Course Aspirations and Place in the Curriculum

General Course Objective: OT 605 seeks to equip students for ministry by initiating them into the application of the discipline of biblical theology to the OT. The course explores the issues raised when we employ the fruits of exegetical and historical biblical study in shaping an understanding of the witness and core values of the OT seen as scripture, that is, as the critical norm and rule for Christian faith.

Three realities inform and shape our exploration of OT Theology. The first is that the OT and its theological perspectives originate from times, places far removed from any modern setting. In addition, its linguistic expression, literary genres, religious practices, and main ideas express the values of a culture distinct from our own. Thus the element of historical study of the OT strives for more than antiquarian illumination, but seeks to learn how we listen to God's word spoken in a language and accent not our own, from faces not the colors of our faces, and addressing cultural, political, and spiritual issues that diverge significantly from our own.

Second, this cultural distance does not stop with the OT. The earliest interpreters of the OT, who established its canonical shape and position in the Christian Bible came from Egypt, North Africa, Babylon, Syria, Turkey, and Asia Minor. Ignoring these voices forfeits formative insights into the OT's voice in the church. Therefore class will not be limited to the modern era, but will situate OT theology in the history of interpretation, the flow of the church’s quest to read the OT normatively, meaning that we will listen to voices from throughout the church's history.

Third, the reality of ministry shapes our approach. As we explore selected methods, insights, and examples of various attempts to read the OT normatively, we will risk a theological interpretation of select sections of the OT. Such a task must always be oriented to the question of how the OT provides norms and standards for Christian believing, worshiping, and living.

Specific Objectives: We will pursue the general objectives of the course by pursuing these specific objectives, which will shape the day-to-day conduct of the class. Students successfully completing this course will be able to:

1. Describe and assess the essential stages and developments through history of the theological interpretation of the Old Testament, making concrete reference to specific interpreters, and their exegetical efforts;

2. Describe and assess the contemporary discipline of OT Theology in terms of the original settings of the OT material, the history of its interpretation, and the problem of contemporary, normative use;

3. Set the methods and problems of OT theology in context by reference to selected contemporary and sometimes controversial voices, Brevard Childs and Hans Urs Von Balthasar;
4. Identify in the OT itself crucial thematic motifs or core values unfolding through the OT in its present, canonical form, that seem to form the basic network of theological teaching in the OT;

5. Work with specific OT texts to demonstrate how knowledge of the discipline of OT Theology, combined with an awareness of the overarching themes of OT theology, illuminate the OT.

6. Indicate how the themes of OT theology engaged in class facilitate the ministry of preaching, teaching, and worship leadership in the church.

Means of Realizing Course Aspirations

READING

Von Balthasar, Hans Urs. The Glory of the Lord—A Theological Aesthetics: Vol. VI, Theology: The Old Covenant. San Francisco: Ignatius, 1991, orig. Germ. 1967. This is a hard book! Von Balthasar is a theologian and this book is part of a 7-volume theological work that makes glory the organizing concept and which sets out a theological analysis of beauty. The climax of the work is an analysis of the OT (vol 6) and the NT (vol 7).

A significant selection of additional readings will be posted on the Intranet

Recommended: Bauer, David. Biblical Resources for Ministry Contains excellent listings of other volumes dealing with OT theology.

READING: You will read a LOT in this class! Reading exposes students to the discipline’s history and problems (Sailhammer, selected readings), and to modern statements of the field addressing the historical dimension of the OT faith (Miller), the exegetical-theological issues (Childs) and the larger systematic theological concerns (Von Balthasar). While readings are correlated to specific topics, it is recognized that students will not always be able to read the exact assignments for each day. What is required, though is a midterm and a final reading report in which you will indicate your completion of reading assigned to that date using a form I will provide for you. Each report is worth 25 points, for a total of 50 reading points.

LECTURES are a vital component of the course. Instead of directly expounding readings, lecture will present an attempt at a synthetic overview of the core values of OT theology.

Attendance Policy: Occasional absences are an inevitable part of academic life, but attendance is vital. Attendance will be taken via a daily sign-in sheet. The professor assumes students will exercise the highest diligence and integrity in recording attendance.
Student attendance will account for 25 points toward the total points earned. Thus if you miss 6 sessions, 19 points are recorded for attendance. All absences count, and all may be made up, therefore no distinction between “excused” and “unexcused” will be observed.

Any absence can be made up by contacting the instructor for a reasonable, brief written assignment to be completed by the student. Request for make-up work must be made by the student either ahead of time, or within a week of the absence occurred. The make up work must be submitted within a week of the professor giving the student the make-up assignment. Completion of the make-up work will remove the absence. Typically, make-up work involves listening to an audio recording of the missed class presentation and submitting a 1-page response or reading an additional article (of reasonable length) and writing a 250 precis.

Three Essays 7-8 pages (typed/printed, double-spaced, 1” margins) will be assigned. These papers are take-home assignments, details of which will be posted on the Intranet Course Center 2 weeks prior to the due date. They are to be the students’ own individual study, thought, organization, and wording completed without assistance from others. Use of materials other than texts and class notes is not required and will, in fact, detract from the student’s own analysis. Work done for other classes or by other students is dishonest and will result in a failing grade and institutional disciplinary action.

These papers will involve direct study of biblical texts and/or significant examples of OT theological interpretation, with a view to implementing insights gained from lecture and reading. Rubrics for evaluation of the essays will be included with each assignment.

Grade Calculation: Attendance and reading scores are entered as percentages.

- Attendance ---------------------------- 25 Points
- Mid Term Reading Report ------------- 25 Points
- Final Reading Report ---------------- 25 Points
- Essay One ---------------------------- 35 Points
- Essay Two ---------------------------- 40 Points
- Essay Three -------------------------- 50 Points
- Total Points: ____________________ 200 Points

Office Hours are indicated above, but you are welcome at any time to speak to me personally, call, or e-mail me with a question or to make an appointment. As a courtesy, I ask you not to "snag" me right before class. My middle-aged brain is working hard at that moment just to be ready for class!

COURSE CONFERENCE: By the second week of class, you will find on your ATS e-mail First-Class desktop an icon for BT 605. This Course Conference is vital to your work. All supplemental readings, essay assignments, and other materials will be placed here and not distributed in paper copy. Students are responsible to make sure they have the Course Conference icon on their First Class desktop. The conference will also include a discussion area where you may post questions, issues you'd like to have others talk about, or administrative questions.
