosalind Rinker. What a royal welcome they gave us and how we were so delighted to see all of their smiling faces at the dock, and personally I was glad to leave the boat and get my feet back on to land. Mrs. Rice proved to be a better sailor than her husband as I was sick twice and she was not seasick at all.

We have already attended several meetings but we wish to speak especially of one which was held Sunday afternoon in the O. M. S. Chapel Mission, which has been made possible by the faithfulness of one of God's men who has heard the cry of China's millions. Mrs. Rice sang and spoke a few words and the writer spoke from John 6:28, 29, "Then said they unto him, what shall we do that we might work the works of God. Jesus answered and said unto them, this is the work of God that ye might believe on him whom he hath sent." This was our first experience of speaking through an interpreter. How we thank God that fourteen souls bowed at the altar at the close of the service seeking for pardon and purity. How thankful we are that in the city of Detroit we ever stepped out by faith and left our banking connections and business associations and took up salvation work with The Oriental Missionary Society. After all the real and lasting values of life consist in doing the will of God.

Rev. and Mrs. Edwin L. Kilbourne and Mrs. Rice and I will leave soon to visit our work at Peking, and from there on to Seoul, Korea to meet Rev. Harry Woods and attend the O. M. S. convention at Seoul on March 18. And from there we go to Tokyo to be with Brother Nakada at the great Japanese convention, April 1-15. We will then return to Shanghai for a day or two and then go on to Canton to meet Brother E. R. Munroe and our other workers there in Southern China and to attend the convention April 15 to 19. Then we return to Shanghai for the spring convention here, April 29 to May 3. The Lord willing, we expect to sail for Los Angeles, leaving here the first part of May in order that we may attend the camp meetings in the United States during the summer months. Mrs. Rice and I solicit a special interest in your prayers that we may prove to be a blessing and encouragement to these faithful missionaries and native workers. How we thank God for a safe voyage and for kind friends and their prayers.

Had we space we could give you ample proof of the above statement. We call attention to the following gleaned from a book recently published by Rev. G. H. Betts, of Northwestern University. He sent out a questionnaire to some 700 ministers in the various churches in order to ascertain their beliefs with reference to the fundamental teachings of the Bible. We wish to give you a few figures published in this book. Out of 95 preachers, 48 replied that they did not believe the creation of the world occurred in the manner and time recorded in Genesis. Out of 93 preachers, 55 did not believe that the Bible is wholly free from legend and myth. Out of 94 preachers, 24 did not believe that the death of Jesus on the cross was the one act which makes possible the remission of a man's sins. Out of 96 preachers, 43 did not believe that man is born wholly sinful and depraved. Out of 96 preachers, 50 did not believe that, in order to be a Christian, it was necessary and essential to believe in the virgin birth, therefore, the Deity of the Lord Jesus Christ. We note in this book that only 42 per cent of Methodist ministers believe in the resurrection of the body, as set forth in the Apostles' Creed.

The above statements refer to pastors in charge of churches. We now turn to some of the unbeliefs of theological students. Out of 94 theological students, 80 do not believe the world was created as taught in Genesis. Out of 84 theological students, 60 do not believe that God sometimes sets aside the regular laws of nature and performs miracles. These sixty preachers will seek to do away with a large per cent of the New Testament. I suppose they believe that the writers of the New Testament were either so stupidly ignorant, or was such a bunch of liars that they wilfully wrote into this book an account of miracles that never occurred. Think of the pulpits in the country filled with that sort of skeptics! Out of 91 students, 82 do not believe that the devil exists as an actual person or being. Out of 100 theological students, 69 do not believe that the New Testament is a final revelation of the will of God to men. Out of 100, 66 of these students do not believe that the Old Testament prophets had divinely inspired knowledge by which they were able to predict the future. Out of 100 students in the theological school, 95 do not believe that the Bible is free from legend and myth. Out of 100 of these theologues, 51 do not believe in the virgin birth of Christ. Out of 100, 61 do not believe that the death of Christ on the cross was essential to our salvation. Out of 100, 76 do not believe that hell exists as a place of torment. 69 out of 100 do not believe in the resurrection of the body; 77 out of 100 do not believe in a day of judgment; 79 out of 100 do not believe that suffering was brought into the world by the disobedience of Adam and Eve. Only 8 out of 100 believe in the coming of Christ to reign over a redeemed world. Out of 100, 92 do not believe it is necessary to believe in the virgin born Christ in order to salvation.

Only think what havoc these young skeptics will make of the church when they come into the public ministry almost entirely without a single essential doctrine of salvation in Christ. If we are not coming into a great apostasy in our pulpits, then figures certainly may lie. Can God's believing children be indifferent to these conditions!

I could fill a large volume with proofs of the great need of just such a Theological Seminary as we are building up at Asbury College, where every young man going out to preach has an unshaken faith in the Holy Scriptures and every fundamental doctrine taught therein.

SHALL WE SIT STILL? CAN NOTHING BE DONE?

It is because of this condition of things that I am praying to God day and night, and appealing to his people to help us build up a strong Theological Seminary at Wilmore, Kentucky. The work has been well begun. We have a splendid faculty of educated, thoroughly trained men, who are Wesleyan in doctrine, experience and teaching. There is not a man on our Seminary Faculty who does not claim the gracious experience of entire sanctification. Many of the young men in the Theological Seminary are regular students in Asbury College, but taking their Bible study and theological training under the instruction of the professors in the Asbury Seminary. Apart from them we have a regular three years' Seminary course, giving the B. D. degree, and sending out into the world men who believe the Bible; who believe in the virgin birth of Christ; who believe that his precious blood cleanses from all sin. Men who have received the baptism of the Holy Ghost and will go out with a great passion for souls.

From Old Testament times God has largely found and called his prophets and preachers from among the poor. From the earliest days of the Church of Christ it has been necessary for those who loved the Lord and believed in the saving power of the Gospel to assist in the education of the ministry.

We are offering you an opportunity to help in this great work. There are those who could give hundreds and thousands without any difficulty. We are making this call upon those who are claiming the sanctifying power of Christ's precious blood. Of course, we would welcome assistance from any child of God who is a full believer in the Christ of the prophecies and the gospels. But this appeal is especially to the Lord's sanctified children, and we are making a proposition that can be accepted by almost any and every one who sympathizes with the great work in which we are engaged.

It is this: that you promise to pay ten dollars, five dollars, or one dollar per year, for five years, to establish and build up the Theological Seminary at Wilmore, Ky. As you know, the Seminary is in existence and doing a great work, but it needs enlargement; it ought to be doing five or ten times the work it is doing. If the Lord's sanctified people will help us, in a few years it will have the largest number of students of any seminary in the world. Look at the bottom of page 9, clip out the pledge slip, sign it with the amount you are willing to give the Lord for this work and send it to Mrs. H. C. Morrison, Louisville, Ky., by May 20, if possible.

Things We Ought to Think About No. 1.

In our Bill of Fare for 1931 we have the above head. We suggest under this head, among other things to think about, is the Fulfilling of Prophecy, and the probable ending of the age with the Coming of the Lord. We are about to begin the publication of a series of nine chapters on the Second Coming of Christ. The head of the chapters will read, "If Christ Should Come to Jerusalem."

HEARST'S PAPERS.

There are other things near at hand that are quite worth thinking about. For instance, what is the attitude of William Hearst, with his twenty-seven newspapers and various magazines, toward Bolshevik Russia? Brisbane, his main correspondent, has written enough of favorable stuff toward Russia within the last twelve months, under the head of "Today," to make quite a good sized pamphlet. If the Russian government is not making a liberal contribution for this propaganda the Hearst papers are wonderfully generous. If I were a member of congress I would set on foot an investigation to find out why it is that Brisbane is using the Hearst papers to make favorable impressions for Russian Communism in these United States.

SENATOR ROBINSON.

The position that Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, has taken against wet domination in the democratic party, is well worth consideration, and Senator Robinson deserves great credit for his courageous stand and outspoken denunciation of Raskobism. No man of any party, or any section of our country, has a right to claim to be a prohibitionist and, at the same time, follow the leadership of Raskob or any of his ilk. Think about this!

OUR CHILDREN.

It matters not how carefully you rear your children, how much of the Bible catechism you train into them, how earnestly you pray for them, when you place them for years under the teaching and influence of godless evolutionists who will teach them to believe that they have evolved from apes, that they are animals, without any real responsibility for their moral actions, they are bound to become skeptical with reference to the existence of a personal God, the inspiration of the Scriptures, or Christ as a Redeemer from sin, and they will grow up full of conceit and unbelief; in whatever grade of society they may find their place, and exercise their activities, they will not be good God-fearing citizens, but will be a menace to the best interests of the country, live in sin, die in sin, and go into hell. You might think about this!

A VULGARLY DRESSED CHURCH CHOIR,

With short skirts, no sleeves, labors under two disadvantages. The moment they appear in choir loft to the rear of the pulpit, their appearance and actions are such as to disgust devout people who have come to worship; on the other hand, they are quite naked enough to attract the higher elements of the underworld who live in a realm where vulgarity is supreme. So these half-naked, giggling, worldly choirs are "neither flesh nor fish"; they might be called "foul." There is one thing absolutely certain—no church will be able to promote revivals of pure religion and develop a deeply spiritual life under the leadership and domination of a godless, vulgarly dressed choir. You might sometimes think about this!

IT DOES LOOK LIKE A PITY.

To pay out one's money, and to give one's time and labor and longings of soul to a congregation where a modernistic preacher and a combination of worldly churchmembers make the salvation of a soul most improbable, if not impossible. Under such circumstances one hardly knows just what to do. One can at least think the matter over at odd times.

H. C. MORRISON.

The Ascension of a Saint.

On January 15, 1931, Mrs. Elisha P. Vaught, of Harrodsburg, Ky., passed from earth to heaven. I have seldom known any one in more than half a century of my ministry who lived closer to our Lord Jesus than this saintly woman. She was converted in early life; I am not positive, but think she was a member of the Baptist Church. She married Mr. E. P. Vaught in 1872. He was a brother of James Vaught, for many years one of the most beloved members of the Kentucky Conference. He died several years ago in California.

Many years ago, I cannot recall the date, I think something like thirty or thirty-five years ago, I assisted Brother James Vaught in a revival meeting in Harrodsburg. Sister Vaught, his sister-in-law, attended the meeting, was an earnest Christian woman and by the Word and Spirit was brought into a hungering and thirsting after entire sanctification. After days of earnest seeking she was powerfully sanctified. I shall never forget her testimony. She was filled with great courage and spoke with wisdom. Day after day she told of the marvelous work that had been wrought in her by the coming and indwelling of the Holy Spirit. Her testimonies stirred many hearts to seek the Lord. From that time until her departure to be with the Lord in Paradise, she was a living witness to the power of Christ to save and keep from sin. It has been my privilege to be in her home frequently, and have met her sometimes in travel; always with wisdom and grace and shining face, she has been testifying to the saving, sanctifying power of our blessed Lord.

When E. Stanley Jones was a student in Asbury College he came in touch with this intelligent and saintly woman. He was a young man of remarkable attractiveness, and she greatly loved him and made him a special subject of her prayer. If I am not mistaken, he has frequently said that her prayers largely influenced his going to India as a missionary. Her holy life was like a stream flowing through the land refreshing and blessing every one she touched. She has gone up to join that mighty host washed from all sin in the precious blood of our crucified and risen Lord.

She was one of many hundreds of thousands who have been touched by the revivals of the great old Bible, Wesleyan, Methodist doctrine of entire sanctification, who met the conditions, stood the tests, bore any ridicule or opposition with a cheerful grace and steadfastness, endured unto the end, and has gone entirely beyond the reach of all the enemies of human souls.

If she was a Baptist—and I think she was at the time of her sanctification—she afterward united with the Methodist Church. The camp meetings for the promotion of holiness, and the holiness conventions where the scattered sanctified people meet with such joy and holy love for each other, often make me think of what a meeting it will be as they come up from the wide world and meet together at the feet of the Master. I am looking forward to that time when I shall join them. Their names and faces come up before me, a host of them, with whom I have sojourned, and among whom I have labored in many parts of the earth. A tinge of sorrow comes to me when I realize they are gone and I shall see them no more in the flesh, but a great joy thrills my heart as I remember that through the redeeming love of the blessed Trinity, I shall join them on the other side. May the blessing of God, the love of Christ, and the comfort of the Holy Ghost abide graciously with the loved ones Sister Vaught has left behind.

H. C. MORRISON.

A SPIRITUAL AWAKENING.

MRS. H. C. MORRISON.

HE spiritual dearth that has fallen upon the church is so apparent that it is keenly felt by all who have any spiritual life. There seems to be a strange power settled down upon us that makes it difficult for even those who long to do the Master's will, to be at their best.

It is appalling how rapidly the tide of modernism is rising and how generally saturated our schools are becoming with Darwinian teaching. Even our little six-year-olds are being taught that their ancestors were apes, and that through the years to come the race will continue to improve until the present one will be a great discredit to those who are then living. When our churches and schools are being controlled by those who have such perverted views of our beginning, and try to account for everything on a scientific basis, we can hardly expect to reap a harvest of faith from such unscriptural sowing. It is still true that, "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." Sow the seeds of doubt and you will have a harvest of infidels. Sow the seeds of truth and you have a harvest of God-fearing men and women.

This tide of unbelief and skepticism is too strong for human effort to curb or restrain. It will take a supernatural power to check the stream of poison that is flowing from our nation's seats of learning and many pulpits. The boys and girls who sit in the desks of the schoolroom today will be the men and women who will frame our laws, govern our cities, make our homes and guide the future destiny of our great country. How important, then, that they be taught the principles laid down in Holy Writ, instead of being taught that the Word of God is unreliable, full of mistakes, and is not to be taken for what it says about man's beginning, the divine program for his life, and the hereafter that awaits us all. We need to cry out in the language of one of old when he said, "Wilt thou not revive us again: that thy people may rejoice in thee?"

Speaking of the need of a revival, we are giving some reflections along this line from Rev. W. B. Woodrow, which are very opportune at this time. He says:

"The tide of modernism (so called) that is sweeping in and threatening to engulf the Church of Jesus Christ, of every name, has been permitted if not invited, by the apathy of the Church, in recent years, and its willingness to permit the essential doctrines and teachings to be set aside, in many instances, without even a word of protest.

"The tide will not be turned backward by legislation; that may help to curb it. Dismissal from places of trust, in which men have betrayed the Church into the hands of unscrupulous, if not sinful men, will turn the tide backward. Appeals in the name of past glory, achievement and experience fall upon deaf ears. The successful process must change the heart and move outward through the ramifications of the Church.

"Holiness practiced, preached, patronized and pushed, until a church-wide revival of pure and undefiled religion is kindled, is the need of the hour. A red-hot church, aflame with the fire of the Holy Ghost, living testimonies and aggressive spiritual conquest will solve the problem; these modern leeches who are sapping the life blood of the church, spiritually and in many instances financially, would be burned loose, fall off and go to their place. The church thus on fire for God and the salvation of souls would shed them as the duck sheds the water. God's word declares 'All things are possible.'

"How then can such a revival come? It will not come through ecclesiastical 'Nuncio.' Would God that it might. It will not come through perfectly organized forces, programs and drives; these have produced many things, but have failed to produce a revival. It will not come through efforts to silence criticism, which may have ample basis for existence. Nor through efforts to befog the mind of the church as to real conditions. The average Lay-mind, while not versed in the profundities of theology, philosophy, etc., may and does know life from death, and the real from the venerated. The revival will come, and come through the faith and prayer of the Remnant that has held on to God through the lowering clouds of modern infidel teaching; have kept themselves unspotted from the world, with their windows open toward Jerusalem, looking for the first grey fingers of a dawning day of hope and promise and victory.

"Shall we make such a revival the theme of incessant and insistent prayer until it really comes—A spiritual awakening, a Church-wide revival?"

A DEPARTURE FROM THE FAITH.

lieve that something is "wrong in Denmark," there are multitudes innumerable, as the following conversation, which is one of many heard by the writer, and which took place on a railroad train in Canada, will have a tendency to prove:—

Gentleman:—Are you a church member?

Lady:—Yes, I belong to a church.

Gentleman:—Of what church are you a member?

Lady:—I am a Methodist.

Gentleman:—Were you ever converted?

Lady:—Pardon me. I do not know what you mean by being converted. I joined the church because my parents were members of it. But we have no Methodist Church in Canada now. We have the United Church.

Gentleman:—Oh yes, I now call to mind that some denominations did unite a few years ago. Can you tell me why these churches united?

Lady:—As near as I am able to determine, a waning interest in church matters and a gradual decrease in attendance—small congregations.

Gentleman:—What changes, beneficial to the churches, has unification brought?

Lady:—None seemingly. There is no change in the preaching, and no apparent increase in interest. They do not seem to draw the people outside, nor hold those within, the church. It appears to me that union has only postponed the inevitable day, if it has done even this, when the united churches will have no congregations.

In the opinion of this lady, not much was to be expected of a wedding, the high contracting parties to which were so near the point of dissolution.

Believing that a Divinely-called, wholly-sanctified, well-equipped, Spirit-filled ministry is one of the greatest needs of our times, and for all time to come, I am glad to make a donation for the upbuilding of the Asbury Theological Seminary at Wilmore, Ky.

For this great work, I promise to give $..... per year for five years, first installment due September 1, 1931. I will join all who are helping in this good work in prayer for the blessing of the Lord to rest upon it.

SAUL'S REIGN ENDS.

Mrs. Geneva Mendenhall.

David lived peaceably in the city of Ziklag for a year when Achish prepared to make war on Saul and the land of Israel. Achish commanded David with his army of six hundred men to join the fight against the Israelites. But when some of the Philistine lords saw the army of David in their midst they said that they would not fight with him lest he should make his peace with Saul by turning against them in battle. So David and his men were sent back to their own city.

But when they reached Ziklag they found that their enemies the Amalekites had taken and destroyed the city and led the women and children away to become slaves. David hastened in pursuit of his enemies but part of his army could not endure the forced march, so he left them beside the brook Besor, some two hundred men.

He and the remaining soldiers fell on the Amalekites suddenly as they feasted and drank, killing most of them and driving the others away into the desert.

Meanwhile, to the north, King Saul had called his army together and pitched his camp on the side of Mt. Gilboa, while the Philistine army filled the whole valley below. Saul had killed all the priests, Samuel was dead. David was gone, leaving Saul very much alone and afraid.

One night, after taking off his kingly robes and changing to those of a common man, Saul took one or two of his closest guards with him to visit an old witch who lived in a cave in Mt. Moreh. He asked the witch to call the spirit of Samuel up where he could speak with it. But the old woman became terribly frightened when she saw an old man like a god and covered with a long robe. Samuel told Saul that God was no longer with him and that he would soon die and the kingdom would pass on to David.

The Philistines did not wait for Saul to strike but attacked his army early the next day, killing all who did not flee for their lives. After Saul's three sons were killed and the enemy was pressing him very close he drew his own sword and threw himself on it.

The Philistines took his body and those of his three sons and fastened them on the wall of the city Bethshan. But the men of Jabesh-gilead remembering the kindness and courage of Saul when he first became king, slipped down in the night and brought them back to Jabesh where they burned them and buried the ashes under a tree.

Saul had reigned forty years but his reign ended in failure and ruin because he forsook God.

Questions.

1. What was the first sin that crept into Saul's life?
2. Why did Saul turn to an old woman for help in trouble?
3. How were the people of Israel governed before Saul was made king?

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a West Virginia girl join your happy band? I am seventeen years old, have (long) brown hair and brown eyes, medium complexion, weigh 117 pounds and am five feet, four inches tall. I do not go to school this winter but take music lessons. I have been trying hard to learn to play the piano. I belong to the Methodist Church at Lake Ford and attend church and Sunday school every Sunday I can. I haven't any brothers or sisters, so I would like to hear from some of the cousins. Hope Mr. W. B. is gone when this letter arrives.

Jennie A. Miller.

Rt. 1, Terra Alta, W. Va.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I certainly do enjoy reading page ten. I am glad so many are Christians. I enjoy seeing the young people take their stand for Christ. It certainly means a lot in this day and age. I made my start for my Master about two years ago.

I shall never regret the step I took. Since that time, I've seen other young people make the start for him. One of the greatest desires of my heart is that I may not be a stumblingblock to any one, but that I may always be ready to lift up Christ to them. I corresponded with a girl in California for a while, but I guess she has forgotten me. I certainly did enjoy the letters I received from her. I have seen two letters from her in The Herald. I wonder what is the matter with Iowa? I very seldom see a letter from my state. I am a Senior in high school, and am seventeen years of age. I am five feet, four inches tall. I have brown eyes and long, light brown hair. As this is my first letter, maybe I ought not take up too much time. I sure hope I see my letter in print.

A Reader.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Would you let me in with your boys and girls? I live with my grandmother. My daddy is pastor of a Methodist church in Baltimore, Md. My grandmother is a member of a Nazarene church. My mother is dead and that is why we live with our grandmother. I have a brother nine years old and I am ten. I go to a Methodist church. I am in the sixth grade at school. This is my second letter. My grandmother takes The Pentecostal Herald. I read the Boys and Girls' Page. I hope Mr. Waste Basket is gone riding in his car when my letter arrives.

Jack Esaias.
Morrilton, Ark.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Please let a Missouri girl join your happy band of boys and girls. This is my first letter to The Herald, although we have taken it for several years. I enjoy reading it each week from cover to cover. I wish we had more preachers like Dr. Morrison, who would preach the old-time religion. I go to the M. E. Sunday school every Sunday and teach a class of boys eleven and twelve years of age. I want Aunt Bettie and the cousins to pray for me that I may always live like Jesus would have me live and that I may help win each one to him. I am the oldest of ten children, five sisters and four brothers. My age is between eighteen and twenty-five. Can anyone guess it? I would love to hear from boys and girls near my age. I hope Mr. W. B. has gone visiting when this letter arrives.

Bertha Heffron.
515 Jefferson St., DeSoto, Mo.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Would you let a little orphan child join your happy band of boys and girls? I am eleven years old and in the fourth grade. I love to go to school. My teacher's name is Miss Oland Putnam. I love my teacher. I go to Sunday school and preaching. My father is dead; he died when I was seven months old. I have two sisters and brothers. My oldest brother is twenty-four; he is the superintendent of Sunday school at the M. P. Church in this town. I am the baby. My hair is brown, my eyes are brown and I have fair complexion. I live in North Carolina. My middle name starts with B and ends with E, it has six letters in it. My pastor's name is J. D. Cranford. I love the Lord. My brother takes The Herald and I love to read page ten. I hope Mr. Waste Basket doesn't get this. I hope to see this letter in The Herald. This is the first I have written. I will answer all letters that I receive.

Pauline Carpenter.
Rt. 5, Lincolnton, N. C.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Here comes a Kentucky girl to join your happy band of boys and girls. This is my first letter. My father takes The Herald and I like to read it, especially page ten. I am fourteen years old, have blue eyes, black hair, weigh one hundred and ten pounds, and am about five feet high. My school is out now. My teacher's name is Miss Elizabeth Mae Noe. She is a fine teacher. I read a chapter out of the Bible every day, and I say the Lord's prayer every night. I am not a Christian but I hope to be some day. Who can guess my middle name? It begins with E and ends with S, and it has five letters in it. I hope Mr. W. B. has gone a fishing when this letter arrives.

Katherine E. Hogan.
Bradfordville, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I would be glad for you to move over and let a Florida girl join your happy band of boys and girls. We take The Pentecostal Herald and I enjoy reading it, especially page ten. As this is my first time to write to you I will tell you about myself. I live on a large farm and enjoy farm life very much. I have two sisters and one brother at home now. Who can guess my age? It is between thirteen and nineteen. I have heard Dr. Morrison preach; he is a wonderful preacher. I hope his health is improving rapidly. I will be glad to correspond with any of the cousins so let the letters fly to Era Smith.

Graham, Florida.

Dear Aunt Bettie: May a little Henry County boy join your band of boys and girls? My mother takes The Herald and we can hardly wait for it to come to read page ten. I sold post cards for The Herald in December and got me a new Bible, which I like fine. I have dark hair and eyes, and am in the fourth grade. I was ten years old Feb. 15. Have I a twin? Would like to hear from some little boys and girls near my age. Will answer their letters. I go to Sunday school every Sunday. I sell the Louisville Herald-Post in the afternoon after school. Aunt Bettie, don't let Mr. W. B. get my first letter.

Paul Malin.
Pleasureville, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Would you mind for me to join your happy band of boys and girls? I am a little Georgia girl. Wake up, Georgia girls and boys, and try to make something out of yourselves. Elizabeth Wade, I guessed your middle letter in your name, so keep your promises. I would like for some of you boys and girls to write to me. I will answer all letters I receive. I have gray eyes, sandy hair and fair complexion. I am in the fifth grade at school. I go to Sibley school. My teacher's name is Mrs. Lois Phelps. She married about four weeks ago. I like her fine. I hope Mr. W. B. is making up his cornbread for supper when this letter arrives because I am anxious to see it in print. Who can answer my riddle: Out of the earth came forth meat, and out of the strong came forth sweet. Who writes back to me when they see this riddle I will also write back to them a great long letter. I will close and go to work.

Etta Mae Johnson.
Rt. 2, Greensboro, Ga.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Here comes a girl from Virginia. I have written to The Herald several times and I thank Aunt Bettie for printing them. Our house got burned down about four weeks ago, and we are living in town now. I am fifteen years of age, have blue eyes, blonde hair and fair complexion, am five feet, five inches tall and weigh one hundred and twenty-five pounds. It sure is lonesome since the house burned down. I hope to receive letters from all the boys and girls. I am glad so many are Christians. My birthday is April 28. Have I a twin? I am writing a little poem. I hope you all will enjoy it.

"Remember me as you pass by;
As you are now so once was I,
As I am now you soon must be.
Prepare for death to follow me.

"He listen'd for awhile to hear
Our mortal griefs, then tun'd his ear
To angel harps and songs and cried
To join their notes celestial, sighed and died."

Hazel Cain.
Galax, Va.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you move over a little bit and let a South Dakota boy join your band of jolly cousins? I was saved January 30, and I am so happy in Jesus. I felt I must tell you boys and girls about the joy it is to have Jesus in our hearts. We children had gathered together to have a Junior meeting and our Junior teacher, Rosa Engbrecht, made an altar call as we began Junior and I got under deep conviction and I got on my knees and after an hour of praying and confessing to my playmates, teachers and parents, Jesus forgave my sins and wrote my name in the Lamb's book of life. I mean to stay true to Jesus and please pray for me. I beg all you cousins to give your hearts to Jesus before it is too late. I attend Sunnyside Bible and Graded School and enjoy it fine. We are sixteen in our room. I am eleven years old. I would like to receive letters from those who too are saved and could be a help to me. This is my first letter and I hope to see it in print. With love to Aunt Bettie and the cousins.

Le Roy Tieszen.
Freeman, So. Dak.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a little South Dakota girl join your happy band of boys and girls? My father takes The Herald. I always try to read the letters. I am a little girl nine years old. My birthday is March 31. I attend school at the Sunnyside Bible and Graded School, and am in the fourth grade and like it fine. I enjoy to sing and read my Bible. Jesus saved me when four years old and has kept me till this day. I am so glad I gave my heart to Jesus when I was so young. It is so much joy to feel ready if Jesus should come. Children, who read this letter, won't you give your hearts to Jesus also? It surely pays to live for Jesus. I have long light brown hair and have never had it bobbed. I wear long dresses and long sleeves. I cover my knees. I think it is a big shame to show your knees, don't you? My middle name begins with A and ends with A, and has four letters in it. Who ever guesses my middle name and writes to me I will try to send each one a picture of myself. This is my first letter to The Herald and hope Mr. W. B. is out walking when it arrives. Now I must close, wishing all the cousins God's blessing. I am your new cousin, Sarah Engbrecht.

SPRINGTIME AND EASTER.

W. M. Young, D. D.

'Mid the beauty of the lilies, angels flitted by the cross,
Where sorrow-stricken women bemoaned their awful loss;
The sepulchre was opened by unseen hand of power;
Then sprang from out the darkness
the world's benignest Flower;
The Lily of the Valley, the Bright and Morning Star;
The budding Root of Jesse, had broken every bar,
And from the tomb of Joseph the Son of God arose,
And Conqueror of Death and Hell, and Victor o'er His foes.

And now we sing together, Hosanna to His Name!
While holy men and angels conspire to spread His fame,
And myriads of children the resurrection tell,
And throngs unite in worship, at the ringing of the bell.
Fast, fast, the day is coming, when all shall bow the knee,
To own Him King and Lord of all,
who sets the nations free;
While men of every kindred and language join in one,
Proclaiming Jesus King of kings,
God's well beloved Son.

The flowers appear on the earth;
the time of the singing of birds is come. S. Sol. 2:12.

FALLEN ASLEEP

EZELL.

A large circle of relatives and friends were saddened by the passing of Mrs. A. M. Ezell, on March 26, 1931. She was born May 22, 1853, and lived her entire life in Giles Co., Tenn. She was a member of the M. E. Church, South, from early girlhood. Married to Rev. A. M. Ezell, of the Tennessee Conference, on Aug. 27, 1871. She was the mother of eight children, four of whom preceded her to the grave. Four, three sons and one daughter, survive, as follows: Franklin L. and Kelley A. Ezell, of Leesburg, Fla., Rev. Will S. Ezell of West Texas Conference, Miss Sue Ezell, who has lived with her mother all the while. These children are all members of the M. E. Church, South. Her husband died Nov. 17, 1914, and she remained a widow until death. She was a true and faithful wife and mother, a benevolent neighbor, a loyal friend and a Christian. "She hath done what she could."

NOTICE.

Many of the wide-extended Pentecostal Herald family who, in the heyday of the Holiness Movement in the Auburn, Miss., section, shared the inspiring and happy associations with Mrs. Courtney A. Badon, will be pleased to know that she tarries in the flesh, that her perennial youth abides, that her faith of the best things of God is steadfast and that she yet abounds in the work of the Lord.

On February 17 her eighty-fifth birthday anniversary was appropriately observed in the home that has afforded repose and encouragement to untold numbers of faithful Christian messengers down through the decades.

Her radiant evening of life is not entirely spent in happy reflections and hopeful anticipations; but the unassuming fruitful labors in the Kingdom are continued. When an anonymous kind deed is conferred upon a neighbor—such as a complimentary subscription to The Pentecostal Herald for instance—suspicion at once rests upon Grandmother Badon. The supreme value of an uttermost salvation is exemplified in the life and character of this mother in Israel.

TULLAHOMA, TENNESSEE.

I am a Methodist preacher, a member of the Central Tennessee Conference of the M. E. Church, in which conference I have served for a number of years as an active itinerant, taking a superannuated relation to that conference in 1922.

I was born Feb. 8, 1857 and, of course, am now in my seventy-fifth year. I have read of another Methodist preacher whom it has never been my good fortune to meet, who is just thirty days behind me in the calendar. I have known of that preacher since back in the nineties, and am glad to say that his writings have been a great means of grace to my religious and ministerial life. I have been taking The Pentecostal Herald for a number of years, and would say that outside of the Bible, nothing, perhaps, has contributed more to the strengthening and establishing of my faith.

I like The Herald because it opposes sin in all of its forms and phases, because it does not compromise with the world, the flesh, and the devil; because it does not advocate the idea that science (falsely so-called) is a panacea for all human ills, because it does not give favorable publication to the religion of Einstein; and again, because it repudiates such "stuff" as is being belched out over some pulpits into the "itching ears" of the godless multitudes, by the exponents of modernism. I like The Herald because it is orthodox in its teachings: According to my understanding it is a true exponent of such fundamental doctrines of the Bible as "the depravity of man," the "necessity of repentance," "justification by faith," "regeneration," "entire sanctification," and "growth in grace," all of which I steadfastly believe, and realize in my own experience.

Yours in His service,
D. J. Proctor.

MY GREATEST NEED.

Master, Thou knowest what I need:
Not fame, nor friends, nor foes to bleed,
Not pelf, nor pleasure, worldly rest;
But O! I need my soul well-blest!

Others may pray for great success,
And 'tis a proper thing, I guess;
But Lord—here is my heart-request:
Please daily keep my soul well-blest!

Without thy presence I am poor,
And trivial trials cannot endure;
But—I can weather every test;
If Thou dost only keep me blest!

O,—let the criticisms come,
Let friends deprive me of my home,
And let me be nobody's guest
But Spirit—kindly keep me blest!

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

REV. O. G. MINGLEDORFF, D. D.

Lesson V.—May 3, 1931.

Subject.—Jesus in the Home of Zacchaeus. Luke 19:1-10.

Golden Text.—The Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost. Luke 19:10.

Time.—March A. D. 30.

Place.—Jericho.

Introduction.—There were several Jerichos that occupied different sites in the same neighborhood. The first Jericho, the one overthrown by the Israelites under Joshua, is supposed to have been situated in the region known as "the Mountain of Elisha." At a later date the city was rebuilt at the beginning of the brook Cherith, known as the Wady Kelt. Almost nothing seems to be left of the ancient city; and only a miserable village marks the former site of what was once the habitation of great wealth.

A few incidents will always keep Jericho in the minds of Bible students. It was the home of Rahab who concealed the spies sent out by Joshua, and thereby preserved her own life and the lives of her family when the Jews destroyed the city. Its destruction was spectacular, the walls falling down in answer to the shouting and trumpeting of the besieging Israelites. It was the home of Zacchaeus and the scene of his conversion to Jesus Christ. There it was that the Master restored sight to blind Bartimaeus.

As Jesus had sent out seventy disciples to visit the cities and villages whither he himself would go, they had doubtless passed through Jericho and notified the people of his coming. Multitudes of traders were also passing through the city, who paid custom dues at the tax office of Zacchaeus. They would surely tell of the wonderful news that was circulating through the land concerning the mighty deeds of the Christ. Interest was at high pitch; and Zacchaeus determined to see the Wonder-worker. But he was "little of stature, and the multitude thronged him so that his view was absolutely shut off. Wherefore the little man put his wits to work and did what boys sometimes do at a baseball game—went up a tree. We shall not blame him, for that climbing was worth more to him than all the tax-money he ever collected.

Comments on the Lesson.

1. Jesus entered and passed through Jericho.—Jericho was some twenty miles northeast of Jerusalem, and was the largest and the richest city in all that region; but Jesus seemed to have no intention of tarrying in it until he met Zacchaeus under the tree. "His face was set toward Jerusalem" for the last time.

2. Zacchaeus.—This name is frequently mispronounced by persons who place the accent on the first syllable, when it should be on the second. We know but little about this man, but what we do know is very interesting. He was the chief tax collector, or publican, as they are commonly known. The city was rich, and being situated on an important highway of trade between Perea and Egypt, the custom duties were heavy. Zacchaeus had grown very rich; and the indications are that some of his wealth had been gained unjustly. In modern words, he was a "grafter."

3. The word sought is very strong in the original. It has the idea of striving after a thing with earnestness and anxiety. I note also that it is in the imperfect tense, indicating continuous action—was seeking: "He was seeking to see Jesus." He had heard so much about the Master, that he was determined to see him for himself; but there were two difficulties in the way: The crowd was great, and he was "little of stature." But Zacchaeus was not to be out-witted by such minor circumstances; and they proved to be a rich blessing to him that day.

4. He ran before.—Ran around the multitude by some other way. Would that some in our day might become as anxious to see Jesus. Climbed up into a sycamore tree to see him.—Commentators tell us that this was what was known as a fig-mulberry, a tree that is now extinct. It was a low tree with a broad, bushy top, and for that reason not difficult to climb. The interesting part of it is the zeal of Zacchaeus in finding his perch above the heads of the big multitude. He had watched the moving throng, and selected this vantage place along the route it was traveling.

5. When Jesus came to the place.—The tree must have stood very near the road-side. He looked up and saw him.—I think Jesus knew he was up in that tree before he saw him, just as he saw Nathanael under the fig tree. Zacchaeus, make haste, and come down.—Some have overworked their imaginations to find out how Jesus came into possession of this man's name. He did not need to be told. He is God, and knows all our names; and what is more, he knows us. But he wished Zacchaeus to make haste; and he desires every being on earth to rush to him for salvation. Come at once, just as you are; for "if you tarry till you are better, you will never come at all." Today I must abide at thy house.—There now! Did you notice the snarl on the face of that Pharisee? "Just as I expected. He is going to eat dinner with a sinner, and he a contemptible publican. The man has no respect for himself." But Jesus will change that sinner into a saint before dinner is served. As Dwight Moody used to say, "Zacchaeus was converted somewhere between the limbs of that sycamore tree and the ground." That was a sudden conversion.

6. He made haste, and came down.—He obeyed orders. Some persons never find Christ because they never come down from the tree. Received him joyfully.—Every one should begin shouting as soon as the Holy Ghost convicts him of sins. I shall never forget the case of a young lady in a meeting I was holding. At the altar call she came down the aisle laughing and shouting, and knelt at the rail with her face turned toward heaven. When I asked her what she wanted, she said, "O, I was converted some weeks ago, and it has made me so happy that I wanted to be sanctified." I have thought from that day to this that she was acting with good sense.

7. They all murmured.—The hatred against publicans must have consumed the population. They, of course, were too holy to enter the home of such a man. It reminds one of a Primitive Baptist man in Southern Georgia who had his house scoured and scalded, floor and inside walls, because a Methodist preacher entered it. Some folk are too holy, in their own estimation, to live in a land like this. Maybe they will learn better some day. I wonder why that multitude was so concerned because Jesus became the guest of a publican, seeing they cared so little for him.

8. Zacchaeus stood.—That was an attitude of respect on his part. He would give attention to what the Master had to say. The half of my goods I give to the poor.—Zacchaeus had found salvation. Skin-deep conversions never produce that sort of fruit. I restore him fourfold.—Zacchaeus does not say that he was guilty of having overcharged any one; but the language used indicates that he had. Roman law required the return of fourfold in cases where tax gatherers oppressed the people by overcharging. That was severer than Jewish law. We find in Numbers 5:7 that in such cases the offender must restore the goods, "and add unto it the fifth part thereof." No one had accused Zacchaeus; but I fear he was guilty. However, his manner of repentance met the case fully.

9. This day is salvation come to this house.—How often we hear persons in public prayer ask God to save us when we die. They are sincere, but mistaken. What we need is salvation from all sin now. Zacchaeus was saved on the spot; and we judge from the words of Jesus that his family also entered into salvation. Forso-much as he also is a son of Abraham.—The meaning here is not clear. Some one has said that he was a son of Abraham by nature, and that his salvation by faith made him a child of Abraham by grace. That is true; but it does not explain his clause fully; nor have I been able to find any comment that does make it perfectly clear.

10. For the Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost.—I am glad that he does not wait for us to seek him, but that he follows us in our sins, and endeavors to call us back. He leaves the ninety and nine in the fold, and goes after the one that has strayed away. Thank God! We have a gracious Savior.

A SURVEY OF THE PROHIBITION SITUATION.

Rev. W. N. Briney, Pastor Broadway Christian Church, Louisville, Ky., says of Dr. M. P. Hunt's pamphlet, "A Survey of the Prohibition Situation": "I think it contains in brief form facts that should be in the possession of every friend of Prohibition. It should be of special service to ministers, who wish to get before their congregations the facts concerning this important matter."

May be had from Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky., for 5 cents.

DRY LAW JAILS ONLY ELEVEN IN SIX YEARS AT ASHBURN.

Prohibition enforcement in Ashburn, Ga., is one thing the city fathers and courts don't have to bother about. Ashburn, by the way, is the home of the Ashburn Wiregrass Farmer, a weekly newspaper, of which Joe Lawrence is editor, and which helped many years ago to introduce the famous Turner County Plan of diversified farming, which attracted national attention. Now a study of the criminal docket of Ashburn shows that since December, 1924, only 11 arrests have been made on prohibition charges. Six of the arrests involved youth between the ages of 15 and 25, while the other five were men above 25; all were charged with drunkenness, but as indicated this is a rare thing in this section.

Frank Hopkins, Conference Evangelist, Norman, Okla.: "I am available for meetings in the immediate future, or later in the year. I am fairly well known to The Herald readers, especially in Illinois, Missouri, Arkansas, and Oklahoma, and they know the gospel I preach. I have been in the evangelistic work a number of years (also pastor), and have held more than 150 revivals in eleven states. Wire me at Norman, Okla., or write me there, Box 893."

Rev. Samuel Thomas, converted Jew, preached at the all-day meeting, Good Friday in Wiley M. E. Church, 635 S. Third St., Camden. N. J. Rev. Thomas, before his conversion, was a widely known lawyer and a leader in the Zionist Movement. He preaches the old-time gospel with the power which comes from full knowledge and conviction. Services will be conducted at Wiley M. E. Church, April 19 to May 3, inclusive, by Mr. Thomas and his wife. You will always hear the best at Wiley M. E. Church in Camden under the direction of Rev. J. S. Hackett. We have an all-day meeting each Thursday. Come and join us when in our vicinity. Listen to the Wiley broadcast each Thursday afternoon 4 to 5 o'clock, over WCAM, 1280 kilocycles, beginning May 7. Let us have your comments.

Guy W. Green, Kansas City, Mo., held special services for the First Presbyterian Church of Fairfax, Mo., March 15 to April 5, as a result of which eleven persons entered the church, all by confession of faith. Numerous delegations of local societies attended the meeting during its progress, and all local churches co-operated sympathetically. On the last Sunday of the series, Mr. Green taught a Bible class on "Loyalty," when an attendance record which had stood fifty years, was broken by sixty-nine. After the visiting layman spoke to the high school the superintendent told his classes in history and social science that all members who would turn in to him three acceptable outlines of Mr. Green's addresses would be excused from their next test. As a result an average of 25 young people were on hand each night making outlines of what they heard.

Lawrence A. Stahl: "I want to thank you for your monthly sermon in The Herald of April 8th. Every word of it is true. I know from experience that Mass Evangelism is the only kind of Evangelism that will stir the conscience of the community. We had a glorious revival in our church from Feb. 8 to March 8, 250 persons being at the altar for pardon or cleansing. The community was stirred for miles around. Folks came for thirty miles to be in the services. On Sunday evening the church was filled so that we could start our song service as early as 6:55 P. M. I preached to 800 women on a Sunday afternoon; had 600 men in men's meeting; turned people away that could not get into the church because it was filled to the doors. Cards were burned, men threw away their tobacco, drinkers were converted. One man drank a gallon of whiskey on Saturday to kill conviction but couldn't kill it and was saved Sunday in his own home. It takes Mass Evangelism for the church to take a solid front against sin. The revival is still on. People are coming to the altar in our evening services. We are having full houses, though the special meetings have closed. May God bless you and keep you well for many years, or until he comes."

"OLD RUGGED CROSS" REVIVALS AT TABERNACLE, ALIQUIP- PA., GREAT SUCCESS.

"The Old Rugged Cross" revival campaign now in progress at the Christian and Missionary Alliance Tabernacle, Irwin and Maratta Sts., under the leadership of the Rev. Geo. Bennard, author of "The Old Rugged Cross," of Hermosa Beach, Calif., is meeting with great success. It is thought that some 200 seekers have been to the altar for pardon of sins, purity of heart, or to be reinstated in justifying grace, during the two weeks the services have been held. Boys and girls in the morning of life, as well as old folks with the evening shadows gathering on their brows, have been among the seekers. But in addition to this, there has been several scores of strong young men and women bowing at the foot of "The Old Rugged Cross" giving their hearts and lives to the great white captain of their salvation. It has been a wonderful sight to witness the altars and front seats crowded with immortal souls pressing their way into the Kingdom of God and offering themselves for service as he shall choose. Yes, old-time revivals are still popular.

Rev. Bennard is preaching the gospel in the power of the Holy Spirit and without any wildfire or abuse. Members of all churches that accept the whole Bible as the Word of God, are delighted to hear the strong sermons that he is delivering from night to night. His work of evangelism takes him into practically all parts of the United States and Canada. Be sure to hear him before these great services close.

Tonight the male quartet from Beaver Falls will bring a beautiful message in song. On Wednesday evening the Lindsays from Coraopolis will favor the congregation with at least one number. Special singers and visitors from Pittsburgh, New Castle and all the towns and cities round about are expected this week.

Every night this week is a special night. Wednesday night is "men's night, and "The Old Rugged Cross night." Thursday night is "family night." Friday night is "young people's night." Saturday night is a great "free and easy" meeting, song, testimony, and prayer. Sunday is to be the "great day of the feast," with five great services. All are invited to come and enjoy this spiritual feast.

NOTICE.

To Whom It May Concern:

It was the writer's blessed privilege to have been associated in a three-weeks' revival campaign with the Rev. R. J. Smeltzer, pastor of the Wesleyan Methodist Church, at Falconer, N. Y., and he wishes to say that in his twenty years' work of evangelism he has never worked with a more brotherly man. His life and beautiful spirit not only won the esteem of his own people during the three years he has been pastor of that church, but also the love and esteem of the pastors and people of the other churches of that city. Perhaps no other man could have gotten such a spirit of co-operation in the campaign there. He is now feeling the call to the work of evangelism and is ready to answer calls to any place or church that is anxious to go in for a genuine revival of Bible religion. We are very sure that no pastor or people will ever regret having called him to assist them in the work of winning souls. We are writing this word of commendation of our own accord.

George Bennard, Evangelist.

TO DR. H. C. MORRISON.

When vices of the flesh were strong,
And modern disbelief held sway;
When men confused the right and wrong
And found it hard to keep their way;
God called a man with holy fire
To preach the gospel of his Son;
The church on wings of faith rose higher
And felt the strength of Morrison.

The printing press could well be used
To tell the word of grace to men;
With truth that message so infused
Might well employ both tongue and pen;

At Louisville a place was found
To publish truth for souls imperiled;

That paper now the world around
Is called The Pentecostal Herald.

When learning's cause required aid
Against a system miscalled science;
And asked that scholars unafraid Withhold from error their compliance;

A school at once sprang into being Well planned God's wisdom to acknowledge;

And showed to men the Eye all seeing
Was watching o'er Asbury College.

The Bible says to render honor
To those to whom the honor's due;
We have a right to e'er remember
The one whose faith continues true:
The voice that gave the proclamation
Of grace held out to every one;
The plans that in their vast fruition
Reveal the mind of Morrison.

The might of Alexander faded,
The pomp of Caesar's hosts passed by;

But school and church with strength pervaded

Reveal the power from on high.

They live when empires are forgotten

And help to uplift struggling men;

Their worth shows forth the wealth of vision

Of pioneers like Morrison.

The Southland has its genial sunshine,

Its gentle winds and skies of blue;

It also has the steady purpose

Upheld in lives of heroes true;

Its faith in God means true devotion

To everything the heart holds dear;

Its songs of praise and adoration

Make life more fruitful and sincere.

And of its sons, there's one we'll mention

Whose words and actions will not die;

A man well worthy of affection,

With purpose lofty as the sky;

As victor in the ancient races

Received upon his brow a crown,

Of tender words and worthy praises

We'll twine a wreath to Morrison.

O. Wright,

Christopher, Ill.

Oh how great is thy goodness, which thou hast laid up for them that fear thee. Psalm 31:19.

THERE ARE 233 STORIES—FINE FOR TEACHERS

Quite frequently teachers tell how much they appreciate the Bible Story Book in helping teach and explain the Bible to others. The arrangement of the stories makes the book very usable. The Bible stories are divided into periods of Bible history and arranged chronologically. There are 233 stories, each complete, yet linked in such a way as to make one continuous, beautiful narrative of the Bible.

PICTURES ARE FOR CHILDREN FROM 1 TO 99

That is why so much attention has been given to pictures in this book. There are three kinds—drawings, actual photographs, and beautiful color reproductions, nearly 200 of them. They tell stories in themselves. Children will study them by the hour. The little tots who are too young to read will get the story so well impressed by the pictures that they can retell the story almost in detail from seeing the pictures. The colored pictures are exceptional pieces of art.

There Are 64 Pages of Helps Especially Adapted for Home Study

The Days of His Flesh:

The Earthly Life of Our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

By REV. DAVID SMITH

The leading Bible scholars, ministers, and editors throughout the English-speaking world proclaim this great work as the one outstanding Life of Christ for every man today. It offers a biography of the Master, elaborate in detail and extending through fifty masterful chapters and more than 500 pages, tracing every phase of our Saviour's earthly career. The author rests his case solidly upon the evangelical records. He adduces abundant evidence to show the historicity of Jesus and to confute those theories which would make Him a mere myth arising out of a haze of reverence and superstition. He is equally sound on the deity of Jesus and he shows conclusively that the acceptance of Christ as the Lord of Heaven must be regarded as the cornerstone of the Church.

A CLOSE CALL.

Mrs. Julia A. Shelhamer.

Listen! the phone is ringing and a sad voice comes over the wire, "Mrs. Shelhamer, will you please come and pray for my father? I think he is dying."

It is the voice of an unsaved daugh-ter. We hasten and find a gentleman lying unconscious. His power of speech is gone but he is breathing. His sweet daughter sits by his bed weeping. She has sat there all night long, watching, loving, and longing to help. But in spite of all her efforts he is slowly and surely slipping away.

"Is he ready to die?" I whispered. "I am not sure," she answered, and broke into a flood of tears. She was a Catholic, and the ladies who were with me belonged to various other churches. But here we were around a dying man, and were all praying for his salvation.

Why had they not called us sooner? Why wait until the man was crossing into eternity? This was the reason: they feared our prayers would excite him; but here we were in the presence of death, and this old gentleman had lived eighty-six years in sin! What could we do?

I stepped to his bed, laid my hand gently on the dying one's forehead, then knelt in prayer. Would it do any good? We feared it was too late but would do our best. We petitioned Heaven to bring the man back long enough to seek God. Then I anointed him with oil in the Name of the Lord, according to James 5:14.

Instantly he aroused and called for water. His daughter was astonished. After he had taken several spoonfuls, I asked him if he wanted God to for-give his sins. He said, "Yes, that's it, that's it."

"Now you pray," said I. He did not know how, so he prayed after me just as a child would do.

"O God, I am so sorry for my sins. Please forgive me and make me ready for Heaven. Wash my heart clean in Thy Blood. I believe Thou wilt do it."

This was all he was able to say. Jesus came very near. The room was filled with light and glory. Angels seemed to flutter about. The unsaved daughter wept with mingled joy and sorrow. At my request she too prayed audibly for her father and for her-self. Just then another unsaved daughter came in, knelt, and prayed not only for her father, but for the forgiveness of her own sins.

Then taking the sick man's hand, I held it up gently, while we sang:

"Pass me not O gentle Savior,

Hear my humble cry;
While on others Thou art calling
Do not pass me by."

"Will you please pray for mother?" said the nurse. We stepped to the other bed where lay the wife of the old gentleman, unable to be up, even in an hour of this kind. I anointed her and she was instantly healed. Thank God! the day of miracles is not past! In an hour she was up and dressed.

The next day we made another visit. The daughter met us with a smiling face. "Oh," she said, "I am so glad. Father is so much brighter and mother is well. It will take her a little time to get strong, but she is all right." We prayed again. The old gentleman prayed and said he had no doubts about his salvation.

God had revived him only that he

This is the book for which thousands have been waiting. It is years since "Uncle Bud- dy" has written a book deal- ing with his life and experi- ences. Now we have this vol- ume, his autobiography, giv- ing an intimate recital of his experiences from early child- hood to the present time. Pathos, humor, optimism, scathing rebuke, with an amazing memory of detail unite to give this volume the peculiar charm that charac- terizes all of Bud Robinson's writings. ## Adam Clarke---Great Commentary

Dr. Clarke was one of a long succession of men who, in every age of the Christian Church, have applied the best energies of their intellect and heart to the study and interpretation of the Scrip- tures. The seven gifts which, according to Augustine, the true expositor of Scripture must possess—reverence, piety, science, fortitude, pru- dence, cleanness of heart, and heavenly wisdom—were his portions.

The studies of his earlier years always had a bearing on this great work. From the beginning he felt the need of being taught by God to understand his own word. Referring to this, he says: "No man ever taught me the doctrine I embrace; I received it singly by reading the Bible."

Sufficiently critical to aid the inquiries of the more serious student, and yet sufficiently popular to serve the purpose of general edification. He gives a lucid view of the several books of Scripture, as to their dates and authors, their scope and connection; he expounds the original text in a manner adapted to the deficiencies of the reader; he elucidates difficulties in chronology, history, and oriental manners; he develops the grand doc- trines of revelation, and applies the whole to the great concerns of hu- man salvation and duty.

One leading feature in its character is independence in thinking. While he availed himself of the labors of others, the great number of his expo- sitions are emphatically his own.

DR. ADAM CLARKE'S COMMENTARY ON THE BIBLE

is one of the noblest works of the class in the entire domain of sacred lit- erature. It is a thesaurus of general learning.

Its luminous expositions of the Law and the Gospel; its earnest and forceful appeals to the conscience of the sinner and the unbeliever; its rich counsels for the well-understood wants of the Christian's inner life; its endless exhibitions of general knowledge; and its valuable aids to the students of those holy tongues in which revelation took its first recorded forms—all will render this book the companion and the counselor of multitudes as long as the English language may endure. The man who accomplished it achieved immortality, his name having become identified with an indestructible monument of learning and religion.

We commend it as the most spiritual commentary published. Six large volumes, good paper, good binding, new type.

might save his soul. It was not long before we were called again to his bedside. A crowd of relatives had gathered, for he was dying. He left a testimony behind to his salvation and in a few hours was gone.

O how happy we were to know that he made it through, but it was a close call. I hope none of our readers will run the risk he ran by having to be called back almost from the grave to prepare for Eternity.

"Seek ye the Lord while he may be found; call ye upon him while he is near." Isa. 55:6.

Behold, God is my salvation; I will trust, and not be afraid; for the Lord JEHOVAH is my strength and my song. Isaiah 12:2.

A SEARCHING TIME. By The Editor.

THE Scriptures repeatedly and plainly teach that there is a coming day of judgment; a period of time, no doubt, sufficient to search out the life and heart of each individual. This searching can be transacted very rapidly, and with startling accuracy.

That will be an interesting day for us ministers of the gospel when the motives, desires and passions that have actuated us in our preaching, and what we have preached, and the effect of the same upon those who have heard us, shall be revealed.

The Scriptures teach that the Lord's preachers will be held responsible, to a certain extent, for the souls to whom they have ministered. If men are not properly warned, and die in their sins, woe be to the preacher who has failed to warn them. God's word says their blood shall be required at the preacher's hands. This is ample to give the preacher cause for serious thought and should drive him to his knees and to honesty and earnestness in the delivery of his message.

The Scriptures are very emphatic with reference to personal holiness, and gracious in the promise of the cleansing power of the blood of Christ; the fulness and sufficiency of the atonement the Lord Jesus made upon the cross, when he, by the grace of God, tasted death for every man, and shed the blood which cleanseth from all sin. We can hardly see how the preacher is going to get by in the day of judgment who has failed to offer a Saviour able to save to the uttermost.

We can but believe that all of the ministers who have opposed the doctrine of full salvation from sin, here and now, by faith in Christ, are going to meet a serious situation when they stand, with the people who have heard and been influenced by them, at the final judgment. There has been a tremendous opposition to the whole teaching of a pure heart; that is, a heart sanctified and cleansed from all sin in this life by the blood of Christ. Well do I remember after preaching most earnestly to a certain congregation, the fulness of salvation in Christ, hungering and thirsting after righteousness, the cleansing blood, the clean heart, the holy life, and seeing most blessed results, I was followed by a jolly pastor who, in his message laughingly said, "We hear people talking about their sanctification, but I must confess I have never seen any one who was saved from all sin. We are all sinful creatures." The poor brother comforted the carnally-minded, rebuked the glad witnesses, and stumbled the feet of some poor souls longing and praying for the cleansing blood. He died suddenly, and I can but ask myself, how will he appear in judgment, when he stands before the Christ who hung in agony on the cross, shedding the blood, not to forgive some sins, or to cleanse from a part of the carnal nature, but

ISAIAH MEDDLING IN POLITICS.

"How is the faithful city become an harlot! It was full of judgment; righteousness lodged in it, but now murderers.
"Thy silver is become dross, thy wine mixed with water. Thy princes are rebellious, and companions of thieves: every one loveth gifts, and follow after rewards, neither doth the cause of the widow come unto them." Isa. 1:21-23.

Isaiah is a bit severe on the corrupt city officials. He is speaking for God. It is a big part of the business of every preacher to cry out against the sin about him.

to forgive all sin, and to cleanse from all spiritual defilement of every kind; to make those red as crimson with defilement, white as the driven snow.

The Lord Jesus knows that he is mighty to save from all sin, the stain and defilement of sin, the love of sin, the desire for sin, and to grant the gift and baptism and indwelling of the Holy Spirit to keep, to guide, to empower and to live saved from sin, in a sinful world, as a living witness to any and all who will hear, that there is a Christ who can save the people from their sins. What is written is written. What men have done is stamped and sealed and laid away for that great day. But I tremble for those men, men I have known and loved, who became bitter antagonists against the Holiness Movement; who spoke disrespectfully of John Wesley; who discounted the teaching of Adam Clarke, Richard Watson, and discouraged the use of certain hymns by Charles Wesley, and used their influence in every possible way to oppose the revival of the old Methodist doctrine and experience of sanctification; men who were vicious in their attitude, and who sought to humiliate pastors and evangelists who preached and witnessed to the fulness of salvation in Christ. They made the expression, "Second blessing," a subject of ridicule, laughter, amusement, debate and strife. I knew them, numbers of them. They did not claim to be holy men by the power of the cleansing blood. No one believed them to be holy men. Those who were in sympathy with them, and joined with them in their opposition to a great revival, did not believe them to be holy men. None of them I ever knew died shouting the praises of Christ. I do not remember to have heard that any of them, in their dying hour, testified that they were thankful to God that they had always opposed the Holiness Movement, that they had never believed that Jesus' blood could cleanse and make men holy in this life, and that if they had life to live over, they would be more energetic in their opposition to holiness camp meetings, schools, evangelists, pastors, and revivals of all kinds for the promotion of scriptural holiness. If they ever gave such testimony I never heard of it. They have made their record and gone out and will meet it at the judgment. One can but ask if, in that great day, God will say to those men who have written and preached and opposed entire sanctification through the blood of Christ, as a definite and gracious work of the Holy Spirit, "Well done, good and faithful servants." We shall see what we shall see. May God help us to remember that we must give an account at the judgment.

MEN BELIEVE WHAT THEY ARE TAUGHT.

NO, I am not writing too much on this subject. Nothing is more important than that those of us who claim to have received the sanctifying power of the Lord Jesus Christ, should seek by every proper means to spread throughout the world the good news of full salvation. Many of us are approaching the evening of life, and we certainly should feel an intense interest in giving the rising generations and all of our fellowbeings who come into the world, the blessed gospel of full redemption by faith in our mighty, all-powerful Lord Jesus.

It is hardly reasonable for any one of us to claim to be fully saved and, at the same time, be indifferent to the state of those about us who are not fully saved. One of the features of entire sanctification is the fact that it puts within us an intense longing, a holy passion, for the salvation of others. To find Jesus and know him as our Saviour from all sin, stirs our souls to bring others to know him in the fulness of his power to save from sin.

The Bible plainly declares that we are not our own. That we have been bought with a price; not with silver and gold, but with the precious blood of Christ. Among the true Christian followers of our Lord, rich or poor, we are simply his stewards. And we must give an account in that great day for our stewardship. O my brothers and sisters who believe the Bible, who love the Lord Jesus Christ, who long to see the lost brought to salvation, will you not join us in the upbuilding of this Seminary? In the preparing of an army of young men to go out with a consuming passion for the salvation of the lost? Our race will soon be run. Our account must soon be rendered. What could we do better than to help prepare a Spirit-filled, holy ministry, to seek after the lost sheep that have gone astray from the Father's fold.

There is one thing that comforts me in this effort. It is this—I know that it has the approval of the blessed Trinity. It must have! The God who loved a lost and sinful world enough to give his Son to die for its redemption wants the message of his love and redemption to go out over this nation and around the world. Think of our blessed Lord hanging upon the Cross, dying for the

SOME VITAL QUESTIONS CONSIDERED.

Rev. G. W. Ridout D.D., Corresponding Editor.

I have been asked many questions about the Holy Land since our visit there on our way back from India. Many have strange ideas of Jerusalem and the Jewish invasion of Palestine since the War. Let me here put down a few important facts and figures regarding the Holy Land:

Population is as follows: Jews 154,330 (before the War 57,900); Moslems 572,443; Christians 80,225; Bedouins 100,000; making a total of over 900,000 people. The Jews own about sixty-five per cent of the industries and they pay over forty per cent of the revenue.

Prior to the War the Jews held 5,000 acres of land. In 1930 they held 75,000 acres. 700,000 trees of various kinds have been planted in the past few years. The Jews have 227 schools with 790 teachers and 19,419 pupils. The Moslems have very few schools.

The Arabs oppose bitterly Zionism as they see in it a tendency to dispossess them of their country which they have held for thirteen centuries. They hold that they are of the seed of Abraham through Ishmael. The Balfour declaration favoring a National Home for the Jewish people and pledging the British government to use their best endeavors to facilitate the achievement of this object had a twofold effect; upon the Jews it had the effect of stimulating greatly the idea of Zionism and vastly increasing immigration of the Jews to Palestine. Upon the Arabs it had the effect of bitterness; they would prefer remaining under the Turks, of course. They resented the idea of the Jews coming in and securing, by purchase, all the best arable land in the country. Out of this bitterness grew the rioting and killing of a few years ago. To those of us who believe in prophecy we see in the events of the past decade and more some wonderful fulfillment of prophecy. In these later days many things are happening which throw wonderful light upon prophecy, particularly upon the doctrine of the Second Coming. The other day the Pope of Rome, using the Radio, spoke to all the world nearly. When Christ comes to rule from Jerusalem it seems as though science is already preparing the way by which his voice will be heard throughout the whole world. Dr. A. B. Simpson wrote the following lines:

"The air is full of party strife
And conflicts loud and long;
Each leader has some new device
To remedy the wrong.
Men vainly strive from age to age
Earth's golden age to bring,
But tell me why is there never a word
Of bringing back the King?"

II.

I see by the church papers that some strange things are happening these days. Over in Hartford, Conn., they had a conference on the subject of "Are we on the verge of a spiritual awakening?" One of the principal speakers was an out-and-out infidel, Dr. Harry Elmer Barnes. This man has bowed God out of the universe and thrown the Christian theology on the scrap-heap. It seemed a shame that they had not invited Clarence Darrow as one of the speakers also. Some months ago Barnes shocked the Christian thinking world by his bold and blatant blasphemies in which he avowed there was no God, and the whole business of religion was nothing but a sham and superstition. Now it passeth comprehension how a body of ministers and leaders of the church will insult the Christian people of the land by putting an Atheist and a scoffer on a program to consider such a vital question as a spiritual awakening. Other speakers were Dr. Harry Ward, whose conception of socialized Christianity is an income of ten thousand a year. Another speaker, Dr. Gilkey, wants all denominationalism wiped out and the obliteration of the traditional system of Christian theology and a new (20th century) conception of God.

Dr. Lynn Hough raised the Conference (almost) to a shouting point by declaring that "personality is upon the throne." We might stop to ask what personality? Mussolini, Al Capone, Clarence Darrow or Fosdick?

Dr. Hough said, "Archimedes set sail in a bath tub and discovered a new, intellectual continent." Which moves me to say that a great crowd of present-day thinkers and leaders (so called) are sailing in a bath tub—it gets them nowhere—they go round and round and if they should strike a continent it is cold and bleak and icy. Their bathtubs are borne by the currents of their unregenerated thinking which carry them off to the North pole of Modernism where they freeze to death, spiritually, and they in turn freeze the people and the churches they come into contact with.

III.

How are we to account for the loss of vision, the lack of power and the almost total failure of some missionaries, so called? Who is to blame for the changed emphasis upon missions by which those are admitted into the ranks of missionaries and sent abroad on missionary work and, at the same time, fail to bear the marks of any true conversion, have no spiritual mind, no message and no witness to saving grace? Are we sending people out to the mission fields just to teach school? Are we sending them just to do a work of social uplift? Is this the New Testament view of missions? Is it the Pauline view? Imagine a young man sent to the mission field and he cared so little about the spiritual aspect of his work that he failed to bring a Bible with him—this happened in South America!

Recently I attended a meeting where a missionary (?) was to give a report on his field. After three years' labor he reported six members and a Masonic Lodge; he reminded his hearers if the work was closed up the Masonic Lodge would go also. It was pitiable and tragic to think that this field has been operating for seventeen years at a cost of over $25,000 and only six members to show for it, and a Masonic Lodge. When one looks a bit into the history of that work one finds that one modernist after another had been sent there, and as a general thing modernists on the mission fields are failures in making converts to Jesus Christ and his regenerating grace.

In those Latin American countries missionaries need a deep, glowing religious experience—they need to be sanctified people. Romanism is entrenched here, priests are corrupt and intolerant. The Catholics are often fanatical. Nothing but real holy fire burning in a missionary's heart for the salvation of souls will effect anything.

I heard a very prominent official of the New York Missionary hierarchy which aims to run the whole missionary program throughout the world, say recently in a meeting, speaking about those Latin American Catholic countries that "We are not here to make Protestants of those Catholic people. We are here to enlighten and elevate and show the spirit of the Sermon on the Mount and the love of Jesus to them." Now there is some truth in what he said and a lot of error. If we send missionaries to South America with no certain objective about getting the people saved we are sending them to be failures. The real heaven-sent missionary is never satisfied unless he sees people turn from their idols and wicked works to serve the living God. If our missionaries to Catholic countries do not get people saved they are not doing the work they ought to do. Any amount of education and social uplift will not meet the New Testament ideal of Missions. Thank God, thus far in our travels in Latin America, we have been in meetings where souls were convicted of sin, converted and sanctified in the old-fashioned way. The gospel works the same results in every land and among every nation and race.

IV.

Dr. Dinsdale T. Young, speaking about Types of Prayers enumerates them as follows:

"1. The Ignorant Prayer. 'Ye know not what ye ask.' Matt. 20:20.

"2. The Arrested Prayer. 'Speak no more unto me of this matter.' Deut. 3:26.

"3. The Happy Prayer. 'Making request with joy.' Phil. 1:4.

"4. The Sorrowful Prayer. 'Being in an agony he prayed more earnestly.' Luke 22:44.

"5. The Private Prayer. 'Shut thy door—Pray in Secret.' Matt. 6:6."

V.

Faith and reason can get along fine together when linked together by genuine piety; but reason unharnessed and divorced from faith becomes a dangerous proposition. Many there are who permit reason, unattended by faith, to carry them over the precipice and they plunge into infidelity—then peace goes and fellowship with God is lost and materialism fills the horizon.

Some one has put real truth about faith and reason in the following lines:

"Reason unstrings the harp to see
Wherein the music dwells,
Faith pours a hallelujah song
And heavenly rapture swells.

"By reason's alchemy in vain
Is golden treasure planned;
Faith meekly takes a priceless crown
Won by no mortal hand.

"While reason is the laboring oar
That smites the wrathful seas,
Faith is the snowy sail spread out
To catch the freshening breeze."

HOW OFTEN IN READING

do you encounter a word with which you are not familiar? To understand the meaning of a word helps one to more fully appreciate what one reads.

The New Universal Graphic Dictionary is distinguished by such outstanding features that it adapts itself for general use. It contains hundreds of new words that have recently come into use. The entry words are printed in large bold face type, two lines high, while the definitions are in a smaller, but easily-read type.

There isn't anything which so enlarges and varies the vocabulary of the school boy or girl as a good dictionary handy where they may find definitions that will enable them to thoroughly understand a word and its proper use.

A HEART OF COMPASSION OR OF INDIFFERENCE.

Clarence R. Ries, A. M.

OD, through the Apostle Paul, caused the following words to be penned: "Put on therefore, as God's elect, holy and beloved, a heart of compassion." R. V.

Very few of the injunctions or exhortations of God's Word are so little heeded by those called by his name as this command, "Put on a heart of compassion." Perhaps it is because we so little understand the real essence of the word compassion or, perchance knowing its true meaning, we shun to perform because of what it costs. Only as we understand the heart of compassion in the bosom of the Father in his dealings with Israel can we understand the Old Testament. Only as we grasp the significance of the heart of compassion that mightily surged in the soul of the God-man, Jesus Christ, as he bore the sins of the world on Calvary can we truly sense the real message of the New Testament. May I go a step further and say that the world today will never know the true meaning of the Old and New Testament if God's people are devoid of a heart of compassion? Then, in truth, will our lives be a savour of life unto life and not of death unto death. Do we, in unison with the God of Israel and the Christ of Calvary, have a heart of compassion for lost, sin-cursed men or is ours a heart of indifference? Surely no true revival will come to our land until God's own people become possessed of the broken, compassionate heart of the Father and his Son Jesus Christ.

The basis of Israel's faith was in the compassion of God, for had he not out of compassion called them to be his people and delivered them out of bondage? Their forgiveness, their leadership, their provisions were all due to Jehovah's compassion, and "God full of compassion forgave their iniquity (Psalm 78:38) and was ever mindful of his covenant (Psalm 3:4, 5). When Israel became headstrong and would walk in none of God's ways we read that God repented. What does this mean? The Hebrew word is naham implying a difficulty in breathing; hence to pant, to sigh, to groan, meaning to grieve as one grieves when disaster or loss has come to a dear friend. What a revelation of the heart of the Father! "And they were not consumed because his compassions failed not." (Lam. 3:22). Because their God was inherently a God of compassion, Israel's prophets declared that his people should likewise be men and women of compassion.

How wonderfully significant is that Hebrew word compassion! Hebrew verbs have seven stems. One of these is known as the intensive stem. To have compassion comes from the intensive stem of the Hebrew word raham meaning to love. Hence, to be compassionate is to love intensely, love passionately, love vehemently. "And God loving vehemently forgave their iniquity." It has its counterpart in the New Testament in the words "have fervent—red hot, intense-love for one another." This is the compassion of the Old Testament. There is no word in Hebrew more pregnant with meaning than the noun compassion. It originally means "brotherhood, brotherly feeling of those born from the same womb" or "motherly feeling." How tender the word becomes as we note the true love of a brother in the flesh for a sick or stricken brother of his own kin, or the love of the mother as she sits by the bedside of her sick child,—her whole being going out for the child. The one who has passed through such an experience begins to approximate the compassion of God for his sin-blighted, dying people.

This helps us to understand the compassion of Jesus as portrayed in the New Testament for "He was God manifested in the flesh." That we may truly grasp the meaning of his compassion, let us note the meaning of our English word compassion. It is made up of two Latin words, cum—with, and pati—to suffer; the word meaning then to suffer with. "And when Jesus saw the multitudes he was moved with compassion—He suffered with them—for they were as sheep without a shepherd." How he must have suffered as he stood above Jerusalem and wept over the city! His heart was broken. Surely there would have been no hope for man if the heart of God the Father and the heart of Jesus had not broken in dynamic compassion for man! Here lies the vital essence of Christianity. Other religions say, "Do." Christianity says, "Be." Other religions say, "Do as I say." Jesus says, "Be what I am,"—a sufferer with those without a shepherd, a sufferer with those whose house is left unto them void.

Note briefly that strong word moved! The Greek signifies the strongest emotion of the affections,—being lovingly constrained—impelled. How he longed to bring harmony, rest and assurance out of the distorted, restless, heart-sick lives of the multitude! In the second verse of Genesis we find the world in a state of chaos and ruin and the Spirit of God moved. R. V. He alone could bring harmony out of that chaos. The word moved in this passage means an inward, life-giving power rather than a mere mechanical, outward motion. In the Syriac it is the common word for loving, warning, cherishing. Just as the brooding of the Holy Spirit, as seen in the Genesis record, produced harmony by this inward, life-giving power, so the soul dead in sin and distorted in life will be brought into harmony with itself and God by the warming, compassionate heart of Jesus Christ through the instrumentality of his followers today.

Nor do I observe that this compassion of Jesus is a passive, negative somewhat but rather a positive, impelling force in the Saviour's life for true compassion begets action. "And Jesus moved with compassion" fed the multitude, "moved with compassion" he touched the blind man's eyes, "moved with compassion" he raised the widow's son; "moved with compassion" he wept, for alas, his hands were tied by them for "ye would not." Jesus so beautifully portrays his own heart of compassion in the parable of the prodigal son;—for "the father had compassion and ran and fell on his neck and kissed him." Do we have compassion with legs on it like that? He again reveals his compassion in his illustration of the good Samaritan, for "he had compassion on him (the unfortunate man) and went and bound up his wounds, pouring in oil and wine, set him on his own beast and brought him to an inn and took care of him." That's compassion! May God give us that kind of evangelical, personal work begotten of a suffering urge that will constrain us to bring lost men and women to Christ! Paul prayed that he might be accursed for his brethren if thereby he might win them to Christ. That is the language of true compassion. Moses suffered with and for his people that he told God to blot out his name from the book of life but spare his people. That is compassion. Why are so few brought to Jesus today? Why is the Church of God so listless? She has lost the essence of vital Christianity—compassion. In compassion there is a living faith that grips the promises of God; in compassion there is fervent, intercessory prayer that prevails with God as did Elijah who "prayed earnestly and it rained not for the space of three years and six months." There is begotten in the life of one possessed with true compassion a humble, Spirit-filled and guided walk in daily fellowship with Jesus Christ.

The great apostle's earnest prayer was that "he might know him and the power of his resurrection and the fellowship of his sufferings." What a prayer! But realizing the mighty issues that are at stake in the lives of men and women all about us, dare we pray, really pray, anything else? There is no fellowship with Jesus without suffering. Peter (1 Pet. 5:10) calls our attention to the fact that our perfection, establishment and strengthening is dependent on suffering with Jesus. Paul reminds us that our glorification depends on our suffering with Jesus (Romans 8:17). In Second Timothy 2:12 we read, "If we suffer with him, we shall also reign with him"; and because of being "partakers of Christ's sufferings" we shall come to the grand, final rejoicing (1 Pet. 4:13) to sing the song of Moses and the Lamb through him who washed us through his own precious blood "and counted us worthy of the Kingdom of God for which we suffered." (2 Thess. 1:5).

"Put on therefore as God's elect, holy and beloved, a heart of compassion." Do we want to be like Jesus? Do we crave to see men brought to Jesus? Do we desire our lives to be as a well-watered garden? Then, let us pray earnestly for a heart of compassion,—ready to suffer with Christ with a broken heart over lost men, "ready to go, ready to stay, ready to do his will." "I have chosen you and appointed you that ye should go and bear fruit, and that your fruit should abide: that whatsoever ye shall ask of the Father in my name, he may give it you." "For even hereunto were ye called because Christ also suffered for us leaving us an example that we should follow in his steps." "For unto you it is given in behalf of Christ not only to believe on him, but also to suffer for his sake."

Dear reader, will you not enter into this blessed fellowship with Jesus that as he suffers with lost men and women, you too, in seeing the multitudes without God and hope in the world, might be moved with compassion for the glory of our Saviour and the salvation of men?

ONE MINUTE SERMON.

BETHEL COOK.

A PARABLE.

Text.—They think they shall be heard for their much speaking. Matt. 6:7.

Once upon a time there was a man who spake much and loud in meeting, and upon every occasion. This man could make long and eloquent prayers, and those who met him believed him to be very religious. Now there lived in the same country with this man many poor and destitute people.

His church also presented, from time to time, many worthy appeals for the work of the Kingdom of God.

But when the offering was taken for the poor, and when the interests of the church were presented he never let his left hand know what his right hand did because it never did anything.

IN THIS BUSY AGE

young women who are struggling, trying to live Christian lives, need a message of encouragement—a message that really creates in one a desire and determination to find time for the deep devotional life.

The little book, "Mary of Bethany," is one of the fullest, richest messages on the devotional life we have read. She had nothing too precious for Jesus and to read this wonderful little book will encourage, inspire and enrich any heart.

THREE TYPES OF MEN.

Rev. E. E. Shelhamer.

First: Those who displease God.

Second: Those who please him.

Third: Those who are well pleasing to him.

I am to preach to you as God may help, on these three types of men, those in the basement, those on the ground floor, and those who are up stairs.

First: Those who are the farthest from God. Turn with me to Deut. 9:11-19. "And it came to pass at the end of forty days and forty nights, that the Lord gave me the two tables of stone, even the tables of the covenant.

"And the Lord said unto me, 'Arise, get thee down quickly from hence; for thy people which thou hast brought forth out of Egypt have corrupted themselves; they are quickly turned aside out of the way which I commanded them; they have made them a molten image.'

"Furthermore the Lord spake unto me, saying, 'I have seen this people, and, behold, it is a stiffnecked people:

"Let me alone, that I may destroy them, and blot out their name from under heaven: and I will make of thee a nation mightier and greater than they.'

"So I turned and came down from the mount, and the mount burned with fire: and the two tables of the covenant were in my two hands.

"And I looked, and, behold, ye had sinned against the Lord your God, and had made you a molten calf: ye had turned aside quickly out of the way which the Lord had commanded you.

"And I took the two tables, and cast them out of my two hands, and brake them before your eyes.

"And I fell down before the Lord, as at the first, forty days and forty nights: I did neither eat bread, nor drink water, because of all your sins which ye sinned, in doing wickedly in the sight of the Lord, to provoke him to anger.

"For I was afraid of the anger and hot displeasure, wherewith the Lord was wroth against you to destroy you. But the Lord hearkened unto me at that time also."

Dear friends, this is a sad picture; this shows the fickleness of humanity. Have you ever counted how many times God in a miraculous way raised up deliverers for his chosen people? But after about one generation, or forty years, we read, "And the children of Israel again did evil in the sight of the Lord." After all, it looks as though we do not have very much to boast of, except that we are a fearful disappointment to God. Did you notice in this Scripture lesson, how it says at least twice that "They are quickly turned aside out of the way which I commanded them," and because of this Moses said, "I was afraid of the anger and hot displeasure wherewith the Lord was wroth against you to destroy you." Here we find God's displeasure at its height and it is called "hot displeasure."

But let us not be too severe on the fickleness of Israel. Just look around and see how "quickly" we likewise have turned aside; for instance, how "quickly" we fall in with the general custom of Sabbath desecration; how "quickly" we forget our former conscientious scruples and do like others—buy milk, buy newspapers, buy gasoline and oil, on the Lord's day. How "quickly" and easily preachers and others can take the train on Sunday, when, if they planned and prayed they could do otherwise. I live in California and know many good people, who at one time were very conscientious along this line. But now, they can leave the coast Friday or Saturday and know they will be traveling all day Sunday in order to attend General Conference or some other gathering. How "quickly" have they turned aside from former convictions.

Again, how "quickly" we and our children become worldly in appearance. Back there we were so humble and plain that we were a constant rebuke to worldliness and compromisers, but now it is different. Many of us and our children could hardly be distinguished from theater-goers. We dress like the world; we talk like the world; we have worldly music on our pianos; we have foolish phonograph records; we listen over the radio to foolish and unprofitable things; yea, we "quickly" cave in and do like the nations around about us.

Put me down as a fanatic if you will, but wait a moment until I quote John Wesley; you will accept him, will you not? In the General Rules of the Methodist Church, written by Wesley, he said that it was expected of all who desired to continue in those early societies that they should evidence that desire to "flee from the wrath to come," by avoiding evil of every kind, such as the "wearing of gold"; such as the "singing of those songs and reading those books which do not tend to the knowledge or love of God"; brother going to law with brother; "speaking evil of magistrates or ministers"; taking up goods without paying the duty. Again he says, that they should not only avoid evil of every kind, but that they should do good of every kind, such as "Searching the Scriptures"; family and private prayer; fasting and abstinence; attending upon all the means of grace, etc., etc. After he has mentioned these and many other things, he concludes by saying, "All these things we know the Holy Spirit writes on truly awakened hearts." Mark the language! He did not say on sanctified or even regenerated hearts, but those who were "truly awakened." Now friends, we must conclude that John Wesley was either too strong or we are not strong enough; John Wesley had the standard too high or we have it too low.

Oh, that God would so save us and our young people that they would not "quickly" cool off and compromise. I wonder if we do not sing and shout converts through too hurriedly. Better let them seek for days if need be, until they get a clear witness from high heaven; get something that will hold them steady for years to come rather than rush them through and have them quickly disappoint God and those who are truly conscientious.

Charles Finney's converts had a stability of character that was not characteristic of the Methodists. Why? Because he did not appeal so much to their emotions as to their wills. He insisted on entering into a covenant with God to please him, feeling or no feeling. If great ecstasy came, very well, if not, the principle of righteousness planted in the soul, was worth more than a big shout and then so quickly a big doubt. Brethren, I confess I am humiliated when a sinner comes up and says to me, "I would give the world if I were as happy as you; if I felt as good as this one or that one." Where did he get that standard? Some one is to blame. He has his eyes on a good feeling, whereas he ought to say, "I would give the world if I had the consciousness that I was in right relationship with God and all mankind." For, remember it is worth infinitely more to be right than to be tickled and feel good.

Do not misunderstand me! I rather enjoy the waving of handkerchiefs, etc., but many times I have been greatly disappointed when some of these same ones "quickly turned aside" because of a little money; because of a slight or insult; because of the customs and fashions of others around them. Oh, that God would give people backbones like iron crowbars instead of those like cotton threads.

Beloveds, if I were compelled to write, not a book, not a page, not even a paragraph, but one sentence, specifying the greatest need of this age, this is what I would write—"Oh, for men and women who have the courage to go against the crowd and follow their God-given convictions."

Second: Those who please God. If you will turn to the 11th chapter of Hebrews, you will find there recorded one of the worthies—Enoch. It tells us, "By faith Enoch was translated that he should not see death, and was not found because God had translated him, for before his translation he had this testimony that he pleased God." If you will turn back to Genesis 5:21, you will read, "He walked with God three hundred years." It also tells us that he begat sons and daughters, one of which was Methuselah, the oldest man on record—969 years. According to this account, if Enoch could please God three hundred years, why can we not have the same testimony for three or thirty years? God is the same yesterday, today, and forever. If Enoch pleased God and yet raised a large family, this puts into oblivion that old Roman notion that in order to be holy a priest or preacher must live in celibacy. Some of us do not go quite that far, but make excuses for our failures and irritability by saying that it is hard to live for God and have so many domestic cares.

Oh, the multitudes of women who are scolding and fighting, then excusing it all by saying they are mismated or cannot live religion because of domestic troubles. No doubt Enoch had his share of perplexities, and yet he kept walking with God and pleasing him for these 300 years. We are told that he lived sixty and five years and begat Methuselah. From this I gather that it pays to please God; for a man who walks with God will not quickly walk with loose characters, nor will he eat, drink and act in any way that will affect his blood; his children will be healthy and bright. Many sinners ought never have been allowed to marry; they are not fit to be parents; their offspring in many instances are either vicious, vile, or idiotic. Parents, you ought to covenant now to walk with God and please him in self-defense, if nothing more.

I am not preaching Holiness, but old-fashioned regeneration. The soundly converted man will please God in his intentions and behavior. In justification we get something we never had before; we get all the nine graces of the Spirit. In entire sanctification we get rid of something we always had—the carnal nature. In justification the tree is cut down; in the work of Holiness the root is taken out. In justification we get peace that passeth understanding; while in sanctification we get the peace that passeth by misunderstanding. Oh friends, let us magnify the grace of God in enabling even a convert to please him.

Third: Those who are well pleasing to God. Do not let it take your breath away when I refer to Matthew 3:16, 17. "And Jesus, when he was baptized, went up straightway out of the water; and, lo, the heavens were opened unto him, and he saw the Spirit of God descending like a dove, and lighting upon him: And lo, a voice from heaven, saying, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased." Have you ever noticed that nearly every passage of Scripture that refers to Jesus Christ, (except in his Messianic office) can be applied to us? Let me read one in Isaiah 42:1, "Behold my servant, whom I uphold; mine elect, in whom my soul delighteth; I have put my Spirit upon him: he shall bring forth judgment to the Gentiles." This ought to be said of you and me in a limited sense. "He shall not cry nor lift up, or cause his voice to be heard in the street"; no boisterous talking, no railing and clamoring for this or that. This ought to be said of us. "A bruised reed shall he not break." In short, he will not bear down hard upon others. He will be sympathetic, nor say in a light manner, "Well, he or she deserves it, they brought it upon themselves."

Brother, when your ways are well pleasing to God you will not needlessly grieve others. We read, "When a man's ways please the Lord, he maketh even his enemies to be at peace with him." That is, your enemies will not be able to say truthfully that you showed an unchristlike spirit. They may find fault with your singing or shouting, but brother, it is a serious thing when they can charge you with a failure to show the right spirit.

John Alexander Dowie and a few others from time to time have declared that they were Elijah, or at least had the spirit of Elijah. They based their claim on Malachi 4:5, 6. But friends, we profess to go a step further; we profess to be the sons of God. "And because ye are sons, God has sent forth the Spirit of his Son into your hearts, crying Abba Father." If this be true, if we are sons of God, it is to be expected that we should act more or less as did his only begotten Son. For, are we not made partakers of the Divine nature? If so, we should look and act like our Father.

Brethren, personally I am not satisfied to simply please God, but I want to be well pleasing in his sight. Shall I illustrate? Here are two boys. The father says, "Boys, I am going to town and will be back in a half day. Willie, you chop up this tree top. Charlie, you rake up the leaves and trash on the yard." When the father returns he finds that both of the boys did as he commanded; but one of them went farther, and not only did his part and then resorted to play, but he did something else that needed to be done. The father commends this lad and says, "You not only pleased me, but you pleased me well, for you looked around and helped me bear burdens voluntarily without an iron-rule command.

Oh friends, be no longer content to live in the basement of your natures, where you simply enjoy that which appeals to the senses. Look around and find that staircase leading to a higher plane of living, and live where you can at the close of each day lay down without guilt and condemnation, feeling clear that you have pleased your Lord. But do not stop here on the ground floor; look around and you will find another staircase leading to a higher plane of life; where you live in the spiritual realm of communion with God; where you live at least one story higher than the generality of men.

There is a beautiful picture in the 11th chapter of Mark. What do we see? We see the Christ, the Divine, on top of a colt, animal, we see a triumphant march. We also hear "Hosannas in the highest, peace on earth, good will toward men." But suppose we reverse the picture and let the animal get upon the Divine. Let the animal ride the humanity of Jesus. Then what? There is a breakdown; the march ceases; there is a blockade, and likewise no hosannas. Brother, sister, this picture is reproduced in your life and mine every day. God grant that from henceforth the Divine in us will be on top; that the same Christ may triumph in our lives; that his Spirit will so permeate and control our thoughts, words, and actions, that we in return may be well pleasing to the Father.

Is this too strong? Listen to Paul, and what Paul could testify through grace, can we not do the same? He said, "For to me to live is Christ, and to die is gain." What did he mean? He meant that as Christ had died for sin, he died to sin; that Christ had disembodied himself in order to re-embody himself in the life of the apostle; that Christ was now living his life out the second time on earth in the life of St. Paul. How different from the generality of men! Most men, if they told the truth, would say, "For me to live is to scold and find fault around home; for me to live is to grasp and scheme for the almighty dollar; for me to live is to be beastly and licentious; for me to live is to seek the praise of men; for me to live is to feel sore when slighted or unnoticed." Oh friends, let us here and now give ourselves up so fully to the operations of Divinity, that others seeing our good works, our holy lives, may be led to glorify our Father which is in heaven.

"Jesus plant and root in me
All the mind that was in Thee;
Settled peace I then shall have Jesus is a quiet mind.

"Anger I no more shall feel,
Always even always still;
Meekly on my God recline
Jesus is a patient mind."

—C. Wesley.

The Christian's Hope of Immortality,

H. H. SMITH.

Before me lies a very large, old volume containing a compilation from "historians, philosophers, sages, scientists, poets, preachers, orators, and statesmen of all ages on every phase of the future life." After reading these very interesting selections, with their arguments for the credibility of belief in a future existence, this question suggests itself: What are the arguments of the Bible for belief in the immortality of the soul? Perhaps the best answer is: There are none. The Bible does not "argue." That is not the way of the Book in such matters,—it has a better way. Men argue for or against belief in the existence of a Supreme Being, but the Bible nowhere undertakes to prove the existence of God. That is taken for granted in the first sentence of the Book: "In the beginning God. . . ." Men argue about the origin of evil, the problem of prayer, the mystery of providence. But see how Jesus dealt with such matters. He does not give us any fine-spun definitions of sin and its origin, he simply points it out. "See that prodigal, sin brought him to that. See that demoniac, that is the work of sin." And then we are told that the only remedy for such evils is the One who stands in their midst to restore and forgive. That's enough to know about sin.

And in this wise and practical way the Master dealt with all the problems of life. He entered into no argument about the soul's being immaterial and therefore immortal, nor did he give any of the plausible arguments for the survival of the soul after death. Briefly, the Master taught that he was the source of all life, and to be in fellowship with him, by trustful obedience and consecrated service, was to possess a life that is deathless. "In him was life; and the life was the light of men." John 1:4. "Because I live, ye shall live also." John 14:19. "If a man keep my word, he shall never taste of death." John 8:52. "He that believeth on the Son hath eternal life." John 3:36. To believe on him is to have the true life, the life of God within the soul, bringing a "richness and fullness of being" which death cannot disturb. This is the Christian's hope of life beyond the grave. Phillips Brooks was not given to speaking of his religious experience, but one day he "lifted the veil of the most secret prisons of his soul" in conversation with a young preacher and spoke of the peace and joy which an indwelling Christ brought to his life. "I cannot tell you how personal this grows to me," he said. "He is here. He knows me and I know him. It is no figure of speech. It is the realest thing in the world. And every day makes it realer. And one wonders with delight what it will grow to as the years go on." To have that experience is to have eternal life in this world and all worlds. "Christ in you, the hope of glory," was Paul's word to the Colossians. "I am the resurrection, and the life; he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live; and whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die," were the Master's words to the weeping sisters of Bethany. Jesus said: "He that eateth my flesh and drinketh my blood hath eternal life; and I will raise him up at the last day." John 6:54. This highly figurative language means that if we live in fellowship with him here, we shall live forever with him in glory. This is the Christian's hope of immortality.

THE BEST INVESTMENT.

E. O. RICE.

FOR years the writer travelled over the United States as a commercial paper broker representing a New York financial concern with our headquarters in Chicago. This particular line of business is better known as note brokerage. In other words our firm was a go-between with the bank on one side and the large borrower on the other. Our firm did a business of something like $70,000,000.00 a year, and it was the writer's observation that the bankers who bought our notes wanted to be as secure as possible. In other words the concern who borrowed the money must have a high grade rating. Individuals, as well as bankers, when they are investing their money want the best security possible with as large a rate of interest as they can secure. Two things I have noticed about investments and these are security with convertibility. During the past three years there have been millions of dollars lost by investors who thought they were secure, but because of circumstances over which they had no control they have lost their money.

For several years the writer has been out of the money business and engaged in missionary work. There are literally hundreds of places that have come under our observation where investments can be made that will yield greater returns than any we have seen in the business world. When, according to Revelation, the books are opened, as they will be some day, money wisely invested in bringing the Gospel to the needy millions of the Orient will bring great returns, and in this way the principal will never be lost and there will also be compound and accumulative interest because the money invested to bring even one soul to Christ may mean literally hundreds of souls brought into the Kingdom because of the faithfulness of that one soul.

The president of a large trust company at one time made this frank statement to me. He said, "Rice, you must be a good beggar." I immediately told him that I did not put my work on that level, as all the money that I had ever saved was the money that I had invested in the cause of Christ. What is the Christian Church going to do with the words of Jesus as recorded in Matt. 6:19, 20, "Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth . . . but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven." If the thousands of individuals who have lost money in the stock market and because of the depreciation in real estate values had had the vision of the Cross and had taken the money which they have lost, and backed up the existing missionary agencies, literally millions would have received the Gospel who are now deprived of it.

Jesus has further stated that we brought nothing into this world and that certainly we can take nothing out, so that the real rich man after all is the one who literally lays up treasure in heaven. This does not mean depositing actual money in the bank of heaven but the spiritual application is that we are to be faithful stewards and convert what earthly treasure God has entrusted us with into soul-saving work.

Mrs. Rice and I landed in the Orient Feb. 20, and have been busy visiting the various fields of labor of The Oriental Missionary Society. We are greatly impressed with the tremendous need and opportunity that faces the Christian Church. Our Society already has a lot of faithful workers who are busy in our various fields, Tokyo, Shanghai, Seoul and Canton, but after days of consultation with our trustees we are certain that the Lord would have us as his followers to open up at least one new Bible Training Institute, which will be in Peking, and possibly another in the near future. The best possible way to reach China is through her own native people, and this can only be done through a trained, native, Bible ministry. This is the policy that the founders, Brothers Cowman and Kilbourne, fixed upon thirty years ago at the time the work was started. The 1700 graduates that have completed their Bible Training in these various Bible Training Institutes have proven that the policy which the founders inaugurated was the correct one.

Since the Holy Spirit has come to our own heart he has quickened our mind and heart so that as we visit our fields and see the need we feel that if we had $5,000,000.00 placed in our hands we would invest every cent of it in bringing the Gospel to the millions of the Orient. However, there is not an individual in our Society sitting around waiting for these gifts, but every one of them is busy and working with all their might, and with their activities all are praying for an enlarged work, not that we want a bigger work but simply because of the tremendous need.

It has been my observation in business circles that when the business of some of our large corporations increases they immediately increase their capital stock and working

FACTS FROM THE FIRING LINE.

"My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge."—Hos. 4:6.

Prohibition has wrought miracles of moral, social and economic redemption, but thousands of dries do not know it. Every pastor is urged to reprint the following Fact in the Church Calendar, or read it from the pulpit to offset the destructive wet propaganda which appears in many of the secular newspapers. A new Fact appears in this place in each issue.

Wets claim that youth has been more criminal under Prohibition. "On the contrary," says the Federal Children's Bureau, "only 9.4% of commitments in 1923 were between ages 18 and 20 as against 11.8 in 1880 and 12.1 in 1890."

funds, so our prayer today is for more working capital. There was a time when our Society only needed $100,000 a year, but today the need is actually $300,000.00 a year, and we are praying that the day will soon come when God's faithful children will entrust the Society with $500,000.00 a year, for if any of our good friends and supporters were to visit the fields for themselves as we now are they would feel the same as we do at this writing, and that is, we would invest not only what funds God has entrusted us with but also our lives. The commission, "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel," is just as binding today as it was when Jesus said it.

Some years ago the writer met a very remarkable Christian woman, and after she prayed for me I told my father that I would rather have that woman's prayers back of me than a million dollars. Just so we have the assurance as we are writing these lines that the prayers of God's people are worth more than money, for real intercessory prayer will bring to our Society and the work of God all that it actually needs. Phil. 4:19, "My God shall supply all of your needs according to his riches in glory by Christ Jesus." Praise the Lord.

Soliciting an interest in your prayers toward the enlarging of our work because of the tremendous need, I am,

Your brother in Christ.

John Paul Re-enters Field of Evangelism.

Dr. John Paul has retired from the presidency of Taylor University and will give himself to editorial and evangelistic work. His address is 1754 Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill. The following resolution was passed by the Legal Hundred of Taylor University on the occasion of Dr. Paul's retirement from the school:

"Be it resolved by the Board of Directors of the Legal Hundred of Taylor University on the occasion of the acceptance of the resignation of Dr. John Paul as President of the University, that we highly appreciate the splendid achievements during his nine years as President, especially in his reorganization of the University and the formation of the Legal Hundred; in the marked improvement of building equipment and facilities; in the wider recognition given to the school in church and in educational circles; and in bringing the University to a higher scholastic standard than it has ever enjoyed.

"Be it further resolved, that the Board hereby express its high appreciation of the fine Christian graces displayed by Dr. Paul in all his dealings with the same, and extend to him its best wishes for many years of happy and effective service in the work of the Kingdom."

Dr. Paul is succeeded by Dr. Robert Lee Stuart.

Graduation Time is Near,

and no matter how many presents a boy or girl receives, we believe it is rare that they appreciate anything more than an attractive Bible. It is a gift, that if properly taken care of, will last almost a lifetime, serving as "a lamp unto the feet and a light unto the pathway."

Just at this time we have a limited number of copies of one of the lightest, thinnest, most convenient sized Bibles for a young person it has been our privilege to obtain. The size is about 4¾x7 inches, a fraction over ½ inch thick, bound in genuine leather, overlapping edges, silk sewed, India paper, a clear, readable type, chapter numbers in figures, references, maps, red under gold edges, and has the nonbreakable back feature. It also has the silk marker. Net price was $4.25. The Pentecostal Publishing Company is closing out these copies at a special price of $2.40 each. Don't miss the opportunity of being a lifetime blessing to some boy or girl.

Putting God's will first never narrows a life. It broadens any life. God's kingdom lays hold of everything that can enrich one's nature. Many things that would be nothing but hindrances, if we let them take first place, are helps when they are put in the second place, and God's will is put in the first place and directs them.—Selected.

GLEANINGS FROM THE EVANGELISTIC FIELD

ASBURY COLLEGE FOREIGN MISSIONARY TEAM.

Dear Friends of The Herald Family:

After finishing our campaign in Peking, the ancient capital of China, we took a train bound for Nanking. In 1927 when the Nationalist Party came into power the seat of government was transferred from Peking and Nanking became the new capital of China.

This trip usually takes thirty-six hours but all along the way we were delayed and by the time we reached Nanking we were eight hours late, but we found Rev. Mattie and Miss Roberta Naylor, both of the Friends Missionary Society, patiently waiting for us. After the greetings were over we managed to gather our numerous and sundry pieces of luggage and what a load we had. With the help of some coolies we managed to transfer our baggage to the ferry boat which took us across the river to the city. Then we hired two old-fashioned horse-drawn vehicles to convey us to our destination. These carriages reminded one of pre-motor car days in America when speed limits were unknown and people seemed to have plenty of time to travel in this slow manner. After an hour's jog we found ourselves at the gate of the Friends Mission compound and soon we were comfortably settled around the table enjoying the good meal prepared for us by Mrs. Mattie.

The next morning we left the compound to view some of the sights of the city. We saw the remains of many fine buildings which were totally destroyed during the anti-foreign uprising in 1927 when all the foreigners were forced to flee the city and made their escape by the aid of several warships which were stationed in the harbor. A few foreigners were killed during this uprising.

We were greatly disappointed in the city of Nanking. After visiting Peking, a city bristling with things of interest and Oriental beauty, we found Nanking a very dull and uninteresting capital void of beauty and historical interest. We saw the tombs of the Ming Dynasty rulers and the new tomb of former President Sun Yat Sun who is worshipped in China by millions who consider him well-nigh a god. Outside of these two things we saw nothing outstanding or impressive about this city upon which the eyes of the world have been focused for the past few years.

Our schedule only permitted us to stop here for three days. The afternoon and evening services were held in the comely and attractive chapel of the Friends Mission which is located just a little ways from their compound. The pastor of this church is Chinese and is doing good work as the shepherd of this flock. One afternoon we had a young people's rally for the students of the various schools in the city. The church was well filled with a splendid group of keen and interested young people eager to hear the gospel. They were disappointed, as were we, that we could not stay for several days longer. The evening meetings were well attended and proved times of real blessing and victory.

We held two morning services, one at the Bible Training School for women, and the other at the Union Theological Seminary. In both of these schools young people are being trained to go out to be preachers and workers in the kingdom. We appreciated the opportunity of bringing messages to these two groups.

The Friends Mission now has seven missionaries on the field in China, and also have a group working in India whom we hope to visit while there. They are supported by the Ohio Yearly Conference of the Friends Church at home. They stand for the whole Bible and an evangelistic program. They preach holiness and God is prospering their work. We praise God for the privilege of meeting this Spirit-filled group of laborers, and pray God may continually pour out his Spirit upon their work.

After leaving Nanking we went to Shanghai, where we remained for a few days and then took a ship for South China. Ma Cao is our next stopping point. God has given us a gracious time in China and we praise him for answering your prayers.

Yours in His Service,
Asbury College Foreign Missionary Team.

COVINGTON, VIRGINIA.

We have just closed a revival near Covington, Va., with Rev. R. L. Reiter, pastor. The meeting began with small crowds but increased in numbers and interest as we continued. On account of the heavy snow fall the writer did not get to the meeting on time so it was shorter than we anticipated. However God was with us in conviction on the people which resulted in the conversion and reclamation of many. The break came when several boys and girls knelt at the altar, which caused the older people to be moved by God's spirit.

On the closing Sunday night of the meeting the house was crowded and people answered the call of the Lord as conviction seemed to move the entire congregation. The altar was filled with seekers and when some prayed through others came to take their place and then it kept up until many young men and women found God. There were between fifty and sixty knelt at the altar during the entire meeting and most all of them prayed through. We are grateful to the pastor for his co-operation, and thank our Christ for what was accomplished. Over twenty-three joined the church.
J. R. Parker.

PORTLAND, OREGON.

We have just closed one of the greatest revivals ever seen here in this city. We began ten weeks ago in a prayer meeting in the home of Mr. Jack Nagel, with seven persons present and continued for six weeks. After the third week of cottage prayer meetings we had to go to different churches to accommodate the crowds. The last week there were over three hundred at prayer meeting. Such praying as scarcely one ever hears—Germans, Norwegians, Swedes and English; and then we began Feb. 22 in Central Methodist Church. Much opposition was also with us, especially among many pastors, but as God was with us we were in the majority.

I have never seen people so hungry for the old truth as they were. The church was practically filled every night and on Sundays turned away. A gambler came the first night and was converted, and a man who has been a drunkard was also saved the first night he came. One of Portland's foremost educators was at the altar, and also a doctor of divinity. Such singing I have never heard, until the whole world seemed in tune with heaven. The altar was crowded for three solid weeks—about six hundred as near as we could figure. I have seen many revivals but this eclipses any I have ever seen. Whole families were saved from Presbyterian churches, Congregational, Lutheran, Methodist and Norwegians and all others, and when Jesus saved them they all acted about the same way.

The churches are in a pitiable condition spiritually—no Christ, no life; nothing but pageants and plays and many other things that do not belong to the church of Jesus.

The singing was in both English and German. They made the welkin ring. We had as singers—soloists, Mr. Fred Becker, a baritone of Centenary Wilbur M. E. Church, and also Miss Barbara Jane Thorne, the young lady who won the State prize in Atwater Kent Audition. Barbara was a great blessing and she also received a great experience during the meeting. While we had two pianists, Mrs. Ida Ford Chaney, wife of the late Will Chaney, was the leading pianist and she certainly knows how to play the gospel and is fine as accompanist, also in helping those seeking Christ. The writer was song leader and preacher, and had full charge of the ten weeks' work—six of prayer and four of revivals.

I agree with the letter received from Dr. Morrison given as a statement by a presiding elder in the South that the ministry is practically backslidden, but thanks be to God for a few men who have the fire and also a deep concern for the lost. Will mention a letter brought to me, or rather written to me from a pastor in a Methodist Church in Illinois, saying he did not know where he was, had lost Christ out of his life through modernistic teaching and ungodly church programs, and asking for prayer that he might get back to Christ again. No doubt church play has practically killed it, and the whole world frowns on those things and know they should not be. We thank God that he is still on the throne and Jesus can save and sanctify as ever he could.

Oh! to hear the crowd at this revival testify was marvelous, and scores of young people were filled with the Spirit. Tears of joy mingled with shouts of praise, and agonizing groans of seekers were music to some of us who know God. It takes lots of grace and grit to dig up sin that folk will know they are sinners and then to have a Christ big enough to save them.

We are holding a night of praise and prayer each week since the closing, and as last night was the set time, we had hundreds at that service. God will have a few who love and believe the truth. We are indebted also to the faithful service of many others, especially to Mrs. John Hinkle and Miss Kate Yost, who were untiring in their efforts to bring many to the church and to Christ. Pray for us.

A GRACIOUS REVIVAL AT WESSINGTON SPRINGS, SOUTH DAKOTA.

Our revival meetings came to a glorious and triumphant close on Palm Sunday. For two weeks good crowds attended the evening services and the large auditorium was filled on Sundays. It was a time of great blessing to the entire church and community. Many blessed seasons of prayer and reconnection were had about the mercy seat, and the spiritual life of our church was deepened and enriched. Numbers of penitents came forward in response to the invitations and bowed at the altar confessing their sins and finding forgiveness and pardon in Christ, and accepting him as their personal Saviour. Others came seeking their Pentecost, and tarried in prayer and consecration until the blessed Comforter, the Holy Spirit, came in to abide. There were 42 conversions and 9 sanctifications.

The closing Sunday was a great and glorious day. The first thirty minutes of the morning worship was turned into an old-fashioned love feast. Numbers were on their feet at once, awaiting their opportunity to witness for Christ, and tell of his love for them. At the close of the love feast the pastor presented the claims of World Service, and took up an offering. Though we are in the midst of hard times, and our folks have just raised $2,700.00 for a new heating plant for our church, they responded magnanimously, and in about twenty minutes he had raised an offering which amounted to $750.00.

Dr. J. S. Hoagland, our District Superintendent, was our evangelist. Without doubt Dr. Hoagland is one of the outstanding Christian leaders of our state. He is a man of ripened experience and chaste thought. It was a great blessing to this writer to be associated with him in these meetings. He is a great preacher with a pleasing personality and attractive mannerisms. He brings a spiritual message and delivers it with such unction, fervor and power that he grips his audience and carries them with him. He is a man of faith and spends no time injecting question marks into the minds of his hearers, but in a most interesting and forceful way he proclaims the great truths of our Holy Christianity which have made it the redeeming "Power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth," through the centuries. The glorious certitudes of our faith were made so very plain and real by his messages. Truly his ministry among us gave to all new vision and inspiration, and we go forth with greater zeal and more earnest endeavor to carry on the work of the Kingdom.

As a result of the meetings 28 persons were received into the membership of our church on Easter Sunday.

HAMBURG, ILLINOIS.

Following are the results of a gracious revival meeting recently held in the Methodist Episcopal Church in Hamburg, Calhoun Co., Illinois: the membership helped to higher spiritual life, fifty-three converted and reclaimed, fifty-one accessions to the church on Easter Sunday with more to follow, record attendance of one hundred forty at Sunday school on Easter, about ninety at Easter Sunrise Prayer and Praise and Baptismal Service, fifteen children dedicated to the Lord in Christian baptism, twenty-seven adults baptized, as many as sixty at mid-week prayer meeting in church and fourteen to twenty-one in attendance at cottage prayer meetings in homes of new converts. The evangelist who conducted the revival was Rev. J. B. Kendall, of Lexington, Ky., who preached powerful, convincing sermons, drew the crowds, and stirred the unconverted to repentance. Fifteen men from this charge attended a Methodist Men's meeting at Alton, Ill., recently, one of the largest delegations of any church in the East St. Louis District. An impressive Easter program was presented by the children of the Sunday school who had been trained by the very efficient superintendent of this growing Sunday school, Mrs. Louise Varner, who is an expert at her task. Rev. Earl W. Barrett is the happy and beloved pastor of this spiritually-revived church.

ECHOES OF A SYCHAR LOVE FEAST.

What is more thrilling, or more inspirational than a Spirit-filled testimony meeting? The notes of triumph and victory over sin, Satan, and temptation spur us on to attain greater things in the realm of the Christian life. At Sychar the saints of God meet, being bound together in the unity of Christian love, and exchange their personal experience in Christ. They give their testimonies of praise and honor to God for the work that has been wrought in them by the grace of God.

It is customary at Sychar to hold every morning at 8:30 what is known as the People's Meeting, which is just what it says. The service is given over to the people for a time of joyful praise and testimony. It is a spiritual feast and blessing to hear others praise God for victory over similar circumstances through which one has gone.

Sunday morning at this same hour is held the Love Feast; people from all over the nation and from various parts of the foreign fields gather together to witness for Christ. The Love Feast is a time when one makes good use of "standing grace;" for often times persons have stood for the entire hour and have not been able to give their note of praise.

Here are a few of the testimonies that were given in the service last year.

"I love the Lord and he loves me. My lamp is trimmed and burning."

"He cleanses me from all sin; I am safe in his care."

"Just a blank number, but God saved me; then he sanctified. I want to praise him; I could talk all day about him. Hallelujah! Hallelujah!"

"I know this one thing—He has accepted me and I am an heir to mansions on high."

"I praise God that I'm on Sychar grounds, but most of all that I am on good terms with God."

"A year of great testing but God has kept me."

"Praise God for Sychar, but I'm so glad the Comforter goes home with me."

"God called me to holiness; I threw all the devil's traps overboard."

"I do praise the Lord, he abides within, he saves and sanctifies."

These are typical of all and express the true spirit of Christ and the spirit of the camp. Many of The Herald readers know Sychar and are looking forward to next August for the period of spiritual refreshing at this place that has been set aside and consecrated solely for the purpose of the work of the Lord.

Prepare to come and live on heavenly manna, milk and honey at this camp.

people, praying for those who nailed him there, catching the repenting, trusting thief away from the gates of Hell to the glories of paradise. Shall we claim that this Christ has saved us and be indifferent to the sending of his message to the lost? God forbid. Let each one of us render some service in this good work, according to our #### ABILITY.

Remember that in speaking of ability we are thinking of faith, and love, and prayer, and earnest desire to help forward the most important work in the world. There is a holy zeal that counts tremendously in the carrying forward of the gospel and the saving of the lost. If we have within us the essentials above mentioned of course we are willing to make some sacrifice, if sacrifice is necessary, in order to financially assist in this important task of spreading a full gospel.

The Theological Seminary is now in existence and doing splendid work. It has a fine building, an excellent faculty, and a splendid student body, but it has almost no financial foundation. It is almost impossible to build up and run a Theological Seminary without financial assistance for the students. We are praying to God to touch the hearts of his sanctified people to supply the means to make of this Seminary a great school with sufficient income for its entire support and enlargement. It is the only Seminary of its kind in the world. Every teacher on the faculty is well equipped from an educational standpoint, and stands out clearly on the Wesleyan doctrine of regeneration, the witness of the Spirit, entire sanctification and world-wide evangelism. They lay tremendous emphasis upon soul-winning. They believe that the great work of the ministry is to bring lost people to the Lord Jesus Christ. There is not a modernistic note in this Theological School. They stand for the Bible. They are trustworthy. These men are willing to sacrifice; they work for very reasonable financial remuneration, and are glad to do so.

You have already read our proposition. It is very simple, but if the people will respond to it it will make large things for God and humanity possible. Look at the bottom of page 9, place on the slip the amount you are willing to give to the Lord each year, for five years, and forward to my wife, Mrs. H. C. Morrison, Louisville, Ky. Remember I receive no salary as president of this Seminary, and wife receives not one copper for her book-keeping and correspondence, and everything you give goes direct to the purpose for which it is given. Please let us hear from you before May 20.

Faithfully your brother,
H. C. MORRISON.

Rev. C. M. Humphrey.

It has not been a lack of love and high esteem of our departed Brother C. M. Humphrey that has delayed my writing these lines of appreciation of that excellent Christian man. Since Brother Humphrey's ascension I have been for many weeks, a sick man, much in travel and pressed with many duties; but aside from these things I am never in a hurry to write of my departed friends. I am by no means done with a good man whom I have known intimately and loved as a brother in Christ, when he goes up to be with the Master. I love to keep him in my thought and affection, and hesitate to write of him as dead. I do not think of Brother Humphrey as dead, but as having moved out of his earthly temple into his heavenly eternal home. If memory serves me rightly, he was some twelve years my senior, making him about 86 years of age when he went to be with his Lord.

Brother Humphrey was a member of the Kentucky Conference when I joined that body, and for many years the most intimate friendship existed between us. We were in close fellowship when he was literally groaning after perfect love. It was a most sacred and serious matter with him when, at the bar of the conference, he said he "expected to be made perfect in love in this life, and that he was groaning after it." The humility, earnestness and persistency with which he sought to be cleansed from all sin and filled with perfect love was most interesting. It was a rebuke to those who had taken the same solemn vows and had treated them with indifference.

When the blessing of entire sanctification came to him he treasured it as the crown jewel of Christian experience. He was a faithful witness to the cleansing power of Jesus blood; never loud, but always clear and definite. There was nothing in the least boastful about him, but one of the most courageous, most humble men I have ever known. He was steadfast in a time of ridicule and, some of us thought persecution, but I never heard a word of complaint from his lips. He was a man in whom patience had its perfect work, and a faithful preacher of full salvation in Christ, and a glad witness, both in testimony and life.

Brother Humphrey's superannuated days were spent in Wilmore. He thoroughly enjoyed the association of the church, the college, and camp meeting. His presence, prayers and brotherly love were a great comfort and source of strength to me. He was a cheerful man, but never in the least disposed to be frivolous. He was delightful company, sober in thought, pure in speech and wise in counsel. He stood faithfully for Asbury College in the days of its early struggles for existence.

The evening of his life was extended, calm and beautiful. He ripened graciously; there was nothing sour about him. He reared a fine family of children, one of whom is a minister, one a physician, and a daughter who is the wife of a faithful and beloved Methodist preacher. The last months of his illness were spent in the home of his son-in-law, Rev. F. B. Jones, pastor of the Methodist Church in Carlisle, Ky. He was sick for a few weeks in that place, then taken to the Good Samaritan Hospital, Lexington, Ky., where he passed away in peace to be with his Lord and Master. I cannot recall in all my wide acquaintance, a man of sweeter, more kindly spirit, than Rev. C. M. Humphrey. Blessed be his memory.

H. C. MORRISON.

A GOOD SUGGESTION.

received a letter, recently, from the pastor of one of the smaller holiness churches, in which he suggested the propriety of an annual meeting of committees appointed by the various churches that stand for the Wesleyan interpretation of the Holy Scriptures.

I had been thinking of writing something and this brother's letter stimulated my writing something on the subject. It would be a fine thing to cultivate the very best fraternity among the churches that are clear and pronounced on the Wesleyan interpretation of the word of God.

Let us say, for instance, that the churches to which I refer believe, without hesitation, in the inspiration of the Holy Scriptures, in the fall and natural sinfulness of the human race, the virgin birth and Godhead of the Lord Jesus, his life among men, the miracles he performed, which were a part of the credentials of his Deity, his sacrificial death and the fulness of the atonement he made for mankind.

They believe, without hesitation, in the new birth, the remains of the carnal nature in the regenerated, its removal by a sanctifying baptism with the Holy Spirit, growth in grace, holy living, devoted service, the possibility of apostasy, the necessity of perfect love, the coming of a great day of judgment, heaven for the holy, and hell for the sinner.

It may be that some of the brethren especially referred to, would state these fundamental beliefs in better form, but I am not thinking, now, of the form, but a concrete statement of the underlying facts of our Christian faith. I might have emphasized along with the rest, the witness of the Holy Spirit.

These are the fundamental truths upon which the Nazarene Church is built. If I am not misinformed, the Wesleyan Methodists hold tenaciously to all of these truths. I am quite sure a very large percent of the United Brethren hold strongly to these essential doctrines, as does the Evangelical Church. I think this is true of the Protestant Methodist, and is eminently true of the Free Methodist and the Pilgrim Church. There is a small denomination of excellent people known as the "Church of God," which are in no way connected with tongues movement, but seem to be thoroughly Wesleyan and very consistent and devout people. In this enumeration I may have left out some other denominations that might properly be mentioned.

What is suggested is, that a group of select men from these various denominations meet at some convenient center once each year for the cultivation of the spirit of fraternity and brotherly love, looking forward to the possibility of union.

If there are any modernists connected with these denominations they can find room, and will be welcomed into church organizations well saturated with the modernistic spirit. A union of the churches mentioned, we think, would bring together at least five or six hundred thousand of very devout, zealous people who are holding tenaciously to the evangelical teachings of the Holy Scriptures, and are seeking to bring lost men to Christ, and saved men into the deepest experiences of the love of God.

If such a union should take place, there is no doubt that there would be a large reinforcement of such an organization from some other churches burdened with modernism and anti-evangelism. It is worth thinking about, and might become a subject of prayer.

We can conceive of some very devout men and women who, unfortunately, have become obsessed with a sort of sectarian righteousness.

ness, who would not be friendly to any gathering of representatives looking to the possibility of such union. It is probable, however, that a fresh touch of the holy fire might bring them into perfect harmony with such movement. It would be fortunate, from a human viewpoint, if these consecrated people, zealous of good works, could be united in these perilous times, in this distress of nations and were able to bring tremendous evangelistic contact against the skepticism and wickedness of our age. If the brethren mentioned were not in sympathy with such movement, I trust they will have no ill feeling toward an old brother who loves them all, and wishes them Godspeed in their efforts to save the lost.

H. C. MORRISON.

They Keep Coming Along.

Mrs. Eddy comes along teaching the people that there is no sickness and no sin. Millions follow after her, sicken and die in their sins.

Mr. Russell comes along teaching the people there is no hell. Millions follow him, die in their sins, and go out into that awful place that Jesus describes for the impenitent wicked who fail to come to him for salvation.

The Pope comes along, climbs on to an emperor's throne, claims to speak with the infallible voice of God. Millions follow him, die in their sins, go to purgatory, and their friends pay out millions of dollars to get the priests to pray them out into a state of soul rest and peace.

Einstein comes along, claims to know so much that no one is intellectual enough for him to explain what he knows. Millions follow him. He does not believe in the Bible, the God of the Bible, the Christ of the Bible, or the Church of God.

In five years from now some braying ass of a man can come out of Europe, China, India, or Borneo claiming that Einstein is wrong in everything that he believed and taught, and millions will follow him.

Raskob comes along dripping wet in every pore, pouring out his tens of thousands of money to bring the saloon back to curse the nation, to take its toll of money and health and bread from its laboring poor, to overthrow prohibition and place the liquor demon back upon the throne to rule with its rod of iron. The political life of the nation, and millions of Protestants in the south, who think they are dry, and opposed to the liquor traffic, kotow and lick the salt out of his hand, and if some patriotic Christian man stands up and rebels against his dictation, he is drawn and quartered and dragged about the nation. And thus the modern Nero picks the political banjo, while the nation smokes with burning crime, and prepares to burst into a flame of riot and blood.

In due time the Man of Sin will come along and the same multitudes running after all these false teachers, will run after, obey, and worship him.

When men have no God to worship, cast the Bible and the Christ of the Bible away from them, they are ready to run after almost any antichrist who appears upon the scene.

The years are passing. The end of the age will come. Christ will appear in his glory with the angels and the saints, and then these millions who have been running after false teachers will cry, but cry in vain, for the rocks and the mountains to fall on them and hide them from the face of the Christ they have crucified through the centuries, and before whom they must now appear in judgment.

Let the people of the Lord who know the Christ and the power of his salvation, remember that Jesus has said, "He that endureth unto the end shall be saved."

H. C. MORRISON.

If the church could afford to send some minister's dignity to the hospital, the work might pick up.

TRUE SUCCESS.

MRS. H. C. MORRISON.

EVERYONE who has anything worth while in him, desires to achieve success. There are different ideas, however, of what constitutes true success. As some one said, "A great part of our self-education depends on our ideals—we do not reach them, but they help to mould us."

True success is not a splendid career in the eyes of the world, although most every one is content with this achievement. There are those who have become the best in their profession or line of work, whose hearts are at variance with the law of God, and whose moral life has counted for nothing among their fellowbeings. There are those who have become world-known, perhaps for their brilliant thought, or genius in mechanics, invention or financial success, but their life, so to speak, ends with their achievement, and when they leave this world they go out into eternity a pauper—a lost soul!

The success which counts, counts for this world and that which is to come, is being and doing what God sent us here to be and do. When we fail to get into the channel of God's ordering, we are out of the way of true and abiding success. There are those whom we consider failures from a worldly standpoint, but when the final reckoning comes their rewards will far exceed that of many who were counted a success in this life. Indeed, the humblest follower of the Lord Jesus who, through temptations and trials has overcome the tempter and made a safe landing on the shores of sweet deliverance, is incomparably more of a success than the man whose millions are left behind to curse his posterity, while his neglected soul cries for the drop of water that never comes.

It would be a great thing if each of us could realize that even our little life is planned of God, and if we would fit into that plan how much better it would be for us and all concerned. Our catechism says that we were created to "glorify God," and if we miss the purpose for which we were created, we have deliberately thwarted God's plan and purpose for our lives, and we shall inevitably fail of that which is highest and best in this life, and that which is to come.

We have been studying the wonderful life of St. Paul, who was Saul before he got into the right channel of activity. Imagine what would have been the outcome of his life had he not recognized in that voice which came to him on the Damascus road, the voice of God, and at once surrendered to the Man of Galilee, and asked for orders for his life. We have seen what it has meant to him, and to the world, that he met the defeat of his own plans that day, and fell into the divine order.

We may not have the capacity to become what Saul of Tarsus became, but we may be in the channel of God's will just as truly as was Paul, and our lives may have the smile of God upon them, though in some hidden way that the world may never know. The patient, godly mothers who have trained their children for usefulness in the kingdom of God will, when the rewards are given, receive the "Well done," as truly as the sons or daughters who have wrought more publicly in world affairs.

Believing that a Divinely-called, wholly-sanctified, well-equipped, Spirit-filled ministry is one of the greatest needs of our times, and for all time to come, I am glad to make a donation for the upbuilding of the Asbury Theological Seminary at Wilmore, Ky.

For this great work, I promise to give $..... per year for five years, first installment due September 1, 1931. I will join all who are helping in this good work in prayer for the blessing of the Lord to rest upon it.

Some Slogans for Wet Campaigners.

The essential selfishness of the people at work to bring back the liquor trade is reflected in the following slogans proposed in a letter to a local paper in this city:

"Give me liberty and give him death.

"Liberty benighting the world.

"A bar in every home.

"Help the poor get poorer.

"Millions for repeal, not one cent for enforcement.

"More liquor means safer highways.

"The tax on beer would help the poor little rich corporations.

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS

ANGELA'S HAPPY DAY.

Angela sat on the doorstep holding her baby sister. Poor little Maria fretted and cried, but the mother could not stop her work to care for her just then. She sat by one little window in the one room upstairs in the rickety old house where the family lived. Beside her was a great pile of shirts from a factory, and she was sewing on buttons, buttons, buttons, for which she would receive a small sum of money. Then she could buy some milk and some bread, and little Maria would not cry, and Angela would not look so thin and white.

They had thought that in America they would have a happy home and plenty of work as soon as they came, but they had come across the ocean, away from their old home, only to find that in the strange new land it was not so easy to live, after all.

Angela huddled up close to the open front door and wished sadly that they had never come to America. The narrow street was full of ragged children and rumbling trucks and noise and dust.

Presently she noticed the children stopping their noisy play to crowd around a pleasant-faced woman who seemed to know them all. She came down the street, and when she reached Angela she said, "Good-morning." Angela knew that it was a friendly greeting, but she could not speak the language of America, so she answered in Italian, the language of her country. To her surprise the woman replied to her in Italian, and in a few minutes she knew all about the father who was out of work. "Wait here until I come back," she said, and she hurried away.

Soon she was back with a basket in which there were bread and milk and canned soup and other things to make a dinner quickly. "Take them to your mother," she said, and then she went away.

"That was the missionary lady," said their neighbor in the next room. "She teaches in the little mission church in the next street, and she is always helping some one. She will come back."

Before the tired father reached the door, he smelled the dinner. How hungry they all were, and how they ate and ate! Late in the afternoon the missionary lady did come back to tell the father where he could get some work, and to invite them all to the friendly little church.

"This is a happy day," said Angela. "America is a fine country, after all," said her father.—The Sun Beam.

Dear Aunt Bettie: As it has been some time since I have visited the Cousins' Page, I hope you will welcome me again. I am glad to have several correspondents from among the cousins, but sorry that some who began to write to me have stopped. God is blessing us in the work this cool season and we have had some good conventions in our tent and expect to have at least three more before the hot weather comes on in April. We expect to have Bro. Shelhamer and son with us in our convention in Girga in March. Last winter we had the great privilege of hearing Dr. Ridout, as he was in a convention in Sohag. We were very happy to have him and his wife in our home part of the time. Our three day schools in Sohag, Girga, and Kom Baddar are all doing well. We have one hundred children in our school here in Sohag this year. Six of them are Moslems, among whom is a very black little Sudanese girl. She is very bright and has learned several Bible verses and English Christian songs, as well as learning to read and write. The other Moslem children are all doing well too, as well as most of the Coptic children. They rendered a Christian program on Christmas evening and all spoke and sang very well. The best thing was the recitation by thirty children of several verses in Matt. 1 and 2, Luke 1 and 2, etc. The mothers enjoyed the program much. We had it for women only. On Thanksgiving evening we had a temperance program for men and women both. A large crowd was present and enjoyed the program much. Our school children and several boys from other schools took part. Our Sunday schools are very well attended and are a great blessing. Some one in South Dakota sent me some charts last spring by parcel post, and as they wanted 85 cents custom, and I was out of money, to my great sorrow, I had to have them returned to the sender. I hope that person will forgive me. May God bless you all much. Remember us and this needy land in much prayer.

Your sister in Jesus,
Beulah Bassett.
Sohag, Upper Egypt.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a Tennessee girl join your happy band of boys and girls? This is my first letter to The Herald. I am fourteen years of age and am in the ninth grade of Big Rock High School. I go to Sunday school at the M. E. Church, South, most every Sunday. We have an Epworth League every Sunday night. I am a member of it. I will close with a riddle. What is it that is black and white and red all over? (A newspaper). If anyone wishes to write to me my address is Ova B. Walker, Big Rock, Tenn., Rt. 1.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you please let a little Michigan girl join the happy band of boys and girls? I have a father and mother and one brother. I am ten years old and in the fifth grade, and in the Sunbeam Class in Sunday school. Mother takes The Herald. I like to read page ten. Rev. A. G. Kruschmitz is our pastor. I go to the Salem M. E. Church on the Mission Road. I like to go to Sunday school. Mother is my teacher. Who can guess my middle name? It begins with L and ends with Y; it has four letters in it. I love my Savior. I hope Mr. W. B. had a good chicken dinner so he won't get hungry so soon.

Lily Steghen.

Box 128, Rt. 1, Marine City, Mich.

Dear Aunt Bettie: May I join your happy band of boys and girls? I have written two letters before and they were in print. I thank you for printing them. Louriane Turner, you were right about the 119th Psalm. I go to school at Cross Roads, Ark. I am in the sixth grade. My teacher is Miss Lee Aarant. I am glad that so many of the cousins are Christians. I am a Christian and my desire is to do more for Jesus. I have two brothers. Mother and father take The Herald. My mother is the pastor of our church. I go to Discovery Chapel to church. My birthday is Feb. 16. Have I a twin?

Gwendolyn Rybolt.
Rt. 1, Box 43, Louann, Ark.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you have another Pennsylvania girl join your band of happy boys and girls? I am twenty years old, I am five feet, five inches tall. I enjoy reading The Herald. I usually read page ten first. It gives me much joy to read the letters from the Christian boys and girls from the different places. I hope to receive letters from the young people of my age. I will answer all the letters I receive.

Alma Yoder.
Rt. 2, Paxinos, Pa.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Please let me in your happy circle once more. I wrote to you just before Christmas. I asked the cousins to write, and I would try to answer all I received, but I got so many letters it was almost impossible to answer them all. We have had lots of trouble. Typhoid fever got in the family and took away one of our loved ones. I have had a very sore right hand and have been unable to write. I thank each and every one for their kindness and hope they will pardon me for not writing. I hope I get more letters this time than I did before. Cousins, I had a strange experience one day last fall while in a meeting. I stopped in a house out of a shower of rain and found out it was one of my old schoolmate's home.

I also found out that he nor his wife belonged to the church. I began to talk to them and try to tell them where they were wrong. Before the meeting was over both of them were baptized. I will always believe I had some influence over them, and I thank the Lord I did. I wish I could be a foreign missionary worker. I received a letter from Mrs. J. J. Davis in Africa. It sure is interesting. If I could go I would be a singer and do personal work. I would love it. I will be glad to get lots of letters from the cousins. Tell me some of your experiences in life.

Alvah E. Hopkins.
Rt. 2, Somerville, Tenn.

Dear Aunt Bettie: As this is my first letter I would like to see it in print. I am fifteen years of age. I have light brown hair, blue eyes and fair complexion. I go to the Holiness Church, and I am a Christian girl. I think The Herald is very interesting. I like to read page ten very much. We have almost a hundred in our Sunday school. My teacher is Mrs. Kamper. Our pastor is Rev. Floyd Williams. We like him very much. Most of the people who go to our Sunday school are Christians. As my letter is getting long I will close. I hope Mr. Waste Basket is out when this letter arrives.

Lennie McDaniel.
Box 335, Barboursville, W. Va.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Wonder if you remember me? I have visited your corner twice before and enjoyed all letters I received, and also tracts. I will appreciate and answer all who care to write. Have never seen anyone's letter who had the same. If you do please write and I'll answer. I am a Methodist, I go to Sunday school, church and Epworth League, also prayer meeting every week. I try to be a Christian and do as I think would please Jesus Christ our Savior every day. Please write, anyone who cares to correspond with a girl my age.

As this is my first letter to The Herald I would like to see it in print.

Margaret A. Horton.

If so, don't forget to write to me. I go to school and am in the fourth grade. I go to Sunday school. I hope Mr. W. B. is asleep for I would like to see this in print. I want all the little cousins to write to me. I will answer all letters I receive. Who can guess my middle name? It begins with D, ends with S, and has five letters in it.

Hazel D. Wilson.
Rt. 3, Box 113, Leitchfield, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I am a boy eleven years old, five feet, ten inches high. My middle name of five letters begins with L and ends with S—first word of my town. Who ever guesses it send for a picture. I belong to the M. E. Church and have a Bible I love dearly.

John L. Whitson.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I am a subscriber of The Pentecostal Herald and enjoy reading it very much. May God bless every writer that fills its pages from week to week. I have a little boy five years old named Robert Louis. I have been sick the most of my life. Please pray that I may get well, if it can be his will. My father is a Methodist (holiness) preacher. I am saved and sanctified. I find happiness, peace and joy in serving him.

I am waiting for that home above,
When I leave this world of sin and woe,
That I may with the angels be,
To shine with them throughout eternity.

As we journey on
To that home-land of love;
I want to gather close beside him,
With the others who are washed in the blood.

Though temptations around us gather,
We can know our sins are gone forever,
And be with him some day.

In our Father's home above,
Let us believe and rejoice evermore;
Looking to him all things to restore.

Why not be ready in service and prayer;
Joyfully meeting him in the air?

FALLEN ASLEEP

McCULLOUGH.

Friday evening, March 6, 1931, at 9 o'clock, William Thomas McCullough (better known as Willie) left us to be with Christ. He was twenty years old last April. He was indeed a good boy. He was converted at the age of 13 years under the ministry of Rev. H. H. McAfee, but was hindered in his life by the ghost of doubts and fears until he met Christ face to face and stood for things high and holy. He was Secretary of the Hickory Grove M. E. Sunday school at the time of his death.

He was left an orphan at the age of four years and lived with relatives until nine years before his death, he made his home with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Irwin McCullough, of Lee, Fla. He was married September 21, 1930, to Miss Vera Woodard, daughter of Rev. A. N. Woodard.

Willie was taken with pneumonia and suffered till the end came. On Feb. 18, his uncle, James McCullough, was taken with pneumonia and died March 1. Feb. 24, his father, John McCullough, was taken with the same, and died March 10. All was done that doctors, nurses and loving hands could do, but God said, "It is enough; come up higher."

The funeral services were conducted by his pastor, Rev. Paul S. Anderson. Weep not, friends and loved ones, for Willie. He's now sleeping in the arms of Jesus.

He leaves to mourn his going a wife, two sisters, Mrs. J. S. Collins, of Tampa, Fla., and Miss Ila McCullough, of Lee, Fla. Also a dear uncle and aunt with whom he made his home. His grave was covered with beautiful flowers.

He is gone but not forgotten,

Never will his memory fade.

Sweetest thoughts will ever linger

Round the grave where he was laid.

Mrs. W. I. McCullough.

SELBY.

Our dear mother, Louellen F. Selby, wife of J. B. Selby (deceased) passed peacefully to her reward after a brief illness of only a few days. Ere the gravity of her illness was realized by two of her daughters and sons-in-law she was gone to join her sainted husband and other loved ones.

She was the mother of nine children, six of whom survive her: W. L. (the writer) now of Oregon, R. C. of California, R. A. of Florida, Mary J. of Ohio, Della and Oma of near Marion, Indiana. The greater part of the time (eleven years) since her faithful companion so triumphantly passed to his reward, she lived alone in her little home which he had provided for her after moving from their dear old Kentucky home at Hillsboro, Ky. While both enjoyed the friendly hospitality of their newly acquired friends and neighbors, their hearts ever longed for their old friends and their old Kentucky home. Yet their longing for the home "over there" was always and ever the absorbing one. And now, their children and many friends who knew and loved them, know where to find them.

She attained the ripe old age of 79 years, 5 months and 19 days. In addition to her children, are her sons-in-law and daughters-in-law, her grandchildren and great-grandchildren, numerous other relatives and friends, who mourn their loss, while they rejoice in her gain.

We children keenly realize in the passing of our mother that our best friend is gone. Those near her shall miss her. Those of us in other states shall miss her letters and the visits which we frequently made her, one of which the two of us in the west were with delight looking forward to the coming summer; our visits were always occasions of much mutual joy and comfort.

She was a member of Wesleyan Methodist Church of Marion, Ind., and a devoted follower of Christ. Her devotion to her Saviour and her passion for reading her Bible and the choicest religious literature took much of the sting out of the loneliness of her lot; for she felt and knew she was not alone. We children well realized from her letters and all the more from her conversations that she was growing old beautifully, in all the Christian graces. For in her later years her love for her Lord and Saviour and her children became more and more a passion. Like passengers of a ship that had weathered many storms, she sensed that the point was near, and at times she seemed eager to reach it; for her faith assured her that the loved ones would be eagerly waiting and watching, and we know they were.

Funeral rites were conducted from Second Friends Church, South Marion, by her pastor Rev. A. C. Billhimer, and her earthly remains tenderly laid to rest 'neath many beautiful floral tributes beside her beloved company in the (L. O. O. F.) cemetery of Marion, Ind., to await the resurrection morn.

Good-bye, mother, we expect to meet you again, to part no more.

W. L. Selby.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

REV. O. G. MINGLEDORFF, D. D.

Lesson VI.—May 16, 1931.

Subject.—The Parable of the Pounds. Luke 19:11-26.

Golden Text.—It is required in stewards that a man be found faithful. 1 Cor. 4:2.

Time.—Last of March, A. D. 30.

Place.—Jericho.

Introduction.—Our lesson for today follows so closely upon the heels of that of last Sunday, that there is hardly room for an introduction. The Master was on his way to Jerusalem, and in passing through Jericho he had restored sight to the blinded eyes of Bartimaeus, and had saved Zacchaeus as he came down from the limbs of a sycamore tree. The feast of the passover was approaching; and, as he was going up to Jerusalem, the people thought he would re-establish the throne of David and drive out their Roman enemies. Excitement was running high, because the people were wild with expectation. At that juncture the Lord introduced the lesson of this parable. His purpose must have been twofold: (1) To quiet the agitation of the people by setting before them the spiritual nature of his kingdom; (2) To teach for all time to come the great lesson of stewardship. Picture to yourself the excited, murmuring throng, and then listen to the Master Teacher as he drives home the lesson of the hour.

Comments on the Lesson.

11. As they heard these things.—Turn back and read the text of last Sunday's lesson, especially the last verse. Doubtless the attention of the multitude had been fixed on those wonderful words: "For the Son of Man is come to seek and to save that which was lost"; and while their attention was thus riveted, Jesus gave them this mighty lesson which we study today. Luke brings out very clearly the thought expressed in the introduction as to why Jesus spoke this parable: "Because he was nigh to Jerusalem, and because they thought that the kingdom of God should immediately appear." That is, they thought he was going to establish an earthly kingdom.

12. Therefore.—This word marks the turning point in his teaching, his purpose being to call their attention from worldly things to heavenly things. It refers back to what follows the word because in the previous verse. A certain nobleman.—It is supposed that this refers especially to Archelaus who, after the death of his father Herod, went to Rome for the very purpose expressed in this parable. The lesson, however, is in the fact that Jesus himself was to leave the earth for a time, after which he would return to rule over men, heaven being the far country referred to. The word kingdom is sometimes used in the Bible with reference to the Church and salvation; but here it seems to be used in a limited sense as referring to the reign of Christ on earth following his return.

13. His ten servants.—These servants represent those who profess to follow Jesus Christ. I do not suppose that the number ten carries any special significance as applied either to the servants or the pounds. Occupy till I Come.—Go into business with the capital I am entrusting to you. Even from a worldly standpoint God expects men to be "diligent in business." But the real lesson here is diligence in spiritual matters. No lazy, slothful person can be a genuine follower of Jesus Christ.

14. His citizens hated him.—That was true of Archelaus; and it is no less true of Jesus Christ. Ungodly men do not like him; nor do they wish him to rule over them. His own purity is a constant rebuke to the wicked; and the purity demanded by his government is galling to them. Were it possible, the incorrigibly wicked would drive from the earth every trace of Christianity. They do not want it themselves; nor do they want others to have it.

15. When he was returned, having received the kingdom.—Our Lord is surely coming back to earth to reckon with us. That is taught in this lesson, no less than in many other places in the Bible. Money.—Our Lord uses this word in a broad figurative sense. It seems to represent opportunity for work in his service, with all that is attached thereto. Trading is also used in the broad sense of service. The entire matter of human responsibility is locked up in this verse of Scripture.

16. Thy pound hath gained ten pounds.—Matthew in his twenty-fifth chapter gives a parable very similar to this one, the first servant having received five talents, the second two, and the third one. That may be an utterly different parable, or it may be a different version of the one in the lesson of today. But the great truth taught in both of them is that of stewardship. This first man had been an honest and faithful steward in handling his master's money; and our Lord uses him as an example for Christians to follow after in spiritual things.

17. Well, thou good servant.—Nothing will create greater joy in the soul in meeting Jesus than this sort of plaudit, unless it be the fact of salvation itself. We note that future rewards will be according to the faithfulness of one's service while on earth: "Because thou hast been faithful in a very little, have thou authority over ten cities." Whether this is to be taken figuratively or literally, I know not; but the lesson is clear: God will reward his servants, not for, but according to service rendered; nor will there be anything small about the reward. The same lesson will apply to the punishment of the wicked, some will be beaten with few stripes and some with many. Verses 18 and 19 need no comment. All that the second servant could manage had been committed to his trust; and his judgment was parallel to that of the first servant.

20. Lord, behold, here is thy pound, which I have kept laid up in a napkin.—There are some fearful lessons locked up in this verse. This man is not accused of having done a wicked thing. He had simply done nothing at all with life's opportunities. What multitudes are following in his steps; but the Book says: "Every branch in me that beareth not fruit he taketh away." Poor man, he lost not only his reward, but his soul. There is no place in God's Church for a sluggard.

31. I feared thee.—There was nothing wrong about that; for a true servant should have a reverential fear of his master. But the reason for this man's was upon a wrong basis, if it could be termed fear at all. Note how he accuses his master of being austere and even dishonest. But his rashness bred trouble for him.

22. Out of thine own mouth will I judge thee.—I have no sort of doubt that this scene is being repeated over and over again among men today. There are not a few who are doing nothing to advance the kingdom of God, but are wasting time accusing God of being a hard Master. Not long ago a preacher told me that he did not keep God's commandments, that nobody could obey them because they were too hard to be kept. Some tell us that no one can keep them. But the Bible says: "He that saith, I know him, and keepeth not his commandments, is a liar, and the truth is not in him."

23. Here the master proceeds to pass judgment upon his worthless servant. After repeating in the foregoing verse the mean things the servant had said about him, he plies a burning question: "Wherefore then gavest not thou my money into the bank?" If you were too lazy to do anything with what I put into your hands, why did you not turn it over to some one who would do something? That was severe condemnation; but the master thought he had a right upon his return to receive not only the pound committed to his servant, but usury, interest, in addition thereto. And he proceeds to condemn the servant for his worthlessness.

24. Take from him the pound, and give it to him that hath ten pounds.—I doubt not that many who were once called of God to preach the Gospel, have had their call taken away because they did nothing. Upon others who were faithful God has conferred double honor by increasing both talent and opportunity. The lesson may well apply to all Christians. What are you doing for your Lord with the talent committed to your trust. If you think my comment strange, just read the next verse. Those servants who were commanded to take the pound from the worthless servant and give it to the faithful one, were astonished at the master's command. It may not suit our notions, but it is our Lord's way of doing things. Look out for your pound. You may lose it.

26. A close study of this verse will explain many things that come before us in our study of men and women. It is a revelation of God's manner of dealing with his servants. Many have nothing because they do nothing.

FROM THE NATIONAL W. C. T. U.

American wets, prone to blame prison riots on prohibition, advise us to "look at England" where there is neither prohibition nor prison unrest.

But an English prison expert who has been here for several weeks, visiting seventy American prisons, does not find that prohibition has anything to do with our prison riots. Dr. Alexander Patterson, Commissioner of Prisons for England and Wales, says American prison unrest is due to these three things: long sentences, overcrowding, and uncertainty of parole. Prohibition is not among his reasons.

As for overcrowding, it has already been demonstrated that a third of the state penitentiaries hold fewer inmates than they can accommodate; other penitentiaries are overcrowded

The English expert says there is no basis of comparison between crime here and abroad. In foreign countries, he says, a crime is not counted till it comes to trial; here it is reported to swell the crime rate as soon as an arrest is made or a complaint made to the police.

C. D. Arms: "The Woodland Interdenominational Holiness Association held its fifth All-Day Holiness Meeting at Redfield, S. D., April 11, Rev. R. J. Eling, pastor of the Wesleyan Methodist Church of Redfield, acting as host. These meetings are proving to be very helpful in the promotion of holiness, as all who can and are interested, of all denominations, from the surrounding country are attending, some driving eighty miles or more to attend. It is a great get-together holiness meeting, which is owned and blessed of the Lord in the conversion and entire sanctification of souls. The order of the meeting was as follows: Devotional services led by Rev. R. J.

Eling; Testimony meeting, interspersed with special gospel songs, led by Mrs. C. D. Arms; a stirring missionary message by Rev. Jas. R. Bishop, returned missionary of China under the National Holiness Association; basket dinner together; another testimony service; business meeting conducted by Roy Cox, of Carpenter; a helpful sermon by Rev. W. M. Redfield, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Esmond. A blessed spirit prevailed throughout the day, climaxed by ten souls praying through at the altar."

CHICAGO CENTRAL DISTRICT—Home Mission and Tent Evangelism.

We are now getting ready to put on another aggressive Home Missionary campaign in Illinois, Wisconsin and Chicago, among the eleven million souls in this great territory. There are literally hundreds of cities and towns where they need soul-saving institutions and holiness as preached by John Wesley.

As soon as the weather permits, we will open up campaigns under tents using possibly twenty tents at one time. As in former years our procedure will be to go into a town, secure a lot, get a place for the people to stay, equip the tent, start into preaching the Gospel, and call seekers and if sufficient people are secured we will organize them into a Church of the Nazarene, provide a place of worship, secure a pastor, organize a Sunday school and begin to press the battle for God and a lost world.

It is our humble opinion that the world was never so hungry for Jesus Christ as it is today. Also it is our opinion that the country is not Gospel hardened. If we will go out prayerfully and lovingly preach the plain, simple gospel of the Bible, backed up with a spirit of prayer, we are going to have a hearing and we are going to get some place.

Here are some of the cities in Illinois we hope to enter this summer: Cairo, Harrisburg, Lawrenceville, Centralia, Alton, Litchfield, Hillsboro, Mattoon, Charleston, Pittsfield, Rushville, Monmouth, Kankakee, Princeton, Dixon, DeKalb, Aurora, and many small places. In Wisconsin we hope to enter some of the following cities: Sheboygan, Kenosha, Stevens Point, Wausau, Chippewa Falls, and many smaller places.

Any one interested in starting a church of the Nazarene or having a good tent meeting in their community in Illinois, Wisconsin or Chicago, please address me Danville, Illinois, General Delivery.

E. O. Chalfant, Dist. Supt.

Chicago Central Dist. Church of the Nazarene.

A BOOK FOR THE Mother's Day Season

MOTHERS OF FAMOUS MEN

by Archer Wallace

The quiet but powerful influence of a mother is the acknowledged source of the success of many great men. Here we have true and intimate stories of the working of this power—stories which describe beautiful relationships, recall many happy incidents, and show the wisdom as well as the affection of real motherhood. The range of the book runs from the delicate, sensitive mother of Goethe to the slave-mother of Booker T. Washington. Not only will the book give boys a new appreciation of life and success; it will grip the attention of readers of all ages. Among the sixteen mothers in the books are those of Augustine, Wesley, Washington, Edward VII, Goethe, Benjamin West, John Quincy Adams, Lincoln, Lord Haldane, Sir James Barrie, and Booker T. Washington.

The Ever Open Door

by GEORGE H. MORRISON.

The last book from the pen of this gifted author and preacher. A series of sixty-two addresses. Geo. H. Morrison is well known for his freshness both in thought and ex-pression.

A few of the subjects treated are "The Illusions of Life," "The Sur-prises of God," "When Everyone Is Against Us," "What To Do With Our Cares," "The Cry For Com-panionship."

Perhaps one reason for the fasci-nation of this book is the unusual texts that the author uses for his subjects. They are so different and yet so appropriate. The reader continually finds his mind follow-ing new trails.

FOLKS NEED TO BE TOLD.

Lloyd Stuckey.

An axe is not a plaything to hack around with on the bark of a tree, but a tool whose keen edge will chop a tree down, clear through the heart.

And a preacher or teacher is not supposed to be a bungler either, sel-dom hitting the core of things. One who truly preaches or teaches is like an axe whose edge is keen from long grinding, and when he hits there is a definite, unmistakable, lasting im-pression. We've been slobbered over for so long, heard so many theories, quotations, outlines, and sidelines that we have forgotten much about sin,—its punishments and consequences.

The people are really hungry for righteousness. They would like to hear more of the truth, and of how to repent or be forgiven. Who on earth can supply that need except those who have been close to God, those who are consecrated to God, or-dained of the church, and who will teach and preach the truth regardless of persecution, poverty, or death?

It is not easy for the ordinary per-son to realize exactly what they do believe about their true relation to the past, present, and future. But it is certain that everyone wonders about it, believes something. What the world needs is messengers aflame with a genuine spirit of the Christ to say the things that are true with such power and moving conviction that folks may come away from a church feeling at least partly satisfied in-stead of critically-minded.

How are the folks being reached who never make any pretense of go-ing to church? How can we expect folks to be interested or held by en-tertainment and basket-dinner meth-ods? It is a lot of dumb folly to imagine that anyone will long and yearn to trek off to a church base-ment for the kind of food they can eat more comfortably at home. What they need and want is food for the heart, food for character and soul. Let them be informed of a scourging whip in the hand of an angry God. Torture, torment, prod, and shame their sin-infested minds. It is not safe to dilly-dally in these matters.

Life is so uncertain. Death comes unexpectedly. We don't need to be told these things to be ready to die, but to be able to avoid the sting of death. Certain matters should be set-tled so we can be better able to live both now and on into the eternal hereafter. Death is only a change, a transition; it cannot possibly be the end. If it were it would be upper-most in the mind of mankind to excel on earth at any cost. But most folks have a faith, a hope, a basic or ele-mental spark of religion that flickers vaguely in their minds mysteriously leading them to expect some kind of future existence. That's why we need preachers and teachers who will con-sider it their business to distinguish clearly between right and wrong, righteousness and sin.

Turn loose three or four truly Christ-minded folks in any commu-nity and in a little while there will be a disturbance. There will be cries of heretic, reformer, meddler. But these unafraid denouncers would march steadily on to turn this old sick world into an entirely different place in which to live. They would do their work regardless of scorn, ridicule, un-falteringly even unto death.

Somebody's got to tell folks they

Adam Clarke---Great Commentary

Dr. Clarke was one of a long succession of men who, in every age of the Christian Church, have applied the best energies of their intellect and heart to the study and interpretation of the Scrip-tures. The seven gifts which, according to Augustine, the true expositor of Scripture must possess—reverence, piety, science, fortitude, pru-dence, cleanness of heart, and heavenly wisdom—were his portions.

The studies of his earlier years always had a bearing on this great work. From the beginning he felt the need of being taught by God to understand his own word. Referring to this, he says: "No man ever taught me the doctrine I embrace. I received it singly by reading the Bible."

Sufficiently critical to aid the inquiries of the more serious student, and yet sufficiently popular to serve the purpose of general edification. He gives a lucid view of the several books of Scripture, as to their dates and authors, their scope and connection; he expounds the original text in a manner adapted to the deficiencies of the reader; he elucidates difficulties in chronology, history, and oriental manners; he develops the grand doc-trines of revelation, and applies the whole to the great concerns of hu-man salvation and duty.

One leading feature in its character is independence in thinking. While he availed himself of the labors of others, the great number of his expo-sitions are emphatically his own.

DR. ADAM CLARKE'S COMMENTARY ON THE BIBLE

is one of the noblest works of the class in the entire domain of sacred lit-erature. It is a thesaurus of general learning.

Its luminous expositions of the Law and the Gospel; its earnest and forceful appeals to the conscience of the sinner and the unbeliever; its rich counsels for the well-understood wants of the Christian's inner life; its endless exhibitions of general knowledge; and its valuable aids to the students of those holy tongues in which revelation took its first recorded forms—all will render this book the companion and the counselor of multitudes as long as the English language may endure. The man who accomplished it achieved immortality, his name having become identified with an indestructible monument of learning and religion.

We commend it as the most spiritual commentary published. Six large volumes, good paper, good binding, new type.

THE SATISFYING EXPERIENCE. By The Editor.

ARE you satisfied with your spiritual state? Are you uneasy with reference to the condition of your soul? Would you be unwilling to die just now and go to meet your God? Are there questions in your mind about your spiritual status? Are you dissatisfied with reference to your personal salvation? If so, we wish to assure you that there is full assurance of faith.

* * * *

There is a salvation in Jesus Christ that saves from all sin; that brings full pardon for all sins committed, and full cleansing for all sin entailed, or inherited; that brings the soul into a state of peace and restful assurance that all is well between it and its Maker. This is not a finished salvation in the sense that there is not within a holy urge forward for enlargement, growth in grace, a better understanding of divine truth, a larger view of Christ and a more gracious fellowship with him; but this salvation, here and now by faith, settles the sin question and gives the soul a sweet assurance of redemption from sin, peace with God, and a perfect love of Christ within.

* * * *

It is most unfortunate that many of our Christian people should have gotten a false view of the atonement, a small conception of the work God has wrought for us in Jesus upon the cross. They, many of them, have gotten the idea that Jesus died to save us from hell, and to save us in heaven. This is a false conception; Jesus died to save us from sin, and that settles the hell question; those who are saved from sin need have no fears of hell. Jesus died to save us in this world, and if we are saved here and now, we are saved for there and then. To be saved in this world is to be saved in all worlds. If we are not saved here we need not hope to be saved anywhere. Death makes no change in our moral character; it simply changes our place of residence.

* * * *

Death does not touch the soul; it simply affects the body. Moral character resides in the spirit. It is that which is not at all affected by death. It is immortal. Death can tear down the tabernacle in which it lives, but the immortal spirit in which resides the character, the qualities of good or evil, abides untouched, and goes to dwell in the spirit world. When the spirit goes out from the body it takes with it memory, and all the qualities of character that it developed here; they must abide. If the spirit is sinful here, lustful, vulgar, covetous, selfish, brutal, it will be so there and doubtless, more so, constantly sinking into a pit of degradation which has no bottom. On the other hand, if the spirit here is humble, obedient, chaste, unselfish, loving, redeemed, renewed, cleansed and made holy by the atonement of Jesus Christ, it will go out in peace with joy, into a topless heaven and will doubtless rise forever, always coming into a better understanding and closer fellowship with its Mak-

AT ANY COST!

Did you ever pray that way? Was your heart ever so drawn out in longing for something that God alone could give, that you pleaded with him to do that thing AT ANY COST?

At any cost to whom? Yourself, for instance. Better be careful here to see that you are not excited or hasty. Do not trifle with God in prayer. If you are in earnest, and really mean it, say AT ANY COST, but be sure you do not whine or refuse to pay the price when the claim is presented you for the COST.

er and Lord. If you are not satisfied, if there is unrest and fear, give yourself to prayer, to the reading of the Bible, to faith in the atonement made by Jesus, yea, in Jesus himself, remembering that he has said, "Blessed are they that do hunger and thirst after righteousness, for they shall be filled."

The Restoration of Israel to Palestine No. 1.

*****

IN our published Bill of Fare for the present year, those who remember the circular sent out containing something of the various subjects for discussion, will recall that one of them was "The Return of the Jews to Palestine." You will note in the above heading that we have made a little change.

Something more than forty-three years ago I had my call from God to undertake the founding and publishing of this paper. My supreme object, if I understood myself, was to bring the readers of THE HERALD to a proper appreciation of the complete atonement God had provided in his Son, our Lord Jesus Christ, for the salvation of all men from all sin. We have worked all along in harmony with John Wesley's interpretation of scripture, leading up from preventent grace to perfect love; we have emphasized the demand of God for holiness in order to entrance into heaven; and the gracious provision he has made for our cleansing from all sin in the precious blood of Christ. Not for one moment have we doubted the divine requirements and the ample provision on this subject.

Jesus Christ constantly looms up before us as mighty to save to the uttermost. We do not doubt the fall of man, and his utter sinfulness. The wickedness of our race is written in the headlines of every page of human history. But the plan of redemption provides for a new birth; for the making of men new creatures in Christ. In regeneration a wonderful new life is imparted; in sanctification an old carnal life is crucified, cast out, and the Holy Spirit, the great Agent and Person working in us the fulness of the atonement of Christ, the regenerator and sanctifier, comes in to abide and keep, to comfort, to guide and empower the regenerated, sanctified children of God.

We believe that this doctrine of entire sanctification rests unshakable upon a firm, scriptural foundation; that it is abiding, and that the teaching of the Scriptures on the subject harmonize perfectly with the experiences of men. This doctrine of full salvation, when properly presented, makes a splendid appeal, both to the needs of the heart and the intelligence of the mind. If preached as it is taught in the Word of God, in the spirit of Christ, it will be accepted by a very large percent of Christian people everywhere. First, because it is plainly written. God's word declares that we must be holy. It also declares that the blood of Christ cleanseth from all sin. All the teachings of the Scriptures, Old Testament and New, harmonize with these two outstanding declarations.

Calvinism has had a widespread and fearful effect upon the religious mind of Protestantism everywhere. That good man, John Calvin, had some strange and unscriptural conceptions of God. His rigid doctrine of foreordination represented God so unjust, so partial, and so unmerciful that vast multitudes of people rejected the Bible, and the God of the Bible, as unfit for belief and undeserving of obedience and worship. Many intelligent men felt it was better not to believe in any God at all, than to believe in a God who, from all eternity, would foreordain men and angels to be damned in a hell of eternal fire, for his glory. That God would so determine and fix a large percent of the race that it was impossible for them to repent, or to exercise saving faith; in fact, if they should take warning from the teachings of the Scriptures with regard to the future state of the wicked, repent of their sins, forsake and sorrow for them, praying for mercy, their tears would be disregarded, and their prayers go unanswered.

There is no way to estimate the fearful hurt that has come to the human race because of the erroneous teachings of John Calvin with reference to the nature of God. Millions of intelligent people revolted against this teaching and became skeptical and, going from bad to worse, became haters of the Bible, and the misrepresented God of the Bible.

These Calvinistic teachers are largely responsible for much of the modernism of today, which has swung to a dangerous extreme in the other direction, has had, is having, and will have, a fearful effect upon untold millions of people. It was to counteract these influences and bring the people to the Wesleyan interpretation of the Scriptures, to believe in the God who so loved the world that he gave his only Son that, "whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life," that this paper was founded and has gone through the decades for almost a half century sounding out the glad tidings of full redemption from sin for all who will come trusting in the merits of the Christ who gave himself upon the cross; who, "by the grace of God, hath tasted death for every man."

THE ASCENSION OF CHRIST AND ITS LESSONS.

Rev. G. W. Ridout D.D., Corresponding Editor.

The Ascension of Christ must be reckoned among the greater triumphs of his marvelous human ministry. To the disciples looking on, it must have appeared like a sublime climax to his wonderful career. "He was taken up; and a cloud received him out of their sight." (Acts 1:9).

"He is gone—beyond the skies,
A cloud receives him from our eyes;
Gone beyond the highest height
Of mortal gaze, or angels flight.
Through the veils of time and space,
Passed into the holiest place;
All the toil, the sorrow done,
All the battle fought and won."

The Psalms very richly intimated and anticipated Christ's Ascension—particularly Psalm 63:18, 19, and Psalm 24:7-10. This latter one has been called the "Song of the Ascension." Spurgeon writing upon it says: "We have here a picture of our Lord's glorious ascent. We see him rising from amidst the little group upon Olivet, and as the cloud receives him, angels reverently escort him to the gates of heaven. The ancient gates of the eternal temple are personified and addressed in song by the attendant cohort of rejoicing spirits:

"Lo his triumphal chariot waits,
And angels chant the solemn lay,
Lift up your heads, ye heavenly gates,
Ye everlasting doors, give way!"

Well has a French writer said: "This innocent Joseph, whose virtue has been oppressed by the synagogue, is brought out of the dungeon to receive a crown. This victorious Joshua has passed over Jordan with the Ark of the Covenant and takes possession of the land of the living. This Sun of Righteousness, which had gone down ten degrees, returns backward to the place which it had left. He who was a worm at his birth, a Lamb in his passion, a Lion in his resurrection, now ascends as an Eagle to heaven! The heavenly Jerusalem receives its rightful King! the Church its High Priest, the House of God its Heritor, the whole world its Ruler."

Joseph Hall, in a sublime passage on Psalm 24:7-10, says: "Oh, what tongue of the highest archangel of heaven can express the welcome of thee, the King of Glory, into those blessed regions of immortality. . . And why dost not thou, O my soul, help to bear thy part with that happy choir of heaven? Why are not thou rapt out of thy bosom, with an ecstasy of joy to see this human nature of ours exalted above all the powers of heaven, adored of angels, archangels, cherubim, seraphim, and all those mighty and glorious spirits, and sitting there crowned with infinite glory and majesty?"

As we contemplate Christ's ascension, shall we not say with Edward Young:—

"In his blessed life
I see the path, and in his death the price,
And in his great Ascent the proof
Of Immortality."

LESSONS OF THE ASCENSION.

INTERCESSION.

It reminds us that with his Ascension Christ began in Heaven his ministry of intercession. Hebrews 7: "He ever liveth to make intercession for us"; Romans 8:34: "It is Christ that died, yea, rather, that is risen again who is even at the right hand of God who also maketh intercession for us."

How beautifully Charles Wesley sings of Christ the Intercessor!

"He ever lives above,
For me to intercede;
His all redeeming love,
His precious blood, to plead;
His blood atoned for all our race,
And sprinkles now the throne of grace."

Christ the Intercessor wants his people to be intercessors. I think the book which made the deepest impression upon my prayer life was Andrew Murray's "The Ministry of Intercession." It sent me to my knees as never before. Too little do we know the sorrows and the joys of intercession. Praying Hyde of India made the profoundest impression upon that land by his prayer life. His intercessions ran into days and nights. Other missionaries pleaded with him to restrain himself, but with streaming eyes he would cry out, "God save India!" His pleadings and intercessions brought down great outpourings of the Spirit of God upon the Punjab, and hundreds of thousands of souls were swept into the Kingdom. What a pleader in prayer was David Brainerd! In his diary are such notes as these:—

"Found some ardour in secret prayer.

"I was in such anguish.

"Pleaded with such earnestness and importunity that when I rose from my knees I felt extremely weak and overcome.

"Spent the evening praying incessantly for divine assistance."

JOYS OF COMMUNION.

That devout man, Jan. Van Ruysbroek, speaking from his own deep experience, said: "The soul that has stood in the presence of Christ experiences a great sweetness, which, deepening, passes into that holy joy that is the yielding of the soul to the divine love. If every earthly pleasure were melted into a single experience and bestowed upon one man, it would be as nothing when measured by the joy of which I write; for here it is God who passes into the depths of us in all his purity, and the soul is not only filled but overflowing. This experience is that light that makes manifest to the soul the terrible desolation of such as live divorced from love; it melts the man utterly; he is no longer master of his joy."

"Thou art the sea of Love
Where all my pleasures roll,
The circle where my passions move
And centre of my soul.
My passions hold a pleasing reign
When Love inspires the breast,
Love the divineness of the train
The Sovereign of the rest."

VICTORY.

The Ascension of Christ suggests to us the triumph of the good over the evil. How often, as we read history, do we see the evil regnant and the good seemingly dead and buried, but, thank God, the right, though buried for a while, always has its day of resurrection. Dark were the days of Chrysostom when he wrote those pathetic lines: "The Church is like a woman fallen from her ancient prosperity, who possesses various signs of her former wealth, and displays the little chests and caskets in which her treasure was preserved, but who has lost the treasure itself."

Dark were the days of Luther, when Popery ruled and darkness was over the face of all Europe. Luther saw the day of Resurrection and Reformation ahead, and he cried out like a true prophet against the iniquities of the people and the corruptions of Rome. The Pope sent a cardinal to Germany to quiet Luther and to buy him off, if necessary. The cardinal said to Luther: "What do you think the Pope cares for the opinion of a German boor? The Pope's little finger is stronger than all Germany. Do you expect your princes to take up arms to defend you —you, a wretched worm like you? I tell you No! and where will you be then? Where will you be then?" Luther's reply was that of a man of God. He said: "Where I am now—in the hands of Almighty God."

The day came when Luther's mighty gospel shook the gates of Rome, pierced the gloom of night with rays from the Sun of Righteousness, and there broke upon Europe the glorious morn of the Reformation, when the darkness of Rome was dispelled, and the Gospel of Justification by Faith broke upon the Church in all the glory of a new revelation from God.

TRANSFORMATION.

The Ascension of Christ suggests to us the transcendent and transforming powers of the heavenly world. The psalmist cried out: "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help."

The effects of Christianity are always seen in the elevation of men and women. Let the lowest type of man become converted, and at once a transformation takes place in life's habits and conduct. Christ's ascension was Calvary's climax. He died upon the Cross to save us from sin, he ascended to Heaven to prepare a place for us.

An earnest Gospel preacher said: "Calvary is the only answer to the desperate needs of the sinful heart, and this Gospel of Calvary and the Crucified One is as much needed today as it ever was before. I read recently of a dying man who sent for the minister, and said to him: 'I am dying. I want you to speak to me, and pray with me; but don't speak and pray like a parson; speak and pray like a man.' God help us ministers; I am ashamed of it! You go to a man who is dying and who knows it, and who wants to hear something that will help him. You tell him that Jesus will help him. You tell him that Jesus was a great historic personality; you tell him that Jesus was a great social reformer; you tell him that Jesus was the incarnation of goodness. He says, 'I don't want to hear that; tell me something like my sainted mother told me when I was an innocent boy. Tell me of One who can forgive my sins, One who can break my chains, One who can change my heart. Tell me the old, old story of Jesus and his love.' That is what they want. You have to tell them of a Saviour who loved them enough at Calvary to take their place and bear their sins in his own body on the tree, and a Saviour who loves as much as ever, and is able to save to the uttermost all that come unto God by him."

Stanley Jones, speaking at the General Conference of 1924 on John Wesley's birthday, said: "I don't ask you to celebrate an anniversary; I ask you to seek an experience." In India he had watched men fishing in the six-inch water of paddy-fields for minnows when right beside them stretched the ocean. "Is not much of what we Christians are doing like fishing in rice fields beside the teeming ocean?" "If we let the 'new birth' and 'holiness' go, we have lost our place." "It is not information we need so much as transformation." "If the Book is to be vital, it must go through our own personal experience. If we want a Pentecost, we must pay the price."

PENTECOST.

The Ascension of Christ is intimately associated with Pentecost. I rejoice that the Church celebrated Pentecost with an entirely new emphasis. Oh, that Pentecost may break upon a thousand churches. Oh, that tens of thousands of God's people may receive their Pentecost as a rich personal experience.

Dr. J. W. Chapman, that great Presbyterian evangelist who always rang true said: "We certainly need another Pentecost, and the need is always a prophecy of the coming of that which should meet the longing. The church needs it. We behold people today utterly forgetting the place of the Holy Ghost in the government of the church, substituting man-made power and methods for his power and direction, stooping to all sorts of methods for the purpose of raising funds to carry on the work of the Gospel, almost completely marking out the line of demarcation between the church and the world. In the light of these things, I say without hesitation, the church needs another Pentecost, when the money changers shall be driven from the sanctuary; when hypocrisy shall be cast out of the house of God; when the Holy Ghost shall be given the place of the vicar of Christ, and when the fire of cleansing and of power shall burn in us from morning till night, and from night till morning. God send the church another Pentecost."

"We are waiting, blessed Master, for another Pentecost,
And we've waited till our hearts have weary grown;
Let the wind blow fresh from heaven,
Let the promised power be given;
Let the fire come down!
Send the power, O Holy Spirit,
Fall on us this very minute,
Let the fire come down."

THIS, THAT, AND THE OTHER.

Thomas Clark Henderson.

A MAN AND HIS WIFE

WHO were regular attendants in one of our recent revival crusades, attracted my attention. Night after night I noticed that, though they sat well back in the audience and never took part in the meetings, they were interested in everything which went on in the service, even staying through the altar services which often lasted until near the midnight hour. They appeared to especially enjoy the testimony meetings which Mrs. Henderson conducted as part of the opening service from time to time. As I observed them, I wondered if they were Christians from some other denomination and perhaps were unused to the ways of a fruitful revival meeting. My wondering was ended when, one night as the altar call was given, the first one to rush to the altar was the wife. She was under deep conviction and prayed with passion and intelligence for mercy on her guilty soul. Her action gave me a clue about her husband's condition and I hurried back from the pulpit to talk to him. He was easily approachable. As we conversed he began to weep, and said: "Mr. Henderson, I cannot stand these testimonies. I am a miserable sinner, but when these converts and others tell what Christ has done for them and act so free and happy, something within me cries into my ears—'you can have that, too.'" Pushing me aside, he fairly ran to the altar and joined his weeping wife in seeking salvation. The Lord met them gloriously! Their salvation was a community event, and for the revival it was an outstanding victory. God had used the free and triumphant witnessing of those who were saved and sanctified to capture the hearts of these two persons. Mrs. Henderson makes the "testimony time" a part of nearly every opening service in our crusades, and many times have we run across instances like this one of some one being convicted and moved to action mainly through the humble and definite witnessing of well-saved Christians. Part of evangelism is witnessing to personal salvation. I certainly would not want to go long in a revival crusade without giving the people a chance to honor Christ by happy testimony. Who can estimate the endless effects of some one's sincere and humble telling of how the Lord has saved him from sin; sanctified him wholly; restored him from backslidings, healed his body, brought a wandering son or daughter back to God in answer to prayer, or some such special God-given deliverance? My own heart gets refreshed again and again as I go over the story of the beginning of my Christian life and experience. "Let the redeemed of the Lord say so."

CHINA AND CONFUSION

are identical in the mind of the average person today. How many of us are able to state the vital and outstanding facts in the political life of China? Who can tell us the truth about the progress of true Christianity in the life of that great group of our yellow-skinned brothers and sisters? What is the meaning of the changes in government there? Is there one unifying movement in China today? It seems that the major portion of the rest of the world does not have enough facts on which to erect an intelligent opinion about the present and future of China. China's millions are so many and so inarticulate that our minds are not able to give any specific characterization of any dominant phase of her present situation. However out of the confusion and darkness about this great people comes this very disquieting word from Bishop G. H. Grose: "A generous estimate of the Christian population of China is two million Christians among more than four hundred millions of non-Christians. Not more than one village in ten has even a single Christian among its people. At the present rate of progress, China will not become nominally Christian in five hundred years." (Italics ours). That is disturbing information. It is evident that the more than four hundred millions of unevangelized Chinese present a great and needy field for holy evangelism. "Pray ye the Lord of the harvest that he may send forth laborers into the harvest."

REV. MONROE VAYHINGER,

Upland, Ind., is one of the older workers in the field of Holiness evangelism. His name is not strange to the readers of this page. I am amazed at his vigor and passion. I do not know his age, but it is certain that he has reached years when many men take things more easily than he does. His work as a pastor in the Indiana Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church won for him the sincerest respect of his brethren. He gave many of the best years of his life to the presidency of Taylor University. His leadership gave Taylor University the stamp of holy evangelism and thorough devotion to the essentials of a radical gospel which must not be changed or compromised. Since relinquishing the heavy load of school administration he has not settled down to "watch the world go by," but has given himself with all the passion and abandon of a young God-called preacher to the work of evangelism. His humility, his sincerity, his earnestness and his definite convictions combine to make his ministry pronounced, though not always popular. The phrase "moral compromise" is not in his vocabulary or heart. Right now he is busy in revival work somewhere and the Lord is greatly using him. I have just read in one of the Advocates a report from the pen of a pastor with whom he has labored in a country church, and God gave them more than one hundred conversions and sanctifications. Thank God for such a fruitful ministry of a man of his years. Hundreds of us younger men will always be grateful to God for the clean life and the unfailing brotherliness and the ceaseless ministry of this father in Israel. Many men preach perfect love; Brother Vayhinger both preaches it and lives it. I have never heard one word of suspicion of his character. We must not fail to appreciate the older men and women who have done so much for the great cause of full salvation.

IT SHOULD BE SAID

that there are many former workers and leaders who are less active than formerly, but nonetheless true and holy. Some public workers can keep in the front of the battle and in the public eye until the end of their lives. Others find the infirmities of age compel them to withdraw from the spotlight. They should not be forgotten. When I first began going to camp meetings there were many who were then leaders who have since then gone to the "Homeland in the sky." But there are several who were then giving their best energy and ministry to the great multitudes who are still with us. I suppose, though I can only guess, that Evangelist C. W. Ruth, who is in failing health, I am told, has likely spent more years in active and public evangelism in some branch of the holiness work than any one else now living. I know that when I began preaching, C. W. Ruth, Henry C. Morrison, Joseph H. Smith, Bud Robinson, Millie Lawhead, Beverly Carradine, D. F. Brooks, G. A. McLaughlin, Charles Stalker, Charles Weigle, Seth Rees, M. G. Standley, L. B. Compton, G. B. Kulp, H. N. Brown, John Harris, H. F. Reynolds, John Norberry, "The Texas Boys," and many others were workers of strength and prominence, who are still in the land of the living, as far as I know. Some are still active and prominent, but others have been compelled to limit their activities and consequently are not before the public as much as formerly, though without any lessening of their love for the cause to which they have given utmost energy, prayers and time. We must not forget them. Old age can become poignantly lonely if friends of other days forget the aging ones. Old people hunger for love and sincere appreciation as do younger persons. While not one of us can pay the whole of our debt to these leaders who are so far ahead of us, yet we must not for that reason fail to discharge some of our debt to them. If every one who reads these lines will do what his heart prompts him to do, the mails will be carrying some glad messages of gratitude and comfort to some of the older and less active workers who are spending their days amid the lengthening shadows of life's evening time.

IT IS UNFAIR

for a Sunday school teacher or pupil to go to Sunday school with an unprepared lesson. In this busy age both the teacher and pupil need something brief and to the point,—something that stresses and brings out the richest spiritual thoughts on the lesson.

All this may be had in Arnold's Commentary. In this book will be found the very best helps for the Adult Class, the Young People, the Primary and the Beginner.

We have a few copies left and are closing them out at 75c per copy, postpaid. Don't fail to avail yourself of this opportunity to secure a book that will give you spiritual help every week in the year, and then when the year is finished, it is an attractive volume to place in your library for future reference. Send coin, money order, check, or if more convenient, stamps, to the Pentecostal Publishing Company, Louisville, Ky., and a copy will be mailed you at once. Why is it that hell-fire preached tenderly has greater effect than when lightningly proclaimed?

THE EXPEDIENCY OF THE ASCENSION.

Rev. W. S. Bowden.

"It is expedient for you that I go away."—John 16:7.

EVENTS are important according to their results. Some make a grand display and imposing appearance, but their end is abortive. Others scarcely attract the attention of a child, but result in weal or woe to multitudes. The scratch of a match by an innocent person might result in the burning of a city, and the destruction of many lives and vast wealth; while the effort of thousands to accomplish some national result might end in utter defeat.

Events appear radically different when viewed from different standpoints. If a man, on the common level of society, should emigrate from one part of the earth to another, his departure might cause an affectionate mother to linger and plant a last kiss upon the loved cheek, gazing with emotions unknown to others, as he disappears in the distance, while the busy multitudes would still tread the wheel of anxious toil without stopping to ask, "Has he gone?" His arrival at his destination would be of no importance to those unaffected by it, but if some truly wedded heart were there, it would be, to that, a jubilee.

We shall contemplate the historic scene of Christ's exit from earth to heaven, and his loving disciples, to whom he was dearer than fame or wealth, gazing with intense astonishment as he is borne heavenward by an invisible power. As he slowly receded in a path that no human footprint had marked, no earthly locomotion could carry the beloved disciples over the trackless way. Separation was every moment becoming wider and more distressing, and question after question whirled through their minds, and made every nerve quiver to get one more answer, one more sentence of instruction from the lips which had uttered truths more sacred and important to them than had ever sounded in mortal ears. Every eye was immovably fixed upon the face, which, of all others, had been the most lovely and expressive of true friendship and unfailing love. They gazed upon every line and feature of the human form as its distinctness faded in the increasing distance, until the last ray had been reflected from the divine personage, and he had become entirely hidden from their still wondering eyes in a never-to-be-forgotten cloud.

The wonderful scene with all its unnaturalness, the crushing thought of the mysterious and heart-rending separation, and also the thought that their Leader and anticipated Deliverer had left them a solitary few in the midst of strong and determined enemies, caused a dark and hopeless future to appear before them, which confused their minds and grieved their spirits.

But God had anticipated the experience of the loving disciples, and mercifully provided for the trying emergency. Two angels were dispatched and immediately appeared in heavenly livery before them, with a divine message suited to their fainting hearts, and for the encouragement and hope of Christ's afflicted, disconsolate church, through all ages. They opened their wonderful lips, and in the name of the mighty Jehovah said: "Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? This same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven" (Acts 1:11). Blessed words! expressing the brightest hope for suffering mortals. What scene ever witnessed by human eyes has ever equalled this?

The movements of great men, chief captains and kings, in the transaction of important business, have been celebrated with pompous parades and high-sounding honors, and written on the page of great events; but here is a movement totally eclipsing all others. It is not a state occasion, with a sinful man bearing a sword and costly plumage, seated in a state chariot, and made honorable because he has waded through human blood and crushed the hearts of weeping widows and wailing orphans, but it is the King of kings and Lord of lords, the Wonderful, Counsellor, the Prince of Peace. He is not journeying from one city to another, but following the angelic pathway from earth to heaven.

Look upon ascending humanity in the person of Immanuel, and see the great King's last footprints in the dust of Olivet, as he leaves our planet, the place of his poverty, prayers, and anguish, looking back with an undying love, which neither time nor separation could affect, upon his amazed and disappointed friends, giving them his last parting words—his eternal benediction.

See him as he is borne by an almighty power through the regions of earth's atmosphere, 'mid its floating clouds, ascending above its thunderbolts and whirling tempests, sweeping through extended space, escorted by clustering angels shouting acclamations of praise to the mighty Conqueror, as he nears the portals of the celestial mansions.

All heaven is stirred with pure delight, as the King eternal approaches the sated doors, when the voice of the Ruler of worlds sounds the command, "Lift up your heads, O ye gates; and be ye lifted up, ye everlasting doors; and the King of glory shall come in!" "Who is this King of glory?" the waiting angels ask; not because they do not know him, but because they await the answer to his exalted praise. "The Lord strong and mighty, the Lord mighty in battle."

"Lift up your heads, O ye gates, even lift them up ye everlasting doors and the King of glory shall come in." Again the waiting angels enquire, "Who is this King of glory?" Again comes the answer, "The Lord, he is the King of glory." Then the portals celestial are opened wide, and the angelic throng sweeps through the gates amid a burst of rapturous music.

All the heavenly hosts are waiting to honor their returned Commander. They wait for him to take his place upon the throne of his Father, but he cannot yet receive the coronet of glory and the royal robe. He has a request to present before the Father concerning his chosen ones on earth. He cannot accept supreme honor until he has the assurance that his Church is justified and accepted. He asks that where he is, there his people may be also. He asks that his people be permitted to share eternal glory with him. He is granted the request that those who suffer with him shall reign with him.

He is seated at the right hand of the Father in glory, henceforth waiting until his enemies be made his footstool. He has heard the Father's proclamation, "Let all the angels of God worship him." The innumerable company of angels are bowed before him, and the courts of Heaven echo and re-echo with the glad shout, "Worthy is the Lamb that was slain, to receive riches, and honor, and glory, and power." The Father has exalted him as our federal Head; we are exalted in him. The ascension was the appropriate bloom and culmination of the resurrection. The risen Lord has received the approbation and honor from his Father, which were to be given to him as the Mediator and Redeemer of men.

We look back today upon the historic event of the ascension of Jesus Christ. We recognize the fact that this event had been foretold and typified in the Old Testament (Psalms sixty-eight and one hundred and ten). Moses, ascending the mount to receive the law, has been called a type of Christ ascending to receive spiritual blessings for men. Elijah, taken up into heaven, and imparting a double portion of his spirit to his successor, was typical of Christ ascending and imparting the pentecostal gift of the Holy Spirit. The Jewish high priest, in passing from the holy place to the most holy place, which represented heaven, also foreshadowed the ascension of our Lord.

"IT IS EXPEDIENT FOR YOU THAT I GO AWAY."

These words must have been startling to the apostles. They could not see how it was to their advantage that Jesus should leave them. Jesus had often spoken of things which they did not fully understand. He had told them more than once that he must leave them. He had assured them that the hour was near when he must depart. And now he tells them that his going away is to be to their advantage. They could not understand why it would be to their advantage to be left leaderless. Jesus did not immediately ascend to heaven after his resurrection. He tarried with them forty days after his resurrection that they might know beyond a doubt that he was alive, that he might teach them what formerly he could not, that he might set before them the plan of campaign. Then he made the startling announcement that it was expedient for them that he should ascend to heaven.

Jesus ascended to heaven that he might act there, in the presence of God, as our High Priest and Intercessor. "For Christ is not entered into the holy places made with hands, which are the figures of the true; but into heaven itself, now to appear in the presence of God for us" (Heb. 9:24). Because Jesus appears as our Advocate with the Father we have "boldness to enter into the holiest by the blood of Jesus." Thank God that we have a faithful and merciful High Priest who is touched with the feelings of our infirmities!

Jesus is the Divine Nobleman (Luke 19: 11-27) who has gone into heaven "to receive for himself a kingdom, and to return." "This man, after he had offered one sacrifice for sins forever, sat down on the right hand of God; henceforth expecting till his enemies be made his footstool." Heb. 10:12, 13; 1 Cor. 15:22-28; Acts 2:34-36.

The heavens have received Jesus "until the times of restitution of all things which God has spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." Acts 3:21.

Jesus ascended to heaven that he might prepare a place for his people. Jesus said before his ascension, "I go to prepare a place for you" (John 14:2). The description of this prepared place—the holy city, "prepared as a bride adorned for her husband"—given in the twenty-first chapter of Revelation, is most beautiful.

His ascension gives us ground for cherishing the blessed hope of his return, his personal second coming. The posture of those who love Christ is henceforth one of expectation. "This same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven." The Rev. M. W. Foshay, commenting on this verse in the Christian Herald, said: "The fashion of his going was practically a physical demonstration of the certainty of his return." With their natural eyes the disciples had seen him in the humiliation of the cross; with their natural eyes they saw him rising toward heaven in a cloud of glory. Then followed the assurance from heavenly messengers that his return would be just as plainly evident, a real occurrence. The announcement of his personal return appeals to us because of the manner of his ascension.

Moreover, his presence was made more real through his ascension. The personal presence of Jesus seemed indispensable to the disciples. They were mistaken in thinking that his departure was the sign for the dissolution of the brotherhood. His departure secured to the church his constant presence. Faith might have remained forever in an infant state had Jesus not ascended. By his departure his local presence was changed into an universal presence, and their imperfect knowledge into the full illumination of faith. Had Jesus remained upon earth it is natural to suppose that he would have chosen some one place where his presence and his personal glory would have been manifested.

The diffusive benefits of Christ's ascension have been expressed by Dean Goulburn by the illustration of a lamp. So long as a lamp in a room is placed on a low level its light may be intercepted by the bodies of persons around it, and so prevented from reaching others who are in the remoter corners. But let it be lifted up to the ceiling, and it sheds its beams down on all who are below. Our Lord, while on earth, was circumscribed by place and earthly relationships; but since his ascension, his presence and influence are diffused everywhere through the spiritual world, as the rays of the sun are through the natural.

The ascension was the complement of Calvary, the ovation of the triumph actually won on the Cross. His ascension was the final attestation of the validity and acceptance of the atonement. His ascension was the signal of his triumph over all the powers of darkness. It signified that the design for which he descended to the earth was completely fulfilled. In his ascension he received infinite happiness and glory as the reward of his humiliation.

We must come to Pentecost if we would enter into the full expediency of the ascension. The whole verse, from which we take our text, reads: "Nevertheless I tell you the truth; it is expedient for you that I go away: for if I go not away, the Comforter will not come unto you; but if I depart, I will send him unto you." This same truth is expressed in John 14:16, 26; 15:26, 27; 16:13.

Many sermons have been preached upon the meaning and power of Pentecost. It is well for us to bear in mind the relation of the ascension of Christ to the descent of the Holy Spirit. Let us make much of the Holy Spirit. The Spirit creates and develops divine love (Rom. 5:5); indwells the believer as the seal of his redemption (Eph. 1:12-14); the witness of his sonship (Rom. 8:16); and the agent in his sanctification (1 Cor. 6:19, 20). The Holy Spirit delivers from fear and loneliness, bears witness to Jesus Christ, and reveals to us the deep things of God. Jesus led captivity captive, and received gifts for men. It was expedient for Jesus to depart that the age of the Spirit might come.

Anti-Saloon League Convention

MRS. H. C. MORRISON.

*****

THE Anti-Saloon League held its annual convention in the Kentucky Hotel, Louisville, April 19, 20. District group meetings were held in various churches on Sunday in which speakers furnished by the convention presented the work of prohibition. It is said the 42 churches held special services at their morning and evening hours in the interest of the Dry Cause.

The attendance was larger than usual this year and a deep interest and wholesome enthusiasm seemed to pervade the assembly. Testimonies were given at the noon hour luncheon which were echoes of encouragement to those who are fighting under the banner of Prohibition, and the note of victory rang out in a way to hearten and stimulate the prohibition workers to more valiant service.

There is but one thing for the people who do not want the saloon to come back to do, and that is to be eternally on the alert to speak a good word for the cause and endeavor to enlighten the people on the real facts about the benefits of prohibition. We cannot get the facts in the daily press, and many who read what is sent out through the columns of the newspapers derogatory to the results of prohibition are inclined to become discouraged and conclude that they are fighting a losing battle.

Friends, such is not the case. Our country is a thousand times better off than before prohibition, and the rumors that there is more drinking than in saloon days is so far from the facts that no one who intelligently observes conditions will concede them to be the truth. It is amazing how the enemies of prohibition presume upon the ignorance of the people and conclude that they will believe anything they find in the columns of the newspapers.

We hear much of the drinking among our young people. I heard a W. C. T. U. worker say that she and another woman were appointed to visit the places frequented by young and old who kept late hours, yea, "early hours," and that out of the hundreds who visited these eating places, they did not see one person under the influence of liquor. The main places where the young seem to indulge in drink are at the parties given by the upper ten in large cities where they do not hesitate to openly violate the laws of the nation, or spit in the face of the Constitution of the United States.

The enemies of prohibition are making the most determined and desperate fight they have ever put up, and for that reason the friends of prohibition should keep an eternal vigilance, seeking to use every power of their being in thwarting the plans of the liquor interests and keeping our country under the protection of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Friends, don't believe everything you hear or read from the wet propaganda, but keep your vote on the side of sobriety, no matter what the opposers may say or do.

An Absent Lover's Return.

A. W. ORWIG.

Who is the Lover? The Lord Jesus Christ. For the Bible says of him, "Having loved his own, he loved them to the end." Also, "Who loved me and gave himself for me." Surely one who voluntarily suffers and dies for those whom he loved is a lover indeed. The present bodily absence of Jesus does not in the least diminish his love. Oh, no; he loves "with an everlasting love." His "love passeth knowledge." But, bless his holy name, our precious Lover intends to return. His own specific and comforting language is

"I WILL COME AGAIN."

Also angels communicated the blissful fact to the wondering, spell-bound disciples as they witnessed his majestic ascent from earth to heaven. That we should watch for him is his own oft-repeated admonition. But it is to be feared that many do not maintain this attitude. Probably nothing like this incites to holy living and also to ardent service in his vineyard.

At a meeting of about two hundred persons all were requested to arise who felt willing that Jesus should return now, fewer than a dozen arose. What a seeming reflection on the loyalty of very many of those who remained seated!

To truly watch for our absent Lover's return is not an idle, listless state of either body or mind, but is somewhat expressed in the familiar words

"Oh, let my lamp be burning
When Jesus comes;
For him my heart be yearning
When Jesus comes."

Somewhere in the realm of fiction we are told that a certain lover left his sweetheart and went into a far distant land across the ocean, but promised to return and claim her as his happy bride. Such was her great confidence in his word that it proved a constant source of joy. And night after night she went down to the lonely ocean shore and kindled a beacon light, and there watched and waited with truest affection for his return.

And thus the Lord Jesus, our precious absent Lover, when he parted from his loved ones on earth, left a sweet and cheering promise that he would return and claim her as his happy bride. And they believe that promise with all their hearts. With unfaltering devotion they watch and wait for his certain return. An earthly lover might possibly prove untrue, or circumstances might occur to prevent his return. But not so with our faithful, adorable, almighty Lover. He will "surely" come, as he said. No exigencies can possibly arise to prevent it.

AND WHAT THEN?

Oh, rapturous thought! His own, both the living and the dead, will simultaneously and supernaturally ascend to meet and greet him "in the air." But other sublime and blissful events will follow, in which they shall have a glorious part, such as his infinite wisdom, love and power shall determine. And yet our reward and rank in coming ages will be largely settled by how unfeigningly we have rendered service for him while dwelling upon the earth. Oh what exhilarating and profitable theme for devout contemplation!

Hell's Last Committee Report And The Action Taken Thereon.

BY REV. H. W. HODGE.

HOW TO RETIRE PRAYER FROM THE EARTH.

THE CHAIR (THAT OLD SERPENT, THE DEVIL) PRESIDING.

At the last sitting we had under consideration the report of the Demon Committee on how to retire prayer from the zones of the Earth. The Secretary will now read the report of that Committee.

We, your Committee, beg leave to make the following report:

Whereas: There being a connection between the prayers of God's saints on earth and the angels in heaven, according to Rev. 5:8; "And when he had taken the book the four living creatures and the four and twenty elders fell down before the Lamb, having every one of them harps and golden vials full of odors which are the prayers of the saints," the offering of them up to God upon the holy censer as "incense" to God was and is a premium to saintly praying; and

Whereas: We read in Rev. 8:3-5, "And another angel came and stood at the altar, having a golden censer; and there was given him much incense, that he should offer it with the prayers of all saints upon the golden altar which was before the throne. And the smoke of the incense, which came with the prayers of the saints, ascended up before God out of the angel's hand, and the angel took the censer, and filled it with fire of the altar, and cast it into the earth; and there were voices and thunderings, and lightnings, and an earthquake," and

Whereas: Reasoning to a conclusion, we, having once been in heaven, know this passage of Scripture establishes the fact that prayer is God's ordained vehicle of power and blessing, and without it the "voices" and the "thunder" and the "lightning" and the "earthquake" would have been of no avail; and

Whereas: Hell is filling with victims of negative character, arriving in vast numbers of the results of alcohol and opium, drunk and smoked in Europe, Asia, Africa and America; and

Whereas: Little honor is accruing to his imperial and Satanic majesty's government by these accessions, the majority of them being agents and allies for his imperial majesty's government on the earth; and

Whereas: Fornication, lasciviousness and adultery are proving a disappointment to us, since only an isolated case now and then among holiness preachers is reported from the earth; and these agencies having proved a serious failure in recruiting the citizenship of his Satanic majesty's imperial kingdom; and

Whereas: The connection between the prayers of the saints on earth and the divine forces in heaven are annihilating and utterly destroying our hopes for rapid, offensive operation upon earth; and

Whereas: It is not preaching in itself, nor religious activities, publishing holy books, annual conferences, general conferences, holiness conventions, nor any kind or class of Christian activities, aside from real prayer, that depletes the ranks of his imperial majesty's government: but the power of the dynamite of intercession is the force that shuts the doors of hell to souls and fills heaven; and

Whereas: All real praying is acceptable to God and destructive to his imperial majesty's government, be is known to all demons that the "effectual, fervent prayer" of righteous men must be forever annulled, postponed, retired or cancelled and cease from the zones of the earth; and

Therefore: We offer in its concrete form, for immediate adoption, the following resolution:

Resolved: That swift, imperative steps be taken to utterly crush and retire the efforts of intercessors "who keep his commandments and do those things that are well pleasing in his sight."

Demon No. 1. "I move its adoption."

Demon No. 2. "I second the motion."

Demon No. 3. "I move as an amendment to the resolution the addition of the following words: "And since all real prayer is acceptable to God and destructive to the Devil's kingdom, it must now and forever cease by the exercise of superhuman efforts of deputized Demons assigned to the zones of the earth."

Demon No. 4 offered as an amendment to the amendment that the following words be added at the close of the last words in the sentence: "and that these fallen angels, making up this deputation, be appointed by his Satanic majesty from among the most loyal, effective and judicious of his imperial cabinet."

The amendment to the amendment was lost.

The amendment to the original motion was voted down.

Demon No. 5 then offered a substitute to take the place of the original resolution as follows:

Whereas: Real prayer is acceptable in the sight of God, being all-powerful, all-conquering, all-victorious, and there is no substitute for real prayer:

Therefore be it Resolved: That Satan, the False Prophet and the Beast (Hell's Trinity) select a deputation of fallen angels to visit the earth and propagate the gigantic lie that there is a substitute for prayer, viz: preaching many sermons, publishing many good books, holding numerous conferences, these things taking the place of real prayer.

Demon No. 6 then offered an amendment to the substitute, as follows: After the words, "taking the place of real prayer," add "which is communion with God."

The amendment to the substitute was put and carried.

The substitute as amended was put and carried by an immense host of the damned; and in ten seconds the deputation appointed by Satan, the False Prophet and the Beast, had left for Earth, cleaving the murky gloom with their somber wings, firing into the hearts of men the most effective bolt ever forged in hell, viz: there is a substitute for prayer!

UNBELIEF.

REV. J. W. COMBS.

"But with whom was he grieved for forty years? With them that believed not." Heb. 3:17-18.

God had gloriously delivered the Hebrews from Egyptian bondage. Leaving old Egypt behind they had followed the pillar of cloud and fire through the Red Sea across the wilderness, and camped on the border land of Canaan. Now this goodly country was theirs by inheritance. God promised it to Abraham and his seed forever. Canaan was their destination when they left the land of bondage. Surely it was never God's will or plan for them to spend 40 years in the wilderness. Then why must they die in this wilderness? Let the Hebrew writer tell us. Heb. 3:19.

So we see they could not enter in because of unbelief. How sad. They were not kept out of the promised land by the armies of Egypt, nor the kings and mighty giants of Canaan. They began to doubt. May we illustrate. Let someone enter a home of peace, plenty, and happiness, husband and wife perfectly mated, no cloud has ever cast a shadow over their matrimonial skies, but alas—some agent of hell succeeds in injecting a doubt in the mind of the husband, he doubts the fidelity of the one he has loved as his own life. Fear, dread and suspicion creep into his mind. Alas—there is no more peace or joy for that man or his home. The wife is still innocent and pure but a lie, a doubt, a suspicion, lack of faith, unbelief, that's all. Yet there are a number of people in the world and plenty of them in the churches who put up the puerile, pitiful argument that it makes no difference what we believe, just as long as we live right. I want to say here that I have never seen a person living right that did not believe right. We cannot possibly be right in our living and wrong in our thinking. It seems to be quite popular these days even among so-called preachers of righteousness to criticize creeds and certain ones who still insist that we must believe God's blessed Word in order to be saved.

In John 8:24, Jesus said, "Except ye believe that I am he, ye shall die in your sins." The Master had just declared himself to be the Son of God, and not a son of God, as some of our modern half-baked infidels would say.

It is not the criminals and cut-throats of our land that are paralyzing the church and sapping our spiritual strength. It is the lack of real vital faith among the professing children of God. So help me God, I would just as soon be a Judas betraying my Lord for thirty pieces of silver as parading around over the country pretending to lecture or preach and, at the same time, scattering seeds of this soul-wrecking unbelief, damning multitudes of immortal souls. I think Judas will be as safe in the day of judgment as that class of people. We are told in holy writ, that "Abraham believed God and it was accounted to him for righteousness." We think of Moses, Samuel, Daniel, and all the prophets; their bodies are dead, their tongues are silent, yet they still speak to us because they were men of faith. They revered God's holy law and believed his every promise.

Following in the tracks of those mighty men, we are led into the New Testament with all its beauty and glory. Here we see faith sounding the depths, scaling the heights, pulling down the strongholds of Satan and building the church of God on the ruins thereof. This work was carried on by common, uncultured men who followed Jesus, and yet they were made uncommon and irresistible by the mighty Baptism of the Holy Ghost. "They subdued kingdoms, wrought righteousness, stopped the mouths of lions, quenched the violence of fire, and put to flight the armies of the aliens." We cannot think of the Reformation without thinking of the lion-hearted reformer, Martin Luther. What was it that made him great in the eyes of men and such a wonderful instrument in the hands of God? It was certainly not his broadness or tolerance. Thank God, he was cast in a different mould than many of the modern liberals. He had faith. We cannot close without mentioning the great and good Wesley, yet some even try to class him with some of the liberals who believe nothing. The world is in an awful condition. Many are groping in sin and darkness. Shall we give them light or twilight? Preach a positive gospel or a string of suppositions and guesses?

If men cannot believe God's Holy Word, then let them keep still and not try to damn the whole human race by preaching doubts and questioning God's precious truth. God hasten the day when we shall hear from every pulpit and platform the eternal truth of God calling men to blood-bought redemption, and to a Christ who is able to save to the uttermost.

"In his daily life that Christian is a veritable spiritual diamond." "Who? Me?" If not, why not?

GLEANINGS FROM THE EVANGELISTIC FIELD

RANGOON, BURMAH.

Dear Friends of The Herald Family:

Throughout the past month we have been moving more swiftly. Since the time for the remainder of our trip is so short and the important fields of India and Africa are still before us, we are only touching the most colorful and interesting areas which lie between in North China and India.

Our boat was six hours late arriving in Hongkong because of dense fog. We found Brother Reiton of the Peniel Mission pacing up and down the dock, praying. He had been there for hours, and our late coming made it impossible for us to hold a service which he had arranged. It is a most unusual thing to find a man who will pray instead of complain when so inconvenienced. Though faced with trying difficulties, the Peniel work at Hongkong has been marvelously prospered of God.

The next day we went on to Macao, the Portuguese settlement where Robert Morrison established the first Protestant Mission in China. Most impressive were the ruins of an old cathedral, lifting its shattered bulk above the press of business and dwelling structures. Plainly above it, "Towering o'er the wrecks of time," stood the corroded iron cross, which inspired Bowring to write the words of, "In the Cross of Christ I Glory."

Macao has been the victim of a degenerated Catholicism since its establishment. It is well termed the Monte Carlo of the East; saturated with the blood of countless gambling and robber tragedies, strangling in the venomous coils of a thriving opium traffic, fouled with government sanctioned prostitution, and rotting with political corruption. Over this putrid reign of iniquity, watch the prelates of Rome with fiendish jealousy, gorging their licentious souls with the income of accumulated wealth and numerous concubines; so successfully wielding the barbed iron rod of eternal excommunication and temporal black list that their poor down-trodden subjects dare not even come to the meetings to hear the life-giving truth of the gospel of Christ. What a disfiguring blot upon the records of the Christian Church! What a crucifixion of the Son of God, to place his holy name at the head of an institution which fosters such wanton disregard of every principle of right and righteousness.

We praise God for the persistent endeavors of Brother John Galloway and his co-laborers, of the Southern Baptist Church, to lift the Cross to its rightful place as a symbol of holiness, by leading those who dared to think for themselves on the subject of their soul's salvation, into a real spiritual experience. Needless to say we found Macao to be a hard field for a revival. We are glad to report that the Spirit was faithful, the truth went home and a few sheaves were gleaned. May God grant that such a wave of spiritual power will sweep over this needy place that multitudes of these fettered souls will lose their fear of man long enough to make their peace with God. Pray for Macao.

From Macao we went to Manila. This part of the tour was included in our round the world tickets without extra cost, so that, though we could spend only five days there, the trip proved to be surprisingly worth while. We had written to some former Asburians stationed in the Philippines, but the letters failed to reach them, and we knew no one in Manila. However, God marvelously opened so many doors that we were kept busy with student meetings. We were deeply impressed with the ripe opportunity presented by these attractive young people. Though the majority of them are Catholic, in every service they sat almost entranced, drinking in every word. We have nowhere encountered an apparent greater hunger for the gospel. They begged us to stay longer and even offered us financial remuneration if we would return when their schools opened in June. As we journeyed back to Hongkong we felt refreshed by the warm, affectionate confidence with which we had been received.

From Hongkong we went on to Canton for four days, prior to sailing for India. Here we renewed our happy fellowship with the Oriental Missionary Society group which we met last summer. They put us to work with three services a day and we were stimulated by the renewed life and zeal for souls found among them. They have opened three new missions which all seem to be booming with success. The altar space in these halls was far too small to accommodate the throngs who came to seek Christ at the night services. Praise God.

Yours in him,
Asbury College Foreign Missionary Team,
Crouse, Erny, Kirkpatrick.

MISSIONARY TOUR.

Dear Friends in America: We have just been in silent prayer and are now sitting on the top of Calvary, above a steep precipice called "a skull." This precipice from a short distance looks like a skull, with two caves or deep recesses that resemble eyes and beneath a larger cave representing the mouth. This is known as "Gordon's Calvary," near the "Garden," where the precious body of our Lord lay. Jerusalem is full of superstition, but it seems quite certain that these two places are genuine.

But I started to write about our conventions, for we have put soul saving before sight seeing. We left Hongkong Feb. 3rd and arrived in Port Said March 1st, nearly one month on the water. Though our ship stopped six times en route, it was a relief to finally escape from the drinking and gambling of a lot of French soldiers and lewd women. We faced a quart bottle of wine every time we sat down to eat. However we let our light shine, and a few felt reproved and appreciated us. Incidentally we saved $100 each, as this French line gives 20 per cent off to ministers and missionaries.

After disembarking at Port Said we hurried to the Peniel Mission where a packed house of people were waiting to hear us. They are doing a great work among the children, especially girls. Over 300 are in the school, many being Moslems. They broke down and wept as we wept over them. Yes, the Gospel still has power to melt prejudice and superstition.

Next we sped "up south" nearly 400 miles along the fertile Nile Valley to Assiout, where we were to assist in the annual Convention of the "Holiness Movement of Canada." Here we found a radical work with Rev. J. C. Black and his co-workers as leaders. They have nearly fifty native preachers who are about as plain and spiritual as can be found anywhere. Think of it! Right in the heart of Egypt, (near Luxar, the tombs of the Kings) a red-hot bunch of Egyptians, sticking to the old radical track! We were happily surprised and convinced afresh that where the leaders are plain and on fire the natives will catch the flame.

Here we had a new experience—crowds too large. The big tent, seating nearly 5000 had to be opened up on Sunday for the overflow. No room for altar services, so we stood with uplifted hands and prayed, wept and shouted so that it could be heard "afar off." O, how we felt like remaining and working where hungry hearts by the hundreds press forward to a place of prayer. But this was the case in the Orient. Good bye America!

At present we are preaching in the "Holy City," where there is less holiness than in Chicago. O, the hate, skepticism and superstition that fills the air! If ringing of bells, burning of incense, wearing beards and long hair, and praying in the streets four times daily constitute religion, then Jerusalem is the place. But sad to say, here they have religion without Christ. We weep and groan in view of the desolation. But thank God a few are really hungry. It is encouraging to see Armenians, Moslems, Hebrews, Latin Catholics, Greek Catholics and others kneel side by side seeking peace. We counted fifteen different denominations in our service the other night. This is the seed sowing time in Palestine but a harvest is sure to follow.

From here we go to Rome, then to the London Convention. After this we have a number of urgent calls in England and Scotland. O, to be twelve men! We must cancel some of these calls in order to reach Cincinnati in time for the great camp meeting, May 29. But the entire family expect to return to England in the fall and from thence to South Africa.

Yours to be clean channels for a "clean work."
E. E. Shelhamer and Son.

LETTERS OF TRAVEL.

Tilden H. Gaddis.

After steaming through the Dardanelles past old castles of the Sultans and Alydos whither Leander swam the channel nightly from Sestos to meet his lover Hero, past the French and British monuments to the dead of the World War, our vessel saluting each with three long blasts, on by Gallipoli around which was some of the bloodiest fighting and where British submarines were effectively engaged, winding among the islands of the sea of Marmara, we enter the strange harbor of Istanbul or old Constantinople. Linked with two seas and two continents with a background of rugged walls and battlements and shrub-grown towers and the old palace of the Sultan, and circled by the Golden Horn, it remains the fascinating and beautiful. We glide among myriad craft of every type and nation, narrow cushioned row boats, swift motor launches, gaily painted caiques, and lumbering barges like oxen of the sea around which dolphins play in the bay waters and petrels in great swarms fly low over the surface, but never touch the water. Moslems say they are the souls of Mohammedans who turned Christian flying restlessly. Gulls wheel above us, ferry sirens shriek, the roll of the city mutters, the hospital where Florence Nightingale became the angel of the Crimea and the Red Cross was organized, looms up on Asiatic shore. Great domes of mosques are at the left of us and a brilliant array of modern buildings at the right typify the fact that here East and West meet. Here starts a railway over continent and channel to London; there pants an engine that will carry you through Asia-Minor to Bagdad and by bus and boat to India.

This dwelling of the gods, once the queen city of Christendom and now the beating heart of Islam, with a long, dark, bloody history, and today "the sick man of Europe," walls, tombs, mosques and monuments guide us back to a weird past. Two teachers from the American Roberts College told us many interesting facts. When the last census was taken they commanded everyone to remain indoors till counted, after which a cannon boomed at ten o'clock at night informing the people it was finished.

We find first and second class street cars, porters of bone and muscle with wooden saddles carrying two or three men's loads, veiled women, beggars, windows full of "sweets" and advertising "Turkish Delight," the world famous candy.

There are 379 Mohammedan mosques; the Muezzin climbs to the balcony of the minaret five times a day calling the faithful with this exhortation, "God is Great" (4 times). "I bear witness that there is no God but God" (2 times). "I bear witness that Mohammed is the apostle of God" (2 times). "Come to prayers, Come to prayers, Come to salvation, Come to salvation, God is great. There is no other God but God." So we enter the Santa Sofia said to be the most beautiful and most perfect church yet erected by any Christian people, restored by Justinian and dedicated in 527. It passed to the Catholics for a period and became a mosque in 1453. For its adornment all the provinces of the empire were stripped and 10,000 workmen engaged. Something strikes us as we behold the great crowd, for it is a sacred fast day and as the priest leads the prayer, they bow, then kneel, then go down on their faces and oh, such prostrations, moans and groans, all toward Mecca, the holy city of the Prophet's birth. Commanded to pray five times a day and washing hands, face, ears, arms to elbow, and feet to ankles, the washing fountains are in every mosque. Women remain in the rear and separate from the men. One must remove shoes or wear big slippers, which are furnished. O, the efforts of this old world to try to wash out the blot of sin.

The harem where the Sultan's mother rules had great outside baths and an esplanade where girls danced and eunuchs performed before the Sultan. Wonderful marble baths of three rooms, first w.a.m., second steam, and third the tub arranged to produce the sound of the ocean so one would imagine they were at the seaside. In the dining room at a silver table a mirror in the ceiling above and one below gave the Sultan a complete view of the room as protection against an enemy from behind, also the food came from the doctor's examination and the silk around it signifying it was safe. In the Sultan's bed room was a device to imitate the roar of the ocean to lull to sleep. The great festal hall of the harem is magnificent.

On the site of the old hippodrome where 40,000 federals were slaughtered at one time is the obelisk of Theodosius, and beyond it the burnt column of Constantine which they tell you contains part of the cross, a nail used in the crucifixion and some of the bread used in the miracle of feeding the 5000, another example of the pious fraud practiced through Europe and the Orient. The love of the tourists' money is the root of many evils in the name of religion.

The Imperial Museum should be mentioned, for here we see the Siloam inscription, one of the oldest known, describing the building of a long water tunnel under the city of Jerusalem, and the Jerusalem steel from the old temple which Herod built in Jerusalem, a stone warning all Gentiles under pain of death, not to enter the Temple's inner court. It is the only piece of writing in the world which we are sure Jesus read, and one reads it with curious awe. Here he, at the age of 12, talked with doctors and lawyers. Also the sarcophagus of Alexander the Great is a wonder.

But it cannot all be told of this old heathen city steeped in Mohammedanism. Our little Indian guide talked of the coming of Jesus as gloriously as any Christian, and how he would reign above all others, and yet deny the blood atonement. They make much of God and Moses and David and Jesus but their mistake is to try to get to God and yet ignore the work of the Holy Spirit.

Walking the side streets full of dogs, children, wagons, bicycles, peddlers, pack animals, camels, porters, autos and carts, looking into shops, homes and faces, one saw the real life, and such a life it is! Dirt and sin, and no hope, and no God that can deliver.

REVIVAL ECHOES.

Since I have neither had my slate nor a report in The Herald for sometime I come again to greet you. This conference year has been quite a busy one for me to this present date. I have held eight revivals, which have been fruitful in the salvation or sanctification of souls. We have had the pleasure of laboring with some splendid pastors who have the interests of their churches at heart. The itinerary of our work to present includes: The Methodist Church, Hazel Green, Ky.; First Nazarene Church, Columbus, Ohio; Methodist Church, Royalton, Ohio; Nazarene Church, Lithopolis, Ohio; Eastern Avenue Mission, Covington, Ky.; Methodist churches at Olive Hill, Ashland, and Berea, Ky., respectively. I praise God for the victories he gave us in these fields of labor—hundreds of souls saved or cleansed through the blood of Jesus. I am also happy to note that others in the field have been enjoying fruitful labors. May God richly bless the church at large and renew her spiritual fervor throughout her bounds.

Yours in the Faith,
B. G. Carnes.

It has never been our purpose to confine ourselves to any one doctrine of Holy Writ. No religious teacher should do so. There is a system of teaching in the Holy Scriptures so united, interwoven and connected with each other, that each should have its proper consideration, and given its appointed place in the structure of Christian theology which proposes to meet all the wants of mankind by the adequate provisions of grace and truth so abundantly set forth in the Scriptures.

We have come to a peculiar period in the history of the church. Worldliness abounds. There is great spiritual dearth. The world has largely broken into the church. It is safe to say that millions have been received into the churches without true repentance, the broken heart and the contrite spirit. They have never been regenerated by the power of the Holy Ghost. They do not believe that a state of heart purity is possible. They resent any suggestion that they should seek to be cleansed from all sin, to be wholly sanctified by a gracious baptism with the Holy Ghost.

This flood of unregenerated people that have poured into the church, and brought their worldly living with them, has furnished a most excellent soil for the sowing of modernistic doctrines that are destructive to Christian faith and to spiritual life. The results are most startling. It has come to pass that large institutions of education and seminaries providing the young ministry for the church, are sending out well equipped and shrewd skeptics to destroy the faith. In many instances a faithful preacher of the gospel is not acceptable to congregations of educated and well-to-do people, who have been under the influences of these false teachers.

Whatever our optimistic view may be we have come upon a period when the species of infidelity which destroys evangelical faith, has come to have powerful influence, in fact, large control in churches which were once evangelical and wielded gracious spiritual influences for the salvation of souls. Vast multitudes are losing faith in the Bible as an inspired Book. Any one who does not recognize this fact is unacquainted with existing conditions.

In writing these chapters on "The Restoration of Israel to Palestine" we have a purpose far more important than entertainment of our readers. The prophecies contained in the Old Testament Scriptures offer a splendid and abiding proof that the men who wrote the prophecies were inspired by the Holy Ghost. St. Peter expresses this fact most admirably. He says, "Knowing this first, that no prophecy of the Scriptures is of any private interpretation. For prophecy came not in old time by the will of man: but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost."

It is most fortunate that just at this time, when such persistent attacks are being made upon the Bible, that prophecy is being fulfilled before our very eyes. We are writing these chapters on the Restoration of Israel to stir up our readers to search the Scriptures, to believe them, to pray, to give themselves to earnest and diligent effort to bring on revivals of religion to save the lost, and to fix themselves unmoveable in a steadfast faith in Jesus Christ as a personal Saviour, and his glorious appearing; and while they work, to watch and keep themselves unspotted from the world.

Things We Ought to Think About No. 2.

HERE is what the layman said; what he said impressed me. It made me think, and I pass it on to you. The layman said: "We have a splendid church edifice, a very large financial investment.

We have a great organ, an expensive choir. We have a highly educated and eloquent pastor. We have quite a body of people employed, at good salaries, to assist the pastor. We have a large church membership. We have great Sunday morning congregations. We have an immense budget; we are raising money for one cause or another the entire year; often the pressure is put on strong. Some of the people complain seriously at the heavy church tax. I attend all of the services; we have small congregations on Sunday evening, and a small prayer meeting Wednesday evening.

"I have been a member of this church many years, have seen the pastors come and go, and do not suppose any one man knows the entire membership quite so well as myself. I am almost positive that we have not had a real conversion, I mean some one born again, a regeneration by the power of the Holy Spirit, in this church for years, say five years. I'd as well say ten or fifteen years. We never think of having a revival and putting forth strenuous effort to win souls to Christ. If our pastors have had such thought they have not communicated it to the people. Some of us wonder what we exist for. It begins to look as if the one general purpose of our existence is to raise money to support officials, pastors, superintendents, bishops, secretaries and their group of employees. I am troubled over it, and I am not the only layman in our church who is disturbed, and wondering what is going to be done about all this at the judgment day? As pastors, officials and people, are we accomplishing the supreme purpose of the church?" You might think about this.

WHAT A PASTOR SAID TO ME.

"I am not willing for the Seventh Day Adventists to interpret the New Testament teaching of the second coming of Christ to my people. I am not willing for modernistic skeptics to interpret the problem of sin, the deity of the Lord Jesus, and the plan of salvation to my people. I am not willing for the tongues people to interpret the Bible doctrine of sanctification to my people. I am not willing for the Christian Scientists to interpret the doctrine of divine healing to my people. These are important doctrines of the Bible. I feel that God has called me to preach, and it is my duty to instruct my people clearly on these subjects, and to root and ground them in the truth so they will not be carried about by every wind of doctrine. I find if I do not do so my people will somehow, here and there, hear false and fanatical teachings on these subjects, be damaged, and some of them carried away, my church loses them and, worst of all, by and by find themselves lost in a maze of false teaching. I do not want to be interfered with by the authorities in my church when I undertake to bring to my people the clear teachings of the Bible on these subjects."—You might think about that, if you wish. I can see how this pastor was a bit disturbed and concerned about his flock. Every sort of teaching is in the air; it pervades every city and spreads abroad to village and country. It is a fine thing for the pastor to get his people so established that they cannot be drawn away by false teaching of any kind, however plausible it may appear.

WHAT A YOUNG MAN SAID TO ME.

"I belong to the Epworth League of my church. I attend Sunday evening meetings. I go to the annual conventions; I meet with many young people. I enjoy these meetings, and am fond of our Epworth Leagues; but I see little evidence that the vast majority with whom I come in contact have ever been born of the Spirit, or have any conception of spiritual life, and the high obligations involved in a profession of faith and church membership. They have their meetings, their programs, their conventions, weiner-roast picnics and much that is interesting, and in a way, innocent, but it is a rare thing that I meet with one who has a knowledge of the forgiveness of sins, and the impartation of a new life. This is a serious matter with me."

Now there is something to think about, especially for pastors. What is to be done about it? Shall we let it go? You may think about this.

WHAT ANOTHER PASTOR SAID TO ME.

"Our city is growing. People are constantly moving into the city from the towns and villages; many of them are Methodists. With the new members I bring into my church from this influx, Decision Day, and the round-up at Easter, I can easily keep up my church membership and do not need to have a revival."

The dear man seemed to feel no concern about the multitudes all about his church who were not only unsaved, but were going astray from God into deeper sin, and becoming a menace to the peace of the city, masses of whom are drifting into a state of lawlessness and, by and by, will make a mob power almost, if not quite, beyond control. Should not the city churches wield a tremendous influence and be constantly winning out of the world genuinely regenerated souls that will grow into strong men and women, and count in the salt that would permeate the city for righteousness, and light that would illuminate the moral and spiritual life of that part of the city in which they have their residences? Our great cities are becoming a problem. They are getting almost beyond control, and are wielding a powerful influence over smaller towns, villages and communities. Every pastor of every city church ought to be a dynamo of spiritual power, who ought to arouse his church to the task of bringing the people to Christ.—You may think about this!

Look to the east, the dawning of the glory is near. Your Guide is good company and knoweth all the miles and the ups and downs in the way.—Samuel Rutherford.

Georgian Has Plan to Stop Bootlegging

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 14. (AP)—Bootleggers would be automatically put out of business, Victor Lamar Smith, Atlanta Bible teacher, said tonight, if the liquor consumers in the United States were allowed to import their supplies under government supervision from foreign countries. Mr. Smith spoke before the Atlanta Lawyers' club. He estimated liquor consumers as numbering more than 5,000,000. Such a plan would preclude the possibility of a return to the open saloon, Mr. Smith said.—From Daily Press.

At last report Mr. Smith was still running at large, but had not become violent. He is generally regarded as a good meaning man, but no doubt, he is in need of absolute mental rest.

PEOPLE BELIEVE WHAT THEY ARE TAUGHT.

HIS week we present a picture of a group of students at Asbury College who are preparing for the ministry. I do not believe for soul, body, mind and purpose, they can be surpassed in the world. Quite a number of the young men in this group are college graduates and are taking their B. D. Course in the Theological Seminary, while others will enter the Seminary when they shall have graduated from college.

Almost every one of these young men will need financial assistance, more or less. There is no better way to invest some of the Lord's money which he has entrusted to you, than to assist some of these young men in their preparation to go out and preach a full gospel. Look them over, and pray God to bless them, and that they may win tens of thousands of souls to Christ. Clip out the pledge slip, put down the amount you are willing to give each year for five years, and send the slip to Mrs. H. C. Morrison, Box 592, Louisville, Ky. Make it a thousand, five hundred, two hundred and fifty, one hundred, seventy-five, fifty, twenty-five, ten, five or one dollar per year for five years.

If, in the love of God, human souls and a full gospel every one would do their level best we could soon have in Asbury Theological Seminary the largest group of young men who are preparing for the ministry in or around the world. Get on your knees; lay the picture of these young men before you, thank God for them, pray for them, then do your best to help the Lord Jesus spread the gospel of full salvation unto the uttermost parts of the earth.

This is a wonderful group of young men, full of life, faith in Christ and love for immortal souls. There is no way to estimate the souls they may win, the good they can do under the guidance and power of the Holy Ghost. It would seem that every man and woman in the land who believes in the Bible doctrine of holiness would be delighted to help prepare these men for a full salvation ministry.

There is most urgent need of the deepening of the spiritual life of the church, of a powerful call to repentance and saving faith in Christ, but this urgent need can be met only by messages from the lips of Spirit-filled men. For Christ's sake, for the love of human souls, help us to help the Lord in this great work.

We shall be glad to get your slip with the amount you feel the Lord would have you give, by May 20. Our young men will be planning for school next September and we wish to know how many of them we can help. This is the Lord's work, and in his name we make this appeal.

Your brother for a full gospel,

H. C. MORRISON.

What most of us need is a grammar—provided it will make the talk of our actions better.

MINISTERIAL STUDENTS AT ASBURY COLLEGE AND SEMINARY

Believing that a Divinely-called, wholly-sanctified, well-equipped, Spirit-nud ministry is one of the greatest needs of our times, and for all time to come, I am glad to make a donation for the upbuilding of the Asbury Theological Seminary at Wilmore, Ky.

For this great work, I promise to give $..... per year for five years, first installment due September 1, 1931. I will join all who are helping in this good work in prayer for the blessing of the Lord to rest upon it.

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS

"THE WINGS OF THE MORNING"

"Don't go Jim," pleaded a pale-faced woman with silvery hair, looking into her sailor boy's face.

"Don't trouble so, mother," answered the boy, somewhat impatiently, "I am old enough to please myself. I tell you, I like the ship, and I like my mates that are to be. Why shouldn't I go?"

"I want my dear boy to please God as well as himself," said the mother gently.

"Come, mother," said Jim, defiantly, "don't talk to me like that; I don't want religion thrust down my throat. It's just because I get such a lot of it that I've entered my name on the books of 'The Wings of the Morning.' Shan't get much of it there, I'll be bound."

The widow sighed deeply. It made her heart ache to hear Jim's reckless talk, but had she known it, the young fellow's flippancy was more assumed than real, to hide an uneasy conscience; for Jim could not get over his mother's prayers, and lovely, patient Christian life and example. Her silence was often a reproach to his godless ways, and he foolishly thought if he "turned religious" he would have to let all the joy drop out of his life. So he determined to get away from God and be as good as possible.

Captain Matell, who owned the ship, "The Wings of the Morning," was a very bad man, and well known in the small town where Jim lived. His crew was picked up at the hotels and were his boon companions.

Jim was gone seven months, and his mother daily expected a letter from him. He had a rough time of it on board during his outward voyage, and when in port visited theaters and saloons, and ran riot with the rest of the crew. Of his mother and her God, he seldom thought.

Then came the homeward trip, marked by a fearful storm and accidents.

In the midst of the storm Jim stood on deck, cold, wet and shivering, and death staring him in the face. The captain lay below in his berth with a broken leg, caused by the fall of some ship's spars and heavy cordage. He was threatening and swearing fearfully, and Jim dreaded to go near him.

The mate and three of the sailors had been swept overboard by a heavy sea, and no human effort could be made to save them in such a fearful storm.

The three apprentices and few remaining men were almost helpless, and could only try to obey the captain's orders as he shouted them.

"I pity the day I ever came on her," growled one man in Jim's ear as he went to obey the captain's orders.

"Oh, why did I come?" groaned Jim, as the ship lurched dangerously.

He went below, and groped his way to his little trunk. Death seemed near, and his thoughts flew to his mother, and her God. Why had he neglected prayer? How unfit he was to die! How could he meet God?

"I can't pray. Where is my Bible? I wish I could find it," he said, as he groped about with his cold fingers.

He had never opened the Bible since he left home; but now he seemed to hear his mother's loving voice, and see her sweet, reproachful face, as she said, "Jim, my boy, don't forget to read God's Book. It will help you in time of trouble."

Surely this was a time of great trouble. He got the Book, opened it under the swinging lamp and read, "If I take the wings of the morning, and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea; even there shall thy hand lead me, and thy right hand shall hold me" (Ps. 139:9, 10). Strange, strange words! Had God really spoken them from Heaven with a voice of thunder into Jim's ears, they could scarcely have come to his soul and taken hold of his understanding more completely.

"The wings of the morning!" God had heard the impious words! God knew he wanted to get away from the sound of his name. "In the uttermost parts of the sea," the hand of God had found him.

Down on his knees, unheeding storm and tempest, in the agony of deep conviction, poor Jim fell.

"O God, have mercy! God forgive me! Thou hast found me" came from his lips.

All around him the storm raged, but he did not hear it; his name was called, but he did not heed; and the angels said to one another, "Behold he prayeth."

Far away in a little English cottage a silver-haired mother was praying that God would save her sailor boy, and he was answering her prayer of faith. In "the uttermost parts of the sea," God had found and was leading her wayward boy.

So "The Wings of the Morning" did work for God that the captain knew not; and weeks after, when she arrived in port, Jim's mother heard the story; and she is now telling it to you. —Sel.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you move over and give a Texas girl room? I am twenty years old and am five feet, ten inches tall, have auburn hair and gray eyes and fair complexion. Who can guess my middle name? It begins with S and ends with E, and has seven letters in it. I am not a Christian but hope some day to be. I am glad so many of the cousins are Christians. Who can guess my middle name?

Julia Moore.
Rt. 1, Box 77, Glen Rose, Tex.

Dear Aunt Bettie: As I don't see many letters from Missouri and not any from "The Ozark Region" will try to say a few words. I love Jesus with all my heart. I'm saved and sanctified and am trying every day to do the whole will of God. The Lord only knows what a help The Herald is to me. I read it all, but Bro. Ridout's articles are very interesting and instructive. Gleanings from the Evangelistic Field come next in my estimation. I guess its because I love missionary work so well.

We live in the rural district and they have church here only twice a month so we must get our soul food elsewhere. We also read God's Revivalist, and other religious papers. We lived in Wichita, Kan., two years and always attended the Beulah Park camp meeting. At the camp one year I saw Dr. Morrison and Aunt Bettie, and heard Dr. Morrison preach several sermons. Will never forget his sermon on the "Holy Ghost." Up to that time I only had a vague conception of who the Holy Ghost was. I remember Dr. Morrison said, "Do not speak of the Holy Ghost as 'it,' address him as 'he.'" Oh, that we had more preachers like Dr. Morrison that had the experience and would preach the gospel of full salvation, freedom from all sin. Jesus came to save the lost from their sins and not in their sins.

Since living here I've wondered why the holiness churches don't get out and preach the gospel of full salvation in new territories. I mean here in the United States. The people in this part of the state don't know much about holiness. Many have never even heard of the Free Methodist, Nazarene or Friends churches. They have Methodist churches here but I don't know of any that teach sanctification as a second definite work of grace. I think I know something of what I speak as I've taught three terms of school and have had occasion to be around over the country quite a bit.

We had a revival here this fall with 93 conversions. Some of the most earnest seekers and the hardest praying I ever saw. One boy prayed until his nose bled, but he was blessedly saved and got up with a shining face. But they have no one to lead them on into the deeper things of God. It wasn't two weeks until a Baptist preacher got up and declared we could not live above sin. It only makes me pray all the more that God will send us someone to preach a full salvation, and I believe he will undertake for us. Pray with me that God's will be done. I'm a young married woman and have two little girls, one four and one seven years old. Would love to hear from some young married woman or girls about my age. I'm not yet thirty. Would love to tell you something about our wonderful country but my letter is getting too long. The Ozarks is truly a wonderful playground where one can worship God and enjoy real nature. Come and see. Mrs. Howard Blankenship.

Alton, Mo.

Dear Aunt Bettie: May I join your happy band of boys and girls? I am eleven years old and in the fifth grade. My teacher is Mrs. Phillips. I have light hair and blue eyes. We belong to the Friends Church but as there is none close enough for us to attend we go to the M. E. Church. Bro. Lackey is our pastor. We think he is sure fine. My first name is a Bible name; it begins with D and ends with H, and has seven letters in it. Who can guess it? I love the Lord. As this is getting rather long I'll close with love to Aunt Bettie and all the cousins.

D. Ruth Knowles.
Rt. 2, Logan, Okla.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let an Oklahoma boy join your band? I am nine years old, have light hair and gray eyes. I am in the third grade. I have to walk two miles and a half to school. We go to the M. E. Church. My Sunday school teacher is Mrs. Hudson. I sure do like her for a Sunday school teacher. Our pastor is Bro. Lackey. We like to hear him preach. I have a little sister three years old named Eula Bernice. My dog's name was Ring. A car ran over him and killed him. I sure miss him. I hope to see this letter in print. We take The Herald and I enjoy reading page ten, especially.

Frank Knowles.
Rt. 2, Logan, Okla.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I am one of your grown-up nieces but I enjoy page ten very much and would like to be admitted for a little chat. I visited you over two years ago and made some real friends, but when it comes to friends one can't have too many, so I would like to make some more. I am trying to live right though I get rather discouraged with myself sometimes. I want to know my Saviour better. I know he is the best friend we can have. I am a Methodist and I love to go to Sunday school and church. The Grant brothers from Asbury College held a revival here about four years ago and they surely could preach. I live in the "Land of a Million Smiles," the Ozarks. I am a country girl and I love nature, music, books and flowers. I love to picnic on the river and climb the hills, just seeing how beautiful everything is and listening to a chorus by the sweetest of musicians, the birds. Are there any cousins in Montana? I used to live there and would like to hear from there, and just anywhere. I like to get letters. I must leave some space for the other cousins or I won't be welcome the next time.

Bertha Provow.
Congo, Mo.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Would you admit a twelve-year-old Georgia girl into your happy circle? I wrote about two years ago. I live in a good community. There are two prayer meetings at school houses every Sunday night except the fourth. Then both meet at the Methodist Church. Every Wednesday night there is one at the Baptist Church. The children take as much part as the grown ups. Their service is held at the beginning of the service. They pray and testify and then the others have their service. My pastor is Rev. C. F. Barton. Gay M. Bolt. I guess your middle name to be Marie. Will appreciate all letters.

Mildred Landrum.
Stapleton, Ga.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a little Kentucky girl join your happy band of boys and girls? I am a little girl eleven years old. I have blue eyes and light hair. I had a little playmate the same age and her birthday was the same day, but she moved away. My birthday is Jan. 11. I have a brother thirteen; our birthday is the same day. I have a sister six. My father is a Methodist preacher. I go to Sunday school. I have not missed a day from school, so my teacher is going to give me a pencil

Martha Allen.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let me come and visit your page ten again? The more I read the more I like it. Aunt Bettie, please to print this as I love you and all the cousins. I want to thank all who prayed for me. I am glad God answered prayer for my healing. On Dec. 14, 1930, God healed my body. Praise his name. Rev. Grace and Harry Cryder and others prayed for me. It was about eleven o'clock that night God healed me. In James 5:14 verse, and in the 15th verse it says: "The prayer of faith shall save the sick, and the Lord shall raise him up, and if he have committed sins they shall be forgiven him." The 13th verse says: "Is any among you afflicted? let him pray. Is any merry? let him sing Psalms." Please pray that God will give me an organ so I can learn to play church songs. I was standing up and God's healing power went from the top of my head to the end of my toes. I have been going to revival meetings for three weeks and didn't miss a night.

Pauline Horner.
Rt. 3, Celina, Ohio.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you move over and make a space for an Oklahoma girl? I have written to The Herald once before and was glad to see my letter in print. Margie S. Hall, I guess your middle name to be Sue. Epsie L. Raney, I guess your middle name to be Lee. Who can guess my middle name? It starts with B and ends with E, and has eight letters in it. I will write to the one that guesses it. Well, I had better close. I hope Mr. W. B. is in a snowdrift and can't get out, when this letter arrives. Love to Aunt Bettie and all the cousins.

Lorene B. Rader.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I guess you remember me writing you once before. I don't know how long it was, but I told you about mama being feeble. Aunt Bettie, mama went to her eternal home Feb. 18, after an illness of twelve days. She had been able to be up all winter but was very weak. I wanted to let you know about her sooner but could not. I am alone with Dad who is seventy-three years old. Mama had suffered a stroke of paralysis; had a skin cancer taken off of her hip and another came to her temple. Mama was born in 1859; was married in 1879. She had six children, four of whom went ahead. Mama was a Christian woman and her last days were heaven on earth. She was conscious all the time. She told me she would have to leave me but was going to rest. It surely is lonely without mama, but the Lord knows best; our loss is her gain. We have enjoyed your paper nearly all my life.

FALLEN ASLEEP

SHEALOR.

In loving memory of our husband and father, Guy French Shealor, who died Oct. 29, 1930, age 39 years.

Our precious loved one has gone up above,
To the land all glorious in sunshine and love;
But oh, how we miss his voice so sweet,
For he has in Jesus fallen sweetly asleep.
How it grieves us to see the empty chair,
With no one in it here nor there;
His frail life was so sweet and tender,
Many fond memories we'll cherish and remember;
His shining face shines out so bright
From far above the sky both day and night.

With angels now he is singing all the time,
Sweet heavenly music and songs sublime;
Beckoning us bereaved ones to come on high,
To God's great mansion far above the sky.

But sometimes I find myself chasing around,
Wondering where he may be found;
When it sweeps over me in a sickening pain,
I'll never see my husband on earth again.

For he has now gone away to live with the angels,
Yet still I hear his voice so plain,
And feel the clasp of his arms again.
I still feel the kiss of his tender caress,

That I'm sure all the heavenly hosts did bless;
Blessed sweet memories—to forget I never will,

Although God sweetly comforts and whispers, "Be still."
For we will meet him again some day,
If only we hold out faithfully and pray.

We will see our precious one on the other shore,
Where sorrow and weeping and pain are no more.

For now Heaven is sweeter since he is there
In the arms of Jesus our Lamb so fair;

'Tis a thought that soothes our hearts so sore,
'Tis a tie that binds us to Heaven evermore.

His wife and children,
Mrs. Guy Shealor.

TOWSON.

The funeral services of the late Mrs. W. E. Towson of Americus, Ga., were held last Friday morning at the local Methodist Church. Mrs. Towson was the youngest of three children of General Robert Hatton, whose statue is on the public square. She was a native of Lebanon, living here during her childhood, and was a member of the Sunday school of the local Methodist Church. For some eight years of her young womanhood she was assistant in the state library at Nashville, while her mother filled the office of state librarian. It was at the close of that period that she married the Rev. W. E. Towson, who had just graduated at Vanderbilt University, and entered with him into the ministry of the Methodist Church in California, remaining there until the close of 1889, when Mr. and Mrs. Towson went to Japan as missionaries of the Southern Methodist Church, where they labored for nearly thirty years, giving up their work in Japan for health reasons, and locating in South Georgia, where Mrs. Towson died on January 14.

The pallbearers were chiefly sons of some of the old residents who were friends of the Hatton family. The funeral cortege was met at the door of the church by representatives of the local chapter of the U. D. C., who preceded the funeral casket into the auditorium, carrying a draped flag of the Confederacy. Immediately following were the Rev. W. E. Towson, and L. R. Towson, the husband and son of Mrs. Towson, Miss Manie Hatton, a sister, of Nashville, the only surviving member of General Hatton's family. With the family were Miss Myra Thompson of Spring Hill, and Mrs. W. H. Fessenden of Lebanon, cousins of Mrs. Towson's. Miss Manie Towson, an only daughter, a missionary in Japan, was unable to be present at her mother's funeral.

The Confederate flag by the side of General Hatton's statue was at half mast during the progress of the funeral.

The funeral services were conducted by the Rev. George Beale of Nashville, a former pastor of the local Methodist Church and a friend of Mrs. Towson's from her young womanhood. In the pulpit with Mr. Beale were Dr. F. S. Parker of Nashville, and the pastor, the Rev. George A. Morgan, all three participating in the services. The local choir rendered in a very impressive manner, two appropriate hymns. Mr. Beale in his address, in a reminiscential mood, told somewhat of the life and work of Mrs. Towson's grandfather the Rev. R. C. Hatton, and said that with such an ancestry, she couldn't help being a missionary. Impressive references were also made to the life and work of her father and her son. Hatton, all of whom are buried in Cedar Grove cemetery. Mrs. Towson's activity in Christian service in Nashville, and, latterly in South Georgia, besides her many years of most successful service in Japan were dwelt upon at some length. Mr. Beale saying that Mrs. Towson was able, in an unusual degree, to "love people to Christ," and that, as a soul winner, her reward will be large and she will shine in the great hereafter as "the stars forever and ever."

The services were concluded at the grave, the commitment words being read by Mr. Beale and the benediction pronounced by the Rev. T. W. Noland, presiding elder of the Lebanon district.

SHEMWELL.

Mary Alexander Shemwell was born June 5, 1850; was married to W. R. Harris in the year 1871. She professed religion at an early age and lived a true Christian life until March 8, 1931, when she went to Christ whom she loved with all her heart. She was sick only a few days, but bore her suffering with great patience. She was ever ready to speak kind words to her children and friends as they stood by her bedside and tried to comfort her until God saw best to call her home. She left a host of friends and relatives and will be greatly missed by all who knew her, for hers was a character that is not easily forgotten. She leaves her aged husband, three sons, E. L., D. L., Jr., and H. H. Harris, three daughters, Mrs. Mattie Crowder, Mrs. G. B. Crowder, and Mrs. C. D. Driskill, fourteen grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted at her home by Rev. B. W. Thornberry, and the remains were laid to rest in the Mt. Sharon cemetery.

"A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is still,
A place is vacant in our home
That never can be filled.
But as she could no longer stay
To cheer us with her love,
We hope to meet her some sweet day
In the beautiful home above.

Her granddaughter,
Mrs. Walton Boley.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

REV. O. G. MINGLEDORFF, D. D.

Lesson VII.—May 17, 1931.

Subject.—Jesus Enters Jerusalem as King. Luke 19:29-42; 20:45-48.

Golden Text.—He is Lord of lords, and King of kings. Rev. 17:14.

Time.—Sunday before the crucifixion, A. D. 30.

Place.—Jerusalem.

Introduction.—While in Jericho Jesus had set aside, as far as possible, the notion of the people that he was about to establish an earthly kingdom; but when he entered Jerusalem in triumph their hope was revived, and naturally so. Zechariah had said (9:9): "Rejoice greatly, O daughter of Zion; Shout, O daughter of Jerusalem: behold, thy King cometh unto thee: he is just, and having salvation; lowly, and riding upon an ass, and upon a colt the foal of an ass." The prophecy seemed to be fulfilled before their very eyes; and nothing could have been more natural than for his devout followers to conclude that he had come to his crowning day, and that he would resurrect the throne of David, and drive out all their enemies. But they were mistaken. They had yet to learn that he had come to establish a spiritual kingdom, that his was to be a spiritual salvation for lost men rather than earthly salvation from human foes.

That is one of our most difficult lessons. Even to this day we are laboring for an earthly kingdom. Our modern slogan says: "Make the world a good place to live in." No one has any objection to that; but it was never the purpose for which Jesus died. This is a wrecked world. The old ship has floundered on the rocks. The angry waves of sin are beating against her with fury. Christ and his Church are a wrecking crew whose one business is to save as many as possible from the sinking vessel. There will be a kingdom, but not just yet. True, the Church is sometimes termed the kingdom of God, and I have no objection to that use of the term in its proper place; but in a higher, fuller sense the Kingdom Day is coming when Jesus has conquered this earth. He is reigning now, but not in his full glory. Now the war against sin is raging; then the victory will have been won. Now we wear soldier's armor: then we shall be clad in white robes, and wear everlasting crowns of victory. But while we battle we can sing: "Victory ahead, victory ahead! through the blood of Jesus, victory ahead!"

Comments on the Lesson.

29. Bethphage and Bethany.—Bethphage has passed away. We do not know exactly where it was situated; but we understand from the lesson that it was near to Bethany and the Mt. of Olives. Bethany was the home town of Lazarus and his two sisters, Mary and Martha. Their house was a loved resting place for the Master and his apostles. The Mt. of Olives got its name from the fact that it was, in large measure, overgrown with olive trees. Two of his disciples.—Luke does not say which two; but that matters little.

30. The village over against you.—What village. Some have supposed that he sent them to Bethphage. Maybe so; but it is only a guess. It may have been Bethany. Ye shall find a colt tied.—I am persuaded that we have here a supernatural touch. As a mere man Jesus could hardly have known so well about that colt. Whereon yet never man sat.—According to Jewish law an animal that had never been ridden or worked was sacred. Consult Numbers 19:2. Loose him, and bring him hither.—That was rather bold, unless Jesus was, in some sense, a personal friend of the owner.

31. Why do ye loose him?—Jesus anticipated that some one would object to their taking the colt away, which was natural. Because the Lord hath need of him.—I am not quite sure but that passage will read better if translated: "Because his master has need of him." Either will do. The passage indicates that the owner of that colt was not a stranger to Jesus Christ. He may have been a disciple. There is a certain familiarity about the Master's language, no less than a command.

The next three verses need no comment. They simply show the obedience of the two disciples, and the complete correctness of our Lord's knowledge concerning the transaction.

35. They cast their garments upon the colt.—This was in obedience to an oriental custom in honoring great rulers. It signified subjection to, and reverence for, their Master. They were honoring him. They set Jesus thereon.—Another act of honor. He could have mounted the colt in his own strength, but it was true oriental courtesy to assist him in mounting. I do not suppose that the animal was wild, or that it was necessary for them to control it for the Master. It was obedient to its Creator.

36. They spread their clothes in the way.—Their belief in the kingdom of Jesus comes out in all this conduct. They ran ahead of him, and spread their outer cloaks on the roadway, so that the ass might walk upon them. They were paying tribute to one whom they thought was assuming royalty. They were perfectly sincere; and Jesus did not rebuke them, but accepted their homage as his right.

37. The descent of the mount of Olives.—What we term the foot of the mountain. The whole multitude of the disciples.—Not only the apostles, but all who believed in him, who were then present. That was really the day of his triumph. Doubtless many joined in the praises because they thought he was to become their king.

38. Blessed be the King that cometh in the name of the Lord.—This praise was sincere, though it is hardly probable that their words meant to them what they would mean to us. They had but little understanding of the blessed Christ. They were blinded to the spiritual import of their desire for an earthly kingdom. And yet the expression, "Peace in heaven, and glory in the highest," would indicate that they had, at least, some conception of spiritual things.

39. Some of the Pharisees.—They dogged his steps no matter where he went, but always with the meanest motives. One is astonished at the Master's patience in dealing with them. Master, rebuke thy disciples.—They did not use the term Master through any feeling of respect for Jesus. I suppose our word Sir would cover all that they meant. They could not stand to hear the people praising

Jesus Christ for whom they had such profound contempt. Their own depravity sealed their eyes against every noble attribute in him, so much so that they wanted no one to praise him for his wonderful and gracious works. One seldom sees things that are better than he is himself.

40. If these should hold their peace, the stones would immediately cry out.—I am not inclined to take this literally. If such a thing should have taken place, it would—of course—have been a miracle wrought by divine power as a rebuke to the Pharisees. Jesus must have used this expression as indicative of the fact that he has a right to be praised and honored by everything that has come into being through his creative power.

41. He beheld the city, and wept over it.—There is hardly to be found in all the life of the Master on earth a sadder scene than this. He had come to his own, and his own received him not; and now that he is about to die for men, he weeps over the city of Jerusalem, the city that in a few days will be crying for his blood. In the next few verses of this chapter he portrays the dreadful doom that was even then hanging over Jerusalem. It came in A. D. 70 when Titus the Roman sacked the city, and sent its inhabitants into slavery, after murdering till heathen soldiers were satiated on Jewish blood. How glad Jesus would have been to save them from such fearful ruin; but they would not let him. They had crossed the deadline. The hour of doom had arrived.

The passage taken from Luke 20: 45-48, is full of mighty lessons for all time. Places set apart for the worship of Almighty God are sacred, and must not be used for secular purposes. Did you ever think of the horror of advertising all sorts of things on fans in the house of worship on the Lord's day? Sometimes one may see things advertised there, that are very injurious. But to advertise anything for sale there on the Sabbath day is little short of sacrilege. Should Jesus enter such churches, he would make a clean sweep of all such things, and run the advertisers out of the sacred places. "Holiness becometh thine house, O Lord of hosts, forever." What shall we say of preachers who during an Annual Conference smoke all through church auditorium and Sunday school rooms? May God pity them. To say the least of such conduct, they have no sense of the sacredness of God's temple; and they have never yet learned the meaning of the word propriety. We need in America some sense of reverence for sacred things. Amen!

MOTHER'S DAY.

"Mother's Day" will soon be here;
In honor of our mother.
Upon our cheeks will be the tear—
Beside her is no other!

Carnations, red and white, are worn
Upon this annual day,
She hath all our failings borne
And taught us how to pray.

Songs of Mother will be sung;
The speaker's wish: Demosthenes,
Who with his silver tongue
Could his audience please.

Flowers will beautify the church
Upon the tenth of May;
Many who are strangers to church
Will be there on that day.

"When Mother Prayed" the choir sang
With voices filled with tears;
As memories of childhood sprang
Of long forgotten years.

We'll be at church on "Mother's Day"
Forgetful of the morrow;
Some will worship there that day
In joy, others in sorrow.

Mother may have gone on before
To meet her just reward.
"This belongs to you therefore!"
It was the voice of her Lord.

The thought of Mother is a power
To draw us from our sin;
Think of her this very hour
And a new life begin.

The children may be scattered far
From each other today;
But she is their guiding star
In all their work or play.

All honor to mother today!
We love you, Mother dear,
Upon your breast our head we'd lay,
And shed a falling tear.

Rev. W. M. Zimmerman.

THE FRIENDS OF LONG AGO.

I am sitting in the evening
As the shadows gather round;
And the graceful, lofty poplars
Cast their shadows on the ground.
And I'm gazing at the sunset
With its ruddy after-glow,
As I think with tender longing
Of the friends of long ago.

I would love so much to see them,
Hear their voices as of yore;
Feel their friendly, hearty handclasp
As so oft I've done before.
I long to hear the songs once more
We sang so long ago;
As I'm sitting here and looking
At the sunset's fading glow.

Many changes have come o'er me
Since the days of long ago;
There is dimness in my vision
Which I never used to know.
And the tasks that seemed so easy
Have become a burden sore
In a way I never dreamed of
In the busy days of yore.

And the world seems fading from me—
As I journey day by day—
With its glitter and its glamor
And its wealth of vain display;
But for all there's compensation,—
Darkest night precedes the day,
And the rosy rays of sunrise
Drive the shadows all away.

Far beyond the spacious heavens,
Far beyond the sunset's glow,
Is a Land of fadeless beauty
Where the crystal rivers flow.
And I journey to that country
Of a bright unclouded day,
Where the flowers never wither,
And no sunsets fade away.

H. G. Baker.

Last year, though a year of depression the world over, was the best year in the history of this church. Besides building the new church and giving more for the needs of those around us than was given any previous year, we sent over $1,400 to foreign field which was nearly $200 more than any previous year. ## The Mills of The Gods

by DR. C. F. WIMBERLY.

After reading sophisticated novels, sex stories, and tales of pagan glory, one comes with a great deal of delight and satisfaction upon this splendid story of Dr. C. F.
Wimberly—"The Mills of the Gods." As the title implies it is a story of justice and recompense, and reveals in no uncertain manner how God, and not Chance, is ruling the Universe.
The story moves with sure and certain strides, is gripping, worth reading, and the book deserves a wide circulation in this day of lost faith and false values.—JOHN
RICHARD MORELAND, Poet and Critic, Norfolk, Va.

The Ever Open Door

by GEORGE H. MORRISON.

The last book from the pen of this gifted author and preacher. A series of sixty-two addresses. Geo. H. Morrison is well known for his freshness both in thought and expression.

A few of the subjects treated are "The Illusions of Life," "The Surprises of God," "When Everyone Is Against Us," "What To Do With Our Cares," "The Cry For Companionship."

Perhaps one reason for the fascination of this book is the unusual texts that the author uses for his subjects. They are so different and yet so appropriate. The reader continually finds his mind following new trails.

JONAH AND HIS CRITICS.

V. A. Wood.

The whale that swallowed Jonah seems to have been the first to discover that it is hard to keep a good man down. At least Jonah, even in these modern days, seems to pop to the surface occasionally—up for discussion! Jonah's story was long laughed at by infidels on the supposition that there was no such place as Nineveh in existence. But after being buried 2,500 years its walls, streets, dwellings and palaces were uncovered, the discovery coming about because Jonah's name was connected with the very mound beneath which the ancient city lay. Jonah is a historical character, the son of another historical character, Amittai. He lived at Gath-hepher, not far from Nazareth, in the time of Jeroboam II, about 830 B. C., and is mentioned in 2 Kings 14:25. Christ also stands back of Jonah and uses him as a type of his own resurrection. No fact of history is better established than the resurrection of Jesus Christ. We defy an unbelieving world to produce his body. He took it with him when he ascended into heaven in the presence of creditable witnesses who sealed their testimony in martyrdom rather than deny what their eyes had seen and their ears heard. Christ is the final authority concerning Jonah. He was acquainted with him as also with Abraham before he came to this lost world to pay the penalty of its sins.

One very great sin is that of unbelief—unbelief in the face of overwhelming evidence. The Jews were convicted of this sin because they beheld Christ's miracles "wrought by the finger of God" (Luke 11:20) and charged him with being in league with the devil. No wonder Christ exclaimed: "The men of Nineveh shall rise up in the judgment and shall condemn this generation; for they repented at the preaching of Jonas and behold a greater than Jonas is here." (Luke 11:32). He is talking about real men of a real Nineveh who really repented at the real preaching of a real prophet really named Jonas. Who will dare to call Christ a liar or say he did not know what he was talking about? Who, indeed, but wicked men who are dead in trespasses and sins! A repentant heart will have no trouble in believing though a high mind may rebel.

God is vindicating his Word scientifically in these days and under our very noses. The fact that a great fish 45 feet in length, weighing 30,000 pounds caught off the coast of Florida, is known to have swallowed another fish weighing 1,500 pounds and an octopus weighing 400 pounds, leaves scant doubt of its ability to swallow a man weighing 150 to 200 pounds. This should allow Jonah to be a heavy-weight and still slide comfortably through. And if the God who made the fish is not able to keep the man alive inside the fish and to energize him for renewed service when he is cast forth upon the beach he isn't much of a God after all. In fact the fish just mentioned is said to have had live animals in its stomach. One of them lived seven days after its removal. It had lived 39 hours while the fish was being harpooned and five days more while it was dying and no one knows how long it had been swallowed before the harpooning. It is easily believable that Jonah's big fish got into shallow water, as thousands of big fish have been known to do, and beached itself and in its dying agony ejected the contents of its stomach, thus landing Jonah on the shore. The disobedient prophet, humbled by his terrific experience, now yielded obedience to God and pursued his journey to Nineveh, doubtless heralded by advance runners who knew of his marvelous escape. Here the Ninevites, worshippers of the fish-god Dagon, gave him an attentive hearing because he had come to them out of the sea. Jonah's critics will do well to follow the example of the Ninevites—humble themselves and repent.

VICTORY OVER SIN.

By The Editor.

DO you desire abiding peace and rest of soul? Then, watch against sin. Do you want victory over Satan? Then, watch against sin. Do you desire to have power from on high for service, to win souls to Christ, and to wear a starry crown by and by? Then, watch against sin. Do you want to go forth in peace in the morning and lie down with a clear conscience at night, and feel through the waking hours that if Christ Jesus should appear in his glory, you could meet him in triumph? Then, watch against sin.

* * * *

There is no doubt but most of us are in an infantile state in the matter of faith. There is for the average Christian, yes, for the Christian far above the average, much more in the Lord Jesus Christ than most of us have found. Let us be constantly on the upgrade; not in a mental strain, not seeking religious hilarity, but resigning ourselves to the will of God, and learning to take Jesus Christ into all the departments of our life—business, conversation, thinking—and seek to regulate the whole as if we were walking in Christ's visible presence. Let us press on to larger things.

* * * *

It is not best to think and to talk too much of our troubles. By such methods we can make that which is largely imaginary very real, and we can become a burden and bore to our friends, and come to look on the dark side of life. Let us think much of the good things we enjoy, of the wonderful mercies of God, of what we might have been but for his gracious compassion. Let us cultivate Christian cheerfulness and fix our thought on the better days that are coming. When King David was sorrowful he cheered his heart by saying, "Why art thou cast down, oh, my soul? and why art thou disquieted within me? Hope thou in God; for thou shalt yet praise him, who is the health of my countenance, and my God." Let us follow the example of the Psalmist and cheer our souls along the way, keeping our eyes on the glorious future so abundantly promised in God's word, and thus brace and encourage ourselves in the duties of the present hour, however difficult they may be.

* * * *

Perhaps you are discouraged: you have lost in the conflict in life something of the rest and sweetness of perfect love, and you scarcely know what to do; you cannot name your difficulty, you cannot lay your finger on the spot or date when your light commenced to burn low. Suppose you lift up your face to Jesus and talk to him; tell him of the dimness of your light, of your unworthiness and your grief. Tell him that you love and trust him, and would rather die than to be separated from him. Sing songs to him, and then tune your heart with prayer and praise while at your employment.

* * * *

Perhaps you cannot understand yourself; it may be you need not. Sick people do not

If the twenty thousand Methodist preachers in this nation do not consecrate themselves to the bringing on of a deep, widespread revival of religion within the next six months, millions of souls will go into eternal hell, for whose damnation they must answer to God on the day of judgment.

Without such revival the very foundations of our republic are in danger. Such revival would bring to Christ and into the churches, hundreds of thousands of men who would make good citizens, but left in sin, may become demoralized firebrands to blast the nation.

understand themselves but send for a doctor. Do not worry about yourself but send for Jesus, trust in him and rejoice in his all-sufficiency for every time of need. Do not undertake to run with impatience the race, looking backward at your mistakes and blunders, but run with patience, ever looking unto Jesus; there is more mercy and love and power in him than we have ever dreamed. Put all the past under the atoning merits of his blood, take him by the hand, look up with meekness and trust into his face, and be at peace. Go singing on your way,
"My Jesus, I love Thee;
I know thou art mine;
For thee all the follies of sin I resign.
My gracious Redeemer, my Saviour art thou,
If ever I loved thee, my Jesus, 'tis now."

THE FUTURE PUNISHMENT OF THE WICKED.

"And these shall go away into everlasting punishment: but the righteous into life eternal." Matt. 25:46.

There is almost universal belief among men that the body is not the man; but the temporary abiding place of a spirit which will continue to exist after the death and decay of the body.

Not only is this true, but men have generally believed that in some future state the spirit of man must render an accounting to a supreme Being for its conduct while abiding in the body.

Go where you may, seek where you will, you will find temples, altars, images, sacrifices and some kind of incantations, or prayers, all indicating that the people, however ignorant and degraded they may be, are concerned with reference to the future state of their spirits after their bodies shall have succumbed to death.

Men have striven, and striven in vain, to lift the curtain which veils the future, and peer into that state which awaits them beyond the grave. Such efforts have not resulted in any discovery that will satisfy the thoughtful mind.

When God created man he implanted within him the consciousness that he is not simply a perishing body, but an immortal, responsible spirit. In his word God has not failed to give man a clear view of the future state into which he must enter at the time of that incident in his history which we call death.

While divine revelation does not enter into minute details with reference to the future state, the most important facts are made very clear. The Word of God repeatedly and positively teaches that there is to be a separation in the future existence between the righteous and the wicked. Our Lord Jesus brings this fact out very clearly in his teaching on the subject. The wheat and the tares may grow together, but at harvest they are separated, the wheat for the storehouse and the tares for the fire.

In our text we have a very clear pronouncement from our Lord on this subject. The wicked are to go away into everlasting punishment, but the righteous into life eternal. We notice that there is to be a final positive, eternal separation. No more mingling of the wheat and tares; no more association between the righteous and the wicked. St. Peter tells us that Lot was vexed by the filthy conversation, living and conduct of the wicked. How much of the sorrow, burden and distress of the Christian people of this world are brought upon them by the godless conduct, the profane language, the vulgar living of the wicked. That will come to an end. "The wicked shall cease from troubling, and the weary will be at rest."

Our Lord does not only teach us that there will be a separation, but the wicked are to go away into everlasting—notice here—EVERLASTING PUNISHMENT. This positive statement of our Lord Jesus should be emphasized. One of the highest obligations of the preacher of the gospel, and of the testimony and warning of Christians, generally, is to press this fact home, not only upon the mind and consciousness of the sinner, in order to his awakening to repentance and saving faith in Christ; but the church ought to be kept in mind of the fact that the sinful and unsaved about them are on their way to a hell of torment. This thought ought to awaken the church to do all within her power to rescue their sinner friends about them from so fearful a fate.

This subject of the future punishment of the wicked has been, and is being sadly neglected. It should not be neglected. It is an important part of the gospel message; it is plainly written in the Word of God. Our Lord Jesus in his public teaching often referred to the fearful future state of the impenitent wicked. One reason there is such laxness and ease in Zion at the present time, and such fearful wickedness in the world, is the fact that the people are not faithfully warned of what the future holds for those who are living in rebellion against God.

TRAVEL NOTES FROM ECUADOR AND PERU.

Rev. G. W. Ridout D.D., Corresponding Editor.

I have just come down from the mountain regions of Ecuador having preached a week (twice a day) at Quito, the capital city of Ecuador. It is said to be the highest capital city of the world. Thirty years ago it would cost a hundred dollars to make that trip, but now railroad and auto roads make it possible to travel very cheaply. Close to Quito is a volcano (Pichincha) which is a mile higher than Mount Etna. Quito was a town before Christ was born, so they say, and a city has existed here 1,000 A. D. It was the northern capital of the Incas which the Spaniards wiped out in 1534. It is said that the king's house was roofed with gold in those days.

Quito has a Catholic University founded before Harvard. Its convent is said to be one of the largest in the world. It has 66 churches and 1,000 priests for a population of 100,000 people. For twenty years the Protestants have had a church here, but the people are so afraid of the priests that they are slow in coming to the evangelical services; but things are breaking away considerably and the gospel is getting a hearing. The Christian and Missionary Alliance has forty missionaries at work in Ecuador.

Time was when Ecuador was Catholic in politics and that it would involve prison, perhaps death, for any one to start any other religion. Mr. Crisman, of the Alliance, who has been thirty years in Ecuador, was imprisoned two days for refusing to remove his hat and bow to one of their idolatrous processions.

In these South American countries they are great for wearing black as a token of mourning for deceased members of the family; even the little children wear it. I shouldn't be surprised if some of the bishops and priests are not in deep mourning over the way missionaries of the New Testament gospel are getting in on their territory and breaking down Rome's iron gates of superstition, corruption, idolatry and deceit.

Dr. F. G. Carpenter, in his book on "Land of the Andes and the Desert," tells of an Ecuadorian theater with boxes specially fitted up for mourners, by which they can look through the slats of the shutters and see the play without being observed themselves; when in deep mourning they use the slats but after a while the shutters are opened more widely, reminding him of a Chinese custom by which the friends send out white cards at the death of a relative; then a few months later a blue card is sent bearing the words, "Grief not so bitter as before." I think this can be applied to Rome and its priests in South America. They are settling down to the fact that gospel missionaries are here to stay and their "grief is not so bitter as before."

II.

The story of Peru is one of romance, exploitation, invasion, conquest and sin. The Spanish invaders, headed by the heartless, but daring Pizarro who, in the name of the church, the king and the Pope, carried the "gospel of Christ soaked in the blood of the innocent shed for greed of gold." It is a frightful story.

Peru was a land where gold was a plenty. It was a land of sweet and fruitful valleys and terraced hillsides and a climate balmy and delicious, but most marvelous of all, gold was everywhere. Even the pots and pans and kitchen vessels were of gold, but the people did not know the value of gold.

Peru has a coast line of 1,400 miles on the Pacific. Its best harbor is Callao. Peru has been divided into three great zones—the coast zone, the Andine (mountain) zone, and the eastern zone (forests).

Peru had a remarkable civilization independent of the rest of the world. The Incas, who ruled prior to the Spanish invasion, furnish an enigma as to origin. Whether they were offshoots from Egypt, Syria, China, Carthage, Judea or Europe, nobody knows. The Inca dynasty has been variously estimated from four hundred to six hundred years. Pizarro, that Spaniard of conquest and blood, ended the dynasty when he and that rascal priest, Valverde, lied and deceived and killed Atahualpa, the Emperor, in the plaza at Cajamarca, May 3, 1533. This indeed remains a dark and bloody spot upon the page of Spain's history of the New World.

III.

The death by violence of the last Emperor of the Incas in Peru, 1533, was made more sad when one considers the lying and deception involved in it. When Pizarro made Atahualpa, the Emperor, a prisoner, it was done through attempting to ram Christianity down the Incas' throat. The story is told as follows: About the time of the setting sun the Emperor, borne by Indians on a litter richly adorned with silver and gold, approached the Spaniards at the Plaza. He was met by Friar Vicente Valverde bearing a cross and a Bible, who exhorted the Inca to render homage to the Pope, to the God of the Christians and to the Spanish King. He was handed a Bible which he looked at for a moment and then threw it from him. This was enough for the Friar; he began to call in a loud voice to the Spanish soldiers, "Christians, I call upon you to avenge this insult to the faith." With this Atahualpa was seized, trumpets sounded and slaughtering and killing of the Indians began. It is said that two thousand Indians lay dead in the Plaza that night.

When the Emperor of the Incas saw his plight and death confronting him he offered an immense ransom for his freedom. "How much can you give and in what time?" said Pizarro. For reply the captive Emperor reached up at arms length to a white line which ran around the wall of his apartment and swore he would fill it with gold—jars, pots, vases, lumps, nuggets and dust—up to that height. The room was 22 feet long by 17 wide; also he would fill the entire chamber twice over with silver; and all within two months!

Pizarro accepted the offer. Runners were sent to Cuzco ordering them to send 2,000 Indians laden with silver and gold. At last gold, gold, gold, began to arrive and silver in abundance, sixty thousand pesos daily, until the total sum of about three and a half million pounds sterling was brought in—about fifteen millions of dollars worth. This enormous sum was prorated among the Spaniards. The King of Spain got his royal portion first, and then from Pizarro and Valverde down to the humblest Spanish soldier got their share; and then did they let the Emperor go free? No! They charged him with some offence, had a mock trial and put the King in chains. Next, they strangled him in the Plaza May 3, 1533.

From the beginning, Spanish history in South America and the history of the Roman Catholic Church has upon it the hell marks of deceit and lying, corruption and blood—truly the marks of the beast.

IV.

Romanism and the love of filthy lucre (money) always go together. Luther wrote, "All shame is laid aside and one object alone incessantly pursued. Money, evermore, money! so that the very men whose duty it is to teach truth utter nothing but falsehoods, and are not only tolerated but rewarded; because the greater their lies the greater are their gains. Profligacy and avarice go hand in hand. It is the scandal caused by the clergy that plunges so many poor souls into everlasting perdition." Luther further said, "I said formerly that the Pope was Christ's Vicar; now I say that he is the adversary of the Lord and the apostle of the devil."

Romanism and the Bible can never agree. Where in the Bible are we told to pray to the Virgin Mary? or to the saints? Where in the Bible are we told to confess our sins to the preacher or to the priest instead of directly to God? Where is purgatory taught in the Bible? and the way out depend upon the amount of money one pays to the priest? Luther said: "Unless I shall be convinced by proofs from Scripture or by evident reason, I cannot choose but adhere to the Word of God which has possession of my conscience."

V.

When Pizarro was with the Indians in Panama some of the more prosperous made him presents of golden trinkets, etc. When the Indians saw how excited the Spaniards were over such insignificant things one of the Indian chiefs said, "If this is what you prize so much and leave your distant home and risk life itself for, I can tell you of a land where they sit and drink out of golden vessels and gold is as cheap as iron is with you." This stirred the Spaniards onward towards Peru. In Spain they heard such news of the country that they thought the "Sands sparkled with gems, and golden pebbles as large as birds' eggs were dragged in nets out of the rivers." Pizarro risked everything—his home, his fortune, his health, his all—for gold. At Panama drawing a sword he traced a line in the sand from East to West. "Friends and comrades," he said, pointing with his sword as he spoke, "on that side are toil, hunger, fatigue, the drenching storm, desertion and death; on this side ease and pleasure. There lies Peru with its riches; here Panama and its poverty. Choose each man, what best becomes a Castilian. For my part I go south." Pizarro himself stepped across the line and thirteen others, and they said good-bye to their comrades as they sailed away home towards Spain. Those fourteen men had no ships, no food, no shelter, only the clothes they had on. They endured all kinds of hardships as they went after gold! Gold was their dream. Gold fired their ambition! Gold urged them on through jungles and rivers and mountains. Pizarro got his gold; he got fifteen millions of gold from the King of the Incas before he killed him. Pizarro eventually paid the price of his daring and his wickedness and at 70 years of age his brains were dashed out upon the stone floor. He died fighting.

As I read that story I think how mean and little is our consecration to God for souls and his glory. In this soft, ease-loving, time-serving, pleasure-loving age what little sacrifice is made, and how mean is our offering and devotion to our Lord Jesus Christ.

Well for us to offer up that prayer of Wesley's found in one of the older Hymn books:

"O God, what offering shall I give
To thee the Lord of earth and skies?
My spirit, soul, and flesh receive,
A holy, living sacrifice:
Small as it is, 'tis all my store;
More shouldst thou have, if I had more."

Is our piety rhapsody or service? Is our restoration a dream or a discipline? Do we know in our heart of hearts that he who made the rainbow a covenant made the cross the only way to heaven? These are the questions which shock the complacency of self-satisfaction and bring men to penitence, confession, and prayer.—Joseph Parker.

THE POWER NEEDED.

R. Clarence True Wilson gives a lecture on "What I Found in a Bishop's Trunk." He reviews Bishop Simpson's life and influence and closes with the secret of his power. The lecturer's closing words follow:

If you will read Bishop Simpson's journal, you will find that he had no pride of attainment, but was always seeking for more light, more power, more consecration and a greater measure of the spiritual fullness. I name prayer as one of his secrets,—the habit of praying, the love of praying and the attainment of the spirit of communion by praying without ceasing.

Do we need this now? Is there any call today for such a surcharged life? Our churches have machinery enough to take the world. They are better organized, better manned, better equipped, better financed and better cultured than ever before. Our preachers are well supported, salaries have doubled in a decade, parsonages are finer and more numerous than in the past, our schools have cultured leaders, laymen of education, refinement and vision. We have money, position and influence. But the word "influence" is not a New Testament word. It only occurs once in the Bible,—"Canst thou bind the sweet influence of the Pleiades?"—and is omitted by the revisers.

But "Power" is the New Testament word. Dunamis gives us our word for dynamite and is the key to the Acts of the Apostles. Why, those Disciples did not have influence enough to keep them out of jail, but they had power sufficient to shake that old prison and come forth with the mighty power of God. The first man they met cried out, "What must I do to be saved?" and they knew what would save him and his whole house. Some of our modern churches can vastly beat the Apostles keeping out of jail and out of trouble, but I doubt if their fellow prisoners and the jailor and his family would be as likely to be converted by our being thrown in there.

Spiritual power represents the Christian conception of our working force, and we submit that our dollars, our cents, our buildings, our popularity, our numbers do not picture the state of our Church. Only our power with God and man can tell that story. If we need it God is certainly able to supply his part of the transaction. His spirit is available, but have we one man who is able and willing to pay the price for such effects as Bascom, Durbin, Foster and Simpson produced? They got up at four o'clock in the morning to read and write and ponder and pray; they made adequate preparation for great occasions and mastered their Biblical themes; they were men much given to prayer and religious meditation.

Religious meditation is a lost art in this hurry-up age with its telephone, telegraph, automobile, airplane, air mail and radio. How a man would have to systematize his time through all these jarring noises to get it quiet enough for the Lord to speak daily to his soul, and without constant communion of the soul with the Deity, it is vain for us to imagine that our words, or thoughts, or gestures, or voices, will lift a congregation into the heavenly places and make them as conscious of the invisible world as they are of the things visible. It was this that Bishop Simpson could do whenever he preached the Gospel, that Foster could do on occasion, but that so much of our preaching utterly lacks.

Shall we ever see their like again? I wish I knew. We need a pulpit orator of that type going about the Church today to revive a reverence for sacred things and an interest in the eternal verities of the Gospel; not a sensationalist who will announce some startling surprise to get the people there, but a man whose announcement to preach the Gospel will be its own advertisement and will throng the assembly place with eager listeners to the faith once for all delivered to the saints.

Neither Simpson's learning, presence, magnetism, character, life of prayer, nor the providential events in his life could make him the most powerful orator in the world. There was a Divine accompaniment in his messages that suggested his visions and experiences of the Triune God of Sinai, Calvary and of Pentecost. That ability to lift whole audiences out of themselves and to give them a new viewpoint from the heavenly places was so characteristic of Simpson, that if one had to put the lesson of his life to the modern Church, one would have to go back and adopt the old-fashioned Methodist terms "unction" and "fervor." This power attended Bishop Simpson always—the power that makes men who are earth-bound, sensuous, engrossed in money getting or hoarding, interested only in mundane things, suddenly become conscious of spiritual realities and able to see the invisible. When men had heard Simpson, they walked away with more consciousness of God, of Heaven, of Immortality, of the abiding presence of the Spirit to witness to our upward relations than they were that there is work on the earth and their hands were full of tasks, and that this is a sordid world in which we are living.

When Moses came down from the mountain of Communion he "wist not that his face shone." It was while Jesus was praying that he was transfigured before them, and his face did shine as the sun, and even his raiment was caught in a shower of radiance and became white as the light. At the Pentecost the disciples were clothed upon with a power from on high. Some such supernal power irradiated the personality of Bishop Simpson and made him mighty through God for the pulling down of strongholds of Satan and the uplifting in their stead saving and sanctifying power of the spirit world.

Does the Spirit of God attend our ministry? Are our people living Spirit-filled lives? Do our Sunday schools bring the children early into personal relations with Jesus Christ? Do our teachers get a burden for souls and our Epworth League officers, are they spiritual leaders toward Christ and his life?

Some things are disappointing. When we repealed our amusement clause it was not to let down the bars to worldliness, but to put the principles of discrimination in diversions upon the intelligent conscience of our people. It has not worked that way. Instead of ringing true and clear and often on the subject, our pulpits have been comparatively silent on the whole matter of worldly amusements, while dancing, card-playing, theater-going, movie-patronizing, and even Sunday recreation have gone on unrebuked. Indeed, religious rebuke is a lost art.

Oh! Will the day ever come when our churches will not be hospitals to be ministered to, but militant divisions of the Lord's sacramental host to stay up the hands of the pastor as a Twentieth Century Prophet, while he leads the forces of God to victory in every battle for righteousness and makes his church a terror to evildoers and a praise to them that do well? Then every pastor will be a house-going minister that more of our folks may become a church-going people. They will see and hear him on the Sabbath, with a feeling of personal acquaintance and not a distant sense of a comparatively stranger in the pulpit. Pastoral work will tell in pulpit power and in the interested attendance of our people.

We have a tendency to get mixed up in details that neither contribute to personal or pulpit power, nor to the main purpose of the gospel ministry. But enough men of outstanding consecration to Christ's mode of dealing with sinners are found to demonstrate that the Gospel is still the power of God unto salvation.

We have seen a man of God move into a community and set up his Christian home in the parsonage, set up the standard of spiritual leadership in his first sermon, begin to get acquainted with the young people one by one and take over the sense of responsibility for the saving of each. Soon he had a prayer list, then he had the names of the unconverted husbands of the church wives, the wives' names of all converted husbands, the children's names of all his church members, the outstanding and boastful sinners who disbelieve and scoff at sacred things, the wayward boys, the pleasure-loving girls. We saw him make a straight mark opposite each one saved. We have seen the book of this faithful shepherd of souls who knew his sheep by name and the crosses were almost an unbroken row opposite the names of the sheep who know their shepherd's voice. It is an honor to be thus listed by a man of God. Next to being enrolled in the Lamb's Book of Life, we would appreciate having our name, our son's name, or daughter's, or friends' on the prayer list of a pastor who has power with God and with men. They are not far from the Kingdom of God when thus enrolled.

When we look about at the drift in public morals, the spiritual needs of the unsaved about us, the careless and thoughtless way of spending the Sabbath, neglecting the Church and loosening the ties of home life, we feel that nothing is so alarming as the utter absence of alarm from our churches; nothing is so terrible as that sinners have no terror. Oh! that God would give to a thousand people here today such a baptism of the mighty energies of the risen Christ as to make them incomprehensible amazements of Spiritual Power!

We wish we could reach every Methodist on the round earth. We would cry, "Cease living on the heroism of your fathers; they only did their own work, not ours. Quit glorying in numbers, sacrificing to statistics and burning incense to the general minutes, glorifying forms of service and being satisfied with merely holding our own; but down on your knees and seek 'till you find the secret of the power of our fathers, a clean heart, an unselfish life and the endowment of the Pentecostal equipment to save lost souls and to build up believers in the Faith and Holiness of the Gospel, through the Divine Spirit's presence and power." Accepting this teaching for ourselves, let us arise, unfurl the banner of salvation free and full, and a common-sense theology which is glorious because it can be preached to every creature. Charge upon the world and take our sector of it in the name of God, the Father, God, the Son, and God, the Holy Spirit.

SERVICE FOR THE BEST MASTER.

Rev. A. H. M. Zahniser.

"His servants shall serve him."—(Rev. 22:3, last part).

THE probationary period of life is brief. This is true even when the allotted three score years and ten, or by reason of strength longer, marks our sojourn. It should be regarded as a pilgrimage, and as a preparatory state. And we all should have a worthwhile goal to look forward to, and keep pressing toward. But notwithstanding the brevity of our time-life, there is ample opportunity afforded, not only to prepare for eternity; but, also to render real service to God and man. We have been put here to help one another and to prepare, by the grace of God, to enjoy fellowship with the Savior. The creative energy of Jehovah that called us forth from nothingness, and made us to be a conscious and intelligent being was not without purpose. Shall the high purposes of God in our creation and redemption be fulfilled? If so, we must not idle away the precious moments of life, but must redeem the time. "See then that ye walk circumspectly, not as fools, but as wise, redeeming the time because the days are evil. Wherefore be ye not unwise, but understanding what the will of the Lord is." (Eph. 5:15-17).

In thinking concerning service to be rendered in the name and Spirit of our Heavenly Master the subject presents itself to the writer under the following heads:

First, Spared for service: We are all called to serve. If we have been safely brought into the world, and enabled to pass through infancy and youth into young manhood or young ladyhood, and especially if our powers and talents are unimpaired, or even, to a large extent preserved in a state and condition of health and strength, it involves an obligation and responsibility for service to our fellows, and of worship to God. Personally, I am often strongly impressed with this truth. When a small boy, seven years of age, I was sorely afflicted, and an almost helpless invalid from rheumatism, and was confined to my bed for seven weeks, when in answer to the earnest prayer of faith offered by the late Rev. A. D. Gaines, I was healed and restored to the useful activities of life. Surely my life belongs to God. Have not each one of you been protected and cared for in the midst of dangers and dread disease? The terrors by night; the pestilence walking in darkness; and the destruction that wasteth at noonday have not been able to destroy or harm you. A kind Providence has attended your way. Perhaps as you came so near to death in that sickness or accident it was warded off in answer to some mother's prayer. Or, maybe some other loved one, or saintly friend was remembering you at the throne of grace. Be that as it may, you are here. You have been spared for a purpose. You have been spared for service. Your life belongs to God.

Secondly, Saved for service. Charles M. Sheldon has written upon the subject, "Born to Serve." It is true that we are all born to serve. But those who have been "born again," born from above, born of the Spirit, are born to serve in a higher sphere and gracious manner. If any one imagines he or she can get saved, and then sit still and ride to heaven in an aeroplane they are very much mistaken. Colonel Lindberg in his book, "We," tells of how, when he was "barnstorming" in one of the Southern states, a colored woman came to him and asked, "Say, boss, what would you-all take, and take me up to heaven, and leave me there?" But even Enoch and Elijah did not go the living-way without many precious struggles and tests of faith. Much of our Christian service, like that of our Master, is vicarious and involves more or less suffering. The inspired Peter prayed, "But the God of all grace, who hath called us unto his eternal glory, by Christ Jesus, after that ye have suffered a while, make you perfect, stablish, strengthen, settle you." (1 Peter 5:10).

The service rendered by God's saved people is both sacrificial and spiritual. In presenting the terms of discipleship the Lord Jesus made the way very plain. "And he said to them all, If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and follow me." (Luke 9:23). And the Apostle Paul testified "For God is my witness, whom I serve with my spirit in the gospel of his Son." (See Rom. 1:9). There is no place for idlers or drones. In his vineyard all must be workers. In his hive all must be busy-bees. It is the laborer that is worthy of his hire, not the loiterer. Only those who prepare the soil, and sow good seed have reason to expect to reap a rich harvest. We cannot retain a healthful experience in grace and sit around on the stool of do-nothing. If we have been saved ourselves, we must seek to rescue others.

Thirdly, Sustained in service, and strengthened for service. We do not go at a warfare at our own charges, nor lean unto our own understanding. We are not left in our weakness and ignorance to be baffled by Satan, and struggle with the difficulties of life. We are workers together with God and he "worketh in you both to will and to do of his good pleasure." (2 Cor. 1:6 and Phil. 2:13). By abiding as the branch in the vine we derive strength for fruit-bearing. It is after stressing this lesson in the 15th chapter of St. John that Jesus says, "If ye were of the world, the world would love his own; but because ye are not of the world, but I have chosen you out of the world, therefore the world hateth you. Remember the word that I said unto you, The servant is not greater than his lord. If they have persecuted me, they will also persecute you; if they have kept my saying, they will keep yours also." . . . "In the world ye shall have tribulation; but be of good cheer; I have overcome the world." Paul was tempted to record, "Likewise the Spirit also helpeth our infirmities: for we know not what we should pray for as we ought; but the Spirit itself maketh intercession for us with groanings which cannot be uttered. And he that searcheth the hearts knoweth what is the mind of the Spirit, because he maketh intercession for the saints according to the will of God." (Rom. 8:26, 27). Read carefully the last part of the eighth chapter of Romans when you want encouragement to be true in the test; and courage for the conflict. The writer to the Hebrews was inspired to say, "Wherefore we receiving a kingdom which cannot be moved, let us have grace, whereby we may serve God acceptably with reverence and godly fear." (Heb. 12:28).

Fourthly, sanctified for service. The sanctification of the Spirit, holiness of heart and life, is not preparation for heaven only. When the Spirit-filled Zacharias prophesied of the mercy that had been promised in Christ, and of the holy covenant made with Abraham concerning his seed, and which was confirmed by an oath, he said, "That he would grant unto us, that we being delivered out of the hand of our enemies might serve him without fear in holiness and righteousness before him, all the days of our life." (Luke 1:74, 75). One of the chief qualifications for effective service is the baptism of the Holy Ghost. Moreover, it was with special reference to witnessing for the Savior in world-wide evangelism that the pentecostal effusion was bestowed. This is evident from the resurrected Master's statement in Acts 1:8, "But ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you; and ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth." He had previously told his believing disciples, "And, behold, I send the promise of my Father upon you; but tarry ye in the city of Jerusalem, until ye be endued with power from on high." (Luke 24:49). This was essential for efficient service, and it is necessary today. St. Peter, in explaining the fulfillment of this promise and exhorting the people, said, "For the promise is unto you, and to your children, and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call." (Acts 2:39). If you have been sanctified it is not merely that you may be blest increasingly; but that you may be a blessing to a greater extent, and in a higher sense. Is any sincere disciple willing to be less useful for the Master than they may and can be?

"O for that flame of living fire,

Which shone so bright in saints of old,

Which bade their souls to heaven aspire,

Calm in distress, in danger bold."

Fifthly, Sealed for service, and sainted in service. In the twelfth chapter of St. John, Jesus, in speaking of his own approaching death, burial and resurrection, and, laying down the great law of sacrificial service that his followers must also recognize and exemplify, says, "Verily, verily, I say unto you, Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone; but if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit. He that loveth his life shall lose it; and he that hateth his life in this world shall keep it unto life eternal. If any man serve me, let him follow me; and where I am, there shall also my servant be; if any man serve me, him will my Father honor." (verses 24-26). And as a part of that marvelous prayer recorded in the seventeenth chapter of the same book, Jesus said, "Father, I will that they also, whom thou hast given me, be with me where I am; that they may behold my glory, which thou hast given me: for thou lovedst me before the foundation of the world." (verse 24). In Ephesians 4:30, we read, "And grieve not the Holy Spirit of God, whereby ye are sealed unto the day of redemption." In the seventh chapter of Revelation we are informed concerning the angelic service in holding back the judgments of God, till the servants of the Most High had received the Divine seal. In verse three we read, "Saying, Hurt not the earth, neither the sea, nor the trees, till we have sealed the servants of our God in their foreheads." Then after a record of the sealing of the one hundred and forty-four thousand from among the various tribes of Israel—twelve thousand from each tribe, he proceeds to describe "a great multitude, which no man could number, of all nations, and kindreds, and people and tongues." He tells something of who they are, whence they came, of what they receive and possess, and how they are occupied. And further, in the description of the glorious heavenly city, "that great city of holy Jerusalem," and its inhabitants, it is stated, "And there shall be no more curse; but the throne of God and of the Lamb shall be in it; and his servants shall serve him; and they shall see his face; and his name shall be in their foreheads. And there shall be no night there; and they need no candle, neither light of the sun; for the Lord God giveth them light; and they shall reign forever and ever." (Rev. 22:3-5).

If one continually recognizes that they are here, and spared for service, saved for service, sanctified for service, sustained and strengthened for service, and either are or shortly will be sealed for saintly service, they may hopefully anticipate the endless future, for there is no danger of being out of a job, or losing your position.

"When comes the King in royal might,

To crush the wrong, and crown the right,

When all the saints in glory meet:
No more to die, no more to weep;

"When thrones are set, and crowns are given,
With all the rich rewards of heaven—
O, in that glorious by and by,
What's done for God can never die!"

The Similarity of the Ten Virgins.

MRS. H. C. MORRISON.

HE parable of the "Ten Virgins" is a most interesting one. It is not only interesting, but contains most vital lessons for all who profess to be followers of the Lord Jesus Christ.

Light is the symbol of purity, or heart cleanness. Christ declared his followers to be the "light of the world," the torchbearers of truth and salvation to a world that lieth in sin and darkness. A brightly burning lamp is the emblem of a fresh experience; and the lamp, like an experience, needs constant attention to keep it brightly burning. As it is impossible to trim and fill a lamp once for all, so it is impossible to live on a past experience; our spiritual vessel, the heart, must be replenished with the fresh oil of the Spirit from day to day.

And we must remember that the trimming is essential to a good light; the blackened part of the wick must be cut away in order that the oil may come in contact with and feed the flame. The trimming and filling represent conditions in our spiritual life. When we discover sin and worldliness creeping into our hearts they, like the dead snuff, must be clipped off and cut away, otherwise they will obstruct the flow of oil and extinguish the light, eventually. But with the trimming process comes the use of the oil of grace by which the life is made radiant and illuminating to those who are seeking to walk in the right way.

We notice in this parable that there were an equal number of wise and foolish virgins; both took lamps, both went forth to meet the bridegroom, but only half of them had the forethought to take along the replenishing oil. The foolish provided not for the future, and when their lamps were going out they sought to borrow from the wise, but oil, like grace, is not a thing to be divided in time of need. The only thing the wise virgins could do was to advise them to go to the market and buy oil, but, alas, while they were gone the bridegroom came, those who were ready went in with him and—the door was closed! What a calamitous outcome simply for lack of supplying the needed fuel for the days that were ahead.

We notice that the proportion of wise and foolish virgins was equal. It is said that not more than half of those who profess to be Christians manage their religious interests discreetly. How careless and thoughtless the majority of Christians are about their daily supplies of grace. They go about with empty vessels, and when the time of stress and strain comes they are helpless to stem the tide of temptation and meet the situation victoriously.

Let us note the points of similarity: They both, wise and foolish virgins, bear the same name—virgins. They are equal in number, five wise and five foolish. They all had the same kind of lamps, all started with them brightly burning, for only burning lamps can go out. Both had sufficient oil for immediate use; they all started to meet the bridegroom with happy hearts, expecting to enjoy the marriage feast with him. Both "slumbered and slept," or waited for the approach of the bridegroom. Both recognized the necessity of having oil to begin with—but, the only point of difference was, the wise had oil on hand when the emergency arose, and haste was necessary. The disaster of the foolish was not an unwillingness to make due preparation, but not making it in time.

We learn from this parable that we should always be ready for the coming of the Bridegroom—Christ. This does not simply mean for the second coming of Christ, only, but for any emergency or death, which is sure to come to all. We are taught that, "In such an hour as we think not, the Son of man cometh." Death is on the trail of every one of us, and if the grim Reaper should summons us and our lamps should be empty, our fate would be that of the foolish virgins—the door would be closed, and the watchman would say, "Too late! Too late! Ye cannot enter now."

Bear in mind, dear reader, that there were nine points of similarity, and only one point of dissimilarity, between these wise and foolish virgins, BUT that one point made all the difference of going in with Christ and being shut out from him forever. A mere formal profession is not enough; we must have the oil of saving grace in our hearts. Nor is it enough to have the vessel filled once for all, but we must have the oil of saving grace every moment. The wicks of our lamps must be trimmed every day, and the vessel of our heart filled with the oil of the Spirit. Reader, let's slip away to our closets and take a good look at our lamps and see what condition they are in. Little as we may think of it, the most important thing for us is this oil business.

An Interesting Letter.

I recently received the following letter from Rev. J. C. McPheeters, pastor of the Glide Memorial Church in San Francisco. I am sure he will not object to my sharing it with the readers of THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD. I shall ask our readers to remember Sister Glide in their prayers, that she may be blessed in soul and body and her valuable life prolonged, and that Bro. McPheeters may be blessed in this spiritual enterprise.

Dr. H. C. Morrison,
Editor Pentecostal Herald,
Louisville, Kentucky.

Dear Doctor Morrison:

The readers of your paper will perhaps be interested to know something of the progress of the new Glide Memorial Church, which opened in San Francisco on January 11th.

Over thirty years ago Mrs. Lizzie H. Glide felt definitely led of the Lord, that she should do something for the salvation of San Francisco. The erection of the new Glide Memorial Church as a memorial to her husband was an effort in the fulfillment of that call, which she felt came from God.

Up to the present writing the results in the new church have been very gratifying. There have been conversions almost every week since the church opened. The Pre-Easter services were especially honored of the Lord. In a special Three-Hour Service on Good Friday it is estimated that 500 people were in attendance, and almost 200 received communion.

There were 100 new members in the Easter Class, practically all of whom were adults, and a good per cent came on profession of faith. One hundred and fifty new members have been received into the church up to the present time.

Evangelistic services are held each evening during the week, except Saturday, in the Evangelistic Hall. The Evangelistic Hall is on the first floor, the main auditorium being on the second floor, which may be reached either by elevator or convenient steps.

Mrs. Lizzie H. Glide is a woman whom God has honored in a special sense in the salvation of souls. She has a great passion for the lost. For many years she was an active worker in Missions, Camp Meetings, and Revivals in the state of California. She came into the experience of sanctification under the preaching of Sam P. Jones more than forty years ago. Coming into this experience meant the consecration of her entire life and her property to the glory of God, and the salvation of immortal souls. Mrs. Glide, though advanced in years, is still full of holy zeal for the salvation of souls, and carries in her heart the passion for the lost. She rejoices in the fact that she has made it possible for others to carry on in the church, which she has established in San Francisco.

With prayers and best wishes for yourself and the readers of THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD, I am,

Cordially yours,

J. C. MCPHEETERS.

Bad Advice.

SCHWAB ADVISES WIVES TO SPEND ALL THEY CAN.

New York, April 21.—(AP.)—Advice by Charles M. Schwab to married women:

"Spend all you can; never mind what your husband says; that is the best way to spread prosperity."

The chairman of the board of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation spoke at the annual luncheon of the Pennsylvania Society, of which he was elected president for the 14th term.

I clipped the above from a recent issue of The Atlanta Constitution. The multi-millionaire forgot to say to the wives he urges to spend money, regardless of husbands' wishes, in case your husbands or children get sick, after you have spent every dime you get your hands on, I will stand by you and see that you are cared for until they get well. The millionaire manufacturer seems eager to get the last dollar the people can rake together.

Prosperity is never produced by a wasteful, extravagant expenditure of money by the laboring and poor class of people. Diligent industry, careful economy, and wise expenditure of one's means is the highway that leads to comfortable, contented living, and provision for the proverbial "rainy day" that is almost sure to come. Any woman who takes the advice of noisy Mr. Schwab proves herself a silly and unworthy wife and mother. If Mr. Schwab is so anxious to get money into circulation, let me suggest to him that he use some of his millions to build and endow a half dozen hospitals for the benefit of the suffering poor in various needy districts of the country. Such action on his part would give employment to many idle men and put quite a bit of money in circulation. Go to it, Mr. Schwab!

H. C. MORRISON.

Cultivate the habit of bringing everything to God, moment by moment, as it comes. If we watch our lives we shall find that God meets the things that we commit to him in prayer with special blessing.

"REFLECTING HIS IMAGE."

ALMA L. BUDMAN.

AS man comprehends the vastness of eternity, his eyes behold the splendor and magnificent revelation of the infinite power of an almighty God. God called the world into existence by his power, established it by his wisdom, and stretched out the canopy of heaven by his discretion. We stand in awe and amazement as we think of such a Creator. Can man by searching find out the Infinite, and can we have perfect knowledge of all his attributes? No, but much is revealed. We see manifestations of God's power everywhere. The star-sown vault of Heaven, the sun and planets, Orion and Pleiades that revolve and whirl through space express the glory of an Omnipotent God. Look at the vast magnitude of the celestial bodies! Are you not amazed at the power of Jehovah by which they are sustained?

God's power is revealed in the vast, heaving ocean, in the suspended water of the clouds which drops in showers of blessings at the command of the Almighty. We behold its power in the lightning's gleam and the thunder's roll. He builds his mighty reservoirs on the towering mountain summits piling high the winter snows which melt and furnish the water for hidden veins, singing brooks and springs which pour out refreshing floods. He conceals unlimited power for the service of man in the wild cataract of the "Niagara" leaping into glory.

In the depths of the earth beds of coal and rivers of oil are imprisoned. Where is the artist who has by one stroke painted the gray of the morning and the golden tint of the sunset until its grandeur and beauty are unspeakable? Who has framed the radiant bow within the clouds of heaven? God. Truly "the heavens declare the glory of God and the firmament sheweth his handiwork."

God's supreme creation is humanity, created in righteousness and true holiness, created in the likeness of God himself. The entire race lost this moral image by sin; but through the vicarious atonement of Christ the lost image of the soul may be restored. Therefore, it is the obligation of every regenerated man to reflect the image of his Maker.

We are exhorted by Paul in a definite and specific way to adorn the doctrine of God our Saviour in all things. To adorn? Yes, our every day life and conduct must be so attractive as to reveal Christ to a dying world. If Paul exhorted his co-workers in the first century to reflect the image of Christ, how necessary for us in this twentieth century that we heed the same message, for skepticism, liberalism and new theology are broadcast in the world.

If your religion is going to advance the Kingdom, it must gain entrance into and become part of your daily life and occupation. Our Master did not purpose to win the lost by force, but by the magnetic power of the Spirit-filled life. Can the plan of Christ be accomplished by those who are in courtship with the world? No, God can only fulfill his highest desire through those who are in deepest devotion to himself and his interests. If we profess to believe a spiritual religion let us walk in the Spirit, and our lives by conversation will give expression of the indwelling Christ. Our souls can best reach maturity when rooted in the deep soil of humility. To be like Jesus we may be taken by the route of suffering; we may be separated from loved ones, but Abraham and all the patriarchs were strangers and pilgrims; they bade farewell to home and kindred; they sacrificed what was dearest. Suffering is a portion of the Christian's heritage. Paul's life was ornamented by severe trial. Christ also suffered for humanity leaving us the example of meekness and gentleness; for when he was reviled, he reviled not again. But it is impossible to radiate his Image without nestling up close to Jesus and leaning on his breast.

What is the difficulty in the world today? Is it because there are not enough Christians? Oh no, it is not that we have a dearth of Christians, but the world is not adequately supplied with Christians who are filled with the Holy Ghost. Insincerity of life makes Christianity unattractive. It saps the vital power of our testimony, distorts character, weakens influence, robs Christianity of its power. It is the gulf between our Sunday worship and our Monday warfare which discounts religion, the divorce between our profession and practice which brings Christianity into ridicule. What a sad hour in the life of a Christian when the first sound of insincerity is detected!

The exercise of the spirit of intolerance makes our lives unattractive. That spirit which refuses fellowship with those who do not accept their private interpretation of Scripture in matters which are not essential; that spirit which makes no room for the opinion of others; but insists that their form of worship and system of government is the only true one; that spirit which demands perfect agreement in details and method of work, bars the avenue of approach to many a hungry heart.

Religious apathy is a foe to Christ's revelation through us. Unbelievers are justified in holding Christians to a life of ceaseless devotion to our Lord. The New Testament teaches that men without Christ are lost. Now if we are indifferent to those whom we know are without Christ, is it any wonder that we are unable to win them? Indifference to the commands of Christ and the needs of the world is one of the main factors which mars Christ's beauty in the professing Church. Just as a soul well nourished through prayer radiates an aroma that even skeptics cannot but sense God's power, even thus, a life unkept by divine power of prayer gives forth an influence that bars the image of Christ from a hungry world.

A man of deep religious experience is always effective. Men will examine your life and take knowledge that you have met Jesus. Look at Stephen—one of the most eminent saints, full of the Holy Ghost! His enemies determined to hear him no longer. His body was overcome with the shower of stones cast on him by the mob. They evidently thirsted for his blood; they were filled with rage against him, but that noted martyr suffered in deepest submission to the divine will, and permissive providence. He revealed the likeness of Christ in pouring out his prayers with his blood in behalf of his murderers. How much he resembled our Lord—"Father, lay not this sin to their charge."

The test of a Godlike character is power. The man who is godly is holy in love, in goodness, and will have some of the divine power. His life will be forceful, magnetic and crowned with results. His influence will be irresistible, for men will look at him and say, "He is a good man." He is—for God is in him. Prayer, meditation, communion and devotion are like a windlass to wind us up aloft; it is not lost time which we spend in such sacred exercises for we are accumulating force, so that when we come down to active religion—labor for God, we shall descend with an energy unknown to those to whom communion is unknown.

Insects as well as angels, the flowers that spangle the meadow as well as the stars that spangle the sky, the lamp of the glowworm as well as the light of the sun, the lark, that sings in the air, as well as the saint that sings in Paradise, the still small voice of conscience as well as the thunder that rends the clouds, these and all things else reveal God's attributes and proclaim his praise.

I look at man's moral nature. He is made in the image of God and has vast capacity for enjoyment. He has faculties that may blossom and bear fruit inexhaustibly. His beauty is holiness. There is no beauty like that of a pure character. The grandest sight on earth is not the march of the all-conquering storm whose cloudy battalions go rushing through the heavens; the most beautiful thing on earth is not the garden which opens and sends from its censers fragrance; the most stately thing is not the tree which you sit under through long summer's day; but the grandest, the most beautiful, the most stately thing on earth is the human soul possessing the beauties of holiness. This is the most beautiful thing of this world. There is nothing so beautiful as Christ revealed in man.

When God tests you it is a good time to test him by putting his promises to the proof and claiming from him just as much as your trials render necessary.

GLEANINGS FROM THE EVANGELISTIC FIELD

CALCUTTA, INDIA.

Dear Friends of The Herald Family:

As our boat sailed out of the harbor at Hong Kong the great country of China was left behind. For the past several months as we labored throughout this vast stretch of territory we were able to get a little glimpse of the tremendous need of this people who are struggling against great odds. Their heathen religions are holding them in a vise of superstition and fear, retarding all learning and casting a shroud of ignorance and illiteracy over the entire nation. Clouds of darkness overshadow the land making a dark picture with no sign of a sunrise. We feel there will be no advent of a new day until the Sun of righteousness, who alone can dispel the darkness and rift the clouds, is accepted by the Chinese people. There is no hope for China outside the veil of Christ.

Throughout the passing century thousands of faithful missionaries have been planting the seed of the gospel. The seed has been watered by the blood of many who have given their lives as martyrs for the faith, while others have watered the seed with their tears as they have agonized in prayer for this needy people. Have their labors and sacrifice been in vain? Is there to be no harvest? True already a small harvest has been gathered, but how small in comparison with the great amount of effort and sacrifice put forth. In meditating over this matter our minds were drawn to a passage of scripture in Galatians, sixth chapter, where Paul is writing for the encouragement of the Galatians. We read, "Let us not be weary in well doing; for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not. God is not mocked; for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." An eternal law of God.

Shall the church of Jesus Christ faint in this crucial hour when missionary programs are being curtailed and missionaries are being recalled? Shall we fail to go forth to gather the harvest which is forthcoming because of the faithful planting during the past century? No! a thousand times no! We must lift up our feeble hands in his strength and let him strengthen our weak knees by his might. We must catch a new vision of the great harvest field waving with the ripened grain, and then move forward in prayer and faith, giving of our substance and our life to bring God's purpose to pass in China.

After a five-days' sail our boat docked in the harbor of Singapore, capital of the British power in Malaya. Through the genius of Sir Stamford Raffles the British flag was hoisted over this "Gate of the Far East" in 1811 and under British control has become a very important trade center.

Reverend Keng, Chinese pastor of the M. E. Student Church, and Mr. Tsutada of the Japan Holiness Church, were on hand to welcome and gave us a warm invitation to conduct services in their churches during our short stop-over of a day and a half. Rev. Keng then took us for a drive over the island, beautiful in its tropical setting, with paved roads, fringed palms, mostly cocoanut variety, blooming gardens, and modern public and state buildings.

Then we were taken to the home of Rev. Horley, District Superintendent of the M. E. Church in Singapore, a veteran of many years' experience. We found in him an ardent and dynamic spiritual leader on fire for God. Our fellowship with this man of God was a great blessing to us.

In the afternoon we conducted a service at the M. E. Middle School for boys, and at 6:30 another meeting for the Japanese of the Japan Holiness Church. Although eighty percent of the population of Singapore is Chinese there are a number of Japanese residing on the island. We found the members of this church filled with the Spirit and with a real zeal for souls. Our service with them recalled the many happy hours spent in Japan during the past year.

The evening service was held in Rev. Keng's church. He is doing a great work. Five years ago he was stricken with leprosy and it appeared as if there were no hope for his recovery. When his wife learned her husband was a leper the shock was too great and she soon died. The praying people of Singapore banded themselves together in prayer for his healing and God in a miraculous way touched his body and he was delivered from this dreadful disease, returned to his work and has been a firebrand ever since. Dr. Ridout held a week's meeting for him when he passed through, with gracious results. We had a splendid service and many came forward for prayer at the close.

Our next stop was Penang, a day's sail from Singapore, another island controlled by the British. This island is a great rubber and tin center. Here we found the Methodists operating several schools and a church. During our stay there we conducted services in their schools and held a service at the Wesley Church. We also had the privilege of conducting a service for the Plymouth Brethren who are doing a real soul-saving work in this vicinity. Please continue to pray for us.

TERRE HAUTE, INDIANA.

From April 10-19 we held a meeting in Beulah Mission in Terre Haute, Ind. The weather was most beautiful from the beginning which made it favorable for the people to attend the services. They came in large numbers and the attendance increased up to the very close of the meeting. Quite a number came from other towns and the surrounding country, among them a goodly number of preachers who rendered valuable service in different ways.

The work of salvation began early in the meeting when some were converted, reclaimed, or purified, and seekers were seeking the Lord in the last service with great earnestness. Among the number who prayed through were confession and restitution. It was said that the blessings that came to the Christian people were a most valuable part of the meeting. The interest was such that the pastor decided to continue the meeting another week. Brother W. H. Pratt and his son, who is the pastor, stood nobly by the work and were potent factors in it. The pastor led the service of song, and was aided by an orchestra, and some that sang special numbers.

We are home for a few days but will soon be afield again. We are making dates for fall meetings, but have some vacant time for summer meetings as well as for the fall season. The conditions upon which we accept invitations for meetings are so reasonable that the smaller churches can comply with them as well as the larger ones. Persons who desire to correspond with us for dates should address us, 1350 Grace Avenue, Cincinnati, Ohio.

TRAVEL LETTER.

Rev. Tilden H. Gaddis.

We anchored at Smyrna, or Izmir, as the Turks call it, the chief city of Asia Minor, nestling below snow-capped mountains on a beautiful bay and reduced by the Turkish atrocities of 1922, from 225,000 to 98,000 population. The harbor ran red with blood, the city was razed, and is yet a pitiful ruin, but rapidly growing. Christianity from the first took deep root here and it is one of the seven powerful churches of Revelation. The remaining six church sites are easily reached from here but like Ephesus, are mostly ruins. Here Polycarp, who was a disciple of St. John, suffered martyrdom. His words when pressed to recant his faith are famous. "Eighty and six years have I served him and he has never done me wrong; how then can I blaspheme my King that saved me?"

Passing Assos, which Paul and Luke visited on their way to Mitylene, and Patmos, where John caught the Revelation, then Rhodes where the Colossus, one of the seven wonders of the world stood, we came to Cyprus, an island rich in history and tradition, containing marks of many epochs and races and where they claim cucumbers grow four feet long. Paul and Silas met Sergius Paulus here and condemned Elymas the sorcerer. Whenever you exalt the Saviour, you combat a sorcerer. All the island distrusts a man from Patmos which is cursed with dishonesty because Paul was beaten there. St. Andrew, they relate, landing here, miraculously produced water from the rocks and cured the son of the captain of the vessel of blindness; the captain in gratitude erected what is now the church of St. Andrew, which the superstitious natives believe possesses great power.

After two days in Beirut we motored over the Lebanon mountains through mulberry plantations, beautiful gardens, orange groves, rock terraced hills, then a bleak and barren region of ice and snow on the summit to a valley of vineyards and beauty, to Baalbeck, the City of the Sun, in early days, the seat of Baal, and for ages a hill of worship. Colossal ruins of the oldest sacred temples in the world built by 100,000 slaves, stand as monuments of antiquity, built with the largest stones ever quarried, one occupying the space of a ten-room house, and weighing 1500 tons. The names of Cain, Nimrod, Abraham and Solomon are connected with it and this is said to be one of the temples which Solomon built for his heathen wives who worshipped Baal, hence the name Baalbeck.

We were received into Damascus by a delegation of business men who desired us to purchase brass goods, pearl inlaid furniture, curios, antiques and souvenirs. Damascus, the oldest existing, inhabited city in the world, with streets along which the tide of human life has ebbed and flowed for nearly four thousand years, built, Josephus says, by Noah's grandson and was spreading along the banks of Abana when Abraham entered Canaan. It is an oasis on the edge of the Syrian desert with the rivers of Abana and Pharpar, which the leprous Naaman reckoned better than all the rivers of Israel, rushing forth from mountain gorges, separating into a thousand streams and watering the plain make it so beautiful in fertility and green verdure that it is said to have been the earthly paradise, and legends make it the cradle of the human race where man was formed and called Adam. Elisha and probably Elijah walked its streets, and here Elisha unveiled Hazael's future crimes while the hardened sinner started in horror. Near here, he who was chief of sinners became chief of apostles, saw the light at noonday and became the evangel to the Gentiles. Nineveh and Babylon have passed, Tyre and Sidon have sunk into insignificance, Greece is but a shadow of its ancient glory, Egypt is rising from the eclipse of centuries, Rome has risen, flourished and waned, yet amid the vicissitudes of fortune in East and West, Damascus, if the title could be applied to any but heaven, is the Eternal City. There is a magnificent shrine of St. John the Baptist which is supposed to contain his head here in this mosque. We had his arm and part of his skull at Constantinople encased in gold, now we find his head; we will probably find the rest of the old warrior somewhere. It is pitiful to see little children and old women for a few cents a day making nimble fingers fly over the looms. People are plentiful and labor cheap. They swarm and beg and fill the old bazaars with a colorful picture of oriental life, splendor and poverty, beauty and filth. Today the "Pearl of the East," its white towers and minarets shooting up through grove of green palms is preserved because it nestles up close to the mountains, and the river that rises in the mountains is turned under the city so it reappears in fountains and pools, forming a flushing system which constantly cleanses the city from within; also it furnishes power to turn the wheels of industry, so that as one writer has said, "Both cleansing and power come from the melting snows of the mountains; thus it is endowed with power from on high."

From Damascus, passing camel caravans, thousands of sheep tended by shepherds with their dogs, by Hermon the Mount of Transfiguration, snow-capped and majestic, towering 9,000 feet high, on to Caesarea-Philippi, the head fountain of Jordan, and farther on Lake Hulah or the waters of Merom, and crossing the Jordan over the bridge of "Jacob's Daughters," we enter Palestine.

LAKELAND, FLORIDA, DISTRICT CAMP MEETING.

This camp was held at Lakeland, which literally means the land of lakes, and it is located in the country of flowers. The time was March 19-29. We had as evangelist, Rev. Forman Lincicome, of Gary, Indiana, one of the ablest preachers of the present day. Our district elder, Rev. W. M. Bates, proved himself an efficient manager of affairs and leader of men. He is a school principal, an excellent preacher and a scholar in the Scriptures. There was fine co-operation from preachers and laymen of many conferences, as well as from other denominations. God was with us and results followed. There was ready response to altar calls; many prayed through to pardon and holiness; several joined the church.

The last Sunday night presented a scene sufficient to make two worlds glad. The entire front part of the church was packed with seekers and workers, praying, singing, and rejoicing in God. The city of Lakeland received great good from this campaign. Rev. Mr. Lincicome is a peer among preachers. His messages are vigorous, thought-provoking, and filled with truth and eloquence. He is absolutely true to his own individuality, which makes his ministry unique. His grasp of truth is marvelous, so that the hearers at times are startled by new and unexpected visions and horizons in the realm of the Spirit. How we did rejoice to see the invisible, hear the inaudible, and feel the intangible. Lincicome is thoroughly true to Wesleyan theology and entirely free from fanaticism and sectarian bigotry. Like many a genius in literature or art, he has sometimes been misunderstood. It is easy for the shallow critic to suspect compromise, but the comprehensive mind viewing the whole range of truth finds a display of splendid unity and fulness of truth in a series of sermons by Lincicome. His calls are so numerous that he is booked ahead from one to two years all the time. He accepts the calls as they come and does not discriminate against the small circuits, nor does he set a price on his labors. He could have turned down the Florida dates this year and gone to a great tabernacle, seating three thousand, but he did not. The writer is not alone in his opinion of this fine man of God, for each place where he preached in Florida has an overwhelming call to return.

A GREAT REVIVAL AT FRANKLIN SQUARE, OHIO.

Our three-weeks' revival meeting came to a grand and glorious close Sunday evening, Feb. 22. This has been one of the greatest revivals ever held in the history of this church. In response to the last invitation the altar was filled with young and old, seeking peace and pardon, and purity of heart. From the first night of these meetings until the last invitation was given Sunday evening, the Spirit of God was manifest in a remarkable degree. At times the very atmosphere seemed to be filled with the Divine Presence.

Rev. Charles Snyder, pastor of the Nazarene Church of Columbiana, Ohio, was the evangelist. We found him to be a safe and sane preacher of the good old Bible doctrine of full salvation and through his sin-uncovering, soul-stirring sermons coming from a heart overflowing with love for humanity, scores found their way to the foot of the cross. Bro. Snyder with the help of his faithful wife and daughter, were instrumental in bringing about this religious campaign, which will never be forgotten by those who came under its influence. So those who wish the help of an evangelist who is truly a man of God in every sense of the word, we would not hesitate to suggest the name of Bro. Charles Snyder.

Mrs. Geo. C. Burbick.

To preach on future punishment is not to rant, abuse, or exaggerate. Eternity cannot be exaggerated. Nothing can extend beyond the limits of eternity. A lake burning with fire and brimstone cannot be exaggerated. No picture can be lifted up before the human mind more fearful. We are aware that people are being told that there is no literal hell burning with fire. We have always felt it a dangerous thing to contradict, or to try to modify and explain away any of the teachings of the Lord Jesus. But suppose that Jesus, in his description of the fearful condition of those who are finally lost, is using figures of speech. As an honest and truthful teacher Jesus could not use figures of speech which exaggerate the facts. He would not presume, in describing the place of future punishment, to make it worse than it really is. To do so would be to subject himself to the ridicule, in fact, the just accusation of falsehood on the part of those who are finally lost.

We may be sure that Jesus is absolutely truthful, whether you interpret his language and descriptions on the subject as literal or figurative in their meaning. Bear in mind, the text is the language of the Lord Jesus, and when he declares that the wicked shall go away into everlasting punishment it would be well to rely absolutely upon his statement and govern our lives accordingly.

We are aware of the fact that there is a large class of religious teachers, unfortunately many of them in the pulpits of the land, who are giving utterance to teaching quite contradictory to the teachings of Christ on the subject of the future state of the wicked. They are telling us that God is too merciful to punish the wicked in a place of torment. They forget, or ignore the fact, that God has provided a way of escape; that in Christ, at tremendous cost, he has made abundant provision for the salvation of the most wicked, that everywhere and always, he is represented in the Scriptures as warning the wicked of their danger, of calling them to repentance, of patient and merciful delay in cutting them off from his gracious provisions; that those who die in their sins and are lost, do so as the result of persistent refusal to repent and accept mercy. It should be remembered that wicked men and women cannot be turned loose in heaven to desecrate and pollute that sinless, holy city.

Sin has brought sorrow, tears, agony, wickedness, war, bloodshed, fire and destruction upon this earth, that might have been almost a paradise, had sin not entered to blight and destroy the race. God has built a world with a glorious city where there is no sin, and he has a covenant with angels and saints, that no sin shall ever enter into that land of which we have had only a few glimpses which give us to understand that its splendor is beyond the conception of the human mind in its present state. Sin shall not enter heaven. Before men can enter that wondrous world they must be brought into a state of purity of heart; they must come to love what God loves, and hate what God hates. It ought to be clearly understood that heaven is impossible to any and all intelligent beings who love what God hates and hate what God loves. It takes a state of soul to enter into this place of purity and peace—the eternal life which is guaranteed to the righteous in our text.

There is no intelligence or reason in inveighing against God because there is in the economy of his government, a future place of confinement for those who have gone into wilful, wicked, rebellion against his laws for the regulation of society, and for the best interests of all men who comply with those laws. Heaven could be no place of peace and happiness for those who are in a state of rebellion against the God of heaven, who have trampled upon his laws, rejected his mercy, despised his love and challenged his judgment. The men and women who finally go down to hell can have no one to blame but themselves. They will awake to realize that they have chosen their place of abode in spite of, and against, everything that a compassionate God could place between them and such a fearful destiny. They will be compelled, on the basis of their own reasoning, to say Amen to their own condemnation.

God has given solemn warning to his messengers on this very subject. Turn and read it, Ezek. 3:18: "When I say unto the wicked, thou shalt surely die; and thou givest him not warning, nor speakest to warn the wicked of his wicked way, to save his life; the same wicked man shall die in his iniquity; but his blood will I require at thine hand."

It is to be feared that many of the preachers of our times have overlooked this warning from God, or have entirely forgotten it. Let no such man deceive himself. There is coming a time when God will keep his word and require the blood of the lost at the hands of those who have failed to warn them.

We are thinking of the disaster and confusion that await the highly salaried ministry who have lived in luxury, who have been the petted social darling of a worldly, unregenerated, sinful congregation; who have drawn their handsome salaries, sought their pleasures and neglected to faithfully warn their people. Had they preached the truths of the Bible, as they are written, they may have received less salary; they would no doubt have failed to be complimented and flattered by a godless, pleasure-loving people; they would possibly have suffered the frown of ecclesiastical power, but the Holy Spirit would have attended their ministry, they would have gathered some precious souls for Christ and everlasting life, and by and by, they could go unafraid and rejoicing into the whiteness of the judgment.

Doubtless it would create quite a flutter of disturbance of comment, unkind and sarcastic remarks in many a great city congregation if, on Sunday morning, the very pleasant, courteous, accommodating pastor should come into his pulpit with a quiet, solemn face, stand erect with fearlessness in his demeanor, holy courage and clearness of voice, should read a text like the one we have under discussion, or should select words of our Lord that contained in them the weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth of those who are bound hand and foot and cast into outer darkness, and should, with calm deliberation, and telling emphasis, assure his congregation that hell is an awful certainty to the wicked; that a profession of faith, or some sort of loose meaningless decision, church membership, baptism, and the performance of a few formal duties, is no security against a future of outer darkness and torment. Under such circumstances there would doubtless be much adverse criticism. It is not improbable that the higher authorities of the church would be called upon for deliverance from a preacher so inconsiderate, so out of harmony with the thinking of his times; so indifferent to the nervous state of cultured people in his congregation. But some people would think. Repentance would come to some, and saving faith in Christ resulting in the salvation of souls in congregations that have not known a new birth by the regenerating power of the Holy Ghost in a decade, perhaps, several decades.

The reader may have noticed that in this discourse we have not dwelt on the eternal life of the righteous, but on the final pronouncement against the wicked. This has not been an oversight, but entirely intentional. It is our wish to bring before the people the fearful fact that among our neighbors, all about our community and, sad to say, often in our homes, there are fellowbeings who are hastening to eternal punishment.

We learn from Jesus Christ that in that dark world of torment, there is no water; there are no tender friendships, no glad greetings; there is not one forest leaf or scrawny scrub, or blade of grass, or scented flower to relieve the dread monotony of that world of doom. There are no tender loves in hell; no soothing friendships to relieve the sorrow of the bottomless abyss in which the wicked ever descend into deeper depths of doom. There the selfish multitudes who have trampled upon all the mercies of a crucified and risen Christ, who have bolted the doors of their hearts against the knockings of a patient Saviour and the tender wooings of the Holy Spirit, are shut up together. The unjust judges, who have let the violators of law go free, the wicked lawyers who have corrupted courts, punished the innocent, and for bribes, have assisted the guilty to go unwhipped of justice, will have justice meted out to them. There the adulterer and adulteress, however they may have hidden their sins, and walked with heads erect, in pretended decency in clean society, will find their beds of lust turned to beds of fire, with curtain of flame. There the corrupt politician and the delinquent officers of the law will find a just reward for their wicked deeds. There the proud millionaires who scorned God's messengers and lived in selfish luxury will languish through the eons in the stark nakedness of their deluded souls. Women of wealth, who have lived in the luxurious indulgence of selfish appetite, stripped of all their proud array, whipped with the lash of a guilty conscience, cowering down among the foulest fiends, will find their eternal abode. There the distillers, saloon-keepers, bootleggers, haters of human happiness, with all who have aided and abetted them in the destruction of their fellowbeings, will meet with and receive the curses of those whom they have robbed and destroyed. There the proud, insolent, scholarly, strutting preachers who have denied the inspiration of the Bible, the virgin birth of the Lord Jesus, and the blood of the cross which he shed for the atonement for sin, will meet the wretches who have been deceived by their false teachings and cowering beneath their burdens of guilt, will seek to hide themselves in the caverns of their eternal prison-house.

Language fails us. We must fall back on the words of the Lord Jesus. They are written plainly. They describe an awful place. They bring vivid pictures before our minds of the most intense suffering. Let all men be careful how they undertake to explain away the teachings of our Lord with reference to the punishment of the wicked. Let us live with the tremendous fact revealed in the text before our eyes, keep carefully in our thoughts, overruling and directing our conduct in all things. There is coming a time when "the wicked shall go away into everlasting punishment: but the righteous into life eternal."

The Restoration of Israel to Palestine No. 2.

THE student of prophecy will find that God has a covenant with his Hebrew people that he will not forget nor break. This covenant involves the restoration of the Hebrew people to Palestine.

This covenant was made to Abraham and David, in fact, it is a golden cord running thru prophecy. One reason why we want the readers of THE HERALD to take up the reading of prophecy is the fact that these portions of scripture are very generally neglected, and they furnish most positive evidence of the inspiration of the men who wrote them. Through the centuries they have been fulfilled and they are now being fulfilled in a remarkable way.

The prophets not only saw the restoration of Israel, but they saw and wrote of a great spiritual renewal of Israel. Isaiah, Jeremiah, and Ezekiel write much of the sins of their people, the coming judgments of God and their dispersion among the nations of the earth. They foretell in a remarkable manner of the hatred that will follow them, and the persecutions they will suffer. These foretellings of the prophets have been fulfilled in every detail. At the time of their writing, Babylon was the center of pagan civilization and world power—a great city, splendidly built, with walls which, to men, friend and foe, seemed impregnable. But the prophets foretold of the destruction of Babylon, its utter ruin and the desolation which marks the spot where this great city once stood.

When the prophecies were uttered their predictions seemed almost impossible of fulfillment, nevertheless, it was the word of God, and could not fail. It is with some difficulty that travelers and students locate the desolate regions once occupied by this proud mistress of world commerce, of wealth and luxury, of the great kings and rulers of mankind. They passed away and dreary silent desolation prevailed, where once mighty monarchs wielded their scepters of power, blasphemed God, and fell beneath the rod of his judgments.

Israel was a great sinner. There is only one of two things that God can do with the individual sinner, or a sinful nation; one of those things is to pardon, and the other is to punish; and we may be sure when the individual or the people refuse to receive pardon they are sure to receive punishment. All through God's warning to Israel there is also a note of mercy, of a remnant that is to be saved, of a precious seed of replanting in the Holy Land. There is a remarkable pledge and covenant of God in the 54th chapter of Isaiah. The entire chapter is a promise of the restoration of Israel, and well worth your reading. We call attention to the tenth verse: "For the mountains shall depart, and the hills be removed; but my kindness shall not depart from thee, neither shall the covenant of my peace be removed, saith the Lord that hath mercy on thee." This is the word of God. He uses strong figures of speech. The old Hebrews read these scriptures and believed them. In the time of Christ they were looking for a Deliverer, a mighty military Chieftain to break the Roman yoke, and re-establish Israel. The reader will recall that after the resurrection of Christ, his disciples asked this question: "Lord, wilt thou at this time restore Israel?" The hope of the restoration of Israel had a powerful influence in the preservation of their identity, and holding them together as a peculiar people in all of their wanderings over the face of the earth, through the centuries of their afflictions and sorrows.

St. Paul fully understood this covenant of God with his people, and writes of it in the eleventh chapter of the Epistle to the Romans, in which he says: "I say then, hath God cast away his people? God forbid. For I also am an Israelite, of the seed of Abraham, of the tribe of Benjamin. God hath not cast away his people which he foreknew. Wot ye not what the scripture saith of Elias? How he maketh intercession to God against Israel, saying, Lord, they have killed thy prophets, and digged down thine altars; and I am left alone, and they seek my life. But what saith the answer of God unto him? I have reserved to myself seven thousand men who have not bowed the knee to the image of Baal. Even so then at this present time also there is a remnant according to the election of grace."

Farther on in the same chapter, Paul warns the Gentiles, lest they having been cut out of a wild olive tree, and grafted into the original olive tree, which was the Hebrew people, who had been cut out because of unbelief, if the Gentiles should lose their faith they, too, would at once be cut out and God would be able to re-engraft Israel. Paul continues to make a statement that is worth our consideration. Let us read: "For I would not, brethren, that ye should be ignorant of this mystery, lest ye should be wise in your own conceits; that blindness in part is happened to Israel, until the fulness of the Gentiles be come in. And so all Israel shall be saved: as it is written, there shall come out of Sion the Deliverer, and shall turn away ungodliness from Jacob: for this is my covenant unto them, that I shall take away their sins." Rom. 11:25-27.

The Apostle Paul is looking forward to a time of restoration of spiritual life to the Jews. Evidently, Paul is not thinking of any such restoration leaving out Christ, but he is believing that the Jews at some future time will accept Christ and be restored to divine favor.

The Lord Jesus, in speaking of his second coming, tells of the fearful distresses that shall come to the Israelitish people. He says: "And they shall fall by the edge of the sword, and shall be led away captive into all nations; and Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles, until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled." Luke 21:24.

This is a significant statement of our Lord. It is a prophecy. He is looking into the future. The first part of this verse has been fulfilled. Under the Babylonians and Romans many of them fell under the edge of the sword. They were led away into all nations, and a Gentile people have had Jerusalem under control for centuries; but we learn from Jesus that the times of the Gentiles are to be fulfilled. The time of their domination will come to an end. It looks as if the Christian Church made up of Gentiles, were about to recrucify our Lord; that the fulness of the Gentiles is coming in, and were approaching rejection, and the re-ingrafting of the Jews, and their restoration to the Holy Land. Any straw can point the direction the current flows.

Believing that a Divinely-called, wholly-sanctified, well-equipped, Spirit-filled ministry is one of the greatest needs of our times, and for all time to come, I am glad to make a donation for the upbuilding of the Asbury Theological Seminary at Wilmore, Ky.

For this great work, I promise to give $..... per year for five years, first installment due September 1, 1931. I will join all who are helping in this good work in prayer for the blessing of the Lord to rest upon it.

The Herald Book Club.

For some years we have been contemplating the organization of a Herald Book Club for the selecting and sending out some of the best books coming from the religious and secular press. The importance of such an organization has been impressed upon us because of the very large number of books which contain a dangerous element of literary poison which can but prove hurtful to Christian readers, especially the young.

We have a fine committee who will be alert and on the lookout to find such books as may be read with intellectual stimulation and advantage, and at the same time, make a real contribution to spiritual and evangelistic life. We propose to specialize on one book each month, besides suggesting other books.

FOR THE MONTH OF MAY,

we commend very highly a most excellent volume, "The Bible and the Ages," written by Bishop H. M. DuBose, who is a devout scholar and puts into this book the result of wide study and careful research. It is really a great book and should be in the hands, and receive careful reading by our ministers, generally. It especially should be read by the young men of the ministry. It will give them some firm foundation upon which to rest their faith in the absolute trustworthiness of the Holy Scriptures. At a time like this, when there is so much skepticism appearing in religious literature, books that would be supposed to be contenders for the faith, rather than destroyers of the same, a book like this by Bishop DuBose is of great importance.

I was pleased recently, to notice in one of our church papers that a number of the presiding elders in several conferences had united in commending this book to the ministry and public, generally. It is a handsome volume, clear, good print on excellent paper, and well bound. The price is $2.50, and may be had of The Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Kentucky.

H. C. MORRISON.

The Wilmore Williams.

Many of our readers are acquainted with Evangelist L. E. Williams, of Wilmore. Some of them do not know that his wife, Mrs. L. E. Williams, is one of the general organizers of the W. C. T. U. work in Kentucky. She is doing a fine work for the prohibition of the liquor traffic. His daughter, Miss Aubra Williams, graduate of Asbury College, has recently finished a scientific course of study in Boston, Mass., on the physical effect of strong drink, and has been appointed scientific lecturer in the interest of the prohibition of the liquor traffic. Her work will be to show the fearful ill effect of strong drink on the physical and mental, as well as the moral life, of those who use it.

Brother Williams is open for a few dates in evangelistic work. He is ready and willing to go to city, town or country church and do faithful work for a freewill offering. His address is Wilmore, Ky.

H. C. MORRISON.

Believer, wouldst thou abide in Jesus? Be careful to keep his commandments! Keep them in the love of thine heart! Be not content to have them in the Bible for reference, but have them transferred by careful study, by meditation and by prayer, by a loving acceptance, by the Spirit's teaching, to the tables of the heart!—Andrew Murray.

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS

THE TRIALS OF JOB.

Mrs. Geneva Mendenhall.

In the land of Uz on the edge of the desert, east of the land of Israel, lived a man named Job. He was a good man, and he was also very rich. He had a fine family of grown sons and daughters, great fields and fine pastures and his sheep, camels, oxen and asses were numbered by the thousand. But Job's great good fortune never made him proud and always he gave thanks to God by prayer and with burnt offerings.

And God loved Job very dearly, because he was a just and perfect man who did no evil. But at one time he decided to test his servant and see if he would remain faithful were his great wealth and good fortune taken from him.

Soon trouble began to come upon Job. A first messenger came with word that the savages from the desert were driving the oxen and asses away and killing the men who cared for them. Another man ran in saying that lightning had killed the sheep and the men who cared for them, and before he had finished a third messenger came bearing news of a bandit raid from Chaldaea that succeeded in carrying away all the camels. But the fourth messenger interrupted, crying, "Your sons and daughters were all killed when a wind from the desert struck the house in which they were, ate and drank together."

But even when all this calamity befell Job, he did not turn away from God saying that all his possessions had been lent to him by the Lord, anyway.

But God tested Job even farther. He put his hand upon his flesh and bone and caused great boils to come upon him from head to foot so that he suffered dreadful pain.

Three of his friends came to visit him and accused him of committing some great sin for which God had sent this punishment upon him, begging him to confess his evil deeds. Even Job's wife, instead of offering him comfort, advised him to curse God and die. But Job rebuked her, saying that she spoke like a foolish woman, adding, "Shall we take all the blessings from God and not take the evil things also?" So, with all his loss and sorrow and with all his sickness and pain Job did not speak one word against God.

But he explained that while he had done no wrong and could not understand why these trials had come, but he knew that God was good; and he was willing to leave things in God's hands.

After his friends, Eliphaz, Bildad and Zophar, accused Job of being a hypocrite, he insists that he is innocent of wrong doing, professes his confidence in God, and entreats God to show his purpose in afflicting him. Each of the friends accuse Job of impiety but Job complains of their cruelty and begs God to pity him, though he acknowledges that the ways of God are infinite and unsearchable.

At last God spoke to Job, reminding him of his might, majesty and power, righteousness and wisdom. After Job humbled himself before God and prayed for his friends, God not only accepted Job's prayer but gave him twice as many sheep and camels, oxen and asses as he had before, besides also seven sons and three daughters, so that Job lived after this for a hundred and forty years in great plenty and happiness and honor among his countrymen.

Questions.

1. When Job was a good man why did God permit so much trouble to come upon him?
2. In what land did Job live?
3. What kind of men were Job's comforters? (Write some of your answers to your letters to Aunt Bettie.) Are you saving these stories for a book?

Dear Aunt Bettie: My father is a subscriber of the dear Herald and thinks it a fine paper. Father reads the sermons to the family. We sure have enjoyed the continued stories. Aunt Bettie, please print this, as I am wanting to find my father's people on his father's side. His father died in 1880 or 1881, we don't know which. When my father was about four years old his mother, Mrs. Middy Angeline Smith, left Tennessee, and went to Howard county, Ark. His mother's name before she married Mr. William Smith, was Middy Angeline Childress. When she went to Arkansas Mr. John Wiley Barnes accompanied her. Mr. William Smith had two brothers that we know of, Jerry Smith and Kench Smith. When last heard of they were somewhere in Tennessee. Mr. William Smith died either in Benton county or Lake county, Tenn. Father's name is Taylor Brook Smith. He has been married twice. If any one knows any of the people mentioned or any of their relatives, please write to me, I will try to answer all letters received.

FALLEN ASLEEP

BEAN.

Death at 7:10 P. M. Sunday claimed Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Bean, wife of Dr. H. F. Bean, and one of the prominent residents of Portsmouth, the final summons coming at her home, 1302 Ninth Street, following a brief illness with influenza and pleurisy.

Mrs. Bean was born at Sulphur Springs, Ky., Aug. 20, 1861. She was married to Dr. Bean, Nov. 1, 1877, at Sulphur Springs, Ky. They lived for a number of years at Owensboro. On Sept. 1, 1920, they moved to Portsmouth and have lived here ever since. Nov. 1, 1930, Dr. and Mrs. Bean celebrated their 53rd wedding anniversary, when all their children assembled for the occasion.

Surviving are the husband and the following children: M. P. Bean of Bowling Green, Ky., K. I. Bean of Bogalusa, La., Mrs. Elizabeth Rinehart, at home; Mrs. H. D. Jewett of Second street, B. T. Bean of Akron, Ohio, and two grandchildren, Henry Edward Rinehart, 1302 Ninth Street, and D. D. Pewett, Jr., of Second St.

The funeral was held Tuesday at 3 P. M., at the residence with Rev. Arba Martin, pastor of Trinity M. E. Church, officiating. Interment was in Memorial Burial Park at Wheelersburg, under the direction of Windel Howland.

BRADY—JOHNSON.

April 8th and 9th, 1931, marked the homegoing of two little unbeans. They were very devoted cousins and had spent much time together, often fancied they were brother and sister. Little Therien Brady aged four years, six months and nineteen days, was playing early on Monday morning, April 6th, when his mother came in. "Good morning, mother, how are you feeling?" "Not very well darling, how are you this morning?" she answered.

"I'm feeling good mama," and frolicked over the bed with his little brother. They were told to hurry and dress for breakfast and mother left them standing before an open grate to dress, he caught fire and although, not seemingly seriously burned, for quickly his clothes were torn from him, he soon went home to Jesus.

Little Ruby Dell Johnson well as usual stood by his little bed many times, and in her childish way called his attention to many things, flowers and seed growing in the garden, etc., trying to comfort him. When his spirit had flown her heart was broken; she had an unusual intelligence which had been very noticeable all through her babyhood. Seemingly able to comprehend this great sorrow which was more than her frail little physical body could bear, this was a crushing blow. She sank down to the floor at the foot of Therien's bed, broken hearted, and said, "Daddy, take me up." She was carried from the deathbed but many times pleaded with them to carry her back, then to take her away.

Convulsed with grief she was later taken to her own home and a physician summoned. He did not understand her case but gave a little medicine which availed nothing. After a night of agony she said, "I see Therien," and again, "I want to go up there mama with you," and pointed up, closed her bright eyes and went away.

The doctor arrived too late, and on hearing the story of her last few hours on earth said, "I have been a doctor for twenty-five years but never have seen a case like this." Everyone who knew her loved her. Many marveled at her intelligence and remarked that she would not stay here long. But little did we think she would leave us so soon.

Together they lived, played, and in the end were placed in white caskets and carried to church where a most blessed and befitting funeral service was conducted by the pastor, Rev. Rev. W. R. Honsan. Together their bodies were laid in one small sepulcher while their spirits, which refused to be separated even in death, play in flower gardens of Heaven.

God's hand is on the families. Three of the parents are members of the Church of the Nazarene. One of the fathers has found God; the other one confesses his need and solicits the prayers of God's people. Oh, that this may mean the awakening of many in this community who know not God.

Their little hands were sweetly folded
Upon their silent breast,
Two little spirits have ceased their struggles

And have gone to rest.
Four little feet have ceased to travel
Upon the shores of time,
And the two short lives that blended together
Now live in the garden of sunshine.

Their bright shining eyes are closed forever
To earth's unholy sight,
And four cherub wings in glory now hover

In heaven's golden sunlight.
Together they walked and talked and played,
Together they lived to love;
Now side by side together they are laid

While their spirits return to God.
Mrs. Lillian Duncan.

JUST AS I AM.

There is a sweet story told of Charlotte Elliott. At one time she was in the midst of a company in the city of London, and among other guests was Caesar Malan, a devout man of God. He saw the young lady, and crossing the room to where she was, he said to her, "Are you a Christian?" And she replied with considerable dignity that she did not care to discuss the question. And the dear old man withdrew. Not many days after Charlotte Elliott came to Caesar Malan and begged his pardon for her rudeness, saying that she was not a Christian and asking how she might become one. The old man replied, "My dear, it is very simple. You have but simply to come to Jesus." And she said, "I am a great sinner." "No matter," said he, "you have but to come to Jesus." She said, "Will he take me just as I am?" And he said, "Just as you are, and no other way."

And then she said, "Well, if he will take me as I am, I will come to him." She went home to her room and sat down at her desk, and she wrote the beautiful words of that hymn—

Just as I am, without one plea,
But that thy blood was shed for me,
And that thou bid'st me come to thee,
O Lamb of God! I come, I come!

Just as I am, and waiting not
To rid my soul of one dark blot,
To Thee, whose blood can cleanse
each spot,

O Lamb of God! I come, I come!

Just as I am, though tossed about
With many a conflict, many a doubt,
Fighting and fears within, without,
O Lamb of God! I come, I come!

Just as I am, poor, wretched, blind,
Sight, riches, healing of the mind,
Yes, all I need, in Thee to find,
O Lamb of God! I come, I come!

Just as I am; Thou wilt receive.
Wilt welcome, pardon, cleanse, relieve;
Because Thy promise I believe,
O Lamb of God! I come, I come!

That is the way that Charlotte Elliott came, and that is the way the Apostle Paul came, and thousands have since come in that same way, in the words of that beautiful hymn, and it is the only way that the human soul can come.

And when we come that way to Jesus, some, at least, of the terrors of death will disappear, and the thought of life beyond the grave will become to us a far and restful vision.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

REV. O. G. MINGLEDORFF, D. D.

Lesson VIII.—May 24, 1931.

Subject.—Jesus Preparing for the End. Luke 22:7-23.

Golden Text.—This do in remembrance of me. Luke 22:19.

Time.—Tuesday and Thursday of Passion Week, April 4 and 6, A. D. 30.

Places.—Bethany and Jerusalem.

Introduction.—On Tuesday of Passion Week we find Jesus in the temple teaching the people. Late that evening he is on the Mount of Olives with Peter, James, John and Andrew telling them the signs that would precede the destruction of Jerusalem under the Romans, the signs that would portend his return to the earth, and of the age. After that conversation he went with his disciples to Bethany to the home of Lazarus and Mary and Martha. We have no record of what he did on Wednesday, unless we follow the teaching of some who place the crucifixion on Thursday instead of Friday; but that theory is beset with some difficulties. I shall not do any guessing.

For a proper understanding of the lesson turn back into the Old Testament, and read the account of the Passover. That was the type that preceded the Lord's Supper. The paschal lamb was a type of Jesus Christ, "the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world." One can never have an intelligent understanding of many things in the New Testament unless he masters their types in the Old Testament. They dovetail into each other.

Comments on the Lesson.

The verses in this chapter preceding our text throw some light on our study. The friends of Jesus at Bethany made a feast for him in the early part of the week, which he and the apostles attended. There seems to be a discrepancy between Luke and John as to the time when Satan entered into the heart of Judas Iscariot. John (13:27) places it at the time of the passover supper; while Luke seems to indicate that it took place at the feast that preceded the last supper; although his language is not perfectly clear, and may be parenthetical. Still, the awful fact remains perfectly clear that Satan took complete possession of Judas, and that from that hour he sought opportunity to betray the Master for a certain sum of money from the chief priests.

7. The day of unleavened bread.—Preceding the killing of the passover lamb every particle of leaven had to be put out of every Jewish home; for nothing fermented could be used at that feast. Sometime ago I was in conversation with the son of a very strict Jew. He told me how his old father would take a lamp and a broom, and would sweep the entire house, searching in every nook and corner for any waste material that might be lodged there, lest some speck of leaven should be left—straining out gnats and swallowing camels. On that first day of unleavened bread the passover lamb was killed; and roasted whole without breaking the bone in its body. The entire matter typified our Lord's death on the cross.

8. Peter and John.—Impetuous Peter and John a "Son of Thunder." They were both rash men at times; but Jesus leaned upon them more readily than upon other members of the apostolic group. There was real metal in them; and the day of tempering would come at Pentecost. Maybe they were imprudent; but prudent men seldom accomplish anything worth while. It fell to the lot of these two men to prepare the passover. The lamb must be secured and made ready, and the unfermented wine, the unleavened bread and the bitter herbs must be provided. It may be that the friend in whose home they ate the supper had something to do in providing these things.

9. Where wilt thou that we prepare?—He had not forgotten about that, but knew their question was coming.

10. There shall a man meet you.—Here we have the supernatural again. Mere men cannot do such things as this. They were to enter the city of Jerusalem and find a man who would show them the proper room for the supper. Every detail was given, and every detail worked out exactly as he told them. I suppose it is fair to assume that this man was a special friend of the Master. He would hardly have expected so much of a stranger. Maybe they had talked the matter over at some previous time.

11. The good man of the house.—So we learn something of the man's character—he was a good man. The guestchamber.—He must have been well to do; for that word does not indicate poverty. The feast required a large room; for there would be thirteen present.

12. A large upper room furnished.—The feast called for a large table in the shape of the letter U, with couches all along the outside for the guests to recline upon during the feast. The Lord, as the Master of ceremonies, would recline at the curve, with six apostles on each side of him. I am inclined to believe that the word furnished means that the "Goodman" had much to do with the furnishing of the food necessary for the feast. It was no small honor to have the Master eat the last supper in his home.

14. When the hour was come.—Late in the evening, in imitation of the feast in Egypt. He sat down.—They reclined at their places about the table. The twelve apostles.—Judas Iscariot was there, strange as it may seem to us.

15. With desire I have desired.—We find this form of expression here and there in the Bible. It means with intense desire. Jesus kept the Jewish law, fulfilling it to the last jot and tittle. The significance of that last Passover could only be spelled out during the coming ages of the Church.

16. I will not any more eat thereof, until it be fulfilled in the kingdom of God.—I do not know what this means; nor can I find anything clear in the best commentaries. The first part of the verse is clear enough; but the latter part is enigmatic. It seems to imply that somewhere in a future age when the kingdom of God has been established, the Master will join his people in some sort of a celebration of the passover. Dr. Clarke says: "Until that of which the passover is a type is fulfilled in my death, through which the kingdom of God shall be established among men." But he does not attempt to explain the mysterious words.

17. He took the cup.—Here Luke anticipates what is said more fully in verse twenty. I see no need for quoting these words. The passover was a type of the Lord's supper; and now the Master is fulfilling the type by putting the antitype in its place. Never again could the Jewish passover have any meaning; although it is still kept by the Jews. Permit a few thoughts here. The bread used in the eucharist should always be made without leaven, and the wine should always be sweet grape juice—never fermented. Nothing else is in keeping with the occasion. When the prayer of consecration is uttered the bread remains bread and the wine remains wine. No minister or priest can change the chemistry of the elements. There should be no superstition about these matters. The bread represents the body and the wine the blood of our crucified Redeemer—nothing more nor less. The bitter herbs symbolize the bitter sufferings of the Lord in his passion. The purity of his sacrifice is symbolized in the absence of leaven in the bread and the absence of fermentation in the wine. Above all things, do not lose sight of the fact that we are saved through the merit of his shed blood. Renounce this, and the hope of salvation is gone for ever.

21. The hand of him that betrayeth me.—The scene changes. The devil gets in his work. Judas is his tool. This was a dreadful shock to the little band. Immediately they were asking who it could be. The Master said: "It is he to whom I shall give sop when I have dipped it"; and gave to Judas Iscariot. John says the devil entered into him just at that time. He had wholly consecrated himself to Satan; and from that moment his everlasting destiny was settled. He became as vile and as corrupt as the devil himself in proportion to time and capacity. Jesus Christ was very patient with Judas, as he is with us; but there is a deadline ahead. Judas crossed; and so may we. Once cross, the soul is utterly beyond hope.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

H. J. McNeese, 634 13th Ave., New Brighton, Pa.: "I have enrolled with a well-known school for extensive Bible work. Will have few open dates beginning May 10. Pastors, committees, missions desiring spring or summer meetings address us as soon as you read this. Let us all keep busy for Jesus."

Evangelist Samuel Thomas: "We have a pioneer in a meeting in Baudette, Minn., and will be there three weeks or more late this summer. We would gladly hold other pioneer or home missionary meetings en route, or gladly serve any Holiness Mission, Methodist, Wesleyan Methodist, Free Methodist, or any other denomination that will accept full gospel preaching. I am a converted Hebrew. Mrs. Thomas is a National Evangelist for the W. C. T. U. She does some of the preaching and sings specials. We can give plenty of references. We will be glad to hear from pastors in Indiana, Ohio, Missouri, Iowa and Minnesota. We are now with the Wiley M. E. Church in Camden, N. J., and go from this church to the Bethany M. E. Church in the same city, with Rev. John Norberry, as pastor. Brother Norberry is known throughout the Holiness Movement. Please put our meetings on your prayer list. Our terms are entertainment and freewill offering. Our home address is 117 Eagle Drive, Indianapolis, Ind."

In St. Louis we have what we call the St. Louis Holiness Association, where we meet each month and forget about our churches and have a real feast in the Lord. These meetings are held the second Sunday in each month at the different holiness churches in the city. Our last meeting was held at the First Free Methodist Church, Rev. C. H. Coats pastor. The Lord blessed in a mighty way. We had an old-time praise service and songs of Zion went up to the throne. Surely the angels of Heaven rejoiced with us. An inspiring message was brought by Rev. Kline at the Free Methodist Church. The Psalmist David said: "Thou anointest my head with oil, my cup runneth over." If you do not have the running-over blessing accept our invitation and attend one of these services. If your cup is right side up it will surely run over. If you are enjoying this blessing, come and your presence will be a blessing to some one else. We ask the readers to earnestly unite in prayer with us that the Lord will send another revival, such as they had in the days of John Wesley, when thousands sought the throne of grace and were made new creatures in Christ Jesus. Our next service is to be held at the Alta Sita Methodist Church, 27th and Market St., East St. Louis, Rev. S. W. Harper, pastor.

L. O. Salzman, President.
E. G. Presson, Secretary.

A. C. King: "I am reporting my meeting at Bay Springs, Miss., held under one of the League tents. Though weather was very unfavorable for tent work, God gave us a gracious meeting in which eleven souls were gloriously saved and many came to a closer walk with God. We began April 30th at Taylorsville, Miss. Pray for us."

The Texas State Camp Meeting, Church of the Nazarene, will be held on the Waco Holiness Camp Ground,

"The Mecca of the Holiness Movement of the Southwest," (about three miles east of the city of Waco) July 15-26, 1931. Workers: Rev. Holland London and wife, Dr. and Mrs. A. S. London, Rev. C. M. Dunaway, of Decatur, Ga. Prof. L. C. Messer, and our dear "Uncle Buddie" has been invited to be with us, and we trust that his plans will be so changed that he can. Besides the regular camp meeting program the Board has planned for a Leadership Training Institute for the benefit of our Sunday Bible School workers to be conducted simultaneously with the camp meeting. Arrangements have been made to offer the entire Red Seal Course this year, and hereafter to plan for an extension of the work as occasion may demand. Leaders in these courses include such well known workers as Dr. A. S. London and Rev. H. B. Wallin, of Houston, Texas, and others whose names will be announced later. For reservations write Rev. J. E. Threadgill, 602 11th St., Waco, Texas. Come. O. F. Hatfield, Sec.-Treas.

NOTICE!

To any camp meeting desiring to secure a good children's worker, I take pleasure in recommending Mrs. E. D. Bartlett, of Murdock, Kan., as an experienced, and most successful children's worker. She not only entertains the children, but is peculiarly successful in leading them to Jesus, and praying them through to a real heart experience of saving grace. Because she and her husband were expecting to go to Africa as Missionaries, she refused several calls for children's work in camps this summer, but owing to the fact that they have been providentially detained, she is now ready to accept calls for camp meeting work this summer. She has had charge of the children's work in the great Kansas State Holiness camp for a number of years, and in a recent letter from the President of that camp, speaking of Brother and Sister Bartlett, he says, "Mrs. Bartlett has been our worker for the children for the past three or four years; few have been as successful in reaching so large a number of children for definite Christian experience of conversion and sanctification as Sister Bartlett. Bro. Bartlett has assisted her in song, and instructions at the altar. We hold them in highest esteem, and I certainly give them my unqualified endorsement." I am sure other camp meetings where they have labored would give them similar recommendations. No camp meeting committee will regret inviting their services. Address them at Murdock, Kan.

In perfect love. All for Jesus,
C. W. Ruth.

OUR MIGHTY WATCHFUL FATHER.

E. Wayne Stahl.

Some years ago a prominent, Spirit-filled evangelist was traveling from South Carolina to Texas, to hold revival meetings. He had but a short time in which to get to his destination before the Sabbath, and a very limited amount of money for his railroad expenses.

This evangelist had proceeded as far as Atlanta, Ga. Taking the train there the conductor said to him, "The Southbound mail for New York is over two hours late, and we shall have to wait for it." This meant that the revivalist would be two hours behind time in getting into Birmingham, Alabama, where he was to make connections with a train for New Orleans. He inquired of the conductor if there was any likelihood of the train for New Orleans waiting at Birmingham for the train that would be two hours late in getting there.

The conductor replied, "No, for that New Orleans train is always on time, and does not wait for late trains; your only way is to lie over at Birmingham for the night."

This information almost stunned the evangelist. With little money it was almost impossible for him to be equal to the additional expenses of spending a night in the city where he expected to stop for only a few minutes. Besides, the time for his getting to the place in Texas before the Sabbath was as scanty as was his money. But though cast down, he did not despair. Leaning his head over against the car window and closing his eyes, he prayed silently like this: "Oh God and my Father, I am working for thy dear Son. I belong entirely to him. The interests of the work of thy Son are infinitely more important than those of all the railroads. Thou knowest, O my Father, that my funds are exceedingly meager. Thou knowest that I have very little time in which to reach my city before Sunday. I beseech Thee, O my Lord, that thou wilt in some way make that fast train for New Orleans wait at Birmingham so that I can board it. I ask all this in the name of Jesus the Savior, who told us to be careful for nothing. Amen."

The prayer finished, a rich, golden peace settled down upon the heart of that evangelist. He felt that his Heavenly Father was greater than any railroad system and that he need not have any anxiety.

In course of time his train steamed into Birmingham. He noted another train there, all ready to pull out, but seeming to be mysteriously restrained. It was the train for New Orleans. His heart singing praises to his God, the preacher boarded that strangely-delayed train and it immediately departed. When its conductor came around for his ticket the man who had prayed asked him,

"How did your train come to be so late getting into Birmingham?"

The ticket-puncher answered, "I can't account for it. This train is always on time. I don't know why we weren't so today, unless it was to get passengers from the Atlanta Express."

But the evangelist knew why that New Orleans train was late that day.

The Mills of The Gods

by DR. C. F. WIMBERLY.

After reading sophisticated novels, sex stories, and tales of pagan glory, one comes with a great deal of delight and satisfaction upon this splendid story of Dr. C. F.
Wimberly—"The Mills of the Gods." As the title implies it is a story of justice and recompense, and reveals in no uncertain manner how God, and not Chance, is ruling the Universe. The story moves with sure and certain strides, is gripping, worth reading, and the book deserves a wide circulation in this day of lost faith and false values.—JOHN
RICHARD MORELAND, Poet and
Critic, Norfolk, Va.

The last book from the pen of this gifted author and preacher. A series of sixty-two addresses. Geo. H. Morrison is well known for his freshness both in thought and expression.

A few of the subjects treated are "The Illusions of Life," "The Surprises of God," "When Everyone Is Against Us," "What To Do With Our Cares," "The Cry For Companionship."

Perhaps one reason for the fascination of this book is the unusual texts that the author uses for his subjects. They are so different and yet so appropriate. The reader continually finds his mind following new trails.

BLASTING THE ROCK OF AGES.

O. C. Craig.

Hark! I hear a far-off rolling

Like a distant earthquake sound,

Of the multitude that's strolling

O'er the consecrated ground—

Lo! they come to blast the Rock of Ages.

See! they mock the King whose bearing

Like a slave-encumbered man,

On his shoulder all our caring

As the mob around him ran—

Lo; they come to blast the Rock of Ages.

Look! they pierce the rugged mountain!

Place a blast within its side;

From which springs the Living Fountain

Which shall evermore abide—

Lo! they come to blast the Rock of Ages.

Hear! the peal of awful thunder!

See! the debris fills the air!

Look! the Rock is torn asunder!

Wait! the earth is in despair!

Lo! they come to blast the Rock of Ages.

Blasting! Blasting!! They are blasting,

Hear the thunderous sound!

Oh! hear the awful rolling, thunderous sound!

It is written on eternal pages—

Blasting! Blasting! They are blasting, they are blasting!

Feel the trembling ground!

Oh! feel the awful trembling ground,

Lo; they come to blast the Rock of Ages!

IN LEAGUE WITH CHRIST.

By The Editor.

I can think of nothing finer than to be in league with Christ in some great enterprise, something that will count for time and eternity; something, you understand, that brings you into close fellowship with Christ, that will lead you to think of Christ, to pray to him, love him better, and labor with him hopefully and earnestly.

It is quite common for us to undertake something in which we are greatly interested, to work for it, to feel that this task or good work we have undertaken is ours. We are deeply interested; we put forth earnest effort, and pray God to help us in this enterprise that is on our hearts. If we could only get God interested, and to help us in our enterprise, we are quite sure we could put it over. It would be easy if God would take an interest in our project, and give us a real good lift. Things would move then, and success would be assured. And so we work and hope and pray and long to get God to help in this big work of ours.

I have been wondering how it would affect us if we should find out that Jesus Christ has some great work; some mighty task on his hands and heart, and is longing for us to help him. Some work, you understand, that calls for human head, hearts and hands. Something so very great that Christ must have our assistance or the task will not be accomplished. If only we could understand his purpose, and put ourselves into it, we doubtless would warm into holy enthusiasm and gain strength and faith with the thought that we were helping Christ. I can think of nothing finer than that we should become conscious that we are leagued up with Christ in the work that lies closest to his heart; something that he must have human help to accomplish. That would be splendid! To be in close union with Christ helping him to do something that he wanted done bad enough to die for it. Do you get the thought? We, instead of constantly begging him to help us do something, give ourselves to him to help him do something.

I will tell you what I believe is on the heart of Christ, the thing of most importance with him; the thing in which he must have human help. The thing he wants you and me to help him put over. Here it is! EVANGELISM! That is it without doubt. Evangelism! Christ wants the world to know that God loves the lost, and that he has died for its redemption, that every prodigal, sinful soul may come back to the Father's house with the assurance of open arms, best robes, good shoes, covenant ring, and a feast of love.

Say, HERALD readers, let's get tremendously interested helping Jesus evangelize the world. Let's do our best, and let's equip and send forth a host of young preachers who cannot go without our help. We are thankful, and I am quite sure our Lord Jesus is pleased with all of those who have given us a helping hand in the education and preparation of young preachers for a full salvation ministry. But there are some fifty thousand HERALD readers who have not responded. I believe that many of them who have not joined in this Evangelical League with Christ, will do so. It is with reverence that I say, Christ needs and wants your help. He died and rose again for the world's redemption, and he calls on those who believe, love and trust in him, to help him carry the good news of full redemption to the ends of the earth. Come, join us in this glorious EVANGELICAL LEAGUE WITH CHRIST to help him put over the greatest enterprise that can claim his love and our zealous effort.

The Restoration of Israel to Palestine No. III

SOMEWHERE I read a story like this: Old King William, the grandfather of the deposed Kaiser, in one of his campaigns sitting by his campfire at night, turned to his chaplain and said, "Chaplain, give me in a word, the best and strongest proof of the inspiration of the Bible. Not an argument, but just in a word." The chaplain saluted and said, "Sire, the Jews." "Ha," said the Emperor, "That is splendid! You could not have given a better answer. The Jews, as we have them in prophecy, in history, and in the world today, are a powerful proof of the inspiration of the Scriptures."

I do not know that this conversation took place. It could have taken place, and very likely did. If it did, the old Emperor is quite correct. The Jews, dating back from Abraham's call to go out and become the father of the nation, up to the present day, forms one of the most marvelous epochs of human history. There is no people living whose ancestry, records, and movements in the world can be traced like that of the Jews. They have been highly favored. They have been great sinners; they have been great sufferers, but in spite of it all, God has kept his promise to Abraham and made his offspring a blessing to all nations.

The Jews wrote the Old Testament and New Testament. Out from among them came the great evangelists and builders of the early Christian Church. They are, in fact, the most marvelous people in the world, in spite of the fact that through the centuries they have been "scattered and peeled." They have been sifted about in all the nations of the earth. They have been persecuted, robbed, legislated against, and actually slaughtered by tens of thousands; but through it all, and in it all, they have proven themselves indestructible. The world is about to learn that it cannot get rid of the Jews, and it cannot get away from them. In spite of the hatred against them, and the laws that have been passed to cripple and hinder them, out from among them have come the men of greatest wealth, largely manipulating the commerce of the world. Out from them have come great statesmen, scientists, scholars, authors, travelers, philanthropists. Somehow, they have managed to keep close to the head of the procession of progress and today they are getting a stronger grip upon world finance than any other people.

It is quite remarkable how the scattered nations and tribes of the earth have come in contact with each other, have united in marriage, mixed their bloods, and have practically lost their national identity. Who of us in this great melting pot of the United States knows just who we are, or where we came from. This writer is thinking about his Scotch, his Irish, and English ancestors, but what kind of blood, and what sort of ancestral sediment did they spring from?

A fine old Jew merchant, a man of wide experience and intelligence, said to me not long since, as we took a stroll together, "the blood which flows in my veins is as pure Hebrew blood as that which flowed in the veins of King Solomon." There is no way to account for this wonderful people. Their absolute toughness, cohesiveness, tenacity, indestructibility, and the marvel with which they have preserved their identity, except that they are, in a peculiar sense, God's people, and that God is keeping his promises which he made to Abraham and others of his faithful people in the long ago. The Jews are a sort of living miracle. Somehow God has used them as a proof of the inspiration of the Scriptures and, reading prophecy concerning them, we are fully convinced that he has a great plan and purpose concerning them.

It is generally admitted that the Bible is a sadly neglected book. We have a great desire that the readers of THE PENTECOSTAL HERALD should become devoted, thoughtful, prayerful readers of the Holy Scriptures. Just now we are thinking of the advantages of thoughtful reading and careful study of prophecy. It is one thing to read a chapter here and there in the Bible without any special purpose, and it is quite another thing to read the Bible consecutively with a definite purpose. One of our chief objects in writing these chapters is to interest THE HERALD readers in the study of prophecy. In this study you will find that the major prophets dwell on the sins of Israel, the judgments that will follow in their dispersion, the fearful punishments that will be inflicted upon them, as they are sifted like wheat in the nations of the earth. You will also find words of hope scattered through all of these warnings and threatenings of judgment, a final restoration of Israel and great spiritual blessing upon these chosen people of the Lord.

Scattered all through these prophecies are promises of a coming Messiah, a Ruler of righteousness in Israel. The Messiah promised in these prophecies is clearly the Christ.

SOUTH AMERICAN SKETCHES.

Rev. G. W. Ridout D.D., Corresponding Editor.

South America is a land of immensities. With its nine Republics it covers an area of 6,889,000 square miles. Compare this with Canada, which has 3,684,723 square miles, and with the U. S. A. which has 3,026,791 square miles and one gets an idea of how immense is this country south of us. We think Texas is a big state, with its 265,896 square miles, but compare that with Brazil which has 3,275,510 square miles. In other words, the single Republic of Brazil is larger than our United States. The little Republic of Ecuador, where I am writing these notes, is large enough to embrace within its territory the whole of New England and the state of Kansas, and yet within this tremendous area which we call South America, there is a population of only 64,536,000 people, just a trifle over the population of Japan with a territory of only 148,756 square miles.

II.

It would be a good thing for South America if some one would come here and write a book on Roman Catholicism and its Corruptions, of a character and type corresponding to Miss Mayo's sensational and stirring book, "Mother India." I think this would be a pretty good job for Sinclair Lewis. He would find in the lives and careers of the corrupt, dissolute, lying, deceiving, drunken priests of Rome stuff that would make a book that would be so hot as to almost burn the paper upon which it was printed and set fire to the publishing house that put it out. The books setting forth the "Lives of the Popes" in the days when the Popes had mistresses and bastards without number, would hardly light a candle to the scandal and depravity which trades here in South America under the mask of religion and in the sacred name of Jesus. I felt myself getting quite complacent with the Catholic Church in U. S. A., but since coming to South America and seeing this monster piece of Satanic imposture called the Roman Catholic Church I feel I can be tolerant no longer towards Rome. It seems unthinkable that the Roman Catholics of the U. S. A. who have a sense of decency and regard for morals and good government, and respect for Christianity, that they don't get aroused and stirred up and do something to purge South America of this unspeakably corrupt and vile thing that operates Romanism here.

In fact, the vileness of the priests has become so universally known that among thinking people they no longer regard them as anything but lying, deceiving and corrupt creatures. Many of the educated totally despise them and have nothing to do with the church but have become infidels and atheists. The priests, notwithstanding their depravity and vileness, hold the masses under their control in the way the witch doctors and priests do among savage tribes. They work the people from the standpoint of fear. They threaten and curse them if they attend gospel meetings and the people are afraid of their curses. Then they permit the people to sin and do wickedly under the sanction of the church and by the example of the priests themselves. In fact, conviction for sin is hardly known, wickedness of the vilest type is permitted everywhere, and priest and people love to have it so. A man went to the priest to get married; he was not a Catholic; priest told him he must confess and pay so much money. The fellow bluntly said, "Alright, I have committed all the sins named in the Ten Commandments except murder; here are twenty sucres" (about $4.00). Priest said, "Alright, I'll fix it!"

IMPORTANT NOTE.

I find many missionaries who receive no holiness literature whatever. They get the official papers and some of them very modernistic. Now it would be a great blessing to many of them if The Pentecostal Herald could be sent to them. Two dollars will pay the cost. I am sending missionary names to Mrs. Morrison as I go along. I hope some readers of The Herald will invest some of their tithe in this kind of evangelism. Remember ten dollars will send The Pentecostal Herald to five missionaries, and two dollars will send it for a year. Who knows but what some missionary who has lost the vision might get the vision and fire restored through reading The Herald! Here is a fine piece of missionary work. I am writing this note in Peru. We need a hundred copies of The Herald coming weekly to missionaries in South America. George W. Ridout.

III.

A priest wanted some money and a new sensation; he got a crude piece of stone, had some fellow shape it into a virgin and paint it up, and then had the stone carried to a place in the woods. Priest had a vision in which it was revealed to him that if he went into a certain woods he would find a virgin just sent down from heaven. He told his vision, raised an excitement, formed a procession, had a great time; the people came in crowds to see the miracle and the priest swooped in a fine pile of money. It was great! But some folks got suspicious. One woman was almost mobbed because she remarked that the paint on the image was like new. Other folks got suspicious and the authorities investigated and sent a sculptor and a painter to examine the figure. The hoax became public; indignation set in, priest had to flee, but was safely housed by the Bishop in another place.

A certain official went to the priest to have mass said over a dead relative who was in purgatory; he offered priest certain sum; priest said, "No, prices have gone up. Could not pray his friend out of purgatory except he paid the advanced price." Official got mad and proceeded to demand from the priest accounting for some public funds he was handling. Priest told him he gave account only to God. Official made it hot for the priest because he was a rascal and a rogue.

Now when I am saying these harsh, radical things about corrupt Romanism in this country, I would not dare to say that there are not some fine exceptions. No doubt, among the many thousands of priests and nuns there are many pious souls who are living up to their best light and are trying their utmost to find their way to Heaven. I believe it is not too much to say that God has his saints in all the churches and some among the great heathen religions.

IV.

Let us give thanks to God for what Protestant Missions have accomplished in South America. Remember it is only a few years ago, comparatively, that the Mission Boards regarded this country as a Foreign Mission field. It took considerable agitation to get the Board to consent to send missionaries there. Then when regular missionaries went in on all hands they found that Romanism controlled the government. In Bolivia any one attempting to oppose the Roman religion was considered a traitor and suffered the death penalty. This was a little over thirty years ago. Other Republics—Peru, Ecuador, etc., had it in their Constitution that the religion of the nation was Roman Catholic, exclusively. Behold the change! Now all the Republics are open wide. Romanism as a State Religion is repudiated. Some figures will show how Protestant missions have grown. There are about 4,000 missionaries, 6,000 native preachers, over 6,000 places of worship.

V.

I am writing these notes in Quito, the capital of Ecuador, a city of 100,000 souls or more. It is a city where Romanism has its seat. Everywhere you look you see church spires and towers, and nearly every fifteen minutes, night and day, you hear church bells. The other Sunday morning, they began a tremendous clanging at four o'clock; impossible for a stranger to sleep after that. It is the Lenten season and I suppose the Catholics are making up for lost time and the priests were waking up their devotees to come to early prayers.

This morning I took a walk around the big San Franciscan stronghold here. It is said they have one of the biggest Catholic monasteries in the world. Their property covers a whole city square. It is immense. Here is the monastery and their cells and the whole thing is capped off with a great church building. As you enter the church there is a painting of Christ driving the money changers out of his Father's house, and underneath in Spanish are the words of Luke 19: 46: "Escrito esta mi casa, casa de oracion es; mas vosotros la habeis hecho cueva de ladrones." When one sees and knows how the priests fleece the people and make the most outrageous demands upon them for money—money to pray for them, money to pray their friends out of purgatory, money to baptize them, money to bury them, etc., it is a wonder that such a picture and such an inscription would be placed at the entrance of the church.

They say that the Monks carry on a big brewery in connection with their work here, and of course they have a big market for their beer. In Ecuador liquor is sold everywhere and the government encourages the sale of it because of the revenue.

What a perversion is Romanism, and what a corruption of Christianity the monstrous system is. The thinking people have wakened to its scandalous history and spirit. Many have nothing but scorn and contempt for the whole wicked system and its priests. One of the newspapers of Peru some years ago said: "We breathe a fetid atmosphere, and are not sickened. The life of the country is poisoned and the country needs a life purification."

The sad thing about it all is that the more enlightened people, as they repudiate Rome, drift into atheism, infidelity and free thinking and have nothing to do with religion.

VI.

Doing evangelistic work in South America means working under adverse conditions, but evangelism is desperately needed here more and more. Romanism is to be met with at every point. Those you preach to are either converts from Romanism, enquirers after truth, or spectators dropped in to hear what you have to say. If the priest hears of some of his flock coming to the services he will probably send out the most dreadful threatenings and the people in their ignorance and superstition, are made afraid.

After a ten-days' meeting at Guayaquil, the Port city where there is more intelligence and freedom, and where we had hundreds attend the preaching of the gospel, and a goodly number of people seeking God, we came to the city of Riobamba where we had a three-days' meeting with fine crowds and unusual interest, and some coming out for Christ. Next we rode 75 miles by auto to Ambato where, with Rev. David Siemens, we held a two-days' meeting with unusual results, many hearing the evangelical gospel for the first time.

Quito, where we are engaged in evangelistic work in connection with the Christian and Missionary Alliance, is not only a great city capital, but Romanism has been so firmly entrenched that it has been slow progress here. The Alliance has its headquarters here with fine church and chapel and missionary home. Rev. D. S. Clark is the superintendent of the work; Rev. H. G. Crisman the missionary evangelist. We are preaching twice daily, with Mr. Clark as our interpreter, and people are coming in from various sections of the city; among the worshippers is a woman of the higher classes. Her brother was the President-elect of Ecuador, but was assassinated just before taking office. This was a terrible blow to the old lady, who had a terrific struggle to forgive the assassins, but she got the victory and she takes her stand with the despised Protestants and, as a result, suffers considerable social ostracism. She is present at all our services and is most devout.

A LADDER TO HOLINESS.

By General William Booth, Salvation Army.

FIRST STEP—I AM A CHILD OF GOD.

I am a child of God. I can with confidence call God my Father. I know that Jesus Christ is my Savior, and that he has pardoned my sins. I have been converted—that is, my heart and life have been changed by the Spirit of God. The fear of death and judgment and hell has been taken away. I love God, and want to please him. I hate sin, and want never to do evil any more. I pray and read my Bible, and love Christ's people. I do a little work and give a little money to extend the Kingdom of Heaven on the earth, and very much wish that I could do more. I hope that my Savior will be with me when I come to die, acquit me in the day of judgment, and then receive me into heaven to dwell with him forever.

SECOND STEP—I KNOW WITH SORROW THAT SIN STILL EXISTS IN MY HEART AND LIFE.

But although I have this assurance that I am a child of God, I also know, to my sorrow, that there are evils still existing in my heart and life which ought not to be there, and which I very much wish could be removed. For instance, there are in my soul the remains of:

Pride, vanity, bad temper, malice, hatred, and bitterness, revengefulness, ambition, lust, sloth, love of the pleasures and riches of the world, selfishness, want of thorough truthfulness, envy, etc., etc.

Honestly select from this list the particular evil, or evils, which you have reason to believe exist within your own heart, with which you have to battle, and which every now and then overcome and lead you into actual sin.

Look at that particular sin, or sins, when discovered, until you see and feel their hatefulness, and until you detest and loathe them.

I find that these evils manifest themselves in my conversation, in the manner I discharge my family duties, in the way I conduct my business, and almost in every part of my daily life.

I feel that these evil damage my example as a Salvationist, and very often prevent me reproving sin in those around me, because I feel when I do so that I lay myself open to the charge, "Physician, heal thyself." They also interfere greatly with my happiness, causing me much irritation and vexation of spirit, often leading me into actual sin, on account of which I am brought into condemnation, and have to seek forgiveness. But, most deplorable of all, I know that these evils grieve my Savior, being contrary to his will concerning me, and in direct opposition to his word.

I am sure I hate these sins, and long to be delivered from them.

THIRD STEP—I BELIEVE THAT JESUS CHRIST CAN SAVE ME FROM ALL SIN.

From what I have read in the Bible, by what I have heard from my comrades, and by the light God has given me by his Holy Spirit in my heart, I now see and believe that it is possible for me to be delivered from these inward and outward sins, and that I can be made holy in this life. I believe that I can, as the Scriptures say, be cleansed from all the filthiness of the flesh and of the spirit, and enabled to perfect holiness in the fear of the Lord.

I do not expect to be delivered from temptation, or from sorrow, or from suffering, or from the possibility of falling into sin in this world; but I do believe that God can work such a change in my appetites and dispositions, and give me such a measure of the power of his Holy Spirit as will enable me to live without committing sin. For now I see that the purpose for which Jesus Christ was born into this world, and for which he lived and died and rose again, was to destroy the works of the devil out of my heart and out of my life.

I believe that this blessing of holiness is offered to me in the Bible, and urged upon my acceptance by the Holy Spirit, and that God is waiting to cleanse me from all impurity and make me clean. Even now, while I kneel before him, he is saying to me, "I will sprinkle clean water upon you, and you shall be clean; from all your filthiness and from all your idols I will cleanse you. A new heart also will I put within you; and I will take away the stony heart out of your flesh and will give you a heart of flesh. And I will put My Spirit within you, and cause you to walk in my statutes, and you shall keep my commandments and do them."

"Oh, joyful sound of Gospel grace,
Christ shall in me appear;
I, even I, shall see his face,
I shall be holy here.

"My heart shall be his constant home,
I hear his Spirit's cry;
Surely he saith, 'I quickly come,'
He saith, who cannot die."

FOURTH STEP—I NOW CHOOSE, WITH ALL MY HEART, TO BE HOLY.

Believing that God has promised to cleanse my heart and my life when I ask him to do so with all my heart, I here and now choose to be holy, and determine to seek this blessing, and to obtain it, cost me what it may. I plainly see that I shall not gain it without difficulty. But, although I may have to give up some things that appear pleasant to me, and do things that I prefer not to do; and although I may have to battle with the enemy of my soul, who will not want me to be holy, and to struggle with my own heart of fearfulness and unbelief before I can enter into this promised land of holiness—still, I feel sure that the treasure is worth any sacrifice or effort that I may be called upon to make.

FIFTH STEP—I RENOUNCE ALL KNOWN SIN AND DOUBTFUL THINGS.

Seeing that holiness means living without sin, and that God has commanded me to sanctify and make myself holy, which means that I must be a partner with him in the great work of cleansing my heart and life, I do now fully resolve that I will do all I can to purify myself. I, therefore, do here now thoughtfully and solemnly renounce everything that I have reason to believe to be contrary to the will and wishes of my Lord and Savior, and opposed to the real happiness and holiness of my fellow creatures.

(a) I put away everything evil in the thoughts, feelings and imaginations of my heart.

(b) I give up all that appears to be evil, wasteful, or impure in my personal habits, whether in my eating, drinking, dressing, talking, or in any other particular.

(c) I give up and abandon everything that is wrong in the way I conduct myself in my family, in my dealings with my wife or husband (if I am married), with my children or servants (if I have any), in my conduct towards my master or mistress (if I am so employed) and the general conduct of my daily life.

(d) Nay, not only do I here renounce those things which I know to be evil, but those things which appear to be doubtful. I will abstain from doing, or allowing to be done, as far as I can, anything about the rightness or wrongness of which I have any serious doubt. I read in my Bible that "He that doubteth is damned," which means condemned, and I will not be condemned by doing doubtful things.

SIXTH STEP—I CONSECRATE MYSELF FULLY TO THE SERVICE OF GOD.

Not only do I, by God's help, promise to cease from all evil, but I do freely consecrate myself here and now to the service of my Lord. I deliberately and cheerfully lay myself and whatever I possess at his feet, and beg him to make what use he can of so poor, weak and unworthy an instrument as I am, and of such trifling treasures as I possess, for the promotion of his glory and the welfare of his creatures, both in this world and in the world to come.

I give him my body that it may henceforth become his dwelling place; I give him my hands, feet, eyes, ears, tongue, and everything else connected with it, together with all its appetites and powers, for him to keep and employ as he sees fit.

I give him my mind with all the faculties of memory, judgment, imagination, conscience and will, that he may cleanse it and preserve it blameless to the day of his coming.

I give him my heart with all there is in it—its capacity for affection, hatred, worship, hope, fear, faith—in order that he may purify, occupy, and fill it with his love.

I give him my goods, and my promise to regard them as belonging to him and his Kingdom, solemnly engaging to use them in such a way as I have reason to believe he will approve, and as he shall show me will be most productive of his glory and the benefit of my fellowmen.

In short, I give him my life, and promise to regard myself henceforth as belonging as much to him in the place where I now live as I expect I shall do when I come to live with him in heaven. I leave my position and condition entirely to his good pleasure. He can make me poor or rich, sick or well, the head or the foot. He can keep me on earth or take me to heaven. I belong to him.

SEVENTH STEP—I BELIEVE THAT GOD, FOR JESUS CHRIST'S SAKE, CLEANSETH ME NOW.

And now, O Lord, believing that you want me to be holy; that Jesus Christ, by his death, has purchased for me this deliverance from all evil, and that you have promised to make me holy when I seek for the blessing with all my heart; and having the witness that I do at this moment renounce every evil way and present myself a living sacrifice according to your wish. I believe that you do here and now accept my offering and purify my heart.

As a stone which the builder takes and lays upon the foundation, so I this moment lay myself on the sure foundation which Jesus Christ has laid, even his own blessed broken body—a sacrifice which, by its infinite merits, covers all the sins of my past life, and sanctifies the imperfect offering which I

DOUBLE NEED AND DOUBLE CURE.

Sermon by Paul S. Rees, delivered over Station WJR, Detroit, Sunday Morning, January 4, 1931.

Text: "Cleanse your hands, ye sinners; and purify your hearts, ye double-minded."—James 4:8.

AND if, out of the treasury of hymns of the Christian Church, I were allowed to select a secondary text, it would be a couplet from the hymn which the late Prime Minister Gladstone held to be the greatest ever written:

"Be of sin the double cure,
Save from wrath and make me pure."

You recognize it as a part of "Rock of Ages," by Augustus Toplady.

A well known British preacher has a sermon on the text, "Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good," which he begins with this pointed pronouncement: "The ultimate facts of life are two, sin and grace." It has been several years since that sentence first flashed out at me, and the more I have thought about it the more impressed have I been with its tremendous content of truth.

"ULTIMATE FACTS"

Sin and grace! These are the great, gripping, giant facts set before us for the meditation of these moments. "Cleanse your hands, ye sinners; and purify your hearts, ye double-minded." Let us agree at the very outset that there can be no correct understanding or adequate appreciation of grace until we come into possession of right views of sin. Nor can this be achieved by the lame reasonings and confused theorizings of which we ourselves are capable. For proof of this statement you have need to go no farther away than the city of Detroit and no farther back than last week. I refer to the proceedings of the National Student-Faculty Conference to which, fortunately or unfortunately, the newspapers have given such generous publicity. Here, for example, is a professor from the Teachers' Colleges of one of the nation's leading universities informing the conference that for students of today to learn about life, to take their moral standards and ideals, from their fathers and mothers "is a little like studying transportation with ox-cart drivers." And click, click, goes the reporter's typewriter in a spicy write-up under the headline: "Old Morality Like Ox-Cart." The professor goes on to list what he calls the six major shifts in moral attitudes "that seem to be important." As reported they are as follows:

1. Less faith in the past and more demand for creative, ethical living.

2. Less contentment with high motives alone; more demand that intelligent effectiveness be added.

3. Less faith in absolute rules; more demand for intuitive, artistic adjustment, creating a harmonious picture out of the particularities of each situation.

4. Less use for the old categories of the virtues—honesty, courage, generosity and so on; more tendency to interpret behavior, good or bad, in terms of psychological adjustments.

5. Less willingness to limit the concept of morality to individual problems, individual motives and individual consequences; more insistence that the basic problems are social, the basic causes social, the basic injuries and remedies within the social order.

6. Less of the ascetic note: Infrequent mention of duty, self-sacrifice, being despised, persecuted, reviled, mourning and poor in spirit. More emphasis on self-realization, rich experience, beauty and the abundant life.

What a deplorable picture that is of the moral morass in which scholarship and the campus are bogged and floundering, having cut themselves loose, as they say, from the "traditions" of the past. If it were merely the traditions of men from which they have loosed themselves, it would not be so serious, but the tragedy is that it is the voice of God from which they have turned away. Waving aside the Ten Commandments, smiling rather superciliously at the Sermon on the Mount, scorning the authority of the Word of God, the tendency of such minds as seem to have figured most prominently in the Student-Faculty Conference is to deify man, humanize God and minimize, if not naturalize, sin.

PROFESSIONAL PIFFLE.

I pause long enough to comment on that fourth point, which reads: "Less use for the old categories of the virtues—honesty, courage, generosity and so on; more tendency to interpret behavior, good or bad, in terms of psychological adjustments." In other words, if a man deliberately lies to you, don't think of him as having a dishonest soul. As a matter of fact, he hasn't any soul at all. The trouble is that some one or other of the glands of internal secretion has failed to function properly.

Some day somebody is going to write a new definition of man. It is going to read: Man is the creature that is perpetually in quest of excuses for his sins. It happens that his latest find is heredity and physiology. It is twilight for the preacher and high noon for the psychiatrist and psycho-analyst. What is needed is a few such center shots as that delivered by the Editor of the Michigan Christian Advocate in a late lecture on "Science in the Service of the Soul." He called to mind the case of a woman who a short time ago shocked Philadelphia with her cold-blooded dispatch of her husband. The head of the Department of Psychology at Temple University was called in on the case. Having examined her, he was put on the witness stand, where he delivered himself of this "expert" testimony: "Mrs. ——— is what we call a thyroid case; you will note she has an enlarged, fleshy throat, probably a small goitre. Then, too, there seems to be a drooping of the right side of the face, possibly a submerged form of unilateral paralysis, dating back perhaps to prenatal origin. The face indicates a violent temper, spitefulness, and a readiness to regard oneself as imposed upon," and so on and on.

STRAIGHT TALK.

To which recital of "perhaps" the Advocate Editor very properly retorts: "Why not cut out this thyroid stuff and admit that hatred in the heart is the thing to be confessed and cured before it explodes in murder?" "If you really want to trace the genesis of this brutal murder," he continues, "do not stop at her thyroid gland but dig deeper into her subconscious mind where hatred was quietly organizing its forces." The following is from her own testimony: "About the middle of September, 1930, after my husband and myself had had a quarrel, I considered the thought of killing him and at that time it appeared to me to kill him by using poison in his coffee. However, as I had been elected a delegate to a church convention . . . I deferred my plans of committing the murder until my return home."

"There you have it in black and white," says Editor Phelps. "Why not call it sin?"

And as a further wholesome antidote to all the fatuous and ridiculous barrage of words thrown out from class rooms and court rooms where the fact of sin is denied or distorted and the black enormity of sin is toned down or white-washed over, I like to recall the words recently spoken by Professor William Lyon Phelps, of Yale: "What is needed just now is an acute sense of sin rather than an enormous accession of conceit."

And these words recall some others—most impressive words, they are, written by the late James Orr, distinguished scholar of Scotland: "What we name sin is, from the religious point of view, the tragedy of God's universe. What it is, how it came, why it is permitted to develop itself into the havoc and ruin it surely entails, what is to be the end of it, above all, how its presence and working are to be reconciled with goodness, holiness and love in the God who has permitted it—these are the crushing questions that press upon the spirit of every one who thinks deeply on the subject. . . . For sin is here: this, conscience and universal experience attest. The evidences of its presence are not slight or intermittent. Men may belittle it, try to forget it, treat it as a superstition or disease of imagination—there are no lack of such attempts in the thinking of today—but the grim reality asserts itself in the dulllest consciousness, and compels acknowledgment of its existence and hateful power. Drug conscience as deeply as you may, a time comes when it awakes. Turn in what direction one will, sin confronts one as a fact in human life—an experience of the heart, a development in history, a crimson thread in literature, a problem for science, an enigma for philosophy."

PRIMARY FORMS.

Now this that Dr. Orr calls "the tragedy of God's universe," sin, while it has many aspects, many expressions, many subtleties, reveals itself in two primary forms. Some one has said that we are suffering today "from the paralysis of analysis." We have, in more than one area of life, speculated and analyzed, appointed commissions and assembled statistics, divided and sub-divided, till we know not where we are or what to do. It would be highly helpful to us to get back to some of the fundamentals and simple essentials of the word of God that liveth and abideth forever. The two primary forms of sin are indicated by the text: "Cleanse your hands, ye sinners; purify your hearts, ye double-minded." The hand and the heart! The wrong we do and the wrongness of the heart that is back of the doing! The one relates to conduct, the other to character. One is a matter of deed, the other of disposition. And that distinction appears uniformly throughout the teachings of the Holy Scriptures. To illustrate: In the 51st Psalm, which is a most illuminating study in the question of our sinnerhood, David prays in the first verse, "Have mercy upon me, O God, according to thy lovingkindness: according unto the multitude of thy tender mercies blot out my transgressions," but in the second verse he goes deeper, when he cries, "Wash me thoroughly from mine iniquity, and cleanse me from my sin." The uncleanness within is differentiated from the transgressions without.

In Matthew 15:19 Jesus traces the habits and practices of wrong doing back to wrong being: "For out of the heart proceed evil thoughts, murders, adulteries, fornications, thefts, false witness, blasphemies." It is because the heart is depraved that the deeds are dark.

In Romans 3:23 the Holy Spirit through St. Paul speaks of sin as sinning, "For all have sinned, and come short of the glory of God," but in chapter 7, verse 17, of the same epistle he speaks of sin as sinfulness. "Sin dwelleth in me," is Paul's putting of it.

The distinction is equally clear in the writings of St. John. In 1 John 1:8 we read, "If we say we have no sin, (apart from the cleansing of Christ's blood) we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us," but in the 10th verse he says, "If we say that we have not sinned, we make him a liar, and his word is not in us."

In the 3rd chapter and the 4th verse of the same epistle we read: "Whosoever commiteth sin transgresseth also the law: for sin is the transgression of the law," or, as it is more accurately rendered by Weymouth, "sin is lawlessness." In other words, if there be anything like an habitual disobedience against God, it is the expression of an inward anarchy. There is a rebellious disposition that needs to be dealt with.

WHAT SAY THE HYMNS?

Moreover, the witness of the Scriptures is fully confirmed in the witness of human experience. Is there any more impressive voicing of this experience than that to be found in the hymnology of the Church? I think not.

Take the second stanza of the hymn beginning, "Forever here my rest shall be:"

"My dying Saviour, and my God,
Fountain for guilt and sin,
Sprinkle me ever with Thy blood,
And cleanse and keep me clean."

Or this stanza from a hymn of quite another type:

"Lord, if Thou from me hast broke
The power of outward sin,
Burst this Babylonish yoke,
And make me free within;
Bid my inbred sin depart,
And I Thy utmost word shall prove,
Upright both in life and heart,
And perfected in love."

In singing "Prisoners of hope, arise," we follow through the second stanza wherein reconciliation with God is the theme, implying the forgiveness of sins, but in the closing lines we find God's reconciled child struggling with inward sin:

"Jesus, to Thee we look,
Till saved from sin's remains;
Reject the inbred tyrant's yoke,
And cast away his chains.
Our nature shall no more
O'er us dominion have;
By faith we apprehend the power
Which shall forever save."

I have not time to continue marshalling the evidence. I am asking this morning for a recognition of the fact that sin is twofold in character and that, therefore, grace is twofold in the remedy it offers.

HERE I AM, A SINNER!

I have done wrong. I have sinned, sinned against God, sinned against my fellows, sinned against myself. For that, on the warrant of the Word of God, by virtue of the sacrifice of Christ, I can be forgiven. But that is not all. There is a wrongness within, a perversity, an inclination, a disposition, something that my moral selfhood—something, too, that survives, in more or less marked degree, my conversion in the forgiveness of sins, resulting in this double-minded condition of which the text speaks. The carnal mind—enmity against God! The mind of Christ—harmonizing with God! For this inward sin, or sinfulness, I cannot be forgiven. It is not what I have done; it is what I am. A corrective, sanctifying force must be released within me if the mind of Christ is to prevail and I, being made free from sin, am to have my fruit unto holiness, and the end everlasting life.

TRACKING BACK.

In this closing moment I point you to a gloriously rewarding task. It is that of retracing our steps through those portions of Scripture in which we saw the double nature of sin. May God open our eyes that now we may see as clearly the double working of the grace that redeems. Listen again to David in Psalm 51: "Blot out my transgressions!" "Cleanse me from my sin!" The transgressions blotted out! The transgressor cleansed! Mercy that pardons and power that purifies! The latter thought finds further expression in the testimony, "I was shapen in iniquity," and in the prayer, "Purge me, and I shall be clean;" in the testimony, "in sin did my mother conceive me," and in the prayer, "wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow."

Now come to the teaching of our Lord. We heard him say that "Out of the heart proceed." And as he spoke we saw that procession of dark deeds moving out from the central self. What is to be done about them? What word has grace to speak? And promptly the answer comes: "All manner of sin and blasphemy shall be forgiven unto men" (the blasphemy against the Holy Ghost alone excepted). For "the Son of Man hath power on earth to forgive sins." Isn't that enough to set the joy-bells ringing? But what about that heart from which, as from an impure fountain, these evil doings streamed? Can it be cleansed, made free from the inbeing of sin? Assuredly it can, here and now. For a present tense benediction is pronounced upon the possessors of such a heart by him who came, the Lamb of God, to "take away the sin of the world:" "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God."

To all of which St. Paul says a hearty "Amen!" When we left him a few moments ago, he had, by the authority of the Spirit, put the whole world under indictment: "All have sinned." There is guilt! Is it hopeless? No! In the very next sentence he shows the shining way of pardon and peace with God: "Being justified freely by his grace through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus." But in the seventh chapter we found him contending with another problem, not that of guilt but that of resident impurity, with indwelling sin, with the "old man." And, strange to relate, some good people have never thought that Paul got beyond that struggle of the 7th chapter of Romans. They are mistaken. Full salvation reaches him, and in the 2nd verse of the 8th chapter he shouts: "For the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death." Justification for the sinner! Entire sanctification for the believer!

And what shall we find in John? Refusing to strike a single discordant note, he makes of the testimony to the gospel of a double cure a golden-toned symphony. 1 John 1:9, "If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness." Verse 7: "If we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin!"

To every unsanctified child of God let me make this closing appeal. If you will this morning rise in faith to the embrace of the gospel of the Double Cure, if you will believe the Word of God that the grace of a clean heart is as certainly receivable by faith as was the grace of forgiveness, you may join in singing:

"Jesus lives! He fills my soul!
Perfected in love I am;
I am every whit made whole;
Glory, glory to the Lamb."

Race-Track Gambling.

We see that the good people of Mississippi and Alabama are making a strong fight against a proposed act of the Legislature of those states to legalize race-track gambling. We do hope they will succeed in their battle against the great sin. The voters of these states ought to be careful to remember the men in their respective legislative bodies who are using their influence to legalize this great evil. There is not one single good thing about race-track gambling. It is altogether corrupting.

Legislators who will contend for this sort of moral degradation ought to be branded and relegated to private life. The race-horse people have money, much of it no doubt the result of shrewd manipulations of gambling, a sort of legalized robbery. The gambler who entices his victim and deprives him of his money by his tricks and shrewdness is, at heart, a thief. He may strut about with his head on high and pretend to be a very high-class, honest man, but deep in his soul he knows he is not.

Kentucky has suffered long from race-track gambling. The gambling races draw the very worst element of society from every direction. The annual horse races in any place bring together, not only the worst and most godless element of the very rich, but the thieves, the harlots, the armed hold-up men, pickpockets, male and female moral derelicts and vagabonds of every sort. They are about the races like hungry vultures that fly in haste to gather about a dead carcass.

If Mississippi or Alabama passes legislation legalizing race-track gambling they will soon find that it will demoralize the political life of the state. It has had a most distressing effect upon the political life of Kentucky. The men who stand for race-track gambling, and who profit by it, have no more political principles or integrity than the whiskeyites. They will elect state officers who favor their pernicious practices. May God in mercy save Alabama and Mississippi from race-track gambling.

What Is The Matter With Us?

CLARENCE TRUE WILSON, LL.D.

proper diagnosis of a case is half the cure. The symptoms in our church life are alarming. Sunday night services are being discontinued because no evangelistic opportunity is sought; membership is dropping off so as to show the whole church on the retreat. World Service is decreasing till every benevolent enterprise of our church goes begging; colleges raised up to spread scriptural holiness change their whole attitude toward religion, pull themselves from under the church and announce themselves independent. Boys and girls sent away to get an education in church schools established through the self-sacrifice of praying fathers and mothers, come home skeptical. Traditions that may well hold us to our ideals are voted out. The Methodist Episcopal and the Church, South, when their Review drops behind, have both voted to discontinue it. The same policy of retreat is on with reference to any city church that gets behind in its expenses, its congregation and its membership. "Sell it and pay its debts" is the slogan. There is something the matter with our Zion.

We are unable to stand before our enemies because there is an accursed thing in the midst of ourselves. If we look at our nation, we find evil propaganda pumping poison into the minds of America's millions every morning and night. There is a set purpose on the part of politicians to make our Constitution a scrap of paper and the best law that was ever enacted for the moral benefit of mankind a misnomer and a farce.

Some say repeal the law; some are willing to nullify the Constitution; some are ready to drag the moral standards down to the level of the lawless and to the demand of the criminal element; some have placed their faith in religious education to save the church, and educational methods to save the State. I have spent the last twenty-one years of my life specializing on reforms, and especially the great reform of prohibition, but I have no faith that organized education, better leadership, bigger gifts of money can save our Republic. The trouble is not in our head, but in our heart. This Republic lacks in heart religion. Nothing but the regeneration of human souls by the Holy Spirit in the name of Jesus will withstand the flood of coarseness, selfishness and sin.

I had hoped that this year, marking the nineteenth anniversary of the coming of the Holy Spirit to "take of the things of Christ and reveal them to us," might be the epoch-making year that would call us back to the source of our power. But it has not worked that way. The few who had this power have commemorated it, but those who had it not have ignored it. There are ten thousand congregations in the Methodist Episcopal Church alone that never have heard that this was the anniversary or that the Holy Spirit is here in power to save the soul, the church, the State.

Some of our people are afraid of a revival. They think there will be extravagances of expressions and outlandish mannerisms and they are fonder of decorum than of power.

When a terrible drought curses the earth and a gracious shower comes upon it, occasionally the new rain makes great washes and sometimes floods away bridges and destroys hay, and other infelicities occur to the farmer, but where is the sensible farmer who would not rather have the shower with all its inconveniences than to have the earth dried up with perpetual drought? I would rather have a gracious revival of the work of Grace with some of the extravagances I have witnessed in my life time than to live at this poor dying rate, benevolences shrinking, church members decreasing, spiritual dearth over pulpit, pew and life.

Some things are disappointing. When we repealed our amusement clause, it was not to let down the bars to worldliness, but to put the principles of discrimination in diversions upon the intelligent conscience of our people. It has not worked that way. Instead of ringing true and clear and often on the subject, our pulpits have been comparatively silent on the whole matter of worldly amusements, while dancing, card-playing, theater-going, movie-patronizing and even Sunday recreations have gone on unrebuked,—indeed religious rebuke is a lost art.

What shall we do about it? I wish we could call our churches to their knees, and the prayer of faith to save the sick, "and the Lord shall raise them up." Our church is sick. No man can read the history of Methodism or the history of any other branch of the Christian Church and not contrast the glow of health which made our fathers the evangelists of the world, with the great dearth of spiritual results that characterizes nine-tenths of our churches today. Contrast the days when Simpson, Durbin, Bascom preached the Gospel with matchless power and the inane, lifeless, resultless preaching of so many of our pulpits; contrast the congregations that assembled in our youth and prayed our preacher's messages into power, with the sparse, cold, contented, congregations that greet our pulpits and never send a spark back to them to ignite the message. Something is the matter. Only God has a remedy for it in the power of his Son's atonement in the coming of the Spirit to make it efficacious in our behalf, and the prayer of faith is the condition of applying this remedy to modern times.

I would like to join a prayer league of everybody who sees it to supplant a Throne of Grace till a new spiritual life revives, sweeps away the worldliness, the indifference, the contentment with formal usage and enthrones again the spirit of power in the souls of men.

We may have it for the asking.

ONE MINUTE SERMON.

BETHEL COOK.

SELF CONTROL.

"I keep under my body, and bring it into subjection." 1 Corinthians 9:27.

There is nothing so much needed in this modern world as self-control. Men everywhere are letting passion and appetite rule their lives.

The opportunities to gratify the desires of life were never more numerous than today.

This means that temptations are more severe and that there is a greater need for diligent resisting temptation.

If a man can control his inner life nothing else can harm him, but uncontrolled passions and unrestrained appetites mean certain destruction.

Only the Spirit of Christ in our life will be sufficient to keep us under perfect and complete control at all times.

It isn't a reign of righteousness that frightens your people from coming to services, is it?

"Come."

CLYDE EDWIN TUCK.

Can you not hear again the Master's voice,
You who are weary with a load of care?
"Come unto me," it says, "arise, rejoice;
Your troubles and your sorrows I will bear."

He speaks today as surely as of old
To his lost sheep who wander far away;
He bids them share the shelter of his fold,
And at his feet their heavy burdens lay.

"Come unto me, and I will give you rest"—
Rest that this cruel world can never give,
A peace surpassing sweet for the oppressed;
He bids the hopeless courage take, and live.

Come to the fount of love and freely drink
The living waters that will make you whole,
You who through error's ways have reached the brink
Of life's Dead Sea which would engulf your soul.

Come, like the blind man falling in the dust;
A contrite heart he loves, will not despise;
Repose in him your highest faith and trust,
That light divine may touch the spirit's eyes.

Come with your scarlet sins, come with your tears,
You whom the crowd may scorn, condemn, and shun;
The plea of all who would repent he hears;
Through him our victories must all be won.

The Great Physician still is here to heal,
Come, touch his garment's hem, faith only bring—
He turns no one away who makes appeal:
Your every fear will then take sudden wing.

"Come, follow me," the Shepherd calls once more

To lead you from the desert of despair
Into his pastures green; his open door
Invites you in his love and peace to share.

GLEANINGS FROM THE EVANGELISTIC FIELD

CALCUTTA, INDIA.

Dear Herald Friends:

It has been our policy, whenever possible, to get off the beaten trail, where the natives are little affected by foreign influence. Our contacts in such places seem to indicate that those who have heard little or no gospel are usually more receptive than those who live in communities where the church is a strong factor. This, we feel is not because the gospel becomes less attractive with closer acquaintance, but, rather, that those who continue to reject Christ either become hardened, or else the faltering of backslidden and insincere Christians have driven them away.

Sumatra boasts thousands of square miles of the wildest country in the world. The first missionaries to go there were eaten by cannibalistic head hunters. Many others have been preserved from the same fate only through the miraculous power of God. Today the Batak jungle man of Sumatra struggles on in the same primitive manner that he did centuries ago, eking out a wretched existence by cutting and burning off little clearings in the jungle, where he drops rice seed in the ashes, paying no more attention to it until nature ripens the crop. After two years the relentless jungle creeps back, forcing its temporary conqueror to make new clearings. In three years his former rice fields are covered with an impenetrable growth of matted brush, and in five years all signs of man's labors have been obliterated. Rice, eaten with fingers from the clay cook-pot or a slab of wood, as he squats on the floor, constitutes most of his food. His home, a little bark and palm leaf hut, placed on stilts to keep prowling animals out, contains nothing that we would call furniture. His god may be anything that his fancy chooses to animate, from a grasshopper to the sun. Even thicker than the pitch black midnight of his treacherous jungle is the thick veil of darkness enfolding his soul.

Today a mighty conflict is going on in the heart of the jungle which will be settled within the next ten years, for within the limits of that time these simple folk will have turned from their animistic faith. An inadequate force of missionaries is exerting every effort to bring them to Christ, while Mohammedanism is sweeping down on them like a murky flood. Christ or Mohammed? Today the issue hangs wavering in the balance. Tomorrow it will have been settled forever. Pray earnestly that the cross may reach them before the crescent.

On Sunday, March 1st, we conducted four services in Medan in which Bataks, who had left their jungle homes for the city, made up all or a part of the congregation. We found them very much like the Philipinos in physical characteristics, attractive, lovers of music, sunny natured, and earnest, receptive hearers of the word. On Monday we boarded a narrow gauge train which took us a hundred and twenty-five miles into the interior, to Kasaran. Here we were met by Paul Stamer, a former Asburian. The next day he led us on a trek into the jungle. The narrow footpath wound in and out among towering forest giants of strange varieties; broke into dark tangles of vines and brush undergrowth; plunged down almost perpendicular sides of ravines, where we crossed rushing streams on poles; climbed over huge fallen logs, and cut through head-high elephant grass. We could hear hundreds of black tailless monkeys chattering at us. Five wild pigs crossed the path within easy shooting distance. Tiger and deer tracks were seen in some soft mud. The heat was extremely oppressive. At last dripping with perspiration we burst into a clearing and there before us was the mission school we had come to visit, a three-roomed thatched hut on stilts. This building serves as day school during the week, church on Sundays, and wayside inn at all times, where the traveler receives the gospel as he stops to rest on his way through the jungle. These lowly unpainted shacks seem very mean temples to one who compares them with churches of our modern world, but upon these little soul-saving stations rests the great responsibility of bringing Christ to the Bataks. We spent some hours with our jungle hosts, feasted on bananas and tea that tasted like smoked apple-tree leaves; and then trekked back to civilization over a rain-soaked trail.

That night God met us in a large church filled with young people. Here for the first time in our lives we listened to a group of little brown-skinned children sing hymns in delightful three-part harmony. All weariness from the day's strenuous activities was driven away by the wholehearted responsiveness of our colorful congregation.

GRACIOUS REVIVAL AT WELLS, KANSAS.

You hear some laymen and preachers say, "You can't have the old type of revival any more. You can't preach Hell-fire, the Judgment, and against sin as they used to in the old days. We are living in a different age, you know." Perhaps that is why in the last two years we have lost over 100,000 members in our Church. Here is something to think about any way.

On April 5, the pastor began an old-time revival, preaching the old gospel truth above mentioned which some of our good brethren say we can't preach. On Friday of that week, the Rev. J. L. and Mrs. Carothers of Colorado Springs—died-in-the-wool Methodist—came to the pastor's assistance, preaching the same old-time truths. When the meeting closed it was discovered that several entire families had been won to the Lord. The pastor baptized four babies, twenty-three others including children, young people and older folks; thirty-four were received into the church, including those who came by transfer, and letter from other churches. Sunday evening several more were converted and four more were baptized and taken into the church on Wednesday evening at the prayer meeting. There are two more who are coming into the church at the next Sunday service who were not present at the prayer meeting. This will make a total of forty received after the kind of a revival that they say is impossible now-a-days. This was not a card-signing affair, but they took the old route of repenting of their sins, praying until they felt the pardoning power of God in their heart. In addition to the above, the greater part of the backslidden church "came home to Father's house." The total membership before the revival was only 38; it will be more than doubled.

Wednesday evening following the revival, there were fifty-five present for the old-time prayer meeting which has gone out of existence in so many places. Twenty-five prayed and nearly the whole fifty-five testified to a definite personal experience of salvation. Brethren, is not this what we need today? We give God all the glory for what has been accomplished. It has not been by power nor by might, but by his Spirit.

Jesse D. Epps, Pastor.

TIMES OF REFRESHING.

It has been some time since we have reported to The Herald, not because we have not wanted to, but we have been very busy, in fact have only spent eleven days at home since last August.

After holding meetings in Kansas, Colorado, and New Mexico, we went into the northwestern part of the country, stopping at Twin Falls, Idaho, on our way, and having a fine meeting there with Bro. Metcalf. Then on to Yakima, Granger, Wash., and Amity, Ore. God surely met with us in all these meetings and we do not remember seeing folks go deeper than in these places. Many who had been testifying to the blessing for several years, found that they had never gone "through," and after days of struggling finally prayed their way through to victory.

We are learning daily that all who are testifying to the experience have never gone clear through with God, stayed on the job until the "old man" had been really crucified. We find everywhere that many of our evangelists and altar workers are too anxious to get the seekers away from the altar, and have them testify to something they have not experienced. The battle is hard, but God is giving the victory. People are wanting something that will satisfy; they do not know what that "something" is, so it is up to God's people to tell them their needs. We are dating now for fall and winter and prospects look like a full slate.

J. L. Carothers and Wife.

CAMDEN, NEW JERSEY.

We have opened our work as pastor of the Bethany Methodist Episcopal Church, Camden, N. J., for the fourth year. The three past years have been heavenly years; souls have been saved and sanctified, which was not known here ere the writer came. Thank God for three blessed years; no church suppers, bazaars, and such questionable methods have taken place, but scores of souls have sought God for pardon and cleansing. God has blessed us temporally, financially, numerically and spiritually. Some Roman Catholics have been saved. Every week souls are getting to God. The best church I have served in a quarter of a century. Our business meetings are a joy to attend. We have returned on our fourth Conference year, to "walk by the same rule and mind the same things." To God be all the praise. Amen.

Yours for the cause of holiness,
John Norberry.

"Keep on believing."

NEWS FROM THE STUDENTS OF THE TRAINING SCHOOL IN MEXICO.

Most of you know that the months of November and December are our vacation months here and that our students are nearly all out in the work of winning souls for Jesus. I have been receiving good letters from all of them, but here is one so good that I will have to lay aside my other urgent duties long enough to translate it and send it on to you. It is as follows:

Dear Sister Soltero:

After greeting you and all who are in your home kindly, and hoping that God's richest blessings are upon you, I will say that we are well, thanks be to him.

First, I will have to ask you to forgive me for not writing sooner, but I was ashamed to write without sending you a report of something done for Jesus, and as it rained continually the first two weeks of our vacation, and the roads were impassable, it was impossible for us to get out, as we had planned, but I am glad that the time was not spent in vain. God has led us by his Spirit and all the services which we have been able to have, have been full of glory. He has blessed his Word and we have seen the work of the devil destroyed.

On November 19th I went to visit our missions near Axtla and although they were not expecting me that day, we were able to pass the word along and that night the church was literally filled to its utmost. Everybody was there early and waiting anxiously for the service to begin. When we sang the first song the Holy Spirit fell upon us and we wept for joy. First, we had a testimony meeting, and as six of the students were present, they gave their testimonies in their native tongue (Aztec) and with such great power of the Spirit that everybody was greatly moved and there were many "amens." The time passed so rapidly that the first thing we knew it was very late so I tried to make my message short but I took time to clear up some points about some lies which the schoolteacher and another fellow had been circulating about the Gospel and the missionaries, making our brethren believe that we evangelicals are working for the Americans and their interests, but as I said before, by the grace of God we were able to see this work of the devil destroyed.

In Temalacaco we had a good service although the attendance was not so good on account of a scourge of measles which has caused sorrow to enter almost every home. Through the day Brother Crisanto and I were visiting in the homes, which looked like tiny hospitals, but in spite of everything these brethren remain true to God. Trials and doubts cannot enter and have no effect on hearts where the love of God has been rooted and grounded.

We visited Tenascalcoo (a new work) where about fifteen heads of families have been converted recently. These people attend our services in Jalpilla (it is not far). They were very happy to have us visit them and when we had gathered for the evening service we saw that the other neighbor men began to gather in the schoolhouse all armed with rifles, knives and clubs. However, they lacked courage to attack us so began to drink liberally so as to get up their courage. When they began to feel the effects of the liquor they sent some armed men to the service to get the men who had invited us there. They did not go so they had to go back. This they repeated three times and at last they were so mad that we could hardly appease their wrath. So finally we all went together to the schoolhouse and found that they were all drunk and only wanted to frighten us. But their fury was abated and we were able to sow the seed, and thus the Gospel car moves on. Everywhere we go we find little groups of Christians scattered about like oasis in the desert and these will most certainly cover the whole Huasteca with the simple faith of the Gospel.

On our visit to Matlapa we found a fine group of Indians who were anxiously waiting to hear the Gospel message. There our service lasted till midnight but all were as attentive as the first moment we began; they even begged us to preach them some more for they said that for that purpose they had gathered together. This work is the fruit of the faithful labors of our brother Santiago Ortiz who has worked hard to evangelize the Aztecs of that region. All the other places we have visited, we have found everything all right and God is blessing the work in spite of the work of the enemy.

Ignacio is with me. He is a fine yokefellow and an enthusiastic worker. I shall continue to inform you of our work for Jesus.

Trusting that God's richest blessings may be upon you, I am,
Your brother in Jesus,

Jesus Melo.

The student's name will seem strange to the most of you but you must remember that in these Catholic countries the name of the deity is not revered as it should be. Jesus, Saviour, and such like titles are common names here. There is one little boy here whose name is Jehovah, which to us is nothing short of blasphemy. However we are glad to say that our converts never use these titles to name their children any more. They love Bible names and you can find the most of the twelve apostles in almost any group of boys.

We ask you to pray earnestly for our boys not only while they are out in the work, but also when they come back to school in January. Pray that God will touch hearts to support just those boys who should be supported and to give us great wisdom to choose among the many who wish to come, the very ones who should come.

Yours in his service,
Nettie W. Soltero.

IN THIS BUSY AGE

young women who are struggling, trying to live Christian lives, need a message of encouragement—a message that really creates in one a desire and determination to find time for the deep devotional life.

The little book, "Mary of Bethany," is one of the fullest, richest messages on the devotional life we have read. She had nothing too precious for Jesus and to read this wonderful little book will encourage, inspire and enrich any heart.

The price is only 25c, or 5 copies for $1.00. Order some to hand out just for the good they will do. It will be doing good preaching. Pentecostal Publishing Company, Louisville, Ky.

He is to be virgin born. He is to be rejected, and is to suffer death among malefactors. He is to be buried in a rich man's tomb. He is to rise again. He is to "see of the travail of his soul and be satisfied."

Strange to say, the modern religious skeptics have the hardihood to tell us that the prophets knew nothing of the coming of Christ. How a man of any sort of intelligence can read the prophecies of the Old Testament Scriptures and the life of Christ, as we have it in the New Testament, and question for a moment, the fact, that the prophets, by the inspiration of the Holy Spirit, saw the Christ, believed in him, wrote of him, foretold his coming and the great events of his life, we cannot understand. We suggest to our readers that they take up Isaiah, Jeremiah and Ezekiel and read them thoughtfully, pencil in hand. Get one of those pencils with a red and blue end; sharpen both ends, and when you read of the dispersion of Israel mark it with red; when you read of the restoration of Israel mark it with blue. When you read something of the promise of the Christ, a Redeemer in Israel, a King ruling in righteousness, make two marks under it, one in red and one in blue. The red will stand for his sufferings, and the blue for his triumphant reign. I do not know that these suggestions will appeal to you, but I am sure if you follow this method, the prophecies will take on a new and interesting meaning, and will strengthen your faith and warm your heart with love and appreciation toward the God of our salvation.

I will close with a quotation from the 11th chapter of Isaiah. This chapter is indeed a stream in the desert. Read it through and note especially the 11th and 12th verses: "And it shall come to pass in that day, that the Lord shall set his hand again the second time to recover the remnant of his people, which shall be left, from Assyria, and from Egypt, and from Pathros, and from Cush, and from Elam, and from Shinar, and from Hamath, and from the islands of the sea. And he shall set up an ensign for the nation, and shall assemble the outcasts of Israel, and gather together the dispersed of Judah from the four corners of the earth." This is a plain and beautiful promise of the restoration of Israel—not from Babylon—but the later and more general restoration. One of the interesting features about this prophecy is the fact that it is now being fulfilled. The Jews are returning to Palestine. They are meeting opposition; no doubt will have serious difficulties to contend with, but they are accustomed to that sort of thing. To those of us who read and believe the Scriptures, it is a comfort and delight to know before it comes to pass, what the final end is sure to be.

Two Weeks In Atlanta, Georgia.

ON my way from Florida to Kentucky, I stopped off in Atlanta, Ga., for a two-weeks' meeting with Rev. Sam Haynes, one of our regular evangelists of the M. E. Church, South, who has been a great soul winner. He is a giant in height, with a powerful voice and a soul on fire. Eternity alone will reveal the fruits of his faithful ministry. Some people have found fault with Brother Haynes for believing that the precious blood of Christ can cleanse a believing, consecrated soul from all sin, here and now. But Sam keeps on believing and does not know how to preach any other Christ than the one revealed in the Bible, who is able to save to the uttermost. There is a simple earnestness about this big, tender-hearted man that draws the people to him, and makes them believe what he preaches. What a pity to let a community of souls go to waste and be lost to all eternity when Sam Haynes, under the blessing of God, could awaken and bring scores of them to Christ.

There is a large tabernacle which will seat fifteen hundred people in Atlanta; it was once used by the Christian Alliance folk. They have built a church and left the tabernacle, and Brother Haynes and a group of devout men, secured it and opened up a Mission for Sunday afternoon and night services. The laymen of a number of Methodist churches in the city united in this good work, and secured Brother Haynes as their pastor for quite a part of his time when he was not engaged in revival work. They commenced this work last June; since that time they have had more than a thousand definitely blessed at the altar, regenerated, reclaimed, and sanctified. They have served lunches to 25,000 hungry folk, have given away more than 12,000 loaves of bread, besides clothing. They have visited the sick, prayed in neglected homes and helped and encouraged a host of needy souls.

One of the best things about this mission is the fact that it has given an opportunity to Christian people to do something for Christ and humanity. There are many people who are doing little, or nothing, because they have not been able to find a place to take hold, something to do. This mission has afforded them an excellent opportunity to give of their substance and to give of themselves. Well, this is the place where I had the privilege of preaching for two weeks. We only had evening services, afternoon services on Sabbath. There is a faithful body of men and women here working under the leadership of Brother Haynes. He has various pastors of the city preach for him as he can secure them.

Charlie D. Tillman led the singing for us. He does not look or seem any older to me than he did twenty-five years ago. He had a strong chorus and invited special singers many nights, with a group of children in the Amen corner, and the people certainly did sing. Charlie Tillman knows how to get it out of them, and the singing was wonderful. We had a fine hearing; sometimes very large congregations. During the two weeks I was not able to keep an accurate count, but should say there were some seventy-five at the altar under definite calls, and many more in response to more general calls, and a number were blessed. Among those blessed, were two men with their wives, who were sanctified. It was a beautiful sight and well worth the labor and expense of the meeting. Others came into the experience of perfect love. I was especially interested to see these four people enter into the fulness of the blessing of the gospel.

Many revivals were going on in the city. The Nazarenes were having a good meeting under the leadership of Allie Irick. Charlie Dunaway was conducting a wonderful meeting with Pastor Williams at St. John's Methodist Church; other revivals were being conducted in various churches.

Atlanta is a great Methodist center. I was invited to speak at the Methodist Preachers' Meeting Monday morning, there being some fifty men present; two presiding elders with the preachers of their districts, North and South Atlanta, were present.

I also had an invitation from Dr. Frank Parker, Dean of the Theological Seminary at Emory University to speak to his students. I found a fine body of young men, met a number of professors, and the young preachers seemed to take my message cheerfully. Dr. Parker is one of the great souls of his denomination. He was once elected bishop by the General Conference, but did not feel led of the Lord to accept the office, and refused to be ordained. He is greatly beloved by his students, a man of profound scholarship and deep piety.

A group of laymen were having special services in a large upper room in one of the most prominent hotels in Atlanta. They held their meetings at the noon hour for business men and others who desired to attend. They had me preach for them at 12 o'clock one day. There was a fine audience and an enjoyable service, so far as my part of it was concerned. Brother Dunaway was having morning services at St. John, and large crowds day and night. He had me preach for his congregation one morning. St. John is a beautiful church, with a devout and aggressive pastor with large membership. We had a gracious service with the people out there.

Brother Edmonson, one of the famous Georgia preachers, with whom I had a great revival at St. Paul's Church some years ago, is pastor of a flourishing church in Atlanta, and had me preach for him one Sunday morning. So speaking in these six different places I was able to touch a large number of Atlanta people. It was strenuous work, but I had a gracious time; spent much time quietly in a room at the Jefferson Hotel, where I received every courtesy, and was able to lie down and rest much of the time.

I had some pleasant fellowship with Dr. Dempsey, who has recently become editor of The Wesleyan, the Georgia Methodist Church paper. It is a fine old paper and Brother Dempsey is getting down to his work in good shape. He is a charming brother and if the brethren will support him, will give them a good religious journal.

Atlanta is a great old city. Just now it is feeling the pressure of the financial depression. If Atlanta, when the automobile first appeared, had erected great automobile factories and drawn the money there that has gone from Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Florida, Louisiana, and other parts of the south to Detroit, Mich., for cars it would be a city of a million and a half, or two millions of people, and it would keep the Georgia farmers busy raising vegetables, watermelons and peaches to be consumed in Atlanta. I suppose they never thought of it, and it is too late to think of it now. If they had thought of it in time, and done it, it would have increased the value of every foot of land in the great State of Georgia. I can but believe that one cause of the very hard times is the fact that the country has been drained of its money to buy automobiles. It is an expensive method of travel and soon wears out; but once you get the automobile habit is is difficult to break the habit and learn how to walk. H. C. MORRISON.

Come to Commencement!

Plans are under way for making the 1931 Commencement, May 27-June 2, the most interesting and helpful event of its kind in Asbury's history. Every alumnus, who possibly can do so, should attend. Come and meet with old friends and acquaintances, renew that sacred bond between yourself and your alma mater, and, best of all, enjoy the spiritual feast and Christian fellowship of this hallowed occasion.

The program as yet has not been fully completed, but the tentative schedule of events is as follows:

WEDNESDAY, MAY 27.

The college administration has been much in prayer that the year may close with a great spiritual outpouring upon faculty, student body, alumni, and visiting friends. To this end, special emphasis will be placed upon the Holiness Convention which will open on Wednesday evening with a sermon by our greatly beloved President Emeritus, Dr. H. C. Morrison.

THURSDAY, MAY 28.

On Thursday morning at ten o'clock there will be a sermon by that saintly man, Commissioner S. L. Brengle of the Salvation Army. Commissioner Brengle has spoken a number of times at Asbury and his messages have been of unusual spiritual blessings to the faculty and students. Dr. Morrison will preach again on Thursday afternoon. President L. R. Akers will speak Thursday evening.

FRIDAY, MAY 29.

On Friday at ten o'clock will be held the annual service of the Asbury Theological Seminary. Dr. Morrison will speak. At this time will be presented the certificates and diplomas in Theology as well as the certificates and diplomas in Art, Music, Speech and Home Economics.

Commissioner Brengle will speak again in the afternoon of Friday.

The Graduating Exercises of Bethel Academy will be held on Friday evening at seven-thirty o'clock. Dr. McHenry Rhoades former superintendent of the Kentucky Department of Education, will be the speaker on this occasion.

SATURDAY, MAY 30.

Mrs. Era Wilder Peniston, Director of the Pipe Organ Department in Asbury College, will give a recital from 9:15-9:45 Saturday morning. Following, there will be held the annual missionary service. The speaker for this hour will be Dr. H. M. Shuman, President of the Christian and Missionary Alliance, a newly elected member of the Asbury College Board of Trustees.

The Exhibits of the Art and Home Economics Departments will be held from 10:00 A. M. to 5:30 P. M.

At one-thirty on Saturday afternoon the Asbury Alumni Association will hold its annual business session. At two-thirty there will be a sermon in Hughes Auditorium. The College Band will give a concert at four o'clock and at seven-thirty o'clock the annual program, representing the Speech and Music Departments, will be given.

SUNDAY, MAY 31.

The annual "love feast" at 9:00 A. M. is always one of the most sacred events of Commencement Sunday. The Baccalaureate Sermon will follow at ten o'clock with Dr. H. C. Morrison as the speaker.

There will be a sermon at two-thirty o'clock Sunday afternoon and on Sunday evening at seven-thirty o'clock Dr. Clarence True Wilson, beloved of Asburians everywhere, will give an address on Prohibition.

MONDAY, JUNE 1.

Monday is Alumni Day. The Alumni Praise Service will be held at 9:00 A. M., followed by the annual Alumni address. The Alumni speaker this year will be Dr. Harold Paul Sloan of Haddonfield, N. J., one of the most distinguished and brilliant defenders of orthodox faith in this generation. At 9:00 A. M. also the Board of Trustees of Asbury College meet in annual session.

The Alumni Banquet will be the crowning event of the day. This is the leading social occasion of Commencement, an hour of choice fellowship among the graduates of the College and the distinguished guests of Commencement. Every alumnus is urged to come and have a part in this very enjoyable hour.

TUESDAY, JUNE 2.

Tuesday is Commencement Day. The academic procession will begin at nine o'clock and the Class Address will be given at nine-thirty o'clock, followed by the awarding of degrees and special honors.

So will come to a close the forty-first annual Commencement of Asbury College. The college administration urges a large attendance of alumni and former students to enjoy this season of fellowship and mutual inspiration.

Riverside Revival.

While in Miami the past winter it was my great pleasure to preach for two weeks at the Riverside M. E. Church, South, at the invitation of the pastor, Rev. H. C. Hardin. Bro. Hardin is a man of deep devotion, great faith and zeal. I do not know when I have assisted a pastor who gave me more sympathy and support in the proclamation of the Word.

My strength was so limited that I could only preach in the evening. Brother Hardin held the day services, which I could not attend. We had fine congregations and quite a large number at the altar, some seeking reclamation, some regeneration, and others entire sanctification, and a number were blessed. Riverside Methodist Church has many very excellent people in its membership, an aggressive Sunday school, and minister to a most interesting part of the city of Miami. The outlook for this church is quite encouraging. I judge some of the very best Methodists in Miami are members of this congregation.

On the closing Sabbath Brother Hardin received 25 members into the church, and baptized ten babies, which promise a crop of Methodists later on. We enjoyed very much our touch with this delightful pastor and his very excellent people.

Rev. Walt Holcomb, pastor of Trinity Church in Miami, is doing heroic service in that great city of many attractions, many excellent people, and many bold and defiant sins, attended our meeting, dismissed his prayer meeting two Wednesday evenings, came over with his people and gave us a helping hand.

On Wednesday evening before leaving Miami, I preached in Trinity Church while the Riverside people united with the Trinity folk in a great congregation, and we had a good time. We have a number of earnest gospel preachers in Miami, and some as true Methodists as can be found anywhere. May the blessing of the Holy Spirit abide with them. H. C. M.

Preaching on the Beach.

During my recent stay in Miami, Fla., it was a real pleasure to have some fellowship with Brother Hurt, a fine young minister, born and reared in Kentucky, educated in Florida, and a member of the Florida Conference.

Brother Hurt is the beloved pastor of the M. E. Church, South, at Miami Beach, Fla. Miami Beach is a strip of land lying between Biscayne Bay and the Atlantic Ocean, just in front of the beautiful city of Miami. It is one of the beauty spots on our globe, being occupied largely by magnificent hotels and the palatial residences of a number of millionaires of the country who spend their winters on this island, remarkable for sunshine, flowers and its fine beach for bathing, which can be had, perhaps, every day in the year.

As the reader will readily suppose, this region is by no means noted for deep spirituality. The fact is, worldliness is at high tide in Miami Beach. Brother Hurt has some excellent people in his church and is making an heroic fight for the salvation of souls and the development of the spiritual life of his people.

I was unable to preach twice a day, and gave them only six sermons which, of course, was no sort of a fair test for a revival, but we had some gracious services and many of the people expressed themselves as being greatly helped by the meeting. I found Brother Hurt a most delightful young brother, wide awake and full of consecrated energy in the service of the Master.

It was a real pleasure to preach one night in Dania, Fla., some twenty miles from Miami, where Brother Stephens, an old Asbury boy, is pastor. On that Sunday evening the Baptist Church united with the Methodist Church and I had the privilege of preaching to a very large audience. Brother Stephens had just closed a splendid revival. I was greatly pleased with the devotion of this very excellent pastor and the spiritual atmosphere of his church. H. C. M.

A Great Camp Meeting Singer.

Rev. C. C. Rinebarger, of Henryetta, Okla., pastor of the Nazarene Church, that city, writes me that he will be able to assist in a few revivals and camp meetings during the summer. Brother Rinebarger needs no recommendation as a Christian man or a great songleader. I regard him as one of the very best chorus leaders in revival work of any man I have ever had with me in that capacity. Write him at the above address. H. C. M.

Graduation Time is Near,

and no matter how many presents a boy or girl receives, we believe it is rare that they appreciate anything more than an attractive Bible. It is a gift, that if properly taken care of, will last almost a lifetime, serving as "a lamp unto the feet and a light unto the pathway."

Just at this time we have a limited number of copies of one of the lightest, thinnest, most convenient sized Bibles for a young person it has been our privilege to obtain. The size is about 4¾x7 inches, a fraction over ½ inch thick, bound in genuine leather, overlapping edges, silk sewed, India paper, a clear, readable type, chapter numbers in figures, references, maps, red under gold edges, and has the nonbreakable back feature. It also has the silk marker. Net price was $4.25. The Pentecostal Publishing Company is closing out these copies at a special price of $2.40 each. Don't miss the opportunity of being a lifetime blessing to some boy or girl.

Better be fragrant and let it out, even if you do live in a desert.

Believing that a Divinely-called, wholly-sanctified, well-equipped, Spirit-filled ministry is one of the greatest needs of our times, and for all time to come, I am glad to make a donation for the upbuilding of the Asbury Theological Seminary at Wilmore, Ky.

For this great work, I promise to give $..... per year for five years, first installment due September 1, 1931. I will join all who are helping in this good work in prayer for the blessing of the Lord to rest upon it.

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS

IN THE BEGINNING.

Mrs. Geneva Mendenhall.

When we open our Bibles, the first words we read are: "In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth." Then Moses in the book of Genesis goes on to tell us simply and briefly, step by step and day by day, the wonderful story of creation.

God's first act was to separate the light from the darkness, and he saw that the light was good. He called the light Day, and the darkness Night. And this was the first day of all time, after a long night of darkness.

Then God commanded the great blue arch of the sky to spread itself above the earth and the clouds of mist arose from the surface of the earth so that the waters of the earth were divided from the waters of the sky. God called the firmament above the Heaven, and the Light and the Darkness made the second day.

And God gathered the waters under the Heaven into their own places so that dry land appeared. The dry land he called Earth and the waters were called the Seas. And when God beheld them, they pleased him, so that he brought forth on the face of the earth herbs and grass and trees, each bearing its own fruit and seed so that they would replant themselves and replenish the earth for man's use. That was the end of the third day.

Then God arranged lights in the Heaven to divide time into days, seasons and years. He set two great lights in the Heaven, one to rule over the day and the other over the night, to divide day from night, and he made the stars also and set them in the firmament of the Heaven. This was the fourth day.

And God caused great fish and small fish and every creature that moves in the water to multiply abundantly and the fowls of the air to increase after his kind and fill the open firmament of heaven. And he blessed them and the day and night were the fifth day.

After that God brought forth all the living creatures of the earth, the cattle and beasts and all the creeping things and he saw that they were good. When he had made the earth and the sky and the lights in the sky, and the waters of the sea, he made man from the dust of the earth, and breathed into him so that he became a living soul, made in the image of God, his Master. God gave man dominion over the fish and the fowls and every living creature and gave him all the plants and herbs of the earth for food. And he saw that all he had made was very good and pleasing to him. And it was the close of the sixth day.

These stories give only the outlines of the stories but we hope that you will become interested enough to read them in your Bible or some book which gives them more fully.

Dear Children: Perhaps your church school has birthday offerings; it creates interest to repeat a verse in unison just after the offerings are completed. Write a verse on the blackboard so children may learn it quickly. You might try the one we use. Here it is—

"Just one birthday in the year,
Filled with wishes of good cheer;
Reminding that a year has gone,
And another just begun;
That all our days did God create,
By kindly deeds to celebrate."

T. Richardson Gray.
Edgewood, Iowa.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Many today are thinking of pleasures and amusements, but how many think about our souls as we should? Do we think and plan as much on how many ways we may please Jesus as we plan a new way to make a new sport suit or our spring traveling outfit? Which is the most important and worth the most consideration? Friends, it is better to give your life here on earth than to lose it hereafter. Jesus Christ our Savior died that we may find life everlasting, and when we love him and keep his commandments, if there is anything we wish for, all we have to do to obtain it is ask our heavenly Father who hath all power, and if it is best for us to have it we shall receive it. He is an all-wise, merciful God forgiving us of our sins and giving us perfect peace and everlasting happiness as long as we have faith in him.

If a great king from another country was coming over here to see how many good people were here and was planning to take the most worthy ones home with him to live in peace and happiness, wouldn't you begin at once to prepare yourself so as to be found worthy in the king's sight? Now our Savior's coming is like that. He is King of kings and Lord of lords. It is he who will come to gather the righteous who have served him and faithfully await his coming. Eye hath not seen nor ear heard the things that God hath prepared for those that love him. My friends, please think of these things. My soul cries out for you. Now is the time, do not wait, tomorrow may be too late. For the Spirit does not always strive with man.

Pearl Morris.
Age 14 years.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Would you let a girl of Ina, Ill., join your band of happy boys and girls? I am eleven years old and in the sixth grade. I have dark brown hair and eyes. My sister is at Asbury College. She takes The Herald and sends it to us. My father is pastor of the M. E. Church. His name is Loren E. Page. I stay on the farm with my grandfather and grandmother in the summer. I like to stay there. This is my first time to write so will close hoping to see this letter in print.

Nina Mae Page.
Ina, Ill.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I am a poor girl and cannot take The Herald. Nevertheless I get to read it and I surely do enjoy every one of its pages, especially page ten. I love children and am glad to know that many of The Herald cousins know Jesus as their Savior. Father has been dead nearly eleven years and since his death I have dug my own way through life thus far, with the help and prayers of Christian friends.

I am a sophomore in High School and love school work. I graduated from the eighth grade at Bethany Orphanage and have spent my high school days at Mt. Carmel (baby Asbury). This year I had the privilege, with three other girls, to go to Asbury College and sing in a quartet and testify to the saving, sanctifying and keeping power of Jesus. I was saved September, 1926, in a mockery service which my brother was holding. For a few days I had carried a tremendous burden and my heart was so heavy and hungry. I was left at home on this day to care for the children while mother and Mr. Sparks (my step-father) went visiting. When I went to the smokehouse to sift meal for the dinner, Oscar, my brother who was holding the service, said he would ask me to lead in prayer. Like a sword those words went through my heart and I said I thought I would pray, so I knelt down by a chair in the corner of that old smokehouse and poured out my whole soul to Jesus. I was in need of a Savior and was crying for my soul's need and they thought I was going crazy; they ran to our nearest neighbor's house to get some one to come and see what was wrong with me, but nobody was at home. When they came back I was still praying and by that time a cousin, (another leader in this service) was praying for her salvation. They tried to tell me it was late and they wanted me to cook their dinner, but all in vain, for I was getting my dinner from Heaven. For two hours and five minutes I tarried before the Lord and when the burden of sin rolled away I was made a new creature in Christ. It is wonderful what the Lord can do and I give him all the glory for what he means to me and for what he has done for me. I have known the Lord five years in his saving power, and two years of sanctifying. He has taken out of my heart all the desires of sin and has taken out carnality or the old man Satan, and I am determined to hold out to the end. Won't some of you Herald cousins pray for my home folks and home community? My plans are all the Lord's plans and I expect to answer his call, which he has given to me. I am studying and doing all I can for preparation for the mission field. I do not know where but wherever he leads me I will follow. I would be happy to receive any letters, snapshots, testimonies or anything that the cousins would like to say. I am nineteen years old but only a child, so anyone, big or small, write.

Eunice E. Taulbee.
Mt. Carmel H. S., Lawson, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: This is my first letter to The Herald and hope to see it in print. I will be twelve years old in June. I am in the sixth grade A class in school. I am glad to say that I am a Christian and go to Sunday school every Sunday. My Sunday school teacher is Miss Dorothy Malone, and my school teacher is Miss Elenor Hollette. We take The Herald, and so does grandma. We all enjoy reading it, especially page ten. It is a comfort to know there are so many Christian children in the world. Aunt Bettie, my middle name is the same as yours. I hope to receive a letter from you and all the cousins. I will answer all letters I receive and will exchange snapshots. We are all glad that Rev. Morrison is improving.

Janice Betty Bevier.
35 W. Whitney Ave., Shelby, Ohio.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I love The Pentecostal Herald and enjoy reading page ten. Would like to hear from some one from Arizona. My middle name begins with M and ends with Y, and has four letters. Guess what it is. I thank God for such a paper as The Herald.

Madge Roads.
Rt. 4, Hillsboro, Ohio.

Dear Aunt Bettie: After reading some of the letters on page ten I feel it is my duty to show which side I am on. I have a loving mother, a sister, a brother, a father over there, and a dear little baby boy which was the pride of our home. Words can't tell how much we loved him, but God loved him more and called him home to be with him. I want to live faithful to him who doeth all things well. Pray that my sinner friends will give up their sinful ways and come to Jesus and serve him while it is called day. Read Matt. 24:29-51, where we are warned to be ready for Christ's coming. In Rev. 22:12, he says he will come quickly and his reward is with him. I wonder what the cousins' favorite verse is in the Bible? I like St. John 14 because of a promise of the comforter which is the Holy Ghost. I wonder how many have my birthday? It is Easter Sunday, April 6. If any of you have, please write to me and I will tell you my age.

Mrs. Archie Wade.
Box 108, Hundred, W. Va.

Dear Aunt Bettie: May I join your happy band of girls and boys? I am nine years old, have light hair and blue eyes. I go to school and am in the fifth grade. I go to Sunday school every Sunday. I am a Christian. I belong to the Methodist Church. Who can guess my middle name? It begins with L, ends with A, and has six letters in it. I want to go to Asbury College when I grow up, for my mother, Linnie Spradling Center, went there. She thinks it is a fine school. I hope to see this in print for it is my first letter to page ten. I would be glad to hear from some of the cousins. Epsie L. Raney, I guess your middle name to be Lou.

Juanita L. Center.
Rt. 1, Berry, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: As my letter was printed before I will write again. There are so many temptations if you don't watch and pray the Devil will get you. He will tempt you every day and try to make you give up to him, and that's as good as he wants. If it wasn't for the Lord I don't know what we would do. We wouldn't

Baccalaureate and Convocation Sermons

by E. V. ZOLLARS

The notable career of President Zollars in the educational world, his thorough scholarship and his keen enthusiasm for his work, made him in constant demand for convocation sermons and educational addresses. In this volume he has gathered together the cream of over thirty years of Commencement addresses. It is an indispensable aid to speakers at annual exercises of schools, academies, colleges, seminaries and universities. "These sermon addresses are models of clear sense and high ideals," said Hugh McLellan.

have any one to take our burdens to. Our burdens get so heavy if it wasn't for the Lord we could not carry them. I have enjoyed the continued story, "The Pillar in the Church." It does me good to read it. I get a lot of pleasure in reading The Pentecostal Herald. I was sixteen years old Nov. 25, 1930. I weigh 120 pounds. I hope Mr. W. B. is fishing when this arrives. Guess my middle name. It starts with A, ends with A, and has four letters in it.

Applys Daughtry.
Rt. 2, Box 31, Andalusia, Ala.

Dear Aunt Bettie: May I join your happy band of boys and girls? I was nine years old April 29. Have I a twin? I am in the third grade at school. I go to Sunday school and church every Sunday I can. Mr. James is our pastor. Daddy takes The Herald and I like to read page ten. Please print my letter. Love to Aunt Bettie and the cousins.

Leona H. Faltinowski.

Dear Aunt Bettie: This is my first letter to The Herald. I enjoy the story and letters on page ten. I am eleven years old. I have brown eyes and light hair. I am in the fifth grade in school. We had a great meeting in our church last fall and so many were converted. I was among the ones who were saved. Bro. Patterson was the evangelist. Grandmother takes The Herald. She has taken it for years. I would like to be in the South to enjoy the oranges. Guess my middle name. It begins with F and ends with N. I would be glad to hear from some of the cousins, especially those of the South or West.

Dear Aunt Bettie: This is my first letter to The Herald. I enjoy reading page ten. I am twelve years old and in the sixth grade. I also go to Sunday school and attend church. I joined the church two weeks ago. Our pastor is Rev. W. C. Waters. We have been taking The Herald about twenty-five years, but of course I haven't been reading it that long, but as long as I have I have enjoyed page ten. I will be so glad to see my letter in The Herald so that other people might see it too. I hope you will let me in your club of young girls and boys.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you move over a wee bit and give me a little room in your cozy corner? It won't take much room; just a seat for a few minutes. I am seven years old and in the second grade. My teacher is Miss Robin Fain. She certainly is good to us. I haven't missed a day in school this year. I have six small attendance certificates and one large one. I live with my grandparents in the country. I attend Sunday school when I can. My teacher is Mrs. Harvey. I spent my last summer's vacation at Wilmore and heard Dr. Morrison preach at camp meeting. I love Jesus and want to be a good girl. Mother gave me a Testament for Christmas and I am learning to read in it. I have learned several verses from memory already. My birthday is June 28th. I am four feet, two inches tall, have blue eyes and yellow hair. I am planning to have a birthday party and invite my little friends. I have three bantam hens and one rooster. We do not take The Herald but our uncle gives it to us. Love to Aunt Bettie and all the cousins.

FALLEN ASLEEP

MASK.

Mrs. Fannie Mask, wife of C. M. Mask, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lum Esters, departed this life at Neuville, Texas, March 6, 1931. She was born Feb. 6, 1881, and was married to C. M. Mask, May 20, 1904. She has lived in Neuville the most of her married life. Mrs. Mask was a member of the Methodist Church, but she has been afflicted and suffered for many years that deprived her of many Christian duties. She was always ready to lend a helping hand to old people, if nothing but love and sympathy. It seems her earthly home was a gift to her, for she was always at home tending to her home duties. She loved her family and they loved her, but God loved her best of all and took her home with him.

She leaves a husband, daughter, one son and a sweet little granddaughter to mourn her loss; also a brother and one sister and a host of friends and relatives.

Funeral services were conducted by Brother Campbell in the Neuville Church. Her casket was covered with beautiful flowers placed there by her loving friends. The choir sang sweet, sympathizing songs. Her remains were then laid to rest in the Neuville cemetery to await the resurrection morning.

There is a home, a peaceful home;
A home of joy and love,
And those that bear the cross below,
Shall wear the crown above.
One that loved her.

LENOX.

We are never ready for the passing of our loved ones. Though we harden our hearts against the day of separation, we quietly hope it will never come. We go about life's duties almost forgetful that tomorrow may bring to our circle the liberation of a soul that will leave in its place sadness, gloom, sorrow, loneliness. Thus on March 27th God permitted the death angel, quietly but surely, to enter the home circle of our good Bro. Lenox, taking the sainted wife and mother, leaving a vacancy never to be filled.

Mrs. J. W. Lenox was born in Fannin Co., Tex., Feb. 20, 1879. When four years of age her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Terrill, moved to Bowie county, locating in the Red Lick community where Sarah Alice Terrill grew to womanhood. At the age of ten she united with the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, of which she remained a faithful, consecrated member till the hour of her death.

On Nov. 5, 1896, she was married to Rev. J. W. Lenox and endured with him in a most tender and helpful manner the sorrows and blessings that come to the life of a minister. She was the mother of four children, two of whom died in infancy, Lee Bryant living five hours, Addie May twenty-six months. The other two, Ollie A. Lenox and Mrs. Wm. Seitz, are an expression of her love and devotion, reflecting to the world the soul of a great mother. Three grandchildren survive her. In the midst of her sacrificial life to her family she was also called upon to administer for seventeen years to an invalid mother, and even in the hour when her going seemed inevitable amidst other concerns, she was anxious about the care of her aged mother.

How glad we are of her Christian faith. Death loses its sting; the grave is swallowed up in victory. We have not a single doubt but in that glorious morn of the resurrection in the presence of the heavenly host, husband, wife, mother, father, children, shall unite again the broken circle, and through a long eternity participate in the ineffable joys prepared for the faithful.

A. S. Laird.

ABOVE THE CLOUDS; OR PRAY- ING THROUGH.

Florence M. Young.

I want my feet to press the heights
Where God's eternal vastness reigns.

For stretched below this glory lies
The Earth, 'mid clouded vales and plains.

With path beset by thorns and briars
The climb is steep oft-times and high

As though the enemy of souls,
Would bar and keep me from the sky.

But when at last the vic'trys won,
My soul, like some winged bird takes flight.

And faith unhampered and redeemed
Unfolds, and blossoms in the Light.

My heart, once restless and disturbed
Then rests in calm and sweet repose,

For there it is that Christ reveals
That he is conqueror o'er my foes.

The doubts that once my vision blurred
All vanish in the pure white air;

I see! Oh happy moment 'tis,
That Christ bore all my sin and care.

Thus filled and thrilled with love and power
My soul in rapt delight doth shine.

I worship, praise him and adore,
For I am Christ's and he is mine.

What glory and what marvelous grace
Becomes my own as here I stay!

But lo—I hear a whispered word,
"Go down, my child, while still 'tis day."

What Master,—leave this hallowed realm,
To trudge amid earth's dirge and strife?

"Yes child, go down, yet not alone,
For I live in thee, I am Life."

UNFOLD MY LIFE BEFORE ME.

Unfold my life before me
As I travel o'er life's way,
That I may see thy guiding hand
From morn till close of day.

Unfold my life before me,
I need thy loving care;
Watch over me, thy servant
Let evil not ensnare.

Unfold my life before me,
As days and years go by,
Be ever thou my guiding hand
And may I feel thee nigh.

Unfold my life before me,
The future years unfold,
As step by step I take them,
The future thou dost hold.

Unfold my life before me
I, trembling take the street;
Unless thou goest before me
My faith will meet defeat.

Unfold my life before me,
Thy plan to me unfold,
That when I reach the ending
The sunset turns to gold.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

REV. O. G. MINGLEDORFF, D. D.

Lesson IX.—May 31, 1931.

Subject.—Jesus in Gethsemane.
Luke 22:39-54.

Golden Text.—Father, if thou be willing, remove this cup from me: nevertheless, not my will, but thine, be done. Luke 22:42.

Time.—Thursday night and Friday morning of Passion Week, April 6 and 7, A. D. 30.

Places.—Gethsemane and Jerusalem.

Introduction.—It is difficult to follow the Master and his disciples between the close of the supper and their entrance into the garden of Gethsemane. Luke does not give any information concerning that matter. Matthew 26:30 says: "When they had sung an hymn, they went out into the mount of Olives." That was before they entered the garden. Mark says they went to the mount of Olives. John makes two statements. In chapter 14:31 we are told that at the close of the supper Jesus said: "Arise, let us go hence." Then follows some teaching, and the intercessory prayer recorded in the 17th chapter; after which we read in the first verse of the 18th chapter that "he went forth with his disciples over the brook Cedron, where was a garden, into the which he entered, and his disciples." Some little time must have elapsed between the close of the supper and his prayer in Gethsemane; and it seems quite clear that this time was spent somewhere on Mount Olivet. It gives the Lord an opportunity for his last interview with the disciples before his passion, and for his high-priestly prayer for his Church's sanctification.

If you will use your imagination, while you spend some time in your closet in quiet prayer and meditation, you can form for yourself a better setting for this lesson than I can possibly paint in words. I suppose that was the most serious night our Lord ever spent during his earthly ministry. As the shadows of night began to gather about him, the cross was coming in view. During the eating of the passover, the last one he would ever eat with them, the devil entered into Judas Iscariot and he went out to betray him. At the close of the passover he instituted the Eucharist in place of the old Jewish feast. They used an ordinary lamb, the type of the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world, himself, who would die on the morrow. That doleful night he chanted his last psalm with them, and uttered for them his last audible, public prayer. His agony in Gethsemane has consecrated that spot for all time to come. It has never been my privilege to visit it; but I have often thought that the man who can stand where Jesus prayed and sweat great drops of blood, with an unmoved heart must be little more than a common beast. About all the sacred sentiment that has blessed earth's civilization for these two thousand years has grown out of that altar of prayer. It was there that Jesus Christ fought the battle and won the victory for our eternal redemption. It was there that he opened up the Gethsemane road to intercession for all who pray for others. If we are to accomplish anything worthwhile in life, we too must have Gethsemanes of soul agony, times when we forget all time and sense, and come away from the place of prayer limp and pale like Jacob was when he finished wrestling with the angel at the brook. Let us be serious and reverent during this hour of awful study.

Comments on the Lesson.

39. To the mount of Olives.—I stated in the introduction that Luke gave no information as to this matter; but we do have a little here, though not positive, it being impossible to tell from his language whether Jesus and the apostles went directly to the garden of Gethsemane after leaving the upper room, or to some other place on the mountain. After reading what all the Evangelists have to say on the subject, I think it safe to conclude that they went first to some spot outside of the garden for an interview before entering. We learn from this verse that the Master was wont to go into this garden with his disciples. That gave Judas Iscariot an advantage that he might not otherwise have had; for he knew this fact, and made use of it in the betrayal.

40. At the place.—This must mean their regular stopping place where they talked, slept and prayed. Pray that ye enter not into temptation.—If I am not mistaken this word temptation, as used here, has a broader import than solicitation to evil, meaning afflictions and trials, whether superimposed by men or demons. Of course, men are tempted by the devil; but they suffer many tests and trials that come from other sources. That was what James meant when he said: "Count it all joy when ye fall into divers temptation."

41. A stone's cast.—As far as one can throw a small stone with his hand. Kneled down, and prayed.—Take any attitude you may like when praying for yourself; but if you are going to pray for me, please get down on your knees. I need your prayers; but I fear they will avail little, if you are too proud for knee-work. If Jesus could kneel in prayer, I am sure I can too.

42. Father, if thou be willing.—All prayer must rest on this basis—our wills must be subject to the will of God. Remove this cup from me.—We are on holy ground now. I do not think the Master thought of refusing to die for sinners. The Scriptures give us no definite explanation; but I am willing to venture cautiously and reverently, and give my own opinion. I think the burden was about to crush out his life in the garden, and that he did not wish to die there, but to go to the cross. In Hebrews 5:7 we read concerning his agony in Gethsemane: "When he had offered up prayers and supplications with strong crying and tears unto him that was able to save him from death, and was heard in that he feared." The Father sent an angel to strengthen him in what seemed his death agony.

44. His sweat was as it were great drops of blood falling down to the ground.—I do not suppose, as some have done, that this language means to indicate that his sweat only resembled blood. O no: it was real blood. Such a thing sometimes happens when men approach death under terrible agony; but it means death.

45. Sleeping for sorrow.—While he was passing through such awful anguish of spirit praying for them, and for all men, they went to sleep; but we read that they were overcome of grief. Some of us, perchance, have slept under similar circumstances. There is a bigger trouble than this: So many of us are asleep today, while the tremendous cause that sent him through Gethsemane and on to the cross by way of Pilate's judgment hall with its terrible scourging, cries out for very shame. O that a mighty spiritual earthquake might shake the American pulpit.

46. Rise and pray, lest ye enter into temptation.—You expect me to make some comment on these words; but I know not what to say. My soul is heavy within me. I am under fearful conviction for my negligence. Would God that I had done more and better praying and preaching during the last half century. I have slept too much while walking about with my eyes open. Pardon me: I must stop and pray; for my pathway leads to the pulpit in two hours more.

47. A multitude, . . . and Judas.—That was hell's jubilee hour. Satan had completely overthrown one of the chief disciples of the Son of God, and had put it into his heart to betray his Master into the hands of sinners. Judas, poor wretch that he was, used the sacred emblem of the dearest friendship to betray his Lord. That is about as low as one can sink this side of hell itself.

48. Read this verse, and feel the heart pang of Jesus in its every word: "Judas, betrayest thou the Son of man with a kiss?" His grief was blood-stained. Is it any less when we betray him?

49. Saw what would follow.—His arrest by the mob. Lord, shall we smite with the sword?—As he had a little while before this said something about selling garments and buying swords, and was informed that they already had two, it may have been natural that they should ask such a question. They did not yet fully understand the nature of his kingdom.

50. One of them smote the servant of the high priest.—That was impetuous Peter. Before the Master could interfere he chopped off the servant's ear. Too fast, Brother Peter. But you will do better after Pentecost.

51. Suffer ye thus far.—"That will do, Peter. Leave him to me." I suppose that was about the meaning of the Master's words. But it was kind of the Lord to touch the wounded man, and heal him. I wonder if he put that right ear back on his head? I rather believe that he did.

52. Be ye come out, as against a thief, with swords and staves?—Look for a moment at the gang that had come out against him: "Chief priests, and captains of the temple, and the elders." You cannot beat that. They had been sending some of their servants after him; but they had not brought him before them. Now the devil moves forward a bit, and sends some of his chief servants to do his hellish work. The deed must be done, and must be led on by the chief man about the temple service.

53. This is your hour, and the power of darkness.—All the fury of sin had headed up in the devil, and was pouring itself out in fury upon the Son of God. I have no language to express the feelings of my soul as I write these notes. Truly it was the devil's hour; and he had plenty of human help.

54. Brought him to the high priest's house.—There was but one room connected with the temple in which, under Jewish law, a man could be tried for his life; so that they were acting contrary to their own law in taking him to the home of the high priest for trial. Nor could they lawfully try any man for his life at night. Knowing this, they were but a gang of outlaws. Peter followed afar off.—Any man with a heart in his bosom must feel sorry for Simon Peter. He had done some big boasting, and he was sincere in his boasting; but he had not yet become well acquainted with Simon Peter. He did not know his own weakness. We shall not blame him. The Master did not. How much like Peter most of us are. Thank God, there is a blessing that can burn out such dross. Since vacillating Peter could be made firm and strong till he deserved the name Jesus gave him, let us take courage and hope for better things; for the Spirit helpeth our infirmities.

Rev. H. Melson Smart, of the Michigan Conference, stationed at Frankfort, leaves for England for a two months' visit on the Olympic, sailing from New York, May 15. His wife and daughter will accompany him. He is going direct to Cliff College for the Whitsunday services, and the Anniversary on Whitmonday, and will be the guest of the Principal of the college, Rev. Samuel Chadwick, for a few days after the Anniversary. Gipsy Smith will be one of the speakers at the Anniversary. Mr. Smart has been invited back to Frankfort for a fourth year.

Lighthouse Day at The Lighthouse Mission, Tower Grove and Norfolk Ave., St. Louis, Mo., Sunday, June 7, All Day Meeting. We are expecting a great crowd of old members, as well as new members, and we want all former members who cannot be with us to send in a word of testimony to be read during the day. The Lord is still saving souls at the Mission, and we have a fine pastor in Rev. Jim H. Green, of North Carolina.—S. C. Box, Secretary.

We recently closed a fine campaign in the Orpheum Theater at Peoria, Ill. This meeting was sponsored by the Mt. Olive Missionary Church in co-operation with several others. Evangelist and Mrs. Bob Ingersoll, of Saginaw, Mich., were our co-workers. Rev.

Ingersoll is a great preacher of the Word and God honored the message with 125 decisions. Besides conducting the musical part of the campaign and the work with the children, we had charge of the radio programs broadcast daily from WMBD. These radio services were well received all over central Illinois and much blessing was reported. We are already booking dates for fall and winter meetings. The Lord has poured out his marvelous blessings on our labors during the past season and the outlook is bright.—The Musical Whites.

As a number of my friends scattered here and there have asked us to report God's workings, we give herewith a brief report of late events. The first meeting we shall report is the one, brief in duration, held for one of our M. E. pastors near Butler, Pa. Here we found a nice class of folk to work among. Rev. Geo. B. Lambert, pastor, and his talented wife, treated us royally. Brother Lambert is a successful pastor, and was a successful business man. While here we went to Pittsburgh and attended the reception for Bishop Welch from his trip to the Orient. While there were no visible results with Brother Lambert, we know that God will honor his Word. Returning home for a short stay, we were asked to assist in local institutional work in Beaver county, and was pleased with the results that Brothers Haden and Bloom are getting in the jail, T. B. Sanatorium, and County Home services, held weekly or every other week. Following this, the superintendent of the North Side Mission, Beaver Falls, Pa., a new work, invited us to assist him. We have to date preached a few times, and will assist him again in a few days. The attendance is good, and the children of this community are attending well. Most of them are Catholic, so we ask your prayers that definite work may be done. About ten of these children have been to the altar, and in the children's service this Friday we are expecting some real victories. We have a few open dates and shall be pleased to hear from those needing the services of an evangelist who preaches a plain gospel. We have enrolled with a western Bible School for advanced work, but this will not hinder us from accepting some calls. Address us, H. J. McNeese, Oak Hill, New Brighton, Pa.

LETTER FROM REV. C. R. CROWE.

Dear Herald Readers: Feb. 27, the doctor was called to see an infection on my right leg, between the knee and ankle. He advised that I must keep off my feet for an indefinite time; that such was the nature of the sore this was necessary. I have been in bed or a chair ever since. The danger is over, but it will be a while yet before the doctor will permit me to try to walk. I am not sick, only this sore, but have been hindered in my plans for the summer to assist some of my brethren in meetings, and to accept invitations from some of my former charges to spend a Sunday and preach for them.

During these long days I have been visited and remembered by a number of my brethren who prayed for me, some of them giving me some financial help beside their prayers. Rev. H. C. Morrison and wife came to see me, talked over, a while, the sunshine and shadows of an itinerant Methodist preacher and prayed for me. Dr. Morrison left in my hand, as he bade me good bye financial help, stating, "let me know how things are going with you from time to time."

Sister Morrison is a Sunday school teacher of Adult Class of Women, Crescent Hill Methodist Church. Her class helped us with substantial things for the table and money. Crescent Hill church and its noble pastor, Dr. Hodge, have treated me nicely. We have not a finer people in any church in our connection than in Crescent Hill Church. After my superannuation we looked for quite a while for a place to live, and when I found a home near Crescent Hill Church, Sister Morrison said to me, "You could not have fallen among a better people than are in Crescent Hill Methodist Church."

This is the first time a doctor has been called to my home to see me, since I was ten years old. While I am a superannuated man, and on limited income, hindered in my plans by this experience, I would appreciate hearing from friends. My prayer is to be restored and given a few more years to preach the gospel I so much love.

C. R. Crowe.

The Mills of The Gods

by DR. C. F. WIMBERLY.
After reading sophisticated novels, sex stories, and tales of pagan glory, one comes with a great deal of delight and satisfaction upon this splendid story of Dr. C. F. Wimberly—"The Mills of the Gods." As the title implies it is a story of justice and recompense, and reveals in no uncertain manner how God, and not Chance, is ruling the Universe. The story moves with sure and certain strides, is gripping, worth reading, and the book deserves a wide circulation in this day of lost faith and false values.—JOHN RICHARD MORELAND, Poet and Critic, Norfolk, Va.

There is not a dull or uninteresting page or paragraph in the book. The book will enrich the soul of every one who reads it. It should be in ten thousand homes that love full salvation. ## The Ever Open Door

by GEORGE H. MORRISON.

The last book from the pen of this gifted author and preacher. A series of sixty-two addresses. Geo. H. Morrison is well known for his freshness both in thought and expression.

A few of the subjects treated are "The Illusions of Life," "The Surprises of God," "When Everyone Is Against Us," "What To Do With Our Cares," "The Cry For Companionship."

Perhaps one reason for the fascination of this book is the unusual texts that the author uses for his subjects. They are so different and yet so appropriate. The reader continually finds his mind following new trails.

"RELIGIOUS THOUGHTS."

As the years roll by more deeply do I become impressed that "all things work together for good, to those who trust in God and try to do his will." My life has been a rather matter-of-fact, hum-drum existence, nothing very romantic, and yet knowing, and fully persuaded that only for the love of God, and the hope of some day seeing him face to face this life would not be worth the living. The greatest incentive to labor, the only panacea for all the ills humanity is heir to, is pure, undefiled religion. When we can and do have the assurance from God, that we are freed from sin, dead to self and alive in Christ. The great cry of my heart is "Jesus my Savior thy blood alone can for the sinner's guilt fully atone."

Would that I by divine grace might preach Jesus crucified, but now our risen Redeemer, a loving Savior and friend to sinners. It seems we should never grow tired praising God for his goodness and love toward us. We sing—"Oh for a thousand tongues to sing, our great Redeemer's praise"—when the truth is, we will not, or do not use the one tongue we have for his glory. With so many—I think of it with sorrow—God's name is used as any by-word or swear word.

From my early childhood days, my heart knew no idol dearer than my Lord, and today although thirty-seven years of age, Jesus is all and in all to me. Am neither a crank nor a fanatic, but a true believer in the Bible. Know from personal experience, that whatever we ask in faith, believing, we will receive, if we come in accordance with God's holy word. I know what it is to disobey God's word, also the humiliation it brings when his Spirit lays hold of us, and we are permitted to see ourselves as he sees us. Also know what it means to be down in the valley of sorrow, brought on by the insincere friendship of the world, but out of deepest distress and sorrow, have been enabled by God's grace to look up and say, "Oh God, if it be thy will, I thank thee for it."

I truly know what it means to walk and talk with Jesus. Often when filled with his Spirit, I hear his voice, sometimes as a command, other times in approval. To unbelievers, or to those who have never had a baptism of the Holy Ghost in power for service, this may sound and savor of foolishness, but my heart and God's great loving heart are surely in-harmony. The wires from earth to heaven are to be used to send messages to God. Can speak from personal experience, no hear-say or may-be-so about this. While I am upon my knees praying, I receive what I am asking for. Sometimes I get the assurance of what I ask and always see it accompanied. Sometimes it has not been just when, or as soon, but in God's own good time it would come about. I believe in immersion. I believe in holiness, as it means a reaching up after higher things. We cannot tell the struggles and trials of any poor soul. Often a broken heart is hidden to the world, when only smiles are visible. Often have the sentiments of my heart been, "Be still, sad heart, and cease repining, for behind the clouds, the sun is still shining."

"The inner side of every cloud is bright and shining. I therefore turn my clouds about, and always wear them inside out to show the lining."

AN EVANGELISTIC LEAGUE WITH CHRIST.

By The Editor.

I think we have found out something about our Lord Jesus Christ very definitely. The great object of his coming into the world, living, teaching, death, resurrection, ascension and intercession, is, undoubtedly, Evangelism.

Our Lord did not come into the world to build up a great ecclesiasticism with titles, cathedrals, palaces, ironclad rules and laws fixing tyrannical yokes upon the necks and souls of men; but he came to save men, and set them on fire to go out clear-headed, swift-footed, hot-hearted, blazing evangelists seeking to bring the lost to Christ.

Every converted man, woman and child, lay people as well as preachers, ought to be an evangel of the gospel, with glad, good news of salvation. The main work of evangelism ought to be carried forward in every possible way to win souls. There ought to be soul-saving in season and out of season, individual, personal work, face to face and heart to heart. There ought to be revivals in tents, schoolhouses, sheds, old stores, little churches, big churches, great tabernacles, union revivals, all of the spiritual forces of all the churches of a great city united to arouse, to awaken, to break the spell and power of sin, to make the people think, bring them to repentance and saving faith in Christ.

The Lord Jesus said that he would make his disciples fishers of men. We have many ways of fishing; sometimes with a single hook and a tempting bait in a little pool, or about the root of a sycamore leaning over the stream. Sometimes we make a cast by the side of a big rock out in the current, and have a bass flopping on the bank in a few minutes. Sometimes we go after them with pants rolled up, feeling under the rocks and in the muskrat holes along the banks. We get some good fish that way. Sometimes it is a dip net for the smaller streams, the narrow, deep holes, and we come up with a fine lot of good fry. Sometimes it's a seine, a much longer net that makes a broad stream and brings out a meal-sack full of various kinds and sizes—a regular revival, a sort of mass meeting. But we get the fish, and the result is wonderful. I have seen a net carried out into the Delaware River for the first run of shad, making a kind of rainbow of network, and then a rope attached to a big gum, something like an old-time cane-mill, and a horse gallop around drawing the net in with a number of beautiful shad; a thrilling sight!

I can but believe, I feel it is perfectly safe to say, I know that our Lord Jesus delights to see a vast network, a mighty spiritual seine, knit together in a great city of moral and evangelistic influence thrown out by the united effort of thousands of his people, and drawn in by omnipotent spiritual forces, with all the many kinds of human beings that make up the city life, from highest to lowest, richest to poorest, most learned to most ignorant, the best moral element to the most degraded members of society. There is nothing more thrilling than just such a revival. It's the overflow of heaven pouring out upon the earth. It unites the people in Christian fellowship as nothing else in the world. The good effects last, spread abroad, go over the ocean, circle the globe and reach to high heaven. Ah, but don't you know the angels will be thrilled to enter into such work. Perhaps they do. In such revivals there are invisible persons leading on, empowering, and saving.

It is in our hearts to build up a great Evangelistic League with Christ for the saving of human souls. Wouldn't you like to get into this league and take a part in it? Won't you help the Lord Jesus, who has called a host of young men to go out and win souls, prepare these men for their glorious task? Won't you warm up, get some enthusiasm, the spirit of a holy unselfishness, the eagerness of a devout lover of ~~the lost~~ human souls? Won't you determine to get closer to Jesus Christ and some lost fellow-being? Won't you help the Lord Jesus to put over the tremendous contract of saving the lost? Won't you write me a note or postal card, and say, "Put me down as a member of The Evangelistic League of Christ, and I will promise to pray about this matter at least once a day, and seek to win a soul. I will promise to do personal work with individuals, and to throw myself into any revival and help, with prayer, and faith, and love to kindle a flame of spiritual life that will warm the cold hearts of the lost into faith and love for our blessed Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ." Yes, drop me a line and say, count on me to warm up and get busy in league with Christ for the salvation of his lost world.

The Restoration of Israel to Palestine No. IV.

WE now begin some lengthy quotations from Isaiah, looking to the restoration of Israel. Take the following from Isaiah 2:1-4.

The word that Isaiah the son of Amoz saw concerning Judah and Jerusalem.

And it shall come to pass in the last days, that the mountain of the Lord's house shall be established in the top of the mountains, and shall be exalted above the hills; and all nations shall flow unto it.

And many people shall go and say, Come ye, and let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths: for out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem.

And he shall judge among the nations, and shall rebuke many people: and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruninghooks: nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more.

Follow this with Isaiah 14:1, 2.

For the Lord will have mercy on Jacob, and will yet choose Israel, and set them in their own land: and the strangers shall be joined with them, and they shall cleave to the house of Jacob.

And the people shall take them, and bring them to their place: and the house of Israel shall possess them in the land of the Lord for servants and handmaids: and they shall take them captives, whose captives they were; and they shall rule over their oppressors.

Follow this with Isaiah 27:12, 13.

And it shall come to pass in that day, that the Lord shall beat off from the channel of the river unto the stream of Egypt, and ye shall be gathered one by one, O ye children of Israel.

And it shall come to pass in that day, that the great trumpet shall be blown, and they shall come which were ready to perish in the land of Assyria, and the outcasts in the land of Egypt, and shall worship the Lord in the holy mount at Jerusalem.

We will follow these with quotations from the 30th chapter of Isaiah, 19-21, also, 25th and 26th verses.

In that day shall there be an altar to the Lord in the midst of the land of Egypt, and a pillar at the border thereof to the Lord.

And it shall be for a sign and for a witness unto the Lord of hosts in the land of Egypt: for they shall say, I will now send them a saviour, and he shall deliver them.

And the Lord shall be known to Egypt, and the Egyptians shall know the Lord in that day, and shall do sacrifice and oblation; yea, they shall vow a vow unto the Lord, and perform it.

And there shall be upon every high mountain, and upon every high hill, rivers and streams of waters in the day of the great slaughter, when the towers fall.

Moreover the light of the moon shall be as the light of the sun, and the light of the sun shall be sevenfold, as the light of seven days, in the day that the Lord bindeth up the breach of his people, and healeth the stroke of their wound.

These chapters are written more especially for people who, without hesitation, accept the Scriptures as divinely-inspired. There are people who believe themselves to be very devout and intelligent to whom the prophecies contained in the Old Testament are simply harangues delivered by earnest men, without divine inspiration or penetration into the future, under the power of the Holy Ghost, to the understanding of coming events.

Did you ever stop to think of the deep significance of that saying of our Lord, "Give not that which is holy unto the dogs, neither cast ye your pearls before swine, lest they trample them under their feet, and turn again and rend you?" Matt. 7:6. The Lord is teaching us that there are some people who care no more for the higher and deeper truths of the Bible than swine care for pearls. Swine want swill, and they are not exacting as to the purity of its quality. They will take any sort of unclean mixture of many things that are unfit for use by any other creature than swine.

The modernists, with their mixture of teachings so contradictory of the Holy Scriptures, are very busy looking after the people in the swine state. They are literally fattening them for the slaughter. It is an interesting fact that Jesus teaches that the swine not only care nothing for pearls, but they

TRAVEL NOTES FROM PERU.

Rev. G. W. Ridout D.D., Corresponding Editor.

I am writing these notes in Lima, Peru, a city of half a million souls, founded by the notorious Pizarro in 1535. It was the first city in South America and Spain's second city. The bones of Pizarro are in a glazed casket in the Cathedral. There is a mosaic there also depicting some scenes in Pizarro's life, and an inscription bearing his notable words in the hour of crisis: "On this side Panama and poverty, on that Peru and riches; let all good Castillians choose."

Lima is famous for several things. It is arid; it has no rains. It is the most expensive city to live in, with but one exception, in South America. To one coming out of Ecuador, which is one of the most beautiful countries in South America, and then coming to Lima with its arid surroundings, its barren hills, etc., one is led to wonder what it was that made them develop a capital city in such a barren place. The one redeeming feature of Lima is it is near the Sea so that folks who don't want to stay can get away pretty quick. Up in the mountains Peru offers some wonderful scenery and beauty.

Peru has just been passing through the throes of a Revolution and the city of Lima is under Martial Law. I am a bit used to conditions of this character during my missionary world travels. When in China, many a time Shanghai was bristling with bayonets and frequently we would be stopped by soldiers to enquire as to who we were. On every principal street corner of Lima there are two policemen armed to the teeth and they are instructed to shoot on sight. No four people are permitted to stand together on the street. At present they say that Peru is without any central authority. They have put a President pro tem in whose promise is to hold office only until regular election takes place and the people's choice(?) of a President is made at the ballot box. The former President Leguia is now an old man dying in prison. He ruled eleven years. The opinion is pretty general by thinking people that Peru prospered greatly during his administration, but he was too friendly to the United States and to the Protestants to satisfy the Romanists and the politicians.

Lima is a city of sixty-seven Roman Catholic churches. Up to within fifteen years ago there was no religious liberty; then the bars were taken down, but in the last few years the Romanists got another law through forbidding teaching of any but Roman Catholic religion. This excited considerable stir but it is a dead letter. The authorities refuse to enforce it. The Missionary schools, as a rule, do not bother a great deal about religion. They seldom have any evangelistic fervor about them.

II.

Here in Lima I am stopping at the home of a soundly saved former Roman Catholic priest, who spent eight years of his life in a Dominican Convent in Lima. In his student days often he would cry over his soul. He was deeply impressed by the death of an old brother Monk who was regarded as a saint. When the old brother was dying he could find no peace for his soul and cried out: "I'm lost! I'm lost!" The young priest wept and prayed his way to pardon and salvation. We went over together to the Cathedral and he took me around and when we came to the pulpit he said, "I preached from that pulpit." Going over to his own Dominican Church he could explain all the altars and church arrangements as he had often officiated and preached there. It means something for a priest to come out for the Lord in these Catholic countries. After his conversion he was deported and only got back, finally, by grace of President Leguia. This converted priest is highly educated, having a Ph.D. degree from the University. He is out and out for God and souls. He was for a year with the Bible Society, but the Superintendent was a Modernist and he gave the work up to get into real evangelistic work. I am holding the night meetings in his church, the largest in Lima. He stands at the door giving out tracts and inviting people to come in to the preaching. We pray together a great deal and I am praying that he will get a baptism of the Holy Ghost for soul saving. I believe God wants to make him an apostle of power and fire in this Romish city.

As we came out of the Dominican Church where mass was going on, we were besieged by poor people selling lottery tickets. This is a common thing here for the steps and doorsteps of the Catholic churches to be lined up by people engaged in the lottery trade. The Catholic Church knows nothing about the sacredness of the Sabbath. This day is the big market day, also the day for bull fights and horse races and other exhibitions of the devil. The priests go through the masses and the multitudes go on their way to the devil and hell.

We went into the Cathedral founded in 1535, by that man of plunder and blood, Pizarro. There is a chapel devoted entirely to Pizarro—there his remains are in a casket with glass sides so that you can see his skeleton. He died or was murdered at a mass in the church in 1541. The Pizarro Chapel cost nearly half a million dollars. The walls have panels of solid gold. There is enough gold there to transport a thousand missionaries to South America. Pizarro's bones lie surrounded with gold but I have precious little hope that he ever reached the gold-paved streets of Heaven. His soul was too full of sin and his hands too much stained with blood; and his dependence upon the priests to take away his sins was of no avail and no doubt the rich exploiter died a pauper in soul with no hope in Christ and of immortality.

The Pizarro Chapel is very beautiful. There is a wonderful Mosaic on the front wall depicting the scene at Gallo Island when Pizarro had to face his mutinous followers who demanded to be sent back to Panama. Below are the famous words: "On this side Panama and poverty; on that Peru and riches. Let all good Castillians choose." It was at this place he drew the line on the sand with his sword and demanded all who would follow him to step over the line. Thirteen men stepped over the line and followed him to Peru where they found gold and silver in abundance at the price of blood.

III.

Right close to the Cathedral stands the Tribunal of the Inquisition and the Plaza De Inquisicion. This institution of his satanic majesty, the Devil, and the Pope of Rome, was established in Lima by Royal Letters Patent from the King of Spain in 1569. Unquestionably the Inquisition was one of the most diabolical instruments Rome or the Devil ever invented.

Read the frightful story of the Inquisition and you will never doubt again that Romanism is of the Pit. Thank God the days of the Inquisition has long since passed though I feel perfectly satisfied that as far as Rome in South America is concerned, if we were not living in such enlightened days, governmentally, she would gladly welcome the Inquisition back again and subject many Protestants to its tortures. The gorgeous building once occupied by the Inquisition is now used by the Senate. Just across is a park where they burned the heretics. On certain high days this was the great event and the crowds came to witness the martyrs' burning and to be warned what will happen them if they prove false to the Roman Catholic religion. Any one who wants to know what the Inquisition really meant, and what it did to Protestants, had better read Fox's Book of Martyrs. Chapter five of that book will give some awful details. When in Prague, I frequently stood at the monument of John Huss who was burned because he was true to the Scriptures. Huss uttered a great saying in the words: "Fire does not consume Truth." Huss paved the way for Luther and the Reformation.

"What! shall one monk, scarce known beyond his cell Front Rome's far-reaching bolts and scorn her frown?"

Brave Luther answered: "Yes; that thunder's swell Rocked Europe, and discharmed the triple crown."

IV.

My interpreter in our Peru meetings is an interesting man. He was trained in one of the finest English schools and graduated into the Anglican ministry and became a Curate. He went over to Argentina where he went into business and drifted away from God for nine years, but his mother's prayers prevailed and he became truly and soundly converted and is now radically evangelical. In this country where so many missionaries carry the modernistic twist, this brother (his name is Savage) stands out a stalwart for the fundamentals and the supernatural and for the work and ministry of the Holy Spirit in conviction and conversion and anointing; he refuses to give any place to modernism. He is a man of prayer and faith and just the type of man needed for a city like Lima. I feel doubly blessed in having a soundly converted Roman Catholic priest on the one hand and this English-saved Curate as my two main workers in the Lima meetings. Our meetings are being held under the joint auspices of the Evangelical Union and the Christian and Missionary Alliance. The Methodists have a big work in Lima and Callao but they did not officially join in with us for various reasons, though some of their preachers have come to the meetings occasionally. Oh what it would mean to South America if the Methodist missionaries were on fire!

Our meetings are on essentially free and full salvation lines; at night we are calling sinners to repentance, in the day meetings we are teaching and preaching on the deeper things of God. The need is so great among the members and believers; many of them are not spiritual and know nothing of the deeper life in God. Some of them can talk and pray fluently but they are without power. No Holy Ghost power in their experiences. Protestants in this Catholic country can become just as formal as Catholics themselves; some of them are converted to Protestantism but not to God. We are trying to stir them up by pouring upon them truth in the Holy Ghost. Too often the Protestant churches run year after year with no revival; no awakening. Their leaders are either asleep, or dead, and they fail to lead the people in spiritual things. Such things as altar services or revival meetings are unknown in many Protestant churches. And would this condition exist if the foreign missionaries were on fire?

V.

It would be a fine thing if modernists could be kept out of the mission fields. I don't think a modernist ought to be called a missionary. I think a more fitting term would be a hindrance. Modernism both at home and abroad promotes unbelief, skepticism and infidelity. It is a shame, a pity and a disgrace that the big Missionary Boards should send modernistically trained people to mission lands. It is a waste of missionary money!

I have been told repeatedly since coming to the South American field that generally the native preachers and workers are sound evangelically and they want the pure gospel, but the trouble is with the foreign missionaries so many of them are modernists, or are controlled by modernistic influence. And too often Missionaries who were sound when they go back to U. S. A. for their furloughs are sent to modernistic schools for "advanced" "up-to-date" training and they return to the field spotted all over with modernism.

When I was on one of the Asiatic fields holding revival meetings in which many were finding God a young fellow from a modernistic church school was running the religious education work; he was attempting to put through plans and programs of such a character that none of the District Superintendents wanted to work with him. One of them boldly told him that if that was the kind of work he intended to do he had better quit and go home; that kind of stuff did not suit the mission field where they were trying to get their young people converted and to come into the kingdom of God the Bible way. I do not know what happened to the young chap but I presume the Mission Board kept him on because he got his training in schools that they endorsed and stood for.

No doubt the Boards themselves as well as their supporters are at times grievously disappointed at the small results achieved in the mission fields. I think nine-tenths of our trouble is due to the fact that so many of our missionaries are wrongly trained and their education leads them away from the Evangelical; and as for evangelism they have neither heart or gift for it. The Oriental Missionary Society and "Bethel" work at Shanghai all testify to the fact that soul-saving results are sure to come if we get back to the Acts of the Apostles.

THIS, THAT AND THE OTHER.

Rev. Thomas C. Henderson.

THERE IS NO DOUBT

N my mind that most pastors do not use their spiritual laymen enough in public ministries. Why in the world a pastor should think that he is the only person who can lead a public service, fill the pulpit, make an announcement or give a Bible study is more than I can tell, but evident it is that many pastors so think. That pastor who takes pains to notice the latent gifts and enablements in his spiritual laymen and then honors and uses them will find his church is the more mighty, his own ministry is made the stronger, and the multitudes of common people will fill the auditorium of his church. I know a goodly number of preachers in this country who are preaching today because a pastor harnessed them to some public ministry and task, and in the doing of it they found their call and career. Strong, spiritual laymen of either sex are developed by having to share in the public responsibilities of their church. If a man or woman can sing the gospel effectively, he should be so used. If a man can lead a cottage prayer meeting, get him at that very task. If a layman can mingle his testimony with an earnest exhortation, let him conclude next Sunday night's service and the results will be gratifying. If some one can lead a street meeting, give him a chance to do it. If a layman seems able to conduct an old-fashioned class meeting, appoint him to that very work. If a layman can fittingly preside over the opening of a Sunday morning worship hour, let him do it next Sunday morning. If a group of laymen can be coached a bit and made ready to put on an evangelistic service of singing, praying, exhortation and testifying, let them have next Sunday night's service and the blessing of God and the favor of the people will be evident. It is consummate nonsense for a church to have no public service on a Sunday because the pastor is sick. Laymen can be and should be trained and practiced in conducting the various kinds of true gospel services so that the pastor himself does not have to be the only one who can take charge of the public work of his church. That minister who thinks that the public will come to his church only when he is preaching and directing the service is a stupid egotist.

THERE ARE VARIOUS KINDS OF FRIENDSHIP.

One may have a business friend with whom one has no other contact than in a business way. So, there are literary-friends, and school-friends, and travel-friends, and church-friends, and recreation-friends, and task-friends, and then there are friendships which are held together by ties of spiritual fellowship. Possibly the purest and most stimulating type of friendship is that which is deeply rooted in mutual Christian spirituality. Such friendships are deeper than blood relationships, for often such a friendship is the special tie which holds two members of the same family together as other members of that family are not bound. Spiritual friendships have none of the passion of human affection and they transcend differences of opinion and even doctrinal viewpoint and personal taste. I have several such friends in various parts of this country. One such friend lives in Oberlin, Ohio. He is a saintly and aged retired missionary of the Congregational Church. Through our mailman he learns when we are expected home, and though he lives in the other end of our fair little city, he comes over for a visit as soon as he thinks we will be rested up from our trip, and what a treat it is to sit near him and talk with him about the Word of God, the work of Christ's Kingdom, and the realities of Christian experience. He was soundly converted under the Wesleys and has gone deeply into the treasures of Christian experience. He is my senior by at least a quarter of a century, but our fellowship is unaffected by the difference of our ages. Though we have had scores of grand conversations, and though we exchange letters betimes, and though there is never the least bit of restraint in our conversations, I have not thought to find out his doctrinal position on the millennium, on bodily healing, on water baptism and many other debatable items of Christian thought; but I do know that he knows Jesus Christ as an uttermost Savior, and that he walks in rich communion with the Holy Ghost, and that he greatly loves and has deeply studied the Bible, and that he has no superficial ideas about the serious situation in the pulpit and pew of the modern church. I look forward to the hours when this saintly and humble prophet of God will spend a while with us. I thank God for this spiritual friend—Brother James Toddings—who, though not rich in earthly wealth, is so rich in brotherliness and in Christlike poise. He has spent many years in Oberlin where his type of holy devotion to Christ is far from being popular, but he has never compromised his faith, and his heart fires have lost none of their heat. It probably will not be long until his years have told their number, and some of us who know and love him will find the world sadly empty without the presence of his spirituality which is as vigorous as that of a new convert and as fresh as this morning's sunrise. I wish all whom I know could share with me this spiritual friendship with James Toddings of Oberlin, Ohio. And I thank God for all such friends of mine scattered here and there from the east side to the west side of this continent.

A REVIVAL CRUSADE

Had reached the closing day of its announced duration. The evangelist was announced in the newspapers and the bulletin of the church to preach on certain themes which were fitting to the last hours of such a ministry. While praying alone in the early hours of that day he sensed a loss of interest in the theme which he had intended using in the morning service—a message especially to those recently converted or restored to Christian experiences. Instead, he was impressed to prepare a message of solemn warning on the doom of the impenitent sinners and worldlings in the church. The more he sought guidance as he prayed alone in the darkness, the more he was convinced that he should ignore the announced theme and that the Holy Ghost was the author of this leading to change the sermon-subject for that morning hour of worship. He obeyed the inner leading. As he preached, it was evident to those of us who were in that service that God was inspiring the preacher for that hour. At the close of the sermon he told the congregation why he had changed from the published announcement for that service and testified that he sensed that the Lord was sending a special message to some one in that congregation, and he exhorted all who felt that the Lord was speaking to them to come forward to the altar of prayer. Five grown persons were gloriously converted that morning. Three of them had not been in the revival meetings before that hour. The Lord knew more than that evangelist about the needs of that congregation, and happy it was that his servant sensed his voice and obeyed it. Five happy converts agree to that. Every evangelistic sermon should be an inspiration.

Personality and Deity of the Holy Spirit; or, the Potency of Pentecost.

Dr. Clarence True Wilson.

"And behold, I send the promise of my Father upon you; but tarry ye in the city of Jerusalem, until ye be endued with power from on high." Luke 24:29.

WE have reached a new landmark on the calendar,—1931. This year holds a world full of possibilities, but its greatest significance to me will be the nineteen hundredth anniversary of the advent of the Holy Spirit at the Pentecost. We do not claim that the Holy Spirit was not in the world before, nor was Christ absent from the earth before the first Christmas, but when the angels sang of Heaven's good will, the Messiah made his advent manifestation; his presence became historic as an event with bounds; he had on earth a local center and a name. So Pentecost marked the manifestation of the Spirit as the Executive of the Godhead for our dispensation, the head of the new order, the representative of Jesus Christ, the sole source of power to win the world for him.

Why should we celebrate that event?

Because only through him do we know God. "No man can truly say that Jesus is the Lord but by the Holy Spirit." Without his ministry we miss the divinity of Jesus and the Fatherhood of God as well.

Because the Church has come to a loss of power through the neglect of the Spirit. The evil days of church formality and the drift world-ward cannot be changed by a meager Gospel. Our Christocentric emphasis makes a beautiful story that lends itself to pulpit oratory, but it needs the motive power of Pentecost. Fine music and eloquent preaching may fill the churches with unconverted people, but the power to convict of sin, of righteousness and of judgment is of the Holy Spirit. Converting power is not in the proofs of Theism nor even in the life of Christ. It takes a whole Trinity to save a soul. "Through him we all have our access by one Spirit unto the Father."

Because we are drifting as denominations into mere ethical cults. We have little "saving power" in our church services, our preaching, our prayer meetings, our Sunday schools, or our Leagues. The cold solitariness of the Unitarian God never could save sinners or sanctify believers or build a Christian Church out of heathen and wayward sinners. It makes no zeal for such work; it has nothing to make zeal out of. The neglect of the Spirit loses the Trinity. Why throw away the key to Christianity, when we need it now to unlock the sources of power?

Because this is the providential opportunity of the Church of Christ. If we could see a hundred thousand ministers studying anew the revelations of the Spirit from the days when he brooded over the face of the waters as the Agent in creation till John the Baptist closed the Old Testament period by pointing to Jesus of Nazareth and saying: "I indeed baptize you with water, but he shall baptize you with the Holy Spirit and Fire": if we could see the whole Church concentrating its attention on the promise of the Father, the command of Jesus to his disciples,—"Wait for the endowment of Pentecost"—and then to the study of the phenomena visible and audible at that Pentecost, and finally to trace that stream of blessing as it flows through the Christian centuries, they would learn:

1. That the mere ethical cults are not models for us; that the Pentecostal Church is our type and maybe we could turn back to the real source of power and find life.

2. We could stop the drift in public morals, save our Sabbath, our home life, prohibition, patriotism, and civilization for the moral standards of the twentieth century.

3. It would take a church that loses membership, drops its World Service, lets its young people drift into worldliness and sin, closes its Sunday night services because of empty pews, sells out its down-town property and moves for easier conditions, and backslides from all the aggressive leadership of Wesley, Asbury, and Simpson, and would make that same church spiritual and mighty through God in pulling down the strongholds of Satan and building instead the Kingdom of Christ on earth. If you want to know what my greatest hope is for Prohibition and the other reforms for which I labor and pray, and for the turning of the Church from its weakness and defeatism to its real spiritual power for the conquest of the world, it is the seeking for ourselves and for our Church the secret that made our fathers the evangelists of the world and gave to early Methodism its swing of conquest,—namely, the Pentecostal equipment to save lost souls.

4. We are standing as a Church and as a nation on the threshold of the nineteen hundredth anniversary of the Pentecost. This date marked the advent for special purposes of the Holy Spirit to take the place of Christ as the Executive of the Godhead, and to furnish the motive power for Christian conquest of this world. He has been the secret power of the Gospel ministry ever since. It has been a submerged ministry of late. The world drift and the Church chill demand the restoration of his leadership and the rekindling of his fire. A whole Church giving itself to study of the Word of Promise concerning him, the history of his coming, and all the afterglow upon the disciples and evangelists, would turn us again to the sole source of our power. A Church-wide, then a nation-wide, and maybe a world-embracing revival of pure religion would result from such a study and consecration. That would make Prohibition successful. That would reform public morals. That would save the family life of the republic. That would stop the selling out of the last of our down-town Protestant Churches. That would prevent the further drop in our benevolent offerings. That would fill our pews. That would put the whole Church on the march for world conquest again.

"I believe in the Holy Ghost, the Lord and Giver of life, who proceedeth from the Father and the Son, who together with the Father and the Son is worshipped and glorified, who spake by the prophets." You have been told that the Greek word rendered spirit in the New Testament is equivalent to breath, wind; showing that it is a picture word, a figure to illustrate the divine manifestation, which exercises special influence in this world.

1. When Peter in his remarkable sermon attempted to explain the manifestation visible and audible at the Pentecost, he referred it all to Jesus, "who being by the right hand of God exalted and having received of the Father the promise of the Holy Spirit, he hath shed forth this which ye see and hear." A person comes or is sent; an element may be poured out or shed forth. They did not see the Holy Spirit, for he is invisible; they did not hear his voice, for that is not addressed to the auricular nerve. The sound from heaven and the visible flame were attendant manifestations of the otherwise undemonstrable presence of the Holy Spirit.

2. "Repent ye therefore and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth for the remission of sins; and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit." Though Peter recognized the coming of the Spirit as the Holy Ghost or Holy Guest to abide in believers' hearts as the promised Person; yet in describing his operation upon the recipients, he refers impersonally to the manifestations as an inspiring afflatus.

We recognize three classes of passages concerning the Holy Spirit.

1. Those which refer to the influence, the inspiration, the power of the Spirit and apply personal terms figuratively to the manifestations of his presence. 2. Those which interpret the promises of the Spirit's advent when actually present and upon us, as an afflatus from God. 3. Those which go back to the real cause and teach the Personality and the Deity of the Holy Ghost.

RECOGNIZING THE PERSON OF THE SPIRIT.

Rejoice that the Spirit that brooded upon the face of the waters in the morning of creation is abroad in the world today; that the Spirit who inspired the holy prophets is present for our inspiration; that the abundant manifestation of the Holy Spirit promised through the prophet Joel has descended upon the earth, and we may be filled with all the fullness of God. It was in fulfillment of this prophecy that Jesus said: "Wait for the promise of the Father, which ye have heard from me," and "Behold, I send the promise of the Father upon you. Ye shall be endued with power from on high for ye shall be baptized with the Holy Ghost not many days hence."

No wonder grand old St. Augustine cried out: "O God, thou hast made us for thyself. And our hearts are restless until they rest in thee." And then the Spirit, the Paraclete, our Comforter, Advocate, Helper becomes the Holy Ghost abiding in the believer's heart, it is "God in you the hope of glory."

PROOFS OF HIS PERSONALITY.

For unmistakably the Holy Spirit is designated a person, divine in nature, yet distinct from the Father and the Son, as a self-conscious agency in the Trinity, who says, "I" and "Me."

1. The proofs of his personality are found in the use of personal pronouns, I, Thou, and He, to designate him by all inspired writers.

Jesus in his farewell discourse gave a full and explicit revelation of him (John 14:15-16). There is no trace of poetry in this discourse of Jesus. He speaks plainly of another Helper who was coming to take his place, do the same work that he had done in teaching and guiding. Count the times the masculine personal pronoun occurs, "He" and "Him." In the words, "He shall glorify me," by no just law of interpretation can personality be denied the first while predicated of the last.

2. Personal offices are ascribed to him such as speaking, teaching, guiding, searching, praying, grieving. It is impossible to prove the Father to be a person or the Son to be a person in any way other than we can prove the Holy Spirit to be so; for He, to whom all personal properties, attributes, adjuncts, and operations are ascribed, and to whom nothing is ascribed but what properly belongs to a person. He is a person and so we are taught to believe him to be. Thus we know the Father to be a person and the Son also, but there is no personal relation belonging to the divine nature that is not equally ascribed to the Holy Ghost. The Holy Ghost spake. (Acts 1:16). Jesus told his disciples, "It is not ye that speak, but the Holy Spirit." (Mark 13:11). The Paraclete speaks of himself as having authority in the Church. The Holy Spirit said, "Separate me Barnabas and Saul for the work whereunto I have called them." (Acts 13:2). So they being sent forth by the Holy Ghost went out on their great missionary journey. Later on Paul and Silas were forbidden by the Holy Ghost to preach the word further in Asia. He wanted to send them to Europe. "The Holy Ghost made elders in Ephesus, bishops to feed the flock of God." (Acts 20:28). Such verbs as these describe his personal acts. He teaches, comforts, guides, sanctifies, glorifies, distributes gifts as he wills, makes intercessions, and is grieved. Can any one credit this testimony and conceive otherwise than that the Spirit is a wise and Holy Person?

3. He is the object of faith, adoration and worship: being co-ordinated with undisputed Persons in the Baptismal formula, which is the final revelation of God (Matt. 28:19); and in the Apostolic Benediction (2 Cor. 13:19), which is the consequent and permanent blessing.

4. Then the necessities of Christian experience prove it. Faith attains its highest vigor when it grasps a personal object and not an abstraction, the Blessor and not the blessing. Faith culminates in its strength when it addresses a personal Father, revealed in a personal incarnate Son and claims the personal Paraclete. God in Christ awakens faith in a higher degree than any attempted conception of an infinite being boundless and vague. But by giving the soul a more intelligent and conscious hold upon the living and most gracious personality of the Holy Spirit, the soul gets its first decisive and appropriating view of the crucified Lord as the sinner's sacrifice of peace. With such aid to conscious faith, mercy and grace flow toward the soul in large streams as on Pentecost God descended into the temple of the apostles' lives.

5. He is the subject of benediction. The Father and his unmerited grace, the Son and his expiatory sacrifice have been much more studied in our day than the Holy Spirit, His Person and work, and all that new world which he creates in the heart. (Godet). The reason that so little is said of worshipping the Holy Ghost in the Bible is that his ministry on earth was to glorify Christ; and he is the Author of the Book that tells the story of Christ. This Author does not obtrude himself; he wants us only to come to Christ, to serve Christ alone. So when the Spirit comes to us in his fullness, we seem to think of him less but to know the exceeding greatness of Christ's power toward us who believe. In the person of Jesus, truth was outward, visible and most beautiful. In the person of the Spirit, it is inward, spiritual, all-transfiguring. By the very necessity of the case the bodily presence of Jesus could be but a passing figure, but through a gracious mystery he caused himself to be succeeded by an eternal Presence even the Executive of the God-head Who abideth forever.

THE FINAL AND GLORIOUS MANIFESTATION.

He is divine and the final and most glorious manifestation of God to this world.

1. He bears divine names and titles: He is called God. When Satan filled the heart of Ananias to lie to the Holy Ghost and keep back part of the price of the land, Peter said, "Thou hast lied not unto men but unto God"; and Paul calls him Lord: "Now the Lord is that Spirit and where the Spirit is, there is liberty." "But we all are transformed in the same image from glory to glory, even as from the Lord the Spirit."

2. Divine works are ascribed to the Spirit, such as the creation, the inspiration of the prophets and apostles, the virgin birth of Jesus, the resurrection of our Lord from the dead, and the equipment of the Christian Church.

3. He abides in the believer and it is the prerogative of God alone to dwell in his creature. To no other person or creature is this right ascribed in the Bible.

4. A very strong negative proof is that he is never named among creatures. When created spirits are enumerated such as angels, archangels, thrones, principalities, powers, cherubim, seraphim, the climax never ends with, "and the Holy Spirit," as we would expect it to do if he were both a person and a creature.

5. Divine attributes are ascribed to him; omnipresence, being everywhere; omniscience, knowing everything; omnipotence, all-powerful; possessed of wisdom, goodness and infallibility.

6. There is a sin against him which is irremissible. In Hebrews 10:29 is a description of the guilt incurred by an apostate from Christ to Judaism. If it is not the irremissible sin it is sin at its climax. The Son of God is trampled with ruthless scorn and hatred; his precious blood is counted as that of either an ordinary man or a guilty criminal. Then the description reaches the summit of wickedness, the sin of all sins, the irremissible sin: "and insulted the Spirit of Grace."

THE CHANNEL OF LOVE.

He is the channel through whom the love of the Father and the grace of the Son are poured upon penitent believers. To forsake the channel is to miss the stream of blessing. The Father's love and the Son's sacrifice avail us nothing without the personal agency of the Spirit applying the provision for our salvation. He is the appointed almoner of the divine bounty and the messenger of the King's pardon. To despise his person is to miss his blessing; to neglect his presence is to be without God in this world.

If a city has a bureau of charities, its poor, who proudly refuse its help and rely on the general benevolence of the city government and starve because of their folly, are no more unreasonable than are those who admit that they are sinners, but are trusting in the general Fatherhood of God for forgiveness while ignoring his bureau of pardon through the mediation of his Son, administered by his accredited commissioner, the Holy Spirit of grace.

Many Christians who are almost destitute of spiritual strength might become strong through the more abundant life which Christ came to bestow, if they would only honor with an intelligent faith that personality whom he has appointed the Lord and Giver of life.

If you now have a heart hunger to know God, a soul longing for his fellowship in abiding terms of intimacy, open every gateway of your being to the Father's love, borne from his through our Saviour's mediation and administered in the soul of the willing believer by the Holy Spirit.

When the incarnate Christ came to the Jordan to receive baptism and be consecrated after the order of the Levitical Priesthood, the Holy Spirit descended upon him and thus became the Holy Ghost (Anglo-Saxon, Holy Guest). This he could not be till the incarnation took place; he could then communicate gifts and knowledge unknown to men before. It was at the baptism that the Holy Spirit became the Guest of the human nature of Jesus; and, as the Father was in the Son by nature, when the Spirit entered the human nature of Christ he became the Holy Guest. Then it was literally true that "in the man, Christ Jesus, dwelt all the fullness of the God-head bodily." Col. 2:9.

The Personal peculiarity of the Father in Redemptional Trinity is that of origination. It is his will that springs worlds into existence and binds them into harmony in their majestic courses. The peculiarity of the Son is his aggressive, self-assertive obedience. But the Holy Spirit, in utter personal self-effacement, only leads the soul to Christ.

And what a service he thus renders! Whether God would send a river flowing to the sea; or would set a sunset blazing in the western sky; or would quiet the fears of a terrified child; or would break the proud heart of a willful sinner; or would unite a willing man to Jesus Christ; or would add a further grace to the triumphs of a saint; or would pour the surprising consolations of heaven into a hopeless grief; or would take an old man, who is timid before the gathering mystery of death, and fill his soul with the peace of God and the certainties of the faith; or would give the Presence Divine to all who are called to pass through the Valley of the Shadow,—the work, the finishing volition, the efficient eventualization of it all is given over to the Holy Spirit. He alone is sent; but is GOD. See Olia A. Curtis on The Trinity.

A friend once asked the Quaker poet, "What is your view of the Trinity." Mr. Whittier replied, "When I look out on the world and the universe, I see everywhere the presence of God, the Father, and when I listen to the voice of Jesus the Christ speaking to us by the Sea of Galilee and note the effects, I call him God, the Son; but when he whom I see in the great universe, and who speaks to me from the peaks of Palestine, comes down from the skies and across the years into my heart, I call him God, the Holy Spirit." See his poem, "Trinitas;" and his Personal Confession says: "God is one: just, merciful, eternal and almighty Creator, Father of all things, Christ the same eternal One, manifested in our humanity and in time, and the Holy Spirit, the same Christ, manifested within us, the Divine Teacher, the Living Word, the Light that lighteth every man that cometh into the world." Such was the faith of one of the purest souls and noblest leaders of thought whom God ever made.

How appropriate, then, is the late President Warren's hymn, "I Worship Thee, O Holy Ghost." I once wrote to Dr. William Fairfield Warren, President and Founder of Boston University, and asked him to give the origin of his hymn. He frankly stated its purpose thus:

"You ask whether this hymn grew out of any special studies or impressions on my part. To this I can only answer that about the time when it was written the Patricentric system of Calvinism was rapidly giving place in several American denominations to an equally narrow and unscriptural system which greatly rejoiced in the then newly imported name of Christo-centric Theology. Noting with some concern that a number of preachers of our Church were being carried away by the new and Christ-honoring term and were in danger of forgetting that in the field of experience and in the field of doctrine Methodism represents that consummation of the dispensation of the Father and of the dispensation of the Son which we call the dispensation of the Spirit, I sought in various

In the Heart of Old Mexico.

G. ARNOLD HODGIN.

O the traveler who penetrates Old Mexico to any considerable depth, there awaits an experience which will not be easily forgotten. The casual observer and average reader, perhaps, do not remember that this country lying just south of our far western States, has a wealth of antiquity, and a variety of scenery, mountain and valley, snowy and tropical, that bids fair to rival the most boasted lands of the Eastern Hemisphere. Nor do many probably know that there are relics of an ancient civilization co-existent with the Pharaohs of Egypt. But such are the facts. Pyramids lift their lithic summits around Mexico City, and mark, many of them, an architectural exactness, that goes well with those of the Nile Valley, bordering the Libyan Desert. Back in the fastness of the mountains may be found remains of what some believe, was a civilization, which in the golden glow of its high level, far more than twenty centuries ago, enjoyed a splendor like unto that unknown on the plains of Memphis.

The outstanding racial remains of those ancient days find feature in the Aztec and other Indian tribes who inhabit that region known as the Huasteca. There are something over seventeen million people in Mexico. Between eleven and twelve million go to make up the number of the Mexican people as such; who, though a mixed race from the amalgamation of Spanish and Indian, yet are now a distinct and separate people, with a clear literary and religious background. Of them, much has been written, and volumes more could be penned. It is with the Indians, however, that we are for the moment especially concerned. Of the many tribes, there of which is the Aztec.

We have just completed a journey among these Indian tribes, spending the most of the time with the Aztecs and Atamis; and the greater part of that time with the Aztecs. This journey took us into the very heart of the Huasteca. We drove a small automobile a little more than two hundred and fifty miles below the U. S. A. border. Then we took train and traveled about three hundred miles further. Then we rode horseback, up and down among those Indian dwellings which lie far back among the fastnesses of the rugged mountains. We went far beyond where train, auto, or wagon has ever gone. There are thousands of grown-up people living in the mountains of Mexico who have never seen a wheeled vehicle of any kind. And, strange as it may sound, there are those who have seen automobiles before they have seen trains, and in a few instances men have seen splendid, up-to-date sedan autos before they have gotten a glimpse of even an old-fashioned ox-cart. Our horsebacking amounted to about two hundred miles. We lived on Indian food, stayed in Indian homes, and did everything we could, and went everywhere we could, in the short time we were there, to find out what we could about these wonderful people, for wonderful they are.

Think with us for a moment concerning the Aztecs. Who are they? Any Encyclopedia will give the student reader fuller information than we shall have space or powers to give. But, one thing does remain; that we should remember. These Indians are the fragmentary remains of a noble and highly civilized race. Their relics and monuments tell the story. No one who studies them can doubt it. But they have had a sad history. Spain invaded Mexico, as we are all aware. The Indians were an easy mark. The invasion might have been in the form of gospel truth inculcation, and the turning of those noble people to the cross of Christ whom the Roman hierarchy professed to honor. What a marvelous transformation might have been wrought! But, the Indians were enslaved. All who showed any aptitude for culture or leadership were promptly butchered, lest there be a possible person left who could lead the masses. Almost every form of merciless savagery was perpetrated upon the poor victims. They were brought low and fully humbled. Only the poorest type were permitted to live. Worst of all, strong drink became the enslaved Indian's direst curse. Thus the invasion of Mexico bestialized the peoples who might have been elevated. The Aztec in his natural state today is far below what he once was. He is more than likely a drunkard. We have seen men fallen down in the road, lying in mud like swine, and dead drunk. Sad picture that! But, thank God, it is not the whole story.

Some years ago the writer had a hand in helping to educate a young Mexican Christian man who had come to California to study for the ministry. His desire was to equip himself for the work and then go back to Mexico and preach full salvation to his people. The time came when this young man, (who is none other than Francisco H. Soltero) with his wife farewelled from the Pilgrim Tabernacle in Pasadena, and started for Mexico to spread the glad tidings of full salvation. These missionaries knew no one in San Luis Potosi, which was the place where they were to begin their labors; nor had they a single man or woman who knew God, around whom, as a nucleus, to build the work. But they plunged into the work with full confidence, and the gospel was in very truth a success. Deeds have been wrought, hardships have been endured, and persecutions have been passed through which would make a volume that could compare with almost any missionary review of modern times. Many of the Mexican people turned to God, and among them the work was a decided success. But it was among the Indians that the greatest work of evangelization stood afar. These Indians came to the missionaries and implored them to send workers to their people in the mountain country two hundred miles away. Brother Soltero promptly went, and the work was begun.

There has emerged from the struggle and sacrifice of those days, just a very few years ago, a work among these Indian tribes, which is so remarkable that it is attracting attention north, south, east, and west. Just to give the reader a glimpse of what has been done, permit us to relate in few words what we saw in one community alone. We were asked to attend a gospel service in one of the chapels in an Aztec village. When we entered, we faced more than five hundred people in and around the building, packed in every available space, and then the windows full, looking in. We were asked to 'lecture' (No foreigner may preach in Mexico). Having been in school life for near twenty years, and being announced as the professor of Mr. Soltero, while he was in the States, we were free to go ahead. We talked about the wonderful Christ and his power to save and cleanse. Fully fifty were forward for prayers. The seeking at the altar that night would do the heart of an American camp meeting enthusiast good. We asked what per cent of the company were Christians, not mere professors of religion, but really born again. The answer was that fully ninety per cent were just that. The next day we went to another chapel two miles away, where between four and five hundred had gathered for service, and where there were between forty and fifty seekers. We asked the same question concerning this company that we did of the one the night before. The answer was the same—about ninety per cent Christians. We were also told that not more than ten per cent of the people who attended the chapel the night before were present here. Probably knowing that the house would be crowded, they stayed away to let others in. All these Indians who now know God live in small enough an area for the chapels to be built two miles apart.

In all our travels the world over, we have found no better type of Christians than those whom we met among the Indian tribes of Mexico. They are literally transformed by the gospel of Christ. No more drunkenness, no more licentiousness, no more smoking! There have been straightening out marital tangles. Couples have been married, who had been raising families without the formality of the law, before they found God. Now the Bible is read, prayer is offered, testimony is given, and lives lived above reproach. This is what we saw everywhere we went among these dear people. There are more than a thousand members of the Pilgrim Church in Mexico, and as many more have been saved by the power of God. Whole villages have been so changed that Rome's hierarchy has been amazed and chagrined.

Mexico is wide open for the gospel of full salvation. A half-hearted, semi-worldly set of missionaries can do little. There is need of valiant labor and laborers. But, Mexico wants only Mexicans to do the work, for they are fighting to keep out the foreign priests who have done such damage to the country. We are happy to say that there are in that land those who shun not to declare the whole counsel of God, and to face any kind of hardship for Christ and the gospel.

The Collapse of Evolution.

A word to my young friends, preachers, students, farmer boys, schoolgirls, and others, here is a book that you should read. It has been suggested that the evolutionists are not quite so aggressive as they were a few decades ago. They need not be; their work has been largely accomplished.

A very large portion of present day literature takes evolution for granted. You will find it so in the daily press, the magazines, the fiction, not a little of the biography, in some histories, and in a very general way modern writers treat the theory of evolution as if it were established science; no other discussion or investigation necessary. Of course, if you pin a man down he will admit that the evolution of a human being from the animal is not a positively established science, but he will argue that it is nearly enough proven to be accepted as if it were a proven and accepted scientific fact that the human race has come up from the lower animal kingdom.

The whole subject is one with which the masses of our people are not at all familiar. The young people in the schools get a bias on the subject in favor of evolution without any real knowledge on the subject, without having read anything on the other side of this vexing question. Here is a book written by a profound scholar who has given the subject careful consideration. It is easy reading; the arguments are very clear and we believe the conclusions are correct. Ministers of the gospel ought to study this subject from the standpoint of those who believe that man and the lower animals have no sort of connection with each other, but that man was created as the Bible declares.

The book was written by Professor L. T. Townsend, D.D., S.T.D., M.V.I. It is really most interesting reading. It ought to have a wide circulation. It will furnish a preacher of the gospel with very excellent material on the subject for a sermon or an address before any sort of public gathering. It is on good paper, clear print, neatly bound, contains 125 pages, and can be had at The Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky., for $1.00.

GLEANINGS FROM THE EVANGELISTIC FIELD

RANGOON, BURMA.

Dear Friends of The Herald Family:

After leaving the Isle of Penang our ship headed for Burma, the land where over a century ago Adoniram Judson, the first American missionary, planted a station on foreign soil. Anyone who has read the biography of this pioneer of the cross, or the recent historical novel, "The Splendor of God," will be interested in this large stretch of land covering over 200,000 miles with some fourteen million needy souls.

In 1809 a young man was attending Andover College; one day a sermon written by an English clergyman fell into his hands. In this discourse the writer told of the missionary work being done in India, which left a deep impression on the young student. Shortly after reading this sermon, Adoniram Judson—for he was the young man—was taking a solitary walk through the woods behind the college campus. As he meditated and prayed he was suddenly confronted with the command of Jesus to "go out into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." Then and there he came to the decision to follow the command of Christ, and surrendered his life for foreign service.

With four other college students he formed a missionary society, and time after time they met under a haystack to pray and talk about foreign missionary work. Since there was no foreign missionary board in America a letter was written to the London Missionary Society in England in which they stated their desire to be sent out as missionaries to preach the gospel. While they were waiting for reply, some of their college professors suggested that they make an appeal to the General Association, representing the Congregational churches in America and asked them to accept their offer to go out as missionaries. They immediately acted upon the suggestion, and soon the General Association formed the first missionary board in America. Judson was accepted as one of the first candidates.

Many obstacles stood in the way and there were many to discourage such a venture, but undaunted, this young missionary with his young bride of a few days left the States in February, 1812, bound for India. After many months sailing they arrived in India, but due to the fact that England was at war with America they were soon forced to leave India. In the meantime, Judson had become convinced that immersion was the Bible way of baptism and joined the Baptist Church in Calcutta. Soon the Baptists in America heard of his decision and at once they formed a missionary board and raised funds to support him.

After leaving India the Judsons sailed for Rangoon, Burma, and against great odds founded his work in Burma. The great hardships and sufferings they endured are graphically related in the book "Ann of Ava," a biography of the life of Mrs. Judson. They labored not in vain for today the Baptist Church, as well as other denominations, has a strong work in this interesting, yet difficult field.

We found a far different city in Rangoon than the Judsons found over a century ago. Western civilization has made its inroads and Rangoon has become a modern city holding an important place in the commerce of the east. We were met at the wharf by William Bell and Harry Harwood, both former Asburians of the class of '20. They are serving their second term in the Methodist Mission in Burma. Brother Harwood has charge of the Chinese work in Rangoon and has a great opportunity among this people. We had the privilege of conducting a service in the Chinese church there which is under his supervision.

Brother Bell is in charge of the Indian work in the Rangoon section and God is blessing his labors. He arranged a service one night with a large group of Indian coolies who warmly received us, showing their appreciation by placing a garland of beautiful flowers around each of our necks, which is the highest honor they can give or show a friend. Since this was our first service with the Indian people it was a new experience and one which we greatly appreciated.

We greatly enjoyed our stay with our fellow Asburians and had a time of blessed fellowship. The other two days we were there—for we only had four days to stop off in Rangoon—we conducted one service in English for the Anglo-Indian Church and several services in the various schools including the Burmese, Chinese and Anglo-Indian student groups. God gave us a blessed time as we gave forth the gospel message, and the people eagerly drank in the truth.

We are now in India, and God has opened up wonderful doors of opportunity. We are looking forward to the coming weeks as the greatest of our lives.

EVANGELISTIC REPORT.

We haven't reported in any of the holiness papers since last summer. The Lord has given us victory along every line. We began a meeting in Pottstown, Pa., Thanksgiving night. This was a gracious meeting from beginning to end. The membership of the church was more than doubled. Rev. Paul Taylor, the pastor, is a real blessing to the church and all who learn to know him. This meeting was in the Holiness Christian Church. On Dec. 28th we began a meeting in the Nazarene Church in Wilmington, Del. This was a hard-fought battle from start to finish. A few precious young folk were greatly helped. Rev. Robert Speer, the pastor, is one of the most zealous, sacrificing pastors we have ever met. This meeting lasted over four Sundays.

From Wilmington we went up to Weatherly, Pa., in the mountains near the coal fields. This meeting was in the Holiness Christian Church and the saints seemed to greatly appreciate the old rugged truth. A peculiar condition exists here; it is a "burnt-over" field that the devil has paid no little attention to. The right man going into this place can give the devil one great defeat.

Next we went to Seyfert, Pa., for another meeting with the Holiness Christian Church. This is one of the most spiritual churches we ever labored with and the Lord gave us a good meeting. From Seyfert we went to another Holiness Christian Church in West Conshohocken, Pa., where Rev. Ella J. Nace, that Deborah of the Holiness Christian Movement, is the able and greatly beloved pastor. The Lord gave us a good meeting at this place, several young folk praying through and thirteen united with the church. We moved on to Birdsboro, Pa., for a meeting with the Holiness Christian Church there. We were told that the church had the best attendance of its history during our meeting. Rev. Ira W. Bechtel is the good pastor. This was our second meeting with him and we are to go back again.

From here we went to Grier City, Pa., to attend the Conference of the Holiness Christian Church where we were pleased to meet our good friend, Rev. Harry Long, of Jeffersonville, Ind. He was our co-laborer here in preaching the Lord. After the Conference we opened fire on sin and the devil in the Wiley M. E. of Camden, N. J., Rev. J. S. Hackett, pastor. This church feeds scores of hungry women and children, and gives meals and lodging to down-and-out men. We had both Americans and Italians pray through in this meeting. The Lord is wonderfully helping us to reach Roman Catholic folk with the Gospel of full salvation. From Rev. Hackett's church we went to another M. E. Church, Bethany, at Tenth and Cooper, in Camden also. Here Rev. John Norberry, that great Christian warrior who has preached holiness up and down the land for many years, is the pastor. Brother Norberry is known to the Holiness Movement throughout America. Any camp meeting wanting an evangelist of the early Methodist type will do well to call Bro. Norberry. In this meeting we are having a number of seekers at every service. We go from here to the Collier Street Mission, Pittsburgh, Pa. We have just a few open dates.

TRAVEL LETTER.

Tilden H. Gaddis.
Palestine.

We greet you from the land which His presence made holy, and where a thousand sacred memories make us increasingly grateful for the unspeakable Gift. My path to Palestine was paved with providential leadings and happy expectations, and the dream of anticipation has now become a glorious vision. I did not come as a tourist to be hurried by an Agency, from one end of the land to another in a few days and see much but feel little. I came to try to live again with him the days of childhood and ministry, and by knowledge, sympathy and inspiration become a better friend of the Savior. I rejoice to testify that the Man of Nazareth is more real to me. I see him at home. I can associate him with his surroundings and circumstances. I can understand his poverty and suffering better, and perceive the reason for things he said and did.

Along the shores of the Aegean Sea through Syria and Palestine, we have followed in the footsteps of the characters of the New Testament, through the four Gospels and Acts, as well as the Old Testament characters through the Holy Land and wilderness, until the land has become a commentary to the Book, or a fifth Gospel. While many places pointed out are not authentic, yet it was in such a place and midst similar scenes we are treading on ground worthy of study and reverence. Why did God choose this location? Rome had more power, Egypt more wealth, Greece more culture, yet here among these hills and rocks and strange waters the earthly side of redemption's scheme was enacted. Here the leaders were called, the visions revealed, the people led, the law given, the promises made, the sacrifices offered, the hopes fulfilled, the Savior born, humanity blessed, the cross up-reared, the tomb opened, and from here flows blessing to all the ends of the earth. To this spot come men of every creed, feeling that here is a sacred place such as the universe cannot duplicate. We know not of other worlds whether they ever sinned or ever needed a Savior. On other worlds destinies may be fixed; other worlds may be beautiful beyond our dream, but if they have no Calvary then our world is king of spheres and the glory of creation and the angels must look on this whirling orb with a reverence not devoted to others.

Over the trail of the patriarchs, through a country replete with glorious history, we reach the Lake of Galilee, 682 feet below sea level. The ruins of Capernaum, Bethsaida and Chorazin give mute evidence of the result of the curse put on them by Jesus for rejection, but God has redeemed the land about them with a beautiful vegetation of orange, banana and olive trees. Passing the ruins of Magdala, we reach Tiberias where we have lunch of fish from the Lake of Galilee. Climbing out of the valley, past the Mount of Beatitudes, stopping at Cana to see the old pots such as held the water which was turned into wine, we arrive at Nazareth where our Lord spent thirty years of his life. Jerusalem, Bethlehem and Nazareth are the three important cities in the life of Jesus. At Nazareth, Mary's well, the Church of the Annunciation, and the cliff over which the synagogue crowd tried to throw Jesus, are shown. The plain of Esdraelon, from Joshua to Napoleon, the famous war field of the world gives a sweep of vision from the mountains of Samaria before us to the noble ranges of Galilee crowned in the far distance by Hermon, and fronted by the near summits of Tabor behind us; on our left Gilboa; and on our right in the distance is Mt. Carmel. On this plain Barak and Sisera fought. Here Josiah was conquered and slain and yonder Saul was defeated and fell on his sword, and yonder by Jezreel, Gideon defeated the Midianites. It was along this road that Jehu drove furiously and yonder at the base of Little Hermon is Shunem, the home of the woman who built a prophet's chamber for Elisha. We can stand here and trace her journey to fetch the prophet from Mt. Carmel to heal her dead son. It is amazing how much of Bible history can be traced and seen from one vantage point.

From the plain we proceed south to Engannim where the ten lepers were healed. Entering the hill country we climb the slopes to the well excavated ruins of Samaria, the capital city of the Northern Kingdom of Israel. On this commanding site Ahab's ivory palace stood, and here in the old crusading church of St. John the Baptist is the tomb where the old repentance preacher, the last of the prophets, is said to be buried. Now, we have at last found the remainder of John. His arm in Constantinople, his head in Damascus, and his body here. Here Herod the Great built his residence, regardless of expense, naming it Sebaste, and likely, here in one of his reveals John was beheaded.

So, following the trail of Patriarchs, Prophets, Priests and Kings, over the most ancient roadway of the world, we entered the Holy City from the north and, thrilled and softened as every pilgrim must be, we passed through Jaffa Gate to the Christ Church hospice where we were so hospitably entertained. In digging the foundations for Christ Church down forty feet to rock, remains of columns, aqueducts and a beautiful chamber of marble, all part of Herod's palace were found. This church was one of the first to use a bell. An old Moslem tradition held that God commanded Noah to use a gong to call workmen to the ark, therefore they did not allow Christians to use bells on churches; but gongs the roof of our hostel we have a panoramic view of the city and environs. Rev. A. H. Kauffman, of the Nazarene Armenian Mission, hospitably received us and made our stay both pleasant and profitable by the use of his auto, besides his presence as guide, and we are indebted to him for much information obtained. Also he arranged for our services both at Jaffa and Jerusalem and these were times of rich blessing. Brother S. C. Krikorian, our interpreter, was a jewel at the business.

Jerusalem, the Golden City, where infinite wisdom walked, talked and wrought miracles, and where the most amazing and important transactions in history of the world took place. The Crusaders at sight of this city fell on their faces and, with streaming eyes, cried, "Oh Jerusalem!" Can we be unmoved or merely curious as the tourist whom Cooks or the American Express hurry in and out showing the sights of a holiday excursion? Something grips us that baffles analysis, an awe, yet sweet delight, for to see and not feel reveals a lack of that something needed here. I fancy we felt something of what the priest felt as he went into the Holy Place behind the veil. Travel in other lands does not prepare one for this. We have crossed the borders and mingled with the people of twenty countries but this is not just another. This one is different and it changes all the while we remain. It is not monotonous. The temperature change is equal to a continent—dry desert in one part and fertile valley in another. From snow-covered mountain tops one may descend into a plain bathed in warm sunshine and covered with palm, orange and banana groves.

Let other pilgrims place their lips upon a silver star in a pavement at Bethlehem, which marks the place of his birth; let others make a chemical analysis of the Dead Sea and compute its billions of mineral wealth. Let others journey to Nabalous, once called Sechem, to see Samaritans persisting in Pentateuchal purity since the Assyrians planted them there and yet offering the literal sacrifice of the Passover Lamb through thousands of years. Let others examine the body print of Elijah sunk in solid rock, or the footprint of Jesus in stone. Let others spend their time admiring ancient architecture or trading in the Bazaars. But let more of that life that made the land holy fill my soul until moved with a compassion such as his I can touch men with the message of full salvation, until the blood of the Savior shed over yonder on the hill, outside the gate will redeem a multitude of sinners and prepare them for his return, for he is coming back. When he ascended from that mount just over there beyond the temple area, two men in white announced his second advent, and a few blocks from where I am sitting he told his disciples that when certain things began to come to pass they could know it was nigh, even at the door.

will, on investigation, and finding the pearls are not adapted to their use, turn upon those who offer the pearls, and rend them. How true that is today. We have a large class of people, sad to say many of them in the churches, who will not only refuse the truth, but will turn with the spirit of rending and persecution upon those who offer them the truth.

We have been interested in the 5th verse of the 31st chapter, which reads: "As birds flying, so will the Lord of hosts defend Jerusalem; defending also he will deliver it; and passing over he will preserve it." It is interesting to note that, in the World War, the airship of the British navy "as birds flying," passed over and around about Jerusalem inspecting and searching out the condition of the Turkish army, and finally, the Turks realizing their disadvantage, and the impossibility of resisting the British army, retired from the sacred city without firing a shot. So God saw to it that Jerusalem was preserved and left in tact. This is a marvelous fulfillment of prophecy.

The future glory and security of Jerusalem are clearly seen by the prophet Isaiah. Take, for instance, the 33rd chapter of Isaiah, 20-22: "Look upon Zion, the city of our solemnities: thine eyes shall see Jerusalem a quiet habitation, a tabernacle that shall not be taken down; not one of the stakes thereof shall ever be removed, neither shall any of the cords be broken. But there the glorious Lord will be unto us a place of broad rivers and streams wherein shall go no galley with oars, neither gallant ships pass thereby. For the Lord is our judge, the Lord is our lawgiver, the Lord is our king; he will save us."

Evidently this prophecy is for the future welfare of Jerusalem. It has not yet been fulfilled, but it looks as if we were approaching its fulfillment. We wish to give our readers a lengthy quotation from the 40th chapter of Isaiah, beginning with the first verse, down to the fifth verse, inclusive. Also, begin with the ninth verse and read to the close of the eleventh verse of the same chapter. Perhaps a portion of this chapter refers to the first coming of Christ, but it goes farther than that and refers also to the restoration of Jerusalem.

Comfort ye, comfort ye my people, saith your God.

Speak ye comfortably to Jerusalem, and cry unto her, that her warfare is accomplished, that her iniquity is pardoned: for she hath received of the Lord's hand double for all her sins.

The voice of him that crieth in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make straight in the desert a highway for our God.

Every valley shall be exalted, and every mountain and hill shall be made low: and the crooked shall be made straight, and the rough places plain:

And the glory of the Lord shall be revealed, and all flesh shall see it together: for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it.

There is a gracious promise to Israel in the 41st chapter of Isaiah's prophecy, beginning with verse nine, down to the close of verse 16:

Thou whom I have taken from the ends of the earth, and called thee from the chief men thereof, and said unto thee, Thou art my servant; I have chosen thee, and not cast thee away.

Fear thou not; for I am with thee: be not dismayed; for I am thy God: I will strengthen thee; yea, I will help thee; yea, I will uphold thee with the right hand of my righteousness.

Behold, all they that were incensed against thee shall be ashamed and confounded: they shall be as nothing; and they that strive with thee shall perish.

Thou shalt seek them, and shalt not find them, even them that contended with thee: they that war against thee shall be as nothing, and as a thing of nought.

For I the Lord thy God will hold thy right hand, saying unto thee, Fear not; I will help thee.

Fear not, thou worm Jacob, and ye men of Israel; I will help thee, saith the Lord, and thy redeemer, the Holy One of Israel.

Behold, I will make thee a new sharp threshing instrument having teeth: thou shalt thresh the mountains, and beat them small, and shalt make the hills as chaff.

Thou shalt fan them, and the wind shall carry them away, and the whirlwind shall scatter them: and thou shalt rejoice in the Lord, and shalt glory in the Holy One of Israel.

There is a beautiful prophecy in the 43rd chapter of this same book, reading 5th and 6th verses:

Fear not: for I am with thee: I will bring thy seed from the east, and gather thee from the west;

I will say to the north, Give up; and to the south, Keep not back: bring my sons from far, and my daughters from the ends of the earth.

In the 44th chapter of Isaiah, reading from the first to the conclusion of verse 8, we find a most gracious promise to Israel.

Yet now hear, O Jacob my servant; and Israel, whom I have chosen:

Thus saith the Lord that made thee, and formed thee from the womb, which will help thee; Fear not, O Jacob, my servant; and thou, Jesurun, whom I have chosen.

For I will pour water upon him that is thirsty, and floods upon the dry ground: I will pour my spirit upon thy seed, and my blessing upon thine offspring:

And they shall spring up as among the grass, as willows by the water courses.

One shall say, I am the Lord's; and another shall call himself by the name of Jacob; and another shall subscribe with his hand unto the Lord, and surname himself by the name of Israel.

Thus saith the Lord the King of Israel, and his redeemer the Lord of hosts; I am the first, and I am the last; and beside me there is no God.

And who, as I, shall call, and shall declare it, and set it in order for me, since I appointed the ancient people? and the things that are coming, and shall come, let them shew unto them.

Fear ye not, neither be afraid: have not I told thee from that time, and have declared it? ye are even my witnesses. Is there a God beside me? yea, there is no God; I know not any.

These promises have not been fulfilled; they are yet in the future, and will be fulfilled, and as they are fulfilled they will furnish a powerful proof of the inspiration of the Bible, and that the God of the Bible is the one and only God of the universe.

In the 45th chapter, 4, 5, 6, we find these gracious words: "For Jacob my servant's sake, and Israel mine elect, I have even called thee by thy name: I have surnamed thee, though thou hast not known me. I am the Lord, and there is none else, and there is no God beside me: I girded thee, though thou hast not known me: that they may know from the rising of the sun, and from the west, that there is none beside me. I am the Lord, and there is none else." In the same chapter, 17th verse, we read: "But Israel shall be saved in the Lord with an everlasting salvation: ye shall not be ashamed nor confounded world without end."

The reader will do well, in connection with the study of these chapters, to read thoughtfully the entire book of Isaiah. There is one thing of which we may be absolutely sure: God has no thought of going into bankruptcy. He is always moving forward. His kingdom is coming. Israel will not only be restored to Palestine—of course, we do not mean that all of the Jews in the world will return to Palestine—but the prophets convince us that Palestine will become the home of restored Israel; not only so, but Israel will accept Christ, will be blessed, and will be made a blessing.

The Death of a Great Good Man.

I read in the public press a few days ago of the sudden death of Dr. J. A. Stucky of Lexington, Ky. He was in his automobile with a friend on his way from Richmond, Ky., to Lexington. The rain was pouring down in torrents making a slick road and also interfering with full view of traffic. It seems that his car skidded and he ran head-on into a large bus. He was killed instantly.

Dr. Stucky was an eye, ear, nose, and throat specialist. He was noted as unusually skillful in this delicate work. He has relieved much pain and suffering. He had just come to the fiftieth anniversary of his wedding, I believe, the very day of his death.

The charm about Dr. Stucky was his fine Christian character and his beautiful spirit of sympathy with suffering humanity. Frequently he went into the mountains of Kentucky and rendered great service to people suffering with eye trouble, persons who could not possibly come to him, but he went about among them, those who were not able to have skilled physicians or to go to hospitals, and gave them treatment free of charge. He sowed his unusual skill beside all waters.

It is a real grief that so fine a man, with a life so useful, with a spirit so beautiful and kind, should suddenly be crushed to death, leave his family in unutterable grief and the entire community bowed with sorrow over the loss of so fine a Christian gentleman. Peace to his memory. H. C. MORRISON.

Sarah A. Schroeder Beard.

Widow of the late Dr. J. M. Beard, was called home to be with her Savior whom she loved since childhood. The call came at midnight, Thursday, April 23, 1931. Sister Beard was born Dec. 8, 1859, and reared in a godly home by godly parents. She was converted in early childhood and remained faithful until God called her. She had been an invalid for many years, but her pen was ever ready to tell about her Lord and Savior, as scores of her friends can attest—as she was a faithful correspondent. She was united in marriage by Bishop Linus Parker to Dr. Jas. M. Beard in Moreau St. M. E. C., South, Dec. 15, 1882. Loving friends and relatives waited on her in her last hours.

It was my privilege to know Mrs. Beard for many years. She was a most excellent woman. Dr. Beard, her husband, was a great preacher of full salvation. He was sometime editor of a most excellent religious journal called "The Pentecostal Age." It was once my good fortune to assist him in a revival meeting when he was pastor of a Methodist Church in New Orleans.

Mrs. Beard was a woman of education, refinement and a most devout Christian. She was converted early in life, and later sought and obtained the gracious experience of entire sanctification. Her life and testimony were in beautiful harmony with the great old Wesleyan doctrine of perfect love. I would not wish to meet a more consistent, calm, courageous, saintly woman than Mrs. Beard. She has gone up to a host of beloved friends who have preceded her to Paradise. There is no question as to where she is now. Dr. Beard, her husband, was a man of unusual intelligence, calm, courageous and consecrated. He lived a holy life and witnessed to the power of Christ to save and cleanse from all sin. To know these people was to admire and love them. The memory of them is a means of grace to those who were most closely associated with them in life.

A Most Worthy Cause.

I have recently received a letter from Rev. H. H. Jones, a worthy and faithful Methodist preacher, member of the Louisville Conference, M. E. Church, South. His headquarters are in Hopkinsville, Ky. He is now giving his time and service among the poor miners in a region of Kentucky where strikes, shutting down of mines, and a general financial depression has brought dire distress to many poor families.

I learn from his letter that Brother Jones is deeply moved over the sufferings of these unfortunate people and is giving all of his energies to assist them, distributing clothing, food, and best of all, seeking to lead these unfortunate people to Christ. The Lord is blessing his work.

He has gotten hold of a quantity of excellent honey, and is advertising this honey in THE HERALD, at five pounds for $1.25, the money to be used for the suffering miners. I have ordered five pounds of this honey for my own use. Honey is a very healthy sweet, being recommended by many physicians in place of sugar. I suggest that you send the price of $1.25 to Rev. H. H. Jones, Hopkinsville, Ky.

FULLNESS OF THE BLESSING.

MRS. H. C. MORRISON.

MUCH of the misunderstanding about holiness or, entire sanctification, as it is frequently called, is that this blessed doctrine is not made clear to those who would be interested if it were put before them in a plain, practical way. One cannot read Wesley's Plain Account of Christian Perfection without getting a most comprehensive understanding of this blessed experience.

I was one of those who had all sorts of perverted ideas of what sanctification was, and while I did not oppose it, I simply could not think of it as possible in this world of sin and infirmity. I had the idea that Christian Perfection made one absolutely perfect, even as God is perfect; but I learned that I was to be perfect in my sphere of life, even as God was perfect in his great realm of activity; that infirmities are not sins, but simply the bent of our perverted natures as the result of the fall. Sin is the wilful transgression of the law, while our infirmities are to be classed with weaknesses incidental to humanity's inheritance from the fall.

I was reading a most helpful article on this line recently, and as it is so very clear and instructive, I am incorporating it in this article, hoping it may be of real help to those who may be sincerely seeking the light on this blessed, but neglected subject. The article is from A. Lowrey, one of the early advocates of this doctrine. It is as follows:

WHAT IS HOLINESS.

Holiness is subtraction and addition: it takes from and adds to. It consists in being emptied and filled—emptied of sin, and filled with God. And this double working is accomplished by taking Christ in his twofold office of Saviour and Life. Our Lord is constantly presented to us in the Gospel under these two aspects; first, as a Saviour, second, as a Life—a Saviour to rescue and cleanse, a Life to quicken and energize.

The word Saviour means that person or power that takes away some evil, or delivers from some impurity. Life denotes the virtue that imparts something—some new and essential good. Both works are comprised in holiness. It is a complete and entire change of state: death goes out and life comes. The sinful life becomes extinct; the Christ-life takes its place, and, diffusing like sap in a tree, vitalizes the whole being. It is not limited, therefore, to a mere rescue from destruction, as a brand is rescued from being consumed to ashes when pulled out of the fire; but a germ of positive life is imparted and "implanted deep within." Like Aaron's rod, it was not enough to lay it away nicely, clean and dry, in the tabernacle with the other eleven rods: it had to vindicate its superiority by "budding, blooming blossoms, and yielding almonds." So a seed of the Christ-life must be lodged in the purified soul in order to change its dead purity into thrift and fruitfulness.

The death of Christ provides for salvation; the Life of Christ actually saves. Accordingly, we read, "If we were reconciled to God by the death of his Son, much more, being reconciled, we shall be saved by his life." (Rom. 5:10). And such was the experience of Paul: first, he was crucified with Christ; second, he lived, and yet not he, but Christ lived in him. He lived a derived life by faith, and by it was saved continually. There is no more life in being cleansed from sin than there is of manufacture of fabrics in washing a garment. Life is infused from a Divine source when the death to sin takes place. Hence we are commanded, at one and the same time, "to reckon ourselves dead indeed unto sin and alive unto God."

Reader, you must die to live. Be empty that you may be full, and poor that you may be rich. "Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven."

THE PERSONALITY AND DEITY OF THE HOLY SPIRIT.

ways to recall to such minds the truth that any type of doctrine which magnifies the person and work of the Father, or of the Son, or of the Holy Spirit, at the expense of any one of the three is to that extent unscriptural and particularly lacking in the breadth and plentitude and balance of genuine Christian teaching. When, therefore, the Commission, appointed to prepare the Hymnal of 1878, requested me to contribute an original hymn for that collection, I was no doubt somewhat influenced in my choice of theme and in its mode of treatment by the anxiety I had felt to prevent our preachers and people from being carried away by an alien system of teaching, which, while it was an immense advance on the teaching of Calvin, was yet well nigh silent as to the possibilities and the privileges of redeemed men living under the present all-consummating dispensation of the Spirit."

So he wrote:

I worship thee, O Holy Ghost, I love to worship thee;
My risen Lord for aye were lost but for thy company.
I worship thee, O Holy Ghost, I love to worship thee.
I grieved thee long; alas, thou knowest it grieves me bitterly.
I worship thee, O Holy Ghost; I love to worship thee;
My patient love, at what a cost, at last it conquered me!
I worship thee, O Holy Ghost; I love to worship thee;
With thee each day is Pentecost, each night Nativity.

Believing that a Divinely-called, wholly-sanctified, well-equipped, Spirit-filled ministry is one of the greatest needs of our times, and for all time to come, I am glad to make a donation for the upbuilding of the Asbury Theological Seminary at Wilmore, Ky.

TO BE For this great work, I promise to give $..... per year for five years, first installment due September 1, 1931. I will join all who are helping in this good work in prayer for the blessing of the Lord to rest upon it.

ADDRESS .....

In conclusion, let me say it is my profound conviction that the great need, in fact the greatest need, of the church today is a powerful baptism with the Holy Spirit, purging, sanctifying, and empowering the Protestant church of this nation for the tremendous task which confronts us, a task that involves every interest of mankind and cannot be performed by mere men! To meet the many foes that have combined and arrayed themselves against all the best interests of humanity we must have the indwelling of the Holy Spirit and the strength which he alone supplies or, finally, we must go down in defeat. May God grant to us patience to wait, faith to believe, and willingness to receive him whom God hath sent to cleanse us from all sin and fill us with power.

Graduation Time is Near,

and no matter how many presents a boy or girl receives, we believe it is rare that they appreciate anything more than an attractive Bible. It is a gift, that if properly taken care of, will last almost a lifetime, serving as "a lamp unto the feet and a light unto the pathway."

Just at this time we have a limited number of copies of one of the lightest, thinnest, most convenient sized Bibles for a young person it has been our privilege to obtain. The size is about 4¾x7 inches, a fraction over ½ inch thick, bound in genuine leather, overlapping edges, silk sewed, India paper, a clear, readable type, chapter numbers in figures, references, maps, red under gold edges, and has the nonbreakable back feature. It also has the silk marker. Net price was $4.25. The Pentecostal Publishing Company is closing out these copies at a special price of $2.40 each. Don't miss the opportunity of being a lifetime blessing to some boy or girl.

It is impossible to read the story of the first Advent, and to believe in it, and to follow the history of the centuries that have followed upon that Advent, without feeling in one's deepest heart that something more is needed. "Christ . . . shall appear a second time." There is no escape from the simple meaning of these words. This statement is not peculiar to the letter from which it is taken. It is the teaching of the whole New Testament.—G. Campbell Morgan.

IT IS UNFAIR

for a Sunday school teacher or pupil to go to Sunday school with an unprepared lesson. In this busy age both the teacher and pupil need something brief and to the point,—something that stresses and brings out the richest spiritual thoughts on the lesson.

All this may be had in Arnold's Commentary. In this book will be found the very best helps for the Adult Class, the Young People, the Primary and the Beginner.

We have a few copies left and are closing them out at 75c per copy, postpaid. Don't fail to avail yourself of this opportunity to secure a book that will give you spiritual help every week in the year, and then when the year is finished, it is an attractive volume to place in your library for future reference. Send coin, money order, check, or if more convenient, stamps, to the Pentecostal Publishing Company, Louisville, Ky., and a copy will be mailed you at once. We have only a limited number to offer at this price.

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS

THE GARDEN OF DELIGHT.

Mrs. Geneva Mendenhall.

As the man whom God had created watched and tended the animals of the earth he had everything that he needed, for he lived in the most beautiful garden the world has ever known. All the fruits of the world grew there and the earth was covered with flowers and food. Every day the warm winds blew, and clouds drifted across the azure sky. The bright sun shone down on glistening waterfalls and sparkling streams for the garden in which God set man was in a place where four rivers met.

The man was God's greatest work and he called him Adam, meaning earth-born. Adam gave each of the animals its name.

But Adam was not happy in this wonderful garden for he was alone. So while Adam slept, God took a rib from his side and fashioned from it a woman for a help and companion to Adam. When Adam saw the woman he was very happy and he called her Eve, a word which means Life. So Adam and Eve lived contentedly in the lovely garden that God had given to them, caring for the birds and animals. And in the evenings God came to the garden to walk and talk with his children who lived there and since they knew nothing of wickedness nor evil, all was peace and joy.

In order to teach his children that they were to obey his commands God said, "You may eat the fruit of all the trees in the garden except one. In the middle of the garden grows a tree, with fruit upon it which you must not eat and you must not touch. If you eat of the fruit on that tree, you shall die."

Note.—The word Eden itself means plain. Some think that the Garden of the Plain was in the mountains of Belurtag, in Central Asia, where this chain unites with the Himalayas toward the Plateau of Painer. From the mountains mass of which the plateau is the center, four great rivers issue, flowing in diverse directions, corresponding to the four rivers described in Genesis.

Dear Aunt Bettie: As I haven't seen many letters from Georgia, I thought I would write. I'm a freshman at Russell High School. I am a brunette, fair complexion, brown eyes, brown hair, wavy. I go to the Nazarene Church. Bro. Hudson is our pastor. We sure do like him. I go to Sunday school every Sunday. I know that Jesus saves and sanctifies me, and he keeps me every day. I want to always do his will. I want the prayers of all the cousins that I may live the life that he would have me live. It is very hard for young people to live right these days, for there are so many things that are a temptation, but I can say that I'm fourteen years old and have never been inside a moving picture show. I hope this letter will be some good to some one, and show them that the young people do not have to go to the worldly amusements. I would like for some boys and girls about my age to write me. I will answer all received.

Hulda V. Harvey.
East Point, Ga.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a little Kentucky girl join your happy band of boys and girls? Father takes The Herald and I enjoy reading page ten. I am nine years old, have red hair, blue eyes, fair complexion, and weigh 56 pounds. Who can guess my middle name? It begins with L and ends with S, and has four letters in it. The one that guesses it I will write to them. My birthday is June 2. Have I a twin? If so, please write to me.

Esther C. Skaggs.
Grayson Springs, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I have read The Herald ever since I could read. Grandmother takes it. Mother is dead and grandmother is taking care of me. I am five feet, six inches tall. I have brown hair, brown eyes, light complexion.

I am thirteen years old and am in the sixth grade. My birthday is May 21. Who is my twin? I am going to answer the questions that Evangeline wrote in The Herald. Noah was the father of Shem. Lot's wife was turned to a pillar of salt. Ruth was Naomi's daughter-in-law. Samuel lived with Eli, the Priest. God made light on the fourth day. Genesis first chapter, nineteenth verse. Aunt Bettie, please pray for me. I belong to the M. P. Church.

Effie Louise Williams.
Colfax, La.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Could you scoot over and let another Kentucky girl join your jolly band of boys and girls? I'm only a farm girl; live on a farm of one hundred and sixty acres. I enjoy farm life fine. My favorite sports are horseback riding and playing basket ball. I belong to the Missionary Baptist Church at Oak Forest. My birthday is January 9. I was eighteen my last birthday. I have blue eyes, black hair and am about five feet, three inches, and weigh 118 pounds. I go to Mt. Victory High School and enjoy my school work. I would be glad for any of the boys and girls to write me. Would be glad for a snapshot of those who write to me.

Willie B. Carter.
Rt. 3, Alvaton, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let a Virginia girl join your band of happy boys and girls? I am a Christian and love to testify for Jesus. I love to be in good meetings. Near by a holiness school has been started by Rev. E. Wachtel, wife and group of consecrated teachers, who are giving their time and trusting the Lord for money to run the school. The boys and teachers are having prayer meetings and services at several places around. They are doing a good work that is badly needed in this section. Pray for this school and its needs.

Dorothy M. Delt.
Hamilton, Va.

Dear Aunt Bettie: May a little Indiana girl join your happy band of boys and girls? I am eleven years old. My birthday is May 30th, or Memorial Day. Have I a twin? If so, write me. I have dark brown hair and brown eyes and weigh about eighty-seven pounds. I go to school at San Pierre. My teacher is Miss Herretta Daly. I am in the sixth grade. We go to The Friends Church at Wilder, Ind. Our pastor is Rev. Amer Hickman. It is a good church and has a good pastor. I am in the junior class at church. We read chapters and get a meaning from them, too. The one who guesses my middle name I will send a snapshot of myself. It begins with G and ends with A, and has six letters in it. Father takes The Herald. I like to read page ten.

Pearl Meyer.
San Pierre, Ind.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Please move over just a wee bit and let an Indiana girl chat with you and the cousins. I enjoy reading page ten, and "The Gleanings from the Evangelistic Field." My folks take The Herald and think it is a fine Christian paper for every one to read. I have dark blonde hair (long), blue eyes, fair complexion, am five feet, six inches tall and weigh 135 pounds. I was seventeen years young Jan. 30, and am a junior at San Pierre high school. Our school was out April 16. I also have a brother Roy who attended Asbury last year, but was not able to go back this fall. He roomed with Prof. Essig and liked it very well in Kentucky. Last summer Bro. Jack Atha and Bro. Chase McPherson of Asbury held tent meetings in our community for nine weeks. They were on fire for God and lost souls. Bro. Charles and Leonard Cochran, Bro. Essig and wife, Bro. Hillard, Horace Booker, Virgil Priddy and wife, John Paul Pappas, Roy Hotchkiss, and Alex Reid and wife, all of Asbury, have held meetings in our community. I was saved Dec. 31, 1926, when Bro. Hotchkiss, Bro. Pappas and Alex Reid held revival meetings at Tefft, Ind. May the Lord richly bless them in their work wherever they are. I am so glad that there still are a faithful few who are willing to go out and preach the gospel. I hope all the cousins that don't know Jesus as their Saviour will open wide their hearts' door and let him come in, for he says, "Behold, now is the accepted time; now is the day of salvation." Tomorrow may be too late. Why not come to him now, while he is pleading for you? My only desire is to be true to the Lord, and after I've finished my school I intend to go and prepare myself for the work into which the Lord has wonderfully called me. I want to be a soul winner for Jesus, to go and tell those still out in sin of Jesus and his sweet love for us. It is sad to think when you read missionary stories how it is in foreign lands, how many privileges we have here in our land. Oh, accept him now, there are many with outstretched hands. Won't you go and tell them the sweet story of this blessed Jesus. All Christians who read this please pray for me that I might stand true to Jesus. The first letter I get from anyone who reads this I'll send a snapshot of myself. May the Lord most wonderfully bless you all.

Elsie Meyer.
San Pierre, Ind.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you move over a little and let a Kentucky girl join your happy band of boys and girls? I live on a farm but I don't like farming life as well as I do the city life. I will be fourteen July 31. I am four feet, eleven inches tall. I weigh eighty-two pounds, and have brown hair and brown eyes. I am promoted to the seventh grade at school. Our school was out Jan. 23. My teacher was Miss Hazel Lambert. She sure is a fine teacher. I am a Christian, I belong to the Church of the Nazarene. Our pastor is Rev. H. H. Williams. I think he is a fine preacher. F. Evelyn Gibson, I guess your first name to be Frances. Am I right? If so, please remember what you said. I would like for any of the boys and girls to write to me. I will answer any letter I receive. As this is my first letter, I would like to see it in print.

Mary Josephine Carver.
Rt. 3, Alvaton, Ky.

Dear Aunt Bettie. Will you let a North Carolina girl come in? I am about frozen. I am ten years old, have dark hair, brown eyes, dark complexion and am in the fifth grade. My aunt takes The Herald. What is my middle name? It starts with J and ends with E, it has four letters. As this is my first letter I would like to see it in print. Please write, I will answer.

Claudia J. Varner.
Box 95, Roxboro, N. C.

Dear Aunt Bettie: May a little Nicholasville girl join your happy band of boys and girls? My Grannie takes The Herald and I like to read page ten. I go to Chrisman Mill school. I am in the fifth grade. I go to Sunday school every Sunday I can. I guess Mary M. Mack's middle name to be Margaret. Margie S. Hall, I guess yours to be Sue. Epsie L. Raney to be Lou. Sudie M. Taylor, I guess yours to be Mae. If I am right, write to me. Now guess my first and middle name. My first name begins with M and ends with Y. My middle name begins with R and ends with H. Both have four letters in them. I have two brothers and one sister, Wendell, Ray, and Geneva. My Grannie is eighty-two years old. I am eleven years old. Do any of you cousins take the Sparkling Waters? I do. They have fine reading in them. Grannie takes God's Revivalist. It has children's page on it too. I live on a farm of 106 acres of land. I like country life. I live about one-fourth of a mile from the Kentucky River. I am not a Christian but want all of you cousins to pray for me. Love to Aunt Bettie and cousins.

M. R. House.

Dear Aunt Bettie: May a little Nicholasville girl join your happy band of boys and girls? I am seven years old. I am in the first grade at school. I go to Sunday school every Sunday I can. I go to Mt. Lebanon. I like to go. Bro. Parker has had a revival at our church. There has been

Baccalaureate and Convocation Sermons

by E. V. ZOLLARS

The notable career of President Zollars in the educational world, his thorough scholarship and his keen enthusiasm for his work, made him in constant demand for convocation sermons and educational addresses. In this volume he has gathered together the cream of over thirty years of Commencement addresses. It is an indispensable aid to speakers at annual exercises of schools, academies, colleges, seminaries and universities. "These sermon addresses are models of clear sense and high ideals," said Hugh McLellan.

Dear Aunt Bettie: May I join in your band of girls and boys? I am eleven years old. I have golden hair and blue eyes. This is my first letter to The Herald. I enjoy reading The Herald, especially page ten. I was converted Feb. 21, 1931. I go to Sunday school every Sunday. My Sunday school teacher is Mrs. Naomi Pittsenberger. I will not have you guessing my middle name. It is Anna Mae Bell Pittsenberger. I am in the seventh grade.

Anna Mae B. Pittsenberger.
Leivasy, W. Va.

Dear Aunt Bettie: I want to tell you how I enjoy reading The Pentecostal paper. I am shut up from the Word of God and I can read a good sermon every week, and you don't know how good it makes me feel to read them. It is food for my soul. I have the Holy Ghost and I want to do something for God. I am by myself and have no one to help me. Do you think I could start a prayer meeting and do any good with no one to help me? I feel like God wants me to do it. I want to do his dear will and grow stronger in his divine wisdom. I want to step out for him. I long to win souls to God. If you can tell me anything to help me start his work, I will be glad to do everything to get his blessed word to the sinful men and women of this place. Not a saved man or woman can you find here.

Your loving sister,
Mrs. A. J. Lathan.

Dear Aunt Bettie: Will you let me join your happy band of boys and girls? This is my first letter and hope to see it in print. I am thirteen years old and in the fifth grade. I am fifty-two inches tall and weigh fifty-two pounds. I have four sisters and four brothers and two sisters gone to be with Jesus. My father died Jan. 13, 1931. I go to Sunday school every Sunday. Some one write to me, I will write to any one who will write to me. With much love to everyone.

FALLEN ASLEEP

REV. A. W. ORWIG.

Rev. Aaron William Orwig was born in New Berlin, Pa., April 15, 1838, and ended his earthly life in his home in Los Angeles, Calif., on Good Friday, April 3, 1931, at the age of 93 years, less 12 days. He was the last remaining son of Rev. W. W. Orwig, Editor, Publisher, Author and Bishop, whose name is writ large in the early history of our church, and whose career covered more than half a century of leadership and pioneering in missions and education.

When he was 18 years of age the subject of this biography was soundly converted in Cleveland, Ohio, whither the family had moved with the transfer of the Publishing House from New Berlin to Cleveland. He united with the church at that time. Two years later, at the age of 20, he began to write articles for the "Evangelical Messenger." This was but natural, since, with his father as Editor of the "Christliche Botschafter," and afterwards also as Publisher, Brother Orwig spent his adolescent years in the atmosphere of the Publishing House, learned the printer's trade and became an expert compositor. It should be added here that he continued his contributions to the "Evangelical Messenger" and other church periodicals almost without interruption to the time of his death, an unprecedented period of about three-quarters of a century.

In 1871 he was chosen assistant Editor of the "Evangelical Messenger," a position for which he was well adapted by training and taste. But a year later, in 1872, he responded to the call of God and the church, and entered the ministry in the Ohio Conference, where he served a number of charges most acceptably. He was privileged to report conversions and accessions to the church on every charge he served. His pastoral preaching was soundly Evangelical, deeply spiritual, and in fine literary style. He was an evangelistic pastor, and also constantly aimed very definitely to lead his people to the experience of entire sanctification and Christian perfection. It was his interest in this doctrine and experience, which, in those decades, was much stressed in our church that led Brother Orwig to become one of the founders and promoters of the "Living Epistle," a monthly holiness magazine, which, begun as a private enterprise, afterward was adopted officially by the General Conference, and was the only magazine devoted to this subject, published officially by any denomination. In this venture he was associated with Bishop Reuben Yeakel, Rev. Elisha A. Hoffman, Rev. S. L. Wiest and others. For a while he was editor.

In 1884 he came back to the Publishing House in Cleveland, and devoted himself more fully to literary work in various capacities, yet never failing to respond to invitations to preach the gospel in our own and other churches whenever possible. His casual sermons were always edifying, helpful and instructive. To preach Christ and him crucified was always one of Brother Orwig's chief joys. But he also wielded a facile and fertile pen. Besides writing frequent contributions to our English church press, he wrote much for some ten or twelve papers of other denominations, which always welcomed the products of his pen, for they were well written, meaty and pertinent.

Besides, he became deeply interested in writing, publishing and distributing tracts. He literally published thousands of them, tracts for Christians, appeals to the unconverted, etc., and distributed them literally by the tens of thousands at his own expense. Indeed, he was busy in this work practically to the day of his death, despite growing feebleness of body. Only a few months ago he wrote to me that it seemed this was the one way in which he could still serve the Master and the kingdom,—with his pen. For, though his body grew exceedingly feeble, his mind remained vigorous to the end and his spiritual fervor never cooled. Years ago he also compiled and published a column entitled "All Aboard," which was full of incidents illustrating life as a journey.

On July 27, 1863, Brother Orwig was married to Miss Kate Hutchings in Cleveland, Ohio. To this happy union, lasting forty years, three precious daughters were born. In 1903 Mrs. Orwig, devoted wife and mother, passed to her reward. Then in July, 1905, Brother Orwig entered into holy wedlock with Mrs. Rebecca King, widow of a prominent Methodist minister, the undersigned officiating at the wedding ceremony. She proved herself a loyal and devoted wife and congenial companion until she, too, was taken from his side only about three months before his own end came. Her passing was a severe blow to the aged man, from which he never fully rallied.

Those who specially mourn Brother Orwig's final demise are two daughters, Mrs. Horace G. Hamilton of San Francisco, Calif., and Mrs. P. A. Conolly, of Cleveland, O.—the eldest daughter, Florence, having preceded him in death—three grandchildren, four great-grandchildren and a sister, widow of the late Rev. S. L. Wiest, of Harrisburg, Pa.

Funeral services were held in First Church, Los Angeles, the pastor, Rev. S. E. Schrader, in charge, who read the Scripture lesson. Rev. H. O. Lorenz offered prayer, Rev. A. J. Boelter, presiding elder, preached the sermon, taking as a text Rev. 14:13: "That they may rest from their labors." Rev. Geo. Husser, friend of many years and once pastor of the deceased, read the biography. A quartet consisting of the brethren, G. J. Degenkolb, G. G. Schmid, F. A. Zeller, and H. O. Lorenz, rendered three beautiful songs. The remains were buried in Rosedale Cemetery by the side of those of his recently departed companion. In connection with the reading of the biography Bro. Husser referred to Brother Orwig as a tireless worker, a talented preacher and writer by the grace of God, a consistent, conscientious Christian, modest and unassuming in his manner, but standing courageously and unequivocally by his convictions. He was kindhearted and generous.

It should be added that he was a worthy son of a great father and a saintly mother, a true product of the Evangelical Church, true to her essential traditions, her genius, her spirit and her teachings. He made the best of his opportunity and lived out the full measure of his days. He rests in God.

This biography is written by the undersigned who knew Brother Orwig longest, and at his special request, made years ago. I am indebted to Brother Husser for substantial aid in its preparation.

Bishop S. P. Spreng.

MOTHER GRAY.

Mrs. Julia Hightower Gray was born in Upson county, Ga., Nov. 26, 1845, and passed to her reward Jan. 7, 1931, in San Antonio, Texas. She was the daughter of Rev. Ivy F. and Mrs. Sidney Purifoy Steagall. Her father was an old-fashioned Methodist preacher. Mother Gray was converted at the age of thirteen, and lived a devoted Christian life. She was married to Pleasant Whitefield Gray, Jan. 20, 1866. To this union were born three children. Mrs. Allula Estell Scott is the only survivor of her parents.

About thirty years ago at Cleburn, Texas, under the preaching of Rev. Sam Small, Mother Gray was sanctified wholly, and it was in this blessed experience that she lived and died. She delighted to witness to this experience and usually added, "the Second Blessing, so called, as Wesley used to say." She was a member of Travis Park Methodist Church for a number of years and was always loyal to her church. To her, it was a privilege rare to be able to attend a service there. She was intensive in her religious life, and to her, "Religion was the chief concern of mortals here below," and held first place in her life.

We expect to meet her "just inside the Eastern Gate." God bless and comfort the lonely daughter. Our deepest love and sympathy go to her. A Friend.

The Lord is nigh unto them that are of a broken heart; and saveth such as be of a contrite spirit. Psalm 34:18.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

REV. O. G. MINGLEDORFF, D. D.

Lesson X.—June 7, 1931.

Subject.—Jesus Crucified. Luke 23:33-46.

Golden Text.—He was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities: the chastisement of our peace was upon him; and with his stripes we are healed. Isaiah 53:5.

Time.—Friday, April 7, A. D. 30.

Places.—Calvary and Joseph's Tomb.

Introduction.—The trial of Jesus Christ before the Jews was not only a cruel mockery; but it was unjust according to their own law. In the first place, being subject to the Romans, they had no right whatever to condemn any man to death. We must not forget that the Sanhedrim met and condemned him to death secretly before he was arrested. This was contrary to law which demanded that one accused should be tried face to face with his accusers. Again, Jewish law forbade the trial of one for his life at any hour during the night. They knew all this; and, having determined that he should be killed, they met early the next morning to try to give their hideous mockery some semblance of justice; but they were too early; and, besides, the deed had already been done.

In their miserable tangle they bound Jesus and rushed him to Pontius Pilate for immediate condemnation and speedy execution. When we consider all that took place between Pilate's first trial of Jesus and his crucifixion, we see that the start for the Roman Judgment Hall must have been made at a very early hour. When Pilate announced that he could find nothing against him, Jesus was taken before Herod, being of his jurisdiction, for a second trial which resulted in another acquittal; although Herod and his men of war set him at naught, and abused him with cruel mockings. Then he was returned to Pilate for a third trial; but still nothing could be found against him; although he was condemned to die, was scourged with a Roman Lash, robed in mock royalty, blindfolded, thorn-crowned, beaten with a stick, spit upon, and subjected to the insults of a mob of heathen Roman soldiers who were utter strangers to both mercy and decency. He tried to bear his own cross to the place of crucifixion, but broke down under it, and another was compelled to bear it for him. Many times have I wished that I might have borne that "old rugged cross" for him who bore my sins.

Silence now! We are on Calvary's top. The most solemn hour in all eternity is upon us. Heaven is weeping; hell is laughing. Neither men, devils, nor angels understand the meaning of all this. The heart of the Eternal is breaking. The nails are being driven through his hands and feet. "Father, forgive them; they know not what they do." Did ever such words fall from dying lips? He is dying between earth and sky. The doom of devils is being forever settled beyond the last ray of hope. Angelic security becomes as fixed as the everlasting throne. But look! The entire human race hangs upon that cross. We too are crucified with him, that the body of sin might be destroyed, that henceforth we should not serve sin. The hour is dark; but glory is breaking over the hills.

Comments on the Lesson.

33. Calvary.—There is some doubt as to the place of the crucifixion; but the hill called Calvary from its being in the shape of a human skull, seems to have the best evidence in its favor. Malefactors mean evil-doers without reference to any particular crime. It was fitting that the Savior of sinners should die among dying sinners.

34. Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do.—Was he praying for the Jews who had instigated his death, or for the Roman soldiers who were driving the nails? I rather think it was for the latter. The former had every reason for knowing what they were doing; but the heathen soldiers were but obeying their superior officers, and, perchance, had never had opportunity to find out anything about the one whom they were nailing to the cross. They parted his raiment, and cast lots.—The garments of such as were crucified went to the soldiers who crucified them. As there were more soldiers than garments, they cast lots to see who should fall heir to them. The Psalmist had prophesied about this a thousand years before it occurred.

35. The people.—The common people, the multitude, that had gathered through curiosity, just as a multitude will now gather about a mob that is bent on lynching a criminal. Sun and moon may change; but human nature, never. The rulers.—Not Roman civil rulers, but Jewish church rulers—men of the "cloth." They derided Jesus Christ, and induced the rabble to join in with them in their mockings. He saved others.—Mockery—they did not believe their own words. Let him save himself.—Jesus could not save his life and give it for us. Self-sacrifice is the price we must pay, if we bless others. One cannot give and keep at the same time. Had Jesus come down from the cross, the Jewish rulers would not have believed him to be "the Christ, the chosen of God." When men sink too low they cross the line of ability to believe, the "Dead Line."

36. The soldiers also mocked him.—Poor fallen human nature again. Multitudes will join a mob in its rilldredy without ever knowing why. Offering him vinegar.—According to Oriental custom, narcotic potions were sometimes given to those who were being tortured to death, in order to relieve their misery; but in this case it seems to have been pure mockery. They were adding insult to injury. We may expect Satan to do his worst.

37. This verse needs no comment.

38. THIS IS THE KING OF THE JEWS.—In order that all who were dwelling at Jerusalem at that time might be able to read this superscription that Pilate had placed upon the cross of our Lord, it was written in Greek, and Latin, and Hebrew. Although the meaning is always the same, no two of the four evangelists give it in exactly the same words, showing that they were not copying each other.

39. One of the malefactors.—Matthew makes this charge against both of them. The seeming discrepancy is easily reconciled on the supposition that both of them did rail on him when they were first crucified; but that one of them saw his mistake, and repented. If thou be the Christ, save thyself and us.—Come down from the cross yourself, and take us down, is what he meant. But Jesus Christ had a greater work to do than to save the physical lives of himself and two thieves. He was tasting death for every man; and, if he refused to die, all men would be ruined forever.

40 and 41. These two verses portray genuine repentance. It is not always necessary to confess all one's sins to the public; but they must be confessed to God. You may confess your public sins openly, but take your private sins to your closet. But one must come clear in dealing with God—nothing can be covered.

42. Remember me when thou comest into thy kingdom.—This man seems to be praying almost beyond his understanding; for his prayer indicates a belief in the Deity of Jesus Christ and the immortality of the soul. The Sadducees denied the latter, and nearly all the Jews denied the former. The Holy Ghost was helping this poor penitent sinner; and the light of heaven was breaking upon his soul.

43. Today shalt thou be with me in paradise.—Paradise is a Persian word, and means a large garden, or park. As used in the text it means the abode of the saints who have left the earth. Jesus was going there, and promised to take the dying thief with him. That took the sting out of death for him.

44. The sixth hour.—Twelve o'clock noon. Having been crucified about nine o'clock, Jesus had now been hanging on the cross three hours. There was a darkness over all the earth.—This must have been a supernatural darkness. Some have supposed an eclipse of the sun just at that time; but that is not needed. God made the sun; and he can hide it when he pleases to do so. Until the ninth hour.—Three o'clock in the afternoon.

45. The veil of the temple was rent in the midst.—This was the heavy curtain that hung in front of the Holy of Holies in the temple. When Jesus Christ died on the cross, it was supernaturally split from top to bottom. It had separated common men from the most holy things; but when Jesus died for men, there was no more use for a typical veil; for he opened for us the way into the very heart of God. Thank God, we no longer need some priest to come to God for us; but every man may come for himself. Come on, Beloved, the way is wide open to the mercy seat and the ark of the covenant. It is now our privilege to bask forever in the light of the Shekinah.

46. Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit.—Jesus died as a man dies. Nothing died but the human body. His spirit went out of the body as ours will go at the last breath. But mark you, he died—not pretended to die, as some are now claiming, who wish to deny his resurrection from the tomb of Joseph. Jesus Christ died as certainly and as completely as other men die; and, thank God, he rose from the dead as certainly as he died. Glory to God! His resurrection is the earnest of our own. It has been settled and fixed forever in the heart of the Eternal that we shall live again. Hallelujah forevermore!

The prayer of faith shall save the sick and the Lord shall raise him up. James 5:15.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Evangelist T. E. Mosley, of Wilmore, Ky., has some open dates for spring and summer. He will be glad to help pastors in revivals, or preach in camp meetings. Call Brother Mosley and he will be a blessing to your people.

June 7 is Home Coming Day at the Lighthouse Mission, 1226 Tower Grove Ave., St. Louis, Mo. There will be all-day services beginning at 7:30 A. M. All members and others who worship here are cordially invited to attend; if unable to be present, we should be glad to have you send us a few lines of testimony to be read that day. Bring your lunch, and come to spend the day. Rev. Jim Green is pastor of Lighthouse Mission.

Rev. John Norberry, of Camden, N. J., will begin a series of revival services and holiness meetings in the Methodist Episcopal Church, Tyrone, N. Y., May 20, continuing over two Sundays. Let the old-time Methodists and all other holiness folk in adjoining communities rally to these special services and help to push the battle. These meetings will be held for the saving and sanctifying of precious souls. Rev. Robert K. Smith is pastor of this church.

There will be a revival in the E. H. Methodist Church, 27th and Lincoln St. Camden, N. J., June 14 to 28. Rev. George B. Kulp, of Battle Creek, Mich., is the evangelist. All are invited to attend this feast, and pray that God shall have his own way. Rev. L. C. Hiles is pastor of this church.

Rev. L. C. Hiles: "I wish to recommend Charles E. Jackson as an exceptionally good evangelistic Trum-peter and Cornetist. He is deeply spiritual and we believe will be a blessing to any people who may secure his services. Those desiring to communicate with him may address him, 3421 Merriel St., Camden, N. J."

Rev. Ishmael Ezell, Madisonville, Ky., is available for meetings. He is a Southern Methodist, and his terms are freewill offering and entertainment.

"I shall have part of the time this summer taken up in revival work, but have other time that I could give to pastors desiring help in meetings. My terms are freewill offering and entertainment. Address me, Roscoe R. Hollis, A.B., E. Th.B., Chicago Evangelistic Institute, 1754 Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill."

Mrs. Cleve McCutchen, Milltown, Ind., requests that any one having clothing that they can give her, please to send it to the above address. She has three children, girls 8 and 14, and boy 10.

Rev. E. O. Clark: "I am a retired Methodist preacher. Have been in a wheel chair for more than 13 years, but not lost out entirely. I would go anywhere as an evangelist where the full gospel was wanted to be preached. I ask no remuneration except the expenses of myself and companion. I have been holding meetings in our home for the past eight months, and have witnessed conversions, sanctifications and healings. I have from 100 to 150 come to my house each month and I tell them of Jesus and give them tracts. I am well and hearty, except for weak muscles in my limbs. You see I am not a modernist. My address is 140 West King St., Decatur, Ill."

Rev. J. B. McBride: "I have been busy winning souls for Christ. My last meetings were El Centro and Los Angeles, Cal. I closed at Montebello, Cal., May 17. I am available for meetings through July, and will be glad to correspond with those desiring my services. I can be reached at my home address, 1234 N. Mentor Ave., Pasadena, Cal., or according to my slate in this paper."

The Burnett Gospel Singers would like to announce (in connection with their slate) that they can arrange to assist any church and pastor with a holiness meeting anywhere near towns mentioned if they will write Rev. W. Evans Burnett, Beaumont, Texas, at once regarding available date.

The Lord stirred the town of Union, Miss., during the meeting held there for the First Presbyterian Church, April 22 to May 3, by Guy W. Green, layman of Kansas City, Mo. Crowds were so large that 150 extra chairs were provided nightly, and, even then, scores of persons were turned away from some services. On the first Sunday of the meeting Mr. Green taught in the auditorium of the Methodist Church a Union Bible class of 500 persons, which filled every crevice of the church, even the choir loft being packed by late comers. Both the Methodist and Baptist churches co-operated with the Presbyterians in their effort. The music was conducted by Rev. J. L. Carter of the Methodist Church. On the closing Sunday of the meeting the Presbyterian Church received 12 new members, nine of whom came by confession of faith. The Methodist Church also received 12 members, most of whom came by confession.

JAMESTOWN HOLINESS CAMP MEETING,

Beulah Park, Jamestown, N. D.
June 11-21, 1931.

Twenty-seventh Annual Session, held under the auspices of the Beulah Camp Meeting Association.

Rev. Paul Rees, of Detroit, Mich., our Evangelist, is a new man to the Jamestown Camp, but from the reports of those who have had the privilege of hearing him, we judge that the attendants of the 1931 camp meeting have a treat in store for them which none of us will want to miss. Bro. Rees, though young in years, has already gained the reputation of being one of the outstanding preachers and spiritual leaders of America.

Brother and Sister Lillenas and their daughter, Evangeline, will have charge of the music of the camp meeting, and will assist in the preaching. This consecrated family needs no introduction to our camp meeting crowd, as they were with us in 1929 and did such splendid work and were so blessed of God in their ministrations at the camp, that everyone will be glad to hear of their return.

The Junior camp meeting, consisting of the children attending the camp meeting, will hold two services a day in the children's tabernacle. This department will be in charge of Miss Esther Meier, who, for the past three years, has been a teacher in Jamestown Holiness Academy. Miss Meier is a deeply spiritual young lady who is especially equipped by nature and education as an efficient worker with children and young people. We are expecting a large and enthusiastic Junior camp meeting this year, and trust that all parents will make a special effort to have their children here to enjoy these services and be spiritually profited by them.

Young People's Bible Conference.

The first two days, Thursday the 11th and Friday the 12th will be given to The Young People's Bible Conference, under the auspices of the Jamestown chapter of "The Young People's Gospel League." During these two days the young people of North Dakota and surrounding states are invited to be with us as guests of "The Beulah Camp Meeting Association." All who attend will be expected to register and pay a registration fee of $1.00 which will be the only expense, as the Association will furnish free meals and lodging to all in attendance. Proper chaperonage will be provided so parents may feel that their young people will be under the right influence while attending the Conference. The Committee is working on a program for the Bible Conference which we feel sure will be inspiring and helpful to all who attend. The program will consist of inspiring singing, devotional services, and several addresses from some of the outstanding pastors and Christian workers of the northwest.

If you want to be sure of a cottage or tent you had better send in your order in advance and have a reservation made. Send in your order to Rev. H. N. Haas, Supt., of grounds, Jamestown, N. D., or to A. M. Wiley, Chairman of the Committee, Jamestown, N. D. Get your order in early as we are expecting a large attendance.

Free Tents to Pastors.

The Committee has decided to furnish tents and equipment, rent free, to pastors and accredited evangelists and families who desire to attend the camp meeting, provided they notify the camp manager in advance.

"PAUL'S SUPERLATIVE."

I have just read your volume of sermons entitled "Paul's Superlative and Other Sermons" with increasing interest and real benefit. You have treated some important and basal doctrines with consummate skill. To many readers these sermons will prove a spiritual tonic. The book is timely and helpful and merits a wide circulation, which I sincerely hope it will receive.

Cordially yours,

C. M. Thompson,
Executive Sec., Gen. Asso. of Baptists in Kentucky.
