PLANTING NEW CHURCHES

I. INTRODUCTION AND COURSE DESCRIPTION
Welcome to “Planting New Churches” for the fall semester, 2004. I am Ron Crandall, McCreless Professor of Evangelism in the E. Stanley Jones School. This is a course I love to teach and have been teaching for 20 years. The course is designed to provide an orientation to the theological, sociological, and practical dimensions of starting new churches in North America. In addition we will take a look at case studies and opportunities for new church planting in other lands. There will be a definite emphasis on the “how to” and on the diversity of models being successfully employed today. Several new church planters and denominational leaders in this work will be with us in class to share their insights and lessons.

II. COURSE OBJECTIVES
With the much welcomed and long overdue renewal of interest in the new congregational development by many denominations, we intend to provide students with the best literature and insights available for successful leadership in this critical ministry of church planting. By the conclusion of the course, students should be able to:
1. Articulate a biblical, historical and cultural rationale for church planting.
2. Understand the significance and alternative strategies for building a core group.
3. Clarify their personality profiles, core values and ministry action plans.
4. Use demographic data to design culturally appropriate forms of evangelism, worship, discipleship, and leader development.
5. Plan for a church multiplication movement not just a single new church plant.
6. Access a wide variety of helpful resources on the internet.
7. Feel part of a network of church planters around the country and around the world.

In short, students will be ready to support others in new church planting efforts or begin a new church ministry of their own starting with day one.

III. PROCEDURE AND COURSE REQUIREMENTS
The course consists of weekly class sessions meeting Tuesday evenings from 6:15 to 9:00.
- Classes will include lectures, videos, discussion, personal research, and guest resource leaders.
- Readings, both required and collateral are considered part of the curriculum and a final reading record must be turned in on a "Reading Record" form (attached) by Dec. 14th. One point will be lost for each 50 pages not completed.
- A Critical Book Review following guidelines provided is due on Tuesday, November 16th. Texts noted with an asterisk * on the reading list are recommended.
- A Course Project is due on Dec. 7th.

Any student absent for more than one class period will need to read 100 extra pages for the class missed, complete a reading report on the material, and consult with the professor regarding other possible assignments.
A. READING REQUIREMENTS  (15% of Grade)

The following are required texts and a reading report must be completed on each:

   Reading report due on October 5th.
   Reading report due on October 26th.
   Reading report due on November 9th.

In addition to required reading, at least 500 pages of collateral reading must be read from the texts listed below or other materials approved by the professor. Materials read previously cannot be counted as collateral for this course.

2. Ralph Moore, Starting a New Church, 2002
17. Oscar Romo, American Mosaic: Church Planting in Ethnic Churches, 1993
29. George Hunter, Church for the Unchurched, 1996

AND Various materials from the internet, the library, or denominational sources.
B. THE BOOK REVIEW (15% of Grade) DUE 11/30/04
Students must select one of the texts above marked (*) and write a 750 to 800 word (word count important) critical book review following guidelines provided for writing academic-critical book reviews. PLEASE read samples of such reviews in academic journals if you are unfamiliar with this assignment.

C. CLASS PROJECT (50% of Grade) DUE 12/07/04
Each student will be responsible for a class project and a written report (or a take home final examination) due the last day of class. The following projects are considered to be most helpful, but other projects may be accepted after consultation with the professor.

1. Create your own MAP (Ministry Action Plan) following the process outlined in The Vital Church Leadership Incubator Guidebook and presented in class.

2. Choose a political area (a county, city, census tract, etc.) and study the census and/or current demographic reports. Compare this with earlier demographic studies or census for trends. Identify and interview at least one knowledgeable person who can interpret trends being noted and projected for the next decade. Then, do a "windshield survey" and identify at least one tract or other section of your area "ripe" for new church development. Write a simulated (or actual) proposal for such development to your judicatory office and make your case. Copy it to your professor.

3. Participate in a community survey seeking out the unchurched in a neighborhood or area. Evaluate their receptivity and identify basic human, social, and spiritual needs. Project the kinds of ministries and emphases that would best reach these people for Christ if a new church were to be started. Give a brief description of how you would plant a new church in this area, including your core values and philosophy of ministry.

4. Work with and interview a local pastor and/or denominational official involved in new church development. Evaluate the experience and report on lessons learned, contributions made, recommendations, etc.

5. Interview three new church planting pastors and at least two lay persons in each church. Write up your interviews in the form of three case studies not to exceed five double-spaced typed pages each. Include in each case study the basic historical, demographic and statistical information, problems faced, special awareness of God's presence, special gifts and emphases of the pastor, and other similar ingredients emphasized in our texts or in class.

6. Write or phone your own church extension board or agency requesting all available information on preparing you for a church-planting ministry. Write up an evaluation of their program and materials including such matters as alternative models for new churches, cross-cultural and ethnic minority focus, mission opportunities, the relationship of your polity to successful new church development, etc. If possible, secure for the "class reserves" an extra copy of any material not currently on file from your denomination or agency.

D. CLASS PRESENTATION (10% of Grade)
All Th.M., D.Miss., and Ph.D. students will be asked to lead the class in a 15-20 minute presentation on some aspect of the challenge before us. Select one of the areas listed below and draw on both your reading and your personal experience. A handout and/or PowerPoint slide presentation will be helpful.
IV. PROPOSED SCHEDULE
Although we may vary slightly from the order listed due to the availability of our "outside guests" and field contacts, our intended course outline is below.
