MI630/MI730. BIBLICAL THEOLOGY OF MISSION

Description

A study of principal texts in the Old and New Testaments dealing with mission, evangelism, discipling and renewal, with attention to relevant scholarly debate regarding their significance. 3 hours.

Objectives

1. To study Scripture so that mission is based primarily in God’s self-revelation.
2. To appreciate the whole biblical canon as significant for a biblical theology of mission.
3. To discern from Scripture both theological truths and practical models for mission.
4. To develop a biblical hermeneutic for cross-cultural mission.
5. To better understand the church as a missionary community.
6. To demonstrate the value of inductive study of Scripture for mission, evangelism, and discipling.

Course Method

Direct study of Scripture will be the primary focus of the course. This will be supplemented by assigned reading. Class sessions will be devoted mostly to the study of particular biblical passages, plus discussion of readings and some lecture material.

We will follow the schedule indicated below. Normally there will be a break from about 9:15 to 9:30.

Texts

The Bible. NRSV, NIV, or TNIV preferred.

Recommended Resources

Kingdom, Church, and World, by Howard A. Snyder. Wipf & Stock, 2002.

Course Bibliography

A fairly extensive bibliography for this course is provided in the seminary network version of this syllabus, where it can be consulted, printed, or downloaded.

Course Requirements

1. Participation in all class sessions, including taking an active, informed part in discussion.

2. Completion of readings and written assignments, as listed in the Class Schedule. For each class session, read first the listed Scriptures, then the assigned secondary reading. Note that there are three short written assignments, as indicated in the schedule. All students are expected to complete the “Required reading,” as listed; MI730 students should complete as much of the “Recommended reading” as possible.

3. A book report comparing and contrasting the views and hermeneutical approach and understanding of mission of any two of the following books. Due March 30.

Arthur Glasser, et al., Announcing the Kingdom: The Story of God’s Mission in the Bible
H. D. Beeby, Canon and Mission

4. A research paper delineating your own biblical theology of mission (20–30 pages). This should be based primarily on your own study of Scripture, though you may use secondary sources as relevant. Scripture references should be given in-text; for secondary works, use reference notes and bibliography.

Suggested methodologies: Trace a particular theme, or set of themes, through Scripture; or examine the theology of mission in up to four biblical books (including at least one O.T. book).

Some questions you may want to consider as you develop your paper: What key texts and/or hermeneutical approach will I use? What is God’s intent for people, the nations (or culture), and the creation? How are we to understand the central significance of God’s revelation through Jesus Christ? What is the role of the Holy Spirit in mission? In what sense is the church a missionary community? (You do not need to respond specifically to these questions, but such questions should inform the development of the biblical basis for your paper.)

The research paper is due May 11 but may be submitted earlier.

5. A take-home final exam consisting of three essay questions covering material studied during the course. The exam will be given out during the final class session and will be due in the ESJ School Office by 9:00 a.m. on Thursday, May 18.

Guidelines For Research Paper

1. You may use either the anthropological style (recommended by the ESJ School) or the Chicago/Turabian style, but be consistent. The paper must be computer-printed, and should include appropriate documentation of sources cited or consulted. (See “Academic Writing in the ESJ School,” available as a hand-out from the ESJ School Office.)

2. Attach a title page giving the paper’s title, your name and SPO number (or off-campus address), course name and number, professor’s name, and date. Staple in upper left-hand corner. Please do not use a cover or binder. (I may later request a second clean copy of your paper for my files.)
3. The paper should be at least 20 pages, and not more than 30. The grade will depend on the content, development of the argument, and evidence of adequate biblical research, not length.

4. The paper should contain no spelling errors. Use a spell-checker.

5. Please avoid these common mistakes:
   Improper or incomplete footnote/endnote style or bibliographic entry style
   Improperly placed (for U.S. English) quotation marks:

   Question marks, exclamation points, and semicolons are placed outside the quoted material unless they are part of the quotation. In blocked (indented) quotations of more than four lines, quotation marks at beginning and end of the quotation are unnecessary.

   Improper use of its and it’s.

   its is a possessive, meaning “belonging to it.”
   it’s is a contraction, meaning “it is.”

   Footnote reference numbers (if used) placed before a period or comma.

6. Students for whom English is not their natural language may want to get editorial assistance. I will evaluate only the final product. Correct English tends to have a favorable influence on grade.

Inclusive Language

“It is the policy of Asbury Theological Seminary to use inclusive or non-sexist language in all Seminary publications, literature and communications” (Statement of Inclusive Language, ATS Website). This should be reflected also in students’ written assignments, in all generic references to human beings—e.g., “humanity” or “humankind” rather than “mankind”, “her/his” or “their” rather than “him.” It is appropriate to refer generically to a person (human being) as “her,” “him,” or “their.” While cultural issues and sensitivities obviously enter here, in current U.S. English terms such as “man” and “mankind” are understood by many as excluding women, whatever the intent. So for theological and missiological reasons it is better to be inclusive. (See the seminary website for the policy statement and guidelines.)

Attendance Policy: See the current seminary Catalog, p. 25.

Evaluation

In grading, the course components will be weighted approximately as follows:

- Class participation, including input from readings 25%
- Short written assignments (3) 15%
- Book report 15%
- Final paper 25%
- Final exam 20%
