JOHN WESLEY'S THEOLOGY TODAY
2 or 3 Credit Hours (Please note the respective assignments)
Larry Wood, Professor

Please inform the professor if you are receiving three credit hours.

Course Description

This course focuses upon the distinct theological contributions of John Wesley to the larger Christian tradition. It integrates theology and the practice of ministry by showing the impact of Wesley's theology on his ministry and indicating the relevance of the Wesleyan model for the contemporary church. Prerequisite: ST501 or DO501

Learning Goals

Upon completion of this course, the student will have an understanding of:

1. Wesley's theology within the spectrum of catholic Christianity;
2. The distinctive beliefs of Wesley's doctrinal thinking;
3. Wesley's emphasis on the significance of doctrine for the Christian life;
4. Wesley's methodical use of the Bible, reason, experience, and tradition as norms for doctrinal formulation;
5. Wesley's concept of Christian perfection as the focus of faith and practice;
6. The role of John Fletcher as Wesley's designated successor and interpreter.
7. The relevant aspects of Wesley's thinking for today.

Texts and Readings Assignments

1. Kenneth Cain Kinghorn, John Wesley and Christian Beliefs, The Standard Sermons in Modern English, Volume 1, Sermons 1-20 (Abingdon Press, 2002). Dr. Kinghorn has updated the 18th century idioms and phrases in the sermons of John Wesley. This is not a paraphrased version of Wesley's sermons, but a transcription of eighteenth-century English for contemporary readers. This transcription helps one to understand Wesley's precise meanings. This work comes in three volumes, including all of the standard sermons of John Wesley, and students are encouraged to buy all three volumes for their personal use and reference. As pastors, you will find that this contemporary transcription of Wesley's sermons will help lay people to have easier access to Wesley's ideas. For scholarly use, students should employ the original sermons as contained in Albert C. Outler and Richard P. Heitzenrater, John Wesley's Sermons: An Anthology (Nashville: Abingdon Press, 1991). This work is now available on CD from Abingdon Press.
2. Read these additional sermons: "The Scripture Way of Salvation," "Catholic Spirit," "On Patience," "Of the Church," "On Zeal," "The More Excellent Way," "The Danger of Riches," "The Mystery of Iniquity," "On Perfection," "On Faith," and "The General Spread of the Gospel." Each of these sermons is based on the Thomas Jackson edition and can be downloaded from the internet. For scholarly citations, you should refer to Outler's critical edition of these sermons, which are not available online but are now available on CD from Abingdon.

Here are the websites for the Jackson edition:

3. L. Wood, The Meaning of Pentecost in Early Methodism, Rediscovering John Fletcher As Wesley's Vindicator and Designated Successor (Lanham, MD: Scarecrow Press, 2002). [Winner of the Smith-Wynkoop 2003 Book of the Year Award presented by the Wesleyan Theological Society].
4. Lyon Hynson, Through Faith to Understanding (Emeth Press, 2005). Required Collateral Reading. When the Board of Ordained Ministry in Nashville, TN, set up the denominational requirements for this course in consultation with us, they were very concerned that we would not just teach Wesley's theology in a historical perspective. Rather, they wanted it to be related to today. This book by Hynson (a seasoned Wesley scholar and who also taught here at Asbury Theological Seminary) provides contemporary reflection on Wesley's theology.
5. For those are taking 3 credit hours, read Ken Collins, John Wesley: A Theological Journey (Abingdon Press, 2003) as required collateral reading.

This is the critical edition of Wesley's writings, which scholars now use. However, only Jackson's edition of Wesley's works, The Works of John Wesley, ed. Thomas Jackson, 14 vols (London: Wesleyan Conference Office, 1872; reprinted Grand Rapids: Baker Book House, 1978), is available on the Internet.

Grades

Each student will contract for the grade desired in this class.

1. A grade of "C" will include:
 - ✚ Reading the assigned sermons of Wesley.
 - ✚ Read The Meaning of Pentecost in Early Methodism, Rediscovering John Fletcher as Wesley's Vindicator and Designated Successor, Preface xii-xx, 1-222 (the remaining chapters of the book are used in DO670).
 - ✚ Participating faithfully each week in the interactive sessions.
 - ✚ Required Collateral Reading.

- Each student will comment on two answers that are posted in the "weekly interactive discussion" folder. You may choose which parts of the answers you wish to reply to. These comments should be approximately 150 words each and are due by Saturday midnight (ET) and should be posted in the "weekly interactive discussions" folder. Please choose two different persons each week instead of commenting on the answers given by the same person two weeks in a row. It is highly recommended that you try to READ as many other replies as possible, although you are only required to reply to two members of the class each week.
- I will also make comments each week on at least two students' answers. If you have specific questions for me, you can send those to me in the office folder, especially if you wish your questions or comments to be confidential. Be sure to read my replies to the various members of the class, even though they may not be addressed to you directly. I monitor the history of email in order to insure that everyone is participating faithfully.

Please do not work ahead of each week, except in rare situations when it is necessary.

- I believe you will enjoy this exchange of ideas as we get to know each other while at the same time getting to know John Wesley. These assignments will often connect us with other significant persons in the life of John Wesley, including people from the earliest times in Church history as well as his contemporaries.
- I hope your introduction to these key theological leaders will make you feel personally connected to them as well as make you feel acquainted with John Wesley himself.
- Think of it this way. Each one of us is getting acquainted with one another by transcending the ordinary means of time and space. Asynchronicity means that we are not confined to one place at a certain time in order to communicate with each other as a result of the internet.
- Likewise we can transcend the limits of our present time/space and transport ourselves imaginatively into the past lives of those who continue to be present with us by their communications which has been preserved in writing. They also continue to shape us because of the relationships which they formed with others, who in turn influenced and shaped the lives of each succeeding generation.
- In a memorial sermon for John Wesley, one of his preachers (Joseph Benson) preached a sermon at the annual conference held in Manchester on July 26, 1791, on the subject, "He being dead yet speaketh." If we listen well, we may hear some of these voices from the past who influenced John Wesley. We may also hear John Wesley speak to us today through the heritage that is ours.

- We must be "online" to connect with him. Our conversations together as we interact with Wesley's thoughts will make us feel connected with our Methodist mentor in a remarkably surprising way.

So stay "on line" as we connect with the past and bring it into the present. After all, the title of this course is "John Wesley's Theology Today"!

Wesley's Sermons

Wesley's sermons were intended to shape the beliefs of his preachers. It was typical of the Anglican tradition for theology to focus on liturgical issues in contrast to the Lutheran and Calvinist traditions, which specialized in writing pure doctrine and ethical treatises. With his Anglican background it was only natural that Wesley's theology found its primary expression in sermons rather than in formal, academic treatises. As British theologian and John Wesley scholar, John Lawson, once remarked to me in a personal conversation, "John Wesley did not write a systematic theology because he was British, and British scholars do not generally write textbooks in formal, systematic theology."

Wesley's father had at first discouraged him from taking holy orders in favor of becoming a critical scholar with an academic career, but he acted upon the advice of his mother who counseled him to pursue "practical divinity" and prepare for "holy orders" immediately. Most Americans think of "practical" as the opposite of theoretical and critical thinking, but not so for Anglicanism in Britain. In Wesley's thinking, "practical" included critical theory. Wesley was himself for a time a Greek lecturer, as well as a lecturer in philosophy and logic at Oxford. In his work as an itinerant preacher, on occasions he met with his preachers and taught them philosophy and logic, as his essay, "Advice to the Clergy," reveals, as well as his diary notes of March 4, Wednesday, 1747. Wesley's sermons capture the essence of his theology and reveal in the best sense of the term just what "practical divinity" means. For him, what is "true" is also "scriptural" and "experimental" (see "Preface" to his Sermons).

This class will give serious attention to some of the so-called standard sermons. We will also examine some of his later sermons, which were originally printed in The Arminian Magazine. Wesley's sermons are the primary source of Wesleyan-Arminian beliefs and a model of how to think in a Wesleyan way.

Since Wesley stood within the Anglican tradition and accepted the whole body of classical orthodox teaching, we will exam only those distinctive beliefs that came to characterize Methodism.

We will also see how Wesley's theology was interpreted through the writings of John Fletcher whom Wesley invited to be his "equal partner" as a co-leader of Methodism. Fletcher was known as Wesley's "Vindicator" and "Designated Successor." Fletcher attempted to make Wesley "consistent" with himself (because there were progressive stages of development in his thinking). His five volumes of Checks to Antinomianism were highly influential in Methodism and were placed next to Wesley's own writings as the basis of Methodist theology. Fletcher's importance has largely been lost to contemporary Methodism. This course will show in a realistic fashion how Wesley and Fletcher together shaped the theology of early Methodism. Of particular significance is the fact that Wesley edited, corrected, published, and promoted the writings of Fletcher as one who had "a clear understanding . . . , particularly of the Methodist doctrine and discipline."

Fletcher had the unique privilege of Wesley correcting and approving his interpretation of Wesley's own theology! This is a privilege later interpreters of Wesley could not have. It will be seen that if Fletcher expanded some of the implications of Wesley's theology, he did it with Wesley's blessing.

Because of Fletcher's unique relationship to Wesley and his decisive influence in shaping the theology of early Methodism, his interpretation will be given preference over all later interpreters. A few recent Wesley interpreters have maintained that Fletcher misinterpreted Wesley's theology. The irony of this misconception is that it is like saying Wesley misinterpreted his own ideas since he gave Fletcher his own imprimatur by correcting and publishing Fletcher's Works and by saying that Fletcher properly understood Methodist doctrine and hence should be his successor. It has even been recently claimed that Fletcher enjoyed no special place of privilege with Wesley. This misconception is inexplicable and reflects a contemporary theological bias against Fletcher. Wesley not only invited Fletcher to be his successor, he offered to make Fletcher his "equal partner" and even suggested that he would be willing to put himself under Fletcher's supervision! Whatever few minor criticisms Wesley had of Fletcher's writings occurred only in the manuscript stage when Wesley was correcting them. Fletcher accepted all of Wesley's suggested changes in the manuscript stage of his works. Wesley never had even a minor criticism of Fletcher's published writings, but rather all praise and full recommendation.

CLASS SCHEDULE

Week 1 - Sept 6

"Give me one hundred preachers who fear nothing but sin and desire nothing but God, I care not a straw whether they be clergymen or laymen, such alone will shake the gates of hell and set up the Kingdom of God upon earth" (John Wesley, Letters, VI, 272. Letter to Alexander Mather, [August 6], 1777.

"I am become, I know not how, an honourable man. The scandal of the cross is ceased; and all the kindom, rich and poor, Papists and Protestants, behave with courtesy [toward me], nay and seeming good will! It seems as if I had well nigh finished my course, and our Lord was giving me an honourable discharge" (John Wesley, Letters, VII, 277. Letter to Miss Ritchie, June 26, 1785).

Assignment: Please spend several hours leafing through the selected parts of Wesley's journal (01 The Journal of John Wesley), taking a personal look at Wesley's daily routine and see for yourself the original account of the rise of Methodism.

Week 2 - Sept 12

"Methodism, so called, is the old religion, the religion of the Bible, the religion of the primitive Church, the religion of the Church of England" [John Wesley, Works (Bicentennial edition), 3, 585. Sermon 112, 'On Laying the foundation of the New Chapel' (1777)].

"We look upon ourselves, not as the authors or ringleaders of a particular sect or party; (it is the farthest thing from our thoughts;) but as messengers of God to those who are Christians in name, but Heathens in heart and in life, to call them back to that from which they are fallen, to real genuine Christianity" [John Wesley, Works, XIII, 195-196. Reasons against a Separation from the Church of England (1758)].

Assignment:

 - "The Almost Christian" pp. 47-57
 - "Awake, Thou That sleepest" pp. 59-73

Week 3 - Sept 19

"God himself has condescended to teach the way: for this very end he came from heaven. He hath written it down in a book. O give me that book! At any price give me the Book of God! I have it. Here is knowledge enough for me. Let me be homo unius libri" [John Wesley, Works (Bicentennial edition), I, 105. Preface to Sermons on Several Occasions (1746)].

"The Bible is my standard of language as well as sentiment. I endeavour not only to think but to speak as the oracles of God. Show me any one of the inspired writers who mentions Christ or faith more frequently than I do, and I will mention them more frequently" (John Wesley, Letters, V, 8. Letter to John Newton, April 1, 1766).

"But I try every Church and every doctrine by the Bible. This is the word by which we are to be judged in that day" (John Wesley, Letters III, 172. Letter to William Dodd, Mach 12, 1756).

"For from hence we may learn, first, that a catholic spirit is not speculative latitudinarianism. It is not an indifference to all opinions. This is the spawn of hell, not the offspring of heaven [John Wesley, Works (Bicentennial edition), 2, 92. Sermon 39, 'Catholic Spirit' (1750)].

Week 4 - Sept 26

"Do those who are in Christ have sin remaining with them? Is there any sin in those that are born of God, or do they have complete deliverance from it? . . . Resolving this matter very greatly concerns both one's present and eternal happiness."—"Sin in Believers" in Kinghorn, John Wesley on Christian Beliefs, Volume 1.

"Repentance in believers includes their understanding that they are sinners. Yes, even though we know that we are children of God, we are still guilty, helpless sinners." "The Repentance of Believers," in Kinghorn, John Wesley on Christian Beliefs, Volume 1.

 - "The Lord Our Righteousness" pp. 324-341.

Week 5 - Oct 3

Baptism is the outward sign of this inward grace which is supposed by our Church to be given with, and through that sign to all infants, and to those of riper years, if they 'repent and believe the Gospel'" [John Wesley, Works (Bicentennial edition), 11, 107. A Farther Appeal to Men of Reason and Religion. Part I (1745)]

"It is the duty of every Christian to receive the Lord's Supper as often as he can" [John Wesley, Works (Bicentennial edition), 3, 428. Sermon 101, "The Duty of Constant Communion" (1787)].

Week 6 - Oct 10

"Q.74. What is the direct antidote to Methodism, the doctrine of heart-holiness? A. Calvinism Q. 76. What can be done to guard against it? A. (1.) Let all our Preachers carefully read over ours and Mr. Fletcher's Tracts" (John Wesley, Works (Zondervan reprint), The Large Minutes 1744-1789, VIII, 336).

"Is not Calvinism the very antidote of Methodism, the most deadly and successful enemy which it ever had?" (John Wesley, Letters, VIII, 95. Letter to lady Maxwell, September 30, 1788).

"I believe, That God, before the foundation of the world, did unconditionally elect certain persons to do certain works, as Paul to preach the gospel: That He has unconditionally elected some nations to receive peculiar privileges, the Jewish nation in particular" (John Wesley, Journal, III, 84-85. August 24, 1743).

5. Wood, "Predestination and Holiness—A Lecture"

Week 7 - Oct 17

"Nay, remember, there can be no little sin, till we can find a little God! [John Wesley, Works (Bicentennial edition), 3, 383. Sermon 97, 'On Obedience to Pastors' (1785)].

"Nothing is sin, strictly speaking, but a voluntary transgression of a known law of God. Therefore every voluntary breach of the law of love is sin; and nothing else, if we speak properly" (John Wesley, Letters, V, 322. Letter to Mrs. Bennis, June 1, 1772).

"But is 'a voluntary transgression of a known law' a proper definition of sin? I think it is of all such as is imputed to our condemnation. And it is a definition which has passed uncensured in the Church for at least fifteen hundred years. . . . The thing is plain. All in the body are liable to mistakes, practical as well as speculative. Shall we call them sins or no? I answer again and again, Call them just what you please" (John Wesley, Letters, IV, 155. Letter to John Hosmer, June 7, 1761).

"I believe there is no such perfection in this life as excludes these involuntary transgressions which I apprehend to be naturally consequent on the ignorance and mistakes inseparable from mortality" [John Wesley, Works, XI, 396. A Plain Account of Christian Perfection (1766)]

"A thousand infirmities are consistent even with the highest degree of holiness, which is no other than pure love, an heart devoted to God, one design and one desire" (John Wesley, Letters, V, 6. Letter to Mrs. Bennis, March 29, 1766).

Please read the following assignments:

- ✚ Wesley, "The Scripture Way of Salvation" (Sermons 43, 1765). This sermon was written in 1765 and represents Wesley's matured interpretation of the way of salvation, clearly laying out the order of salvation. Some of his early sermons sometimes failed to make carefully nuanced distinctions between the justified state and the sanctified state that are found in this sermon.

Week Eight - Oct 24

"You would do more good and gain more benefit from being among us. Come, then, and if you do not wish to be an equal partner with me, I will be ready to serve under you." --This is an excerpt from Wesley's letter to John Fletcher, inviting him to be the co-leader of Methodism when Wesley was 58 years old and Fletcher was 32.

"Salvation is carried on by 'convincing grace', usually in Scripture termed 'repentance', which brings a larger measure of self-knowledge, and a farther deliverance from the heart of stone. Afterwards we experience the proper Christian salvation; whereby, 'through grace' we 'are saved by faith', consisting of those two grand branches, justification and sanctification. By justification we are saved from the guilt of sin, and restored to the favour of God; by sanctification we are saved from the power and root of sin, and restored to the image of God" [John Wesley, Works (Bicentennial edition), 3, 204. Week Ten - Nov. 7

It was then [after the coming of "the sanctifying Spirit" who was not previously given because "Jesus was not glorified"], when he had 'ascended up on high, and led captivity captive,' that 'the promise of the Father' was fulfilled, which they had heard from him. It was then he began to work like himself, showing that 'all power was given to him in heaven and earth.' 'When the day of Pentecost was fully come, suddenly there came a sound from heaven, as of a rushing mighty wind, and there appeared tongues as of fire; and they were all filled with the Holy Ghost.' In consequence of this, three thousand souls received 'medicine to heal their sickness,' were restored to the favour and the image of God, under one sermon of St. Peter's. Outler, Sermons, 2:454, "The Mystery of Iniquity."

Week Twelve - Nov 28

"I was intimately acquainted with him for thirty years. I conversed with him morning, noon, and night, without the least reserve, during a journey of many hundred miles; and in all that time I never heard him speak an improper word, or saw him do an improper action. To conclude: Within fourscore years, I have known many excellent men, holy in heart and life: but one equal to him I have not known; one so uniformly and deeply devoted to God. So unblamable a man, in every respect, I have not found either in Europe or America. Nor do I expect to find another such on this side eternity.

Yet it is possible we may be such as he was. Let us, then, endeavour to follow him as he followed Christ." (John Wesley, "The Life of John Fletcher," Works, VI, 482).

Week Thirteen - Dec 5

"This doctrine (entire sanctification) is the grand depositum which God has lodged with the people called Methodists; and for the sake of propagating this chiefly He appears to have raised us up" (John Wesley, Letters, VIII, 238. Letter to Robert Carr Brackenbury, September 15, 1790).

"[Wesley's] sermon on Christian perfection is still stronger. For in that discourse, he explicitly rests the doctrine of full Christian regeneration, on the full or Pentecostal dispensation of the Spirit. Take his own words: 'It is of great importance to observe, and that more fully than it has been done, the wide difference there is between the Jewish and the Christian dispensation, and the ground of it, which the same apostle assigns John vii.38, &c. After he had there related those words of our blessed Lord, He that believeth on me, as the scripture that said, out of his belly shall flow rivers of living waters, he immediately subjoins, This spake he of the Spirit, which they who believe on him were afterwards to receive. For the Holy Ghost was not yet given, because that Jesus was not yet glorified. Now the Apostle cannot mean here, as some have thought, that the miracle-working power of the Holy Ghost was not yet given. For this was given: our Lord had given it to all his apostles, when he first sent them forth to preach the gospel. He then gave them power over unclean spirits to cast them out; power to heal the sick, yea to raise the dead. But the Holy Ghost was not yet given in his sanctifying graces, as he was after Jesus was glorified. It was then, when he ascended up on high and led captivity captive, that he received those gifts for men, yea, even for the rebellious, that the Lord God might dwell among them. And when the day of Pentecost was fully come, then first it was they [the imperfect believers, who were not yet baptized with the Holy ghost and] who waited for the Promise of the Father, were made more than conquerors over sin, By the Holy Ghost given unto them." -An excerpt from Fletcher's essay on the new birth
